Shawville Rotary Club Distributes Seals Proceeds Used To Aid Crippled Children

The Shawville Rotary Club, with other clubs throughout Canada, has been appointed sole distributor for the sale of Easter seals in 1932. The local club has been assigned, as its territory, the whole of Pontiac County.

Easter seals are distributed throughout the country as a means of raising money for the benefit of crippled children and indeed cripples of all ages, in order to help them become eventually useful citizens. This is a work with which the International Rotary Club has been associated for years and in which the Shawville Club also is deeply interested. Easter seals will provide a means whereby the public can materially help in this worthy cause.

Due to the ravages of polio, accident, and disease of other kinds, there are thousands of people in need of help who are unable to get rehabilitation treatment and training, because they lack sufficient funds. This very handicap, through being crippled prevents them from earning the funds required for this; and it is at this point that the Easter seals funds come to their help. Through this agency, many who had been laid aside by their affliction, are now able to make an adequate livelihood and are very grateful to the Easter seals fund for the help they have received towards recovery. By raising this fund in 1932 local cripples or others from any part of the province can apply with confidence; and be gladly furnished the assistance they require.

The distribution of Easter seals by Shawville Rotary Club will begin within three weeks. Thousands of sheets of seals will be sent out throughout the country, and everyone receiving them is asked to send in a dollar in the stamped self-addressed envelope to help in the good work.

Bryson-Pontiac Lions Hold "Ladies' Nite"

Bryson and Pontiac Lions Club's joint "Ladies' Nite" meeting held at Bryson Lodge Hotel proved to be a very sociable affair. Deputy District Governor Allan McLean and Mrs. McLean from Arnprior and about 60 Lions with their wives and lady friends attended.

President Ken Dugan presided and after the singing of God Save The Queen a three-minute silence was observed in tribute to the late King George VI.

The treasurer Frank Cahill reported a very successful carnival. The toast to the ladies was proposed by Eldon Keon and responded to by Mrs. Jack Patterson.

Deputy District Governor Allen McLean was introduced by Jackie Mallette.

Pontiac Lions president, Lindy Quaitie proposed a vote of thanks to the Deputy District Governor who was then presented with a suitable gift by Jack Patterson.

Dancing to "An Old Fashioned Waltz" was then enjoyed for the evening entertainment.

If any are overlooked by the mailing committee, seals may be secured by writing or calling on the Treasurer, G. A. MacDougall, Bank of Montreal, Shawville.

"Sold Right Out" Sign Tacked Up To Repeat 'Aaron Slick' Tuesday

J. Allan Young, manager of the P. T. L. A. production, "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" announces that arrangements have been made with the Shawville Theatre to present the play again Tuesday evening, February 26.

The rural comedy, which is being produced by teachers of the Pontiac County Protestant Central School Board, has played to packed houses in Quyon, Campbell's Bay and Shawville. (Wednesday evening the troupe visited Portage du Fort.) On Monday and Tuesday evenings in Shawville over 100 people were turned away as ushers announced "standing room only" as early as 7.30 p.m. About 1,200 persons have already seen performances and requests are coming in for shows across the river and in Ladysmith.

Heading the caste is Reginald Scobie, well known Pontiac teacher from Portage du Fort, who plays the part of Aaron Slick, a farmer who is not as green as he looks. Other teachers in supporting roles are Frances Sexsmith, as Sis Riggs, Ruth Evans, as Mrs. Berry, Lillian Matthews as Gladys May Merridew, a city girl, Frances Murdock, as Yvonne, a singer and Lloyd MacKeen as Merridew, the city slicker and villain. (Rochester, plays the part of the cat for Shawville performances.) John Tolhurst is acting as master of ceremonies for all performances while Zilpha Corrigan ably takes care of properties. All other Central Board teachers are involved in the comedy, helping with ticket sales, properties, advertising and other duties.

A special feature of each performance is the music of William Munroe and His Orchestra. Mr. Munroe, Departmental Inspector, has assembled an orchestra of High School students and a principal, consisting of Donald Paul, saxophone, Melvin Poole, piano, Allan Young, drums, Murray Moore, guitar and Edgar Schwartz, trumpet. These musicians have been roundly applauded at each performance.

Skating Party Held By Bristol Pupils

By Dorothy Jeakins

A skating party was held at the Elmside Rink last week by the pupils of Grades VI to IX of Bristol Intermediate School No. 9. About 35 pupils attended the party. It was a perfect night for skating and the rink was in excellent condition due to Mr. Laughren's efforts. A hot supper was served in the school basement by the teachers. All in all, it was a most successful evening.

Thursday, February 14, a memorial service for the late King was held in Bristol Memorial School No. 9. Rev. I. Cavender gave the address. It was felt that the beauty and dignity of the Service would help the pupils to remember the solemnity of the occasion.

Announcements given Pontiac County Education much favorable publicity. Ottawa's Station C.F.R.A. has interviewed the production manager, J. Allan Young. Dr. W. P. Percival, Director of Protestant Education in Quebec has sent a message of encouragement as well as a cheque for the Educational Fund. The Departmental offices in Quebec have been represented at one of the performances by C. T. Teakle, Supervisor of French.

Of Men And Machines

Perhaps the one bogey always facing the publisher of a weekly newspaper is the fear of not having enough material to fill his paper and not being able to get it out in time. The Equity is datelined Thursday and, generally speaking, we usually get it into the post office on Thursdays and, except for recent weeks, it has been eight pages. Last week we were unable to get out eight pages and some of the papers didn't get into the post office until Saturday morning. Thereby hangs a tale which we think we should, in fairness to ourselves, present to our readers and advertisers. Producing eight pages every week is a big job. With The Equity it means running the paper through the press twice, printing four pages each time. It takes an average of two days' hard work to produce sufficient material to fill four pages. Now last week we were short a man, to start with. Evans Swartz, who has been working at The Equity (off and on) for 15 years, just didn't show up. He left the shop at noon Saturday, February 9, and we haven't seen him since. No explanation, nothing. Just silence. Now, no man is indispensable but the loss of one man is felt, temporarily, when there is no warning. We didn't know from day to day if he was coming back and by the time it looked as if he wasn't going to show it was too late to get another man on the job for last week's paper. Being short a man was bad enough. We were also plagued with a mechanical problem which even the National Research Council has difficulty solving. This is static electricity in the press and the folder, due mainly to the cold, dry weather we've been having. Because of this static it was almost impossible to get the papers off the press and they just wouldn't go through the folder. We broke two tapes on the folder and ruined dozens of papers before we finally resorted to folding and cutting them by hand, a tedious and time-consuming process. This is a brief explanation of what happened to us last week and in previous weeks. This week we are again back to eight pages and out on time, we hope. The manpower shortage has been solved and we think we've licked the static electricity by grounding the press to the water pipe. If this issue reaches you at the normal time, we've licked it.

Bill Beatty of Toronto, one of the CBC's roving men-with-a-mike, whose interviews with people in the news and the man-in-the-street are heard regularly on CBC News Roundup, broadcast Monday to Friday at 10.15 p.m. on the CBC Trans-Canada network. From time to time he heads for the far north, the deep south, or for cities and villages across Canada to do on-the-spot descriptions of special events, people and places for CBC feature broadcasts. He was one of the first Canadians to use tape-recordings successfully. His expert knowledge of tape cutting and editing was put to the test during the Royal Tour, when he edited Royal Tour Diary, a nightly CBC report on the day's travels of the Royal Couple.

Victims Of Fire Helped By Elmside

The February meeting of the Elmside W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. Emmerson Roy on Wednesday evening, February 13, 13 members and three visitors present.

After opening the meeting with the Ode and Creed, the minutes of last meeting were read and approved.

It was decided to quilt the Tea Leaf Quilt at Mrs. Laughren's this coming week.

Cards of thanks were read from Mrs. Eddie Findlay and Tom and Murray McNeil.

On a motion by Mrs. Ebert Smith and Mrs. Emmerson Roy, Mrs. Murray is to write Macdonald College about seeds for our local school fair.

Mrs. Murray made a motion seconded by Mrs. McCredie that we contribute towards the Mrs. Alfred Watt Memorial in the Peace Garden.

The treasurer reported $22.00 on hand.

Mrs. Erwin Laughren, as Health and Welfare Convener, read "A Happy New Year all the Year Round".

Ten sick visits were reported. Mrs. Laughren was asked to pack a box of fruit to be sent to a friend in hospital.

As a roll call, each member brought a card for a shut-in.

Mrs. Pirie, Home Economics Convener, in charge of the program, read a very interesting paper on "Taking Care of the House".

The ladies of our Institute have been invited by Wyman W. I. to a demonstration by a C-I-L Representative at the home of Mrs. Wyman MacKechnie, February 17. Each one was asked to bring their favorite recipe for the Wyman W. I. Cook Book.

The president, Mrs. Melvin Stewart, asked Mrs. Ebert Smith, Mrs. Emmerson Roy and Mrs. John Dods to act as a nominating committee for our annual meeting.

Mrs. Laughren and Mrs. Pirie appointed Mrs. Stewart, Mrs. Garnet Wiggins and Mrs. Fred Graham on the program committee.

Mrs. Wiggins invited us to her home for our annual meeting in March.

On a motion by our secretary, Mrs. Percy Ballantyne and Mrs. J. Storie we are going to purchase flannelette blankets and clothing to a family of fire victims.

give a quilt and other items of Mrs. Storie moved that we adjourn. A social hour was enjoyed by all, and dainty refreshments served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Martin.

A Little of This and a Little of That

By BILL KINMOND

Rumor Of The Week. That Charlie Chamberlain is carrying last week's four-page Equity in his wallet. Try this week's for size, Charlie.

In The Sunny South. We have a card from Ray Sheppard and the family postmarked Indian Creek, Miami, Florida, in which they talk about going swimming and the temperature was a mere 80 above.

In The Spring Tra La! Getting back to reality in Pontiac, the temperature is a mere 28 above, rain is threatening and Spring is exactly one month from today!

We Stand Corrected. Carman Morrison, of Chatham, Ont., says: "I should like to correct dates of (the years of the three kings) in your paper. They are as follows: His Majesty King George V went on the throne May 6, 1910; died January 20, 1936; Edward VIII, on throne January 20, 1936, abdication December 11, 1936; King George VI, on throne December 11, 1936, coronation May 12, 1936."

There's A Reason Why School Supervisor Lloyd MacKeen is sporting that villain-type moustache. It fits his part in "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" which has had the public clamoring at the door for admission. To satisfy some of those turned away in Shawville there'll be a repeat performance Tuesday, February 26, in Shawville Theatre.

Under New Management. Stan Widdicombe has taken over as manager of Morley Hodgins Service Station. Stan has the reputation of being one of the best mechanics in town. Until last week he was with John L. Hodgins.

We Like It. A copyright poem in W. A. Hodgins ad last week by M. L. Haskins appealed to us so much we think it's worth repeating. Entitled "The Gate of the year", it was quoted by the late king in an Empire Broadcast:

"I said to the man who stood at the gate of the year,

"Give me a light that I may tread safely into the unknown."

And he replied—
"Go out into the Darkness and put your hand into the hand of God."

That shall be to you better than light and safer than a known way."

A Friend Indeed. The mercury on Tuesday, February 12, hovered around the 14-below mark but nothing daunted those good old faithfuls at Charteris. Mrs. Phoebe McCord, Mrs. Ethel Mackay, Mrs. Margaret Lang, Mrs. Jane Watson and Mrs. Lillis Lang who met at the home of Mrs. Nathan Dagg and completed a warm comforter for Jack and Edith Palmer who lost all their warm bedding in the recent fire. The material was donated by the Ladies' Guild of Charteris and before the good ladies trudged back into the cold their hostess served them a good hot meal assisted by her granddaughter, Phyllis Lang, just recently out of the hospital.

Out In Front. Grade 11, Shawville High School, is well in the lead in ticket sales for "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick", with 132 per cent. Other ticket sales are: Aldfield No. 2, no report; Bristol No. 1, 82 per cent; No. 2, no report; No. 4, 33 1/3 per cent; No. 5, 27 per cent; No. 6, 94 percent; No. 7, 12 1/2 per cent; Campbell's Bay Intermediate, 71 per cent; Dunraven, 72 per cent; Shawville High, Grades 3 and 4, 88 per cent; 5, 70 per cent; 6, 130 per cent; 7A, 85 per cent; 7B, 86 per cent; 8A, 34 per cent; 8B, 31 per cent; 9, 76 per cent; 10A, 42 per cent; 10B, 25 per cent; Clarendon No. 3, no report; 7, 50 per cent; 8, 100 per cent; 12A, 33 1/3 per cent; 12B, no report; 13, 55 per cent; Fort Coulonge, no report; Leslie No. 1, 9 per cent; 2, 25 per cent; Onslow No. 6, 14 per cent; Onslow Intermediate, 59 per cent; Portage du Fort, 107 (Continued on Page Eight)

BREAKING BRITISH TIES

By J. V. McAree
Copyright

The Globe & Mail, Toronto

We suspect that for a great many years there has been a group, perhaps only a small one, whose chief thought has been to break every existing tie between Canada and Great Britain, to break even sentimental ties as though they were hated things. Otherwise we should not have seen the vanishing of "Dominion" from the title of Canada, and "Royal" from the mail boxes which, apparently, are no longer royal. A demand for a Canadian flag we can understand, though we do not sympathize with it; and we can understand the demand for a national anthem, which we think foolish, for such anthems are not written to order. We can understand why these things should seem important to many Canadians, though we have yet to meet a Canadian who was really interested in them. The only people we know who have shown interest are people disturbed by this attempt to break, wantonly, it would seem, things that many of us have cherished. The latest example concerns the Governor-Generalship. There has been little public debate on the question; we do not recall that it has been discussed even in Parliament. Yet the new Governor-General is a Canadian. This means that all subsequent Governor-Generals will be Canadians.

Political Cockpit

Obviously, it will mean that as the first Canadian Governor-General is English-speaking, the second will come from Quebec. It means that if one of them comes from Ontario, other parts of the country will expect to be represented in later appointments. The various religions will put in claims for representation, according to their numerical or political strength. In time those who live long enough are likely to take part in a campaign to have a vegetarian set up in Rideau Hall. That, in turn, means, as pointed out in a letter to the Ottawa Journal, that every time a new Governor-General is appointed he will give satisfaction to only a fraction of the Canadian people. There will always be a large element opposed to the appointment. Thus a new division will be introduced to our political life which is already too much divided in matters of race, religion and geographical location. Does anybody really want this? Not unless he aims at the total destruction of Canadian unity, we should think.

What Will Be The End?

Do we want the personality of a prospective Governor-General to become an election issue? This is likely to ensue, even though the present Government made no mention of its plans to Canadianize the office in the last general election. Says the Ottawa Journal's correspondent: "Are we, the Canadian people, able to assume that the Government will stop if it wins its present campaign against the traditions and historic practices which link us with Britain? Is there not the serious danger that after this noble victory for the little Canada element, Canadians presently will be invited to accept as an accomplished fact the complete severance of the Dominion of Canada from the British Commonwealth, either to give us 'independence' which we give us 'independence' (which we in the world) or to prepare us for a political merger with the United States? Can we be quite sure that Mr. St. Laurent, having gone as far, will not go farther? And I ask, if Canada is a democracy (which the Liberal Government make me doubt) do we deserve such shabby treatment from our rulers? Who gave Mr. St. Laurent a commission to blast our British traditions, to change the course of history, to cast upon this Dominion a degree of disunity not pleasant to contemplate?"

Astonished At Mr. St. Laurent

The answer is that there has been no such authority specifically conferred upon Mr. St. Laurent and that nobody can say how far he will go, having gone thus far. Unless our understanding of his character has been wholly at fault, we believe it is certain that some successor will go further, for in this part of the country, at least, the Prime Minister's popularity is based largely on the conviction that he is a moderate man. Yet the determination to make the Governor-General of Canada a civil servant, to turn the office into the chief patronage prize of this and succeeding Governments, does not suggest any moderation. Nor is Mr. St. Laurent supposed to be a man who acts on the spur of the moment. It seems almost incredible that he has not considered the inevitable consequences of his action. He is certainly not a man who could be expected to make unnecessary trouble for himself and his party.

What We Lose

Here we are asked to deprive ourselves, as the Journal correspondent says, "of the counsel and guidance of such distinguished figures in the future as Willingdon, Tweedsmuir and Alexander in the past. We abandon the intimate relationship with the centre of the British political system which comes by taking a governor from among its statesmen, its warriors or its literary figures. Perhaps we can select for the post a Canadian equal to the best in sheer ability, but we cannot—or rarely if at all—pick an outstanding

Canadian who will be accepted by all the people (as Lord Alexander was accepted) as the perfect choice for the office." In fact, we think the prominent Canadian hardly exists who has not in the past been associated actively with some political party, some special group, some particular interest. This was written in part before the appointment of the Hon. Vincent Massey was announced. If we were to have a Canadian as Governor-General, he was the natural, even the inevitable, choice. Indeed he would well fit the description of the Journal correspondent as "equal to the best in sheer ability." But Vincent Massey are not common in Canada, and there is not the slightest reason to suppose that the men who follow him will have anything like his personal qualifications for the great post he is about to assume. Having decided to make this break with the past the Government would, of course, choose the Canadian least likely to be objected to on personal grounds. It has done so and there are few people, we think, however, disliking the change but would be willing to admit that if it were to be made it has started bravely, even if in defiance of the wishes of a great many loyal Canadians.

BOY SCOUTS

All units are very busy practicing a stunt for the Father and Son Banquet on Thursday the 21st when all Cubs, Scouts, Rover and their Dads meet to receive that usual bountiful supper that the Scout Mothers' Auxiliary furnish. Not more than three seconds follow!

At the Cub Pack meeting three Cubs were invested with badges they had won and a new Chum was welcomed into the Pack. The St. John's Ambulance Class suffered from lack of attendance owing to colds last Friday so the Lecturer, Dr. C. F. C. Powles postponed the examination for one week. Next week there will be a general review of all the work with the examinations the following Friday. It is hoped that every one will be present for the tests. As some of the tests are a bit tough and about half of the class are trying for a senior grading, 100% turnout is expected.

Follow-In On That Shot!

During the average game of hockey many scoring opportunities are lost because the player making the shot on goal, as well as his teammates who are in a position to do so, fail to follow the shot in. The tendency is for the players to assume the attitude of a spectator, in other words, they take a shot and then stop and watch to see what happens. This includes the defensive team as well who often just stand where they are watching the play rather than getting back quickly to pick up and clear a rebound or loose puck. So remember, following in quickly can often build up a scoring opportunity.

Another advantage that the offensive player has in such a case, is that if a defenseman is obligated to pick up the rebound, he has to make a turn before attempting to cover the play, whereas the offensive player can drive straight in wasting no time at all. A smart defense pair will have one man try to take out the man making the shot while the other defenseman turns to pick up the rebound. However, if the man making the shot keeps his head up and watches to see how the play is developing, he should be able to dodge the bodycheck and get in fact for a possible rebound.

Often a team that has been trained to follow-in quickly will get one or two men into the goal scoring zone, free from their checks long enough to bang that puck home.

A good idea is to organize a "follow-in" play. Here's the idea. Have the forwards follow in quickly after the puck has been shot or flipped in slowly. If the offensive players approach the defense at about three quarters speed and then burst into full speed as the shot is made, the play has a greater chance of being successful. Actually the best plan is for the shooter and one of the forwards to follow in quickly for the rebound with the other forward acting as a trailer. If three or four players tear in and the defending team recover the rebound, chances are they'll all be caught and the defending team will have an excellent breakaway.

Incidentally, the coach should instruct the player making the shot at the goal to always shoot low as the odds are much greater on a rebound coming out from a low shot. Remember a goalkeeper can catch a high shot so keep that shot no more than six inches off the ice.

Another good plan is to watch the goalkeeper's clearing habits so that you will know what spot to head for when following-in. Above all, practice these plays often the result of an athlete not having the rules of the game he is playing at his finger tips.

By knowing the rules the athlete is not only increasing his value to his team but is also helping the officials control the game. Then too, from the spectators viewpoint there is nothing better to watch than a cleanly played game.

So take a tip and get those rules down pat. A few minutes each day spent learning the rules may well save you from many more minutes in the "penalty box" and thus increase your value to your team. I don't know of one case of a man scoring a goal while sitting in the penalty box.

Educational Trends

(J. L. MacKeen, Supervisor of Protestant Schools for Pontiac County was guest speaker at last Friday's meeting of the Shawville Rotary Club. Following is a partial text of his address.)

Your chairman, Dr. Fokes invited me to speak on some aspects of Education. Since Education is my field, I could talk about the little red school house still so prevalent in Pontiac—but you know all about that. I might discuss the financial problems of Education—but you have "felt" that too. I could talk about "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" which brings me close to a big problem of mine—that of attracting teachers to Pontiac.

The question of teachers reminds me of advice sometimes given to young men. Never run after a woman or a street car, there will be another one along in a minute. Well, I have learned to take that one with a grain of salt. In Pontiac, thank goodness, we don't have to run after street cars but I am not so sure that we don't have to run, if we want the right type of teachers. These days another will not come along necessarily. However I am not going to talk about teachers, although good teachers are the key to putting into practice that which I do want to talk about. I want to speak about Educational Trends because I think it is important that we all understand that for which we are working.

In planning an educational program, the most fundamental considerations should be the welfare and the normal development of the individual student, the discovery and development of his abilities and the meeting of his needs. Often the curriculum itself or the smooth functioning of the school becomes the aim.

If we accept the proposition that our chief concern is the development of the individual student, then our problem has two parts:

(a) to discover each student's aptitudes, interests and needs and (b) to aid the student to develop his aptitudes most effectively, to arouse and increase his interests and to meet his needs constructively.

By the way of illustration I would like to tell you about a student we tried to help a few years ago. (I shall camouflage a few of the details so that her identity could not possibly be known. Shirley was failing in Algebra, History, English and passing in Geometry and Physics. Teachers described her as co-operative, sullen and indifferent.) An interview was arranged but little was accomplished. She was assured that all the teachers were interested in her progress, but her reaction revealed that she did not believe a word of it.

Her teachers were consulted next and they all agreed that the girl was reasonably intelligent (I.Q. 114). However, she was unable to understand what she read, nor did she take part in student council activities or sports.

The next step was to visit her parents. They were a decent type of modest income. They could not afford a car and could not provide the spending money and clothes some of Shirley's class-mates enjoyed. She had become very discontented, wanting smart clothes and spending money.

The teachers were consulted again and we attempted to summarize the symptoms of maladjustment (to use our pedagogical jargon) and then try to get at the causes of her trouble. This was not too difficult. The symptoms were obvious. She was failing at school; showed indifference and resentment and was not getting along well with her class-mates. Her mother reported that she was irritable at home.

Now we had to find the causes. First of all she could not read effectively. She had been failing in her work for years. She could not "keep up with the other girls" due to lack of money. She was not to be found in school clubs. In short she was a disappointed, frustrated, unhappy young lady.

Remedial work was started promptly. The Science teacher got her interested in a little experiment he was conducting after school. The English teacher helped her with the aid of new reading techniques. The class teacher made her responsible for administrative work, checking attendance and like jobs and the principal appointed her as one of the Office Assistants. Other teachers made a point of talking to her about her difficulties. Finally a merchant was persuaded to give her parttime employment so that she could earn spending money for shows, soft drinks and clothes. That, gentlemen is my conception of Education. Until our schools are able to help students individually, I submit that we are but scratching the surface of Educational opportunities.

All our 1,350 students in Pontiac are being forced to take practically the same course of study, without regard to intelligence, interests or aptitudes. Is it not reasonable to assume that many will get lost by the wayside and that others will fail dismally, not necessarily because they have not the intelligence but because their aptitudes and interests are different. Let's just imagine that all of us in this room were required to attend a course on lumbering. Some of us would do remarkably well but I pity the fate of others, including perhaps myself. It might be whispered around that a certain professional man was a "behavior problem" or that another business man was not very bright. If so, I think the "failures" would have a right to be insulted.

Yet, gentlemen, our school system tries to force everyone through the same mould. The system works, yes. But we pay a high price. Teachers leave the profession yearly, pupils withdraw or are asked to leave. I was speaking to a principal of a high school outside Pontiac a few days ago. He was having a terrible time with a big 19-year-old boy in grade 8. The father is determined that his son is going to finish High School even if it takes the boy 25 years. I think too, that every child should complete High School, provided that the school offers subjects which such a boy can study with profit. This is developing anti-social attitudes, because he is being forced to take studies for which he has neither the ability nor the interest.

I could name pupils in Pontiac who are 16 years of age and have only reached grade 6. Yes, gentlemen, it has taken them ten years to arrive at Grade 6. It costs us anywhere from $50 to $100 (depending on the school) a year, to educate a pupil. In these cases we can assume that it has cost the taxpayers $1,000. To have pupils say that they went as far as Grade 6. These pupils still have not learned very much. I say it is unhealthy for the pupil to be so retarded, uneconomical for the teachers and costly to the taxpayers.

Well, what are the trends? Are we doing anything about these problems in Canada, Quebec and Pontiac? From coast to coast Canadian Educationalists are trying to solve these problems. To get more value for the money invested and more important to give every Canadian youngster the right to develop a strong body, a healthy mind and a well-rounded personality. As these objectives are realized we shall have more and more Canadians capable of leading a useful, creative and truly happy life. From Halifax to Vancouver, School leaders are encouraging communities to join together with their neighbors to build modern, consolidated schools equipped with gymnasiums for sports, dramatics and other social activities; music rooms, industrial art rooms, home economic rooms and other facilities so necessary for a cultural as well as practical approach to life.

Shortly the County High School will provide the finest building which Canadian architects and engineers can design. There is a modern Intermediate School at Quyon which will be enlarged. We have a school nurse serving all 12 of our school municipalities. Although Mrs. Rice has only been with us about a year and a half the results of her work have met with commendation. This year she has organized with the help of Dr. Chretien a dental survey to cover all our 1,350 pupils. The state of our children's teeth is not a happy one. Of 1,218 pupils examined, only about 130 did not require dental treatment. Of course there were complaints because of our efforts to improve the health of our children, but the response of countless other parents has been indeed gratifying. Vitamin pills with a cod liver oil base are being distributed to all Central Board personnel and pupils at a fraction of the regular cost. Such measures will reduce the number of colds and generally improve the health of our big school family.

Since the establishment of the Pontiac Central Board just four years ago, the Department of Education has poured money into this county in the form of increased grants to help us to raise our Educational standards. (Incidentally, my salary and that of the school nurse are paid out of Departmental grants. Such services are not paid for from Pontiac taxes.)

Your Central Board is very anxious to improve much more the standard of teaching in our schools. We are trying to attract well qualified and competent specialists with an understanding of children and of modern teaching techniques. The Board is encouraging its teachers to attend summer schools so that they may bring to their classrooms the benefits of the latest developments in Education.

Finally, gentlemen, let me make one point clear. It is true that we want to provide opportunities to suit the needs of each Pontiac child attending our schools, by looking after his three basic needs—a sound body, an alert mind and a good personality. This is not new fangled nonsense. Why it is as old as the hills! Thousands of years ago the ancient Greeks and then the Romans provided a gymnasium in their schooling program to build healthy bodies. They stressed practical education. Boys learned their father's business, and they read literature to learn how to become mature adults and to get along with others. The more enlightened realized the importance of the brotherhood of men and the necessity to overcome temper tantrums, prejudices and other forms of childishness. The Greeks too talked about Psychology. Psyche simply means the mind, ology a study of. Socrates was aware of the importance of Mental Health. You will remember his motto—"Know thyself."

These are the aims which have become clouded at times during the years and we are attempting to restore them in modern dress today. The school provides leadership for the community but its success varies directly with the support which it receives from the community. We need the help of men like you Rotarians, to help us to help your children. Idle chatter, rumors, misinformation, carping criticism of teachers are our enemies. Get the facts first, Gentlemen. Then may I urge you to get behind your local and Central School Boards so that our children may have the same advantages as are accruing to children in other parts of Quebec and of Canada.

A special memorial service for his late Majesty King George VI was held in St. Andrew's United Church. "For thine is the greatness, and the power, and the victory for ever", was the text chosen by the minister, referring to the closing days of the reign of King David and the prayer for his young successor, as a remembrance to the late King and his successor, her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II.

Appropriate music selections were given by the choir and the solo, "Be still my soul", by Mrs. Renshaw.

The congregation and the session received as an elder into the church, Grant Elliott, at a ceremony during the service.

The congregation were all joined with the large family of Bristol subjects as they listened to the broadcast of the King's funeral on Friday.

The plays "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" and "Keep Your Fingers Crossed" were well attended.

A number of friends gathered at the home of Mrs. Susan Young to honor her on the occasion of her birthday, this being a repetition of a former year's gathering the guests were all in happy mood as they offered good wishes and congratulations. A delicious lunch was served after which birthday gifts were displayed. An attraction was the beautiful three-storied Birthday cake. Four generations were represented at the party the youngest member was nine month old David Smith.

Intense enthusiasm is at present seen at the curling rink at Campbell's Bay where many ambitious competitors have entered to try their luck for the Bonspiel.

It's just a matter of a few weeks and the spring fever takes hold of folks; this is referred to as Buck Fever.

Farm Forum Meets Tonight!

By Mrs. Henry McCord,
North Clarendon Farm Forum

Tho' Monday's always wash-day (and a dark blue day at that!) When supper-time is over Ma puts on her Sunday hat.

And Pa and Ma and the old grey mare drive off thro' the cold moonlight.

Why all the fuss, you ask? My dear! Farm Forum meets to-night!

Now promptly at 8.30 the idle chatter stops.

Of recipes and babies, of politics and crops!

The Forum programme has begun, we all must lend an ear. To hear the words of wisdom floating thro' the stratosphere!

For half an hour we must wait (the ladies with impatience?) To hear the experts straighten out the fate of farming nations.

The "wheres" and "whens" are juggled round, the "hows" and "which" and "why".

And all the time the pipes are smoked, the knitting needles fly.

But now there comes discussion time, the needles get a rest, (For the fair sex of our Forum can argue with the best!)

And loud and long discussion runs, for all must have a say, And the poor hard-worked conveners finds that this is work, not play!

The secretary writes away 'mid all the Forum din, And picks out all the answers that sound like sense to him, (For tho' the farmer's been accused by critics most unkind, Not one can ever truly say he has an one-track mind!)

Oh! town folks have their councils, their bureaus and directors To tell them just the way to go, and give them talks and lectures.

But country folks go forward with contentment down life's stream, So long as we've Farm Forums just to work off surplus steam!

Many Attend Service At Fort Coulonge

Although Friday was not proclaimed a day of mourning in Fort Coulonge, residents of the community lined up with the mourning countryside to observe the day with post office, bank, schools, and leading stores closed.

A joint memorial service was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at 11 a.m. and a large turnout of town and surrounding citizens were present to pay tribute, and hear addresses delivered by Rev. H. V. Ellison, United Church minister, and Rev. Younger-Lewis, of St. Andrew's.

A striking tribute was the orderly behavior of 40 school children who marched to the church in a body and occupied the front pews, in charge of principal, Miss Alice Howard and assistant Miss Pay Horner.

1 tablespoon gelatin
1/4 cup cold water
Juice and rind of 1 lemon
Juice and rind of 1 orange

To prevent webworms from getting into your meal in the hot weather, sprinkle a little salt through the meal, but be careful when making bread not to add too much salt.

To freshen your garbage pan, use one tablespoon lye to one quart of hot water.

Never wash the hands with water after peeling onions. Simply rub them with coarse salt and the odor will disappear.

Has milk ever boiled over on your stove? It is difficult and messy to remove unless you sprinkle a layer of salt on the milk. Salt and water soaking in charred steak pan also loosens the dirt and makes cleaning easier.

Only that ash blonde woman who had last week moved into No. 10 Whitaker street ever talked to Angelina. Her name was Mrs. Turner, and remembering her Angelina shuddered again. She glanced once more at headlines, "Frantic Mother of Kidnapped Baby Taken to Sanitarium." There was the picture of the baby, Angelina, staring wide-eyed at the sweet little face, shifted her gaze again to the baby in the carriage.

Gradually a sort of clarity crept into her sluggish brain—a brain that had been sluggish ever since Jim Venn had deserted her after she had run off with him. They thought it was she who had deserted Jim. But it wasn't. She had come back because there was nowhere else to go. She didn't try to explain. She loved Jim. She wanted him, wanted a home and babies—but they would never understand that. They were mothers, but they'd never understand.

It was three days after her return that Mrs. Turner knocked at her door. "Oh, I know it's asking a great favor. But my mother, poor dear, is sick unto death. I simply must go to her... No place to leave my baby... if you only would care for her for a week... only too glad to pay you..."

Angelina needed money. She hadn't been able to get her old job back. She loved babies. It would be no trouble at all. "But—aren't you afraid to go off and leave it—with a stranger for so long?"

"Oh, I'm not afraid. There'll be others nearby."
"There'll be others nearby." The sentence repeated itself in Angelina's mind. She knew now.

Pontiac Co-operative Medical Services

The monthly meeting of the board of directors was held on January 31, at J. M. Argue's office. Present were C. Russell, Mrs. Sly, Reuben Smith, William Hodgins and Mrs. Telford.

The meeting was called to order by the president Mr. Russell at 8:30 p.m.

Minutes of the December 27 meeting were read and adopted on motion of Reuben Smith and William Hodgins.

Directors Norval Wilson and Dave Davies joined the meeting.

Correspondence received for the month was read and discussed.

Director Mrs. McCord took a seat at the board.

Agreed that Reuben Smith, Mrs. Sly or Grant Elliott would represent the Association at the Co-op Fedree meeting February 20.

The following bills and claims were presented for payment: Atkins Service $17.60 and the Pontiac Community Hospital $594.75. Motion by Reuben Smith and Mrs. McCord that the bills and claims be accepted for payment according to by-law 10.

Renewals to the amount of $132.40 were received. Motion by Dave Davies and William Hodgins that the renewals be accepted. Carried.

The secretary was instructed to write a group re membership.

Application presented for membership were: Ruth Acres, Edna Tanner and Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Woodley. Motion by Mrs. McCord and Reuben Smith that these applications be accepted.

Before forwarding policies and membership cards to new members, secretary to see the group secretaries re effective dates, etc. Considerable time was spent studying the financial report. The financial position was found to be considerably improved over last year. Premiums received from September 30, 1951, to January 1, 1952, amounted to $918.35 and expenses for the same period $1,840.06.

Motion by Mrs. and Dave

It was clear. So very clear. She thought of the frantic mother, of police and detectives scouring the city. Her eyes fled to the sidewalk again. As far as she could see in both directions mothers with their offspring were sitting on steps and curbstones and buttresses. Hundreds of them. No one would ever think of looking here for a stolen baby.

She read through the newspaper article. Negotiations were in progress for a ransom. The trail was hot. Fear was expressed for the baby's safety even though the money were paid. Angelina remembered other kidnappings—babies found dead. She thought of the frantic mother who had been taken to the sanitarium.

A policeman rounded a corner and came leisurely down the street.

"There'll be others nearby." It was clear now. Others were watching. The canyon walls that were apartment houses had eyes. Eyes were watching her; behind the eyes were guns. They knew sooner or later she would understand. They had warned her, threatened her. The baby was in her charge. Sooner or later Mrs. Turner would come back to take the child and hand her some money—if she had had sense enough to keep her head.

They must have understood her position. She was socially ostracized. Money was the only thing with which she could reclaim her self-esteem. She couldn't afford another scandal. They were staking everything on that. Clever of them. And if she didn't have sense enough to keep her head—"there'll be others nearby."

The policeman was half a block away.

There would be money. Plenty of money. She had to admit nothing. She could go away. She would have enough to keep her comfortable always.

The policeman was almost abreast of her. She rose, casually, stepping away from the carriage. The policeman stopped. His gaze had fallen on her face. He had never seen a face so white, yes so wild and staring.

"Anything wrong, ma'm? Look here, you're sick..."

She was clutching at his sleeve... "The Vaughn baby—it's in that carriage. They gave it to me to keep because..."

The shots were dull, flat things, coming from high up. Faint blue smoke hung on the air a moment and then was whisked away by the almost imperceptible breeze. Far, far away Angelina heard the shrill of police whistles, more shots, hoarse shoutings, the thud of feet. The sounds grew dimmer. A faint smile flicked across her lips. She was thinking of the frantic mother.

Davies that the financial report as presented be accepted.

Advertising in Ontario cheese Edition and the Wyman Women's Institute cook book was discussed. No action was taken.

The secretary suggested that instead of running a yearly advertisement in The Equity that the association have a larger display ad every two months in which this would give members and non-members information on the services. Motion by William Hodgins, seconded by Dave Davies we try new type of advertising.

A request that all old policies be called in and new policies issued was discussed.

Agreed that as all revisions in members' contracts are printed in The Equity, and also when renewals are due group secretaries are informed of changes, therefore, to issue new policies would only be an unnecessary expense. Motion Reuben Smith to adjourn.

Mrs. Gilbert Telford,
Manager-Secretary.

United W.A.

The February meeting of the United W. A. was held in the church basement Thursday night with a large number of ladies present.

The opening hymn, "O worship the King," was sung followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The scripture lesson was read from psalm 24. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The Treasurer's Report was then received. Bills for fancy work materials were read and approved. Also a bill from the Social Committee was read and approved.

The Visiting Committees' reports to Hospital and homes were given.

Dr. Fokes gave a brief talk to the ladies. The closing hymn, "Now the Day is Over", was sung followed by a social evening enjoyed by all. Dr. Fokes pronounced the Benediction.

Dainty refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Gordon Paul, Mrs. Reuben Smith, Mrs. William Gibson, Mrs. C. Jacques, and Mrs. Walter Harris.

Feeding Bottle Danger

Leaving a small infant with its feeding bottle propped up by some gadget can be dangerous if the child is too small to move about by himself. It is possible for a baby to be drowned by the liquid from the bottle. An infant should always be held while feeding or at least closely watched.

Story Telling Helps Students In French

C. T. Teakle, well known Quebec Educationalist was a guest at the Pontiac House, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. Mr. Teakle, French Supervisor, Department of Education, came to Shawville to discuss Teaching methods with Dr. R. Howie and Miss F. Murdoch, French Specialists and John A. Tolhurst, principal of the High School.

In an interview, Mr. Teakle commented briefly on the great changes which have been effected in the teaching of French during the past ten years. The emphasis is on practical French. Pupils are encouraged to carry on discussions of everyday topics in French. By the use of story telling techniques, teachers are helping children to become bilingual. The supervisor added that as much of the instruction as possible is now being given in the French language so that pupils will become familiar with French conversation.

The Department of Education now employs three supervisors of French. Other members of Mr. Teakle's staff are Edgar Caron and Miss Doris Kerr. The purpose of the supervisor is mainly to help the French Specialist by giving her the latest techniques and personal help in improving her methods.

During the past ten years the Department has discontinued many of the texts which referred to France and has introduced newer books, with a modern, practical vocabulary, dealing with topics familiar to students living in the Province of Quebec.

The Supervisor was encouraged with the progress of English students in learning the French language. "Today," he said, "the pupil who has done at all well in High School is equipped with the tools necessary to speak and understand French. However, because one learns Chemistry in High School, it does not necessarily follow that one will become a chemical engineer. Our High School graduates require practice." Students who converse with French people, readily become fluent in the language as a result of the training given in our High Schools.

Mr. Teakle is well qualified for his important post in the Department of Education. Besides being a graduate of McGill and Bishop's Universities, the Supervisor won a Province of Quebec Scholarship and did graduate studies at the Sorbonne in Paris. During the war, Mr. Teakle was an officer at The Royal Canadian Naval College at Royal Roads, British Columbia. He held positions as French Specialist in Montreal High Schools. Last fall, he was awarded "The Order of Scholastic Merit" for very distinguished service. Mr. Teakle is president of the Bishop's University Alumni Society.

Mr. Teakle attended the Tuesday performance of "Aaron Slick from Punkin Crick" as a guest of The Pontiac Teachers' Local Association. He left Wednesday afternoon for Ottawa.
