Pearson to honor
Kennedy

NEW YORK (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson tonight fulfils an engagement he arranged with the late president Kennedy last summer—appearing with the president of the United States at an awards dinner in aid of mental health.

The dinner was originally scheduled for early in December but was postponed with the assassination of President Kennedy. President Johnson, Pearson and Senator Edward Kennedy will be the head table guests at the dinner, to be attended by about 1,200 persons.

It is the annual international awards dinner of the Joseph P. Kennedy Jr. foundation, established in 1946 to help in the fight against mental retardation.

The 1963 awards to be presented tonight—all announced last year—go to Dr. G. F. Power, professor emeritus of pediatrics at Yale University; Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, former governor B. T. Combs of Kentucky; Representative John E. Fogarty of Rhode Island; Dr. L. S. Penrose, University College, London; and Dr. R. P. L. Lofgren, of the University of Montpellier, France. All have made notable contributions to mental health.

The awards total $225,000. A number of movie, television and theatre stars are to provide entertainment at the dinner, and a one-hour portion will be telecast to several U.S. cities.

President Johnson is to deliver the main address. Pearson is expected to speak for about five minutes.

He returns to Ottawa early Thursday.

Out of danger

BERLIN, N.H. (AP)—Doctors at St. Louis Hospital Tuesday night said an injured Canadian lumberjack was out of danger. Donald St. Pierre, 53, of Stornoway, Que., was injured seriously Monday in a dynamite explosion. The blast tore off his left hand and part of his right and caused injuries to his head, face and chest. St. Pierre was working at Head Pond, near Berlin, when dynamite exploded prematurely as he prepared to blast a tree stump.

Diefenbaker endorsed

PC convention now shapes policy

OTTAWA (CP)—The Progressive Conservative annual meeting, which gave John Diefenbaker an overwhelming vote of confidence Tuesday, turns its attention today to the future course of its economic policies.

As one top party executive put it, it's a question of whether to move to the Conservative right or to the Conservative left.

The vote of confidence in the party leader was surprising mainly for the small size of the little band of dissenters that stood up to register their opposition.

In the crowded, noisy, smoky and arc-lit hotel ballroom, with approximately 800 present, only 30 odd delegates voted against their leader. The cheers of the victors still echoed in the corridors when Senator David J. Walker of Toronto shouted, "let's make it unanimous."

When it was all over, Dalton K. Camp, Toronto advertising executive who was elected party president, said: "The old Tory party has acquitted itself very well."

DIEF AT RECEPTION

Word of the victory was telephoned to Mr. Diefenbaker at his home by Senator Allister

Grosart of Ottawa, former national director of the party. There was no word of the former prime minister's immediate reaction, but in the evening he was host at a reception and dance for delegates, and was a picture of pleased and composed confidence—a man ready again for a political fight.

Mr. Camp said in an interview he expects to call a conference of Conservative party thinkers this autumn to begin long-range planning for the party's future policy.

In the resolutions coming up for debate in the last day of the three-day annual meeting, there was a long list of proposals for new tax incentives to Canadians and Canadian industries.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in his speech to delegates, urged adoption of new incentives through tax cuts.

But the biggest road of approval the leader got was for his statement that he was not afraid of a secret ballot on the leadership question. He warned indirectly, however, that it would mean he and other leaders in the future might face annual tests of confidence by secret votes.

"No leader, no matter his dedication, can ever march forward to the foe fearing someone behind him will interfere," he said. "No man can lead if there is uncertainty."

But, he added:

"I want to know where I stand. I want to know where you stand, too."

DEBATE ON VOTE

And stand they did, after a long debate on whether the vote should be taken openly or by secret ballot.

On the vote for the secret ballot, the idea was pushed aside by about 4 to 1, so far as reporters watching from a mezzanine could judge.

Then the question was put quickly on the confidence motion, and it swept through by at least 20 to 1. No accurate count was possible in the hub-bub of the crowded room.

It was just one year ago today that Mr. Diefenbaker's government was defeated on a vote of confidence in the Commons, leading to the April 8 general election.

Mr. Diefenbaker coupled his defence as one who came to the convention to unite, not divide, with a blistering attack on the Liberal government of the day—an attack he had been building up to in three earlier speeches to convention meetings of the party's university clubs, young people, and women's association.

"It was a big government government, he said, with bigger expenditures, bigger inflation, bigger divisions between races, and its policies were based on economic idiocy."

THE ERA OF BUNK

With an obvious reference to Prime Minister Pearson's call for a new kind of political fighting, Mr. Diefenbaker said: "This is the new era—the era of bunk."

His audience loved it.

And he draped the mantle of the party's most distinguished Quebec founder on a colleague, Leon Balcer of Trois Rivières, Que., in one of the warmest of his rare accolades to his former ministers.

Mr. Balcer, said Mr. Diefenbaker, spoke for all Canada and as a new Georges-Etienne Cartier when he spoke in the last parliamentary session of Canadianism.

"We went over that speech together," Mr. Diefenbaker said. "I designated him to make that speech."

It was the same Leon Balcer who in the 1956 Conservative leadership convention spoke to Quebec delegates against Mr. Diefenbaker's election as leader. Mr. Diefenbaker now has come close to designating him his Quebec lieutenant.

Defence Minister Hellyer said last night he hoped his long-awaited white paper on defence policy would be ready for consideration by the government before parliament reopens Feb. 18.

The elaborate plans for bringing the structure of Canada's military services in line with current defence policy and shifting the emphasis from "reserve forces to forces in being" will cover a ten-year period.

Mr. Hellyer made these disclosures in an all-French speech before the mainly English-speaking Sherbrooke Rotary Club.

Officers of the No. 9 militia group were also on hand for the Minister's speech.

Mr. Hellyer described the plan as being flexible enough to anticipate "a wide range of future choices."

The first phase of the planned series of sweeping changes was announced at the last session of Parliament.

The change included the controversial cancellation of the Navy's frigate program, proposed reduction of the size of the militia and the closing-down of a number of supply depots and bases.

The decision to cancel these equipment programs was taken, Mr. Hellyer said, "because they would restrict our choice of future policy."

He said the commitment of large sums of money for equipment dictates policy since new defence plans often require additional expenditure which cannot be taken because of lack of funds.

Referring to the proposed reduction of reserve forces, Mr. Hellyer said it was necessary because of "a change in priority."

"Forces in being which traditionally have been low priority are at the top of the list, and reserve forces which have been the backbone of our mobilization in two world wars are moved down the scale," Mr. Hellyer said.

The speaker described the purpose of "forces in being" as "preserving peace by deterring war."

"At the high end of the scale, thermonuclear war and major non-nuclear war are deterred by the existence of sufficient force to make any aggression unprofitable."

"At the lower end of the scale in peace-keeping and other activities, it is the existence of, and in some cases the use of, forces in being which contains, or tends to contain, the conflict in a limited way and prevent it from escalating into something more dangerous."

"At the beginning of the first and second world wars," Mr. Hellyer said, "we did not have significant forces in being and we had to rely almost completely on mobilization potential."

"Following World War II we demobilized most of our forces and returned to the pre-war policy."

"Following the Korean conflict, the acceptance by Canada of sizeable commitments under NATO and our defence partnership with the U.S., Canadian policy changed radically from the mobilization potential to the forces in being concept."

"This concept is valid today," Mr. Hellyer said, "and our wide-spread commitment demands its continuance."

The minister told the audience, which included some 800 militia officers that the plan will not eliminate Canada's reserve but would maintain "a limited, but effective potential."

He suggested the militia would play a greater role in "civil survival in case of attack" while continuing to play an important part in the defence of Canada.

The plan was drawn up with respect to "the level of funds that we could expect for defence requirements for the next few years" explained the Minister.

He said he was concerned over the series of large deficits which have increased the size of the national debt and the cost of servicing the debt.

"Because it represents the

"I am speaking French so you will know that some of us in Toronto are interested enough in this country to try and learn both languages," Defence Minister Hellyer told his audience at last night's Rotary Club meeting.

"You in Sherbrooke," he said, "have proven the ability of peoples to understand and appreciate each other."

"We in the rest of Canada can do it if we want to, and most of us want to," he said.

Mr. Hellyer described Canada as "greater than its parts" and called on Canadians to show "we have a way of life worth emulating."

Later at a press conference, the minister said he learned most of his French through listening to speeches in the House of Commons.

He said he had not taken any formal courses.

"I seem to have become attuned to the language," he said.

Liberation drive led by priest

BOGOTA, Colombia. (AP)—A Roman Catholic priest from Haiti is spearheading a drive in South America to raise funds for arms and equipment to outfit what he calls a Haitian liberation army.

"Violence is condemned when it is exercised against a legally constituted government," says Rev. Jean Baptiste Georges, who identifies himself as a former minister of education under Haitian President Francois Duvalier.

"But violence against tyranny is permitted," declared the big, mild-mannered priest who fled his native land eight months ago.

The non-confidence motion didn't come to a vote and discussion will continue once Bill 60 is out of the way.

As soon as committee study of the measure was completed, the Union Nationale brought in a non-confidence motion, seconded by the three-week-old session.

It regretted "that the lack of planning in public expenses compromised the credit of the province and placed a disproportionate load on the taxpayers with modest revenue."

The Opposition attacked what it called high costs of borrowing by the Government. When the Union Nationale left office in 1950, the province's credit "was at its best," said Opposition Leader Daniel Johnson.

In 1963 Quebec's borrowing costs were among the highest of any province.

Revenue Minister Eric Kierans said Quebec has to borrow heavily because it is just starting a period of expansion. In the 1940s and 1950s Ontario was paying more and borrowing more than Quebec because it was in a growing period.

At the time, Quebec's borrowing had been low and costs were low.

"We had no need of money because we had no ideas," he declared. "We had no need of money because we had no initiative, no energy."

While Ontario was expanding, Quebec had the lowest growth rate in Canada. For universities "the situation was complete stagnation."

But the province is going to continue borrowing, he said.

"We have more ideas, more energy, more initiative than we have money and we are going to borrow to do the things we have to do," Mr. Kierans declared, speaking mainly in English.

Mr. Johnson asked why Quebec paid a six-per-cent interest rate on a $75,000,000 loan last September. Mr. Kierans said it was "quite simply" a matter of supply and demand.

People with money, he said, know Quebec needs to borrow and will bargain for a good price. But these same people had confidence in the government.

The House went through the last articles of Bill 60 — to Education Bill reaches

final stages of debate

QUEBEC — The Legislative Assembly wound up details of legislation creating an education ministry Thursday.

The Union Nationale immediately stepped in with a non-confidence motion, blaming the Liberal government for "com-" promising the credit of the province."

Debate on third reading of Bill 60 was to be launched Wednesday and the Opposition was expected to make a last-ditch effort to get amendments made. The non-confidence motion didn't come to a vote and dis-

Scotia legislature opens Tuesday when the province's 43 elected members will be sworn in.

Victoria—Mines Minister Kenneth Kiernan told the B.C. legislature a large deposit of molybdenum at Boss Mountain, 50 miles east of Williams Lake, was under development and should be producing by next year.

He said the mine could be the first in Canada, and the first in North America producing molybdenum exclusively. Its value in rocketry lies in the metal's resistance to extreme temperatures.

He also announced a copper deposit being mined in north-west B.C. might well be the largest in Canada, and a Japanese market may have been found for Crows Nest Pass coal.

CIVIL WAR STATUTE

Toronto — L. A. Braithwaite (L.—Toronto Etobicoke) said an old provincial statute allowing separate schools for Negroes was a throwback to the Civil War period in the United States when many slaves escaped to Canada.

He admitted there might have been a need for separate Negro schools then, "... but that time has passed."

Mr. Braithwaite said he was making his remarks as an elected member of the legislature, "not as a representative of any particular race or creed."

Stanstead will take part in area CD project

STANSTEAD — (Special) —
The Stanstead Council voted Monday night to participate in a regional civil defence and protection organization.

The plan was outlined at a joint meeting of the Rock Island, Beebe and Stanstead councils last month by Lt. Col. Sarto
Roy, of Sherbrooke, Townships
civil defence director.

Cost of participation to Stanstead will be $300. Fifteen per cent of this cost is paid by the provincial government, and 75 per cent by the federal government, leaving $30 to be paid by the town.

Special fire, police and first aid training will be given once
the section is organized.

John Boucher Jr., was appointed fire chief of the Muni-pality, with Roger Joseph Roy appointed as sub-chief and Stanley George the lieutenant.

Prior to the Council meeting the fire committee of Edward Hyatt and Maynard Rollins had met with the firemen and they voted Mr. Boucher as their chief. Mr. Boucher recommended the other appointments.

Letters of appreciation are to be sent to Ernest Batchelor who had been Fire Chief for the past three years, also to sub-chief,
Francis Distefano, and Donald Webb, Lieutenant.

The Council fire committee
recommended immediate fire drills and fire engine instruction. It is hoped by the council that Rock Island Chief, Steven Bronson, will be able to give some instruction to the men on fire fighting.

New Committees have been formed as follows: roads,
Harold Cass and A. D. McHarg; fire, lighting, hydrants and town hall, Edward Hyatt and Maynard Rollins; relief, A. D. Mc-Harg and Harold Cass; sewers,
Maynard Rollins and Eugene Lachance; police, Eugene Lachance and George Labrecque; finance, George Labrecque and Edward Hyatt, Harold Cass is pro-mayor.

Mayor Struthers read a letter
from the Derby Line Village Trustees concerning a memoral
to the late John Kennedy.
The Stanstead Council favored the suggestion that a painting of the late president be placed in the international Haskell Library, but the Council agreed to contribute to whatever was the final decision of Derby Line.

Another suggestion contained in the letter was to name
the international highway after John Kennedy.

However, it was brought to the attention of council that the Quebec department has already named the Quebec-Jackman, Maine international highway after Mr. Kennedy and it was thought perhaps two international highways might be confusing in years to come.

It was reported that a recent meeting of police committees of the three Councils had been held and all felt the police department to be operating satisfactorily. There have been some complaints of "Skidoos" used at night.

The council felt these are a nuisance in the village limits
after people have retired for the night.

It was agreed to hire the same auditors as last year.

Mr. Struthers announced that the Grade nine students of Sunnyside school will be guests at the March meeting and grade nine of Sacred Heart School at the April meeting. He asked each chairman to try to attend these meetings and give a short talk on his duties.

This year there is to be a complete general property evaluation. The valuers will be appointed at the March meeting. Meanwhile the finance committee will draw up the budget which will be presented at a future meeting.

Says the government is studying security measures at armories

Defence Minister Hellyer
said last night that the federal government is studying the whole issue of security organization at its armories following the arms robbery in Montreal last week.

At a press conference held at the Depot Street headquarters of the Ninth Militia group, Mr. Hellyer said he had heard "nothing new in the last 24 hours" on the arms robbery case.

Mr. Hellyer was asked about a question posed earlier this week by NDP leader Tommy Douglas concerning the disciplining of those responsible for allowing arms to be stolen from the armory of Les Fusiliers de Mont
Royale in Montreal.

Mr. Hellyer said he disagreed with Mr. Douglas.
"However," he said, "the question of what level of security we should have at our armories is under consideration."

Mr. Hellyer held an informal press conference in one of the offices at the Ninth Militia Group headquarters after speaking to the Sherbrooke Rotary Club. Three newsmen questioned him; two from the Sherbrooke Daily Record, and one from the French-language daily.

In response to a question from the reporter from the French-language daily as to the future of the armed aircraft, Mr. Hellyer said he could not foresee any end to this type of weapon.

"We will have piloted aircraft for many years to come," he said.

"Away in the future," he said he could see manned
nuclear craft.

Mr. Hellyer was asked if he was in favor of nuclear weapons.

He answered that this was not the point.

"The western world," he said, "has a nuclear deterrent policy."

He said that as members of NORAD and NATO, Canada
had to play a part in that policy, which involves nuclear weapons.

"The policy of the group is ours," he said.

January was average, but warm

January of this year was relatively warm and had less snowfall than most previous Januarys, but was, all in all,
a very average month, according to figures from the Lennox-ville Experimental Farm.

In fact it is the most average month in some time. It is the first month since July of 1963 that has not set a record of some sort. Perhaps this is an omen that 1964, unlike 1963,
will be a year of normal weather.

However, January was a warm month.

The average temperature of 17.88 degrees, was more than four degrees warmer than the average temperature of 13.33 degrees, recorded last year. It was almost five degrees warmer than the recorded average of 12.92 degrees, taken over the last 50 years.

The highest temperature recorded during the month was 45 degrees, taken on the 25th. This is quite a bit lower than the record January high of 62 degrees, set on January 4th, 1950.

The lowest temperature recorded during January was 27
below which was recorded on January 13th. The record low was 48 below, which was taken on January 28th, 1925.

The amount of sunshine in January was close to the past average. There were some 78.2
hours, while the average for past Januarys is 77.6 hours.

Last year there was only 56.2
hours of sun.

The highest January sunshine recorded was taken in 1920 and came to 139.4 hours.

The lowest occurred the preceding year of 1919 in which there were 38.5 hours of sun.

January rainfall came to 1.05 inches this year. This is slightly above the average of .95 inches, taken over the last 50 years. It is much above last year in which no rain fell during January.

The greatest January rainfall came to 3.07 inches while the least was zero inches.

Snowfall was rather light last month. Some 13.0 inches fell while last year 26.3 inches fell.

The average January snowfall is 22.6 inches.

The highest January snowfall was 40.9 inches and fell in 1958.
The lowest was 6.5 inches,
which fell in 1921.

In total precipitation, which is a total of rain and snow figuring that 10 inches of snow
equal one inch of rain, January 1964 was below average. Some 2.09 inches fell while the average is 3.20 inches. In January of last year 2.12 inches of precipitation fell.

The record amount of precipitation of 5.67 inches fell in 1935, while the record low of 1.40 inches fell in 1921.

The most precipitation for any day during last January was 45 inches, which fell on January 25th. The record high for a single day was 1.91 inches, which fell on January 3rd, 1953.

Much less snow has fallen this winter than last winter. Figures show that snowfall up til the end of January last year was double what it is this year. Last year 87.2 inches had fallen by the end of January. This year only 45.2 inches have fallen.

E. Ward parents meeting

Transportation problem to be studied Sunday

Members of the East Ward Protestant Parents Association are to meet Sunday night to continue discussions for the provision of transportation for 36 children to Mitchell School next term.

Gordon MacMillan, secretary of the Association said Tuesday that the meeting will be held in the Church of the Advent Hall, Bowen South beginning at 8 p.m.

The problem of transportation stems from the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board's decision to shut down
the East Ward School this summer. The 36 remaining students in the school will be absorbed in the Mitchell School classes.

The Association forwarded a formal request early last month to the Sherbrooke Protestant School Board to provide school bus service for the children.

Parents, the Association said,
fear their class-bound children could get injured or lost in the cross-city travel.

Representatives of the Association attended a school board meeting January 14 and the problem was discussed. The representatives were to report
the discussions back to their Association before the school board made any final decision on the matter.

John McLeod, school board
secretary-treasurer said Tuesday that the board was still waiting for further developments from the Association.

He said the Board expected to hear from the Association before the next meeting of the board, February 11.

Mr. MacMillan said it would

The Conservatives face the future

The overwhelming endorsement given Rt. Hon. John Diefenbaker as national party leader at yesterday's session of the national Progressive Conservative convention has for the time being, at least, removed any doubts as to who will be in charge of the Official Opposition campaign during the period up to and including the next federal general election.

In his address to the delegates, Mr. Diefenbaker made it clear that he was not seeking a temporary mandate but one that would give him a chance to regain the post of Prime Minister. In other words, he wanted assurance that his position would not be challenged for the next two or three years.

With the leadership issue settled, the Progressive Conservative party must now prepare a program for presentation to the electorate. To be an effective vote-getter, this platform must be to seek support on its own merits rather than attempt to borrow the policies of the other parties.

Obviously the party has bright prospects for the future. It holds nearly 100 seats in the House of Commons despite serious difficulties occasioned by internal differences on the eve of the 1963 general election.

With a united front resulting from yesterday's vote and an aggressive program acceptable to the voters there is every reason to believe it can pick up the forty seats required to give it a House majority.

A poor lesson in bridge work.

J. W. Butters: a man of dedication

John William Butters was a kindly, quiet, smiling man who kept pretty much in the background of the Cecil Butters Memorial Hospital at Austin.

But his dedication to the blessed work of mercy being carried on at the institution was as strong as that of his wife, Lillian.

Originally a farmer, Mr. Butters helped his wife found the world-famous hospital for hopelessly deformed and retarded children in 1946 to honor one of their sons who had been killed during the Second World War.

He worked tirelessly beside her to build the institution into what it is today — one of the finest of its kind in the world.

It wasn't always an easy life. Quite aside from the problems of caring for the helpless wards of the hospital, there was nearly always a money problem. It was only a few years ago that the hospital began receiving government grants, and only last year that it carried out its first fund-raising campaign.

During the hard years, Mr. Butters was, among other things, the universal handyman of the institution. And almost up until the time of his death, he kept busy at the one hundred and one unglamorous chores so vital to the operation of the hospital.

His death at 68 last Sunday deprived the institution not only of a founder, but also of a devoted helper.

His example, however, will live on, for the hospital is now as much a memorial to him as to his son.

Tax reduction consideration needed

The Royal Commission on Taxation currently hearing briefs throughout the country, may well turn out to be a waste of time and money unless it is prepared to take into account proposed reductions in personal income and corporate taxes in the United States.

If this American program is passed, it is certain to have deep and permanent effects on the Canadian economy.

The executive council of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is to be commended for bringing this point clearly to the attention of the Canadian government.

In its annual pre-budget brief to the Ministers of Finance and National Revenue yesterday, the Chamber points out that "before the Commission is able to complete its studies and public recommendations, the United States is likely to have introduced important reductions in personal and corporate tax rates which are bound to enter into any judgment of what is most appropriate in Canada."

The Chamber's brief suggests that if reductions are carried out in the United States, serious consideration will have to be given to similar moves in this country.

Taxation levels in this country are too high in nearly all important fields. And yet, there is still not enough public money to go around. The federal government's deficit continues to rise. Many of the provinces are in dire straits. And municipalities are finding it increasingly difficult to finance necessary development.

An increasingly-heavy tax burden has obviously not provided the sought-for remedy.

A greatly accelerated rate of development at all levels would seem to be called for. This would increase yields on those taxes found necessary.

But, at the moment, productivity at both the personal and the corporate level is being stifled by our taxation system.

We may well be in danger of killing the goose by trying to get too many golden eggs.

Other papers say:

Little hope for major tax easing

The chief point of interest in a federal budget for the average citizen is whether it involves a raising or a lowering of his taxes. Other features may have a considerable bearing on his future economic well-being and may claim his passing attention. But it is the direct tax which engages his immediate notice.

The Edmonton speech of Hon. Walter Gordon, minister of finance, therefore, was of some significance in that it came not too far in advance of the 1964 budget presentation, and might be expected to give some hints of what to expect this year.

The hints, if any, were not particularly revealing. But the impression most people gained is that there will be no tax cuts this year in emulation of the tax cuts the United States is expected to put into effect. There was nothing to make tax increases appear probable. But there were indications tax boosts could be considered possible.

Mr. Gordon observed that a lot was said these days about high levels of taxation and about the need to reduce government expenditures. But, all the while, the great post-war trend towards urbanization and industrialization has been accompanied by greater and greater demands on government for increased spending. Improved standards of education, better provision for the older citizens, adequate medical care for everyone, better roads and highways, better cultural and recreational facilities, these and other things representative of a high standard of prosperity were demanded by the citizens.

Under such circumstances, said Mr. Gordon, it was small wonder that government expenditures, particularly on the municipal and provincial levels, had steadily gone upwards. Federal expenditures now represent only about half the total of all government expenditures in Canada, he said.

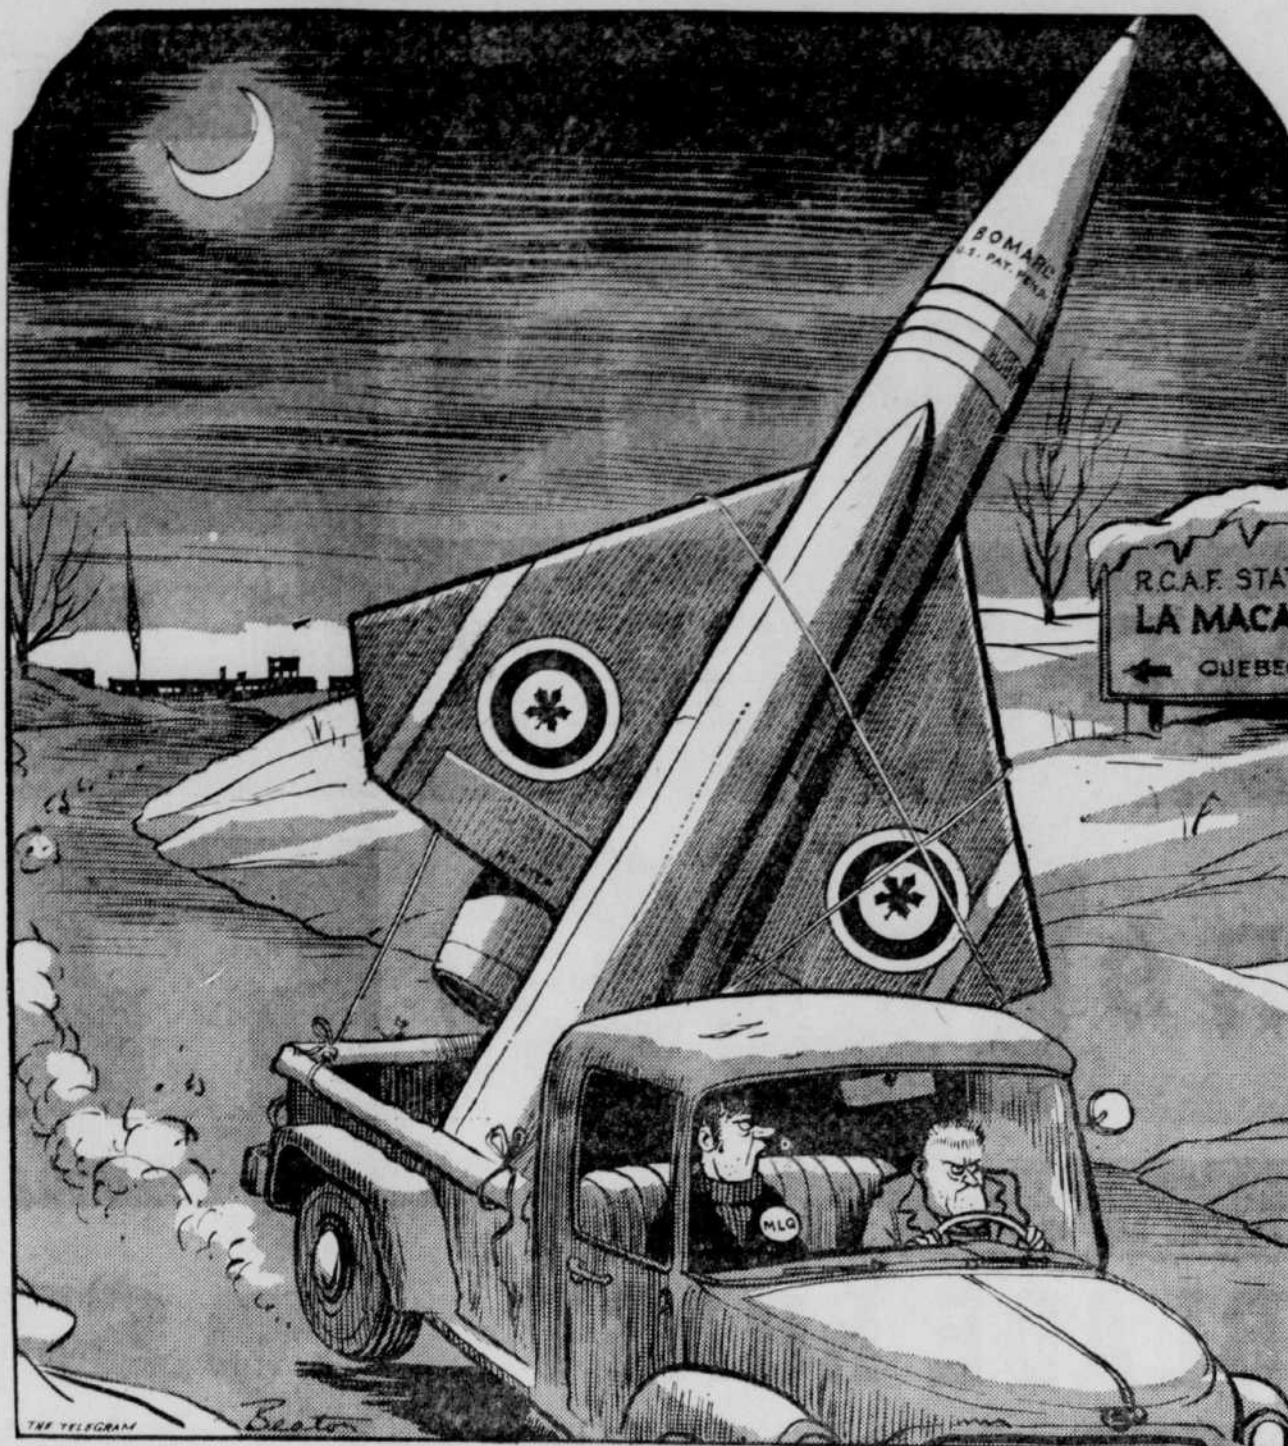

While we agree with Mr. Gordon that the public has encouraged these increases, it is worthy of nothing while on the subject, that Canadian politicians have not been backward in encouraging the public to keep their demands constantly on the rise. Politicians make such attractive promises that they too often prove irresistible these days, and sooner or later the public has to pay for its easy-going acceptance of election bait.

Canadians have tended to take government over-spending for granted to the point that this country has been running budget deficits with unfailing regularity the last few years, and is about to run another huge one in the forthcoming fiscal year. True, some slashing in federal expenditures is now under way, but boosts elsewhere seem to make them of rather little effect.

Foreign aid is being boosted to $190,000,000 this year, representing $10 for each Canadian. Grants to the provinces are to be increased, and large sums are going to the Montreal world's fair and to Centennial costs. Revenue also is on the increased, and while sales will help. But government spending is striking high in Canada just now and it will be unrealistic of people to look for any easing of their tax burdens.

Native Sons choose maple leaf

Dear Sir:
As the maple leaf is recognized the world over as a Canadian emblem, our society (Native Sons of Canada) chose a green maple leaf for our design of a Canadian national flag. We feel that every person within our shores and those who may come in the future will acclaim same as their own.

We use the red and white for the field as those are the most popular in our country. We feel that in our design there is unity, and that's what is wanted more today than ever before.

We are against the hyphenated Canadian being used in anyway for that term shows disunity, that we are choosing sides.

We feel that every person who enters our country legally and lives according to the laws of our country should have an equal chance. We believe the Queen should be our Queen of Canada and O Canada be our national anthem.

We want our ties to our sister nations kept strong as shown by Commonwealth cable our Queen opened.

We stand for everything that would make CANADA strong and united.

Chinese people rejected Chiang

Dear Sir:
Your editorial last Friday (Jan. 31st) in the necessity of recognizing Red China deserves support.
As the years have passed since the Chinese Communists achieved power the diplomatic value in non-recognition has decreased to vanishing point. However, the disadvantages of non-recognition is only one aspect. A more serious error, not often mentioned in these debates, is the disadvantages of the continued recognition of Nationalist China on Formosa as the government of all China and the support for the hope of a return of this regime to the Mainland.

The victory of the Communists in the Chinese civil war was as much due to the abysmal corruption, ineptness and terror of the Kuomintang as it was to Communist forces. The support which the Reds got from the peasants of China was as much a rejection of Chiang Kai Chek as it was a belief in Mao's Marxism.

The Nationalists lost despite overwhelming superiority in forces and $2000 million in American aid and yet after 14 years in exile are still considered the rulers of China. We do not recognize a Cuban Government-in-exile headed by Batista and the principle is the same in the Far East.

There are many steps to be taken in improving the international political climate which will have to await a light of reason and moderation in Moscow and Peking but this is one item on which Canada could play a decisive part—provided she is not too frightened of having all her exported lumber marked "Canada."

Yours sincerely,
D. J. M. Graham,
Stanstead.

According to official report

Church of England 'bad steward'

LONDON (CP) — "Something is eating the heart out of the Church of England. . . . The safe old church isn't safe any more."

Against the gentle click of croquet balls on the vicar's lawn, such blunt comments may sound as ill-chosen as blue jokes in church. But they are flying thick and fast in the wake of an official report on the church, and they are being treated with the utmost seriousness.

"There is no doubt that what the evidence urges is a reform of the ministerial structure and of the pastoral machinery of the church. Not one single reform, but an interlocking series of reforms."

"The alternatives are chilling — to do nothing, which means to abandon the nation to its religious decline and the clergy to their isolation, or to attempt a few piecemeal reforms that may save face."

The indictment is perhaps most severe on deployment of clergy. The report says that 41 per cent deal with 11 per cent of the population and 14 per cent with 34 per cent. The result is clergyman struggling single-handed in some areas while parishes in up to 50,000, while others minister to fewer than 1,000 of whom perhaps only a handful attend services.

Conditions are often discouraging. In one church, there is no heating in winter and Even-song is held at 3 p.m. to avoid the expense of lighting. One person drew as little as £400 a year, there were many earning £700 and possibly the majority were in the £800 bracket.

"You find yourself gently rotting away," one clergyman was quoted.

for losing membership, putting its clergymen in the wrong places and tolerating wide discrepancies in payment.

The core of the problem, Paul says, is that the church is a "bad steward." What of the future?

"There is no doubt that what the evidence urges is a reform of the ministerial structure and of the pastoral machinery of the church. Not one single reform, but an interlocking series of reforms."

"You find yourself gently rotting away," one clergyman was quoted.

On a television program, church and lay figures confirmed many of Paul's points.

One man said the church is among the worst-paid professions and another spoke of being "held fast in a machine that grinds incessantly on."

Under the system, "you can stagnate for 20 years," one cleric said. At the same time it was hard to get rid of an incompetent parson.

"We must set the bishops free to be Fathers in God to the clergyman," said one church figure interviewed on the program.

Britain was going through a second industrial revolution. Good men were drifting from the north of England to the more prosperous south, leaving some areas of Yorkshire virtually without religious help. Devon, Cornwall and East Anglia were seeing their best young men go elsewhere.

Newspaper comment offers little encouragement to the church. Geoffrey Moorhouse in the Manchester Guardian notes that Paul received no replies or point-blank refusals from 30 per cent of the clergy he approached. A bishop in a Sussex diocese said Paul's questionnaires should be tossed into the wastepaper basket as "an impertinence of the most abhorrent kind."

In The Evening Standard, Dr. Mervyn Stockwood, a London area bishop, said that if the church rejects the Paul report, it will "find itself on a branch line and at a place called Halt." The railway parallel derives from a comparison with the recommendations of Dr. Richard Beecching for streamlining Britain's railroad system.

Raid fits pattern

Separatists draw blueprint for revolt

By PETER WORTHINGTON

By raiding and looting an army arsenal in Montreal, a new group of militant Quebec separatists once again have projected Canada's national problem into headlines.

Whether the gunmen who raided the Fusiliers Mont-Royal armory and stole machine guns, grenades and ammunition are quickly caught or stay at large to wage a campaign of violence, isn't the key issue.

What is significant is that violence and the separatist movement are once again linked in Quebec.

Terrorism didn't die with the apparent emasculation of the FLQ last summer. This new group, the CRQ (Comite Revolutionnaire du Quebec) seems ready to carry on from where the FLQ left off. Bombs in ash cans and mailboxes conceivably could lead to gunfire in the streets.

TERRORISM

It is too early to know. There is no cause for panic, just as there is no excuse for complacency.

If a recent survey of Quebec is accurate (and there is wide agreement that it is) barely 13 per cent of the people are ardent separatists.

Violence has become the fashionable way to independence, an instrument of politics rather than a weapon of last resort.

If nationalists or rebels really want to succeed, it seems they must use terror tactics. There is nothing new in this. Quebec militants simply are following a blueprint for revolution.

Independence movements around the world have had more success with violence than they have had with reason. It's interesting and disquieting to compare Quebec nationalists with nationalists of other lands.

VIOLENCE

Before the Irish rebellion of 1916 there were strident voices and seemingly silly groups dedicated to winning independence. Violence was stepped up after army arsenals were raided and a ragtag revolutionary army was created — at first largely on paper.

Gradually the many fringe groups were co-ordinated and the revolution erupted. The uprisings were crushed, but Ireland's case was dramatically illustrated. It was only a question of time before Britain granted its independence to the unhappy land.

Cyprus, in the mid-50s, was regarded as a sleepy, peaceful island in the sun. But the Greek Cypriots began a campaign of stab-in-the-back terrorism to gain ENOSIS — union with Greece.

Britain had to take notice when her troops were being murdered and the terrorist EOKA underground was killing with impunity.

Cyprus was independent by 1960.

In Kenya the Mau Mau broke the white settlers' desire to keep Kenya white at all costs. Today Kenya has its independence while in nearby Southern Rhodesia, relatively free of violence so far, the blacks have no strength.

I was in Algiers when the OAS — the Secret Army Organization — first appeared. Slogans on walls, desecrated French government symbols, and abuse towards French soldiers were the first manifestations. I can remember officials pooh-poohing the influence of the OAS — until the first arsenal was raided and atrocities began.

MALAISE

Before it was stamped out the OAS was murdering 1,500 people a month. Anarchy and fear reigned unopposed.

The methods of the FLQ, and now the CRQ, fit the traditional pattern of revolutionary movements, whether they be in Laos, Vietnam, or Angola.

Recent violence in Quebec is symptomatic of the malaise that riddles the province. When you question people, you find a remarkable variety of complaints. But few admit they want outright separatism, and none says they support violence.

Quebec has been a disgruntled province with an inferiority complex for years. It seems to think it has been persecuted. Which, in fairness, it was.

SUSPICION

Quebec's troubles are as much social and economic as political.

By watching TV, Quebecers saw a life they hadn't known existed.

They began to ask questions and demand answers.

Many politicians blamed the federal government and/or the Quebec English for the backward conditions. It was the easy solution.

Irritations with Ottawa increased. Suspicion towards the rest of Canada spread.

In order to win votes today Quebec politicians regardless of their personal views, must appear strong and determined to battle Ottawa.

This doesn't make them separatists, but it does force them to placate the various separatist movements.

BOMBERS

The FLQ and its bombs represented a lunatic and hoodlum fringe that violence — any violence — attracts.

The longer this new group remains free, the more attraction it will have. And if it uses the weapons now in its hands, it will gain stature with a certain lunatic element.

Regardless of what happens to the new CRQ, one thing seems certain: other movements, other forms of terrorism and violence will occur before Quebec's problems are solved.

Our country isn't equipped, mentally or physically, to cope with revolutionaries and terrorism.

We don't have special police and troops to deal specifically with violent uprisings. A bomb-thrower would have an easy time in Canada.

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — U.S.A. The Waterloo Vico Metal Products Division manufacturer Sico products in Canada under license. Conferees today toured the Waterloo and Cowansville plants, and were given a general conference briefing. The agenda consists of three presentations a day, with a wind-up address on Saturday by J. I. Mark, vice-president, sales, of the Moyer Division, president, sales, Sico Products, Toronto.

The trespassing charge was lodged against Mr. Boucher by M. Shee, at the request of the Brome Fish and Game Club, when a private hunting guard found Mr. Bouchard on Mr. Shee's lands. The first witness's testimony — the private guard — was erroneous in two sections. First he told the court he stopped Mr. Bouchard on November 13, when the date actually was October 13. He later positively identified Mr. Bouchard in the courtroom, while Mr. Bouchard was out of the courtroom, but his brother Marcel was in the courtroom. The two are look-alikes. Frederick Partridge, president of the Brome Fish and Game Club, explained the purposes of the club, and added that about 500 property owners had rented their lands to the club, surplus in four years.

But there's still poison there

The Tory party's wounds healing

OTTAWA (CP) — The Tory party's wounds are healing, but all the poison may not be driven out for a long time to come. This was the assessment of one top party strategist following Tuesday's overwhelming vote of confidence in Progressive Conservative Leader John Diefenbaker.

Another said that the smallness of the rebel group—less than five per cent—showed how few cards it had when the chips were down.

He conceded that it had looked last weekend, when the Young Progressive Conservatives and University Student Federation held their annual meetings and kicked up their heels, that the anti-Diefenbaker forces might be stronger than anyone had suspected.

But in the final analysis, another source explained, the old Conservative party, with many serious wounds in its history, wasn't going to commit suicide and throw over its leader—especially with no likely successor in the wings.

Mr. Diefenbaker was naturally jubilant. For more than two hours Tuesday night he stood in a receiving line shaking hands with hundreds of party supporters and well-wishers, including some of the dissidents.

His eyes sparkled, he grinned, and he patted old friends on the arm or the back. His comment at the end of the day: "Nothing like it in all my political experience."

He was also overheard to say, "there won't be much joy in Gritville."

But representatives of the Rebel group and old supporters alike weren't sure that the day's developments would entirely heal the party's wounds.

WHAT THIS SERIES CAN MEAN TO YOU!
Do you shy away from discussing good music? Are names like Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Chopin, Grieg and Tchaikovsky just foreign names to you? If so, you'll want to give yourself and your family a chance to learn more about the classic — to discover the great adventure of learning that fine music is just as enjoyable as popular tunes and can, in fact, give much longer and deeper satisfaction.

If, on the other hand, you are already familiar with some of the world's greatest music, this new series of records offers for the first time a chance to share the experience with your family and friends.

FOREMOST AUTHORITIES CONTRIBUTE!
By special arrangement, Dr. Sigmund Spaeth — renowned music lecturer, writer and editor of MUSIC JOURNAL magazine — has provided some of the program notes for this series of albums. Here you'll find the masterworks and likes of the great composers explained in the inimitable Spaeth manner — knowledgeable, lively, informal — that over the years has helped so many thousands to a greater love of fine music.

To add extra dimension and variety to your listening, other foremost musical authorities — such as Jerome D. Bohm of the New York Herald Tribune and John W. Freeman of Opera News magazine, have added their comments.

The rector, Rev. Rural Dean

T. E. R. Nurse, presented his report for the year which was complete and in detail. A new innovation is the 4 p.m. special ski service, held every Sunday afternoon at the Church of Michael and All Angels, Bolton Glen. He also stated that the Sunday School enrollment of past year was the highest on record; with 111 children registered. The rector has also started a Servers Guild.

Wells Martin, treasurer, presented a comprehensive financial statement, showing an increase at the church are working hard and the financial state is in sound condition, due to the efforts of all concerned, especially the recently conducted every member canvass.

Special prayers and a moment's silence was observed in memory of members who had died during the year.

The rector expressed appreciation to E. C. Pilson, retiring rector's warden, an office which he held for eight years; he has also retired from many former activities of the Church.

Dr. K. Harper addresses ABC Home and School

COOKSHIRE — The A.B.C. Home and School Association met in the auditorium of the high school, with Darrell Belham in the chair. The special feature of the evening was the address given by Dr. Kathleen Harper, of Bishop's University, on Communication Between Home and School.

Dr. Harper maintained that there was no substitute for a good basic knowledge for pupils, but that they should be given a great deal more than knowledge, and be trained to use their knowledge wisely.

There should be diversity of knowledge — opportunities should be given the pupils to learn music, public speaking, science and other subjects and sports, so that they might develop their latent abilities.

They should be taught independence of thought and self-reliance, enabling them to meet problems and solve them. However, care must be taken not to give too much freedom before they are ready or capable of using it.

In order to be of long-lasting help to a student, one must help him or her to build up their sense of values, thus strengthening their maturity and strength of character, this will act as a raft from which they can learn to swim or be self-reliant.

Today, too much emphasis is placed on money, one should remember there are many things that money cannot buy. We should, therefore, prepare pupils for solid, moral and spiritual values, as well as academic learning. Neither the home, nor the school, can do it alone, there must be mutual understanding and co-operation between both channels of communication. Report cards, Parents' Night, when parents and teachers are given an opportunity to discuss problems of the students, newsletters or form letters, will serve as channels of communication. Thus, teachers and parents will learn things of mutual benefit, mutual respect and trust in each other will help the pupils with their problems.

A short discussion followed the address. Miss Esther Farnsworth introduced Dr. Harper, and she was thanked by A. Moore.

A short business meeting preceded the address, Mrs. Clout read the minutes, and Mrs. Gilbert Ross gave the financial report. Mr. Bellam stated that supervision had been given by some of the society's members for the rink; he also suggested that ideas be brought in for raising more funds.

The East Angus ladies served refreshments at the close of the evening.

I. O. D. E. will celebrate 64th birthday on Feb. 13

The I.O.D.E. (Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire) will celebrate its 64th birthday on February 13.

At Founder's Day meetings from coast to coast, the Order's 976 chapters will recall its growth from a small group of Canadian women supplying clothes for Boer War soldiers, to a National voluntary organization raising over $1,000,000 for education, emergency welfare, and other community services.

Activities in the educational field, where more than $350,000 is spent annually, have been expanded within the past two years to include a school adoption programme in Canada's Far North.

Sixty-two schools and eight hostels in the Yukon and Northwest Territories have been adopted. Forty-two schools in Northern and Southern Labrador, and thirty-four remote and isolated schools in Newfoundland, have recently become part of this project. The I.O.D.E. school adoption programme now extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from the Arctic to the Caribbean. School adoption involves gifts of new libraries, library additions, prize books, visual aids, recreational and study material.

The I.O.D.E. continues its work to support Canadian arts. The National Chapter has recently presented a $500.00 bursary to the bicultural National Theatre School of Canada for students completing acting and production courses, and 30 scholarships (Overseas) valued at $2,000.00 each, and 25 bursaries at $1,600.00 each, in Canada, Africa, Korea, and the West Indies, Hong Kong and India.

Sixty four thousand dollars was awarded from I.O.D.E. First and Second War Memorial Funds for 12 Post-Graduate $100,00.00 for supplies to needy which are shipped to Europe, Africa, Korea, The West Indies, Hong Kong and India.

Through the tireless efforts of the members, thousands of

The Eskimos in the Canadian Arctic are now the proud owners of three community halls which was a National I.O.D.E. project. They are located at Frobisher Bay in the Eastern Arctic, Tuktoyaktuk in the Western Arctic, and the final one, completed and opened last summer at Baker Lake, is in the Central Arctic.

The I.O.D.E. is fighting for equality for Canadian Indians. A Brief was presented this past year to the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, urging the government to extend its work by initiating a research programme in co-operation with Canadian universities, which would cover not only the field of education, but all aspects of the life of our Indian citizens.

The I.O.D.E. is raising a maximum of $50,000.00 for the National Fund known as the "I.O.D.E. Canadian Centenary Fund." Disposition of this fund will be decided at the 1964 National Annual Meeting.

Today, the I.O.D.E. is one of the largest voluntary women's organizations in Canada. In this fast changing world it strives to keep pace through education, promote unity within the Commonwealth, and give service to the needy.

Students nurses announce winner of recent draw

The winner of the drawing, sponsored by the student nurses of the Sherbrooke Hospital, was Mrs. W. J. Gilfillan, 50, Abilezie Drive, Islington, Ont.

The student nurses would like to thank everyone for their support. The money realized from this drawing will help to defray expenses for two students to attend the Annual Canadian Nurses Association Convention, which this year is being held in Newfoundland.

Q—Please tell me why my cookie dough is too soft to roll or spread?

A—Several factors may cause your dough to be too soft:

1. Undermeasurement of flour or use of flour that has been stored when humidity was high.
2. Overmeasurement of shortening, butter, margarine or use of extremely soft or melted shortening.

ASSOCIATION FOR RETARDED CHILDREN

Reports of the various secretaries were most satisfactory, showing that much interest and work had been done through the year.

Polly's pointers by Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY — To sharpen children's crayons without waste, hold each crayon near a heated radiator until it is softened and then taper to a point with the fingers.

• To remove paint that has splattered and hardened on floors, moisten with nail polish remover. Rub off with a cloth after a few minutes and then wash with warm soapy water. The paint disappears no matter how long it has been there.

• When sewing plastic materials, "baste" with paper clips instead of pins. These materials should not be punctured except with needles.

• Men just don't dare to be vain about their looks as women are, for fear it will make them seem less masculine.

But if men can be persuaded that making the most of their looks and trying to stay as young-looking as possible is simply "good business," the struggle for eternal youth.

DEAR POLLY — Have you ever been all dressed up to go somewhere and found your best white gloves soiled from the last wearing? When I return from church or a party, I go directly to the wash basin and with the gloves still on my hands, wash them thoroughly with my favorite mild liquid soap. Then I rinse and remove the gloves and hang them in the bathroom to dry. The next time, they are ready to go.

DEAR POLLY — We hinged the top of the bottom step at our back door and use the space below for storing rubbers, galoshes, ball bats, skates and so on.

DEAR POLLY — When felling, rolling or basting, sewing time can be cut in half by simply wrapping a brick with a scrap of turkish toweling and securing the sewing to it with a pin. Leverage thereon results in speed and reducing sewing time.

DEAR POLLY — I have found that a discarded piano bench, brightly painted, makes a wonderful work table for tots. It provides storage for crayons, coloring books and other playthings. Footstools painted to match serve as chairs.

DEAR POLLY — Here is another "don't throw anything away" hint. Giant-sized hooks and eyes are hard to find in the stores. Since I have 10 children I went through four buckle overshoes that were to be discarded and clipped off the remaining parts of the buckles. I have now sewn these on two jackets that had broken zippers. Such buckles come on raincoats so I saw no reason not to use them to replace zippers on heavy jackets.

DEAR POLLY — You really prove the validity of that old saying, "Waste not, want not."

Anyone having items of interest for the Social Column please phone Mrs. P. Pickford, LO. 9-3636, Local 38.

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. Nelson Lothrop was guest speaker at the meeting of Belvedere branch Women's Institute held at the Town Hall, Lennoxville, on Saturday, February 1. The president, Miss H. McGee, welcomed members of Ascot W.I., who were invited guests.

Mrs. G. Montgomery, welfare and health convener, introduced the speaker who chose as her topic, Citizenship in Relation to Health and Welfare, touching on conditions in Canada from coast to coast and in other parts of the world.

Mrs. Lothrop concluded her remarks by voicing her appreciation and thanks to the Women's Institutes for their co-operation and help in the Welfare Society.

The president thanked Mrs. Lothrop for an interesting and inspiring address.

The roll call, a home remedy and its use, was answered by nine members.

Correspondence included letters from Mrs. W. Richardson, secretary of Ascot W.I., accepting an invitation from members of the branch to attend the February meeting, from Lennoxville Park Commission asking for the names of two members of the branch to act as representatives on the Commission, from the Canadian Cancer Society thanking members for the donation of Christmas gifts for the patients and a note of thanks from Mrs. A. E. McGee to all members who had helped at the recent card party.

CONVENERS' REPORTS
Conveners reports were: Agriculture, Mrs. K. Smart, gave a report for Miss E. Smith, of the meeting of the School Fair committee, held on January 28 and attended by Agriculture conveners.

Education, Mrs. K. Smart, read excerpts from an article in the Home and School news entitled, The School and the Community, by Miss Kathleen Harper, Bishop's University.

Welfare and Health, Mrs. G. Montgomery, mentioned the Christmas from Canada project and that stockings should be sent from the branches to headquarters by July.

Home Economics, Mrs. F. Paige, mentioned that Salada symbols should be turned in at the next meeting as they have to be sent away in April. Books for the Fair Booth drawing must be in at the next meeting. Application forms for a tailoring course had been received if members were interested. Mention was made that a local textile firm is giving material for the Fashion Show, to be held at the annual convention at MacDonald College in June.

Ways and means, Mrs. A. E. McGee, reported a successful card party was held at Huntingville Hall.

Park Commission, Mrs. J. Tarte, stated that representatives were urged to attend the annual meeting, to be held on February 19.

Sunshine, Miss E. Beaton, reported cards sent out.

A motion was made that $5. be donated to the Huntingville Ladies' Aid, in appreciation for the use of their hall, for the recent card party. Five dollars is to be donated to the Students Council of Lennoxville High School.

Eight pair of mitts, one pair of booties, and one pair of socks, were turned in for the work calendar.

Mrs. Frank Ingham, president of Ascot W.I., on behalf of their branch, thanked members for being invited to the meeting.

A social hour was enjoyed when lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. G. Montgomery and Mrs. K. Smart, assisted by Mrs. W. R. Bell, Mrs. C. Drummond and Mrs. Francis Paige.

The annual meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. F. Paige, 76 Atto St., Lennoxville, on March 7. Conveners are to bring in their annual reports.

THE WORLD OF SPORTS

A bounty on politicians suggested by outfitter at association meeting

QUEBEC (CP)—The language of an outfitter would not know how many parties he could take out. An Eastern Canada outfitter, who expresses his thoughts in a natural, unimpeded and ear-catching way.

"We've got lots of snow, lots of politicians and lots of poachers," sported rangy Rai MacWhirter, reporting to the Quebec Outfitters' Association convention on the state of deer hunting in the Gaspé Peninsula.

"We're talking about putting a bounty on politicians. It might be the only way to get to see one. There was nawthin' but poachers last fall."

On the first day of the deer season, he said, 1,000 guns went in on one road in Bonaventure County and "that's a regiment."

"That warden worked his trousers off during the caribou season last fall."

The 53rd parallel was the southern boundary for the caribou season, first in years, but Thierry said they were being hunted 150 miles south of that line.

"They couldn't even define the boundaries."

He suggested the department of tourism, fish and game be fully prepared for the job before a reserve was set up.

SAYS SHORTEN SEASON

To cut down the toll on moose and caribou, he suggested a shorter deer season. If it isn't shortened, "there won't be any moose when their season comes around."

The MacWhirter report caught the tone of the convention of about 70 of the association's 200 members at Tommy Levesque's Millions-Dollar Motel at nearby Beaufort.

Levesque's affluence hasn't caused him to lose his outfitter's bluntness.

"Aren't we getting a little confused here?" he asked at one point Tuesday, as the outfitters toyed with the idea of government-controlled hunting of moose. "We're commercial outfitters."

With controlled hunting, he pointed out, it would be difficult to make arrangements for hunting parties months in advance.

Bobcat hunt bags one for $10

MANSONVILLE — (Special) — The Bromo County Fish and Game Club celebrated Candlemas Day with the first bobcat hunt of the season. One cat was bagged.

A hunt will be held by club members each Sunday.

The club will pay a bonus of $10 to any club member who kills one of these predatory animals.

The club hopes to decrease the bobcat population, thus insuring a better chance for the smaller game animals, and birds, on which the bobcats prey.

Bobsledding gold glitters for Canada

Canada, Russia tied in hockey entering bigtime

INNSBRUCK, Austria (CP)—A full four-game schedule gets the secondary out of the way for the leaders today in the Winter Olympics hockey championships, setting the stage for a dramatic finish on Friday and Saturday.

That's when the top four teams bump head-on in the decisive games of the eight-nation round-robin tournament that determines the hockey gold medalist.

Canada, Russia, Czechoslovakia and Sweden were in the first four places in the standings after Tuesday's three championship games, and only a fantastic upset today could knock any of the four out of the running for the championship.

The Canadians, tied with Russia at the top of the standings, were scheduled against Finland in today's first championship-round match.

Then Sweden was to tackle the winless Switzerland squad, the Russians were to meet winless Germany and Czechoslovakia was scheduled against the U.S.

Granby Vics' jinx (Sherbrooke) strikes again in 5-4 defeat

GRANBY — It would be hard to imagine a situation more frustrating than the one the Granby Vics found themselves in at the end of last night's encounter with their least favorite jinx, the Sherbrooke Beavers.

For the third time in a row the high-flying Vics had their hands slapped by those chronic cellar-dwellers from Sherbrooke. As if this weren't bad enough, the Vics blew their chance to get within a point of the Provincial League championship. Their heel-snapping competition for the crown, the Drummondville Rockets were downed 5-4 by the St. Hyacinthe Gauls.

That jinx must have been operating with a close eye, and a sense of the ironic, in both Granby and Drummondville last night.

Point — both top teams were defeated.

Point — both were defeated at home.

Point — the scores were identical, 5-4.

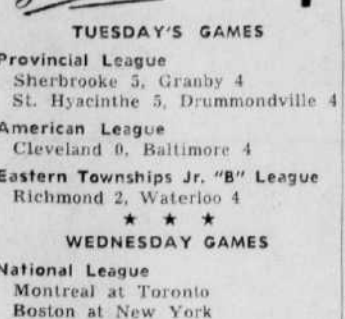

Cloverleaves, anyone?

Sherbrooke starts slowly in Quebec

QUEBEC CITY — The Sherbrooke Curling Club's youthful Peter Cross rink finished their first two rounds in the British Consol Playdowns here yesterday with less than spectacular results, having come up against some very strong opposition.

The Sherbrooke four lost their first game to the Schefferville rink skipped by M. Oldale 8-6. They were again defeated by W. Armstrong's Lachine group 14-8.

Playing for Cross are Bob Dwyer, Ashford Lothrop and Ernie Taylor.

RUSSIA HAS EDGE

The Soviet Union, which won its fourth straight game by whipping Finland 10-0 Tuesday, already has beaten the Czechs 7-5. The Russian beat the U.S. 5-1 and trounced Switzerland 15-0 in its other two games and has by far the best goal average.

The Canadians beat Sweden 3-1 in their second game, beating Switzerland 8-0 earlier. Germany 4-2 later in a sloppy performance, and the U.S. 8-6 Monday night with a strong second-period surge that raised hopes in Canadian circles here that the young squad can win Canada's sixth Olympic hockey gold medal and first since 1952.

In Tuesday's other games, the Czechs beat Switzerland 5-1 and the Swedes trounced Germany 10-2.

Molson's tied with St. Pat's in ETABA play

Molson's Independents remain tied with St. Pat's Old Boys for first place in the E.T.A.B.A. as a result of a strong 68-41 win over the revamped Centre de Loisirs de Magog club. St. Pat's and Molson's now have the stage set for a showdown battle when they meet February 11, in a game that could well decide the league winners.

In their tussle with Magog, the powerful Independents got off to a very slow start and their 29-23 half time lead was not indicative of play. The younger Magog entry used their fast break effectively, with newcomer P. Brodeur and Rod McKell driving for easy lay ups to keep the score within close range. Only Bruce Coulter's long one handed push shots kept Molson's in the lead.

The Independents came alive in the second half with superior play in all departments to walk off with their sixth victory in seven starts. Bruce Coulter led all scorers with 20 points, followed by Guy Ouelette with 14. Magog's P. Brodeur hit for 15 and McKell 13 points with both boys playing good all round games.

Action resumes next Monday night as St. Pat's pay a visit to Lennoxville in a game starting at 8:00 p.m.

Molson's: B. Coulter 20; G. Ouelette 14; D. Patridge 10; G. Smith 9; C. Chapple 9; C. Bishop 4; B. McGibbon 2. Total 68.

Magog: P. Brodeur 15; R. McKell 13; E. Hensen 7; D. Parker 4; J. Berube 2; M. Rancourt, J. Beaudry. Total 41.

Canadians now face their big test with three crucial foreign games

Montreal Canadiens, a surprise team in the National Hockey League, are facing the big test.

According to pre-season talk they were not supposed to be in first place at this time. But they're at the top, tied with Chicago Black Hawks.

Whether the Habs stay there depends on how they make out in their next three games—all on foreign ice.

They took Ted Harris of Cleveland and Terry Gray of Quebec, both of the American Hockey League, along to fill in spots vacated by defencemen Jean-Guy Talbot and right-winger Bernie Geoffrion.

Talbot suffered a charley-horse early in Saturday's 9-3 win by Canadiens over Detroit Red Wings.

Geoffrion, injured in Boston Jan. 19, has been out to practice but is not ready for action.

Canadiens take on the Maple Leafs in Toronto tonight. Then they move to New York for the clash with the Rangers Saturday and head for Boston to meet the Bruins Sunday.

Two other games are set for tonight—Boston at New York and Chicago Black Hawks at Detroit.

It will be the 10th meeting between the Canadiens and Leafs, all even with four wins and a tie apiece. Montreal won the last two encounters, 3-0 and 2-1.

Montreal hasn't decided whether to sign Yvon Cournoyer, star right winger with the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A series.

Cournoyer scored four goals in five games with the parent club—two against the Wings Saturday—while on trial.

"When a fellow gets four goals in five games there's bound to be some discussion about signing him," said Montreal coach Toe Blake.

The Bruins also dipped into the OHA for a junior player, picking up centre Ron Schock from Niagara Falls Flyers for a two-game tryout.

Detroit sent goalie Roger Crozier to Pittsburgh Hornets of the AHL. The Hornets said the move was arranged because Hank Bassen is out with torn ligaments. Crozier was in the Detroit net during the 9-3 pasting by Canadiens.

REMEMBER WHEN

Two Canadians won top crowns in the North American figure skating championships at Toronto 25 years ago today. Montgomery (Bud) Wilson of Toronto won his sixth men's title and Mary Rose Thacker of Winnipeg won the women's championship.

SHS Bantams win, tie

Sherbrooke High School Bantams tied one and won one in their two games played over the weekend. Saturday they tied one-all with St. Pats Bantams and Monday afternoon they took a close 2-1 win over BCS Senecas.

Saturday's game was a close one all the way. St. Pats led one-nothing at the end of the first period; Laforge on a pass from Hendy tied it up at one-all near the end of the second period.

The teams then battled it out on even terms in the final period. A stout defence by St. Pats kept the Sherbrooke High boys from taking the lead in the closing minutes of the game.

Against the BCS Senecas, the high school had to fight off a last period rally by the BCS boys to win out. In this period, Walker and Oxford stood out on defence for the winners.

R. Haffenden gave the visitors the lead after 12 minutes' play in the opening period. Hansen and Laforge drew assists on the tally M. Oxford made it 2-0 at the six minutes mark of the second period, finding the net on a long shot from the blue line. L. Hendy set up the scoring pass.

BCS broke into the scoring column, the goal coming at the three minute mark of the last period. Sherbrooke High came back into attacking force after this goal and only brilliant goal-tending by Kishy in the BCS net kept the high school from going further ahead. Starring in a good BCS squad Palmer, Litter and Kishy stood out. Oxford, Walker and Cook were the winners stars.

STRONG IN SKATING

They must be considered, too, in today's 5,000-metre men's speed skating, which Victor Koshichin of Russia won in 1960, although Jonny Nilsson of Sweden is favored.

The third final scheduled today — the men's 50-kilometre (30 1/2-mile) cross-country ski race—is expected to be a run between the 1956 champion Sixten Jergen of Sweden and Finland's Eero Maentymä, who already has won the 15- and 30-kilometre races.

The Soviets also have hopes in the men's 1,500- and 10,000-metre speed skating and in hockey, where the Russian squad was tied for first place with Canada after Tuesday's play in the seven-game, round-robin tournament. Each has won four games and lost none, the Russians scoring their latest victory Tuesday by whipping Finland 10-0.

Czechoslovakia beat Switzerland 5-1 and Sweden downed Germany 10-2 in other championship play while Canada and the United States were idle. The Czechs and Swedes were tied for third place with 3-1 records.

FAVORITE UPSET

The U.S. upset the Russian favorite in Tuesday's 500-metre speed skating final as Terry McDermott, 24-year-old barber from Essexville, Mich., sped to victory on skates borrowed from his coach.

McDermott finished half a second ahead of three others, including Eugenij Grischin of Russia, who won the event in 1956 and 1960. McDermott's time of 40.1 seconds clipped one-tenth of a second off Grischin's Olympic record.

Grischin, 32, slipped going into the first turn and had to settle for a second-place tie with teammate Vladimir Orlov and Alvi Gjestvang of Norway. Each received a silver medal and no bronze was awarded.

Ralf Olin of Calgary, only Canadian entered in the day's finals, was 39th.

HITS ALL TARGETS

Melanin covered the 20-kilometre race in one hour, 20 minutes and 26.8 seconds and hit all 20 targets in four stops for shooting from distances of 250, 200, 150 and 100 metres.

Alexander Pivalov of Russia also hit all 20 targets and took second place with a time of 1:23:42.5. Olav Jordet of Norway missed one target, which added two minutes to his time, and left him third in 1:24:38.8.

The one-two showing, coupled with a repeat victory in the women's 10-kilometre cross-country skiing, a sensational four gold medals by Siberian school teacher Lidia Skoblikova in the four women's speed-skating finals, and the first Soviet figure-skating triumph in the pairs final, gave Russia seven gold medals in seven days.

The total equals the 1960 catch, when three of the gold medals came in each of the men's and women's figure skating and the seventh in the women's cross-country ski.

SIX IN 1956

In 1956, before the women's speed skating events were added to the program, Russia won six championships—three in men's speed skating, two in cross-country skiing and the hockey gold medal.

In unofficial team standings, based on a 10-5-4-3-2-1 scoring system for the first six placings in each final, the Soviet Union has 134 1/2 points—far above Germany's 61 and France's 52 1/2. In 1956 the Soviet team topped the standings with 121 points to Austria's second-place 78 1/2 and in 1960 Russia scored 165 1/2 to Sweden's second-best 71 1/2.

Canada, with only two bronze medals won in pairs and women's singles figure skating here, has only 11 points for ninth place. Canada was eighth with 32 points in 1960 when it won gold medals in pairs figure skating and women's slalom skiing, and was 10th with 16 points in 1956 when it didn't win a gold medal.

The Germans bounced into second place in the team standings Tuesday with a near sweep in the men's and women's single luge (toboggan) events, on the Olympic program for the first time.

US women, children moved from Cyprus

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—An emergency airlift began removing hundreds of American women and children from this Mediterranean trouble spot today as anti-Arab violence continued on Cyprus.

Terrorists bombed the American Embassy in Nicosia Tuesday night, slightly injuring a marine guard, then set ablaze two cars owned by U.S. government employees.

U.S. Ambassador Fraser Wilkins ordered a "voluntary" evacuation of American dependents to Beirut, Lebanon, explaining he no longer has confidence in the ability of Greek Cypriot police to keep order.

EDUCATION BILL

create an Education Department — in quick fashion, although Mr. Johnson repeated his objections that the government is taking too much control over education.

It was the ninth day of debate on the bill.

The government is attempting to "nationalize education," Mr. Johnson charged.

He said Youth Minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who will become Education Minister, reminded him of the brother-director of a school who "wanted to do everything."

"The Brother-Director of the Province of Quebec will be the Youth Minister," he said.

Premier Lesage disclosed in the Legislature the Government expects to borrow about $60,000,000 for expressway construction in the coming fiscal year and he hinted part of the money may be used to start a superhighway along the north shore of the St. Lawrence.

Mr. Lesage said that money borrowed on behalf of the province would be used on the Eastern Townships superhighway, to complete the Laurentian autoroute running north from Montreal "and perhaps to have next year a start on the one for the north shore of the St. Lawrence."

The Premier said communications, food communication in particular, "are the keys to economic development."

Quebec must have a roads system that would compare with the rest of North America. Without it, "We would do just as well to return to the conditions that existed under the Union Nationale and which were among the provincial causes of unemployment."

Possibility of building a superhighway along the St. Lawrence Northshore between Montreal and Quebec City has been under study for several years. A government report on the possibility of building the road is expected to be issued soon.

Archbishop Makarios, the Greek-Cypriot president, inspected damage to the embassy and denounced the bombing as the work of "heinous criminals."

The terrorism appeared designed to demonstrate Greek-Cypriot opposition to an American-British plan to assign a NATO peace force to enforce the truce between the island's warring Greek and Turkish communities.

CAN'T ACCEPT CONDITION
Makarios, in effect, rejected such a force Tuesday in demanding that it be answerable to the United Nations Security Council. The United States and Britain say such a condition is unacceptable because it would give the Soviet Union a chance to interfere.

Bombs also were exploded Tuesday night at a Greek-owned hotel where Britons were staying. No one was injured.

Makarios' rejection of the NATO peace force was disclosed in London by Greek-Cypriot foreign minister, Spyros Kyprianou. At first British sources interpreted Makarios' message as a conditional acceptance but later revised their estimate.

Commonwealth Secretary Duncan Sandys resumed discussions with Kyprianou today to see if a formula could be worked out.

British sources said Makarios insisted the NATO peace force must not only come under the authority of the Security Council but also must derive its orders from the council and be answerable to it.

SOVIETS DENOUNCE PLAN
Moscow radio denounced the NATO plan, charging that "the NATO bosses want to turn the island into a base for their aggressive designs for the further preparation of a thermonuclear war."

The Soviet broadcast said "the voice of the UN must be raised with authority" to deal with the Cyprus problem.

largest area of controllable expenditures, defence spending will be held at the 1963-64 level or below," Mr. Hellyer said.

Speaking of the allocation of the defence dollar, the Minister said that in the past too much money had been spent for operations and maintenance and not enough for equipment. "If this trend is not reversed it will be only a few years until we have no equipment at all."

The new emphasis on equipment will be accompanied by a "streamlining of our whole organization" in order to reduce "the time required for action at all levels," he added.

Construction trades call for increased education standards

TORONTO (CP)—Young men seeking apprenticeship in construction trades must meet steadily increasing educational standards, the Canadian Construction Association has been told by its apprenticeship training committee.

Herbert Cocker, the committee's chairman, outlining the situation at the CCA's current annual meeting and at a press conference, said that while the minimum educational requirement is taken below Grade 10 and the trend is toward a Grade 12 requirement.

The usual minimum age is 16 but the former maximum limit of 21 has been removed.

Mr. Cocker, of McKay-Cocker Construction Ltd. of London, Ont., said the indenturing of apprentices to joint committees of the construction industry, rather than to individual firms, has resulted in steady employment and broader experience for trainees.

Under the joint system the apprentices are moved from job to job, rather than being dependent on the employment opportunities of one firm and one type of work. This has particularly helped in such trades as painting, plastering and lathing, where there has been a tendency towards job uncertainty.

Father Georges claims trained Haitian exiles are grouped in three secret locations around the Caribbean awaiting the jump-off signal.

"All these men need are arms. I am here to find the money to arm them," he told reporters.

WON'T NAME LEADER
Haitian exiles refuse to spell out how many men they have or where their invasion force is based. They hint there is a single leader of the revolutionary movement, but decline to identify him.

"It wouldn't be hard for Duvalier to eliminate such a man no matter where he is," Father Georges comments.

The priest claims the anti-Duvalier force will be in Haiti before the end of this year—and without U.S. aid.

"We are undeniably counting on the sympathy of the North American people," he said. "But logically, the United States government cannot get mixed up in an action of this type."
