TWO KINDS OF WOMEN

need Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—those who want to be made strong, and those who want to be made well. It builds up, invigorates, regulates, and cures.

It's for young girls just entering womanhood; for women who have reached the critical "change of life"; for women expecting to become mothers; for mothers who are nursing and exhausted; for every woman who is run-down, delicate, or overworked.

For all the disorders, diseases, and weaknesses of women, "Favorite Prescription" is the only remedy so unfailing that it can be guaranteed. If it doesn't benefit or cure, in every case, the money will be returned.

There's nothing likely to be "just as good."

Maple Grove.

The confirmation and other services held at Black Lake by Bishop Dunn of Quebec on June 9th was attended by a goodly number from this vicinity and all who attended were amply rewarded by the beautiful service and also by the sumptuous and joyous reception given by the ladies in the school room. On Sunday the 11th inst., the Bishop held confirmation services at Christ's Church, Lower Ireland, and Trinity Church, Maple Grove; at the latter 45 persons were confirmed; though the weather was wet the church was filled with people and all seemed to be delighted with their new Bishop. He was accompanied by the Archdeacon who we expect will soon favor us with another visit. Mr. Armstrong, a Presbyterian student holds weekly religious meetings in the Gill and Bennett school houses. The Sunday school proposes holding a box social at Maple Grove on the evening of June 24th.

Fitch Bay, Que.

Heavy fall of rain here on Sunday last which was much needed. Crops looking fine in this section. L. P. Adams, road overseer, is working the roads here this week with the road machine, and is doing a good job which was much needed. T. B. Hader, M. P., soon leaves for Ottawa to attend the Liberal Convention on the 20th. The Fitch Bay Brass Band is making good progress under the able teaching of Prof. W. H. Ballard of Magog Que. The band will give a garden party and concert on Saturday evening 16th June on the lawn of Mr. H. W. Dolloff of this place, a good programme has been provided. The M. C. L. of this place is doing good work they meet every two weeks on Monday evening.

The cheese factory is running under the able management of Mr. R. E. Scott, of South Stukely, who has bought the factory. S. B. Dolloff's sash and door factory is doing good business and have hard work to fill all orders. Service in St. Matthias church at 10:30 a. m. next Sunday.

Mr. O. E. Webster of Ways Mills lost a valuable horse last week from flatulent colic.

COUNTY NEWS.

The farm house of Hiram Wheeler, at Ways Mills, Que., occupied by Charles Wheeler and family was burned on Friday Mrs. Wheeler was ill and Mr. Wheeler had gone to Stanstead for medicine. The loss was complete, scarcely a thing being saved. The building and contents were partly insured in the S. & S. Mutual.

JOHNVILLE.—The W. C. T. U. social at the residence of Mr. G. B. Cleveland was a most agreeable and successful gathering the large house being well filled on the occasion. The company were entertained with songs, quartettes, recitations, games, &c. The Methodist Sunday School have chosen Mr. M. Hamilton as their delegate to the C. E. Convention in Montreal next month.

SUBDEN DEATH.—Mrs. C. L. Farnsworth, aged 60, of Compton, Que., died suddenly on Monday while sitting in her chair after breakfast. She had been in her usual health and her death was quite unexpected. Coroner Woodcock was notified, and on certificate of Dr. G. McKee gave order for burial. Dr. McKee was of opinion death was the result of heart disease. The deceased was highly esteemed and well known, being the wife of C. L. Farnsworth who for many years past has been the efficient Secretary of Compton.

Mission of Waterville.

Church of England services June 18, Third Sunday after Trinity. North Hatley, 10:30 a. m., with celebration of Holy Communion. Waterville, Sunday School and confirmation class at 2:15; Service at 3 p. m. Eustis, 7 p. m. by standard railway time. Addresses will be given on the subject of confirmation. Intending candidates for confirmation or baptism are asked to confer with Mr. King on Sunday or as soon after as possible.

Compton.

Mrs. C. L. Farnsworth passed away suddenly Monday morning. She had not been in quite her usual health for a few days but had taken her breakfast and was sitting in her chair reading the paper when the call came. She was a lady known and highly esteemed by many. A number of Royal Templars from this place and Martinville visited Mrs. Farnsworth Sunday morning where an R. T. Church parade was held. Rev. Mr. Lawson speaks to us for the last time on Sunday morning previous to removing to his new circuit. Mrs. S. J. Coak, Miss Bliss, Miss Harvey and Miss Moore are attending the County Convention of the W. C. T. U. in Scotstown.

Cookshire.

Mr. R. H. Pope, M. P., has his new creamery nearly finished, and is pushing forward its completion rapidly. We are sorry to learn that Mr. E. S. Baker met with an accident on Monday whereby he sprained his ankle. He is able to be out again. Mr. Austin Williams of Bulwer and Mr. Benjamin Farnsworth of Flanders, were elected School Commissioners for Eaton last week in place of Messrs. G. N. Gamsby of Cookshire and Eugene Smith of Johnville whose term of office had expired. The agitation for a branch of the E. T. Bank here continues, and the President and General Manager were to come over this week to discuss the matter with some of our business men. Rev. W. Shearer of Sherbrooke preached in the Town Hall here Sunday morning and at East Angus in the evening.

Maple Grove.

East Hatley.

All nature is smiling in the EXAMINER correspondent is looking glum, lack of news and dearth of time is the immediate cause of vexation. The latest arrival in the way of visitors are Miss May Reeve and a young friend from Island Pond, they are stopping with Miss Weston. Rev. R. Smith and wife are stopping at Mr. Avery Ives for a short time. Mr. Ives is having some repairs done upon house. The County W. C. T. U. are arranging for a grand temperance rally some time in the early part of July to take the form of a picnic at which time all the local clergymen are invited to give addresses. All temperance societies are cordially invited to join with them; further particulars will appear next week. Mrs. Patney, County Prea. of W. C. T. U. and Miss Leavitt, M. D., Co. Supt. of Health and heredity are attending the Annual Compton Co. Convention held this year at Scotstown. (If the EXAMINER made as many mistakes in printing as the News does I shouldn't dare to scribble so.) Whoever read the report of County Convention in the two papers would hardly believe that one was copied from the other before sending to press.

East Clifton.

The moving of the cheese factory one and a half miles to the north has proved to be a wise measure as the patronage has increased nearly one half more this season than formerly. The proprietor of the cheese factory, Mr. E. S. Lussier had his house moved yesterday. The Estin neighborhood turned out en masse to assist him and the house now stands close to the factory. The hay crop looks splendid and all other crops appear very promising. Rev. Mr. Duggan has returned from attending the Conference lately held at Cornwall. He preached to a very large congregation on Sunday last. Mrs. H. E. Cairns is at present in Massachusetts on a visit to her children and friends there. On the 27th of May a young granddaughter was introduced to her. A daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Hedge of Buckland, and in June she had an introduction to a grandson which is son to Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Cairns of Bernardston. William Lowry is home after an absence in New England States of about two years; wish he might make up his mind to remain here. T. J. Waldren is building a new house this summer. Mr. Willis Phelps of Sawyerville has charge of the building which is progressing well.

Methodist Conference.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Conference of the Methodist Church held at Cornwall was brought to a close on Wednesday morning last. Among the various reports presented were the Superannuation.

The permanent fund reaches about $200,000; amount raised by districts, $22,700; total receipts of annual fund, $86,600; increase from circuits, $14,000; from ministers' subscriptions, $435; the General Conference fund receipts for the year are $6064; expenditure, $6351; the Montreal Conference contributes $862. The superannuation fund makes allowance to 201 ministers, 152 widows and 87 children.

The report of the Union Church Relief Fund was presented for the last six years. It shows a total indebtedness of $38,000. The amount raised by the Montreal Conference for 1892 and '93 is $794. The debt was received from churches embarrassed at the time of the union in 1883. From 1887 to 1892 the reduction has been only 10,000.

Some discussion arose as to the constitution of the special evangelistic committee. This committee was appointed to discuss the word of irresponsible evangelists and the case of Rev. R. C. Horner, the utility of whose work has been questioned by some ministers. The following were appointed: Revs. Dr. Williams, Dr. Ryckman, John Armstrong, James Elliott D. Winter, James Kines, Dr. J. S. Saunders; laymen, Messrs J. W. Knox, H. W. Pirrette, Wm. Bow, J. S. Eggleston, W. W. Dalgleish, W. A. Morehouse.

At the afternoon meeting fraternal greetings were ordered to be sent to the western conference.

In the evening the usual service for the reception of probationers into full connection was held. The crowded church showed the interest of the people in this solemn service. Rev. Dr. Williams moved and Rev. F. Chisholm seconded the resolution of reception. Both addresses were an earnest exposition of the dangers and duties of the Christian ministry.

The statistical committee reported the number of members as 36,325, net increase 563; missionary fund $37,242, increase about $2000; superannuation fund $10,097, educational fund $2631, contingent fund $958, general conference fund $978, Sunday School fund $398, sustentation fund $1950.

R. B. McAmmond was received as a candidate for the ministry. Some time was spent in discussing the case of an applicant for admission to the ministry and certain reports were mentioned that affected the character of the applicant. The application was rejected.

A sad and painful incident occurred when the Rev. Wm. Rilance, of Clarencville, arose and asked leave to go home, as he had just received a telegram stating that three of the members of his church had been murdered the previous night.

The Temperance Committee brought in a strong report urging the conference to prepare for the prohibition plebiscite in Ontario and to oppose all governments that would not declare themselves for prohibition. Mr. J. H. Carson presented thereupon which was unanimously adopted. Four delegates were appointed to the Dominion Alliance meeting in Toronto in September. They are the Revs. James Kines and G. G. Huxtable and Messrs. C. C. Taggart and Ann Beach.

The Rev. Dr. Ryckman, of Coaticook, preached the ordination sermon Sunday morning, and in clear and effective language pointed out the simplicity of the plan and condition of salvation. The young men ordained were C. S. Vaughan, who goes as a missionary to India; Wm. H. Stevens, G. H. Snell, R. Corrigan, B. A., and C. C. Huxtable. The ceremony was solemn and impressive, the congregation listening intently to the words of the President as the young men each received the word of God and were commissioned to go preach the gospel of Christ.

In the evening Rev. Manly Benson, of Ottawa, preached an impressive sermon. The church was filled to its utmost capacity at both services.

The Epworth League Committee approved of the plan of affixing the League with the Christian Endeavor Societies in the church. The number of Epworth League in this conference was reported as 97, with 4,441 members.

The chairmen of Districts in Quebec Province were directed to instruct the men on their districts regarding the importance of registration.

One of the ministers having to leave the work owing to ill-health his brethren and members of conference subscribed the neat little sum of $200 in cash which was presented him.

Rev. Mr. Pitcher read the report of the Stanstead Wesleyan College, by which it appears there has been 169 pupils the past year; endowment fund $18,412; with the interest of this and current receipts current expenses were met, net liabilities $16,800, the debt has been reduced $1000 this year.

An obituary service was held when the deaths of Revs. Francis Hunt and D. Smith were referred to feelingly and short sketches of their lives and work given.

The conference endorsed the deaconess movement and appointed Rev. H. E. Bland and Dr. Williams to take charge of it.

The greatest debate of the conference was evoked by the report of the Evangelistic committee which submitted that the results of the evangelistic work had been sadly disappointing; that there had been serious irregularities in the services by allowing and even urging numbers to pray at the same time, also in physical manifestations and prostrations which have not been controlled as they should have been. The report expressed confidence in the utility of evangelistic efforts, but recommended that the evangelists employed last year be stationed this year. That a committee be appointed to examine all who are desirous of engaging in this work, and that ministers and Quarterly Boards be urged not to employ any who are not accredited by this committee.

Dr. Saunders read the report and moved its adoption, seconded by Rev. R. Robinson.

It took half an hour to settle the line of debate, the president, Dr. Jackson, ruling that points of doctrine must not be discussed, and that moral character must not be assailed in the debate. Rev. R. C. Horner, against whom the report appeared to be largely aimed, detailed at great length his conversion and progress in the work up to the present time including the points charged in the report. He was given every latitude but did not succeed in convincing conference to vote against the report.

The debate lasted all day and into the evening session when a practically unanimous vote authorized the adoption of the report, and conference will not engage any evangelists for the coming year. The president appointed Revs. Dr. Williams, A. C. Courtes D. D., and S. D. Chown as examining committee, who are to look into the question of doctrine, character and methods of any who desire to engage in the work, and if approved they will be granted a certificate which will be receivable at the will of the committee.

The address of the conference to the churches under its care was then read and adopted.

Rev. Jas. Kines was appointed representative on the general board of Missions.

The final draft of the stationing committee's report was presented to the Conference at 3:30 p. m., and after its adoption the Conference closed.

Rev. Mr. Horner asked to be left without a circuit this year, which was granted. Among the changes made in stations in this vicinity before conference closed were the following:

Shawbridge, (Montreal District), A. H. Farnsworth.

Kingston District.—Princess St., Kingston, E. Thomas; Stella, J. O'Hara; Battersea, J. B. Hicks, B. A.; Harrowsmith, E. S. Shorey.

Bank Caved In.

Coroner Woodward held an inquest at Ascot Corner Tuesday on the body of Leon Dussault, aged 39, a laborer employed by Messrs. D. G. Loomis & Sons, who had been working in a pit when the clay caved in and buried him, sustaining injuries that resulted in his death. The jury, G. H. Winslow, foreman, returned a verdict of accidental death.

The Liberal convention will assemble at Ottawa on the 20th instant when a large gathering of delegates is expected.

A BORDER SHEPHERDESS.
A ROMANCE OF ESKDALE.

BY AMELIA E. BARR,
Author of "The Household of McNeil," "Jan Todder's Wife," "The Squire of Sandal-Side," &c., &c.

Sandy Todd was a lawyer of great local eminence, a self-contained, pawky, prudent man, who advised Faith in all her business, as he had done Faith's father when he was alive. However, her first care had to be given to the boys' lessons. There was a fine school near Hawick and she placed them there. But every Friday night they returned to Harribee for two days, and Faith and Phemie, and every servant in the house, felt the delightful change this weekly visit made in its quiet routine. There was an air of preparation for it on all the intervening days; and the pleasure of a fresh holiday in each home-coming.

Saturday, if fine, was Faith's great day. She always went to the folds, and the boys helped her up the steep places, and chatted to her of a hundred things, past and present, all the way. They were two handsome lads. David had his father's gay temper, and high mettled courage, with a physiognomy decidedly G.ome. Matthew resembled his mother's father. He had his great frame, calm face, and massive head, and was, as Faith proudly told herself, "a true Harribee." They made a wonderful change in the life of the old farm. Phemie had to knit for them, and Faith had their clothing to look after, and their books and their lessons.

Above all she laid upon herself their religious training; for though she highly valued education, she set true, sound principles far beyond it. And she was determined they should stand by the creed for which their ancestors had fought and suffered. Sitting round the fire, and standing upon the Prescher's Stone, she told them again and again the religious history of their race—painted the men as women paint their heroes, a very little lower than the angels. And their play also cost her many an anxious hour and extra walk. She quickly learnt what mothers feel about frozen ponds and football and horseback riding and bathing and swimming and rowing. But she loved them better every day, and they grew grandly under her care in all respects.

For some weeks these unusual duties and pleasures kept her fully employed, though she had never forgotten, for one day, the grave duty regarding the boys' future which lay before her. But she was a woman inclined to cautious movements. It was a secret of great importance, touching the interests of people who were each, in their own way, dear to her. Twice she went to Todd's and came back without saying a word about the business that really took her there. On her third visit the old man was quite alone, and quite at leisure, and insensibly they fell into a conversation full of reminiscence regarding her father, and events contemporary with his life, as Faith remembered it. It was a snowy day, and the old lawyer stirred the fire frequently to aid his recollections. Suddenly he said, "It was a fair blow to your father when that Bonnie sister of yours ran away with that play-acting byson of the G.ome."

"He was no by-son. He was the lord of G.ome his ain self."
"What are you saying, woman? Diana let your tongue get awa' from your senses."
"I am saying that Roland G.ome, my sister's husband, was Lord William's lawful son; and that my nephew David is that this vera hour the true lord of that name and ilk."
"Preserve us a', Faith! Your words are actionable. Keep a calm sough, woman."
"I must tell you everything now, and you must act in the matter for me, Todd; for I can trust your wisdom."
"Ay, you may do that. I'm no the man to do fools' work or go fool's errands."

Then she told him plainly all she knew. But Todd pointed out that it was "naething but a suspicion. You havena an scrap o' paper to prove your big words, Faith, and you may be as 'morally certain as you like. The law kens naething about moral certainty; a scratch o' a pen would be mair to the purpose."
"That is precisely what I want you to secure. Can you go to Italy and Greece and look for these records?"
"Are you daft, lassie! Me go to foreign countries! Into the vera presence o' the Scarlet Woman o' Papiarty at that! Na, na! I'll no risk my body, no to speak o' my soul, among Romans and heathens. For the Greeks are naething but pagans. I ken weel when I was at schule, learning anent their gods and goddesses, and my father gived me a gude larp for it—and weel I deserved it—wasting my time o'er such parrifick nonsense, no to say even down sin."
"Faen, Todd, tell me who to send."
"There's men who lay their lives out for such dark business, and I ken what to hail them from. Gae your ways hame; I'll get the right man for the work, and gie him a' the dir-ot on he needs."
"Thank you, Todd."
"Oa, ay; thanks are weel enough, and I'll no refuse them, but I must understand, mistress, that you will be fully responsible for the wherewith. A lawyer's charges are honest and shoreboard. Any fool kens what they'll be, but the deil himself couldna tell what charges may come anent this under-your-hand bit o' business."
"You ken weel, Todd, that I am fully able to meet charges, only I trust to you to see that I am not wronged in them."
"They're be clever folk that cheat my clients. I shall pay your siller out as if it was my ain, Faith."
"And you will be sure to keep all secrets?"
"Jute, woman! I'm not a natural-born talker, and I dinna talk professionally without being paid to do sae. Do you ken anybody up or down Eskdale wae rich enough to pay me to open my mouth against you? Gae your ways hame, Miss Harribee, and dinna think that you have a monopoly of the wisdom and kindness and honesty in the world."

The interview quite satisfied Faith. She understood the man, and had not a doubt that before she arrived at home he had taken the first step towards securing an efficient and reliable agent.

Amid all these duties she found time to go and see Lady Sinton more than once. And she could not help looking with a kind curiosity at the baby Terres put into her arms. Innocently enough he was usurping her David's right. She almost wished she had never heard of this right. It seemed to put every other thing wrong.

One Friday afternoon she drove to Seaton Court. All was ready for the boys at noon, and she did not feel able to settle herself to work of any kind until she had seen them; and it would be at least four or five hours ere they arrived.

"I'll take the light tax cart, Phemie," she said, "and go my ways to see Lady Terres for an hour or mair."

It was a dull grey day, but Faith did not mind grey weather. For the baby lord she had procured from Glasgow one of those fine sewed muslin robes for which that city was famous, and Phemie had added to the present a pair of knitted lambswool socks. Faith's heart was full of happy thoughts. She anticipated the pleasure of a chat with Terres; she anticipated the pleasure of her boys' visit. She had no cares, and she had many a bright hope.

Terres was delighted to see her. Her pretty presents were just the ones nobody else had thought of.

It is grand enough for a christening robe, Faith," she said, "and, indeed, we are reckoning upon you for the godmother."

"That I can ne'er be, Terres. You ken, in my ain kirk, the bairn's mother stands wi' the bairn at the baptizing, and whae see fit to do it! If you dinna teach the wee laddie his duty to God and his ain soul, it's no vera likely any other woman will do your duty. Also, I hae twa lads o' my ain now."

"Yes, I have heard of them; the child ren of your sister Agnes." She grew suddenly quiet, and ended her reflections by lifting her own boy from his satin lined cradle and kissing him with a fervour which scarcely required words to explain. Faith knew the thoughts in her heart. She knew that Terres said in that kiss: "Right or wrong, my boy, your mother will assert your claim and suffer no one to put you aside."

Almost immediately after this silent act of motherly devotion Lord Graeme entered the room. His face lightened all over when he saw Faith, and he made the time pass pleasantly that she forgot the hour until the falling snow warned her of her distance from home. Then she rose in a sudden hurry, and Lord Graeme went to order her car. When it came to the door, he was sitting in it holding the reins, and cloaked for the coming storm.

"I am going to drive you, Miss Harribee," he said. "We shall have a heavy fall, and I know the road down Seaton Fell better than you do." She wanted to oppose the offer, but could not. Several servants were standing around; she disliked to dispute and refuse before them. It seemed better to quietly take the seat beside the voluntary driver, and suffer herself to be comfortably tucked in from the coming storm.

Lord Graeme was in the highest spirits. "Why, Faith!" he cried, "to have you beside me is such a piece of luck as I have never dreamed of! To have you all to myself! A hundred thousand thanks to the snowclouds!" He rattled away like a schoolboy. "It was the most glorious drive!" he had ever taken. He wished "every mile was ten times as long"; and when they reached Harribee, he vowed he was "so perished with hunger and cold that simple charity required Faith to ask him to supper."

He had not named the boys; he had not seen them. Certainly he had heard of their arrival, but during this happy drive he had quite forgotten them, and until he entered the glowing house-places with Faith. Then they sprang to meet her with clasping arms and resounding kisses. It was a shock to Graeme; a shock so great that for a minute he could not recognize nor understand the feelings the children had aroused.

He looked at them curiously and with some irritation. Their presence would at least spoil the confidential talk he hoped to have with Faith. So far, they were an intrusion, and a disagreeable one. But as the supper progressed, he watched them and listened to them with a singular interest, casting many a furtive glance at David, but talking more to Matthew, who had a grave and quiet manner that courted confidential chat.

After supper they went early to their room, but Lord Graeme drew his chair closer to the hearth, and with Faith's approval lit a cigar, and smoked slowly and silently during the hour in which she was receiving her servants' reports and giving her last orders. He did not appear to be watching her, but he saw her slightest movement, and even speculated upon the bits of conversation he heard her hold with men and women. But in the main his thoughts were with the two sleeping boys. David was so like his brother William; Matthew had a look which constantly recalled Faith, and which perhaps unconsciously inclined his grand uncle to him. At that hour he wished heartily that the thing he had done was undone.

When at last Faith took her knitting and sat down, the night was wearing towards eight o'clock. In that simple household he knew that he would be expected to leave within an hour, and he turned to Faith with a face that needed no words to interpret it.

Alas! he saw no response in her eyes to the question he asked. There was a vague trouble in them that puzzled him, a something that was blending of love and sorrow and reproach. It startled him by its resemblance to some feeling in his own heart. But it was impossible she could know anything of his sin! And yet he believed Roland had judged him. And Roland's children might have heard their father's suspicions, and repeated them to their aunt. It was a new fear. He could not put it down. He seemed to read it in Faith's face. Yet he stooped towards her and took the knitting from her hands and held them firmly as he said: "You know what words are in my heart, and on my lips, Faith. You know how long and honestly I have loved you. When will you be my wife?"

"There are new and dear charges come into my life. What has you to say anent them?"

"I will make them as welcome in Graeme as if they were my own boys. Upon my honour I will!"

She took her hands quickly away from him, and said, "You hae given me a sair heartache this night, lord; but aye thing is sure as sure can be—I cannot say 'yes' or 'no' to you yet."

"You love me, Faith? Ever so little you love me?"

"I'll no say but what I think mair o' you than of other folk; but wae's me! We may love many a thing, and want many anither thing that would neither be right for ourselves nor yet gude for others. I am walking on a dark road; to night at least, I cannot let you keep me company."

"But some other time, Faith! Say 'yes,' dear woman!"

"I cannot tell. It will depend mainly upon yourself—I'm no ready to speak. I dinna ken my own heart. I'm no sure o' what is my right way yet."

"Then I must wait and hope."

"Ay, and you must be taking the road also; for its candle dipping, and there's folk that would see wrang if their een were out."

"Then good night, Faith! I know that you love me a little; and to-night I know that for some reason or other, you fear and doubt me also."

"Where did you learn sae much, lord?"

"In my heart."

And he went away into the snow, suddenly aware of the terror that had come to him—the terror that Faith suspected his sin. If at last it was to stand between them! Oh, how he regretted it! And so,

With repetition his only companion he lay, And a dismal companion is he!

CHAPTER XIII.
RIGHT BEFORE EVERYTHING.

It fattens my soul to know That, though I push, Truth is so That, however I stray or range, Whatever I do, I do not change. I leader step when I recall That if I fail, I shall not fall.

THE winter proved to be a very hard one. The snows lay deep, and the sheep had a bitter time of it, and many sheep were "smothered" in the drifts. But inside Harribee there was a great deal of the purest home pleasure. Phemie and Faith had such wonderful talks about "the boys." Such confidences to share at the week ends! There was not a scholar in the school with whom they were not in a certain way, familiar. If David and Matthew liked them, they did also. If David and Matthew disapproved them, then Faith and Phemie took their heads when they were named, and were fully convinced of their original and acquired sins. Very frequently, so frequently indeed that Faith was compelled to notice the circumstance, Lord Graeme found an excuse to call at Harribee on Saturday. One Friday night he stopped just as the boys arrived, complained that his horse was sick, and asked to remain until Faith could send a man to the castle for a fresh mount for him. He made himself so interesting to the little fellows that they opened up for him their whole budget of school news; and when he left he "tripped" them so handsomely that Faith felt compelled to interfere.

But Graeme persisted in standing by his gift. "The boys belong to me as well as to you, Faith," he said; "they are Graemes, not Harribees, and I know what a tip is to a lad at school."

She thought comparatively little of the investigation which she had left with Sandy Todd. She did not visit him again upon the subject. Perhaps, in her most secret consciousness she wished that it would prove unsuccessful. She did not want to think so evilly of Lord Graeme. She did not dare to imagine what course she must take if the assertions of Roland and Agnes were correct. In the meantime Graeme was certainly gaining a great hold upon her affection. The boys were a common ground upon which they met with a familiarity impossible under any other condition. She began to look with something very like love upon the elegant handsome man, who was so happy upon her hearthstones; who watched her with such unexpressed admiration; who took such an interest in David and Matthew, and who was so favourably thought of by them. When David told of some race in which he had been the winner, or some fight in which he had been the victor, or when Matthew recited his last Greek chorus, or showed some extraordinary prize of merit, Graeme and Faith were sure to exchange glances of pride and satisfaction about the matter; and these glances were wonderful vehicles of more personal affection and interest. In fact without saying one word of love, Graeme was wooing Faith in the most irresistible way possible to a woman of her character and position.

In the spring she had a visit from Todd. He took her a little by surprise when he came. First, because she was not a woman who brought to-morrow and next week and next month into to-day;—not one of those restless natures who are forever calling to some one in the watch-tower, "Do you see anybody coming?" Her nature was calm because it was moulded in grand proportions, without the littleness that produce "fuss." Then it was also a very unusual thing for Todd to leave his office.

"But the air was sae caller, and the wind sae fresh, I thought I would hae a mouthful o' the spring," he said, and he lighted from his pony at Faith's door.

He did not immediately speak of the business on which he had come. A variety of topics interested him during the early lunch which was spread for his benefit. But as he sat smoking his pipe to a glass of toddy he relieved his mind of the news he had brought.

She had forgotten—Mrs. Hogan—"Danny." "Danny"—"Yes, mother." "Was that joint we saw at the show last summer foive fut eight or eight fut foive?"

The butcher (haughtily)—"Madam, my reputation rests upon my meat." Doubting customer—"Well, if it's as tough as that last steak you sent me, I feel sorry for you."

SLOW BURNING BUILDINGS. Comparative Dangers of Light Woods in Construction. Nothing is more common, after a fire in a so called 'slow burning' building like the Ames and other buildings destroyed in Boston, than to hear such sneering remarks as: 'That was what the architects call a fire proof building. I wonder why they cannot learn something about their business.'

It is reported that all policies of insurance in Boston on buildings having floor beams of pitch pine were to be cancelled on account of the particularly inflammable nature of that timber. It is not likely that any such proceeding, which would deprive of insurance nearly all the so called 'slow burning' buildings in the city, was ever really contemplated, but the report certainly indicates that some insurance man had been seized with the notion that a building with pitch pine beams and floors was more combustible than one with spruce or white pine timbers.

A real marksman's shot. 'I served over 12 months in the Confederate army,' said Colonel Wilt Sanders, 'but I could never attain any efficiency as a marksman. I only distinguished myself once, and then the feat was purely accidental and well nigh cost me my life. I was practicing with three or four other fellows on a big Texas prairie, not very far from a small farm-house. We were aiming at a tree about 400 yards off, and all the boys except myself hit the trunk two or three times in succession. After I had missed it half a dozen times running some one remarked that I couldn't hit a cow which was grazing peacefully nearly half a mile to our left. I admitted that he was correct, and I took aim at the cow, and to show him how impossible it was for me to hit a mark, the next moment that cow was grazing around like a mad thing, and in less than five minutes it was dead.'

Some of the Kings of Poland. One upon a time there were four kings named Boleslas who reigned over faraway Poland, and although no one might care to study the history of Poland to find out about their history sums up in a word the characteristics of each. The first was the 'Lion hearted,' like the famous English Richard; the second was the 'Intrepid,' which the Arab and fourth were entirely different men, being the 'Wry Mouth' and the 'Curl,' and there you have an idea of the four Polish Boleslases. To further learn what other varieties of kings ruled in Poland in bygone days one need but run over the list and find the Pacific, the Careless, the Just, the White, the Black and the Short. These names are suggestive in many ways, for they afford an insight into the history of the time as well as describing the monarchs.—Chicago Tribune.

What Cheap Hydrogen Means. An engineer at Milan has succeeded in discovering a process of making hydrogen on a large scale and so cheaply that in producing 1,000 cubic meters a day this gas will cost only 1 cent per cubic meter. Considering the fact that the substance, the lightest of all known and very inflammable, admits of complete combustion, emits no smoke while burning, leaves no ashes or other products, gives the most intense heat obtainable and surpasses in power the electric light, one may easily comprehend the importance of this discovery if true.—New York Telegram.

Looking For Objectionable Things. Dr. Johnson listened not over patiently one day at a dinner to a pride who sat beside him who was gossiping, and when she said with what was meant to be an arch glance, 'Oh, doctor, dear, I saw some very bad words in your dictionary the other day,' the learned man said emphatically, 'You must have been looking for them, woman!—Boston Herald.

NOYES' COUGH SYRUP

BEST IN THE WORLD. GIVES INSTANT RELIEF, AND CURES CROUP, COUGHS, SORE THROAT, WHOOPING COUGH, BRONCHIAL COUGH, INFLAMMATION OF THE LUNGS, LUNG FEVER AND INFLUENZA. READ WHAT MR. CRAWLEY SAYS: 'I have used your Cough Syrup with the most effectual results. My daughter had the Whooping Cough, which left her with a frightful cough, she had the best of doctors, but they said there was no cure for her, unless it was a very long one. I took her to England and spent several months there, but she got no better, and returned home. Accidently at the church door I overheard two ladies praising Noyes' Cough Syrup, and seeing how it had cured a certain person of consumption, I immediately procured a bottle and gave it to her as directed, and it perfectly cured her. Yours respectfully, M. A. CRAWLEY. FOR SALE BY ALL DEALERS. NOYES' MEDICINE CO., SOLE PROPRIETORS, SHERBROOKE, P. Q.'

The Ottawa Convention.

A meeting of Liberals of the electoral division of Sherbrooke was held in Pelletier's Hall on Tuesday evening last for the purpose of appointing delegates to the Ottawa Convention. About 400 electors from different parts of the county were present. The delegates selected are J. S. Broderick, Dr. Pelletier, G. B. Loomis, C. A. E. Lefebvre and Theodore Pelletier. A local organization was formed with Dr. Pelletier as President and John Leonard as Secretary. J. Israel Tarte was present and made an interesting speech reviewing the political situation. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed throughout the proceedings.

Graduating Exercises.

The graduating exercises of class '93 of the Gorham, N. H., high school took place at the Opera House in that village, on Friday evening last. The Mountaineer describes the scene as follows:—"Miss Jones, flowering plants, evergreens, white dresses, rustling fans, perfumed breezes, and the crowning beauty of it all, the fresh fair young faces of the graduates. How beautiful it all was! The very air was sweet with perfume, and the rustling breezes seemed to utter exclamations of gratification at the beauty of the scene."

Among the young lady graduates was Miss Marion Gertrude Ingalls, who read an essay on "Our Next Century," and of which the Mountaineer says:—"Miss Ingalls led us into the wonders which in her prophetic vision she saw in the future and her part was a well written production showing a thoughtful contemplation of the great possibilities of the next one hundred years." The Floral decorations were under the charge and direction of Mrs. T. D. Jewell, (nee Miss M. I. McKenty), and Mrs. A. T. Cassier, (nee Miss G. Cardell), and is spoken of as being the prettiest ever seen on any former occasion.

FRIDAY, JUNE 16, 1893.

CITY ITEMS.

The St. Patrick's Society picnic to Magog yesterday was largely attended, the day being fine though very warm.

The Corporation are laying down stone sidewalk on the south side of Court street. They are also putting in a sewer on High street.

During the thunderstorm on Sunday lightning struck the chimney of Mr. E. A. Bishop's house, High street, and ran down the pipe out through the stove, but fortunately did no harm to any one.

J. W. Bengough, the celebrated cartoonist gave one of his imitator's lectures at Lennoxville Tuesday evening. The attendance was not large but they were highly pleased. He also lectured at Staread last evening.

The ladies Guild of St. Peter's church are to hold a festival of useful and fancy articles at the Church Hall on Wednesday afternoon next, when strawberries, ice cream and other refreshments will be served. See adv.

CAVALRY CAMP.—On Tuesday next the 5th regiment dragoons, Lt. Col. Taylor in command, will assemble in camp at Compton for 12 days drill. Capt. Morkill has his troop in readiness to join the camp.

We would draw attention to the advertisement of the Albion Hotel. Mr. Clark the present owner and proprietor, is a very popular landlord, and under his able management guests are assured of all the comforts of a well appointed city hotel. Give him a call.

HAND CUT OFF.—Geo. Gendron, employed by Mr. Geo. Long's sash and door factory, was running a circular saw yesterday morning when by some means his right hand came in contact with the saw and cut it completely through the knuckle joint. He stood it bravely, and some of his companions wrapped it up and took him to a physician at once.

POLITICAL PIC-NIC.—The first gathering of Conservatives in the Townships takes place on the 29th June instant, at Weedon Centre at 1 o'clock p. m. Hon. Mr. Taitton and other politicians will address the meeting. Cheap fares have been secured on the Quebec Central Ry., the fare from Sherbrooke and return being $1, and a less price along the intervening line.

Mr. Lenthier, the new U. S. Consul at this port arrived in town the first of this week, and was introduced to many of our citizens by L. C. Belanger, Esq., Q. C. Mr. Lenthier gave us a call and we were pleased to find that he was a publisher, in Lowell, Mass., where he issues a daily paper. He is a native of Canada, having been born at Beauharnois, but has been absent in the United States for the past 27 years.

The officers of the 53rd Battalion entertained Lt. Col. Count D'Orsonens, D. A. G. and Lt. Col. F. M. Pope, B. M. 6th military Dist. at a dinner at St. George's Club after the inspection on Saturday last. The table was very prettily decorated for the occasion and the menu was varied and showed good taste, every luxury of the season being provided; great credit is due the steward, Mr. G. W. Rawlins for the very efficient manner in which the dinner was conducted.

To be in the march of improvement Mr. A. H. Foss has had a new hardwood floor put in his store, with steps of the same wood leading to a newly furnished and handsome room where he has displayed to great advantage some beautiful china ware, elegant lamps and bric-a-brac that could not be shown so well in the one room. He has also got a sample room for his tinware and other goods which will enable him to serve his customers more easily and quickly than before. Call in and see him.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Grindrod, Montreal St., was the scene of a very happy event last Tuesday evening. It was the occasion of the marriage of their daughter Minnie to Mr. J. F. Kirkpatrick of Farnham, P. Q. The beautiful home, brilliantly illuminated and decorated with exquisite flowers, was well filled with friends of the contracting parties. At 8-45 the bridal party descended to the front parlor, the bride being attended by Miss Jessie Cuzner and the groom by Mr. George Cuzner. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Wm. Shearer after the hearty congratulations of all present. Later on in the evening sumptuous refreshments were served. The grand array of beautiful and costly presents gave evidence of the high esteem in which the bride was held among her many friends not only in this city but from outside as well. A large number of the guests escorted the newly married couple to the G. T. R. station where the usual storm of rice prevailed until the arrival of the 11:40 train by which they departed en route for Chicago.

Lacrosse.

The Sherbrooke team are in good condition for their match with Quebec to-morrow having put in hard practice for the past two weeks and will endeavor to give a good account of themselves in the Ancient Capital. The Team line up as follows: Goal, F. Simpson; Point, G. Simpson cover point, J. Hunter; defence field T. Simpson; A. Exley, W. Stewart Centre, H. Steere; home field, G. Norton, W. Exley, T. Park; outside home; J. Kennedy, inside, W. Ross; Captain, T. J. Maguire.

The Farnhams will play the Sherbrooke Juniors for the Southern Quebec Championship on the 24th inst. on Parade Ground.

Cantata.

The girls of the Young Ladies' Academy are to give an entertainment in St. Peter's Church Hall on Thursday evening next, when the cantata of the "Twelve Sisters" will be sung under the direction of Prof. Dorey with appropriate accompaniment. To begin at 8 o'clock. Admission 25c. It is hoped there will be a large attendance.

District Meeting.

The District Deputy Grand Master A. F. & A. M., for St. Francis District, has issued a summons calling a meeting of Masons of this district to be held at the Masonic Hall, in this city, on Tuesday, the 27th inst. There will be two sessions one at 2 p. m., and another at 7:30 p. m. At the afternoon session work will be exemplified on the 1st and 2nd Degrees in the Quebec Rite, and at the evening session work will be exemplified on the 3rd Degree in the York Rite. It is expected that a number of Grand Lodge officers and other prominent masons will be present. A banquet will be held at the close of the meeting.

Baptist Church.

The Rev. C. W. Townsend preached again last Sunday after a short vacation of two weeks, which was spent at the Brunswick Springs in Vermont. He seemed to be better for his brief holiday. In the morning he preached on the text "All my Springs are in Thee," illustrating his theme by reference to the mineral springs at Brunswick.

This week, he and six other delegates from Sherbrooke are attending the meetings of the Baptist Association in the city of Quebec. They will be back before Sunday when Mr. Townsend will be found again in his own pulpit. Next Sunday he will preach from the following subjects: in the morning it is "The Problem of Humanity," evening, "Christian Hospitality."

Y. M. C. A. Notes

The Reception Committee of the Y. M. C. A. gave a new Members Social last evening which was a very enjoyable affair. The President, Mr. Dresser occupied the chair. A very good programme consisting of a couple of male quartettes by the Association Quartette, solo by Mr. Parker, flute solo by Dr. Bloomfield, recitation by Mr. Dunsmore and a series of two minute addresses on the work of the different committees was given by Messrs. Edwards, McKee, Price, Martin and Bartlett, and a capital address on the "Aims of the Association" by the Provincial Secretary, Mr. Cole.

Upon the completion of the programme refreshments were served. The piano used on the occasion was kindly loaned by H. C. Wilson & Sons, and the accompaniments were very acceptably played by Miss Nums.

Mr. Cole will address the workers this evening at 8 o'clock. He leaves to-morrow for Quebec. Mr. J. R. Ball will lead the Young Men's meeting to-morrow evening and Mr. A. F. Drew the gospel meeting Sunday afternoon, which will be held in parlour and not in upper hall for summer months.

Inspection of 53rd Batt.

The annual inspection of the 53rd Batt. took place on the Parade Ground, Saturday afternoon last. Promptly at 3 o'clock the inspecting officer, Lt.-Col. Count D'Orsonens, accompanied by Lt.-Col. Pope, B. M., Hon. W. B. Ives and Lt.-Col. King, arrived upon the ground where the corps were drawn up at open order. They were received with a general salute, after which column to the right was formed and the most minute and close inspection of men, arms and accoutrements was made. Hon. Mr. Ives accompanied the inspecting officers also Capt. J. F. Morkill and Lieut. G. McNeil of the dragoons, who were acting as aides. Next, the Batt. were put through several movements by the field officers, Lt.-Col. Morehouse, Major Worthington and Adjutant Fraser, all giving details. Then the officers commanding companies viz: Capt. Farwell, Somers, Rawson and Lieut. Spearing, each drilled their companies and answered questions relative to various movements. Lieuts. Fraser and Neil had charge of the colors.

The other officers present were Paymaster O'Jell, Surgeon Worthington and Quartermaster Winter. The inspection while disappointing to the large number of spectators owing to there being no show movements, was eminently practical and demonstrated the fact that the corps were well up in their knowledge of drill and Lt.-Col. D'Orsonens said at the close that he was well satisfied with the proficiency shown as well as the physique of the men. The inspection and roll call took some three hours and the Batt. marched down through Wellington street and back to the Drill Shed where they were dismissed. The Colonel expressed his pleasure to the officers and men at the very creditable and satisfactory inspection through which they had passed, and trusted they would ever maintain their good reputation.

PERSONALS.

Mr. Richard Smith is home from Boston.

Lieut. R. J. Spearing will go to England on the Bisley rifle team next week.

Mrs. Geo. Murch of Hyde Park, Mass., a former resident of Sherbrooke, is here on a visit at Mrs. Dancan's and other friends.

Mr. J. B. Smith and wife late of this city were in town this week attending the funeral of Mr. Smith's grandfather, Mr. Robt. Brooks of Brompton.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wilson left yesterday for a visit to relatives and friends in Massachusetts. They will also stop for a short time at Brunswick Springs.

Mr. W. H. Abbott of Lennoxville returned last week from a visit to Chicago and the World's Fair. All who have been there speak in glowing terms of the sights and sounds to be seen and heard at the great show, and their advice is to go and see for yourselves. They say that the reports of extortion by the hotels and others is greatly exaggerated.

Ripans Tablets cure bad breath. Ripans Tablets are always ready.

G. T. R. World's Fair Service.

The special attention given by the Grand Trunk Railway to World's Fair freight traffic has already elicited the compliments of European shippers, notably the Government of Italy. Its arrangements for swift service for passengers to Chicago will meet with high approval from the travelling public, who will do well to secure a World's Fair Folder published by the G. T. R. being a guide to that city. Trains from this city leaving at 8:25 a. m., and 10:24 p. m., arrive at Toronto in nine hours, a reasonable feat. The former lands passengers in Chicago at 8:30 a. m. and the latter at 9:30 p. m. covering the ground in 24 hours. Truly these trains are styled "the Chicago Flyers." Passengers may pass by Hamilton to Niagara Falls and thence through the St. Clair Tunnel or via Detroit. The cars are magnificent appointed, dining cars are attached, and all the accompaniments needed for comfort are fully provided.—From Journal Commerce, Montreal.

The Eastern Townships Agricultural Exhibition.

At a special meeting of the Board of Directors of the E. T. Agricultural Association, called to consider what action should be taken owing to the courses adopted by the Montreal Exposition Co. in fixing the same dates as those long since decided upon and advertised as the Sherbrooke dates. The correspondence between the Secretary and Mr. Stevenson the Secretary of the Montreal Fair, was read and the matter fully discussed, and it was unanimously decided that it was impossible at this late date, and with most of the printing and other arrangements made, to alter the Sherbrooke dates, which are the same dates in use by Sherbrooke for years past, and which were announced months before Montreal decided to have an exhibition this year.

We think the Sherbrooke Directors have taken a proper stand in the matter, and are convinced that when the old exhibitors learn the true facts of the case, and that Montreal is entirely to blame in the clash in dates, they will rally round the Townships Fair, where they are always well treated, and do all in their power to make it a complete success, and thus in a practical manner convince Montreal that however strong and independent they may be, it would have been wise in the present instance to consider seriously before deliberately endeavoring to kill a Fair which, though possibly smaller, can hold its own with Montreal and most of the other large Fairs.

Murch-McQuarrie.

A great variety of services have been held in Blue Hill chapel, but it was never the scene of a wedding until last Wednesday evening, when a large number of friends and acquaintances met to witness the marriage of William G. Murch and Miss Margaret McQuarrie, both of Milton. The chapel was very prettily decorated with flowers, and all was expectancy as the notes of the wedding march, from the organ, presided over by Miss Nellie Hamilton, announced the entrance of the bridal party. The following ushered led the procession: Walter Murch, Andrew Duncan, Charlie Duncan and William Sangster. Behind them came the groom, leaning upon the arm of his best man, his brother Frank, followed by the maid of honor, Miss Mary McQuarrie, sister of the bride, preceding the bride, escorted by John D. Morrison. The marriage service was performed by Rev. Dr. Archibald, the bride being given away by John D. Morrison, her brother-in-law. At the conclusion of the ceremony a reception was held at the future home of the couple on Central Park avenue, near Milton street.

The bride was most becomingly dressed in lavender with veil of tulle and bouquet of beautiful white flowers from Dr. Kennedy's conservatory. Mrs. Dr. Kennedy and daughters were among the honored guests. Both Mr. and Mrs. Murch are active workers at the chapel. Mr. Murch being president of the Y. P. S. C. E., and his wife a member. They have the hearty wishes of their many friends for a long and happy married life. Among the many beautiful presents was a silver tea service from the Y. P. S. C. E.—Hyde Park (Mass) Times.

Elmwood Cemetery.

The annual meeting of the shareholders of the above cemetery was held at the Art Hall, on Monday afternoon in accordance with the by-laws. Hon. Justice Brooks presided and Mr. Morey acted as Secretary. The minutes of the last annual meeting were read and confirmed. The Secretary presented his annual cash balance sheet showing the amounts received and expended during the year as follows:

Table with 2 columns: ASSETS, and amounts. Total ASSETS: $7,408.64

Table with 2 columns: LIABILITIES, and amounts. Total LIABILITIES: $7,408.64

The report was adopted. One or two necessary by-laws were passed, and it was decided to fix the price of perpetual maintenance of lots at 20c per foot.

The following Trustees were elected, Mr. Geo. Ballentyne acting as Scrutiner: Judge Brooks, Wm. White, C. Gordon, A. G. Lomas, Jas. Davidson, S. F. Morey, A. M. Greenshields, T. J. Tuck, W. A. Morehouse, W. Farwell and A. H. Foss. At a meeting of the Trustees, Hon. Judge Brooks was re-elected President, Wm. White Esq. Vice-President. Mr. Morey, who has looked so well after the interests of the Co. declined re-election and Mr. Dinning was chosen in his stead.

The present condition of the cemetery shows the wisdom of providing such a place, which is fast filling up. It is sure to become one of the most beautiful in the Province.

The Question of the Day.

Often Asked.—Where can I find a home? Where can I make a living? Where can I, with ordinary diligence, prudence and economy, provide my family with the necessities of life, and feel assured that at the end of it I can leave to my children a decent inheritance? To what place can I go and find good land on terms so reasonable that I may get a portion of it without burdening myself with debt, which I can never hope to pay off? Where can I find such a place on these terms and safe from crop failures, and allow me to devote myself to any special branch of agriculture for which I may feel myself fitted.

Answered in a few words. Get a home in the great Flour State of Minnesota. It never yet had a crop failure—where land values are increasing rapidly. Write without delay to the International Land Company, Guaranty Loan Building, Minneapolis, Minn., for all information. They can sell you farms on any terms you may desire so that you will be satisfied.

When Lilies in the Door-yard Bloom.

When lilies in the door-yard bloom,
 And lift and shake their pliny anemones;
 When anemones smile the forest's glom,
 And winds go whispering through the leaves;
 When wrens and robins build again
 To peace amid the cottage eaves—
 Then, though my strength is something spent,
 And though my eyes are growing dim,
 I thrill with gladness and content,
 My soul would up a joyful hymn,
 And in the beauty of the world
 I feel my spirit overblim.

Long years have gone since mother took
 The lonesome way that angels mark,
 The memory of her latest look
 Is like a quail in the dark;
 But when the lilies bloom I see
 Her sweet face in a starry arc.
 She loved to well these humely flowers;
 She broke them for my children's hand;
 They speak to me of happy hours,
 By mother love and patience spanned,
 Their perfume has a waft of sweet
 Down hither from the immortal strand.
 I like the dear old-fashioned things;
 I always find them just the same,
 And so the fancy stays as soon as I can,
 That blooming by whatever name,
 I'll one day pick the lily sheaves
 Where flowers in deathless garden flame.

—Margie's Diary.

Counter-Thoughts.

“What is the little one thinking about?
 Very wonderful things, no doubt!”
 What are the old folks thinking about?
 Very wonderful things, no doubt.
 A memory like that filled the baby's head
 (A wonderful baby, and very well read,
 He gazed at grandpa, and grandma too;
 “I'll find some baby, as soon as I can,
 As side by side they sat there rocking—
 He with his pipe, and she with her stocking.
 And the baby wondered, as well he might,
 Why old folks always were happy and bright—
 With a little start
 That showed how gladly he'd act his part:
 “I'll find some baby, as soon as I can,
 To stay with me till I'm grown an old man,
 And side by side, we'll sit there, rocking—
 I with my pipe, and she with her stocking.”

The Girl in the Lighthouse Tower.

Little Pussy Wilkins sat at the foot of the stairs running up to the lighthouse tower. Pussy! That was not her name, but Eleanor. Her uncle Simon, the light-keeper, called her his “Pussy.” Father and Mother were dead, and uncle Simon took care of her. But was he taking care of her? She sat at the foot of the stairway thinking it over. Too many times he had gone away in a boat, a mysterious bottle his companion, and all alone had she stayed in the tower longer than she cared, the wild wind groaning and moaning about the lantern above, the sea thundering upon the cliffs beyond the lighthouse. When the keeper returned, there was a strange, restless light in his eyes, his speech was thick, and his step unsteady.

Poor Pussy! She knew what it meant. But what could she do? She asked herself this question over and over again. “I might talk to him,” she said, thinking away, her chin resting on her hand. “I might talk to him, but he might get mad. That wouldn't do.”
 Could she get others to talk to him? He might not like that.
 “If I talked to him—not to speak—but write on paper, he wouldn't like that,” she reasoned. And yet something must be done.
 “He will lose his place,” she said. “It will be all known. He will have to go from the tower.”
 That was not the worst thing that could happen; but he might lose both soul and body, and that would be dreadful.
 “Something must be done,” she declared with energy. Poor little Pussy sitting at the foot of the stairway! How many have been forced to go down into the depths of a great sorrow, and stay there, all because drink is such a terrible evil. Three things she resolved to do—
 “I never, never, will touch anything myself,” she declared.
 Then, if she could not talk to her uncle, she could talk to God. She would pray for uncle Simon, real hard, too,” she said.
 “Then I'll be real kind to him,” she resolved, “no matter what he does. And here I won't stay here moping, but I'll go up and get his supper ready and make things pleasant for him.”
 So upstairs she flew into the kitchen. She started up the fire. She made the tea kettle sing its own cheerful tune, and the clock that had stopped she had started up again. How the clock and the tea kettle did seem to talk and sing to one another!

“It's real cheerful,” she said. Then “she set the table,” toasted some bread, made the tea, and placed Uncle Simon's big slippers on the stove-hearth.
 “But there he is!” she exclaimed. “I hear him down in the store-room. I'll go to meet him and say something pleasant.”
 She found him in the store-room. He was standing at a closet, and was pouring beer out of a pitcher into a glass. He heard her coming.
 “Here, Pussy,” he said, taste this; ‘twill cheer you up.”
 He held out the glass.
 “No—I thank you,” she replied, softly.
 “Why, girl, a sip won't hurt you.”
 “No, I thank you.”
 “Takes it!” he said, angrily. He almost held it to her lips.
 Bursting into tears she cried, “I—you throw—me—overboard—I won't—touch it.”
 Then she ran upstairs.
 “Why, what is the matter with the girl?” he said. For a wonder, he set down his glass untouched. His conscience troubled him. He slowly toiled upstairs, saying “I must go after her. I'm afraid I spoke to her kind of harsh.”
 And he certainly had been very harsh to her. He hated at the top of the stairs and looked into the kitchen. He could not help saying, “How pleasant it looks!” He had heard the hum of the kettle, the click of the clock, and the mild purr of the fire in the stove.
 “And Pussy getting supper? Yes she has been putting it on the table,” he said to himself. His conscience troubled him all the more.
 “But hark! what did he catch? The sound of a pitiful little voice wailing down the stairway that led from a chamber to the kitchen. He went on tip-toe up the stairway. Then he caught these words:
 “O God—don't—let Uncle—Simon die a drunkard!”
 “She's praying!”
 Yea, Pussy was talking to God. She could not talk to Uncle Simon; so she went to her Heavenly Father. Three things could be declared of her: she had been kind to her uncle. She had refused the hurtful drink, she was doing one thing more—talking to God.

And what a mean, miserable man on the stairs heard her prayers.

Pussy's voice touched him profoundly. When he was a boy, he had a little sister whose voice was very much like that of Pussy. She had been dead a long time, but, hark! A little voice like hers was praying. “Don't let Uncle Simon die a drunkard!” Then he knelt down himself and cried out with tears “God help me now! God have mercy on me!”
 Pussy heard his prayer, came running down stairs, knelt beside him with an arm around his neck, and said “Amen! Amen!”
 The answer came as it always does. Uncle Simon was a different man from that day, and often thanked God for the loving prayers of his little niece.
 Dear boys and girls as I read this little story to-day, it reminded me of two lines of a poem I learned many years ago
 “If we only are really in earnest,
 There's a wonderful power to prayer.”

If we want to stretch out a helping hand to any one in danger from drink, let us tell God about it first, and ask Him to help us.

SISTER BELLE.

A Westbrook Lady's Case.

Westbrook, Ont., June 12th.—One of the most popular ladies of this district and one who has been for years as strong a worker in the district as her health would allow, has recently, after six years of terrible suffering from kidney troubles, been cured by Dodd's kidney pills. Her case is one of the most pathetic in our knowledge; she had tried all remedies, had interviewed many famous specialists, and had tried treatment at Kingston Hospital, only to be discharged as incurable. She was quite hopeless and resigned herself to a few more years of horrible suffering, when by chance without much confidence in a cure she tried Dodd's kidney pills. She has taken in all six boxes and is now entirely cured and able to devote herself to her duties with youthful energy. No one could be more thankful and generous in praise than she. She has told every one for miles around of her release from a bondage of pain, and has said to your correspondent that the proprietors of the remedy do not advertise half enough. “It should be proclaimed from the house-tops!” she said. “I am positively convinced that it is a certain cure for all forms of kidney diseases. No one can thank its discoverer more than I.”

Bruddeh Isaac's Discourse on Liars

My breddren, someviah in de Sa'ms, King David says, “All men am liars; an' den he says, ‘Reputations am chifan get widout deservin’.” I want to invite you t'oughts dis mawnin' to de speyance ob one ob de liars, showin' de trute ob de secon' text, “Reputations am chifan get widout deservin’.”
 Ananias was a great man—an' he was a liar. But he wahn't a great liar. He wahn't eben a right smash liar. De s' cawson, onery eb'ry day liar. An yit, my breddren, look at Ananias to-day! Ses de magnilikent reputation ez a liar ob dat man! Why he am de patron saint ob liars, an' wuz befo' you an' me wuz boh—way back, long 'fo de wuh.
 Now, my breddren, we ain' tole dat Ananias was a habituous liar; we ain' tole dat he eveh pehformed only one lie; an' yit he made de biggest reputation dat a liar or a man—de same ting, my breddren—ebsh made. Why, my breddren, you or me tells mo' lies an' bigger lies eb'ry dey ob our lives, an' yit what sort ob reputations hab we? De mos' ob us none at all.
 Prob'ly we ain' got de winnin' ways ob ole Ananias. We surly s'yan't mek mek a luttie lie ez fur ez he did. But, my breddren, it wahn't his winnin' ways alone dat raised ole Ananias to de penuckle ob fame. It wuz his mediate death. He might have lived to be ez ole ez George Washin'ton an' nebah tole soudder lie. His dyin' when he did wuz de makin' ob him.
 An' now, my breddren, dey is some lessons to be learned fum all dis. If bruddeh Caleb obeh dah am notable fo' gin'rosity; if s'ath Dinah is notable fo' her meekness; don't you be disout'aged, my po' “bruddeh No'count,” kase you isn't notable fo' anyting. Remember dat reputations am often get widout deservin'; remember ole Ananias wid his misbeul picayune lie, an' do de bes' you kin.

An' you white folks in de back ob de church, if bruddeh Samule says he tanks de Lard he's homes; if bruddeh Rastus tells you he hates de sight ob chicken pie, remember dat King David says, “All men am liars,” an' keep youv hen-house locked.—Century.

Jagsy—“Wife, I (hic) was held up on m' way ‘ome.” Mrs. Jagsy (sarcastically)—“You wouldn't have got home if you hadn't been.”

An old maid over in New Jersey fainted after reading in the local paper that in the manufacture of champagne the grapes are squeezed six times.

An article on how to sit down gracefully, which is now being run to a considerable extent by the papers of the country, is particularly timely.

Saved by His Wit.

Although it is a familiar saying that an Irishman is always spolling for a fight, still there is one kind of fighting to which even the brave souls of Erin are sometimes averse—that is duelling. A story well illustrating this fact has recently come to us.
 A certain Irishman, having been challenged to fight a duel, accepted the conditions after much persuasion on the part of his friends, who felt confident of his success. His antagonist, a lame man, walked on crutches.
 When the place for the shooting had been reached, the lame man's seconds asked that he be allowed to lean against a milestone which happened to be there. The privilege was allowed, and the lame man took his stand.
 The Irishman and his seconds drew off to the distance agreed upon—100 feet. Here Pat's courage suddenly failed him, and he shouted to the lame man:
 “I've a small favor to ask of ye, sor!”
 “What is it?” asked the cripple.
 Pat answered, “I tould ye that ye might lean agin the mile post, and now I would like the privilege of leanin agin the next one.”
 The laughter which followed spoiled everybody's desire for a fight, and the whole party went home without a shot having been fired.—Youth's Companion.

His Name.

A colored man once sued a neighbor for damages for the loss of his dog, which his neighbor had killed. The defendant wished to prove that the dog was a worthless cur, for whose destruction no damages ought to be recovered.
 The attorney for the defense called on Sam Parker (colored) to the witness stand, whereupon the following conversation ensued:
 “Sam, did you know this dog that was killed by Mr. Jones?”
 “Yes, sah; I war personally acquainted wid dat dog.”
 “Well, tell the jury what kind of a dog he was.”
 “He war a big yaller dog.”
 “What was he good for?”
 “Well, he wouldn't hunt, an he wouldn't do no guard duty. He jes' lay round an' ate. Dat made 'em call 'im wad dey did.”
 “Yes. Well, what did they call him?”
 “Well, sah, I don't want to hurt yer feelin's, sah, an' I is mighty sorry yo' ax me dat, sah, but de fact is dey call 'im ‘Lawyer,’ sah.”—New York Mercury.

Aspiring Young Author—I have here a few pastels in prose which I venture to think will create a sensation in the literary world. I have tried to throw into them the tragic pathos of human life.
 Editor of “The Literary Vortex” (glancing over the pages)—H'm! Afraid that sort of stuff won't go any more. Nothin in it in the first place and done to death. Sorry, but—tell you what, though! Suppose you let us print it in our funny column as a burlesque on the prose pasted business! I'll be the screamin'est thing we've had in a long time.
 “What'll you pay?”
 “Three dollars.”
 “Cash down?”
 “Yes.”
 “Gimme the money.”—New York Tribune.

Her Spotted Deer.

Two young ladies were examining the animals at the zoo last Sunday.
 “Oh, what a beautiful spotted deer!” The other woman bowed her head and wept.
 “Why, what is the matter with you now?”
 “You don't know how it hurts my feelings to have you talk about spotted deer. I once had a spotted deer.”
 “You had?”
 “Yes. My dear was a tram car conductor, and we were going to get married, but the company spotted him, and my dear had to resign his position, and ever since I have to cry whenever I hear anybody talking about a spotted deer.”—Tit-Bits.

For His Own Convenience.

A lady in Hong-Kong engaged a Chinese cook. When the Celestial came, among other things she asked his name.
 “My name,” said the Chinaman, smiling, “is Wang Hang Ho.”
 “Oh, I can't remember all that,” said the lady. “I will call you John.”
 “The next morning when John came up to get his orders he smiled all over, and looking inquiringly at his mistress asked: “What is your name?”
 “My name is Mrs. Melville Langdon.”
 “Me no memble all that,” said John. “Chinaman he no savey Missus Membul Langdon—I call you Tommy.”—Boston Globe.

“August Flower”

This is the query perpetually on your little boy's lips. And he is no worse than the bigger, older, balder-headed boys. Life is an interrogation point. “What is it for?” we continually cry from the cradle to the grave. So with this little introductory sermon we turn and ask: “What is August Flower for?” As easily answered as asked: It is for Dyspepsia. It is a special remedy for the Stomach and Liver. Nothing more than this; but this brimful. We believe August Flower cures Dyspepsia. We know it will. We have reasons for knowing it. Twenty years ago it started in a small country town. To-day it has an honored place in every city and country store; possesses one of the largest manufacturing plants in the country and sells everywhere. Why is this? The reason is as simple as a child's thought. It is honest, does one thing, and does it right along—it cures Dyspepsia.
