PCs, Liberals now tied at 109 seats

Trudeau vows to go down fighting

OTTAWA (CP) — Tied with the Conservatives at 109 Commons seats each, Prime Minister Trudeau Thursday said his Liberal government will face Parliament and, if necessary, go down fighting.

And the first sounds of battle followed immediately after the prime minister's news conference as New Democrat Leader David Lewis took Mr. Trudeau's place before the national television cameras.

Both the prime minister and Mr. Lewis were conciliatory in tone, suggesting that the Parliament due to sit in a few weeks could go on for some months if the government presents legislation acceptable to either the New Democrats or the Progressive Conservatives.

With the NDP holding a 30-seat balance of power, at least one of the two major opposition parties must support Mr. Trudeau in Commons votes if his government is to survive. Under parliamentary tradition, a government must resign and call an election if it loses a major Commons vote.

There has been no behind-the-scenes dealing, said Mr. Lewis, and therefore it appears that the party leaders were setting out their basic bargaining positions both to the nation and to each other.

CLEARLY SUBDUED

The prime minister, certainly more subdued than before Monday's vote, said his government had not been clearly rejected by the electorate although it did indicate his performance "was not satisfactory."

"What the vote has not done, however, is express any clear degree of approval for any single party."

He said it now is his constitutional duty to try to make the stalemate Commons work.

"Whether it will work depends on all members and all parties, for no single party has nearly enough support in the House of Commons to exercise its will without the co-operation of others."

Meanwhile, Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield sat in his Parliament Hill office watching his political opponents set out their battle lines. Two nights earlier, Mr. Stanfield went before the same cameras and suggested the government should resign and hand power over to him.

WOULD NOT SPEAK

He would not speak directly with reporters Thursday but his staff gave this statement by telephone:

"Mr. Trudeau made clear tonight the arrogant desire of his government to hang onto power."

"He is treating the election result as simply another opinion poll in the hope he can somehow get away with it."

Although the Conservative leader did not mention it, the popular vote total Monday showed his party with 35 per cent support compared with 39 per cent for the Liberals.

As her husband announced his determination to hold onto power, Margaret Trudeau sat with reporters at the back of the National Press Theatre gallery. Although she is not noted for incisive political commentary, she summed up the situation as well as anyone could:

"We're in for a good fight now."

BUDGET KEY

A new budget will be one of the first priorities when the Commons meets, said Mr. Trudeau. While no date has been set for the opening of a new session, the prime minister said it would be as soon as possible after the official election writs are returned in December.

Because of the normal Christmas recess, it does not appear likely the Commons will be called before early January.

With both the Conservatives and the New Democrats demanding cuts in personal income tax, the government budget may have to include that to face its first test of strength. While not promising income tax cuts, Mr. Trudeau did not rule them out.

A major Conservative campaign issue centred on the government decision not to continue a temporary three-percent cut introduced two years ago.

The prime minister was asked directly if he had been humbled by the vote, abandoning what some observers called his arrogant attitude.

ADMITS SINS

"I certainly have many sins, but I confess them to my priest and not the press," said Mr. Trudeau.

But a few moments later, Mr. Lewis, whose own humility is often questioned, said this:

Chamber of Commerce; Albert Gauthier, manager of industrial relations for Ingersoll-Rand; and Rod Johnson, assistant trade commissioner.

The U.S. elections

Former loser Nixon headed for landslide

WASHINGTON (CP) — Once considered one of the great losers of United States political history, Richard Nixon could be headed for a victory of historic proportions in Tuesday's presidential election.

The most bullish of the president's Republican advisers happily foresee their candidate winning a majority of votes in every one of the 50 states. Their principal fear is that voter apathy and cynicism will keep potential Nixon supporters at home.

Democratic nominee George McGovern, insisting steadfastly that he will beat Nixon, has had few people to share his optimism. A Las Vegas bookie has quoted 1,000-to-1 odds against him. Even his home state of South Dakota seems doubtful.

The polls have said Nixon is likely to attract voters of almost every stripe, including many who had long been given up as lost to the Republican party—union members and college students, Jews and Roman Catholics, the hungry poor and the limousine liberals, independents and life-long Democrats, the solid South and the industrial North.

And all of this although Nixon has barely budged from the White House to show the colors, and has not allowed McGovern's name to cross his lips.

A typical one-day campaign swing recently to the healthier suburbs of New York City was nearly a triumphal procession for Nixon.

GRIM REMINDER

But only "nearly," because among the 400,000 people who lined the motorcade route and the 17,000 ecstatic Long Island Republicans at an evening pep talk, there were enough dissenters to give the president and his supporters a taste of ashes.

The dissenters were overshadowed by those who had come to cheer the president, but there were always enough of them to warn Nixon that his reelection cannot be assured until the ballots have been counted.

One held up for Nixon to see a sign that said simply, "Remember Dewey"—a reminder of Harry Truman's come-from-behind victory over the excessively confident Thomas Dewey in 1948.

Several protesters had laboriously written out on placards a statement Nixon made in October, 1968, while campaigning for his first term: "Those who have had a chance for four years and could not produce peace should not be given another chance."

Signs saying, "What about Watergate?" and "Government by the corrupt, for the corrupt" were there to remind Nixon of that goring, and largely unanswered, list of accusations about political spying, secret campaign funds, big-business favoritism and other irregularities imputed to his administration and his campaign organizers.

The slogans were similar to those the president has seen everywhere in his limited campaign travels. Usually outnumbered by forests of printed signs saying, "Four more years" and "Re-elect the president," the dissenting signs emphasize the real mystery behind the predictions of a Nixon victory.

BACKING A MYSTERY

Few political observers, however bold, have pretended to understand why so many voters say they will support Nixon.

Undoubtedly part of Nixon's backing will come from people whose main motivation is distaste for Senator McGovern.

The Democratic challenger has had trouble establishing himself as a viable alternative to Nixon, thanks to some allegedly radical policy stands, developments in Vietnam, organizational troubles and the demolition work of Republican campaigners.

Another important part of the Nixon vote is predicted to come from the homeless conservative supporters of Alabama Gov. George Wallace, who won 16 per cent of the total vote for president in 1968 but was forced out of the 1972 running in May by a would-be assassin's bullets.

However, such projections leave much unexplained, especially in light of what has been made public about voter opinions.

In-depth surveys indicate that the president is still not much loved. He has not convinced a majority that he is a great leader. He is not regarded as particularly capable in dealing with pocket-book issues. And he is still identified uncomfortably with the privileged and big business.

Yet the same surveys imply that he could end up with more voter support than did Lyndon Johnson, Dwight Eisenhower, Franklin D. Roosevelt or almost any notable vote-getting president back to George Washington.

It is a truism of American politics that foreign policy doesn't win votes. Yet the Nixon trips to Peking and Moscow are constantly cited by voters as one of their main reasons for supporting the president.

Apart from foreign policy, such issues as the war in Vietnam, the fight against crime and narcotics, school busing, economy in government and above all national pride appear to have been preempted by Nixon.

... North Hatley visits the polls Sunday

By WENDY McMULLEN
Record Reporter

NORTH HATLEY — While the results of Monday's election are still being debated, four candidates are beginning their campaign for the North Hatley municipal council election to be held Sunday, Nov. 5.

Three of the candidates are standing for the seat left vacant by the recent appointment of George St. Pierre to Mayor and one candidate is contesting the seat presently held by Mr. C.W. Ride.

Mr. Ride, who has served on the North Hatley municipal council for six years said he wanted to retain his seat to see the new sewage system planned for North Hatley installed.

"This is important because Ayer's Cliff has already started on the sewage system and if Massawippi installs a similar system, the problem on the lake will be greatly improved," he asserted.

Mr. Ride owns a boat rental business and woodwork shop in North Hatley. He is 60 years old and has lived in North Hatley for 25 years.

Doug Mills, challenger for Mr. Ride's seat, said yesterday that the reason he is running for the seat was that he felt the municipal council needed a younger man and someone who was bilingual.

"I would like to see the council move ahead more quickly with plans for a new sewer system since other towns in the area have already gone ahead," he explained. "I also think there is an important need for a fully bilingual council," he added.

Mr. Mills, who previously had a summer home in North Hatley for several years, has lived permanently in North Hatley for the past two years where he owns Earl's General Store. He is 40 years old and has two children aged 19 and 16.

The three contenders for the seat left vacant by George St. Pierre are Helen Doutheloux, Bernard Bergeron and John Boland.

Mrs. Doutheloux, who ran last year for the council, is involved with projects for young people in the area and takes an active part in the cultural centre in the village. She said that she had no specific ideas in mind for the town but that she would first have to acquaint herself with the plans and problems already in existence.

Bernard Bergeron declared that his main interest was to retain North Hatley the way it is. "I enjoy this part of the country and I do not want to see it spoiled by huge tourist or other projects," he said.

Mr. Bergeron, 44, a former airline pilot who now runs a carwash business came to North Hatley in 1967 from the west where he was involved in municipal affairs. He is a member of the Canadian Legion in North Hatley, the Rotary Club and the Chamber of Commerce.

The third contender for the seat, John Boland, 41, is union chairman at the Bell Telephone Co. Mr. Boland said he had decided to run because he had always had a strong interest in municipal affairs. The Bolands have lived in North Hatley four years and have two young children.

The election this Sunday, Nov. 5, will take place at the town office from 8 a.m.-6 p.m.

"I watched the prime minister while he was making his statement and I have seldom seen a more chastened man. And I think to have a chastened prime minister is very useful for the people of Canada and I think we may be able to get a good many things that might not otherwise have been available."

Among those things, said the NDP leader, must be tax cuts or a tax credit to reduce the burden on those paying $500 or $1,000 annual income tax.

But Mr. Lewis did not appear eager for another expensive ride through the campaign skies on his chartered aircraft, dubbed Bumair by reporters.

PROMISES REASON

"It is quite obvious that in this kind of Parliament, no one with any responsibility to Canada can act in an absolute doctrinaire way. And we will not act in that way."

"Obviously we will have to accept less than we would want on many issues."

Monday night, as it became clear no party would achieve a majority, Mr. Lewis said the price of NDP support would be a commitment by the government to increase the tax burden on corporations.

"We're not retreating from the position we took," he said Thursday.

"We will fight in the session of Parliament for reducing the corporate concessions and therefore being able to reduce the tax on the individual."

COULD EVEN OUT

But, even if the New Democrats vote against measures to add to corporate tax advantages, it is likely the Conservatives would be forced into supporting them.

NDP opposition, he was quick to add, could be balanced against Mr. Stanfield's support, thus allowing the NDP to maintain its principles while not jeopardizing the government.

He said his party could not risk abandoning its philosophy for the sake of delaying an election.

"I think that our party has to remain firm on the things that it believes in order to be credible to the people of Canada and a party with some soul and some guts. I don't intend to reduce either for the sake of another six months."

Pinard, Patrick negotiate

KIRKDALE (WM) — Barry Patrick, 16, of Kirkdale, near Ulverton, felt so strongly about the trans-Canada highway which passes right through the village of Ulverton that he wrote a letter to Quebec minister of roads Bernard Pinard. He wanted to know why the new road curved to pass through the village centre cutting up farms and spoiling the quiet village instead of being set back from the village as with other towns. This letter was published yesterday on page 4 of The Record.

Barry, who said in his letter that he expected it to be thrown into the garbage can, was surprised when he received a telephone call from the minister's secretary inviting him to visit Mr. Pinard in his office at Drummondville to discuss the matter with the minister and his engineers.

It was explained to Barry that the reason the road curved to pass through Ulverton was that the soil further away was unsuitable because the roads department would have to dig too deep.

"The engineer said it was cheaper to buy homes than to dig down to the hard-pan," Barry commented. "The minister's secretary said, however, that the government would move the houses if the people wanted them moved."

Barry said that about seven farms and 14 homes would be affected by the highway. "The secretary told me that some of the people would not lose their farms because underpasses would be built under the highway," Barry said.

"He also explained that this was not the final map and that exits and clover leaves still had to be planned."

Barry Patrick is a student at Richmond Regional High School and his father, who owns a garage in Ulverton, will have to close down because of the highway.

Barry said in his letter that it was not solely because of the closing that he was writing to complain about the highway but also because of the effect it would have on the charming, friendly village of Ulverton and the farms in the area.

Mix-up returns Pepin

OTTAWA (CP) — The announcement Thursday that Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin won Drummond by five ballots in Monday's election came at the end of the official addition of the reports prepared by deputy-returning officers at each of the 220 polling stations in the Quebec riding.

But in that official addition, the ballots themselves were not individually counted and the final result could change again.

Under the Canada Elections Act, whenever there is a winning margin of fewer than 25 votes at the official addition, there must be a judicial recount in which each ballot paper is examined under the supervision of a judge.

In the election-night tally, Mr. Pepin was reported trailing Social Creditor J. M. Boisvert by 138 votes. The error corrected Thursday was in the total figure accumulated from all the individual polls.

The tenuous Liberal victory in Drummond stalemates the Liberals and Progressive Conservatives at 109 seats each and drops Social Credit strength to 14. The New Democratic Party's 30 seats are unaffected by the Pepin victory as are the two elected independents.

SWITCH POSSIBLE

At least one similar switch could occur within the next few days as official additions are completed in other ridings.

In Ontario riding, where Conservative Frank McGeer unofficially leads by 12 votes, the official addition was proceeding slowly Thursday and a result was expected late at night. If the addition shows a reversal, giving victory to Liberal Norman Cafik, the Commons strength would shift in favor of Mr. Trudeau.

His Liberals would then have 110 seats as the Conservatives drop to 108.

But no matter what happens in the official additions, the actual strength of the party representation will remain in doubt for at least a week.

Although judicial recounts are ordered immediately after the official addition shows a separation of less than 25 votes, it takes several days for the judge to actually empty the ballot boxes and complete the recount. In the judicial recount, the judge himself examines all ballots originally rejected as spoiled and he could rule some of them valid and throw them into the pot.

Chief Electoral Officer Jean-Marc Hamel says the result of any judicial recount ordered Thursday or today would probably be known by the end of next week at the earliest.

Just how many recounts will be conducted cannot be known for weeks.

A candidate losing by more than 25 votes can demand a judicial recount if he puts up a $250 deposit. But a judicial recount cannot be ordered until the results of the official addition are announced.

While official-addition day was Thursday in Drummond and Ontario ridings, it is scheduled much later in large rural constituencies where there are difficulties in delivering the ballot boxes to the returning officer.

Half of the 264 ridings have an official addition later than Thursday, the latest being Nov. 28 in the Northwest Territories.

Aside from Drummond and Ontario, there are seven ridings won by fewer than 100 votes. Judicial recounts will probably be requested in all of them.

SEVERAL POSSIBLES

Although past recounts have rarely resulted in turnovers, the Liberals could gain victories in:

—Charlevoix: Gilles Caouette, son of Social Credit Leader Real Caouette, leads Liberal Jean-Guy Alain by 87.

But, by the same degree of possibility, they could lose two to the Conservatives:

—Montreal-St. Marie: Liberal Raymond Dupont leads Conservative Georges Valade by 94.

—Okanagan-Kootenay: Liberal Douglas Stewart leads Conservative Howard Johnston by 41.

The Liberals also could lose one to Social Credit:

—Frontenac: Liberal Leopold Corriveau leads Social Creditor Nelson Lessard by 53.

Real estate agent to young couple: "Yes, I think we have some $10,000 homes. How much would you like to pay for one?"

By Ann
Landers

She lost her husband to another man

Dear Ann Landers: I lost my husband to another man. Before you jump to conclusions, let me explain. We are both 52. Arthur and I had a good marriage until a few years ago. Our children are grown and on their own. Arthur is what you might call peculiar, but he is not queer. The "other man" is his bachelor brother.

The minute Arthur gets up in the morning he telephones Brother to ask if he had a good night's sleep. Then they plan what they're going to do that evening.

The two of them act like teenagers. I am not included in any of their activities. Brother has dinner with us every night, unless he and Arthur decide to eat out. Brother rarely speaks to me and I have given up trying to be friendly. I consider him an arch-rival who has taken my husband away.

Please give me some advice before I crack up. Or have I cracked up already? — Impossible Situation

Dear I.P.: Your signature describes your dilemma. What you fail to understand is that no one can be taken over unless he wants to be. Your husband is a willing partner in this grossly immature involvement.

Would your life be better or worse without him? This is the question you must ask yourself. A woman of 52 is too young to dry up and blow away. Base your decision on what is best for YOU. Arthur has already decided what is best for him.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's a word of encouragement for "Hooked in Lansing" who will soon be a teenager and is still sucking her thumb.

When I was six years old my folks tried everything to get me to stop. Nothing worked. The doctor told Mom to leave me alone.

I am 18 now and will be married in October. I quit sucking my thumb three months ago when I announced my engagement. It happened almost overnight. I don't know if it was my pride, love, being loved, or a combination of all three. If I could kick the habit anyone can. Please tell "Lansing" I'm rooting for her, Ann. —

Unhooked in Oakland

Dear Oak: Nothing helps like having someone say, "I did it, you can, too." This is the concept of Alcoholics Anonymous, Weight Watchers and Recovery, Inc. Thanks for the encouragement.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for that broad who thinks people are stingy if they don't take passengers along "as a favor" since they were "going anyway." Listen, Lady, the average automobile depreciates at the rate of 7 cents a mile. You didn't say how far it was to Florida, and I can imagine what you meant by "a few personal belongings." Maybe a small sewing machine, a hair dryer, a couple of wig boxes, and a bird cage.

When I was in high school my dad gave me orders. If I carried passengers to football games or barn dances, they had to chip in for the gas and oil. If a tire blew, they had to kick in for that, too. In other words, no freeloading.

These are darned good rules to live by. — Fair in San Antonio

Dear Fair: I suspect you're about my vintage. In those days (antediluvian, of course) a buck was a lot harder to come by and a car was a big deal. I agree that a person who travels several hundred miles as a passenger should offer to share the cost of the gas and oil but short trips should be favors.

Marksmen hold service

BIRCHTON — A blustering wind, forerunner of winter, did not prevent friends from far and near from filling the United Church of Birchton to capacity, when at the service, at 7:30 on October 15, through the efforts of the Pulpit Supply Committee, the Marksmen Gospel Singers were in charge, in the absence of a regular minister.

This group, who are carrying on good work without too much financial aid in order to further the spread of the Gospel, had its origin in Magog. The director, Roger Bailey of Magog; Russell Coates of East Bolton; David Heath of Lennoxville; George Brier and Rodney Largy, both of Cherry River, took part in all the group numbers. My Rock, My Sword, My Shield; The Joy of the Lord; God is Love; If that isn't Love; He touched Me; and Eastern Gate.

George Brier delivered the address on the theme The four essential Experiences of the Christian Life.

The offering, received by Nelson Richards, Arthur Rogers, Stanley Logan and Bob Halsall, was given to the Marksmen to help defray their expenses. Danny Bousquet of the Young People's Group of Sawyerville closed the service with an appropriate prayer.

Mr. Russell Coates confessed to a slight nervousness on recognizing several of his relatives in the congregation. His father, Norman Coates was the son of Dennis Ellworth Coates of Birchton; his mother was Ethel Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Taylor of Sawyerville.

Convention highlights

By ROBERT HAMILTON

Now that we have the election behind us, perhaps we can find a little time to bring to light a few of the highlights of the national federation convention held at Charlottetown P.E.I. Sept. 25-26.

The Convention opened 9:30 a.m. with 38 official delegates present and the convention room full of visitors and observers. Among these were included a bus load of interested golden-agers from Portland, Maine, who showed a great deal of interest in the proceedings.

All of the ten provinces were well represented and it is expected that at next year's gathering there will be representatives present from the Yukon and the North West Territories. After the usual formalities, the following were dealt with in order. In the interest of brevity we will mention a few of the more important items: old age security, an increase to $150 per month. Basic income tax exemptions to be raised to $3,000 for single and $6,000 for married persons, guaranteed annual income — $3,000 Single, $6,000 married — and an old age security pension to be tax exempt.

These are only a few of many resolutions brought to the attention of the delegates. Others concerned drugs or medicines, hearing aids, glasses and dentures. Elimination of school taxes on residential properties of all Pensioners was also on the agenda.

The predominant theme which prevailed throughout the convention was that every Pensioner and senior citizen must ever be alert and must always be ready to take up the fight on his own behalf. He must also quickly come to aid of the more unfortunate senior citizens who cannot fight on their own.

There is a lot of satisfaction to be gained in getting what you worked hard to achieve. In that respect, the national federation has a proud record. As a group they are respected and listened to when representations are made to Ottawa on behalf of the membership.

And why not? Some 300,000 members cannot be ignored! So no matter which government may be in office it is the avowed intention of the organization to always carry the fight to the source — Ottawa — when and wherever it is felt that our senior or citizens are not getting their rights.

So we will see what the next four years is going to mean for the Pensioner. Till then, we will keep our powder dry.

Spreading the gospel most important task

TORONTO (CP) — To spread "the gospel of truth in advertising" is the most important job of the head of the Association of Canadian Advertisers (ACA), says Alfred Hodges, its new president.

Mr. Hodges, vice-president of corporate relations for Sterling Drug Ltd. of Aurora, Ont., is the chief disciple in an effort by the ACA to carry the message of self-regulation for Canada's advertising industry.

Truth in Advertising is a study conducted by the Toronto School of Theology for the ACA and the Institute of Canadian Advertising in an attempt to set some guidelines by which advertisers evaluate the veracity of their advertisements.

"I feel the onus is on advertisers to make this thing work," he said in an interview Thursday. "After all, we're the ones who put up the money and advertisers are in a position to insist that advertisements be written the way they want them."

Mr. Hodges hopes that through the Association of National Advertisers in the United States, the message of the Truth in Advertising study may find its way to the U.S. Federal Trade Commission (FTC).

"Our own president (of Sterling Drug Ltd.) has volunteered to write about Truth in Advertising to Sterling in the United Kingdom and Australia, both of which have advertising organizations who have expressed interest in the concept."

Additionally, Mr. Hodges will be carrying the message of the study to the ACA membership across the country, with regional meetings throughout the year.

Mr. Hodges said he does not expect any lessening in problems with provincial and federal governments. He mentioned recently announced Quebec regulations on advertising to children that are expected to pose many problems for advertisers.

"Certainly since the (federal government) sessions closed at the end of June there has been a lessening, but if the proposed Competition Act is brought back into Parliament, it will probably continue to pose problems for the advertising industry."

He said that after having talked with Robert Andras, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, he decided that the minister seems to be interested in developing a spirit of co-operation with advertisers and seems to have a desire to make the competition bill workable.

CEGEP students reject education bylaws

LENNOXVILLE — Students at Champlain Regional College rejected government issued bylaws governing CEGEPs at a meeting on Wednesday afternoon.

A spokesman for the students said the students had voted to reject the bylaws in principle because the province had set up the "Regime Pedagogique" without student cooperation or any student representatives.

Cal Martin, a member of the Students' Union Executive Council of Champlain College said yesterday the bylaws would be studied point by point by the executive committee of the students union and that possibly a further meeting will be held with the students to discuss each item.

He said he believed one of the most controversial issues in the bylaws was the power given to the authorities to order re-registration of students at any point.

"This means that if a student or students hold political beliefs that the authorities do not agree with," Mr. Martin explained, "they can order re-registration in the middle of the year and refuse to register certain students."

"This happened, in fact, last year in a university in Montreal, but it was declared illegal. The proposed bylaw would make this practice quite legal," he contended.

Other points which Mr. Martin thought might cause dispute were the directives on the length of session and number of hours of study per week and the regulations governing the number of credits to be taken in certain fields.

He said that he had not yet had a chance to study the bylaws completely since they first had to be translated from French but that he believed that they gave too much power to the Minister of Education.

Students in French-speaking CEGEPs have also rejected the government issued bylaws.

Bank conmen reported active again

SHERBROOKE (AR) — Quebec Police Force detectives issued a warning yesterday to all Eastern Townships residents to guard against phony bank inspectors who are once again active in the area.

Police reported that to date the criminals have been unsuccessful in their fraud but several persons were victimized by similar attempts in the last two years. In the majority of cases investigated in the past, the victims were elderly persons.

A QPF spokesman told The Record how the operators approach their victims. "They make their initial contact by telephone, identifying themselves as bank inspectors," captain Guy Rousseau revealed.

"Their usual ploy is that they are investigating foul play by bank employees and that they need the complete cooperation of the public to uproot the embezzlers," he said. "Once this has been established they ask the victims to reveal their bank holdings and their bank accounts."

"Their next move is to request that the person make a withdrawal from his account, generally of an amount in excess of $1,000, depending on the resources of the victim," he elaborated.

Captain Rousseau stressed that the phony inspectors attempt to convince their victims not to tell even the bank manager why the withdrawal is being made.

"In the past we've had cases where the innocent person has refused to divulge information to bank managers because they were completely certain they were doing a good deed," he said.

How do the criminals actually manage to extort money from their victims? "The general procedure is for the extortionists to meet their victims a block or two from the bank," he explained.

"At this stage they claim that the money is needed for fingerprints, whereupon they take the money and are never seen again," the QPF spokesman revealed. "These criminals certainly know what they are doing."

In order to counter the extortion ring QPF detectives are following several leads, acting mainly on information supplied by persons who have been approached.

The car got it worse than the bear

SOUTH BOLTON (WM) — Mr. and Mrs. Glen Frizzle had an unpleasant surprise when their car struck a large bear near South Bolton, but the car received more damage than the bear. The bear disappeared into the woods and was not seen again, while the car suffered $500 worth of damage.

"I was returning home on the Bolton Pass road at about 8 or 9 p.m. when the bear jumped into the road about 15 feet in front of me," Mr. Frizzle recalled. "I was going about 40 miles an hour and couldn't stop and the bear went right under the car and lifted it off the road. It was a wonder the car didn't roll over."

"We were both unhurt, so we pulled into the side of the road and stopped and went back with flashlights," Mr. Frizzle continued. "We could see wool and hair on the road but no trace of blood on the road and no sign of the bear."

"I called the game warden when I got back and they sent out a search party to look for the bear in case he was wounded but they could not find any further trace other than the fur and hair on the road," Mr. Frizzle commented.

"The game warden told me that these bears are tremendously tough and they could stand a lot, certainly more than my car," he added.

Asked if this were a very unusual occurrence, Mr. Frizzle said apparently it is not since Mr. Frizzle's insurance agent had told him it was only the third insurance claim involving bears in the last two years.

Fortunately Mr. and Mrs. Frizzle were unhurt by the experience except for some stiffness. They had braced themselves to take the impact of hitting the bear, Mr. Frizzle said.

Flower power returns to Sherbrooke

SHERBROOKE (AR) — Flower lovers throughout the Townships take note!

Starting Saturday through Sunday, November 12, the city of Sherbrooke invites you to a unique display of color and scenery at the municipal greenhouses.

For nine days the location on the corner of Portland and Vimy streets will be the site of a magnificent chrysanthemum exhibition — an event unparalleled in Sherbrooke botanical history.

According to Andre Caron, superintendent of the municipal greenhouses, over 5,000 chrysanthemums in 35 varieties will be featured. The display also includes an assortment of cacti and lemon and orange trees.

As an added attraction there will be a lighted fountain which is likely to tickle the fancy of even the most aloof observer. The wonderful feature of it all is that there is no admission charge to the public.

This is an excellent chance for both amateur and professional photographers to capture the living beauty of nature. The greenhouses will be open daily, 8 a.m.-5 p.m. during the day 7 p.m.-9 p.m. in the evenings from November 4 to November 12.

Each day there will be two door prizes for lucky visitors. The winners will receive a beautiful bouquet of chrysanthemums as a souvenir of their visit.

The official ribbon-cutting ceremony will take place Sunday afternoon at 2 p.m. with acting mayor Roger Giguere doing the honors. Flower lovers have never had it so good!

Engineers form group

SHERBROOKE (WM) — An Eastern Townships Branch of the Canadian Society for Mechanical Engineering has recently been formed for mechanical engineers in the area who are interested in belonging to a society which caters to their particular engineering interest.

The committee of the Eastern Townships' Section of the CSME has already organized the first meeting of the year - held jointly with the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada - and has a variety of plans for the remainder of the year.

The aims and objectives of the CSME are to maintain high standards in the theory and practice of mechanical engineering, to facilitate the acquisition and exchange of knowledge through meetings and publications, to collaborate with universities and other technical societies and to encourage research and studies related to the conservation of Canadian resources.

Any enquiries about CSME membership and requests for further information are welcome and should be directed to Mr. C.J. Hawketts at 569-5121, the press release says.

Deserved better

Pierre Elliott Trudeau, to use a well-worn cliché, is a man more sinned against than sinning. It would be foolish to suggest that Mr. Trudeau's four and one half years in office were trouble-free years for Canada.

The country had its problems — it still has. Inflation has not yet been curbed. The unemployment rate is too high.

The Progressive Conservatives scored heavily on these two points. But there hasn't been an election campaign in recent memory that wasn't fought, to some extent, on the unemployment issue. When the Liberals defeated the Conservatives and John Diefenbaker in 1963, unemployment was the main issue.

Inflation is a relatively new phenomenon and it should be remembered that many other Western nations are suffering from it as well. Mr. Trudeau, quite correctly, pointed this out during the course of the campaign.

It is little comfort, however, to the housewife or pensioner living on a fixed income to be told that Canada is not the only country with an inflationary economy. But when viewed from this perspective, Mr. Trudeau's performance was not that bad — it is doubtful Mr. Stanfield would have done any better, assuming for a moment that he had been prime minister from 1968-1972.

Despite the criticism levelled at the various job creating programs initiated by the Liberal government, such as the Local Initiative, Opportunities for Youth and New Horizons programs, it is doubtful Mr. Stanfield would abolish these programs had he the power to do so.

But by far the most disturbing element of Monday's election is the strong implication of "anti-Quebec" feeling in Ontario and the west.

Rene Levesque and the Parti Quebecois now can argue, with some justification, that the results of the election prove one of the main contentions of the Parti-Quebecois — Canada is an ungovernable country. Mr. Levesque and many others will say that the rest of Canada rejected Quebec on Monday, that Mr. Trudeau's policy of trying to develop a truly bi-cultural country is a failure because the West refuses to accept the French fact in Canada.

It will be interesting to see what sort of campaign Mr. Levesque runs in the next provincial election.

Trudeau may have committed a tactical error during the course of the campaign by adopting a low-profile approach to the electorate. Perhaps a few of the 1968 shenanigans would have interested the electorate more and perhaps some of the Trudeauism of 1968 would have been in evidence.

But Mr. Trudeau is not alone in defeat. Recent provincial elections overturned regimes in British Columbia and Newfoundland. An NDP government was elected in Manitoba not so long ago.

The mood of the Canadian electorate today seems to be one of dissent and impatience. Mr. Trudeau may have fallen victim, at least in part, to this basically negative outlook.

In any event, Trudeau was given short shrift by the Canadian electorate. We feel he was judged too harshly.

Opinion from the French press

This is a selection of editorials on current topics translated from the French-language press of Canada.

Ottawa Le Droit: There is a close link between the American elections and the war in Indochina. As Nov. 7 approaches, signs of a negotiated peace in Vietnam become more numerous. We wait from day to day for a cease-fire between North and South Vietnam. This would not be a real peace yet, but would be a feather in Mr. Nixon's hat and end of a long nightmare.

What has pushed Hanoi towards serious discussions? As President Nixon will probably be re-elected, North Vietnam is intelligent enough to realize it is more advantageous to deal with Mr. Nixon before he is re-elected for another four years. China, on the other hand, after its sensational entry on the world scene, wants to assure other nations of its peaceful intentions by making an appeal to its Communist ally whose submission and loyalty is taken for granted.

The Kissinger-Le-Duc-Thieu discussions are the work of very able strategy. The stronger point in the program of Democratic candidate George McGovern is an attack on the incoherent policies of his opponent concerning Indochina, knowing full well that the population of the United States is becoming more and more disillusioned about the Asian adventure. A ceasefire in Vietnam would not only accomplish one of Mr. Nixon's electoral promises made four years ago, but would also pull the rug from under Mr. McGovern's feet. — Fulgence Charpentier (Oct. 27)

Trois-Rivières Le Nouvelliste: What President Thieu wants is for the Communists and the Americans to present him with a total victory for his government on a silver platter. Naturally, this is a vain hope because Hanoi will never bend to such concessions.

Even if Mr. Thieu intends to oppose stubbornly all ceasefire formulas independent of a political solution, he will realize one day or another that his partner in the war, the United States, could abandon him.

However, it is clear the Nixon government is not ready to use such tactics before the Nov. 7 elections. The American authorities who are pleased with the Communist proposal, want to play the negotiation game until the last minute. But the day after the presidential election, it is evident that things will not be the same.

President Thieu must soften his position and show a little realism because evidence indicates he is the one who will have to endure the horror of a follow-up to the war in Vietnam. Besides, the Communists have not been tardy in making their position known.

The North Vietnamese spokesman in Paris enjoyed himself saying that Mr. Thieu's position was new proof "that he obstinately opposes peace and national accord and is an extreme war-monger."

Meanwhile, President Nixon still hopes to present himself to the American voters Nov. 7 with a new feather in his hat, a solution to the war in Vietnam. But he will have to exert personal pressure on Mr. Thieu to get him to accept the peace plan. — Rejean Lacombe (Oct. 26)

Montreal La Presse: Theoretically desirable, the integration of all police forces on the island of Montreal has come up against fierce opposition from the suburbs. As early as publication in August of the report prepared by René Daignault, Montreal Urban Community police director, the first protests could be heard from the west island communities. Now the majority of the suburbs surrounding Montreal are addressing a categorical "no" to the Quebec government and are even asking some ministers to indicate their opinions.

In examining the contentious situation, one quickly realizes the suburbs would not be in this position if they had been heard and understood to a greater extent by the provincial authorities. On the other hand, the citizens of Montreal island have nothing to gain by campaigning against the more or less forced unification of its police forces. If the suburbs are satisfied with the services of their police, the protection of citizens and the fight against all forms of crime in a region such as Montreal logically calls for a certain amount of centralization of police facilities.

Certain municipalities, especially the Anglophone ones, are fighting police integration in a climate which hardly favors intelligent election.

Instead of arousing the people and defending their police stations with petitions, the suburbs would do better to adopt a more positive attitude. The prevention of misdemeanors and the fight against crime crosses all municipal boundaries and necessitates the contribution of all communities on Montreal island. — Claude Gravel (Oct. 30)

Granby La Voix de L'Est: The provincial business education association considers the type of business education offered in Quebec public schools is a deprived sector of the educational system. It also deplores the lack of training courses for teachers wishing to enter this field.

Faced with this situation, says the association, one must not be surprised by the bad reputation of business education in public schools or the success of private business colleges which are veritable gold mines.

If there is any area in which the department of education should be offering a quality program, it is the business sector where young French-speaking Canadians must learn more in order to succeed after they have finished their studies.

Our education system has turned out economically-ignorant products for too long. They must be trained with a view to them establishing their own successful business enterprises.

Let's stop exalting, or let's exalt less, the cultural values and stop downgrading economic values and we will see that far from being talented, our young people, with a good training, can assume responsibilities and establish themselves in the business world.

Judging by their protests, the teachers are asking nothing more than to better themselves and the programs they teach while benefiting from an adequate training course.

The objective is important. It concerns the future of more than 30,000 young people who chose the business option in order to familiarize themselves with all areas of commerce. Our schools must not fail. — Roland Gagne (Oct. 26)

"Good Morning, Senator. I Understand You've Been Recalled!"

PCs face hard decisions

By Stewart MacLeod

OTTAWA (CP) — If the Conservatives form the next federal government, Robert Stanfield will be faced with some difficult choices as he tries to blend experience, ability and regional considerations into a new 29-member cabinet.

For instance, little Prince Edward Island can scarcely have more than one minister in the cabinet, and yet it has at least two MPs who seem to be obvious choices. J. Angus MacLean was minister of fisheries in the Diefenbaker government and has been a front-bench opposition member ever since. And the party's external affairs critic—the member who would normally expect to enjoy the spoils of victory in his specialty area—is Heath Macquarrie, also an Islander.

Furthermore there is David MacDonald, 36-year-old former United Church minister, one of the more vocal members of the opposition, who helped Mr. Stanfield gain the leadership. This is only one example of the difficulties that would face Mr. Stanfield. He appears to be overloaded with likely candidates in some provinces and extremely thin in others.

WAGNER SURE

The only certainty is that Claude Wagner, his Quebec lieutenant, would occupy a senior portfolio. And with only two MPs from Quebec, it is likely that the other, Howard Grafftey, also would be appointed to the cabinet.

There is speculation that Mr. Wagner would be given the trade, or perhaps the external affairs, portfolio. Party sources say the former provincial justice minister, who has been downplaying his law-and-order image, would not go into the federal justice portfolio.

There is no scarcity of candidates in Ontario where the party elected 41 MPs, including three former federal ministers and a former provincial minister.

George Hees, one-time trade minister; Frank McGee, briefly a minister without portfolio, and Allan Lawrence, the Ontario justice minister who successfully moved to Ottawa in Monday's election, are all likely cabinet candidates, although Mr. McGee won only narrowly and faces a recount. And the other former federal minister—Paul Hellyer, who switched from the Liberals via his Action Canada movement—is also a possibility.

ECONOMIST POSSIBLE

There are other likely Ontario candidates as well, including Lincoln Alexander, 50-year-old Hamilton lawyer who was Canada's first black MP, and James Gillies, the prominent economist who is a new MP.

And out in Saskatchewan there is former prime minister John Diefenbaker. Would he be invited into a Stanfield cabinet? And would he join if asked? Also from Saskatchewan is Alvin Hamilton, Mr. Diefenbaker's agriculture minister, who has won himself another trip to Ottawa.

If Mr. Stanfield leans toward former ministers, he has Walter Dinsdale from Manitoba who was minister of northern affairs in the Diefenbaker government.

Alberta will raise the same difficult choices as Prince Edward Island. Among its MPs are Gerald Baldwin, the Conservative House leader in the last Parliament; Eldon Wooliams, the party's justice critic; Marcel Lambert, the financial critic; and Jack Horner, agriculture critic. In addition, Monday's election brought in Peter Bawden, a self-made oil millionaire.

Mr. Stanfield will have fewer pressures facing him in British Columbia where all but one of the Conservative MPs are parliamentary rookies. And the one veteran, A. B. Patterson, was previously a Social Credit MP.

There will be difficult choices all through the Maritimes where there are far more probable candidates than openings. In New Brunswick, which normally has one cabinet representative, there is party whip Thomas M. Bell, a long-time MP who was a parliamentary secretary in the Diefenbaker government, and there is also Gordon Fairweather, a one-time provincial attorney-general, who was active in foreign affairs during the last Parliament.

There are also several candidates from Nova Scotia, including fisheries spokesman Lloyd R. Crouse, and J. Patrick Nowlan, whose father, George Nowlan, was a minister in the Diefenbaker government.

And along with all the veteran MPs Mr. Stanfield must consider, there are probably some little-known new ones whom the party leader has his eye on.

In addition, when Mr. Stanfield was asked whether he would consider appointing some non-elected cabinet members—they would seek election in subsequent byelections—he said he would consider all possibilities. The question was posed in relation to Quebec.

Dangerous intersection

Dear Mr. Editor:

I have never written to a newspaper before, and the reason I am now is that I am deeply concerned about the new intersection of Routes 5 and 50 at Burrough's Falls.

I understand it was officially opened on Friday, October 20, but it was christened with the blood of two young men on Saturday, October 21, with injuries to two more persons. And this is only the beginning.

This new road and intersection have put together two dangerous roads. I know, because I have lived in Burrough's Falls for more than twenty years, and I have seen many accidents in this area — some serious, and others, not so serious, but these are the first deaths here.

The road is there and will have to be used, but why can't lights be installed, and more signs, to mark this intersection before more accidents happen?

There will always be those who do not stop, even for a red light, but it might help to show a stranger (and even local persons) that there is an intersection at that spot.

I am sending a copy of this letter to our MNA, M. Georges Vaillancourt, trusting he will bring it to the attention of the Minister of Roads for his special attention.

Meantime, take extra caution at the Intersection of Routes 5 and 50 at Burrough's Falls.

cc: M. Georges Vaillancourt

Yours truly,
Mrs. Stanley H. Cooper

A poem

Our Prime Minister got himself into a muddle,
By simply saying "Fuddle-uddle"
Of this his colleagues had never heard,
And accused him of saying a four-letter word.
This hurt P.E.T. like the stroke of a stick,
So he planned a hurried Western trip
There to soothe his hurting pride,
He chose himself a cute little bride
Then he returned to Parliament Hill,
Only to face the abortion bill
He studied it carefully then rose and spoke,
"Listen my friends this isn't a joke
If you want to play safe and keep out of trouble,
Take my advice and don't FUDDLE-UDDDLE."

Here come de judge

Sir:

A rather obvious error occurred on page 1 of your edition of Monday, Oct. 23, in the story headlined "Champlain may build on Bishop's."

Towards the end of the story you referred to Alex K. Paterson, Chairman of the Executive Committee of Corporation of Bishop's University as the parttime municipal judge of the town of Lennoxville. Mr. Paterson, a resident of Senneville, P.Q., a small town near Ste-Anne-de-Bellevue, at the western extremity of the island of Montreal, is a municipal judge in Senneville, not in Lennoxville.

I believe Sherbrooke lawyer A.R. Monty serves in this position in Lennoxville.

PAUL W. TROLLOPE

You're right. Unfortunately Senneville, during the course of the interview, sounded like Lennoxville and was interpreted as such — rather obviously.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Diabetics Should Limit All Sweets

Dear Dr. Lamb—I can understand that in the case of a diabetic, all sweet stuff is taboo. Yet honey is on that list also, but it is the natural sweetener. Why isn't it allowed?

Dear Reader—Not all doctors restrict all sweets for diabetics although most doctors prefer that the carbohydrates be in less concentrated form, namely in vegetables or natural fruits. The reason for this is to keep the sweets from being absorbed too quickly into the blood and causing a sharp rise in the level of the blood sugar. Recent recommendations from the diabetic society have liberalized the amount of carbohydrates that diabetics can use while restricting the amount of fats, particularly saturated or animal fats in an effort to decrease the possible influence of the diet in diabetics on causing the high incidence of heart disease that diabetics often have.

Now the common table sugar that people use is really a double sugar and when it is absorbed through the digestive tract, it is split into two simple sugars, one of these is called glucose, the other is readily converted to glucose which is the form of sugar that the body uses for energy. Incidentally, most of the foods, including proteins and fat, are converted to the glucose sugar by the body to be burned by the body for energy.

It's true that honey is a natural sweetener and its carbohydrates are composed of a single sugar which are directly absorbed into the bloodstream where they are converted to glucose the same as ordinary sugar and have the same effects in that regard. Thus as far as raising the blood sugar level is concerned in the diabetic, both normal sugar and honey will cause this.

Don't be confused about the term "natural sweetener." Sugar is a natural sweetener, it is a natural concentrated extract from beets and sugar cane. Honey is a natural sweetener extracted from flowers by the action of bees. Whether bees or man do the extracting from plants, both products are natural sweeteners, and neither one in large amounts is advisable for individuals required to restrict their sweet intake.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am writing regarding your article on eggs versus high cholesterol (which I have) and what to do with the egg yolks.

I read an article in a movie magazine that some of the beauticians use the egg yolks like a mud pack for the face. I tried it and it really works.

Dear Reader—Thank you for your suggestion. Using egg yolks on the face won't affect the cholesterol intake of the diet and your suggestion that this might be one use for egg yolks for people who are trying to avoid them is appreciated. I can't speak for how effective they are as a mud pack but it surely wouldn't harm anyone who wants to try it.

NEW RATES* FOR CALLS ACROSS CANADA

The rate changes apply to Long Distance calls to many areas in Canada, as shown on the map. These changes do not affect Long Distance calls within Bell Canada territory in Ontario, Quebec, Labrador, and to some points in N.W.T.

MOST DIAL-DIRECT RATES REDUCED, MOST OPERATOR-HANDLED AND PERSON-TO-PERSON RATES INCREASED.

In every case, calls you dial yourself will cost less than operator-handled and person-to-person calls. The difference in cost between these calls is shown in the table of examples below. (Operator-handled calls include coin telephone, hotel-motel, collect, third number, time and charge requests, ZENITH, credit card and operator-preferred.)

FOR THE FIRST TIME ON CALLS ACROSS CANADA, A ONE-MINUTE RATE WHEN YOU DIAL DIRECT.

In our previous schedule for calls across Canada, the minimum long distance charge was for three minutes. In future, it will be for one minute, when you dial direct; you'll pay only for the number of minutes you use. The minimum for operator-handled and person-to-person calls will continue to be three minutes.

WHEN YOU DIAL DIRECT, EVENINGS, NIGHTS AND SUNDAYS, YOU GET REDUCTIONS FROM THE NEW REGULAR RATES.

These reductions apply to the total charge for dial-direct calls and, after the three-minute minimum, to "overtime" minutes on operator-handled calls. There are no reductions on person-to-person calls.

(If Direct Distance Dialing is not yet available where you live or in the community you are calling, the operator will place such a call at the dial-direct rates.)

Monday through Saturday	8 am to 6 pm	"Day" rate	regular charge
Monday through Saturday	6 pm to midnight	"Evening & Sunday" rate	30% off regular charge
Sunday	8 am to midnight
Daily	midnight to 8 am	"Night" rate	50% off regular charge (maximum rate, 30¢ a minute)

United Empire Loyalists meet at Frelighsburg

BEDFORD — An interesting day was spent on Sunday last at the meeting of the Sir John Johnson Centennial Branch of the United Empire Loyalists at Frelighsburg. The day opened with luncheon in the Town Hall, where the municipal council had provided tea and coffee at 11:30 a.m.

This was the fall meeting, so from 12:45 to 2:15 p.m. a short business meeting was held, conducted by the president Herbert Derrick of Lennoxville, who welcomed the guests.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary Miss Anne Hawke, which were accepted as read, preceded by a minute of silence in memory of departed members.

Three new members were welcomed to the Branch, Miss Patricia Chamberlain, Mr. L. Chamberlain and Mrs. Richard Craighead, by the president. Much information was gleaned from a panel discussion comprised of Mrs. Ruby Moore, of Stanbridge East, H. Derrick of Lennoxville and Donald MacCallum of Noyan, with Murray Mason of Fordyce as M.C.

Questions were received, among which was one regarding the descendants of the mercenaries, Hessian troop from Germany, which fought under Burgoyne's command in the American Revolution, whether their descendants could be classified as United Empire Loyalists, the answer was no. Many emigrated to Canada as life in the United States was not congenial. The Americans did not take kindly to their presence and they were not able to return to Hesse.

Another question was, could a member of the D.A.R. be a United Empire Loyalist, one can, but without voting privileges. Another pertinent question was the steps necessary to establish one's ancestry, as there were no birth records in early days, baptismal certificates were the only records at that time and they are no longer acceptable, the desired information may be obtained by sending $4.00 to Ottawa requesting a birth certificate.

Stewart Hawke, treasurer, was empowered to invest the Branch's funds in Canada Savings Bonds.

Mention was made of the interest taken in the United Empire Loyalists by the Montreal Gazette, which is most co-operative in publishing items, the paper has a column, which answers questions pertaining to genealogy, sent in.

An invitation was extended by Miss Marion Phelps of the Brome Museum to hold the annual meeting of the Branch at the Brome County Museum, which was accepted, the meeting to be held on the first Saturday in June.

The officers of the Branch are immediate past president, D.W. MacCallum, president, H.R. Derrick, 1st vice-president, D.W. MacCallum, 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Edith Shufelt, corresponding secretary, Mrs. Anne Beaulieu, recording secretary, Stuart Hawke, genealogist, Mrs. Ruby Moore, assistant genealogist, Mrs. Beryl Tremblay, standard bearer, Neil Creller, historian, Mrs. Mary McCutcheon, historian Murray Mason, publicity, Mrs. W.B. Bradshaw, aff. member representative, Dr. Carroll Salls, associated member representative, Mrs. Esther Mason.

The Branch has a membership of 150, and of this number some are in arrears for three, two and one year. It would be appreciated if this condition could be rectified.

The recording of cemeteries is underway, projects are underway to catalogue the Union Cemetery at Clarenceville and the Anglican cemetery at Sabrevois. The recording of St. Thomas' church at Noyan has been completed. Details of any other activities along these lines will be welcomed.

Following the business meeting, the members attended service in the Bishop Stewart Memorial Church, which has a long and interesting history. Bishop Stewart, after whom the church is named, came to Canada at the age of 32, the third son of the Earl of Galloway. His early life was spent in Scotland, a graduate of Oxford, and despite ill health, which troubled him all his life, he served the Anglican Church, or rather the Church of England, as it was known in the early days, faithfully and well.

He came to Frelighsburg in 1807, living for several years at Cook's Corner, where the house is still standing. The erection of the church was started in 1807 and the first service held in January, 1809.

Following Bishop Stewart's appointment as Bishop of Quebec, he was succeeded by the Rev. Mr. Reid, who for fifty years was rector of the parish. In 1880 the first church was pulled down and the present church built, the building of which took four years and cost $15,000.

The rector of the parish when the new church was built was Archdeacon Davidson, who also served for a long time and is buried in the parish cemetery. Some years after, the building of the church, a chapel was built in the church's basement, which is not used for services during the winter months. At one time Frelighsburg was predominantly English, but this is not the case today. In the porch of the church are three paintings of the Bishop, of Rev. Mr. Reid his successor and of Archdeacon Davidson.

There are many beautiful memorial windows in the church the one over the communion table with the two side windows being especially beautiful. The church was at one time known as the Cathedral of the Eastern Townships erected on a high hill, overlooking the surrounding country, it is built of brick. A unique feature of the church is the absence of pews, chairs being used. One of the treasured possessions of the church is a sterling silver communion set given to the church by George III.

Taking part in the church service was the Rev. Father Brosseau of Ste. Jeanne d'Arc parish, Stanbridge East and the Rev. A.B. Lovelace of Lennoxville. In his address Rev. Mr. Touse made mention of the fact that during the years two members of the congregation have served as organist for fifty years, the late Colonel Westover and Mrs. Mark Whitcomb, who was at the service on Sunday. The members of the color party were Neil Creller and L. Simpson.

Dufresne-Shorrock wed

A very pretty autumn wedding took place on October 7 at St. Luke United Church, 3480 Decarie Blvd., Montreal, when Miss Laury Shorrock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Shorrock of Montreal became the bride of Mr. Stephen Armand Dufresne, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Almonzor Dufresne of Sutton, Que.

Rev. A.G. Moore officiated at the double ring ceremony, while the church organist played the wedding music.

Flowers in the church were two large sprays of white gladiolas and yellow chrysanthemums. The guest pews were marked with white satin ribbon bows.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her father, who gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a long white silk dress with pinch pleating, on top a sleeveless matching coat with puritan collar and hood with a long train bordered in lace. She carried a cascade of pink carnations and orchids.

The maid of honor, Miss Melina Shorrock, sister of the bride, and the junior bridesmaid, Merrill Shorrock, also a sister of the bride, wore floor length dresses of plain blue chiffon tops and printed chiffon skirts over blue taffeta. Miss Melina carried a cathedral bouquet of pink carnations and star flowers. Miss Merrill who held the bride's train, had a nosegay of pink carnations and star flowers.

Mrs. Shorrock, mother of the bride, wore a floor length silk gown of navy, red and white and wore a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Dufresne, mother of the groom, wore a light blue floor length dress of imported satin made princess style and corsage of red roses.

Mrs. J. Shorrock, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. R.H. McKeel, godmother of the bride, each wore orchid corsages with their gowns.

The reception was held at Lee Charolais, 4988 Maisonneuve Blvd., Westmount. Several vases of flowers used with a three tier wedding cake, bell on top, columns between layers were white and blue. Roses around the bottom. The bride and groom made the initial cut in the cake.

Out of town relatives and friends were present from Washington, D.C., Sutton, Quebec, Montreal, Toronto and Ottawa, Ontario.

couldn't wait to redouble. If he hadn't, East would have. In late-night games after tournaments, all slam contracts are redoubled. North didn't like the redouble, but knew better than to take the sure loss at seven clubs. Anyway, Al just might have the heart contract set some way or other. When Al ran to six spades, West hopped on it with a roar. Al thought of redoubling, but decided that six doubled would be good enough. He ruffed the heart lead and led his four of trumps. West followed with his three-spot and, when East showed out, you could have heard the roar from players and kibitzers alike in the next county, if not the next state.

UCW meetings in the Townships

BULWER — The UCW met at the Lowd home with 15 members present and eight kitchen guests. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Murray Ward, the vice-president opened the meeting and led the devotional period, assisted by Mrs. Ralph Todd.

Two minutes silence for a departed member, Mrs. A.W. Laberee was observed.

Following routine business, committee reports were heard, showing activity on all fronts.

The Church had been nicely decorated with the Thanksgiving theme. The vegetables had been taken to a nearby nursing home, while the jams and jellies had been distributed to senior citizens.

It was decided to give money towards curing a leper. A new hymn book is to be ordered, in order to appraise its contents.

Mrs. R. Rothney gave a report on the Scotstown area rally at Cookshire.

Mrs. Ward conducted a lively discussion group.

Refreshments were served by the assisting hostess, Mrs. Howard Kerr and Mrs. Sidney Prescott.

BEDFORD — The U.C.W. of the Bedford Wesley Church held their monthly meeting in the church hall on Thursday, Oct. 19. Mrs. Ralph Oakes presided and opened the meeting with prayer. Correspondence consisted of an appeal from the Douglas Hospital for Christmas gifts for the patients (some 2000 will receive remembrances). A box has been placed at the rear of the church to receive articles for this purpose.

Several items of business were dealt with and after discussion it was agreed to hold a sale of home cooking, useful and fancy articles on Thursday, Dec. 7 from 3.30 to 9 p.m. in the church hall. In connection with the sale there will be a "Conversation Piece" exhibit. (Any one who has some unusual article or small collection are asked to contact Mrs. Oakes 248-3938 in the near future.) Refreshments will be available if desired during the afternoon or evening. The final half of 1972 M.S. allocation was paid. The 1973 calendars have been purchased also a study book on India.

Mrs. Iris Percy kindly consented to take over the program work from Mrs. Lake and will continue as the 1973 convener. Mrs. Percy presented a very enjoyable program on Church Week.

Most of the officers are serving the first year of a two year term, the few who had completed the two or more years graciously consented to continue for another year to save confusion for the new pastor Rev. Mr. Eddy and Mrs. Eddy. Rev. Eddy has just become pastor of the Bedford charge.

Officers for 1973 will be, immediate past president, Miss Lottie Casey, president, Mrs. Ralph Oakes, vice president, Mrs. Neil Creller, secretary, Miss Dorothy Perrault, treasurer, Mrs. William MacArthur, social convener, Mrs. Victor Norris, welfare and supply, Miss Lottie Casey, sales, Mrs. H.L. Ames rummage, Mrs. R. Robinson, manse, Mrs. Oakes, welcome, Mrs. R. Gasser, program, Mrs. A.B. Percy.

The next meeting will be on Nov. 16.

BEEBE — The October 2nd meeting of Unit Two, UCW was held in the church parlor, with a good attendance.

Mrs. E. Shepard opened the session with all repeating the UCW Purpose and Function.

Mr. R. Lewis led the devotional period. Routine report were accepted as read, the treasurer stated that $39.00 was realized from the dinner served at the Fall Rally. Shut-ins were remembered with cards.

It was decided to purchase pie servers for use at the church dinners. A donation of dishes has been received from Sunnyside School. Mrs. R. Lewis will be in charge of these projects.

The chicken-pie-supper on October 14 and the Hunter's Breakfast on October 28 were discussed. Committees were appointed for both.

A sick member is to be remembered.

The round robin was won by Mrs. A. Davio. The business meeting was adjourned.

A lack of communication has caused hard feelings in Magog. During the past summer a McGill study team was on Memphremagog, to study the pollution Vs. fish situation. It appears they received a "carte blanche" to net fish for this purpose. Reports have ranged from a few game fish to hundreds of good game fish being taken in these nets. The McGill team headed by Prof. Leggett denies these charges saying they took only two lake trout, two rainbows trout, 12 brown trout, 31 dore, 99 Chain Pickerel and 2,000 Perch as well as other cull fish. Anglers are saying that this isn't so and that many more were taken.

Now we come to the lack of communication. Members of the Memphremagog Conservation Inc. (Pollution) received a letter saying that the McGill team would be working on the Lake and asking their co-operation in monitoring the various scientific sites. The letter also said that this study would benefit the lake etc.

The Memphremagog F&G group were not notified of this carte blanche regarding the number of fish that would be taken. I also understand the conservation agents knew nothing of the study. Naturally it didn't take long for reports of netting operations to start and naturally the stories started.

I can understand the deep concern of the F&G group. They have spent thousands of dollars and man-hours preparing rearing ponds and trying to improve the lot of the angler. There has been a certain amount of friction between the two groups for many years and it would seem that a little discussion and communication between the two groups, government agencies and study teams would make the studies more effective.

Couldn't the angler have been asked to provide species from specific areas allowing him the sport and a feeling of pride in contributing to a better environment?

Deer season opened last Saturday and will close this Sunday for this area. The registration stations operated by the local Wildlife Service reported 48 deer brought in by hunters, 21 males, 12 females and 15 young plus two bears.

The stations will also be in operation this weekend at the following locations: Birchton in front of the garage, the parking lot at the rear of the Sherbrooke Arena, Parc street and in Magog next to the Tourist Office near the lake.

The stations are open from 9 a.m. - 8 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. Regular moose hunting figures have reached the 6,275 figure with 3,411 bulls, 2,267 females and 597 young making up the total.

Tighten medical checks, judge decides

WINNIPEG (CP) — Medical supervision before and during boxing matches should be tightened up, says a judge who investigated a boxing card that led to the death of Toronto fighter Stewart Gray and allegations that two other fights were fixed.

Judge Benjamin Hewak, named to look into the Feb. 21 card at Winnipeg Arena, also urged the creation of a central registry for ring records of all boxers. The report of his oneman commission was released Thursday by Recreation Minister Larry Desjardins.

In urging closer medical checks, the county court judge said there was no evidence to indicate the 27-year-old Gray, who died in hospital the day after the bout, had a previous injury that would have been disclosed by pre-fight examination.

Gray was knocked out in the seventh round by Al Sparks of Winnipeg, Canadian light heavyweight champion. He was taken to hospital by ambulance, and death resulted from a large brain stem hemorrhage secondary to traumatic brain injury.

DIED FROM BLOW

Judge Hewak's 133-page report, compiled after a series of public hearings, said:

"Simply put, it would appear that Mr. Gray died as a result of injuries sustained to his brain due to blows delivered by Mr. Sparks during the course of the boxing contest.

"None of the medical evidence established that there had been previous damage to Mr. Gray's brain which pre-existed this fight or that could have been detected through a medical examination conducted prior to the fight.

"Clearly there appeared to be no culpability on the part of Mr. Sparks or on the part of any of the doctors or medical staff."

On another point, the judge noted testimony that Gray was physically and mentally fit for the title bout with Sparks, despite having been involved in a minor traffic accident some weeks earlier.

He said the significance of the accident was quickly dismissed, because the incident was "extremely minor, consisting merely of property damage with no personal injury."

The report makes a number of recommendations on promotional and administration aspects of the Manitoba Boxing and Wrestling Act and Desjardins said these will be given a close look.

2 Galt teams in finals

LENNOXVILLE (AR) — Two Alexander Galt Regional High School teams, Leeds and Liverpool, battled in the finals of the ETIAC Bantam Soccer League with Leeds capturing the championship 3-1 in Wednesday action. Meanwhile the seniors took on Stanstead College in the soccer semi-finals and won 1-0.

Faced with an early 1-0 deficit, Leeds fought hard and finally scored in the second half. Neil Gerrish tallied twice for Leeds with Greg MacTavish marking the other point. Les Evans got the lone Liverpool goal.

Liverpool dominated the first half of the game but were outplayed in the second half. Coach Archie Quick of Liverpool said, "It was the best soccer played all year and I have to give credit to Leeds to bounce back after that first half."

Leeds coach, John Haller, summed his team's performance up saying, "We came back after trailing 1-0 and simply outlasted them." He added that Liverpool had played a very good game.

Honorable mention went to Guy Labrecque, Ricky Drew, Nicky Bean and Neil Gerrish, all of Leeds, and both coaches agreed that Larry Hart was the outstanding player in the game.

The seniors, on the other hand, played their first playoff game and defeated Stanstead College in the semi-finals, Gilles Gendron scored with help from Mike Skena.

Coach Rod McKell said happily after the game, "It was one of the better high school games I've seen this year, we had a lot of hustle and played extremely well."

"Steve Mooney and Mike Skena played very well," he added.

When questioned about facing Richmond Regional in the finals, McKell said he expects a tough fight.

Kings now reigning, Habs win

By IAN MACLAIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Wayne Cashman's pugilism on ice has had him in trouble before, but it's doubtful his absence has so effectively muzzled Boston Bruins as it did Thursday night.

Cashman, the aggressor, took a unanimous decision in his fight with Los Angeles rookie Don Kozak and was rewarded with a five-minute major penalty.

His manhandling of the Kings' player apparently aroused Kozak's team-mates because they wasted no time rapping four goals into the Boston net en route to a 5-2 win that moved the surprising victors atop the National Hockey League's West Division.

In nailing down their sixth straight win, the Kings moved into a lofty position they hadn't held since March 23, 1968.

HABS STILL UNBEATEN

Elsewhere Thursday, Montreal Canadiens stretched their unbeaten string to 13 games by beating Atlanta Flames 5-1 and Philadelphia Flyers defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2.

The defending Stanley Cup champion Bruins take their 5-4 record into Oakland tonight.

against the hapless California Golden Seals while Vancouver Canucks entertain New York Islanders in the only scheduled games.

It was strictly a one-sided fight between Cashman and Kozak. The Kings' winger, who didn't land a punch, drew a two-minute minor sentence.

But Los Angeles didn't waste any time. Veteran Ralph Backstrom scored two goals six seconds apart against Ed Johnston with the teams at even strength to break a 1-1 tie. Dallas Smith narrowed the margin to 3-2 but Bob Berry and Real Lemieux tallied with Cashman still in the penalty box to secure the win in front of 10,458 Los Angeles fans.

CLOSE RACE

The win gave the Kings 14 points and moved them one point ahead of Chicago Black Hawks who are one point up on Philadelphia. Atlanta is another point back in the keenly-contested division with Pittsburgh and Minnesota North Stars still in contention at 10 points apiece.

A major penalty also keyed the Montreal victory at Atlanta. Following a scoreless first period, the Flames' Kerry Ketter drew a high-sticking major infraction 47 seconds into the second period.

Before he returned, the Canadiens opened a 3-0 lead on scores by Marc Tardif, his first of two in the game, Frank Mahovlich and Chuck Arnason.

The Canadiens blister Atlanta goalie Phil Myre with 39 shots while Ken Dryden, who lost his shutout on Keith McCreary's score at 15:59 of the third period, faced only 22.

Bill Clement scored the winner and set up team-mate Bobby Clarke with an insurance score as Philadelphia vaulted over Atlanta in the West.

Both teams scored before the third period ended, the Sherbrooke goal coming off the stick of Desjardins after he teamed with Brisebois and Sylvan Parent in a picture passing play.

The Beavers outshot and outskated the sluggish Montreal squad despite having played a spirited game the previous night in Cornwall. About 600 fans were on hand for the game.

Perron leads Beavers' win

SHERBROOKE (AR) — Two goals by Renaud Perron and singles by Michel Brisebois, Mario Desjardins and Wes Wiseman led the Sherbrooke Beavers to a 5-1 triumph over the hapless Montreal Red, White and Blue in Quebec Major Junior League hockey action last night.

The Beavers took a 2-0 first period lead and never looked back. Following a scoreless second frame Sherbrooke outlasted Montreal 3-2 in the final 20 minutes to claim the victory.

Perron opened the scoring at the 12-minute mark of the first period when he deflected a point shot from Andre Leduc. It was only the third shot on net for the Beavers. Late in the same period Brisebois outskated the Montreal team after a pass from Gilles Lupien and beat Montreal goalie Nick Sanza with a low shot on the glove side.

Montreal managed to keep the Beavers off the scoresheet in the middle period only because Sherbrooke failed to capitalize on several good chances. Both teams managed 10 shots on goal during the period.

Sherbrooke took a 3-0 lead early in the final period. Wiseman scoring on a pass from Desjardins. Two minutes later Montreal narrowed the gap but the Red, White and Blue lost hope when Robert Fee put the puck in his own net. Perron was credited with the goal.

PGA evicted; can't keep trap shut anything to warrant termination of the lease."

The PGA's original 10-year lease runs through 1974.

TROUBLE AT START

"I've had trouble with the PGA since the day we met," said MacArthur, who has built Bankers Life and Casualty Co. into an institution with $500 million in assets.

"I don't think the PGA has ever lost its membership that I terminated negotiations on a new lease two years ago. I think its time the members knew," said MacArthur.

He charged that Frank Card, a candidate for PGA president, is running on a platform that includes cancellation of the lease.

Orlick countered that there was no effort on the part of the 18-man PGA governing body to break the lease and that he personally had given MacArthur a new lease proposal in March.

MacArthur said the PGA had been paying its $40,000-a-year lease for office space, but doesn't support the course year-round.

"We do have a year-round membership of very fine people who pay their annual dues and support the course year-round. They're entitled to some consideration."

Orlick said MacArthur's termination attempt will be discussed at the PGA executive meeting Nov. 10-17 in Beverly Hills, Calif.

The ski fashion show is scheduled in the usual Tuesday evening "Pot Luck" segment of the Magog Community School program. The show has been arranged by Shirley Whittaker, formerly of Magog and now representing Ski East throughout the eastern states and Canada. She will be joined by six ski gals: Nancy Podoriesz, Orford; Maureen Yeudall, Bromont; Paula Richardson, Owl's Head; Joanne Cote, Mt. Echo; Lucille Boulanger, Sutton; and a surprise guest.

Styles are more exciting than ever, Mrs. Whittaker said when describing her show, which will be presented in mid-November in Montreal. Her words were, "They're the hottest things in skiing today!"

A slogan for the show suggests everyone attend the show to see the clothes, equipment, what to do with it and how, and on top of this there is a good selection of door prizes to be given away. All proceeds are for the Magog community school.
