

Roadwork Irritates Motorists

Normally, roadwork wins the praise of motorists, who realize that they will soon sweep over the newly paved thoroughfare in jig-time — but this is not the case this week in Westmount.

Perhaps it's a case of too much of a good thing.

Main sore spots are at Westmount station — where you haven't been able to approach the building on wheels for days; and Sherbrooke street east of Victoria, where white lines were painted Wednesday late and early Thursday, and while the white paint was drying, the traffic was funneled into a king-size bottleneck.

As can be seen in the picture on this page, the work at The Glen is going ahead in fine style, and in a few days the word will be the same from the railway station, where new roads, new sidewalks will add greatly to motoring comfort in the sector.

Just now however, it is tough. One motorist phoned to say that he was faced with letting his aged mother and a very young child walk the equivalent of two blocks to get to the station. Another phoned to ask why the bulk of this work couldn't be done at night, and still another expressed the opinion that this wasn't the time to do the work anyway.

Painting of white lines always irritates some motorists — but it is a safety measure that is to be commended. The city might, however, have this type of work done during the night, provided, of course, that the overtime pay is not prohibitive, and the neighbors in the vicinity do not complain too bitterly about the noise that is made.

300 Radio 'Hams' Rally Saturday

Some 300 radio 'Hams' from four provinces and three states are expected to attend the 1957 'Hamfest' sponsored by The Montreal Amateur Radio Club to be held in Victoria Hall, Westmount, Saturday.

The members will take part in a mobile transmitter hunt. Automobiles with radios will set out and try to track down a transmitter hidden somewhere on the island.

In addition, to lectures on television interference the members will compete for the Burgess trophy which is awarded to the fastest receiver.

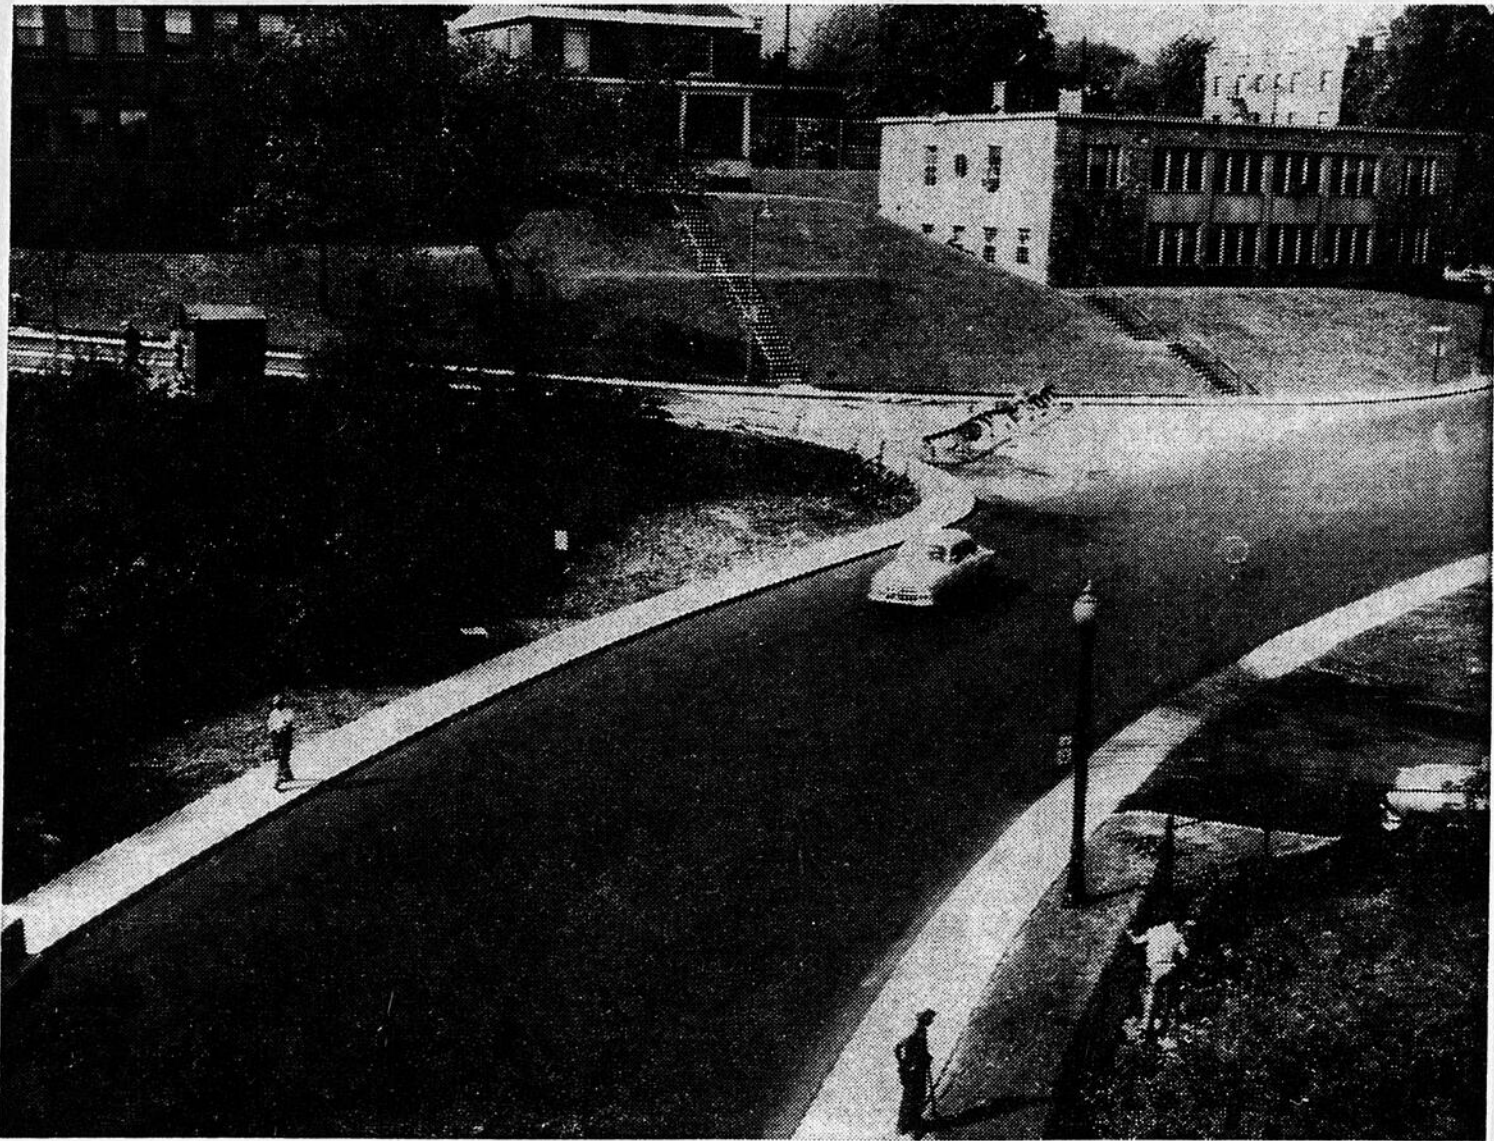

Visitors are expected to attend from all parts of Quebec, from Prince Edward Island, Ottawa, Toronto and Fort William, Albany, N.Y., Hartford, Conn., and from Vermont.

IT'S A DIFFERENT PICTURE: Yes, it's a different picture at The Glen these days, now that the Westmount roads department has gone through the various ameliorations there in jig-time, and has only a bit yet to do. Motorists will soon be passing this corner with a word of praise for the development. The corner, you may notice, has been considerably reduced. —Acme-Harrison Photo

Events Club Draws Record Attendance

The Current Events Club of Westmount Senior High School started its year's programme Wednesday with the biggest attendance in its history; 175 students, well organized under the able gavel of the President, Steve Kinsman of XI Ba.

Speakers included Pete Jacobs, gold medallist and winner of the honor award of the Westmount Old Boys' Association for 1956. Pete, who is attending Antioch College, Ohio, gave an interesting comparison of American and Canadian schooling.

The other speaker was Mark Segal, of XI Ba, who described life last summer in Switzerland.

Plans and organization of the annual trip to the United Nations, New York City, in October were explained by the Club Adviser, Mr. J. K. Snyder.

The Slate of officers for 1957-1958 includes the following: Steve Kinsman, President; Steve Lipper, Vice-President; Helaine Slater, Secretary; Eddie Aranoff and Frances Summerfreund, Publicity Managers.

In his address, Pete Jacobs emphasized that American students learn "a little about a lot of things" whereas Canadian students learn "a lot about fewer things." Canadians, said Peter, get a better basic foundation and learn good habits of study and work. They needed to take no back seat to American stu-

PIPELINES AND ARTIFICIAL RINKS . . . On June 10th of this year a majority of Canadians showed that they were not the politically apathetic lot they had been made out to be . . . They displayed their interest in politics with a record vote that spelled the defeat of a government which had been in power for close to a quarter century . . . Perhaps the average voter wasn't particularly interested in national politics until the pipeline became a major issue with the Conservative Opposition and editorials in Canadian newspapers from coast to coast screamed in protest . . . Here in Westmount the issue is not a pipeline but an artificial rink . . . And the manner in which the projects has been handled is not too foreign from the former Liberal government tactics . . . Does the council really have the right to decide whether a majority of the citizens in Westmount really want to spend half a million dollars on a rink, and, whether or not the majority favors the proposed site? The only way a democratic decision can be had is by putting the issue to a public vote. Apparently, the council has no desire to do this.

If the administration continues to act in this un-democratic way perhaps the Westmount man in the street will wake up to the fact that the system of election by acclamation which characterizes our local politics is a mite outdated. Elections never detracted from the dignity of any organization be it a boy's club or the United Nations. Perhaps the rink issue like its counterpart of the pipe line on the national scene, will have some healthy after-effects at the end of the present administrations term of office.

The sign itself is (1) ten feet from a fire hydrant (2) is bordered on the east by a driveway and a No Parking zone extending to Victoria Avenue, and (3) is bordered on the west by two driveways and another No Parking zone extending to Prince Albert Avenue. Conclusion: It would seem that any vehicle parking in the area could not avoid breaking at least one and possibly three traffic by-laws.

Recorder Rose Pays Tribute To Local Police Efficiency

(Second in a series of photographs by Ted Harrison)

The Recorder's Court of the Municipality of Westmount is located above the Police Station.

The Recorder is Bernard Rose, who has held this position since the spring.

There are five men besides Mr. Rose who are connected exclusively with this court. These include Deputy Recorder Alexander Stocker, who sits for traffic violations; Clerk of the Court, Captain O. Arsenault, upon who fall the duty of all preparations in each case; Assistant Clerk, Lieutenant Miller; Court Stenographer, Tom Carveth, and E. K. Carmen who is in charge of Court Records.

Traffic Court is held every Wednesday morning, but all other cases and contested traffic cases are heard Thursday evenings before Judge Rose.

In 1956 there were a total of 9,865 cases brought before the Westmount Court, of which 9,553 were traffic infractions. There were 4,878 traffic warnings given.

Last month 771 cases were before the court, and all but 39 were for traffic offences.

The 39 others included such offenses as burglary, assault, disturbance, common drunks, loitering, and building and rooming house by-law infractions. Since the greater number of cases in the court are for traffic offenses, it is interesting to note what procedure is followed after a driver is ticketed. When the officer who issued the ticket returns at the end of his shift, the offense is entered into the records and the driver next appears before the traffic court on the following Wednesday morning.

If he pleads guilty, he is fined on the spot, but if he pleads not guilty, then the case is remanded until the following Thursday to

Resident Delves Deeply Into ICAO Organization

Although Westmount may not be noted as a meeting place of nations, it is the home of many foreign members of the International Civil Aviation Organization. Representatives from Italy, Germany, Venezuela and the United States are among foreign citizens residing in this municipality.

One of these representatives is Col. Howard W. Helfert (US AFR), 4214 Western avenue, who is serving on the Air Nation Commission of ICAO. Col. Helfert and his family have lived in Westmount over a year and will reside here for possibly another year. Bill Helfert, 16, and Betty 13, attend Westmount Junior High School.

During the next few weeks Col. Helfert's department will be particularly concerned with the Sixth Communications Division meeting being held in the ICAO building on Dorchester street.

When asked his opinion of the court and police force since he assumed this post some six months ago, Recorder Rose said: "During the several months I have presided at this court, I have found the members of the Police Department in every way co-operative and efficient. I have had occasion to compliment the members of the force, who gave evidence in cases before me, upon the way in which the evidence was presented and the fairness displayed. I can say that the Westmount Police Department is a model of its kind, since, from the Chief down, every member of it does his utmost to maintain the prestige it enjoys and the respect it has earned from the citizens of Westmount. Captain Arsenault is extremely capable and with his experience I think everything has been running very smoothly these past few months."

Judge Rose Asks Speedy Procedure For Separations

Following the hearing of a case of non-support, Thursday, Judge Bernard Rose, QC, Municipal Judge of the City of Westmount, called for a more speedy and inexpensive court procedure in cases of husband and wife separation.

"A means should be provided for a wife to get a quick and inexpensive decision rather than go through the present costly and lengthy Superior court procedure," he said.

Judge Rose pointed out that cases of non-support come under the Criminal Code but cases of separation are civil.

"The law should be amended giving jurisdiction in these cases to district magistrates, judges of the session, and municipal judge who would hear the parties without written pleading and render judgement declared the parties separate fixing alimony and giving the custody of the children to the innocent party."

The judge stated that were this suggestion made law the Superior courts would be relieved of these cases and justice would be speedy and inexpensive.

At present the complete hearing and final decision on separation cases takes from nine months to a year and the cost to the defendant is $600. to $700.

Jewish Community Marks a New Year

STARTING at sundown next Wednesday, people of the Jewish faith residing in our community will mark the advent of a new year, 5718.

By sundown Friday the new year will be officially ushered in, but the observance will continue until sundown, Oct. 5.

Unlike Christians, who celebrate the birth of the new year with feasting and merriment, the new year is to the Jews the most solemn time of the religious year.

It is observed as a period of expiation and purification, during which time a man examines his conscience and seeks to make amends for past mistakes.

The solemn and beautiful rituals and services conducted in the synagogues are a reminder that life is fleeting and death is always on hand.

According to their beliefs, this is the time when the book of life is opened and inscribed in Heaven. The angel of the records enters the names of those who will live during the coming year, while the names of those who will die are omitted.

By fasting, penitence and atonement they seek to influence the decision of the recording angel.

The prayers and observances connected with this time date back to pre-history, when the children of Israel were a wandering tribe beset by enemies in a hostile place.

Over 50 centuries have elapsed since they were led out of bondage yet the Holy Land is still surrounded by enemies more powerful than any ever known before.

They are described as trespassers in their native land, but to the Jews it is just another phase in a history of persecution and suffering.

Here in Canada some of them have found respite, they have a lot to give to our community and coun-

Background On Rocket News:

Hidden Ace In Moscow's Sleeve?

(Editor's Note: Several days before Russia claimed success with a long-range ballistic missile, Chapman Pincher, science editor of the Daily Express, London, wrote the following for his paper.)

By CHAPMAN PINCHER

LONDON — Whispers of a mistake of such momentous proportions that it might give the Russians an overwhelming advantage in atomic fire-power are emerging from secret defence departments in London and Washington.

Defence chiefs fear that Russia may have a commanding lead in the long-range rockets which will soon replace bombers because they now realize that British and U.S. rocket research took the wrong turning 10 years ago.

There is evidence from Intelligence reports and other sources that the Russians did not make this mistake. If this is correct then Marshal Bulganin was almost certainly not bluffing when he claimed he could bombard Britain with rockets at the time of the Suez crisis last year.

The defence chiefs did not take this threat seriously then. They were satisfied that it was not technically possible for the Russians to have produced rockets capable of operating accurately at such ranges. Now an event has occurred which is making the Western defence experts change this opinion.

If you can spare two or three nights to help an essential and humanitarian cause, call Wellington 2-1151.

And, on behalf of local residents in general, we bespeak a sympathetic and generous reception for the canvassers.

vinced that all long-range weapons in the future would use liquid fuel.

This meant designing extremely complicated engines to burn these fuels—a drawback which has slowed down rocket development for several years. Remember how so many giant test rockets, like the 100-foot-long Atlas, have come to grief in the U. S. because of fuel explosions or failures?

But the scientists were absolutely convinced that the much simpler type of rocket Indeed! You said it! There can be no question that children today are very much over indulged and it is my opinion that much of our juvenile delinquency is due to that fact.

There are altogether too many agencies catering to their welfare and, as your article mentions, they might be better off without such attention.

Major Moir Waxes Enthusiastic About Scots And Their Music

"Natives of Scotland — their descendants are Scottish or Scots but never Scotch." So says Major Claude Macbeth Moir who is the officer in command of the entertainment forces of the Black Watch. "Scotch, he pointed out, "is a liquid, sometimes mixed with soda or water".

But what Major Moir was most anxious to talk about was the Black Watch performance which will take place Tuesday night at the Forum complete with bagpipers, drummers, Regimental Band and Highland Dancers. He calls it "a Scottish spectacular of spectacular Scottish music".

With pride in his voice, Major Moir discusses the history of his famous regiment, pointing out that the Black Watch was always a fighting group first formed in the early eighteenth century. At that time it was common sport in the Highlands for one fierce clan to attack another with usually disastrous results. In order to keep the peace a group of trustworthy Highlanders were formed into independent companies and armed. Together the companies were known as the Black Watch because of the late hours during which they kept lookout and also because of the dark tartan they adopted.

"It had been the common custom," he said, "for the chieftains of each company to have his own piper. He was used partly for the entertainment of the guests and partly for the stirring effects he could make in battle. "Personally I am not a piper", Major Moir explains but adds "there are 28 pipers with the Black Watch."

Regardless of what the neighbors may think, the good major insists that the music of the pipes has an extraordinary good effect and provides a nice steady pace for marching and stirs the senses when going into battle. "As for the Regimental Band," Major Moir observed, "they are musicians and part of a great band, of which the regiment is enormously proud."

That more or less sums up the background of the show to be seen Tuesday night when the Forum will ring to the Black Watch tune of pipes, drum and band and gleam with the colors of the Black Watch kilt, hackle and sporran.

Representatives from many nations will discuss aviation problems.

Among the many items to be discussed by the communications division conference will be frequency problems, radio telephony operations, radiotelephony distress procedures and approach and landing aids. These topics for discussion have been submitted to the division meeting by the parent Air Navigation Commission which has collected suggestions from all nations.

After the six-week discussion ends, the Air Navigation Commission will consider the division's recommendations, boil down this material and present proposals for international technical standards to the parent ICAO council. If the council passes these recommendations they will be established as standard procedures for the 72 member nations of ICAO.

The Air Navigation Commission is responsible for examining and recommending standards in technical fields of aviation. These standards include subjects such as personnel licensing, meteorology, aeronautical charts, operation of aircraft, ground aids and search and rescue operations. The standards are designed to insure a basic standard of safety for the operation of civil aircraft.

Although there is no police power and all countries have different problems, "most nations have cooperated with the technical standards ICAO has set up."

Col Heifert said. Because of the work of the Air Navigation Commission, "aircraft personnel know they will meet the same communications and navigation aids in all member countries," he added.

Russia is not a member of ICAO, although several iron curtain countries, such as Poland are.

Established at a Chicago meeting in 1944 with 52 nations attending, ICAO moved to Montreal in 1947 and has been incorporated with the United Nations. ICAO has played an important part in the United Nations' technical assistance program by sending trained technicians to develop aviation in undeveloped countries and training personnel in these countries.

THE LARGEST COLLECTION of British 18th Century Painting ever sent to Canada, including four works loaned by Her Majesty, The Queen, is scheduled to arrive here today aboard the Saxonia for exhibition at The Montreal Museum of Fine Arts Oct. 4-Nov. 3. The 38 cases of British masterpieces sailed from Southampton, England, Sept. 11. Organized by the British Council, the exhibition will be seen in three other cities after Montreal—the National Gallery, Ottawa; the Art Gallery of Toronto and the Toledo Museum of Art. The collection consists of 87 paintings, 68 of which are from British galleries or collectors, the remainder from Canada and the U.S.

to the identical airways that its ancestors used — probably ever since the ice age. Consequently, when we hear that Cardinals have been sighted in the Montreal district and Mockingbirds in northern Ontario, we have a tendency to be sceptical. We say to ourselves that either the person who reported the find was just "seeing things" or that surely bird life must be changing.

Actually, there is no sudden change taking place. Nature progresses slowly but surely. Of course it is quite possible to come across an "accidental", as it is called—one that really belongs, let us say, to the west coast, but because of some unusual disturbance was driven far from home. But students of this aspect of bird life tell us that there is nearly always a good explanation for the seemingly curious occurrence.

Our two examples, the Cardinal and Mockingbird, are very gradually spreading out and extending their range northward because the climate of North America is moderating very gradually. But sometimes it is merely a local change that is affecting the movements of the birds. Destroy a bird's habitat and you lose the bird. When a swamp is drained, the Coots, Rails, and other marsh birds must leave; when a forest is cut down, Woodpeckers disappear. Heavy motor traffic starting up on a hitherto quiet road means a depletion of the wayside birds, such as Vesper Sparrows. On the other hand, allow a pasture to become overgrown when the cows are removed and we will have an influx of certain Warblers, Indigo Buntings, and Song Sparrows.

When a bird's food supply is removed, very understandably, the bird cannot longer occupy its former territory. The Redheaded Woodpecker, deprived of its beeches and oaks, has practically been driven from many of Ontario's cities and towns. But when Manitoba maples were planted extensively in Canada, Evening Grosbeaks, because of their fondness for the fruit, followed these trees.

The Red-eyed Vireo used to be a bird of eastern North America only, but not long ago some individuals began to nest in southern B. C. However, in spring migration these Vireos do not fly from the Gulf of Mexico in a northwesterly direction. No, habit is so strong that they first fly due north to our border, and then turn west, greatly lengthening their journey.

How are seeds scattered?

The Seed and The Soil IV

By

The Venerable R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D., Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

When I read the story of the sower in the Gospel according to St. Mark, and come to the third soil, I feel that I am reading the result of a shorthand note taken down by Mark as Peter repeated the story: "And these are they which are sown among thorns; such as hear the word, and the cares of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, and the lusts of other things entering in, choke the word and it becometh unfruitful."

This is a part of the parable your Godfathers and Godmothers promise then for you?" And part of the answer is: "They did promise that I should renounce the pomps and vanity of this wicked world." In other words, they promised for me that I would not let the things of this world get between me and God. Pomp and circumstance have their place; business and pleasure have their place; sports and physical activities have their place; but each of them, or all of them together, may occupy the whole field of a man's heart. The man concerned hears the Gospel and he realizes that this is the word of truth; it appeals to him, because he is a man of character, and because he is sensitive to all the good things of life. But he has no conception that this thing must have first place in his life. And the Gospel will have no other place. Give it the first place - its own place - and every other legitimate interest in life will find room. For the Gospel not only fills a man's life, it expands it as well. There is room for the pomp and circumstance, the business and the pleasure, if the weeds of sin have first been eradicated and the field is given over to its proper seed.

"Little we see in Nature that is ours; Getting and spending, we lay waste our powers."

In this case there is no hardness of heart, no lack of depth of character, but a failure to put first things first. There is a receiving of the word; an acceptance of the Gospel; a desire to bring forth fruit; but no keeping of the cares of the world in their own place; and not kept in their own place they occupy the whole field. Any one who has spent a summer on a farm and has kept his eyes open has seen a field with one corner completely out of control. Perhaps it was the last field sowed, and the farmer had not time to cultivate that corner thoroughly enough to kill the weeds. It may even be the richest corner of the field, but the richer the ground, the greater the danger of weeds. For the weed is there first and if not eradicated it occupies the ground before the wheat has a chance.

In the Anglican Catechism there is a question: "What did

Man's God-given dominion over disease and discord will be emphasized at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Matter" is the Golden Text from I John (2:15): "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him."

Selections to be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy include the following (381: 20-21) "Think less of the enactments of mortal mind, and you will sooner grasp man's God-given dominion."

Scriptural passages will include the following from Romans (8:5): "For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of Spirit."

Telephone Round-up

Every parent knows how easily a two-gun cowboy can lose track of time—especially around mealtime.

But she also knows it's a simple matter to round him up by telephone. And any vague feeling of anxiety about where he is or what he is doing is quickly dispelled by that eager voice at the other end of the line.

Yes, the telephone is a convenience and a comfort; all day long. It means fewer meals grown cold because youngsters or husband are late getting home. It means more security when you're alone at night. It means more things done with less time and effort... Yet this endlessly useful servant works for you for just a few cents a day.

Nearly New Shop Reopens This Week

Mid-September again marks the reopening of the Nearly New Shop at 1212 University street, just south of St. Catherine street.

Run as a joint project of the Ladies' Auxiliaries of the Montreal Children's Hospital and the Royal Victoria Hospital, the shop has now been cleaned and readied for business by members of both Auxiliaries.

"Sorting and pricing the new stock donated during the summer is always a fascinating job" said one of the committee women in charge of the shop. "We receive furniture, silver and dishes as well as used electrical appliances in excellent and working condition. These articles we are able to offer our customers at very advantageous prices. New Canadians, University students and thrifty housewives in general can certainly profit from a visit to the Nearly New."

"On the other hand", she continued, "Every once in a while something of great value turns up. Right now we have a pair of ancient dynasty chinese vases that museum authorities have under consideration."

It was noted by another spokesman for the Auxiliaries that proceeds from shop sales are used for the benefit of needy patients of the hospitals as well as to set up services not otherwise provided for in the main hospital budget.

 burning solid fuel—which the Services would have preferred because they are safer to store and much easier to use in combat—had no future for long-range work.

Simpler
 NOW in the last few months unexpected developments have shown that the scientists were wrong.

New solid fuels have been devised which can power rockets to distances of 1,500 miles and more.

These missiles will be much simpler and cheaper to build than the liquid-fuelled types previously attempted.

"If we had realised this possibility 10 years ago we could have had weapons with this range in service now," a Government rocket expert said recently.

"There seems to be little doubt that the latest solid fuels could even be used for the inter-continental rockets with ranges of up to 5,000 miles and more."

The danger is that the Russians did not back the wrong horse 10 years ago—probably because they were less impressed by the German work.

They had specialised in solid fuels before the war and if they have gone on doing so, as seems likely, they must be ahead—perhaps by several years.

For more than two years now there have been intelligence reports of Russian rockets being fired for distances of 1,000 miles—firings by troops and not simply research tests.

British and U. S. defence chiefs have repeatedly pointed out that the side which first gets the "Fissile Missile"—the push-button rocket capable of delivering an H-bomb over thousands of miles—will hold a military advantage that could be decisive.

The Polaris
 THE Americans and the British are now striving to make good their mistake. The new U. S. ballistic rocket, the Polaris, with a range of 1,500 miles, is to be propelled by solid fuel.

It is possible that the 2,000-mile-range weapon mentioned by Duncan Sandys, the British Defence Minister, recently will be powered in the same way.

But if the Russians have achieved a lead in the "Fissile Missile" race they will need some catching now.

And their behavior in Syria shows that they are capable of making the utmost use of any temporary advantage they obtain. —London Express Service

Bulls, Mules Win Opening Grid Games

EIGHT-MAN FOOTBALL sponsored by the Westmount Recreation Department opened its schedule last Saturday at Westmount Grounds. Left to right: Bernie Kelly, 13, captain of the mules; referee Tom Grant and Jackie Britton, 12, captain of the Broncs call the toss of the coin to see who will kick off.

THE Westmount Recreation Department Eight-Man Tackle Football League got underway last Saturday morning at the Westmount Athletic Grounds with two games.

In the first game, Bulls, coached by Denis Carroll and Hugh MacDonald, won 12-6 over the Huskies, coached by Bruce Wilson.

Scoring didn't open up until the third quarter, when Huskies' Claude Servant ran over to put his team in front 6-0. The Bulls came charging back minutes later with a long run by Sherback, to tie the score at 6-6.

Halfway through the fourth, Gil Hamilton went over for the Bulls to win the game.

In the second tilt Mules, coached by Cam McFadden and Kev O'Neill won 26-19 over the Broncs, coached by Gerry McCullagh and Herb Guilfoyle.

In the first quarter, Mules opened the scoring on a touchdown by Tony Tyrrell. The convert was good by Bernie Kelly.

Broncs came busting through for a fine effort by Tony McCullagh on a pass from George Spare, to make the score 7-6, in favor of the Mules. The Mules went well into the lead in the second and third quarters on touchdowns by Bernie Kelly and Gordie Cole.

Broncs opened the scoring in the fourth with another major by Tony McCullagh. Mules showed their stubbornness by coming back for another TD by Bernie Kelly, his second. The Broncs reared up and galloped all over the field for the remainder of the game to score a converted touchdown by Tony McCullagh his third. Spare converted.

Dominion Soccer Final Scheduled For Sunday

Jack MacNamara, Quebec Council member for the Canadian Soccer Football Association, announced that the Dominion Final for the Carling Cup will be played at Faillon Stadium Sunday, Sept. 22, at 3 p.m.

The contesting clubs for the Canadian title are Montreal Ukraina, the Eastern Canada champions and North Shore Vancouver, the Western Canada title holders.

Ukraina eliminated the Maritimes and Ontario in its quest for the title.

Vancouver North Shore defeated Calgary Hungarians last Saturday by a 5-0 score in Calgary.

The Hungarians had eliminated the Manitoba champions Weston United of Winnipeg who previously had knocked out Regina, the Saskatchewan winners. The Vancouver team is reported to be very powerful and includes six players who made the Canadian World Cup team which defeated the United States Mexico in the North American Zone playoffs. Ukraina can be counted on to give a good account of themselves.

As far as playing good soccer is concerned the Montreal club can give most teams a lesson.

Their weakness at times has been in front of goal but if Pete Waskiw is on when the Ukes meet Vancouver, the Carling Cup should come back to Montreal this year.

Pete drives like an outer space rocket and if he is on the target the opposing goalkeeper has a problem on his hands.

This Year's OBJECTIVE is $1,862,000.00!

This year's goal of $1,862,000.00, the highest in Welfare Federation's existence, has been set to meet an operating deficit of $177,000.00. This deficit has been caused by:

- (a) The levelling off of government subsidies (b) A rapidly rising population (c) Rising costs.

If the 100,000 givers previously in the one dollar or less classification pledge two dollars, this year's campaign will be successful.

Red Feather needs the contributions of housewives as much as it needs the gifts of business men and corporations. Everyone benefits. Everyone should give.
