

The Great National Problem of Keeping the River St. Lawrence Open for Navigation During the Winter Season

THE TWENTY-SEVENTH PLATE IN THE STANDARD'S SERIES OF GREAT CATHEDRAL PICTURES—The west front of the Cathedral of Notre Dame at Rouen, France, an edifice which, although it was commenced in the 13th century, underwent so many alterations, restorations and extensions that it was not finished until the 16th century. It is in plan a Latin cross 427 feet in length, with aisles completely surrounding it and giving access to the three great chapels in the choir. The west facade and those of the transept are of extreme richness. The former has two charming side doorways of the close of the 12th century, a central doorway, a rose window, and countless arcades and Gothic pinnacles and turrets of the close of the 15th and the beginning of the 16th centuries. The width of the front is increased by the projection of the two towers; that on the left hand, the Tour St. Romain, was commenced about 1200, and raised to a greater height in 1465-1477; that on the right hand, the finer, has a height of 260 feet, and takes its name of Butter Tower from the fact that it was erected between 1485 and 1507 by means of the moneys paid by the faithful for permission to eat butter in Lent. The tombs of the English kings, Henry I. and Richard I., are features of this Cathedral.

Messrs. The Brantford Roofing Co.,
BRANTFORD, ONT.

Gentlemen,—

We have much pleasure in telling you frankly, that your Brantford Roofing, proved in our recent fire to be practically fire-proof.

The buildings that surrounded the burned barrel Factory, were covered with your one ply Roofing, and stood the intense heat, and shower of cinders, blowing directly on them by a very strong wind, splendidly, and saved the sheds from catching.

We might say, that no water was used on these sheds, and if your Roofing had not been fire-proof, they certainly would have burned.

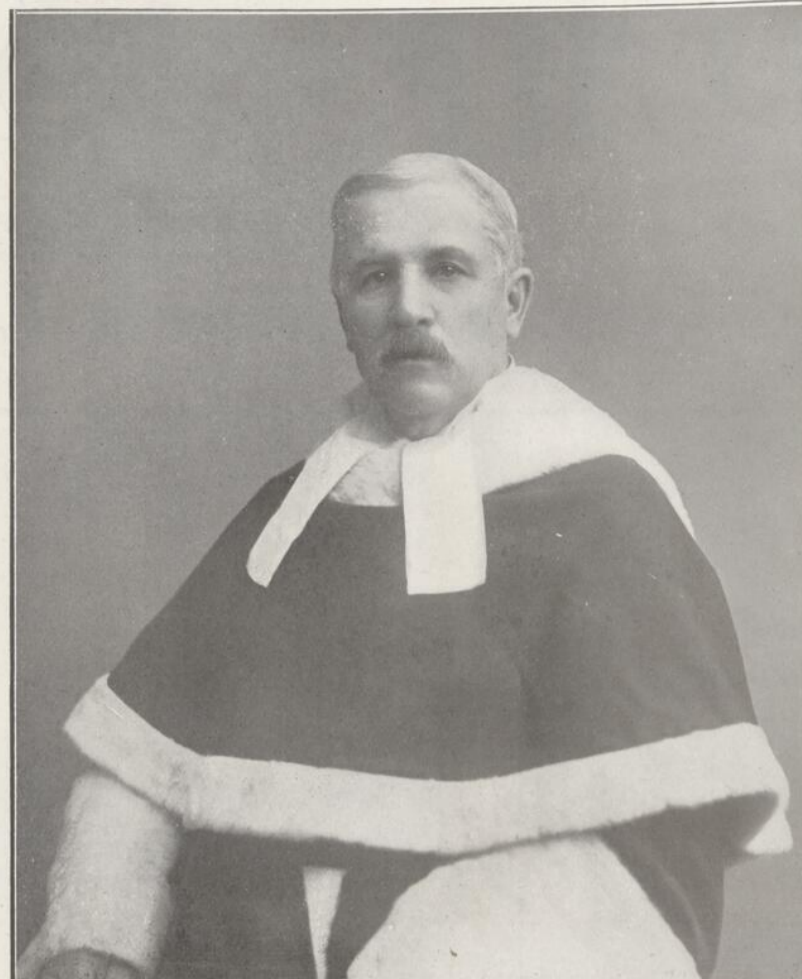

We assure you, that you do not exaggerate the quality of your goods; and Brantford Roofing, has been to us, all you claimed for it.

Yours faithfully,

THE RECENT FIRE IN THE STATE CAPITOL AT ALBANY, N.Y.—A view of the conflagration from a photograph taken at 3.30 in the morning. This photograph was made from the new educational building on Washington avenue, and shows the whole rear of the capitol, and the chimney that ran up through the roof above the State Library in the centre of the building. The high tower seen to the right fell about 5 a.m. The high tower dimly seen in the north-east was burning fiercely at 10 a.m., and fell shortly after. The State Library is between this tower and the high tower to the right. (Photo by Underwood and Underwood.)

This is the Crib You Want For Your Baby

QUALITY BABY'S CRIB No. 50

BEFORE you decide to buy a bed for your baby remember that there are two kinds of children's beds.

One is made merely to sell at a low price. The other is made to give good and lasting service, is correct in style and finish, and sold at a modest price that anyone can afford to pay. This is the kind of child's crib that bears the "Quality" trade mark.

Quality Beds

for children are perfect all the way through, down to the smallest details. More care or better material couldn't be used in its construction even if we asked twice as much for it.

For instance, all the exclusive features of superiority which have made Quality Beds for adults famous are embodied in the Child's crib.

It includes all the points of excellence that you wouldn't expect to find only in beds selling for twice our price.

THE LATE REV. J. PHILLIP DUMOULIN, LORD BISHOP OF NIAGARA, who recently passed away rather suddenly in Hamilton, Ont. The late Bishop Dumoulin was born in 1836 in the city of Dublin, Ireland, and was an undergraduate of the famous college that has sent forth so many brilliant men into all parts of the world. Not long after leaving Trinity, the Bishop came to Canada, was ordained by the late Bishop Cronyn, of Huron, and was appointed to a curacy at London, Ont. He next went to Galt, then to Trinity Church, Montreal. In 1866 he became assistant to the Rev. Canon Ellagood at the Church of St. James the Apostle, and in 1871 became rector of St. Thomas' Church, Hamilton. In 1875 he returned to the diocese of Montreal as rector of St. Martin's Church. In 1882 he was appointed rector of St. James' Church, Toronto, where he remained until elected Bishop of Niagara in 1896. For some time before his death he was in ill-health. considering a Bill permitting a prisoner condemned for capital crime to poison

Chronicle points out that Reno, as is well-known, is the greatest divorce centre in the world, and the "divorce colony" is celebrated for the large number of Eastern Society people it contains from time to time. By State law six months' residence is sufficient for the purposes of divorce. The defeat of the measure was received with immense rejoicing, and telegrams were rushed to New York and other eastern centres stating that Nevada's divorce law would not be altered. Reno attorneys say that a large number have been awaiting the action of the Legislature before deciding to start for Nevada, and the defeat of the Bill means an influx of newcomers.
