Last remaining Americans pulled out of besieged Saigon

WASHINGTON (AP) — A helicopter evacuation was ordered by President Ford early Tuesday to bring out the last remaining Americans from besieged Saigon.

Government officials said the evacuation of 800 to 900 Americans began at 3:30 a.m. EDT and was to take about four hours.

Pentagon spokesman Joseph Laitin said no major hitches were reported.

"There was some ground fire, but no damage" to the helicopters or the Americans aboard them as they left the South Vietnamese capital, Laitin said.

In a formal statement, Laitin said the military situation around Saigon "has deteriorated to such an extent" that the evacuation has become necessary to insure the Americans' safety.

About 70 helicopters were deployed to bring evacuees to five aircraft carriers and 40 U.S. Navy ships standing off South Vietnam.

MARINES CALLED IN

Laitin said the first helicopters to reach Saigon carried an undetermined number of armed Marines to protect the evacuation.

The first helicopter, bearing the operation's commander, Brig.-Gen. Richard Carey, drew some fire, but Laitin said "nobody can say whether the helicopter was hit or not."

Fighter planes from the carriers provided air cover during the operation.

The helicopters were used after Communist rockets and artillery closed Saigon's Tan Son Nhut airport to C-130 transport planes. One of the planes had been hit on the ground and destroyed before the evacuation began.

That incident led to the termination of the airlift by U.S. Air Force transport planes. About 40,000 South Vietnamese citizens and 7,000 Americans had been flown out of the country.

The World in focus

To be charged

BONN (Reuters) — Five West German guerrillas captured after last Thursday's siege of the Bonn embassy in Stockholm will be charged next month and tried as soon as possible, the federal prosecutor said Monday.

The five were arrested on charges of murder, attempted murder, blackmailing the state and supporting a criminal organization.

Four of them are in secret West German detention centres and a fifth is in a Swedish hospital with severe burns.

A sixth guerrilla, Ulrich Wessel of Hamburg, died soon after the siege. It has not been established whether he committed suicide or was shot.

When they took over the embassy, the guerrillas demanded the release of 26 anarchists from West German jails. Bonn refused.

Black leader

KINGSTON, Jamaica (AP) — Prime Minister Michael Manley of Jamaica acted Monday to give a Rhodesian black leader a hearing at Commonwealth summit talks this week.

The unprecedented move was announced to reporters on the eve of the conference of 34 heads of Commonwealth governments who Wednesday will debate the charged situation in southern Africa. It came as Bishop Abel Muzorewa, president of the African National Council, headed towards Kingston as guest of the Jamaican government.

Mass for first time

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Protestant clergymen have celebrated Mass for the first time in Vatican City, officials announced Monday.

Thirty American Episcopal ministers and 10 clergymen of the Anglican Church of Canada celebrated Mass on Sunday evening in the Church of San Stefano in the Vatican Gardens behind St. Peter's Basilica, a Vatican spokesman said.

The clergymen were guests of Pope Paul who meant the occasion as a gesture of reconciliation toward Christian unity during this holy year, the spokesman said.

Demands rejected

PARIS (AP) — Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon has again rejected Arab demands for the return of all territory occupied by Israel during the 1967 war, but he did not specify what territory his government will not give up.

Speaking at a banquet given for him by Foreign Minister Jean Sauvagnargues Monday night, Allon said: "In the present geo-strategic situation in the Middle East and in the context of peace, it is possible on the basis of honorable concessions to grant Israel the defensible borders needed for her security while, at the same time, giving the neighboring countries the possibility of achieving the maximum of their national interests."

Whooping cranes

WASHINGTON (AP) — A pair of captive whooping cranes have produced their second egg, the first successful nesting of captive whoopers in nearly two decades, the United States Fish and Wildlife Service announced Monday.

The pair of cranes are part of a flock of 21 whoopers kept at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Station in nearby Maryland in hopes of saving the rare birds from extinction. A winter census showed only 49 whoopers alive in the wild.

The second egg, like the first laid 10 days earlier, was placed in an incubator.

One new twist was added to the second egg. The female whooper was artificially inseminated because of fears the first egg might be infertile, a spokesman said.

The incubation period for a whooping crane egg is 30 days.

Mail delivery may be back to normal

MONTREAL (CP) — A spokesman for the Montreal local of the Letter Carriers Union of Canada (LCUC) said Monday mail delivery in the area was expected to return to normal today following the imposition of a trusteeship on the local by the union's national executive in Ottawa.

The suspension of the local's president, Guy Morrisette, and his four-man executive and the seizure of financial records and minutes of the 2,500-member unit was ordered by national president Roger Decarie.

Mr. Morrisette was in Western Canada seeking support for a movement to reject terms of a tentative agreement for a new contract which would raise wages by $68 a week over a 30-month contract when the suspension was announced.

A member of the Montreal local's strategy committee said selective strikes in three key financial and business sectors of the city would be stopped and all letter carriers and couriers would report for their shifts today.

He said no further action would be taken until Mr. Morrisette returned to Montreal early today to meet with his suspended executive.

Initial reaction over the suspension among some local activists was one of anger.

"The national executive was always happy when the guys were in total ignorance," said union steward Jean-Paul Charest. "In Montreal, the guys woke up and now we will not allow the national executive to play with us like marionettes."

The suspension marks the first time in almost 20 years an LCUC local has been placed under trusteeship. The last incident occurred in Hamilton, Ont., after financial irregularities were discovered there.

HAS TEMPER
Meanwhile, a spokesman for the national executive described Mr. Morrisette as "a capable guy," but added he often "gets these temper tantrums and wants to fight the world."

"We're not going to be put in the same position as the Canadian Union of Postal Workers (CUPW) where the local in Montreal calls the shots," the spokesman said. "Morrisette was telling lies that the cost-of-living clause in the contract was not cumulative. It goes to a maximum of 10 cents every quarter for a possible 60 cents over the contract."

"Our maximum could be $6.74 an hour for a member with three years experience."

In Ottawa, LCUC president Roger Decarie said the Montreal local was "deemed to be in violation of the constitution" when members were asked at a general meeting Friday to vote by show-of-hands on the new contract.

Mr. Decarie said the constitution called for a vote by secret ballot.

An internal "trial" before the national executive will be held during the next six weeks and Mr. Morrisette can argue his case then, the union leader said.

Deadline extended

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec motorists have until May 1 to buy their 1975 licence plates, Transport Minister Raymond Mailloux announced Monday.

Mr. Mailloux said in a press release that no further extensions of the deadline will be made following the two-month extension granted after a fire last December destroyed the factory manufacturing the 1975 licence plates.

Failure to comply with the ruling would lead to fines of $10 to $50 and possible suspension of driving permits, he said.

Goldbloom:

Rural towns should not become folklore areas

MONTREAL (CP) — Victor Goldbloom, Quebec minister of municipal affairs, said Monday the provincial government frowns upon direct links between the federal government and municipalities.

"We strongly oppose, in fact we would resent, direct communication between local government—the municipalities—and the federal government," he told the annual conference of the Municipal Finance Officers Association.

The Quebec government is particularly concerned, he said, that rural municipalities, still losing population to urban centres, should not become simply "rural, tourist, folklore areas."

Earlier, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine told delegates he favors direct intervention by the United States federal government to aid recession-hit state and local authorities in the U.S.

Dr. Goldbloom said the Quebec government is responsible for providing grants to local authorities within the province, although it hoped each municipality would be as "self-sufficient as possible."

He asked the conference, at which more than 150 speakers and panel participants will examine aspects of municipal finance, to help establish guidelines and criteria for provincial aid to municipalities.

The five-day conference, attended by delegates from all over Canada and the United States, ends Thursday.

Bandits killed in shootout

SHAWINIGAN, Que. (CP) — Three would-be bandits were killed in a shootout Monday after more than 30 policemen, acting on a tip, converged on the scene of a bank holdup in this community 90 miles northeast of Montreal.

A police officer wounded in the incident said the bandits did not get any warning from police because they were shooting as they fled the bank.

Police identified the dead as Michel Lajoie, 33, of Shawinigan, Albert Giroux, 22, and Donat Essiembre, 54, both of nearby Trois-Rivières.

A male bank employee taken hostage during the shootout was also slightly wounded.

Police said the three men drove to a local branch of the Bank Canadian National wearing hoods. Two of the bandits burst into the bank and stole about $4,000.

CBC in Quebec

Hits expansion of English media

QUEBEC (CP) — Communications Minister Jean-Paul L'Allier said Monday that the CBC's criteria for expansion in the province "carries grave dangers and seems more like a disguised bilingualism plan."

Mr. L'Allier said the CBC plans to use bilingual persons to justify the installation of English-language television and radio facilities even where they are not justifiable by population standards.

"If this is in fact the case, this would be a political decision aimed at covering the territory of Quebec with English-language stations, even where there is no need for them."

Addressing the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, the minister said the CBC plans to count each bilingual person 1½ times in determining the population of a community.

Since 33 per cent of French-speaking persons are bilingual, this method effectively doubles Quebec's English-speaking population, he said.

Mr. L'Allier said the "abusive use of the bilingualism factor" would result in greater priority being given to projects serving the English-speaking population.

Basing his analysis on "official and unofficial" information, the minister called on the CBC to make public its evaluation criteria.

He said five of 21 English-language television projects and eight of 23 radio projects planned for Quebec "are the result of an obvious expansion policy... in spite of the insufficient number of English-speaking people or even the lack of them in several municipalities involved."

QUOTES FIGURES

The minister also quoted cost figures to show that French-language television projects are expected to cost an average $51,000 each while similar English-language projects will cost $196,000.

Seventy-five per cent of the $7 million earmarked for expansion in Quebec province would go to the English network.

Mr. L'Allier painted a similar picture in radio broadcasting where the average cost of each French-language project is $10,000 compared with $47,000 for each English-language project.

As for television audience, the minister said each French project should reach 4,000 people while each English station should reach 40,000, "of whom 3,000 would be English-speaking."

"It is astonishing to note that a complete radio and television service will be made available to a minority whose number had to be artificially inflated while nothing would be done to make the complete programming of the French network available to the French-speaking population."

Mr. L'Allier said all Quebecers should be able to receive all of the CBC's national and regional French-language programming.

The English-language projects should be suspended until service in French is complete, he said.

Legal action planned in longshoremen strike

MONTREAL (CP) —

Lawyer Phil Cutler said Monday the International Longshoremen's Association (ILA) will contest the constitutionality of back-to-work legislation passed last week by the federal government.

Mr. Cutler said an action will be filed in Quebec Superior Court this week.

Longshoremen defied the legislation by refusing to return to work because of dissatisfaction with a conciliation report.

A spokesman for the Maritime Employers' Association said it had accepted the report and is leaving further action up to the government. The government will take legal action "as soon as we can" against Quebec longshoremen who have not returned to work, Labor Minister John Munro said Monday.

He told Heward Graffey (PC—Brome-Missisquoi) that labor and justice department officials are checking to see whether there was disobedience in complying with the back-to-work legislation signed into law Thursday.

Only two of the 2,200 longshoremen in Montreal, Quebec City and Trois-Rivières returned to work Monday. Mr. Munro said dispatch orders were sent out Sunday night for the longshoremen.

The legislation was based on a conciliation board report that the workers rejected because of dissatisfaction with job-security provisions.

It was to have become effective Friday but officials of the Maritime Employers' Association agreed to wait until Monday to give the longshoremen time to vote on it.

Union officials said last week they would be surprised if the men returned to work.

Besides the longshoremen, the legislation also ordered 320 cargo checkers and repairmen back to work. The longshoremen had been on strike for three weeks and the checkers and repairmen for a week.

Michael Forrestall (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) asked if the government had sought a compliance order. Mr. Graffey also asked if consideration is being given to financial assistance for Quebec livestock and poultry producers whose feed grain supplies have been interrupted by the strike.

Hostage drama hits Israeli consulate

JOHANNESBURG (AP) —

A South African security guard took 21 persons hostage in the Israeli consulate, killed two persons and wounded at least 33, then surrendered early today after 21 hours.

David Protter, 26, a Jew who fought for Israel in the 1973 Arab-Israeli war, said he had a grievance against the Israeli government. He said he wanted to be flown to Israel to talk to Premier Yitzhak Rabin.

First police reports said six terrorists had taken over the fifth-floor consulate Monday. Protter had threatened to kill all the hostages if officials left it be known he was acting alone.

Armed with three revolvers, two submachine guns and some hand grenades, Protter hid inside the consulate before dawn Monday.

He then locked up staff members as they arrived for work, telling each that he was conducting a security exercise.

When his Israeli superior, security officer Giora Raviv, objected, Protter shot and killed him.

ANOTHER MAN KILLED

The other man killed was a South African employee, Edwin Malpo.

Consul-General Arieh Bustan said that when he arrived at 9:50 a.m., Protter asked him to accompany him to the vault for the security exercise.

There he saw a guard lying on the floor, and Protter trained a revolver and light machine gun on the consul, telling him he was a hostage.

Commercial Attache Michael Ram said Protter wired the building with 165 pounds of explosives tied to an electronic detonator.

He added to his hostages by capturing three children of consulate staff who arrived after attending morning movies.

Protter later opened fire on lunchtime crowds in the street below and wounded more than 30 persons. The police took over the floors above and below the consulate.

USED VARIOUS VOICES

Protter negotiated with the police by hand-held radio and used various voices and accents to give the impression he had a number of accomplices.

His demands included a helicopter to fly him, his "accomplices" and his hostages to Jan Smuts airport, an El Al airliner to take them all to Israel, white surgical masks and coats to wear when they left the consulate so the hostages would not be distinguishable, and Sten guns.

In Jerusalem, Rabin and Defence Minister Shimon Peres gave the South African government a free hand in dealing with the situation.

Montreal

'Crash-worthy' ruling may mean trouble for car firms

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A court ruling that Chrysler Corp. is liable for accident damages if its cars aren't "crash-worthy" may spell trouble for auto companies, says Chrysler lawyer Charles Taylor.

He said Thursday's decision by the state appeals court opens the car builders to suits by persons injured in car crashes even though Michigan's no-fault auto accident law precludes most suits by individuals against each other.

The court ruled Chrysler must build "crash-worthy" cars and said a suit charging the car company with negligence may be reopened. "A builder of any car has a duty to so design and build his product as to eliminate unreasonable risk of foreseeable injury to its occupants as a result of a collision," the court said in writing new language for Michigan liability law.

Previously, state law held that car manufacturers must make products "reasonably suited for the purposes intended."

MUST BE CRASH-WORTHY

Now it will be up to juries to decide if the auto-maker built a "crash-worthy" product, not merely a product used in the way it was meant to be used, Taylor said.

"We're going to get cases of Volkswagens hitting trains at crossings and suits claiming the VWs were not crash-proof," Taylor said. The Appeals Court ordered retrial of a $250,000 suit against Chrysler by Ann and Charles Rutherford.

Circuit Court Judge John Kadela dismissed their 1969 suit, stating that under existing Michigan law there was no "implied warranty upon the manufacturer to build a crash-proof car."

However, the Appeals Court said that while there is no duty to build a "crash-proof" auto, there is an obligation to build a "crash-worthy" car.

Mrs. Rutherford suffered leg injuries Dec. 27, 1968 while riding in the backseat of a 1967 Dodge Dart driven by her husband. The car spun on ice and smashed rear-end first into a bridge abutment.

Her legs were struck by the front seat track assembly, which disengaged and slid backwards, the Appeals Court said.

Mrs. Rutherford suffered the only injury in the mishap and the suit claimed the seat track assembly could disengage on low-speed impact because of negligent design and construction by Chrysler.

Because the seat was improperly anchored, it became "a flying missile in the car" at relatively low speeds, claimed Barry Waldman, lawyer for the Rutherfords.

Chrysler has not decided if it will appeal the decision, Taylor said.

Traders expect profits to go up

TORONTO (CP) — The president and chief executive of Traders Group Ltd. said Thursday company profits are expected to increase over the remainder of 1975.

H. E. Dynes told the company's annual meeting that profits during the first quarter of 1975 showed a "satisfactory improvement" over the similar 1974 period.

The company showed a $3.1-million profit in the first quarter or 53 cents a share, compared with $2.6 million or 48 cents a share in the previous quarter.

"Steady profit improvement" for the group is expected in the remainder of the year as the impact of rate increases made last year and earlier this year become apparent, he said.

Mr. Dynes told the meeting that Traders intends to keep receivables outstanding at about the same level as at the end of 1974.

"We do not consider this a year for risk-taking or for excessive growth."

Asked about loan losses and slowdown in loan repayment, Mr. Dynes said losses as a percentage of receivables outstanding at the 1974 year-end were at about the same level as the previous three years.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — Investors found little news to encourage buying on the Toronto stock market Monday, and prices drifted to a mixed close in the slowest trading in a month.

A moderate early advance, a continuation of last Friday's gain, ran out of steam by midsession. Major indicators fluctuated narrowly during afternoon trading, reflecting the trend at New York.

Toronto's industrial index, widely-based indicator of market trend, closed up 24 to 183.68, golds 47 to 377.12 and western oils 43 to 169.71. Base metals lost 1.11 to 71.53.

Six industrial sub-groups gained and 10 declined. Industrial mining and food-processing indexes had the largest gains while steel, real estate and pipeline indexes led the declines.

The session began with some carryover of the buying that had lifted the Dow 8.14 points on Friday. But prices turned back soon after the U.S. government's report that its index of leading economic indicators dropped in March after an upturn in the previous month.

Brokers also noted a tendency among investors, particularly the institutions, to hold back orders until the start of full price competition in the brokerage business Thursday.

Eastman Kodak, which reported a drop in first-quarter earnings over the weekend, opened firm but then tailed off to close at $100 1/2, down 1 1/2.

Brokers traced some activity in the issue to anticipation of possible news of product advances in the copier and instant-photography markets from the company at its annual meeting Tuesday.

Xerox, the dominant copier producer, was down 7/8 at $70 3/4, and Polaroid, which heads the instant-photography field, lost 1 to $29 3/4.

Commonwealth Oil Refining, the day's most active issue, rose 1/2 to $12 1/2. A 68,300-share block traded at $11 1/4.

American Medicorp was the best gainer on the active list, rising 3/4 to $5 1/2 on higher first quarter earnings.

Work Wear, the American Stock Exchange volume leader, fell 1/4 to $5 1/2.

The Amex market value index closed unchanged at 84.18.

In the over-the-counter market, the NASDAQ composite index was down 3/8 to 78.28.

Urges development of Middle East markets

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal marketing consultant is convinced that with a bit of work and know-how, Canadian manufacturers could cultivate bigger markets in the Middle East.

But Tej Thind, a vice-president of Magnum Marketing Inc., suggests Canadian companies should concentrate on one particular area of the Middle East instead of trying to grab small amounts of business from each country.

"With today's volatile political situations there, if you tried to get into markets in more than one area at a time, you're sure to be boycotted by the people who think you might be dealing with the enemy."

Mr. Thind's company, a marketing consultant firm, has concentrated its efforts in Egypt, where it opened an office under the title of Magnum (Middle East) Inc. The company has just completed a transaction for the construction of a $15-million hospital in Cairo. The 400-bed, pre-fabricated hospital, ordered by the Coptic Orthodox Church, will be designed and manufactured by Canadian companies and shipped in pieces to be assembled in Cairo.

WORK ON HOTELS

"We're now working on two major hotels, involving 1,200 rooms in Cairo," Mr. Thind said in an interview.

Mr. Thind also is hoping a forthcoming trip to Cairo will result in orders for 400 homes and possibly more hospitals.

Magnum is also hoping to increase its sales of newsprint to Egypt. During 1974, Mr. Thind said "we shipped 20,000 tons of newsprint all over the world with about 5,000 tons to Egypt." Most of the supplies came from U.S. sources, "where prices are much less than those charged in Canada." Magnum has also been involved in markets in the United Kingdom, Zambia, South American countries and Lagos.

Although the company traditionally has specialized in sales of pulp and paper, "we are now branching out into industrial chemicals and earth-moving equipment."

Mr. Thind agrees with recent statements of Jean-Luc Pepin, former federal trade and commerce minister, which criticized Canadian businessmen for laxity in seeking foreign markets.

Similar criticisms have come from trade officials of various countries, notably those of Canadians to trade with them.

Funeral held for C.E. Ross

On April 7th the death occurred in the Sherbrooke Hospital of Carl Eric Ross, who was born at Hardwood Flat, Bury, on October 11th, 1897, the son of the late James and Hannah Ross.

He came to Sherbrooke at an early age and was employed by Wiggott Electric Company, and in 1921 he established his own electrical business, later known as Ross-Biron Electric Company, which he successfully managed until he retired in 1970.

In 1923 he married Clara Bradshaw, daughter of the late Reverend J. MacIntyre Bradshaw and his wife, Elizabeth Smith.

Mr. Ross was extremely active in church and community affairs, and was at one time a Churchwarden of St. Peter's Church. Until his death he was chairman of the nomination committee, and he was also a member of the Church Society of the Diocese of Quebec.

An ardent Rotarian, he never missed a meeting, taking a full part in the activities of the club and holding various offices.

He was also a long-time member of St. George's Club, and his many community interests included the Sherbrooke Hospital, of which he was a director, and also a director of St. Paul's Rest Home, Bury.

Mr. Ross is predeceased by his brothers, Bill, Alexander, and Gilbert, and his sisters, Amy and Margaret, and he is survived by his brother, Arthur, of Lennoxville.

The funeral service was held on April 10th at St. Peter's Church, Sherbrooke, conducted by the Rev. Canon John Franklin, with the choir under the direction of Mr. Morris Austin. The hymns, "Unto the hills," and "The strife is o'er," and the 23rd Psalm were sung. A large congregation assembled to pay tribute to a much admired friend and fellow-citizen.

Funeral arrangements were made by Webster-Cass Funeral Home, and the burial took place in St. Peter's Cemetery. The Bearers were Messrs Basil Ross, Ross Seymour, Al French, James McVety, Garth Harrison, and Mac Bradshaw.

Music competitions held at Bishop's

During four days the Canadian Music Competitions was held at Bishop's University from April 20th to April 24th. Over 95 young musicians competed and many attained the 80 per cent mark, which entitled them to a second competition requiring 85 per cent, combining both competitions.

Seventeen laureates qualified and they will represent this region in the finals of the Canadian Music Competitions, to be held in Quebec City, from June 20th to June 24th.

These candidates are Chantal Juillet (92.9), violin, Marie Fabi (90.2), Michel Fournier (88.2), Andree Vachon (88), Lorraine Vermette (88), Sylvie Tardif (87.6), Anne Bruneau (87), Trio de Sherbrooke (87), Ensemble de piano Marianne et Isabelle Fontaine (86.7), Dam Georgesco (86.2), Helen Panneton (85.9) organ, Marianne Fontaine (85.5), Marc Delorme (85.5) Annik Sevigny (85.3), flute, Michele Gaudreau (85.1) voice, Julie Dube (85), and Yves Davignon (85).

The adjudicators were Helene Costa from Portugal, Philippe Cart from Switzerland, Catherine Collard and Yves Prin from France.

The president, Mrs. Pauline Laroche, and the members of the local committee are most grateful to Bishop's University, to many subscribers towards scholarships and to everyone who helped in many ways to make this event such a success.

Battle of Atlantic to be commemorated

OTTAWA — The Battle of the Atlantic, the one battle on which everything else hinged in the Second World War, will be commemorated in ceremonies across Canada May 4.

The battle... "was the dominating factor all through the war," Winston Churchill said, and added that the U-boat peril was the only thing "that ever really frightened me."

National observance of the battle is held annually at the Sailor's Memorial, Point Pleasant Park, Halifax.

And across the country, 362 Royal Canadian Sea Cadet, Navy League Cadet and Navy League Wrenette Corps will observe the day with special programs, which also mark the end of Navy League Week in Canada.

In Ottawa, services will be held at the National War Memorial, at 11 a.m. with a parade by HMCS Carleton, the naval reserve unit in the nation's capital. Reviewing the Ottawa ceremony will be Canada's senior serving sailor Vice Admiral Robert H. Falls, the vice-chief of the defence staff.

The Royal Canadian Navy was a meagre force at the outbreak of the Second World War but it quickly grew to be the Allies' third largest fleet, with 400 ships and more than 95,000 men and women. It was surpassed only by Britain and the United States.

This fleet, together with that of the Royal Navy, bore the brunt of the responsibility for conveying ships across the North Atlantic. The RCN escorted 25,869 merchant ships eastward between North America and Britain and returned westward with 16,823 ships in convoy. An estimated 235 million tons of cargo were carried.

The year 1944 was the peak year for convoys and it also marked the year when the RCN sank 16 U-boats. The Battle of the Atlantic began with the first day of war in 1939, and was not resolved until the war ended in 1945.

Orford deer habitat saved

SHERBROOKE — The recent campaign to halt destruction of wildlife habitat in the Mount Orford Park paid off late last week as the provincial government made changes in its plans to enlarge the park.

The news came from the office of Fish and Game Minister Claude Simard, which said government respected its proposed changes which would save the last deer in a small area to be expropriated.

Andre Boucher, press secretary for Mr. Simard, stated the land where the deer have settled which was to be developed had been dropped from the expropriation list and the settling of the area taken in by the habitat would be bothered only slightly by the expropriation procedures.

The plan for the enlargement of the Mount Orford Park began last fall when Orford MNA Georges Vaillancourt and the Ministry of State for Municipal Affairs were approached by the proprietors of Auberge Cheribourg to build chalets in back of the present inn.

Mr. Vaillancourt asked for a study to be done on the limits of the deer habitat where the contractors wanted to build more than 100 chalets. The proprietors envisioned the construction of an immense center being built in the course of the next few years. This construction would, in effect, destroy completely the last natural habitat for the deer in the park and cause certain death.

Many organizations, local regional and provincial, took a stand to prevent the destruction and send letters or telegrams asking the immediate intervention by Mr. Simard to stop the progressing developments while they were still small.

Last Tuesday in Quebec, Mr. Simard asked for an analysis on the impact the development would have on the deer and their environment. An answer came later in the week stating that the construction would have an undesirable influence on the wildlife.

Lightning Lloyd and the Flaming Flamingos

Galt group success as musicians

LENNOXVILLE — When Lightning Lloyd and the Flaming Flamingos, a teacher at AGRHS, decided to organize a rock and roll band the obvious place to start looking for musicians seemed to be the staff lounge.

That search ended with the formation of Lightning Lloyd and the Flaming Flamingos. The group is composed of six high school teachers and one student and has played extensively in the Townships since its first public performance at Galt on December 16.

Peter Kandalaft, one of the vocal members of the group, (no pun intended) accounted for their sudden and wide success when he said that they offer "more than just music, its entertainment."

The audiences that the band attracts with its 50's and 60's rock and roll are a very mixed group, in fact all that they share in common is their love of dancing, and style. Recent performances in Richmond, Sawyerville, Waterville, Magog, North Hatley, Lennoxville etc. have seen everyone from the band's students to Peter's parents in attendance.

Flamingos Are Fun Kristan McKercher only found part of the reason for the Flamingos' popularity when she said "nostalgia is in." After hearing the band on two separate occasions and watching the always crowded dance floor it became clear that the Flamingos are fun. They have been able to tour the hotels in this area because they provide pure entertainment and enjoyment. Who could resist dancing to the likes of the Platters and the Beatles?

The emphasis on entertainment has led the band to equip itself with 50's style outfits and to bring along the "special attraction" that keeps on arriving "direct from Florida", namely Pat Glashan.

The band is not interested in moving on to Montreal or in playing music full time. Terry Zahoruyko, a vocalist, explained the band's feeling towards their new found sideline when he said "we're not quitting our jobs."

The Flamingos will likely remain strictly a local group although outside shows might be considered. Joe McKercher, the bass guitarist, said that the band is "not looking for jobs in Montreal" and his wife Kristan pointed out that a "lot of people follow us around to places" which guarantees at least a partly friendly audience.

Lightning Lloyd and the Flaming Flamingos place a strong emphasis on vocal harmonies, as their lineup suggests. Lloyd Perkins plays lead guitar, Peter Kandalaft, Terry Zahoruyko, vocals, Bruce MacIver, drums, Andre Losier, Trumpet, Joe McKercher, bass, and Kristan McKercher, vocals.

The group's choice of music is at least partly due to their age. Terry pointed out that the 50's and 60's rock and roll is the "music we grew up on." Coincidental perhaps that this music is also ideal for dancing and is thoroughly enjoyed by all age groups.

The Flamingos' future seems to be somewhat up in the air. Joe assured me that they would be around until at least next year but no one was signing any contracts. The rock and roll business seems to be only a temporary sideline to the group's regular teaching duties but a summer of music is planned.

Chances are that on any particular weekend you'll be able to find Lightning Lloyd and the Flaming Flamingos, if not at the local hotel, then at least nearby.

Festival Lennoxville

After only three seasons Festival Lennoxville has become generally recognized as one of the major summer drama events in Canada. It has contributed to the cultural activity of the Eastern Townships and has brought countless visitors to our area.

With each season success has increased. Last year's was considered an overwhelming commercial success.

Planning for this year's season is well underway with the program having been announced and with membership and donation subscriptions now being solicited.

The program this year is varied to appeal to all tastes. At the same time a high professional standard remains a central aim of the festival which presents only Canadian plays.

For the first time this summer a musical will be presented. "Jubalay" through song and music invite the audience to share in a delightful expression of life.

A comedy by Robertson Davies, "Hunting Stuart," promises marvelous entertainment for all, while the third play is a drama rounding out the program. "Jacob's Wake" portrays three generations caught in a violent storm of emotions, the elements and survival.

The festival runs from July 11 to August 30.

Finances for the festival come from three sources: One third from ticket sales, one third from private donations and one third from government subsidies.

Support is deserving for this event which provides top quality entertainment in the Townships living our summer scene and bringing prestige to the area through the high professional standard attained by Festival Lennoxville.

Shattered Contract

British Prime Minister Harold Wilson's "social contract" with the unions has taken a bad beating in recent months. Under it, unions were supposed to show some restraint in their wage demands. Few have, and settlements have been, in the words of Chancellor of the Exchequer Denis Healey, "far in excess of what could be justified." In his budget speech last week the chancellor went on to warn the nation that unless the unions showed some restraint, the consequences would be rising unemployment, cuts in government spending, lower living standards for Britain as a whole, and growing tension throughout society.

These are sombre words, particularly coming from a member of the Labor cabinet whose government draws much of its strength from these self-same unions. But what has been organized labor's response to the warning?

The Scottish Trades Union Congress promised that it would support all unions which seek wage rises outside the social contract. Union leaders in automobile factories said that higher wage claims from their people were inevitable. The general secretary of the railway drivers' union, which has been demanding a pay increase of 30 per cent, said that his union's pay claim will now be even higher because of the budget.

If the unions continue to defy the government — as they show every indication of doing — what alternatives has the government left? According to The Sun, published in London, the rational alternative is a statutory pay and prices policy — and this, the unions say, they will not accept. The only other choice, according to the newspaper, is yet another budget incorporating even more painful monetary stringency, which would hurt the poor and add to the number of people now out of work. And the question arises, if the unions have responded to last week's budget with defiance, what will they not do to an even more stringent one?

Poverty in oil wealthy nation

CARACAS (Reuters) — Poverty is widespread in Venezuela, Latin America's richest republic. Despite its sudden oil wealth, "marginalidad" remains a pressing domestic problem.

Marginalidad is officialdom's euphemism for extreme poverty. It means roughly "living on the edge of society," and officials say it afflicts 40 per cent of Venezuela's 12 million inhabitants.

After one year in office there are signs that the anti-poverty projects of President Carlos Andres Perez are beginning to get under way.

In Venezuela, as in all South American countries, the symptoms of marginalidad are the shanty huts which ring every city, spawning social problems from child crime, drug addiction, alcoholism and malnutrition to lack of sewage, running water and electric power.

An estimated one million people—or 41 per cent of the population of Caracas—live in shanty huts, or "ranchos," and slums in and around the capital.

In some cities up to 79 per cent of the population live in ranchos. In Maracaibo, capital of western Zulia state which produces the bulk of Venezuela's oil, 63 per cent of the inhabitants are shanty-dwellers.

CHILDREN ABANDONED

In addition, Venezuela has an estimated two million youths and children abandoned by their parents—most of them in ranchos and slums.

This is the joint estimate of the Venezuelan Child Council and United Nations Children's Fund—formerly United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund (UNICEF) operating here.

Pedro Castillo, secretary-general of the child council, said child abandonment springs partly from the "machismo" complex of the South American male. "This orients the conduct of many males towards polygamy and the procreation of numerous illegitimate children."

But the wretched conditions in the teeming rancho areas are at the bottom of the problem.

The man chiefly responsible for waging the government's campaign against marginalidad is Carlos Acedo Mendoza, sociologist and one-time advertising executive, who is president of Fundacomun, the state-operated "foundation for the development of the community."

One of Perez's first acts after his inauguration in March, 1974, was to sign a decree marshalling the resources of the state for a "program to put in order the areas occupied by the poor of the nation's cities."

GIVEN CONTROL

It gave Fundacomun overall direction and co-ordination of the anti-poverty activities of six government ministries, seven state institutes and several provincial institutions for community development.

Mendoza said this means that for the first time in Venezuela a practical campaign has been started against marginalidad.

"There is no charity hand-out, no philanthropy. It's a matter of trying to do justice to the rights of every individual in a democratic society."

He expressed concern that extremes of poverty survive in a country where the oil boom has, at least statically, raised the average annual income from $1,250 to $23,000 within a year.

Fundacomun and its related agencies still are at the data-gathering, problem-analysing stage.

The main information-gathering task is in the hands of community development offices established in every municipal district of Venezuela's 20 states and two federal territories.

COMMITTEES SET UP

Twin committees have been set up in different parts of the country to oversee the work, concentrating respectively on the physical problems of poverty—such things as housing and sanitation—and the social problems—crime, child care, drunkenness.

Eventually they will co-ordinate the actual work and make sure plans are carried out on time.

Mendoza said the general plan will be as follows:

"Each social unit will have a centre installed containing the basic services for the community like public order, food supplies, health service, education, sanitation, recreation and sports."

After that, new jobs will be created and new skills learned under the workers' training institute and the state industrial corporation which has earmarked $2.3 million for training rancho dwellers.

When rancho dwellers have to be moved, they will be shifted to small communities where they are considered to have the best chance of integrating, Mendoza said.

"Then we will get the rancho lands expropriated for conversion into parks so that the ranchos do not reappear."

In the past, rancho dwellers have usually returned to rebuild shortly after being moved off their land.

Mendoza's plans include child-care units in each community under visiting social welfare workers. Local women will be given money and food to look after up to five children each.

Letters to the Editor

Celsius it is, now!

To the Editor:

Further to "Celsius" editorial of April 21, I would like to bring another factor into the discussion.

I think I was educated in a conventional manner and I think I've read as many books as eighteen other average people but I never heard the term Celsius until late 1974. The temperature scale we now use was always known to me as Centigrade.

Because I've been the butt of many witticisms whenever I've pointed this out to my circle of friends and relatives, I took the trouble to go through my books of reference and came up with the following (from copyrighted books):

"Although 'Centigrade' is still frequently used, the International Committee on Weights and Measures and the (U.S.) National Bureau of Standards have recommended since 1948 that this scale be called 'Celsius'." (From the 1970 World Almanac published for the Gazette, page 260).

"The two principal temperature scales are Centigrade and Fahrenheit. The former was devised in 1743 by J. P. Christen (1683-1755) but is sometimes referred to as Celsius because of the erroneous belief that it was invented by Anders Celsius (1701-44)." (from Dunlop Illustrated Encyclopedia of Facts, page 420).

The reason for writing this is my desire to point out that there does seem to be a problem of sorts with the name of the scale. The universal acceptance of the strange name has absolutely amazed me. Nevertheless, Celsius it is, now. May we never have to experience the point of equality, -40 degrees!

What To Do When Posties Strike

Course you could just sit around, fume and fret,
That might work — but never has yet.

Use Carrier Pigeons? Have to have a Flight Permit;
Or Pony Express? Roads too hard and riders not fit.

A Dog Team is strong and makes good time,
But the Government slapped on an Embargo.

How about Velocipede, Bicycle, or Wheel Barrow?
Will not be allowed, their wheels are too narrow.

Donkey? Mule? or Shank's Mare?
Wouldn't take much longer and who would care?

The more Postage you pay, the less Service you get;
It's a new deadly game, called Postal Roulette.

Better throw it all out as quick as you can,
And make it a Senior Citizens Horizon Plan!

SHERBROOKE — Sherbrooke's anti-polio vaccination program will not be affected by the U.S. recall of Salk vaccine manufactured by a California firm, Dr. Emile Poisson, director of the city's Health Unit announced this morning.

Dr. Poisson said doctors will continue to administer the anti-polio vaccine "without any fear" in spite of California's post-inoculation outbreak of polio which stood at 12 cases.

The number of treated American children, known to have contracted the disease was placed at 17 today.

"Every vial of anti-polio Salk vaccine has been tested by Federal Laboratories before it left Toronto's Connaught Laboratories," added Dr. Poisson, "and we are carrying on the program Monday without any fear."

He was convinced that California's post-inoculation outbreak of polio was "Just coincidental."

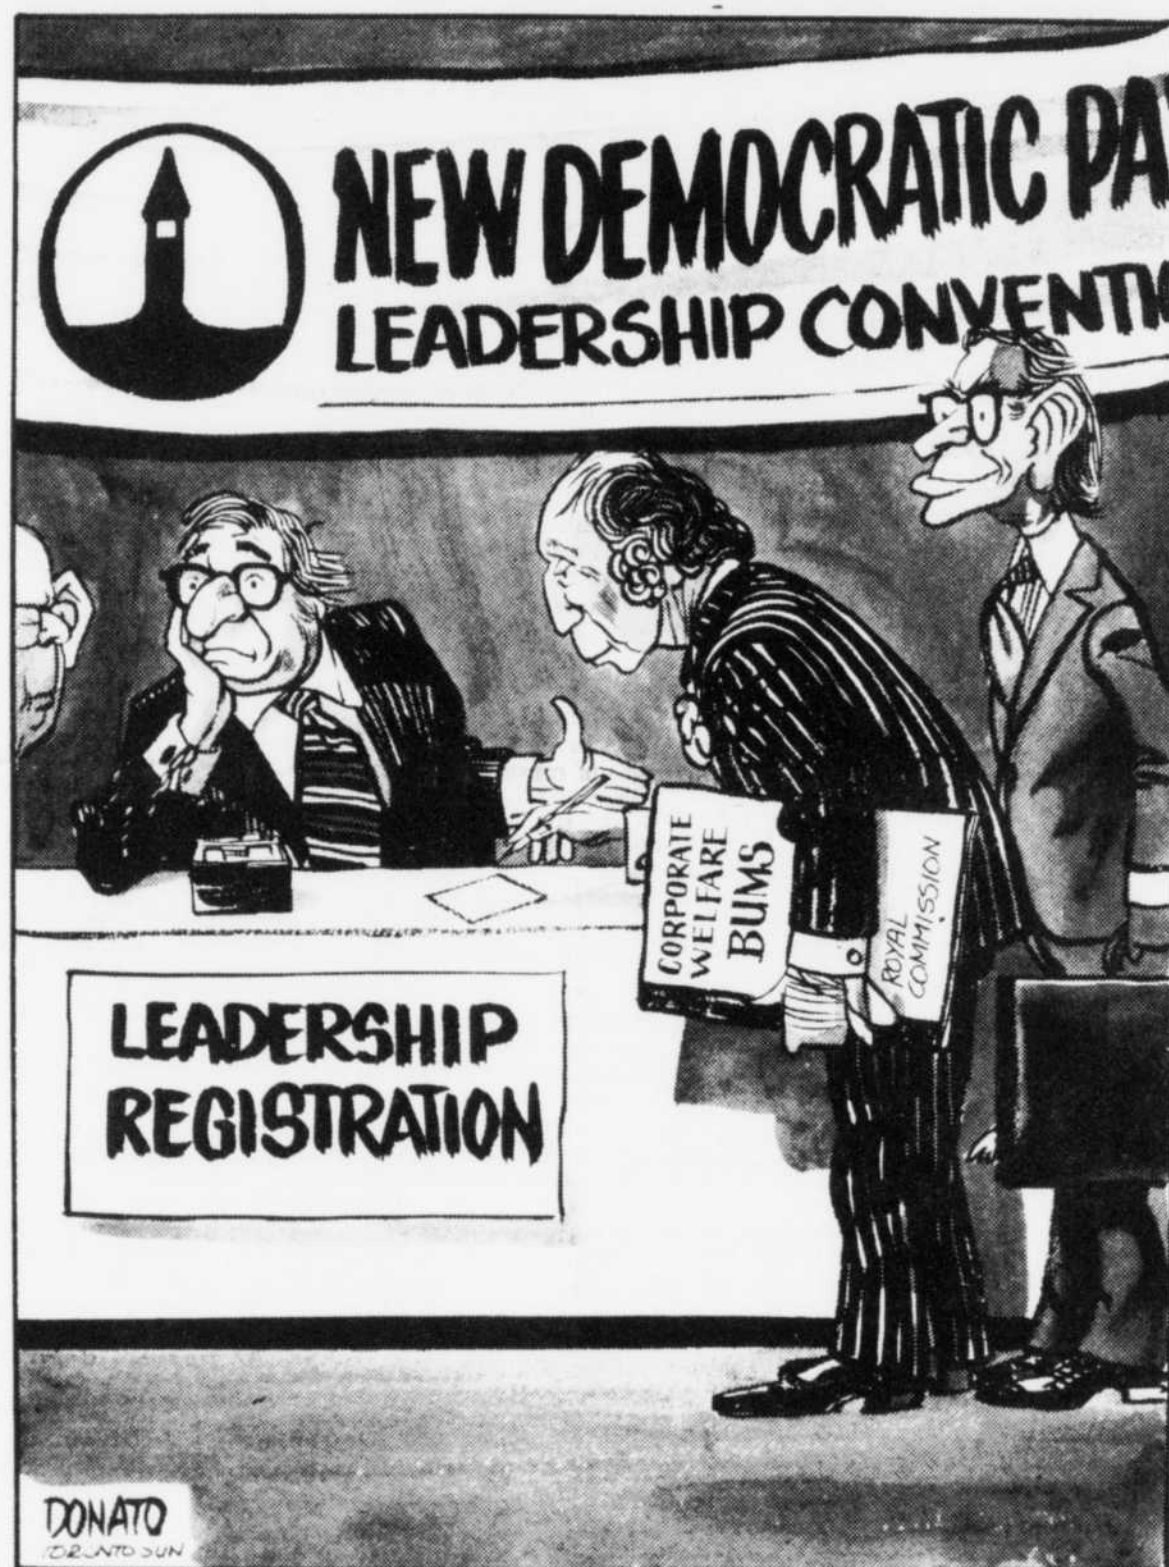

50 YEARS AGO TODAY

SHERBROOKE — The question of a first class baseball team to carry Sherbrooke's colors during the coming season is being put squarely up to the local sportsmen by the officials of the Baseball Club as a result of the decision reached at a general meeting held at the American House last night.

In other words, the club officials decided that activities during the 1925 summer months would be determined by the response from the fans in a campaign to be launched for $3,500. Of this amount, $2,000 is needed to cover the deficit carry over from last year's operations, and $1,500 to start the season in good financial standing. It was also decided in connection with the financial campaign to raffle an automobile.

Committees were appointed last night to carry on the campaign, and it was stated that a financial statement for 1924 would immediately be published.

If it is decided to have a baseball team this season, it is planned to enter the Green Mountain League if this organization operates, and if not to play independent baseball.

The plot to snatch Demetracopoulos

WASHINGTON — The former Greek military dictatorship plotted to kidnap a prominent Greek exile from the streets of Washington and to smuggle him by plane or submarine to Athens.

The plotters were confident, according to secret, coded cables, that they could "rely on the cooperation of the various agencies of the U.S. Government."

The victim, Elias Demetracopoulos, was supposed to be taken to Athens and delivered to the KYP, the Greek equivalent of the CIA. According to the secret records of the Greek junta, the KYP planned to put him through one of its dreaded interrogations, which usually ended in torture.

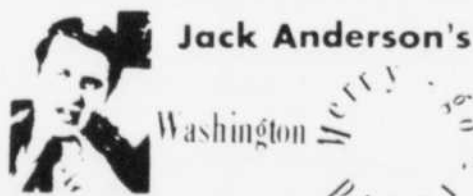

The junta wanted not only to learn the identity of his contacts but to remove him from the Washington scene, where he had worked effectively against the Greek dictatorship. Almost alone, he had countered the pro-junta influence of then-Vice President Spiro Agnew.

This infuriated then-Atty Gen John Mitchell who blew up at a party, according to witnesses, and threatened to have Demetracopoulos deported. But when Mitchell failed to follow through and permitted the exile to remain in Washington, the Greek government in Athens hatched the kidnap plot.

The story is told in cables, stamped "COSMIC Eyes Only." Greece's top security classification. According to the cables, former Greek strongman George Papadopoulos and deputy KYP chief Michael Roufogalis planned the kidnaping.

There was an exchange of hush-hush cables with the Greek military mission in Washington. As laid out in the coded cables, Athens was prepared to dispatch a special team to the United States to carry out the actual kidnaping. The military mission helped plan the next moves.

One scheme called for Demetracopoulos to be driven by car to New York City and to be whisked to Athens aboard an Olympic Airways jetliner. There is no evidence that the airline, which was owned by the late Aristotle Onassis, had any knowledge of the plot.

Under a second proposal, a special Greek military plane was supposed to fly to the United States to pick up the kidnap victim. But no Greek plane can fly that far without refueling and the junta feared the mysterious flight might stir suspicions at fueling stops on the way back.

A third alternative, proposed by the Greek military mission in Washington, would have had the subdued Demetracopoulos hustled to a harbor on the U.S. East Coast and smuggled aboard a waiting Greek submarine. But this plan, too, was deemed too risky.

The most startling revelation is contained in one "COSMIC" cable, which confides "We can rely on the cooperation of the various agencies of the U.S. Government, but estimate the congressional reaction to be fierce."

There is no indication in the file whether any U.S. agency actually approved the kidnaping. However, the KYP was known to work closely with the CIA, which reportedly gave financial support to its Greek counterpart.

The junta's files show that the kidnap idea was dropped in 1972, apparently because of Demetracopoulos' strong friendships in Congress.

Footnote: The Greek embassy, which represents the new democratic government in Washington, has no record of the case, but we have confirmed the details with other official sources. Demetracopoulos was reached in Greece where he has returned for the first time since 1967. He had been told about the kidnap scheme, he said, by Greek officials. Papadopoulos and Roufogalis are imprisoned in Greece and cannot be reached. U.S. security officials swear they know absolutely nothing about the affair.

Congressional Alumni: As each new Congress fades into history, it leaves behind a few former members who don't want to go back to the Pocahontas.

They speak the raucous language of Capitol Hill and are at home in its back rooms.

They have easy access to their former colleagues; they understand the intricacies of political dealing; they share the legislators' distrust of reform.

Their past membership also entitles them to buttonhole legislators directly on the Senate and House floors, unless they have special interest in a specific bill being debated. They are admitted, too, to the exclusive dining areas where the members eat.

One who was cast out of Congress by the voters last November but who is still hanging around Capitol Hill is ex-Rep. Dan Kuykendall, R-Tenn. He is working the backrooms to defeat a proposed land-use bill, which would curb exploitation by real estate developers.

Witnesses quote him as telling other special pleaders who meet with him behind closed doors: "We are creating the will of the people back home."

The dapper ex-congressman insisted to us, however, that he really said: "We are attempting to activate the will of the people back home."

Whether he is creating or activating public opinion, the mail has started to flow from the backrooms to the 10 key, undecided congressmen, whose votes may determine whether the land will be misused.

Kuykendall told us he didn't consider anything wrong with his brand of friendly persuasion: "This is not Watergate tactics," he said. "This is how a democracy works."

Tuna pate loaf

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Pates make elegant tidbits for family and guests to snack on while waiting for some special dish to emerge from the kitchen. With prices still remaining high one can have his pate and pay for it, too. A classic example is a Tuna Pate Loaf which has the added zest of dry mustard and dill weed. There will be some who will enjoy turning this into a very different sandwich. Make ahead and chill thoroughly before serving with thinly sliced French French bread.

TUNA PATE LOAF
2 eggs
1/2 cup milk
2 cups soft bread crumbs (6 slices bread)
1 small onion, quartered
2/3 cup parsley leaves
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon dried dill weed
4 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ounces each) tuna in vegetable oil

In container of electric blender, place eggs, milk and bread crumbs or use rotary beater. Let stand 15 minutes. Add onion, parsley, salt, dry mustard, pepper, dill weed and lemon juice. Cover and process at high speed until smooth. Remove cover and gradually

Ann Landers

Ann a traitor?

Dear Ann Landers: You are a traitor to your sex. Instead of sticking up for us women who really need it, you always support the selfish, inconsiderate husbands who should get a swift kick in the barstool.

Why don't you be honest with your readers and tell it like it is? Some of these jerks we're stuck with are just plain stinkers and they wouldn't come home for Elizabeth Taylor. Sign me — Former Ann Fan in Racine

Dear Former: I agree that some men are stinkers — but who picked them? Since you brought it up, beauty doesn't guarantee faithful homecoming. Elizabeth Taylor is now in the process of considering Number Six.

door than to make the girl feel like a caged animal.

Dear Ann Landers: I work as a Nurse's Aid in a hospital. Today it happened for the umpteenth time so I'm writing to you in the hope you will give my complaint the visibility it deserves.

Where are these people's heads at — the ones who park in spaces reserved for the handicapped? On my way to work this morning I saw this badly crippled woman being pushed in a wheelchair a whole block in a terrible rainstorm. The poor thing was soaking wet and the man who was pushing her chair had an awful time trying to hold an umbrella and manage the chair at the same time.

People who are lucky enough to be able to walk on two legs should be willing to park a block or two away and stay out of spaces reserved for the handicapped. Tell 'em, off, Annie. Thanks in advance. — Mad in Michigan

Dear Mad in Mich.: I'm addressing myself to every person who reads this column: Please try to imagine what life would be like if YOU didn't have the use of your legs. How could you feel if you had to be pushed in a chair in a rainstorm because some able-bodied hog took the parking space reserved for you? I hope you'll remember this letter the next time you see a sign that says "Reserved For the Handicapped."

Full-Size Chevrolet

Now, beautiful Impala Custom Coupe and Caprice Coupe models are even more beautiful.

With these new padded vinyl Landau roofs, Chevrolet full-size creates an exciting new look. (Just like Landau roofs on Chevelle and Monte Carlo.)

And, going even one step further, Impala and Caprice include a complete Landau Styling Package.

Like accent stripes. Deluxe bumpers. Body-coloured wheel covers. And dual body-coloured sports mirrors, with remote control on driver's side.

Put all that together with the standard features you'd expect to get on Chevrolet...like power steering and brakes, automatic transmission, double-panel roof construction and you've got the perfect combination of function and elegance.

Some of the equipment illustrated is optional at extra cost. Seat belts—an idea you can live with.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're quite capable today when it comes to handling your personal resources. However, you won't make the most from a career opportunity.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Selling others on your ideas is not your cup of tea today. You'll have to take your time in spelling out the fine points.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your purse is likely to be a mite thin today after you take care of obligations that have finally caught up with you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't make a hasty decision regarding an important matter. Talk it over first with a friend who's had a similar experience.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) A goal you've set is within reach today, but you'll waste a lot of time before you zero in on it. Get started early!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You could easily be convinced by friends to do something against your better judgment today. Be careful — price tag could be high.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Before making commitments today, consider what's best for your family to insure future harmony.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you listen to advice from outsiders as opposed to that of one you're closely associated with, you'll be led down the garden path.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't let others capitalize on your efforts. If you do, something that should be coming to you will be diverted to the Johnny-come-latelies.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Avoid teaming up today with someone whose interests are not in tune with yours. This person will only delay what you hope to achieve.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're going to have to overcome stiff opposition to get something accomplished on your terms. Be persistent.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be rational and prudent before making loans today. Indiscretion will minimize your chances of recouping your money.

Your Birthday
April 30, 1975

You will make a major change in plans this year that will better serve your self-interests. Also, an unpleasant tie to the past will be severed.

some merit. If he had to lead a spade or diamond, the diamond was correct. There was a 68 per cent chance that the suit would break 3-2. If it did, it wouldn't really matter who had which ace, since three tricks in diamonds would be enough to guarantee success of the three notrump contract.

Oswald: "However, there was no need for any guess at all. Instead of studying diamonds and spades South should have led a club to dummy's ace at trick two and then led a small diamond from dummy."

Jim: "This play would guarantee the contract against any and all bad suit divisions and other bludgeonings of fate."

Oswald: "If you could guess right all the time, you wouldn't have to do anything else well to be a winner. Experts do a lot of successful guessing, but when possible they try to substitute certainty for guesswork."

Jim: "I'm looking at the hand and about to bring up. I suppose South won the first trick with the ten of hearts and led a diamond."

Oswald: "He certainly did but only after a lot of agonizing. When dummy's queen held the trick he relaxed, remarked, 'I sure played the right suit' and went happily about the business of winning game and rubber."

Derby Fish and Game Club holds closing

DERBY LINE (IH) — The annual meeting of the Derby Fish and Game Club was held last week at St. Edward's Parish Hall. Special speakers were Ed Kehee, who represented Governor Salmon of Vermont and member of the State Commission of Fish and Game Club, with Malcolm Franz, North Country District Forester of Burke, Vt.

A roast turkey dinner was served by St. Edward's Altar Society. Around 160 were on hand for the event. Father R. Benoit, Parish Priest, gave the blessing. George Buzzell thanked them on behalf of the gathering.

President Harold Carter presided at the meeting. He thanked all members for attending and then called on Gordon Swett and George Smith for their annual reports. Other guests introduced by Director George Buzzell were Mrs. Kehee, Mrs. Franz, Scott Rowden, State Training Officer and Game Warden, Mrs. Rowden, Norman Moreau, Orleans County Game Warden, Mrs. Moreau, and Richard Tinker, president of Rod and Gun Club, who was named recently to the State Department Board.

Red Gilfillan, chairman of the Range, gave his report noting five clubs shot last season at the Derby range. The Dirty Dozen of New Hampshire and the Ben Heath annual tournaments were held. Profit for the season was $657.89.

Mr. Gilfillan presented the Shooting Achievement Trophy to captain Jim Gillen, whose team consisted of Ed Hardy, Nate Wells, Doug James and Sid Addams. The Ben Heath Trophy went to Stanley Wright. Mr. Gilfillan also spoke about the Richard Von Nieda Trophy given annually by the Orleans Club alternating with the Derby Club. This is for the best sportsman in Orleans County.

Mr. Kehee was called upon to speak. He referred to the bills before the House pertaining to fish and game in these areas. The turkey season opens May 7, some 1600 permits have been issued. There may be another season in the fall.

He mentioned about his recent trip to study steelhead fishing in Lake Michigan. He visited a six million hatchery where 360,000 pounds of fish are raised by 16 workers, all is automation, he said.

Concerning steelheads in Vermont, a program has been started in the Winooski River planted from Lake Michigan and tentative plans are to try them out in Lake Memphremagog.

The department is working on an attractive salmon program with some 1800 in the Connecticut river. At one time this river was full of Atlantic salmon and the department feel it will be possible to bring them back.

"More and more pressure is being put on the department concerning the proposed ban of sale of small gun ammunition," said the Commissioner, and added "you and I are paying these people." He advised hunters to be alert to get more and more involved and to watch your paper for any action about this matter. This move would wipe out the small guns for hunting, such as the 22 and so forth.

Mr. Franz was the next speaker. His topic was State of Vermont forest management. He noted the State owns about half a million acres of land, of which 39,000 is forests and the other 27,000 under Mr. Kehoe's department. He spoke about making fuel wood sales from State land. Some 400 acres of land is deer yards, as for fuel cutting, this is planned a year in advance and notices are sent to the people.

Mr. Franz said the forestry department takes care of trees and State parks, informal recreations, provides parking areas as money permits, horseback riding trails, hiking trails, and so forth. All State land is open for fishing and hunting except in special marked areas. Youth conservation camps are held each year.

Ira Bachelder reported that membership was 159 adults and 12 juniors in the past year. So far this year it looks like there will be an increase.

Bill Gosselin reported on the Junior Fishing Derby in 1974, and Harold Carter on the Senior Citizens derby.

Dates for 1975 derbies will be June 7 for youngsters, under the license age, and June 21 for seniors.

Lionel Fortin, chairman of nominations, presented the following slate: president, Harold Carter; vice-president, Bill Gosselin; secretary, Mrs. Julia Carter and treasurer, George Smith. Directors are Raymond Petelle and Ronald Wright while Andy Gosselin was returned as junior director.

A notice of motion to be voted up at the annual meeting in 1976 was given to change the date of the annual meeting to hold it in June.

Mr. Carter gave a brief review on the Hunter Safety course. Ten youngsters were sponsored to Green Mountain Conservation camp at Derby at a cost of $100.00, paid by the club. A few years ago the so-called Ames property, adjacent to the club, was purchased and the final payment will be made in May.

562-9300 — night 569-2152Nordiques at home tonight, series tied 2-2, home ice makes no difference-Garrett

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Nordiques have little reason to rejoice as they return to their home rink tonight to meet Minnesota Fighting Saints in the fifth game of their World Hockey Association best-of-seven semi-final series.

Home ice has offered small consolation to both teams, but with the series tied 2-2, it appears the Saints may have a slight psychological edge playing here.

Each team has managed one win away from home during the current series.

"It's like going home to play," Minnesota goaltender John Garrett said.

"We play as well in Quebec City as we do in our own rink."

Coach Harry Neale of the Saints also believes that home ice offers little advantage to a team, especially in the playoffs.

"Home ice may give a team a mental lift during the regular season, but during the playoffs it isn't much of a factor," Neale said.

SAINTS WON FOUR

In five meetings here this season, including the current playoffs, the Saints have defeated the Nordiques four times against only one loss. While home ice may not be a factor, league statistics show that the Saints have the best record in the playoffs for power-play goals and killing penalties.

Minnesota has scored nine goals in 24 attempts while enjoying a man advantage, including four power-play goals against Quebec.

On the other hand, the Saints have played short-handed a total of 34 times but have allowed only five goals.

The Nordiques power-play, one of the best in the WHA during the regular season, has managed only one goal against Minnesota's penalty-killing crew.

Following tonight's game the series shifts to St. Paul, Minn., Thursday, with the seventh game, if necessary, back here either Saturday or Sunday.

Killebrew's homer paces
Royals to win over Sox,
Dodgers top Braves 4-3

Wilbur Wood suffered his fifth loss of the season Monday night when Harmon Killebrew knocked a home run over the left field fence to break a tie and propel Kansas City Royals to a 7-5 win over Chicago White Sox in American League baseball action.

The home run, Killebrew's fourth of the season, came off Wood's first pitch in the sixth inning.

In Monday night's other American League games, Detroit Tigers beat Baltimore Orioles 5-3 and New York Yankees defeated Cleveland Indians 6-1.

In the National League, Los Angeles Dodgers topped Atlanta Braves 4-3 and Houston Astros downed San Diego Padres 4-1.

Chicago manager Chuck Tanner said after the game that he is not concerned with the 1-5 record of Wood, his pitching ace.

"I never worry about Wilbur Wood," he said. "He started slow last year. Wilbur will get his wins."

Jack McKeon, manager of the Royals, shows the same confidence in Killebrew.

"Killebrew is making a believer out of a lot of people who thought he was washed up," McKeon said. "What helped Harmon was a good spring training. He gets the big hits. That's the history of the guy. He's got to be the most popular player in Royals' history."

The homer broke a 3-3 deadlock and, in the seventh, Kansas City scored what proved to be the winning run. Fred Patek singled, Amos Otis walked, Terry Forster replaced Wood and walked John Mayberry and Hal McRae tripled to widen the Royals' lead to 7-3. Jorge Orta hit a two-run homer for Chicago in the ninth.

Detroit's Gary Sutherland hit a two-run single off reliever Dave Johnson in a three-run ninth inning to keep the Tigers on top of the East Division.

The single off diving third baseman Brooks Robinson's glove came moments after Mike Cuellar had forced in the tying run by walking Aurelio Rodriguez.

Rudy May, a mid-season acquisition from the California Angels last year, holds the distinction of being New York's ace left-hander. He proved it again with a four-hitter against Cleveland while the Yanks bombed former team-mate Fritz Peterson for four runs in the first inning.

Roy White, Elliott Maddox and Thurman Munson singled for one run, Alex Johnson tripled for two more and Graig Nettles' sacrifice fly finished the outburst.

Lord Killanin gives O.K. to progress at Olympic site after inspection

MONTREAL (CP) — Lord Killanin, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), Monday affixed his personal stamp of approval on progress being made toward the completion of facilities for the 1976 Summer Olympics.

It was decided at an IOC meeting at Lausanne, Switzerland, in February, that because of a seven-week labor dispute and the rising costs which swelled the initial estimated outlay to $653 million from the original $310 million budget figure, that the IOC would carry out periodic inspections.

Lord Killanin's visit was the first of the series of on-the-spot examinations the IOC will conduct between now and opening day July 17, 1976.

The IOC president spent Saturday on a helicopter tour of outlying sites at Joliette, L'Acadie and Bromont—venues for the archery, shooting, and equestrian events. He spent Sunday on foot touring the site of the main stadium, velodrome and Olympic Village, in the city's East end.

Flyers won't intimidate us-Potvin

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Jean Potvin says star centre Bobby Clarke of Philadelphia Flyers would be wise not to attempt any "cheap shots" against New York Islanders tonight.

The Islanders travelled by bus to the Spectrum for the opener of the best-of-seven semi-final National Hockey League playoff series confident they won't be intimidated by the Stanley Cup champions.

"We respect Bobby Clarke very much as a player," Potvin said. "He's a fantastic competitor. He loves to win and he'll do anything to win, and you don't see that in too many hockey players. But I don't think we've taken anything from Bobby this year."

Potvin, the older brother of Denis, recalled that in the second game of the season Clarke took what Potvin felt was a cheap shot at Islander Garry Howatt.

"But Garry turned around and dropped the gloves and went after Clarke. Benches emptied . . . and I think Clarke swallowed a few good licks that night and I'm sure he realizes he's going to be a little more careful about cheap shots."

Potvin believes Clarke is too smart a player to collect penalties in the playoffs that might cost a goal.

That doesn't mean the Flyers won't try to intimidate the Islanders.

"This is usually their style," the Islander defenceman said. "Then they settle down to playing their tight checking style of hockey."

WILL BE CAUTIOUS

Potvin also believes the Flyers will be a bit more cautious in attempting to Islanders.

"We've had a lot of fights with them. They know we're not scared to drop our gloves and they respect us for it."

The Flyers, division champions, drew a bye in the first round of the playoffs, and waited a week before routing Toronto Maple Leafs in four games of their quarter-final.

Then they had to wait for the outcome of the series between Pittsburgh Penguins and the Islanders. That was decided Saturday night when the Islanders won 1-0 and captured the series 4-3.

In the regular season, the Flyers had three wins, two ties and one loss against the Islanders. But the New York club has been coming on strong in the last six weeks. All but four of their players are in the playoffs for the first time.

"We have worked very hard," Potvin said.

But the Flyers, are overwhelming favorites against New York.

Few people gave the Islanders a chance of even making the playoffs which went down to the last two games of the season for them.

The Islanders have no superstars and no 40-goal scorers. Of their six 20-goal scorers, Bobby Nystrom tops the list with 27.

"I think this says a lot," Potvin said. "That's a great indication of a team that plays together. . . . We won't give the series away to anybody—Philadelphia, Montreal or Buffalo."

Meanwhile, Bernie Parent of the Flyers missed Monday's practice with a pinched nerve in his back and there was some doubt that he'll be in condition for tonight's game.

Dr. John Wolf, the team's physician, said that whether he plays or not will depend on Parent.

BUFFALO (CP) — Last year at this time, Buffalo Sabres had started their summer vacation early after finishing in fifth place in the National Hockey League's East Division, missing a playoff spot by 10 points.

The Sabres had a number of unfortunate things happen to them in the 1973-74 season including injuries to top stars and the death of veteran defenceman Tim Horton in a car accident in late February.

But one member of this year's club says that last year's adversity has had a lot to do with this year's success.

"I think last year matured us," said captain Jim Shoenfeld on the eve of tonight's second game of their semi-final series against Montreal Canadiens.

"We learned to respect each other's talents. We have uniformity—20 guys are thinking as one. We all have one thing in mind and that's to win the Stanley Cup."

"When 20 guys are thinking like that it's hard to stop them."

The Sabres won Sunday's opening game of the best-of-seven series, beating Montreal 6-5 on Danny Gare's overtime goal.

Allan Cup to resume
tonight

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Barrie Flyers decided Monday to resume their bitter Eastern Canada Allan Cup hockey final with St. John's Capitals here tonight. New officials will be on the ice and top-level officers of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) in the stands.

Gordon Coates, general manager of the Flyers, said the players had left it up to club officials whether to continue the series, and the officials acceded to requests from the CAHA to continue.

The Flyers lead the best-of-five round two games to one.

The one victory for the Capitals came as the result of the Flyers forfeiting Sunday's game. The Barrie crew refused to continue after a bench-clearing brawl in the first period.

Coates said he met earlier Monday with Mayor Dorothy Wyatt, members of the St. John's city council and police officials.

More police protection was promised for the remainder of the series.

Coates said new game officials are to fly in today, as would at least one top CAHA officer.

breaks early. "I think you'll find both defences will tighten up. I hope so."

The Sabres will have either Roger Crozier or Gary Bromley in goal tonight. Crozier replaced starter Gerry Desjardins in the opening game Sunday after Desjardins hurt his right knee in the first minute on play.

Forward Rick Dudley will also miss tonight's game with a badly bruised left knee and coach Smith said he did not know when the two would return to the lineup.

The Canadiens will dress the same players but coach Scotty Bowman plans some line juggling. Guy Lafleur is set to play on a line with centre Jacques Lemaire and Bob Gainey while Yvan Cournoyer will take Lafleur's right wing spot with centre Pete Mahovich and Steve Shutt.

Tonight's game will be televised on the CBC national network starting at 8 p.m. EDT.

The series shifts to Montreal for the third and fourth games Thursday and Saturday.

The new branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce opened its doors for regular business on Monday morning April 21st at 10:00 a.m. Mr. Gilles Brunet is the manager of this new branch; regular banking hours will be maintained and Fridays the bank hours will be from 10:00 a.m. till 8:00 p.m. An "official opening" and reception was held on Saturday April 19 from 5 to 7 p.m.

Commenting on the opening of the new bank on Monday, there is certainly a need for a 'second bank' in Knowlton, and now the residents are seriously looking forward to the erection of a Quebec Liquor Store Outlet, which is also an urgent need in this town, as there is not a liquor outlet in the entire county. Much business is lost to the town through the necessity of having to journey twenty miles for such purchases, and while out-of-town, of course other business is contracted that would otherwise be carried out in Knowlton. Past appeals to our local Provincial Member do not appear to have had much effect.
