John Munro's resignation demanded

A phone call by federal Labor Minister John Munro to an Ontario judge led Thursday to demands that he resign and a challenge to Prime Minister Trudeau to enforce conduct rules established two years ago.

Hamilton East riding, Julius Butty, a landlord, had been convicted of common assault for hitting a tenant with a hammer.

Judge Marck fined Butty $500 with the option of six months in jail.

In a statement given through an aide, Munro said the call was to provide a character reference for Butty and was not an attempt to influence the judge.

The aide said Munro has no plans to resign.

In Hamilton, Crown Attorney Anton Zuraw said the sentence is being appealed but did not say on what grounds the appeal will be made.

The call for Munro's dismissal came from Opposition Leader Joe Clark, in Toronto to speak at a byelection nomination meeting in the York-Scarborough riding.

Clark said conduct rules for cabinet ministers were set after the so-called judges affair in 1976 and "if Prime Minister Trudeau is serious about his standards, he'll enforce them, and in enforcing them, he'll have to ask Mr. Munro to resign."

On March 12, 1976, Trudeau ordered his ministers to have no communications with the judiciary except through the federal justice department. The rule followed an uproar involving C.M. (Bud) Drury, then public works minister, who telephoned a Quebec judge about a contempt-of-court charge against another minister, Andre Ouellet.

Trudeau refused to accept a resignation offered by Drury but said he would be tough on ministers who violated the new rules.

A spokesman for the prime minister said Thursday that Trudeau would have no immediate comment on the Munro incident. However, the prime minister had not asked for Munro's resignation.

Clark said Trudeau's handling of the matter "will be a test in the kind of leadership we have in the government of Canada now."

Asked whether the Munro situation was similar to a call made by Ontario Solicitor-General George Kerr to an assistant Crown attorney in a pending court case, Clark said they were not at all the same.

Kerr was not calling a judge and he was not violating any rules, Clark said. Munro, on the other hand, had ignored clear instructions from the prime minister.

Munro admitted calling Judge Albert Marck on behalf of a man being sentenced on an assault conviction. He said it was not done to influence the judge but only to provide a character reference.

Trudeau is said to be looking into the matter, aides say. Under the standards set in March, 1976, cabinet ministers must communicate with judges on court cases only through the justice minister.

Ontario Premier William Davis already has said he will not take any action on the case involving Kerr.

Peter Kent replaced

Jolts shake CBC

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC got a double jolt Thursday when it was disclosed on a highly-acclaimed CBC radio program that its award-winning journalist Peter Kent has filed a brief against the corporation.

Kent, newsreader for The National, was replaced on the nightly TV news after the disclosure that he had filed a personal intervention with the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission in the CBC's licence renewal application.

However, Kent said in an interview that the CBC radio program As It Happens misrepresented his submission to the CRTC.

The radio program quoted him in the brief as saying the CBC was compromising itself by acceding to requests for television coverage from the prime minister's office.

Cliff Lonsdale, chief news editor at CBC English television services, denied the As It Happens story, saying editorial decisions at the television network are not affected by political pressure.

Kent said Thursday he does not claim in the brief that the office of Prime Minister Trudeau tried to interfere with the news operation of the publicly-owned network. He was complaining about the way the prime minister's officials get live coverage of events involving the prime minister.

Kent added that his criticisms were directed only at CBC management, not the news service.

Meanwhile, the CBC announced that Kent will appear tonight, reading the nightly news.

Lonsdale said Kent was replaced Thursday by announcer Jan Tennant because "he has become a figure in the day's news and obviously he cannot report on a story in which he is personally involved."

HUNT CONTINUES FOR KILLER VIRUS

NEW YORK (AP) — City workers hosed down West 35th Street and nearby subway stations, and air and water tests were planned today as one of the top medical detectives in the United States joined efforts to try to discover why five confirmed and 38 suspected cases of Legionnaires disease have popped up in the city's garment district.

By late Thursday, after the number of reported sick and dead zoomed to 43 from nine in 24 hours, two deaths had been confirmed as resulting from Legionnaires disease, and another death was "highly suspect." Tests on the suspicious cases continued.

City sanitation workers driving water trucks Thursday night began a thorough rinsing of West 35th Street, where all the known and suspected victims worked as garment workers, tradespeople or, in one case, the cop on the beat. Transit Authority employees were doing the same chore on subway stations in the area.

Building owners were asked to turn off air-conditioning systems, prime suspects in earlier outbreaks, including the first and worst one in Philadelphia, in which 29 died and 151 became ill but recovered after a state American Legion convention two summers ago.

Camp David: A hint of progress

CAMP DAVID, Md. (AP) — A hint of progress is slipping through the secrecy at the Middle East conference.

The meeting's official spokesman dropped the hint Thursday as President Carter, Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin and Egyptian President Anwar Sadat wasted no time getting to the thorniest issues in the Arab-Israeli conflict.

White House press secretary Jody Powell, who has gone to great lengths to avoid pronouncements that would reveal anything substantial about the talks, seemed to slip as he argued that secrecy has been helpful to the participants.

"We have found this atmosphere to be helpful and conducive to the sort of discussions we wanted to have," Powell said. "And the gentlemen are pleased with this arrangement."

There was no word from the Egyptians, Israelis or Americans about whether Carter was making progress. Nor was Powell willing to describe the mood of the discussions. But Powell's impromptu comment strongly suggested the U.S. president was not displeased with developments so far in the conference, which began late Tuesday.

Carter accelerated the pace of his diplomacy Thursday evening, meeting with Begin and Sadat for the second time in less than four hours.

ADVISERS PRESENT

In addition, Vice-President Walter Mondale was flown up from Washington for the second straight day. He joined State Secretary Cyrus Vance, Defence Secretary Harold Brown and Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser, for mid-afternoon talks with Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and Defence Minister Ezer Weizman.

Brown's presence revived speculation about possible defence links between the United States and Israel as part of a Middle East settlement.

But Powell dismissed the possibility of sending U.S. troops to the Middle East as "one of the great non-existent stories of all time." He described as "hogwash" reports the administration might establish a U.S. air base in territories won by Israel in the 1967 war.

Mondale and Vance, after the meeting with Dayan and Weizman, conferred for an hour with Egypt's foreign minister, Muhammad Ibrahim Kamil.

Asbestos producers 'won't be driven'

SHERBROOKE (AF) — The association representing Quebec's asbestos producers says it won't be railroaded into funding any government research program until it weighs the results of a study it commissioned in June.

In a carefully worded rebuttal to Natural Resources Minister Yves Berube's suggestion that the producers might be called upon to foot part of the bill for the Universite de Sherbrooke's research programs, the Quebec Asbestos Producers' Association said it will wait for recommendations of a study by the Centre de developpement technologique at the Montreal Polytechnical Institute on how asbestos research should be developed in Quebec.

The statement comes in response to a speech by Berube Wednesday, in which the minister hinted the asbestos producers might be called upon to share the $4 million cost of the proposed asbestos research centre at the U de S.

According to the QAPA statement released yesterday, the MPI study is currently being conducted and its results will form the basis of a report to be completed in a few weeks' time.

"The CDT specialists, who have called upon nearly 20 research organizations in the course of this study, have been in contact with QAPA whose plans relating to research, are being closely examined, as are others," the statement adds.

"The association and the asbestos mining companies that comprise it, refuse then, to comment on the merits of any proposal related to asbestos research, until such time as the study it has commissioned, is completed," it concludes.

"Furthermore, the CDT report will be supplemented by recommendations, aimed at the formation of an independent evaluation committee, consisting of Quebec scientists and researchers, which will be responsible for analyzing all aspects of research projects and proposals submitted to the association for its consideration, including proposals of the type suggested by the Minister of Natural Resources."

"The association and its member companies are committed to accelerating the process of developing research into asbestos in Quebec and in this regard, pursue the same objectives as the government of Quebec. The association, however, holds that such developments be realized so that the best possible performance is obtained in viable economic conditions, by making optimum use of the human, material and technological resources available. Insofar as the association and its member companies intend to make a constructive and well founded contribution, they will not allow themselves to be driven to hasty commitments."

Posties vote strike

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal-area members of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada voted Thursday night to give their national executive an open mandate to call a strike, a union official said.

But Gaetan Malo, president of the 3,000-member Local 10, refused to say by what margin the workers had supported strike action.

The balloting was part of a strike vote by 18,000 letter carriers across the country. Malo said results of the entire vote are expected early next week.

Union president Robert McGarry said Wednesday that if the members vote to strike, the union will be ready to walk out at the end of the month. They have been in a legal position to strike since Thursday.

The main disagreement with the Post Office is over a cost-of-living formula.

Quebec City's 540 letter carriers are to meet Monday for a strike vote.

Grits to trim spending...again

OTTAWA (CP) — More plans to trim future spending and a revised version of federal financial accounts have been prepared for publication today as the final instalment in a series of government economic statements in the last 5½ weeks.

Finance Minister Jean Chretien and Robert Andras, minister in charge of the federal treasury, teamed up for the joint morning announcement. It was designed to provide more details of an economic recovery plan launched Aug. 1 by Prime Minister Trudeau.

The step-by-step disclosure of Trudeau's promised "reordering of government priorities"—today's announcement was the fifth in the series—has been branded by opposition critics as a political strip tease for the public.

Put together for the latest instalment were details of more than $1 billion worth of cuts from future spending plans and a summation of how the whole series of changes affects government accounts, including its borrowing requirements to cover deficits.

After Trudeau launched the program, Andras announced plans Aug. 16 to trim $1.5 billion from spending intentions to March 31, 1980, and promised details of further cuts of at least $1 billion.

DEFICIT WILL GROW

He calculated then that the deficit this financial year would grow marginally from the $11.5 billion on total spending of $48.4 billion projected in Chretien's budget last April. And spending in the next fiscal year starting April 1 will expand by nine per cent to $52.7 billion, Andras calculated last month.

Chretien announced more changes Aug. 24, including reduced family allowances next year, tax credits for poor families, more help for needy pensioners, a reduction in federal gasoline tax and a freeze on oil prices next year.

Employment Minister J. S. G. (Bud) Cullen added another chapter Sept. 1, announcing plans to tighten up unemployment insurance benefits and divert some savings to jobmaking projects.

But some confusion remained after the series of announcements about just how much was being trimmed from spending plans, what was being added and what the over-all impact would be.

Chretien's accounting today—effectively a revision of his April 10 budget—was pieced together in the finance department in an attempt to show just how the accounts add up.

Most of the measures announced since Aug. 1 require approval by Parliament, which is scheduled to resume Oct. 10 after a summer recess.

With 15 federal byelections scheduled Oct. 16 and a general election due within the following eight months, opposition members predict the debate on the government's program will become part of what amounts to an electoral campaign.

THE WORLD CHESS championships have turned into a test of endurance as well as of chess. Viktor Korchnoi (left), the 47-year-old challenger, here makes a move as 27-year-old champion Anatoly Karpov looks on. A $350,000 prize awaits the first man to win six games in the competition at Baguio City, The Philippines.

CHESS CHAMPS DRAW

BAGUIO CITY, Philippines (Reuter) — The world's top two chess rivals, who are not on speaking terms, silently shrugged their shoulders Thursday night to agree on a draw in their 19th game.

The game was almost a minor event in what has become a bizarre meditation war, as two American meditation experts, free on bail after being convicted of attempted murder, took seats beside a Russian psychologist accused of hypnotising the chess challenger.

Champion Anatoly Karpov and challenger Viktor Korchnoi reached the tie when they repeated identical positions and were set to do so again.

Since they do not speak and both knew there was no way to make progress they ended the clash wordlessly for their 14th draw. The champion leads by four wins to one in search of six wins for the title. Draws do not count.

The two American meditationists, Stephen Michael Dwyer and Victoria Shepard, wore saffron-colored robes and turbans as they sat as near as possible to the Russian delegation.

Senators seek assurances

OTTAWA (CP) — Senators sought assurances Thursday that the Upper Chamber has the right to tell the Commons to go "straight to hell" with Prime Minister Trudeau's constitutional proposal to abolish the Senate.

The assurances were sought from J.C. McRuer, 88, former chief justice and civil rights inquiry commissioner in Ontario, who criticized Trudeau's plans to alter the Supreme Court and said he opposes entrenchment of a bill of rights in the constitution.

McRuer was appearing before a special Senate committee on constitutional reform where Liberal Senator Louis Robichaud asked whether the Commons can replace the Senate with a House of Federation without approval by the majority of senators.

"They can't," McRuer replied.

Robichaud, 52, a former premier of New Brunswick, said senators seek certainty that they have absolute veto power over the proposal, that if the Commons approves it "we may tell the people in the other place (Commons) to go right straight to hell."

DESTROY SOVEREIGNTY

McRuer said if the government or the Commons tried to abolish the Senate without approval by the majority of senators, "that's destroying the process of the sovereignty of the people."

He said such sovereignty meant that laws could be made only by Parliament which included both the Commons and the Senate. "And the Queen," a chorus of senators added spontaneously.

Earlier, McRuer said he did not think Parliament has the right under the current constitution to create a House of Federation merely by passing a law.

Campaign-style tours planned

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition leaders plan to forge ahead next week with extensive campaign-style political tours, cultivating support for either 15 October byelections or a fall general election few anticipate.

Opposition Leader Joe Clark, in Toronto until the weekend, plans to spend the week concentrating on four of 15 ridings where Trudeau has called Oct. 16 byelections.

NDP Leader Ed Broadbent, currently campaigning in southern Ontario, plans to move West next week, visiting Vancouver and Trail, B.C., Saskatoon and Timmins, Ont.

Trudeau has set no travel plans for the week, and there is some speculation he may announce an early recall of Parliament next week. Parliament is to end its summer recess Oct. 10.

SEAT UP FOR GRABS

Clark travels to Montreal on Monday for a speech to businessmen the following day. One Montreal riding, the Westmount seat emptied when former cabinet minister C. M. Drury was appointed head of the National Capital Commission, is up for grabs in the byelections.

On Wednesday, Clark travels to New Brunswick and events in the Fundy Royal riding. That seat became vacant when Conservative Gordon Fairweather was named human rights commissioner.

Thursday, Clark moves back to Quebec for appearances in the Lotbiniere riding, a byelection seat last held by Andre Fortin, former leader of the Social Credit party who was killed in a June, 1977, car accident.

The Opposition leader travels to Winnipeg on Thursday night for a speech to the Winnipeg Chamber of Commerce and events in the nearby riding of St. Boniface. That seat opened when Trudeau appointed former revenue minister Joe Guay to the Senate earlier this year.

On Saturday, Clark returns to Ottawa.

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — Millionaire industrialist Cullen Davis was indicted by a county grand jury Thursday on charges he tried to have the judge presiding over his divorce case murdered.

OTTAWA (CP) — The government had a deficit of $5.25 billion on its spending in the first four months of the current financial year that started April 1, the finance department reported Thursday.

The federal treasury took in revenues of $10 billion, but spending was $15.25 billion.

Tunnel sheltered slide survivors

FIELD, B.C. (CP) — Ten CP Rail employees spent Wednesday night huddled in the railway tunnel inside Cathedral Mountain, near the Alberta-British Columbia border, after a landslide derailed and buried part of an empty freight train.

Nine of the men were from a track repair camp on a siding. They fled to safety in the tunnel when the slide came down the mountain and blocked the CP Rail main line and the TransCanada Highway through Yoho National Park. RCMP Cpl. Kent Hansen said Thursday.

'Women' producer defies censors

TORONTO (CP) — The producer of the Canadian movie In Praise of Older Women says he refuses to cut more than 30 seconds from the film and that he will defy the Ontario censor and show it next week at the Festival of Festivals.

Robert Lantos said the censor demanded that 2½ minutes be cut from scenes in which sex is implied but nothing really happens. In one of the scenes, the performers go through the motions of making love but the actress is wearing underwear, he said.

"They're behind a couch, for goodness sakes."

Bill 101 change 'impossible'

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's top civil servant responsible for Indian affairs says the government has no intention of changing the French Language Charter in response to demands from members of the Caughnawaga reserve.

Eric Gourdeau said in an interview Thursday that it "seems to me quite impossible" to change Bill 101.

Mohawk Indians from the reserve near Montreal refused Wednesday to register more than 300 teen-aged children at a high school off the reserve.

Indian leaders said they resent being required under Bill 101 to apply for eligibility certificates for English-language schools, although the certificates are readily available to them.

Cattle smugglers fined

Budget cuts 'signs of panic'

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — The federal government's recent budget cuts were inspired by panic, and reflect signs of wear in the Liberal government, Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said Thursday.

Levesque made the comments during a tour of the Saguenay and Lac St. Jean regions about 180 kilometres north of Quebec City.

NYC sues over blackout

NEW YORK (Reuter) — New York City filed a $32-million suit against the Consolidated Edison Co. on Thursday, charging it with negligence in last summer's power failure that left many of the city's nine million inhabitants without electricity for more than a day.

The utility called the charges groundless and said it will oppose the suit. A Con Ed spokesman has termed the lawsuit an act of God.

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — A book soon to be published says former Israeli Premier Golda Meir spoke of committing suicide in the early stages of the 1973 Middle East war.

Disco arsonist found guilty

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP) — A 24-year-old man was convicted Thursday of murder for setting a 1974 discotheque fire in which 24 persons died.

A jury of 10 men and two women deliberated for almost nine hours before reaching the verdict against Peter Leonard of Greenwich, Conn.

Leonard wept as the jury found him guilty on each of the 28 counts in the indictment, including 24 counts of felony murder, one count each of second-degree arson and second-degree burglary and two counts of petty larceny.

Olympics hearings open

MONTREAL (CP) — Public hearings into the $1.2-billion 1976 Olympic Games opened Thursday, with the head of the inquiry vowing to find the truth about how spending soared out of control.

Superior Court Justice Albert Malouf and his staff of 35 have been working behind closed doors since last November when the Quebec government announced it would look into Games costs.

But it is the public hearings which have the greatest potential to embarrass Mayor Jean Drapeau, who brought the Olympics to Montreal amid widespread doubts about the city's ability to stave off astronomical expenditures.

Drapeau is up for reelection in November.

"It is our intention to discover the truth by all the legal means that we judge to be best," Mr. Justice Malouf said in his opening statement.

Friday's column by Terry Scott

NFB films Townships

In the next few weeks, the National Film Board plans to descend upon such communities as Dunham, Frelighsburg and Stanbridge East for the taping of a documentary portraying the English-speaking people of Quebec. "It will be shown on French-language networks," explained NFB representative Guy Cote the other day, "because it's amazing how many French-speaking Quebecers aren't aware of the situation of the English. A lot of them don't even know places like this exist."

The special seems rather appropriate in light of a recently-concluded federal study showing both francophone and anglophone minorities are losing ground across the country. It prompted the C.D. Howe Research Institute to claim that the two solitudes are moving deeper into their respective states of isolation.

If a film crew searches carefully however, it will find plenty to dismiss the theory in that part of the Townships on which its lenses are focused. You still sense a fierce pride in ethnic origin there but the spirit of camaraderie with the other 'solitude' remains a joy to behold.

The NFB should have been in Frelighsburg last July for instance, when French and English-speaking neighbors pitched in side by side to raise a few thousand dollars for the municipal fire department.

Similarly, the citizens of Dunham aren't thinking of linguistic barriers when they unite to tackle the problems of pollution in Selby Lake. Obviously, there's a more imminent danger from filthy water than there is in communicating in another man's language.

If you want to press the point further, NFB, why not head over to Bromont later this month to capture the spirit of co-operation among a group of ladies of both tongues whose major interest lies in promoting the attributes of their community by means of an annual antique show?

Or you could go to nearby Sutton any day of the week and observe a truly model municipality where a diversity of nationalities join in delightful harmony to the envy of any visitor.

A few weeks ago, while in Stanbridge East, I visited dead stock dealer Jack Wells, who explained he was the only English-speaking person in that profession in the province.

"I have a couple of guys working for me who are bilingual so they're able to take the calls from French people. But sometimes, if they speak quite slowly, I can handle them myself. All it takes is a little bit of compromise."

Hopefully, when the cameras are rolling, that's what the Montreal film crew will depict about this area of the Townships — working toward a common cause in the spirit of compromise. + + +

There's a new type of decor at Cowansville's year-old shopping centre these days — brown paper plastered over the windows of three stores on the top level signifies they're no longer in business.

Word out of Domaine du Parc, however, advises merchants not to fear, since two of the vacant quarters are expected to be rented this month and dickering continues with a third tenant.

Presumably, the matter will be resolved before the Christmas rush. + + +

Friday's appearance of Finance Minister Jacques Parizeau, I'm told, is the first of several key members of the Parti Quebecois the Brome-Missisquoi area will see this fall and winter. Apparently the party is encouraged by a highly successful fund-raising campaign in the county and has determined it's not the lost cause it once believed. + + +

The scenario which occurred in a Brome-Missisquoi area garage earlier this week is likely to be repeated until motorists are accustomed to gas prices in excess of $1.

After filling the tank with $5 worth of premium gasoline, a young chap paid the cashier and headed for the car, only to be called back and told that the price was, in fact, double the amount registered on the meter. The recent hike to $1.01 per gallon cannot be recorded on the gas pumps.

Unfortunately, the five bucks was all the man had in his jeans and only the benevolence of a waiting friend bailed the fellow out of an embarrassing situation. + + +

Former Ottawa Rough Rider Kaye Vaughan, now a District of Bedford School Board administrator, will head up to Hamilton in early November to be inducted into the Canadian Football Hall of Fame. But his son has already stolen much of Kaye's thunder.

Informed of the news, he turned to dear old dad and said, "Gee, I thought you had to be dead before they let you in the Hall of Fame."

Combustion strike

The strike at Combustion Engineering enters its third day today, with no end in sight. The 183 production workers, holding out for a 12-per-cent increase in a one-year contract, say they'll stay out until management is willing to go higher than its latest six-per-cent offer. Meanwhile, the men have set up strike headquarters in this tent and an elderly bus just outside the plant's main gate. Sherbrooke police are watching the situation, but so far there has been no trouble at the plant.

Township talk

Pinard requests change of venue

SHERBROOKE (AF) — Crown Prosecutor Michel Pinard will ask for a change of venue in Superior Court on Monday, requesting the case of Claude and Jeanne Valence be heard in Quebec City rather than in Sherbrooke.

A compromise, however, is possible by having a judge from outside the St. Francis District come to preside over the Sherbrooke trial.

The chief prosecutor, discussed his suggestion yesterday with four people charged with conspiracy, kidnapping, sequestration, extortion and attempted extortion of Charles Marion last year. Pinard said he believed it impossible to find an impartial jury in the trial of the four and a fifth person charged in connection with the 82-day kidnapping of the credit union manager.

His reason is the 11-page letter issued by Claude Valence, one of the five charged and presently incarcerated at the Winter Street jail. The letter was read on radio station CKSH on September 1 and picked up by the print media. Pinard claimed that due to the allegations contained in the letter, any potential jurors were thus rendered incapable of giving an impartial verdict in the case.

The defence, represented by lawyers Francois Gerin and Jean-Pierre Rancourt, requested and received a ban on publication during the Valence's preliminary hearing on July 13, justifying it with the choice of an impartial jury. Pinard claimed yesterday that the letter Claude Valence issued to the media contained testimony revealed during the preliminary hearing as well as insinuations of perjury, undermining the witnesses' credibility and would influence any jury in advance.

Blaze destroys Stanstead barn

STANSTEAD (IH) — Early Wednesday evening fire completely destroyed the large dairy farm of Gerard Routhier located some four miles northwest of Stanstead village near Ruiters Corner.

The loss also includes over 10,000 bales of new-crop hay, 15 calves, milking equipment and a tractor.

The Beebe fire department, who serve Ogden municipality received a call shortly after 8:30 p.m. Because of a water shortage at the site they called the Stanstead department who used their tanker truck to carry water to the scene. The Stanstead rescue equipment was also there in case of emergency.

The barn was built three years ago to house a herd of 100 head of cattle and was equipped with modern methods of milking. The foundation was cement and the structure metal-encased. It is thought the fire had been burning a while before smoke caused it to explode, shooting flames into the air that could be seen for miles around.

The family was unaware of the fire until it exploded into flames, since the wind was blowing the smoke away from the nearby family dwelling. Rain, heavy at times, also aided the firemen. The two silos are standing but are smoke-damaged. Cause of the fire has not been determined.

There's no doubt after Wednesday's press-conference extravaganza at the Universite de Sherbrooke that Quebec is pinning its hopes on a resurgent asbestos industry. An overall look at the $735,666 subsidy going to the eight U de S asbestos-research projects shows the lion's share - all but $30,000 - toward product development and production.

We see nothing wrong with this; there is a definite need for better methods of production, and certainly something must be done to lessen the negative effects of bad publicity worldwide.

But it's obvious from the emphasis at the Berube announcement health factors are one of the biggest selling points for the program. A certain amount of health-problem awareness will be incorporated into all the programs, but we can't see $30,000 doing very much these days.

We'd say the timing of Natural Resources Minister Yves Berube's announcement was strategic; it comes as the provincial cabinet begins a provincewide blitz of the ridings, as this spring.

The difference this time is that the ministers are concentrating on non-PQ ridings, such as Shefford, Brome-Missisquoi and Johnson. As they say, the purpose of this latest blitz is to acquaint the voters with what the government is doing and to learn the local point of view.

The diplomatic intent of the mission was evident in the adept fashion with which Mr. Berube sidestepped questions from asbestos producers' association president Michael Messel, who understandably wanted to learn more about Quebec's interest in taxing the industry to support research.

We feel the industry should show a certain amount of voluntary interest in such research, but we don't feel Quebec has any business surtaxing the producers.

Anyway, that's all in the future and diplomacy is the name of the provincial government's game right now. We suspect we'll be seeing some of the PQ's fanciest verbal footwork since Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers between now and the federal election - whenever that may be.

Not surprising

We don't find it all that surprising that Prime Minister Trudeau's office phones the CBC to demand live coverage for the PM's appearances, no matter how mundane. Premier Robert Bourassa used to do it, and heaven help the hapless assignment editor who failed to have someone at any public appearance of John Diefenbaker or Jean Lesage in their days in power.

Hence we listened with only mild surprise to last night's As It Happens, as Ottawa reporter Jeff Carruthers told the nation about the brief filed with the Canadian Radio, Television and Telecommunications Commission by The National's anchorman Peter Kent.

What is really shocking is the CBC top-brass reaction to Mr. Kent's action. They literally flew off the handle, pulling their man off the air for the night on some flimsy conflict-of-interest pretext which only served to blow the whole thing still further out of proportion.

We know some CBC brass - we worked with them while they were in newspapers. They all testify as to the incredibly gruelling nature of CBC corporate politics, where doing the job is the least of anyone's concern.

We also know how slick organizations such as that of the Prime Minister's office, can utilize these politics to serve their own ends.

There must be an attempt to isolate the powermongers from the key news jobs in this country, and the only way to do that is to change the corporate makeup of the CBC. We feel the CRTC could undertake this task.

But punish Peter Kent for having told the truth? So much for freedom of the press.

PAC on Bill 89: It's Canada's business

The following is the gist of a brief submitted to the Ontario legislative standing committee on the administration of justice this week by the Quebec-based Positive Action Committee. It supports Bill 89, a private bill presented to the Ontario legislature earlier this year, entitled: 'An Act respecting French language services in Ontario.' The bill gained almost universal support among Ontario legislators - until it was abruptly vetoed by Premier William Davis. The ensuing outcry prompted referral of the matter to the standing committee, which is now hearing briefs on the matter.

The brief below is the first action ever taken by the Positive Action Committee outside Quebec, and as such discusses the reasons why the Ontario government's veto affects all Canadians and therefore justifies PAC's intervention.

It is with some hesitation that Positive Action, which has hitherto confined its activities almost entirely to Quebec, seeks to present its views before a committee of the Legislative Assembly of Ontario. We do so, however, in the belief that language rights are central to the question of Canadian unity. If Canada is to remain one country rather than to become two or more sovereign states, it is in our view essential that Canadians whose mother tongue is one of our two official languages should be able to feel at home wherever they choose to live in Canada. At the very least, they should not feel that in moving to a different part of Canada, they had moved to an alien land. They should not feel that if they remained there, their children would in growing up become assimilated to a different culture, language or historical tradition. As we say in A Vision of Canada, this ability to feel at home in Canada implies that Canadians everywhere (subject in some cases to linguistic communities being of a certain minimum size) should be able to educate their children, receive essential services, appear before the courts and communicate with various levels of government in either French or English. A country where this is impossible is not a country which all its citizens are able to call their country. For this reason, Positive Action feels that it cannot let pass without comment the demise of Bill 89 in the Ontario Legislature.

Positive Action and no doubt all Canadians accept the historical facts that have made it difficult for Francophones outside Quebec to survive, especially where the Anglophone majority has taken actions to their detriment. We believe it self-evident that for a minority to survive there must exist a strong and complete social infrastructure, including schools, media and government services, not only at the federal but also at the provincial and municipal levels as well. It is recognized, however, that this infrastructure can be complete only when a sufficient number and density of people form the minority in a given geographical region.

Just as Anglophones in Quebec outside metropolitan Montreal have been declining for many years through assimilation and emigration and have in many regions all but disappeared, so also it will be difficult for Francophones outside Quebec in certain geographic regions to survive. Nevertheless, there are other regions apart from Quebec - particularly in Ontario, New Brunswick and Manitoba - where the concentration is sufficient, given proper government support at all levels, to ensure their continued survival.

While lip service has been paid to the goal of minority survival, only rarely have governments supported with concrete measures the furtherance of that goal. Some obvious exceptions are the Federal Government's and New Brunswick's Official Languages Acts and Ontario's Education Act. As suggested earlier, Francophones outside of Quebec have suffered from time to time over the last 100 years from government actions designed to break up their infrastructure and speed their assimilation. To mention perhaps the most glaring example, we need only recall the Act of the Manitoba Legislature which in 1890 struck down all guarantees for the French language that had been established by the Manitoba Act of 1870. Also worth mentioning are Manitoba's complete elimination of bilingual schools in 1916 as well as Ontario's Regulation 17 which severely restricted the use of French in the public school system.

Positive Action believes that the two official language minorities have played a key role in making Canada a unique country in which to live Lord Acton, in his essay on nationality, remarked: "A state which is incompetent to satisfy different races condemns itself; a state which labours to nationalize, to absorb or to expel then destroys its own vitality." He further stated: "The co-existence of several nations under the same State is a test, as well as the best security of its freedom. It is also one of the chief instruments of civilization".

Positive Action subscribes fully to this thesis of Lord Acton and consequently deplores the growing assimilation of Francophones outside Quebec and the increasing exodus of Anglophones from Quebec. We feel that the linguistic ghettoization of Canada will result in a poorer, less diverse and fundamentally less interesting country, if it remains a country at all.

Positive Action does not however wish to leave our Committee with the impression that it believes the policy of the Ontario Government to be at variance with the above-stated thesis. On the contrary, we are totally aware of the very commendable initiatives taken by this Government in the past few years. A cursory reading of the latest annual report of the Council for Franco-Ontarian affairs is all that is needed to convince any objectively-minded Canadian of the sincere efforts being put forth by the Ontario Government to redress past injustices. Davidson Dunton, co-chairman of the B and B Commission, recognized this recently in an article written for the Canadian Press where he commented that "eleven years after the publication of the volume on language rights, Ontario is still one by one taking pragmatic steps that carry out commission recommendations in areas of services, courts and statutes".

Hence the reason for our consternation upon learning of Premier Davis' statement that "the Government will proceed no further with this private bill" (Bill 89). Our reaction however was not limited to consternation, there was also sadness and anger - sadness because of a missed opportunity to provide the leadership which the people of Canada have come to expect from the Government of Ontario, and anger because those of us who are devoted to and working unceasingly for a united Canada were once

Tiny peace envoys were victims of war

TOKYO (AP) - "Mommie, is it true that dolls like these were burned?" asked the little girl, clinging to her mother's hand.

"Yes, Mari-Chan," the mother replied. "I was about your age when it happened. It was sad and disturbing."

The child and mother were among a crowd at an exhibition of blue-eyed dolls, survivors from a vast number sent from the United States in 1927 as a gesture of goodwill.

Most of the dolls did not survive The Second World War. They were tiny, curious victims of the war's hate and anger.

Those at the exhibition here had such names as Alice, Ruth, Virginia, Patricia and Mary. They had big blue-eyes with long lashes and blonde curly hair. Each carried a U.S. passport and a message of goodwill.

The 12,000 original dolls made up the largest peace emissary of its kind ever sent from the United States. It was designed to strengthen friendly ties, with an exchange later of Japanese dolls in colorful silk kimonos representing 68 cities in Japan.

COMPOSED A SONG

The arrival of the dolls in Yokohama on March 1, 1927, was marked by parades and exhibitions, and a song by composer Ujo Noguchi that became a best seller. With its lyrics about honorable blue-eyed dolls, crying because they "don't understand a word of Japanese."

The dolls, which could close their eyes and say, "Mama" - something Japanese dolls could not do then - were sent to kindergartens and schools where they were treasured. Some even went to the imperial family's palace as "state guests."

But war eventually engulfed Japan, and the dolls became victims of a hate-the-U.S. campaign.

Two years after the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the war began turning in favor of the U.S. in 1943, Japanese military authorities issued an order that the dolls be destroyed in public. It was reminiscent of Nazi book-burning.

The orders were obeyed almost to the letter. The dolls were removed from honored places and destroyed.

DEFIED THE ORDER

Despite the wartime animosity, there were those who secretly defied the order and saved some of the dolls.

Five years ago, Ayako Ishimaru, a teacher, read a news report about a U.S. doll at a school in Kofu, near Tokyo. Ms. Ishimaru determined to locate other dolls that may have survived. Her search eventually uncovered 16 dolls.

Then a committee was formed which was able to assemble 20 dolls for the exhibition which opened Aug. 15 to commemorate the 33rd anniversary of Japan's defeat in the war.

Jiro Amano of Maebashi, a committee member, says: "I am confident that there are others, perhaps 100 in the rural areas that lived through the war and hate. I hope they can be brought together in the interest of everlasting Japan-U.S. friendship."

Washington Merry-Go-Round

Nicaragua's Antonio Somoza: Biggest robber of them all

by Jack Anderson and Les Whitten

WASHINGTON - Three years ago, we nominated Nicaragua's embattled Anastasio Somoza as "the world's greediest ruler." We concluded from the available evidence that he was "the most grasping of the world's great grabbers."

We described the Somoza family's extensive fortune in "farms, factories, banks, newspapers, radio-TV stations, ships, planes and you-name-it." Their real estate portfolio, we revealed, includes "coffee, cacao, tobacco, banana, sugar cane and pineapple plantations; corn, bean, rice, sorghum, sesame, fruit and vegetable farms; and vast grazing land for cattle."

Our information came from Nicaraguan documents, which we crosschecked against U.S. studies. We had access, we wrote, to secret economic profiles of Somoza, which had been compiled by the U.S. government. Our articles created an international furor, which still hasn't died down. Somoza's emboldened critics still cite our columns as they demonstrate against him in Managua.

We worked closely with the brave journalist Pedro Chamorro, who was gunned down on Jan. 10 for daring to criticize Somoza. Chamorro's assassination precipitated the first serious challenge to the family dictatorship since the U.S. Marines installed his father in power in 1937.

Somoza was furious over our economic expose. He sent word to us through intermediaries that we were picking on his family and thus were "going too far." His minions in this country began to raise a howl over the articles.

Leading the protest was his farcical ambassador and brother-in-law, Guillermo Sevilla Sacasa, who dispatched a five-page denunciation to our editors. Our charges were largely a "litany of distortions," he said.

He was most upset that the U.S. government was keeping economic profiles on Somoza. This "curious statement," he wrote, could "raise an issue of potential concern to other foreign missions in Washington and elsewhere."

The State Department felt compelled to issue an equivocation. "Neither the Department of State nor any other agency of the United States government," a spokesman assured the Nicaraguan ambassador, "provided official... documents or any classified information" to us.

We are now free to quote from the classified documents that we could only cite three years ago. A Sept. 1973, airgram from the U.S. embassy in Managua, for example, described the Somoza family as "the wealthiest in the country and perhaps Central America."

Estimates of their wealth, states the confidential document, "range from thirty million to several hundred million dollars." The report continues: "Family investments in Nicaragua... include major holdings in agriculture, manufacturing, fishing, food processing, transportation, communications, retailing, banking, insurance and real estate. Most recently, General Anastasio Somoza... has formed a joint-venture construction company with U.S. investor, D.K. Ludwig."

A 1967 document, stamped "Confidential," suggested that "President Somoza's great influence has been used in a heavy-handed way to advance his own business interest in the mining field."

But perhaps most interesting is a 17-page confidential airgram from the U.S. embassy dated Aug. 10, 1963. Although the document is laden with qualifiers and its information is now 15 years old, it is extraordinarily revealing. "The Somozas own, control or have a voice in a wide variety of economic assets within Nicaragua," the document reveals, "the value of which the embassy estimates to be approximately US $38,810,929." They "also have an undetermined quantity of assets abroad, estimated to be worth between $15 (million) and $20 million. All these figures," the embassy added, "are deliberately conservative."

The State Department's secret economic profiles, in short, show that the Somozas owned a bare minimum of $54 million. This was 15 years ago before they acquired many of their present holdings.

"On the basis of this rough guide," the 1963 document stated, "it may be that the Somoza family owns as much as 10 percent of Nicaragua's capital wealth." It was "highly unlikely," the airgram added, "that the Somozas pay taxes proportionate with their wealth."

Indeed, the dictator had not shown "excessive concern about graft among subordinates." He had used National Guardsmen "to operate Somoza enterprises, and it is probable that equipment and material have at times been used to promote Somoza economic interests."

Concluded the 1963 assessment: "The Somozas have grown rich in public office... If a point is to be made in this respect, it is that the Somozas have dominated Nicaragua too long." This was written 15 years ago.

Footnote: Authors Kai Bird and Max Holland, who work for the Center for International Policy, recently visited Nicaragua for a first-hand look at American aid programs. They concluded that U.S. foreign aid is being ripped off regularly by Somoza and his henchmen. Their findings will be published as a magazine article.

PAC brief on Bill 89

again frustrated in our fight to overcome past prejudices and fears.

It must be remembered that an issue as delicate as the subject matter of Bill 89, while of direct interest only to the population of Ontario, could most certainly have a significant impact on the legislation of other provinces. The point has long passed in our history when the acts and words of any provincial legislature or for that matter any public institution can be viewed in a strictly provincial context. Moreover, the present mood of our provincial governments dictates, rightly or wrongly, that they seek leadership from other provincial governments rather than from the Federal Government. And, in this regard, Ontario is recognized as first among equals.

Perhaps of even greater importance is the impact which such legislation could have on Canadians generally, both Anglophone and Francophone. Your Committee is no doubt aware that the people of Quebec in particular, especially during these difficult times, are monitoring very closely the activities of the Province of Ontario. The media is giving telescopic exposure to these activities to ensure that every word, every deed and every gesture have their full impact. It is therefore no exaggeration when we convey to your Committee our sense of dismay on learning of the proposed disposition of Bill 89.

A research document was published not long ago by the Federation des Francophones Hors Quebec entitled "Deux poids, deux mesures" which attempted to demonstrate in graphic fashion how the Francophone communities outside of Quebec have been shabbily treated by their provincial governments and by the majority Anglophone population in their respective jurisdictions. We do not wish to argue here the correctness or incorrectness of the facts presented in that study. There is enough truth in it to give all Canadians cause for concern for the way in which the majority has treated one of its founding peoples for so many years. Perhaps even more telling, because of its contemporaneity, was the virtual absence of coverage by the English media in Canada of the report, a point which was quickly seized upon by the Quebec Francophone media to drive home the very message contained in it.

It was not surprising then that the Bill 89 affair, coming as it did soon after the release of the F.F.H.Q. study, should have upset Francophones across the country the way it did. For Francophones outside Quebec, it represented but another piece of substantiating evidence in support of the F.F.H.Q. study as well as a confirmation of their belief that as Canadians, they had been relegated to second class status. As for the Francophones within Quebec, nothing could have served the cause of the minority "independents" more.

Very little mention, if any, was made of the fact that much headway had already been made in providing the services referred to in Bill 89. What caught the interest of the media, and the Quebec Government, and consequently what was conveyed to the Quebec population at large was the refusal to give fair and equal treatment to all Ontario citizens. Ontario Francophones were destined to be assimilated and their language and culture to be gradually eliminated, all of this to the detriment of Canadian unity.

Dr. Laurin, speaking in English at a press conference in Hull, offered the following comments on Premier Davis' stand: "He has lent some support to the theory that there are two Canadas - an English one and a French one". Need he have said more?

It's most unfortunate, but nevertheless a fact of life, that all of this Government's commendable initiatives, acts of good faith and expressions of principle could go for naught and be entirely negated by one public gesture which appears to others to be contrary to the principles so enunciated. What's more, the gesture need only be symbolic, since as often as not people react more to the symbols than they do to the substance of an issue. To underline this point in a more concrete way, one need only recall the flag debate of the Pearson era which caught the imagination of every Canadian and particularly those of us living in Quebec.

On the other side of the ledger of symbols, we have surely not forgotten the booning of French announcements at Maple Leaf Gardens during the Canada Cup hockey series of 1976, nor the air traffic controllers' and pilots' strikes which were perceived by the French Canadian to be directed against his linguistic rights, nor the more recent display of thoughtlessness in the treatment given to Ruth Ann Wallace during her singing of the National anthem in English and French at a Blue Jays' game in Toronto. The fans' reaction in this latter case may also have been merely symbolic to show their disapproval of what they considered to be the installation in power in Quebec of an oppressive regime bent on eliminating any trace of English in the Province. In other words, symbols mean a lot.

That is not, however, meant to imply that legislation is mere symbolism - far from it. Legislation provides the protection that simple administrative enactment does not. One cannot leave to the discretion of civil servants, or politicians for that matter, the enforcement and maintenance of rights as fundamental as those contemplated by Bill 89. Moreover, once legislated, it would take a government of extraordinary arrogance, insensitivity and one bent on the break-up of Canada to revoke the law or amend it so as to render it ineffectual. Consequently, while symbols are important so is the substance. By legislating, both objectives are met.

Even the best publicity, which has no doubt been lacking, and even the declarations of good intentions, which have not been lacking, cannot substitute for hard legislation. The publicity, all of it good, in our estimation, would flow in abundance from legislation of this nature. Moreover, one cannot blame Ontario Francophones, nor other Canadian Francophones, for insisting on the protection of their fundamental rights which would result from the enactment into law of those rights - every Canadian deserves as much.

One could just as easily ask why we should bother enacting into law the rights contained in the various Federal and Provincial Bills of Rights. In many cases those same rights existed, either implicitly or explicitly, long before their adoption in a formal bill of rights. Yet, for some, even their statutory enactment isn't sufficient and they insist on having those rights enshrined in the Canadian constitution. Why? The answer is simple. Those rights are considered so basic, so fundamental, that no government, let alone a public servant, should be allowed to tamper with them. The rights envisaged by Bill 89 are just such basic and fundamental rights and deserve to be treated accordingly.

Positive Action is an apolitical organization and consequently is not interested in favouring one political party over another. However, by force of circumstance, we cannot be unaware nor insensitive to the purely political considerations which often motivate and determine party direction and policy. Yet, certain issues must transcend purely party consideration, and the issue of French language services in Ontario is one of those. This exhortation is directed not only to the governing party but to all the parties of the Ontario Legislature. If it is not to be Bill 89 - a private member's bill - which legislates French language services in Ontario, let it be a Government Bill which does so. After reading the relevant portions of Hansard for the June 1, 1978 session, as well as Premier Davis' statement of that same date, we are sincerely encouraged by the all-party and all-member consensus on the principle underlying this legislation. Nothing should stand in the way of its adoption. We repeat that there is nothing sacrosanct about this particular bill, provided that its substance is enacted into law in the near future.

Premier Davis, in his statement regarding French language policy in Ontario delivered on June 1st, declared that "the issue in this Province has always been real services to meet real needs". No one could find fault with that statement. We only wish to point out to your Committee that Bill 89 or some equivalent legislation is in no way inconsistent with Premier Davis' objective of providing real services to meet the real needs of his Ontario constituents. On the other hand, the Premier could be in the enviable position of claiming for himself, his Government and the people of Ontario the role and the title of nation builders. The importance of legislation of this nature for all of Canada cannot be overrated, it will go a long way toward maintaining and strengthening our unity and creating the basis for a renewed confederation, a subject to which most Canadians are committed and on which Premier Davis has spoken so eloquently.

We of Positive Action have no reason to question the good faith of the Ontario Government nor the sincerity of Premier Davis' intentions - au contraire! However, time is of the essence, and it will be too late when we awaken one morning to discover that for the first time the sun failed to rise over our beautiful country. The stakes are too high to be running such risks. The Ontario Government must not only continue to show leadership in the area of providing educational, judicial, health, social, municipal and other public services in the French language, it must appear to be doing so. It must do so by legislating into statute what exists for the most part in fact. Nor should it stop there. It must show magnanimity where the Quebec Government is showing pettiness and meanness, and in that way by-pass the Quebec Government and reach the hearts and minds of the Quebec people directly, as well as the hearts and minds of all Canadians, Anglophone and Francophone alike. Our continued survival as one country depends on it.

Editorials From The French Press

Montreal Le Devoir: The referendum committee of the federalist parties and movements, from now on presided over by lawyer Michel Robert, will no longer have exactly the same function, nor the profile that Claude Castonguay and Marcel Masse had given it. Former head of the Quebec bar, brilliant lawyer, militant Liberal for many years, president of the policy committee of the Quebec Liberal party, Robert is among the small number of those who, since the beginning of the summer of 1977, worked discreetly to get Claude Ryan to run for the party leadership. . . . That doesn't make Robert a puppet of Ryan, even less a valet. But the Liberals and their leader at least have the assurance that the referendum committee is in good hands.

Candidate of the Quebec Liberal caucus, Robert also had the support of the federal Liberals (with whom relations have remained excellent) and that of the Quebec-Canada Movement headed by Maurice Sauve. In principle, the committee should try to bring the movements and the parties together, co-ordinate their preparations for the referendum, assure cohesion of the federalist forces, put in place a structure of organization and propaganda and collect and distribute funds.

But in practice, these tasks . . . fall mainly to the political parties which already possess the resources and necessary expertise. The independent movements, such as Quebec-Canada, expect to conserve their autonomy. This means that the role of the pre-referendum committee has evolved: It involves now . . . a technical apparatus which aims to bring about coordination without imposing orders, nor defining the policies.

Since the Quebec Liberal party is the main opposition to the Parti Quebecois government, it was inevitable that it would end up dominating the structure of the pre-referendum committee. It is definitely the liberals under the leadership of Claude Ryan who will lead the campaign in favor of the federal tie on the eve of the referendum. Certainly the independent groups . . . and less important political parties will join them. But, in terms of political weight and real force, it is the Liberal party which will wage this battle. —Michel Roy (Aug. 31)

Montreal-Matin: The current lock-out at Air Canada is costing a fortune to the company and to the Canadian taxpayers who are the owners . . . All the inconveniences and astronomical costs which result can't make us forget the detached and contradictory attitude of Air Canada in its negotiations with its workers.

In a state of panic, the Crown company enclosed itself in an unbelievable vicious circle in settling, out of fear, the conflict with its pilots. . . . All the company arsenal, with the labor minister at the head, was put into action to satisfy the members of the famed CALPA (Canadian Air Line Pilots Association). That name evokes the image of an organization which brought the federal government down on its knees by refusing the Gens de l'Air the use of French as a working language. . . . Fearing the worst, the company capitulated.

To help us forget his weakness with the pilots, (Air Canada President) Claude Taylor decided to play the bully with his ground personnel. The decision to close shop and lay off the personnel is even less justified, given that the union side is in a chronic incapacity to strike. In addition, the means of pressure used by the employer is out of proportion, given the problems to solve. . . . You'd think there were two categories of workers at Air Canada: the prestige members of CALPA, and the others.

—Matthias Rioux (Aug. 31)

Get up to a ton of extra milk from every cow, every lactation.

Purina research has shown that just 100 to 200 pounds of additional body condition at calving can mean 1000 to 2000 pounds of extra milk the following lactation. Purina D & H Chow is especially formulated to meet a dry cow's protein, vitamin and mineral requirements during the two months before freshening when she's building 2/3 of her calf and getting her body ready for high milk production. And, there's extra phosphorus and Vitamin D to help guard against milk fever plus Vitamin A to help develop a healthy calf. Feed D & H Chow with roughage or D & H Chow Special mixed with grain for an economical ration that can mean up to a ton more milk from every cow in your herd every lactation. Stop in and find out how D & H Chow and D & H Chow Special can help you get more milk/cow in the next lactation.

Stingers host Gee-Gees

MONTREAL — Head coach, Skip Rochette will receive his university baptism of fire this Saturday afternoon when the Concordia Stingers host the Ottawa Gee-Gees as regular season play in the Ontario-Quebec Intercollegiate Football Conference gets underway this weekend. Game time is 2 p.m. at the Concordia Athletic Complex, 7200 Sherbrooke Street West (Loyola Campus).

Rochette feels that his team emerged from Sunday's Jamboree at Molson Stadium in good shape. The Jamboree afforded everyone valuable game experience and the Stingers will go into Saturday's game without a major injury.

"I am satisfied with the development of the team so far," Rochette stated after viewing the films of Sunday's Jamboree. "We must eliminate our mental mistakes if we are going to be a contender. But you must remember that this is a very young team that will improve with each performance."

Edmonton Eskimos lead CFL West

Edmonton Eskimos still dominate the Canadian Football League's Western Conference as they prepare to meet Hamilton Tiger Cats on home turf Sunday with both of their offensive coaches out of action because of heart attacks.

Joe Faragalli now is recuperating after suffering a heart attack Aug. 23 during a home game against Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Cal Murphy suffered a heart attack at his home Wednesday night.

The Edmonton-Hamilton game, which starts at 4:30 p.m. EDT and which will be televised on CBC West, interlocks with a second game, beginning at 2 p.m. and televised on CBC East in which Toronto Argonauts entertain Montreal Alouettes.

On Saturday, Winnipeg Blue Bombers visit Ottawa Rough Riders for a game which begins at 2 p.m. EDT and which will be televised nationally on CTV. Saskatchewan Roughriders visit B.C. Lions for an evening game, beginning at 11 p.m. EDT, that will not be televised.

Other than temporary loss of their two offensive coaches, the Eskimos, now 6-1-1, remain strong despite injuries suffered in Monday's game against Calgary Stampeders.

In that game, which ended in a 28-28 tie, kicker Dave Cutler stopped a helmet with his thigh while trying to recover a short kickoff, cornerback Larry Highbaugh suffered a sore hamstring and quarterbacks Warren Moon and Tom Wilkinson are hampered with a sore groin and a sore shoulder, respectively.

DISLOCATED SHOULDER
Wide receiver John Konowski was placed on the injury list after he dislocated a shoulder again a week ago. Bruce Lemmerman, Edmonton's third quarterback, who suffered a broken collarbone earlier this year, is still out of action.

Eskimos' head coach Hugh Campbell said Thursday he will probably start Wilkinson in Sunday's game.

The Tiger Cats, dwelling in the Eastern Conference's basement at 2-5-1, outbid Toronto for import cornerback Dave Shaw, who signed with Hamilton Thursday. Shaw played out his option with the Ticats in 1976 and was released by the National Football League Minnesota Vikings last week.

Shaw will start Sunday in defensive secondary, replacing Canadian Ron Woodward who injured a kidney in Monday's game against Toronto.

As for the Argonauts, at 3-5-0, their main concern is that kicker Ian Sunter get below the uprights again.

Since Toronto acquired Ken Clark, like Sunter a former Ticat, Sunter has missed eight field goal attempts, including two from 35 yards in Monday's loss at Hamilton.

"Those should have been automatic," said Sunter. "No way I should have missed them. They really bothered me. I haven't been able to sleep since the game. Speculation is that second-place Montreal will have some changes for Sunday but coach Joe Scannella is staying as quiet as a cat at a dog show on the subject.

EXPECTED TO PLAY

Cornerback Dickie Harris emerged from Montreal's 23-18 Tuesday night loss to Ottawa with a torn bicep in his left arm. Harris is expected to play against the Argos but if the arm is too painful, he could face immediate surgery which would sideline him for four weeks.

Winnipeg's record against Ottawa has been dismal ever since interlocking games began in 1961. The Blue Bombers, now second to the Eskimos at 4-4, have won only five and tied one of the 17 encounters.

ARMAND RUSSELL TOURNEY

The annual Armand Russell golf tournament, recently held at Granby-St-Paul Golf Club saw Ben Meunier take the honors in the men's section, while Danielle Lagace emerged as the top female. The winners are flanked by Union Nationale leader, Rodrigue Biron, and Brome-Missisquoi MNA Armand Russell.

New York pounds Expos 9-4

MONTREAL (CP) — Nino Espinosa matched his 1977 record Thursday night when he moved his won-lost totals to 10-13 in a nine-hit 9-4 triumph over Montreal Expos in National League baseball play.

The victory was the third of the season against no losses for the New York Mets righthander. It was, however, the first triumph in a month for Espinosa as well.

"I can't say that I'm really happy, but I haven't been winning the last month so with any kind of win I'll be happy," the right hander said.

The Mets got to the Expos early with two runs in the first, five in the second and two more in the third for a 9-0 lead.

Rookie Bob James, 9-1, who joined the Expos this week from Memphis Chickies of the AA Southern League, took the loss.

Willie Montanez was the offensive hero of the game with a run-scoring single in the first and a three-run homer in the second inning. But Montanez is having what he considers a poor year and was not elated with the early production in the game.

HAVING BAD YEAR

"You know you're having a bad year when Mejias gets you out," he said. Outfielder Sam Mejias became the seventh Montreal pitcher when he took the mound in the ninth. He got Montanez to ground out to first base.

DAVIES WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

DUFFERIN (IH) — The Dufferin Heights Golf Championships were played on September 2, 3 and 4 by a record number of men's club members.

Steve Davies won the 1978 club championship, four points ahead of runner-up David Little.

Steve started golfing this year as a junior. He was instructed by Charity (Greenwood) Henderson. This past weekend he competed with many more experienced golfers.

The finals were thrilling as it required three sudden death play-offs to determine the senior champion, and in Class A and B. Stuart Edgar won the senior championship when he defeated Rene Gaudreau in sudden play; Garry Carruthers and Mike Gaudreau played in Class A, and Doc Stewart and Rodney Smith in Class B.

Class A champion and runner-up are Alex Philip, Garry Carruthers; Class B, George Cooke, Doc Stewart; Class C, Larry Moss, Harold Rever; Class D, A. Bernier and Boyd Gilbert.

After the tournament was over the weekend ended with a barbeque steak supper enjoyed by many of the golfers.

The ladies championship was played on August 26-27.

Carole Mooney won by three strokes over Pat Norrie.

September 8 the ladies will have their closing-of-the-season meeting and dinner at the Club House.

The Junior championship was played August 24-25 and Murray Johnston won the boys division and Sheri Stuart the girls. This year there was a trophy for the girl champion as well as the usual for the boys.

September 16 the members' Calcutta will be played by the men and already there are many signatures on the list. September 10 is the date of the Butterfield employees' tournament.

The season will come to a close on September 30 with the annual dinner and presentation of championship trophies and prizes.

Beavers: Busy week on tap

By LEN O'DONNELL
SHERBROOKE — The Beavers have a busy week on tap with a game against Three Rivers at the Sports Palace tonight and against Quebec Sunday.

"We will be holding a special training session at Laval University in Quebec on Saturday," coach Ghislain Delage said yesterday. "This will be to explain the system we will be using this coming season.

"Defencemen and forwards will be shown just what we expect from them. This is something new and it gives the players a better knowledge of what we want them to do. It is the first time, since I have been coach, that we will try the new system. It is done in other leagues and I see no reason why it won't help us to improve our style," the coach added.

The Beavers still have 28 players and will carry them until next week, when five more will be dropped at the end of the exhibition-game series.

The Beavers' official opener is in Quebec Sept. 24th, and they open at the Sports Palace Friday, Sept. 28th, against the Royals of Cornwall.

Sherbrooke has five more pre-season tilts before they settle down to serious business. The Beavers will be carrying 23 players during the season, which means two defencemen, two forwards and one goalie will be farmed out.

By the time the regular season opens, Delage feels his squad will hold their own against any team in the circuit.

"We will have a well-balanced club and so far the spirit is great. We have no stars but we will have 23 players going all out all the time, working with their mates, and that is very important."

World Film Festival draws varied crowd

MONTREAL — The occasional Bentley and taxi three deep stopped in front of the Le Parisien complex every day last week as film-industry personalities flocked by the thousands to attend the second annual World Film Festival.

Stars and journalists alike beat a three-block path between the Hotel Meridien and the five-theatre complex along with directors, producers, promoters, distributors and plain old film buffs. Crowds of curious gathered daily with cameras in front of the cinema in the hope of capturing an image of a Carole Laure or an Alain Delon.

The entrance to the theatre was garlanded by flags from many countries and decorated all around with the film festival's poster, depicting a muscular male figure, head tilted back with eyes closed, holding an array of camera lenses in his straining, outstretched arms.

The atmosphere for the first film Saturday, a French production entered in the festival's official competition, "L'argent des autres", was unwittingly set by the cinema's technicians. The spectators sat breathlessly in one of Le Parisien's cinemas for nearly three-quarters of an hour in total blackness with baited breath, you might say, for the film featuring Catherine Deneuve and Jean-Louis Trintignant to commence.

It's a Kafkaesque flick, L'Argent, as the uncomprehending bank official Rainier is banished from the hallowed halls of Miremont, de Nully and Heldorff after years of unquestioning, dedicated service. He is escorted out by two bank employees carrying cardboard boxes holding his belongings. A crystal falls down the stairs toward the camera, one of Rainier's personal effects, in an unforgettable series of shots from director Christian de Chalonge's film.

The target in "L'argent" is that sturdy institution, the bank, an institution much more powerful than the phone company. Rainier is dismissed summarily from his position, subsequently, but painfully slowly, realizing it is permanent and that he is a scapegoat in a financial scandal.

"L'argent" is a stylized account of how a bank management team uses one of its employees as a decoy in a scandal involving the seizure of savings of its many trusting clients, the ordinary people. The system, represented by the unapproachable bank, is fought by one of its cogs.

"L'argent", together with the other films mentioned below, were just a few of the more interesting premieres shown at last week's festival.

"Los Gaminos", a Colombian-French collaboration, is a study of one of the symptoms of the disintegrating family unit. Products of Bogota's slums, a band of children wanders its streets in an attempt at survival.

Ciro Duran, the film's director, maintains contact with a gang of children who roam, beg, steal and prostitute before the camera's eye. The ragged children sleep in doorways and on sidewalks, their leaders occasionally lucky enough to crash in shacks.

To eat, the children often stuff their mouths and empty bellies with easily-available American junk food. Sometimes they are fortunate and a stolen chicken becomes their meal. A curious mixture of young and old, these slum street urchins with ancient and malnourished faces ride a merry-go-round in an amusement park and thrill on a roller coaster. They unabashedly rip off bags of food from under passing people's arms and beg in fast-food joints.

The children get high on cigar-length joints of marijuana as well as gasoline-soaked rags, which they suck for kicks and temporary warmth. They play with plastic toy vehicles pulled by strings, yo-yoing them tantalizingly in and out of the wheels of Bogota's traffic on its hot pavements. Duran glosses over puberty, giving us a parting shot of adults marching through the streets, chanting, "United, we shall overcome!"

"La Jument Vapeur", features Gilles Carles' creation of the screen, Quebec's own Carole Laure, who definitely proves her worth in a French production presenting man's noble conquest, the woman, the mother, the housewife.

Surrounded by helpful electrical appliances, symbols of this century's progress, she moves through days of perfect operation to the day in which the machinery breaks down. Beautiful, intelligent and efficient, she is symptomatic of a certain segment of contemporary woman.

The portrait is painted by Joyce

Bunuel, one of a handful of women directors presenting their works at the Festival. Malcontented, the portrait of contemporary femininity with no material wants, the woman of today is fettered to her perfect home through the lack of any professional skill. In spite of the idyllic existence, the machinery blows up, the film presenting the audience with the build up.

An American woman, Karen Arthur, directed "The Mafu Cage", an hors-concours section entry, Carol Kane's newest tour-de-force. Two sisters who lead a bizarre existence in a family manor. The shadow of a dead father looms large over their symbiotic relationship. The older sister, played by Lee Grant, breaks their reality when she becomes involved with a male colleague at the observatory where they carry out astral research together.

The Mafu Cage is just off of Kane's tropical jungle of a room, replete with hammock and African masks. The cage is comprised of bark enclosing a large part of the room and sporting a huge copper drinking bowl, a chair and two chains attached to the wall. It was used as an observation room for the analyses of wild beasts by the girls' father, an anthropologist who had spent much time with his family on the African continent.

Story by

Sam, played by Will Geer, is a white-mustachioed friend of the dead father. A white-hunter-type, the sahib supplies Sissy with a pet - orangutan - Mafu. Classic and primitive, contemporary and primordial, human and animal, man and woman are all fancifully explored in a visual translation of a psychological attachment and its subsequent shattering.

"Don't Lean out the Window", is a Hungarian feature with a peaceful backwoods village railway station as the setting for a uniquely East European presentation. An ordinary-looking, unpretentious cast banter and frolics before the spectators on the scene.

The peace of the station is disrupted when stationmaster Kerek arrests and detains overnight a student who is caught ticketless and penniless riding on the passenger train to Budapest.

The harmony of the station employees will never be the same once the student departs. The traffic manager's assistant, one to whom the uniform is also quite important, fattens pigs and steals the cargo carried by the trains which pass through the whistle stop.

The refrigerating plant shares its employee, Ferke, with the railway. Ferke, often refers to his Swiss sojourn. It is quite a while later that we discover he travelled there and back locked up in a car carrying paprika, without ever setting foot on Swiss soil.

Klarika, the ticket clerk, is a vixen-seemingly not too intelligent, but a charming character nevertheless. We learn during the course of the film that there is a Klarika at nearly all the railway stations of the country.

Karoly Ference, the stow-away student who tried to catch a free ride to Pest, is stupefied at the behavior of the railway employees as time and events occur always outside the realm of their comic and uniquely East European existence.

An Italian hors-concours entry, L'Albergo De gli Zoccoli" (The Cog Tree), is a three-hour work of art by Ermanno Olmi and Cannes' Palme d'Or (Golden Palm) winner this year will be hailed as the film of the century in an upcoming issue of Sight and Sound, a well-known industry bible.

Set in almost feudal conditions in the Bergame region of Italy, the film is composed of a non-professional cast solicited from the countryside. With the peasant cast, Olmi paints a vivid picture of their suppressed heritage through the telling of a simple story involving a village family and a righteous landlord.

Old buildings and ancient countryside immortalized on canvas by Italian masters of the past are bathed with sunrises and sunsets in Olmi's films. The pageantry of a hand-to-mouth existence unrolls in the cradle of Italy's nature and in the source of its vitality, its peasantry.

Presented in the official competition, Henryk Ibsen's "An Enemy of the People", a George Schaefer production, is portrayed by a hairy and placidly intellectual Steve McQueen. Beloved of many, McQueen plays a character which many claim as a change of venue for him. Bibi Andersson and Charles Durning are supporting stars in the film which McQueen helped produce.

The Mafu Cage, directed by Karen Arthur, explores woman and man, the "classic and primitive, animal and human."

Los Gaminos, directed by Ciro Duran, is the story of children who have broken all ties with the family unit, a unit which has disintegrated due to the aggressive atmosphere in the slums.

Father Gervais: Festivals provide new point of view

By ANNA FUDAKOWSKA

"Wasn't that something," exclaimed Father Gervais breathlessly. "Yes, I was shaking, as was a man I knew who watched it with me."

The Concordia University professor was referring to a Canadian entry in the World Film Festival held in Montreal last week. Robin Spry's earth-shaking film on a heroin-importing operation.

Gervais' companion had lived in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district, the root of the so-called flower-power sixties. He had witnessed the entire commercial takeover of the scene.

Italy's entry, "The Clog Tree", directed by Ermanno Olmi, was a Golden Palm award-winning film this year and Gervais termed it a masterpiece. "Olmi", said Gervais with reference to the film about the struggle of Italian peasants, "has lovingly painted a filmic work of art faithful to the great painters and poets and to the history of Italy and its peasantry."

A rural setting and a bucolic pace are convincingly evoked in the sensitive story about a peasant family sharing the landlord's farm with five other families. They are punished when the father cuts down a tree in order to make clogs for his son to wear to school.

Marc Gervais, a Jesuit priest, left Sherbrooke at the age of 16 and only came home summers while studying at Loyola of Montreal. He entered the Jesuits at 20 and completed a Master's program in film aesthetics at the Sorbonne. He is now associate professor of communication arts at Loyola, a program he was instrumental in setting up a number of years ago.

Well-known in international film circles, Father Gervais has served on various international festival juries and has attended the past 14 Cannes film festivals. He has also written widely for film publications here and abroad, most notably in Sweden. "I attend films to experience a heightening feeling, a revelation of something hitherto unknown - a new point of view," said Gervais.

"I know Serge Lesique quite well," said Gervais, speaking of the man referred to as "Le Napoleon" responsible for the single-handed revival of a Canadian film festival of international acclaim. In its second year of operation, the World Film Festival has already achieved world-wide recognition, thanks in part to Gervais, who also teaches film at Sir George.

Through Lesique, head of the autonomous Conservatory of Cinematographic Art at Concordia's Sir George campus, Father Gervais acquires films for his courses on the film classics from Italy, France, Russia, Scandinavia and America.

On campus, the reputation of Father Gervais is that of a jovial and adept educator who stresses the feelings evoked by screen images supported by credible soundtracks. Off campus, he's a fierce and demanding critic.

"There are too many film festivals happening in Canada right now," he says.

"Le Festival de la critique Quebecoise just finished prior to this festival; Ottawa has its animation film festival which seems to screen feature length films as well; Toronto's Festival of Festivals opens on September 14; and there is the World Film Festival. They are all new and to survive they must somehow amalgamate," Gervais added, omitting to mention this month's New York Film Festival.

The reason there are so many foreign films being shot on location in Montreal is because of the attraction of Canadian tax writeoffs, Gervais explained. Canada is one of the cheapest countries to film in at the moment, as attested to by the Montreal presence of many film directors and crews - most recently the crew, cast and direction of "City on Fire". Unlike the States, film crews in Canada are not plagued or hindered by unions at every turn.

In recent years, Montreal has acquired quite a categorie of experienced film people, from actors right through to the all-important technicians indispensable to every phase of filmmaking," the Jesuit added.

"Canada, through Quebec, had a film festival in the sixties which committed hara-kiri in the same decade it was born and its successor is the Festival de la critique, which is also two years old," Gervais said.

The Canadian Film Development Corporation, an arm of the government, is quite helpful in the production of films but when it comes to their distribution, there is a large gap which has yet to be filled, he added. The media, he believes, promote the public's ignorance of Canadian films due to their lack of coverage.

"It is almost as if they did not exist," said Gervais regretfully.

A case in point is Spry's "One Man". Although critically acclaimed last year, it is only now receiving American attention to its distribution. Canada, however, remains virtually ignorant of the film's existence.

"There's something very wrong with our distribution here," Gervais added. "If we want our film industry to grow to its capacity, we must cure our ailing distribution."

Dining out...

One nice thing about good eating is that it knows no national boundary. A plate of Akee and salt fish from the island of Jamaica, first thing in the day, is as much a feast as a Rote de Porc a la Bouronnaise on a chill autumn afternoon. With this spirit of internationalism in mind, I gathered up the in-laws last week, and made a quick trip to Island Pond, Vermont and the Buck and Doe restaurant.

They say that it is the little things that make an ordinary restaurant a good restaurant. If this is true, then the Buck and Doe is a very good restaurant. From the fresh flowers on the table, to the home-made rolls, the customer is treated with a genuine appreciation so often lacking in our profit-conscious world. Luckily, we had made reservations, since a small line had already formed at the front door prior to our arrival. Once at our table, safely past the angry stares of those in the small line, all without reservations, we were given the immediate attention of a genuinely friendly waitress. The menu being extensive, we settled for a pre-dinner cocktail and a moment of contemplation. While we were thus involved, the waitress produced a plate of assorted relishes, cheese spread and fish hors d'oeuvres, all too tasty and all too tempting.

For the main course there was a decided split in preference, with two choosing filet mignon, two prime rib of beef and one, broiled lobster, all of which arrived piping hot and cooked to perfection. As an accompaniment, we were given our choice of potato and fresh vegetable, my choice being the cauliflower with a delicate cheese sauce... again fresh and delicious. To better appreciate the meal one more thing was necessary, a bottle of Californian Inglenook Cabernet Sauvignon for the beef and a half bottle of Italian Soave to enhance the lobster. Looking back, I am surprised, considering the more than ample portions served, how any of us had room for a dessert of any type. Yet the strawberry shortcake beckoned me like the siren of the Greeks and I succumbed.

Afterwards, during the drive home, I reflected upon the quality of service and food, upon the pleasant atmosphere and upon the overall excellence of the entire restaurant and quietly and contentedly vowed to return to The Buck and Doe.

Fireball by Vic Mayhew and Doug Long, Methuen, $9.95.

A planetoid one-fifth the size of our own moon hurtles towards the earth at a speed of more than 100,000 miles per hour. When it strikes the earth, at a spot in the northeastern United States, it will send the entire planet reeling off its axis, causing the polar caps to shift and burying Canada under a massive glacier. The only way to stop it is to use the nuclear capabilities of either the United States or the Soviet Union, but neither is willing to make the first move. Sound exciting? You bet!

Fireball is a fascinating story of imminent destruction and the idiocy of global politics. It is a tale woven around the personal lives of the men and women who man-mission control and who make the exploration of space a reality. Although Mayhew and Long's writing is less than brilliant at times, possibly the result of "committee" writing, the plot alone is enough to carry the book along to its ultimate and not impossible conclusion. For the devotee of the disaster film, Fireball is a must.

Testimonies highlight Osmond Fireside

An Osmond Family Fireside was held in Ottawa on Sunday, August 27th. "Families Are Forever" was the theme of the two programs held that day. Members and friends of the Ottawa/Montreal Stake and the Eastern Townships attended.

Testimonies borne by the members of the Osmond family were warmly received by more than 1200 people at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day-Saints (Mormon) Chapel on Prince of Wales Avenue.

Olive Osmond, mother of the famous family, told the congregation that "Being able to share our testimonies and our lives with people is so important to us." She said they love to tell the world the good news, the gospel.

Mrs. Osmond had great praise for her family and especially her husband who as head of the household has provided a wholesome home life, with leadership, love and support. He has taught by example and by precept.

Olive is at present working on a special project for her family. Included in her busy schedule each day is time for scriptural reading. She has had the privilege over the years to be called as teacher in the Sunday School. There are Sunday School programs in the Mormon Church designed for each age group and every member attends Sunday School each week. Olive at one time, taught the Investigators Class (for those people who are not members, but attend church meetings with family or friends). During this time it was of course necessary for her to study other religions and become familiar with the beliefs and teachings of her class members. It was at this time that she started her extensive study of The Godhead, and now she is complying this study, for her family, based on her search of the Bible (King James Version).

Following Mrs. Osmond, each member of the family spoke. They all shared their testimonies of the gospel with the congregation and expressed their gratitude for the love in their family and the knowledge that their family is eternal.

Jimmy is the youngest member. He gave a high-spirited talk directed mostly to the young people. He said all people have problems in their lives and sometimes things look pretty discouraging, but there is an answer and a way to solve these things, first "instead of getting high on drugs (or booze), get low on your knees" - and then you can go from there.

Marie made reference to the recent TV interview with Barbara Walters. As she said on the show she does not plan to continue her career when she marries, as she will honor her husband and take up the greatest career in the world, that of a wife and mother. She did say however, that she hopes she will be able to make an occasional appearance on TV or do a recording. Her present vocation, however, will become her avocation after marriage.

Marie challenged the girls in the audience to search inside themselves for what they really want in life. Apart from equal pay for equal work, Marie is not in favor of ERA. She feels completely liberated and is looking forward to marriage and a husband who as head of the household, will be making the decisions. She did say, however, that she will probably be "the neck that turns the head" - in other words an equal member of a partnership privileged to nurture the future members of society and leaders of our world.

Debbie Osmond (Donny's wife) gave a light-hearted talk about "life with Captain Purple". She shared some amusing moments from their courtship and then expressed her love for her own family, her new family and her commitment to the gospel and the church.

Donny spoke about his early life, the illness that plagued him for a number of years and how through faith in the priesthood and our Heavenly Father, he was restored to health. He expressed his love and respect for his parents, the Patriarchal system in their home with such a fine father, and the great communication which is so important for total family harmony. Donny mentioned the importance of the weekly Family Home Evening program in their lives and the importance of prayer in his life. He said that nothing in his life (his career, material possessions) is as important to him as the church - his religion.

Each of the brothers told personal stories, some amusing, some very touching, and they reminded us that it was through the Family Home Evening program that the Osmond Family show business career was launched. They all expressed their love for their parents and their deep respect for the guidance and discipline received from their father. As one of the boys put it, "Father is not always right, but he is still father."

The Osmonds sang two numbers at the Firesides - "Love at Home" and a beautiful rendition of, "We May Never Pass This Way Again."

The Osmonds' "Families Are Forever" Fireside was a beautiful, spiritual experience and was enjoyed by the many members and friends who attended.

ALL ABOUT DIAMONDS

The "mystique" of diamonds is fraught with misconceptions and a great deal of confusion. What are carats? What does color have to do with quality? Members of the American Gem Society, such as we are at Skinner & Nadeau, can be very helpful in clearing up misconceptions surrounding such questions.

The value of a diamond is determined by four major factors which can be labelled the four "C's". They are: Cutting, Color, Clarity and Carat weight.

Cutting refers to the sawing, grinding, polishing, faceting and proportion of a stone. It is of prime importance to the brilliance of the diamond because diamonds can "bend" light more than any other natural substance.

Color refers to the tint of the inside body color of the diamond. Crystal clear is considered the finest quality.

Clarity refers generally to the flawlessness of a diamond. Diamonds containing very slight imperfections visible only under high magnification may look just as beautiful but are far less expensive than a flawless diamond.

Carat weight refers to the size and weight of the stone. There are 100 points to the carat (or 200 milligrams), so a diamond weighing 50 points is one-half carat.

The best way a customer can be sure of obtaining a gem that is truly a good value is to consult a member of the American Gem Society. The firm of Skinner & Nadeau is a long-standing member of this association of fine jewelers pledged to high standards of ethical and dependable service.

Ann Landers says

See a sex therapist

Dear Ann Landers: You haven't lived long enough to qualify as an expert on sex among the elderly. I have.

All women do NOT lose their sex drive in later years. You told "It's Zero Here" that many elderly people derive ample satisfaction out of fondling and caressing — just touching and being close.

This may be true if BOTH the man and his wife have one foot in the grave, but that's not the way it is in our house.

I say if the only place a man has it is in his head, let him keep it there. I'm tired of being mauled and pawed, aroused and left hanging in midair. No one should start a fire unless he can put it out. Just sign me — Needing More At 72

Dear 72: I did NOT say "all women lose their sex drive in later years." Some women, as well as men, maintain a keen interest in sex into the 80s and even 90s. I did say, however, that some elderly couples are content just to be held and caressed lovingly and nothing more is needed.

If ever a couple needed joint sex therapy, it's you and your husband. There are simple solutions to your problem and I hope you will make an effort to find them.

PSYCHICS ON THE SPOT — When Beyond Reason, television's first psychic panel show goes to the full CBC-TV network for the first time this fall, these three experts will be on the spot, trying to identify hidden guests from the slightest of clues: date, time and place of birth of the guest for astrologer Geoff Gray-Cobb (left): a sample of the guest's handwriting for graphologist Marilyn Rossner; and hints from the guest's personal possessions for clairvoyant Irene Hughes. Beyond Reason begins its new season Tuesday, September 19 at 10:30 p.m.

Church celebrates 100th anniversary

ST. ARMAND — Sunday, August 27, was a very special day for the congregation of the Notre Dame de Lourdes Catholic Church in St. Armand, when they celebrated the 100th Anniversary of the founding of their Church.
 A special anniversary, Mass was held at eleven a.m. with the Church packed to its utmost capacity and the Parish Priest, Father Louis-George Belisle presiding. Attending also were Msgr. Albert Sanschagrin, Bishop of the diocese, and two former priests of the Parish, Father Bernard Fontaine, now of Frelighsburg and Father A. Proulx, now retired.
 Following Mass, all retired to the church hall where a banquet was served to over five hundred, at one sitting, followed by speeches and presentation to Mr Albert Gelineau in appreciation of work done by him in the Church and Community during the past thirty years.
 The committee in charge, with Mr. Roger Schinck as Chairman, are to be congratulated, on the great success and large attendance of their 100th anniversary celebration.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

September 8, 1978
 Dame Fortune will be trying very hard this coming year to help you change your lifestyle for the better. There is one thing that could stop it, and that is if you talk yourself out of letting new things happen.
VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will dilute the effectiveness of your plans if you try to implement them piecemeal. Keep your overall aims before you at all times. Find out more about yourself by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y., 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.
LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You'll have a better chance of success today if you discuss your ideas openly. Someone knowledgeable can prevent you from speculating on the unknown.
SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something nice will be happening to you today, but it would be best if you don't talk about it. A resentful person will interpret it as boasting.
SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You might have your feelings hurt today when told of something another said about you behind your back. Knock down this person's defenses. Respond with kindness.
CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Just when you feel everyone has let you down, someone will do something for you in a most unpretentious manner to gladden your heart.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In spite of having many self-doubts today, you'll handle a large issue important to you in a most effective manner.

tails will either pass or bid six. North's four-notrump bid was made with only 14 high-card points, but he decided his fifth club plus the 10 and nine represented a full point in value. Anyway, he felt like bidding and did bid four. South looked at his 10-9-8 of hearts and 17 high-card points and went to six.

If South had held the jack of clubs instead of the jack of diamonds, the slam would have been a lay down. As it was, he had to find the jack of clubs to come to 12 tricks.

He might well have gone wrong and played West for that card, but he decided that West had opened a long spade suit so that East would hold the important jack. So he picked it up and made the slam.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

For Sunday, Sept. 10

September 9, 1978

There are large gains for you this coming year if you continue to expand and build upon foundations you've already laid. Trying to make too big a change will throw you off course.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful today you don't ignore the feelings of others when you start to make those changes around the house. It could create resentments. Like to find out more of what lies ahead for you? Send for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Others could throw you off the track if you have too little faith in your own ideas and follow theirs. Your thoughts are better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Avoid those who are more takers than givers. Someone could easily take advantage of the generous kind mood you are in today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should have a good time with friends today unless you become too ambitious. If you do, expect a few roadblocks to be put in your path.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you have what you think are good hunches today, follow them. Actually, your logical judgment is a little off. You'll fare better on instinct.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A casual acquaintance you're attracted to may not be all he appears to be. To avoid being deceived, stick to tried-and-true pals.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be careful what you say and how you treat others today. You could unintentionally offend someone whose cooperation is essential to your plans.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You could fail to accomplish a necessary task today. You don't lack know-how, but you'll make every possible excuse to neglecting it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) The interference you think you're experiencing is caused by your own imagination. Others are just trying to do their thing and aren't really against you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There won't be much harmony around home today if you don't try to go along with the plans others have. Pull together. You'll have a ball.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your head's in the clouds today. Take care when doing any type of work. It would be best to stick to projects where little thought is required.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're in the mood for a good social time today, but don't let your extravagant tendencies overcome your prudent judgment.

(NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

September 10, 1978

It's probable you'll notice many changes this coming year. One in particular will be a more expansive social circle. Many valuable friendships will be established.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You need some form of social outlet today. Put aside early the responsibilities of the day and plan to get together with friends. Find out who you're romantically suited to by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter Mail 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The control is in your hands for ferreting out needed information today. You'll be surprised how candid another is when you gain his or her confidence.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Good communications is easy for you to establish today, making you comfortable when mingling with large or small groups.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Acting on your own initiative, you may realize a small return from something you do. However, pride of accomplishment will exceed the profit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) An important achievement will be gained through your personal effort today. The admiration of others will be shown by the attention they give to what you say.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You gain the confidence today of one whose help could be a big plus. Once established, don't hesitate to ask for this person's commitment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friend can offer you some wise advice today if you'll open up and discuss your problems. Many things can be seen more clearly by an uninvolved individual.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If you think you have a better way of doing something today, by all means try it. All indicators point toward your goals being reachable because of sound thinking.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Inside information may come your way today to put you on the track of how you can achieve a social aim. You should be able to carry it out to the letter.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) An idea you're developing today is the solution to a problem you thought would take a great deal of time to solve. Latch on to it.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you're a bit restless today, don't drag your feet and wait for others to initiate things. Take charge. Get everybody rolling.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your activities for today will be well-planned. You'll mix productivity and leisure for a successful day.

Hints about Stamps

By M.M. Woodman

Sometimes I write items here that I wish to goodness I had not done so afterwards, but alas, too late. One such item was the plate block albums that I use for my collection of plates. These are made for Bileski in Winnipeg and I have used them since 1948. Well, it seems that a lot of collectors took my word for the fact that they were the best on the market and flooded me with orders. I ordered in June and again in July and to date have heard nothing from Mr. Bileski. I ran out of binders but had about 300 mounts in stock so thought that would do for awhile. No sir, they are all gone and I have had to let three of my own binders go to help these collectors get started. My pages are in large envelopes waiting for the orders to arrive so I can once again put my collection back together, another reason why one cannot collect and deal at the same time, or I should say it is mighty hard. Only last night I let a collector have my very last plate block of Scott's No 247. Not an expensive block but one that is not seen every day.

I wonder how many of you collect the stamps of Ireland. They do not flood the market with too many stamps and they do have some very attractive issues. You see here in black and white the next three commemoratives from Ireland to be issued on September 18. The 10p denomination will commemorate the bicentenary of the birth of Catherine McAuley, Founder of the Mercy Order of Nuns; the 11p will mark the Global Eradication of Smallpox and the 17p denomination will be the tenth stamp in the contemporary Irish art series.

If you are interested in these stamps and do not know where to get them, just contact me and I will be able to deliver as soon as supplies come in from Ireland.

This past weekend saw the end of the season for the flea market in Ayer's Cliff. There is one in Hatley Village that is a bit smaller, maybe, at the moment but is growing and a very beautiful sight with many nice things to offer the public at prices that for the most part are cheaper than in the stores and in lots of cases unobtainable in any of the stores in the area. These are held every Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and will carry on until the end of September at the earliest. The dealers at Hatley are different ones from those attending Ayer's Cliff, apart from two or three. Some home-made food is offered in the morning but you have best come early as it is gone within an hour. One lady has beautiful plants for sale at most reasonable prices. Then there are those with antiques, others with second hand items, others such as my wife with their new and old china and other wares and of course I tag along with my stamps and coins, so that a few of the many collectors in the area can see what is being offered and at what price. We meet so many nice people at these "Flea Markets" that it is a pleasure to just be there to talk with them; even if I didn't sell a thing I would still enjoy it. By the way I do sell quite a few coins there and some stamps and meet others who later get in touch for their wants.

Several people of late have asked for the value of the Canadian paper money back to the 1930's. Unless the bills are crisp and have never been in circulation, I would not place too high a value on them. Some don't seem to be worth the investment. Better to put your money in the bank at say 9 per cent interest and it will grow faster. Of course collecting either money or stamps is supposed to be a hobby first and sometimes one is lucky and has something that increases in value. If we only knew, we would all be rich. It has never happened to me and I have never thought of making a killing out of either one. I enjoy the hobby and when I was simply a collector had a great deal of pleasure from same. Now that I am a so-called dealer, I still get the same kick trying to find items for other collectors, who are all my friends. Don't you agree, you make so many friends collecting that it makes all worth while? Sure I love to sell, always did, but truly I have enjoyed this summer meeting so many people that I haven't seen for years, some from away back in the 30's when I went to Sherbrooke High. Again I have met collectors that have become very friendly and this I like, one reason I have enjoyed the flea markets so much this past summer.

For those of you who love coins, and have told me they wished I would write more about coins, here is a bit of news for you. The Royal Canadian Mint is issuing a $100 gold coin for 1978. The theme is national union, (what else?) and will cost $150 at the mint. If any of you wish me to get this for you, I shall be pleased to do so and will charge you 10 per cent commission. You do not have to send me all the money at once; send me a good deposit and as soon as they are received, they will be sent to you registered mail and you can pay the balance at that time. My first order is going in this week and I will make one more order of those that are ordered from me during the next two weeks. Last year's $100 gold coin is now worth over $210, so the investment chances are good as long as gold continues to climb in value. Don't delay if you would like one.

The Stamp Clubs will be starting up, both the French one in Sherbrooke and the Lennoxville Collectors Club and then I am almost certain that there is to be one in Knowlton. The first meeting I believe will be held in the Legion Hall on Monday night, September 25. I will let you know more later when I get the final word.

If any of you have any Canadian silver dollars that you want to dispose of, please get in touch. Years that I need for the most part are the 1930's, 1940's and some of the 1950's. The 1960's I have complete but one cannot keep selling without buying and I have sold a lot this past month.

As I sit here on Labor Day writing this, I see my week is full of things to do and places to go. I find retirement great, except I just can't fill all the demands that are made on me. I love it. I do like to play pool once in a while but that too has to wait for some free time.

All the new coloured catalogues have been exchanged now and it is a piece of art. You can also find out the value of each plate block you have or may need, which is something that has been missing for the other catalogues of late.

Please get your orders in for the items you want for the winter, including your supplements for your different stamp albums. These will have to be ordered shortly and I seldom have spares around. I have so many that take them from year to year and they are sure of getting them first so they can mount their stamps of the past year early in the New Year.

Get your order in for one of the new Charlton catalogues for your coins, paper money or tokens. Each is a different catalogue this year and the cost is only $2.75 plus postage. More are expected in a week or so, as I completely sold out at the Ayer's Cliff fair and sent another order in immediately. I had only ordered one on Tokens as I thought no one in this area was too interested in Tokens. I was wrong. I sold it in Hatley so as soon as that one comes in I have to mail it out. Next time I need an order I will get two - and then no one will ask again this year.

All for this week. If you have any questions, please write me at P.O. Box 83, Dixville, Que. J0B 1P0.

Ottawa Exhibition hosts Osmonds

The Osmonds, the famous recording and T.V. family were in Ottawa recently to entertain at the Ottawa Exhibition.

On Sunday, August 27th, they held a Press Conference, prior to the church services, at the Ottawa chapel of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon). This conference was held primarily to allow the press to interview them, take pictures and discuss their new TV show. The Osmonds do not encourage cameras or recorders to be used when they participate in church services.

Their new show this year which appears locally on Ch. 8 and 12 Friday evenings will be called The New Donny and Marie Show and will include a whole new format.

Donny mentioned that the skating segment of the show has gone this year to be replaced by a group of dancers, eight women and four men. Each week the show will be different and so diversified that the audience will not be able to predict the skits or musical numbers. Their popular Country-Rock segment is gone, but Marie assured us they will include it from time to time. The first show of the season includes appearances by Bob Hope, Olivia Newton-John, K.C. and the Sunshine Band and others.

Donny and Marie also discussed their movie which they just finished filming in Hawaii for release in October. It is called "Going Coconuts" and is a light, family type comedy.

Four of the famous Osmond Brothers singing group, Alan, Wayne, Merrill and Jay discussed their newly constructed recording, T.V. and movie studios in Utah. Apparently there was much opposition from show business executives when the family decided to pull out of Los Angeles and move their working area back home to Utah. Due to the high calibre of their shows and stage performances, the best in writers, directors and technicians of all kinds, is required. The move was expected to cause a great deal of friction because the amount of travelling time required by these people would be extensive, and they all lived and worked out of the Los Angeles area. However, the opposite reaction has been experienced. Once their co-workers became involved in the life-style of Utah, the beauty and serenity of the Teton mountains; many of them with their families pulled stakes in California and moved to Utah. As Donny put it when asked about "The flashy Hollywood style" - "We prefer the flashy Utah style".

It was pointed out to the Osmonds that we hear and read in the media so many things attributed to them and to Donny and Marie in particular, which many of us know are not true. They are misquoted, statements are taken directly out of context, probably for sensationalism, and negative remarks made concerning their lifestyle and religion. One of the brothers said that it was very difficult for the family to handle this kind of press, but "you have to let it roll off your back" - just keep going and hope that most people won't believe these unkind and untrue articles.

Following the Press Conference Olive Osmond (mother), Wayne, Merrill, Jay, Alan, Jimmy, Debbie (Donny's wife), Donny and Marie, held two Fireside meetings at the church and then to continue their busy schedule, they left for Toronto where they appeared at the Toronto Exhibition.
