Allore search hits dead end

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA
LENNOXVILLE — Two weeks ago tomorrow evening, Theresa Allore walked out of the Champlain Regional College dining hall, bound for her room in the King's Hall residence in Compton, less than 10 miles away.
As far as Lennoxville police know, she never arrived.
It appears she had only the clothes she was wearing and what money she had in her pockets, because neither her wardrobe at King's Hall nor her bank account in Lennoxville have been touched since. In addition, she had lent her packback — she used it in all her travels — to a friend.
The major puzzle in the 19-year-old Saint

John, New Brunswick native's disappearance seems to be in her plans for the two hours between the time she left Champlain and the time she said she expected to arrive at the residence.
As she left the college around 7 p.m. on November 3 Allore told a girl friend she would be in her room in two hours despite the fact that the distance between her school and the residence is only about 15 miles.
Lennoxville police were notified of her disappearance only last Friday, November 10, and have been conducting an intensive search for the student since. They have cursorily searched the highway between Lennoxville and Compton, interviewed many of her friends, acquaintances and their parents, as well as following up all phone calls from citizens in the area who think they may have seen her.

Her parents arrived from Saint John, New Brunswick, on Sunday with their youngest son to see what they could do to aid in the police investigation. Andre, another son, also attends Champlain College and was among the group who initially approached the police in the matter. The Allores, who have been married for 20 years, are planning to return to their home in New Brunswick this weekend.
Theresa Allore's father is convinced the key to the mystery of the whereabouts of his daughter is on campus, and thinks it impossible that more has not been found out from the other students at the college. He is sure that certain students know more than they have revealed.

On October 31, Theresa Allore last spoke with her father over the phone and mentioned some scholastic achievements marking her first year at the college. She had been living away from home for about a year and had worked for several months preceding entry at Champlain, and was considered a lively, bright student by friends and teachers alike. However, she disliked depending on the vagaries of mass transit and preferred to hitchhike between Compton and Lennoxville.

THE WEATHER

Mostly cloudy, clearing late in the day. Clouding over with moderate winds Friday. High today 5 and Friday 3. Low tonight near minus 7.
A weak disturbance in a westerly flow will move across the province today and as the air is moist, cloudy skies will prevail over our regions. A few flurries are expected in northern regions and over higher grounds. A large low system will give cloudy skies Friday and rain late in the day.

Chretien budget plunge tonight

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien will stay in the frying pan or take a chance on a dash through the fire as he brings down his second full budget this year tonight.
Faced with a slow-growth economy, Chretien has to weigh the disadvantages of increasing the government's already-record cash deficit against benefits that might result from popular tax cuts.
There has been heavy pressure from the private sector and the government's own inhouse advisor, the Economic Council of Canada, in favor of tax cuts.

But the finance minister also must bear in mind the impact job-creating tax reductions will have on inflation.
The budget, which sets out government revenue-raising plans and includes a review of the economy, is the fourth major economic statement for Chretien since he took on the finance portfolio 14 months ago.
The evidence points strongly to some reduction of personal income taxes—a measure aimed at spurring consumer spending and, ultimately, more jobs for the estimated 800,000 unemployed.

A survey released Wednesday by the Conference Board in Canada, a private research group, lends some support to that action. The report said consumers are optimistic about the economy and are ready to spend.
SURVEY OLD
But the survey was taken before two recent increases in the trend-setting Bank of Canada interest rate. Those increases, which both opposition critics and federal officials agree will dampen economic growth, increase the cost of both consumer and business loans.

The government could move on other fronts, however, to offset the adverse impact interest rate increases have on economic expansion.
For example, Chretien could announce steps to ease the harmful effects of high interest rates on small businesses and measures that could revive the slumping construction industry, a major employer.
He could also offer more incentives to business for research and development in Canada.
The problem is these steps cost the government money.

And with a cash deficit this year expected to be a record $11.8 billion, there is little room to manoeuvre.
More government spending, although it would create more jobs, could cause more inflation. The current inflation rate is about 8.6 per cent and it is expected to go higher this winter because of higher costs for imported food.
On Wednesday, money traders were already saying fears that a federal budget would be inflationary had pushed the dollar below 85 cents U.S. for the first time in more than two weeks.

Cadbury president 'incompetent'

Tremblay blasts Cadbury

QUEBEC (CP) — Industry Minister Rodrigue Tremblay charged Wednesday that the president of Cadbury Schweppes Powell Ltd., showed "very little competence and a great deal of arrogance" in proposing the closure of the company's Montreal plant.
The plant, which makes Cadbury chocolate bars, is to close today putting 500 employees out of work. Production is to be consolidated at the company's Whitby, Ont., plant.
The company announced the closure in July, saying production costs at the Montreal factory, where employees earn $1 an hour more than those in Whitby, were higher.
After the announcement the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) launched a consumer boycott against all products marketed by the company. The Parti Quebecois supported the boycott.
Tremblay told the national assembly that company president T. N. Powell has

RODRIGUE TREMBLAY ...accuses cartel displayed bad faith concerning the closure and his intransigence "harms private enterprise."

The minister said the attitude taken by Cadbury is reminiscent of 19th century entrepreneurs who did not take into account the "social impact of their decisions."
SABOTAGE CLAIM
He charged that a "chocolate cartel" had sabotaged the boycott of Cadbury products by offering special deals to retailers during the boycott.
The company points out that its sales have not dropped despite the boycott.
Tremblay said there are few chocolate makers in Canada and he alleged that they operate as a cartel, working in concert with major retail chains.
The minister said cartels do not work to the benefit of consumers.

Claude Dubois (UN—Huntingdon) asked the minister whether he had received a telegram from the CNTU reminding him of an offer to provide the company $2 million in financial aid to build a new plant.
Tremblay said he had not seen the telegram, but he added that he had made a number of offers to Cadbury, as had the federal government, but the company was sticking to its plan to move.
He said the offers he has made are "still on the table" but the government cannot stop Cadbury from leaving Quebec.
"I am ready to meet them," he said, but what is required to resolve the problem is "good faith on the part of Cadbury."

GRITS WOULD WIN DESPITE POP DROP

MONTREAL (CP) — A majority of Quebecers are unhappy with the federal government's performance but many of them would vote Liberal anyway, says a poll published today in the daily La Presse.
The poll says 54 per cent of the respondents indicated they were dissatisfied with the Liberal government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, while 41 per cent said they were happy—a 17-point drop from a late-summer poll.
The telephone survey of 856 voters was carried out between Oct. 18 and 27 for La Presse by the Centre de Recherche en Opinion Publique, a professional polling agency.
Despite voter unhappiness, the poll found the Liberals to be in strong shape in Quebec.
About 73 per cent of the people surveyed revealed their party preference, and of those, the Liberals were backed by 60 per cent. Progressive Conservatives 23 per cent, New Democrats nine per cent, Social Credit seven per cent and other candidates one per cent.
Trudeau's personal popularity may be slumping rather seriously in some provinces, but he is even more popular than his party in Quebec.
So strong is the prime minister's personal appeal that 36 per cent of Liberal supporters said they might consider voting for a different party if the Liberals changed leaders.

RYAN: PQ TACKLED EASY ISSUES FIRST

MONTREAL (CP) — The Parti Quebecois government has earned some easy popularity during its first two years in power by adopting measures which affect anglophones and upper-income earners, Quebec Liberal Leader Claude Ryan said Wednesday.
Commenting on a poll that shows a bare majority of Quebecers approve of the PQ on its second anniversary in power, Ryan said he was not surprised by the results.
"Many of their measures act on those whom it's always been popular to appear to be hard against," he said. "The bite will come later when other groups like the unions find they are the target of the same type of action."
The poll, conducted by the Centre de Recherches en Opinion Publique and published Tuesday in the daily La Presse, says 51 per cent of the population is generally pleased with the PQ government's record.
Another 45 per cent said they are dissatisfied while the rest did not answer.

Devoir: Association plan international

MONTREAL (CP) — Le Devoir says the Parti Quebecois's plan for association between an independent Quebec and Canada would be of an international nature, with an interacting government body to govern relations.
The French-language daily cites a working paper prepared by the committee organizing a Dec. 2 party convention and says it has been ratified by the party's executive.
The document suggests the creation of the Association of Quebec and Canada—a council which would be formed by four ministers delegated by the two governments, Le Devoir says.
In addition to the council, the document suggests an inter-parliamentary assembly formed by sitting members to be delegated by their governments, the newspaper says.

Levesque: A world-level federalist

PARIS (CP) — In a newly released book, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque says he supports federalism on an international level although he remains devoted to the ideal of political sovereignty for Quebec.
"On a world level, I am federalist," Levesque says in La Passin du Quebec, published by Les Editions Stock.
He says he believes a minimal kind of federalism on a world scale is necessary to avoid the chaos of famine and war, but sees no contradiction between this belief and his Quebec nationalism.

The 300-page book is a collection of 10 interviews with Levesque conducted last year by Jean Robert Leselbaum of the French magazine Le Nouvel Observateur, plus a series of articles on Quebec history and culture.
In the rambling interview Levesque says he is convinced realism would force English Canada to negotiate economic association with the Quebec government if the proposed referendum went the PQ government's way.

But if English Canada refused to negotiate, "Quebec would inevitably be forced to make a few unilateral declarations," Levesque says without elaboration.
In recent months, the premier has said there would be no unilateral declaration of sovereignty if an economic association proved impossible.

If the referendum is won, the premier says in the book, some federalists will probably leave the province, just as the Loyalists left the United States after the American Revolution.
"The same exodus, although smaller and less dramatic, could occur."
"It will certainly happen for a few hundred, perhaps a few thousand Quebecers, even francophones, who will not accept the decision of the majority if it goes our way," Levesque says he would like to see a monetary union with the rest of Canada after Quebec independence and can see possibility of joint citizenship and a common passport.

He also foresees a seat for Quebec in the United Nations and suggests a three-country management of the St. Lawrence seaway with Quebec joining the U.S. and Canada in a partnership agreement.
On economic subjects, Levesque reiterates the need to bring the banking system under Quebec control after independence and broaches the possibility of a state petroleum corporation which could absorb up to 20 per cent of the Quebec market.

RENE LEVESQUE ...international federalist

ASSESSSES DRAPEAU
He also makes known his views on several public figures, including Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau, whom he terms a "big promoter of projects, a great builder but not a great reformer."
"After 17 years, I think his reign is coming to an end soon because the opposition, even though disorganized, is making his life hard."
Drapeau was re-elected for another four-year term Sunday in a landslide victory.
As for Prime Minister

Trudeau, Levesque discusses at length the decision by Trudeau, Gerard Pelletier and Jean Marchand to enter federal politics in 1965, and says the three did not sense the important distinction he saw between federal and Quebec politics.
"Mr. Trudeau, in particular, is not especially rooted in Quebec's identity and culture."
And he adds later that both Trudeau and Pelletier have become seriously "uprooted" since they entered federal politics.

PROMO FIRM USED PQ NAME

MONTREAL (CP) — A promotional company used the name of the Parti Quebecois to defraud party supporters of thousands of dollars in early 1977, the agency's owner testified Wednesday at the provincial organized crime inquiry.
Gestion Ville et Village Inc.—set up shortly after the PQ was voted into power—sold advertisements for the Quebecois Political Review, saying it was a party publication, said owner Raymond Soucy.
Soucy told the Quebec police commission inquiry that his salesmen would solicit the advertisements by telling prospective buyers that they represented the PQ.

He said the buyers were told their advertisement would be "placed below the picture of (Premier) Rene Levesque," and the review would be distributed throughout the province.
But only a few thousand copies of the review were published. It consisted of pictures and biographies of PQ national assembly members and hundreds of advertisements.

Jean-Claude Forest, a chartered accountant, told the inquiry the company made $46,577 during its short-lived existence and most revenues came from a single issue of the review.
The inquiry was told that PQ lawyers ordered the agency to stop using the party's name in April, 1977, but witnesses testified the practice continued, even after inquiry investigators raided the agency's offices.
One agency salesman, Laurent Roy, testified that he continued to sell advertisements worth up to $300 from the public for a publication that no longer existed.

Soucy was convicted of fraud in 1959 for soliciting money for a publication he said supported the Union Nationale, which was in power at the time.
Soucy told the inquiry he now works as a public relations officer for the Toronto-based Belmont Advertising House, adding that the company is currently trying to open offices in Western Canada.

Problems complicate Canfarm takeover

OTTAWA (CP) — Problems remain with a proposal by the Canadian Federation of Agriculture to take over Canfarm, federal agency which provides book-keeping services to farmers, says Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan.

But the government is doing all it can to see Canfarm services maintained for its 14,000 farmer clients, Whelan said Tuesday in the Commons.

Perrin Beatty (PC—Wellington-Grey, Dufferin-Waterloo) and Eudore Allard (SC—Rimouski) asked Whelan to speed up the selection of a new Canfarm operator because of its importance to farmers.

Beatty said that without a decision soon, the agency's trained staff and some of its clients could be lost. Federal funding for the agency dries up in April as part of government cost-cutting.

Whelan said the agriculture federation's proposal to turn the agency into a farmer-run group is under study, lending support to rumors it is the favored successor.

But a number of private companies, including banks and computer consulting companies have expressed an interest taking over Canfarm.

A cabinet committee is to begin studying this week the agriculture department's recommendation on what to do with Canfarm. A final decision is not expected for a couple of weeks.

Agriculture officials said at first they hoped turn control of the agency over to the provinces but provincial governments, co-founders of the agency, were not interested.

Led by Peter Hannam, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, farm groups worked up a proposal backed by a loan from financial co-operatives to gain control of the agency.

The snag with their concept is a need for transitional government funding, Whelan said.

Besides book-keeping and other administrative support services, Canfarm provides advice on equipment replacement, feed formulation and crops.

It costs farmers about $30 a year, a fee which will increase sharply under new management.

BISHOP'S BEGINS FUNDS DRIVE

The Bishop's University alumni association has launched the 1978-79 version of its annual funds drive.

Gary Richards, executive secretary of the association, believes alumni are beginning to contribute more each year, following a long period during which donations had fallen significantly. In 1977-78, 501 contributors donated more than $16,000 to the fund, a figure Richards stipulates was the highest since 1968.

When sums are collected, the first $6,000 are earmarked for scholarships support and the next $6,000 are directed to general university development. In past years this latter portion has sometimes been utilized to purchase books for the university's Eastern Townships collection, Richmonds says. Remaining funds are then allocated on the basis of current priorities.

Nearly a quarter of the university's 3,200 active alumni are residents of the Eastern Townships but, curiously, it is among these persons that the number of donations is proportionately weakest. Less than 10 per cent of these alumni contribute to the fund, the overall figure is almost 20 per cent.

Richards speculates the reason may be linked to the possibility that residents of this region perceive the university as one of the stalwart institutions in their environment. As a result, he suggests, they may overlook its real need for support.

EXTENSION PROGRAMS GROWING

Continuing education departments are doing a thriving business at Bishop's University and Champlain Regional College.

G.J. Marcotte, director of the university's extension program, and Dan Fricker, head of the college's continuing education department, both note that second language instruction is proving to be one of the largest areas of interest. About 200 of the 485 students enrolled in the Bishop's program and more than 300 of a total 350 at Champlain are following courses in English as a second language. Some similar options are provided in French.

Bishop's also features evening courses in business and humanities subjects and has accepted as valid for the BBA degree a number of offerings taught on campus under the auspices of the Canadian Institute of Management program. More than 55 per cent of the university's new part-time students are aged 25 years or more and the male-female division is almost even, according to Marcotte.

Champlain gives a few library science and administrative techniques courses and it has just launched a program aimed at encouraging housewives to upgrade their education. Called "New Dimensions" the pilot project includes 12 persons and classes are held two days each week. Options presently taught are introductions to business, sociology, English and humanities. Fricker says students' interests and future enrolment will be determining factors in deciding which courses will be given in forthcoming semesters.

UNIVERSITY DEANS SOUGHT

The Université de Sherbrooke is inviting applications for two administrative postings. Deans are to be appointed for the faculties of medicine and law.

The institution will likely be seeking another such administrator in the near future. The board of governors recently accepted the mass resignations of the dean and assistant deans of the faculty of education following student and faculty protests over the reassignment of a professor.

ESSO ART ON SHOW

The ESSO collection of Canadian art of the last four decades is being shown in the large hall of the Université de Sherbrooke art center. Organized by the Art Gallery of Ontario on behalf of the university and Imperial Oil, the exhibition runs until Dec. 6 and features a variety of art forms.

LOCAL UPA FAVORS FEE HIKE

Delegates to the recent annual meeting of the local Union des Producteurs Agricoles voted in favor of a resolution calling for an increase in fees from the current $50 per year to $75 in 1979 and $100 in 1980. A final decision on whether the jump takes place will be made at the UPA's provincial conference in Quebec City Dec. 4-8.

Present rates have been in effect since 1976 and they are divided so as to provide $23.50 to the central office of the UPA, $21.50 to the local UPA and $5 to the area syndicate. Fees stood at $15 in 1973 and at $25 during 1974 and 1975.

ETCA DEVELOPMENTS

The Eastern Townships Construction Association has asked members to participate in a recruitment campaign aimed at increasing membership by about 10 per cent. The association now has some 275 paying participants.

In line with the current drive, ETCA administrators have decided to retain the membership fees now in force, despite the fact ETCA itself will be paying $60 per member in 1979, up from $50 this year, to the Quebec Construction Federation. The federation represents more than 4,000 contractors and materials suppliers grouped in ETCA and 15 other regional associations.

Present ETCA fees vary from $150 per year for materials suppliers to $250 per year for contractors doing more than $1 million business a year.

Chretien 'no Santa Claus'

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Jean Chretien has frequently said he is no Santa Claus, but this week he approaches a federal budget with a list of requests ranging from personal income tax cuts to business investment incentives.

For the last two months, Chretien has been canvassing the provinces, private economic forecasting organizations, business spokesmen and other interest groups to hear their views on economic strategy.

Both opposition parties have also made their views known to the finance minister and the voters. The single proposal which has attracted most attention is a plan first put forward by the Progressive Conservative party last spring to reduce personal income taxes by $2 billion.

Several months later the New Democratic Party announced it favored a $1.5-billion reduction in personal income taxes.

ROYNAT DEALS WITH CRANKS

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ever hear about the man who had an idea to build a tunnel under Lake Ontario to link St. Catharines with Toronto?

How about the person who wanted to build a chain of CN towers across the country?

RoyNat Ltd., a Montreal-based lender specializing in financing small and medium-size businesses, gets a lot of these schemes.

Leo Legrove of Toronto, a vice-president of RoyNat, says people come to them with the wildest ideas.

"Only 10 per cent of the new ideas presented to us make sense."

While the promoter of the tunnel had high hopes, he didn't get financing from RoyNat. The tower idea was also rejected, as was one from a woman who wanted to borrow $40,000 for a travelling show.

In each case, the promoters were unable to demonstrate that their project was viable.

Recently, J. D. Thompson of Montreal, president of RoyNat, said many loan applicants fail to research their ideas in depth and are not able to present well-documented analyses.

SHOWS SERIOUSNESS

He said a well-documented presentation "indicates how serious he is about his project and how capable he is."

Thompson says most new small businesses revolve around one individual, so a lender has to determine whether he can make the business a success and pay his debts.

"The concept may be good but when can he get to the point where he will break even?"

Unemployment Insurance is now more responsive to conditions in Québec

To make your Unemployment Insurance Program more responsive to the special needs of different areas of Canada, there are now 48 economic regions for UI. (Up to now, there were 16 regions.)

With this change, UI benefits will more accurately reflect your local employment conditions.

It's all part of a plan announced over a year ago.

Each of these new 48 regions will have its own unemployment rate. This will set the length of time a claimant must have worked to become eligible for Unemployment Insurance benefits. And it will govern the length of benefits as well.

There's nothing new about the system itself—it's just being measured more finely in 48 regions, rather than 16.

The length of time a claimant must work to get UI remains the same. It varies from 10 to 14 weeks, depending on the unemployment rate where the claimant lives. And regionally-based benefits have the same maximum.

The change will only affect those whose UI claims start after November 12.

This map and the information with it will show you the new economic boundaries in your area.

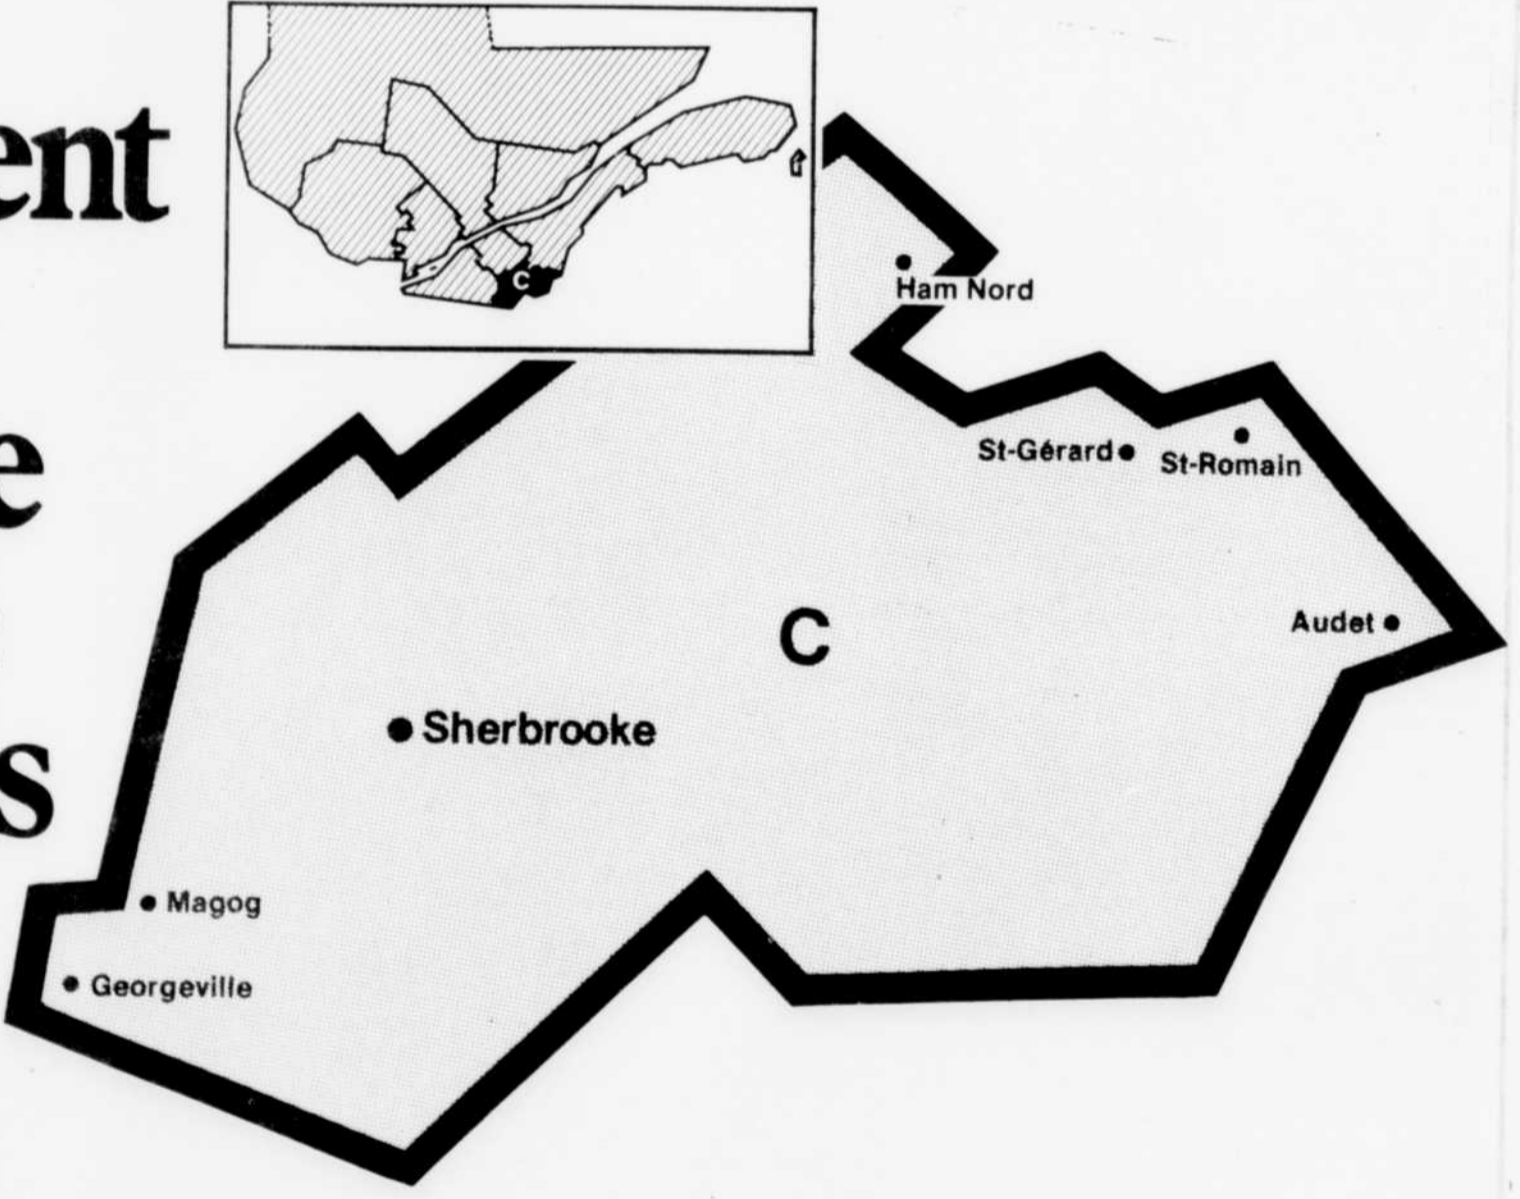

Clip the map and save it for reference, if you like.

Note: Further changes to the Unemployment Insurance Program have been proposed by the Government. They will come into effect only when they have been enacted by Parliament.

BU film society: Good and cheap

Some people are known for their ability to quote poems; some can rhyme off the lyrics to hit tunes by heart. Greg Coulter, however, is widely known for being able to quote from the zany routines seen in Monty Python movies that are popular with the fans of the British group's off the wall brand of humour.

While some may see little value in this talent, it does come in handy to know this and other bits of movie trivia when you are the president of the Bishop's University Film Society. Better and probably more accurately known as BUFS, the Film Society is responsible for the screening of films in the Centennial Theatre at BU.

A third year student in honors biochemistry, Coulter took over the organization last April and since then has pursued a philosophy of showing films that will be of as much interest to a community audience as to students.

"The film society is not just a service to the students but to the community as well," the 22-year-old Beaconsfield native said recently. "As one of the few English language cinemas in the region, we have a product of offer them and we do our best to do so."

In this vein, Coulter has announced playdates for the movies in both this column and in the BU Student tabloid, The Campus.

Operating on a budget of "around $16,000" garnered from Film Society season passes, gate receipts and a grant from the Students' Executive Council, Coulter and his 16-member volunteer organization have screened such films as Oh, God, The Eagle Has Landed and The Day of the Jackal so far with plans to round off 1978 with movies like the Oscar-winning Goodbye Girl and Sweet Away.

There will also be a yuletide kiddies' matinee featuring Walt Disney's Gus and two cartoon featurettes. This matinee will be a first for the Society. Next year, The Film Society will offer Rocky, The End, Annie Hall and The Spy Who Loved Me among their program.

With the responsibility for booking, co-ordinating and supervising the showing of all the BUFS films, Coulter finds his days full but he adds that there are also some rewarding moments.

"When we screened the Walt Disney double feature earlier this year, about 50 kids from the Butters Centre came to see it. I was really thrilled by their response; they apparently had quite a good time," he said. "It was the first time something like that has ever happened and I hear that they'll be coming back."

A confessed movie buff with a leaning towards science fiction flicks, Coulter said that film society passes for the 1979 (second semester) season are on sale at the Centennial Theatre box office for $10. Regular prices for the films are $2 a show with students and those under 14 admitted for $1.50. Coulter concluded by saying that he welcomes all feedback concerning the society and suggestions for movies. He can be reached through BU Box 2133, care of the Students' Executive Council, Bishop's University, Lennoxville.

While on the subject of the Film Society, their next flick will be the comedy Greased Lightning with Richard Pryor, this Sunday, at 7:30.

There's an old adage in show business where one actor wishes the other actor luck by telling them to "break a leg". Though she didn't do it at the request of her conferees, drama student Sydney Ainsworth fractured her ankle during a rehearsal for tonight's Show Extraordinaire: Songs and Stories of the Eastern Townships, a few weeks ago. True to another showbiz expression — that the show must go on — the Lindsay, Ontario native will be there doing her bit when the curtain rises at 8:30 on the latest Bishop's-Champlain Cultural Series effort, done in co-operation with the BU Drama Department. Sydney who will be the star of a vignette depicting early Townships life as seen through the eyes of one pioneer woman, joins about 30 other students in this lighthearted look at local history that revolves around the efforts of the Duke of Lennox as he tries to find out where the town of Lennoxville is and why it bears his name. The play is a collective creation involving songs, stories, dance, mime and special theatrical effects. The diversity in material covers everything from the Battle of Eccles Hill to a coach race to Cowansville at the turn of the century.

Local musicians like John Pille will also get in on the act by providing some lively melodies for the production. We hope the temperature in the Centennial Theatre will be a little warmer than the last time Pille's talents were on the scene: student Mary-Ellen Townsend tells us that when Pille supplied some horns to the production of Twelfth Night last year, her electric blanket had to be pressed into service to keep the instruments warm between acts.

Cultural Series passes will be honored for the performances tonight and Friday. Individual tickets will be available at the Centennial Theatre box office (563-4966) or through the Centre Cultural of the Université de Sherbrooke. The show runs until Saturday.

Congratulations to BU student Wayne Rice for being honored recently with an Indian Young Achiever Award at the National Indian Brotherhood's annual general assembly. Rice, who hails from Caughnawaga, is an 'A' student in History at Bishop's and has played a key role in the establishment of the Native Students' Association here. CRSSS to hold meeting

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Under the heading of "Social Affairs, a Concern for All of Us", the conseil Regional de la sante et des services sociaux des Cantons de l'Est (CRSSS) is holding its annual public information meeting on December 5, from 1:30 to 10:30 p.m. at the Residence de l'Estrie, 500 Murray Street.

The assembly includes workshops to discuss various themes at 1:30 in the afternoon and information and discussion sessions from 7:30 p.m.

Workshops will include the themes of decentralization and regional power, regional services for the aged, the myth or reality of population participation and the organization of regional health services. The evening's session includes an accounting of the CRSSS role and future perspectives.

Persons interested in participating in the workshops are asked to call 569-9895 or register at 185 Frontenac (CRSSS offices), before November 21.

Bromont's new mayor works fast

By TERRY SCOTT
BROMONT — Presiding over his first council meeting since winning the mayoralty Nov. 5, Pierre Jacob disposed of the agenda in record 45 minutes on Monday night.

The new mayor reflected briefly on the election results during the council session, noting that even though his team had achieved total success, it will adhere strictly to its electoral platform.

"We plan to do this beginning tonight," he told an audience of about 30 people. "I promised during the campaign that you would have the chance to meet the mayor regularly and the first of these meetings will take place Dec 13 from 10:00 a.m. to 1:30 p.m."

Jacob invited the ordinary citizen to participate in municipal government because "like myself, you have investments in Bromont."

He recalled meeting a number of people during the campaign with resources that would be helpful at city hall and he urged them to volunteer these services "to put Bromont back on the map."

The mayor used the meeting to appoint his councilmen to various committees established within the municipal structure. Councilman Louis Trudeau emerged as one of the key figures, assuming both the finance portfolio as well as the municipal housing office (OMH).

Lucien Lacombe took charge of the airport and zoning committees while Roger Gagne retained his roads and public works portfolio.

The mayor left the important post of economic development for himself. In a break from the custom established by his predecessor, Jacob advised the audience that only questions pertaining to the meeting's agenda would be discussed once the floor was open to taxpayers.

"If you want to bring up something outside the agenda, you must contact us by letter. If we deem it to be in the public interest, we will respond at a public meeting; if not we'll answer by return mail," he said.

After conducting routine business on the agenda, Jacob invited questions from the floor and received such innocuous queries as whether all council meetings will be conducted in Bromont, and whether the current assembly hall at the municipal arena would be properly heated in the winter.

One taxpayer, however, took exception to his ban on non-related questions and demanded to know why he had adopted this policy.

"Quite often a question will be asked about a subject without us having the proper dossiers in hand," Jacob replied. "This way, if you write to us, we'll be able to study the required dossier I think it's fairer to everyone that way."

CHOQUETTE: PROGRAM WORKING

SHERBROOKE (JD) — Only 11 of 53 projects submitted under the provincial Community Employment Program have been accepted, but the program is out of the experimental stage, says one of its creators.

Ken Choquette, of the Quebec Planning and Development Office, was in town yesterday to discuss the OPDQ program. Interim president of the Townships Regional Administrative Conference, Choquette admitted the program got off to a slow start as one of 28 schemes falling within a grandiose master plan. Operation Solidarite Economique, best known as OSE.

OSE is the work of Jacques Leonard, Minister of Planning and Development and one of the so-called super ministers in the Levesque cabinet because his responsibilities include forming liaisons between various ministries involved in a given project.

These interministerial connections happen on the regional level as well; the CAR in the Townships headed by Choquette groups the regional executive of each ministry and the 12-person Conference is the judge of what projects are given their backing.

The 11 projects approved mean the creation of 67 jobs and cost the program about $300,000, while another seven projects are still under consideration, Choquette said.

The projects approved vary, but here is a sampling:

- $6,000 to create a single permanent job at an information clearinghouse for new Canadians in Sherbrooke.

- $50,000 for the setting up of a workshop for the manufacture of wooden accessories at a sawmill in St. Adolphe de Dudswell, a gain of six jobs.

- $25,000 for the setting up of a co-op dealing in produce, teas and herbs in Bedford, creating six new jobs.

- $7,500 for the setting up of a natural-foodstuffs co-op in Sherbrooke and the creation of a single job.

- $30,000 for a Scotstown furniture factory to modernize their production line and create 15 jobs.

- $15,000 for the expansion of a Sherbrooke Funeral co-op and the creation of a job.

- $55,000 to a Magog cultural centre to consolidate its programs and create three full and three part-time jobs.

- $25,000 to a Fleurimont firm for the setting up of a sewing workshop and 22 jobs.

- $41,688 for the setting up of a safety inspection garage for a consumer protection outfit in Sherbrooke.

- $20,000 to a Rock Forest handicrafts workshop for four new jobs.

—$27,735 for a Coaticook handicrafts boutique.

According to Choquette, the 29 projects refused were ruled against on the basis of three main criteria applied to all suggestions:

- Absence of a serious possibility of self-financing within two years.

- No links with community involvement.

- Financing could be arranged with private enterprise.

- No permanent jobs created.

Another six projects were withdrawn before the criteria could be applied and some of them have been referred to other branches of the OSE program. The seven projects still under consideration represent another $400,000 in possible grants.

According to statistics for the Community Employment Creation Program, some 1,500 new jobs have been created since it began, and there's still plenty of the $15-million budget still left before the program terminates next March 31.

Choquette says there has been few requests for information from anglophone Quebecers, but puts this down to the lack of publicity about the program.

According to him, anyone is welcome to call the OPDQ offices in Sherbrooke at 209 Belvedere, 565-8155 and propose a possible program. After a discussion, application forms will be sent, and applicants may receive advice on how to set up their demand.

"It's not the type of project we're looking at, but whether it's a good idea which might work," says Choquette.

Magog Remembrance

MAGOG (CC) — While no official records have been kept of armistice services in Magog, First World War veterans are confident there hasn't been a year since 1919 without a tribute to the fallen at this city's cenotaph. This being the case, Sunday past, the citizens here marked sixty years of faithful attention to local men and women who paid the supreme sacrifice.

The November 12th ceremony noticed one change — the monument was moved back on "Magog's Braves' Park", a small square reserved for the cenotaph and as a memorial to those who died in two World Wars.

Capt. Harold Flanders again fulfilled his role, as parade marshal. Some 50 local veteran-members of Unit 203 Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans' Association paraded, accompanied by the Ladies Auxiliary, Guides, Brownies, Scouts, Cubs, the Magog Sea Cadets and Harmony Notre Dame, Magog's noted girls' band.

Cadets provided a corner guard and firing party, the band played eloquently with two little girls rendering the "Last Post" and "Reveille". There were color parties from Unit 203, the ladies auxiliary, children's groups, sea cadets and band, comprising a most impressive display of standards.

Two padres led prayers; Rev. Lynn Ross in English and Cure Poulin — addressing the gathering in French.

More than a dozen wreaths were laid, as an above-average crowd stood by observing and paying their respects.

Following the service, the traditional marchpast was held, with the salute taken by Capt. Jacques Menard, O.C. of the Sea Cadets. With him on the saluting base, were Mayor Maurice Theroux and alderman Ross Bennett; Mrs. Simone Ladouceur, mother of a fallen son who represented the mothers of this region, accompanied by a surviving son Dollard, also a veteran of the Second World War and Glen Goyette, President of Unit 203.

Katevale aftermath: Why won't the police answer?

On Friday, September 29, members of the group In Struggle, along with other people were held hostage by a vast police operation in Katevale. About 40 policemen, some of them armed with long-range rifles, others carrying binoculars, cameras or walkie-talkies, surrounded the "Les Spinnets" resort, where a week-long seminar was taking place.

The goal of this vast intimidation and surveillance operation, brings to mind the preventive detention measures taken by the police during the October crisis in 1970 and has yet to be revealed. The identity of the police forces who took part in the operation are also still unknown.

The secret remains intact even though, on October 2, the group sent a letter addressed to prime minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau, to solicitor-General of Canada, Jean-Jacques Blais, to Quebec Premier Rene Levesque and to the Quebec Minister of Justice, Marc-Andre Bedard. The questions asked in this letter were simple and straightforward: Why did the armed police refuse to identify themselves, to explain what they were doing there and the goal of their operation? Why did the Quebec Provincial Police, the RCMP in Montreal and Sherbrooke and the office of the Quebec Justice Minister remain silent when questioned? The only "answer" received so far is an acknowledgement receipt from the solicitor-general's office dated October 17.

In an attempt to break through this wall of silence, we called the authorities responsible and asked the same questions. Once again, everybody we talked to tried to pass the buck. The offices of the Quebec Minister of Justice answered: "We swear that the Quebec Provincial Police had nothing to do with the whole thing. If we were in your shoes, we'd have a closer look at the RCMP's activities". But when we asked them which officers had ordered their men to drop the inquiry into the raid and why they had done so, they remained silent. When asked why the QPP had not intervened when it witnessed the open intimidation and provocation tactics at Katevale, tactics that completely violated the Quebec human rights charter, they again remained silent. When asked whether there is reason to believe the QPP and the RCMP were working hand in hand in this operation, Louise Martel, a lawyer working in the offices of Justice Minister Bedard, answered with this gem: "Why, you must know that the two police forces work separately." Ah, yes, probably as "separately" as they did during Operation Odd Job.

When we contacted the offices of Prime Minister Trudeau and of the solicitor general, no one was able to answer our questions, nor was there any explanation given to the comments of M. Crevier, a reporter with La Tribune, who stated that reliable resources within the RCMP had revealed that 16 agents had participated in the Katevale operations and that the operation had been a complete success. Nor was anyone able to explain why QPP officers and even the office of the Quebec justice minister keep referring the group In Struggle back to the RCMP for more light on the subject.

The group In Struggle, recently mandated its attorney, Jacques Beauchemin of Cousineau, Beauchemin and Beauvais, to lodge a complaint against the RCMP commissioner and QPP's director and to demand that the operation be clearly explained.

If In Struggle chose to do so, it was to gather concrete evidence to show how the state has no second thoughts about trampling on democratic rights in our country. The group is not taken in by the bank of democracy that the state hides behind when it pretends to examine the excesses of its political police, but when its police intervene to restrict or violate civil liberties and democratic rights as it did in Katevale, or to break labour unions by raiding their locals as it recently did with the postal workers' union, or when it brutalizes and arrests progressive people and militants as it did last November 7 in Montreal when it brutalized and arrested about 40 feminist militants and progressive people who were demonstrating against the neo-facist punk-rock group, Battered Wives, when it does all these things, the political police shows its true face: the face of the watchdog for the security and freedom of the ruling class.

This fact explains why In Struggle has used its newspaper to alert the Canadian working class and people to the rise of the right and of repression in our country. It has called on people to denounce all repression and to support our group's demand that the police explain the Katevale operation.

Already several community groups, trade unions, student associations, progressive and democratic organizations have answered our call. For example, on October 13, the CEQ-Quebec teachers' federation adopted a resolution denouncing the Katevale police operation as "an intimidation operation that directly attacked fundamental rights to meeting and association". The League for rights and Freedoms also protested against "this operation, which closely resembles those highlighted by the Keable and McDonald commissions" and demanded that In Struggle's questions be answered in a clear and satisfying way.

Over 30 organizations and people working together in the coalition to prepare activities pertaining to Operation Freedom in Montreal have endorsed a letter addressed to Trudeau, Levesque, Blais and Bedard. The letter condemns "repression (that) has been erected into a system" in our country and upholds the "minimal democratic right for an individual or group to know why he or it was held hostage."

Speak up

The disappearance of Theresa Allore underlines a bleak fact of life. No matter how many times someone hitchhikes without incident, there's always the chance the hitchhiker will come face to face with a kook.

In our years in this trade, we've come across our fair share of nasty hitchhiking stories, replete with all kinds of warped individuals. We remember a gutsy lady friend coming into the office one day covered with cuts, scrapes and bruises. She'd jumped from a moving car when the driver had refused to let her out. She didn't even want to report the incident to police; she kept saying it wasn't worth the hassle.

Time and again, we hear the same thing: "The guy didn't get what he wanted, so what's the use of telling police?" "I couldn't even get the licence number." "What can the police do?"

The authorities don't like to see these things played up. It gives police forces a bad name, since even if it happened outside their area, they're responsible until it can be proved foul play happened outside their bailiwick. In addition, hitchhiking abductions by their very nature are the hardest crimes to trace — there's so very little to go on.

In Theresa Allore's case, surely someone saw a car stop to pick her up. It was 6 p.m. or later and a dark, dark night, but it was a busy time of the week. Search your memories and call Lennoxville Police, 565-3232. Chances are, somebody saw something somewhere between Lennoxville and Compton.

Meaningless

There's one thing which makes us want to go on the rampage and smash television sets until they come and haul us away. We're talking about advertising aimed at children.

What can be more sickening than afternoon and Saturday-morning ads for junk cereal, junk toys, junk food and all the other trash purveyed to our kids? Some parents have managed to bar the demon tube from the home altogether, while others severely limit its intrusion by cutting the viewing down to the bare nubs.

Bill 72, Quebec's new Consumer Protection Act, abolishes all advertising aimed at school-age children. The advertising industry and their media counterparts would like to see this limited to a ban on advertising aimed at pre-schoolers. Phooey.

The lobbyists trying to get the government to pull an about-face cite what they describe as stringent self-regulation and guidelines within the industry which have cut the complaints right down — they claim nine in 1977 from 97 in 1972.

Frankly, we doubt there'll ever be an effective means of controlling the desires and buying habits of children and their parents. Millions are spent by the grocery chains on nutrition advice; we're warned time and again about the evils of refined food, and yet the average Quebecois is probably one of the world's most badly-nourished (not malnourished) individuals. In other words, it doesn't matter what the government does for the average citizen; if we don't take our knowledge and values and decide what we want our children to see or not see, all the laws in the world are meaningless.

OTTAWA NOTEBOOK:

Capital artist's works contain hidden clues

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark, trying to build a prime-ministerial image, is pondering the possibility of another international tour early in the new year.

Aides say Clark is considering a trip to Japan, South Korea, Jordan and Israel, possibly in January or February. The countries were picked primarily because of their trade ties with Canada, an aide said.

Clark made his first official trip abroad in the fall of 1976, about seven months after capturing the Progressive Conservative leadership.

Clark spent 17 days meeting European leaders in Germany, Belgium, Italy, France and Britain. They appeared to convince him that many defence and trade policies adopted by Prime Minister Trudeau's Liberal government were good ones.

Gov.-Gen. Jules Leger has started packing up at Government House as his vice-regal term draws to a close.

Personal mementoes are being moved to the Ottawa apartment he and his wife Gaby have set aside as a place of retirement.

Last month, Leger indicated in the session-opening speech from the throne that he probably would not accept an extension to his five-year term which expires in January.

Did Quebec terrorists get aid from foreign countries?

It isn't easy to tell, reading the edited transcript of secret testimony taken by a royal commission into RCMP wrongdoing last May.

The transcript, just released, contains the following assertion by RCMP Supt. Patrick Banning.

"We know of a lot of travel back and forth, a lot of countries. (Deleted) was a favorite country. If they could get to (deleted) they could get to (deleted) and from (deleted) they had gotten up through (deleted) and then got into (deleted) and then tried to make it back down . . ."

(Deleted), one observer said, is north of Mali. Of course.

Prime Minister Trudeau has had five finance ministers since he took office 10 years ago.

Jean Chretien is preparing for his next budget, which he plans to bring down this evening.

Don Macdonald, his predecessor, has left government, is working for the Toronto law firm McCarthy and McCarthy and has accepted a number of corporate directorships.

His predecessor John Turner is also with a Toronto law firm—McMillan Binch—is also on a number of corporate boards and maintains close ties with Liberals. Some say he still wants to replace Trudeau as Liberal leader.

The finance minister he replaced, Edgar Benson, is president of the Canadian transport commission, owns a wine cellar in France and is teaching gourmet cooking at night school in Ottawa.

Finally, Trudeau's first finance minister—Mitchell Sharp—has left active politics and is northern pipeline commissioner.

As part of the government's program to promote national unity, the National Capital Commission (NCC) is engaging artists from across the country to paint pictures of Ottawa for posters designed to spark new interest in the capital.

The first is a double assignment for Gertrude Pacific, a Victoria artist now living in Seattle, Wash.

She has painted two views of Parliament Hill from the Ottawa River with loggers and construction workers prominent in the foregrounds, reminders of Ottawa's beginnings as Bytown, a rowdy lumbering town.

A spokesman for the NCC, in charge of Ottawa area parklands and making the capital beautiful, said a Newfoundland artist is likely to be chosen next to paint the scene.

Miss Pacific's two paintings might spark some controversy and puzzlement because she has incorporated some hidden images in her works.

MYSTERY IMAGES

One painting shows Parliament Hill from between the ends of two boom logs over which a logger strides in work boots and jeans. Is there a hidden symbol in the grain of wood at the cut end of one of the logs?

The other shows the Hill from over the head of a yellow safety-hatted worker climbing a scaffold, with mud flats in the middle foreground. Is there anything significant in the shape of a puddle in the mud, or the shadow on the man's arm?

Miss Pacific was willing to point out some of the images she has incorporated into her work, but said it would spoil the secret if she mentioned them all.

Miss Pacific, 36, studied dance and art at the universities of Oregon and Washington and now is curator of design at the Thomas Burke Memorial Washington State Museum in Seattle.

She calls her style Realisma, a kind of super-realism taken from nature and man-made works with prominent foregrounds giving emphasis to deep perspectives.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

'Parentnapped' child one of growing number

WASHINGTON — Somewhere in a school classroom, 6-year-old Christopher Larson is attending first grade under an alias. He is tall for his age, has brown hair, brown eyes and an olive complexion. He is not a criminal; the reason he has an assumed name is that he has been kidnapped.

His abductor is known to authorities. His name is John Lance Larson, but because he is Christopher's father, he is effectively beyond the reach of the law.

Five years ago, Christopher's mother, Vicki Gambrell of Savannah, Ga., divorced Larson and won custody of their year-old son. Larson was granted carefully controlled visitation rights. In June of last year, Christopher was picked up by his father and taken to Fort Jackson, S.C., where Larson lived with his mother and stepfather. Mrs. Gambrell hasn't seen her son since.

Statistically, what happened to the 28-year-old mother and her son is not unique. An estimated 100,000 children are abducted each year by divorced or estranged parents.

But the case history of Christopher Larson lends a human dimension to the problem of legally sanctioned kidnapping.

For 16 months, Vicki Gambrell has tried every means she could afford to find her son. She and her mother first contacted Army authorities at Fort Jackson. But Larson's stepfather, Maj. Theodore Konkle, was the base provost marshal, and the Army refused to take action. Konkle and his wife, Christopher's grandmother, denied any knowledge of Larson's whereabouts.

From Georgia and South Carolina judges, Mrs. Gambrell obtained court warrants which ordered Christopher's return. But since the boy's father could not be located, local and state police were unable to do anything. Even though Larson was known to have worked as a cabdriver in Columbia, S.C., and his Social Security number was thus on record, he could not be tracked down by the city's legal aid agency. Social Security officials, it is said, refuse to divulge information except in "special cases," and Mrs. Gambrell's case was not deemed special enough.

Christopher's mother cannot even locate her husband's mother and stepfather. Maj. Konkle has retired, and the Army refuses to disclose his present address.

Mrs. Gambrell appealed for help to Rep. Bo Ginn, D-Ga., and Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. But federal authorities will not intervene in parental kidnapping cases unless there is proof the child might suffer serious bodily harm.

Assistant Attorney General Benjamin Civiletti ruled that Larson's conviction on drug charges "does not show danger to the child." A spokesman for the Justice Department said there is "no federal role" in situations like Christopher's. "The FBI can't be out chasing parental custody cases," he said.

Uniform legislation at the state level would help Mrs. Gambrell, but only 21 states have adopted a model child-recovery statute that would encourage greater interstate police cooperation.

Meanwhile, Christopher's anguished mother, who is recovering from a four-week nervous breakdown, is still trying to find her child with the limited means at her disposal. One method of tracking down kidnappers is through driver registration records, but Mrs. Gambrell and her mother can't afford to hire private investigators for such painstaking work.

In recent years, Rep. John Moss, D-Calif., and Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., have led an unsuccessful effort to pass a federal law forbidding parental kidnappings. Citizens who wish to express their support may write to Moss at Room 2354, Rayburn House Office Building, Washington, D.C., 20515. Cranston's address is Room 229, Russell Senate Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20510.

Footnote: We tried to reach Maj. and Mrs. Konkle through a relative to get their side of Christopher's story. They never returned our calls.

Chretien's out from under the budgetary gun

OTTAWA (CP) — With a federal election at least half a year away, Finance Minister Jean Chretien faces less immediate political pressure in this week's budget than in his so-called spring pre-election budget. Although the election expected to follow the April 10 budget never came, its influence in shaping Chretien's approach to the economy was unmistakable. Main feature of the spring budget was an arrangement with all provinces except Alberta allowing them to reduce their sales taxes for a short time—six months for most. Alberta has no sales tax.

Chretien said then the measure was the fastest possible way to get spending power to consumers and help the sagging economy quickly.

This time Chretien must anticipate where his budget will take the economy by spring and early summer.

He says the budget will focus on short-term economic strategy, but there is less need now than in April for measures which will go into effect instantly.

A reduction in personal income taxes, for instance, even if Chretien made it effective immediately, would take several months to have a visible effect on economic activity. Assuming such a tax cut encouraged more spending, it probably would take several paycheques before consumers began to see enough of a difference in weekly earnings to change buying habits.

There would be another lag while businesses adjusted to the stimulus and a further interval before the difference would show in economic indicators.

CUT TAXES
In October, 1977, the government announced it would cut income taxes by $100 for low and middle-income earners during the first two months of 1978. Chretien later admitted the measure did not stimulate the economy as he had hoped.

This will be Chretien's third attempt to encourage economic health through a budget.

Some observers have called the government's spending restraint program of three months ago an economic move of budget proportions—making this week's effort Chretien's fourth major initiative. The two most visible economic indicators have changed little since Chretien's appointment as finance minister in September, 1977.

As it Happens: A walk down memory lane

TORONTO (CP) — As It Happens takes a walk down memory lane this week when CBC radio's successful and sometime irreverent public-affairs show celebrates its 10th anniversary.

The funniest and most memorable interviews of the radio program, including an excerpt from the first show Nov. 18, 1968, are planned for an hour-long special edition Friday, the day closest to the actual anniversary.

The program concludes a week-long series of special editions, including a documentary on the inside workings of the show, which began in a small, cramped newsroom on the third floor of a former private girls' school.

It will also broadcast the first show with Barbara Frum as host.

Mrs. Frum, winner of two awards from the Association of Canadian Television and Radio Artists for her interviewing on the show, admitted that she has attempted to retrieve and destroy the tape because her colleagues "have been waving it over my head and I have an idea that I was pretty bad."

Bob Campbell, the show's executive producer for the last three years, said the show has improved since its debut.

"The first show had to be edited for the anniversary show," he said. "It was so slowmoving that if we start with that everyone will turn us off."

APPEALS TO STUDENTS

As It Happens began as the CBC version of underground radio and an appeal by the publicly-owned broadcasting company to college students.

In the first year, Harry Brown and Phillip Forsyth Smith acted as hosts of a two-hour weekly show involving six lengthy interviews and long cuts of music.

But in 1971, it expanded to five nights a week and developed its current format.

After a brief period of rotating two sets of hosts, Mrs. Frum and announcer Harry Brown became the permanent hosts and the show's stature began to grow.

in 1974, announcer Alan Maitland, a 30-year veteran at the CBC, joined Mrs. Frum.

As It Happens became news in 1975 when two lead refiners unsuccessfully tried to stop the broadcast of Dying of Lead, a documentary on the effects of lead pollution in Toronto.

In recent years, the show has become a pioneer in interviewing people involved in hostage situations, including one in March, 1977, when a man held 18 people hostage in a downtown Toronto bank. Metropolitan Toronto police officers conducted negotiations with the hostage-taker while he was being interviewed on the radio program.

As It Happens also started campaigns to make the beaver Canada's national animal and to find a replacement for Lloyd Robertson, CBC newsreader of The National who resigned to take a job with the rival CTV network.

Maitland conceded that he likes offbeat, zany stories, such as the deaf Englishman who grew the world's largest cabbage or the Winnipeg lawyer who wins whistling contests.

The executive producer believes part of the show's success flows from the constant, subtle changes necessary to combine news, sports and entertainment in an 1½-hour package, five nights a week, starting at 6:30 p.m.

"We keep trying to refine new ways, better ways to be interesting," he said. "We have to have a more interesting angle than the news broadcasts and have more interesting people telling the story."

However, As It Happens now is CBC's most popular radio program, beating its morning rival, Morningside. It also likely leads the CBC in most expensive telephone bills with a monthly average between $10,000 and $12,000.

Sitting in Studio F where the show originates, Maitland said the show lacks the babble-on that plagues most radio programs.

PRODUCERS HUSTLE

"It's neat, it's quick and it's fast-paced," he said. "The enthusiasm of the young people (the story producers) upstairs has a lot to do with the approach to the show. They're hustling up there all the time."

The core of the operation is the newsroom where 20 clocks set at the time of the world's major cities hang on the wall. Desks, cluttered with notes, program schedules, wire-service stories and newspapers, are jammed together.

And even the most important of telephone guests can find themselves on hold.

80th birthday

WINDSOR (DM) — On Saturday evening, Nov. 4, thirty-one members of the Perkins family gathered at the home place, the home of Steve and Eileen Perkins and sons in Cleveland, to honour Mrs. Gladys Perkins on her forthcoming 80th birthday. (Nov. 10).

Only family members not present were a grandson, Larry McCourt, his wife Karen, and children Robert and Tara, from Faro, Yukon. Larry surprised his grandmother with a mid-evening phone call and several others had an opportunity to say "hi" to Larry.

The evening was planned as a card party and although the guest of honour knew there was "something up", she didn't expect the young people to be staying in on a Saturday night, so was surprised when the group of them descended the stairs to wish her Happy Birthday.

The evening was spent playing cards, along with a lot of reminiscing and family fun with everyone together. Later, refreshments were served by Mrs. Steve Perkins, assisted by several of the grandsons, granddaughters and granddaughters-in-law.

The birthday celebrant was seated at the dining room table, along with her son, Steve, and daughters, Olive, Winnie, Dora and Joyce, and one son-in-law, Melvin McCourt. Olive presented her mother with a watch, a gift from all the family.

The table was centered with the birthday cake, beautifully decorated by Mrs. Randy McCourt. Iced in pink and trimmed with white latticework, it was suitably inscribed "80" — "Mum," "Nannie" and "Super Nannie". (The latter is the name chosen by the great-grandchildren to identify her from their other grandmothers).

As each left for their respective homes they were thanked by the guest of honour and they in turn expressed thanks to Steve and Eileen for the nice evening together.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Melvin McCourt (Olive) and their son, Mr. and Mrs. Randy McCourt and Craig; Mr. and Mrs. Steve Perkins and sons, Douglas and Clifford, at home, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Perkins and Angela from Cornwall, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paterson (Winnie) and family, Robert, Shirley and Don, and Mr. and Mrs. Chuck Nixon (Carol) and children Carrie and Vicki; Mr. and Mrs. Clayton McCourt (Dora) and family, Brian, Brenda and Donna; Mrs. Joyce Williams and family, John, Jane and Jennifer, and a friend, Mr. Mark Marceau.

Prior to the evening, Mrs. Perkins had been honoured by fellow members of the Cleveland Women's Institute at their family supper held at Chalmers Church Hall. A corsage and birthday cake were presented to her at this time, along with the best wishes of all.

Royea family reunion

On September 10, 1978, the first reunion of the family of the late Peter and Mary Royea was held in the Fraternal Hall, 910 Main Street, Cowansville. As each family arrived, they were asked to sign the guest book in the charge of Mrs. Geneva Sornberger and all enjoyed a get-acquainted hour as some of these relatives had never met and others had not seen each other for 20 years or more.

On a long table, covered with a white cloth, were cold-cuts of ham and turkey, assorted salads, pickles and rolls. On another table were assorted pies, squares, cake, cookies, tea, coffee and Kool-aid for the children. Lunch was served buffet style and seasonal flowers were used as decorations for the tables.

Following the sumptuous meal provided for by all present, Jamie Webster was seated at the piano where she played and sang several selections and Jean Robitaille played his accordion. In mid-afternoon, Ross Royea announced Earl and June had celebrated their 20th Anniversary on August 30. On behalf of all present, Leslie Webster presented them with a purse of money as a belated remembrance. Both expressed their thanks for the kind thoughts and gift. As Wendell Sheldon would be observing his 65th birthday on September 13, he was serenaded with the birthday song.

All departed for their homes in the late afternoon, expressing thanks to the host and hostess (Earl and June) for a very pleasant afternoon enabling the families to be together.

Members of the family present were from Massachusetts, U.S.A., Beebe, Montreal, Stanbridge East, Bedford, Cowansville, Bromont, Sutton, Knowlton, Granby, Fitch Bay and Magog.

Canadian physicians to fight torture

OTTAWA (CP) — Physician Philip Berger is trying to mobilize the medical community to help refugees in Canada who were physically or mentally tortured by authorities in their native countries.

In an interview Tuesday, he told of examining South American refugees in Toronto with body scars from electrical shocks and cigarette burns, with broken bones from beatings, with nightmares and sickness caused by memories of public executions, continuous rape and imprisonment. In a quiet campaign, waged through Amnesty International, medical publications and by word of mouth, Berger is trying to set up a network of doctors across the country with abilities to recognize signs of torture and to treat the symptoms, both physical and psychological.

The team of experts would help exiles who need evidence of torture to support claims for refugee status on grounds they have a well-founded fear of persecution back home. Doctors in the group would provide free medical treatment to torture victims on a rotation basis.

Last year, 7,115 persons were permitted to stay after establishing refugee claims or by entering through humanitarian programs. The majority came from Chile, Vietnam, Cambodia, Angola, Mozambique and Lebanon.

Berger, a doctor who works on salary at a health clinic, said a main obstacle in his campaign is convincing doctors to spend valuable time on such cases for no pay. "And it's emotionally draining," he said.

However, a spokesman for Amnesty International here said about 50 persons have expressed interest in joining such a group. These people include doctors, nurses, and paramedical professionals such as physical therapists from Toronto, London, Ont., and Vancouver.

A loosely-organized group of about 20 doctors and psychiatrists plan to meet in a few weeks to discuss the possibility of having a central reference centre for torture victims who arrive in Canada, Berger said.

Berger refuses to single out one country as the worst offender or one refugee as the worst victim. He cites the case of an Argentine woman terrorized by authorities with rats on her body and the case of a Chilean man tortured by electric shocks to his genital area.

In a publication circulated to Amnesty International members, the organization says "physicians have a particular ethical and professional responsibility" to combat the spread of torture which it says has become an epidemic.

Ann Landers says:

Have a good night's sleep

Dear Ann Landers:

I nearly dropped my eyeglasses in the coffee when I read your advice to that 40-year-old woman who just learned she was pregnant. You said she should be thrilled. You gotta be kidding, lady.

That woman has a married daughter and a son in college. Now, after all the years of freedom, she's going to start in again with bottles, diapers, colic, whooping-cough shots, and PTA.

I was 38 when my last child was born. After the 20th woman told me how happy I should be I told her to put that show on the road. It was interesting that not a single dame with a kid under 12 opened her mouth — only the ones who had had hysterectomies.

I was not happy THEN and I'm not happy now. Our "late dividend" is three years old and he is driving me bananas. I live for the day when this holy terror starts school so I can get off tranquilizers and back on food.

Dear N.L.:

No Liar

Your letter sounds as if it was written at the end of a bad day. Write to me after you've had a good night's sleep, dear — in about three years from now.

I'm a 21-year-old female, considered attractive, but I'm only five feet tall and would love to be taller.

I have heard of operations to make people shorter. I believe they take some bones out of the legs or saw them down. Can anything be done about the shorties?

Looked Down On In Sulphur Springs

Dear Sulphur:

Anyone who looks down on you because of your height isn't worth a second look.

I know of no surgical procedure to make people taller, but young children sometimes can be helped to grow taller with drugs that stimulate the pituitary gland. This procedure is considered experimental and the results are uncertain. Careful regulation and observation by a competent physician is essential. I am NOT recommending it.

Overloaded health system due to inefficiency

OTTAWA (CP) — A nurses' spokesman says doctors should be paid regular salaries instead of having to determine their pay by the number of patients they can cram into a daily office schedule.

This, along with more use of nurses, would mean better and more efficient health care, Helen Taylor, president of the Canadian Nurses Association, said in a recent interview.

"If a doctor is going to be assured of a salary then there is nothing to stop him (or her) from spending two hours with a patient while the nurse can look after another," she said.

Although medical professionals had been complaining for years that the health system is overburdened and not used effectively, nothing had been done to change the situation.

Miss Taylor said nurses can provide a wide range of health and preventive services but that the potential has not been realized.

A pediatric nurse, for example, can handle up to 80 per cent of the doctor's work.

The need for community clinics using nurses is also evident by the number of cluttered hospital emergency wards, said Miss Taylor, who is director of nursing at Montreal General Hospital.

Hospitals in Halifax, Saskatoon, and Hamilton, Ont., for example, have reported a 300 per cent increase in the number of emergency visits in the last 20 years.

NOT ALL URGENT

Many of the problems seen in emergency departments are not urgent and could have been handled by a primary care worker, says a recent report for the Canadian Public Health Association.

Miss Taylor said the Canadian public is conditioned to respond only to a doctor and that will not change until the role of the nursing profession is re-assessed.

Nurse-midwifery programs should be provided in training for the supervision and delivery of uncomplicated pregnancies, she said.

Miss Taylor said the association is working closely with the Society of Obstetricians and Gynecologists of Canada to legalize midwifery in Canada.

"There's a double standard in this country. There are things nurses cannot do in the daytime when the doctor is around that they have to do at night when the doctor is not there."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Polly Cramer

Can't stand the smell

By Polly Cramer

POLLY'S PROBLEM

DEAR POLLY — Are there any simple remedies for absorbing household odors? I am allergic to sprays. Can charcoal be used to filter the air? Also, my kitchen cupboards smell stuffy no matter how often I wash them and the basement has a strong mildew smell. — SNIFFY

DEAR SNIFFY — An open container of charcoal will help keep the refrigerator smelling sweet. It might do the same for closed kitchen cupboards. Or you might place an open box of cloves or cinnamon in the cupboards. Unwrapped bars of scented soap will give off a nice odor in closed dresser drawers or the linen closet. One tablespoon of ammonia in a bowl of water or a saucer of vinegar should aid with your problem in the kitchen, but do keep out of reach of children or pets. — POLLY

DEAR POLLY — I used to have ants in my kitchen until I started planting marigolds along the side of the house outside the kitchen. Now I enjoy beautiful flowers and do not have a single ant. — LINDA

DEAR POLLY — Add a little vanilla (I use the imitation) to paint you're using and it will not smell so strong while drying.

My Pet Peeve is with people who do not use ash trays in their cars. Instead they throw the cigarette butts in one's yard or driveway. It seems some people make a habit of doing this when they get in or out of a car. — MRS. F.L.S.

DOES ASA UPSET YOUR STOMACH? If so, try ATASOL, the non-ASA pain reliever and fever reducer that doesn't upset your stomach. Unlike most pain relievers, which either are — or contain — ASA, ATASOL is 100% acetaminophen, a medication which relieves pain and fever as effectively as ASA, but without causing stomach irritation or bleeding. In fact, ATASOL is specifically recommended for people with sensitive stomachs. So next time you have a fever, a headache, menstrual or other pain, reach for ATASOL instead. ATASOL and extra-strength ATASOL FORTE tablets are available in a pharmacy near you.

ONE OF THE SIMPLEST WAYS TO ENTERTAIN THIS HOLIDAY SEASON is to serve food buffet style. The centre of attraction could be a beautiful glazed ham. Here's one of my favourite recipes: HAM GLAZE: 1/2 cup Beehive Corn Syrup, 1/2 cup Brown Sugar, 1 tsp. Dry Mustard. Take ham from oven about 20 minutes before it is completely cooked. Pour fat from pan, remove the skin and score. Stud with cloves. Combine Beehive Corn Syrup, brown sugar and mustard and spread evenly over ham. Increase oven temperature to 425°F and continue baking ham, basting often, until glaze is cooked and golden.

WHEN GAS IS A PROBLEM, reach for fast-acting, extra-strength OVOLE 80 mg tablets. OVOLE 80 mg tablets are peppermint-flavored chewable tablets that go to work right away to dissipate the pockets of trapped stomach gas that cause bloating and flatulence. So if you're occasionally troubled by gas discomfort as a result of over-eating, eating too quickly or too many spicy foods, remember that OVOLE 80 mg tablets (and regular-strength OVOLE 40 mg tablets) are the only products available for the relief of gas alone. As with any medical product, should symptoms persist, consult your family physician.

Anthropologist Margaret Mead dead at 76

NEW YORK (AP) — Margaret Mead, famed U.S. anthropologist, died in hospital here Wednesday after a year-long battle with cancer. She was 76.

She entered hospital Oct. 2, no longer able to work at her headquarters in the American Museum of Natural History where she was the retired curator of ethnology. She also had occupied chairs of anthropology at Columbia and Fordham universities.

Miss Mead, whose early fame and professional reputation were based on exhaustive field studies of primitive Pacific island cultures, always stayed in tune and in touch with the young of the modern world.

She angered some U.S. political conservatives, who objected to her views on marijuana and generational conflict. She said she favored legalization of marijuana because banning it bred conflict between children and parents and that was worse than any harm the drug did.

During her half-century in anthropology, Miss Mead refined the technique of using pictures by the thousands as part of her basic data.

Making anthropology popular was among her major achievements, said Robert Murphy, a Columbia University anthropologist and former department chairman.

"She pioneered two important fields, being the first to take a cross-cultural look at childhood and the role of culture in shaping personality," he said. "In 1949, she wrote Male and Female, 20 years before the rest of the world turned its eyes on the female role."

Miss Mead, born Dec. 16, 1901 in a suburb of Philadelphia, preached that a large, cohesive family was the best environment for a child to grow in. She regretted the passing of multigenerational households—children, parents and grandparents—like the one in which she grew up.

But she thought the institution of marriage was dispensable and went through three marriages and divorces.

She kept her maiden name through all three, anticipating the rise of the feminist movement. She deplored the idea that upbringing and social pressure gave boys advantages over girls, but also maintained that some roles were legitimately the province of one sex or the other.

Starting with Coming of Age in Samoa, published in 1928, when she was 26, Miss Mead chronicled the primitive tribal ways of Polynesian islanders during what turned out to be the final years of their existence.

Survivors include her only child, Mary Catherine Bateson Kassarian, dean of social science at Reza Shah Kabir University in Iran; a granddaughter, Sevanne, and a sister, Elizabeth, of Cambridge, Mass.

Ex-Sudbury mayor shot

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — Mike Solski, whose six-year term as mayor of nearby Nickel Centre, Ont., ended when he was defeated in Monday's municipal election, is in critical condition in hospital following a bizarre shooting at a council meeting Wednesday night.

Solski, 59, was shot at three times by a man with a pistol. He slumped to the floor of the council chamber and councilors fought with the gunman, disarmed him and held him until police arrived.

Romeo Kerim, 63, of Sudbury was charged with attempted murder and was to appear in provincial court today.

Police said at least two of the shots hit Solski, one in the armpit area and the other in the stomach. Hospital officials listed his condition as critical but stable.

Solski was defeated in the Monday's election Monday by Garry Lacey, but Solski's term of office does not end until Dec. 1.

ALLEGED INJUSTICE
At Wednesday's meeting, a former resident was alleging injustice about the expropriation of his town property by the Nickel District Conservation Authority, the town and the courts.

Two weeks ago, the same man spoke to council on the same subject, but Solski was not there and council told him to come back when the mayor was present.

On Wednesday, the man handed the mayor a statement about the status of a building which once stood on the expropriated property. Solski told Prosper Olivier, the clerk-treasurer, to read it. He read a few sentences but expressed concern that the issue may still be before the courts.

The man then turned his back to the mayor and said: "I have something else for you."

He pulled the pistol from a belt concealed under his coat, spun around and fired three shots directly at Solski, who was at his last meeting.

200 BELIEVED DEAD IN PLANE CRASH

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — Nearly 200 Indonesian pilgrims en route home from Mecca were believed killed in the crash of a chartered Icelandic airliner while landing at Colombo airport in a severe thunderstorm late Wednesday.

Hospital spokesmen said there were more than 60 survivors.

The DC-8 jetliner was to refuel, then fly to Surabaya, the capital of East Java. It crashed about 1 1/2 kilometres short of the airport runway just before midnight Wednesday night, plowed up 400 yards of coconut plantation, broke into three sections and burst into flames.

Icelandic Airlines said there were 246 passengers and 13 crew members aboard.

"It passes all understanding how anybody at all could have come out alive after a wreck like that," said one official, surveying the charred and twisted debris.

Many of the survivors walked from the crash site to the airport on this island nation off the tip of India.

Amblances took them to a nearby air force hospital or to the Ngumbo hospital, about 35 kilometres north.

One survivor, newspaper editor Mas Abi Karsa, said the pilot was being guided down by the airport's control tower and apparently miscalculated and missed the landing strip.

Investigators were searching for the plane's flight recorder in hopes of finding clues to what caused the crash.

Rescue workers cut through the wreckage to free bodies. Many of the victims were still strapped in the seats.

Two of the plane's four engines were torn off and hurled far from the impact site. Brightly colored Moslem prayer rugs, other belongings and bodies littered the area.

The plane was chartered by Garuda Indonesian Airlines in October to carry Moslems from East Java to Saudi Arabia for a month's pilgrimage to Mecca and Medina, Islam's holiest shrines.

Airlines announce price hikes

OTTAWA (CP) — Three airlines have filed proposed increased rates for flights within Canada starting Jan. 1.

Air Canada, CP Air and Nordair all asked the Canadian transport commission for increases averaging five per cent with variations "reflecting local conditions."

Quebecair also is expected to file for an increase, commission officials said Wednesday.

The airlines say increasingly high fuel prices, higher fees for takeoffs and landings along with higher wage settlements forced the proposed increases.

In Vancouver, CP Air announced it has asked for increases in domestic air fares of about three to five per cent.

"Like everyone else, we face cost increases in all areas, especially for wages, fuel, airport and landing fees," said G. E. Manning, company marketing vice-president.

"In 1979 airport user fees are expected to be approximately 26 per cent higher than in 1978 and fuel

Immigration office gets tough

QUEBEC (CP) — Immigration Minister Jacques Coureure made public Wednesday the Quebec government's new selection criteria for immigrants.

The document, tabled in the national assembly, say the ideal immigrant to Quebec would be 35 years old or less and ready to adapt to his or her new status as a Quebecer, with some post-secondary instruction, a steady job in his or her country of origin and a good knowledge of French.

Admissibility is based on a points system. Points are awarded for knowledge of language—10 for French, two for English—as well as having spouse who speaks French and children under the age of 12.

Points also are awarded as well to people who have practical business management experience.

Coureure said the government would be willing to make exceptions to the points system for refugees or people with relatives here.

He said immigration policy should "ease the reunion in Quebec of permanent resident citizens with close relatives, ease the welcoming of refugees and other people in distress and favor the arrival of immigrants who can successfully integrate into Quebec society."

In Ottawa, Immigration Minister Bud Cullen has said every immigrant to Quebec will have to meet basic federal standards, prove he can establish himself anywhere in the country or meet refugee status requirements.

If an immigrant failed one set of requirements, he said a joint Quebec-Ottawa committee would decide whether the person was admissible, adding that few disputes are expected because the requirements are not dramatically different from one another.

Under the federal criteria, a maximum 10 points is given to immigrants 35 years old or younger. Language points vary from 10 for a fluently bilingual person to five for fluency in one of those languages and smaller numbers for partial fluency.

Other points are awarded on the basis of the person's education, job or business management experience, potential for securing a job, and personal suitability. Applicants with relatives in Canada get top priority.

POSTAL RATES TO INCREASE

HALIFAX (CP) — Postmaster-General Gilles Lamontagne announced Wednesday plans for a new postal rate increase and issued another warning to postal unions.

Lamontagne, here to unveil a new series of stamps, told a news conference another postal rate increase likely will go into effect in late April or early May and will mean an additional one or two cents for first-class mail.

The postmaster-general also said the post office currently is operating effectively and he intends to see things improve even more even if it takes investigations, police raids and dismissals.

The minister said he will see to it that postal employees who want to work will be allowed to do so.

Lamontagne also dismissed statements that there has been communist infiltration of the post office.

He said if there are communists working for the service he's not concerned about it because "we hire people for their ability, not for their political affiliation."

The night she was last seen at Champlain, she would have had to wait until 11 o'clock for the next bus to Compton. Her father, however, does not understand why she would have hitchhiked as he had advised her against it many times. He holds Theresa, his eldest, in high esteem, saying she is an independent, intelligent young person with a certain taste for adventure.

Theresa is English-speaking, with bushy, frizzed red hair, a quarter-inch scar across her forehead and blue eyes. She stands about 5' 7" and weighs approximately 110 pounds. When last seen, she was wearing black Chinese cloth shoes, navy blue corduroys, white T-shirt and long beige sweater.

Lennoxville Municipal Police are pursuing the investigation, and ask anyone with any information whatsoever about the missing young woman to contact Chief Leo Hamel at 569-9388 or 562-8333 — immediately.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

When you play Stayman you can respond two in any suit except two clubs as an attempt to play that contract. A bad hand with a club suit is a horse of a different color. So, how do you show a club bust?

One way is to use the three-club response to show

it. The second way is to respond two clubs and bid three clubs next.

We don't like either method. Instead we just don't bother to show a club bust and let our partner suffer in one notrump.

We also don't bother to show a minor suit unless we have slam interest. Thus, when South responded two clubs and bid three clubs over North's two hearts, North knew that South was interested in a slam.

North's three-spade call was a cue bid that said he held a good notrump and interest in a club slam. South's four diamond call was a second cue bid and enough for North. He closed the bidding at six clubs.

South's queen of clubs covered East's 10 at trick one and South decided the best line of play would be to try to ruff two spades in dummy. He cashed the ace and king, ruffed a spade, returned to his hand with the ace of diamonds, ruffed his last spade, overtook dummy's king of clubs with his ace, drew the last trump and eventually conceded a diamond.

RUBY-THROATED HUMMINGBIRD

ARCHILOCHUS COLUBRIS II-27

The ruby-throated hummingbird is one of 4 species found in Canada. It occurs across the southern part of this country from Alberta to Nova Scotia.

The hummingbird family contains the smallest of birds and they are so named because of the characteristic humming sound made by their tiny wings. They are capable of rapid forward flight, of remaining stationary in mid-air while feeding at flowers, and even of backward flight for short distances.

Hummingbirds feed on minute insects and flower nectar which they obtain by means of a long, extensible tongue. They are found in gardens, orchards or woodland clearings where flowers either wild or cultivated are present to provide nourishment.

Because of their size hummingbirds are often mistaken for insect swarms which also feed at flowers.

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Nicolas Bruno, of Venise, pleaded guilty to a charge of simple possession of 3.8 grams of cocaine in St. Armand, Sept. 1. He was freed, pending preparation of a pre-sentence report and sentencing was continued to Jan. 15.

A bail hearing in the case of Michael Bevan was continued to Oct. 31 at the request of defence lawyer Pierre Gibeau. Bevan, of Florida, is charged with possession of 600 capsules of LSD with intent to traffic.

Ian Fraser, of Cowansville, pleaded guilty to counts of simple assault on the person of Michael Johnson, Sept. 13, Denis Gauthier, Sept. 26, and to a count of assault causing bodily harm on the person of Michael Beauregard, Oct. 20.

"He's a strong arm, and when he drinks he starts fights," Crown attorney Claude Noisieux said. "I have no objection to having his sentencing continued to Jan. 15, to allow us time to study his compartment, however he should be ordered to refrain from entering any establishments in the District of Bedford where alcohol is served for consumption on premises."

Judge Guy Genest continued sentencing to Jan. 15, and forbade the accused to enter any licensed establishments in the interim.

Richard Desnoyers, of Joliette, who earlier pleaded guilty to a charge of

by John McCahey

breaking and entering and theft of $7,000 worth of cigarettes, was handed a two year sentence, to be served concurrently to all terms he is presently serving.

Andre McLean, of Frelighsburg, was found guilty, in absentia, of charges of impaired driving and refusal to submit to a breathalyser test in Cowansville, June 30. He was fined $100 and costs on the first count, $50 and costs on the second, in default 30 days.

A bench warrant was issued for Jean Marc Chatelain when he failed to appear for arraignment on a charge of impaired driving.

Marcel Gosselin and Claude Jalbert, of Bedford, pleaded guilty to a charge of simple theft of a battery in Bedford, Ont. 6. They were each fined $50 and costs, in default 15 days, and were allowed a month to acquit the fines and costs.

Robert Belair, of Farnham, entered no plea at his arraignment on a charge of breaking and entering with intent to commit a crime in the Chez Roger Restaurant in Farnham, Oct. 12. Defence lawyer Claude Hamann chose jury trial. Belair immediately renounced his rights to preliminary hearing and was cited to the next term of the local assizes by virtue of article 476 of the criminal code.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

November 17, 1978

Your material prospects appear very hopeful in the months ahead. Small seeds you've sown will yield larger returns than you initially anticipated.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You're extremely imaginative today in situations with promise of personal gain. If you put your ingenuity to work, there's little doubt you'll turn a profit. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in 1979 by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter, Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Use your common sense, but also don't discount your hunches in commercial affairs today. Your intuition works hand in glove with your logic.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Check the original source regarding bulletins passed on to you today that directly affect your interests. Acting on hearsay information will put you behind the eight-ball.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A tantalizing new interest may capture your fancy today. You could jump in before assessing all the ramifications. If you do, you might later regret it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This would be a good day to get to know socially an influential contact you've recently made. Big things will result if you become pals.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Reconsider carefully any plans affecting household changes you have at this time. You may come up with a better way of doing things after taking a second look.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're a good salesperson today, but you are also very easy to sell. A smooth talker could palm-off some undesirable merchandise on you if you're not careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

In matter having a direct effect on your resources, don't put too much stock in promises today. It could be just idle talk.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Practice sensible health habits today, but by the same token don't exaggerate all your tiny aches and pains. You might use them as excuses to dodge your duties.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Even innocent flirtations could boomerang today and get you in hot water. Walk the straight and narrow, looking neither to the right nor the left.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be friendly toward those you have intimate dealings with today, but don't let them make major decisions for you. Yes or no should be your sole choice.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This can be a day of accomplishment, provided you are of singular mind. There is a danger you could be easily sidetracked by insignificant issues.

Assembly rejects loans probe

QUEBEC (CP) — The government rejected a motion Wednesday calling for a legislature committee to study a conflict with junior college students over grants and loans. Union Nationale member Fernand Grenier told the national assembly the conflict has sparked student strikes which have paralysed colleges in Rimouski, Alma and Hull.

He robbed out of love

TORONTO (CP) — A Montreal man who robbed banks there and in Toronto out of love for his girl-friend was sentenced to 16 years in prison Wednesday. Defence lawyer David O'Connor said John Archibald Greaves, unemployed and living with a young woman from a well-to-do Toronto family, "felt he had to keep her in the style to which she was accustomed." Greaves and his accomplices got a total of $37,012 from all the robberies and only the last $10,700 was recovered, court was told.

SSJB: Quebecers accept 101

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the St. Jean Baptiste Society said Wednesday the society believes most Quebecers accept the Charter of the French Language which proclaims French the province's official language. But university professor Guy Bouthillier, an advisor to the nationalist society, told reporters the new consensus is still fragile and demands vigilance.

Would-be winner sues Loto

HULL, Que. (CP) — Ion Ozaga of Hull has filed a $562,000 claim in Quebec Superior Court against Loto-Quebec over a 1976 lottery draw he says he won. A court official said Wednesday a hearing will be held Dec. 18 but a decision may not be reached for years. Ozaga says he made the correct choice of numbers on a September 1976 Loto-Perfecta draw which operates on a combination of numbers and horse race results.

Magdalens to replace windmill

QUEBEC (CP) — Another electricity-generating, experimental windmill will be built on the Magdalen Islands to replace one which collapsed last July. The windmill will be built by the National Research Council, Hydro-Quebec and the Hydro-Quebec Institute of Research.

Biron won't join new party

MONTREAL (CP) — Rodrigue Biron, Union Nationale leader, said Wednesday his party was not interested in joining forces with the newly-formed party the Democrats, formerly the provincial Social Credit party. But if Camil Samson, leader of the Democrats, wants to join the UN, he has to respect two principles: nationalism based on more provincial power and faith in private enterprise, Biron said.

Accused bagman acquitted

MONTREAL (CP) — Lucien Julien, a former assistant to the Quebec Liberal party treasurer, was acquitted Wednesday of 22 charges of influence peddling laid in 1972 after it was alleged he tried to obtain $142,000 for his party from lottery ticket concessionaires. Julien was found not guilty on all counts involving 22 holders of Loto-Quebec concessions. Most concessionaires called to testify said they regularly gave money to political parties, the judge said.

Olympic projects 'a big cake'

MONTREAL (CP) — A senior executive of an Olympic construction contractor says Montreal's 1976 Games were seen as an enormous cake "and everybody tried to get as big a piece as possible."

Marcel Rigny, vice-president of Soletanche and Rodio of Canada Ltd., testified Wednesday at the provincial inquiry into the cost of the Games that "people used whatever weapons they had to the maximum, without any tendency for moderation."

Asked by union lawyer Michel Jasmin whether he was referring to architects and contractors as well as workers, Rigny replied that he was talking about everybody.

Olympic plagued Bourassa

MONTREAL (CP) — Former Quebec premier Robert Bourassa says one of the greatest crises of his political career came in early 1976 when he was told the Olympic Games could not be held on schedule.

He said in an interview Tuesday that he received secret and confidential reports in December and January from engineers, members of the Olympic Installations Board, who stated it was impossible to present the Games in Montreal as planned.

"We kept these revelations absolutely secret because we believed we could not make such news public," he said.

Bourassa made the comments while travelling to Chicago to attend a conference at Northwestern University—two years to the day after his Liberal government was defeated by the Parti Quebecois.

Vet sues over experiments

PARKERSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — Thirty-three years after volunteering as a U.S. Army guinea pig in a test he now blames for his extensive cancer, Charles McGinnis has been told the army was testing mustard gas.

But McGinnis, now 53, and his U.S. congressman were told the army doesn't assure financial compensation because mustard gas is linked to cancer in animals but not in humans.

Mercy killer gets 18 years

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — A jury recommended Wednesday that James Maxwell Hunt be sentenced to 18 years in prison for the strangulation of his invalid mother. Defence lawyers said the Oct. 31, 1977 death was a mercy killing and "an act of love."

Hunt's lawyers sought probation for their client, while prosecutors said they wanted a prison term, but not the maximum life in prison.

The jury found Hunt, 45, guilty of murder in the death of his mother, Frances Adele Hunt, 68, who was confined to a wheelchair after suffering a stroke in 1964.

Mills brother suffers heart attack

MELBOURNE (AP) — Harry Mills of the Mills Brothers has suffered a heart attack and the singing trio has cancelled its tour of Australia and Japan, the group said Wednesday.

Mills, 65, collapsed Monday after performing at a Melbourne restaurant. He was reported resting comfortably in hospital and is expected to be flown back home to Los Angeles in 10 days.

Bonnie Prince Charlie celebrates

LONDON (Reuters) — Prince Charles held the birthday party of the year Wednesday night in Buckingham Palace with about 350 of his friends and relatives toasting him with champagne and dancing the night away.

The guests, including several of the bachelor prince's many lady friends, were celebrating his 30th birthday—a day late—in the palace's white drawing room, the blue drawing room and the music room.

Viet refugees await fate

PORT KLANG (AP) — The Malaysian government sought official word today on French and Canadian offers to take in all or some of 2,500 refugees from Vietnam to whom it refuses to give asylum.

Refugee officials reported that while governments and newspapers debated the plight of those stranded off this westcoast port aboard the 1,500-ton freighter Hai Hong, 3,000 others fleeing from Vietnam arrived in small boats in the last four days and were admitted to refugee camps on islands off the east coast.

Clan gathering jeopardized

HALIFAX (CP) — Unless Nova Scotia's International Gathering of the Clans committee receives $470,000 in government assistance before the end of the month, the committee could fold, festival chairman A. Gordon Archibald said Wednesday.

Archibald, however, said he is optimistic next summer's festival will find the money before Nov. 30.

Clark blasts Pacific takeover

EDMONTON (CP) — Opposition Leader Joe Clark brought his criticisms of the federal government's purchase of Pacific Petroleum Ltd. to oil country Wednesday, calling the $700-million deal a desperate move on Ottawa's part.

"Their way of discovering oil is to buy a company which already has some," Clark said of Petro-Canada, the federal Crown corporation which purchased the U.S.-owned petroleum company last week.

Nurses stage sporadic stoppages

QUEBEC (CP) — Nurses held sporadic work stoppages at several hospitals across the province Wednesday to protest the Quebec government's latest contract offers.

A union spokesman said nurses met at hospitals in Quebec City, Montreal and several other centres to discuss proposals on job security, promotions and work transfers. The government has yet to make salary offers.

Vancouver mayor back in VANCOUVER (CP) — Voters gave overwhelming support Wednesday to Mayor Jack Volrich's bid for a second-year term but were less decisive in saying they want to change the way the city's 10 aldermen are elected.

Volrich, 50, who ran as an independent, was re-elected with as many votes as were cast for six challengers. His 50-per-cent support was up from the 45 per cent he received when first elected in 1976 as The Electors Action Movement (TEAM) candidate.

After splitting with TEAM before this campaign, Volrich ran as an independent but had the backing of the conservative Non-Partisan Association (NPA) which, taking advantage of a noticeable swing to the right by voters, will dominate the council elected Wednesday.

stood at 8.3 per cent when Chretien tabled his April budget and 8.3 per cent for last fall's minibudget.

The cost of living, which now is rising at an annual rate of 8.6 per cent, was increasing at 8.8 per cent last October and was 8.7 per cent in April.

The dollar, now trading at about 85 cents on international currency markets, compared to its U.S. counterpart, was worth 93 cents U.S. a year ago and 87.5 cents U.S. in April.

lending rate, which is the rate at which central bank lends money to the chartered banks, now is a record 10.75 per cent. Last April it was 8.5 per cent and in October, 1977, it was 7.5 per cent, its lowest in three years. The central bank rate usually sets the standard for all interest rates.

The combined effect of a weak currency and high interest rates is usually a sluggish and uncertain economy. Businessmen do not want to borrow money for plant expansion or new investment because they will have to repay more in interest. Consumers put off major purchases such as houses and appliances in hopes of cheaper borrowing rates later.

COSTS JUMP

For both groups, the cost of imported goods—from fresh vegetables to industrial components—jumps each time the dollar loses a fraction of a cent of its buying power abroad.

Some economists predict that both Canada and the United States are headed for a recession.

Government spending restraint has been an underlying refrain in federal budgets for the last three years. But Prime Minister Trudeau's Aug. 1 promise to trim expenditures by $500,000 this year and $2 billion next year puts new emphasis on this factor.

The spending restraint program required deep cuts from dozens of government programs including welfare payments to the provinces, unemployment insurance, family allowances and bilingualism training.

The mood of spending restraint has been so carefully cultivated by the government that it would probably appear contradictory for Chretien to announce major spending programs to get the economy moving.

Gaulin sparkles as Beavers smother Montreal

JEAN-MARC GAULIN
...stymies 'Denis' line

By BRUCE PORTER
SHERBROOKE — When you're 16 years old and just starting out your junior career, it's tough. But when you get assigned to shadow the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League's top scorer — AND SUCCEED — things must be going right.

Winger Jean-Marc Gaulin had the formidable task of bugging, pestering, annoying and generally covering Denis Savard, one of the famous Denis trio, for most of the encounter last night at the Sports Palace which saw the Sherbrooke Beavers take sweet revenge for an earlier defeat as they dumped Montreal Juniors 10-4.

In fact, Gaulin haunted and taunted Savard so much during the game, with some well-deserved relief assistance from mate Guy Perreault along the way, that the Montreal player with 15 goals and 50 assists to date got only one shot against Corrado Micallef.

The crowd of 4,586 (the best this season) cheered on the Sherbrooke rookie as he stuck to his man like glue, taking two penalties in the process for breathing down his neck a bit too much.

"It was an honor and a challenge to have to cover Savard," exclaimed a tired Gaulin in the dressing room, "there was a little pressure on me but I slept well last night (Tuesday) after Mr. Delage told me what I was going to do in the game. "The atmosphere in the room was serious before the game — no music playing like usual — because everyone was thinking hard about the game and what they had to do," added the game's defensive star.

When asked why he had chosen a rookie to match-up with Savard, Beavers coach Ghislain Delage said he was looking for a player capable of skating hard. Gaulin was his choice because he had "a lot of confidence in him." The instructor said his team stuck to their game plan and praised them for "a helluva job."

While Marco Baron was getting pelted with Sherbrooke shots and letting them get behind him at the rate of one in four, Corrado Micallef shook off his early jitters to record one of his best performances.

"I was really nervous all day because of Montreal and their big reputation," stated the 17-year-old rookie netminder, "and in the second period, I started to feel good in the net and I settled down." Micallef said the game didn't put the same pressure on him as some earlier games this season but it did qualify as "the most satisfying win."

One last note about Sherbrooke's defence: of the entire Denis line (which was split up from time to time because they lacked their normal sting), only Cyr and Savard managed shots on net. Cyr had two, though one qualified only because his pass through the crease deflected off Burton Martin behind an unsuspecting Micallef for Montreal's second goal, while Savard only had one. Savard assisted on the Juniors' fourth tally while Gaulin was sitting out a minor penalty in the third period.

But all that defence wouldn't have done much good if the offence hadn't been up to scratch. The Sherbrooke line of Louis Begin, Serge Boisvert and Jimmy Man exploded after a few games in the shadows for six goals and nine assists, with Begin leading the way as offensive star with a hat-trick and a trio of assists. Mann had a pair of each while Boisvert scored once and aided on four occasions.

In addition, Jean Chouinard hit the mark twice with singles going to Dennis Martin, who tallied the winner, and Gaulin, who capped off the scoring with the game's 14th goal at 14:14.

"We had good feelings and good confidence going into the game," Begin said. "Things were clicking for us and it's an easy game when the puck always come to you when it is supposed to."

Jimmy Mann summed up the win with this thought, "When we play well between the bluelines against Montreal, the breaks come our way."

The Beavers don't have a lot of time to savour this victory which gave them 12 on the season and two more points in the standings as they close in on the Juniors for third spot overall in the QMJHL. Friday night, it's the Juniors turn to play host as Sherbrooke tackles them again in Montreal.

By that time, the Juniors will have stopped licking their wounds and be ready to deal out the same kind of medicine in their own rink.

Vet granted postponement

NEW YORK (AP) — Veterinarian Mark Gerard was granted a long postponement Wednesday of a one-year prison term he received for a conviction in a horse switch scandal.

Gerard was convicted of two misdemeanor charges in September for involvement in the Lebon-Cinzano ringer case at Belmont Park and was sentenced to one year in jail and a fine of $1,000.

He was due to surrender Wednesday to begin his prison term, but he has an appeal pending.

Justice Irwin Shapiro of the appellate division of supreme court in Brooklyn issued a ruling Wednesday granting Gerard a stay of the sentence until the division's March term begins. The new term begins Feb. 20. Shapiro delayed the start of the sentence so Gerard's lawyer can prepare an appeal.

Irwin also directed that Gerard remain free on bail of $50,000.

Player suspended

DALLAS (AP) — Alex McKendry of Fort Worth Texans has been suspended one game for his unsportsmanlike conduct during a Central Hockey League game against Dallas last week. CHI president Bud Poile said McKendry would not be allowed to play in the Friday night game in Fort Worth against Oklahoma City. Poile said McKendry was suspended because he made obscene gestures toward the crowd.

Decides future

QUEBEC (CP) — Centre Christian Bordeleau, 31, says he will take a couple of weeks to decide his future, but the World Hockey Association club considers him to be retired, general manager Maurice Filion said Tuesday. Bordeleau reportedly told coach Jacques Demers he was retiring last weekend, but he later said he was considering options and would announce his decision this week.

U.S. team wins

HIROSHIMA, Japan (AP) — George Foster and Ken Griffey hit two-run homers and Johnny Bench and Mike Bruce hit solo homers today to lead Cincinnati Reds to a 7-2 exhibition baseball victory over a combined Yomiuri Giants-Hiroshima Carp team. The victory was the Reds' 10th overall against two losses and one tie in their 17-game Japan tour.

Murdoch sent down

ST. LOUIS (AP) — St. Louis Blues have sent right winger Bob Murdoch to their Salt Lake City farm club for an indefinite period, a team spokesman said Wednesday. Murdoch, who has been out of action since Sept. 10 with a virus condition, will work himself into playing condition at Salt Lake City.

McEnroe wins

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Third seed John McEnroe of the U.S. scored a 6-4, 6-2 victory over Britain's David Lloyd on Wednesday to qualify for the second round of a $175,000 international tennis tournament. Harold Solomon and Italian Corrado Barazzutti, both seeded, joined McEnroe in the last 16. The other five seeds, headed by top-ranked Vitas Gerulaitis, qualified Tuesday.

Saints battered by Joliette

...knocked unconscious

JOLIETTE — The Sherbrooke Saints were beaten 5-4 by the Cyclones last night, then they were massacred by their adversaries just for good measure.

With the hometown club leading 5-2 midway in the third period en route to their first victory in four attempts over the Sherbrookers this season in Junior 'A' competition, a small pushing match broke out in front of the Saints bench during a stoppage of play. The result saw nine players ejected from the game and two Sherbrooke players in hospital following a 30-minute delay.

Apparently the entire Joliette bench cleared during the innocent-enough shoving at 10:34 in the closing period and they methodically attacked the Saints. Some Sherbrooke players who were on the bench jumped on the ice, and the ones who didn't move were pulled over the boards.

Patrick Dodier and Jean Robert were taken to a Joliette hospital after taking the worst of the beatings. Dodier had been cross-checked on the neck and laid on the ice unconscious while two Cyclone players continued to hit him, witnesses said. Robert had received a fractured nose after being hit with a skate and a knee.

among other things. Both players returned to Sherbrooke early this morning with the team and were scheduled to undergo examinations locally.

Robert Groleau, who had played only a few games with the Saints, was attacked while on the Sherbrooke bench by Jean-Charles Vezina and only the intervention by a police officer halted that incident. Groleau went to the dressing room and changed, refusing to play out the remaining quiet minutes of the game.

Those thrown out include Vezina, Jean Charron, Pierre Chapdelaine, Robert Legault and Jean-Marc Carmel, all of Joliette, and Dodier, Robert, Sylvain Maheu and Mario Guillemette from Sherbrooke.

Sherbrooke team officials have vowed that "something more" than injuries and possible suspensions will come out of the 3½ hour game.

Long before the brawl broke out, Sherbrooke had managed to keep only one goal behind the Cyclones for the first two periods before Joliette scored twice in the opening part of the third to lead 5-2 at the time of the altercation.

Marcel Giguere scored twice — the opening goal of the tilt and the last one — and had two assists as well. Donald Dupre and Luc Tremblay scored for the Saints in the second and third periods respectively. Claude St. Laurent, Pierre Chapdelaine (league's leading scorer) Daniel Richard, Yvan Auclair and Robert Legault tallied for the winner.

Goalie Richard Neault stopped 29 shots during the game and was lifted in the closing moments to allow for an extra Sherbrooke attacker. The Saints came close on three occasions but not close enough to tie. Sherbrooke's next game is

Friday at the Sports Palace when they host Beauport Cascades at 8 p.m. The Cascades are just two points behind the Saints but Sherbrooke has two games in hand. It is not known if the injuries will reduce the already small number of Saints players for this game.

Massey-Vanier tourney a hockey showcase

If you're partial to sneak previews, our advice is that you wander down to the Roland Desourdy Sports Pavillion in Cowansville this weekend.

Not only can you catch a glimpse of the latest crop of high school hockey talent but you'll also be treated to the season's first tournament, as Massey-Vanier lifts the curtain for its fifth annual invitational showdown.

"It's earlier than usual this year," admitted host coach Howard Johnson, "but it's intended mainly as a pre-season tournament. We didn't want to conflict with the Bishop's tournament in December or college entrance exams, so for most clubs it's going to be their first real game."

Chances are excellent that the arena will become a laboratory during the two day playdowns (Friday and Saturday) as coaches of the six entries put their players under the microscope.

Brian Heath, the man who directs the fortunes of Alexander Galt Regional, was mentioning yesterday, for instance, that he'll be using the tournament to help arrive at some of the 11th hour decisions he's yet to make.

One of those, undoubtedly, will involve the netminding chores, particularly with the arrival of a late cut from the Thetford Mines Fleur de Lys of the Quebec Junior "A" League. The 17-year-old should receive his Galt "baptism" around 2:30 tomorrow afternoon.

Ironically, AGRHS faces a rematch in its first tournament encounter, hooking up with Polyvalente Massey-Vanier (the French-speaking sector) whom it duelled to a 3-3 tie during a recent exhibition game. "They looked good," Heath said of the opponents. "They played clean, sound hockey."

But his defending ETIAC champions figure to evoke a few superlatives as well, especially since 12 members of the team are back for an encore.

"I think we definitely have to be stronger," Heath admitted. "Offensively we're going to be okay but defensively there could be a few question marks."

That analysis could be extended to Massey-Vanier Regional where Johnson has seven forwards returning but only two defencemen.

"Our strength is definitely up front where we have good skaters and puck-handlers," he confirmed. "The fellows on defense are small and they haven't had that much experience."

Although MVRHS has won the tournament twice, it may, along with its guests, cast a glance over its shoulder at Howard S. Billings High School, which is a first-time entry.

After all, when a high school has turned out the likes of Atlanta Flames' left-winger Bobby Simpson, Edmonton Oilers' right-winger Ron Carter (a former Beaver) and Washington Capitals' centre Glen Currie, the opposite bench arouses curiosity.

"Traditionally, Howard S. Billings has one of the better clubs in the city of Montreal," Johnson understated.

The two other tournament invitees - Macdonald-Cartier High and Bishop's College School - combine to make the latest invitational the most solid in its five year history.

Perhaps it is this finely-honed competitive edge that has sent more youngsters than usual flocking to the high school fold.

"This year, for the first time at Alexander Galt we have a rule stipulating that you play for us and nobody else. But I've only lost one hockey player to the town program," Heath revealed. "High school hockey is glamorous enough if you can offer a good schedule... say 30 games or more. In our case, too, we're planning a trip to Ontario for some exhibition games."

At Massey-Vanier, an overflowing training camp was the ultimate proof to coach Johnson that the young athletes still believe there's a certain pride in playing for their school.

The trait will likely manifest itself this weekend but Johnson figures the ordinary fan should readily recognize a few more.

"They won't see the stickwork so visible in junior hockey, that's for sure. In high school play, we try to emphasize the physical part but through use of the body rather than the stick. And you won't see intimidation in high school hockey."

Sounds like good, old-fashioned, fire-wagon hockey.

Grey Cup crackdown

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto police, backed by recent changes in Ontario liquor laws, warned Wednesday that they will crack down on those who drink during the Grey Cup game or on the streets.

At a news conference, Deputy Chief Jack Ackroyd said a change in liquor laws makes it an offence to display an open bottle in public.

Prior to the change, police had to prove that a person had drunk from the bottle before charging him with consuming alcohol in a public place.

In 1976, police were deluged with complaints about drunken Grey Cup fans on the streets, he said.

Swedes power Rangers past hapless Hawks

ANDERS HEDBERG
...big night

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York forward line of Pat Hickey, Ulf Nilsson and Anders Hedberg combined

for five goals and eight assists Wednesday night to power the Rangers to an 8-1 victory over Chicago Black Hawks in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

Hickey scored a goal in each period, raising his season's total to seven, and set up one goal by each of his linemates as the Rangers breezed to their ninth victory in 11 games and handed the Black Hawks their third consecutive loss.

Hickey, defenceman Carol Vadnais and Hedberg scored in the first 7:05 of the contest. Dean Talafous and Phil Esposito added power-play goals around a goal by Hickey. Then Hickey — on his third swipe at the puck in front of goaltender Tony Esposito — made it 7-0 before Chicago's Bob Murray ruined John Davidson's shutout bid with 8:43 remaining.

Just 47 seconds later, Nilsson capped a perfect give-and-go with Hickey for the eighth New York goal. The Rangers have lost only one of the last 11 games between the teams.

DENVER (AP) — Montreal Canadiens struck for four third-period goals Wednesday night to defeat Colorado Rockies 6-1 in National Hockey League action.

Guy Lafleur's ninth goal of the season at 6:55 of the second period was the winner, but the Rockies were in the game until Montreal's final-period barrage when Pierre Mondou, Pat Hughes, Yvan Lambert and Mark Napier scored in succession.

Colorado, in its third year in the NHL, has only one tie to show for 10 games with the defending Stanley Cup champions. That occurred during the club's first season of operation.

TORONTO (CP) — Walt McKechnie scored at 2:01 of the third period to enable Toronto Maple Leafs to salvage a 2-2 tie with Buffalo Sabres in a National Hockey League game Wednesday night.

McKechnie's goal capped a Toronto comeback after the Leafs spotted the Sabres a 2-0 lead on goals by Andre Savard and Danny Gare in the second period.

It finished off an excellent offensive play by Toronto defenceman Ian Turnbull who picked up a loose puck at centre ice, split the Buffalo defence and moved in on goaltender Don Edwards. He went by the net but passed back to McKechnie, who fired the puck into the empty Buffalo net.

Edwards played a spectacular game, kicking out 40 shots while Buffalo fired 27 at Toronto goaltender Mike Palmateer.

ATLANTA (AP) — Jean Pronovost and Willie Plett scored goals 46 seconds apart in the third period Wednesday night to give Atlanta Flames a 5-3 National Hockey League victory over Detroit Red Wings.

The score was tied 3-3 when Pronovost drilled a 40-foot shot from the right post past Detroit goaltender Rogie Vachon. Plett's shot, which Vachon at first appeared to have stopped, trickled out of the goalie's grasp and over the goal line.

Rivalry intense as Esks face Stamps

RED DEER, Alta. (CP) — Television sets fly out windows, holes are kicked in walls while beer bottles break against mirrors and bloody fights erupt in hallways.

That's what hotel and motel operators say they face when Edmonton and Calgary football fans invade Red Deer during the Western Football Conference finals.

It happened last weekend when Calgary Stampeders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers played in Calgary and Calgary television was blacked out.

Similar brawls are expected this weekend when Edmonton Eskimos take on the Stampeders in a game blacked out in the Edmonton television area.

Hotel operators say that often the hundreds of club supporters who come to Red Deer, about halfway between the two major cities, watch their favorite teams battle it out on the playing field, then leave motel rooms looking like war zones.

The situation is so bad that many hotel operators refuse to take reservations from football fans.

A spot survey showed that about half the city's hotels and motels are unwilling to accept bookings from football fans.

Those hotels that are willing to risk damage are demanding between $20 and $100 in damage deposits.

Red Deer, and towns within a 50-kilometre broadcast radius, are the closest points in Alberta where fans without tickets to this Saturday's WFC playoff game can watch it.

Don Hart, owner of the Park Hotel and president of the hotel association for central Alberta, says even high damage deposits aren't enough to stop the football crazies from going on a rampage.

Hart said fans rent hotel rooms for one purpose: "To do to someone else's property what they can't do in their own homes."

"They just don't care."

Hart said the biggest majority of fans who go wild are men between 30 and 45 years of age.

Hart said he knows of one city hotel that had two television sets thrown out of a second-floor window. One of the sets landed on the roof of a car.

The Red Deer Inn would "sooner be empty" than take football fans, said manager June Rohe. She said damage deposits don't cover holes punched in walls, light fixtures torn from ceilings and wrecked furniture, including toilet bowls.

GAELS, BIRDS SET TO DO BATTLE

TORONTO (CP) — Queen's University fans have never been accorded good-conduct medals for their compassion.

There will be an estimated 10,000 wearing the Golden Gaels' colors Saturday at Varsity Stadium when their favorites meet University of British Columbia Thunderbirds in the 14th College Bowl to decide Canada's top intercollegiate football team.

It will be the first College Bowl appearance for both teams.

"It will certainly be in our favor if support is the deciding factor," Queen's head coach Doug Hargreaves said at a coach's news conference Wednesday. "Queen's fans are notorious; famous or infamous, depending on whose side you're on."

And Queen's supporters will be here in droves. Hargreaves said he knows at least 22 busloads will be bringing in students from the Kingston, Ont., university and a number of extra cars are being added to trains heading for Toronto.

DISCLOSES INJURED "And you're going to see all those alumni in the stands."

His comments came shortly after UBC coach Frank Smith detailed the Thunderbirds' injury list which, though not long, was disheartening in that their outstanding running back, John MacKay, the third leading rusher in the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union this season, will be missing.

MacKay, who ran for more than 700 yards and scored nine touchdowns, is lost for the season after tearing knee cartilage in last weekend's Western Bowl win over Wilfrid Laurier Golden Hawks.

Starting defensive half Dave Singe is out with a bruised kidney while corner back Al Chorney and running back Gord Penn are listed as doubtful.

"We may have trouble getting our players out of the dressing room," Smith said after hearing of the expected Queen's support Saturday.

CHILDREN HELPED More than 20,000 are anticipated for the annual fall classic which through the years has provided some $200,000 for the Canadian Save the Children Fund coffers.

While Smith was bemoaning the Thunderbirds' hurts from the Laurier game after going through most of the year injury-free, Hargreaves said the Gaels go into the game "healthy, as healthy as we were at the opening of training camp."

That means quarterback Jim Rutka, who ripped apart the CIAU's supposedly stingiest defence last weekend in a 32-10 rout of St. Francis Xavier XMen at Halifax, is back in form after being injured through the season.

"The only injury in that game was the coach who fell down some stairs," said Hargreaves. "We'll have no excuses whatsoever."

Marsh World

CONTROLLED BURNING - A MARSH MANAGEMENT TOOL — Controlled burning of marsh vegetation can be beneficial to wildlife. Dead marsh vegetation builds up and inhibits new plant growth. Burning releases nutrients and allows sunlight to penetrate to the soil, encouraging new plant growth. Slow burns in dry peat may create holes which eventually fill with water. These potholes increase the diversity of the marsh. Fast burns remove dead plant litter without harming the plants themselves. These techniques increase diversity within marshes which benefits wildlife.
