FOUR-FOUR TRUMPS
AID DECLARER

The greatest advantage of the four-four trump fit is that you can usually afford to ruff in either hand without hurting yourself. Then, if your trumps are solid you will wind up with five trump tricks instead of four. Similarly, if you ruff twice in one hand you have added two tricks to your potential.

He should ruff a heart at trick two, lead a trump to dummy, ruff another heart and then run out dummy's trumps.

This would allow him to discard two diamonds instead of one and give him all 13 tricks.

Red Ensign is struck at schools

VICTORIAVILLE, Que. (CP) — Albert Morissette, Liberal member of the Quebec legislature for Arthabaska, has ordered a red ensign taken down from a flagpole at a boys' secondary school in this centre 60 miles southwest of Quebec city.

He issued the order in his capacity as president of the Victoriaville Roman Catholic School Commission.

The red ensign was raised on the orders of school commissioner Clement Cantin, in charge of flags for the school commission.

The Quebec flag—the fleur de lis and cross—was run up the school's second flagpole.

The students held a mass meeting to demand that the red ensign disappear and said they would hold a demonstration.

When Mr. Morissette heard of this, he ordered the red ensign taken down.

"I am not a separatist and consider the red ensign the official flag of all Canadians, whether French or English speaking," Mr. Cantin told reporters.

"However, if the school commission president gave the order for it to be taken down, his request has to be obeyed."

Another school commissioner, Roland Michel, objected to the red ensign being struck.

"One thing is for sure and that is I will never teach children to burn flags and demolish houses for the cause of a flag. At the present time, the red ensign is our flag. If it is not the official flag, it is up to us to get one."

Waterville vote favors liquor outlets

WATERVILLE (Staff) — The Town of Waterville yesterday voted 270 to 180 to rescind the Canada Temperance Act and permit licenced liquor outlets within its borders.

The proposal for a change was a bylaw passed by a majority of Waterville council, and announced for the required four weeks before being put to a referendum. Of the 600 eligible voters, 450 went to the polls.

Waterville has four times rejected liquor outlets in referendums, the most recent being in 1952.

A number of local hotels and restaurants are reported to have proceedings underway to apply for liquor licences.

from 10:00 A.M. to 3:30 P.M.

The special features this year are a look at new serial varieties and hay pasture mixtures, vegetable and fruit variety trials and a report on the research being done to put more importance on the value of milk, meat and eggs.

It is expected that more details will be available shortly concerning this event. However, the free chicken barbecue as in past years has been suspended for this year.

DAMAGED EVERGREENS
An unusually large number of inquiries has recently been directed to the Canada Department of Agriculture regarding dead and dying foliage of coniferous evergreen trees and shrubs in the Ottawa area.

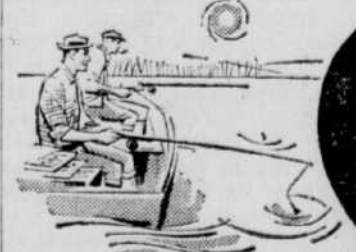

A. N. Buckley of the Plant Research Institute, a well-known horticulturist, said today pines and cedars particularly have been affected. Damage to these types of trees in the arboretum of the Central Experimental Farm here has been excessive.

Camp Farnham training ends today

By CHARLES CATCHPAUGH
(Special to The Record)

FARNHAM — Major-General Frank J. Fleury, General officer commanding Quebec's Army Command visited Camp Farnham Thursday afternoon, when he inspected training being conducted by the 9 Militia Group.

Commenting on his findings and the impressions he gained from the tour he made of the camp, Major-General Fleury said he was disappointed that more men could not have attended with their units, but added that timing of the camp was undoubtedly the main reason more could not have taken part in the training.

Referring to the militiamen he saw, Major-General Fleury expressed complete satisfaction with their ability in handling weapons, and admiration for their tremendous interest.

Discussing reports he has gained about this week's camp from members of his staff, Major-General Fleury said, "Colonel A. C. Poulin, officer in charge of administration at Headquarters Quebec Command has also visited this camp, and brought me most favorable reports."

Continuing, the commander said, "Lt-Col. LeGros, camp commandant has also spoke very highly of the 9 Militia Group, and noted that he has never seen a summer militia camp run so smoothly."

Referring to the militia, Major-General Fleury emphasized his interest in the part-time force, and said, "I have always been most concerned about the militia."

Commenting on the militia, the commander said, "There has always been a militia in Canada, and there will always continue to be one."

LAST DAY'S TRAINING

Today at noon all equipment will be turned in at the Camp Farnham supply and equipment depots, and training at this summer camp will come to an end for the 9 Militia Group.

Shortly afternoon today, all attending this camp will be paid, and about 4 o'clock there will be a brigade parade, when Brig. J. P. Gautier will have an opportunity to address his command, and review them in a march past.

This will also be the occasion for presentation of awards and prizes.

Canadian Forces Decorations will be presented to Major J. H. Westover, Sgt. J. S. L. Petit, Sgt. E. K. Brubaker and Sgt. G. R. Monast, all of the 27th Field Artillery Regiment, RCA.

Commission scrolls will also go to two officers of the 27th Field Artillery Regiment, Second Lieutenants Gerard Lachelle and Lawrence D. Matherson, Junior NCO certificates are to be given the 27th's Sgt. J. P. Arnold and Lt/Bdr. N. Pare and Bandsman R. Mizner.

Sgt. R. G. Knapp of The

Sherbrooke Regiment RCAC will be presented with a trophy as the best pistol shot in camp, and several other trophies will be awarded. The ones for best lines, softball and volleyball will only be decided this afternoon.

CAMP PARTIES
Tonight the social functions attached to summer camp get under way, and parties have been planned for all messes. The annual officers' mess dinner is scheduled for 6:30, and a colorful get-together is planned by the warrant officers and sergeants. The corporals and men also have a gay time planned.

CAMP VISITORS
A number of visitors have called at the camp since last Sunday, and among them one very welcomed caller was Major Douglas W. Ward, now with the Victoria Rifles of Montreal, and former lieutenant-colonel and commander of The Sherbrooke Regiment.

Major Ward now lives in Montreal, and originally an infantry officer, said he enjoyed his associations with the Montreal unit.

Among the visitors expected for tonight's officers' mess dinner is Capt. Patrick Asselin, MP for Richmond-Wolfe. Brig. Frank Ritchie, of Three Rivers, Commander of No. 11 Militia Group will also be in attendance for the officers' dinner.

ON DISPLAY — A display of the sculpture, drawing and painting of students of the Sherbrooke section of the Ecole des Beaux Arts of Montreal has already received over 500 visitors at the school's King Street West location, and will continue until June 17. Here Miss Therese Leconte, instructor at the school, admires a Polynesian-like mask carved by Michel Aubin of East Angus. A charcoal portrait by Miss Constance Boudreau of Sher-

Budget disappointment to provinces

Possibly the most significant feature of the federal budget presented in the House of Commons Thursday by Finance Minister Gordon was the manner in which it virtually rejected the claims of the provincial administrations for larger control over taxation powers.

The Finance Minister based his decision to retain federal control over most tax sources on two grounds: First, the need of the federal administration for every possible cent of revenue it could collect and, second, on the importance of taxation as an aid to implementing economic policies.

Faced with a staggering deficit for the current fiscal year despite important forecast increases in revenue, it is understandable that Mr. Gordon would eye carefully any field of taxation before handing it over to another administration, regardless of how badly the supplicant needed the coveted dollars.

Taxation can be a strong supporter of economic policy changes if the government cares to follow this course. And apparently the new administration at Ottawa plans to adopt tax incentives as a part of its drive to increase production and employment.

With the exception of a few changes designed to plug gaps in the tax structure and others to equalize payments, the budget proposals seem designed mainly for expanding the gross national product or retaining Canadian control over segments of Canadian industry.

Generally speaking the budget was largely in line with what had been expected. Government expenditures are running substantially ahead of revenues and no general tax reductions were expected—and few were given.

So no one was disappointed, even if no one was pleased.

Learn to enjoy being bored by your friends and you'll be real popular.

Tax gatherers hit the calendar reform

Proponents of calendar reform in the United States are meeting opposition from, of all places, the Internal Revenue Department which is charged with the collection of income taxes.

A bill now before Congress would cut one day off the traditional 365-day year, dividing the year into four quarters of 91 days each—one month of 31 days and two of 30. The extra day would come between the Old Year and the New, belonging to neither. Similarly, in Leap Year there would be a monthless day between June 30 and July 1.

This might be fine for the vast majority of individuals as a certain date would come on the same day every week throughout eternity. But the tax collectors do not like it.

They want to know to which year the special day should be attached for taxation purposes. Should the taxpayer include his income on Year Day in his 1962 tax report, or can he hold on to the extra revenue until the year 1964 is completed.

One Senator suggested that perhaps Year Day could be declared tax free, that the corporation and the individual be given a single day in 365 in which everything they receive could be retained for themselves.

But the spokesman for the Comptroller-General reportedly failed to see anything humorous about the suggestion.

You'll feel better if you stop to think that what doesn't happen could be a lot worse than what does.

Other papers say:

Revival of Geneva talks paramount

There is danger that all hope for a nuclear test ban will disappear unless some understanding is reached between the Western powers and the Soviet Union as to the revival of the Geneva talks. Both the British and Americans are convinced that time is running out unless some arrangement can be made with Moscow to continue test ban negotiations through diplomatic channels at least, if not around the conference table.

As a result, it is reported Prime Minister Macmillan and President Kennedy are preparing to send a letter to Mr. Khrushchev whereby some sort of understanding concerning the future test ban discussions can be arrived at. Their immediate objective is, of course, to revive the Geneva talks in the knowledge that, to quote the President, "The (St. Thomas Times-Journal) pace of events in such in the world that unless we would get an agreement now I would think the chance of getting it would be very slight."

All this concern is being expressed because the favorable fall testing season is not too far off and the Soviet Union may start its mammoth trials in the Arctic and Siberia again. The Americans will explode in a few weeks three major nuclear devices in the Nevada desert, and this does not seem to dampen hopes of tying the Russians down to some vague promise of continued negotiations; but there is little doubt that when the fall comes, the Red tests will be carried out according to schedule, and test ban manoeuvres will be exactly where they are now.

It is true the Americans have made concessions on the proposed inspection plan that was rejected by the Russians, who have shown themselves almost totally unconcerned with any test ban agreement. But one can understand Russian lack of enthusiasm for a ban while Americans continue testing. On the other hand, one cannot blame the Americans for continuing to test in the face of Russian lack of co-operation. It is a vicious circle that can only be broken by something more persuasive and forthright than talks between the two factions at the diplomatic level.

It may be an accident affecting the whole globe, or a monumental breakthrough by one side or the other in the field of nuclear missiles. But to expect any progress on the path toward a nuclear test ban seems tragically hopeless. Possibly the world requires a sobering and frightening accident to shake off its lethargic approach to nuclear disaster.

But who pays for his education?

The mail brings a sad story from a Carleton University engineering student who took a summer job and was distressed to find he had to pay Unemployment Insurance premiums.

(Ottawa Journal)

"I went to the Commission and presented my case: that I only work four months per year in a temporary and un-insurable position. I also told them that I would never be able to claim any benefits because I would never work for a whole year. They told me that they would benefit me with a credit for my payments for up to four years. However, in two years I will graduate, and become a professional worker, thus not being insured; furthermore, I will be emigrating to the U.S.A. upon graduation."

"Thus, I am forced to pay money into a fund from which I can never benefit, just to support those who don't wish to work."

Poor fellow! But how does he suppose Canada feels about paying money toward the education — for his fees don't cover the cost — of an emigrant from whose training Canada can never benefit? How does he suppose Canadian workmen feel about subsidizing his education through their taxes, when he objects to contributing to the Unemployment Insurance they may need when jobs are scarce?

Unemployment Insurance is insurance. Should the motor-

The Germans occupied Paris 23 years ago today—in 1940—the French army having withdrawn to save the capital from devastation, and for more than four years the "City of Light" was in darkness. In 1944 as the Allies moved deeper into France, Paris partisans began bitter street fighting with the Germans and in August of that year Gen. von Choltitz surrendered the city to French forces.

Adenauer's successor looks good

Erhard passes his first tests; in good graces of U.S. president

By FRANK HAARHOFF

West German Chancellor Adenauer's last significant act of his 14-year rule will be to play host to President Kennedy on his visit to West Germany June 23 to 28 and to President de Gaulle July 4 and 5. He will hand over effective control of the government to an "advisory staff" headed by Vice Chancellor Ludwig Erhard, August 1.

The "advisory staff," a sort of "shadow" government, agreed upon by the executive of the ruling Christian Democratic Union, will make personnel and party decisions after parliament adjourns for the summer. The group is also expected to choose an Erhard cabinet and make new key appointments. The vice chancellor will officially take over the reins of government October 1, when the house reconvenes.

Adenauer's earlier than scheduled loss of government control was brought about by CDU politicians' and newspapers' demands for an accelerated change of the regime. Events in recent weeks have encouraged these politicians to voice their demands publicly. For Erhard, described by Adenauer as unsuited for political leadership, has passed his first tests for the big job with flying colors.

The economics minister negotiated a compromise settlement that ended a week-long labor stoppage among 400,000 metalworkers and averted a potentially damaging strike wave. A few days later he salvaged his party in the Lower Saxony state elections in which the CDU gained seven per cent. And two weeks later he produced a compromise that headed off a U.S.-European crisis. The Geneva conference on tariff-cutting and liberalization of world trade through President Kennedy's Trade Expansion Act would have broken down had Erhard not found a formula acceptable to Kennedy.

These impressive successes have not only cut the ground from under the anti-Erhard group within the Christian Democratic Union and boost the minister's personal prestige, but have also raised hopes in Washington for better German-American relations in the future.

These relations reached a low ebb last year when Adenauer called the U.S. plan to establish an international Berlin access board unworkable and attacked Washington's intentions to continue talks with the Russians about the divided city.

But although the situation has improved considerably in the meantime, it is still far from satisfactory, especially from the American point of view. The U.S. still feels that West Germany should carry a bigger chunk of the burden of defense costs and aid to underdeveloped countries. Washington politicians also complain that Bonn demands sacrifices from others without being willing to share in the sacrifice.

To set the stage for a better German - U.S. understanding, President Kennedy will not only go to Bonn but will also pay a seven-hour visit to West Berlin. There, as a demonstration of unity, as one West German newspaper put it, he will be welcomed and accompanied by Chancellor Adenauer.

State Department officials, however, are known to have indicated that the President hoped the Chancellor would show restraint during the Berlin visit and would give Mayor Willy Brandt a chance to stand in the foreground on some occasions.

The independent newspaper Die Welt said: "It is Kennedy's opinion that he does not visit Chancellor Adenauer but the German people."

This argument is also expected to dispel fears of politicians who have regarded the President's German tour as an anti-de Gaulle trip. And it will also comfort those Bonn politicians who say it would have been more sensible if Kennedy would have postponed his goodwill journey, in order to establish contacts with the new West German regime.

It seems that Erhard has already established better relations with Kennedy than Chancellor Adenauer has ever been able to establish. (TNS).

Presence in Cuba significant

Red troops symbolize friendship

By JACK BEST

HAVANA (CP)—The presence of Soviet troops in Cuba has taken on a significance all out of proportion to their purported numbers.

The fact that their continued presence is to some extent symbolic only adds to its importance, in the opinion of qualified observers. They say the Russians:

1. Represent living, day-to-day evidence of world communism's penetration of the Western Hemisphere through the instrument of the Cuban revolution.

2. Bear eloquent testimony that the events of last October have not shaken the fundamental friendship of Cuba and the Soviet Union.

In the aftermath of the October missile crisis, Premier Fidel Castro was widely represented as being angry over Premier Khrushchev's abrupt decision to withdraw Soviet missiles from the island without consulting the Cuban government.

If the two leaders did have a falling out, their differences have since been composed, diplomatic informants say. A demonstration of this was the tumultuous reception given Premier Castro by the Soviet people, led by Khrushchev, on the Cuban leader's recent triumphal tour of Russia.

Old-line Cuban Communists were conspicuously absent from the entourage that accompanied him to Moscow. Western diplomats here interpreted this as a calculated reminder to the Kremlin that he and his supporters are determined to follow their own path to Marxism-Leninism, free from the dictates of doctrinaire communism.

Instead, Fidel took along young revolutionaries known for their loyalty to him personally or to his close associates in the Cuban leadership.

A wave of speculation swept Havana earlier this year that the U.S. and Cuba might be moving toward some kind of modus vivendi, with Moscow doing what it could to facilitate the process.

Having looked down the nuclear barrel once, so the story went, both sides were tacitly agreed that the present explosive situation should not be allowed to continue.

"I've been wondering for two or three months whether there's some arrangement between Kennedy and Khrushchev," remarked a diplomat last month. On Russia's part, an accommodation would have the attraction of liquidating the danger of further clashes in an area where the U.S. holds the trump cards.

In view of Castro's reception in Russia and the bold reaffirmation of Soviet pledges to help defend Cuba against attack, the diplomats now aren't so sure.

Presumably, the U.S. would insist on withdrawal of Soviet troops as part of any arrangement to take the heat out of the Caribbean situation.

But this may be precisely what Castro cannot afford to agree to under present circumstances, observers say.

For in a very real way, the troops have become a symbol of Russia's involvement with, and commitments to, Cuba. If they were all withdrawn, the psychological effect among the Cuban people could be such as to produce a sudden revival of counter-revolutionary activity that might quickly get out of hand.

Yet, as long as they are here, normalization of the situation in the Caribbean may be impossible.

Ask a Cuban official when the Russians are going to leave and he will tell you: "When they have completed their mission." This mission: "To train Cuban troops in the use of Soviet equipment."

West diplomats are inclined to go along with the official U.S. estimate of about 17,000 Russian troops here late last year, of whom some probably have since left.

Parts of a 3,000- to 5,000-man combat team, previously reported to have pulled out, may still be in the island, some responsible informants say.

Strategic move?

Grits may organize their own defeat

By CUTHBERT JONES
(Record staff writer)

Believe it or not, the minority Liberal Government at Ottawa may organize its own defeat in the House of Commons according to some storic now making the rounds in the national capital.

Proponents of this theory make a good case for their claims.

Obviously, they say, the Progressive Conservatives are badly disorganized, badly split internally, facing leadership difficulties and obviously lacking in the cash reserves with which to fight another election.

What would be more logical, ask these observers, than for Prime Minister Pearson to follow the example set by John Diefenbaker in 1958? Then leader of a minority government, Mr. Diefenbaker dissolved the House after but a few months in office, called a general election and virtually decimated the Liberals.

Observers generally concede that if another election were held before snow flies, the Liberals could improve their representation in Commons materially—at the expense of Social Credit in Quebec and of the Conservatives elsewhere.

The one difficulty in following Mr. Diefenbaker's 1958 gamble is that the people are fed up with elections and a snap dissolution might backfire on the Liberals.

So, according to the Ottawa stories, an effort might be made to throw the blame on the Opposition.

At present the Conservatives appear to be holding themselves in check, going through the ritual of opposing Government legislation but taking good care that nothing is done to seriously embarrass the cabinet.

But the administration supporters, especially well-documented backbenchers, may undertake a campaign of goading the Opposition to the point where judgment is thrown to the winds. Embittered Conservatives conceivably might present some no-confidence resolution that would win support of all Opposition parties, thus forcing an election. Or they might launch a series of attacks on legislation that would seriously delay House progress.

In either case the Liberals could claim that Opposition obstruction was preventing the adoption of their policies for economic advancement and that the only hope for effective government would be to give them an absolute majority.

This the Opposition could be held responsible for the "unfortunate election."

There is even the possibility that the Liberals could assure their own defeat in the House by the simple process of assuring a substantial group of their supporters were far removed from the Commons when a critical vote is held.

Any move by the Government to force an election would be based on the premise that if the Progressive Conservative suffered another serious setback at the polls, the party would disintegrate. It would take years for the Opposition to reorganize itself as a major political force and in the meantime the Liberals would enjoy a period of undisputed power, lasting perhaps for 20 years.

And, of course, most politicians believe the Social Credit party is finished and that an early vote would end it as the most serious threat to the Liberals in Quebec.

Any astute politician realizes, however, that the reaction of the voters to any particular situation is uncertain that extreme care must be taken before forcing an election.

South African segregation

Creating non-white 'homelands'

JOHANNESBURG (AP)—Premier Hendrik Verwoerd's South African government is creating African homelands for millions of non-whites to further its race segregation policies.

The all-white Parliament recently approved a law granting limited self-government to the first of eight racial enclaves, known as bantustans. The Transkei constitution bill grants an all-black parliament, a flag, national anthem and the official language Xhosa to 3,000,000 Xhosa people in 64,000 square miles of Transkei territory on the Indian Ocean side of the country.

The new law is a far cry from independence for the Xhosa. Final control remains in white hands, and any complete hand-over promises to be a long way off.

Critics say the project is ridiculous and that the blacks are being herded on to South Africa's least productive lands.

But Daan Nel, minister of African administration and development who piloted the bill through Parliament, forecast that South Africa would "be hailed as the creator of a policy that can also be fruitfully applied elsewhere."

The English language Johannesburg Star, often an opposition mouthpiece, said the granting of political rights to Africans in the bantustans would not satisfy the demand of millions of Africans who would continue to live in the white areas. Africans are the main labor force in South Africa's currently booming economy.

The multiracial Liberal party said there is no chance of making the bantustans succeed as self-sufficient economic units.

This feeling is shared by the Progressive party whose single representative in Parliament, Mrs. Helen Suzman, called the bill "a fraud" that would do "nothing whatsoever to dispel South Africa's unfortunate position in the eyes of the outside world."

Opposition also came from the right, with the United Party claiming that the bantustans will become black Trojan horses that pan-Africans will turn against their white sponsors.

About 700,000 Xhosa voters soon will elect 45 members to

Granby police are asked to enforce water restrictions

GRANBY — (Special) — Council has asked police to enforce the order respecting the watering of lawns.

The times have been set as was the case last year for watering between 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. If anyone is seen watering a lawn or garden other than these hours he is liable to a fine.

The city has been forced to take this means because of the tremendous consumption of water during the summer season. Granby, is still having its water problem and until this is solved this ruling has to be enforced.

The Blood Donors Clinic sponsored by the Red Cross said that 568 pints of blood during the two days, June 6 and 7, had been given by donors.

Dr. Arthur Lavigne, president of the clinic, announced that he was greatly disappointed at this result. Only two

The president, along with the Canadian Red Cross wish to thank all who contributed and also for the help of the committee who gave so generously of their time.

'Promote moral standards' president urges Kiwanians

By PAT BOUGIE
(Record staff reporter)

GRANBY — The 47th president of Kiwanis International urged a group of 225 Kiwanians here from Montreal and the Eastern Townships to demonstrate faith in God and to promote the acceptance of high moral values in every aspect of their daily lives to stem the tide of a deteriorating moral structure in our society.

Merle H. Tucker, of Gallup, New Mexico, was addressing Kiwanians from Division 8, which includes Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, at a special banquet held at the Granby-St. Paul Golf Club Wednesday evening. This was the last stop of a cross-country tour for Mr. Tucker which had taken him from British Columbia to Quebec. Earlier in the day, Mr. Tucker had delivered the same speech in Montreal.

"During 1961 and early 1962, Kiwanis was asked to participate in a National Purpose Project. This involved a discussion in club meetings of just what should our purpose be in relation to the political — economic systems in our human relations and in terms of our world responsibility," Mr. Tucker said.

"Through the cooperation of our lieutenant governors a cross section of clubs was selected. In all, 1700 clubs cooperated and 6300 clubs submitted full reports on their studies.

"Dominant in the final report was the concern for individual freedom, individual responsibility, initiative and self-reliance as well as the need for the full development of the individual potential. Incorporated were direct references to the importance of the individual participating in the process of government at every level. Pursuit of excellence was mentioned many times as well as the demand for individual sacrifice along with the individual's control of his own destiny.

"Kiwanians want less or limited federal controls, curb on creeping socialism and the trend toward the welfare state. Many commented on the need for a higher quality of leadership, more efficiency and less waste in government, less control by pressure groups, cutting down bureaucracy and cleaning up corruption. Freedom of the press and more government information to the public were also stressed.

"In the field of economics, the overriding concern was listed with the awareness of moral responsibility. Stress on integrity, fair play, individual morality and putting our ideals into practice were found in the majority of the reports.

"Federal governments in our free countries have defined powers and responsibilities. All other powers are reserved to other political structures or to the people themselves. Yet, year after year, the responsibilities are transferred to the federal government.

"Whose fault is this? the Socialists? the Communists? the Subversives? They may have helped BUT the real guilt is yours and mine. We talk about government being the servant of the people and day after day we turn our back on our responsibilities and we prove it by doing little or nothing about meeting and solving the issues where the most effective job could be done.

"Only men who are free can manage the complexity for the maintaining of free enterprise and keeping government out of competition with private business. Next was fiscal integrity, no deficit spending and control of the inflation. Revision of our tax structure and making taxes more equitable was also mentioned.

MORAL VALUES
Mr. Tucker went on to say, "a return to moral and ethical values was most often

Raglan sleeves are favored

Raglan sleeves in shift-type dresses are highly favored. They make gussets unnecessary, are easy to press or iron and are usually becoming.

Choose a pattern in your size having a raglan sleeve. Select a gay colorful print, or a linen or easy-care fabric. Use contrasting fabric for the collar or make it of self fabric.

Make the sleeves a length flattering and comfortable to you. Use a tie belt as we have, or a belt and buckle covered with the fabric. Foundations for these are at every notion counter.

Use darts at the waistline or allow the belt to hold in the fullness.

Use bound or worked buttonholes, a center-front zipper, or a lapped front with snaps to hold the closing. Make the dress to suit you, then it will surely have the individuality you desire.

There is a little trick to fitting the shoulders of a raglan sleeve.

Notice at (A), when fitting, where shoulders are rounded over slant the seams. For square shoulders you make a straight seam, taking out more at the neck (B).

Stretch the shoulder seams as you stitch them so thread will not break in wearing. Notch or overcast the seams where sleeves join the blouse part, and press them open.

Notice that this dress has a dart at the underarm. This is important with a raglan sleeve, to be sure you have enough fullness across the bust.

Use a bias facing of the fabric at the bottom of the sleeve and to conceal seam of collar and dress neckline where joined.

If your fabric is lightweight, take care that your buttons are not too heavy.

For greater ease in walking you can leave an opening at the bottom of the side seams, making this the depth of the hem. This is easy to do and adds to attractiveness.

When you have fitted this pattern nicely and know what changes are desirable for you, use it for several dresses—plain or printed fabric, even jersey. It is a practical dress and if the fabric and workmanship are good, such a dress can prove decidedly becoming.

LAMB KABOBS

Combine 2/3 cup of French dressing, 1 clove garlic chopped, 1/4 tsp. marjoram. Pour over 1 pound shoulder or leg of lamb cut into 1 1/2 inch cubes. Marinate 1 hour. Drain, reserve marinade. Arrange lamb cubes, 1 green pepper cut into 1 1/2 inch squares, 2 medium tomatoes cut in wedges and 8 pimiento stuffed olives on skewers. Broil or grill 3 to 4 inches from source of heat 7 minutes. Turn and broil 10 minutes longer or until lamb is tender and done to your liking. Brush occasionally with the marinade during broiling.

Drain 1 can (14 ounces) pineapple chunks and reserve 1/3 cup of the syrup. Arrange chunks and 1 pound of beef sirloin cubed and 1/2 cup stuffed olives on skewers. Combine the reserved syrup and 1/4 cup French dressing and brush over kabobs. Broil or grill 3 to 4 inches from source of heat about 5 minutes on each side or until beef reaches desired doneness and is tender. Turn and brush frequently with pineapple syrup mixture. Barbecue tips: Use a water pistol to douse flames that flare up when meat drippings fall.

The June meeting of the B. & P. W. Club was held in the Club room with the president Miss Marjorie Moir in the chair. During the business session a sum was voted to sponsor a girl at the Y.W.C.A. summer camp.

Various items were discussed including plans for Business Women's Week October 20 to October 26.

Miss Margaret Haight extended an invitation to the members to meet at her cottage, Ripple Cove, Ayer's Cliff for a picnic on Monday evening July 8th and tentative plans were made for this event.

Conveners of committees were announced as follows:

Contact, Mrs. Carrie Chapman; social, Miss Evelyn Hall; membership, Mrs. Eva Labelle and Miss Yvette Campbell; community friendship and press, Miss Leta Seymour.

The new slate of officers were installed by Miss Bessie Milford.

Missionary Prayer Group

The monthly meeting of the Women's Missionary Prayer Group was held at Grace Chapel June 10, with the president, frs. A. C. Hill in the chair.

After the singing of a hymn, Mrs. R. Kimoff opened the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. H. A. Welch read the minutes of the last meeting and reported on the Women's Missionary Conference held in May. She also read a letter from Mr. Decker of Hong Kong acknowledging support of aing them to sew, cook and read in the Roof Top School and Members to, can share in this telling of the work that is being done among these child ren.

Miss Bernice MacMillan mentioned several items for prayer and praise. A short time was then spent in prayer.

After the singing of a hymn, Mrs. A. McCrombie spoke on Women. Giving a comparison of privileges enjoyed by women in the western world as compared with women in many other countries of the world today.

She pointed out that women missionaries were able, in many cases, to held these women spiritually, morally and physically, through Bible teaching, medical work, and instructions in child care, as well as by teaching them to sew, cook and read.

The meeting was closed in prayer by Mrs. S. MacMillan. Refreshments were served by the Misses Olive Partridge, Beryl and Mildred Beckwith.

Ruth Millett

What would we do?

Are you, dear lady, still laboring under the delusion that the proper and effective way to solve all your family problems is to "talk things out?"

I hate to disillusion you. But the advice to "talk over all your problems" has been greatly overdone in marriage counselling.

It is, in too many instances, a snare and a delusion.

The reason for this is simple. It's because the average husband just can't distinguish the difference between discussing and nagging.

When mama has something on her mind and is intent on talking it out with papa—papa too often feels cornered.

Here he was looking forward to a peaceful evening at home—and now he's got to face another problem! He can't see why his wife can't figure out the answers for herself and give him a chance to relax.

So, many a wife who has tried the modern idea of talking things out and gotten nowhere with it has come to the conclusion that the best way to get along is first to handle the problem herself and then to present the case in such a way that papa gets the idea it's already been discussed and decided upon.

That's an old-fashioned procedure, to be sure. But it's more agreeable to most men than being confronted with every problem that comes up in family life.

The husband who looks forward to his homecoming each evening isn't the husband who wonders what new problem he is going to have to help solve as soon as he walks through the front door.

Nope, he's the husband who can count on being met by a wife who has things under control and who is willing to let him relax in his off hours, in the comfortable belief that every thing is going along just fine and dandy.

There's just one thing wrong with the advice to married couples to talk over their problems—only one of the sexes enjoys "talking things out."

Polly's pointers

DEAR POLLY—With house-

cleaning now under way, I purchased a new string mop and here is what my husband taught me: Tie a knot at each string of your new mop before using it. The knots keep the mop from tangling and make it last much longer.—MRS. B. S.

GIRLS—More help from one of our clever gentlemen friends even though it did come by way of his wife—

POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Here is a hint for those who like to take flowers to the cemetery.

I cut the lower cross wire of a coat hanger, straighten the end curves and then push the two long ends into the ground. Fasten the hook part on the top of the vase or pot. This holds them steady and I have never had a bouquet blow over.—MRS. L. D.

Can't beat them . . . join scribblers

By KAY SHERWOOD

Scribbling on walls, doors and other surfaces is not a bad habit of 2-year-olds only. I happen to know a 7-year-old who was caught doodling dreamily in black pencil all over my night stand while she chatted on the phone. She is the same young lady who will

"If you can't lick 'em, join for writing, drawing, painting, 'em," is the way one home-maker summed up a simple Saturday morning project which gave her daughter all the scribbling surface she could wish resembles that on a refrigerator; a dry cloth will remove crayon or wax pencil marks. A wet sponge wipes off water paint.

To panel the door, the recessed areas were filled in with heavy cardboard and a panel or hardboard fitted over the entire surface. Matching molding was installed around the edges. The plastic-finished hardboard can be cut with a fine-toothed saw or power saw. Attach to the door with adhesive or contact cement.

As an added attraction, a piece of composition board was put at the top, fitting flush against the top of the lower plastic panel. The composition board takes thumbtacked pictures, messages, or cutouts for display.

The plastic-finished hardboard comes in many colors. For this purpose, light green, white, yellow or light blue are good backgrounds.

Als falter in late innings to lose

Indians win seventh game in a row; Yankees lose to the Orioles by 5-4

Onrushing Minnesota was tough enough even while Bernie Allen was having his hitting woes. But now that the sophomore second baseman has regained the touch, Twins should be doubly tough.

Allen, plagued by a season-long hitting slump, had a batting average of only .175 going into Thursday night's game with Kansas City Athletics. He crashed two home runs and added a single, giving him seven hits in his last 12 times at bat, and helped the fourth-place Twins to a 6-3 victory over As.

It was Twins' 20th triumph in their last 26 games and lifted them to within two games of first-place Chicago White Sox. When the surge started, Twins were last, 8½ games off the pace.

White Sox, idle Thursday, took over the top spot when Baltimore Orioles came from behind in New York to defeat Yankees 5-4 and break a five-game losing string. Boston Red Sox trimmed Washington Senators 7-5 and Cleveland Indians beat Detroit Tigers 5-3.

Allen, whose bat was of little help to Twins for the majority of their surge, has had three of his season's four homers and two doubles in his last 12 times at bat.

In addition to Allen, who hit .269 with 12 homers last season, Vic Power and Bob Allison were the big guns in Minnesota's 13-hit attack. Power had three singles and a double and Allison drove in two runs with a double.

PERRY GETS WIN
Jim Perry, now 5-4, got the victory with relief help from Jim Kaat.

Brooks Robinson's two-run single in the seventh brought Orioles from behind against Yankees. The blow, driving in Luis Aparicio and Joe Gaines, pinned the loss on reliever Bill Kunkel. Robinson made it stand up in the eighth when he threw out Joe Pepitone at the plate after making a fine play on a slow roller. Steve Barber, 10-5, won it, but needed help from Dick Hall.

Willie Kirkland's two-run homer was the difference for the streaking Indians, who won their seventh straight even though out-hit by Detroit 10-5. Tigers' Al Kaline had three hits, including his 15th homer, and took over the American League batting lead with a .352 average.

SQUIRRELY PUTT — Putting isn't tough enough, this ground squirrel has to complicate matters by popping out of the cup at Desert Inn Country Club in Las Vegas, Nev.

Sandy Koufax and the Dodgers win; Willie Mays homers and Giants win

Whoosh... Pop! That's the sound the umpire hears when music man Sandy Koufax is humming in a fastball or twisting in a curve.

The ump got a tuneless earful Thursday night as the consistent Koufax piped in his pitches and posted his fifth shutout with a three-hit 3-0 victory over Houston Colts that kept Los Angeles Dodgers out front in the National League pennant scramble.

Koufax struck out 10 Colts—the 45th time in his career he has fanned 10 or more batters in a game—and brought his record to 9-3. At the same time, he continued an amazing string of pitching successes at Dodger Stadium that's carrying him toward his first 20-victory season.

The 27-year-old left-hander, reducing his earned run average to a glittering 1.77, has recorded four of his shutouts and compiled a 5-0 record at home. And he has allowed only two runs at Dodger Stadium in 54 2-3 innings.

Koufax now is even with his victory pace of last year when he won 14 games by mid-July before being sidelined by a circulatory ailment. Koufax never has won 20, but seems headed for his best mark since he was 18-13 in 1961.

.002 POINTS AHEAD
Koufax's latest shutout left Dodgers .002 points ahead of runner-up San Francisco Giants and St. Louis Cardinals at the top of the standings.

Giants edged Chicago Cubs 2-1 on Willie Mays' 10th inning homer while Cardinals thumped Philadelphia Phillies 7-3 in a game held to 5½ innings by rain.

Fourth-place Cincinnati Reds used homers by Leo Cardenas and Gordy Coleman to whip Pittsburgh Pirates 4-2 behind the five-hit pitching of John Tsiouris. The New York Mets-Milwaukee game was postponed by rain.

The only hits off Koufax were singles by Ernie Fazio and Rusby Staub and a leadoff triple by Bob Lillis in the eighth inning. Lillis was thrown out at the plate by Koufax when pinch hitter Johnny Temple tried to bunt him home.

Tommy and Willie Davis, meanwhile, led Dodgers' attack against Colts starter Bob Bruce. 3-4, Tommy went 2 for 4 and took over the league batting lead from St. Louis' Dick Groat with a .345 average to the Cardinal shortstop's .343. Willie drove in the first two runs with a bases-loaded single in the fourth. Johnny Roseboro's single drove in the other run.

Amateur golfers play in Ottawa

Quebec's amateur golfers move to Ottawa Hunt and Golf Club this weekend for the Fourteenth Annual Alexander of Tunis Trophy Tournament.

The popular thirty-six hole event has been extended for the first time to a two-day competition, thus eliminating the last thirty-six hole per day tournament from the P.Q.G.A. schedule. Competitors have a choice of selecting scores from the Alexander of Tunis or the Duke of Kent, scheduled for Quebec City June 29-30, as rounds two and three for the Willingdon Cup Team points.

Former champions seeking the Alexander of Tunis Trophy are Bob Stimpson, Bob Pollock, John Turner, Dave Pemberton-Smith and defending champion, Glen Seely.

The Sherbrooke Alouettes went down to their second straight loss to the Acton Vale Beavers last night when they failed to hold their lead in the late innings.

Tuesday night here at the ballpark the Als gave up six runs in the sixth to come out on the short end of a 9-7 ball game. Last night the roof caved in the seventh inning when Acton down by two runs, rallied to go ahead, and thus chalk up another win at the expense of the Als, by a 6-4 count.

Warrior's Day draws outside starting berth

TORONTO (CP)—They didn't do Warrior's Day any favors Thursday when post positions were drawn for the 10th running of the Queen's Plate Saturday at suburban Woodbine track.

Expected to be a contender in the annual $50,000-added classic for Canadian-bred three-year-olds, Warrior's Day drew the outside starting berth.

This, says the experts, virtually eliminates Conn Smythe's colt, paying the way for Cane-bora, Son Blue and Royal Maple.

A whopping field of 19 starters were nominated and in a field this size, anything can happen. The purse, a record $54,850 to the winning owner, is the richest in Canadian racing history.

Most bettors are expected to be backing E. P. Taylor's Cane-bora (Winfield Farm) who will be ridden by fiery Panamanian Manuel Ycaza who was second this year in the Kentucky Derby on Never Bend. Cane-bora drew No. 10 post position.

Son Blue, owned by Wilf Farr of Weston, Ont., will start the 1¼-mile race from the eighth stall. Royal Maple, nominated by J. Louis Levesque of Montreal, drew the fifth.

Negroes unequal in golf-Sifford

HARRISON, N.Y. (AP)—The Negro has been accepted in baseball football and most other sports but he's still fighting an uphill battle in golf, says Charles Sifford.

"Negro players get their names on baseball bats, but a Negro can't get his name on golf clubs," the 41-year-old one-time North Carolina caddy complained bitterly.

"That's the biggest handicap we face. We can't get sponsors or backers. The sporting goods companies are afraid to touch us—I don't know why. That makes it plenty tough."

Sifford is the lone Negro in the $100,000 Thunderbird golf classic, which goes into its second round today at the Westchester Country Club.

He fired a one-under-par 69 in the opening round, only two shots back of the leaders, Arnold Palmer and young Jack Nicklaus.

"I've got as much guts as Arnold Palmer and Jack Nicklaus," he said. "I could be just as good, too, if I was given half a chance. But I'm just one black man against 150 whites, and I'm going it all alone."

OUTWEIGHS HANDICAPS
Sifford said the absence of a sponsor far outweighs other handicaps which the Negro player must face.

"It's bad enough we can't play in places like San Antonio, Memphis, Fort Worth and Mobile," he said. "This means that we can play only part of the tour and have no chance to keep our games sharp."

"But the worst thing is the way the sponsors shun us. When I go out and play, I'm strictly on my own. I don't have the satisfaction the other pros have of knowing that win, lose or draw, I'll have a $250 cheque waiting for me to pay expenses. Be-cause it's my bread and butter I tend to press too much. I can't be relaxed. No man can be a winner under conditions like that."

He's never won a major tournament although he finished second in the Canadian Open last year to Stan Leonard and took the Puerto Rican Open of the Caribbean tour this year.

Elsewhere around the league the Coaticook Canadians downed the Drummondville Royals 7-4 and St. John turned back the Granby Knights 6-2.

As a result of last night's tilts Acton Vale has a comfortable three game cushion in top spot over second place Drummondville. Tied, one half game further back are, Coaticook and Granby while tied for the last available spot are St. John and Sherbrooke, four games behind the leader.

At Acton Rejean Plourde went all the way for the winners while their batting star was Sherman Carter who knocked out a triple and a single.

The hitting star for the Als was Jacques Monette who hit a bases-loaded double to drive in three runs.

Summary:
Sherbrooke 100 030 000-4 8 1
Acton Vale 200 000 310-6 9 2
Bessette, Bernier (7) and Poole; Plourde and Dickson.

Alouettes trade Brewer

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal Alouettes announced today they have traded Canadian line-backer Ron Brewer to Toronto Argonauts for American defensive specialist Jim Andreotti and Canadian end Pete Farlinger.

The trade was unconditional. Brewer lives in Toronto and played with Argos before he was traded to the Als in spring, 1961. After making the Eastern all-star team in 1961, he missed most of the 1962 season with a broken ankle.

OUTDOOR CANADA

When the average person gets ready to offer help to the wild animals, it's time for the critics to run for the hills.

For man is the supreme egoist. He will jump in to help, no matter how much this "help" may be detrimental to the overall plan of nature.

Incapable of realizing that animals are not affected on the same plane as are human beings, he credits the wild creatures of the woods and forests with the same hopes and fears he suffers himself.

Scientists call this anthropomorphism, and it is the bane of the wildlife experts and professional zoologists.

NATURE'S PLAN

Nature is red and raw, with dripping claws and sharpened from birth to regard them as chubby, jovial, fun-loving fellows. Diminutives are in order, and we call them piggies or pigwigs.

By JOHN BENNETT

In reality the domestic pig is never more than half a minute away from the wild boar, one of the toughest beasts of all. And I suggest you don't let the children wander into a pig-pen. They'd be safer with a pack of timber wolves.

On the surface, this anthropomorphic way of thought may seem harmless, but it has a tremendous effect on wildlife management.

People get so sympathetic towards animals they let their heart rule over common sense. And when a wildlife study while what they may advocate may seem to you to be cruel, it could be for the benefit of all.

But don't go around weeping for the poor deer, or sweet little squirrels. They exist in a tough system and you won't change it no matter how long you try... or cry.

If our wildlife is to continue, there has to be management and that can't be done efficiently as long as man lets his anthropomorphic leanings govern his actions. (TNS)

CALLER CUTIE — This doe and fawn would be called "cute" by most people. But when men personify animals and let their emotions control their actions toward wildlife there is sometimes a danger of seriously upsetting the balance of nature.

teeth, and this is part of the survival pattern.

For wolves to live, they must kill. They prey upon the weak, the sickly and the careless. That's part of the law of the wild. The strong and the smart live to breed brave, strong creatures to perpetuate the breed.

But in many a human eye, this makes the wolf a villain, a cold-hearted, bloodthirsty monster that pulls down elk, tears pretty little fawns away from heartbroken does, and runs the panting buck to death.

And so the cry goes up for a bounty, and round-eyed youngsters are taught nursery rhymes of the big bad wolves.

To man, animals with bushy tails are "cute" and ones with naked tails are "horrid." So the squirrel is adored and the common rat regarded as vermin. Yet both are rodents.

Deer are held in high regard, not so much because they provide fine sport to the hunters, but because they are fragile-seeming creatures—"doe-eyed" is one fine airy phrase used.

NOT SO TAME

I would suggest you don't ever walk into a compound with a "tame" buck during rutting season. Tame deer in parks and zoos have killed many people because of this lack of knowing the facts of nature's law.

The notices, "Beware of Deer," commonly found in European deer parks are there to warn that the deer can be a dangerous animal.

What a wonderful public relations job has been done for the pig. We're taught almost group suggests a course of action for the good of a species, the average person is quite liable to exert pressure to prevent it, if it does not jibe with the tender ideal of the "animal lovers."

"HOW SWEET"

Every year we are treated to pictures in newspapers of a lost fawn being fed from a feeding bottle held by some pretty child. "Oh, how sweet," gush most of those who see the picture.

But it is a fact that the majority of "lost" fawns are not really lost at all and when the wildlife experts see the picture, they know another problem is about to be dropped in their laps.

People finding fawns or other young wild creatures should keep their hands off the baby. Mom may be just a short way away waiting to get back to her young.

Pawing over a baby under these circumstances is liable to result in the deer or other animal leaving the baby to die—the man stench gets too much for them.

If you want to give sympathetic consideration to wildlife, just remember that a drained swamp will cause the death of more creatures than can an army of hunters.

A careless match dropped in a forest results in annihilation of billions of creatures and means that the burned over area will not support life for years to come.

Heimrath leading driver

TORONTO — German-born Ludwig Heimrath will attempt to cement an even firmer grip on the "Player's Challenge Trophy" at Mosport this Saturday in the Grand National Races.

Heimrath, with 18 points in the standings to date, doubled his lead over his nearest pursuer in the "Player's 200," an international sanctioned meet, at Mosport June 1. The Toronto ace collected eight points for his overall fifth place finish.

What made Heimrath's finish even more spectacular was the fact that he piloted the same car that flipped over three times in the Spring Trophy Races May 18. He worked night and day to prepare his Porsche RS 61 for the "Player's 200."

The Canadian driving championship, won last year by Toronto's Francis Bradley, is organized by the Canadian Automobile Sports Club with Imperial Tobacco Company putting up the "Player's Challenge Trophy." The winner receives an expense-paid trip to compete in a major international sports car race.

Heimrath was the only Canadian driver to place in the "Player's 200" classic that was dominated by a fleet of American drivers. Ludwig's performance gave him a grand total of 18 points while two other Toronto flashes, John Cannon and Denny Coad, failed to finish.

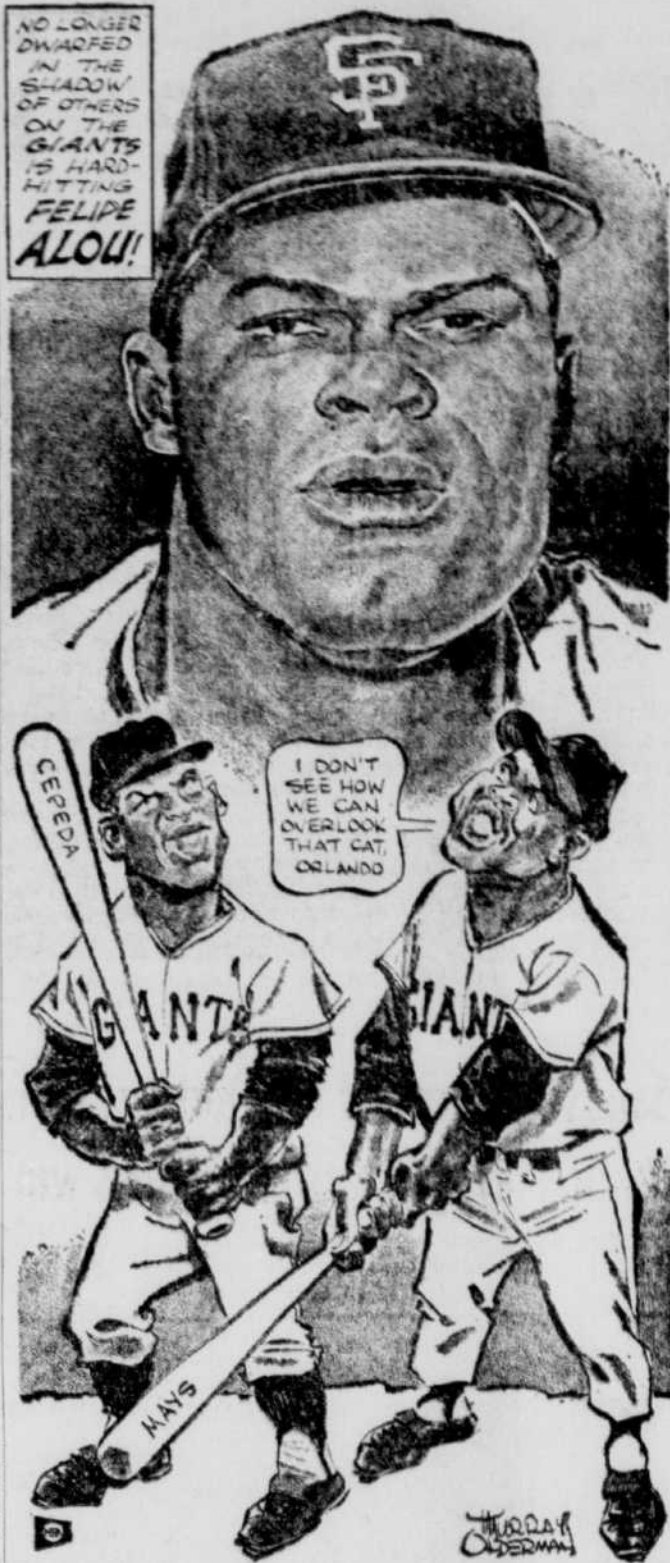

Heading into the "Player's 200," which counted double points, Cannon trailed Heimrath by a point with nine. Coad had seven points to his credit.

The Grand National Races, fourth on a season slate of nine events counting toward the Canadian sports car racing title, falls into the 50-100 mile category. First place will be worth nine points with a drop of two points for every position down to fifth place.

The next race on the Canadian championship calendar will be the Player's Sports Car Race at Hamilton, Saskatchewan on June 30th.

Leaders and points are: Ludwig Heimrath, Toronto, Porsche RS 61 18; John Cannon, Toronto, Dailu 9; Denny Coad, Toronto, Lotus 19 7; Jim Rattenbury, Vancouver, Porsche Special 6; Fred Hayes, Toronto, Cobra 3; Bill Stephens, Ladner, B.C. Lister Buick 2.

LOOMING LARGE

E.T. Track Association to enter athletes in all major track meets

The Eastern Townships Track Association will enter local athletes at all major track meets across Canada at the expense of the Association, it was announced yesterday.

This decision was taken at a recent meeting of the executive of the ETTA.

Because of final examinations there will be few ETAA entries in the Caledonian Games on June 15, and the Provincial Relay Championships on June 22, at Mount Royal.

In the senior section, the first big meet will be the Eastern Canadian Championships held at St. Lambert on June 26 and 27.

Athletes who do well at this meet will be given a chance to go to the Canadian Senior Championships, which are held on July 5 and 6 in Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

The Provincial Senior Championships this year will be held at Verdun on July 19 and 20.

The big meets for the ETTA will be the Provincial age class championships, which will be held in two sections.

The bantam and midget boys and girls (bantam under 14, midget under 16) Provincial Championships will be held on July 1st, in St. Lambert, while the juvenile (under 18) and junior (under 20) championships will be held in Verdun, on July 12 and 13.

The best athletes from these two meets will be selected to go to the Eastern Canadian Age-Class Championships in St. John, N.B. July 26 and 27 and the Canadian Age-Class

The Record's Farm Report

Agriculture's Handicaps Grow

Agriculture continued to labor under difficulties last week. It was becoming urgent that the new legislation establishing two ministers should be enacted soon so the air could be cleared on the division of ministerial responsibilities. Farmers were busy with spring seeding, fortunately, so pressures on Ottawa were fewer than at other seasons.

In spite of the handicaps, Agriculture took action on price supports for soybeans, lamb and wool, carried on the day to day operations; handled an avalanche of questions in the House and made progress on long term plans for reducing the dairy surplus.

Soybeans, Lamb and Wool Keep Same Support

Agriculture minister Hays announced the support price for soybeans for 1963 would be 100% of the base price (10-year average), that is, $2.15 a bushel. No. 2 or better, 14% moisture, delivered at elevators in Ontario. He indicated that the Stabilization Board considered the $2.50-price asked by soybean growers would indicate unwarranted optimism in future prices and could lead to excessive increases in soybean acreage in Canada. Producer returns from the 1962 crop should average between $2.40 and $2.50 a bushel, he told the House. This increase in the market price over last year should give sufficient incentive to growers to increase acreage without government raising its price guarantee to $2.50.

Mr. Hays also announced that 1963 price supports on lamb and wool be the same as in 1962, that is, $18.80 a cwt. for live lamb and 60 cents a pound for wool. Both supports will, if necessary, be by deficiency payments.

Ottawa Scrutinizes Dairy Problems

Dairy problems are receiving major attention in Ottawa. In Ontario, Agriculture minister Stewart set up a special enquiry committee recently to study milk marketing in that province.

In Ottawa, the Canada Gazette of May 22 carried the new authorization of a 10-cent per lb. payment to manufacturers of dried casein or caseinates. This payment became necessary as a result of the skim milk powder support program. With skim milk powder supported at roughly 11 cents a pound, it became evident that dried casein production would suffer unless it had similar support. The demand for Canadian casein has been quite strong especially from U.S. importers.

Questions on dairy products received major emphasis in the House last week. Parliamentary Agriculture secretary Bruce Beer reported that the 25-cent per cwt. subsidy on manufacturing milk, started in 1959, amounted to about $11.5 million a year for the last four years. About 96% of this went to Ontario and Quebec milk producers, divided about evenly between the two provinces. Of the other 4%, Alberta producers received about 2% and the other 2% went to the remaining six provinces (Newfoundland excluded).

The U.S. increase in the subsidy on milk used for cheddar cheese production (up from 25 to 30 cents) would cost the federal government about $641,300 if calculated on the basis of 1962 cheese production. Agriculture minister Hays told the Commons. The federal assistance on cheddar cheese exports was reduced by one cent per pound effective May 1, 1963, an action which should cut export assistance costs by about $260,576 assuming 1963 exports remain at 1962 levels, Mr. Hays said.

Mr. Beer reported that in 1962 almost 69% of the 8.5-billion pounds of milk used in butter production in Canada was produced in Quebec and Ontario, with Quebec dominant. Of the 1.4 billion pounds of milk used in cheese production last year, over 96% came from the two central provinces, with Ontario dominant.

Costs of the government's butter support programs in fiscal 1962-63 were reported by Mr. Beer — for storage of butter and butter oil, $4.4 million; for the 12-cent butter subsidy, $42.3 million. Sale value of government-held butter and butter oil at May 1, 1963 was estimated at $99 million, Mr. Beer said.

Tremblay Notes FAO Hunger Contributions

Replying to a question on Canada's contribution to FAO's freedom from hunger campaign, Mr. Rene Tremblay noted that Canada contributed in several ways and was studying the problem of additional participation. In his capacity as acting minister of Agriculture this week, Mr. Tremblay told the Commons that in addition to its regular FAO financing, Canada made a special organizational grant to the freedom from hunger campaign of $23,000; had organized a Canadian campaign for private contributions; was contributing $5 million in food and cash to FAO's world food program (bank); and was providing additional assistance under the Colombo plan and in Africa.

Recent statistics confirm earlier estimates that the retail market for beef had expanded substantially. In the first four months of 1963, domestic disappearance of beef was up 6% from last year. Two factors seem to be important here. Lower retail prices and the decided preference of the housewife for quality. Both may have contributed to the increased consumption.

At this rate of increase, Canadian per capita consumption of beef ($9.0 lbs. in 1962) could soon reach the U.S. level (9.1 lbs. in 1962) and result in a vastly expanded market for high quality beef.

With Seeding Near End, Crop Outlook Good

The DBS report last week indicated good crop prospects in nearly all areas in Canada. Fine weather during the past two weeks has given farmers a chance to overcome a slow start on seeding operations due to cool wet weather in the early spring. Good progress has been made in all eastern provinces.

In Saskatchewan and Alberta, planting was practically complete. Heavy rains delayed Manitoba farmers and about 25% of the acreage was still to be planted there last week. Except for part of Southern Alberta moisture conditions on the Prairies are good. So far insect damage has been controlled with chemicals, but grasshopper outbreaks still menace some areas.

Proper preparation pays dividends on painting job

By MR. FIX

It's true that any paint job is only as good as the preparation for it. But while most people accept the theory, they follow the practice of simply setting up ladders and painting away the first pleasant day that comes along.

Since ideal painting weather may not always occur when the homeowner has the time to do the job, it's understandable that many preliminary steps are skipped.

Try to get the preparation done well ahead of time. Unlike painting preparation can be done an hour or so at a time over a long period.

Loose, peeling or blistered paint should be removed. Scrape or sand off the old finish.

Check windows for loose or missing putty. Scrape out thoroughly, then brush on a coat of linseed oil over the exposed wood. Apply fresh putty or glazing compound, which doesn't dry out as putty may.

Check around window sash, doors and other joints to see if new caulking is needed. Again, scrape out broken caulking before applying fresh caulking.

Seal Knots.

If there are knots in the wood, seal them with shellac before painting. This will prevent them from bleeding through the paint.

Once you have scraped off all loose paint, give these bare spots a coat of exterior grade primer. These will then be dry and ready for the finish coat when you get set to paint.

You may find areas that are particularly dirty, especially under sheltered sections of the house. Hose these off or scrub them. The wood should be thoroughly dry before painting.

These are jobs you can do slowly during the summer. Then some fine fall day when you are ready to paint you can go right ahead without wasting valuable time and good weather.

Feather Edges

Defective paint that is not loose enough for a scraper can be removed with rough sandpaper. Feather edges wherever you remove paint. The surface at the edge should be smooth or a ridge will show through the new finish.

In extremely difficult cases, especially where large areas are involved, the paint is burned off. This is done with a blow torch or with a special device that combines the features of an electric iron and a scraper.

Since the danger of fire is great for the inexperienced person, better leave burning to the experts.

Let Harden

Look for cracks and nail holes. Fill them with wood putty and sand smooth. They

Many plants need staking

The gardening agenda for late May and early June includes the staking and tying of many plants which, if left unsupported, would topple, sprawl all over the place or be broken off by strong winds and heavy rains.

ADJUSTABLE HOOPS
For bushy plants such as peonies there are excellent stakes having adjustable hoops plant while permitting a gentle swaying. This type of support allows the plants to develop in a free and natural manner rather than that of being artificially rigid.

INDIVIDUAL STEMS
Individual stems of lilies and other such perennials as well as many annuals will need to be tied to separate stakes of proper size.

Whatever type of tying material is used (raffia, soft twine or twinstems) the tying knot should not be on the plant's stem.

It should be looped firmly once around the stake then loosely around the stem, allowing leeway for the plant's growth, then brought again around the stake and there securely tied.

As the plants' stems develop they will need four and even five ties.

Sprawling plants such as Early and proper tying will also aid the orderliness of the garden picture for early tied plants show their natural grace. Being controlled in an upright and tidy manner they prevent them from bleeding through the paint.

Once you have scraped off all loose paint, give these bare spots a coat of exterior grade primer. These will then be dry and ready for the finish coat when you get set to paint.

You may find areas that are particularly dirty, especially under sheltered sections of the house. Hose these off or scrub them. The wood should be thoroughly dry before painting.

which are slipped up as the plants grow.

Also on the market are wire stakes for the support of individual stems. These have a twist which locks around the stem and eliminates tying.

When one wishes to stake and tie it is better to place three or four stakes, rather than one, around bushy plants and taller growing ones such as delphinium and Michaelmas daisy.

Soft cord wrapped around each stake will enclose the
