University of Sherbrooke medical residents take oath

SHERBROOKE

The Faculty of Medicine and Health Sciences of the University of Sherbrooke celebrated the end of the medical training program for its resident students, Thursday with a ceremony, which marks the end of studies and the beginning of practice at the Centre Culturel of the University of Sherbrooke before almost 500 people who witnessed the graduates take the doctor's oath.

In total, 175 people completed their studies in 2013. Of these, there are 101 family doctors and 74 in other specialties. Of the 102 graduates at the ceremony, 86 have chosen to practice in Quebec; the others have not confirmed their place of practice.

"The swearing-in ceremony is a solemn and moving event. It marks the change of status from resident to doctor after long years of work and reminds the new doctors, surrounded by their colleagues and their families, they are bound by legal, moral and ethical obligations," said Dr. Pierre Cossette, dean of the Faculty of Medicine and

The Sherbrooke Chamber of Commerce, having experienced success in the city with its local loyalty-card program "Priorité Sherbrooke," is exporting the system to the cities of Laval and Lévis. The program was the brainchild of former chamber of commerce President Serge Audet, who stated Thursday morning that the card has seen 150,000 transactions of an average of $50 on the 30,000 cards in circulation, resulting in a local asset turnover of $7.5 million.

"Sometimes it felt like a nightmare, but in the end it turns out that it was a dream, and a good one," Audet said, speaking of the effort to connect small local businesses into a mutually beneficial network.

Audet spoke of having wanted to link different kinds of commerce together in order to be able to gather data and build community connection like

SQ to up presence over long weekend

SHERBROOKE

The Sûreté du Québec will increase the presence of its officers on the entire road network during the first long weekend of the summer, La Fête Nationale.

The police will target four principal road safety issues: speed, impaired driving, seat belts, and cell phone use.

Each year, during long holiday weekends, the roads are scene to fatalities or injuries that put a tragic end to the holidays for many Quebec families.

By being cautious and planning out their trips, drivers can significantly reduce the risk of being involved in a fatal collision or seriously injured. In planning trips, it is important to set realistic deadlines for reaching destinations within the speed limits.

During the Fête Nationale holiday in 2012, four people died in four accidents on the Estrie territory of the Sûreté du Québec. In addition, the main causes of traffic fatalities in 2012, were reckless driving and speed.

Throughout the summer, prevention messages and video clips on police work will be posted by the Police on various communications platforms. The public is invited to visit the Facebook page and follow the Sûreté du Québec on Twitter to not miss anything.

SQ deploys nautical squad

Under the pilot project on tourism and recreation service the Sûreté du Québec Eastern Townships Water Patrol has begun its interventions on the lakes in the region. Some notices of violation have already been issued to offenders.

The police would like to advise the public that special attention will be paid to the following:

- the requirement to have a life jacket for each person on board the boat ($200 fine, plus costs);
- the need to have a person who stands vigil at an activity involving the towing of a person by the boat, including water skiing and pneumatic tubes ($250 fine, plus costs);
- the obligation for the person steering the boat to meet the BAC under the Criminal Code, otherwise he or she could face criminal charges.

In addition, any person who steers a motorized boat must have proof of competency which certifies that he or she knows the rules and knows how to ride a boat safely. This rule also applies to boats and vessels that are equipped with a small outboard motor.

Under the Merchant Shipping Act, police have the power to expel a water craft and its occupant which does not respect the law or whose lack of equipment or behaviour provides a security risk.

The Sûreté du Québec also reminds citizens that, under the new recreation and tourism service, police presence at all levels in the waters of the district of the Eastern Townships will be multiplied so that water activities are well supervised for the safety of all.

Magog adopts an eco-friendly events policy

Record Staff
MAGOG

The municipal council of the Town of Magog last Monday adopted a sustainable events policy that is available on the Magog website.

The sustainable events policy defines the basic principles and actions that aim to reduce the environmental impact of events held in Magog, taking into account social and economic aspects. It determines the obligations of event organizers who use collective resources such as parks and municipal infrastructure as well as water and electricity provided by the town. It also provides guidance to sponsors of these events and encourages the commitment of participants.

The policy defines four stages in an event, each with its environmental responsibility requirements; commitment, implementation, performance, and 'performance plus,' which corresponds to obtaining certification by the Quebec Bureau of Standards.

Another section of the document identifies the level required by the town for each site. Thus, for example, a higher level of environmental responsibility will be required for events at Merry Point than for those in the Memphremagog Library.

The Environment Division of the town is responsible for implementing this policy and coordinator Elyse Ménard says that "event organizers will receive the support of a sustainable events counselor from the planning stage and the town will also provide their awareness tools."

Vicki May Hamm, Mayor of Magog states that "the sustainable events policy fits perfectly in keeping with our strategic direction, which provides for the implementation of sustainable practices and is part of a series of actions undertaken over several years by the Town of Magog to protect and improve the quality of our environment on several fronts at once. Gatherings at events generate very interesting economic benefits and a surprising amount of waste and sometimes excessive water and electricity use, not to mention greenhouse gas emissions. As Magog wants both to continue to hold these celebrations and preserve its natural assets, it must encourage and assist event organizers in their efforts towards environmental responsibility."

Councillor Diane Pelletier, Chair of the Committee on the Environment, added that "the citizens of Magog are already involved in the collection of recyclables and organic materials to reduce the volume of waste sent to landfills. It is in the nature of things that the town make every effort to ensure that events that take place on its territory are heading in the same direction as the daily effort required from the population."

Hamm adds that "the town and event organizers go to great lengths for environmental responsibility and hope for the cooperation of those who participate in the festivals offered in our area because it is essential to achieve our goals. Just take the time to waste as little as possible, to put your waste in the correct containers, and arrive on bike or on foot, if you can. As is often said, every little bit counts. We count on you to help the Town of Magog become a leader in holding sustainable events in Quebec."

Those wishing to consult the policy document, can find it on the website at www.ville.magog.qc.ca Those who want a hard copy can contact the Environment Division at the Centre for Public Works and Technical Services, 520 rue Saint-Luc or by phone at 819 843-6501 ext. 548.

larger chain stores are able to do. By creating "Priorité Sherbrooke," Audet said, the businesses of the city have entered into a system of mutual support and great benefit.

"Priorité Sherbrooke" works as a customer loyalty card. Cardholders get a percentage (either one or two per cent) of the value of their purchases at participating local businesses on their card as credit. That credit is then usable by the cardholder at any of the other member businesses. Currently there are 107 participating locations within the greater Sherbrooke area.

Claude Denis, a native of Weedon and Sherbrooke business owner was present at the announcement to witness to the value of the program.

"I'm sold on buying local" Denis said, pointing out that he is both a card holder and the owner of a participating business. "I was in the first round of those who signed up, because I saw the potential of the program."

Both Denis and Audet bragged at the money they've accumulated on their cards, with Audet claiming an accumulated $890, and Denis stating that he has gathered as much money on the card in one year as he has with his Air Miles card in a decade.

The Lévis and Laval programs will be separate from the Sherbrooke loyalty card but will still benefit the Sherbrooke community, according to Audet, because the components the other communities will be using are produced in Sherbrooke.

"It's a made in Sherbrooke project," the former president said.

Jean-Philippe Grondin, the President of Lévis' chamber of commerce was on hand at Thursday's announcement.

"Buying local is an engine for the creation of wealth," Grondin said, "it is essential that we use the Priorité program as a method of encouraging it."

The Sherbrooke chamber of commerce is in discussion with even more municipal chambers, and is hoping to have several more communities sign on to the model before the end of the year, according to Audet. He specifically mentioned the communities of Chicoutimi and Prescott-Russell, in Ontario, as examples of municipalities that are likely to sign on in the coming weeks or months.

More information on the "Priorité Sherbrooke" program, including a list of participating local businesses and where to get a card, is available in French on their website: <http://www.prioritesherbrooke.ca/>

ACKNOWLEDGING A BUILDER OF DEMOCRACY

Quebec lost one of the builders of its democracy last Monday with the passing of Pierre F. Côté. He was the province's chief electoral officer from 1978 to 1997. He had a clear vision for the Directeur général des élections du Québec (DGE), the forward-thinking institution he shaped. He was responsible for major improvements in the conduct of Quebec elections and how the right to vote is exercised.

Pierre F. Côté had high standards for the democratic ideal. Armed with strong convictions and a resolute drive, he made the Directeur général des élections du Québec an independent institution that is respected both at home and around the world. The employees at the DGE would like to add their voice in acknowledging Mr. Côté's work and in paying him their respects.

Demers assumes CRE presidency

Record Staff

The directors of the Regional Conference of Elected officials (CRE) of the Eastern Townships elected Memphremagog Prefect Jacques Demers as their new President at their regular meeting on June 19.

The election comes after the announcement of the resignation of Maurice Bernier who has held the position since 2009. Bernier will continue to serve on the board as Prefect of the MRC du Granit until the municipal elections in November.

"I sincerely thank the members of the Board of Directors for their trust and continued collaboration," Bernier said. "It was an honour to chair this unique and important regional development organization and to be its spokesman. I note with pride that together we have built an organization whose credibility is recognized among our partners, at both the regional and national levels. We can also say that we have contributed in an outstanding way to the enhancement of our sense of what an extraordinary region the Estrie is."

"I hope that the new president can take the summer to soak up the key issues and thus be able to cope with the many critical challenges that confront our organization over the coming months. I assure Mr. Demers my full cooperation. He has earned my support and I am sure he has all the qualities to support the organization well. When I finally leave the CRE, I will keep a lasting memory of those who have accompanied us during my tenure," Bernier added.

"I want to sincerely thank Mr. Bernier for his commitment to the CRE in the Eastern Townships and the development of the whole region," said Marie-Helene Wolfe, executive director of the CRE. "His leadership, his great political significance and unifying qualities have enabled us to position the CRE with partners in the Eastern Townships, particularly in the context of the process surrounding the preparation of the 2013-2018 Development Plan. Mr. Bernier was also at the heart of the creation of a new network of regional conferences of Quebec elected officials, occupying the position of spokesman. Finally, I think I can be the voice of the directors and members of the task force, in saying that it was very pleasant to work with a president like Maurice."

"I hope to take up the torch with the same spirit of cooperation, consultation and engagement that has emerged from the preparation of the new Development Plan of the Eastern Townships," said new President Demers.

"It is with humility and confidence to be able to contribute significantly to the development of the entire region of the Eastern Townships that I accept these new functions," he added.

dozen works of art have already been submitted.

"The variety is surprising," says Mark Patterson. "We've received some very artistic photographs, a couple of oil paintings, pencil drawings, and even some unusual pieces done in wood. Some of the work is definitely very interesting."

"What is also surprising," adds Bev, "is the fact that we've received eight-by-eights from places surprisingly far away: France and the Netherlands!"

While it is expected that the majority of the works which will be sold will come from amateurs with an artistic bent, the Society has already received artistic contributions from working artists. "Claude Poirier, who is associated with the Gallerie Double V in Valcourt, and who has had his work exhibited as far away as New York and Edinburgh, has already contributed some pieces. We've also received some very nice paintings from Viviane Leblanc, who is from Magog and who has participated in a number of exhibitions," Simon points out.

"It's still early and we hope to receive works by other artists in the region," Mark adds.

Funds raised by the RCHS will be used to effect much needed repairs and improvements to the Society's museum located at 1296 Rte. 243 in Melbourne.

With the recent launch of a web site, the Eight-x-Huit project of the Richmond County Historical Society is one step closer to its final objective. The project is the brainchild of a small committee which, among others, includes Beverly Taber-Smith, Simon Langeveld, and Mark Patterson.

"This is a rather unusual fundraising project," says RCHS president Beverly Taber-Smith, "and we've had a very enthusiastic response so far."

"We're asking people in the community as well as people further afield to take part," she explains, "especially if they harbour an artistic streak. We're inviting people to create works of art in any medium, from metal to macramé, but to respect two criteria, that the work measure eight inches by eight inches, and that it not be signed. All the artwork will be sold at a Gala event on September 27, and at that time the artists will be revealed and will sign their works on request."

"We're very pleased that Mark Patterson was able to set up the web site," says Simon Langeveld, "because it's the easiest way to let people see the works which will be up for sale in September. When we receive a piece of artwork, it's photographed for the web site before being put into safe storage. People will be able to see all artwork on sep. 27, but the web site gives everyone a sneak preview of sorts."

Major pot bust in East Bolton

Late Wednesday, investigators from the Sûreté du Québec of the Memphremagog MRC conducted a search for drugs on a property on Sugarloaf Pond Road in East Bolton.

An anonymous tip led police to initiate an investigation a few months ago that led to the arrest of a 35-year old man, who was found in possession of a large quantity of cannabis. Police seized more than 48 kilograms of cannabis in various forms, 77 seedlings and cuttings, 250 grams of magic mushrooms, and a firearm and ammunition.

Elements at the scene tend to show that the suspect, with no criminal record for drug offences, has been producing cannabis for some time. He faces various charges for trafficking and possession of a prohibited weapon.

Pizzeria owners welcome lower cheese prices

By Stephen McDougall
Special to The Record
RICHMOND

Two owners of popular pizzerias are surprised but happy to learn they could soon see cheaper prices for the cheese they put on their pizzas.

"It will certainly help my bottom line and allow me to offer more specials to customers," said Marcel Neron, owner of Richmond Pizza.

"We have been trying to hold down our prices, but the cost of cheese kept going up and eating into our profit. Now, we have some more leeway."

Rejean Lallier, co-owner of Pizza Plus in Danville, said the price reduction will help him compete against other restaurants that chose to reduce their use of cheese to keep their prices down.

"We use a lot of quality cheese in our pizzas, but the price is higher," he said.

"I was not aware of this reduction, but if it comes soon, our restaurant may become more competitive on prices."

Neron and Lallier were surprised to learn that the Canadian Dairy commission had agreed earlier this month to reduce the price of milk needed to produce the special cheeses such as mozzarella that make up many pizzas made in Canadian restaurants. This after years of lobbying by the Canadian Restaurant and Food Services association, which argued milk prices needed to come down at least 30 per cent to equal a similar discount long given to makers of Canadian frozen pizzas.

"Our members are finding it hard to compete against frozen pizzas because of the high price of cheese," said Garth Whyte, head of the association, based in Toronto.

"The restaurant owners are now calling the mozzarella cheese they put on their pizzas white gold."

The cheese prices – a 300-gram cheddar block regularly goes for $7 – are controlled by the high price for milk, which is its main ingredient. The milk prices are controlled by a rigid production quota system, with the retail price set by the federal dairy commission in Ottawa.

The quota system was set up in Canada in the 1950s to protect small dairy farmers, most of them in Quebec and Ontario, from fluctuating milk prices that threatened their long-term revenue. Today, the number of dairy farms protected under the quota system is about 13,000.

But the system has been criticized for eliminating competition and keeping milk prices too high for the average consumer.

"More and more people today cannot afford to buy milk and cheese and other dairy products," argued Whyte.

Canadian cheese prices are also protected by a high import tariff of 246 per cent, which keeps lower priced alternatives from the U.S. and Europe out, according to the Conference board of Canada, an economic think tank.

The change in milk prices for pizzerias was partly caused by a recent increase in foreign mozzarella cheese being imported to Canada. The cheese would bypass the tariff by being included in duty free packages of pepperoni sold to large pizzeria chains.

Lallier said the cheese he buys from local supplier Chaudier costs $20 for a 2-kilogram package.

"It is the highest cost I have to pay and the most expensive element of our pizzas."

Neron was not aware of the high tariff wall on imported cheese, but knew about the marketing boards that controlled the price of milk.

"My brother is a farmer and he's made a lot of money from the boards," he said.

"But that meant the rest of us paid a higher price for our milk and our cheese. It's all about controlling the price, but it means I make a lot less money."

Neron said he uses on average 50 kilograms of cheese a week in the meals he serves. In the past three years, he said the price for cheese has doubled.

"We had to increase the prices of our pizzas alone by about 15 per cent to help pay for those increases," he said.

"Now, I hope to hold the line on those prices and maybe offer some half price or two-for-one specials."

But the same price discount will not be offered to cheese buyers at grocery stores.

Commission official Chantal Paul said it is difficult to roll back prices for store-bought cheese because the wholesale and retail prices are not regulated.

"It is the milk that is regulated, not what is made from it," she said from her Ottawa office.

"It is up to the grocery markets to determine the cheese prices."

Pedophile fired as Magog firefighter

Record Staff

Magog firefighter and convicted pedophile Bruno Henry has been formally dismissed from his duties as a part-time firefighter for the Town of Magog.

The Magog Town Council adopted a resolution at its last meeting to break the employment relationship with the 53-year old following his conviction for criminal acts in connection with the possession and production of juvenile pornography.

The former firefighter settled his accounts with the law on June 11. Henry was convicted for using three teenagers in sexual games he filmed between September 2009 and July 2012.

Henry pleaded guilty to charges of production of child pornography, possession of child pornography, incitement to sexual contact while he was in a position of trust, and sexual touching.

Held between the time of his arrest in July 2012 and its release in December, Henry will have to serve another 25 months in prison.

Software installed on Henry's computer by an acquaintance led to the discovery of his crimes. Videos of victim impact statements and the search of computer equipment belonging to Henry were offered to support the evidence.

Henry also pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice and breach of conditions laid in early June. He was arrested after he encouraged his son to ask one of the victims not to testify against him.

Following his arrest in July 2012, the Town of Magog had said it did not feel the need to suspend Henry since he was detained. After his release on conditions in December 2012, Henry was suspended without pay by the Mayor of Magog-Vicky May Hamm before the suspension was maintained by council.

The human resources department of the Town of Magog told Henry on June 13 its intention to end its employment relationship with him.

Henry was formally fired by council resolution Monday.

Venture capital gathering held in Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE

Sherbrooke was host Thursday to leaders in the field of venture capital, at the Rendezvous des capitaux de risque, organized in collaboration with Sherbrooke Innopole Capital Network. The event, which aims to demystify the operation and implications of this type of financing and to stimulate the creation of new partnerships, brings together nearly 100 participants from the field of business.

A dozen major speakers gave talks at the event, including Jack Chadirdjian (CEO of Capital Network), François Gilbert (Anges Québec), Anne-Marie Larose (President and CEO MSBiV and Valeo Management), Chris Arsenault (CEO of iNovia Capital), Jacques Bernier (president Teralys), Antoine Michaud (Investment Director of Tandem Expansion), Marie-France Audet (Director of Financial Services, Sherbrooke Innopole) and Roland Léger (Director, Investissement Desjardins-Innovatech). The topics of presentations covered all funding opportunities in venture capital, from pre-marketing to grand investment strategies.

"Entrepreneurs are often in search of funding, whether for the commercialization of a technology with great potential, the latest phases of research and development, a promising market penetration, or other growth-generating projects. Venture capital can be considered an interesting option that applies to any type of business. An event such as this meets the needs of companies to help them position themselves in relation to venture capital and to find out whether this is an avenue to which they can go," says Marie-France Audet, director of financial services at Sherbrooke Innopole.

Methane is 22 times more potent than carbon dioxide as a global warming agent if you spread out the effects over a hundred years, but 105 times more damaging on a 200 year scale.

The sleeping giant

By Francois Tanguay

It covers over a quarter of the exposed land mass of the Northern hemisphere, acts as a massive carbon bank and yet we hardly ever notice it's there. Permafrost, this area of frozen land that covers most of the arctic and a sizeable chunk of our nation, is now seen as a source of global warming with a unique clout.

As climate changes and warms the earth, the poles are becoming the most vulnerable of all regions. Literally frozen in time for millenia, there are within these frozen toundras massive amounts of carbon. The numbers are mind boggling. The arctic permafrost has potentially five times the amount of carbon emitted by humans since the mid 1850's. According to NASA half of the soil secluded carbon on the planet is stored in permafrost alone. Since this area has become ground zero for global warming, heating up at an alarming rate in the last 30 years, humanity has to be concerned with the impacts that would result from an acceleration of this literal melt down. Permafrost is now somewhat of a misnomer, since it is expected that within a dozen years or so, it will be a net emitter of global warming emissions rather than a long term deposit bank.

All the signals are clear, even deep below the frost line there are signs that something is wrong with the most fragile ecosystem on the planet. It is estimated by NASA that, just from the permafrost, we will probably face an additional 1.5 to 2 degrees of global warming before the year 2100. Add this to the already, taken for granted, 1.5 to 3 degree warming due to our rising emissions, and we have an environmental nightmare in the making.

Methane emissions over swamps have reached a level compared to large city levels. What is really scary is that there are historical references to stand by. This is not speculation from a 'gang of gung-ho environmentalists.' The scientists on the ground are comparing what they find to the information stored in the ice cores that give us a pretty exact picture of climate evolution over the last 600, 000 years. What they find does not compare with the patterns their empirical models teach them. NASA says that what they have observed is amazing and potentially troubling. Coming from very careful people when it comes to affirmations, I would say they are pushing the panic button.

We have to keep in mind that methane is 22 times more potent than carbon dioxide as a global warming agent if you spread out the effects over a hundred years, but 105 times more damaging on a 200 year scale. What all this means is that as we reach the capacity of the oceans to absorb excess carbon, something will have to give somewhere.

In preparing for the next United Nations Summit on climate change to be held in Warsaw from November 11 to 22, I have been catching up on reports of all sorts and even more on the pre-summit meetings. Again it could be a very frustrating two weeks come November, but there have been signs of progress. For one China and the USA have actually begun to get serious about capping their emissions. China is implementing a major carbon market aimed at constraining major emitters in their contribution to global warming. The United States have turned to natural gas from shale to reduce their emission related to coal used for the production of electricity. The contribution of coal to electric power has gone down in the US from over 45 per cent to under 35 per cent in less than ten years. This bodes well for serious major wording in the coming agreements on global warming.

One thing is for sure, the Arctic will not get any colder for a long while, so we will have to compensate somewhere else for the rising methane emissions from up North.

Letters

DEAR EDITOR:

This letter pertains to my recent stay at the CHUS, Hospital Fleurimont.

In the late afternoon of June 2, I was in extreme pain because a procedure which should have been done had not been done. The procedure was nearly two hours overdue. I told the attending nurse that if something was not done soon about the intense pain, I would jump out of the 8th floor window and she would get her name in the paper the following day. She told me she had not had any luck trying to contact my doctors and could do nothing without a doctor's order. Remembering something from a previous experience, I told her to phone "Internal Medicine." A stunned look came across her face. She left the room and returned within five minutes. She now had permission to do the procedure and I was fine again within a very short period of time.

I guess patients still have rights but why did it have to go as far as it did? Something is very wrong with the system ... somewhere!

Outside of this incident I was treated with excellent care and respect and language was not an issue.

DEAR EDITOR:

Congratulations to The Record on the first article (FMHS a well-kept secret in anglophone community - page 9; Wednesday June 19), in what is promised to be a series of articles on the Faculty of Medicine of the University de Sherbrooke. It is a laudable effort and I look forward to reading the others as they appear.

Best wishes,

Is a rose still a rose?

STEVEN BLACK

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose, by any other name would smell as sweet; so Romeo would, were he not Romeo call'd."

This famous line from Romeo and Juliet (2, I, 85) comes to mind in the wake of some strange turns in popular attitude and public policy on the definitions of marriage and gender. It seems that with a mere wave of the hand and swish of a pen marriage and gender can be remade into something other than that which has been mostly evident across cultures and time – until now. However, because certain people have felt hurt and discriminated against by the nature of the things, the things must then be redefined.

Shakespeare knew that "a rose is a rose is a rose" anticipating Gertrude Stein's seemingly obvious statement. The thing called a "rose" has certain qualities and parameters that cannot be changed simply by changing the label. This natural observation seems not to apply any longer today. It is as if the members of the Snapdragon Club of America felt embarrassed and excluded by Rose Lovers International and insisted that their Snapdragons be renamed "Rose" and thus they should be welcomed. Of course this was only optional for the Snapdragon Club members. They could maintain "Snapdragon" if they wished but no equal freedom would exist for the Rose Lovers. They would now be compelled by law to accept Snapdragons into their meetings and greenhouses and to gladly affirm that the Snapdragons in their decision to self-identify as a rose made it so. Waiting in the wings are members of the Kennel Club who feel excluded and hurt because they have beagles and not roses.

"That's ridiculous" some readers will say, anticipating my point. "Of course it is," I agree. But that is exactly what is happening today about some fundamental realities of human existence and interaction that we once understood as self-evident. The marriage thing, for example, seems a lost cause today.

A deliberate and successful strategy has effectively erased those qualities of marriage once cherished and protected by the state. Marriage was understood to be a man and a woman in a committed long term relationship with the biological potentiality of producing and raising children between them and that these children would be raised by their biological parents in a stable family unit. The exceptions of age or difficult physical issues making procreation unlikely did not erase the agreement that there was something special, by design of a Creator, in the union of a man and a woman. Today, by simply saying "it is so" society has essentially erased the special distinctiveness of that relationship so that those choosing another kind can be called, "married" if they so choose. Watch as this swish of the pen opens the logical door to polygamy and other kinds of relationships claiming the same rights and protection. To do so is logical given the current premise that marriage is only a social construct open to individual interpretation. Also, the belief that all alternative relationships should receive the same rights and respect of all society members including the title "marriage" itself is established in principle if not in law. This battle appears to have been won by the, "a snapdragon can be made a rose simply by saying so" club.

More recently we have faced the matter of gender identity. Already some are arguing that the gender identity indicated on passports and driver's licenses are out of date and discriminatory. One's gender, many have accepted including the government, is no longer determined by the parts one has physically or the function they could play in producing offspring. Instead, gender has been redefined as a matter of one's deeply held convictions and feelings. How deeply they must be felt is yet to be determined, nevertheless, a biological male feeling inside that he is in fact a female must be accepted as such. Furthermore, gender identity has become a matter of preference based on certain sexual behaviors instead of the biological potential for reproduction one has at birth and by design. Again, we seem to have decided gender identity is a matter of choice and personal definition and no matter how confusing this might be at times we are all compelled to accept the declaration of an individual or whatever combination of individual, doctor and state are determined to be definitive. Thus we are seeing challenges to sex-based washrooms, social clubs, sports teams and even official documents.

Some parents have chosen not to identify their child as boy or girl, preferring to leave that up to the child itself at some future date. We can only imagine the confusion that will come when people insist that their gender is something that is other than their outward appearance. Officials of sports competitions must decide whether such applicants can compete as equals. Pity the border official scrutinizing the passport and noticing certain physical discrepancies between evident biology and documented gender.

Sadly, the special qualities of what were once called "rose" or "man" or "woman" are no longer cherished as such based on physical design. Rose-lovers, male-men and female-women are left no longer able to celebrate the uniqueness of their persons because we have decided to make it no longer legal or moral to do so because it limits others from joining the club who wish to. Essentially we have reshaped a society where not only labels themselves like "Rose" are fluid, but the thing that makes the rose uniquely sweet is no longer to be recognized and celebrated for what it is. I don't know why a rose can't be celebrated as such and a snapdragon as its own thing.

Juliet's lament makes no sense for today's sensibilities. Instead, perhaps, she should be educated to say, "A rose by calling it snapdragon, might look like a rose, feel like a rose and smell like a rose, but now has become a snapdragon." Far less artful, but politically correct. I'm sure that Shakespeare could come up with something more convincing. Too bad for the rose, though.

Saint-Benoît-du-Lac cheese wins major Quebec award

Saint-Benoît-du-Lac Monastery has been awarded a prize from Selection Caseus Quebec at the 15th edition of the Quebec fine cheese contest for its Le Moine firm ripened cheese.

Brother Patrick Flageole, director of the abbey's cheese-making facilities enthused "Our goal is to provide expertise and impeccable quality in our products to satisfy our customers. I was present at the festival of fine cheeses in Victoriaville last week where I saw real consumer enthusiasm for our products. Their faith in us is precious and I thank them. We are also very flattered to receive this award. I for one am very pleased that the best Quebec Swiss cheese is made at the Abbey of Saint-Benoît-du-Lac! I sincerely want to thank our team, which works hard every day to ensure the quality of our products and to provide our customers with the best products possible. Congratulations to all the employees of the fromagerie for a prize they can be proud of."

The abbey has recently received several awards, including first prize at the Royal Agricultural Fair in 2012 and a first prize at the British Empire Cheese Show 2012.

Memphremagog Police out for blood

The Memphremagog Police Board, in collaboration with the Police Association, and local volunteers, will be holding their first blood donor clinic this Friday June 28, in the basement of Saint Jean Bosco church located at 900 Sherbrooke Street in Magog. The blood drive will be held under the patronage of Honorary President Romain Mercier, 5, a recipient of over 60 blood transfusions. The doors will open at 10:30 a.m. and will remain so until 8 p.m. Organizers are hoping to receive 20,180 donors.

Every summer, 1,000 blood donations are needed every day to meet the demand from hospitals in the province, where someone needs blood every 80 seconds. As blood products have a limited shelf life, it is important to ensure the Quebec blood supply is sufficient.

Any healthy person aged 18 or older who meets Hema-Quebec eligibility criteria can donate blood every 56 days, or six times a year. It is advisable to have eaten and be well hydrated before coming to the clinic.

To verify eligibility to donate blood, you can call 1 800 847-2525 or visit the Hema-Quebec website under the 'Doner' tab.

Loonie tumbles to below 97 cents US

By Malcolm Morrison
The Canadian Press

The Canadian dollar tumbled again Thursday and appeared headed for a two-day drop of more than a full U.S. cent in the wake of a hint from the U.S. Federal Reserve that it's moving closer to slowing a key piece of economic stimulus.

The loonie was down 0.64 of a cent to 96.41 cents US at midday on top of a six-tenths of a cent slide Wednesday. The greenback and U.S. bond yields advanced after the Fed said Wednesday that it will maintain the pace of its bond purchases for now, which amount to buying US$85 billion of bonds every month.

But it offered a more optimistic outlook for the U.S. economy and job market, which could be a signal that the program known as quantitative easing may soon be scaled back. But the statement issued after the Fed's two-day policy meeting gave no indication of when that might happen.

The Canadian dollar was also pressured by commodity prices, driven down by the higher U.S. currency and demand concerns amid weak Chinese economic data.

A higher U.S. dollar pressures commodities because a stronger greenback makes it more expensive for holders of other currencies to buy oil and metals which are dollar-denominated.

HSBC said that the preliminary version of its monthly purchasing managers index for China fell to a nine-month low of 48.3 in June, down from 49.6 in May. Numbers below 50 indicate a contraction in the manufacturing sector.

June factory output decreased, a reversal from gains in the month before, while new export orders and new orders overall decreased at a faster rate.

Bullion tumbled with the August contract falling $77.70 to US$1,296.30, below the key $1,300 level for the first time in nearly three years. Aggressive monetary stimulus programs by central banks have supported gold prices since the 2008 financial crisis and subsequent recession, partly because of worries about inflation.

Prices have eroded as the global economic outlook continues to improve, albeit slowly.

Richmond hosts annual Expo Moto Renaissance

By Claudia Villemaire
Record Correspondent
MELBOURNE TOWNSHIP

Coming to Richmond Fairgrounds this weekend - the Annual Expo Moto Renaissance - the third annual event organized by the Canadian Vintage Motor Cycle Group, Townships division.

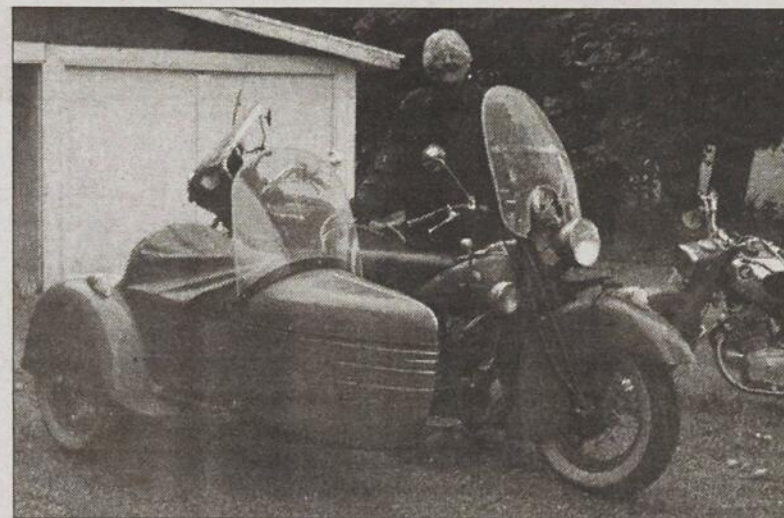

Opening Saturday and continuing through Sunday, organizers have lined up exhibitors kiosks featuring just about everything connected in some way to the motorcycle restoration buffs, and anyone wishing to come out and show off their talent at bringing these antique bikes back to life.

The Record visited one of the original organizers of the first show three years ago. Visiting the Johnston homestead in Melbourne Township revealed a dyed-in-the-cloth aficionado of antique bike restoration.

Billy Johnston has spent weeks, months and years restoring bikes once popular in the '40s. In this dooryard where hummingbirds flit from feeder to feeder, one doesn't expect to hear the roar of restored bikes, their power restrained respectfully while admiration for the precise work, genuine cycle parts and pieces and professional painting is explained.

"It took me several years to complete this one," Johnston says proudly, showing off the bright red Indian with its side car, a 1942 model he'll take to the show. "It wasn't the most comfortable ride back then," he admits, adding suspension and seats on today's modern bikes are completely improved. "But it still gives me a great ride and anyone brave enough to climb into the sidecar won't forget a tour around the country," he says, laughing.

Johnston remembers the first ride on a two-wheeled vehicle when he was barely higher than a 'grasshopper' he recalls. "I fell in love with them then, went to Montreal and worked several years for motorcycle dealers and repair shops, tried other types of work, (he's actually a millwright for industrial motors), but retired early and came home to my collection which has never stopped growing."

Johnston is looking forward to a bigger show than last year. "Over the weekend, between visiting cyclists and the exhibition itself, I estimate we had around 500 bikes over the two days. This year, we've sent invitations across North America to just about every magazine, club and organization we could find. And judging by the response, we're expecting record numbers of exhibitors and visitors."

Johnston also underlined, "the excellent facilities at the Richmond Fairgrounds where exhibitors will find ample space undercover for their precious machines. "Actually, a bit of rain doesn't bother us too much as we can take cover if the weather threatens," he adds.

There'll be a canteen on the grounds, activities and perhaps competitions such as the 'hot dog bite' or a slow race and several kiosks where enthusiasts can buy or swap. There's space for campers or tents for a fee and admission to the grounds is $5. Parking is free. For information, call Steve Lepitre - 819 875-3685 or check out the web site - www.expoantiquerichmond.com.

Also in Richmond this St Jean Baptiste weekend, organized activities on Main Street begin Saturday evening at 5:30 p.m. with bands, hot dogs with all the trimmings, dancing in the street and the 'feu de joie.'

Sunday is much the same beginning at 5:30 p.m. with snacks at supper time, music all evening capped with a fireworks display sponsored by the Town of Richmond and local commercial establishments. Once again, the 'feu de joie' will be a focal point. All the festivities are scheduled at the Municipal Park on main Street.

For the folks who take a more serious and contemplative approach to celebrating the patron saint of this province, a special St Jean Baptiste mass is scheduled at 11 a.m. on Monday, June 24 at St Bibiane Church, also on Main Street, just a bit further North down the street, followed by a traditional meal of pea soup and baked beans at the Salle Chevaliers de Colomb on Craig Street. There will be games for young folk and traditional music too. Dinner gets underway after the mass.

A strawberry Ice Cream Social on Saturday, June 22 at South Durham United Church begins at 2 p.m. and if a taste for sweets still lingers, another ice Cream Social is scheduled at the Farmers' Market behind the Melbourne Township hall on Sunday, June 23 beginning at 1 p.m. Organized by the Richmond Historical Society, the menu includes treats such as chocolate sauce, cakes and cookies, coffee and lemonade capped by a free visit to the museum nearby.

Career

DIRECTOR OF ADMISSIONS

Founded in 1836, Bishop's College School is one of Canada's preeminent co-educational independent boarding schools. Possessing Canada's largest per capita student endowment and consistently attracting promising students from across the country and around the globe, we are seeking an experienced, dynamic personality to lead our active recruitment and retention team.

The Director of Admissions is responsible for the leadership, programming, marketing, recruitment, evaluation and selection of new students as well as strategic initiatives designed to meet enrolment objectives. Interpersonally astute, authentic and fun, the successful candidate will have experience in recruitment, marketing and a proven track record in an independent school/admissions environment. Bilingualism (English/French) is a strong asset as is the awareness and understanding of disparate cultures. The ability to capitalize on new opportunities in a challenging enrolment environment is essential as BCS continues to build on our competitive advantages. Minimum requirements include a bachelor's degree in business, marketing, humanities, education or related field. Five or more years of progressive experience in successful recruitment and admissions roles, preferably in the independent market and strong written and oral communication skills are essential. This role will involve travel.

Reporting directly to the Head of School, this position serves on the senior administration team. A resume and letter of interest should be sent by July 3, 2013 to Wendy Johnson, wjohnson@bishopscollegeschool.com. Fax: 819-822-3886.

MAURICE SINGFIELD

STOP! TV doesn't mean stop TV! It means stop, look, listen and enjoy who we are. It starts with talented people willing to put our best foot forward, as a community, in a world obsessed with audio/video gadgets. What better way is there to promote ourselves? It involves not only producing content for TV, but for radio, the Internet and our Blu-ray/DVD/CD players.

Calling all audio/visual-arts nerds living in the Townships! It's time to unite and advance the cause of producing professionally packaged snapshots of who we are; product that is worthy of the attention of our communities and the world at large, thanks to modern technology.

Every day kids and adults alike are expressing themselves with modern multimedia capturing devices. Websites like Daily Motion and YouTube await our works of art, ready to cash in on the worldwide trend. After all, do you really think we, the plugged-in modern people of Earth, can resist the onslaught of advertising that exists today, pitching gizmos that can turn us into producers and stars?

There is however an advantage to be gained by this movement. People looking for ways to promote themselves can, with a bit of creativity, attract attention. And so can communities.

We, as community members, are actually at a point in time where we are left to our own devices, albeit electronic doohickeys, and maybe now is the time to do something for each other. Let's disconnect from the server responsible for downloading what others think we need, from time to time, and upload what we really feel for, and believe in, instead.

Community media such as TV and radio, in conjunction with the Internet, are available distributors of goodwill and aspirations. The thing is, it takes time and effort, doesn't happen overnight and requires self-confidence to understand and produce professional media content. STOP! TV is an organization ready to take on the challenge.

Jean Wiedrick, my good friend, musician extraordinaire and neighbour from across the street, asked me a couple of months ago if the STOP! team would be interested in capturing a show he is putting on, with his friend Pierre-michel Fontaine, at the Maison de la Culture here in Waterloo.

He has seen our work on TV and the Internet, and wants very much to have his vocal ensemble "Les VoiXins" promoted through STOP! TV's network of professionals and community media contacts. The concert will feature Queen's Bohemian Rhapsody. The show is tonight and tomorrow evening (21 and 22 of June) and we will be recording the concert for this September's STOP! show. For reservations and information please call 450-770-1288. Tickets are $15.

Also, you may contact us at 450-539-2098 if you have an interest in helping to produce local content for distribution over community cable TV and the Internet.

For the latest STOP! show go to youtube.com/mauricesify or check your local TV listings for MATv, channel 9 on the Videotron cable network in the Shesapeake and Brome Missisquoi regions.

Aaargh! Summer reading is killing me!

Good Reads

ELEANOR BROWN

Jon Scieszka writes books for young people — marvelous, twisted, hilarious stories often added to by the artwork of the calculating Lane Smith.

The equation begins with Math Curse (1995, blue dot). A little girl falls into the endless multiplication of math madness. "Why can't you just keep 10 cookies without someone taking three away? Why?" she wonders. And poof, the pupil's life is math-icized.

How many M&Ms would it take to measure the Mississippi? How many would you eat while measuring?

And what about pie? Pie eyes, pie charts, pie for lunch. Pie in the sky. But no pi.

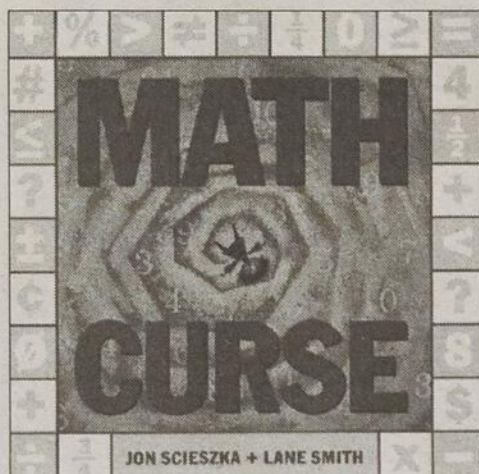

Wonderful fun. Especially if you're happily waving fractions goodbye for the summer (this book is a must-read for anyone who has to take math over again).

From there, lope over to the animal kingdom. Squids Will Be Squids: Fresh Morals, Beastly Fables (1998, also a blue dot book), updates Aesop's famed stories. As old Aesop discovered, it's best to change names when you spread gossip about your neighbours.

These are modern fables offering important life lessons for skateboarders and students who avoid homework. Like what not to say to your mom when she's freaking out. There's also farting and a list of the ingredients of beef jerky.

Scieszka and Smith follow along as children grow older, with the Time Warp Trio series. Joe, Sam and Fred are three kids given a Magical Book that zooms them about in time.

The library has four Time Warp stories, filed under a yellow dot. Begin with Your Mother Was A Neanderthal (1993). In 40,000 BC, three, er, naked boys appear to have had some sort of time travel misadventure. There's a tiny bit more math in here, as the concepts discovered by the Ancient Greek genius Archimedes help rescue the boys from prehistoric times.

Next, Tut Tut (1996), as The Book takes our heroes to Ancient Egypt. This time, little sister Anna and the family cat are accidentally caught in the green time mist.

The Book has only ever taken the boys back to historical events. But things go awry in Summer Reading Is Killing Me! (1998). A summer reading list gets pushed into The Book's pages, and the trio are dragged into a messy mish-mash of famous stories. "Dracula was dragging Winnie the Pooh in a headlock. Mr. Twit was breaking Harold's purple crayon." The bad guys are slowly capturing the goody-goodies; even Mary Poppins gets trussed up.

It's up to our heroes to outsmart The Boss, the baddest of them all, as he plots to rewrite the favourite books of generations of children. A summer reading list of books that are actually fun to read is enclosed. Yes, books that are Fun To Read. Promise.

Finally, check out It's All Greek To Me (1999), as the three are whisked away from their acting debut, and instead face an all-too-real three-headed Cerberus, guardian of Hades. Then Zeus gets annoyed, and things get worse.

These short reads make history come alive.

Much of Scieszka's work is marketed at boys who think they don't like to read. (His website www.guysread.com offers titles where things blow up real good.) Scieszka has also edited Guys Read: Funny Business (2010, in Young Adult), which features humorous tales of robots, crazy turkeys, best buds, and more.

And yes, girls and grown-ups can read these books too. Step into someone else's skin; it's a lot of fun.

The Lennoxville Library will read along with you. If you're aged 5 to 12, sign up for the TD Summer Reading Club. The program runs from July 3 to August 7, every Wednesday afternoon. This year's theme is Go! Explore Near And Far. Pop by the library for details.

novels and graphic novels.

If you are housebound, we can bring books to you through Books On Wheels. We also have Large-Print Books and Audio Books. Plus an Easy Reads section.

Gandolfini mourned in NJ towns where 'Sopranos' was filmed

By Wayne Parry
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A bag of uncooked ziti in the driveway, a "reserved" sign at the ice cream parlour booth where the series abruptly ended, and a framed photo at a strip club were among the tributes paid to James Gandolfini in the northern New Jersey communities where his TV character Tony Soprano lived, loved and whacked people.

The star of the HBO series about a mob boss with anxiety issues and a midlife crisis died Wednesday night in Italy of an apparent heart attack.

In neighbourhoods where "The Sopranos" was shot, Gandolfini was recalled Thursday with mixed emotions: a global star who made their communities famous, but sometimes at the expense of their reputations.

Vito Mazza, who was busily preparing for an Italian-American festival in Elizabeth this weekend, said the actor had local credibility.

"He was as Jersey as it gets, through and through," he said.

The "Sopranos" star was born and raised in New Jersey and attended Rutgers University. His character has become an indelible part of the state's global image, as much a part of New Jersey culture as tolled highways, smokestacks and crooked politicians.

Pete Canu, a limousine fleet owner who was sipping coffee in an Elizabeth butcher shop Thursday morning, said Tony Soprano was very realistic.

"He had frailties and failings; he was human, aside from all that gangster crap," Canu said. "A lot of people were offended by it. They say it makes it look like all Italian-Americans are mobsters, but people know we're not. We're just hardworking people who get up every day and do our jobs and provide for our families. It was just a TV show."

But the butcher shop's owner, John Sacco, said "The Sopranos" spread negative stereotypes about Italian-Americans far and wide.

He said when he went to a dentist in Florida and when he revealed he was from New Jersey, someone in the office said, "Oh, the place with all the mobsters!"

LeAnn Rimes wears her heart on her sleeve

New album, Spitfire, a testament to her artistry

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

When LeAnn Rimes first debuted at 13, the songs she sang were far above and beyond the understanding of such a young artist, though the impressive nature of her voice overshadowed that.

Now, there's a new album and after having lived through some very public hard times (divorce and falling in love with a married man) she co-writes songs that are some of the most honest lyrics to be featured on a country album.

We've seen what happens to women in country who make bold statements (The Dixie Chicks, Chely Wright), yet Rimes still wears her heart on her sleeve in such a soul-baring way, that it is truly impressive and admirable.

Many people will be quick to judge and dismiss this album because of her personal life as if they've never made a mistake or hurt someone else, but they don't have the courage that the singer does to honestly and openly talk about it.

This album is a testament to her artistry, and hopefully she finds another label, which can appreciate her huge talent and can market her better. Other than the fact that this entire album is about her most personal battles and her remarriage, it's a good album.

Maybe she should avoid singing about all her anxieties and tabloid wars and keep them private and let people think what they want, because it is no one's business but hers. There will be many different opinions on that matter; some will be able to only judge her talent!

Still the songs are about situations that could happen to anyone, and many fans will be able to relate just the same. We have been waiting a long time to get some new original material from Rimes so here it is!

"Spitfire" is a great song to start the album. Rimes obviously had a lot to say — so much so, she is spitting fire! The song is upbeat and includes some nice tongue-in-cheek and witty lyrics.

"What Have I Done" is the current single and is absolutely heartbreaking. The song is an apology from a young woman who "broke the sweetest heart of the only man that's ever loved her." This number will remain a favourite on the album.

On "Gasoline and Matches," Rimes pairs up with Rob Thomas and Jeff Beck. Thomas and Rimes complement each other beautifully. The least we can say is what an interesting choice in track listing position! After the apology of "What Have I Done," this rocking number is about how dangerous and hot it can be to mix gasoline and matches. Jeff Beck does some great guitar work here!

"Borrowed" is powerfully heartbreaking. The song is about a woman in love with another woman's man. She borrows him and hates herself for it, but doesn't want to give him back.

On "You Ain't Right" there is this unhappy housewife who has some things to say to her man. The song offers very witty lyrics. The ultra country sound is a fun change at this point in the album as well.

"Where I Stood" is a cover song done to perfection. The song mixes well with the others on this album and was expertly countrified. Rimes, continues to deliver well.

Brace yourself and get ready for banjo and steel guitar on the great and upbeat "Bottle." The lyrics are a little cliché and a little overly merry, but the song is

Gandolfini mourned

"It didn't show us in a real great light," he said.

At Satin Dolls, the real-life Lodi strip club that served as the fictional Bada Bing club in the show, employees put a framed photo of Gandolfini where he frequently sat, calling it "the boss's seat."

"It's like we lost a member of the family," spokesman Bill Pepe said. "Everybody is shocked."

Paul Pereira, of Lodi, stopped to put flowers on a sign in front of the club. He said the show gave a more nuanced picture of people involved in or somehow connected to the mob.

"It showed that these are real people, family people," Pereira said. "You notice that every episode ended with him with his family."

Thursday afternoon, a workman outside the club climbed a ladder and changed the club's marquee from "Bartenders Wanted" to "Thank You, Jimmy; Farewell Boss."

At Green Hill, the West Orange nursing home where scenes involving Tony's ailing mother were shot, executive director Toni Lynn Davis said the residents loved the show. Several even got hired as extras, and the show's payments helped buy a giant flat-screen TV on which they watched the show each week.

"They said it was their weekly vocabulary lesson," Davis said. "They learned all those new swear words."

She said the show has become part of the fabric of New Jersey.

"There are definitely parts of New Jersey that are very close to what was depicted," she said. "You can't go anywhere in New Jersey and not hear that the Sopranos was shot there. They went all over."

The house where Tony Soprano lived is in North Caldwell, and fans were stopping by to show their respects to Gandolfini. Michael Primamore, who lives nearby and whose family runs an auto repair business, left a bag of dried ziti next to the candles that sprouted in the driveway.

He said the show accurately reflected the experiences of his and other Italian-American families who settled in Newark before moving to the suburbs.

"The show was full of so many northern New Jersey Italian expressions, if you weren't raised in that world, you wouldn't get some parts of it," he said. "The show reached me on a personal level in so many ways."

Primamore said his reaction to Gandolfini's death was a lot like what Tony Soprano's would have been: "It's a tragedy. What are you gonna do?"

Associated Press writers David Porter in North Caldwell, N.J., Julio Cortez in Bloomfield, N.J., and Katie Zezima in West Orange, N.J. contributed to this report.

LeAnn Rimes

still quite cute and extremely infectious.

"Just a Girl Like You" is about a woman looking for some understanding from a woman who doesn't play fair. She tries to make it clear and simple to understand when she sings, "I'm just a girl like you/I'm not trying to hurt you, look at all of our other similarities, too."

"Who We Really Are" is simply a beautiful song. It is more stripped down than most of the numbers on Spitfire and offers more of a "live" quality and raw emotions. This song is about life itself on how hard things are sometimes complicated, but it is when we go through rough times that we get to know "Who We Really Are."

The maturity in her voice is astounding on this release, as is the quality of the song writing. LeAnn Rimes has consistently outdone herself with each new release. After listening to the new album, you can hear the artistic growth and purity in these recordings.

I guess that nothing will ever equal "Blue" in the heart of the fans but Rimes has grown up to become a woman with all that it implies. This is a good album.

"We are here to showcase the talent of Quebec since the Games are held in Sherbrooke, and that is precisely what we are doing."

CANADA GAMES ATHLETES

Centennial provides entertainment for athletes

Luce Couture, general manager and programming director of the Centennial, is organizing a number of entertainment numbers for the athletes during the Games.

By Olivia Ranger-Enns
Record Correspondent

At Bishop's University's Centennial Theatre, also dubbed the Athlete's Village for the Games, entertainment will be at hand.

Luce Couture, general manager and programming director for the university theatre, has been hard at work preparing and organizing a list of events to keep the athletes happy.

"For the Sherbrooke Games, the athletes are here to perform, but they also need to relax," says Couture in her office at Centennial. "We need animation on campus to get their stress level down and to help them feel good during the Games."

A scavenger hunt will be held on the very first day of the Games to help athletes get to know the campus and generally feel more at home. The SRC team at Bishop's, which annually welcomes the frosh teams at the beginning of the university academic year, will be on hand to help athletes. As the athletes settle in, jugglers and caricaturists will be on campus to keep the mood light.

Other activities have been planned to incorporate athletes directly into the fun and to break the ice among athletes, such as a dog agility show, a giant chess board and a fashion show, which will be cooperating with the university's sustainable development program.

A number of events and activities will be taking place for the two weeks of mania at the Village. On August 16, the Groupe N Brass band will march through campus, while the musical camper L'Orchestre de l'Homme Orchestre will provide fun for the athletes on August 7.

"The camper is going to be exciting," says Couture, her eyes lighting up. "Musicians and comedians will be playing around with real and invented instruments. I think the athletes will love them." The camper is expected to be parked in front of Turner Studio, where plays are often hosted during the university school year.

QUEBEC SENIOR LACROSSE CIRCUIT

Extreme head into home stretch with a pair of home games

By John Edwards
Special to The Record

The Quebec Senior Lacrosse Circuit is heading into the season's final third, and the third-place Sherbrooke Extreme have a pair of home games that will go a long way in determining whether they get into second place, and the bye to the league semifinals that goes with it. Sherbrooke hosts the East Angus Wolves on Friday night and the Windsor Aigles on Sunday evening.

With six games left, Sherbrooke (5-4) is two points up on East Angus (4-7) and eight points back of Windsor (9-2), but the Extreme have two games in hand. The Longueuil Patriotes currently top the league with a 10-2 record, and on the other end Magog (3-7) and Mauricie (1-10) trail the Wolves.

East Angus, the Extreme's visitors on Friday, started the season 3-1, including a 10-9 win over Sherbrooke on May 17. However, they have fallen on hard times since, dropping six of their last seven games, including being on the losing end of Mauricie's only win of the season.

Windsor, on the other hand, kept their early-season run going, and come into Sunday's game on a five-game winning streak. The Aigles defeated Sherbrooke 11-10 last Friday in Windsor, with Alex Kendall and David Massé each scoring three goals for the Aigles. Paul Lehmann led the Extreme with four goals, while Jean-Simon Demers had six points on two goals and four assists. Windsor won the team's only previous meeting in Sherbrooke, a 9-8 win on May 31. With a pair of one-goal games between the teams already, Sunday's game looks to be another nail-biter.

Demers and Lehmann lead the Extreme in scoring this year, with Demers scoring 43 points (20 goals, 23 assists) in nine games, while Lehmann has 39 points (13 goals, 26 assists).

The situation for Sherbrooke on Sunday is simple. They must beat the Aigles to have a shot to pass the Aigles and move into second place. The top two teams in the league get a bye through to the semifinals, while the third-place team will host the No. 6 seed in a single-game quarterfinal.

Both games are set for the Julien Ducharme arena in Fleurimont. Friday's game is set to face off at 8 p.m., with Sunday's scheduled for 7 p.m.

Top Quebec golf pros challenging Milby this week

By John Edwards
Special to The Record

The Raymond Chabot Grant Thornton Classic will wrap up at the Milby Golf Club today. The RCGT Classic is the second event on the Quebec PGA's Molson Canadian 67 Tour, and features more than 90 golfers, including about 15 amateurs, competing for a total purse of $39,000. The golfers from around the province will face a Milby course that will play 6,691 yards.

Gregg Cuthill of Beaconsfield is the event's defending champion, having shot a six-under 66 in last year's rain-shortened event at Rivière-du-Loup. Jean-Philip Cornéliier of Granby won the mini-tour's first event of this season, the Acura Classic at Beloeil, with a two-round total of 138, four under par. The leading pro was Yvan Beauchemin of La Tempête, who was one stroke behind and therefore leads the tour's overall standings with 125 points.

Local golfers of interest include Sherbrooke native Jérôme Blais, along with retired Sherbrooke firefighter Claude Charpentier, who is returning to play on his home course, and Daniel J. Bogan of Knowlton.

Round 1 of the two-day event got underway on Thursday, and the Par 73 course was proving to be difficult, with only five players below par as of press time. The leader in the clubhouse was Luca Greco (Ile de Montreal), Kevin Senecal (Le Maître Tremblant) and Hocan Olsson (Mount Bruno), who each shot a two-under 71, while Yves Robillard and Jean-Hubert Trahan were one shot behind at 72. Blais shot even par. Charpentier shot a two-over 75, as he was hurt by four bogeys on the back nine.

Tournament play gets underway on Friday at 7:20 a.m., with the last groups set to tee off at 1:20 p.m.

Running helps those with mental health issues deal with stress

A RUNNER'S MIND

CHRISTINE BLANCHETTE

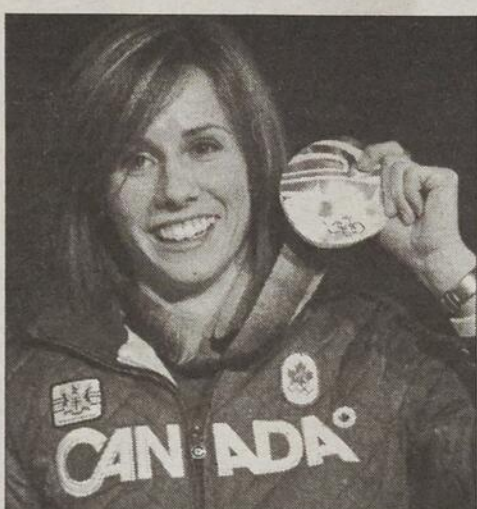

If you've been running for longer than six months you have already reaped the benefits, including a stronger heart and lungs, a leaner physique and better mental well-being.

When you combine fresh air with vitamin D and endorphins that kick in after a run, you are better prepared than most to handle whatever stresses are thrown your way. Indeed, running is good therapy for both body and mind.

Participating in an activity like running can help those who suffer from depression.

Dr. Valerie Taylor, chief psychiatrist at Women's College Hospital in Toronto — and an avid runner — said, "Running is a social activity that is helpful for people who are suffering from mental illness because they often end up isolated and trying to cope on their own. Running groups also help to relieve stress because participants may share stories about their struggles that they might not tell their friends or family."

You may be surprised to know that women are three times more likely than men to suffer from depression. Research indicates that one in four women will experience some form of depression in their lifetime.

Multiple Olympic medal winner Jennifer Heil.

Shoppers Drug Mart will kick off Canada's first and only national women's and girls' running race series in Unionville, Ont. Saturday, June 22. After Unionville, Vancouver (July 13), Calgary (July 27), runs will be held in Halifax (August 10), Ottawa (August 24), and Quebec City (September 21).

Taylor is thrilled that a portion of the proceeds are going to Women's College Hospital. "Not only will this race provide funds to ensure our programs thrive, it will also raise awareness about women's mental health and promote healthy living. Supporting women in their efforts to make running a part of their regular routine is a critical step in ensuring the well-being of women and families."

The Shopper's Drug Mart Run for Women Series will consist of a 5K, 10K and Little Steps Girls 1K, and will include a motivational talk from a Canadian Olympian in each city.

Jennifer Heil, a 30-year-old Montreal resident and Olympic gold and silver medal winner, is the first featured speaker in Unionville. The brand new mother of a two-and-one-half week old baby boy, Danik, she is passionate about speaking to girls and women about being active and how they can succeed in the goals they set.

"I'm excited to be a part of the (women's series) because it encourages an active lifestyle and supports women's mental health initiatives across the country. As a new mom I know that remaining physically active is as important as ever to ensure I maintain my well-being and a balanced lifestyle."

In a recent phone interview I asked Heil to explain the importance of "physical literacy."

Heil was always physically active as a child, laying the foundation for a future freestyle mogul skiing Olympian. "It is about teaching physical literacy at an early age, emphasizing physical activity to kids and targeting a more balanced lifestyle," Heil said.

Another role model for the run is Karine Champagne who is participating in the Quebec City run on September 21. She has created a run club called, Mères-Veilleuses, which is: "...for moms out of shape, or in need of extra motivation!" In a phone interview earlier this week the 39-year-old Champagne, a Quebec native and 20-year TVA news French anchor spoke of her struggles and how running helped overcome her severe case of depression in 2010. The engaging Champagne said, "I was six months out, I couldn't read and watch television."

She continued, "It started when I had insomnia and I had a problem with my memory and I started to talk down about myself. I realized I needed to see my doctor, and he suggested I exercise, and I did but during that time of training I was sleeping, crying and training. Medication and sports were the prescriptions, so I ran, swam, biked and cried and took the pills." She adds, "I want to fight the taboo — which is okay to talk about it."

French news anchor Karine Champagne beat depression with exercise.

In 2011 she medaled in the (35-39) category in the Canadian Triathlon Championships in Kelowna (750-metre swim, 5-kilometre bike; and 5-kilometre run) and went on to race in the World Championships in New Zealand in 2012.

Champagne has big dreams and aspirations, including climbing Mount Kilimanjaro in July, which prompted her to declare that her depression was, "like a gift as it helped put me there."

Centennial provides entertainment

another activity that is expected to raise thumbs up and hoots. Artists participating in "Jouer Dehors" will be walking about campus aimlessly and will suddenly strike a pose and begin dancing. As for "Écoute Pour Voir" (Listen to See), this project features 10 performers who will also be ambling through campus listening to their iPods. When they will encounter an athlete, they will place the iPods on the athlete's head and dance for the athlete in question. The aim is to combine art with the mundane, to showcase the beauty of everyday living.

Dances and promenade à deux will enable the spectator and the dancer to come together in a new relationship that breaks down barriers. Led by artistic director Emmanuel Jouthe, "Écoute Pour Voir" has already taken place at the Festival TransAmériques, Parours Danse, Festival du théâtre de rue de Lachine and at the Conférence régionale des élus de Montréal.

Priscella Guy will be dancing along with moving installations, expressing themselves with two other dancers around tables in the cafeteria. "The point is to surprise the athletes. The performers will be sitting around, seemingly part of the mass, and then they will suddenly get up and dance. They will be here for both Tuesdays during the Games," points out Couture.

"Auto Fiction" choreographed by Milan Gervais posits three dancers with a car. Using diverse strands of choreography and urban acrobatics, these dancers will throw themselves, walk and roll on the car. The dancers hope to trace the human relationship to cars, be it through car accidents or road movies. In short, the project calls to mind imagination and individual responsibility.

Now on to music. At Centennial Theatre, Auguste and Crowfoot will perform. Auguste is beloved by many Eastern Townships fans, while Crowfoot is a trio that plays Celtic music which has been acclaimed by Sing Out! Magazine, which once wrote: "...if this trio is playing a dance or festival near you, be there!"

On Wednesday, August 14, the Barbershop Quartet The Gigolo, specializing in jazz and French songs adapted for four voices, as well as Obatala, a world rock music group, will be wowing the audience.

"We try to promote Quebecois, and especially Sherbrooke-based groups," explains the general manager. "Who says that a group from Alberta is better than one in Quebec? We are here to showcase the talent of Quebec since the Games are held in Sherbrooke, and that is precisely what we are doing."

The Gait will function as the athletes' lounge, where the athletes can play video games, sip drinks at a juice bar, or relax in a dynamic setting. The Vancouver-based "Delhi to Dublin" dance group and Nova Scotian DJ Skratz Bastid will also be spicing things up.

"It's the athletes' games place," says Sonia Patenaude, who works as a volunteer with Luce Couture. "There will a pool table, Wii machines and X machines." One night at the Gait will also be consecrated to disco night.

For athletes longing for peace and quiet, St Mark's Chapel will be open at all times, and a reading room will be dedicated to a more tranquil atmosphere. An Internet café will also be installed at Centennial Theatre, where athletes will be able to check their e-mails and go online for miscellaneous needs.

Mental and physical well-being is the target goal of Centennial for the two weeks. Athletes will also have free access to the golf course on the Bishop's campus and to the observatory. A drama workshop is scheduled, as well as a health and wellness ateliers where chefs, such as Michael Smith from Nova Scotia, will come talk about nutrition and the value of eating local produce. Finally, a delegation from Nunavut will be performing sports and explain the aspects of their sports at the Quad.

The movie The Hobbit (Jackson, 2012) will be shown on a large screen, probably out on the soccer field on August 5th and August 11th.

"We try to get the same kinds of events happening on week one and on week two, since the athletes performing on week one will not be the same ones taking part during week two," notes Couture. "It's only fair to the athletes."

On the last night of every week, a big party is planned. "The athletes may be exhausted, but who knows if they want to do something energetic even so?" asks Couture. "As such, we are organizing big parties where they can relax. Some athletes also have to leave for home as early as three in the morning, so we need a lot of music to keep them awake and pumped up."

As such, a Quebec Night has been arranged.

"We just got the go-ahead for poutine," says Patenaude with a relieved smile. "We want to host a Quebec Night, where every athlete gets a small (and I mean small) bowl of poutine followed by some taffy on snow. Then we want some traditional music and a Québécois film to make the evening really stand out. These two weeks are about the Games, for sure, but they are also about cultural exchanges."

The Women's Missionary Fellowship of Grace Chapel

The meeting of the Women's Missionary Fellowship of Grace Chapel was held at the home of Virginia Strout with twenty-six ladies present with some joining us from Ayer's Cliff and area.

Richard Strout manned the barbecue and all enjoyed his expertise in perfectly grilled hamburgers enhanced by a variety of salads the ladies had brought. It was a happy time of renewing friendships as well as making new ones.

Once the dishes were cleared away Virginia Strout invited all to enjoy a time of singing some of their favourite hymns in which she accompanied on the piano. After singing Great is Thy Faithfulness, Happy the Home, Glory to His Name Beryl Beckwith gave the Treasurer's Report explaining how funds had been disbursed and then handed out envelopes for the summer offering encouraging us to remember how the Lord has blessed us and to pray that what we give will be used to encourage those serving the Lord in other lands as well as those here in Canada.

More choruses and hymns were enjoyed then Virginia introduced a game in which we were required to write down our answers to ten questions each with varying points. At the end each counted up their points and Peggy Munkittrick was the one with the highest score winning a small prize.

Another hymn was sung then Virginia introduced our speaker, Priscilla Peach whose husband is in charge of the young people studying at Parole de Vie, Sherbrooke and she is his secretary. The students do Mission Trips as part of their training, going to such places as Shefferville in Northern Quebec. The first year they were welcomed with respect and the following year the welcome was greater but the third year they were welcomed with open arms. She spoke of some of the challenges they encounter as they seek to find out what they know about God and sometimes the opportunity opens up to speak to them about God and His love for them and how He sent His Son to die for them.

The purpose of these trips is to find out where their group of people lives and what they know about God. First Nations actually believe the Scriptures so that gives an opening to speak about the Scriptures. In Shefferville they made a lot of friends working in two towns; one is French background and the other is English background and have been made honorary members of their tribe. They appreciated the fact that these students keep coming back and the friendship has been bonded. They preach reconciliation with men and reconciliation with God. In the tribe of French background Angelique thinks the children need to be educated and taken away as a lot always keeping looking for God. When she receives her money from the Government she would like to buy land, take down the old building and build a new one in which Parole de Vie wants to help. The idea is to be able to invite people to come. You need to believe in God. How can we say there is a God for every culture? They want to buy land to build small cabins where they can come and have help. The goal for us was just to be friendly and play with the children. God was working in their lives. Playing with the girls brought them to the place where they came just to talk. Two girls are teaching school up there and another girl is dealing with problems. Angelique needs to be gradually with her family. There is some ostracism. Some come just to be with them where it is safe. For some there is no hope of their life changing.

Those with the French background are about 100 years behind. They go on these trips.

They have to prepare the food and plan games for the kids. Some who had families come in.

They love this work at the centre with good relations. Some have such a difficult life that she wondered why she had the life she had and I what I had. God has been working in her life and she is working out in her community.

Psalm 46:1 - she realized that there was a God.

Matthew 14 - The disciples were out in the ship on the sea. Jesus was not there. He had told them to cross the lake. They were afraid as they saw someone approaching so Matthew 14:27 He said to them: Take courage it is I. Be not afraid. We all encounter difficulties at times but we too can take courage that God is with us. He said, "I am who I am". He is the living God and so in whatever situation we are passing through, God is there. God is our refuge and strength, Psalm 46:1.

Warranty protection: you have more rights than you think

FROM CONSUMER REPORTS®

Shoppers may have more warranty rights than they think, which might help them get satisfaction, says Consumer Reports. Here's what you need to know about warranties.

1. The written warranty isn't the whole story. Your rights go beyond what you read in a warranty booklet (also called an "express warranty" or guarantee). Any written or spoken claim made by a manufacturer or retailer — in a print or TV ad, on a package or anywhere else — may be considered an express warranty as well.

What you should do. Keep copies of all performance promises, no matter where you find them. Try to get spoken claims in writing.

2. You have a right to see the written warranty before you buy. Under a federal rule, retailers must let you read any written warranty for products costing more than $15. Based on what Consumer Reports has seen, some retailers or their sales staff either don't know the law or ignore it.

What you should do. If a merchant won't show you the warranty even after you explain your rights, consider filing a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (go to ftccomplaintassistant.gov).

3. Laws give you more rights. Along with companies' express warranties, you also have "implied warranties" under state law. The Uniform Commercial Code, a set of laws adopted in much the same form by all states and the District of Columbia, provides an automatic "implied warranty of merchantability." That unwritten protection guarantees that consumer products are free of substantial defects and will function properly for a reasonable period of time.

What you should do. If you discover that something you bought is defective — even after the written warranty has expired — contact the retailer and manufacturer to ask for a repair, replacement or refund. It doesn't matter what the retailer's return policy is.

4. You have other protections, too. You may be able to satisfy a product complaint through other channels, including:

Credit card warranties. Many credit and some debit cards extend the manufacturer's written warranty, usually for up to one year, on most products you buy using the card.

Credit card chargebacks. If you have a problem with the quality of a product or service you paid for with your credit card, federal law gives you up to a year to seek a chargeback.

Goodwill programs. Companies sometimes quietly offer free or discounted out-of-warranty repairs or product replacement for customers who complain.

Lemon laws. Many states have lemon laws for new and used cars, pets and, in New York, even wheelchairs. If a problem can't be fixed after a certain number of attempts or a given period, you're entitled to at least part of your money back.

Recalls. If you suspect that a product is unsafe or if it is recalled, contact the manufacturer or retailer immediately. You can find news of recalls at saferproducts.gov.

5. You often have more rights in a walk-in store than on the Internet. You'll find implied warranty disclaimers on many retail websites, typically in the legalese on the terms-of-sale pages, though the law requires that disclaimers be prominently disclosed. The disclaimers mean that if you discover that a product is defective, the site simply might tell you to complain to the manufacturer or that you're out of luck.

What you should do. Buy from a walk-in store, and avoid products sold "as is" or with similar language.

6. You don't need the service contract. Extended warranties or service contracts are a bad deal. Most products don't break during the time covered by them — typically years two and three of ownership. Moreover, the typical cost of repair is, on average, not much more than the cost of the contract.

What you should do. Consumer Reports recommends self-insuring by placing the money you would otherwise spend on service contracts into a savings account. Use that when you have to repair or replace a product at your own expense.

BLAKE, Kenneth - The family would like to offer their sincere thanks and appreciation to all our family and friends for their love and support shown during Dad's recent illness and since his passing by the many acts of kindness, phone calls, visits, cards, food and donations that we received. A special thank you to Rev. Mead Baldwin for his meaningful service and to Jean Glavin for her solo which was one of Dad's favourites. Our deepest gratitude go out to those members of Legion Branch #128 for the tribute they displayed at the Legion service in Dad's honour. I know Dad would have been very pleased. Also thank you to the Legion for catering the lunch and for the use of their facilities. Special thanks to Robert Redden and staff of Cass Funeral Homes for their promptness and attentiveness during this very difficult time. We would like to especially thank Phil Kerwin and Erica Norton for their heartwarming tributes to their uncle and grandfather, which brought many tears and smiles.

You don't want her to feel as if people are overly focused on her grief

FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 2013

Annie's Mailbox

Dear Annie: I am in middle school, and a girl on my softball team was the victim of a terrible incident. Her dad was killed in a car crash caused by a drunk driver. She has been heartbroken ever since.

I constantly wonder if I can do anything to help her. I hate it when people are sad. Should I do anything besides comfort her with words? Should I give her some kind of gift? Everyone else seems to be doing just that.

Or should I just not do anything? — Bewildered Eighth Grader

Dear Bewildered: You are a kind and sympathetic soul. Please don't buy her a gift. It would seem like some kind of consolation prize and would not ease her pain. It's important not to minimize her grief by trying to prevent her from being unhappy. She is going to be sad for a long time, and this is normal. Her family also is likely going through many adjustments.

Just let her know that you are sorry about her father, and if she wants to talk about anything, you will listen. If she confides in you, it's OK to cry with her. She may behave differently for a while — she could be sad or angry, or want to be alone or surround herself with friends. Try to treat her as normally as possible. You don't want her to feel as if people are overly focused on her grief. In time, she will learn to cope.

Dear Annie: My friends and I received a text message from "Carrie" inviting us to a birthday party that she is giving herself and asking us to bring a dish. That part was fine. But she added a P.S., saying she'd rather have money than presents so she can buy herself a bike. Carrie went into a long explanation about why she wants the bike and that she'd appreciate our contributions. Some of my friends think this is terrible, and others say she is just being honest. What do you think? — Still Carrie's Friend

Dear Friend: We are never in favor of invitations that dictate what gift people should buy. It removes all of the incentive to put effort into finding something that shows you are thinking of her. Instead, this party has turned into a fundraiser. It also means Carrie will know exactly what you spent on her, which can be embarrassing. Such a request is in poor taste, although we are certain some guests will be relieved that they don't have to search for a thoughtful gift. Complying is up to individual guests. You are not obligated to contribute.

Dear Annie: I am a clinical psychologist and past president of the Connecticut Psychological Association. I believe you missed the call in regard to the letter from "Big Sis," who is worried about her underweight 7-year-old niece, "Andrea." The girl's mother claims Andrea is obese and restricts her food. The girl is sick all the time and so fearful of her mother that she is afraid to eat. This could have serious and dangerous implications for Andrea. What is being described here appears to be Munchausen syndrome by proxy.

This parent is likely causing Andrea to display the symptoms of an eating disorder in order to gain for herself attention, sympathy and a sense of control and importance. Andrea needs the immediate help of a physician and a licensed mental health professional. Her mother is in serious need of psychotherapy. Please use your column to educate your readers about this potentially fatal syndrome. — Michael Schwarzchild, Ph.D., Danbury, Conn.

Dear Dr. Schwarzchild: Thank you for your take on this. MSP involves a parent or caregiver who deliberately exaggerates, lies about or actually creates physical or psychological problems in a child in order to gain attention. It is a form of child abuse, as well as a mental health disorder, although highly controversial.

Annie's Mailbox is written by Kathy Mitchell and Marcy Sugar, longtime editors of the Ann Landers column.

97th birthday wishes

Birthday wishes are sent to Irene Fisher who celebrates her 97th Birthday on June 24.

Love and best wishes from her family.

Fordyce Branch Women's Institute

What a pleasure it was to see Emmanuel United Church hall fill up with members and guests, when we met on Wednesday, June 5, 2013, beginning the meeting at 1:00 p.m. President Norma Sherrer welcomed everyone, especially the guests. Some members of Dunham and Stanbridge East Branches were present as well as individual guests. She then read the poem "Hugs": "No moving parts, no batteries. No monthly payments and no fees. Inflation proof, non taxable. In fact it's quite relaxable. It can't be stolen, won't pollute. One size fits all, do not dilute. It uses little energy. But yields results enormously. Relieves your tension and your stress. Invigorates your happiness. Combats depression, makes you beam. And elevates your self esteem! Your circulation it corrects. Without unpleasant side-effects. It is, I think, the perfect drug. May I prescribe to you, my friends - THE HUG?"

The Mary Stewart Collect and Salute to the Flag were repeated by all, followed by "O Canada" and "Happy Birthday" to June Lamey (1st) and June Royea (6th).

Motto: People remember what you do not what you say.

Roll Call: Tell about a game you played, when you were young. This provided a lot of fun as members and guests recalled the enjoyment they received from Skipping, Marbles etc. and some games that some of us had not even heard about. One guest said that she felt deprived listening to the others, as she had been raised on a farm and there was just too much work to do by all the family, there was no time for games. The members also introduced their guests at this time.

As the special program was a guest speaker, the meeting was shortened in order to be ready for him when he came.

The Minutes of the previous meeting were not read by Secretary Elizabeth Milroy but the main business was discussed, the plaque at our picnic ground. Nothing has been done to date but will be taken care of in the near future.

June Lamey gave a very interesting report of the W.I.'s 99th Annual Convention held at MacDonald College. Except for how cold the building was due to the air conditioner being set on May 15th, the meeting was well organized and interesting. We are proud that our President Norma is also Provincial President.

CORRESPONDENCE: A card from the Mundy Family thanking the branch for our card of congratulations on the birth of their son and an invitation to Pontiac's 100 year celebration in October.

June Lamey, treasurer, presented her financial report and it was moved to pay one bill.

NEW BUSINESS - Vesey Seeds Catalogues, ordering for the fall, were given out to the members and guests if they wanted one. The spring one proved to be a very good money maker for the branch. The July meeting will be at our picnic area. Growing a Healthier You was discussed. Its Pledge, "My HEAD to clearer thinking. My HEART to greater loyalty. My HANDS to larger service. My HEALTH to better living". As 4H is celebrating its 100th year in Canada, we were asked to find out as much about it as we could.

As our guest had arrived, the meeting closed and the members and guest were presented with a most interesting talk and picture presentation by Mr. Ron Fava about his pilgrim walk "Camino de Santiago". Ron planned to take this pilgrim walk from France to the Cathedral at Santiago for many years and started with his brother-in-law, who had to drop out after a few days due to his health. Ron continued on his own and it took him 35 days and over a million steps. The stories he told of the events and people he met and the pictures he took kept everyone fascinated for over an hour. Every night he sent emails home and they were kept and presented to him in a book, when he returned. When asked why he would undertake such an enterprise, he realized at the end that it was to give thanks for his life, parents, wife, daughters, friends, health, etc. June Lamey both presented and thanked him, presenting him with a gift on our behalf.

A lovely buffet lunch followed the talk after Grace had been said and while everyone was enjoying it, the drawing of the afghan took place and the winner was Victor Mahannah. Smaller gifts were also drawn and someone was there to pick them up.

A "Best Wishes" card was passed around to be signed for Donna Luce. Donna had the misfortune to fall leaving the Convention Centre, and is still suffering with the pain in one knee.

Too soon a lovely meeting was drawn to a close and everyone headed home, I'm sure, full of happy things to remember.

Some of the things that the W.I. played a part in accomplishing:

- Having bread wrapped.
- Teaching sex education in schools.
- Requiring the pasteurization of milk.
- Encouraging War Memorials and War Service.
- Supporting the introduction of Agriculture in schools.
- Establishing the International Peace Gardens on the border between Manitoba and North Dakota.

It is time to enter with your trumps

by Phillip Alder

Taylor Swift said, "I write songs that are like diary entries. I have to do it in order to feel sane."

If success is proportional to sanity, Swift must be the most grounded person on the planet.

A bridge expert often has a careful order in which he must play the tricks to enter a plus score onto his card. In this deal, for example, how must South play in four spades after West leads the club king?

South's three-spade rebid invited game while promising at least a six-card suit. (With only five, he would have rebid two no-trump or made a help-suit game-try.) North, with a potential source of tricks in his heart suit, raised to game.

South first counts his losers by looking at his hand and taking dummy's high cards into account. Here, he should see four: two diamonds and two clubs. Then he counts winners, finding only nine: six spades, two hearts and one club.

Since the loser count is too high and the winner count too low, declarer should realize that he must establish dummy's heart suit.

This is the safest line: Win the first trick with the club ace, cash the spade ace, take dummy's top hearts, and ruff a heart high in hand. (South ruffs high for two reasons: He doesn't want to risk an overruff by West and he needs the two low spades to lead to dummy's nine and 10 for entries.) Now declarer plays the spade three to dummy's nine and ruffs another heart high. Back to dummy with a trump to the 10, South cashes the heart eight, giving him six spades, three hearts and one club.

FRIDAY, JUNE 21, 2013

Both tangible and intangible benefits can be gained in the year ahead by taking your ideas to the marketplace. However, you must have total confidence in your plan.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Before assuming someone else's responsibilities, make sure your own house is in order. Chances are, you won't be able to meet the demands of both situations.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — In hopes of making a good deal even better, you might do something that dilutes your position instead of strengthening it. It's imperative that you know when to stop.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Do your part to keep outsiders out of confidential family matters. Anyone who does not share your roof should not be permitted to share the household's secrets.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Just because someone isn't in complete accord with your opinions doesn't mean that he or she should be considered to be an adversary. Try to learn from the dispute.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Be careful in situations where you feel unduly pressured to reveal something or make a concession. If you're foolishly open with the wrong person, you could feel like a patsy.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Partial success is likely to be the best you can hope for if you attempt to do too many things. Do what you can to reduce your workload so that you can be more effective.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Guard against inclinations to make unreasonable demands on your loved ones. If they're unable to comply with your expectations, it'll be your fault if feelings are hurt.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Playing favorites with your friends is likely to create all kinds of complications. It could even jeopardize an important relationship if you're not careful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — If you feel you have to protect your interests at the expense of another, you're barking up the wrong tree. Don't be afraid to change course.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Be careful in whom you place your trust. Face-to-face, associates might appear to agree with your ideas. But they could express an adverse opinion behind your back.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — Commercial conditions are a bit unsettled, so be careful when conducting business. If you make a wrong move, it might go unnoticed until it's too late to fix things.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — The only way you're going to settle an important situation is through a compromise. Be open-minded, because the advantage you thought you had is a will-o'-the-wisp.

Your Birthday

SATURDAY, JUNE 22, 2013

You could be especially fortunate dealing with people or products that are of a foreign origin in the coming months. You need to get out and broaden your horizons.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — The people who are willing to assist you today might not be of the same mind tomorrow. Be sure to take advantage of any help they offer you.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — You are likely to make a much better impression on people than you realize. New acquaintances will likely be eyeing you as a future friend.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Conditions influencing your material security are apt to be far better today than tomorrow. If you have anything of a financial nature pending, take care of it now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't neglect any matter that requires some kind of communication, be it verbal or via your computer. You shouldn't have any trouble expressing your thoughts in either venue.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You could be especially good at spotting some real bargains. When working at your computer or out and about, keep a lookout for anything special that you need.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Free yourself of any encumbrances and you should be able to make some impressive achievements. You'll be dynamic operating independently.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You're likely to fare unusually well if you put yourself in the background for as long as you can. Keep in touch with events, but don't try to alter or run them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — You could be rather lucky through an involvement with either a club or a social organization. More than one of your associates will put you onto something good.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — If you conduct yourself with self-assurance, you'll fare much better than your opposition in most competitive situations. The secret is to think like a winner.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Usually, you're the one who comes up with the bright ideas, but today there is likely to be a plethora of fresh thinking among your peers. Listen carefully and you may learn something.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — There is a strong chance that you could team up with someone to generate a second source of income. The partnership element will be essential.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Group endeavors should work out rather well, provided you're not intent on playing the dominant role. You'll be more effective in a support capacity.

SUNDAY, JUNE 23, 2013

Many new opportunities will present themselves if you focus on developing better relationships with your friends and allies in the coming days. If everyone is willing to make some adjustments, wonderful benefits will result.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) — Although you might think your way of doing things is far superior to your mate's, you could be wrong. Keep an open mind.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) — Rather than suppressing your frustrations over how another is handling a critical issue, find a suitable way to openly discuss your grievances. Nothing will change until you speak up.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — The poor behavior of an arrogant friend doesn't have to spoil a social event. Simply smile and disengage yourself from this person's presence, even it's just long enough to calm down.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Don't allow yourself to get involved in a contest, especially if you're operating at a disadvantage. If you can't overcome the odds, walk away and do something else.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Jumping to conclusions makes it difficult for you to honestly evaluate someone else's position. One of the worst things you can do is make a judgment call based on limited information.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — A need for instant gratification will severely distort your sense of values. Instead of satisfying an impulsive desire, you should shop around a bit.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — The support from another that you were counting on might not be forthcoming. Make sure you have a Plan B ready to go.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Before generously offering to help another with a complicated endeavor, you need find out what you're getting into. Don't bite off more than you can chew.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) — If you suspect a friend might throw a monkey wrench in your plans, you don't have to exclude him or her. Just let this person know that the majority will rule.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) — Make sure you don't take credit for doing something in which you only played a minor part. It could be an embarrassment for you later when the full truth comes out.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) — It's OK to start looking ahead to the future, but not to the degree that you totally ignore what is going on right now. If you are to succeed, both time frames must be considered.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) — Prudence is a must in the management of your financial resources, but not to the point that you deny yourself everything that brings you pleasure. To be happy, balance your affairs.
