Next week's weather

September 3 to 10

By ERIC NEAL

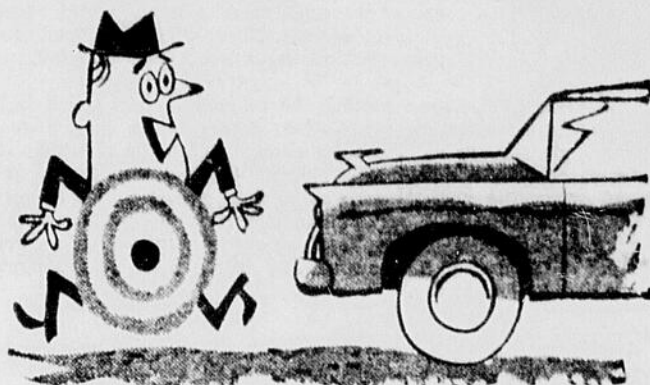

Pleasant with blue skies, mainly sunny days and cool moonlit nights this harvest moon week. Brilliant northern light displays probable. Local light showers in the south, then clearing but windy. Temperature range 40-75°F in the south and 30-60°F in the north, with 50 hours of sunshine this holiday week.

Bright and warming into the middle of the week with cool evenings and mist. Morning frosts for many places. First snow flurries in the north country.

Showery then quite warm and dry, with morning fog or rime frosts and evening lightning, but mainly sunny to end the week. Fishing fair all day. A tropical storm off the eastern seaboard could cause us a little trouble.

The Dorval problem

The jaywalker who crosses the street between intersections ranks as the No. 1 violator of pedestrian safety rules. Besides that, he is asking for a one-way ticket to the cemetery.

This practice causes more pedestrian deaths each year than any other, the Royal Automobile Club warns, and the reason is plain to see. When you cross between intersections, you forfeit the protection of traffic signals, stop signs and cross walks.

The Royal Automobile Club urges you to cross at intersections, and then only after you have looked carefully in all directions. Take advantage of the traffic devices that are provided for you. Don't be a pedestrian lone wolf. You may pay with your life!

THE ONLY SHADE: Three youngsters take time out from their play at Westmount Park to seek shade in one of the big pipes, part of the playground equipment. It's not the only shade in the park, but the kids find it's cool inside, too. The long, hot summer has taxed the energies of children, but it will soon be back to school.

Dorval expansion —
Where will it go?

By LARRY McINNIS

IS DORVAL SUITABLE? Our airport has now become Montreal International Airport, completing the cycle which started in 1940 when it was built as Dorval to house offices and the like for Canadian Pacific Airlines and soon after for the RCAF as a base for ferrying bombers overseas. In 20 years it has grown, but not much. Even with the new terminal building, which, they hope, will be opened this fall, the question still comes up: is Dorval a modern airport? Will it ever be? Firstly, there's the problem of accessibility. It's a shame to come from Toronto to Montreal in 40 minutes only to spend the next three hours trying to get in to the City. Then there's the famous new terminal. Government officials say it will be one of the most modern in the world when, and if, it is opened. Those "in the know" say it's years behind the times. Time will tell.

CROWDED: The area around the airport is fairly well built up, seriously cramping further expansion. Sometime in the future plans call for a north-south runway long enough to handle the biggest jets. This will, of course, put more residential areas directly in glide or take-off paths. The new jet runway now interferes with the operation of Cartierville airport — but civilian operators (other than Canadair) are supposed to be out of there soon anyway. Another consideration: the closeness of the end of the new runway to the Metropolitan boulevard when it gets built that far.

RUNWAY CLEARANCES: For some reason, the new runway at Dorval does not have a taxi-strip approach to the button. Aircraft using the runway must taxi down down it to the end, turn and then make their takeoff. This is alright, but seriously cuts down its availability to other aircraft, especially those landing. No doubt a taxi strip will be opened in the near future. At the eastern end of the runway housing is sparse enough, but the opposite end is quite solidly ringed by residential developments. This is not too good from the safety angle. The point is, authorities better get moving soon if they want Dorval to amount to anything worth while. It's got to expand, and officials better take the necessary steps now before someone starts building houses right on the runways.

FLYING CLUB NOTES: Quite a few members are planning to stage their own fly-in at Mont Laurier next weekend . . . the plan is to fill as many aircraft as possible and fly up for a dinner-cocktail party Saturday evening with Sunday reserved for relaxing or swimming . . . all aircraft should come back about noon Sunday . . . Hazel Brooks, who has had oodles of publicity as Canada's youngest girl instructor, to get the same treatment soon in the Star.

THIS AND THAT: Canadair's first CL-44, the world's only swing-tail cargo plane, came off the line last Thursday, and is expected to start flying in about six weeks . . . three major lines have ordered the plane, The Flying Tiger Line, Seaboard and Western and Slick Airways . . . The Flying Tiger Line, one of the most important in the Western Pacific area, was founded just after World War II by Gen. Claire Chenuit, the famous commander of China's Flying Tigers in the 1937-41 era . . . some Quebecair pilots and co-pilots, still on strike for more money, spending their time at the lounge of the Montreal Flying Club . . . asked about the strike, one of the junior co-pilots gave the usual answer, that it could last one day, a week or a month . . . one thing, though, they're all convinced that they should get $18,000 plus as a captain . . .

AND MORE: In a speech recently to the Aerospace Medical Association, Panam's Brig. Gen. Otis R. Schreuder, MD, said actual piloting of a commercial jet may be slightly less fatiguing than flying a conventional, piston-driven plane . . . he said improved pressurization, fewer instruments, lack of vibration and decreased noise contribute to decreased fatigue . . . figures for Northeast's Convair 880 jets indicate 615 mph at 40,000 feet.

Novelist-doctor believes writers good researchers

By VALENTINA RAHR

DR. WILDER PENFIELD, lows for fanning flames to heat Montrose avenue, 68, past director of the Montreal Neurological Institute, said it took him 10 years to write his first novel "No Other Gods," which was published in 1954. His long effort involved a great amount of revision and writing, but this had prepared him for his second novel, scheduled to be on bookstands next October, about Hippocrates, "medicine's first and greatest hero". The new book is to be called "THE TORCH".

Dr. Penfield found that a novelist who is capable of exhaustive research may present the truth as no scientist or historian can.

"The scientist studies nature and observes its action, using the special techniques that he has acquired," he said. "The novelist studies and observes human nature. Like nature itself, human nature seems to have changed very little since the dawn of history.

"The instinctive reactions of men and women, normal and abnormal, good and bad, may be studied today. The truth that is learned may be applied to the nature of ancient man as well as modern man.

"But so far as the technique of writing is concerned, there is a great deal of difference between fiction and a scientific treatise, because the scientist only has to convey cold facts, whereas the author has to make people come alive — breathe, feel, and talk on paper."

Many residents of Westmount gathered, by special invitation, at historic Chateau de Ramezay to mark the opening of an exhibition which will be on view for several months. Representing Donald Gordon, Edgill road, Pierre Delagrave, general passenger and traffic manager CNR, delivered the opening address.

Sponsored by the members of the Antiquarian and Numismatic Society, the ceremony was attended by municipal, civic, and federal government representatives.

Among the special exhibits marking the 100th anniversary of Victoria Bridge, are items borrowed for the occasion courtesy of: Chateau de Ramezay, Canadian National Railways, McCord Museum, Engineering Institute of Canada, Laurence Lande and R. G. Harries. A crystal goblet, early pictures, fabric poster, huge belriets, a special scroll presented by the Algonquin and Huron Indians to the Prince of Wales who officiated at the ceremony at the opening of Victoria Bridge in 1860; and two outdoor lamps from the residence of Sir John Rose in Trafalgar Park, where the Prince stayed during his visit to Montreal. The outlines of the foundation of the house can still be traced today in the little park at the top of Simpson avenue.

LOLA LANYI, Western avenue, has just returned from Quebec City, where she left some of the driftwood she turns into pieces of art. They will be exhibited at the Provincial Museum during the annual September show.

Fire Department
gear in schools

During July the Westmount Fire Department received 52 calls, 41 of them from police and fire telephones. Included in this total are 18 calls received as a result of the severe rainstorm July 22.

Only two false alarms were reported during the month; there were 11 minor fires and 39 miscellaneous calls.

Inspectors were busy, inspecting 131 premises. Notices served, 15; cautions given, 17; six recommendations given; one complaint received; one defective wiring reported; 34 fire extinguishers were inspected.

One of the important annual functions of the department was carried out: the check of fire extinguishers and fire hose in all Westmount public buildings and schools.

It's back to school next week

Well, scholars, it's back to school next week. Looking forward to it? You should.

In Westmount, Catholic schools open Tuesday, followed on Wednesday by the Protestant Schools.

And, so starts another year of hard work for our geniuses of the future — those scholars of today who will be responsible for our space program tomorrow; the people who will be responsible for putting a man into space.

Going to England?

If you are bound for London and want a high-class, quiet, conservative hotel in fashionable Belgravia, then consider Chesham Hotel at 20 Chesham Place, S.W.1. For casual or prolonged visits, you'll like the intimate atmosphere of this hotel. Every room with bath and kitchenette.

You can be sure of your booking before leaving by calling HU. 1-2771.

* Come to think of it, they may have a man in space this week. Dad will probably go into orbit when he sees the clothing bills Mum ran up to send the children back to school. However, he shouldn't get too mad — he can call his children scholars, even if they aren't doing so well in school. The dictionary defines scholars as those who attend schools, and schools (from the Greek Scholē) as a place in which leisure, or spare time, is employed.

And that seems to be the crux of our educational problem today, many educators believe. Too much spare time spent and not enough concentration on the schoolery, or the subject taught in school.

During the early summer, Labor Minister Michael Starr issued a nation-wide appeal to students not to leave school, and to parents to persuade their children to do everything possible to continue attending school, if this country is to grow to be the greatest of nations. Our youth today are the citizens of tomorrow, and their education is important.

The great shortage of competent teachers in Quebec has necessitated the recruitment of teachers in Europe, especially England. Many of them will be starting this year at various schools in the area.

But, Canadian educators are quick to point out, the Canadian education system is far superior to the English.

Dr. D. S. Penton, Headmaster of Lower Canada College, says Canada is neglecting about 40 per cent of its youth by allowing them to drop out of school between the ages of 15 and 16.

"Some eventually go to night school or trade school," he said, "but a trades education is not enough."

He said that in England only the "cream of the crop" were able to get a formal, academic education because of the system of grading. Students who do not quite make the academic standard are sent to trades or technical schools. Dr. Penton feels this is wrong — everyone should have a chance at a fuller education.

On the lighter side, school today offers many extra-curricular advantages never enjoyed in the days of "the little red schoolhouse in the Glen." Sports, music, dancing, and even driver-training are available today. For the serious student, he can practise his studies in a hobby-like way at botany clubs, or chemistry clubs, or science clubs.

So, we urge all scholars, and those who prefer to call themselves students, not to make school or college a long loaf out of the old man's dough. Work, at it!

Even the mouse who came back from space was happy about the advanced part of his education. In spite of the terror of whirling around in space and wondering if he would get back, he said it was far superior to Cancer research.

Dr. Penton said he would like to see this country adopt a selection system of its own that wouldn't waste Canadian youth by allowing youngsters with great potential to become casual labor.

"We need to give them training," he said, "to fill one of Canada's greatest needs — technically trained personnel."

Tree falls on sunporch

A tree may grow in Brooklyn, as the title of the well known book goes, but for the owner of a house at 23 Springfield, it looked a little like the tree was growing in his sun porch last Monday afternoon.

A large shade tree, caught by the sudden windstorm about 3:30 p.m., broke off and crashed into the sun porch. The diameter of the tree at the breaking point was about 14 inches.

Little damage was done to the porch, but it was the death knell of the tree. The owner was ordered to have it cut down and removed — at her own expense.

The woman said she believed the tree was struck by lightning, but Fire Department officials believe it was simply a victim of the sudden, high wind.

Workmen from the Light and Power Department had to re-route the wiring around the tree to ensure a continuous flow of power in the area.

The firearm problem

Westmount seeks new legislation

Westmount was the only local municipality to present a motion to this week's convention of the Union of Quebec Municipalities and, true to this City's current crusade, it concerned firearm control.

Represented at the convention by Mayor J. C. Cushing, aldermen Laird Bovaird, and Norman Dawe, acting general manager, Westmount presented its resolution at Wednesday morning's general session.

It noted that the present control of possession, sale and use of firearms is grossly inadequate and that police and private citizens are thereby exposed to unnecessary risks. The motion also cited the increase of criminal activity involving guns and deplored the fact that "potential murderers" were aided by the ease with which weapons are attainable.

Westmount recommended that the Union make representations through Quebec to Ottawa to strictly control the possession of firearms and to establish severe penalties for the infraction of any such legislation.

This is the second such resolution presented by Westmount to a body of Quebec civic officials. Last Spring a similar motion was made at a meeting of the Association of Municipal Police and Fire Chiefs.

In July an informal response was received to agitation caused by Westmount's motion and Examiner editorials on this topic. Replying to a private representation by Judge Bernard Rose, which included articles from several Examiner issues, Justice Minister E. D. Fulton announced that a special committee had been formed to work with the RCMP to suggest revisions in Criminal Code sections dealing with the control and sale of firearms.

The first active step was promised for this Fall when legislation will be introduced banning the use and sale of the Hornet rifle — a .22 calibre 'sawed-off' rifle originally designed for inclusion in RCAF survival kits and subsequently sold in large quantities on the war surplus market.

It could not immediately be ascertained whether or not the present motion would be passed by the Union of Quebec Municipalities since full minutes of the meeting were not available.

Last Revolutionary War pension check in the United States was issued in 1919, 127 years after that war.

WE SAY YOU SAY

Why not stay home over long weekend?

IT has been a long dry summer of beautiful weekends and long weeks of good vacationing weather.

We've all had ample opportunity to hit the highways, go places, see and do things.

And the long, glorious Canadian autumn lies ahead for more of the same.

Labor Day weekend drivers kill themselves and their passengers in large numbers — possibly not because they drive any worse than at other times but simply because there are so many of them out that roads are congested, tempers are short, impatience mounts, accidents soar. It is a familiar, inevitable pattern.

Inevitable? No. Avoidable. Avoidable by staying home.

You might enjoy this weekend at home. Try eating out, going to a show, playing with the kids, working in the garden, painting the double windows, reading, loafing, sleeping, visiting neighbors — you name it. You don't have to risk your neck on the highways.

BY THE WAY

DO the statisticians, almost buried in paper, laugh and jest as they prepare their figures, or do they work in solemn silence?

What manner of man is he who prepares for publication the statement that 73,412 books were borrowed from the Nether Fobsham public library in the last 46 weeks? Does he exchange a witticism with his colleague who is working on the number of umbrellas left in buses during last July, or make a coarse comment when a second colleague whispers that there are 421 disused horse troughs in Staffordshire? One of them once went mad under the strain, and shouted, "If all the grocers' trouser-buttons in New Malden were piled into a heap, there would be enough to make shields for three African tribes." "Have you checked that?" asked the Controller.

Took care of 3 boys, thanks Summer School

Sir: I would like to take this opportunity to extend my sincere thanks to Mr. Warren Bloome, who has done such a wonderful job with the children at summer school this year.

As a mother of three boys, I am in the position to know that keeping them amused and above all interested in activities is no small task.

Mr. Bloome has shown great patience and interest, far beyond that expected of anyone in this capacity. I, for one, am deeply grateful for days this summer when I have been completely free of worry knowing my boys were under the supervision of such a capable person.

Mrs. G. Stubbs.

Lauds decision to amend code

Dear Sir: The announced intention of the Hon. E. D. Fulton, Minister of Justice, that the government will enact amendments to the Criminal Code, is a tribute to him for carrying on a campaign to emphasize the necessity and urgency of taking effective action to drastically curb the revolved menace.

You were kind enough, in several issues of your paper, to give space to the letters addressed to you, in which I pointed out that making it next to impossible for thugs to secure revolvers or other lethal weapons would reduce major crimes by from fifty to seventy-five percent.

The Westmount City Council, with characteristic promptness and appreciation of the situation, adopted a resolution which was submitted to the convention of the Union of Quebec Municipalities for its approval and co-operation. Commissioner Drury, who heads the Police and Fire Departments of Westmount, together with the Mayor and his colleagues, have shown a commendable determination to lend their valuable aid to arouse public opinion in this matter.

Reports emanating from Ottawa and printed in the press are an assurance that the Federal government will do all that it legislatively can to implement existing measures to

Vibrant appeals to reason — the way to fight Communism

By BERNARD ROSE, Q.C.

No more striking and instructive lesson of the superiority of the democratic type of government as compared with totalitarianism, whether it be a foul nazism or a fanatical and brutal communism, could have been taught than the recent federal and provincial elections.

Be it a St. Laurent or Diefenbaker, a Barrette or a Lesage, a Fleming or a Robichaud, it is the people who make or unmake the governments. The free and secret ballot does permit a positive expression of opinion concerning the suitability of a party for power or the renewal of a mandate. Constitutional democracy makes no distinction of race or class; it is based upon the broad fact that the law-abiding and freedom-loving citizen may choose who, in his view, merits public confidence.

A free press may likewise express its views without fear of the consequences. It takes no orders from any dictator or oligarchy even though it may be partisan. It is as free as the ordinary elector in casting its press ballot.

In the measure that democracy became accepted as a system of government and way of life did the previously inarticulate masses make their voices heard. The "vox populi" is regarded as the "vox Dei." There are of course critics and opponents of democracy who point to its alleged defects; but what they offer is hardly likely to make a popular appeal.

Since the last war, democracy has been challenged by the obsessed advocates of communism who are determined to shape the world to their own pattern. In a language that is both virulent and vicious they denounce democratic statesmen chosen by an intelligent electorate as "war mongers" and upholders of "capitalism." They refuse to permit their deluded dupes to learn the facts concerning democratic principles. They keep them in intellectual and industrial bondage. They will not in any circumstance permit the masses to share their power, and opposition or criticism is regarded as treason. They enslave weaker nations and dictate their policies. They are far more imperialistic than the former great powers since the workers in the satellite countries are not allowed to govern themselves.

Any attempt to obtain their freedom is ruthlessly and murderously cut down. Communism is civilization's cancer constantly gnawing at the vitals of democracy. It must therefore be fought against with every means in our democratic power. The first and most important step is to educate ourselves in all that relates to democracy as a way of life and the communist menace to it.

We cannot resort to subversion in Russia and its satellites as the communists do in the democracies.

What we can and should do, in season and out of season, in parliament, legislature, pulpit and platform as well as in houses of worship is to denounce in the strongest language the menace to human liberty and values as well as world peace, of imperialistic communism. This would demonstrate to the Kremlin schemers that the aroused peoples of the democracies will not be influenced by their seditions, propaganda and plans for world dictatorship, which was the aim of the lunatic dictator who reigned in Berlin.

In a sense, there is little to choose between nazism and communism, both repudiate human rights and liberties. One of the most complete exposures of communism has come from a former outstanding disciple of Lenin, and his political godfather, Karl Marx. He is no other than the former Vice-President under Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia and is now in prison. His book "THE NEW CLASS" caused consternation in the highest communist circles. In it he exposes the evils of this new form of tyranny. If it was read by every second Canadian and American, there would be few, if any, who would subscribe to communist dogmas and doctrine.

Space will not permit to quote at great length in your columns but a few extracts will give your readers an insight into the views of this courageous and outspoken communist. In one of his opening paragraphs he states: "Beginning with the promise that they alone know the laws which govern society, communists arrived at the oversimplified and unscientific conclusion that this alleged knowledge gives them the power and exclusive right to change society and to control its activities."

He continues:—"The communist revolution is the first in which the revolutionaries and their allies, particularly the authority-wielding group, survived the revolution. They were evidently determined to hold on to autocratic power and keep the duped masses in a state of political and industrial servility."

He emphasizes that — "in contrast to earlier revolutions conducted in the name of doing away with classes, has resulted in the most complete authority of any single new class. Everything else is sham and delusion."

As he points out:—"The communist government very rapidly becomes a small circle of party leaders. The claim that it is a dictatorship of the proletariat becomes an empty slogan."

How true! He does not hesitate to exclaim:—"Modern history has no record of actions against the opposition of masses, which are as brutal, inhuman, and unlawful as those of communist regimes."

The Poles and Hungarians learned this to their sorrow. In his view:—"There is much of the feudal and fanatic in the dogmatism of contemporary communism."

In other words the convinced and fanatical communist is psychopathic. One final extract which constitutes the basic philosophy and purpose of the Kremlin chief and subordinate dictators:—"Contemporary communism is that type of totalitarianism which consists of three basic factors for controlling the people. The first power, the second ownership, the third ideology. They are monopolized by the one and only political party, or, according to my previous explanation and terminology, by a "new class", and, at present, by the oligarchy of that party or of that class."

I think that this sentence in a nutshell sums up the structure, purpose, and policy of present day absolutist communism.

When a millionaire praises the soviet system and lauds its leader, it is time for other millionaires to provide the funds to carry on a campaign through an organization, the members of which would be the soldiers of democracy fighting for world peace not with guns or nuclear weapons, but vibrant appeals to the emotions and reason of the world's workers.

Water, water everywhere — and not a drop that's fit

"One of the most remarkable things about the city of Montreal," said Dr. Lucien Piche in an address Wednesday, at the Westmount Rotary, "is that, while the city is situated on an island completely surrounded by water, it has not preserved one single inch of its vast shoreline for recreational purposes — swimming is prohibited by local ordinance around the entire island."

Dr. Piche, who is a water-pollution expert, discussed the subject of the city's water pollution problem. He is head of the Department of Chemistry at the University of Montreal, and has published many papers on the subject of water and air pollution.

He pointed out an interesting fact regarding Montreal's water supply.

"Two million cubic feet of water per second comes down the St. Lawrence river to Montreal in a remarkable state of purity," he said, "but actually no St. Lawrence water reaches Montreal's shore.

"The water is met by the muddy Ottawa River above the island, and this dark water, laden with natural organic material, surrounds the island.

gile material," he declared. "Municipal sewage, which is of course heavily polluted, is still 99% water."

"All sewage can be rendered innocuous," says Dr. Piche, "and this practice is becoming more common." However, Montreal still has a long way to go.

He recalled that in 1933 the Quebec Department of Health ordered Montreal to treat its sewage waste in a special plant before dumping it into the river. A commission was set up to study this plan at the time, under the administration of Mayor Houde. Today, 23 years later, this plan is still under consideration. ## Health Dept. busy in July

As a service to residents, 16 smallpox revaccinations and four immunization injections were given by the Health Department during July, the General Manager's report for the month shows.

In addition, 10 samples of water from swimming pools were examined and all found satisfactory.

Other inspections totalled 116, including 53 boarding houses, 10 barber shops and beauty parlors, three massage parlors, five laundries, 35 food establishments, two each public buildings and animal clinics and six comfort stations.

On the other side of the picture, 54 milk samples were collected and it was found 16 did not comply with by-law standards.

Communicable diseases totalled four this year in July as compared with seven for the same period last year.

A total of 142 vaccinations and injections were given during the month, the report continues.

Two doctor's and four nurses' clinics were held with a total attendance of 39. Number of families registered is 299; children registered, 430.

Help for Elderly

Institute inaugurates new unit of services

A new facility to provide greater assistance to the aged was initiated in August by the Baron de Hirsch Institute with the inauguration of a coordinated program of services to elderly Jewish persons. The aim of the new program is to provide consultation, referral and information services for elderly Jewish persons in the community and their families, it was announced by Max Pascall, president of the Institute.

A special sub-committee has been named under the chairmanship of Stanley Abbey to act in an advisory capacity to this new aging aid program.

Speaking on behalf of the officers and executive committee of the Federation of Jewish Community Services, of which the Baron de Hirsch Institute is a constituent agency, Edward Barkoff, president, commended the establishment of this new added service to the aging.

"The steady increase in the average life span has meant the development of a new approach to the recreational and occupational needs of our senior citizens," he stated, "and my colleagues and I are gratified that these growing needs are being recognized and met."

Through its affiliation with

Federation, the Baron de Hirsch Institute is supported by the annual campaign of the Combined Jewish Appeal.

Sam Fogel, a senior member of the Baron de Hirsch family welfare staff, has been appointed staff member in charge and he will be working under the supervision of David Weiss, executive director of the Baron de Hirsch Institute. Mr. Fogel is a graduate social worker with an MSW degree and has been associated with the Family Welfare Department of the Institute for the past six years.

The establishment of the new services to the aged is the result of several years of study conducted by a sub-committee of the Council of Jewish Aging under the chairmanship of Mrs. M. E. Coshof. The Baron de Hirsch Institute is one of the affiliated agencies.

As a result of this study, it was recommended that a program of non-institutional services for the aged was desirable in order to promote the better adjustment of the growing numbers of aged persons living in the community-at-large. It was also concluded from the study of experiences in other communities that such a program would help to decrease the demand for institutional facilities and would serve as a preventive measure against undue and premature deterioration of the aging individual.

It found that the total number of Jewish individuals aged 65 and over in metropolitan Montreal had more than doubled in the 15 years between 1941 and 1956. During that period their number had grown from approximately 3,000 to 6,200. The study also revealed that by 1981 the estimated number of individuals in this age group would probably reach 12,200.

"Another significant statistical figure," Mrs. Weiss stated "emphasizing the need for non-institutional services to the aged is the fact that at the present time only five percent of elderly persons are actually institutionalized. In the Montreal Jewish Home for Aged, for example, the present average age of the residents is 82. Today the problems of aging are universal. They affect all people in the same way without regard to status or means.

"Our aim is to provide advice and guidance not only to the elderly themselves, but to adult members of families who are concerned about the welfare of and relationships with aging parents or other elderly relatives."

False alarm, boys caught

It was a fine afternoon last Friday and three boys in Westmount with time on their hands thought they'd have a little fun.

They turned in a false alarm at Vignal and Barrat and waited for the fun to start.

It started and ended when the police caught the three culprits, aged 9, 10, and 12 and took them to the station for questioning.

They reluctantly admitted their guilt.

What the youthful offenders didn't realize was that their offense in turning in a false alarm was a criminal action for which they or their parents could be held responsible in court.

The incident occurred around 6 p.m.

The police let the boys go with a stern warning.

Victoria Hall Fall bookings

Although Victoria Hall facilities were used exactly as many times during July, 1960, as July, 1959, the public address system was used four times more, indicating, probably, the sizes of the gatherings last year were smaller.

The General Manager's report for July indicates the Hall was used 29 times during the month — exactly the same as for the same period last year. The address system was used six times compared with twice last year.

Of the 29 occupancies, 21 were at standard rental rates.

Revenue for the hall showed a decline of $106.88. Figures for July this year indicate $1,521.23 was taken in as against $1,628.11 last year.

The report also states there are 198 advance bookings for the hall and facilities between August 1 and October 31.

From the present outlook the final results (of the harvest) will be most satisfactory. Would that the world market and demand were adequate to absorb it all. — Estevan (Sask.) Mercury.

Fountain of Youth tour started here

The elixir of eternal youth and life has excited the thought of man through the ages, only so far it has remained an unsolved mystery, a nebulous dream based on some medieval alchemists' fairytale-like experiments involving human skulls, black ravens and some vicious looking potions.

Modern medicine had always taken a very sceptical view of this fantasy until some news from Rumania reached the western world: the elixir of youth and life had been found by Rumanian scientists.

The first man to pay attention to the modifications of the nerve cell in relation to age was the noted Rumanian neurologist G. Marinescu. His work was continued by Prof. C. I. Parhon, who in 1949 started the "C. I. Parhon Institute of Geriatrics" in Bucharest with the specific purpose of clinical, physiological and therapeutical studies of aged people. The 'fountain of youth' was developed in this institute.

The basic theme of Prof. Parhon is that old age should definitely not be looked upon as a normal condition. He and his assistants maintain that old age is primarily a pathological condition due to some biological phenomena which could be changed by drugs. Therefore, the main task was to find the right drugs and the correct application of same.

After years of strenuous study, the Parhon Institute reported very successful results of the application of Vitamin E and novocaine. Vitamin E produced excellent results with experiments for improving the condition of skin and joint functioning and for increasing the muscular power, whereas novocaine—known chemically as H3—affects and improves both physical and psychic capacities of the patient. The most amazing results were brought about by H3, such as changes in the patient's voice, improvement of arterial conditions and hair repigmentation, as well as improvement of high nervous activity as far as conditioned reflexes are concerned.

Globus Tours Inc. of Montreal, together with Scandinavian Airlines System and KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, offer a unique opportunity to all Canadians interested in the solution of these age-old problems to participate in a tour to the Parhon Institute in Bucharest this Fall. The first group left from Montreal today under the personal leadership of Dr. E. Rolland Blais, president and Medical Director of Aeterna-Life Mutual Co. Thereafter, tours depart twice a month from Montreal.

George Aitken, past president of The Canadian Red Cross Society, told the annual dinner of the Society's Ontario division that he was impressed with the results obtained by the Institute of Geriatrics in Bucharest which he had visited last Fall. He said that Dr. Anna Aslan, director of the clinic, showed him three patients who had been treated with vitamins and H3.

"One man of 112 years of age just remarkable," Mr. Aitken declared. "The muscles on the back of his neck were like those of a man of 50 and his thatch of white hair was beginning to turn black at the roots."

"Another man of 93 came out and did handstands on a desk; a lady, who was 86 and a former opera singer whose voice had failed her, sang a few arias and almost made the room shake."

Mr. Aitken also told of a Toronto woman who was at the clinic and had noted that the treatment was helping her. The 'Red Dean' of Canterbury, Dr. Hewlett Johnson in a recent appearance on CBC-TV's program "Close-Up," described how he personally experienced wonderful results with Dr. Aslan's treatment.

Thousands of people have gone to this new 'fountain of youth' and have been helped; many more thousands will travel to Bucharest in the future. Now the opportunity has presented itself to Canadians.

Signals regiment prepares winter training program

"Communications play an invaluable role today in peace, 'police actions' and in preparation for national emergencies which may strike our own country," Lt. Col. S. E. Alsop, ED, Commanding Officer of the 11th Signals Regiment, Westmount, told a meeting of his officers last week.

"The role of the Militia, as given to us by Order in Council last year," he said, "is National Survival — keeping the country running in case of a national emergency or enemy attack."

Next week marks "back to training" for Canada's Militia forces, and one of the most important roles played will be by units of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

The Militia in and around Montreal is divided into Mobile Support Columns made up of rescue companies and other units affiliated with them to provide food, transport, decontamination, and, of course, communication. Each support column is completely independent, and completely self-contained.

The part played by the 11th Signals Regiment is providing communication for a Mobile Support Column, and to keep contact to and from the column and main headquarters.

A practical survival exercise was held with great success, at summer camp at Farnham this year by 10 Militia Group, of which 11th Sigs is a part. The exercise started with a hypothetical bomb being dropped on Granby, and a full support column had to move out to rescue the injured, restore civilian services, clear "debris" and, in general, keep the community operating.

Training of support columns stresses the fact that, in case of an actual nuclear attack, the Militia is to work, where possible, in conjunction with civil authorities, although the Army is responsible for co-ordination of effort.

Lt. Col. Alsop told the meeting that the 11th Sigs could expect new and modern equipment to be delivered in the near future, part of a complete modernization program of the Militia and regular Army.

The training program will officially start September 13 when Col. Alsop will speak to the Regiment.

Library display to feature old photo collection

The Westmount Public Library will have on display, all through the month of September, a collection of photographs of the Library and its users, taken at various times during the last 30 to 40 years.

Of particular interest are the groups of children, many of whom continue to use the Library as adults.

Also on exhibit are several of the Library's early "records" — notably the first adult membership list, beginning in 1899, and the first separate register of children dating from 1911.

Singer complains

Folk singer Alan Mills could probably compose a pretty caustic ditty about employees of Westmount's public works departments.

Mr. Mills, who lives at 5088 Cote St. Antoine road in N.D.G., told police that Westmount employees damaged the lawn in front of his home.

According to police, Westmount employees had apparently placed some branches on his property and "had damaged the grass."

The branches, police said, came from a tree which had fallen on Cote St. Antoine road near Grey avenue.

outlining the program for the year, and followed by a 'get acquainted' evening where the members of the Regiment will meet the officers under whom they will serve for the next year.

A Signals re-union is planned, probably for some time in October, the commanding officer said. The evening will be a social event at which members, and former members, of the 11th Sigs can get together and talk about "old times."

A large number of recruits, he said, are expected to join the unit this year in addition to the trumpet band presently being formed.

In years past, many French-speaking people joined the 11th Sigs to improve their English diction, and Col. Alsop said they had been of great benefit to the unit.

"Today," he pointed out, "we are getting a larger number of French-speaking personnel, making the 11th Sigs almost bilingual."

The training program will be highlighted, it was indicated, by weekend exercises in Signals training at Camp Farnham this Fall and next Spring, plus once-a-month weekend training at the Unit's Hillside Armoury.

Mercier bridge tenders to be called for soon

Tenders for the new Mercier bridge will be called for within the next two weeks according to information received in a telegram from the Hon. The Quebec Public Works Department is now busy revising the location of the proposed bridges at the western approaches to Montreal island.

It seems to us that in a broad-based scheme like unemployment insurance designed to cover all the people in Canada, there is bound to be a fringe for whom the benefits are a bonanza. These include workers in seasonal industries . . . — Napanee (Ont.) Post-Express.

Labor

By

The Venerable R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D., Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

Labor Day is a holiday which stands by itself among the national and religious holidays of the year. It is not national because it was devised for one group. It is not religious because it was not intended to commemorate a religious event. Yet it has turned out to be a national holiday because we all observe it, and its religious basis is recognized because our Lord was a laborer. The holiday in short marks the dignity of labor and nothing in the world could have brought that home to us except the teaching of the Bible. The Marxist emphasis on labor is only a Christian emphasis over-emphasized.

There is no doubt of the power of labor just as there is no doubt of the power of money or capital. The question sometimes rises whether labor or capital has a sense of responsibility corresponding to its sense of power. Until they have acquired that sense of responsibility to the community both Labor and Capital will live as a law to themselves and at war with one another. Each becomes a State within the State. Two political parties oppose one another but they both know that they are responsible to the State and responsible for the State.

Labor proposes to form a political party but as long as Labor announces the increase of wages as the first plank of its platform, without saying anything about increased productivity, it is being irresponsible. It is thinking only of itself. As long as Capital—or Management—makes dividends its first object, without reference to efficiency, it does the same thing.

The following sentences are taken from an address by John Scott, Executive Assistant to the publisher of Time Magazine; the address is reported in G.B.: "In my opinion wage increases without productivity increases are specious and wrong and destructive. They lead to inflation... I would be wrong if I did not state the reverse of this principle which is the following: that productivity increases without wage increases are similarly wrong and destructive, because excessive profits are just as inflationary as excessive wages. The balance has got to be maintained by a reasoning society."

Labor Day has become a national holiday because we are all laborers, with our hands and machines; with our capital and our office desks; with our houses and kitchen utensils; with our schools and pupils; yes, and with our Bibles and pulpits. We are all in it as fellow-citizens receiving protection from the State and under an obligation to make a return to the State by offering a full day's work for a full day's wage.

Sharps, Flats and Naturals

Third Vancouver Festival (III)

By FRANCES GOLTMAN

The Second Symphony Concert conducted by William Steinberg had four famous soloists in the Schubert Mass and the Vancouver Bach Choir. Such names as the conductor, Steinberg, soprano Audrey Farnell, mezzo-soprano Kerstin Meyer, tenor Richard Verreau and bass-baritone William Reimer attracted only a meagre audience in the large Queen Elizabeth Theatre. This was indeed a surprise since the First Orchestral Concert with Steinberg and Meyer had a full attendance.

There was a noticeable absence of young adults, perhaps it was the wrong evening for a choral event, a Saturday.

The music was a success although the Vancouver Bach Choir was not up to the standard of the orchestra or soloists. Usually these choirs are made up of people who sing for a hobby (like our Elgar Choir) and not being of professional calibre, we overlook their shortcomings. In the case of the Vancouver Choir of 120 voices, the contrast was too evident.

In the Schubert Mass, the drummer of the orchestra did some splendid work in the Gloria and Kerstin Meyer had an outstanding solo in the Credo. The fine organist was busy throughout. The second item was Bruckner's Te Deum, a majestic Hymn of Praise that is in five sections.

An event that was entertaining and unusual was the presentation of Geoffrey Holder and Company. Giving four evenings of authentic Trinidad Folk Dancing. The eleven member group danced, sang and there were piano, guitar and drum solos. It was a variety program that held interest from start to finish.

Geoffrey Holder and his very attractive wife, Carmen de Lavalade are no strangers in the dance world since they are the leading dance stars of the Metropolitan Opera.

Donald Shirley, who accompanied the versatile Geoffrey Holder (he sings, dances, paints and is the choreographer and costume designer!) is a professor of psychology at New York University on leave of absence for a year to perform with this group. Mr. Shirley also played some solos that he has recorded. They are being released this month by Cadence Records and he is accompanied by famed Archie Bleyer's orchestra.

Some of the most exotic dancing of the program was the Douglala Suite. It was strange sensuous dancing the kept the audience fascinated. Much of it was ritual in character. The evening was a most enjoyable experience.

One of the most controversial events of the Vancouver Festival was the Schoenberg Concert with pianist Glenn Gould as soloist, commentator and accompanist, Kerstin Meyer (mezzo-soprano and the Vancouver String Quartet with Donald Brown as Narrator.

It was a public harmony lesson by Glenn Gould promoting the works of Arnold Schoenberg (1874-1951). How many of the people that completely filled the International Cinema Theatre understood the technical terms uttered by Gould about the composer of the 12 tone row?

gramme for this season provides for six book reviews and the card of admission for the season is $5.

WITH TEMPLE BROTHERHOOD: Under the chairmanship of president Abraham Izenberg, the Temple Men's Club holds an important meeting on Tuesday September 13 at which time chairmen of committees will bring in reports as to the program for the new Temple season.

During summer weeks under the auspices of the Brotherhood, summer Sabbath services were conducted in the Temple community house. This is one of the most important projects of Brotherhood and all those who have shared in this program have continued the fine tradition of spiritual striving. Hershell H. Lewis, was in charge of the services with laymen participating in conducting the ritual. The ushering was most efficient under the direction of Samuel Segal and Edward Auerback.

'Open door' . . .

tion for these events reached a total of 969.

JUNE: Sports continued — soccer and cricket were introduced. Little League baseball and softball teams were organized . . . the outdoor program began and a trip to the Granby Zoo set the wheels of the summer-fun time in motion. The arts and crafts program was discontinued until the Fall and the accent of all forthcoming events was geared to the great out-of-doors.

JULY AND AUGUST: Over 250 youngsters were enrolled in the summer program which included bi-weekly visits to St. Helen's Island, tours, trips, hikes, tournaments, sports, swimming, a Learn-to-Swim Project, rainy day programs and many others. The entire affair was culminated with closing day ceremonies. This included a field day at Staynor Park, movies and refreshments.

These have been some of the highlights of the 1959-60 Unity Boys' Club Program.

SEPTEMBER 1960: And here we are again, in the process of planning activities for the 1960-61 season. In the next two weeks it will be our pleasure to welcome back many of last year's members. We will greet many who will have summer fun-time stories to tell and be prepared to answer the million and one questions which will be asked relative to the new season. Registration-time will afford an opportunity for all club members and staff to get together and discuss program plans.

Any boy or girl living in the districts of St. Henry and Westmount from 6 years-of-age to 16 years-of-age may join the Unity Boys' Club. There is no distinction as to race, creed or color. The "Open Door" policy is the trade-mark of the Montreal Boys' Association affiliated Clubs. The Unity Boys' Club conducts an open-door policy.

The Dignity of Labor

Unseen, unsung the simple days passed by,
He drove the nails, and sawed, and planed a board,
Intent upon the Father's business bent,
As when, with care, He fed a hungry horde.

We do not know what happened in those days
As He grew up to face His tragedy,
But what we know, is much the better part,
The lesson taught, of work's true dignity.

Children's Theatre announces plans for coming season

Dorothy Davis and Violet Walters, directors of the Montreal Children's Theatre will mark the 28th season of this popular school of speech, drama, radio and television, this month.

The plays which have been presented by the students of Children's Theatre for the past two generations have been a great source of enchantment to the children of Montreal. The directors have endeavored in every way to cater to the need and wishes of the small fry. They have presented plays for the very young and also for the older children, and in answer to requests made last year for the new season's presentations, hundreds of youngsters wrote in with suggestions. Dorothy Davis and Violet Walters have selected the plays which most of the youngsters requested, and so this season the choices are "The Five Little Peppers," "Pollyanna" and "The Little Princess."

The Children's Theatre has four studios situated in Notre Dame de Grace, Cote St. Catherine road, Saint Laurent and Town of Mount Royal. The children receive training in voice production, drama, radio and television.

With the field of TV opening up, and the demand for TV actors and actresses becoming greater, the directors of the Children's Theatre have been fortunate in securing the services of Roger Racine, well-known CBC TV producer who has some 700 successful TV shows to his credit. Mr. Racine will now be associated with Children's Theatre, giving a course of training in TV work. This will be open for seniors and juniors, but is intended for only the serious minded students, and auditions will be given prior to acceptance.

Mr. C. Miller, CBC announcer, who has been associated with the radio department of the Children's Theatre for the past thirteen years will return this season, and the popular Children's Theatre radio shows will be continued weekly. The competent staff of teachers at the school will be returning this season, including Pauline Rathbone, niece of the celebrated British star Basil Rathbone. Miss Rathbone has been successfully teaching with the school for the past eight years. Gloria Wolfe, a versatile young actress who has accomplished excellent work with the students of the Children's Theatre, Muriel Gold, Florence Schreiber and Sheila Dobrin all of whom have done fine work and have endeared themselves to the younger members of the school, will be returning.

Another new course which has been added this year is MODELING and CHARM under the competent guidance of professional model and lecturer Audrey Morris. This will include modeling, posture, grace, personality, make-up, wardrobe, color co-ordination, and all the important assets for girls of all ages.

Thousands of children have passed through the doors of the Children's Theatre since 1933, many of whom have found theatre and TV their gateway to success. The directors point with pride to some of their successful pupils, including Bill Shatner, Pat Joudry, Bonar Stuart, Dick Easton, George Caron, Alexis Kanner and many others. Last season many of the pupils were engaged in professional work at the National Film Board, TV roles in CBC productions, and professional modeling.

Registration for all courses starts in September.

Barbs, Wanderers feature week-end rugby slate

Montreal Irish displayed rugged determination and sufficient artistry at Westhill Saturday, to gain a slender 3-0 verdict over Barbarians in the first league game of the season.

The telling points were scored in the first three minutes of play by lean Irish skipper Jerry Brennan who booted home a penalty goal.

The result was sufficient to swing early odds on the league trophy winner away from Town of Mount Royal in favor of Irish. The Greenmen beat the Town in a practise game last week.

Other results in the first week-end of play for the Standard Life trophy showed Town of Mount Royal downing a shaky Westmount side at the Town's recreation centre.

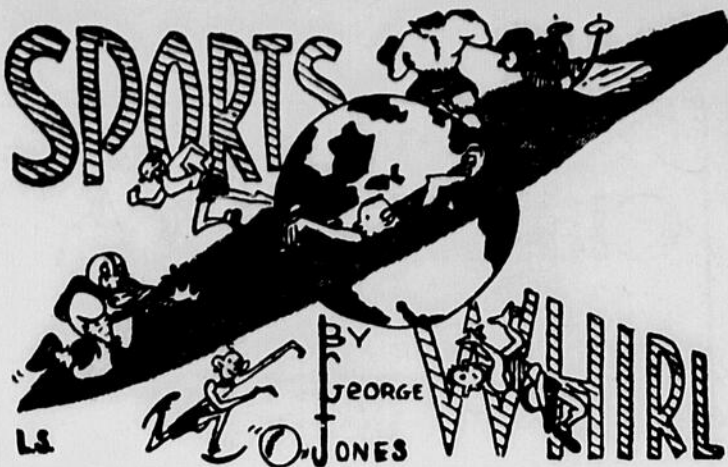

The powerful home team were held scoreless until midway through the second half when the Town's superior conditioning brought about a 14-0 verdict. Wanderers, who journeyed to Ottawa to face the Bytown Beavers, returned to the city with a fine 26-6 win under their belts. The Beavers picked up early points on two penalty goals but were unable to stem the penetrating attacks of the visitors' back-line.

Touchdowns by Georghenan, Hodge, Gordon and captain Ray Smith and penalty goals by Parsons Davis ultimately made for a 26-6 victory.

Feature action this weekend will be the Barbs and Wanderers match at Monkland High School. Other games include Westmount against Irish at Northmount and Town of Mount Royal who face the Bytown Beavers at Ottawa.

The Westmount Invitational Sevens tournament is slated for Monday, Sept. 5 at the Town of Mount Royal recreation centre when the hosts will try to nail down their own trophy for the third year.

BIG WEEKEND FOOTBALL FARE

THERE'S PLENTY of football fare on the weekend, if you are not going away for the big holiday weekend. There'll be Big Four, QRFU intermediate and juvenile games to choose. Montreal and Ottawa in the Big Four face back-to-back games, while Massena, newcomers to the QRFU intermediate section also have two games, but both are at home, which does not make it so tough having to travel for one of them. What gets under our skin is that the Big Four teams, or at least some of their publicity men talk up the fact that their teams are playing back-to-back games. We think that is one reason why the Western clubs are so much better for their play two games every weekend, Saturday and Monday nights.

Vancouver will be in Winnipeg Thursday night. Then Winnipeg move into Edmonton for a Saturday night game, all this in 48 hours. Come Labor Day Monday. Vancouver remain over and moves into Regina, while Edmonton pack up and play in Calgary. The Pegs will have the day off. But it is like this every weekend. Traveling is made to make the schedule as easy as possible, but for the Lions this weekend, they are on the road for two games.

* * *

It must be hard on the club staff, especially coaching when you drop one and want to correct those bad plays or motions that lost you the game. Even if you win, the staff have to be ready for a new opponent in two days, and that sometime includes traveling hundreds of miles, of course by plane. At the same time, it must be harder to be a coach out West then it is in the East. We consider Big Four clubs as having an easy time of their schedule. One game per week and a whole week to take up the slack. Only Labor and Thanksgiving give the coaching staff two games in three days.

The West's tough schedule has made them none the worst when it comes to the Grey Cup game. They are so used to traveling hundreds of miles that the Grey Cup game, when it is held in Toronto, is only a short plane ride. If the Big Four want more games, how about weekend games on Saturday and the other Monday. They still have four day week to take up the slack and correct their mistakes. And just think what that will mean to the box office, some extra six games at least by playing two games per week. Somehow, that is one reason why the Eastern teams are not happy of an interlocking schedule, traveling, and they are not used to it, like Western clubs.

District club bowlers downed for top titles

Ontario bowlers won the rink and doubles trophies for the second consecutive year and Alberta retained the singles trophy for the west in the sixth annual Canadian Lawn Bowling Championships.

Joe Dorsch's Waterloo crew waded relentlessly through all opposition for a 5-0 record that gave them the rink championship.

Oshawa's Jack Hunter and George Jackson won four and tied one to take the doubles title and help the Ontario seven compile an over-all point record of 25, six more than British Columbia. Second-place aggregate score.

Montrealers Jim Forbes and Frank Schringeur crushed Calgary's Bill Malin and George Rickson 31-14 for six points in doubles play.

Mike Durante of Edmonton captured the singles crown. He won the title without having to bowl a ball when C. S. Allan of the Mount Royal, defaulted in the final round.

Durante was tied with Manitoba's Don Binnie and Ontario's E. C. Threfall with six points after four games.

Allan defaulted both the fourth and final games because of an injured foot.

ation for this plant, still stands empty.

Dr. Piche indicated that while the province of Ontario boasts over 400 sewage disposal plants, Quebec has only one. He attributes this lack to "the overwhelming reluctance of people here to spend large sums of money, especially on projects which will be beneficial only to other people downstream."

The City of Ottawa has a plan which calls for the construction of interceptors in the Ottawa river which will conduct the water through a purification plant, but it is not expected that this plan will become an operational reality for many years.

Dr. Piche drew special attention to the efforts of 15 Montreal East industries, who have formed a joint commission to study ways and means of cutting down air and water pollution caused by plant operations. He described their work as "a splendid effort."

He also urged that groups like the Rotarians make every effort to use their influence to exert pressure on the authorities, in the hopes that eventually some action might be taken.

Meanwhile, water-loving Montrealers will continue to do what they have been doing for many years now — jam public beaches in places like Plattsburgh, New York, where the water is clean.

control, in the public interest, the sale and possession of firearms.

No matter how devoted and courageous the members of local security forces may be, they are at a disadvantage when they are called upon to deal with armed thugs who do not hesitate to wound or kill brave police officers or equally brave citizens. The armed thug is a social and economic parasite and a menace to the community. There is no likelihood of reforming or rehabilitating him. Drastic regulations in the matter of firearm possession and equally severe punishment meted out by our tribunals will lessen the danger to both police officer and citizen.

The Hon. Mr. Fulton has been sympathetic and splendidly cooperative when asked to lend his good offices, authority, and influence to adopt amendments to deal with offences against morals and persons.

Hitherto, the public has been somewhat apathetic in urging action to deal with bandits and the criminal element. We should therefore, be all the more thankful that the Minister of Justice, aware of conditions, is determined to meet the bandit menace and seek to ally the crime epidemic.

Public bodies throughout Canada should not only help the police in their fight against crime, which has worsened during the past two years, but praise any and all efforts of the Federal Government and its Minister of Justice in the combatting of crime and the treatment of malefactors. Those who prefer to steal rather than work are no asset to our productive society, and even when imprisoned a charge upon it.

Our police and security forces constitute an insurance against lawbreakers, and the premiums must be kept as low as possible by reducing their number and activities. Let us, therefore, at all times, back our fellow citizens who wear police uniforms to the limit; if we do, the fear of bandits and the smaller criminal fry, will be almost eliminated.

Labor or Labour, Monday's a holiday

By LARRY McINNIS

It doesn't matter whether you spell it "Labor" or "Labour", but Monday is a holiday "set aside to honor labor" in most states of the U.S. and all provinces of Canada. In fact, it's a holiday in most parts of the world, which should rate nearly as many headlines as if peace suddenly broke out somewhere.

Although Labor Day is supposed to be a holiday in honor of labor, some people have different ideas of the definition of labor.

The weekend also marks the time when most families return to the city from their cool, cool cottages in the mountains, or by the lake. Just the thought of moving back to the heat of the city is labor in itself. Besides, preparations start for sending little Johnnie and Janie back to school.

The back-to-school gambit is another labor, specially for Dad when he has to pay for new outfits. Oh, well! C'est la vie.

On the other hand, the dictionary says labor is a physical or mental exertion involving work or toil, and is usually applied to people who do manual work as opposed to the "white collar" or "professional" people. Laborers are also distinguished from "capital" or "management" classifications.

An interesting synonym for labor is drudgery. As a verb, labor means to move irregularly with little progress. In other words, the world is laboring along, but getting nowhere.

However, back to Labor Day, and the honoring of labor, whether it means everything being at a standstill or moving ahead in spite of the white collar workers!

Labor Day is celebrated on the first Monday in September. It was said this date was chosen in the beginning because it was not too near any other public holidays. Unfortunately, or fortunately, this is not the case.

Peter J. McGuire, an American, proposed that day back in 1882 because it fell midway between American Independence Day and Thanksgiving Day. All good things seem to come to Canada from the U.S.

Oregon was the first state to make Labor Day a legal holiday. The year was 1887. In 1894 Congress made the day a national holiday. In the same year Labor Day became a statutory holiday in Canada.

Unless a firm is bound by a collective labor agreement, or some similar arrangement, there is no obligation on the part of an employer to close his place of business or to pay his employees extra if they work, or to pay them at all if they do not work on Labor Day.

So, you see, some people will be laboring on Labor Day at paying jobs, while other will get paid for doing nothing (which in too many cases happens every day) and still others will be laboring at labors of love, which means work they enjoy doing for nothing, but wouldn't do if they were paid.

Another derivative of the word "labor" is "laboratory." Which sparks the thought that if the West would concentrate more on LABORatory and less on lab-ORATORY we might get ahead of the Russians.

And still another thought: Why don't we give Russia all our scientific secrets? Then they could be 10 years behind, too!

To all laborers, white collar workers, professionals, capital and management, we hope you enjoy the Labor Day weekend, but let's not labor the casualty statistics people by becoming a statistic. Be careful — the life you save may be mine!

POLITICAL FUNDS

To combat the evils now existing we think that it is essential that the public should know where each political party gets its funds. A lot of the present sources would undoubtedly dry up under such circumstances but there would be enough left for essential business to be done. — Agassiz-Harrison (B.C.) Advance.

We who make whisky say:

DRINKING AND DRIVING
DO NOT MIX

Fine whisky is a luxury and should be treated as such. And, knowing when to say "no" plays a great part in the art of sensible living.

Neither whisky nor any other alcoholic beverage has any place at the wheel of an automobile. Drinking and driving do not mix.

This conviction must be shared by every thinking person who drives a car, particularly this Labour Day week-end when many holidaying families will be travelling on Québec highways.

If you expect to be at the wheel of a car this week-end, we say to you: Think before you drink. Don't drink before you drive.
