Vacation Bible Schools Hold Program Closing At Ormstown The Past Week

Ormstown Vacation Bible School under the leadership of the local ministers, Rev. J. C. Hood and Rev. A. E. Loree was conducted during last week in the Ormstown High School.

The various groupings were under the capable leadership of volunteers from St. Paul's United, St. James Anglican and Presbyterian Churches.

Nursery and Beginners — Misses Karen McCartney, Glen Sutton, Joyce English, Dorothy Winter.

Primary — Mrs. J. C. Hood, Misses Mabel Elvidge and Floris Henderson.

Juniors — Miss Grace Harkness, Mrs. McAskill.

Seniors — Rev. A. E. Loree and Mrs. John Wallace.

Part-time assistance — Misses Sandra Begbie, Vera Rutherford, Marion Swan.

Pianist — Mrs. Olive Goodall.

Director — Rev. J. C. Hood.

On Friday evening, July 8th, the closing program was held in the auditorium with a good attendance.

The program opened with three numbers by the whole school, "The Teachings of Jesus," "Give to Jesus," "A Child's Prayer."

Rev. A. E. Loree led in devotions.

Rev. J. C. Hood explained the purposes and the program of the school and reviewed the week's activities. He noted that there had been a steady attendance, and also the presence throughout the week of children who were visiting relatives in Ormstown. The offerings during the week amounted to $20.65 and this amount was forwarded to the Children's Missionary project of the Canadian Council of Churches.

The program consisted of each class singing the songs and telling of the work during the week. The Beginners had action songs, Primary played two selections on Hummers that they had made, Juniors a choir selection, Teenagers had a recitation by Marielle Green.

Mrs. Olive Goodall, the school pianist was accompanist for the evening.

Certificates were presented to all who attended.

After singing the Doxology and the Benediction, the visitors viewed the attractive display of workbooks and handicraft that had been done during the week.

Daily Vacation Bible School

Daily Vacation Bible School closed Friday evening at the Ormstown Fair Grounds with a program, when parents and friends attended. Two weeks had been spent studying the Word of God under the theme "Signalling for Christ," singing and handicraft work were also added features. Sixty children were enrolled and all seemed to have a profitable and enjoyable time. Mrs. Robert Eastwood acted as pianist.

The Beginners' class presented their memory verses with an illustration on the flannelgraph. These were interspersed with choruses and followed by Rhythm Band. Their study was under the heading "God's Signals to Bible Children."

The Primaries studied Bible Boats, the stories depicting 'Miracles of The Sea'. Seeing God's wonders in the deep signalled the need to board the Gospel Ship and with Christ as Captain to safely sail life's sea. There was a cheerful nautical note throughout, the "crew" wearing jaunty sailor caps and collars made during handicraft periods. With demonstrations on the flannelgraph and the memory work repeated in unison, they then joined in singing "Sailing", "Oh, the wonders of my Saviour", "Can It Be" and "Following Jesus." Two signal flags added a naval appearance.

The Junior Classes of boys and girls, combined for the program studied the Christians Walk and Talk. In these days of satellites and back-to-earth communications, they could more readily comprehend the facts of receiving God's signals, living by them, and then sending them to others. They enjoyed learning from the great signalman Paul, how he received his signals from the Lord and in turn wrote them in the Bible so that even we today can know how to belong to the Lord and behave as his children. Dressing in costumes for the program, they depicted Bible characters and showed how they walked with the Lord. Several choruses were heartily sung.

The Intermediates took up signals from Jesus' parables. These earthly stories with heavenly meanings portrayed Jesus' signals, which transmit eternal truths. A Biblical crossword puzzle was completed and the Junior class joined with the Intermediates in singing choruses.

Group choruses by the entire school were enjoyed with Nettie Tavenier giving the signals for the Theme song on her clarinet, then playing a musical selection.

Prizes were distributed and Rev. Hurtubise closed with prayer.

The handiwork accomplished was on display and was viewed by all.

Significant Things That May Have Far Reaching Results

(by Dorothy Barker)

Two rather significant things happened during the first two weeks of June. Plans were completed for representatives of a new organization called "The Voice of the Women", Toronto's new disarmament group, to place their objective before Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Liberal Leader Lester Pearson, and the first woman was elected to the Provincial Parliament of Nova Scotia. The objective of the new organization is to enlist the women of the world in a campaign for the abolition of nuclear weapons. The blessing of government leaders, it was considered, would lend strength to the campaign.

If there is a spark of truth in the old saying that, "the hand that rocks the cradle, rules the world", the vision of world peace has a chance of success. At least these aroused and greatly alarmed women deserve cheers for their effort.

The significance lies in the fact that Gladys Porter of Kentville, Nova Scotia, though not the first Canadian woman to seek public office, is a thoroughly conscientious and dedicated representative of the people. What's more, she is an enthusiastic supporter of our democratic way of life.

I met her last year when I travelled by train to attend the Annapolis Valley Blossom Festival. At that time she was serving her tenth term as Mayor of Kentville. She is a Junoesque, silver-haired grandmother, feminine to her finger tips but with a keen analytical mind and a highly developed sense of duty.

If some persons are born with a silver spoon in their mouths, Gladys Porter, nee Richardson, must have been born with a gavel in hers, to use a platitude. She comes by her political aspirations naturally for her father, brothers and an uncle have all made their mark in the Nova Scotian political arena. Her father, Wallace A. Richardson, was mayor of Sydney for 17 years, as well as being the editor of the Sydney Post Record now the Cape Breton Post.

Just as behind every successful man there is said to be a woman, behind Gladys Porter is an understanding husband. It was my observation that it is Wyman Porter's tolerant and unselfish sharing of his wife with the communities in the Annapolis Valley, that has a great deal to do with her continuing popularity as a public figure.

It was typical of this energetic woman that she should choose a newspaperman as her life's companion. He is Valley Editor of the Halifax Chronicle-Herald, and they have lived in the Annapolis Valley for thirty-five years. They have a daughter and two grandchildren.

Why Drown?

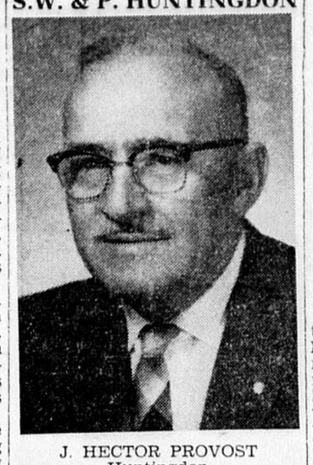

A new technique developed within the past 25 years can prevent death in the water. It is called Drownproofing and is aimed at freeing the potential drowing victim from panic and exhaustion, the principal causes of drowning.

A current magazine article reports that the theory behind Drownproofing is that muscle and bone sink; fat and air float. The proportions of each in the human body are such that, with lungs fully inflated 98 out of 100 men and practically all women will float against the surface of the water if they don't try to hold their heads up.

In Drownproofing there are two strokes — one to stay afloat, one to get to shore without tiring. In the stay afloat stroke, you hang relaxed in a near-vertical position in the water, letting your head dangle, face down. Every few seconds you raise your head for a change of air. The other stroke, the "travel stroke", will enable you to travel at least a mile without fatigue.

With practice anyone over the age of four can learn the technique with ease. Advanced age and poor physical condition are no obstacle.

Farm Forum Looks Ahead

National Farm Radio Forum's new theme, The Sixties — Decade for Planning, will focus attention on the major changes in agriculture, both on the national scene and on each individual form, that must evolve in the next ten years.

In order that National Farm Radio Forum itself will be able to keep in step with these changes, the 1960 Conference, held in June near Charlottetown, passed the following resolutions:

1. That NFRF undertake an assessment and study with the idea of strengthening the present program and/or suggesting additional techniques to supplement and complement those now in use. In particular it looks to the development of programs which can further utilize radio and television while retaining the basic reliance upon group discussion as part of such programs.

2. That a Study Committee of National Farm Radio Forum be appointed to plan and make national arrangements for the carrying out of this study.

3. That the first step of the national study be to make regional or provincial studies and that the co-operation of the Farm Forum organization be enlisted for the organization and carrying out of these studies. These studies should be carried out on a co-ordinated national basis.

4. Arrangements should be made in each province or region for at least one senior farm organization representative to be associated with the carrying out of the study.

5. That in carrying out its work the study committee obtain the help and advice of persons with special skills and knowledge in the field, this recommendation to be understood to refer to work at national, regional and provincial levels.

6. That on completion of the regional studies, a special national meeting should be held, attended by the study teams from all regions and by National Farm Radio Forum representatives. At this meeting, the regional study findings would be reviewed and national recommendations for future action would be reviewed.

7. That the objective should be to have the regional studies completed and the special national meeting held in time for the final report to be ready for presentation to the semi-annual board meeting of NFRF in January or February of 1961. The target date for completion of the regional studies be October 1, 1960.

A three-man committee has been placed in charge of this project. Members of the committee are: Mr. R.G. Knowles, National Supervisor, CBC Farm Department; Mr. H.R.C. Avison, Director of Extension, McGill University; and Mr. David Kirk, Secretary, Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Regional committees will be set up in the near future and the study should be completed in time for the Semi-annual meeting of Farm Forum in early 1961.

Khrushchev Threatens U.S. If Cuba Interfered With

The crisis in relations between the United States and Cuba was heightened last weekend by Premier Fidel Castro's charges of new aggressions, and a warning by Soviet Premier Khrushchev that Russian rockets could hit the American mainland if the U.S. moved against Cuba.

In Moscow, the Soviet premier in a bristling speech warned the United States to keep its hands off Cuba.

In Havana, Castro declared he now has at his command "100,000 militiamen with hundreds of thousands of rifles," plus new automatic weapons on the way.

The new tension followed a sharp cut by the U.S. in its import quota for Cuban sugar, and a suggestion of an oil blockade in retaliation against Castro's move in nationalizing foreign-owned oil refineries.

Khrushchev charged that the U.S. is attempting to strangle Cuba with an economic blockade, and promised to "help our Cuban brothers" to fight it.

In New York, Standard Oil of New Jersey indicated it will consider blacklisting any western tanker owners and brokers who carry Soviet oil. Castro was counting on supplies of Russian oil for the refineries that have been taken over.

Congo Revolt

The Congo's first week of independence from Belgium was chaotic. Negro troops mutinied against their Belgian officers; tribal clashes between Negroes continued; provincial governments threatened to secede.

Panic-stricken whites fled the African republic last Friday when mutinous troops seized effective control of Leopoldville, the capital.

Tension was no sooner subsiding in Leopoldville than an armed rebellion broke out in the copper-rich Congo province of Katanga. Two Europeans were shot to death by Congolese troops. Virtually all other white residents of Katanga managed to escape in boats down the Lulubo River to Mabalo.

Katanga, wealthiest province in the Congo, is on the border of the British protectorate of Northern Rhodesia. A report that Rhodesian troops were marching toward the Katanga frontier was denied at Salisbury, the Rhodesian capital.

At Leopoldville, a 12-hour reign of terror by the mutinous army ended with agreement by Premier Patrice Lumumba's government to dismiss all white Belgian officers from the armed forces. Several thousand whites had fled Leopoldville, and thousands of other Belgian women and children were planning to go.

Tanker Disaster

The first oil tanker to dock at the big new Esso oil refinery at Milford Haven in Wales blew up and caught fire last Saturday while discharging crude oil, nearly taking the $51,000,000 refinery with it.

The chief steward of the 23,000 ton tanker Esso Portsmouth was killed and three men were injured. After three explosions, someone thought of shutting off the oil discharge line, or it would have been the end of the refinery.

Hoax on TV

The case of the girl who bared an alleged career as a divorce co-respondent to a television audience — then told newspapers that her story was a hoax — may close where it began, in the lap of the Ontario attorney-general's department.

On CBC's May 26 "Close-Up" TV program the woman being interviewed, her face shaded and her identity not revealed — said she was paid $100 a night to pose as a co-respondent in 120 divorce suits.

After Attorney-General Roberts of Ontario saw a private re-run of the TV film he sought the woman's identity from the CBC, and turned the matter over to the provincial police. The CBC stated the only identity they had for the woman was an alias, Mercedes Hunter.

Then last week the Toronto Telegram identified the woman as Joan Johnson, a Toronto model who uses the professional name of Joan Campbell. Miss Campbell, a divorcee, told police, newspapers and radio listeners that she faked her TV role as a professional divorce co-respondent, for a $150 fee, and had never been such a co-respondent paid or unpaid.

"Unknown to the CBC it was entirely a hoax," said Miss Campbell. "I've always wanted to be an actress, and I was — for the duration of that program."

Body in Trunk

A charge of murder against Leonard Ede, 39, held by police at Toronto, was dropped last Saturday after a coroner's investigation found no evidence of external violence in the death of Mrs. Marjorie Scott, 36, whose body was found last month in a trunk at Argentia, Nfld.

The body, cramped into a small trunk, was discovered by a railway express agent at Argentia on June 7. The trunk had been shipped collect from Toronto. The coroner's report said no cause of death other than asphyxia had been determined.

Identity was established June 14 through RCMP fingerprint files. Mrs. Scott was a native of Napanee, Ont., who had worked as a waitress in various Ontario communities.

Safety Is A Personal Thing

IN A WORLD where international discussion is on the level of hydrogen bombs it is difficult to focus attention on personal survival in the home, at work, and at play. Yet the danger of death and disablement resulting from everyday accidents is real and immediate — and every person can do something about it.

Safety is a personal thing. The very simplicity of this fact makes it necessary to repeat it often.

Most accidents are caused by ignorance, carelessness, selfishness or impatience, and all these accidents can be prevented.

There is no immunity from danger: the thing to know is how to meet it. They are unfortunate people who imagine that life can be wholly secure and certain. Man has been living on the earth for perhaps a quarter million years, and during almost all of that time his life has been one continual struggle to keep himself alive and to bring up his children.

Self-preservation is an instinct in all animals. It dominates the bird that alights on your bird bath just as it does the antelope that tremblingly approaches an African water hole and furtively drinks. A few seconds of inattention may mean that the bird falls prey to a cat, or that the antelope is killed by a lion. Nature holds all creatures accountable for their involuntary as well as their voluntary behaviour, and man is no exception.

Instinct alone will not save us, although it does wonders. Under the pressure of necessity it has the big advantage of not stopping to deliberate: it acts. But instinct should be our last defense. All that we can do to meet danger should be planned in advance. This is a personal responsibility from which we cannot escape.

It is not enough to put a guard around the physical hazards. We must put a guard around our thinking also. Consider our emotions. Even if the conduct of other people has been the cause of our emotion, it is really we ourselves who have created the resulting danger by the way in which we have reacted. When we see a car weaving dangerously on the highway we don't say "that car is behaving dangerously", but "that is a dangerous driver." Our best guards are between our ears.

These guards must be kept alert. Safety cannot be taught in two or three lessons and then neglected. Some safety measures can be made into rituals which we follow without conscious thought, but we need to be on the lookout for little deviations which introduce new dangers.

Safety versus bravado

He is a silly person who raises his feeling of courage by the ill-considered acceptance of any and every risk. Most of us have to guard against this temptation. We may be driven by inner compulsions to indulge in dangerous practices. A feeling of indetermination not to let another driver pass us on the road. We may know ourselves to be timid, and do rash things to show our friends that we are not cowardly. The dread of humiliation is a strong force propelling us to do unwise and dangerous things.

We are subject to a constant conflict between self-realization and self-preservation. A soldier wants to preserve his life, but performs daringly because he wishes to be respected by his comrades. A woman inclined to put on weight will diet dangerously to keep her figure slim. Physical damage and mental upset are often the result.

What shall we do in the face of emotional urges that drive us into danger? Pay attention to the alarm bell: appraise the risks; take the measures necessary to eliminate the danger, or at least to minimize it. As Shakespeare put it in Twelfth Night: some people are wise enough so that they can play the fool — they know how far they can go in dangerous situations.

The time to be afraid is before the thing happens. A wholesome fear will make us attentive to safety measures, and when we have taken these precautions our minds will be clear to cope with the situation.

But we cannot allow carefulness to paralyze us. If we wait always until the outcome of our movements is certain, we will never move. We must know how to take chances intelligently. There are times to takes risks; there are times when we must take risks; but these should commend themselves to the rational man as being worth the chance.

Irrational fear returns injury with compound interest. Fear of being told he has a disease prevents a man from visiting a doctor; fear of death prevents a man from making a will; fear of a noise kept the diarist Pepys shivering under the bedclothes while he imagined his gold was being stolen. We can't go far in life if we row with one oar in the water and the other on the shore.

Another sort of panic terror is that in which the victim has no clear notion of any definite danger. This anxiety neurosis feeds upon itself, makes existence miserable, and frequently shortens life. It is an old saying that if gravestones told the truth, nine out of ten of them bear a line to this effect: "This man's life was shortened several years by the fear of bad developments, most of which never occurred."

Fear, then, while being a healthy safety device when kept within bounds, can in itself become a menace to self-preservation if allowed to run wild.

How to be safe

Most accidents may be avoided or prevented by the excercise of ordinary common sense.

There are people who profess to scoff at safety measures. Some drivers scorn the "stop, look, listen" signs at level crossings. Some home workshop people read only so far as to learn how to start and stop a power tool. Some office workers go probing around a stalled electric typewriter with a metal paper knife.

Education in safety begins with study of responsibility — responsibility for preservation of our own lives and the lives of others. It doesn't cease with stopping and looking and listening — it goes on to think. People who refuse to think about safety are setting the stage for tragedy.

The pity of it is that dully ignorant or actively careless people do not harm themselves alone. There is no such thing as an isolated human being. Our highways and our waterways

Man Killed In Explosion On Tugboat — Child Dies of Injuries When Struck By Car

An explosion occurred on a tugboat in the St. Lawrence River, between St. Regis and Dundee, on Thursday, July 7th, one man being killed and another seriously injured. The tugboat "Collette Simard", owned by Marine Industries, was pulling a barge loaded with dredgings from the canal and had arrived at Canal Island, near St. Regis, where it was to be unloaded. It was as the crew were preparing to unload, that the explosion occurred.

The chief engineer, age 48, Adrien Couchesne, of Ville Tracy, near Sorel, was tending to the boiler, when it blew up in his face. A plate in the boiler struck him and killed him instantly. Denis Boily, age 20, of Sorel, who was assisting, was also seriously injured. He was taken to the Hotel Dieu Hospital in Cornwall and is still in serious condition. The accident occurred about 3 p.m.

Dr. George Lefebvre of Huntingdon, Coroner, held an inquiry and a verdict of accidental death was given. Sgt.-Det. F. Wilmot made the investigation.

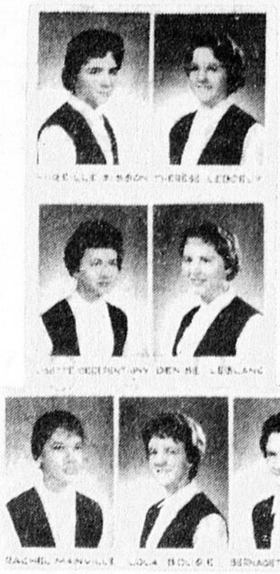

An accident occurred in Hemmingford, on July 4th, when Robert Tetrault, age 3 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roma Tetrault, Hemmingford, was struck by a car and died later in the day at Barrie Memorial Hospital.

The boy was playing in front of his home in the village on Route 52, and ran out into the road in front of the car. The car was driven by Gilles Fortin, age 28, who did all he could to avoid hitting the child, but was unable to stop.

Const. Fred Kyle was first on the scene and Sgt.-Det. F. Wilmot took charge of the investigation. Dr. L. Pilon, Coroner, held an inquiry the same evening, and gave a verdict of accidental death.

A mechanical defect was the cause of accident to a transport truck, on Tuesday morning, near the Bruce Ness Farm, Howick. The truck was owned by Clarence Robidoux of Athelstan and used as a transport and was on its way to Montreal, when the accident occurred at about 10.20 a.m. A U-bolt sheared off the front axle and the front wheels went under the truck causing the driver to lose control. The truck then struck a tree and was so badly damaged as to be a total wreck. Fortunately on one was hurt and no other vehicles were involved.

Safety A Personal

are dotted with the bodies of men and women and children who were the victims of foolhardy people.

Laws are not enough to preserve society. The desire for safety is the background from which has sprung some ninety per cent of our criminal law. The Roman law said: "The safety of the people is the supreme law." But until we desire to live safely the law cannot be effective.

Those who are interested in educating themselves or others in living safely will find many sources of information and inspiration open to them. Free literature on the prevention of accidents is available from provincial departments of health and from the Department of National Health and Welfare, Ottawa. The Government Insurance Agent, published by the Saskatchewan Government Insurance Office, Regina, devotes many pages to practical tips on staying alive and preserving property from fire and other hazards. The Safety Counselor, Edmonton, Alberta, gives current news and ideas about safety. If enough residents in your area are interested, they can arrange for a first aid course to be given them by the St. John Ambulance Association. Or they may organize a Local Safety Council — an excellent public service activity to be sponsored by town councils, service clubs, home and school associations, or other public-spirited organizations.

The adoption of "Safety" as their "good turn" in 1958 by the Boy Scouts of the United States probably grew out of a movement started in Saskatchewan some years ago. A report of the Saskatchewan project, involving 8,000 Scouts and Cubs and 3,000 Guides and Brownies, was published by the National Safety Council in Chicago.

But the Canadian Boy Scout plan for safety education is a continuing one, attempting to teach safety through skill. Boys studying for proficiency badges learn safety rules under such headings as "water safety, winter scouting, swimmer, venturer, pioneer, pilot, pathfinder, mountaineer, marksman, forester." For his first star the Wolf Cub must show that he understands the highway safety rules of his province in relation to pedestrians. This could be extended usefully if the Cub were to pass on the knowledge to his car-driving parents.

Safety in the home

Because so many accidents which result fatally occur in the home, the greater part of this Monthly Letter will be devoted to the challenging problem of safeguarding parents and children in what could be made the safest place in the world.

It has been said by authorities that at least three quarters of all domestic accidents are preventable. That places the responsibility squarely on the senior members of the family, not only to remove all possible hazards but to secure family participation.

Good housekeeping — cleanliness and orderliness — is a fundamental of accident prevention in home, office and factory, and on the farm. It prevents accidents by removing their causes.

In well-kept homes, offices and factories, there are no loose objects on stairs, floors and landings; no articles that can fall from overhead; no wet or greasy floors; no projecting objects in hallways or aisles; no exposed nails or sharp pieces of metal; and no sharp utensils or tools lying where they may be inadvertently touched.

Here are some facts gathered from the records of many thousands of home accidents.

About four out of five home fatalities occur inside the house, and more than half of these happen in a bedroom. While more men are hurt on stairs and steps, more women are injured in bedrooms. Causes of bedroom accidents include: loose rugs; smoking in bed; leaving clothes, dressing stools, chairs and other objects where they may be tripped over; careless handling of electric plugs; leaving doors partly open.

Having a handrail on every stairway is a safety "must". When someone leaves an object on the steps, or there is a broken or odd-sized step, or if the carpet is torn, or when someone slips, many accidents on stairways could be prevented if there were something to grab quickly. The lighting of stairways should be good, rugs should be well anchored.

Electrical hazards must be guarded against. Don't break through or saw through a wall without turning off the electricity at the main switch; you may strike a wire cable with fatal results. Don't leave a fan, a radio, or a heater where it may fall into the tub when you are bathing; don't forget that even with the plug pulled out your television set is dangerous, because the rectifier tube stores up and holds high electrical energy; don't leave bare wires, empty light sockets or defective appliances where they can be touched by chance.

Among danger spots in the kitchen are the stove, of whatever sort; knives; electrical appliances carelessly used; lye, ammonia, and cleaning fluids; open cupboard doors; slick waxed linoleum; careless climbing to reach high shelves; and pots left on the stove with their handles pointed outward.

In the safe home the bathroom is kept clear of loose razor blades and safety pins. Medicines are in a high latched cabinet. More than six hundred deaths due to accidental poisoning of children are recorded in the United States every year. It was said in the CIBA Clinical Symposia in midsummer 1951: "The number of children who have been accidentally poisoned as a result of parental carelessness is truly tragic." In Canada, more than 3,000 persons died in ten years as a result of accidental poisoning.

What to do about it

Here is a programme of action. The home in which it is followed will be by a big percentage less likely than others to suffer deaths and pain and the cost of accidents.

It requires only a little time. The action can be made a game, with everyone taking part. It does not demand money expenditure, but it does need leadership and the overcoming of listless inertia.

Let's start by making a job study in the home. What does who do where? Is the environment safe? Are the tools as safe as they can be made — properly sharpened, properly set up, properly guarded? Is the worker well-instructed in safety procedures and conscious of the danger element?

Some factories have safety committees: why should not every home have one?

What is needed in both factory and home is co-operation. The only effective way to bring a factory or a home through a year without serious accident is to have everyone become part of a co-ordinated effort to apply thinking, experience and ability to the problem.

Such a committee in the home could be fun. First of all, brainstorm the project: gather the family together and throw on the table the problem: how can we avoid accidents?

If you are lucky enough to have a daughter who is a stenographer, persuade her to take notes of all the dangers mentioned, and give her time to add her own suggestions. If you have no stenographer, do the best you can to put down in writing all the ideas that are proffered by your family. Do not leave out any, however trivial they may seem to you: these are danger spots perceived by others.

Then, when everyone has exhausted his stock of thoughts — ranging from the menace of that rotting tree branch in the garden to the danger of parking a mop on the cellar stairs; from the hazard encountered in walking across a newly-waxed floor to that of using a makeshift ladder to put up storm windows — then turn everybody loose on the constructive correction of all unsafe conditions. Give everyone a sense of personal responsibility for the safety of everyone else. Give everyone something worthwhile to do.

As part of the project, draw a diagram of your home showing the accident danger spots. Mark in red the places where accidents have already occurred. List the safety precautions already observed in your home. Have you safety gates to protect your young children, a firm stepladder, a rubber mat on which to stand when working with power apparatus? Are all your extension cords in good shape and well placed?

There should be a continuing function for this home safety committee, which should be a "committee of the whole". Here are some suggestions:

Meet regularly. Put the date on the family slate or diary. Discuss the near-accidents that have occurred; consider new hazards that have arisen through the purchase of new equipment. This rallying round to ensure the safety of everyone is the backbone of a family safety programme.

Inspect the home regularly. The committee of the whole will tour the house and garden to find dangerous conditions that have developed. What about that tin of naphtha Dad got for his blow torch: is the garage a safe place to store it? Should the stair carpet be moved so that the worn spot falls on a place where it is not likely to catch a spike heel? Try out the child's swing: is it well-secured and are the bolts still unrusted and strong and the rope not frayed? Look at the lighting: has someone hung something in a place where it throws a shadow on a treacherous step? Ask your provincial or municipal health departments for a safety check list.

Investigate accidents. Every accident is the result of someone's carelessness. It is important to find out why it happened so that a similar danger may be avoided in future. Did someone throw a paring knife carelessly into the dishpan for the dishwasher to grasp? Did someone put a carton on the cellar steps, meaning to carry it down, and then forget it? Did someone neglect to wipe up that grease spot on the linoleum?

Sponsor first aid treatment. Part of a kitchen drawer can be set aside with profit as a "first aid centre." Have in it always the things that are needed for quick treatment of burns, scalds, cuts and poisons. Everyone in the family should know what to do in emergencies, the amount of knowledge being relative to age. The telephone table should have, prominently displayed, the telephone numbers of doctors to call in emergencies.

Advertise safety. You can get small attractive posters from the Industrial Accident Prevention Association, Toronto, and similar organizations in other provinces. These apply mostly to factories, but many are equally suitable for homes. Post these, or home-made posters, at potentially dangerous places: the ironing centre, the pressure cooker cupboard, the workshop power saw or drill, the power lawn mower.

Plan special features. For example, once a year make a square foot by square foot examination from attic to basement to discover developing hazards before they reach a dangerous state. This, done in the right spirit, can have all the interest and excitement of a family Easter egg hunt.

It seems, somehow, that people on farms look upon "clean up days" as something exclusively for city dwellers. But the dangers we have referred to can be just as fatal in the country as in the city.

Safety of children

In our way of life a child's world should be a place of comfort, love and happy security, a good place to live in.

It is a fact, shown by statistics, that we are saving children from smallpox, pneumonia, scarlet fever, and other epidemic diseases that used to ravage them, only to lose too many of them through accidents.

It is a tragic irony that accidents, largely amenable to control, outrank by a wide margin every other cause of death among young children.

Christian Smith, Director of Health Education in Saskatchewan, says: "In the ten years from 1947 to 1956, almost 20,000 Canadian children lost their lives in accidents. Conservatively, we estimate that 1,500,000 children were injured in non-fatal accidents. The yearly toll of children's lives runs close to 2,000."

Besides the family sorrow that loss of these lives causes, it is a national calamity.

Today's child, whether in the city or in the country, is surrounded by lethal weapons, and we cannot escape the charge that four-fifths of all accidents to children under five years of age are due to errors of omission or commission by adults.

During the baby's first year, outright protection is the only course to follow, but education against accidents should begin just as early as possible, and should progress year by year. When the child reaches school age he must be safety-minded enough to take care of himself in a world that can be very dangerous. This education must anticipate, rather than follow, disaster. One of the best booklets on child accident prevention yet published on this continent is called The Vital Role of Obedience in Your Child's Safety. It was distributed to physicians and others interested by the American Academy of Pediatrics, Evanston, Illinois, last year.

Look forward

When a man has escaped injury in an accident he should take time to analyse what happened so that he may avoid the same danger in future. How much did he contribute to the dangerous situation?

The first question that should spring to our minds when we become involved in an accident is: "How did it happen?" It doesn't matter whether the accident is a little one, like a cut finger, or a big one, like a fractured skull — find the answer to "how" and you are forearmed against a repetition.

Let's give over preaching safety in a broad, grave, general way, and pinpoint it as a personal obligation.

In the midst of our machines, our household appliances, our poisons, our fires, and all the natural forces which we have brought under partial control, we risk our lives every hour of the day. It is only good sense, in this environment, to become not accident fearing but safety conscious, remembering that our safety is up to us — a personal thing.

A tidal wave caused by an earthquake took 27 lives in the fishing communities along the Burin peninsula, Newfoundland,

Dow Chemical Introduces Feed Additive For Warble Fly Control

A significant advance in control of warble flies in cattle is claimed by Dow Chemical of Canada, Limited for Trolene FM-40, the first systemic insecticide in feed additive form.

Mixed in commercial feeds and fed to cattle for seven consecutive days between September 15 and December 15, Trolene FM-40 eradicates warble flies in the larval stage before they can cause economic damage to cattle.

As a feed additive, the insecticide is simple and fast to administer. Trolene FM-40 eliminates the use of wetting spray and the need for special high pressure sprayers or restraining equipment.

Treatment is relatively inexpensive according to Dow. In exhaustive tests of Trolene FM-40, approximate costs of treating a 600-pound steer worked out to sixty cents. Probable losses caused by the warble fly have been estimated at from $3 to $10 per head, depending on the severity of grub infestation. By controlling warble flies in the larval stage, Trolene FM-40 reduces weight losses from gadding, cuts dockage on slaughter cattle due to grub damage and eliminates damage to hides.

Trolene FM-40 is not recommended for treatment of lactating dairy animals nor for use in combination with antibiotics.

In areas under the Warble Fly Control Act, animals are exempted from rotenone spraying in the spring when grubs have been effectively controlled by systemic treatment the previous fall.

Highway Safety Makes Driving Fun

Thousands of motorists about to start lengthy vacation trips are being warned against "taking the fun out of driving with unnecessary risks".

This friendly warning comes from Arch W. Bryce, general manager of the Canadian Highway Safety Council.

Haste on the highway is waste most of the time and may mean the pleasures of a good holiday destroyed, the highway safety official declared.

"You will enjoy your trip much more, and it will be much safer for you, when you take road conditions into account and you adjust your speed to weather conditions. It's also advisable to get out of your car every 100 miles or so to stretch cramped muscles and to restore alertness with a cup of coffee," he added.

"Remember," Mr. Bryce cautioned, "spending long consecutive hours behind the wheel to pile up large mileage in one day invites exhaustion and exposes drivers to becoming victims of 'highway hypnosis'."

For this reason, the practice of regular coffee-breaks by professional truck drivers of large fleet operators is particularly sound, he suggested.

There was no fun in holiday driving for some 750 people who lost their lives last year on Canadian highways between Dominion Day and Labor Day, Mr. Bryce recalled. "Most of them would still be alive if they or someone else had slowed down."

Mrs. Mary Lasker, widow of pioneer advertising man Albert D. Lasker, decided a few years ago that the downtown streets of cities should be made more attractive and livable — with flowers. She began her crusade by working with four bleak blocks on New York's Park Avenue. Any city that wants to beautify itself will find that it has to work hard. "You need some zealots to get it going," says Mrs. Lasker.

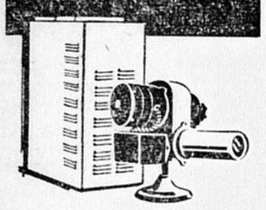

In the right hands, hypnosis can be a healing pathway into the mind for a wide variety of ailments. The current issue of Reader's Digest reports that healing by untrained hypnotists flourishes in the country today. A person should not submit to hypnosis without convincing evidence of the integrity as well as the scientific ability of the hypnotist.

Rotary Club Meeting

At the Rotary Club meeting on Monday, Norbert Bourgon was presented with a Past President's badge by George Dixon. Mr. George Thompson was the speaker and he gave an article on the origin of money and its effect in the economies of the country over the years. The article started with the means of exchange by the barter system, which in turn gave way to a system of money and up to the present medium of exchange. It explained the various methods of doing business and how some things can effect the economy if not in proper balance. Practically every phase of the economy was touched upon to show the effect of money transactions. The crux of the article was that we must produce to keep our money at par and anything over or under which goes to extremes can cause a disruption of the economic system.

Covering The Sports

The 18th hole at the fancy Cherry Hills Golf Club in Denver, Colo. is 463 yards long. Par is four.

A lake runs along almost the entire left side of the fairway. The tee shot has a 210-yard carry over deep water.

Scenically, it is beautiful. But what a brutal, terrifying situation for Brother Duffer as he steps up to belt one.

For those brave enough to meet such a challenge, listen to the woes of professionals, men who make their living following a little white ball around miles of grass many days of the year.

The 1960 United States open was held at Cherry Hills and the first day was a nightmare for some pros. The event may go into the book as the fishiest ever.

Trout were jumping into the air all around the 18th tee, lapped by the lake water. Tempesuous Tommy Bolt, who thought he had beaten his hot temper once and for all, stepped up to the tee.

Big Splash

He drove. The ball plunked into the water, sounding as though a healthy trout had leaped high for a juicy bug. Bolt drove again. Same thing happened.

Bolt blew a gasket. He threw his driver into the lake and stomped off. Officials of the Professional Golfers Association were waiting and slapped him with a $100 fine for endangering the life of his golfing partner — Claude Harmon. They called it "conduct unbecoming a professional."

Bolt withdrew from the tournament with the comment: "I am sick as a dog."

Then came Bill Ezinicki, known as Wild Bill when he toiled in the National Hockey League. Ezinicki, a native of Winnipeg, took a vicous cut on his tee shot, into the water. He blasted again. Into the water.

Pat Schwab of Pensacola, Fla., followed. One ball, then two, into the lake. He and Ezinicki finished with 83s, the worst rounds of their pro careers.

Doug Sanders of Miami Beach, Fla., showed up. The club swept back. A trout broke water in front of him and Sanders' ball sailed into the water. He ended with a two-over-par six.

No Alibis

Sanders declined to alibi. His observation: "It made such a splash I thought for a minute somebody was unloading a truckload of empty beer cans. Golly, whatta jolt."

The old pro, Sam Snead, gave the fish a bit of a tickle on the 17th, also plagued by a lake. He skipped his tee shot across a moat and it rolled to within five feet of the pin for a birdie.

The fish must have appreciated that attention from Sam. After all, some of their brothers contributed to his success on a fishing trip in the Colorado Mountains where he hooked a dozen out of a lake a few days before the tournament.

So, the next time you dump a ball into the lake, remember, the fish have problems, too. Just like pro golfers. And duffers.

Teatime Topics

Huge "tulips" may soon be towering over Canadian towns.

The "tulips" are actually old eyesores, water towers, gaily painted. The tulip is one of five designs. Hugh Campbell of an industrial color studio in Toronto says some are in stripes of different shades and all can become an emblem for the town. Fort Erie, Ont., is the first to adopt the plan.

The tulip design is painted in green stone, turquoise and buttercup yellow.

Plants and Holidays

Most house plants can be moved successfully from living room to the outdoors when the family leaves for its summer vacation.

The two exceptions, warn horticulturists with Ontario's agricultural department, are the African violet and gloxinia. They can't stand strong outdoor light.

A shaded spot in the garden, the north side of the house or the porch are suitable spots where the plants will get enough light.

Before leaving, give the plants a deep watering. Plan to prune too. The neat trim will make the plant bushier for fall.

If the plants are left in the garden it's a good idea to treat for insects and disease.

This brings a word of warning regarding children. Chronic nibblers, they'll put almost anything in their mouths including flowers. It can be dangerous if children eat flowers sprayed with insecticide.

Most containers of chemicals list instructions for relief in case of this happening so be sure to read the fine print.

All garden sprays and dusts should be stored well out of children's reach.

Better Brides

In the editor's corner of the Canadian Association of Consumers' bulletin, the association points out that June was the month that one of the country's most valuable crops was harvested — brides.

The editorial says that "as soon as the wedding vows are exchanged the bride is at one stroke a homemaker, the potential mother of future citizens, guide and director of physical health, moral tone, spiritual insight and economic stability of one of the country's integral units which will determine the ultimate character of the nation itself."

The CAC plea is for a well-rounded course to prepare women for their role as homemakers.

"Because this new homemaker was born a woman she was not magically endowed with all the insight, foresight, virtues and graces, plus a good sound knowledge of the jobs of cook, nutritionist, child psychologist, husband psychologist, economist, judge, mentor, teacher, nurse, interior decorator, hostess and manager required of her."

The CAC urges the nations' educationists not to overlook the importance of universal training for future homemakers and consumers.

QUEBEC PAINTER SHUNS ABSTRACT

Quebec, (CP) — Canadian painter Francesco Iacurto says abstract artists seem to be painting for another planet.

Iacurto is a conventional artist here, a graduate of the Beaux Arts school in Montreal and a member of the Royal Canadian Academy. In an interview he said that in Paris, world capital of painting, the top artists are getting away from abstractions in favor of more recognizable forms.

Abstract painting, he asserted, is "congested with small-time masters, third-rate artists, muddlers who want to jump over the preliminary stages in learning art — it is much easier than studying seriously — and who delight in their insipidities."

STUDENT DENTISTS HAVE BUSY CENTRE

HALIFAX, (CP) — Dalhousie University here boasts one of the most modern dental centres in Canada. Treatment is administered to the public at token fees, and many toothaches have been relieved at the Dal faculty of dentistry, headed by Dr. Robert Bingham.

But this dentist's office is different — it's manned by its own students, provided they have adequate training.

Aspiring dentists enter the dentistry faculty after at least two basic years in the arts and science faculty of some accredited university.

The first two years at the school here are devoted mainly to lecture courses, seminars and basic laboratory courses.

In operative dentistry, the laboratory consists of simple fillings and other introductory features.

The bulk of third and fourth year work involves more advanced dental care, carried out first in the laboratory, and then in the clinic.

A new modern building, completed two years ago, now houses the Dalhousie dental school and clinic.

Dundee

DUNDEE — Mrs. Wm. Arnold was hostess to the Dundee W.I. last Wednesday. Special speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. Lyle Currie, still a Dundee W.I. member but, who now resides in Bombay, N.Y. She also brought with her a former member, Mrs. Basil Hewson, now living in Buckingham, Que.

Mrs. Currie is a member of the Bombay Home Bureau and she brought hints about how to use plants to decorate a home. Different varieties of self clinging evergreens make an outside chimney look less bare but should never be allowed to grow dense as the body of the vine against the color of the chimney is very striking. Plants growing in a planter should have similar watering and growing habits. In buying plant pots one should purchase them all in one color. Mrs. Currie also gave a recipe for preserving flowers for winter decoration. She gave several ideas about the care of plants and named several varieties easy to grow indoors. The convenors gave interesting reports. Mrs. T. W. Stowell led a discusson about ways that rural conditions are affecting our youth Mrs. Gardiner read an article about the International House Club in Vancouver. Here half of the students are Canadians, half from foreign lands. Ideas are exchanged, social times are enjoyed and a better understanding of other people's problems is growing. Mrs. Smallman read an article about the growing need in our society for a better understanding of our older citizens and their requirements. Mrs. E. J. Cameron showed a picture of Dr. Best, co-discoverer of insulin, baby sitting with his small grandson.

Mrs. Jos. Platt told about pork chops being especially delicious baked in a barbedue sauce. Mrs. A. H. Fraser gave a report about the convention at Macdonald College. She told about the handicraft display and about seeing the four articles sent by Dundee.

Mrs. Arnold served a delicious supper at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. Joseph Platt's mother, Mrs. Benane of Florida is visiting her for a few days. A sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Pharmer of Florida, also Mr. George Pharmer of Lake George, N.Y. and Miss Mildred O'Connor from Glenn Falls, N.Y. are staying for a few weeks at a camp at Smellie's Point.

Make Sure Cottage Drinking Water Is Safe

Safe drinking water is a necessity at the cottage. Where there is doubt the recommended procedure is to either boil all drinking water or purify it by chemical tablets.

An easier solution is now available to cottage owners with a pressure system. A small, compact sterasyl water filter and purifier developed by a British company is now being sold in Canada through hardware, department and plumbing supply stores.

Only 12" high and 2½" in diameter, the purifier is easily installed above or below counter at any tap where pure drinking water is required. The cartridge filters out all solid particles and kills all bacteria to provide germ-free water from any river, lake or well, with no taste of added chemicals. The cartridge is replaceable and has a normal continuous life of 18 months.

The relatively low cost of the purifier has been further reduced this year by the first use of a high density polyethylene plastic case which wears and looks better than the more expensive porcelainized metal case previously used.

More Truth Than Poetry

One of the hardest thing to teach a child is that truth is more important than consequences...

When a woman asks to see something more expensive, she's shopping; when she asks to see something cheaper, she's buying...

It's funny how the strongest words often show up in the weakest arguments...

There is some consolation in the fact that even if your dreams have not come true, neither have your nightmares...

The plural of whim is women...

Nowadays when you see a father and son together chances are the one with the beard is the son...

(The Reader's Digest)

Bats Harmless, Useful

Bothered by bats?

Bats often establish colonies in attics and walls of dwellings in rural areas and become a nuisance.

But, advises the Canada Department of Agriculture's Research Branch, bats are harmless and useful creatures that feed exclusively on night-flying insects, many of which are destructive pests.

Get rid of the bats, say the researchers, but don't destroy them.

An effective repellent is two to five pounds of naphthalene flakes scattered in spaces occupied by bats. If applied during warm weather, reports claim, this will prompt bats to leave — even in daylight. They will stay away as long as the naphthalene odor persists.

After the bats have been evicted, all openings three-quarters of an inch or more in width, such as small crevices around the eaves and at the bases of rafters, should be filled. Cracks at the base of the chimney should be filled with cement.

If these openings are not closed after the bats have been driven out, the supply of naphthalene must be renewed periodically to prevent their return.

Fumigation will kill bats, although use of poison gas is recommended only as a last resort. Hydrocyanic acid gas, although highly effective, is also extremely poisonous to human beings and should be applied only by a licensed fumigator.

AVOID ACCIDENTS

None of this cat's nine lives are in danger since the blasting caps it is investigating are not loaded. But the stray caps sometimes found near construction sites are definitely loaded and can mean plenty of danger for children who pick them up. Contractors using explosives and blasting caps are required to keep their supplies locked up. But parents and public authorities can help to avoid accidents by warning children not to touch any caps they find but report them immediately to a policeman or a fireman.

FEWER REGISTERED

AIRPORT BEACONS

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) —The federal transport department has advised city council that the B.C. Power Commission has been engaged to instal five hazard beacons for the Kamloops airport. The work, costing $32,000, is expected to be completed in September.

Sports Camera

The picture of a squat, broad-shouldered gentleman standing his ground behind home plate, barking at enraged players or managers, has tickled fans down through the years.

His decisive calls of "steerike..." or "ball..." have incensed many folks. And his air of infallibility can be annoying, to say the least.

Now, in this age of guided missiles and moon strikes, comes a machine that could eliminate those arguments that spice any game.

Lloyd F. Knight of Glen Cove, N.Y., has been granted a patent on an automatic device with an eye so true on balls and strikes the plate umpire could sit in the stands and make the calls by watching a monitor.

This is how it would work: Balls and strikes would be determined by using three television cameras — one on each side of the batter and the third as close overhead as rules permit. Only two cameras would be used at one time, the overhead camera to determine whether the ball went over the plate and one of the side cameras to determine its height. Which side camera is used would be governed by whether the batter was right or left handed.

On Record

On any disputed call the umpire could rerun the tape record to settle the argument.

By setting three cameras in the stands at different angles the accuracy of calls on base runners could be verified.

Knight, from a baseball family and former pitcher in the United States Air Force, says his intent is not to do away with umpires, but to make their decisions infallible.

For those who relish the human touch, do not fear. Such an innovation is a long way off. The equipment is not yet in production, although parts have been tested.

Greatest Golfers

Ever wonder how today's golfers stack up against the old-timers?

Mike McCormick, 60-year-old caddy at famed St. Andrews in Scotland, says they may improve the equipment but they don't improve the man. He says Bobby Jones is the greatest golfer ever to walk a fairway.

"When they made Mr. Jones, they threw away the mold. He was a gentleman — as an amateur should be — and he was a great master. I've seen them all — or almost all — and I can't rank any with him.

"Mister Jones never made more than two bad shots on a round. He was always thinking the right shot."

The five best golfers Mike ever saw: Jones, Walter Hagen, Ben Hogan, Henry Cotton and Gene Sarazen, in that order.

What about Arnold Palmer, 30-year-old sensation from the U.S.?

"When Palmer plays on some more of our courses and learns to memorize where he should play his shots, he may be a great one, too. But not yet."

SHIPYARDS BUSY AROUND HALIFAX

HALIFAX, (CP) — Halifax shipyards say they have received enough orders to keep the yards operating at a steady rate for at least three years.

Work starts next month on construction of a destroyer-escort for the navy which will cost $26,000,000 and a $3000,000 ferry for the CNR to ply the Northumberland Strait between Borden, P.E.I., and Tormentine, N.B.

Unless the yards are working on new construction, employment has generally been seasonal. Repair business drops off during the summer when the St. Lawrence Seaway is open and ships head up the river.

Although some of the equipment for the new navy vessel, the Annapolis, will be made elsewhere, other Maritime firms will benefit. For example, the sonar equipment will be made by the E.M.I. Cossor Company Limited of nearby Woodside, in conjunction with the Dartmouth naval research station.

The Annapolis will be the sixth MacKenzie class ship in the Canadian navy, and its 20th new anti-submarine destroyer-escort.

Jet interceptors still have role say flying crews.

Comox, B.C., June (CP) — Despite development of guided missiles airmen at this RCAF station feel they still have an important job to do. They are still eager to scramble into their CF-100s and race to altitudes of around 40,000 feet to intercept unidentified aircraft over the British Columbia coast.

The Night Hawk squadron, recently captured the Laurence Steinhardt memorial trophy as the most efficient all-weather interceptor squadron in the air force.

Justifiably proud of their triumph, the boys, under command of Wing Commander Hal Bridges, beat out eight other squadrons to bring the trophy west of the Rockies for the first time.

The day-to-day job outlined by Squadron-Leader Bob McFadden, veteran of 18 years air force flying, is to intercept, identify and destroy if necessary unknown aircraft not identified by ground-control units.

Young Pilots

Using CF-199 fighters (the squadron also uses T-33 jets for instrument training) the young pilots, average age 22, scramble to intercept an average of 15 unidentified aircraft each month.

"It has gone down a lot lately," said Sqdn-Ldr. McFadden. "Four years ago there were as many as 200 a month".

These may be bombers of the USAF or Neptune sub-chasers from the RCAF which have strayed off course, or commercial aircraft.

"Identification is a very important role," said Sqdn.-Ldr. McFadden. "Someone has to establish that the planes are friendly. If we do away with manned interceptors, how are we going to establish it? As long as there are bombers around, fighters will serve a role."

The Night Hawk squadron is convinced its role is still functional, although no one says how long it will remain so. The boys are proud of their serviceability rating, flight safety and record in interception exercises.

They are proud of being able to get out and get a plane off the ground in four minutes during the daytime, seven at night.

"Sure, we have occasional doubts," said McFadden. "But generally we are all convinced we are doing a worthwhile job."

Don't Be Afraid To Face Change

Change is inevitable and to try to prevent it is to try to shut out life itself, reports the Reader's Digest. We could spare ourselves much regret if we regarded change as a chance to grow. It is when we fail to change that we fall behind in living and our spirits age.

The best way to face changes is to welcome them. Don't waste time longing for the happiness of the past. It is possible for us to prepare for change by rethinking our habits, making small changes when we can, to keep us mentally and spiritually alive.

Day by day we can make small adaptations to keep us flexible and venturesome. Experiment with your daily routine. Do in the morning what you formerly did at night, and vice versa. Go by yourself where you are used to going with others. Walk where you usually ride.

Most important, try to do without as many things as you can. One thing that most pins us in ruts is our fondness for habitual comforts. Practice flexibility and your days will become eventful. You will be keeping up with life rather than letting it pass you by.

Egypt's High Aswan Dam, begun on the Nile River last January, will increase Egypt's agricultural income, but the huge lake it produces may drown forever 3000 years of history, reports the Reader's Digest. Chief among the thousands of ancient and priceless works that may be inundated are two dozen Pharaonic temples, some of the loveliest and most awe-inspiring structures ever built by man.

Remember When

The only thing on television that annoyed a man was bad reception?

Science-fiction stories were something to laugh at?

"On Time" meant punctuality, not deferred payments?

(The Reader's Digest)

As a part of a test in a ninth-grade English class, the students were to write a letter that some well-known person might have written during his life. Time was limited, but the teacher was hardly prepared for one boy's brief note: "Dear Josephine, I am sorry to inform you that I did not make so well at Waterloo. Yours truly, Napoleon."

Well, at last it seems as though we are definitely going to get some different weather; let us hope so anyway, and I am sure there will be days when many of us would only be too glad to be able to go for a swim, but the question is unfortunately where, without having to travel a long way. Let us all hope that it won't be too long before something is done about our river, here in Chateauguay.

A big welcome home goes out this week to Mrs. I. Rutter and her daughter Heather of 19-A Normand Bouleward, Chateauguay Centre who returned via B.O.A.C. from Manchester, England, where they have spent the past two months on vacation. Mr. Ian Rutter was at Dorval Airport to meet his family. The writer is sure (being English too) that the return to the old country was indeed a happy occasion and along with all friends of Mr. and Mrs. Rutter would like to say simply: Welcome back to Canada Joan.

Glad to know that Mr. Jackson of Rosenfeld Farm, Salaberry South, is now home from hospital and all wish him a speedy recovery after his nasty accident a few weeks ago.

Mr. Lakatts of Montreal spent the week-end in Chateauguay as guest of Mr. and Mrs. Morris of 208 Salaberry St. and was able to get in a few hours fishing.

Would like to wish Mr. and Mrs. Gray all the best of luck and and happiness in their new residence at 1, Reid Blvd. Chateauguay Centre.

Mr. and Mrs. Trevor Griffith, Wayne, Mandy and baby Ryan spent Wednesday evening as guests of Mrs. Jarvis, 30-A, Normand Blvd. Mr. and Mrs. Griffiths have moved back to Lachine, Montreal, after a twelve months stay in Trenton, Ontario, where Mr. Griffiths was in the R.C.A.F. but is once again (a civilian). A very pleasant evening was spent talking over old times.

Would like to take the opportunity of wishing Miss Monique Desgroseilliers best wishes and lots of happiness in her forthcoming marriage on July 15th, to Mrs. Jean Guy Danjou, who had a stag party on Wednesday, July 5th, causing lots of excitement around Chateauguay Centre.

Mr. T. Thompson spent a short visit at his home, 3rd. Ave., Chateauguay, then back to the lonely bush of Labrador, where it is hoped his wife will soon be joning him for a vacation.

Once again, a reminder that as always the number to call is OX. 2-9012.

of Route 9C and the old Route 3 at Caughnawaga, a 1958 Meteor owned and operated by Lucien Thibault, 37, of Montreal, collided with a car driven by Edmund Badeau, 47, of 12 Bailey St., Lewiston, Maine. Mr. Badeau's sister, Miss Gabrielle Badeau, 43, of 8020 St. Hubert St., Montreal, was injured in the mishap and was taken to Lachine General Hospital by Lachine Ambulance Service. Miss Badeau is reported to have died shortly after arrival at the hospital. The Thibault car was a total loss while the Badeau car, a 1956 Chevrolet, was damaged to the extent of $1000. Sgt. Det. Gagne of the Homicide Squad was called. Officers Roussy and Bonhomme made an investigation.

Five-year-old Robin Scott of Veterans' Blvd., Caughnawaga, was taken to the Lachine General Hospital on July 11th., after he was struck by a 1953 Ford station wagon driven by Marcel Gigault, 32, of Route 9C, Caughnawaga. The child was taken to the hospital by his parents. Officers Carreau and Tetreault of the Provincial Police investigated.

Edith Ann is doing an excellent job of helping the children play safely at the playground and it is hoped that each parent will see that their children are taught to respect her. It's for your child's safety and your own peace of mind that Edith Ann is being paid to do this work.

On Saturday, July 9th, a track and field meet was held at l'Esperance Park, St. Lambert. Although there were only three entrants from Chateauguay, they were able to do fairly well. Sandra Scott was the only one of the three to place and came third in the 60 yard dash. There are to be more of these meets when it is hoped there will be a larger number of entries from this area.

Another regatta was held this past week at Grand Trunk and the Chateauguay team again placed third. They must like that number 3. 25 points were gained however. It is hoped that some higher placings will be made soon — say second, or even first.

On Friday night, a street dance was held on Spring Crescent between Craik and Lensoyne Streets. The weatherman did not co-operate, but it did not dampen anyone's feelings. When the rain started, the firemen were nice enough to open the vacant garage on the corner of Craik and the dance went on as planned. Another dance is planned for this Friday, and also on Saturday, in Prudential, on St. Patrick Street. Invitations are extended for both of them.

Judy Etherington visited her aunt and uncle in Greenfield Park, and on Sunday, went to Plattsburg with them.

Coleen Walsh and family took advantage of the fine weather and took in some swimming at Ste. Martine, on Thursday and Sunday.

Bernie Keenan and Tommy Long tried their hand at painting in St. Isidore and were complaining of sore backs for a while afterwards.

On Saturday night there was a party at the home of Bruce Appleton. Everyone had an enjoyable time.

Frank Jones returned home on leave from H.M.S. Cornwallis, Nova Scotia. Best wishes for a pleasant leave, Frank.

Please phone your news in early, before Sunday night. Let's have a good big column this coming week.

Welcome New Residents

The latest additions to our happy project are: Jim and Pamela Powell of 34 Circle Park. Mr. and Mrs. Powell are originally from Kent, England, and have been residing in Canada for nine years. They have four boys, Lindsay age 12 years, Clive, 9 years, Raymond 3 years, and Jamie 8 months. The Powells are staying at Circle Park only until their house, which they have purchased on the other side of the highway is completed which will be approximately at the end of August.

Mr. and Mrs. Omer Duquette moved to 94 Delisle from Montreal last week. They have two children, Serge 11 years and Monique 12 years.

All those who have not yet made their application for membership into the Prudential Home Owners' Association, and wish to do so, please phone OX. 2-4765. Remember, this week is the deadline in order to benefit for the Tolhurst offer. Membership into the association can reap you many other benefits, also. The executive members are a group of hard working individuals who are constantly striving to make Prudential a better place in which to live. Mr. Laberge, the president, is extremely conscientious and devotes all of his spare time to meet the demands of his office.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith, Oxford Crescent, had the right idea. They spent the week-end at Brome Lake, lucky people.

There must be a new airport nearby. Lately, the way the planes have been swooping by, one can almost expect them to drop in for tea at anytime.

Mystery question: Who owns the big black car with the big, big va-va-va-voom sound?

Dog owners, please tie up your pets if you do not wish to have a stiff fine imposed. Although we all like dogs very much, they are a menace to lawns and gardens. Please remember your letter boxes. There are still quite a few people who have not attached them to their houses. If we are to receive mail delivery to the homes, there must be at least eighty percent of the residents displaying a letter box in front of their house.

The Field Day that was held on July 1st, was only one example of what the Prudential Home Owners' Association has done and will do to occupy the youngsters and adults alike, with good, clean, wholesome fun.

Mr. MacDonald, of the Protestant School Board would like to remind those who are interested, that there are meetings held the second Monday of every month at the Julius Richardson School at eight p.m.

The river is notorious for its pollution, so please restrict your children from swimming there. Don't wait until its too late and your youngsters come down with some disease. Old proverb: "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure".

There has been talk recently, amongst the girls, of forming a union for housewives. Now this, I think is a right smart idea Rulings would be handed down as follows:

1. Husbands would have to help with the dinner dishes.
2. Husbands would have to take the wives to a restaurant at least once every month.
3. On the husband's days off, he would have to share more in minding the children, particularly during the preparation of Sunday dinner.
4. Also the wives would have to come to an agreement as to how much allowance should be paid to the husbands, something like fifty cents a week. Sounds good, huh? Who wants to join?

URBAN SPRAWL

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) Community sprawl for the sake of vastness is economic nonsense, says J. W. Wilson, executive director of the British Columbia lower mainland regional planning board. He told a meeting here the urge of North Americans to go to the wide-open spaces has produced "unbridled optimism incompatible with the community aims of safety and comfort."

Above is a view of the youngsters as they attended the first annual picnic of the Chateauguay Branch of the Canadian Legion, which was held at the Memorial Park in Malone, N.Y. It was an unqualified success and everyone had a most enjoyable time.

All Grand Trophies are for annual competition.

The Home Bake Table proved quite a hit and the ladies of West End are to be congratulated on the lovely display of home cooking. The children all enjoyed the pony rides and there was quite a line-up till everyone had their turn. There were several booths with games of Chance and the Fish Pond seemed to do a thriving business. The auction sale was loads of fun with Pat Wilkins doing a good job of auctioneering. In all it was quite a day and as this is to be an annual event it will be something the children will look forward to every year.

First Annual Legion Picnic Is Tops

(By Mildred McCutcheon)

A day to remember with pleasure —the first annual Canadian Legion Branch 108 picnic which was held on Saturday, July 9th, at the Malone Memorial Park. Even the weatherman looked with kindness on this event, providing a lovely balmy day, hot in the sun, cool in the shade and downright cold in the lake.

Two bus loads of excited children heading the caravan, private cars following at their leisure, provided the Customs men at Trout River with unusual activity. The children arrived around 10.00 a.m. and were given free tickets for ice cream and soft drinks.

The lunch period from 12-1 was followed by races and games, 17 events in all. Perfectly organized the races were run-off in the short period of one hour, prizes received with great delight, a few tears shed by non-winners too young to understand that all competitors did not get prizes, but enjoyed by all, spectators incuded.

A free afternoon spent in the most orderly and friendly manner imaginable and in perfect setting. Mr. George Johnston and his committee are to be commended for a "truly perfect day".

It is up to everyone of us to make this a tremendous success, thereby paving the way to more social activities. Admission is free. There will be refreshments and multi-prizes. In case of poor weather, it will be held the following Saturday. 5-year-old Anna Cooper of 98 Theberge St. was rushed to the Montreal Children's Hospital in Montreal about 10 p.m. on July 9th, after she drank a quantity of Javex. Anna was taken to the hospital in the Town of Chateauguay police ambulance. She has since recovered. Many commodities such as detergents, soaps, etc., come in bottles that have a likeness to some soft drink bottles, and undoubtedly should be kept well away from the hands of toddlers.

Mr. Irvine Watt is back at City Hall, after spending an enjoyable week in the Saguenay area and Eastern Townships district. Mr. and Mrs. Watt were guests at Manoir Richelieu at Murray Bay for a time where they enjoyed golf and swimming facilities. Mr. Watt said they enjoyed a real old-fashioned reception at Loretteville after their son's wedding on Saturday... they were driving with the wedding party to the reception when they found the road blocked with about fifty young farmers who had piled bales of straw across the road as a blockade. When the party arrived these fellows fired round after round with their rifles and then surrounded the bride and groom and offered their congratulations. Both Mr. and Mrs. Watt were greatly surprised by this reception but they were assured it is done for every couple getting married and is an old practice in the area. The Watts drove 1500 miles on their vacation.

Results for nominations for school board candidates were known about 8.30 on Monday evening, when the final count was made public to several hundred people who congregated around Pie XII school. Feelings have run quite high in the area about the Roman Catholic educational facilities for English-speaking children. The results were as follows: Robert Faust, 158; Allan Pilon, 123; Edmund McElroy, 117; Maurice Crepin, 106; Robert Curaton, 85; Marcel Fournier, 81; Carl Baranowski, 30. Edmund McElroy was defeated by eight votes for a seat on the school board of Chateauguay Centre, but he and his supporters say the fight has not yet been won as one of the gentlemen receiving more votes than Mr. McElroy is alleged to have been in arrears re. school taxes. Perhaps more excitement is in the offing.

Jos. Laberge is now Mayor of the Town of Chateauguay. Mr. Doucet, Secretary-Treasurer, finished the official tabulation around 10.30 p.m. Monday at City Hall and Mr. Laberge was found to have defeated his closest opponent, Edmund McElroy, by 79 votes.

Again several hundred adults were on hand, this time at City Hall, and after the results were made known a motorcade drove through every section including Chateauguay Gardens, Vetville, Chateauguay Terrace, Vetville and Colonia. Results were as follows:

Poll No. 1, Notre Dame: Laberge: 84; McElroy: 192; Soyez: 56; Duranceau: 26.

Poll No. 2, Pie XII: Laberge: 38; McElroy: 44; Soyez: 25; Duranceau: 5.

Poll No. 3, Aquatic Club: Laberge: 132; McElroy: 35; Soyez: 15; Duranceau: 1.

Poll No. 4, Vetville: Laberge: 109; McElroy: 13; Soyez: 22; Duranceau: 5.

TOTALS: Laberge: 363; McElroy: 284; Soyez: 118; Duranceau: 37.

Ex-Mayor Soyez and Mr. Duranceau will lose their deposits.

At the peak of excitement during the counting of the votes for Mayor on Monday evening, Chief Rousseau received a telephone call that 3-year-old Roch Pelletier was missing from his home at 48 Duranceau St. The child was found wandering on the street and was returned to his home.

Voting was not confined to the Town of Chateauguay on Monday, in Chateauguay Centre two seats were being contested for the Catholic School Commission of Chateauguay Centre. Thomas Guthrie, representing The English speaking population polled 79 votes; he was defeated by Paul Halle who polled 264 and André Lefebvre who counted 189. There are 59 English-speaking Catholic families in the area and it is their aim to have one member on the School Board. As things are, the education facilities for the English are grossly inferior to that of the French-speaking population, yet the English pay more in taxes because their homes are new and their properties are valued higher. The English want equal opportunities for their children; which, if one stops to think, this is only fair if they pay higher taxes. One of the officials of the Catholic School Commission of Chateauguay Centre, is alleged to have charged that the English-speaking Catholics were not asked to live in Chateauguay therefore they should be content with what facilities they have. Happily, not all French Canadians entertain this attitude, as evidenced by the fact that only 59 English families were eligible to vote; of this number, many work in town and were unable to reach home in time to cast their ballots: in short, definitely twenty, and perhaps many more, of the votes cast in favor of Mr. Guthrie were cast by French-speaking Catholics. At least the English Catholics have made themselves noticed. Mr. Guthrie was unfortunately accorded some adverse publicity that was not sanctioned by him or his supporters that undoubtedly harmed his chances of winning a seat, but this was not done maliciously; on the contrary, it was the result of a well-meaning supporter being over-eager to see that her children received proper representation on this School Board. Tom Guthrie is one of the most popular men in Chateauguay Centre today: after the election he proved himself a good loser and a good sport and was acclaimed by the French population "un bon gars". One of the men who defeated him said he wanted fairness and they would work with Mr. Guthrie to defeat narrow-mindedness.

At two a.m. on July 8th Chief Rousseau assisted by his Constables arrested three men who had stolen a 35 h.p. Johnson outboard motor from a craft anchored in the Chateauguay River. Fifteen minutes later the men were in the office at City Hall awaiting arrival of the Provincial Police. The three were: Benoit Gilbert, age 35, of Chateauguay, who was driving the getaway car with the motor in the trunk; Thos. Evens, age 47, no address; Maurice St. Onge, age 58, no permanent address. The three were turned over to Officer Derail of the Mercier Bridge detachment of the Provincial Police and are now in jail.

I wish to express my thanks to all who helped to elect me to the Catholic School Board of Chateauguay Centre.

Paul Hallé

I wish to thank the electors of the Chateauguay Centre for my election to Catholic School Board.

I will do my utmost to serve them well.

ANDRE LEFEBVRE

My sincere thanks to all who supported me during the Chateauguay Centre Catholic School Board Elections.

Young Child Swallows Javex

(By Mildred McCutcheon)

Summoned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Cooper, 98 Theberge Avenue — Colonia on Friday night at 10 p.m., Constables Dubuc and Marshall found that the young daughter of the Coopers', Anna, aged five, had accidentally taken a drink from a bottle of Javex, Mr. Cooper with great presence of mind had made the child drink milk while awaiting the arrival of the Police. Constable Dubuc immediately took Mr. Cooper and Anna in the patrol car to the Children's Memorial Hospital in Montreal. Constable Marshall remained at the Cooper home with Mrs. Cooper until friends arrived to take care of the mother. From all reports we are happy to say that Anna is doing well, and we hope that parents will exercise great care with such every day commodities, but oh so dangerous to the little ones.

Haffey of Toronto; a sister, Irene; and two brothers, Joseph of Toronto and Paul of Ottawa.

Gladys Porter, M.P.P. elect, is a whiz bang, but her husband thinks she will eventually kill herself in the service of others. "She never spares herself", he commented to me. When asked how it felt to be the husband of such a popular woman his eyes twinkled as he said, "Well, it's like this, when you are introduced repeatedly as Mr. Porter, the husband of our Mayor, you kind of get used to it. That is, if you have a sense of humour." Needless to say, Wyman Porter has and I expect it will stand him in good stead when Gladys takes her seat during the first session of the Maritime province's next parliament. Now he is, "Mr. Porter, husband of our representative in the Legislature".

Perhaps in my enthusiasm to pay tribute to Gladys Porter I have undersold the supreme effort women in Ontario are undertaking to try and make peace a comforting reality. Mothers of little children, stenographers, clerks in stores and grandmothers have volunteered by the hundreds to write letters to friends all over the world to promote an all-out war against nuclear armaments. How far this little pebble, thrown into the pool of world chaos, may extend its tiny circle will not depend on the enthusiasm of the women who tossed it, but on the reception it is given in the far reaches of democracy and how much it arouses the women of the NATO countries. If mothers of the world stand shoulder to shoulder in their demands for disarmament, and more women are willing to stand for public office, I believe there may be some hope for humanity's survival.

Sign under an office clock: "It's earlier than you think."

Historical Notes Gleaned From "Sellar's" History

So slowly did the village grow, that, in 1832, it had only 300 inhabitants. That summer was made memorable by the manner in which the cholera scourged it. A steamer touched at the wharf on its way to the Cascades, laden with immigrants, several of whom came ashore to buy milk. When she left, it became generally known there were cases of cholera on board. Next day the disease proclaimed itself, and for the ensuing fortnight its ravages were appalling. In one household, six took breakfast in apparent good health; before 8 in the evening, four were dead. Whole families perished, and the fatality was hardly less terrible than its suddenness. A lady noted a neighbour pass by to his own house, and a few hours afterwards saw a coffin carried to its door. She asked who it was for. It was for the neighbor she saw so short a time before. The dead were buried as they died being put into rude coffins without preparation and committed to the grave within a couple of hours of drawing their last breath. Amid the horrors of that awful fortnight, four men did honor to human nature. John Bryson, servant to Brown, and his coachman, Robert Finnie, (father of Dr. Finnie of Montreal) with two Canadians* voluntarily devoted themselves to attending the sick and burying the dead, and were unwearied in their labors. Remarkable to state, all four escaped the contagion. On the twelfth day the mortality abated, and in a few days more the disease disappeared, after carrying to the grave 73, or one-fourth of the total population — an unprecedented mortality. Afterwards, to the mode of treatment adopted was ascribed much of the excessive deathrate, the physician, Dr. Fleming, insisting that no liquids should be allowed. One patient, given up as lost, in her intense thirst rose, in the absence of her attendants, and finding in the kitchen a pan of water in which the dishes had been washed, drank the greasy water as the most grateful draught she ever tasted, returned to bed and — recovered. Dr. Fleming, a young man who had arrived from Glasgow a year or two before, was smitten by the contagion as it was abating, and died. His body was prepared for the grave by the two devoted men already named.

*I have been unable to recover their names.

The year after this visitation a minister came, the Rev. Walter Roach. He was the son of an Edinburgh bookbinder, was born in 1806, and after assisting his father in his trade, was educated by him, at a great sacrifice, for the ministry. He was licensed in 1832 and, there being no opening for him in Scotland, early in the summer of 1833 landed in Canada. The residents of the village having been long eager for a minister, he visited Beauharnois and preached during July and August, the seignory-agent using his influence to form a congregation and induce him to stay. Mr. Roach was a man of fine presence and agreeable in manners, but of ordinary ability; in the pulpit, loud and self-complacent. The efforts put forth were successful, and, on the 1st December, he was inducted as minister of Beauharnois, with a congregation composed of 14 heads of families, 36 adults and 39 children under 12. The following spring, work was begun on a church, the corner-stone of which was laid by Brown on the 23rd June, 1834. It was opened on the 15th March, 1835, and was the finest Protestant church in the province outside of Montreal. The entire cost was borne by Mr. Ellice, who retained the title of it until he disposed of the seigniory, when he transferred it to the Presbyterian church of Canada. In those days, the English-speaking element predominated in influence if not in numbers in Beauharnois, and up to about 1850 it was essentially a Scotch village. The congregation grew until its attendance averaged 70, and it had a prosperous Sunday-school, which was started in 1835. The first collision with the incoming tide of French Canadians was in 1843, when the priest forbade the use of the Bible in the school. The Catholic ratepayers being in the majority, the Protestants had no redress, and withdrew. A site was given free and subscriptions were collected, of which $200 came from Montreal, to erect a school, which was opened and the education imparted within its walls was so superior to that of the older school, that a few Catholics dared the frown of their clergyman and sent their children to it. While Beauharnois had a common-school, it had several excellent teachers, among them being James Richardson, who subsequently distinguished himself on the geological survey.

The disruption proved a serious blow to the Beauharnois congregation, owing to so many of the families at Chateaugay Basin throwing in their lot with the Free Church, and Mr. Roach found it useless to continue to hold service there, which he had done, on alternate Sundays, for 8 years. Thereafter he confined himself to Beauharnois and a charge he had established at St. Louis de Gonzague. In 1849 his career abruptly closed. In the summer of that year cholera visited Canada for the third time and again scourged Beauharnois. Mr. Roach was devoted in attending upon the sick. On the forenoon of the 27th August he entered the pulpit apparently in his usual health, and proceeded with the service in his customary manner. While in the midst of his sermon, his face suddenly grew ashy pale, and his voice faltered. Abruptly halting, he uttered the words, "We add no more," and repeating the Lord's prayer dismissed the congregation. After a brief rest in the vestry-room, he recovered so far as to be able to walk to his house, leaning upon a friend's arm. He had no pain and as he rallied from his fit of weakness, it was thought there was no danger. In the evening, however, he became worse, the dread disease developed itself in malignant form, and in a few hours the first duly inducted minister of the district had gone to his rest.

Beauharnois grew slowly, having no industry or traffic to attract population, and being simply the outlet for the surrounding country and a convenient place of supply. In 1848 it contained only 150 houses and 750 inhabitants. About that time grain-buying began, and under its stimulus Beauharnois knew its palmiest days. In 1826 Brown was appointed a commissioner for the trial of small causes, and held frequent courts until the office was abolished. The first judge to hold a court was McCord, who was appointed for this and the Missisquoi district in 1842.

In the chapter on Franklin further details will be given regarding the agents of the seigniory and their management.

Announcements—

Beginning next Sunday, July 17th, parishioners of St. Jean Baptiste Marie Vianney parish will be attending Mass in the basement of their new Church on Highway No. 4. Work is progressing very rapidly on the new temple and it is believed that by Christmas, Mass will be celebrated in the upper part of the new church.

A Vote of Thanks—

Your correspondent wishes to thank Mrs. G. Lord, who so graciously accepted to take over for her while she was away on vacation. No doubt after reading last week's paper that Mrs. Lord devoted many hours gathering up news here and to keep you up with the latest news around the area. Nice going Muriel and thanks again.

Another word of thanks is extended to all the ladies in the Park who helped make one certain family very happy.

While on the subject of thanking everyone, we are very grateful to Mr. E. Lepine, Mr. G. Heslop and of course Mr. T. Guthrie and any other who we may have forgotten for devoting a few hours last week in cutting the grass (or was it hay?) at the playground.

We should mention at this point if more fellows would get together one night a week and get those power mowers up there (and I do believe many of you have them), we should be able to keep the playground in better shape than it actually is at the moment. The mosquitoes are so bad due to this long grass that the playground is almost deserted. So how about it folks? Are we going to look after it or not? Where's all the community spirit around here? Everyone complains, but no one is ready to do anything about it. We've got a lovely piece of land where the children can enjoy baseball, volleyball, badminton, etc., and what happens, the entire area is so neglected that soon we won't even know that there is a park in the place. It's up to each one of us to give a helping hand. Hope to hear those mowers sometime this week.

Congratulations—

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. F. Guertin, who celebrated their 13th wedding anniversary this week, July 12th.

Congratulations also to Mr. and Mrs. W. Yeudall, who also celebrated their wedding anniversary on July 8th.

Congratulations to Peggy St. Onge, who has just completed elementary school with very good grades and will soon be taking a giant step into High School. We mustn't forget little brother Jimmie, who also did splendidly this year in school and who will be entering 3rd year in the Fall.

Best Wishes—

Our sincerest best wishes for a quick and speedy recovery are extended Mrs. G. Cottler, who is presently ill. Hope you'll be feeling better soon Joan.

Sorry to hear about Mrs. P. Blazis recent attack of larangitis. Do hope you've completely recovered Kay!

So sorry to hear about Gisèle Roberge's sprained ankle. Tough break to happen while on vacation. Do hope you'll be well and around soon, Gisèle.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Guthrie attended the Parkview Community Club Dance last Saturday, July 9th, and were fortunate enough to win a prize at a spot dance. Their next social event will be a corn roast on Aug. 13th, held at the same place (Marcel Degrosellier Hall in St. Philomene) and we do wish more people of the Park would attend these outings and get to know your neighbors. By the way, you are all invited to attend the monthly meetings every second Tuesday of each month held at 111 Hillsdale Drive.

Being home owners in Chateauguay Centre, it should be of interest to all here in the Park to attend this "Chateauguay Centre Proprietors' Association".

The wedding of Miss Nini Leblanc (daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Leblanc) to Mr. Roland Boutin (son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Boutin) all of Park Ave., took place on Saturday, July 9th, at 9 a.m. in the parish of St. Philomene. Rev. Father James Doyer (brother of Mrs. L. Boutin) from Assomption College, Worchester, Mass., performed the ceremony. The bride looked lovely in a white gown with a short veil held by a flowering band. Three little flower girls in shades of pale blue and yellow accompanied the bride. One being Miss N. Leblanc's cousin, Diana Levesque and the other two, Diane and Louise, both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. L. Boutin. The reception was held in St. Philomene with approximately 150 guests attending.

We do wish everyone on vacation a splendid holiday and hope that the weather keeps up the way it has been the past weekend. Do keep the news coming in and please let us know how the roads are making out on Chapel Drive? Why not get the Prudential Company to either use another entrance to their project or else insist on having them pay the damages on your new road? Its a darn shame after waiting 5 years for paved roads and then get them all torn up in a matter of a couple of weeks. I don't blame you folks down there for getting aggravated and I do hope you'll all get together and have those people do something about it.

Editorial Notes

Bomb Shelters For North America

ENGLAND and the European countries have seen two wars when the people were forced to take cover from air raid attacks. On this side of the world the people here only read about these attacks and have been given some vivid showings of films by Hollywood. It would appear that if there is ever another war, be it third or any other number, that the American continent will surely come under attack.

Such an attack would be made by weapons such as have never been known before although England was subjected to attack by a puny type of weapon in comparison. A way of interception of this weapon was found, but even at that many reached their targets and caused death and destruction. The new type of weapon would do much more than this and as far as known, there is no means of interception devised as yet.

In view of the possibilities, the public has been warned recently to prepare for the eventualities of at least the radio active fallout from the missiles which might be poured in upon us. It is one of those things which cannot be done after an attack has been launched, it must be done ahead of time and as precaution and it may never be used. The Government has prepared a book and plans for a shelter which they say should be incorporated in all new buildings and which should be provided in all existing buildings.

While there is no intention to alarm, one must realize that the Government is alerting the citizens to possibilities of something which cannot be predicted. Russia has threatened to send missiles to any country which harbors bases from which nuclear weapons can be launched. If any country would wish to avoid this attack, it would mean that all such bases would have to be destroyed or removed. This of course would leave such countries unprotected against attacks of any kind. Under present conditions of uncertainty as to what may happen, it is hardly likely that any country wants to remain unprotected and unprepared to repulse an attack. Therefore it looks as if the missile bases will remain. Under such conditions it is therefore necessary that whatever precautions can be taken to protect the citizens, should be taken.

The government feels that the greatest danger is from fallout and contamination which would lead to much suffering and if not at once, eventual loss of lives. They do not attempt to say that building such shelters would be a protection in the event of a direct hit which would form the centre of the blast. No one could survive such a situation. It has been proven beyond a shadow of a doubt that no one could live through the centre of a nuclear explosion. However, radiation spreads for many miles beyond the centre of the blast and persons can be protected to a certain extent by taking proper precautions. A contamination period follows the radiation which may last for several days. The plans of the proposed shelters are meant as a protection against this phase of nuclear warfare.

During the past wars, the people of great Britain and Europe went underground into the underground railways systems and other such places where they were protected to a great extent from the actual explosion of bombs and such, which demolished buildings on the upper surface. In the case of nuclear warfare, these places would not offer the same protection and there would still, be the danger of radiation.

In the case of these new type shelters, it would be necessary to remain in them for several days, or until all danger of contamination had been passed. Thus much must be provided for and in a confined space. The plans which the Government offers explain all this and how to construct such a shelter. As can be quickly realised, it is much easier to construct such a shelter as part of the overall plan of a new building, than to do so in an existing building. The plan however, does give instructions for making a shelter in an existing building and suggests the most suitable place. In most all cases the place is in the basement, in any case it has to be underground. It must be stocked at all times with sufficient food and water to last the number who would occupy it for several days. Of course this means constant check-ups to see that the food is always in good condition and that the water is reasonably fresh. There are other facilities such as toilet and sleeping, keeping the air within fresh and changing. There should be some means of knowing what is going on outside and when it would be safe to venture out.

It is thus seen that the Government is anxious that people have such shelters now, just in case, as it would be impossible to prepare them after an attack. It is reported that a number of people already have such shelters and others are contemplating making them. In this area there are no such preparations that we know of.

Actually we are in a very vulnerable area. We may not be the centre of the target, but we would certainly be in the area of radiation which is given as 50 miles from the centre. There are missile bases at Plattsburg, N.Y., and surrounding area, which would naturally be a target centre and within the danger zone. We have Montreal, certainly a target area. We are in line with New York City, another certain target area. There is always the danger of a weapon falling short of its target. Assuming that the missiles from Russia would be fired over the Arctic regions, we are in direct line of all of them. According to present reports, we would only have 15 minutes from the time the missile is launched to hustle into the shelters or take whatever measures we could to protect ourselves. Under earlier air raids, as much as half-hour was possible and even then the raiders could possibly be turned back by our defence. It is thus seen that only by being prepared, can we hope to survive nuclear attacks if they should come.

The New Government In Office

THE Liberal Government of Jean Lesage has now taken over from the National Union and is losing no time in putting at least some of its platform promises into operation. The Cabinet has been named and some departmental changes have been made to facilitate the fast operation and putting into effect election promises.

For the first time there will be a Minister of Education and the creation of a Department of Education. It will be remembered that education was one of the important planks of the election manifesto. It is intended that all matters to do with education will come under the jurisdiction of the new Department.

The new Premier has also announced that the so-called patronage system will be done away with and there will be no influential methods allowed to secure special privileges for anyone. He also intends to go ahead with a Royal Commission to investigate the administration of the province under the National Union Government.

The head of the Provincial Police Force, Hilaire Beauregard, has tendered his resignation, according to reports. Also according to reports, the Provincial Force is due for an overhauling and it is rumored that the R.C.-M.P. might be invited to take over.

It has been said that Hospital Insurance in Quebec may come into force in January 1961.

They Still Do Not Pay Heed

A RECENT school board meeting, discussion centred on bus contracts and during the course of this it was pointed out that there are still a number of automobile drivers who do not stop for the school bus. It was said that cars speed by coming from the opposite direction and fear that a fatality will occur was expressed.

One instance mentioned was when a passanger alighted from a school bus at a certain point in this locality, the youngster went around the back of the bus. A car coming from the opposite direction at great speed never attempted to slow down as it passed the youngster, almost touching him with the fender, but luckily missing him. Those who were stopped behind the bus could only hold their breath and heaved big sighs of relief that the youngster had not been mowed down. Another instance was given where a truck came on and passed the bus and one of the commissioners happened to be near and he had the truck stop. He questioned the driver why he had passed the bus when he saw it was stopped. The driver answered he did not have to, you don't stop for buses in Montreal. Particulars were taken and passed along to the proper authorities, but it is not known if anything was done about it. A number of other instances were given that this school bus law is not being obeyed and fears were expressed that the time would come when there would be a fatality of some kind from this cause.

It was also mentioned that the drivers and owners of school buses should pay more attention to checking their buses to see that all signal lights are working properly and that they can be seen. It was suggested that school boards take more interest in the school buses and check upon them from time to time to see that all regulations are being lived up to. This would be in the interests of safety.

In view of this, while this is perhaps not the appropriate time, as the children are now on holiday, we feel that another warning is in order. It is required that all vehicles from either direction come to a stop when a school bus is stopped for the purpose of taking on or discharging its passengers. Such other vehicles only move on when the bus moves on, or are signalled to do so by the driver.

Like all other safety laws, if this law is obeyed, there is less likely to be accidents. These laws have been devised to safeguard the school children who ride in the school buses. They are not intended to be regarded as a nuisance and therefore not lived up to. It would appear that before the general public is conscious of the requirement, some examples will have to be made and wide publicity given to them. Such examples should be given stiff penalties — plenty of warning has already been given. It is too late for remedy when a child has lost its life through the carelessness of a driver who has no regard for the law.

What Is A Communist?

By LEWIS MILLIGAN

The best answer to the above question was given over a hundred years ago by Ebenezer Elliott, when he wrote:

"What is a communist? One who hath yearnings For equal division of unequal earnings."

Elliott was known as "The Corn Law Rhymer." He opposed that law as a tax on the bread of the common people. He took an active part in the Chartist movement in England, which agitated for political reform and the social betterment of the working classes. But Elliott turned against the extremists who were advocating socialism, which he foresaw would lead to communism. When he wrote the hymn, "God Save the People," he was thinking as much of their spiritual as their material welfare:

"God save the people; Thine they are, Thy children, as Thine angels fair; From vice, oppression, and despair, God save the people."

Elliott was not asking God to save the people from excessive taxation; he joined the Chartist movement and wrote his corn law rhymes and other verses to rouse public opinion for political reform, which was badly needed in those days. The Chartist program demanded universal manhood suffrage, vote by ballot, equal electoral districts, annual parliaments, payment of members, and abolition of their property qualifications. In short, representative government. That was the direct opposite to communism, which was being advocated on the continent by Karl Marx and others as the only remedy for all social problems. They would have nothing to do with reform of existing political institutions; these must be abolished by complete revolution.

That is what happened in Russia, and the Soviet Union is an example of the result of those "yearnings for equal division of unequal earnings." Communism has been defined as "A system by which the means of production and distribution are owned by the government, and the goods produced are shared by all citizens according to their need." The Soviet Union has fulfilled the first part of that program; but the goods produced are not shared by all citizens according to their need, or according to their earnings. The products are distributed according to political status. Members of the Communist Party, who are the upper preference in government appointments and civil services, class of the population, have Conference Board of New York, receive higher pay and have special privileges in the distribution of the products. The workers, who are the producers and do most of the earning, are needier than ever. This is revealed in a table just released by The showing comparisons of work required to earn enough to buy certain consumer goods in New York and Moscow, as follows:

"Worker in New York can earn enough in three minutes' labor to buy a pound of sugar. Worker in Moscow would have to work one hour and 40 minutes to do so. A man's cotton shirt, New York, represents 58 minutes of work time-in USSR 15 hours of work time. A rayon dress in New York can be paid for in 4 hours and 36 minutes of work. In Moscow the same dress, if available, would call for 73.30 hours of work. A man's woollen suit, in New York, takes 23 hours of work time to earn enough to pay for it. A similar suit in USSR requires 275 hours of work time." - Enough said.

The Week In Quebec

Quebec (CP) — The new Liberal Cabinet was sworn in this week and immediately got down to business.

In two meetings — The first lasted through morning, afternoon and evening — The government took big steps to better coordinate the administration.

All education matters were brought under the jurisdiction of one man, Paul Guérin-Lajoie, a brilliant 40-year-old lawyer from Montreal. He is head of the youth department to which was transferred education matters from the Provincial Secretary's Department.

The youth department thus became the biggest in budgetary expenditures in the provincial administration with a combined budget of some $132,000,000. The education budget was about $110,000,000.

The transfer includes the branches of fine arts, music, post-graduate education and artistic contests. Grants and scholarships were already under the youth department.

Such a rapid decision, say observes, indicates the Liberal administration will not edge on applying its program on education. It includes a Royal Commission Of Inquiry into the whole education situation in the Prov., free tuition at all levels, free school Books in all institutions under the jurisdiction of the Education Department and the creation of a Provincial Commission of Universities to act as official liaison body between Universities and the Provincial Administration.

Tourism and related branches were transferred to the Provincial Secretary's from the cabinet's responsibility.So was the rent control board. Provincial Parks and the Quebec Zoo went to the Provincial Secretary from the Department of Game and Fisheries.

The Rural Electrification Board became the responsibility of the Hydraulic Resources Department instead of the Agriculture Department.

Premier Jean Lesage announced some appointments.

Most highly placed civil servants were expected to retain their posts but changes were almost certain to be made among Provincial Crown Prosecutors, in certain posts of the Liquor Commission and in the Provincial Police Force.

Attorney-General Georges Lapalme was named Vice-Chairman of the Cabinet which means he will be able to preside at cabinet meetings in the Premier's absence. This post was not filled under the Union National Government.

Cabinet meetings will probably take place on Tuesdays regularly This suits the Ministers best, Mr. Lesage said. Under the Union National Administration they were held on Wednesday. The Late Premier Maurice Duplessis had made it a tradition that every important move and decision was made on that day also.

Mr. Lesage announced his administration will set up soon two Royal Commissions of Inquiry: one into the administration of the Union Nationale which ruled the province for 16 years until defeated by the Liberals in the June 22 elections, and the other into the sale of the Montreal Gas section of the publicly-owned Hydro Quebec to the privately-owned Quebec Natural Gas Corporation.

A list of the ministers of the new government follows:

1. Premier Jean Lesage, 48, member for Quebec West, finance.
2. Georges Lapalme, 50, member for Montreal Outremont, Attorney-General.
3. Rene Hamel, 50 St. Maurice, Labor and Municipal Affairs.
4. Paul Gerin-Lajoie, 40 Vaudreuil-Soulanges, Youth.
5. Alcide Courcy, 45, Abitibi-West, Agriculture and Colonization.
6. Rene Levesque, 34, Montreal Laurier, Public Works and Hydraulic Resources.
7. Dr. C. A. Kirkland, 62, Montreal Jacques Cartier, without portfolio.
8. Paul Earl, 65, Montreal Notre-Dame-de-Grace, Mines.
9. Gerard Cournoyer, 48, Richelieu, Transport and Communications.
10. Bernard Pinard, 37, Drummond, Roads.
11. Emilien Lafrance, 47, Richmond, Social Welfare.

15. Andre Rousseau, 59, L'Islet, Commerce.
16. Bona Arsenault, 56, Matapedia, Lands and Forest.

There were 22 ministers in the Union National Cabinet.

New Hope For Hay Fever Victims

The Reader's Digest reports that a single-injection method of preventing hay fever attacks have raised the hopes of millions of victims who for weeks are tortured by recurrent spasms of sneezing, by itching, weeping, swollen eyes, and asthmatic attacks.

In 1911 the multiple-injection method of "desensitization" was discovered. Sometimes doctors succeeded in eliminating a patient's pollen sensitivity for a season. Occasionally, in an extremely sensitive person, sharp reactions occurred. Over the years allergists learned how to eleminate most of these reactions or how to control them — with epinephrine or other drugs. The injection schedule was often cut from 50 to as few as seven shots. In 1947, Dr. Mary Hewitt Loveless, associate professor of clinical medicine at the Cornell University Medical School, injected pollen extract in mineral oil into the arms of volunteers to form a "repository." She soon found that she could safely use doses up to 20 times stronger than ever before. These volunteers found that they benefited as much as they had in earlier years under multi-injection treatment.

By 1957 many other allergists were using this one-shot treatment. Some leading allergists urge caution in the use of this treatment until more extensive controlled studies can be completed. The single-injection method may be associated with certain hazards, such as severe immediate reactions. However, enthusiasts for the one-shot technique believe that, in the hands of experienced users it has brought on reactions no more frequently than has multi-injection therapy.

To date, relatively few allergists have had experience with the one-shot treatment. During 1960 it is estimated that as many as 50,000 volunteer patients may be treated in experimental studies to evaluate the new method. Well before the 1961 pollen season starts, the results of much of this work will have been published. Then will most hay fever victims be able to choose between the long-established but not total, safety of the multiple-injection treatment and the convenience and economy of the single shot method.

In the past ten years the value of Canada's mineral output has increased two-and-a-half times, in 1959 reached a record $2.4 billion; mine employment has stabilized at about 60,000, just over one per cent of the total of Canadians with jobs.

The Week At Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) There were some snarls and hisses before a Canadian Bill of Rights reached the sleek contentment of approval in principle last week.

There were purrs of praise from the Conservative benches as Prime Minister Diefenbaker stroked his Parliament pet into second reading.

The Liberals and the CCF found fault in the proposed bill's limitations and lack of literary merit, when they weren't caught up in their own inter-party dogfight.

In the end, or for the present, every MP present in a show of togetherness gave unanimous approval to second reading, by a vote of 183 to 0, after 3½ days of intense debate.

Jibes at Critics

"They seem to forget we are writing a statute, not a poem", Justice Minister Fulton said of Opposition criticism that the bill was uninspiring.

The Prime Minister was more mellow. He said he has no objection to a "decorative" preamble being added, although the day of preambles was pretty well past.

If some MP could produce a declaration or preamble that would have the results and effects suggested, he said, "such a preamble covering a declaration of fundamental freedoms would certainly not be turned down."

Some of the Liberal speakers compared the bill caustically with the American Declaration of Independence and Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, and suggested that it looked pale by comparison.

Opposition leader Pearson led off the attack, arguing that the bill is a departure from British traditions, and declaring that freedoms are not guaranteed by words. Incorruptible and respected courts were the best guarantee of rights and liberties.

A bill of rights should not only be broad and deep in its meaning, but in addition: "Should be inspiring in its language; something that should stir the pulse, stimulate our national patriotism, something that could be read and would be remembered by school children on July 1 as one of the charters of our growing nation; something reaffirming our dedication to freedom and to great ideals ....

Opposition Split

During the debate, the Liberals and the CCF split on a showdown vote, with the Liberals voting against a CCF motion that the bill not be read a second time but that the government be instructed to consult with the provinces on a comprehensive constitutional amendment guaranteeing fundamental freedoms and human rights.

Mr. Pearson argued that, while the Liberals support a constitutional amendment as the best way to enshrine freedoms and rights, the CCF motion would have the effect of killing the Prime Minister's bill. The Liberals favored the principle of such a measure and could not back a move to kill it.

CCF leader Hazen Argue, hotly denying that his motion would kill the measure, maintained that debate on the bill could continue while the government consulted the provinces.

Mr. Diefenbaker seized the opportunity afforded by the Pearson-Argue dispute to maintain that th CCF was retreating from past support of a bill of rights.

The vote on second reading came after a two-hour speech by the Prime Minister — his second of the debate — in which he replied to opposition criticisms and offered to establish a committee next session to examine the War Measures Act.

Suggest Curbs

This was a partial concession to Mr. Pearson, who had demanded that curbs on the extraordinary powers given to the government under the War Measures Act be written into the Bill of Rights.

Mr. Pearson called for an outright statutory declaration that no government can deprive a Canadian of his citizenship, or exile him, even in wartime.

The Prime Minister agreed that the War Measures Act has been found to contain provisions "that ought to be ameliorated in the interests of the individual while at the same time maintaining the security of the state."

Mr. Diefenbaker moved immediately after second reading that it be referred to a special 15-member committee for study.

He said the bill will not do everything he would have liked to see done.

"However, it is a major step forward in that henceforth Canadians will know that their national rights cannot be disregarded, that the government will have before it an unmistakable and clear declaration that it must at all times preserve and maintain the freedoms in the legislation that it brings before Parliament."

Nuclear Armament

Defence Minister Pearkes told the Commons defence committee that chances are "practically nil" that Canada's two Bomarc anti-aircraft missile bases would be "sitting ducks" for any enemy missile attacks.

He also said that nuclear warheads for the Bomarc "won't be required unless the enemy comes." Arrangements were being made with the United States to supply nuclear warheads "if and when" they are required.

Nuclear warheads will be used only on the authority of the prime minister of the day, said Mr. Pearkes.

Paul Hellyer (L-Toronto Trinity) argued that the two Canadian Bomarc bases — near North Bay, Ont., and Mont Laureir, Que. — would be "Sitting ducks" for any missile attack. Unless they were armed with nuclear warheads a "phenomenal number" of additional bases would be required.

But Mr. Pearkes said there was no intention of increasing the number of Bomarc squadrons in Canada.

The defence minister said Russia had only a "limited number" of long-range ballistic missiles and it would use them, in event of war, against prime targets such as U.S. bomber and missile bases.

Committee chairman G. Ernest Halpenny (PC-London) ruled further questions on warheads out of order after Progressive Conservative members protested vigorously at an implication by Mr. Hellyer that the government would have to run to Washington to get permission to use nuclear warheads.

Mrs. Albert Raymond is sentimental. Each time she visits her bank Safety Deposit Box she scolds herself for not having her old fashioned family jewelry re-set . . . but somehow she hasn't the heart to change it. So it stays with her papers and securities, safe in the bank vault.

Ellen Ramsay doesn't own a diamond yet . . . but she'll have one soon in an engagement ring. Like most girls she has plans for marriage and her growing Savings Account in the Bank of Commerce is earmarked for wedding expenses and purchases for her first home.

Precious jewels from the past . . . happy plans for the future . . . the Bank of Commerce helps protect both. Whatever banking services you need you can be sure they are readily available at any branch of The Canadian Bank of Commerce.

The Great Great Great Great Grandchildren of Queen Victoria.

Only four persons comprise this youngest and most recent generation of Victoria's descendants.

They were all born in London, England and are grand-nephews and grand-nieces of Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh and of H.M. The Queen.

1: MARIA-TATIANA, Princess of Yugoslavia (July 1957); Prince Philip is Godfather.

2: NICOLAUS, Prince of Yugoslavia (Feb. 16, 1960).

3: NICHOLAS, Prince of Yugoslavia (Mar. 1958); Prince Philip is Godfather.

4: KATARINA, Princess of Yugoslavia (Nov. 1959); Former King Simeon of Bulgaria is Godfather.

The above four are also great great great grandchildren of Queen Victoria since they can claim other lines of descent from her person. The first two above are three times descended from Victoria. The above reside with their respective parents on their farms at Foxbridge, Sussex, England.

This is the entire list of the descendants of Queen Victoria as June 1960.

Hemmingford W.I. Meeting

The ladies of the Hemmingford Women's Institute met on Wednesday, July 6th., at the home of Mrs. E. Merlin. A very pleasant afternoon was spent.

Mrs. C. Petch read an interesting article about the "Mary Stewart Collect." This collect is repeated by the members at every meeting and is as follows:

Keep us, O Lord, from pettiness, let us be large in thought, in word and deed.

Let us be done with fault-finding and leave off self-seeking.

May we put away all pretence and meet each other face to face, without self-pity and without prejudice.

May we never be hasty in judgment, and always generous.

Teach us to put into action our better impulses, straightforward and unafraid.

Let us take time for all things, make us grow calm, serene, gentle.

Grant that we may realize it is the little things that create differences; that in the big things of life we are one.

And may we strive to touch and to know the great human heart common to us all.

And O Lord God, let us not forget to be kind.

(Mary Stewart)

It was decided to have the secretary write to the proper autorities concerning the observing of such holidays as the first of July on their proper dates.

Recently the first of July was observed here on the Monday, July 4th., instead of Friday, July 1st. The members feel that this happens all too frequently and is most unpatriotic.

The Hemmingford W.I. President, Mrs. H. McAdam gave a most interesting report on the Provincial Convention which was held at Macdonald College the latter part of June. Mrs. H. McAdam and Mrs. R. Curry represented Hemmingford at this three day convention.

The Treasurer, Mrs. R. Lee, reported that the bank balance was $359.86.

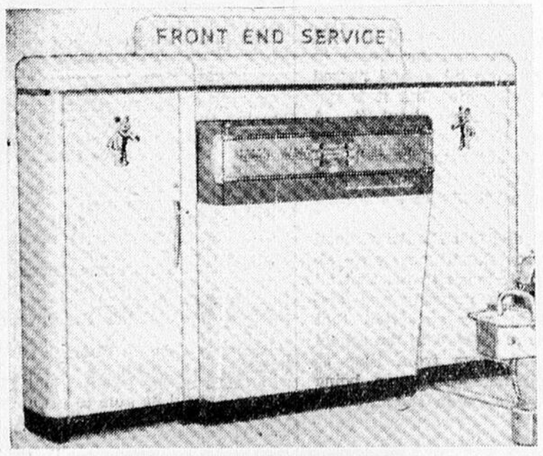

The next meeting will be in the form of a picnic at Fort Lennox, on August 3rd. Members are reminded to meet at the high school at 10:30 a.m. to proceed to Fort Lennox. The girls who served so willingly at the anniversary supper are invited to go along.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses Mrs. E. Merlin, Mrs. P. Barr and Mrs. D. Laurie.

During the 1958-59 season "sportsmen" enjoying the privileges of Quebec province's game and fish areas paid $91,030 in fines for infractions of fish and game laws.

Implications Of Extended Years

(by Edward L. Bortz, M.D.)

The explosive increase in number of older individuals in the national population, resulting from the remarkably effective scientific measures for the control of disease, has precipitated a number of major, cultural, economic and political problems. A new dimension is being added to the human life span. The potentials of human biological growth indicate that, in the not too distant future, human beings may live a round century in reasonably good health. The basis of this prediction is the research now being carried on directed to the control of the four major maladies of later life. The most common diseases of advanced years are breakdown of the heart and blood vessels, cancer arthritis and rheumatism, and, finally, nervous and mental disorders. Today science has developed remarkably efficient instruments and methods of great accuracy for examining the deep roots of the common disorders which take such a high toll in lives of older citizens. Convincing evidence indicates that, within the next quarter century, it will be possible to identify the conditions of the external and internal environment which will promote long life. Already information of importance is available that would greatly reduce the incidence of sickness if simple rules of personal and social hygiene were followed.

Modern society is prepared to cope with the rapidly increasing number of healthy citizens. Millions of oldsters are living in an indifferent, hostile world.

Certain major barriers may obstruct the path to health as time passes. The codes of education, government, industry and labor exist for the convenience of industrial efficiency with little attention to the basic needs of our aging population. It is of the utmost practical importance that healthy, mature citizens should be maintained in productive capacity. Work is an expression of purpose for living. Compulsory retirement policies which remove individuals from participation in the business world just at a time when many have reached their top value in accomplishment may accelerate the deterioration of the individual. Te time has arrived when retirement policies should be re-evaluated in terms of human good.

Inflation of the national currency which erodes the life savings of older citizens is another major cloud on their horizon. Proposals for easing the financial threat hovering over senior citizens should take into account the future solvency of the national currency so that on-coming citizens may not be over-burdened by confiscatory taxation. Personal needs of individuals over sixty are summarized in the following decalogue.

Ten Basic Needs of Mature Individuals

I. A Balanced Diet — The older the individual the more lean proteins such as meat, fish, and fowl are required. Adequate amounts of vitamins and fluid are essential.

There should be moderate restriction of the total calories, especially for those overweight. Less fat is required in the diet for the higher years. Super-nutrition does not create super-men.

II. Elimination of Waste Products — Body cleanliness requires adequate elimination through the bowels, kidneys, skin, and lungs. Deep breathing at periodic intervals eliminates waste gases.

III. Rest — Adequate rest of the body and mind every twenty-four hour period. Steep is a blessed thing.

IV. Recreation — Optimum living requires interesting and specific recreational pursuits.

V. A sense of humor — The balance wheel of modern living; the best antidote for tension.

VI. Avoidance of the consuming fires of anger, hate and jealousy — These virulent poisons oft-times are the forerunners of high blood pressure and stroke. Tension leads to personal ineffectiveness.

VII. Companionship — There is no margin of reserve so effective as the loyalty of family and friends.

VIII. Maintenance of a sense of pride in one's job —

IX. Participation in community affairs — Senior citizens should exercise leadership in community activities.

X. Keep an open mind — To grow in knowledge, experience, and wisdom each day contributes to personal maturity. The zest of wisdom each day contributes to personal maturity. The zest of living is at the growing edge.

The Strawberry Social and Fashion Show held in Zion Church on Friday evening, July 8, was a big success both financially and socially. The affair was sponsored by the Board of Managers and with the help of the ladies of the congregation a delicious supper of ice cream, strawberry shortcake and coffee was served. The gross receipt amounted to $122.00. After the tables were cleared the men's Fashion Show was presented by the members of the Managers Board. They had an able master of ceremonies in Mr. Russell Young, the local student pastor, who was dressed in a lady's evening gown and was called on by Miss Shirley Grant, New York State Grange Queen, to open the show. Each member of the Fashion Show Troupe (men of course) modelling bizarre fashion models made two appearances each in a different gown or creation. The emcee noted and announced all the different merits of each creation as the model bowed and moved back and forth on the show platform. The applause and hilarity which greated each appearance was tremendous, the audience apparently enjoying themselves immensely. One person was heard to remark that he didn't know his own neighbours, so well had the feminine costumes make-up been applied. After the showings were made the principals in the show lined-up on the stage for a final inspection amid new outbursts of applause. The Managers Board are grateful to all the parishioners who helped to make the evening a success.

Mr. Young is once again having summer services at Fraser's Point each Sunday morning, at 9 A.M. The attendance is reported to be quite good. Mrs. McNicol and her grandson, Mr. Ronnie MacNaughton, also enjoyed a recent trip to Syracuse, N.Y. where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Archie Ferguson and family. Mr. MacNaughton has recently joined the Royal Canadian Navy and is stationed at Cornwallis, Nova Scotia. Ronnie was a graduate of Huntingdon High School in 1957 and has since worked in various branches of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, his last position being in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Gardiner accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Stark motored to Farnham, Que., on Sunday, where they spent the day. Mr. Stark is Customs officer in charge at Dundee Lines pending the appointment of a permanent official.

Errol Gardiner, 9 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Brodie Gardiner, returned home from the Montreal Neurological Institute where he had been a patient for 2 weeks. He underwent a four hour operation to relieve a condition caused by a fall when he struck his head on a cement step at his home at Dundee Lines. He and some other boys were trying to recover a fish line from a shed roof when a makeshift platform toppled over and he fell about eight feet.

Garden Notes

You can take it easy now

If one enjoys it one can go on working in a garden all summer. It's excellent recreation and good for the health. But actually by the time summer arrives there is little necessity for any hard work.

With the warm weather the lawn should not be cut nearly as often nor as short and one can go easy on cultivating vegetable and flower gardens, too, provided they were free of weeds and the soil well stirred up to the end of June. One good cultivation in July, with possibly a little extra for the late sown vegetables should be sufficient.

From now on the thing to do is to take thigs easy and enjoy the bloom and fresh vegetables that have resulted from the good care we gave them in May and June. With shrubbery, fruit and other trees and many of the perennials, as a matter of fact, summer is a time of maturity, of preparing for the dormant period during the winter and these will be hardier and better able to stand frost if their growth is not stimulated by cultivation or extra watering after July.

But all of this does not mean that gardening should come to a complete stop by the end of June. Even at that date in most parts of Canada it is still not too late to make third or fourth sowings of such vegetables as beans, carrots, beets and lettuce. They will grow quickly in the summer and should be ready for the table towards the end of August and early September.

Control Made Easy

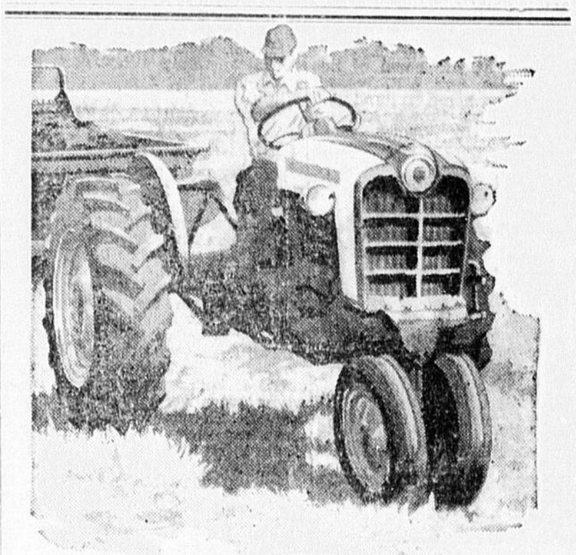

For every plant, flower, shrub or vegetable, it seems, nature has created a special enemy. If it isn't a bug, it is a disease that will attack, not to mention the neighbours cat or dog. But the up-to-date gardeners do not worry too much, because they know that no matter what the nature of the attacker there is an easy control in the form of a conveniently packaged spray or dust. Even for most of the weeds we now have a chemical killer, that is easily applied.

The main thing to remember is to counter attack quickly once there is the first sign of injury. If we do that there will be scarcely any damage. For the bugs that eat holes we usually apply a poison. For those that suck the juices we spray with something that will burn the attackers or prove objectionable like one of the nicotine preparations. And for both, there is usually some combination of dust or spray that will definitely discourage them.

Another point the expert gardener keeps in mind is cleanliness or sanitation. A vigorous, fast growing garden, free of weeds both in it and around it, is the best sort of insurance against damage.

Pleasure and Vitamins

Most people grow vegetables because they like to eat them, and they know that only out of the garden at the door will they be really fresh. But there are valuable vitamins in these things too, in case one is interested. Lettuce, for instance, and especially leaf lettuce which is more exposed to the sun than the other kinds is high in vitamin A. Carrots will supply the same vitamin and for a longer period as this vegetable of course will keep well in storage. For vitamins B and B2 as well as A, kale is highly recommended. It contains about twice as much vitamin as ordinary cabbage and it is easier to grow. For the highly prized vitamin C nothing is better than a fresh tomato, and the fresher the things are the higher and more valuable the vitamin content.

Franklin Centre

FRANKLIN CENTRE — On Saturday, July 2nd, three members of The United Church Youth Caravans arrived at Franklin to lead the Vacation Bible School that was to be held from July 4th to 15th. On the Sunday morning they assisted Rev. Mr. Barnes in the services at Rennie's Church and at Franklin. By Monday morning they had all the organization of Vacation School completed, and had about 55 children present, all of whom were very eager to get started. Attendance in the first week has been very good, with children from as far as Herdman attending.

As Sunday past was the combined service of the four points of the Franklin Charge — at Franklin — it was a wonderful opportunity for the three Caravanners to speak to the folks of the church. They took the entire service, even in the sermon, and were congratulated afterward by every-one present for the fine manner in which they conducted the service.

Vacation School continues this week, with the closing concert at the School on Friday night at eight o'clock. The three Caravanners that have made it such a success are Mr. Philip Rodgers and Miss Jean Thompson of Toronto and Miss Marjorie Stevenson of Dresden, Ont. Mr. Rodgers has been staying with Capt. Holmes of the Anglican Church at Bridgetown, Miss Thompson with the Ernest Erskines of Athelstan and Miss Stevenson with the Charles Wallers of Franklin.

There have been many social events at Franklin, Ormstown and Port Lewis that they have attended, and have come to know and be known by many of our young people.

The United Church Youth Caravans, of which they are members, are a dedicated group of young people from United Churches all over Canada, who give of their time in the summer to assist in all manner of church projects, wherever their talents and training can be used. Many churches, such as the Franklin Church, would not be able to have vacation schools if it were not for the devoted work of such young people, who count it a priviledge to serve within the Church.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Dumas had a pleasant surprise on the evening of their 30th Wedding Anniversary, July 2nd, when around forty guests, relatives and friends gathered at their home to help celebrate it. Their three married daughters, Mrs. Dozilva Metras, Mrs. Marcelle Roy and Mrs. Guy Daoust were hostesses for this occasion. Dancing was enjoyed and a very pleasant evening spent. Delicious refreshments were served at the latter part of the evening and at this time Mrs. Dumas was presented with a Pearl Necklace and matching Ear Rings. Mr. Dumas was presented with Pearl Cuff Links. Cut Glass dishes, candle sticks and different other articles of cut glass besides a purse of money were presented them with best wishes for many more such happy occasions. Four of the Franklin Centre Dance Pupils went to Montreal on the 5th of July to take a dancing Exam. It was a Grade 1 Highland Dancing Bronze Medal Test. The Examiner was Miss Sadie Simpson of the British Association Teachers of Dancing who is just in Canada from June 13th to July 6th then leaves for Scotland.

Howick

HOWICK — The July (Welfare and Health) meeting of the Howick W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. Wallace Kerr. Sixteen members answered the roll call by naming a bone of the body and its function. Miss Jean Ritchie read an amusing poem which mentioned all the bones of the body.

Discussion following the minutes included several matters of importance. Those pupils with defective vision will receive further attention in Sept. The matter of better garbage disposal in country areas, as referred to in Mr. Ian Watson's address, was discussed. Some way must be found to end this disgraceful custom of littering private property with garbage, and the solution should concern everyone around Howick.

The treasurer reported $139.09 on hand and was instructed to pay $1.00 for subscription to C.A.C.; $3.00 to Adelaide Hoodless Home; $7.50 to County Fund; and the delegates expenses.

Pres. Mrs. Roy Younie and treasurer Mrs. Lincoln West were inspired by their trip to Macdonald College and gave splendid reports on what they had seen and heard. They told of the importance of making a well, and how to make it. They encouraged members not to battle change but to keep up with it. They were thrilled with the delightful musical numbers given by the Harwood Singers, and vocal duets by two ladies from Ayers Cliff. Mr. McKenny demonstrated floral arrangements that had great appeal (to the delegates). The Provincial President, Mrs. Ellard in her account of the Edinburgh Convention, referred to truck loads of flowers being used to decorate the meeting rooms. Beautiful music, beautiful flowers, thoughts of them remain, and other things are forgotten.

Two-thirds of the world's population never knows anything but hunger. Different ways are being used to help these hungry people —and to help them to help themselves. Our local W.I. contribute regularly through different channels, to help many worthy causes, both at home and abroad.

Following the delegates reports, three articles on health were read. Mrs. Haddon Kerr added zest to her part when she had the members rise and do the exercises for the feet as the instructions were read. Mrs. Frank Sutherland's article suggested that dieting and exercise be added to the family routine to help one keep fit. Mrs. Mason Greig advised that some ills could be traced to too much sitting before a TV set. Move at least once every hour to avoir blood clots.

Mrs. J. J. Peddie demonstrated frozen strawberry jam; salt and pepper set for use outdoors; a plastic grater which makes certain raw vegetables edible for people with stomach trouble.

A new musical number was practised, "Where's John"? — a three-part round. The Fertile Creek ladies served fluffy decorated cakes, ice cream, and a delicious pineapple, gingerale drink. The August meeting will be a picnic.

Of Many Things

PUT A SHINE ON IT

"Everything Jim does, he puts a shine on it."

I have never met Jim, so I asked what the heck such a description meant. Did he go around with a dust cloth or something?

No, she said, he just makes everything so much more fun. Never does anything just an ordinary way, even washing dishes, painting the garage or talking to you. He makes everything special. You ought to see how dishes shine when he dries them!

I said he must be one of those fussy, finicky, boring perfectionists.

He is definitely not boring, I was told. He is everything but boring. He makes the day bright, the conversation important, dish washing a lot less tiring, and garage painting an adventure. He's so dead alive most men look dead beside him.

So I had to meet Jim. I went far out of my way to do it, too, but I'm glad. He is special. He brightens you up. I found that just being with him was an event, and afterward, I tried to figure out why.

For one thing, Jim is a very positive fellow — he is for a lot of things, against very few. In any situation, he seems to select the good points and put the emphasis on them. You soon get carried along by his buoyant mood and you see possibilities for growth all about you.

"Jim has taken a lot of lickings in business," a cynic told me. "He jumps in where angels fear to tread. He's a sucker for any new idea or proposition. Some day he'll bump into a smart guy who'll really take him to the cleaners."

Well, maybe. So far, Jim has done all right. Fact is, he has made himself wealthy, and had a wonderful time doing it. Perhap he has been "taken" a few times; but he has opened his mind to so many successful ideas that the few flops haven't meant much to his career. Even in failure, there'd be a glow about him. He'd never collapse. It would take a heap of ruin to block his view of the road up ahead.

Perhaps we'd all be better off with a bit of Jim's approach. When we tackle our next job, let's try to put a shine on it!

Dundee

DUNDEE — The last monthly meeting of Zion Church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. Earl Gardiner. Mrs. A. H. Fraser led the devotional part of the meeting. She read part of Paul's letter to the Galatians where he tells the people that they will not inherit the kingdom of God if they practise all the works of the flesh such as idolatry, hatred, murders, adultery, etc. Rather they should practice love, joy, peace, faith, etc. Today much is made of evil deeds. They are publicized and quickly make headlines. One who lives under the control of the Spirit finds such morbid desires replaced by the desire to hear and see the best things.

Guest speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. W. L. Carr of Huntingdon. For several years Mrs. Carr was principal of a special school in Toronto for retarded girls. She helped to start this school where they taught girls of 3-16 years. The beginning was very difficult for the public had to be educated that it was not a disgrace to attend this school. The teachers had to be specially trained, and the young girls had to be brave to face the opposition of the public and even their parents. Besides the teachers in the school there was a doctor, a nurse, placement officers and a social worker.

The building used for this special school was an old one, but Mrs. Carr supervised the redecorating inside and soon had a very attractive interior. The girls were graded according to age. Being a special school there was need for special equipment. The girls learned simple reading such as advertisements, signs, job ads. Arithmetic and spelling had to be as simple as possible. The girls learned to cook, plain easy meals, keep house, sew. There were many problems and teaching was slow but it was rewarding for the girls learned how to make a living for themselves. Employment was secured for them. Many became waitresses or worked in factories, or as maids. Many people were glad to employ these girls for they had acquired good work habits. Mrs. Carr gave many examples of the success of the school of which she is justly proud.

At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

In Canada there is a branch or a sub-agency of a bank for every 3,600 Canadians. In provision of such facilities, Canada leads the world.

The Huntingdon W. I. met on July 5th. at the home of Mrs. Carl Anderson with 18 members and guests present. Mrs. Middlemiss conducted the meeting and the roll call was answered by each member giving a cent for each inch of her waist measurement. It would be appreciated by the treasurer if all the members who were not at the meeting would send in their contributions on this project as funds need to be kept up to cover all expenses. As this meeting was held so soon after Dominion Day, the ladies observed the Salute to the Flag. Motto for the meeting was "The W.I. is like a slot machine, if you put nothing in, you get nothing out". Arrangements were made for the August meeting which will be in the form of a picnic, and all members are requested to attend.

Timely Tips to Beat Your Medical Expenses

There are simple measures all of us can take to hold down our medical expenses and get better health protection, reports the Reader's Digest.

The most practical of these according to experts are:

1) Act fast. Most of us hesitate to call the doctor until we feel thoroughly sick. And what might have been cleared up with a single visit to the doctor sometimes takes several calls and a variety of expensive drugs.

2) Break the house-call habit. An office visit means better treatment. There the doctor has all his equipment and your full record at hand. Before you phone your doctor take your temperature and write down your symptoms so that you can tell him all of them clearly. Your doctor can decide whether you are well enough to leave the house. And office visits are cheaper.

3) Discuss fees with your doctor. The time to discuss the question of fees is during your first visit — before, not after.

Timely Tips

the doctor bills you. Most general doctors lower their fees for the chronically ill patient whose income is low. Specialists often will adjust their fees to your means if you make clear your financial circumstances. If you are too timid or too proud to mention your finances, he may presume you have no monetary worries.

4) Question prescription costs. Ask your doctor to prescribe drugs by their standard chemical names. Trade-marked drugs are expensive.

5) Have periodic cheekups. Annual visits may mean treatment of an illness in its early stages, when treatment is least expensive and most effective.

6) Take all available medical-expense tax deductions. By claiming all the deductions you are legally entitled to, you may be able to put a sizable dent in your total medical expenses.

Teatime Topics

At the Canadian section of a recent London, England furniture exhibition, guests passed through an entrance of two large panels.

The artist who made up the colorful panels was Mrs. Lauretta Rix of Wilowdale, Ont.

The panels were made with little pieces of colored glass and lots of ingenuity. The final product resembled stained glass windows.

The work was set in a metal frame which had bars of metal crisscrossing in an irregular modernistic pattern. The panels of glass fitted into the sections of the frame.

Mrs. Rix started the work on clear glass. Fishing line was strung in loops and whirls across the glass into what she describes as "nice squiggly lines." The line was allowed to extend over the edge in neat little loops. The loops could then be hung from hooks on the steel framework. This was the method used to assemble the mural.

After the nylon fishing line was taped into place, the job of fitting the glass pieces into a pattern began. Pieces of colored glass were placed on both sides of the sheet of clear glass so that they often overlapped, producing a wide range of bright colors.

The glass was in chunks, crushed and some pulverized to a sugarlike powder. The job, commissioned by the federal government, took Mrs. Rix and an assistant about a month.

Salad Season

It's salad time again. Kitchen artists can set to work to make tempting salads that are also pretty as pictures. Here's a salad named Babel Towers that is both attractive and good.

For each serving allow one tomato cut in three slices. The bottom slice should be about twice as thick as the others. Hollow the bottom slice out and fill with a thoroughly-chilled mixture of flaked crab meat, celery and mayonnaise. Top with a second slice of tomato. Add more crab meat mixture and follow with a third slice of tomato. Top with a spoonful of salad mixture and a blob of mayonnaise topped with a ripe olive. Set the tower in a nest of crisp lettuce and garnish with egg slices and green stuffed olives.

Tuna fish or shrimp may be substituted for crab meat.

The salad mixture is one 7-oz. can crab meat, ½ cup diced celery, mayonnaise to moisten, salt and pepper, ¼ tsp. celery salt.

Men's Fashions

The "man in the grey flannel suit" is fast becoming a thing of the past according to the tailors of Saville Row in London, England.

The Saville Row tailors, known for their ultra-conservatism, have burst forth in bright colors. All kinds of checks, coronation stripes, blues and greens are appearing.

Hard-Cooked Eggs

Eggs are an asset in a lunchbox, along on a picnic or with popular summer salads. To avoid dark rings around the yolks, cool promptly. This also prevents over-cooking and makes it easier to remove the shell.

Should You Keep Your Fears A Secret?

Doctors, psychologists, marriage counsellors and social workers who are called upon professionally to observe fears, agree that there are times when it may be necessary to express our disturbing fears to others. However, they feel that often the course of wisdom is to keep our fears to ourselves, reports the Reader's Digest.

Talking about one's fears may provide temporary relief and reduce tension but it also weakens the resolve to do something about the problem. Every doctor has had patients who visit him to discuss their anxieties, but fail to carry out his advice. Excessive discussion of personal fears may have an adverse effect on a person's position by undermining the confidence of others in their reliability.

When the burden of our fears becomes so great as to threaten our health, experts say we should not keep silent. Continued fear or worry can cause damage to the heart and blood vessels. Telling one's fear to a sympathetic listener eases the pressure. Often our fears are not real threats but imaginary ones. Talking them over with a responsible person will put them in proper perspective.

It is unlikely that anyone would be without causes of fear. But by using good judgment we can distinguish between fears which should be shared with others and which ones we should keep to ourselves.
