Vineberg, Nutik alone in ward 1 by-election

Allen Nutik and Rhoda Vineberg will be the only two names on the ballot when ward 1 electors go to the polls Feb. 4 to elect a successor to former alderman Ian McPherson.

At the close of nominations Monday at 2 pm, city clerk Peter Patenaude's office reported that three sets of nomination papers had been issued to potential candidates, but that only Mr. Nutik and Mrs. Vineberg had returned to file them.

Gertrude Johnson, who announced her intention to seek election in early December, had no comment on her failure to complete the nomination procedure when contacted Monday.

Each candidate was required to produce a $50 deposit and nomination forms signed by at least 10 electors.

Neither of the two official candidates is a resident of ward 1. Mr. Nutik lives in an apartment in 3 Westmount Square. Mrs. Vineberg lives on Forden crescent.

Mr. Nutik, an unsuccessful mayoral candidate in the general election last year, has been a vocal critic of city policy for more than two years. He declared his intention to run in the by-election in early October after learning of Mr. McPherson's intention to resign.

A graduate of Westmount High School and Sir George Williams University, Mr. Nutik, 40, is a former journalist and now owns and operates Dial Security Systems.

Mrs. Vineberg announced her candidacy in December following a recommendation that it be endorsed by the Westmount Municipal Association. A subsequent meeting of the WMA approved the recommendation.

A teacher by profession, Mrs. Vineberg, 39, describes herself as a professional volunteer. A graduate of West Hill High School and McGill University, Mrs. Vineberg earned a teaching diploma at Macdonald College.

An electoral list with 1,562 names is to be used in the ward 1 by-election.

Polls will be open from 9 am to 6 pm on Monday, Feb. 4, at fire station No. 2 on Victoria avenue at The Boulevard.

Advance polls will be open Sunday and Monday at the same location from 2 to 10 pm for those

Youth spotted by PSO, leaves behind his loot

A youth left behind goods stolen from a break-in at 5 Weredale Park Tuesday last week at 12:50 pm after he was spotted by a public safety officer, police report.

The building, which houses sections of the Ville Marie Social Service Centre, was found broken into at the rear.

The stolen items which were found outside at the front were listed as: Brut after-shave lotion, a digital clock radio and two pens, one gold, one red.

Came across youth

The incident was discovered by Public Security Sergeant Richard McEnroe who came across the youth stooped down facing a basement window at the front of the building about 12:50 am.

The boy, described as wearing dark clothes and aged about 16, was seen to walk toward Atwater avenue on spotting the patrol, leaving behind a plastic bag.

Two other Public Security patrols were called to watch for the youth and an MUC police car at Atwater and St. Catherine was alerted.

Sgt. McEnroe reported checking the area and finding all in order. Police arrived and the public safety officer accompanied them to local police station 23.

While there, they were notified that PSO Robert Stringer had continued to check the area, noticed another dark-clothed person nearby and found a window broken at the rear of the building.

Several plants, which were believed to have been on the window sill, had fallen outside. It was later found that two offices had been broken into, Public Security officials said.

Three accidents here Thursday on snowy roads

Three traffic accidents here last Thursday occurred on snowy streets, police report. No injuries were reported.

Two cars collided on Cedar avenue just west of Mount Pleasant avenue about 8:50 am when one ran into the rear of another.

Another accident took place an hour later on Westmount avenue when a southbound car on Sydenham avenue turned right into a car travelling west.

A hit-and-run accident was witnessed about 10:35 am in front of 4154 St. Catherine street. A blue Monte Carlo apparently hit the left front bumper of a car parked legally at meter number 500.

Robber wields knife

A woman robber made off with about $50 last Thursday afternoon from a variety store on St. Catherine street at Abbott avenue, police report.

The incident took place about 1:30 pm when a woman described as about 30 years old entered the store and produced a knife.

She apparently wore a black scarf about the head and appeared out of place at the time to another person in the store.

She waited until the other person departed, then produced a knife and told the woman shopkeeper to "give me the money," adding, "times are tough". She took the money and left.

Misses stop, hits a vehicle, opens door, strikes another

The driver of a car, who Friday was involved in two accidents here one minute apart, was issued two traffic tickets, one in connection with each mishap, police report.

The first collision occurred about 12:05 pm when the motorist was turning east off Argyle avenue onto Sherbrooke and failed to observe a stop sign.

A minute later, after parking at the north curb on Sherbrooke street, he opened the car door into a passing westbound vehicle, causing up to $250 damage to the second car.

Tickets were issued for both infractions, police said.

The 27-year-old man was a resident of Montreal driving a 1981 Mazda which sustained an estimated $500 damage in the two accidents.

Firemen help in Côte St. Luc

Mutual aid firefighters from Westmount helped at two Côte St. Luc fires Tuesday night, local fire officials report.

While they were overhauling the first fire at 6600 Kildare road following a call at 8:49 pm, a second fire broke out at 6691 Côte St. Luc road.

Lieut. Réal Dessureault and firemen Serge Gagnon, Gary Parardy, Gerald Minto and Walter Schmidt returned to the Westmount station by 11:55 pm.

Bearded robber strikes bank

A bearded bank robber escaped with about $500 Friday morning from the Bank of Montreal branch at 5003 Sherbrooke street, police said.

The robber, who approached one teller about 10:45 am, apparently simulated a weapon. "I want the tens," he reportedly said. He then fled on foot.

The man was described as having a beard and moustache and appeared nervous. He wore a black, three-quarter length coat.

Police check sign location at Melville

The sign has been installed on the north side of Sherbrooke facing Melville across the wide, busy street.

Dir. Dalzell said signs governing intersections generally are placed on the right-hand corner of an intersection where a driver automatically would look for stop signs and others.

In this case, this would be the southeast corner where the stop sign already is situated.

United Church moderator R. Smith marks union of two congregations

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

Members of St. Andrew's - Dominion-Douglas United Church settled into their permanent home Sunday, holding their first service in the recently-renovated Dominion-Douglas church building.

To mark the event, Rt. Rev. Robert F. Smith, moderator of the general council of the United Church of Canada, was guest speaker at the 11 am service.

The visit had special significance for Dr. Smith, whose father, the late Rev. Dr. Douglas Smith, was minister of Dominion-Douglas from 1959 to 1974.

'Vision granted'

"This is a time in one congregation," said Dr. Smith to the congregation, "where a new vision has been granted.

"For something new to be born, something old has to die ... for there to be growth, there has to be pain."

The merger of the two churches, due to the decreased size of each congregation, took effect Jan. 1. Recent services had been held in St. Andrew's while renovations were carried out at Dominion-Douglas.

To celebrate the reopening of the building, Malcolm Loucks, former president of the St. Andrew's congregation, and Dr. Parker Chesney, former vice-chairman of the board of Dominion-Douglas, presented a communion cup and plate to Rev. Alexander Farquhar, minister of St. Andrew's - Dominion-Douglas.

"This day marks our first gathering together as one congregation in this sanctuary, now our permanent house of worship," said Mr. Loucks. "We recognize, with pleasure, the renewed beauty of this place with its recent refurbishing."

We Say

A ho-hum by-election

SO, we are to have a perfectly orderly, neat and tidy by-election Feb. 4 for city council's Ward 1 seat, left vacant by the move of Ald Ian McPherson to British Columbia.

May the best man or woman win.

Either Mrs Vineberg or Mr Nutik could win, in all the circumstances.

These include, foremost, municipal voter apathy, specially in a by-election. Neither THE EXAMINER nor anyone else is going to try to whip up enthusiasm for a mid-winter vote for one alderman with no prime issue at stake, specially on the top of the mountain. Both candidates could serve Westmount well.

Then there are two sets of factors tending to balance the pair in the voter's eye.

Mrs Vineberg is the relatively unknown but has the endorsement of the Westmount Municipal Association.

Mr Nutik is a high-profile figure resulting from his running for the mayoralty in November 1983 and regular participation before and since in city council question-period discussions. He neither sought nor apparently was considered by the WMA selection process.

There you have it. The balancing factor, and no one should discount its importance, is how much the WMA cachet counts even among persons to whom the WMA is little more than a name.

We endorse neither candidate.

This despite the impression of some that last fall, when the seat was opened, Mr Nutik promptly declared himself and we suggested he was worthy of acclamation in the absence of any other person apparently interested.

And despite our more recent criticism of the WMA's selection process, which at no time was critical of Mrs Vineberg's qualifications.

The foregoing said, we are going to express an opinion which may not be popular with some of the existing members of council.

Who our solons may wish to join them may be a matter of personal choice, but it is not theirs to make. It is entirely a matter for the electors of Ward 1.

Expressions of preference by incumbent mayor or aldermen would be, in our view, highly improper. It is their duty to let the people decide who is to represent them, without undue influence.

Councillors should be elected, not selected.

It is up to the candidates now. The one who convinces the most residents of the upper reaches of the city to turn out Feb 4 will be our new eighth alderperson.

You Say

Bad condition of sidewalks raises condemnation

Sir: If Mayor Gallery believes that because the roads were kept open during the recent storm people are willing to put up with his policy he is sadly mistaken.

The motorists may be prepared to put up with it but I suggest that most Westmount pedestrians are cursing him and his administration for their total disregard for the safety let alone comfort of Westmount citizens on foot.

We have lived in Westmount for 45 years and have never before experienced such dangerous walking conditions.

Snowbanks to climb over at street intersections; sidewalks deep in semi-solid slush thrown up by motorists and not plowed; slippery sidewalks where plowing has been done but no sanding to follow.

It has been a horrible experience, specially for the elderly, and a bleak outlook to have to face for the rest of the winter with such a short-sighted policy at city hall.

A spirited defence of WMA accomplishments

Sir: As an individual and a past president of the Westmount Municipal Association, I am trying to understand why your paper is constantly denigrating the efforts of the WMA to involve citizens constructively in their community. There are over 600 members of the WMA and a team of dedicated directors representing all wards and many interests.

You might object to the decision of the WMA to endorse one candidate. However, over the years there has been a solidarity of opinion encouraging the selection of one person per seat which could then be overruled by the members at a public meeting, if that were their wish.

The WMA offers an umbrella for citizens to get involved in this community. It can be a sounding board, a catalyst, a pressure group and a vehicle for bringing citizens together. Rather than picking at its weaknesses, should you not be nurturing its strengths?

Contributions by the WMA in recent years have included the following:

- A planning document printed in full in THE EXAMINER;
- Pressuring for a recreation information pamphlet;
- Requesting climbing equipment for our parks;
- Tax meetings which encouraged citizens to contest their valuations;
- Mobilization of council and citizen opinion to save Police Station 23;
- Ward meetings;
- Sought people to run for municipal office and encouraged others who were hesitant to present themselves at a time when the climate was not too conducive.

I wonder if people remember that it was the WMA that founded the Westmount Historical Association? That pressured council to retain the clay tennis courts? That surveyed citizens to get support for the refurbishing plan for Greene avenue that was adopted? That recommended young girls be integrated into boys' soccer, a year at a time (not supported)? That convened a tenants' rent-rebate information meeting? That wrote a transportation brief with the city? That mobilized and coordinated public opinion on parking and on the overbuilding on special sites (Braemar)?

The WMA is neither an elite nor a clique, nor is it a political party. It has a continuing role to play, a changing role, but an extremely important one. It is an unique vehicle for encouraging participation in the decisions that affect life in Westmount, and the city is the beneficiary of its efforts.

Thank you for this opportunity to express gratitude for what the WMA has done.

Editor's note: We do not denigrate the WMA's past accomplishments, only some of its current performance. Out of over 8,000 Westmount households, it appears to be relevant to only 600 current members; and where were these for the general meeting?

Park School's suspense is over — or is it?

Sir: Now that we have stopped playing our role of Scheherazade in the PSBGM's annual Christmas pantomime of A Thousand and One Meetings, I feel free to make a few remarks about this bizarre exercise in what the board quaintly persists in referring to as "long-term planning."

We at Westmount Park, imagining that the board's five-year "target network" plan made our position secure until at least 1986, were astonished when, in October 1983, questions were raised about the school's viability. The questions were answered with a resounding affirmative, so we were more than astonished — we were outraged — when last September the commissioners voted to put us on a list of schools to be considered for closure.

This seemed particularly capricious of them since such questions as had been raised the previous year had concerned enrolment levels and, in September 1984, there were 25 percent more children in the school than the board's planners had predicted there would be, a year earlier.

When we raised this point, however, we were told that financial considerations, rather than educational viability, were now the issue, and some schools were bound to be sacrificed. The PSBGM had run up a deficit and it was assumed that by closing schools, money might be saved.

This assumption is itself very questionable, since the board's income is allocated by the government on a per-pupil basis, and closing schools invariably results in a substantial loss of pupils, either to other boards or to the private sector: the PSBGM has seemingly never made any attempt to find out why or whither. In any case, when the board itself was threatened with dissolution within the next two years, the time hardly seemed opportune to start haggling over closing schools. After more than a century of service to public education in Montreal, did they really feel that the most poignant epitaph they could have was "They Balanced Their Books"?

The Butler position

Mr. Allan Butler, the chairman of the PSBGM, admitted in a letter to THE EXAMINER (Nov. 22, 1984), that the board had invested many dollars in attempting to ensure its own survival or, as he put it, "... in our fight to preserve our local voice in education." At risk of seeming parochial, we at Westmount Park did not feel last fall that we were deriving much benefit from the preservation of local voices from Montreal North, Roxboro, Dorval and elsewhere in Westmount education.

Indeed, when we came to examine the voting patterns of the 14 commissioners who last September voted on the question of whether or not "a school in the Westmount-Central sector" should be considered for closure, we noted with interest that the seven who were in favor of putting us in jeopardy were precisely those in whose wards no schools were under threat, while the seven who opposed the motion were our own commissioner and the other six whose wards contained threatened schools.

The tie was broken by the casting vote of the chairman, the commissioner for Pierrefonds-Dollard-Roxboro, who thus effectively had two votes. It would be cynical to suggest that the commissioners with threatened schools supported Joan Rothman with a view to improving their chances of winning her support for their own school's survival, or that those without threatened schools felt that, by supporting economies elsewhere, they would strengthen the position of their own more marginal schools; so I will not suggest it. All the same, I believe the odds against such a result occurring completely independently of all such considerations of local interest must be not much less than 200:1?

Mr. Butler in his November letter made the claim, already thoroughly discredited, that recommendations for school closure were only made after "an exhaustive analysis." It took us very little time to establish that in the case of Westmount Park the analysis had been far from exhaustive, and that our per-capita facility operating costs were less than half those attributed to us by the board's planners.

Nevertheless, for the whole of last fall, from Sept. 24 to Jan. 8 when we were finally let off the hook, we were in the embarrassing position of being unable to assure the local community that we would definitely be in existence next September. At least, we felt it was an embarrassing position since we assumed that most parents, like ourselves, were anxious that their children's educational careers should not be interrupted by more shifts of scene, teachers and classmates than the exigencies of mobile modern society already impose.

Mr. Butler, however, does not believe that stability is of the slightest consequence to parents trying to decide where to send their children to school. He said so on CBC's Home Run on Jan. 8, when asked whether he did not feel that the lack of confidence in the stability of the PSBGM's schools was what was driving parents to defect to the private sector.

Government is blamed

It was the chairman's opinion that it was not instability, but the government's continued subsidizing of private schools at the expense of the public sector, which was driving parents to opt for private education. Whatever one's views about the subsidizing of private schools, it is hard to find a shred of evidence to support either of these opinions, at least insofar as Westmount is concerned.

Roslyn School, located within a few blocks of several private schools, is filled to capacity, although it is not a school on which the PSBGM lavishes any extra funding. This fall, besides doubling its kindergarten enrolment, it drew a number of children out of the private sector at all grade levels.

While Westmount Park is not, it transpires, nearly as expensive as was

History repeats

IT IS intriguing how certain themes, tensions, conflicts occur and recur in Canadian history. There are striking similarities between some periods and even between major personalities — separated by so many decades.

The Liberal defeat of 1984, the state of the party, the issues of our time are quite like the Canada of 1911 when Laurier went down to defeat after 15 years as prime minister.

His undoing was the issue of trade reciprocity with the United States. Familiar? While the reciprocity proposal of 1911 was broad, the chief products concerned were agricultural, minerals, fish and forestry, with some lowering of duties of a limited list of manufactured products.

Predictably, New England fishermen, mid-west sheep raisers, grain merchants and lumber interests combined forces to try and block the proposal in Congress. Yet President Taft was successful in having the measure stick handled through Congress in a special session.

In Canada we are told, the initial reaction was astonishment at how successful our negotiations had been, led by Laurier's able minister of finance, W. S. Fielding. Yet, there soon followed the powerful voices of dissent, led first by the manufacturers whose prosperity was founded on Sir John A.'s National Policy. While largely untouched, because this measure was a far cry from "free trade," they castigated it as a harbinger of things to come. They were joined by the railway magnates who understandably wanted to maintain their long and profitable east-west hauls, the major source of future western alienation.

Trading on agenda

As we move into 1985, once again our trading relationship with the United States is on the agenda. Looking at the arguments being advanced by U.S. lumber interests, fishermen, etc. it's apparent that history repeats.

Is the recent spate of editorials in the Globe and Mail much different from what our grandparents and great-grandparents read in the press in 1911?

Ironically, history records that the editor of the Toronto Globe, Dr. J. A. Macdonald, was instrumental in convincing President Taft to push reciprocity. In fact, comments by the current U.S. ambassador reflect the same sentiments found in President Taft's message to Canadians:

> "I am profoundly convinced that these two countries, touching each other for more than three thousand miles, have common interests in trade and require special arrangements in legislation and administration which are not involved in the relations of the United States with countries beyond the seas."

Familiar? I wonder whether there are more Canadians and Americans as "profoundly convinced" of the benefits of freer trade in 1985 as Taft was in 1910?

Soviet encounter

I WENT to the ballet a couple of weeks ago: the Kirov, in Leningrad. It is an extraordinary hall, smaller than the Bolshoi, with marvelous friezes and a splendiferous blue and silver curtain. The circular gallery holds a series of loges, and then there is a large imperial box in the rear as well as two more boxes on either side of the stage. These boxes are reserved for the Soviet Union's new aristocracy, the party elite. Still, one would have the same sense of Old World magnificence as in, say, the Statts-oper in Vienna, were it not for the hammer and sickle emblems over the imperial box, and embroidered on the curtain.

Now, you may well imagine that I felt far from Quebec politics as my wife and I settled into our seats, while the orchestra tuned up. But no such luck.

Familiar face

As I glanced about like the tourist I was, I saw a familiar face — a Russian who looked like someone I knew. "Look, Diane, it's the cultural commissar for Leningrad, Clément Richard," I joked.

My wife looked, and looked again: "Rick, it is Clément."

It was indeed. Not only was it Quebec's minister of cultural affairs, it was his wife, two senior officials and the president of the Société Générale du Cinéma. They were in the Soviet Union for an exhibition of Quebec art at Friendship House in Moscow, as well as to negotiate the loan of a Da Vinci drawing from the Hermitage collection for an exhibition in Montreal in 1986. They also wished to obtain permission to do some filming in the Hermitage and in the Kirov.

I hope Clément's trip was successful, but I'm still kind of sore that I wasn't the only democratically-elected politician in the Kirov Jan. 5.

originally claimed by the board, if per-capita expenditures had really been as high as Mr. Butler presumably believed them to be when he voted last September to have the school considered for closure, then it would probably have been providing the most expensive elementary education in Westmount, public or private, and he must have wondered why it was not bursting at the seams.

Westmount Park has been able to provide its students with facilities comparable with and often better than those offered by most private schools. It has a more attractive building in a pleasanter location, a better library and an average class size of 26 in grades one to six and 14 in kindergarten. It can call upon the services of a body of consultants in all subjects, and any shortcomings in the board's provision of art and music specialists have been compensated for by the school committee's hiring two excellent teachers, so that for a small supplementary fee, our children enjoy programs quite as good as those at schools where fees of several thousand dollars a year are charged.

The only thing Westmount Park has not been able to offer recently is the assurance that it still will be there in five years' time: in a word, stability. Traditionally more cosmopolitan than Roslyn, it was hit much harder by Bill 101, and it is only in the last year or so that primary enrolment has begun to show signs of recovery. This September, our enrolment figures were sufficiently encouraging that we felt we might be justified in adding stability too to the list of our attributes, until the very board that had been spending many dollars in fighting for its own survival stabbed us in the back by putting us on a list of schools possibly to be economised out of existence.

Much energy expended

We at Westmount Park spent a great deal of time and energy last autumn trying to ensure the survival of our school, because we know it is a school worth preserving. We have succeeded in demolishing the myth that it is one of the PSBGM's most expensive schools and that great savings would be made by closing it.

The Board should be grateful to us for discouraging it from making a tragic error, and we hope that it — or whatever body succeeds it — will find some better way of planning for the future than by putting seven potential victims on tenterhooks in September and keeping them there for four months.

The views of the board's chairman notwithstanding, many parents still feel that they cannot buy a better education for their children than that offered at PSBGM schools. But if Mr. Butler speaks for the board and not just himself when he expresses the view that parents and children do not much mind if their school is here today and five miles away tomorrow, then there will be many who will conclude that Bill 3 has come not a moment too soon.

Sir: Congratulations! You have become a partner in a new Canadian record. In this morning's mail I have received the Nov. 15 issue of THE EXAMINER. Today is Jan. 16.

How in the world can Mr. Warren, and his postal staff, explain such dreadful service?

It would be interesting to know if all newspapers receive the same treatment. Much better to pay "junk class" mail rates and ensure prompt delivery.

Cheery orthodontist

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

AWARD-WINNING Dr. David Flam is a leading orthodontist in Canada.

During an interview in his attractive offices on Sherbrooke street opposite Westmount Park, Dr. Flam defined orthodontics as correcting malocclusions — bad bites, crooked teeth, crooked jaws. The latter is his specialty.

Eighty percent of his patients are children aged nine to 16 from numerous Westmount schools. "I love working with children and teenagers," said Dr. Flam. "That's why I enjoy orthodontics so much. I am close to a lot of schools, so kids come with their parents for the first visit and then, because of the location, come on their own.

"One of the most satisfying aspects of an orthodontic practice is to see the remarkable change in children who have had successful orthodontic treatment. They are more outgoing, and their self-esteem improves noticeably.

"Up until five years ago, we used metal bands all the way around the tooth. That method is obsolete. Now we use little brackets and very good adhesive. There is nothing behind the teeth and nothing between the teeth. Dental floss can be used and the teeth are much easier to clean.

Lasts two years

Twenty percent of Dr. Flam's practice is devoted to adults. "More and more adults are seeking orthodontics," Dr. Flam said. "I took the braces from a 59-year-old woman recently and she looks fantastic."

Most of his cases — both children and adults — can be treated by orthodontics alone, but eight or nine percent require surgery in addition to conventional orthodontics to achieve the desired result. "For the past six or seven years I have been working with an oral surgeon," Dr. Flam said. "This has made a big difference in my practice. You can say that new surgical techniques have made all the difference.

"As for protrusion of upper teeth, you can get a nice result with conventional orthodontic braces.

"In cases where there is a great discrepancy between the upper and lower jaw, routine orthodontic treatment alone cannot achieve the desired result. Either the upper jaw or lower jaw or both may have to be repositioned surgically. Using this combination technique, the results are often spectacular.

"These discrepancies can either be horizontal or vertical ones. An example of vertical discrepancy would be someone with a 'long face,' always mouth breathing, who is unable to put the front teeth together. Surgery would be required in this type of case to reposition the upper jaw upwards.

Like Mulroney's

"The most common type of horizontal problem requiring surgery would be a prominent lower jaw, like Brian Mulroney's profile, where surgery would be very effective in setting back the lower jaw."

Dr. Flam insists that the orthodontic appliances are kept on during the surgical procedure.

Some of the more complicated cases, he said, can be quite expensive, but most patients realize that the benefits last a lifetime and don't begrudge the fee. "On the other hand, many patients realize that when the treatment is completed that the fees are quite low, considering the complexity of the work," he said.

Dr. Flam is a handsome, cheery six-footer of 44 with brown eyes and a warm, sunny disposition. The orthodontist who put braces on his teeth when he was a teenager certainly did a good job. His frequent smile exposes a set of the most even teeth imaginable.

He teaches orthodontics in French at the Université de Montréal. Lately he has cut down on his teaching load to devote more time to his 15-year-old practice, but still lectures there occasionally.

Dr. Flam was born at Chandler in the Gaspé, the son of Robert Flam, a retired merchant, and Dell Flam, both of whom were from New Brunswick and are now retired to the Barbados.

Dr. David Flam

He has three brothers and one sister. He was educated at Ashbury College in Ottawa. He got his B.Sc. at McGill University in 1962, his doctor of dental surgery degree there in 1966.

Awarded prizes

He was awarded the College of Dental Surgeons of the Province of Quebec prize for the highest academic standing over the four years of his course and the American Academy of Dental Medicine (Montreal section) prize for the highest standing in dental medicine.

For a year and a half, he was in general practice with Dr. Angelo Androutsos, one of his teachers. He graduated in orthodontics from the Université de Montréal in 1969.

Dr. Flam is a member of the Montreal Dental Club, the Canadian Dental Association, the American Association of Orthodontists and the Canadian Association of Orthodontists. He is a former president of the Quebec Association of Orthodontists. He has been a member of the Westmount Rotary Club for eight years.

Dr. Flam is married to Barbara Rowat, whose father is a retired notary and a former chairman of the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal. They met at McGill. He was the coach of the girls' hockey team and she was on the team. Mrs. Flam has gone back to McGill full-time to take a master of science degree in nursing.

The Flams have two children. David, 14, attends Lower Canada College and is on its hockey team. (His father was on the McGill Redmen hockey team from 1959 to 1966 and also worked on the McGill Daily newspaper.)

Carolyn, 12, attends Miss Edgar's and Miss Cramp's School. She is a competitive swimmer, nationally ranked, at the Pointe Claire Swim Club.

The family lives in Beaconsfield. Dr. Flam, who calls himself a fitness freak, drives his daughter to her swim club early in the morning, runs four miles while she is there, showers, and then drives her to school.

In the Barbados, Carolyn met Beatle Paul McCartney's daughter and the two girls went water skiing together every day.

Dr. Flam's greatest passion is golf, which he plays with a low handicap in provincial amateur tournaments. He is a member of Summerlea Golf Club and the Sandy Lane Golf Club in the Barbados.

The dental and medical professions are high-stress occupations and there are many statistics to show that the suicide rate, the divorce rate and the heart-attack rate are higher than the general population. Dr. Flam is very aware of this and does everything possible to manage his time to keep his stress level as low as possible. That is why he is so keen on golf.

He has been collecting wine for 12 years and has quite a wine cellar at his home.

Everyone raves about his Szechuan cooking in which he has taken courses in Montreal. He prefers it to Cantonese cooking, which he thinks is too bland and sweet. He uses a lot of ginger, spices and garlic.

Information, ideas exchanged at Westmount station meeting

Citizens attending a meeting in Victoria Hall Wednesday last week appeared to agree with officials of Arts Westmount and the Westmount Historical Association that Westmount's only railroad station should be preserved in its present location for community use.

How to save the soon-to-be-disused station and what to do with it once its salvation is arranged were questions left largely unanswered by the meeting.

More than 60 citizens exchanged ideas and information with a panel comprising Ray Affleck, architect and patron of the 1984 Arts Westmount festival, Alderman Peter Trent, commissioner of planning and redevelopment, and Michael Fish, an architect who has been studying Westmount station with a view to preserving it.

Arts Westmount president Edythe Germain proposed that a task force be established to negotiate a transfer of the property from CP to a charitable foundation. The suggestion appeared to meet with approval and Ald. Trent agreed to be a member.

Officials of Canadian Pacific, the company that owns the building, were not present at the meeting.

Company offered

The company has offered the station to the community for a nominal fee on the condition that it be moved to another site. The company also has offered to contribute a sum equal to the cost of demolition of the building toward the cost of moving it.

Mr. Fish, noting that CP "appears more ready to talk about it," said he expects CP "will see their best bet is to give the station to the community," with the land included. "Their attitude now is more positive than negative."

Westmount MNA Richard French said having the station declared a historic site would "put pressure on CP to play ball."

The Quebec cultural affairs department has provided a $4,000 grant for preparation of a dossier on the station. A pamphlet is expected to be ready in early February.

Former mayor Donald MacCallum reminded the meeting that CP's original demand that the building be moved was based on safety concerns: that the station was dangerously close to train traffic.

By JAMES MILLS

Although Ald. Trent thought a high fence would reduce the hazard, Mr. Fish noted that trains are expected to travel at greater speeds past the station after the local commuter stop is moved west to a new Vendôme station.

Most speakers urged that the station not be moved from its present location at the foot of Victoria avenue; some were willing to discuss other suitable locations for the building.

It was suggested that the building might serve as a new clubhouse at the lawn bowling green next to city hall. One speaker, recalling the Shelburne museum in Vermont, thought the station could be placed in Westmount Park for community use.

Mr. Fish estimated the cost of moving the station "across the street" to be $100,000. Later, he said it might cost as much as $200,000 to move it as far as city hall and an additional $50,000 to repair it.

But one man urged those attending the meeting "to work at getting the whole area between the rail yard and the Glen," and most generally agreed with him.

Mr. Affleck commented that the land was "worth preserving."

Mr. Fish suggested that development of the station site might include underground facilities near the station connected to high-rise buildings either in front or at the rear of the station.

Several citizens felt greenspace around the station was important.

Mr. Fish, having noted that development on the south side of the railroad tracks was likely, said: "If you don't admit that development can go on around the station, then you're biting off too much of the pie."

He suggested that a charitable foundation could raise enough money to buy the entire property, then rent out the surrounding land to generate revenue for the operation of a community facility.

John Johnston said he was "suspicious" of mention of a "nice development" around the station, and Mr. Fish agreed with him.

Mr. Affleck said that development could be strictly controlled were the station declared a historic site.

Area 'nebulous'

Ald. Trent, who termed the whole area of lower Victoria "architecturally nebulous," said development around the station would be viewed within the context of a city-wide development plan.

Henry Finkel told the meeting that both the Quebec and Canadian governments would have funds available for projects such as the one contemplated for Westmount station.

"$1 million would not be out of bounds for a group of people who go after it for an art gallery or museum," Mr. Finkel said.

Suggestions raised at the meeting for community use of the building included an art gallery, a permanent home for the WHA, a transportation museum and an annex to Westmount Public Library.

One woman asked that it become a multi-use building with an activity to "draw people." Similar developments elsewhere, incorporating restaurants and other attractions, were mentioned.

Mr. Fish told the meeting that of 1,200 railway buildings in Canada, 150 are the equivalent of Westmount station or better. In his opinion, Westmount station is among the top five in the country.

Another meeting is scheduled April 17, Mrs. Germain told THE EXAMINER this week. A task force, with Ald. Trent, Mr. Fish, Mrs. Germain and a representative of the WHA as members, is expected to meet in the near future to prepare for a meeting with CP officials.

Vendôme to open in spring

Barring further delay in construction, the opening of the new Vendôme commuter train station still is scheduled for this spring.

Officials at the Quebec ministry of transport said this week that the new train station is set to open around the beginning of May. It will link, via an underground tunnel, the commuter service to the West Island with the Vendôme Métro station.

The service currently stops at Westmount station, but this will end with the opening of the new station.

Originally set to open last year, the opening date of the Vendôme platform has been revised at least twice.

SIGNING PAPERS: The by-election in Westmount's ward 1 will be held Feb. 4 and Allen Nutik, right, made his candidacy official Monday when he signed his nomination papers in the office of Peter Patenaude, left, city clerk. Looking on is Jacques Hendlisz, official agent for Mr. Nutik.

Dated damage

A car parked Jan. 11 at the rear of 1303 Greene avenue was reported to have been hit by an unknown vehicle, police said. The hit-and-run was reported five days later. Damage to the 1981 Buick was estimated at more than $500.

Draftsman Hillmann honored

Hans Hillmann, who worked as a draftsman and technician with the City of Westmount for 30 years, recently was honored on his retirement by working colleagues.

Mayor Brian Gallery, who attended the retirement event, said the city was fortunate to have had a man "as qualified and dedicated as you have been."

Mr. Hillmann, 64, has been responsible for drafting construction drawings for roadway and sidewalk reconstruction, as well as layout of the work on site.

He also looked after checking cadastral submissions and updating the city's survey plans.

Mr. Hillmann was responsible for the initial layout of the city's golden book by drafting the headings for each occasion, including the visit of Queen Elizabeth in 1959.

Gertler gives insider's view of UN, disarmament

The Westmount Initiative for Peace (WIP) began its monthly film and lecture series Monday at Victoria Hall with an insider's look at the disarmament efforts of the United Nations.

Westmounter Ann Gertler, who has worked with organizations such as Operation Ploughshares and with the Voice of Women, spent five weeks last fall as a special adviser to the Canadian delegation at the UN.

Following a slide presentation titled "The Last Slide Show," Mrs. Gertler spoke to the 40 people present about Canada's role in disarmament talks at the UN.

Since the General Assembly of the UN meets only from September to December each year, Mrs. Gertler was there during a time of peak activity. During the 1984 session, the assembly passed a total of 64 resolutions on disarmament, 13 of them co-sponsored by Canada.

"Canadian officials tended to see their role as a mediator between the extremely hostile position against the UN that was traditionally taken by the United States and the positions of the middle-sized powers," said Mrs. Gertler, but she added that Canada would seldom confront the Americans on arms issues.

This practice, she explained, followed a Canadian tradition at the UN that discouraged rocking the boat over American arms.

"That guidance basically said

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

that you don't upset the United States," said Mrs. Gertler. "The (Canadian) record was generally what was the safe thing to do.

"Where the U.S. was opposed to something and voted no, Canada would abstain. That sort of quasi-distancing was characteristic of the voting at the UN."

Cautious position

Mrs. Gertler added that this cautious Canadian position last fall also was due to the new government in Ottawa.

"There is very close consultation, in disarmament affairs, between New York (the UN delegation) and Ottawa," said Mrs. Gertler. "It places a lot of centralized power in the Ottawa decision-making process."

The Mulroney government, trying to develop policies that would express its desire for closer ties with the United States, did not want to upset these ties, Mrs. Gertler said. Thus, Canada sided with the Americans against a UN motion calling for a freeze of nuclear weapons production.

Noting that nothing ever happened quickly at the UN, Mrs. Gertler complimented the Canadian officials there. She said that people such as Stephen Lewis, new Canadian ambassador to the UN, and Douglas Roche, Canadian ambassador for disarmament, were making progress at the UN.

She said that those in the peace movement also should realize this.

"They (UN representatives) do need encouragement for what they're doing," said Mrs. Gertler, "and the Canadian peace movement should be doing what it can to supply this.

"There is good historical evidence that people can invent their own future," said Mrs. Gertler. "We have to invent new institutions that can replace the conduct of war in international affairs."

The next meeting of the WIP is planned for Feb. 20, when Father Ernie Schibli will speak on disarmament and development.

John Fry dies at 101, was former stationer

Funeral services were held Friday last week for John Fry, former proprietor of Fry's Stationery on Sherbrooke street near Victoria avenue, who died Jan. 15.

Mr. Fry, who celebrated his 100th birthday May 6, 1983, was a resident of the Town of Mount Royal at the time of his death.

Born in West Derby, England, Mr. Fry lived for some years in London. He had vivid memories of Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee. He was an avid theatregoer and particularly loved musicals.

Shortly after 1900, Mr. Fry followed his parents to Canada and expanded their already-established business into Fry's Stationery.

Older residents may remember buying school supplies there, along with a penny's worth of candy and the Boys Own Paper and Chick's Own magazines from England.

Fry's stationery was sold around 1950. Mr. Fry retired to T.M.R.

John Fry is survived by his wife of more than 50 years, Ruby May Hope. He is fondly remembered by many nieces, nephews and their families.

Woman falls during Bingo

A woman who fell on stairs at Victoria Hall was taken to hospital by a Public Security Unit patrol Monday last week during a regular Bingo evening, officials report.

The victim, a resident of Notre Dame street, initially told the officer about 7:05 pm she had hurt her left arm and left side while going down stairs. She was reported as feeling all right.

Officials said other Bingo players advised her to proceed to the hospital and she was taken to the Reddy Memorial. Her husband remained at the Bingo game.

The stairway in question was described as being dry and clear and not open to the general public.

Victims away when home hit

Nothing was believed stolen from an apartment broken into at 4210 de Maisonneuve boulevard while occupants were away, according to police.

The break-in was discovered Wednesday last week by someone checking the apartment. A bathroom window had been forced open and both front and rear doors were found unlocked.

Squad makes acquaintances

A get-aquainted night will be held Tuesday for the city's volunteer Civil Protection rescue squad, according to Fire Chief William Timmons.

The event will take place at No. 2 fire station for all those involved in resurrecting the new group.

Certificates will be presented that evening to those who successfully completed a four-session course in civil protection communications held in December at No. 1 firehall, the fire chief said.

Jean Beaudette, liaison officer for the Quebec civil protection bureau, is expected to attend Tuesday night's meeting. A film on civil protection will be shown.

Saint-Léon à célébrer le sacrement des malades

Il y a plus de neuf mois qu'il y a eu célébration communautaire du sacrement des malades à l'Église Saint-Léon.

Quelques fois par année, on offre ce signe d'espérance et de soutien à ceux qui sont atteints dans leurs forces, qui sont malades ou vieillissants. On peut recevoir ce sacrement aussi souvent que l'on a besoin de soutien, de réconfort et d'aide de l'Invisible.

À la célébration de la liturgie dominicale, donc à la messe de 17h samedi, tous ceux qui le désirent pourront se présenter au cours de cette célébration pour la réception de ce signe de l'amour de Dieu.

Il y aura pour cette célébration un invité dont le témoignage ne laissera personne insensible, Claude Brunet, président-fondateur du Comité Provincial des Malades, lui-même handicapé et chrétien engagé. Aux sorties des célébrations de cette fin de semaine, ceux qui voudront remettre une offrande pour le Comité Provincial des Malades auront l'opportunité de le faire.

Comité Choluteca

Quelques missionnaires du Honduras seront présents. La responsable du Service missionnaire de la Congrégation de Notre-Dame, soeur Marguerite St-Hilaire, cnd, sera parmi les invités et le Père André Picot, sscc, sera le conférencier invité.

Le Père Picot abordera en cette année nationale de la lutte contre la torture, le problème de ce fléau qu'est la torture au même titre que la famine et la guerre qui sévissent partout dans le monde. Au Honduras, comme dans les autres pays d'Amérique Centrale, la torture est très répandue.

Dans le diocèse de Montréal, à la suite de l'invitation que faisait le Pape Jean-Paul II aux jeunes, commence dans les écoles du quartier et dans les communautés chrétiennes une semaine de sensibilisation sur la vocation chrétienne, particulièrement sur les vocations religieuses et sacerdotales. Le thème: "Avec Jésus, c'est toute une vie . . . à célébrer."

Dans le diocèse de Montréal, en 1984, il y a eu deux ordinations sacerdotales, donc seulement deux prêtres pour remplacer les 25 prêtres qui ont changé d'orientation, retirés ou décédés au cours de l'année.

Il n'y a pas eu de vocation sacerdotale dans la paroisse Saint-Léon depuis 1946 d'après l'église. Cela correspond aussi à la pénurie manifeste dans les autres milieux favorisés du dioceèse.

Cela devrait questionner les chrétiens d'ici sur l'appel qui est fait à choisir de suivre Jésus par amour de ses frères, par amour de Jésus et de la bonne nouvelle à annoncer. La crise des valeurs spirituelles existe aussi dans les autres églises et dans les autres dénominations religieuses.

Le mal des uns ne corrige pas le mal des autres et manifeste la pauvreté de notre société et de notre civilisation contemporaine. On peut toujours aller se balader à travers les galaxies, cela ne donne pas de pain à ceux qui meurent de faim, la paix à ceux qui souffrent des haines et des ambitions politiques dans de nombreux pays et de ceux qui meurent de ne pas être aimés.

Confirmations

Mercredi soir, le 30 janvier, à 19h30, les parents qui veulent présenter leur enfant au sacrement de confirmation, sont convoqués à la salle Saint-Léon (au sous-sol de l'église) pour une rencontre d'information et de réflexion. Cette rencontre est indispensable et les inscriptions y seront confirmées.

Jewish services seeks volunteers

The unit assistant program at Jewish Family Services provides an innovative way of using innate skills and life's experiences in a para-professional manner. Volunteers who are able to commit themselves to one full day or two half-days can have the opportunity of working as a unit assistant.

The unit assistant functions as part of the team within a unit, providing concrete, supportive and administrative services to the client population. This corps of para-professionals is carefully screened. Many volunteers find that being a unit assistant not only provides tremendous personal growth, but also increases their awareness of community needs and resources.

Volunteer training begins the last week of January and runs for a five-week period on Wednesdays from 10 am to noon. There is no charge.

If you are interested in becoming a unit assistant, or involved in another volunteer position, please call the volunteer department of Jewish Family Services of the Baron de Hirsch Institute at 731-3881, local 311.

Park Church honors Burns

Westmount Park Church, at the corner of de Maisonneuve boulevard, and Lansdowne avenue, will honor the memory of Robbie Burns with a special program following the church service on Sunday at 11 am.

This year, the program will take the form of a talent show, with members of the congregation — and guests — providing entertainment with Scottish songs and poems. There also will be a rousing sing-song in which all present will participate. This will be a fun occasion, with the serving of haggis a traditional highlight.

Everyone is welcome, to bring along a box lunch and pay tribute to a beloved Scot — Robbie Burns.

St. Andrew's meeting winds up church affairs

The final annual general meeting of the St. Andrew's United Church congregation, held last Thursday night, wound up the affairs of the church. The official business was duly conducted, but in an informal atmosphere, after dessert and coffee, and among old friends.

Chairing his last meeting as president of the congregation, Malcolm Loucks introduced those who were to present reports after first stating that he would hold his own to the end. "It's so good," he said. "Most of us have been involved in the plan to join with Dominion-Douglas ... willing volunteers who have contributed their time and talents so generously as a labor of love towards amalgamation."

Many of those who were involved in the process of amalgamation, along with others, reported for the last time to the meeting. Alex McLeod, chairman of the trustees, and Ken Thorne, honorary treasurer, outlined the financial position, with Don Sutherland commenting as auditor. Tom Hodgson presented the session statement as clerk, Bill Redmond summarized the official roll and Dorothy Sutherland and Isobel Bremner spoke about the work of the women's groups and the worship committee during the year. In the absence of Jim Girvan, his wife Betty gave his report concerning the extensive repairs and renovations at Dominion-Douglas Church and logistics of the move from the St. Andrew's building.

Mr. Loucks, who devoted many hours to the merger of the two churches, sketched out the main events of that process in his report, giving credit to many of the key players. Aside from those already mentioned, he singled out the former minister at St. Andrew's, Rev. Bob Hussey, organist Margaret de Castro, financial secretary Hilda Falconer, director of Christian education Joyce Schaaf and church officer Earle MacNeill.

Finally, Mr. Loucks thanked "Timmie" Heward, retired church secretary and Barbara Loucks for help at recent meetings.

Before adjournment, Rev. Alexander Farquhar, minister of the united congregation, expressed some personal feelings about his expanded role. Becoming leader of St. Andrew's is a destiny fulfilled, he claimed. It seems that some 30 years ago it was the expressed wish of one of the church's then senior officials.

Murdo Mackay begins series Sunday at United Church

St. Andrew's - Dominion-Douglas United Church welcomes Murdo Mackay, a member of the congregation, who will begin a series of talks on Sunday at 9:30 am. The series will be held the last Sunday of each month until June and will cover a wide range of biblical study.

Mr. Mackay is a scholar, teacher and preacher, who acquired an MA in Celtic literature and later a BD, both from Edinburgh; a teacher's diploma from Glasgow; a B.Ed. from Saskatchewan; and a second MA from McGill University in education administration and Jewish studies.

Widely travelled, Mr. Mackay has attended seminars at Moscow State University and presented papers at Leningrad University, Melbourne University in Australia, and more recently at Harvard University on "The Question of Jewish Representation on the Protestant School System of Greater Montreal," which is the subject of his PhD thesis. Mr. Mackay has done lay preaching since 1961 in Scotland, New Zealand, London, Canada and Norway.

The series should prove to be very interesting and stimulating for everyone.

This Sunday, the congregation also takes pleasure in welcoming Jean Grant back in its midst. Mrs. Grant is the wife of the late Dr. D. M. Grant, who was minister of the St. Andew's congregation for 23 years.

Mrs. Grant is well-known in the community for the many plays and pageants which she produced and directed during her years in Montreal. She is an avid poet who received many invitations from Montreal churches to give dramatic readings. Mrs. Grant is well-remembered by local residences and churches for the many entertaining socials and parties which she held for various groups.

You will have the opportunity to greet Mrs. Grant at the coffee time after the 11 am worship service.

Rowing season opens

When you think about it, this really is the best season for rowing — the surface of the Olympic Rowing Basin couldn't be smoother even if it is somewhat hard. The McGill Rowing Club also thinks winter is a dandy time for rowing so the members have organized the Second Annual Mid-Winter Indoor Regatta but they have dispensed with the water and instead will be using rowing ergometers (that's a fancy name for a machine that simulates rowing). The event will be held Sunday beginning at 9:30 am with finals starting about 2 pm. Teams from rowing clubs in the Montreal area and from Ontario will be competing. Teams row row row their ergometers for a specific distance programmed into the machine and are timed. The machines are lined up beside each other to give the feel of racing against each other. A race featuring members of various Montreal media will be held at 1:30 pm. Organizers suggest that media types consult their doctors before entering this event. As a spectator sport, this event would seem to lack the visual excitement of the real thing but you can use your imagination, sort of the radio version of the sport. It is being held in the Sir Arthur Currie Gym, 475 Pine avenue.

Dancing for the folks

There will be international folkdancing at the Manoir N.D.G., 5319 N.D.G. avenue, Sunday, 7:30 to 10:30 pm. You don't have to know anything about the dances because the first half of the evening is devoted to instruction and then you are turned loose in the second half to strut your stuff. This part of the evening is called the Folkothèque. These evenings will be held the last Sunday of every month and there is a small charge. If you are interested in taking regular folk dancing classes at the Manoir you can call Isabeau Viau-Rosseel at 487-2588.

Music at Golem

A Montreal jazz trio by the name of Centerpiece will be playing Saturday, 8:30 pm, at the Golem Concert Room, 3460 Stanley street. The group comprises Peter Chalmers on guitar, Lynne-Marie Holland on vocals, and David Weigens on just about everything.

If you want to be knocked off your chair by guitar virtuosity then the John Fahey concert Sunday, 7 and 10 pm, at the Golem is the show to see. This will be a guitar-filled evening because also on the bill with John Fahey is a set by a group called "4 Hands in Tempo," composed of the above-mentioned Peter Chalmers and Dave Clarke, reputed to be one of Canada's best flat-pickers.

Concert winds up workshop

Four professional choral directors have been participating in a workshop with Wayne Riddell, the Tudor Singers and the Choir of the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, and they are ending the course with a gala concert Sunday, 4 pm, in the Church of St. Andrew and St. Paul, corner of Sherbrooke street and Redpath avenue. Admission is free.

Janine Lachance will be accompanying them on piano. Tickets are available at the door.

Carnival time at McGill

La Cache presents fashion in summery, private show

By JOAN CAPRÉOL

Despite the Siberian chill, Christopher and April Cornell of La Cache boutique, 1353 Greene avenue, fantasized summer by presenting their collection for it on Monday evening.

Their fashion show of 100 items was for their employees in shops in New York, Toronto, Ottawa, Kingston and Montreal. Staffers modelled the casual, summery, feminine clothes. Carla Gomez 15, the daughter of manager Clara Gomez, stole the limelight.

Prices ranged from $9 for colorful T-shirts to $75 for a "Gatsby" organdy dress with an embroidered square yoke, low waist and box pleats.

April Cornell was commentator, introducing the numbers in her charming way.

There was a strong sailor theme. One attractive nautical outfit was a big-buttoned, cherry red blazer worn over a white cotton pleated skirt; another, a navy blue jacket with white buttons and a white skirt.

Slightly decadent

Garden party dresses originally designed for elegant, slightly decadent debutantes were reminiscent of the '20s. Organdy sun dresses with large pockets here and there were hand-embroidered and worn with African print scarves and wide, mesh-like hats.

Oversized Madras shirts over both skirts and pants were definitely in.

There were indigo-dyed dresses in strong, bright colors and jump-up jerseys for the modern girl who jumps up and takes off.

A long, red sarong-like dress was fetching and apple print designs were appealing.

April advocated tropical shawls, bandanas, mother of pearl bangles and wearing your necklace on your ankle.

There was a lot of pink shown and lengths varied from Bermuda shorts to skirts to the ankle.

Fabrics were from India and Indonesia.

Exhibits about town

"Patterns of Power," an exhibit of native North American clothing, utensils and ornaments, will be at the McCord Museum, 690 Sherbrooke street west, from Saturday until March 10. . . . "Qui Suis-Je" is the title of an exhibit of 62 paintings by Quebec artists at Conseil des Artistes Peintres du Québec, 4060 St. Lawrence boulevard. The gallery is open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday afternoons.

Sculptor on film

The Mystery of Henry Moore*, a film by Harry Rasky, will be shown Sunday, 3 pm, at the Montreal Museum of Fine Arts. Mr. Rasky will be present at the screening.

"How to Negotiate a Reasonable Raise in Rent" will be the topic of a meeting at the Senior Citizens' Forum, 1800 Dorchester boulevard west, Monday, 1:30 pm. . . . # Drugged man disturbs peace

A resident of 4998 de Maisonneuve boulevard was taken to hospital Saturday about 6:19 am when police were called to the apartment building.

The man, who was reported as disturbing the peace, was under the influence of drugs, police said. He apparently had been banging on doors and yelling in the corridors.

He was taken to the Reddy Memorial Hospital by Urgences Santé.

No longer from Westmount, the group still has brass

By JAMES MILLS

What happens when four members of the Westmount Brass leave the quintet and four non-Westmounters take their places?

It's called the Outremont Brass, a group which gave its first performance Thursday night last week at the Alley, a new night-spot on the campus of McGill University.

When the Westmount Brass was formed two years ago, Greg McGillis, the tuba-player, was one of four members who lived in Westmount. As a McGill student from Cornwall, Ont., he boarded with a Westmount family.

The group played concerts at Place des Arts, Christ Church Cathedral, St. Matthias' Church and Pollack Hall, as well as at social functions.

Mr. McGillis recently moved from Westmount and now lives downtown. Of new members in the quintet, none lives in Westmount.

None lives in Outremont, for that matter, but Outremont was chosen to replace Westmount in the group's name three weeks ago.

'French city'

"It's a French city," shrugs James Tinsley, first trumpet, who came to Montreal recently from Boston.

Mr. McGillis credits the trumpet player with having taken charge of the quintet, establishing a group of serious musicians "trying to make the first thing they do the quintet."

Mr. Tinsley, a resident of the Town of Mount Royal, took part in the Montreal Symphony Orchestra's European and Canadian tours. He has performed with the Boston Pops and Boston Symphony orchestras, and also with orchestras in Cleveland and Philadelphia.

"I think there's been a vast improvement in the group with Tinsley," says Mr. McGillis.

Manon Lafrance, second trumpet, lives in Laval. She studied at the Conservatoire de Musique du Québec and plans a solo performance at a baroque festival in New Brunswick later this year.

Trombonist Gordon Simms, originally from Nova Scotia, is a McGill graduate, and Anne-Marie Leenhouts, who plays French horn, grew up in Hudson and lives downtown.

The Outremont Brass, whose repertoire is an eclectic mix of music arranged for brass, next appears Feb. 24 at Rosedale United Church. Other dates are planned March 29, at Erskine and American United Church, and April 4, a return engagement at the Alley.

PANELIST: Psychologist Dr. Fern Cramer-Azima of Westmount is to be among panelists in the first of two sessions, "Challenges and Stresses Facing Superwoman," Feb. 7 at 9:30 am at Cummings House, 5151 Côte St. Catherine road. Part of a lecture series, the sessions are sponsored by the women's federation of Allied Jewish Community Services, organized by Joyce Tanner and Dale Boidman with Ruth Ballon, president. Other panelists include Dr. Deborah Lee Sheppard, a sociologist, and Jacqueline Freedman, a consultant. For information, or to register, call Mrs. Grosz, 735-3541, local 254.

Atwater Library offers lectures

The Mechanics' Institute of Montreal is offering two free lectures to be given by Dr. A. T. Tan, PhD, of Bache Securities Inc., Westmount Square.

The first, entitled "Investment Outlook for 1985: Bull or Bear Market" will be held next Monday at 7:30 pm and the second, entitled "Market Timing and Self-Directed RRSP," will be held the following Monday at the same hour in the auditorium of the Mechanics' Institute of Montreal, 1200 Atwater avenue.

Heon chosen for exhibit

A former instructor at the Visual Arts Centre on Victoria avenue has been selected to take part in an international tapestry exhibition later this year.

Montreal artist Michelle Heon, who taught at the centre some years ago, is one of three Canadian textile artists whose work will be displayed in the 12th Lausanne Tapestry Biennial, to be held in Switzerland this summer.

The theme of the exhibit, which will take place from June to September, will be "Textile as Sculpture." All pieces on display were selected by the International Centre of Ancient and Modern Tapestry.

Ville Marie seeks home for sisters

Ville Marie Social Services is in urgent need of a foster family for two sisters of Hispanic background, aged three and a half and nine years.

Both girls are described as bright, affectionate and lovable, children who respond very well to adults' attention, which they need in large doses.

"As the youngest child in the children's shelter, Theresa takes advantage of all the attention that comes her way. She is also good at entertaining herself, although she needs a little persuasion to do so. She is quick to learn. Right now, she's concentrating on developing her self-care skills," according to the agency.

Susan, her older sister, "is an equally well-adjusted, friendly child. Although she is shy, she has many friends and eagerly participates in community recreational activities.

"When she is unhappy, usually because of her family's problems, Susan tends to become sullen and irritable. She prefers to avoid talking about unpleasant things. Therefore, her foster parents will need to spend time drawing her out, helping her to identify what she is feeling and why."

Ville Marie notes that regular contacts with the girls' own family will be maintained. For more information, call "Homes for Children," 989-1781.

Centraide chairman Susan Khan wraps up successful campaign

By JAMES MILLS

Westmount Centraide chairman Susan Khan closed the file on the 1984 edition of the annual fund-raising campaign last week, but only for a little while.

Mrs. Khan plans to be back at work in May, preparing for the opening of the 1985 campaign in October. She has accepted a second term as chairman.

Approximately 250 volunteers in Westmount managed to raise roughly $238,000 in the 1984 campaign — topping the $235,000 target by a comfortable margin.

After tallying the results of the year's effort, Mrs. Khan reports that more than 2,250 individuals in Westmount made donations to Centraide.

As part of the successful island-wide campaign, which raised more than $16 million dollars this year, Westmount's contribution will be distributed to more than 170 agencies in the Montreal area.

The Westmount YMCA, the Unity Boys' and Girls' Club and the Westmount Senior Citizens' Centre are among the organizations in Westmount receiving funds from Centraide.

Susan Khan

Met in May

Mrs. Khan's campaign team met first in May, when chairmen for seven different Westmount districts and numerous special committees were named.

Organization continued through the summer, as area chairmen lined up their canvassers and as letter-writers began preparing letters for special donors.

In September, Centraide shifts into high gear. "It's amazing how quickly things get going," Mrs. Khan says.

"There's usually a good chunk of money at the beginning of September."

By the time the official Centraide campaign opened Oct. 1, organizers already had begun holding their twice-weekly accounting sessions.

Between Oct. 1 and 31, canvassers make door-to-door rounds in assigned areas. Each canvasser is expected to visit approximately 10 homes; as many as 80 canvassers work in each of the seven districts in the city.

Area added

This year, the part of Montreal between Côte des Neiges road and the Westmount border was added to the Westmount canvass area. The task of organizing the area's first canvass fell to Sheila McCall, Mrs. Khan's predecessor as chairman.

In areas where a canvass is impractical or impossible, as in the case of certain apartment buildings, Centraide workers will prepare a mail drop.

Westmount is one of a few communities to have continued its door-to-door campaign, and "we're up there with the best of them" in terms of returns, according to Mrs. Khan.

Using the Westmount example, Outremont revived the door-to-door effort with remarkable results, according to Mrs. Khan.

A schools committee and a small business group both step up operations during the official campaign. Mrs. Khan notes schools are great supporters of Centraide and that Westmount businessmen are very generous in the main.

Mrs. Khan enjoyed good co-operation from the City of Westmount during the 1984 effort. Centraide flags, complete with the city's official crest were flown from lamp standards around town.

The official campaign closed Oct. 31, but Centraide workers continued the campaign until last week, when the objective was attained. Last year, work continued until the end of January.

"We seemed to be further behind, and then we took off," Mrs. Khan says.

Reflecting on the campaign, Mrs. Khan urges Westmounters to give at home, not only at the office in the 1985 campaign. "It's a community effort," she says.

Hit and run happens twice

Two hit-and-run traffic accidents were reported to police here Tuesday last week.

One took place about 12 noon on Aberdeen avenue when a parked car was hit on the left front bumper and fender. A witness left a note on the windshield.

Another driver reportedly failed to remain at the scene of an accident that day following a parking incident in front of 4016 St. Catherine street. The licence plate number of his car was recorded after he stopped to get a coffee at McDonald's, police said.

Bag returned

A beige plastic purse found Sunday on Church Hill since has been returned to its owner, police report.

Robbers greet woman with screwdriver

A Westmount woman was threatened with a screwdriver when she walked into her home on Prospect street Monday last week to find two burglars inside, police report.

The woman was not injured and the suspects made a hasty exit.

Police said the woman returned home about 12:10 pm, heard noises and came face-to-face with two persons described as white men about 20 years old.

One pointed a screwdriver at her, but no words were spoken.

They then ran out the front door taking money, a TV set and a radio. The incident was classified as armed robbery since a threat of violence was involved.

Holton home loses silver

Silverware and jewelry were taken from a house broken into on Holton avenue overnight Friday-Saturday, according to police.

Entry was gained by breaking the door frame and lock, probably using a large screwdriver, police said. Total amount of the stolen items was reported at more than $500. Damage was estimated at $75.

Dorchester hit

Two cars collided Tuesday opposite 4064 Dorchester boulevard about 3:30 pm when one was heading west and the other was parked, police said.

City approves Dodge purchase

Westmount city council voted recently to award Dollard-Newman Plymouth Chrysler the contract to supply the city with one 1985 Dodge Voyageur wagon.

The new vehicle will cost the city $10,891, after the trade-in of one of the city's current vehicles.

Other bids tendered for the contract were from Automobiles Plymouth Chrysler Ltée, for $11,915 after trade-in, and from Touchette Automobile Ltée, for $12,702.85 after trade-in.

Sidewalk plow thought culprit

Damage to a retaining wall on private property on Thornhill avenue appeared to be done by a Bombardier sidewalk plow, Public Security Unit officials report.

Safety officers were called to the home Jan. 13 and shown the damage to the wall located close to the sidewalk. The complainant was advised to call city hall.

Window entry

Jewelry and sound equipment were stolen from a house in the 300 block on Grosvenor avenue last Thursday, police report. Entry was gained sometime between 3 and 7:30 pm by breaking a rear window.

Cars collide

Two cars sustained damage estimated at up to $500 Monday last week when they collided in front of 4040 St. Catherine street. Police said the impact occurred when one car was heading east and the other was backing up.

Alarm sounds

A public safety officer heard an alarm ringing at a house on Westmount avenue while patrolling in King George Park Jan. 13 about 3:30 am. MUC police were contacted and all was found in order, officials said.

Truck crunch

A truck backed up into a car outside 4100 St. Catherine street Wednesday morning last week, police report. Damage to the car was under $250 and there were no damages to the truck. The accident took place about 11:35 am.

Dog droppings in park rile WPS parent group

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

Parents on the school committee of Westmount Park School are appealing to the city to do something about dog droppings in Westmount Park.

In a recent letter to the commissioner of services, Ald. John Shingler, Barbara Trigger, chairman of the WPS committee, complained of the matter. She stated that the poor policing of dogs in the park was posing a health threat to students at WPS who use the southern field of the park as a playground.

"It is high time an end was put to this disgusting state of affairs," the letter stated. "As we are sure you are aware, the problem is not just one of esthetics, nor even of elementary hygiene.

"Far more serious is the long-term medical threat posed by dog excrement, the parasites in which may lie dormant in the soil for years after the visible droppings have disappeared."

In the letter, Mrs. Trigger suggested that Westmount not only should develop stiffer laws regarding dogs, but should be more vigilant in the enforcement of dog by-laws.

The Westmount Dog Owners' Association currently is developing new guidelines regarding dogs in the city. City council is expected to consider some of these later this year.

Students anxious for decision on WHS changes

By ROB SOUTHCOTT

Parents at Westmount High School aren't the only ones upset that the school could switch to French-language instruction next year.

The students also have something to say about the matter.

Since first hearing about a proposal by the Protestant School Board of Greater Montreal that could send many of them to other English high schools, students at WHS have refrained from making much noise about the threat to their school.

Among student ranks, though, the issue has been discussed.

"There's been lots of talk about it," says grade 9 student Christina Flavell, remarking that only a minority of students have ignored the possibility of the change.

"Some people say they aren't worried about it," says Miss Flavell, "but maybe that's just because they don't want to face that it might happen."

The most obvious problem faced by many at WHS is where to go if the school does switch to French instruction. West Hill High School on Somerled avenue in N.D.G. is the closest PSBGM secondary school, although some students might attempt to enter Royal West Academy in Montreal West or Argyle Academy in Verdun.

Grade 11 student John Tsang says that because WHS draws from such a large territory, transportation already is a problem for many students.

"If they close the school, many would have to go even farther than they are now," he says, adding that schools like West Hill are not accessible by Métro, as is WHS.

Transportation may pose logistical problems for the students, but the move could create even greater social problems.

"Next year will be my grad year," says Gunnar Hillgartner, a grade 10 student. "A lot of us have worked hard on things in the school and you get to know people. With the move, it would be like starting from scratch all over again."

"I have so many friends here that I would never see outside of school," says Miss Flavell. She says exposure to those from various ethnic and social backgrounds gives something special to students at WHS.

"Whatever prejudices you brought into this school," she says. "You don't leave with them."

It is ironic that the chance of the school switching to French has worried students like Linda Benjamin, a grade 9 student taking the French immersion program at WHS.

"I came here for French immersion," says Miss Benjamin, a resident of the Côte des Neiges area. "I ask my friends at West Hill how much French they learn and they don't know as much as we do."

UNCERTAIN FUTURE: Westmount High School students will find out next week if their school will switch to French instruction next year. From left, Gunnar Hillgartner, Christina Flavell, John Tsang, Caroline Ducros and Linda Benjamin, are among those students who don't want to see the school change.

Grade 10 student Caroline Ducros agrees.

"I went to a French elementary school and the French instruction here is very good," she says. "I've always found that I've been well-prepared for the exams."

Although WHS students have kept calm about the matter so far, that could change if the board decides next week to change their school to French.

"A lot of students want to protest, but the administration here wants to make a factual fight, not an emotional one," says Mr. Tsang.

"If we get chosen though, it may have to get emotional."

Violent yelling

"The newspapers sometimes want to see some violent yelling," says Mr. Hillgartner, referring to the extensive press coverage of an emotional PSBGM meeting, held recently at West Hill.

"Hopefully, the board will look at the whole thing factually and not at who screams the loudest."

On top of all of their arguments for the retention of an English Westmount High, students say they just want to hang onto the school because they feel at home in it.

"My brother graduated from Westmount High," says Miss Flavell, "and I'd like to as well."

Mr. Hillgartner adds if he has to leave the school before graduating, it will leave a sad memory.

"It would be pretty upsetting to look at your old school yearbook when there's no school left."

Skate-a-thon proceeds help two hospitals

Already, MNA Richard French is planning to repeat his 100 rounds, as he has done for four years. The MUC Police, the Westmount Fire Department and the Public Security Unit all are expected to have skaters. Members of the city council also have been invited.

Many Westmount merchants and friends of Scouting have donated prizes which will be awarded to the skaters. Two pairs of Micron skates will be presented after the skate-a-thon to skaters who collect more than $30.

Parents, sisters and friends are able to participate by obtaining a pledge form from a Scouting group and getting at least five pledges before the skate-a-thon. The Dominion-Douglas Church group will defend the Royal Trust Trophy, awarded to the group with the best parental participation.

Money raised goes partly to the telethon for research into diseases at the Montreal Children's Hospital and Hôpital Ste. Justine, and to support Scouting activity in Westmount. Last year over $10,000 was raised by about 200 skaters.

The sessions, which will take place Tuesdays at 4 pm for at least six weeks, are designed both to help students define their job interests and to help them prepare for their job search.

Some of the topics covered will include writing resumés, how to fill out job applications and going to interviews. There also will be sessions on assertiveness training for employment, dealing with conflicts on the job and how to start a small business.

The course will be open to students in grades 10 and 11. More information is available from the job co-op at 931-9219 or the Y office at 931-8046.

Rangers lead bantam league, one point more than Bruins

By KIPPY WIEGAND

The Westmount municipal bantam house league had a very interesting set of games last week.

The bantam league teams went into their Tuesday afternoon games with a four-point spread between the four teams. The Leafs were pitted against the Flames in the first game, which showed outstanding efforts by both teams as they drew a three-all tie.

This allowed the Bruins their chance to move up in the tight battle for first place. They responded well by upsetting the first-place Rangers in a 5-0 win, crediting Dmitri Burns with the Bruins shutout.

These two games then led the four teams into Thursday's games with only a two-point difference between the first- and last-place teams.

On Thursday, the Rangers managed to defend their leading spot in the standings, as they defeated the Leafs 3-2. The first goal of the game came in the first period as the Leafs' Russell Blumer found the opening using his low wrist shot.

The Rangers couldn't mark the spot until Andrew Rodriguez tipped in a beautiful deflection off a pass to the front of the net in the second period.

Short-handed goal

The next Ranger goal was a short-handed one that saw Theodore Teryazos sail the puck into the net thanks to a pass from Jared MacSween after a short scramble in front of the Leafs' net.

In the third period, Stefan Capombassis of the Leafs made an excellent play, digging the puck out from behind the net and centring it to Russell Blumer who slipped it into the far corner.

Then, with only three minutes left in the game, Theodore Teryazos capped off a good passing play with a nice, accurate shot low into the corner on the stick side of the goaltender, the assist going to Rod Lloyd, giving the Rangers the winning goal. But it still was an exciting finish as the Leafs tried to capitalize on a last-minute power play to no avail, leaving the Rangers with a 3-2 win.

The other bantam game had the Bruins capturing their second triumph of the week, this time beating the Flames.

At the end of an exciting week, the Rangers lead the league by a one-point margin over the Bruins, and three and four points over the Leafs and Flames, respectively.

Royal manager at Rotary explains banking system

Westmount Rotarians had an example of how money talks Wednesday last week when Rotarian Freeman Henry spoke on the Canadian banking system at the club's regular weekly luncheon at Victoria Hall.

Mr. Henry, manager of the Royal Bank at Westmount Square, came equipped for his classification talk with an array of figures to show the size and growth of the Canadian banking system.

He noted that his employer, the Royal Bank, originated in 1869 with assets of $729,000. The bank's assets today are worth approximately $88 billion.

"I guess you could see the growth," remarked Mr. Henry.

Most Canadian banks today, he explained, divide accounts into four categories similar to those used by the Royal Bank.

World corporate banking accounts are for large multinational companies, such as Imasco or Alcan, that require a credit line of more than $25 million.

Freeman Henry

Operate in Canada

National accounts, such as those of Domtar or Steinberg's, are for companies that maintain the same minimum credit line but operate mainly in Canada.

Commercial accounts, for smaller companies requiring credit facilities above $500,000, tend to be more local in nature, although they may involve several branches in an area such as Montreal.

Retail sector accounts, said Mr. Henry, include regular bank accounts and loans held by most individuals or small businesses.

Those people who have to wait in line to reach these accounts, said Mr. Henry, may find their service improved through a new style of banking, termed the "Clustered Branch Concept." It involves centralizing many administrative functions of banks so that individual branches can have more staff ready to serve customers.

"As soon as the branch opens (for employees), the staff there could be available to help clients," said Mr. Henry, noting this would allow for greater flexibility of bank hours.

The increased use of automation and credit cards, said Mr. Henry, was causing many changes in traditional banking. He noted that an average banking machine carried out about 10,000 transactions per month.

Mr. Henry also pointed out the extensive use of credit cards, noting that there were about 14.6 million card holders in Canada, with an average outstanding balance of between $500 and $700.

"There's one thing though," said Mr. Henry. "If you buy it, you always have to pay for it."

Mr. Henry was introduced by Peter Gray-Donald and thanked by club president Douglas Whiting.

The club welcomed one visiting Rotarian from Montreal-Lakeshore. Former Rotarian Michael Wheeler, visiting from England, also was welcomed.

Charlotte Pond:

City's first woman postman finds job a 'course in life'

By LAUREEN SWEENEY

She's a small, perky university graduate from Halifax who three months ago became Westmount's first regular woman letter carrier.

"I love my job," says Charlotte Pond, a 29-year-old with long, blond hair and a fascination for people.

She joined the post office seven years ago in her native Halifax as a mail sorter when no other work was available in her fields of biology and sociology.

Now she is one of a dozen or so women letter carriers on the Island of Montreal, according to a Canada Post official.

Charlotte delivers mail to doors along St. Catherine street, Melville, Park Place, Blenheim, Irvine, Lewis and Academy road.

Charlotte Pond

"I was born with a gift of the gab," she explains.

Likes chit-chat

"I like to chit-chat with everyone along my walk. It's amazing what you can learn from people," she adds. "I've seen my fair share. I guess you could call it a course in life."

Some letter carriers "rush rush" all day to get home, she says. "I don't mind if I'm later."

She hopes one day to write her master's degree in sociology. For now, she's earning a good $12-an-hour and volunteers for overtime.

Charlotte stands only five-foot-two but as she speaks, she hoists a bulging mail bag over her shoulder and sets out to walk her route, heading east from the Westmount railway station.

It was Monday, with a chill factor of minus 40 degrees, and it was a heavy mail day.

Although she usually starts her walk about 9 am, it was already 1 pm and she was only setting out.

Up since 3:30

She'd been up since 3:30 am to begin her day at the Westmount Post Office by 6 am.

There was a lot of mail over the weekend, she explains, and the preliminary inside work of sorting the route and dealing with changes of addresses had taken longer than usual.

Her bag held not only letters, bills, flyers, magazines and newspapers, but also some extra clothing as well as her container of mace to ward off any vicious dogs.

Although she's a dog lover, she was bitten three times in Halifax and now is wary of dogs who might be scared by the rattling of their doors.

She initially did evening work sorting mail, then worked shift.

"When I decided to try the exams for letter carrier, I studied really hard and came eighth out of 100," she recalls. "I knew every form number, every regulation."

Third woman

She spent the next five years doing both foot and motorized mail routes in Halifax as the city's third woman letter carrier.

She took courses in French and requested a transfer to the big city — Montreal.

"I'd never had a Greek salad, a croissant or a bagel till I came to Montreal," she admitted.

She's interested in the kinds of mail people receive and finds residents of higher income areas receive more magazines, financial newspapers and weekly newspapers than others.

"Everyone likes to get their mail, to have confidence in the system," she says.

No matter where one is on the status scale, "you still have your own little doorway, your own little dog. It's quite comforting."

She finds Westmounters on her route to be very nice and is "tickled pink" to be delivering mail to Mayor Brian Gallery's business.

She tries to take her job conscientiously, she says, but notes how much incorrectly addressed mail goes through the system.

Takes care

"I take a lot of care to make certain everyone gets their mail and I try to hunt down wrong or incomplete addresses," she says.

"There would be much faster service if people would send out change of address notices to everyone they can possibly think of when they move."

It also is important to include apartment numbers, she says.

"Another thing is the size of the mail slot. Some people have this tiny little slot and they expect you to jam magazines and newspapers through it. I'd love to be able to drop them nicely into a little outside mail box."

She feels lucky to have the job as a letter carrier "since the turnover is not great."

As far as being a woman in a man's field, she says, "most of the gentlemen I work with are very lovely men. They treat me well."

Then she adds, "as a woman, however, you have to do the job just a little bit better."

In some areas of Canada, she says, women letter carriers are very common. In Labrador City, according to Canada Post figures, six of the seven "postmen" are women.

Charlotte describes herself as "a compulsive workaholic."

She has bought her own house and enjoys gardening and skating as well as pottery and candle making, camping and outdoor activities.

"I'm looking forward to the day I will settle down and have children," she adds with a smile.

Grey vehicle left the scene

A car described only as "grey" left the scene of a collision on St. Catherine street at Greene avenue in the early hours of Saturday morning, police report.

The impact occurred about 3:10 am when the two westbound cars collided causing more than $500 to 1982 Chevrolet. No injuries were reported.
