SAQ's draft wine makes good 'vin ordinaire'

Jules Lefebvre demonstrates how easy it is to get decent wine inexpensively with the SAQ's new wine-on-tap feature.

I find myself in a bit of a quandary. Like so many wine drinkers in the province of Quebec I am still furious over the recent price hikes announced by the Société des Alcools. So furious in fact, that I find it difficult to recommend any product of the SAQ even if it is probably a good one.

Which brings me to the the Société's latest innovation — draft wine.

As most of you are undoubtedly aware, the SAQ has begun selling wine on tap at selected outlets throughout the province. Here in Sherbrooke, the wine is available at the King West branch of the SAQ.

The system is simplicity itself. The customer merely brings his own 750ml or 1 litre bottle to the store and one of the staff will fill it for him or her. If you haven't got an empty bottle kicking around the house, don't worry. The SAQ will sell you one for 35 cents that you can use again and again.

The wines — one white, one red — are blends of several different Spanish wines and are both quite palatable. Although lacking in discernible bouquet, both have a reasonable viscosity, a clear color and a not unpleasant taste. They are also a trifle acidic and the white will bear considerable chilling.

The prices of the wines however — $3.75 per bottle or $4.95 per litre

Wine Bits

— are low enough to mask a variety of sins and make them both worthy 'vin ordinaires'. It also makes it financially possible to drink wine on an everyday basis and at the very least will give you a far better appreciation of a good wine when you have one.

The experiment will continue for two months after which the SAQ will evaluate the potential market and decide whether to continue the program. Until then, sale of the draft wine will be restricted to the one outlet here in Sherbrooke.

Best of all, for once you don't have to take my word for it. In its pamphlet describing the project, the SAQ encourages would-be customers to try a sample before they buy. A word of advice however. Don't go back too many days in a row. With only one store selling the fill-yourself wine, they are bound to recognize you. Cheers!

MODENA, Italy (AP) — Tenor Luciano Pavarotti celebrated a quarter-century of success with a hometown performance of the same role he sang as the young winner of a competition in 1961.

The crowd in Modena's Teatro Comunale applauded for nearly 10 minutes at the end of the first act of La Bohème, in which Pavarotti sang the role of Rodolfo.

Playing the other principal roles were young singers who won last fall's Luciano Pavarotti Opera Co. of Philadelphia International Voice Competition.

NEW YORK (AP) — The secret to comedy, Bob Hope told a seminar, is timing, and he proved he is still a master.

Comic timing "is the most mysterious thing of all," Hope, 83, told a session Tuesday at the Museum of Broadcasting.

"There's no way you can teach it. You have to be born with it."

And he knows good timing when he sees it. Last week, he said, during the fruitless opening of Al Capone's vault, a television announcer remarked, "Maybe he saved dirt."

"He knocked me off the chair," Hope said.

Brent Cairns brings his magic touch to Galt stage

By Laurel Sherrer

LENNOXVILLE — You'd think an audience of small children would be a magician's dream.

Not so, says Ives Hill magician Brent Cairns.

"The kids always want to know how it's done," said Cairns. "They're always out to get you. The older ones don't care how it's done; they just enjoy the entertainment."

Cairns, who turns 21 Saturday, has been performing magic tricks since about age 13, most of which he learns from reading and watching other magicians on TV.

"I've worked up from packs of cards, and now I saw my assistant in half," he said.

For several years now he's kept busy with about three magic shows a month for elementary schools, various clubs and even weddings. But he doesn't do birthday parties. "When they're in their own house they're all over you," he said.

A show planned for this Sunday at Alexander Galt is the most spectacular production Cairns and his crew have ever attempted, and probably will last a long time, he says. It will go on for at least an hour and a half, with music, spotlights and drumrolls to accompany many tricks Cairns has never performed before in public.

ADAPTS TO STAGE

Cairns has adapted his talents to the stage with a good supply of pocket tricks, stage tricks and large-scale illusions. These, of course, are all magician's terms that may not mean anything to the uninitiated.

Pocket tricks are those that use cards or other such small objects, and which are just as effective when performed right under the spectator's nose. Stage tricks require some kind of props, but not so big that they can't be carried out onto the stage. Large-scale illusions generally involve large objects such as boxes that have to be rolled out before the audience. These are better if not viewed too closely.

Among the large-scale illusions Cairns performs is one where his assistant is hand-cuffed, placed in a bag and locked into a trunk. Briefly shielded by a curtain, Cairns and the assistant change places within seconds.

Cairns is a carpenter by trade, which is handy when it comes to constructing his equipment. "You can buy the equipment, but the cost is unreal," he said. The box used for sawing his assistant in half would have cost him $1300 to buy, but he made it for $200. He makes about a third of his equipment himself.

Good equipment and practice are important in creating illusions, but presence of mind is essential. Things don't always go exactly as planned.

"I usually have a line ready," said Cairns.

SUCKER TRICKS

Then for the precocious youngsters, or even adults, who insist on calling out that they know how you did that, there are "sucker tricks" to put them back in their place. For example, you make it look like you've clumsily hid something away somewhere, let them start to heckle, and then make the object reappear in an unexpected place.

Cairns watches other magicians whenever he can, and particularly admires David Copperfield. "I've always watched him on TV," he said. "When I see him perform an illusion I have to buy it or build it." (Magicians have to purchase the right to perform certain tricks.)

He tries to keep the secret behind his tricks to himself where possible, but his assistants have to be let in on most of them. Christine Batley and Nicholas Shattler assist him on stage, while his sister Marlene works back-stage. A three-piece band will create atmosphere for this Sunday's show. All proceeds from the show will go to the Lennoxville-Ascot Historical Society for its project to buy property for a museum and cultural centre.

The show starts at 2 p.m. and tickets are $4 for adults, $2.50 for children under 12. They can be purchased in advance at the Christian Reader Bookstore in Lennoxville.

RECORD-PERRY BEATON

In one of his more complicated large-scale illusions, magician Brent Cairns saws assistant Christine Batley in half.

Artists honored in Montreal show

MONTREAL — Townships watercolorists Mary Martin, of Dunham, and Denis Palmer, of Sawyerville, have received honorable mentions at one of Canada's most prestigious juried art shows.

Martin and Palmer received recognition from the Society of Canadian Watercolorists, whose Salon du Printemps exhibit concluded May 4 at the Centre Guy Favreau in Montreal. Martin's painting 'Spring Barn' received 12 out of 15 votes, leaving her just short of the three cash awards.

Fifty-six artists were selected for the competitive exhibit, from among 275 applicants who submitted 425 paintings. The 56 were represented by one painting each, displayed alongside works by 25 of the 31 S.C.W. members.

Acceptance into the Salon du Printemps exhibit was the first step toward admission into the S.C.W. for both Martin and Palmer, who would be the first locals included in what amounts to a 'Hall of Fame' for Canadian watercolorists.

The two must now win acceptance into the same exhibit again next year. After that, they will have five paintings of their choice reviewed by the whole S.C.W. membership, who will vote thumbs up or down.

Among 14 candidates for admission this year, only five were accepted.

'You can lead a horticulture, but you can't make her think'

The Little Brown Book of Anecdotes, Clifton Fadiman General Editor (LITTLE, BROWN-McCLELLAND & STEWART): 751 pp.

If, as an observer once stated, "one anecdote of a man is worth a volume of biography", then the volume that Clifton Fadiman has assembled is a gigantic treasure trove of biography indeed. Fadiman, a Book-of-the-Month Club judge for over forty years, originally conceived of an idea of doing for the anecdote what Bartlett's has done for the quotation, and this gathering of well over 4,000 anecdotes by more than 2,000 famous people is the result.

It goes beyond the scope of literary anecdotes to include memorable little stories about everyone from Yogi Berra to Richard Nixon, and manages to place funny bits about Casey Stengel and Laurence Sterne on the same page of text. Fadiman selects this short gem about the old professor: "In his old age, Stengel was asked how he was doing. He sighed and said, 'Not bad. Most people my age are dead. You could look it up.'"

Some of the most entertaining anecdotes come from the most unexpected sources. For instance, when Dorothy Parker was asked to use the word 'horticulture' in a sentence, she replied, "You can lead a horticulture, but you can't make her think."

A sure source of comic quips would be the Marx Brothers in any context, and Chico doesn't fail to score with a laugh: "Marx's wife had caught him kissing a chorus girl. During the ensuing row, Chico declared: 'I wasn't kissing her. I was whispering in her mouth.'"

This book is the kind of casual reading that never fails to reward a browser with the following type of short, amusing tale, whether apocryphal or not: "While performing at a nightclub in a seaside town, early in his career, Jackie Gleason stayed at a local boardinghouse. Finding himself unable to pay the rent, he devised a way of escaping from his lodgings without raising suspicion. He packed up his belongings, lowered the suitcase out of his bedroom window into the arms of a waiting friend, then strolled nonchalantly out of the house in his swimming trunks, heading for the beach.

"Some three years later, anxious to pay off his debt, he returned to the boardinghouse. The landlady, recognizing him at once, stepped back in horror as if she had seen a ghost. 'Oh, my Lord' she exclaimed. 'I thought you were drowned.'"

The range of anecdotes in this collection encompasses the kinds of short tables that make it into Henny Youngman's repertoire of stand-up comedian's jokes, such as the Dylan Thomas story: "There is a story of Thomas's friend in the funeral parlour, who looked down at the poet's painted face, loud suit, and carnation in his buttonhole, only to declare, 'He would never have been seen dead in it.'" Or the Pierre Elliot Trudeau memory: "Trudeau faced some criticism when opposition members learned that anonymous donors were financing a new swimming pool at the prime minister's official residence in Ottawa. 'You may come over at any time to practice your diving,' Trudeau told one of his opponents. 'Even before the water is in.'"

Kaleidoscope

Whether the anecdotes in this thick book originate with statesmen, kings, buffoons, writers, politicians, cinema stars or baseball players there is one common thread of humanity linking them all together—and a more than generous amount of satirical comedy which Clifton Fadiman's ear for a memorable anecdote preserves for the satisfied reader.

RECORD REVIEWS

Let's Active BIG PLANS FOR EVERYBODY (I.R.S.-MCA)

He's known as the innovative producer for Georgia's enigmatic group R.E.M., but Mitch Easter has now been associated with a couple of projects leading to albums by Let's Active, a band that gives a fan club address of Waterbury, Connecticut on the cover of their latest record. BIG PLANS FOR EVERYBODY is more of Easter's inventive engineering on 11 quite individual differentiated songs and sounds—there's a track that sounds like the freaky guitar tones that John Lennon was putting on a few of the late REVOLVER tracks such as "Tomorrow Never Knows" or "She Said She Said", but the orientation of the Let's Active tracks is not toward imitation.

Flickers of Byrd's riffs, Dylan phrasings and Beatles chord shifts may play across the Mitch Easter tracks but the album is an important response by an American band to match the experimentation coming out of Britain. Let's Active needs a Top 40 single to join Katrina and the Waves as purveyors of fresh new sounds that push the four instrument frontiers out a bit further. Some of the instrumentation on these densely textured tracks features an essentially folksy style of acoustic and electric guitars, with enough ingenuity on the mixing to blend them into some strange, catchy effects.

If Let's Active was a band playing the late sixties they would be branded an "underground" group, which means that they have a substantial, loyal following and push out a great deal of fine music, all without the dubious benefit of having scored a commercial hit record—like R.E.M. They don't seem to let the latter minor hitch keep them from making outstanding records.

Journey RAISED ON RADIO (COLUMBIA)

The leading edge in America's corporate rock players, Journey, check back in with a carefully groomed, pre-sold album that may just happen to have the digital data between the grooves to match the hype that will be set up for this rock giant's latest coming.

Steve Perry, the diminutive vocal presence with Journey, has managed to prune all the influences of Santana from the band's program, with the result a synthetic, over-layered attempt to make more sound like best.

The single "Be Good To Yourself" throws every cliché of singing and playing into the fray, drops in a Neal Schon extended, groaning guitar solo, but the entire recipe may be something that teen record buyers will feel that they have heard before.

RAISED ON RADIO is a pre-programmed record in every sense—the single has been picked, the ballad pulled, and the title track is being touted as a tune that features the titles of the most memorable songs in rock history in its lyrics, a "Radio Ga Ga" or "Rock and Roll Heaven" for the mid-80s. The only real problem with the track is that the vocal mix is so muddy you can scarcely hear the lyric—but that's perhaps a blessing, because how serious can you get about lines like "When we found our thrill on Blueberry Hill, we wrote our love letters in the sand"? There's a lesson here—Journey seems to feel that rock and roll is the trappings of extended riffs on blazing guitars or repeated inane lyrical touchstones that will trigger instant success. Luckily it's much more, but to explain it to Journey would be like having to repeat Louis Armstrong's reply to the innocent who inquired "What is Jazz," to which the Satch responded something along the lines of, "If you have to ask, you might as well not even bother!"

VIDEO SCREENINGS

THE COCA COLA KID (MALIBU VIDEO)

Those who were impressed with the hyper-maniac performance of Eric Roberts as the cool Greenwich Village Italian goombah who played so well against Mickey Rourke in The Pope of Greenwich Village will be surprised at his laid back role in the sleeper The Coca Cola Kid.

Roberts plays a corporation hot-shot from Coke's Atlanta headquarters who is dispatched to the wilds of Australia to find out why one solitary valley in the outback is holding out against the relentless onslaught of the universal solvent. With the attractive aid of newcomer Greta Scacchi, Roberts is directed by Dusan Makavejev in this sometimes slowly developing movie which is just odd enough to keep the view wondering where it's headed.

Songs by Tim Finn, former leader of Commonwealth rock group Split Enz, add an authentic musical edge to this quirky, provocative film that has some clever moments of satire.

VISION QUEST (WARNER BROTHERS VIDEO)

The steel-town settings of Flasdance and All The Right Moves have shifted to Spokane, Washington for Vision Quest, and the plots revolving around jazz ballet and football are replaced by high school wrestling in this teen movie NOT directed by mogul John Hughes. Harold Becker directs Matthew Modine as Loudon Swain, as the rugged looking young man battles against himself to prove that he can be a successful wrestler in a weight class about 10 pounds below his own level. When Swain and his single-parent father adopt a wayward young lady drifter (Linda Fiorentino) named Carla, there's a different kind of a love angle in this film, as the wrestler sweats to beat the weight and tries at the same time to make any kind of impression on the frosty, sophisticated Carla. Lots of beaty rock music as a backdrop to this picture, ensuring that this quest to win double favours in sport and love will be the kind of thing the under-25 set that flocks to movies adores.

Mozart's Requiem:

Moulding the next word, syllable into perfection

By Laurel Sherrer

SHERBROOKE — Conductor Jean-François Séart has made the pianist go through the introduction eight or ten times to achieve the right tempo and emphasis, and now the choir is poised to deliver the first solemn syllable of Mozart's Requiem in a practice for this weekend's performance.

They've scarcely hit the note when Séart cuts them off. Something about how the vowel sound wasn't quite right. They try it several times before moving on to mould the next syllable and word into perfection.

It's not as if the Ensemble Vocal de Sherbrooke hasn't sung the Requiem before. In March they joined the Montreal Choir and the Metropolitan Orchestra of Greater Montreal to perform this final work of Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, and they've been practising it on their own in Sherbrooke for months.

But such is Séart's demand for precision — precision that will be even more essential in the Sherbrooke performance because the choir is accompanied only by piano rather than by a full orchestra. This makes each of the 35 members particularly attentive to his or her own performance.

MORE DANGEROUS

"It means it's more dangerous for the choir," says Marc Bernier, a bass who has been a member since the choir was founded in 1984. "You can't allow yourself to make a small error."

The spring concert of the Ensemble Vocal takes place at 8:30 p.m. Saturday, May 3 in the Saint-Jean-Baptiste church in Sherbrooke.

The concert will also include Johann Sebastian Bach's Jesu, meine Freude.

"The Ensemble Vocal concert will allow amateurs in music to observe the contrasting attitudes of two musical giants toward death," says director Séart in a press release.

Bach's work, he goes on to say, "doesn't deal with death in its tragic and anguished dimension, but rather as a source of joy — the joy of reunion with Christ beyond the ultimate threshold."

"The steadfast faith and mystical serenity of Bach gives way, in Mozart's Requiem, to the full

"The steadfast faith and mystical serenity of Bach gives way, in Mozart's Requiem, to the full scope of the human drama."

scope of the human drama," Séart continues. "The action takes place on earth and the heart of man is his only hell. We find there both fear of the punishment of damnation, and the hope of being heard by God, of having prayers answered, of being saved in the end."

DEATH APPROACHING

"Composed at the very moment when Mozart felt his own death approaching, the Requiem becomes a moving witness to the anxiety that gripped him and the hope he maintained for the salvation of his soul."

Technically, says bass soloist Bernier, the Requiem is the easier of the two.

"It's not extremely difficult to sing as far as the notes are concerned, but as far as the feeling that must be put in the music, it's quite difficult," he says. The Bach piece is more complicated, particularly since it's sung in German.

The choir will be accompanied in the Mozart work by pianist Renée Gilbert and in the Bach by Thérèse Laflamme on the organ. Hélène Martin, soprano, Lucie Roy, alto, Denis Boudreault, tenor, and Bernier, bass, will sing the solo parts of the Requiem.

DIFFERENT DIRECTION

The Ensemble Vocal was formed in September, 1984, by a group of people who left the Choeur Symphonique de l'Université de Sherbrooke to take a slightly different direction with their music, Bernier explains. Among other things, they wanted to do pieces that didn't require a full orchestra.

Since then the choir has recorded Bach's cantata no. 191 Gloria in excelsis Deo, which has been broadcast by Radio-Canada and will soon record Bach's Jesu, meine Freude for the Société Radio-Canada. They also performed the choral part of the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra's first concert of the 1985-86 season.

Conductor Jean-François Séart also directs the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra and the Radio-Canada choir, and has conducted the Montreal Symphony Orchestra on occasion, among other accomplishments.

For its weekly practices, the choir relies on Sister Fleur-Ange Morin, who has been instructing young people in piano and voice in the Sherbrooke area for the past 45 years.

Jean-François Séart conducts the choir for performances and major rehearsals prior to concerts, but leaves the task to Sister Fleur-Ange Morin the rest of the time.

Blue-shinned subway traveller discovers big-time opera

By Patti Tasko

TORONTO (CP) — Two little girls are squirming and giggling as they're painted blue. Nearby, a middle-aged man with a blue face has makeup artists laughing as he tells about the stares from fellow subway passengers the day he forgot to remove body paint from his shins before heading home.

Such things happen when you mix ordinary folk with grand opera — as the Canadian Opera Company is doing with its production of Verdi's Aida, a tale of tragic love in ancient Egypt.

About 100 supernumeraries — opera's word for extras — were hired to act as guards, soldiers and blue-skinned Ethiopians in the elaborate production. People who by day are bus drivers, businessmen and mechanics sweep on to the stage beside stars Leona Mitchell, Livia Budai and Ernesto Veronelli.

The supers give up about 14 nights of their lives, allow themselves to be poked and prodded by makeup and costume artists, then wait up to three hours at each performance for their brief 10 minutes of glory on the O'Keefe Centre stage.

Then it's back to the basement to remove the costumes, scrub off the makeup and finally head home.

PAY NOT GRAND

Why would anyone do this for a measly $6.50 a night?

The love of opera and the thrill of being on stage is enough of a reward for more than half of the 400 people who responded to the company's call for able-bodied supers, says co-ordinator Brian Pearcy.

Others are aspiring actors who want a chance — any chance — to work with professionals and add to their resumes. The remainder know nothing about opera and couldn't care less — they're just looking for a lark.

Super Peter Nobel, a quiet-spoken business executive by day and a black soldier by night, is an opera lover. Aida happens to be his favorite.

"I had an opportunity to see things behind the stage," he explains in a faintly Hungarian accent while waiting in the crowded wings for his grand entrance.

"I don't know if it's worth it," he acknowledges, "but I would suggest anyone who loves opera to do it. But I don't think I'll do it again because of the time it takes."

The biggest thrill for Nobel was rubbing shoulders and having a chat with singer Budai, a fellow Hungarian.

HIS ROLE SUPER

In the hierarchy of supers — some of whom are as sensitive about their roles as the most egotistic soprano — Nobel struck it rich. As a black soldier, he gets away with wearing the minimum of makeup — a tan base — and is on stage three times.

At the bottom of the pecking order are the blue-skinned Ethiopian prisoners. They must have their faces, ears, arms, legs and feet painted blue. There are a couple of dozen, and they do nothing on stage but lie around and look sad.

In the middle are the less numerous red soldiers, who only need their faces — but not ears — painted. Aspiring actor Michael Gabris, 27, confides he wormed his way from being a run-of-the-mill red soldier into the lead position, as well as the extra duty of standard-bearer.

"You just try to be available," he says.

LEADS THE BLUES

Burly bus driver Edward Indrilunas is a blue prisoner, but he wastes no time in letting a reporter know he is the most important because he leads the group on stage.

The plain-spoken Indrilunas, 34, is an opera novice but says the company doesn't work much differently than the amateur theatre groups his wife got him involved in.

He doesn't get nervous for two reasons.

"I'm a bus driver so I'm used to having people watch me," he explains. "And I don't have my glasses on (on stage) so I don't get stage fright."

HIRED OFTEN

Many operas require supers but usually fewer than 40, says Pearcy, who has co-ordinated supers for the opera company for about five years.

"We've never really had a disaster with supers," he says. "Ninety-nine per cent take it very seriously, fortunately for us."

The cost of hiring professional actors for the roles would be prohibitive, he says. "As it is, the supers (in Aida) cost about $12,000."

Repeat supers are wise to the pitfalls of the sport. They know enough to ask in advance if rehearsals will interfere with holidays or if they'll have to shave off their moustaches.

Most supers enjoy opening night, start getting bored by the third performance, and, Pearcy says, "by the sixth night it's 'Oh God, do I have to?'"

The single-digit hello on banknotes?

Oh joy, Oh rapture! Canadians are going to get new bank notes. And although the faces will be much the same, the poses will be different. According to the Bank of Canada, the reason behind the change is to make our currency less susceptible to counterfeiting. (You have to wonder who would want to counterfeit a Canadian dollar given its present value, but that's another story.)

Anyway, if the central bank is going to do this, why not go the whole way and give us some up to date Prime Ministers on the bills. Perhaps for the one dollar bill, a photo of Pierre Trudeau's now famous single-digit greeting to B.C. protestors. And what about Joe Clark on the five. A nice photo of him counting his support at the last leadership convention would probably do (the twenty is out since a former Prime Minister with his shoes and socks off would be silly). Ideally for the two dollar bill the bank could use the classic photo of John Turner patting Iona Campagnolo's backside — providing both cheeks were clearly visible.

Brian Mulroney couldn't very well be left out so why not put him on the ten along with any nine of his cabinet ministers or advisors who have been forced to resign since he formed the government. (This bill could be particularly attractive to collectors if the flip side displayed one of those quintessentially Canadian nature scenes — perhaps a Tuna rampant on a field of Suzanne Blais-Grenier's travel claims.)

It didn't take Robert Fisher (you remember, he used to be called Bobby when he worked for us), long to carve out a new niche for himself with the Quebec CBC. Thanks to his good friend and former colleague, Peter 'Son of Reed' Scowen — also of the CBC — Bobby's been given his first important assignment. While Peter lolls around the National Assembly on budget night, Bobby, oops, Robert will wait outside in his car ready to wisk Peter off to the studio to file his report. Given Fisher's previous track record with automobiles, the one block-ride could be the most exciting part of budget night for Scowen.

By TADEUSZ LETARTE

Talk about not being wanted. Ferdinand Marcos, the only man to force Century 21 to admit defeat, still can't find a place to live. Marcos is presently domiciled in Hawaii but rumor has it the United States government would just as soon have him go elsewhere and the feeling is apparently mutual. Marcos' most recent rejection came from the Caribbean Island of St. Vincent where Ferdinand and his lovely wife Imelda — who has more shoes than the entire population of St. Vincent — attempted to buy an island retreat. The offer of $65 million represents St. Vincent's GNP but happily there are still people who can't be bought.

One final note. The Record is busy trying to confirm reports of the Weeping Queen of North Hatley. According to a spokesman for the North Hatley post office, tears have been seen emanating from a photo of Her Majesty, Elizabeth II which hangs on the post office wall. The tears, which are visible on the Queen's cheek and chin, were first observed shortly after the celebration of Her Majesty's 60th birthday. Unconfirmed reports claim that since the phenomena occurred not one letter, post card or piece of junk mail has been lost.

ners, chosen out of six participants, were the same as last year's.

Jean-Benoit Nadeau of Sherbrooke received the first prize of $300 for his play La maladie du bonheur. This tells the story of a young couple having trouble with their relationship, but who go through a process of conjugal renewal. Nadeau won last year with his Graziella.

1, 2, 3 Beach...party took second place, winning Garthby author Sylvie Dolbec a prize of $200. This examines the interpersonal dynamics of two couples from the same neighborhood who run into each other on a trip to Mexico. Dolbec also won second prize last year for her Thérapie sur canapé.

The $100 third prize was awarded to Patrick Georges of Sherbrooke for his play, Le blues du fonctionnaire, which relates a voyage into the dream-world of a small boy.

The winners were chosen by a jury of four: Agnès Bastin, president of the Association of Eastern Townships Authors; Jacques Jobin, an actor and writer involved in Townships theatre; Denys Caron and Isabelle Boisclair, members of the Théâtre Entre Chien et Loup board of directors. Participants used pseudonyms to avoid personal bias among the jury.

At a press conference Tuesday, the theatre company also unveiled its new logo, featuring one paw-print each of a wolf and a dog in white on a black background.

The winners were chosen on the basis of whether the play's theme was something the general public would relate to, the dramatic structure, the clarity of the psychology, the realism of the dialogue, the practical considerations of producing the play on stage and originality, among other considerations.

The contest was started in 1983-84 by the Théâtre Entre Chien et Loup in collaboration with the Association of Eastern Townships Authors with the goals of stimulating dramatic writing in the Townships, encouraging authors in their work and letting everyone have a chance to try out their drama-writing skills.

WHAT'S ON

Music

The Sherbrooke Youth Orchestra will give its final concert this Sunday at 8 p.m. in the Salle Maurice O'Bready on the University of Sherbrooke campus. Directed by Jacques Clément, this group of young people will perform works by Handel, Scarlatti, Gluck, Strauss, Buxtehude, Chaminade and Mendelssohn. The concert will also feature soloists Anick Lessard on the flute and Caroline Ballivy on the recorder.

This, unfortunately, happens at the same time as the Ensemble Vocal de Sherbrooke performs Mozart's Requiem and Bach's Jesu, meine freude in the Saint-Jean-Baptiste Church at 280 Conseil St., Sherbrooke, starting at 8:30. This concert offers two musical approaches to death, according to Jean-François Sénart, who will be conducting. You can read more about it on page 5.

Now where to put opera in this column poses a problem: Is it music or is it theatre? For now I'll slip it in here. The Montreal West Operatic Society is bringing its production of the Mikado to the Haskell Opera House in Derby Line/Rock Island for performances at 3 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday. The operatic society usually performs in the city of Montreal, but for this occasion has help from the Rotary Club of the Boundary to enable it to bring the Mikado to Rock Island. The Mikado is a Gilbert and Sullivan opera with an inexplicably complicated plot, so I won't go into it. If there are tickets left you can get them by calling (802) 873-3029 or (819) 876-2367.

Julien Lennon will be appearing in Montreal June 13, I've just heard, and if you want to get tickets, they'll be on sale starting tomorrow at the Forum box office and all ticketron outlets. Better hurry!

La Maltonière on Wellington North in Sherbrooke continues its first anniversary celebrations this weekend with Tres Hommes playing their tribute to ZZ Top Saturday and Sunday starting at 9 p.m. Admission is $5 and there's some kind of surprise you've just got to be there for, they tell me.

The Good Ole Boys, Ray St. Laurent and Lyndon Sheldon, move over to La Bretagne in Waterville this weekend, playing their country music tonight and Saturday night from 9 p.m. on. They'll be there for the rest of the month.

The Domaine RSVP in Sawyerville has Rod Bray and the Countrymen on stage once again this Saturday. They generally play country music, but mix in a bit of early rock and roll or rhythm and blues depending on the crowd. The music starts at 9:30 there and this time the proceeds from the evening are going to the Compton County Historical Society Expansion Fund. Tickets are $2.50.

If you've got the grit to navigate Route 116 which is badly rutted due to repairs to the sewage system, you might want to check out the Danville Curling Club where Country Plus are featured this Saturday night. I'm told they play country music both old and new, sometimes letting a little rock and roll slip into their repertoire.

Mike Goodsell will spend one more weekend at the Shady Crest in Ayer's Cliff, performing mostly dance music. You can hear him there tonight and Saturday night from 9:30 to 2:30 and Sunday from 3:30 to 9:30.

Ramblin Fever-Bigfoot returns to Hee Haw Countryin Magog this weekend, playing tonight and Saturday starting at 9:30. You'll find them there until the end of May.

Station 88 in South Stukely has country-western music by the Kon-kordes Fridays and Saturdays from 9:30 for the whole month of May.

The Montreal band Pirate was such a hit last week at the Bar Salon Burrough's Falls that they're back by special demand. "They play anything from Rolling Stones to Brian Country duo Jerry and Jo'Anne will appear on Radio-Canada's Vedettes en Direct next week. See Television column.

Adams to Top 40 commercial rock," says John Holly, part of the new administration there.

The Maples in Stanstead will have country western music by Whiteliner throughout the month of May, every Friday and Saturday night.

"Rock and roll is back at the Hideaway," says Calvin over at the F.L. Hideaway in Lennoxville. Tonight and tomorrow night it's the Stephen Barry Blues Band with special guest star Johnny 'Big Moose' Walker on the piano. There's an admission fee of $2.

Jim Lawrence, at the Burning Log Bistro near Mansonville, promises a "really super evening" this Saturday when Ron Phendler and Phil Shepherd return. These two have quite a diverse repertoire including ragtime, classical and folk among other styles, played on guitar, fiddle, mandolin, flute and guitar.

Nearby, at the Bar Salon Chez Ralph, Just Us is playing country western music every Friday and Saturday from 9 p.m. to closing until the end of May.

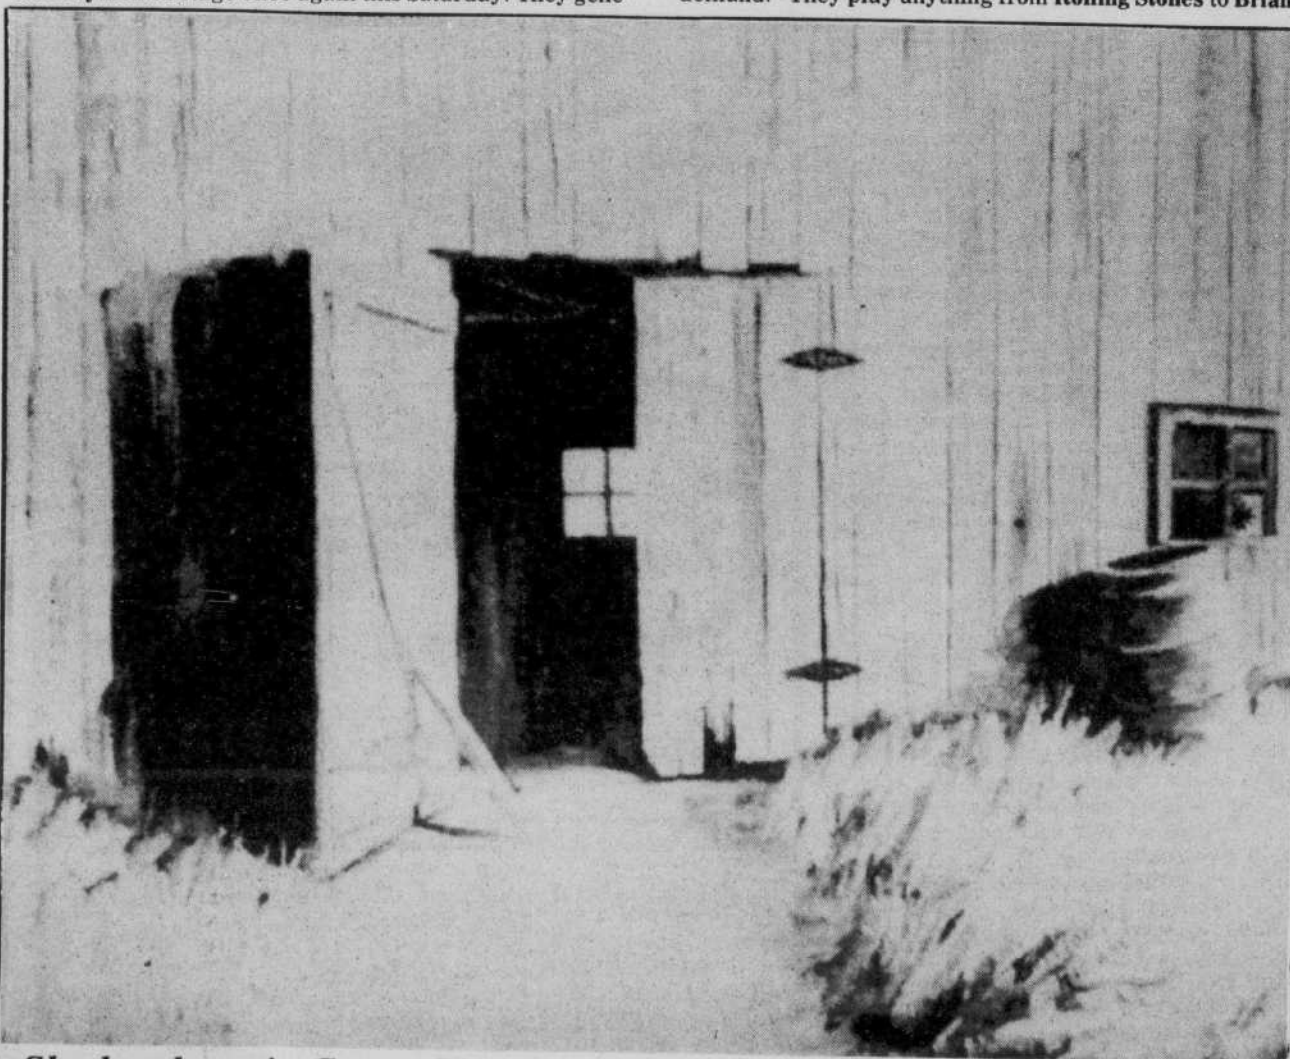

A place called Jimmy's in Derby Line, Vt. (I sure hope you could find it last week when I neglected to mention the name) will have rock and roll music by Little Wing tonight and Saturday night starting at 9:30.

And finally, don't forget to get your tickets for the Townshippers Association's Spring Fling taking place at the Collège Mont Sacre-Coeur in Granby May 10. This is a dinner-dance with a hot and cold buffet after which the Stage Band Plus will play music with a big band sound for the dance. Tickets are $15 a person and you can get them by calling (514) 263-4422 or (819) 566-5717.

Exhibitions/Events

The artwork of 31 young artists from the Granby region will be on display until May 23 at the provincial government building, 77 Main St. in Granby. The entrance hall serves as the gallery and it's accessible during business hours.

All imaginable kinds of arts and crafts will be available for browsing or purchase at the second annual Lennoxville Arts and Crafts Exhibition this Sunday. You'll see woodwork, copper enameling, ceramics, needlework, rug-hooking, silk painting and fabric flowers to name only a few. This was a two-day show last year, but it's been condensed into one this year to make it easier for exhibitors. This event takes place at the St. Antoine School, 16 Church St. from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. There's free parking, a restaurant on the site, demonstrations by the artisans and soft ambient music, so it sounds like you could make quite a day of it.

Sherbrooke artist Gaston Ricard paints a bright, magical portrait of nature in works currently on display at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est. See Exhibitions/Events column.

WHAT'S ON

The new exhibit at the Caisse Populaire de Sherbrooke-Est is a selection of paintings by Sherbrooke native Gaston Richard. His bright, clear paintings, according to the press release, present a magical sort of portrait of nature.

Next Thursday the St. Francis Valley Naturalist's Club is hosting a talk by romantic wildlife artist Christine Marshall, 8 p.m. at the Alexander Galt Auditorium. Marshall will give a slide show and talk about the steps involved in capturing the wildlife she portrays in a painting and then creating a series of prints. The admission fee is $3, which gives you a chance to win the door prize of a framed artist proof of her "Tundra — Snowy Owl".

The Homestead Gallery near Lennoxville will have a two-day exhibition of Marshall's work May 10 and 11, at which you can meet the artist between 1 and 5 p.m. the first day, and between 1 and 6 p.m. the second.

A science fair is going on this weekend at the Eugene Lalonde Recreation Centre in Sherbrooke. Expo-Sciences Pan-Québécoise features science projects by young people from the region. There are activities planned for the whole day today, tomorrow and Sunday, and a highlight today will be a talk by astronaut Steve MacLean at 8:15 this evening. The recreation centre is located at 350 Terrill.

Nathalie Dupuis is a young Sherbrooke artist whose work is featured at the Horace Gallery starting today. According to the press release, Situation: Mémoires consists of large-format works that draw the spectator in, inviting him or her to participate in the scene portrayed. This show goes on until May 25.

The Arts Sutton gallery features pastels and acrylics, which the artist, Louise Dubé, calls lyrical abstraction, and charcoal and ink drawings by Raymonde Vanesse Martin that are more figurative in nature. These can be seen weekends from 10 to 5 until May 11.

Theatre

The Théâtre de la Poursuite has quite an extraordinary show on until May 17. La condition des soies, brought about by a team of artists from Sherbrooke, Montreal, Paris and Brussels, presents a psychological voyage into the hidden aspects of the human mind and soul. It's the story of a father and daughter, who in the space of an evening reveal and discover some startling things about themselves and each other with a visit from the dead wife and mother (whether as a ghost or through their memory isn't clear) as catalyst. Voyeurism, seduction, incestuous desire and transvestism are major themes. As you might guess, it's not a play to watch for diversion. The images that arise are startling and often ugly, casting a very sombre light on what the human being really is, despite author Annie Zadek's contention that her work is not pessimistic in outlook, but merely honest and accepting. In an interview she insisted that it reveals the "hidden", rather than the "dark" side of humanity. Nervous laughter and shifting among the audience at the premiere suggested that many people were uncomfortable with what was being said and done on stage, particularly as the father was shown voraciously fondling and sniffing his dead wife's clothes for her scent, climbing into her wardrobe to be among her dresses and finally dressing in her clothes. But perhaps, as Zadek suggested, there is nothing wrong in being disturbed by a play. La condition des soies runs until May 17 at the Théâtre Le Pigeonnier, 138 Wellington North, and you can reserve tickets by calling (819) 564-2060.

In a decidedly lighter vein, the Lennoxville Players are presenting The Accidental Angel at the Centennial Theatre again tonight and tomorrow night at 8 p.m. In this comedy by Ronald Alexander, an assistant professor at a small-town college accidentally brings an angel back to earth through his supposedly scientific experiments. The two proceed to develop a cure for the common cold which has some uncommon side effects. You can get tickets at Beaulieu's Market, The Addition, or the Centennial Theatre box office for $5, $3 for students and seniors. Proceeds, by the way, will be going to the Lennoxville Volunteer Firefighters' Association.

Siskalao continues in the Petite Salle of the Cultural Centre on the University of Sherbrooke campus, Wednesday through Sunday nights at 8:30. Written by Patrick Quintal, Siskalao tells of a man and a woman in the year 2005, who embark on a journey to the land of their ancestors, only to find themselves plunged into a different dimension where present and past merge. Tickets are $6, $5 for students and the unemployed.

Next Wednesday and Thursday the theatre workshop class at the Collège Mont Notre-Dame is performing Réverie d'été, a play written by a group of young people from Shawinigan. Show time is 8 p.m. and admission is free.

Something quite different is also going on at the Alexander Galt Auditorium this Sunday. Brent Cairns, a 21-year-old magician from Ives Hill, will be performing in his biggest show yet, complete with card, top hat, handkerchief and even escape artist tricks. Take a look at page three to find out more about this show.

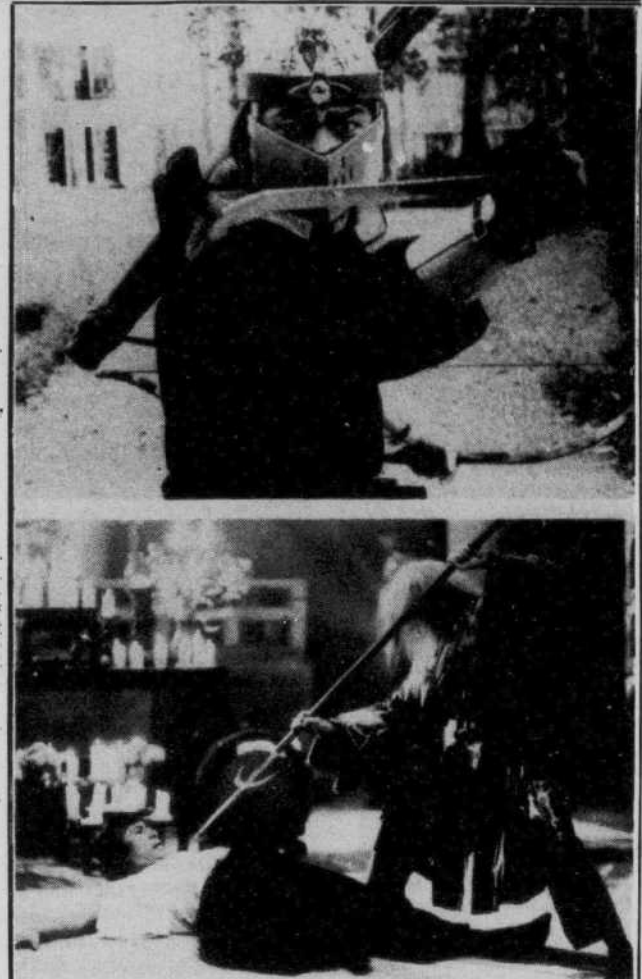

Movies

The Japanese-born karate champion Sho Kosugi stars in Pray for Death, the new movie at the Cinemas Carrefour this week. He plays a quiet, peace-loving man driven to reveal his secret identity as a Ninja master and taking the law into his own hands when he finds himself in the middle of a crime ring. This shows nightly at 7:30 and 9:30, and Sunday at 1:30, 3:30, 5:30, 7:30 and 9:30.

Over at the Capitol, Woody Allen's Hannah and Her Sisters continues, showing at 7 and 9 p.m. nightly and at 1 p.m. Sunday and Tuesday as well. Mia Farrow plays Hannah, a happy mother and housewife with two slightly mixed up sisters who each become romantically entangled with one of Hannah's men: her present and her former husbands. Allen is the former husband, a hypochondriac who leaves his high-pressure job when he believes he has a brain tumor, in order to ponder the meaning of life.

In Cowansville, the Cinema Princess is showing Delta Force with Chuck Norris and Lee Marvin at 7:15 nightly and the horror movie House, with William Katt at 9:15.

The Merrill's Showplace Cinemas in Newport have Gung Ho showing nightly at 7:10 and 9:15 and Saturday and Sunday at 1:45 p.m. as well. Ron Howard directed this movie, which takes a look at some of the culture clashes that occur when a Japanese auto factory moves into a small town in Pennsylvania. Also playing at Merrill's is Pretty in Pink, starring Molly Ringwald as a determined young woman from the poor side of town who learns a tough lesson about friendship when she ignores her old friends to accept a prom date with a handsome rich kid. This has one showing per night at 7 p.m. and matinees Saturday and Sunday at 1:55. At 8:45 nightly you can see Down and Out in Beverly Hills at Merrill's. In this, Nick Nolte plays a homeless derelict who tries to end it all by throwing himself in the pool of southern California couple (Bette Midler and Richard Dreyfus). They, however, rescue him and bring him into their luxurious home and frantic lives, which opens the way for some satirical jabs at contemporary lifestyles. Murphy's Law also plays at Merrill's at 7:20 and 9:20 every evening and 2 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

Pray for Death, a new movie showing at the Cinemas Carrefour in Sherbrooke, features Japanese-born karate champion Sho Kosugi as Akira. Above: Akira is driven to recall his martial arts might as he begins his reign of revenge against ruthless criminals. Below: Akira is overwhelmed by his Ninja master, Koga (Robert Ito). See Movies column.

Television

Just a couple of items of special note on the local television scene this week:

Jerry and JoAnne fans will want to tune in to CKSH TV next Thursday at 9:30 p.m. for Vedettes en direct which will feature the popular Lennoxville-based country duo. They warn us that it just might be postponed because of the hockey game, but you might take a look anyways.

Townships Magazine, the community affairs program that airs four times a week on Cable 11 in Sherbrooke, will have interviews with a Sherbrooke Hospital doctor regarding the hospital fund-raising campaign; with Bryant Neal, writer and producer of the musical Beatrice to be presented in the region sometime soon and with Maria Bandrauk from Continuing Education at Bishop's University. The program airs at 9 p.m. Tuesday, 11 p.m. Wednesday, 7 p.m. Thursday and 8 p.m. Friday in Sherbrooke and in Magog, Tuesday and Thursday at 7 p.m. only.

Culture Committee in search of logo

By Merritt Clifton

COWANSVILLE—Concerts, a logo contest with cash prizes, and a film club head the list of activities announced this week by Cowansville's newly formed Culture Committee.

Sponsored by the Cowansville Parks and Recreation Service, the Culture Committee shares the acronym C.C.C. with the Continental Can Company, the world's largest maker of grocery tins, and the Civilian Conservation Corps of the Great Depression era—often described by participants as 'Civilian Concentration Camps.'

Because the acronym isn't distinctive, the five-member committee wants an emblem that is. They're offering $75 for the best design, $25 for the runner up, and a gift certificate worth $15 as third prize. Deadline for submissions is May 14. Designs must be in black and white plus one color of the artist's choice. Submissions are to be made to the Service des Loisirs et Culture, 220 Place municipale, Cowansville J2K 1T4.

May 25 brings a musical picnic alongside the Yamaska River in the heart of town. From noon to 2:00, Pierre Perron and his 'Sweet Dixie' band will play, followed by Francoise Turcotte and his 'Modern Troubadours.' The latter group will play traditional folk music until 5:00 p.m.

Details on the film club have not yet been announced, but should be available soon. Organizing members are Serge Champoux, Francine Nadeau, Denyse Yergeau, Robert Bernier, and Richard Cayer.

The Culture Committee consists of president Alain Choiniere, vice president Tiziana Plomteau, secretary-treasurer Alain Frigon, and directors Veronique Rondan and Dominique Breault.

If you're sitting down, you're obviously not gambling

By Linda Drouin

LAS VEGAS (CP) — Here in the mecca of gambling, everything is geared to keeping you tied to the one-armed bandits, roulette wheels and blackjack tables.

In some hotels, they don't even put chairs in the lobby on the assumption that if you're sitting down you're not gambling in the casino.

But if you've played beyond your limit or if the clink of nickels and quarters in the baskets under the slot machines has lost its allure, you may be ready for something different.

There are ways to spend money in Las Vegas without making a bet, and a good place to find out about them is the Las Vegas Tourist Bureau.

If you want to get out of the city, car rental agencies are almost as ubiquitous as the casinos. The rates are competitive and many agencies rent their cars with no mileage charge.

VISIT DESERT

One of the most popular nearby sites is the Hoover Dam, about an hour's car drive away. A four-hour bus tour, which will pick you up right at your hotel door in many cases, is $18 per person. (All prices quoted are in U.S. funds.)

For another short afternoon jaunt, you can spend a few hours in the desert that surrounds the city or the farther ring of low mountains, which create spectacular sunrises for all-night gamblers with a poetic turn of mind.

Take Highway 85 west from the city to the turnoff indicating Red Rock Scenic Road. It's a leisurely one-way loop that will bring you back around to the highway 21 kilometres later.

The road climbs slowly through the rock and passes lots of picnic tables and lookout stops where you can wander through the cactus or watch rock climbers scale the cliffs. If you're there in the spring during the short rainy season, the blooming desert flowers can rival any glittering casino nightclub act.

On the way back you can stop at the Old Nevada ranch, a reconstructed wild-west town. Admission is $4.50.

TO GRAND CANYON

Another popular but more expensive tour out of Las Vegas is to the Grand Canyon. The tour is offered almost exclusively by airplane and costs $119-$160 a person. Some children's rates, $10 to $40 below adult fares, are available.

Back in Las Vegas, if you're not gambling, you're probably either eating or looking for entertainment.

In either case, you'll probably have to wait in lineups. A $40 show at Caesar's Palace featuring Diana Ross, even with reservations, involved an hour's wait for seating at a long table for 10 where only half the seats afforded a clear view of the stage.

You can get better seating but it'll cost a hefty tip to the usher-waiter who shows you in. The admission price normally includes two drinks, but be warned: you get them both at the same time so you have to drink fast before the ice cubes melt.

MEALS GOOD BUY

Lineups are also typical in casino restaurants — which are about the only place you can eat on the Strip. On the plus side, the food, mainly of the steak and ribs variety, is reasonably priced.

There are even some great bargains. Sunday champagne brunches are a feast of all you can eat and drink for only $7. Be prepared to wait up to an hour.

A tip if you're a neophyte gambler: many of the hotels offer initiation courses for games that require more than dropping a coin in a slot and pulling a lever.

You may want to start with blackjack, before moving on to craps, baccarat and roulette. A few training sessions will prevent you from feeling like a greenhorn at the tables.

At some low-wager blackjack tables, you can tell the dealer you're a beginner and he'll slow down the game so you don't get lost.

(ABC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"NORTH AND SOUTH, BOOK II" (1986) Part I. Starring Kirstie Alley, Lloyd Bridges, David Carradine, Mary Crosby, Lesley-Anne Down, Linda Evans, Morgan Fairchild, Genie Francis, Terri Garber, Hal Holbrook, Lee Horsley, Wendy Kilbourne, Kate McNeil, Nancy Marchand, Wayne Newton, James Read, Jean Simmons, Lewis Smith, James Stewart, Parker Stevenson, David Ogden Stiers, Patrick Swayze, Inga Swenson and Anthony Zerbe. The saga of "North and South" continues — into the turbulent years of the Civil War. Once again, the focus is on two families — the Mains of South Carolina and the Hazards of Pennsylvania.

(NBC) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"THE DELIBERATE STRANGER" (1986) Part I. Starring Mark Harmon, Frederic Forrest, George Grizzard, Ben Masters, Glynnis O'Connor and Bonnie Bartlett. Harmon plays Ted Bundy, the charismatic law student who was convicted and sentenced to death for three murders in Florida — and is suspected of killing more than 25 women in at least six states. The miniseries dramatizes the dogged manhunt that ended in his arrest and conviction.

(CBS) SUNDAY NIGHT MOVIE

"VANISHING ACT" (1986) Starring Mike Farrell, Elliott Gould, Margot Kidder, Fred Gwynne and Graham Jarvis. Farrell plays a honeymooner who reports to the police that his bride of one week (Kidder), who may or may not be the same woman that he married, has disappeared.

George Grizzard would like to do a lot more TV work

By Lynn Hoogenboom

George Grizzard didn't have to think twice when he was offered the role of Dick Larson, a Seattle reporter, in "The Deliberate Stranger," the NBC miniseries about Ted Bundy, who was convicted of three murders and is suspected of more than 25. It will air Sunday and Monday, May 4 and 5.

George Grizzard

"Marvin Chomsky, the director is an old friend," says Grizzard, "and when he says, 'Come and do this,' I go, because I know it's going to be quality stuff. I've never turned him down yet."

Grizzard also welcomed the opportunity to work with Mark Harmon, who plays Bundy. "I've worked with Mark before (in "Comes a Horseman"), and I like him," says Grizzard. "And I have the feeling I know his whole family. When I was a kid, Tom Harmon was an all-American football player, and Elyse Knox was a movie star, and I was just crazy about her — she was so beautiful. And I've seen so many pictures of his two sisters, I feel like I know them, too. I've never met anyone but Mark, but I feel like I know the whole family."

Grizzard has appeared in a number of TV movies, including "The Oldest Living Graduate," for which he won an Emmy, but it is in the theater that he has made his reputation.

"I got to play more parts that I enjoy on the stage," says Grizzard, "but I'd like to work in films more because I get to do something different every day. And I go crazy getting stuck in a play for a long time and having to do the same thing."

"But I haven't had much luck with movies," he adds. "I've done films with Jane Fonda and Sophia Loren and Goldie Hawn, and they were all three flops. I did one with Sean Connery, and that was a flop. I'm not a very good luck sign for films."

And there's one other problem. "I want to do more films and I want to do more television," he says. "But I don't want to live in California."

That doesn't mean that Grizzard is enamored with New York. Far from it. "New York drives me crazy," he says. "I've had this place in Connecticut 18 years, so that's saved my sanity."

"I was in analysis," he adds, "and I found a house I wanted, and I found I couldn't afford them both. I said, 'I think I'd rather have the house.' I went to the doctor, and he said, 'That's very mature of you.' So I gave him up and bought the house."

Jed Allan is now spending his days in 'Santa Barbara'

By Nancy M. Reichardt

When Jed Allan was scripted out of his role as Don Craig on NBC's "Days of Our Lives" after 12 years, his fans were afraid they would never see their favorite actor on a soap again. Not so. The multi-talented actor is now portraying business tycoon C.C. Capwell on "Santa Barbara," another NBC soap.

Jed Allan

"After I left 'Days,' I began watching a lot of daytime television," says Allan, who took over the role of C.C. "I really got hooked on 'Santa Barbara,' so I've had a big advantage coming into the show and knowing so much of the story. It makes it easier to learn the pages of dialogue I get handed each day.

"I can't personally relate to C.C.," Allan adds, "but I can understand what motivates him — power and position. I'm making changes in the character, though. He's more mellow. He's not the heavy that he was originally."

When Allan took on the role, C.C. was recovering from a stroke that had put him in a coma. He had also escaped death at the hands of his wife, Gina, who tried to murder him.

"The character is multifaceted," says Allan. "He's not particularly villainous, but he's still quite different from Don Craig."

Allan, who was born in Brooklyn, N.Y., has been acting since he was in his early 20s. He has appeared on Broadway in productions of "Oliver" and "Barefoot in the Park," was seen in the film "Ice Station Zebra," and was a series regular on "Lassie" from 1968 through 1970. He also appeared on two defunct daytime soaps, "The Secret Storm" and "Love of Life."

"I've done stage, television and film roles," says Allan, "but if I had to pick a favorite role, it would be that of Howard Hill in 'The Music Man.'"

Allan and his wife, Toby, live in a beach house that was once occupied by Clark Gable and Carole Lombard. They have three sons — Rick, Dean and Mitch (Dylan Ross on the CBS soap "Capitol"). Mitch, obviously, is following in his dad's footsteps.

OFF BEAT (PG-Buena Vista) Starring Judge Reinhold, Meg Tilly, Cleavant Derricks. ★ ★ 1/2 ★

By J.T. YURKO

Likable characters can occasionally save a movie. If the hero and heroine are folks you'd like to have over for a drink or two, you'll be willing to forgive a lot — even an unlikely premise and weak story development.

That's certainly the case with "Off Beat," a mildly arresting little film whose characters (almost) save the day. But be warned: the ads would have you believe that this is a mindless spin-off of the "Police Academy" series. "Off Beat" does have its funny moments, but it is best approached as a harmless boy-meets-girl farce.

The boy is nicely underplayed by Judge Reinhold, who is best known as one of the rookie/preppie detectives in "Beverly Hills Cop." He plays a 30-year-old librarian who can't quite seem to decide what he wants to do with his life. He's not quite a nerd, but he's not exactly a swinging single either.

His friend is played by Cleavant Derricks (Robin Williams' Harlem friend in "Moscow On The Hudson"). He's a New York City cop who has just been assigned as a dancer in a charity police show. He wants no part of it, so Reinhold finds himself impersonating a police officer and trying to dance with some of New York's finest.

He'd bow out, except that one of New York's finest — Meg Tilly — has caught his eye, and the romantic farce commences. The librarian is suddenly chasing muggers in Central Park, apprehending car thieves, and screaming through high-speed car chases.

The supporting cast includes a number of cameo performances by notable actors. Austin Pendleton is cast against type as a blow-up-good firearms salesman, Anthony Zerbe is present for one short scene as Tilly's dad, dancer/choreographer Jacques D'Amboise essentially plays himself, and Harvey Keitel plays one-half of a bank-robbing duo doing a variation on "Dog Day Afternoon."

MIAMI VICE

In the "Sons and Lovers" episode of "Miami Vice," airing FRIDAY, MAY 9 on CTV, Tubbs (Philip Michael Thomas, r.) is startled when a forbidden lover from his past reappears to warn him that he is being stalked by a son of a notorious drug czar. Lee la-cocca guest-stars as a helpful parks commissioner who offers tips to Tubbs.
