James Michener writes blockbuster on the Caribbean

By Michael Warren

MIAMI (AP) — The riots on St. Croix that followed Hurricane Hugo, and the racial unrest that threatens Miami, grew from centuries-old seeds sown in a paradoxical region, according to James Michener's latest novel Caribbean.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning author spent three years travelling among the Caribbean's "chain of lovely jewels" and used more than 400 books for research to put together his novel.

In almost 700 pages it chronicles more than six centuries of civilization and destruction in the region.

"The idyllic portrait is only partly true," said Michener, 82, as he and his wife, Mari, prepared to set sail on a farewell cruise to the islands he described in his book.

"There were undoubtedly fine black-white relationships and many were friendly ... and yet each one of the islands had eight or 10 insurrections," he said. "There's a dichotomy there that I think we all are engaged in."

FACT AND FICTION

Michener explores the contradictions of the Caribbean using his patented blend of fact and fiction. Historical figures such as Christopher Columbus, Admiral Horatio Nelson, Fidel Castro and Gen. Toussaint L'Ouverture, who outfoxed French, Spanish and British armies in what is now Haiti, brush against imaginary characters that range from a Mayan priestess to a Jamaican Rasta.

How the Caribbean islands can be so beautiful and yet so violent is the central question of the book. In scene after scene, men and women of ambition build dreams, only to be crushed by tyrants.

"In the short run, brutality always wins; it takes longer for amity to prevail," Michener writes after describing how the Carib Indians cannibalized the primitive Arawaks, the islands' first residents who were satisfied with planting vegetables and watching the sun set each day.

The message resonates throughout the islands' history, demonstrating how the legacy of harsh colonial rule provides both a charm and a curse for the islands of today.

DIRECT LINE

Michener draws clear lines from the slave rebellions to contemporary scenes in which poverty-stricken blacks prey on tourists, even though the visitors provide desperately needed cash to their island economies.

"The history of this land, and of all the islands Spain has captured in this lovely sea, will involve the slow and even reluctant admission that the big black man down there has a soul," says a forward-looking 16th-century priest of Michener's invention, ruminating on the atrocities Columbus ordered against Indians, and the oppression his descendants would force on slaves.

Michener, a lifelong Quaker, says he grew to love and fear for the people of the islands during his research, which took him to back streets and poorer areas tourists rarely see on their Caribbean vacations.

"I see people beating their brains out to figure out what they're going to do for money," said Michener, who has several characters suggest all the islands would prosper if the United States would inflate the price of Caribbean cane sugar.

But because the U.S. sugar industry won't allow it, the region is headed for revolution, or worse, says one of Michener's characters, a Haitian-American professor who flees her island as a child and returns as a guest lecturer on a cruise ship.

Michener has published 36 books since winning the 1947 Pulitzer Prize for Tales of the South Pacific. And despite a quintuple coronary bypass operation in 1986 and a hip replacement the next year, he plans to keep writing, as a "Professor Emeritus Emeritus" at the University of Texas.

The Gift of the Magi — charming

By Rod Currie

CP Entertainment Editor

TORONTO (CP) — It's the heart of urban Canada but it feels like the soul of rural charm when that Christmastime charmer The Gift of the Magi opens as a two-character minimusical in an old red-brick church hall.

The polished hardwood floors creak as the sold-out, 160-member audience is seated. The little balcony is decked with garlands of evergreen.

At intermission, they sell gingerbread men and hot cider.

Alan Desnoyers at the old upright piano, looking suitably Edwardian with thick wavy hair and gold-rimmed glasses, is the orchestra.

All this rustic quaintness — just a few blocks from the intersection of Bloor Street and Spadina Avenue — came as the new award-winning adaptation of O. Henry's classic short story opened Friday night at Elmore's Hall, part of the 100-year-old Walmer Road Baptist Church.

In the roles as Jim and Della are Gerald Isaac, who has played everything from Snoopy the cartoon hound to the Stratford Festival stage and the New York City Opera, and Donna Abbey-Colborne who has sung with the Edmonton Opera Company and appeared in the Edmonton Fringe Festival.

Everything about this 70-minute production is modest — the costumes, the set with little black skyscraper cutouts to suggest a 1900s New York skyline, the props of pathetic hand-made Christmas angel and anemic strings of popcorn.

The broken leg of a dressing table is propped up with a stack of books and Jim's bowler is frayed.

ADDS AUTHENTICITY

But all this adds authenticity to the plight of the young newlyweds, struggling on his salary as a junior clerk and finding themselves flat broke on Christmas Eve.

Most everyone knows the familiar story — Jim sells his handsome antique watch to buy combs for Della's magnificent, thigh-length hair; she sells her locks to a hair merchant to buy a suitably grand gold fob for his watch.

Isaac, who will appear in an Edmonton Opera production of Die Fledermaus in February, and Abbey-Colborne bring an unusual amount of fun and loving slap-and-tickle to the sentimental love story that also is heavily laden with poignant twists.

It's a problem, operating on a handkerchief-size stage within a few metres of the audience, but the two overcome such challenges by concentrating on the yarn's uncluttered simplicity.

The music is lilting more than memorable but the tune If We Had Money gives the young lovers a flight-of-fancy chance to imagine what each would buy the other if they weren't so poor.

The show is the first production in the converted Sunday school space and the inaugural production for Brookstone Performing Arts, created by writer-director Dennis Hassell with the hope of elbowing into the Toronto theatre market with other such small productions.

The story was adapted as a musical by American Peter Ekstrom for the Actors Theatre in New York in 1981 and has been an annual Christmastime event there ever since.

It runs at Elmore's Hall through Dec. 30, tickets priced $9.

The McCartney concert, a dreamy kind of limbo

By Bill Anderson

TORONTO (CP) — "We're going to go back, through the mists of time," Paul McCartney told his audience on Thursday, "to a place they call the '60s."

You can't really go back, of course, but the former Beatle almost did it — coming closer than any retro-rocker yet in this year of the second British Invasion.

McCartney's performance Thursday completes a year in which the Who, the Rolling Stones and another former Beatle, Ringo Starr, have all appeared on Toronto stages.

But it was McCartney — arguably the world's greatest living composer of popular songs — who best delivered the goods, and did it against stiff odds.

First, the SkyDome is still a poor excuse for a concert facility, marred by echoes and an absurd sense of dimension.

The choice of venue is ultimately McCartney's — but it's the pop audience that has made him a living legend, a part of history, a Beatle.

So what does McCartney do? The only sensible thing — take a lighthearted approach, play it down, walk on stage casually, sing a few newer songs and take his time about it.

Thursday's concert took a long while to warm up, and it looked like it might never catch fire. At times, it even seemed like McCartney and his five-member band were just another humdrum rock act surrounded by the usual flashpots, lasers and big TV screens.

But after McCartney called everyone into the mist with him, then sat down quietly at the piano and sang The Long and Winding Road, well, this was something special.

LONG ROAD BACK

It was pause for thought, a dreamy kind of limbo, and oddly exciting. This was McCartney, after all, singing a timeless song, much as it must have sounded the first time he composed it on a piano, and much as it must have sounded when the Beatles first played it.

These were the finest moments of Thursday's show, when McCartney sang classic Beatles ballads like Eleanor Rigby, Let It Be, Yesterday and Hey Jude. They shone on the sheer genius of the songs themselves.

On other Beatles songs, however, the absence of the other band members — especially John Lennon — was almost aching. Besides missing him musically — for his edgy, rock 'n' roll presence — you just plain missed him.

The concert was played on the eve of the ninth anniversary of Lennon's slaying, an event that seems just as senseless and painful now as it ever did.

Earlier in the day, McCartney held a brief news conference at the SkyDome where he discussed, among other things, the ever-present question of a Beatles reunion.

Echoing comments made recently by George Harrison, McCartney said: "There can't be a Beatles reunion because John died."

"Now we wouldn't call it a Beatles reunion," he said, "but you (the media) probably would."

After several thousand years of reading the future, we still aren't very good at it

Want a peek at the future? It's probably wrong, but..

Nostradamus seems to have predicted the Great Fire of London for 1666:

"The blood of the just shall be dry in London, Burnt by the fire of 3 times 20 and 6."

And the reign of Queen Elizabeth who died at 70 in 1603:

"More than ever shall her period be triumphant,
At 70 she shall go to her death in the 3rd year of the century."

The French Revolution:

"The people shall rise against their king;
Peace being made, holy laws made worse —
Paris was never in such disorder."

And its Reign of Terror:

"The Assembly will condemn a king taken,
And the queen taken by jurors sworn by lot;
They will deny life to the dauphin,
And the prostitute at the fort will partake the same fate."

The Russian Revolution:

"The Slavic people in a warlike hour
Will be so highly raised by their ideals
That they will change a prince,
And bring forth a person of lowly birth to rule."

And even the collapse of utopian Communism through the glittering temptations of Capitalism:

"The philosophy of life according to Thomas More
Will be unsuccessful, and will give way to another more seductive.
In the land of cold winds is where it will first fail."

Then the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. will be allied:

"one day the two great masters shall be friends,
Their great powers shall be increased;
The new land shall be in flourishing condition;
The numbers shall be told to the Bloody Person."

Uh oh! Who's this guy?

"Out of the country of greater Arabia
Shall be drawn a strong master of Mohammedan law
Who shall vex Spain and conquer Granada,
And by sea shall come to the Italian nation."

Then North America and the U.S.S.R. (or NATO and the Warsaw Pact) will join together and make both Arabs and Asians very unhappy:

"When those of the Arctic pole shall be united together,
There shall be in the east great fear and trembling."

And Quadaffi, who has tried everyone else, will finally join with Japan and lead a Holy War against the infidels:

"The African heart will come from the Orient,
To vex the head of Italy and the heirs of Romulus,
Accompanied by the Libyan fleet.
Malta will tremble, the neighbouring isles will be empty."

They'll invade Europe by air, sea and land with guided missiles:

"The Oriental will leave his seat.
He will pass the Apennine Mountains to see France.
He will pierce through the sky, the waters, and the snow,
And he will strike everyone with his rod"

Arabs will overrun southern Europe:

"In the Danube and the Rhine shall come to drink
The Great Camel, and shall not repent."

But a Polish pope will drive them out:

"A Germanic heart will be born of Trojan blood,
Who will attain a very high degree of power;
He will drive out the foreign Arabian people,
Restoring the Church to its pristine preeminence."

But not for long:

"The Arab Prince Mars, Sun, Venus, Leo,
The rule of the Church will succumb by sea.
Towards Persia nearly a million men,
The true serpent will invade Byzantium and Egypt."

Then Martians will take over the earth in July of 1999:

"In the year 1999 and 7 months,
From the skies shall come an alarmingly powerful king,
To raise again the great King of Jacquerie,
Before and after, Mars shall reign at will."

And the Third Millenium begins with rockets carrying conventional and biological warheads:

"After great trouble for humanity, a greater one is prepared,
The Great Mover renews the ages,
Rain, blood, milk, famine, steel and plague,
In the heavens fire seen, a long spark running."

Unitl the final nuclear ka-boom:

"The great star will burn for seven days;
The cloud will cause two suns to appear."

There you have it, folks — not with a whimper but a wallop!
Remember where you read it.

Who's who

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

Apres moi, le deluge!

Tadeus is getting his licks in early because we're swiftly approaching the end of the year, the start of a final decade, the doorstep to the 21st century, the Third Millenium — and we'll be inundated by prophets of every persuasion.

It's the arithmetic does it. We all know in our heart of hearts that Monday morning, January 1, 1990, won't really be any different than Sunday afternoon — hangovers aside — any more than your car runs better or worse as the odometer turns from all nines back to zeros. And whether it be meditating mystics, psychics with star charts or futurologists with graphs and trends, the game's the same and so are the results — mostly wrong. After several thousand years of reading the furture, we still aren't very good at it.

You win a reputation as a prophet by counting (and recounting) your successes while ignoring all failures — rather like becoming a safe driver — by counting only those accidents you don't have. But prophecy was never a comfortable profession even when you were right — especially when you were right. Jeremiah kept getting jailed for his glooming until he fled to Egypt. Cassandra told them there were Greeks inside that wooden horse but had her head chopped off anyway. When it emerged that Ron and Nancy were navigating the ship of state by the 'Stargazer to the Stars', derision was general and nobody checked the books.

The trick seems to be ambiguity. The Delphic Oracle was a dab hand at that lark — she predicted King Croesus would destroy a mighty empire and never let on it would be his own. Mother Shipton was no slouch either but the blue ribbon grand championship has to go to Michel de Notredame, Nostradamus, only one of some 30,000 astrologers polluting Paris in the 16th Century but the one we remember.

Neil Young concert triumphant

By Angus MacSwan

LONDON (Reuter) — Canadian rock singer Neil Young, making a triumphant return concert in London on Tuesday, mocked U.S. President George Bush and dedicated a song to a Chinese student who defied an army tank in the Beijing pro-democracy demonstrations.

While other 1960s survivors like the Rolling Stones and The Who have put their pension plans in order this year with nostalgia-laden tours, Young offered a bleak view of the state of world at the end of this decade.

The veteran of Woodstock, who turned 44 last month, opened his set singing "It's better to burn out than it is to fade away," then prowled the stage like a hungry caveman, thrashing his acoustic guitar with the energy of someone half his age.

He played a number of old favorites from a catalogue stretching back 25 years, including the classic After the Goldrush.

The more belligerent new songs dealt with urban decay, poverty and crime, crooked cops and drug abuse, and mocked Bush's campaign promises with the lines "We've got a thousand points of light for the homeless man, a kinder, gentler, machine-gun hand."

He finished with the Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young song Ohio about the shooting of four students by National Guardsmen at Kent State University in 1969, dedicating it to the Chinese student seen on television screens around the world defying a tank during the suppression of the pro-democracy movement in Beijing in June.

Tickets for his London show, part of a brief swing through Europe, sold out within hours.

Eleanor Gang and Michel Lachance join soloists Lucie Roy and François Panneton

Sherbrooke Chamber Ensemble's first Christmas concert

By Claudia Villemaire

SHERBROOKE — Michel Lachance never dreamed of singing as he studied classical music and majored on the double bass.

"I only started singing because someone told me I should audition. They heard something in my humming I had never imagined," he explained. So he took his courage in hand, auditioned for the McGill Singers and surprisingly was welcomed to the fold.

Today, the Lachance bass voice, rich, sonorous and true is almost a legend even though he admits the necessity of teaching to earn a real living.

"So, when I was successful at the audition and the director took me under his wing for lessons, I continued to major in music but for a school-music teacher's certificate. The double bass kind of got left behind."

Lachance told of the scarcity of jobs for school-music teachers. He explained this type of music training has been phased out of many school study programs and recalled sending out 250 curriculum vitae. "I knew I couldn't make a living doing part-time teaching, semi-professional singing as I was doing in Montreal and besides, I was married by then and a baby was on the way. It was time to find work that would be steady and hopefully located in one place," he said.

So Lachance waited for replies. One sunny spring day, an answer came from East Angus, offering yet another part-time position as a school-music teacher for the East Angus School Commission.

"I was getting pretty discouraged. So I thought I've never been to the Eastern Townships — why not take a ride down, relax, enjoy the scenery and talk to these people even though I really was not too interested in another part time position."

"I liked it so much it didn't take much negotiating before we were moving out here to stay," he added.

So, Michel Lachance teaches and is singing again. No more running from job to job with no real sense of accomplishment anywhere. And his bass voice has brought him into contact with local choirs and musical groups such as the Ensemble de Chambre de Sherbrooke who present their first Christmas program this Saturday, Dec. 16.

Lachance will be joined by Eleanor Gang, who is also earning quite an enviable reputation as a talented and expert soprano. Gang has appeared in several solo parts this past year and presented a solo program this summer. She brings not only talent, but a genuine love and understanding to the music she sings, making it a special joy to hear.

Eleanor Gang and Michel Lachance will be joined by two other soloists from the region; François Panneton, tenor and Lucie Roy, alto. The program begins with Corel-li's Christmas Concerto, opus 6 followed by Noël pour Instruments by the French baroque composer Marc-Antoine Charpentier. Ralph Vaughn-Williams Fantasy on Greensleeves will complete the first part of the program.

The entire second half will be devoted to a performance of the third cantata from J.S. Bach's Christmas Oratorio. This is where the soloists will shine, putting the finishing touches to a piece of music that is always impressive.

The concert will be repeated in Magog at St. Patrick's Church the following afternoon, Sunday, Dec. 17 at 3. Tickets will be available at the door or call Mary O'Keefe at (819) 569-4603.

A warm Christmas is chocolate for dogs, suet for birds

By Claudia Villemaire

Now what would you think?

There are some folks around who swear they've seen my knitting needles smoke — now that's going pretty fast. But when that number 24 in the twelfth month hovers on the horizon, a person with my ability to procrastinate has to compensate somehow.

By the way — procrastinate means putting things off.

It's the story of my life. Ask my family. They'll tell you and probably still laugh about it. Who else but those cherished cherubs would find the handknitted socks dutifully wrapped (pretty lumpy packages), carefully and strategically placed under the tree, hiding not only one complete sock but a matching mate still on the needles with a ticket saying simply "give them back."

Or perhaps there are families in hiding somewhere, hoping no one will find out they too had a propensity to lose one of anything that comes in pairs — socks, mitts, gloves, and even slippers. I pray with dedication and fervor every night they also wrapped up that one, of a pair, and hoped to find the mate before the ripping sound of paper spelled another Christmas fuddled up. I know, because, oddly enough, even my family has found two socks, wrapped separately, under separate cover!

Not many people will admit they dropped the turkey at least once on its wobbly trip between the sink and the roasting pan. No one would confess to dropping this succulent featherless, shining clean and dripping wet bird twice. Ha! Neither will I...but.

And how about that Christmas pudding. You know, the one that calls for suet. Most bird-feeding people these days are quite well-informed about winter birds' diets — which include beef suet. Ah! that wonderful ingredient, once reserved especially for steamed puddings, a favorite family dish come Christmas day. I can see it all as though it was yesterday.

The pudding, slipping without crumbling, onto one of the 'best plates,' (used by my great-grandmother for just such an occasion), the white sauce (the recipe handwritten in grandmother's hand and a carefully guarded tradition) steaming temptingly on the back of the wood stove.

And all those expectant faces. A ring of rosy cheeks, yum-yumming and squirming in anticipation of that first succulent mouthful — the ultimate reward on Christmas day for cleaning up their plate and being fairly civilized until Christmas-tree time.

There was no way I would look out the window. I was certain the baleful eye of some hungry blue-jay or grosbec was burning a hole in my back. No way could I face my feathered friends who cast desperate, famished looks at their empty suet bag. Confusion reigned in birdworld, but after all, you had to do what you had to do.

We were a close family — still are and a very forgiving bunch at that. Like the time the dog ate all the chocolate santas, most of the popcorn and a few strung cranberries before Mother Nature had a fit and Queenie deposited the steaming mess under the tree she had just licked clean. My kids don't even know about that one.

Then there was the time one little tyke we won't name discovered Christmas joy also came in the bottom of the visitors' drinking glasses. We found him in a queasy state of health, shortly before dinner.

I guess my kids knew about Santa's real name long before I thought they did. At any rate, I insisted that every gift must be well hidden and my favorite hiding place was the freezer, a 27-cubic-foot giant that often was more empty than full.

As a matter of fact, there is one dear friend down home who remembers well being presented a gift in a brown paper bag decorated with a huge bow and the card inscribed with her name and the proper loving greeting. And I remember, as I waited for her exclamation of surprise and pleasure, finding her expression of shock and disbelief rather unusual. She thanked me rather vaguely, leaving me wondering what could have been wrong. All the guests wanted to see...what was the gift?...why was she sidling towards the kitchen with a desperate look?

Heavens to Hannover...of course, it was the wrong bag. Instead of a shimmering, silky shirt...it was a scrawny chicken — frozen solid and gleaming with a bluish, frosty sheen.

Christmas at our house always meant imaginations would be stretched to the limit. Meagre money supplies meant most gifts would be fabrications — cotton-ball snowmen, soap-container angels — toys made from the local furniture factory's wood scraps — whatever could be fashioned into a recognizable shape from next to nothing.

There were special feeds to get ready for favorite animals. Carrots to choose, grain to shake clean and apples to quarter for horses, calves and chickens.

No notice was taken of the meagre mountain of gifts under the tree or the festive table that perhaps lacked the flourish of sparkling silver and crystal. Candles made from melted crayons often spluttered gracefully in wedding-gift silver holders, and Fred Flintstone glasses shimmered (no clinking please) beside the cheapest paper napkins.

But who can measure precious moments. Our Christmas special (as in 'tee-vee land') was dressing up in our finest hand-me-downs, gathering in late afternoon twilight around mother's piano, lighting up the tree, and, in that shimmering, colored light, singing everything we knew — from Silent Night to

You are my Sunshine.

And while we sang with all the fervor of a Westminster Abbey choir, kittens leaped at baubles and tinsel, the tea kettle boiling away on the wood stove whistled its own merry tune, and we were happy, together.

Ah, what Christmases they were.

"We tried a technique known in the business as dry-brushing"

TOWNSHIPS WEEK—FRIDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1989—5

Marge White & Dale Beerman — artists in ceramics

By Sharon McCully

Marge White, a Chambly housewife and mother of two, and Dale Beerman, a forklift operator at a Pointe Claire container depot, share the same Granny — but that's the extent of their family ties.

The near-human Granny figure who sits perched on a wooden rocking chair with a twinkle in her eye, is a testament to the two artists' ability to work together to produce some of the region's most outstanding ceramic figures.

Finding two artists who can work together on the same project is as rare as finding two women who can work together in the kitchen making the same pot of soup.

But Marjorie White and Dale Beerman appear to have found the formula to do just that.

A TEAM

"I don't work well with other women," Marge joked, "I'm too bossy." Partner Dale doesn't seem to mind.

"Dale cleans the greenware, then I'll put the base coat on," Marge says. "Then he'll start on another aspect while I'm finishing up." Both Marge and Dale, old friends and new partners, confess to being perfectionists.

"We'll both stay at it until we think it's perfect," says Dale, "but it's Marge who puts the finishing touches on each piece," he adds. "She has the artistic talent and a real eye for detail...and she sews!"

Dale and Marge became artistic partners after visiting a ceramics exhibition in Montreal three and a half years ago.

"We were both intrigued by the work and thought we'd be interested in trying it," says Dale.

Marge said she was looking for a hobby that would occupy her now that she had more free time with children Debbie, 20, and Robbie, 18 becoming more independent.

HOBBY HUNTING

"My husband has his Blue Grass band as a pastime and the children have their own projects, so I needed something that would challenge and interest me," says Marge.

Dale, meanwhile had always enjoyed building and creating things. One of his projects, he said, was finishing the White's basement.

It was not surprising then, that after a few tries at producing ceramic figures, Dale and Marge knew they were on to something.

"We enjoyed working at it so much that Marge's husband bought her a kiln and we began making the pieces at her house."

Dissatisfied with the seemingly simple technique of painting and glazing the greenware to produce ceramic figures, Marge and Dale decided to try something more challenging.

DRY-BRUSHING

"We tried a technique known in the business as dry-brushing, which gives the subjects more life-like characteristics," explained Marge.

With dry-brushing, paint is applied layer upon layer giving detail to each line on a face, each hair on a dog's back.

It's also a very expensive process.

"We go through four or five paint brushes a night," estimated Marge, "and each brush costs anywhere from $3-$8.

In order for a piece to be appropriate for dry-brushing, it must be handled with meticulous care by the workers who produce the molds. "The seams have to be hidden, and finger marks which often appear when the soft clay is handled, have to be removed," commented Dale. "The best pieces for dry-brushing come straight from a mold that hasn't been used before."

Finding the right molds can be as time-consuming and costly as producing the completed pieces in the shop.

"There is very little greenware in Quebec that we would find suitable," Marge said. "Partly because it can't come into Quebec from the U.S. without French labelling, and also because we are constantly searching for pieces that are very unique."

A SPECIAL GRANNY

Like Granny.

The "Granny" mold was purchased in Tennessee during a family vacation. Many of the other pieces found in the BK Ceramics collection have roots in various parts of the United States.

Thousands of miles have been logged by the two partners in search of the 'right project'. Like the Teddy Bear's picnic that caught hockey star Bob Gainey's eye at the Brome Fair.

Other pieces in the collection include Indian figures, life-like animals, and a host of Christmas decorations.

Their most recent acquisition has been the greenware for twin infants.

"We toyed with the idea of doing them in porcelain, but the trials and the process would make the cost prohibitive," Dale said.

NOT FOR THE MONEY

But neither Dale nor Marge are in the ceramics business to make money. In fact, they probably don't come close to getting a financial return on their investment of time and materials.

"It's a very expensive hobby," admits Marge, "But one we enjoy." A highlight of the hobby, according to Dale, is meeting other people in the ceramics field, and joining the exhibition circuit.

"We started coming down here to the Brome Fair and Townshippers Day and now we are regulars at most of the fairs and exhibitions in the Eastern Townships," commented Dale.

As a matter of fact, Dale developed such an affinity for the region, he moved to East Farnham in June and commutes daily to his Pointe Claire job.

And Marge says some of the best years of her life were spent in Cookshire where her father William Kipling ran a monument business. Her 82 year-old mother continues to run the family business in Cornwall, Ontario.

ART CAME NATURALLY

"My father kept art books all over the house so I couldn't help but have some artistic ability," chuckled Marge. And both artists say they inherited their drive and determination from their mothers.

"Last year, when we encouraged my mother who is in her 70's to move closer to town because the farm was two miles from her closest neighbour," recounted Dale, "she raised her South Dakota farmhouse and moved it six miles into town."

The long hours and high standards have earned Marge and Dale the admiration of others in the field.

"Going to the shows is a real ego trip for us," laughs Marge. "It's really nice to have other people who work with ceramics come over to your table and admire your work." Pieces from the BK Ceramics collection are available for sale from either Marge or Dale. Just give Dale a call at (514) 263-9534.

A quick survey of the '89 Christmas music scene

This week Kaleidoscope attempts to aid frantic shoppers in their wading through the multi-genred confusion of pop music, with a rapid survey of some of the choices available for Christmas giving. For every person on your gift list there is sure to be a style of music, a currently trendy artist, or an old favorite performer, whose music will light up eyes when it's placed on the turntable, shoved into a Walkman, or played on a new CD-player.

MOTION PICTURE/TELEVISION SOUNDTRACKS: Parenthood (REPRISE—WEA) Not only is Steve Martin's latest receiving fine reviews, but the added bonus is that song stylist Randy Newman follows his father's long tradition of success by providing the soundtrack. Much of it is mood music, with Newman's quirky touch, but there's also a vocal track or two, including "I Love To See You Smile" ...

Black Rain (VIRGIN—A&M) Ridley Scott (Alien, Blade Runner) directs Mike Douglas in this film about contemporary Japan and its clash with American values, but the music relies on names such as Gregg Allman, UB40 and Iggy Pop, plus unknown Japanese artists like Ryuichi Sakamoto to add musical thrills to what is reported to be an action-jammed film ...

The Wonder Years (ATLANTIC—WEA) Part of the runaway success of this Emmy winning teevee must be attributed to the dynamite soundtrack. From Joe Cocker's smokey delivery on the signature track "A Little Help From My Friends", to Stevie Nicks' lament for the assaults on the street people of L.A. in the late sixties "For What It's Worth", this one has great material gathered on one cassette. Carole King's "Will You Love Me Tomorrow", CSN&Y's "Teach Your Children", and Van Morrison's "Brown Eyed Girl" are a further trio of super tracks among the thirteen included here ...

When Harry Met Sally ... (COLUMBIA) Harry Connick, Jr. emerges from the Billy Crystal/Meg Ryan romance flick as a new talent doing the kind of music that made Sinatra famous decades ago. Tunes like "It Had To Be You" and "Where Or When" have critics talking about the young Connick, and his seasonal "Winter Wonderland" should get lots of Christmas play as well ...

Do The Right Thing (COLUMBIA) Director Spike Lee's film has stirred up considerable controversy, but the soundtrack, with tracks like "Magic, Eddie, Prince Ain't Niggers", or "Da Mayor Drinks His Beer" reveal the kind of ethnic comedy that occasionally rises above some of the racial posturing that controls much of the movie.

SOUNDS LIKE CHRISTMAS: Liona Boyd Christmas Dreams (A&M) Canada's First Lady of the guitar bends some classical guitar strings while working through many seasonal favourites, including "O Holy Night", "Ave Maria", "Silent Night" and "Joy To The World". In addition to her melodic acoustic touch on the guitar, Liona is joined by Roger Whittaker, Georges Zamfir, and the Toronto Children's Chorus on this soft, soothing visit to the beloved carols of Christmas ...

New Kids On The Block Merry, Merry Christmas (COLUMBIA) Fresh from having scored with the second most popular album of 1989! this teen phenom wraps six new, funky X-Mas tunes in with traditional chestnuts such as: "The Christmas Song", "White Christmas" and "Little Drummer Boy". Teens won't be as thrilled with those tracks as they will be with "Last Night I Saw Santa Claus", or "Funky, Funky, Xmas", which bring a whole new meaning to the novelty seasonal song ...

The Beach Boys Christmas Album (CAPITOL) The promise of the availability of all of the early Beach Boys' albums transferred to CD appears to be coming true with the appearance of this relatively undiscovered classic on CD. Brian and the Boys never sounded better voice than they did on the simple arrangements on side one of this record. "Little Saint Nick", "The Man With All The Toys" and other rocking tunes are balanced with Beachies' versions of "We Three Kings", "Auld Lang Syne" and "Blue Christmas, with the stamp of Brian's adoration of the Four Freshmen firmly all over the barber-shop chord shifts and dynamics on the backing vocals. It wouldn't really be Christmas without this one booming out at tree-trimming time!! ...

voiced country crooner Van Shelton does a superb job of mixing seasonal favorites with a couple of country tracks he co-wrote for this album: "Country Christmas" and "Christmas Long Ago". As well there is the Eddy Arnold acoustic "Christmas", and the song Roy Orbison popularized, "Pretty Paper", which happens to have been written by Willy Nelson. Rocky Van Shelton has the perfect voice for these songs and this album should join Anne Murray's in becoming one of the top December sellers ...

Randy Travis An Old Time Christmas (WARNER BROS—WEA) Speaking of compelling voices, there is no country performer whose vocal presence has such a distinctive edge as award-champ Randy Travis. This Christmas offering from the basso profundo of Nashville will prove to be as popular as his platinum albums. The title track, "Winter Wonderland" and "The Christmas Song", plus newer material such as "Meeting Me Under The Mistletoe" and "Oh, What A Silent Night", add up to a Nashville treatment of songs that are special to Randy Travis...

COUNTRY ARTISTS: Sylvia Tyson You Were On My Mind (STONY PLAIN—WEA) Her work with Ian Tyson forged the path that country rock eventually moved along, and despite a shift in genre from pure folk to country music, Sylvia still has the pipes intact. She reprises several classics — "You Were On My Mind", "River Road", and "Trucker's Cafe" — but sprinkles this collection with new material such as "Slow-Moving Heart", and the distinctly Canadian story-song "The Night The Chinese Restaurant Burned Down". Players with Sylvia Tyson include the talented Albert Lee on stringed things, while singers Lucille Starr and Colleen Peterson flavor the vocals with their distinctive voices ...

Dwight Yoakam Just Lookin' For A Hit (REPRISE—WEA) He may verge over towards that je ne sais quoi that marked the work of Elvis, but Dwight Yoakam has also strung up a series of hits that helped to make country music the dynamic force it is today in pop. Big records like his Presley-cover of Doc Pomus/Mort Shuman's "Little Sister", "Guitars, Cadillacs", the other Dave Alvin car-tune "Long White Cadillac", the duet with Buck, "Streets of Bakersfield", plus the Parsons/Hillman song "Sing City", with k.d. lang's harmonies, and the raunchy "Honky Tonk Man" are six of the ten tracks here ...

George Fox With All My Might (WEA) George Fox, a Western Canadian answer to George Hamilton IV, is produced by Brian Ahern, who did wonders for the career of Anne Murray early on, to come up with this collection of country ballads and slow-tempoed favourites.

MALE VOCALISTS: Ray Lyelle and the Storm (A&M) Exciting new Canadian act with a definite

Montreal connection — Southern Ontario veteran Ray Lyelle is produced by ex-April Wine Gary Moffet & Billy Szawlowski at Victor Sound and Montreal Sound in that city's studios, while bassist Luc Grenier hails from Granby — but the exciting tracks laid down have universal appeal. "Another Man's Gun" has bold acoustic sound, with an inspired lead guitar bridge from David Kristan.

Eric Clapton Journeyman (REPRISE—WEA) The title's a joke, 'cause if any guitarist has moved far beyond the role of a journeyman, despite his storied career, it's Clapton! His licks here are a pure delight for the listener, as he moves adroitly from slick blues ("Anything For Your Love", aided and abetted on guitars by Robert Cray) to a beautiful George Harrison composition, "Run So Far", with the shy Beatle on harmonies and trademark licks traded with his pal Eric) to a cover of Elvis's ("Hound Dog"). One of the easiest listening albums of any season ...

Jack Bruce A Question Of Time (EPIC—COLUMBIA) Bruce is responding to rumours that his old band Cream, with Clapton on guitars and Ginger Baker on drums, should re-unite. On the basis of the comparison between Bruce's album and Clapton's, it's obvious who's in need of the residuals from the nostalgia ...

Other new and notable collections of male vox include: The Best Of Luther Vandross (EPIC—COLUMBIA), Foreigner's Lou Gramm with Long Hard Look (ATLANTIC—WEA), Led Zep offspring Jason Bonham's The Disregard of Timekeeping (COLUMBIA), and guitar whiz Peter Frampton's When All The Pieces Fit (ATLANTIC—WEA).

Terence Trent D'Arby attempts to follow up his extra ordinary debut with more British soul on Neither Fish Nor Flesh (COLUMBIA).

FEMALE VOCALISTS: Quebec's Veronique Beliveau makes her move on the American markets with an album produced by Richard Carpenter, Veronique (A&M) ...

Annie Haslam, with her 5-octave range, and long career as the guiding light in the group Renaissance, has released a solo record, eponymously titled (EPIC—COLUMBIA) ...

Avante-guardist Laurie Anderson achieves at least half of what the title of her new album denotes, Strange Angels (WARNER BROS—WEA) ...

In what has to be one of the strangest marriages in comeback pop history, Liza Minnelli puts herself into the hands of the Pet Shop Boys as producers for her album that has spawned England's #1 pop/dance smash "Losing My Mind", on a collection called Results (EPIC—COLUMBIA) ...

Canada's Connie Kaldor has made a major impression on audiences with her debut Gentle Of Heart (OSL—A&M) ...

Also, Rita MacNeil continues to fashion a career as the Ethel Merman of pop with Rita (VIRGIN—A&M) ...

Look for new releases by Janet Jackson, with her Number One smash Rhythm Nation, Kirsty MacColl, the return of Deborah Harry with Def. Dumb & Blonde, and a greatest hits collection by Barbara Streisand.

HEADBANGERS, NEW GROUPS AND SUNDRY: Big Audio Dynamite, Fifth Angel, The Jesus and Mary Chain, The Sugar Cubes, and the notorious Motley Crue, all check in with new product. UB40, Mary's Danish, Jefferson Airplane, Bob Wiseman (the crazed pianist with Blue Rodeo), and even long-time trumpet-man Herb Alpert, round out the varied ensembles that have put together some tracks in time for Christmas.

Now comes the hard part — choices, decisions, and distribution of the musical gifts that "keep on giving" ... NEXT WEEK, BOOKS.

Results. Liza Minnelli.

WHAT'S ON

Notes

We have important news. First of all, I must insist that all material to be included in my What's On column be received here by mail or telephoned in before Wednesday noon each week. Or else...

Second — a very important item — next week, that is the week of Dec. 23, Townships Week will be at your doorstep Thursday instead of Friday. You know what that means? Yes that right — material must be in — next week only — by Tuesday noon.

CBC THIS WEEK

It is often said that everyone loves the circus. But behind the popcorn and balloons, the fairytale glitter and thrilling suspense, lies the reality of the arduous and transient lifestyle of the circus gypsy.

On Thursday, Dec. 21 at 8, CBC once again presents The Big Top, one of The Royal Ballet's best-loved productions. The ballet follows Beth, danced by Leslie Fields (an enchanting young girl) as she sneaks away to the glittering world of exotic animals, colorful clowns and mysterious people — the fairytale world of the circus. The Big Top dancers are very versatile. Most of them have several roles as 23 dancers create 73 characters with 63 costume changes.

CBC RADIO AND FM

Christmas means all kinds of music and more on CBC Radio and FM. Rita MacNeil sings some of her own Christmas songs. The Entertainers throw a party with some of Toronto's leading singers. The Vancouver Chamber Choir premieres new Canadian carols. And of course, there's Handel's glorious oratorio. Coming this week there are also Christmas story readings, Renaissance Christmas music performed by Britain's award-winning choir, the Tallis Scholars and some old time fun and frolic each evening after midnight on Night Camp with David Lennick's Vintage Yuletide Radio.

Music

A superb program of Christmas music by the Orchestre de Chambre de Sherbrooke is scheduled for next Saturday, Dec. 16. This time, under the direction of Marc David, the ensemble will present Corelli's Christmas Concerto, opus 6, Noels pour instruments by the French baroque composer Marc-Antoine Charpentier and the popular Fantasy on Greensleeves by Ralph Vaughan Williams. The final half of the program is devoted entirely to J.S. Bach's Christmas Oratorio and four soloists from the Sherbrooke-Lennoxville area will be featured. The Sherbrooke concert takes place at St. Andrew's Church, Peel Street, Sherbrooke and begins at 8. This program will be repeated at St. Patrick's Church, in Magog the following afternoon, Sunday, Dec. 17 at 3. There's a bit of a story about two of the soloists on page 4.

Ecole Sacré Coeur students have prepared their traditional Christmas concert again this year. Over 450 young people will take part in this spectacular event scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Dec. 21 and 22 at 7:30.

The Buxtehude Ensemble will present a program of cantatas and instrumental works by Dietrick Buxtehude at the Old Brick Church in West Brome Saturday and Sunday, Dec. 16 and 17 at 8 and 3. Admission is free. For info, call (514) 263-2346.

This is an ecumenical service and all are welcome. For info call 843-2392.

Country Plus fans — please read this carefully. These makers of fine music will not be at Le Marquis in Richmond this weekend. They are playing for a private party which was reserved way back when the weather was hot and sunny. But they will be back to the Marquis' Salle Le Grand Duc on Craig Road next week. So, circle that calendar and welcome the band back on Saturday, Dec. 23. Music starts at 9:30.

Back at the Hut, (Army, Navy and Air Force Association in Lennoxville — the Good Ole Boys — playing Dec. 2, 9 and 16. They are packing them in I hear but there's always room for more. Dancing at the Hut is from 9 till 1.

Dion Country Band starts up at Motel Bretagne this Friday and Saturday from 9:30 till 2. They'll be there for two more weekends — Dec. 8-9, 15-16. Then the Good Ole Boys come back for the holidays starting the party again Dec. 22-23, 29-30. The big New Year's Dance will see Dion Country back and, for that occasion, they'll serve up a grand, cold buffet. Reservations for the New Year's Bash are encouraged. Call 837-2323 soon cause space is limited.

Out near the border, in Stanstead at the Maples Hotel, Big Foot will play foot-stompin' music all month long. They tune up every Friday and Saturday.

The fun continues at Bronco Billy's, the Quebec version of Micky Gilly's Place in Texas. This weekend there are big things afoot as no less than six bands turn out for a whoppin' Christmas weekend of music at the IN spot on Sherbrooke street. I hear Santa will be there with gifts and the party even starts early on Saturday — at 4 in the afternoon. M.C. is Jessie Aulis in person, from the Country Fever Band. The greatest country music available in that neck of the woods will be on all weekend with Lyndon Sheldon. So, make a point of poppin' in for a while and join the fun.

By the way, if anyone would like one or more of Lyndon Sheldon's recently released tapes of songs and music written by himself, you can buy them at Roland Shoe Repair, on Crèches de l'Oratoire — a collection of nativity scenes presently on display. See EXHIBITIONS.

WHAT'S ON

Queen St. just across from the Provigo in Lennoxville. Or just write or phone Robinson & Robitaille International, P.O. Box 330, Lennoxville, J1M 1Z5. Better yet, come on out to Bronco Billy's, listen, dance, ride the mechanical bull and pick up a tape while you're there.

By the way — Steve and Jessie and their Country Fever Band will be taking up musical duties at Bronco Billy's for the month of January. Just thought I'd let you know so the lady who follows those wonderful whiskers around will know where to go first thing in the New Year.

In the meantime, Country Fever (by the way, belated Happy Birthday Steve) is curling the carpets and working up a dust right out at Hotel d'en Haut in Cookshire where they'll be standing firm for the New Year's Eve Bash.

That's right, Steve Aulis and Country Fever are back at Hotel d'en Haut where all those rumors of a secret admirer began. So the lady with her heart set on nabbing the whiskered singer better get ready as Country Fever will only be there until January when they move on once again. But there's still time to make that BIG PLAY! They've a Christmas party planned for the 22nd. They'll be there for a whopper of a New Year's Eve party too. Tickets are already on sale at $15 per couple or $8 if you want to go single and hope for the best. The price includes everything you need to bring in the New Year in the grandest manner along with a lunch to shore up energy (and legs) around midnight.

Don't forget — Michael Goodsell is playing during December at Restaurant and Bar Salon Chateauguay, 2490 Galt W., Sherbrooke every Thursday, Friday and Saturday night. This is a one-man band that manages a big country band sound. Could be a corner to explore one of these weekends. For info, call 565-9743.

Country music is certainly back in style in the Townships lately. Another new bar — Bar BJ — located just a little way from Magog on Route 112 is getting right into the country sound. Country music is the norm and Longshot Country is the band. Fresh news this week tells me Tom McKelvey and Nathalie are making good country sounds out there so that's another spot to check out.

The Richmond Branch of the Canadian Legion has finally given out the big news. They will have a New Year's Eve Dance — music by Gaetan Chevanelle — with lots of hats, balloons and other noisy paraphernalia. There's a lunch at midnight and tickets at $10 per person are on sale at the Legion Bar. There are only 125, so don't wait too long to decide where you're going. Everyone is positively welcome.

Rod Bray and the Countrymen play at Salle RSVP, the old Salle Veilleux, this Saturday. The Sawyerville 4H Club are putting on their Christmas party and they've lined up prizes and surprises throughout the evening. Dancing begins at 9:30.

Rod and the boys will be doing the honors for the RSVP New Year's Eve dance too. The $12.50 per person includes a hot and cold buffet as well as all the trappings necessary to bring in the new year in proper fashion. Tickets are on sale at Accommodation Lachance in Sawyerville.

The Dixville Home Christmas Party kicks off to the music of Ezzy Dec. 22. This 'do' is for residents, staff and friends and gets underway at about 8.

The Army & Navy in Magog will be hosting a New Year's Eve party with country music by Ezzy. Dancing starts at 9:30 and there's a buffet lunch at midnight. Cost is $10 per person.

At Motel La Marquise in Lennoxville, this weekend features music by Country Express. Music starts at 9:30. They are also planning a New Year's Eve bash with the Benjamin et ces Musiciens, hailing from St. Nicéphore, doing the honors. There's a lunch promised too, all for the modest sum of $10. per person.

The Richmond Branch of the Quebec Farmers Association will put on their usual successful New Year's Eve party again this year. The Community Centre is the place to be for dancing and celebrating music by Country Express. This group of folks have an enviable reputation for a fine supper will once again go down in history as they present a turkey salad supper with their famous faculty for making tasty dishes. Tickets are on sale now and can be purchased from RQFA directors or by calling Marion Coddington at 826-3051.

And the Bulwer folks have done it again. They remembered the fun folks had gathering to have a Christmas tree decorating party in the 'good old days'. So, they've planned a tree trimmin' event this Saturday. There'll be dancing too with music by Scott Lowd and the boys and a pot luck lunch to round out the evening. Starts around 9 at the Community Centre in Bulwer.

Dozens of travel items could make fine Christmas gifts

By Felicity Munn
The Canadian Press

Panicking about Christmas gifts? It might help to think travel.

There are dozens of guidebooks, of course, but there are also books by writers whose literate accounts of their travels make fascinating reading.

Some that come to mind are Jan Morris's latest, Hong Kong; Paul Theroux's Riding the Iron Rooster, about his travels by train through China, which is now available in paperback; and Time Among the Maya, by Toronto writer Ronald Wright.

A subscription to a glossy travel magazine like Conde Nast Traveler, National Geographic Traveler, or European Travel and Life would probably suit armchair travellers as well as veteran globetrotters.

Perhaps a piece of luggage would be a welcome Christmas gift. Or consider all the travel gadgets, some useful and some unusual, available at department stores or specialty travel shops.

They range from mini first-aid kits (about $7) to pocket-sized electronic translators (about $160).

LITERARY LAND

Bookworms should note that Britain has several literary anniversaries and events coming up in 1990.

Special guided tours are planned of Torquay in Devon where Agatha Christie was born in 1890. And the 150th anniversary of Thomas Hardy's birth next summer will be celebrated throughout Dorset, southwest of London, with concerts, fairs, exhibitions and productions of his plays and stories.

For fans of Dylan Thomas, a two-week program at the University College of Wales in Aberystwyth will focus on the life and works of the Welsh poet. The program runs July 21-Aug. 4 and costs about $1,000 Cdn per person for accommodation, meals and classes.

For more information, contact the British Tourist Authority, 94 Cumberland St., Suite 600, Toronto, Ont. M5R 3N3.

CLUB FOR SENIORS

Canadian Airlines International has set up the Global Horizons Club that offers discounts on certain fares and services to travellers aged 55 and up.

The club is essentially a spinoff from the airline's frequent-flyer program Canadian Plus, in that it involves Canadian Plus partners like Canadian Pacific, Delta and Ramada hotel chains and the Tilden, Budget and Thrifty car rental firms.

Club members receive discounts of up to 15 per cent on air fares, while the hotels and rental agencies offer members either a discount or their best corporate rate.

Members of Global Horizons Club are automatically enrolled in Canadian Plus, meaning they can earn frequent-flyer points.

Club membership costs $20 a year; in addition, new members pay a onetime $35 fee. Members can enrol a companion of any age in the club at the same prices.

A Global Horizons MasterCard from Royal Trust, whose features include travel health, accident and rental car insurance, is available for an extra $45 a year to members who qualify.

For more information, call toll-free 1-800-561-8686, or for service in French 1-800-665-7783. In Alberta or from outside Canada, call (403) 269-4209.

HEALTH GUIDE

The 1989 International Travel Health Guide, covering everything about health risks involved in travel worldwide, is now available in Canada at Ulysses travel bookshops.

Ulysses has stores only in Montreal and Toronto, but the book, which sells for $16.95, can be ordered by mail or phone. Write to Ulysses Bookstore, 4176 St-Denis St., Montreal, Que. H2W 2M5, or phone (514) 843-9447.

WARNING ISSUED

With complaints about Florida-based travel clubs increasing across Canada, the federal Consumer and Corporate Affairs Department has just issued a warning bulletin about offers of unrealistically priced travel packages.

The bulletin says consumers who give out their credit card numbers over the phone to such firms risk losing their investment of several hundred dollars and may also find other unauthorized charges on their credit card bills.

Fraud experts say knowing the names of such companies is of little use because they change frequently. However, the United States Federal Trade Commission recently filed complaints against Vacation Travel Club Inc., World Travel Club Inc. and World Cruise Club Inc., all of Florida.

Anyone with complaints against U.S.-based travel firms should write to VTC Complaints, Federal Trade Commission, Division of Credit Practices, Washington, D.C. 20580; or, in the case of Florida-based companies, to Elizabeth Pichard, Division of Consumer Services, Mayo Building, Tallahassee, Fla. 32301.

Hawaiian golf course has some unusual distractions

By Dan Leger

HICKAM FIELD, Hawaii (CP)—After many trials, the foursome reached the green on the fifth hole and prepared to putt. One of them, mindful of the age-old admonition to take time to smell the roses, stood back to admire the scene.

To his left stretched the aquamarine waters of a manmade lagoon, a tiny tame pocket of Pacific Ocean that has claimed more than one errant tee shot. To his right rippled a wave of bougainvillea, a green-side symphony in brilliant fuchsia.

Around the compact green, red-headed King Kamehameha birds, named after a famed Polynesian monarch, pecked at the soil in regal disdain of the golfers' exertions.

A beautiful scene, though perhaps not that unusual on the Hawaiian Islands. But as the duffer gazed about, something happened to intrude on his reverie.

Above the row of bushes behind the green there appeared a giant metal tail like a malevolent whale's fluke, monstrous and sinister. It glided with a bellow and rumble along the back side of the golf course, along a manmade causeway bordering the lagoon, until the body of the beast was revealed.

It was a giant C-5 Galaxy military transport jet, one of the world's largest airplanes. It taxied to the end of the runway, made a mighty and tortuous turn, and began to roar down the strip. After what seemed like an eternity of gathering acceleration, the great machine lurched off the tarmac and took flight, improbably defying gravity.

Playing golf on the course at Hickam Field Air Force Base, on the outskirts of Honolulu, has its noisy distractions, but can be fun.

The course — reserved for U.S. air force personnel and invited guests — is not overly tough, with most of the par-fours a comfortable 400 yards or less from the white tees.

Tall palms line most of the ample fairways, and on most days there's a stiff breeze, according to local sources. But since the Hawaiian Islands are little more than bumps on the vastness of the Pacific Ocean, a puff of wind shouldn't come as a surprise.

MILITARY CENTRAL

Hickam AFB Golf Course is one of several American armed forces playgrounds in Hawaii. After tourism, the military is the state's largest industry.

Military officials say there are 15,000 air force personnel, 9,000 navy and marines and another 14,000 army. Although small installations dot the islands, most of the air and naval forces are stationed at the richly historic Hickam Field and nearby Pearl Harbor.

The two bases are best known from their Second World War sufferings. Hickam Field and Pearl Harbor entered American military history on Dec. 7, 1941, when Japanese bombers and torpedo planes swooped in to rain destruction.

Just behind the squat stucco building that served as Hickam's first control tower, there are stark reminders of that terrible day. Low buildings that served as barracks are still pocked with bullet holes and shrapnel scars, left as reminders of the need for vigilance, even in paradise.

SHIP MONUMENT

Another potent reminder sits on the sandy bottom of Pearl Harbor. The Arizona National Monument, the shattered remains of the battleship USS Arizona, rests where it foundered with the loss of more than 400 sailors during the attack.

The military in Hawaii seems ready for emergencies these days. Flights of powerful F-15 Eagle fighters roared off the runways occasionally as the golfers plodded through their round. Taking off two at a time, the supersonic planes quickly climbed and disappeared.

Hickam Field and Pearl Harbor aren't likely to be the destination of choice for many vacationers visiting Hawaii. Not with the sand and nightlife of Waikiki just a few kilometres down the road and the pristine magnificence of Molokai, Maui and other islands just a quick flight away.

Still, anyone who can concentrate on golf through the 18 holes with so many reminders of a great and noisy war machine close by, can probably play the game anywhere.

Christmas in America: A Love Story reflects parts of star's own life

Kenny Rogers and son Kenny Jr. star in Christmas special

By Jerry Buck

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Although Christmas in America: A Love Story reflects parts of Kenny Rogers' own life, it was written before he was signed to star in the NBC special.

The one-hour show on Wednesday tells the story of an internationally famous photographer who reflects on his life and uses the opportunity to heal the wounds between himself and his son. The son felt his father had always put his career ahead of his family.

Rogers, although best known as a singer and actor, is also an acclaimed photographer and recently patched up relations with his own son, Kenny Rogers Jr., who co-stars in the special as the son.

Kate Reid and Ashley Crow are also in the show.

"We sent him the script to read," said Earl Hamner, who co-wrote the show with Donald Sipes. "I was delighted when I learned he was not only a photographer but a good photographer. Kenny felt he had neglected his own son and had an estrangement."

"I think the feeling of the film is one of healing and coming together, which was reflected in Kenny's own relationship with his son."

When the project began, Hamner and Sipes were asked to come up with a story about four periods in a man's life.

DEVELOPS A ROLE

"Don and I came up with the idea of making him a photographer," said Hamner. "That way we could use photos to introduce each period."

"The first period is childhood, when he becomes interested in photography. The next is young manhood, when he goes off to war and falls in love. Act three is his marriage and family and the development of his career and the conflicts it causes in his personal life.

"The last act is about maturity and reconciliation. It's about regeneration, which is so appropriate for this time of year. An area Don and I wanted to explore is something that is common to all of us in this society.

"That's the work ethic and how it can cause a man to neglect his family."

Hamner said he also felt at ease with Rogers when he learned that he's a fisherman. Hamner fished the streams of his native Virginia for many years before discovering salmon fishing.

"I fish in British Columbia now," he said. "I caught a 50-pound fish up there last year. That's a lifetime fish. They canned it for me and the cans arrived just yesterday."

This is the first collaboration between Hamner, best known for creating The Waltons and Falcon Crest, and Sipes, a former entertainment executive and a published novelist.

STARS OPRAH

Their next collaboration will be Brewster Place, a half-hour drama for ABC starring Oprah Winfrey. It will be filmed in Chicago, where her talk show is based, and will make its debut in April. They're also working on several cable television projects and wrote a pilot last year for NBC.

Brewster Place is adapted from the book The Women of Brewster Place and the miniseries that ran on ABC. Hamner and Sipes are making some changes in the concept because the series presented such a negative image of black men.

"We'll have much more positive images," said Sipes. "We're adding some new characters. Oprah will play her character in her late 40s. She'll have to be aged and padded for the part."

Hamner said he feels the television audience wants the kind of family programming represented by Christmas in America.

"The networks want people between 18 and 49," he said. "You cut out a lot of people that way. Suppose you do a 'once upon a time' story. You can attract the 18-49 audience and everyone else, too.

Gone With the Wind fiftieth anniversary

By Carol Woodford

ATLANTA (AP)—Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh have long since died, but at the gala events this week celebrating the 50th anniversary of Gone With the Wind they'll be remembered again and again.

For one thing, organizers have invited five pairs of Rhett Butler and Scarlett O'Hara look-alikes.

For another, 11 surviving cast members, many of whom were children when the 1939 movie was made, will have their own stories to tell of the legendary stars, both of whom died in the 1960s.

The cast members will attend a private reunion Thursday and are expected Friday night at a recreation of the movie's Dec. 15, 1939, world premiere.

Fifty years ago, the premiere was the biggest social event in the city's history. The governor of Georgia declared Dec. 15 a holiday, and an estimated one million people turned out to catch glimpses of the visiting Hollywood royalty and Atlanta's own Margaret Mitchell, the former newspaper writer whose 1936 novel Gone With the Wind catapulted her to fame.

The so-called re-premiere will be at the Fox Theatre. Loew's Grand Theatre, site of the 1939 premiere, is no longer standing.

SCARLETT SHADES

A competition between the Rhett and Scarlett look-alikes is set for Tuesday, and guests in antebellum dress will attend a Gone With the Wind ball Thursday night.

Cammie King Conlon, the actress who played Rhett and Scarlett's young daughter, Bonnie Blue Butler, said the cast reunion will be a chance for her to reminisce with others who appeared in the movie.

"I was 4½ when they did the filming," the Little River, Calif., resident said in a telephone interview, adding that she remembers "about 12 snapshots, images" of the experience.

"You don't really know how much you remember because people have told you some things," she said.

"Clark Gable I remember being a very nice, nice 'daddy,'" Conlon added. "He was considerate of me, my mother said. I don't remember Vivien Leigh at all."

CAST REUNITES

Others expected for the cast reunion include Butterfly McQueen, who played Prissy; Patrick Curtis, Ric Holt and Mickey Kuhn, all of whom played Beau Wilkes, son of Ashley and Melanie Wilkes, at various ages; Gregg Geiss, who played Bonnie Blue as an infant; and Ann Rutherford and Evelyn Keyes, who portrayed Scarlett's sisters.

Other activities include a champagne breakfast, tours of historic homes, an exhibit at the Atlanta Historical Society, and lectures on Mitchell—who died in 1949—and her book.

Many of the anniversary activities are sponsored by Turner Home Entertainment, a division of entrepreneur Ted Turner's media empire.

Turner acquired the rights to Gone With the Wind in 1985 when he bought MGM-UA Entertainment Corp.'s huge film library. He paid for a restored version of the film that has made a 50th anniversary tour of movie houses this year.

"It's his favorite movie," said Frank Miller, a Turner spokesman.

'Passport to Skiing' visits ski meccas of the world

By Ted Shaw

The lifestyles of the rich and shivering is the subject of TSN's new travelogue series, "Passport to Skiing" (Wednesdays).

Jean-Claude Killy

The weekly show, hosted by Todd Brooker and Laurie Graham, guides viewers on a tour of the world's great ski resorts.

Brooker and Graham, both former World Cup champions, are familiar with the world's classiest ski meccas. Among their stops on "Passport to Skiing" are Aspen, Colo., and St. Moritz in Switzerland.

There are suggestions about where to stay and eat, and each week there's a special guest. Among those who drop by are French Olympic and World Cup champion Jean-Claude Killy.

The Los Angeles Raiders, featuring former CFL great Mervyn Fernandez, take on the Seattle Seahawks in an NFL game this Sunday, Dec. 17, on TSN. TSN also has a clash between the Cleveland Browns and the Houston Oilers on Saturday, Dec. 23.

Two of the greatest players in the NBA go head-to-head this week when Ervin "Magic" Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers meets Michael Jordan of the Chicago Bulls in a game from Chicago Stadium. It's on TSN on Tuesday, Dec. 19.

In his recent best-selling book about Harold Ballard, Toronto writer Dick Beddoes relates a humorous story about former Toronto Maple Leafs great Frank Mahovlich.

It seems that during the 1972 summit series between Team Canada and the Soviet national team, Mahovlich was so paranoid about being watched by the Soviets while his team was in Moscow that he searched his hotel room with a fine-toothed comb.

Lifting a rug, the lanky left winger saw what appeared to be a listening device. So he promptly unscrewed it.

Unfortunately for the Big M, it turned out to be the support for a ceiling lamp in the room below. A tell tale crash of glass revealed the awful truth.

MOVIE NOSTALGIA

By Darrell B. Perry

Greta Garbo made comparatively few films in her short career. One, which helped to ignite the flame of her mystique, was the intensely romantic "Flesh and the Devil" (1927).

In it, Garbo plays Felicitas, a wicked, seductive (and married) woman who lures Leo, played by John Gilbert, into her web of sin. The film poses Garbo's character as an agent of evil who cannot help but be ruled by her violent and disruptive emotions.

Leo kills Felicitas' jealous husband in a duel and must join the Foreign Legion to escape. He enlists his lifelong friend Ulrich (Lars Hanson) to look after Felicitas while he is away. Then, Felicitas seduces the wealthy Ulrich and he marries her.

After three years, Leo returns and a complicated love triangle is set in motion, with the manipulative Felicitas at the apex. In one scene the local pastor calls Felicitas "the devil made flesh" and rails against the trio in front of a shocked congregation.

The friends continue to wrestle with their love for Felicitas and their mutual betrayal of their very intense friendship. The story builds to a dramatic climax that works, but is a little clichéd today.

The natural acting of all the other players is a wonderful backdrop for Garbo's sometimes demure, sometimes hysterical glances and grimaces. The film style is Gothic, moody and mysterious, and even in its silent state it is engaging and easy to follow.

QUESTION: Greta Garbo was honored only once by the Motion Picture Academy. How and when?

ANSWER: In 1954, she received a special Oscar for "unforgettable screen performances."
