A NICE STATE OF AFFAIRS IN ALBANY

Police Know All Resorts, but Never Interfere With Them
—The Chief's Excuse.

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 3.—That Albany's tenderloin is virtually under the control of the police department was admitted by Chief of Police James L. Hyatt at today's session of the Senate investigation into Albany city and county affairs. Uniformed officers visit the various resorts, according to evidence adduced today and compile a list of those in charge of the places, the number of inmates, their age, where they lived before coming to Albany and other detailed information. A list of places where gambling is carried on is also obtained.

With this evidence at hand, James W. Osborne, counsel to the committee, endeavored to get an admission from Chief Hyatt that the reason these places were allowed to continue was because of instructions from those in authority over him. The chief said that he had talked the situation over with Commissioner Edward B. Cantine of the Department of Public Safety, his superior officer, and that the commissioner knew of existing conditions as thoroughly as the chief. These conditions, he said, were substantially the result of an understanding between the commissioner and himself.

James Brennan, a veteran police captain, who preceded Chief Hyatt on the stand, first told of the police census of disorderly houses, which he said was turned over to Chief Hyatt. He had been ordered by the chief, he said, to make no raids without instructions from him, and therefore was practically powerless to take the initiative in suppressing vice.

Mr. Osborne offered in evidence the deposition of Helena L. White, who says that shortly before election in 1903 a uniformed officer was stationed in front of her house on Hamilton street nightly from 7.30 to 10 o'clock. She considered it "an outrage" and was told that if she would get her father, a Democrat, to vote the Republican ticket the officer would be taken away. Her father consented, she says, and the officer was removed. Accompanying the deposition was a statement from a physician stating that the woman's physical condition was such that to compel to testify might endanger her life.

Albert E. Bryan, one of Mr. Osborne's assistants, testified to having examined the police records which showed that various officers had been detailed to the White House as alleged.

Chief Hyatt couldn't remember that he had taken any steps to remedy conditions in the tenderloin except that he had given orders to the captains, he said, to use every endeavor to get evidence against the resorts. He expressed the opinion that conditions were growing better.

Chairman Bayne wanted to know why it was that with the detailed information furnished by the police, the chief was unable to clean up the district. "Why don't you close up the disorderly district which is a stench in the nostrils of the people?" asked the chairman. "Why don't you do something?" The chief's reason was that his men were so well known in the district that they were unable to get evidence. When Mr. Osborne suggested that strangers could be secured to get evidence Chief Hyatt said he did not have the necessary funds, although he had been allowed money for that purpose. The chief said he had instructed the captains to let him know before making "sensational raids," but denied that he picked out the houses to be raided.

OPPORTUNITIES OF QUEBEC PORT

If Facilities Are Offered Large Steamship Companies May Make It Their Terminus.

"There seems to be an optimistic feeling that at last Quebec is about to take its proper position as one of the great ports of the Dominion," said Mr. Jules Hone, when called upon by a Chronicle representative. Mr. Hone stated that he thoroughly agreed with the stand which the Chronicle had taken upon the question of the improvement of the port and its facilities. Mr. Hone likened the port to a big store, and said that if Quebecers would look after its interests in the same manner as a storekeeper would do, its interests would be greatly promoted.

"The moment we are prepared to systematically advertise the port and also interest ourselves in a business way or as a matter of fact, send out our travellers and tell the world what we have to offer, just as a big store would do, the many advantages which Quebec possesses will be quickly appreciated. In other words, and to use a slang expression, let us 'get after the business,' and there is no reason why we should not get it."

"At the request of Hon. Mr. Pelletier," said Mr. Hone, "I went down to New York a few days ago, and there met the representatives of one of the largest steamship companies in the world. This company is planning to run a line to Canada next year. The line proposes to make its summer terminus in Montreal, but when I explained to them the many advantages of Quebec, they became much interested, and expressed themselves as favorable to the idea of transferring their interests to Quebec under certain conditions."

Mr. Hone, in his conference with the representatives of the company showed them that by stopping at Quebec they would save two days on each trip and thus give them an extra trip on the season. They said that provided the port could give them the facilities they asked for they would make the terminus at Quebec.

"The present high port dues and the labor trouble were two of the points discussed, but I think," said Mr. Hone, "that the latter point can be settled satisfactorily to the men. This line will place two steamers on the route at the beginning of next season. These vessels will be large freight carriers, handling double as much merchandise as the Empresses. So you can see what a benefit they would prove to the port of Quebec."

Mr. Hone stated that he was not at liberty to present to give the name of the company, but that negotiations were proceeding in a very satisfactory manner. He also said that he had reason to believe that another big line also was willing to make its terminus here, if it was given the necessary facilities.

"Everything depends, however, on a systematic and business-like movement to improve conditions in connection with the port. In the meanwhile, let us 'Get after the business,' should be slogan of everyone having the best interests of Quebec at heart."

PROPOSED CHANGE IN TAXATION
Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 3.—Both J. A. Ellis and Napoleon Champagne, Conservative candidates for the Legislature in the two Ottawa districts, have signed a promise to use their vote and influence in the Legislature towards influencing any proposal to permit municipalities to tax improvements—in which are included incomes and business assessments—at a lower rate than land values.

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3.—Mayor Geary stated this morning that he had definitely decided to stand for a third term.

NEW BISHOP OF REGINA

Imposing Ceremonies Will Mark Consecration of Mgr.
Mathieu at Basilica.

Mgr. Mathieu, C.M.G., will be consecrated Bishop of Regina, at high mass at the Basilica, at 9.15 to-morrow morning, and the ceremony will surpass anything ever seen in this city, judging from the preparations which are now being made, under the able direction of Rev. Mr. Laberge, Secretary to Archbishop Begin, the decorations of the interior of the sacred edifice having been undertaken by the Sisters of Charity.

Among the distinguished prelates who have promised to be present are: Mgr. Stagni, Apostolic delegate, and Mgr. Synott, private secretary, Mgr. Langevin, Archbishop of St. Boniface, Mgr. Bruchesi, of Montreal, Mgr. Gauthier, Ottawa; Mgr. McCarthy, Halifax; Mgr. McNeil, Vancouver; Mgr. Spratt, Kingston; Mgr. Blais, Rimouski; Mgr. Lorraine, Pembroke; Mgr. Labrecque, Chicoutimi; Mgr. Emard, Valleyfield; Mgr. Larocque, Sherbrooke; Mgr. Cloutier, Three Rivers; Mgr. Guertin, Manchester, N. H.; Mgr. Casey, St. John, N.B.; Mgr. Barry, Chatham; Mgr. Bruneau, Nicolet; Mgr. Archambault, Joliette; Mgr. Pascal, Bishop of Prince Albert; Mgr. Bernard, St. Hyacinthe; Mgr. Girouard, Apostolic Vicar, Arthabaska; Mgr. Blanche, Apostolic Vicar, Gulf of St. Lawrence; Mgr. Laruippe, Apostolic Vicar, Temiscamingué; Mgr. Charlebois, Apostolic Vicar of Keewatin; Very Revd. Mr. Kidd, administrator, of Toronto, and Revd. Father Lacombe, representing Mgr. Legal, of Prince Albert.

The diocese of Regina will be represented by Rev. Father Sufra, parish priest of Regina, and Rev. Messrs Theriault, Van de Veede and Woodcutter. Mgr. Begin will preside at the ceremony and the two assistant bishops will be Mgr. Langevin and Mgr. Bruchesi, while Mgr. Roy will preach the sermon on the occasion.

The new Bishop of Regina is the recipient of a very large number of very handsome presents from his Quebec friends and relatives.

At the conclusion of the church service Mgr. Begin will be entertained at dinner at the Quebec Seminary, and will preside at vespers in the Basilica in the evening.

DOUBLE LIABILITY OF THE ONTARIO BANK
Toronto, Nov. 3.—The 95 per cent double liability call on the shareholders of the Ontario Bank has realized $1,123,000, which is said to be, probably, the most complete "clean up" in the history of banking liquidation. The bank's stock capital was $1,500,000. From this amount, 2008 shares, with a par value of $100 a share, was held by the Officers' Guarantee Fund. This left assessable stock to the amount of $1,292,200, on which the double liability call of 95 per cent was made. These figures show how general has been the double liability payment. Some of the shareholders contested the claims, of course, but the winding-up process has been attended by a constant inflow of good coin of the realm. It was thought at first that not more than eight or nine hundred thousand dollars would be realized at the outside, so the total of $1,123,000 is regarded as a conspicuous piece of work. Included in this big sum is $38,000 recently paid in connection with the Officers' Guarantee Fund stock. Some of that stock had passed through other hands within the sixty day limit, and the $38,000 resulted from negotiations that culminated in a short time ago. Some accounts are being nursed and something more will come of it in real money. When it is all over there will be a surplus, a considerable one, perhaps, so that the shareholders will get back a share of what they have paid in double liability.

FROST STOPS PLOUGHING IN MANITOBA.

Brandon Nov. 3.—The prevailing cold snap, with heavy frosts every night, has put a stop to fall ploughing in this district and farmers are none too well pleased, as they had hoped for a couple of weeks more of good weather. A very large number of the farmers, depending on stock threshing left the land in such condition that they could not proceed with the ploughing on account of the weather. It is many years since there was as little ploughing done at this time. Some of those who got started ploughing before the wet weather set in have a few fields in shape, but a great many of the farmers have practically no ploughing done at all.

The Quebec Chronicle

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1911.

MR. BORDEN'S SPEECH.

In his speech at Halifax, Mr. Borden struck a truly national note. There was no trace of vanity or boastfulness in it, such as might have been pardonable, of the sweeping victory of September 21. It was quite evident that the new Premier was more concerned with the responsibility of his grave office than with its dignity. And it is a good thing that this should be so.

To the Conservatives who had fought bravely with him through storm and stress and had never given up he gave every credit in the hour of victory, as he dwelt upon the true meaning of their comradeship. But he did not hesitate to point out to them that this victory was a popular, rather than a party, one, and he rightly said that the Conservative party would not be worthy of its traditions if it refused to recognise the sacrifice made by the numerous Liberals who had come to the help of their country in the hour of peril.

Mr. Borden made it clear that the rejection of reciprocity, far from serving to raise discord between the States and Canada, would in all probability make for a better understanding. Canada had rejected the measure because it wished to maintain complete independence in matters fiscal and the best way to be friendly with the States was to be free of any entangling alliance with them.

Mr. Borden's programme gives good promise for the unity and development of the Dominion. He makes no idle or extravagant boast and his words ring true, for he approaches his weighty task with a full and serious appreciation of what it involves. "We do not claim to be infallible," he says, "but we do claim that as servants of the people of Canada we shall give to our public duties the best that is in us; and no man can do more."

COST OF NAVIES.

Recently there has been issued the annual British government return setting forth the naval expenditures which the eight principal powers are providing for or leaving posterity to provide for.

In the last ten years these eight powers have spent over $5,500,000,000 on their navies, and of this huge total nearly one-third has been spent by Great Britain alone. Upon new construction alone $1,940,000,000 has been spent. Though the percentage of increase during the last ten years has been much greater in the case of Germany than that of England, the naval expenditure of the latter country for this year is still twice as heavy as that of Germany, and the British tonnage of new construction is more than twice as great. The world's great naval powers have been pouring out millions on their navies as never before, with the net result that their relative strength is practically the same as it was a decade ago. When it is considered that every dollar of this vast expenditure has to be provided by human work, and to be withdrawn from productive activity the seriousness of the situation will strike any one. The problem is how to mitigate it.

CHINA'S TRANSFORMATION.

The aspiration for a republic in China does not seem quite so fantastic as it was a week or two ago. By an edict, issued the other day at Peking, the government apologized for its past neglect and granted an immediate constitution with a cabinet from which nobles are to be excluded. At the same time it offered free pardons to all the rebels and for political offenders of every kind. Such was the throne's response to the demand of the national assembly for a complete parliamentary government.

Practically speaking, this means an end to the power of the throne. When, just twelve months ago, a decree was issued in Peking that an imperial parliament would be assembled in 1913, the world was inclined to be incredulous. It was true that assemblies in some of the eighteen provinces of the empire had been created at that time to give the people a little familiarity with the machinery of self-government in a preliminary stage. This was in accordance with the promise made by the late Empress Dowager that a complete parliament would be established in 1913, but the world was inclined to be sceptical. Now it appears that the transformation may be accomplished even before the close of the year.

Certainly this is an era of surprises. In politics, as in all other fields of activity, this age has seen much blazing of new paths. Men still remember when France became a republic, when something like manhood suffrage was adopted by the Empire of Germany for the popular branch of its parliament, when Austria, Italy and Spain made long steps in the same direction, when England became a democracy, when the last crowned head on the Western Hemisphere was driven out and Brazil became a republic, when Japan abandoned mediaevalism and established a representative government, when Russia and Turkey obtained the rudimentary form of a constitution, and when Portugal dethroned its ruler. Republicanism in China has an aspect of incongruity and suddenness, yet such a development would be only one of the marvels of an age that has seen more marvels following each other in close succession in many spheres than has any other previous era in the world's history. The oldest of the world's nations, which has a quarter of the people of the whole globe, is a centre of world interest at this moment.

ITALY AND TURKEY.

It is already obvious that the warlike adventure of Italy into the territory of Turkey is not likely to be so speedily concluded as the Italian statesmen hoped and evidently believed. The Turks are a sluggish generation and not, as a rule, easily stimulated to action, a defect which is distinctly encouraged by the ultra-fatalistic quality of their religion. But when they do wake up something is liable to happen. Other nations have discovered that Ottoman peculiarity before, and the mercenary Italians are likely to discover it before Tripoli settles down into a peaceable, contented and loyal Italian province—whenever that may be.

The rigid censorship which Italy exercises over all the news from Africa and the apparent indifference of Turkey in the matter of news facilities make it difficult for the rest of the world to get reliable information from the seat of disturbance, but it is evident that there is good reason for Italian silence in regard to details. It is easy to understand that Italy made an easy conquest of the harbor of Tripoli, but the reports of the facile transmission of the Arab residents of the city into loyal subjects of Italy were enough to awaken incredulity among those who know something of the Arab nature; all of which is confirmed by the admission of the ghastly massacres that were found necessary to confirm this so-called "loyalty." Nor need there be any surprise at the fact that the soldiers employed in the work of butchering did not always discriminate so carefully as the scruples of civilisation might require in regard to the age and sex of their victims. Those who have any knowledge of the Arabs do not need the testimony of Kipling that "the female of the species" is often the hardest and most merciless fighter, as the British discover year after year in their encounters with the border tribes of the Himalyan region. Italy has undertaken the conquest of Tripoli, and is not likely to retire from the enterprise, but has yet a big price to pay for it.

THE CENSUS.

When the confederation of the provinces of Canada was accomplished in 1867, a clause was inserted in the constitution providing that the representation, in the House of Commons, of each of the provinces should be readjusted, according to population, at each decennial census. With the view of lessening the wretched to the Province of Quebec of a diminishing representation, which it was expected would result from our being less progressive than the other provinces, it was decided that our representation should not decrease, but should be made the pivot or basis upon which all the other provinces should elect. The result has been somewhat of a boomerang. The good old Province of Quebec has not only held its own, but has increased in population more rapidly than any of the eastern provinces. The consequence is that Ontario and the Maritime Provinces have been obliged to submit to heavy losses in representation, instead of having the gains that were expected.

The census of 1911 shows the following increase of population, as compared with 1901:

Maritime Provinces	13,431
Quebec	351,799
Ontario	336,955
Western Provinces	1,045,717
Total	1,747,902

The result is that Ontario and the Maritime Provinces will lose nine members. Quebec remains the same, and the provinces west of Lake Superior will gain nineteen.

It is fortunate for the future welfare and stability of the Dominion that the increased representation of the West should not be too rapid and that the membership of the House of Commons should not become numerically cumbersome. The framers of confederation builded even better than they thought, and the balance of power is not being too rapidly changed.

Railway, created by that great statesman, and to immigration, not always of a desirable character.

More stable and more gratifying is the marvellous progress of the back country of our Province, through the development of our water-powers and the realisation, at last, of the enormous value, for pulp and paper, of the greatest spruce forests of the world. This is attested by the new and prosperous manufacturing towns at Grand Mere, Shawinigan, La Tuque, Roberval, Jonquiere and Chicoutimi, employing thousands of men and supporting thousands of families, where only a few years ago stood the forest primeval. This is where the Province of Quebec gets the best elements of its increased population, and for it we may thank the little group of citizens of Quebec who built the Lake St. John and the Great Northern railways promoted these industries, and thus made this development possible.

So it will be seen that our good old city of Quebec and its people have counted for something in the proud position which the census gives to our Province.

Carrying the war into Africa was easier than carrying out it is likely to be.

HERE IS A WOMAN OF VERY FEW WORDS

Tells Why She Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills.

She was Run Down, had dark circles under her eyes and her Kidneys bothered her—Dodd's Kidney Pills cured her completely.

Upper St. Rose, Gloucester Co., N. B., Nov. 3.—(Special)—"Dodd's Kidney Pills are a grand medicine for suffering women." In those words Laura Robichaud, a well known and highly respected resident of this place voices her sentiments in regard to the grand old Canadian Kidney Remedy. And, like others who have borne similar testimony, she speaks from experience.

"I can recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills because they cured me," Miss Robichaud says. "I was in a generally run-down condition. I had dark circles under my eyes and my Kidneys bothered me. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills fixed me up."

This statement is made up of few words, but it describes the exact condition of thousands of women in Canada. They are run-down, have dark circles under their eyes, and they may not even know it, but their Kidneys are bothering them. If they follow Laura Robichaud's example and use Dodd's Kidney Pills they will cure their Kidneys and good health will follow naturally.

EVEN BETTER. A farmer from Kerry went to the adjoining county of Limerick, where the land is richer, to look for a farm. He saw one which he thought would suit him, but could not agree with the landlord as to the rent. "Get away," cried the landlord, angrily, at last. "This land is not like your miserable Kerry land, where a mountain sheep can hardly get enough to eat. The grass grows here so fast and so high that if you left a heifer out in the field there at night you would scarcely find her in the morning."

"Head, your honor, that's nothin'," replied the man from Kerry. "There's many a part of my county where if you left a heifer out at night the dew would be on her you'd ever see again."

TAX ON CORPORATIONS LIKELY TO REMAIN

Montreal, Nov. 3.—"From this gathering you gentlemen can realize," Sir Lomer Gouin remarked, on rising to respond to a memorial presented him this morning by the various bodies in the province who are interested in securing the abolition or reduction of the tax on commercial corporations, "some of the pleasures that a minister enjoys. On the one hand, we receive numerous delegations who ask us for all sorts of subsidies—I am going to visit McGill University this afternoon, and have no doubt that I will be recommended to increase the subsidy which it at present receives from the Provincial Government—and on the other hand there are those, like yourselves, who ask for the abolition of certain taxes. How can we increase our expenditures and still reduce our sources of revenue? It is not the best argument to say that the treatment of corporations in Quebec is different to Ontario, for there are many taxes imposed in Ontario that are not enforced here. We have done much to establish technical education in the province, and are prepared to do more. We spent $400,000 on good roads this year, and expect to spend double that amount next year. But all this takes money, and if the tax complained of, which yields us a revenue of $600,000, is abolished, there will be a certain deficit next year. We all know that the manufacturers are very powerful—it is not so very long ago since they gave a proof of it—but they must not abuse that power. It is possible to

WOMAN SUSPECTED OF MANY MURDERS

Placed Under Arrest—Arsenic Found in Stomach of One of Her Alleged Victims.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 3.—Mrs. Louise Vermilya today was formally charged with the murder of Policeman Arthur Bissonnette by poisoning him with arsenic, following the report of toxicologists who had examined the viscera of the dead roomer at the widower's home. Coroner Hoffman announced that he will have exhumed the bodies of at least two of the other eight persons who have died in her home during the past eighteen years.

Prof. Walter L. Hains, Dr. Ralph W. Webster and Dr. E. R. Lecount reported to the coroner that they found more than enough arsenic in the liver and other organs of Bissonnette to have caused his death.

Chief of Police McWeeny, who with State's Attorney J. E. W. Wawman and several police officers, had listened to the toxicologists' report to the coroner, immediately swore out a warrant for the woman who had been under close police surveillance. She had been ill with pneumonia and her condition was such that Captain Harding, the police officer in charge of the investigation, agreed to wait service of the warrant until tomorrow, but added several men to the guard to watch the suspected woman.

Coroner Hoffman likewise became active and procured permits from relatives of former acquaintances of the widow whose deaths now have come under suspicion to exhume the bodies for toxicological examination.

There is a state law forbidding the use of arsenic in embalming and the coroner announced that if the poison was found in the bodies dug up, the undertakers would be asked for certificates showing whether the law was disobeyed and if it was not, an effort would be made to connect the widow with the administering of the poison.

Considerable caution governs the advance of the investigation, as until the report of the toxicologists today the coroner was not satisfied with the evidence he had as a basis for her arrest and he made it clear no more arrests would be made for several days, if at all.

Dozens of detectives will search for further light on the eight deaths which preceded the demise of Bissonnette, while the decedents were living at Mrs. Vermilya's home. Just what bodies would be exhumed, Coroner Hoffman declined to say. It was intimated, however, one of them would be that of conductor Richard T. Smith, who, boasting of his having lived as the husband of the widow—though not married to her—was taken suddenly ill and died under circumstances that since have aroused official curiosity. It developed he had obtained life insurance a short time before, of which she was to be the beneficiary.

Mrs. Vermilya collapsed when informed the experts had found poison in the viscera of Bissonnette, but she showed no concern after recovering and declined to make any statement.

The increased guard, however, was instructed not to allow her to pass a moment not under a watchful eye, lest in despondency she attempt to injure herself.

discuss the reduction of the tax, but for my own part I do not think that its total abolition is possible."

These statements were further backed up by the Hon. P. S. G. MacKenzie, the provincial treasurer, and very little encouragement was given to the delegation.

The Famous Rayo Lamp

The best part of the day is the evening, when the whole family is gathered together around the lamp.

The old days of the smoky fireplace and flickering candle are gone forever. In their place have come the convenient oil stove and the indispensable Rayo Lamp.

There are to-day, in the United States alone, more than 3,000,000 of these Rayo lamps, giving their clear, white light to more than 3,000,000 homes.

Other lamps cost more, but you cannot get a better light than the low-priced Rayo gives. It has become so popular we may almost call it "the official lamp of the American family."

The Rayo is made of solid brass, with handsome nickel finish—an ornament anywhere. Ask your dealer for a Rayo lamp; or write for descriptive circular to any agency of

NEW MILITIA PLANS

Writing in the Toronto News about plans of the Militia Department, Captain Charles Frederick Hamilton says:

With the work of organization in hand, the note of the future should be the making of a great stride in training. It so happens that in Major-General Colin Mackenzie Canada now has a Chief of the General Staff who has specialized along this line and who enjoys a remarkably high reputation as a trainer of troops.

Owing to our special conditions in Canada, this question of training falls into two important main divisions.

1. The training of the militia proper.

2. The training of lads, the future militiamen, in cadet corps.

The latter subject is of enormous importance, and probably will prove the key to unlock our difficulties. Australia is doing remarkably interesting work in this direction. The subject is sure to receive careful attention at the conference of militia officers which Colonel Hughes is summoning for mid-November. At present, however, the topic of most pressing importance is the proposed plan for remodelling the training of the militia which is preparation.

The governing fact about the training of militia is the extreme shortness of time available. For the rank and file we so far have had twelve days; it is now proposed to make this sixteen days; even so the time will be very insufficient. Still, with expert instruction and with a very well devised general plan, eliminating every unnecessary thing and packing every moment full of practical and effective training, something can be done.

But here comes the question of getting the expert instructors. How are we to train the officers of the militia to make them efficient exponents of the art intensive training? Eight or nine years ago Lord Dundonald grasped the fact that the best officer is the busy man, and the further fact that in the country the average holiday of the average busy man is two weeks. Really, it is a problem of training the militia officer on a two-weeks basis.

Originally the ordinary militia officer was asked to spend three months at a school to qualify. Many excellent men cannot spare three months; and sheer pressure, as well as the steadily increasing disposition to meet the convenience of the militia officers, caused the authorities to sanction numerous "special courses." Moreover, candidates for commissions were permitted to begin work almost at any time. In the practical working out it was found that the effect was that a School of Instruction would find itself with a three-months course and five or six special courses running simultaneously, the special courses being at all stages of advancement. This really meant waste of effort and consequent lack of efficiency.

Thus in regard to the education of officers the problem is:—

1. To secure the highest training possible.

2. To do this in the shortest time possible and on a two-weeks basis.

3. To conserve the time and energies of the instructing staff at the schools.

Here is the plan which has been devised:—

The foundation is the elimination from the work at the school of everything which can be learned at home. To this end two measures are to be taken. Candidates for training must study at home, and before being admitted must pass an examination on such subjects as they can learn in advance by the reading of books, etc. Secondly, this home preparation is to be helped by the formation of a corp of local N.C.O. instructors. It is hoped soon to have about 70 of these men scattered about the country. Ultimately there should be a sergeant-instructor for every two regiments. These men could help candidates for training to acquire their home training.

Incidentally, these sergeants fit into the scheme of organization. The difficulty of supplying individual corps with permanent sergeants-major, as sometimes has been advocated, is that these men—being permanently under non-military conditions, would tend to lose their military character. Under the proposed system these instructors will be under the Chief Staff Officer of their Division and will be placed as he judges proper and will revert periodically to the schools, so as to keep in touch with military progress.

Partly by home study, partly by instruction from these local non-commissioned officers, the aspirants will prepare themselves and will come to the schools ready for practical work. Beginning with a young man desiring to fit himself to be a lieutenant, we find that the full course is to be six weeks. But this course is to be divided into three portions, each of a fortnight. The aspirant may take the whole course in one period of attendance. If he does not care to do so he may take portion A, pass in it and drop out. When he is ready to resume he may appear, pass an examination in Portion A to show that he is up to the standard, and proceed to Portion B. In the same way he may go to portion C, or may drop out once more and present himself still later for Portion C.

The courses for captain, and for field officer will be of a fortnight's duration.

Having consulted the convenience of militia officers in this respect, the authorities propose to stiffen matters up in another direction. These courses will begin on fixed and specified days, on which Canadians must present themselves. There will be three training periods at the schools: January and February, March and April, and October and November. From May to September inclusive the Permanent Force will be busy with their own training. During each of these periods the following courses will be held at each cavalry and infantry school:—

Two courses for Field Officers.
Two courses for Captains.
One course for Lieutenants.
Repetition of Portion C of Lieutenants' course.

One course for Non-Coms.
It will be recognized that in other schools terms and courses begin on fixed dates with which persons who propose entering must comply.

Next comes the way in which the training is to be carried on in these two-weeks' units. As already observed, the training will be practical. Aspirants must come with their book-work already done. For the rest, the word is the elimination of everything which is not practical. There are two things to teach each other:—

1. How to handle in the field the body of troops—half-company, company, or battalion—which he is to command.

2. How to teach his men their duties.

COUNTESS SWIRSKY HIGH SCHOOL WON SUCCESS BOYS' REUNION

Large and Fashionable Audience Enthusiastic Over the Famous Russian Dancer.

The "poetry of motion," a term familiar, seemed to have its limits to the large, enthusiastic and fashionable audience which assembled at the Auditorium last evening to see the Countess Tamara de Swirsky dance. It seemed to be even more than poetry, it was fairy-like just to see this graceful, well-formed and bewitching lady interpret what was apparently in the minds of the composers to whose music she danced. It could hardly be called dancing. It was something more. It was like a living realization of what those master minds had endeavored to express.

The entertainment was a unique and a novel one, and the audience was not slow in realizing the absolute artistry of the performance. There was life, there was passion, there was almost every sentiment of human feeling expressed in every movement of Swirsky as, like a faun, she tripped her way through the series of dances on the programme. She is well called an interpretative dancer, and her success last evening was great, the Countess being called before the curtain time and time again.

It would be hard to choose between the different dances which she illustrated, but the Coppelia Waltz (Delibes); Humoriste (Dvorak), and Fledermaus (R. Strauss), were certainly most enjoyable. In the group of Greek dances the Countess was recalled several times in the Pizicatto (Delibes), the wonderful art of the woman arousing the utmost enthusiasm.

The Countess is aided by a splendid orchestra, which rendered the accompanying music in a manner to add enjoyment to her witching efforts.

Not alone as a dancer is the Countess an artist, but also as a pianist she showed her wonderful talent, and the opening selections which she rendered were most sympathetically given feeling combined with technique making them most appealing and satisfactory to her hearers.

Owing to the remarkable success which Countess Tamara de Swirsky won last evening, Mr. J. A. Gauvin, Quebec's popular young impresario, to whom Quebecers are indebted for her appearance here, it has been decided to give a special matinee at popular prices this afternoon, when there will no doubt be another crowded house.

 According to L'Evenement, Lieutenant-Colonel Pelletier, D. O. C., of this military district may resign on account of ill-health. Colonel Pelletier has had a long and meritorious career in the Canadian militia, starting his service as a lieutenant in the Ninth Regiment, Voltigeurs de Quebec.

TOADS.
 Toads live a very great time. It is known for certain that they can live for forty years. Sometimes they are said to be found alive in rocks and coal, but nobody has been able to prove this. A great scholar named Dean Buckley tried experiments with toads to prove this and their powers of endurance, and found that toads enclosed in cells cut in limestone were dead in less than a year. Toads in sandstone, through which air, and possibly tiny insects could enter, lived for two years, and one of them grew fat.

DEATH OF A YOUNG SCOTSMAN.
 The death from typhoid fever at the hospital, Baie St. Paul, Charlevoix county, of Mr. Kenneth McKenzie, foreman of the Messrs Campbells, contractors on the Saguenay Railway, took place after a short illness on Wednesday morning. The late Mr. McKenzie was a native of Gairloch Ross-shire, Scotland, and came to this country about eighteen months ago. He was highly thought of by his employers and was a great favorite with the men under him, and although only 26 years of age had succeeded in getting a good position during his short residence in the country. Everything that medical science could do was done for the young man, Dr. Delaney, having been called from Quebec in consultation. The Rev. Dr. Love of St. Andrew's Church officiated at the funeral service, the interment taking place yesterday in Mount Hermon Cemetery, a number of brother Scots being present at the service.

SATISFACTORY EXPERIENCE.
 The Grand Trunk Pacific are in receipt of a letter from a prominent traveller in Eastern Canada, who has just returned from a trip to the West, and which included a journey on the Grand Trunk Pacific from Winnipeg to Wainwright and return. He states: "I must say it is one of the pleasantest experiences in a long life of travel. Having seen the road in the making, and being aware of the high standard set up, I was prepared for a good roadbed, and was not disappointed, for we rode as smoothly as between Montreal and Toronto. The sleeping cars are models of comfort, and the service on them as well as the dining cars couldn't be better. The Grand Trunk are setting the pace for general excellence in Western Canada."

Resolved that we all share in the deep bereavement sustained by the family and it is our unanimous hope that Providence will guide and comfort the survivors in their affliction.

EDITOR AND OTHER THINGS.
 John Ames Mitchell, the editor of Life, is of many occupations, and successful in all of them. As an editor, it was he who made Life, and he keeps on making it. He is an author, and he keeps on authoring. His latest novel, "Pandora's Box," is meeting such success as attended his earlier "Pines of Lory" and "Amos Judd." The hero of "Pandora's Box" is an architect, which recalls the fact that Mitchell has been the same. He studied at the Beaux Arts in Paris, and practised architecture in Boston. Then he studied painting, and before he founded Life, lived as an illustrator in New York. He has illustrated his own "Pandora's Box," and done it in brilliant professional style. If this seems not enough, it may be added that he once studied science at Harvard, that he is a capable amateur gardener on his Connecticut country estate—and that he has studied anti-vivisectionism, anti-theatrical-truism, and anti-graftism well enough to conduct numerous successful campaigns in Life.

MISSIONARIES WARNED NOT TO RETURN TO CHINA

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3.—Two cablegrams were received at the missionary office of the Presbyterian Church, Toronto, this morning, advising missionaries in Canada not to return to their fields of work yet. Explanations will follow in letters, but from indications it appears that the missionaries are not altogether in a safe position, although no harm has come so far as it is known.

Rev. Mr. Eadie cabled from Honan, China, to his wife, who is in Canada at present: "Do not come at present." Mrs. Eadie was about to return.

Another cablegram arrived from the foreign office at Wei-Hwei for Mr. J. B. Hattie. It said: "Advise you to postpone departure." Mr. Hattie anticipated sailing tomorrow.

No word whatever has been heard yet from the Methodists in China. Their field of work is cut off from telegraphic communication. Some serious fighting has been carried on in their sections, but it is thought that if they have been attacked, word would have been sent to some of the other missionary stations.

THE LONDON, ONT. FIRE

London, Ont., Nov. 3.—At 11:30 o'clock tonight, the fire department still had a number of lines of hose playing water on the smouldering remains of the million dollar fire. The 400 employees directly affected and thousands of citizens crowded the scene of the fire this evening. Of the seven concerns burned out, four, King's, Mills, Mara's, Chapman's and Brewster's, have secured temporary quarters and the outlook is that most of the premises will be rebuilt.

INVESTIGATION REGARDING THE FARMERS' BANK

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3.—The day following the assembly of the Dominion parliament at Ottawa, the defence committee representing some six hundred shareholders of the defunct Farmers' Bank, will confer with the government asking for the appointment of a Royal Commission to report on the circumstances regarding the issue of the certificate for the opening of the bank. The petition will urge that a prominent jurist be appointed to preside over the commission, as the legal phase of the situation will require expert examination. In the meanwhile, pending the action of the government, etc., William Laidlaw, K.C., who has been acting as the Toronto agent of the shareholders, will apply for a stay of proceedings against the contributors. Should the commission be granted, and the evidence warrant it, the shareholders will ask the government for a recommendation to the minister of finance to follow the line of procedure in the old Bank of Upper Canada case and to release the contributors from every risk of double liability and further expense. In addition, a request will be made that the government shall vest the assets of the bank in a trustee, and that some reasonable compensation shall be granted to the depositors.

THE TREATY BETWEEN GERMANY AND FRANCE

Basin, Nov. 3.—In making public tonight a complete summary of the treaty concerning Morocco arranged by Foreign Secretary Herr Von Kidderlen-Waechter, and the French ambassador, M. Cambon, the Foreign Office issued the following statement: "The German government believes that both parties can be in accord over the contents of the new treaty. It will have a calming effect not only upon conditions between Germany and France, but also upon the general political situation. Germany stands at the conclusion of this treaty in the same position as to French undertakings in Morocco as does England. It is especially emphasized that England has not interfered in the negotiations."

DEGREE OF DOCTOR OF LAWS CONFERRED ON SIR L. GOULIN

Montreal, Nov. 3.—At a special convocation of McGill University this afternoon attended by many prominent citizens and leading educationalists, the degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon Sir Lomer Goulin, Premier of Quebec Province. Principal Peterson, in the course of his address, announced that one of the visits paid by the new Governor-General, His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, on his arrival in Montreal, Dec. 12, would be to McGill University, and that the same degree would be conferred upon the royal visitor. In thanking the University for the honor conferred upon him, Dr. Goulin referred to the long and glorious career of the University and dwelt upon the educational system which his Government was building up throughout the province. Prof. Dale replied to the speech of the Premier.

EXTENSION OF ELECTRIC RAILWAY SYSTEMS

Montreal, Que., Nov. 3.—The Montreal & Southern Counties Railway will extend its electric lines from McGill street to Richelieu, fourteen miles from St. Lambert, on the south side of the St. Lawrence, and expects to have the new line in operation by the first of July next. A contract has been already given out for the construction of this new pole line across the peninsula between St. Lawrence and Richelieu rivers. The new cars are to have a maximum speed of sixty miles an hour and a twenty-five-minute service will be established between Montreal and points on the Richelieu River. The line will be along the lines of the old Central Vermont. Later the company plans to extend the service to Waterloo, sixty-one miles from St. Lambert, with a branch line between St. Cezaire and Marieville.

WANDERER HOCKEY CLUB

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Eddie McCafferty, part owner of the Wanderer Hockey Club, was not at all perturbed today over the statements that Glas, Hyland, Gardner and Johnston had signed up to play hockey in the west. "We have several men who could fill their places in line, if they should decide to go," he said. At the same time he claimed that there were reserve clauses in all the men's contracts last year and that should they go west they would become outlanded and could not again break into eastern hockey. Hyland stated tonight that, while he had received a munificent offer, he was not sure that he cared to give up his present job with good prospects for a short season at hockey, however remunerative. Johnston stated that both he and Gardner had finally made up their minds to play in the western league with the Patricks. Glass in as yet undecided.

CASES IN THE SUPREME COURT

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—In the Supreme Court today the hearing in the case of the Tracadie Lumber Company vs. Lefavre was commenced. The action was by the inspector of an insolvent estate to set aside a deed of mills and property to the appellants made at a time when the vendor was in bankrupt circumstances. The appellants contend that they got the property in settlement of a mortgage debt for advances and without fraud against other creditors. The Superior Court at New Carlisle, Que., dismissed the action, but the Court of King's Bench reversed this judgment and set aside the deed on the ground that the company could not, in the circumstances, hold the property to the detriment of creditors of their solvent generally. G. G. Stuart, K.C., for appellants; Rivard, K.C., and J. H. Kelly, for respondent. The appeals on the Ontario list will not be taken up before Monday, Nov. 13th.

GIRL IS HELD UP. HER HAIR CUT OFF

Miss Ray Bogert Attacked in Early Evening by Two Men Who Spring Over Hedge. New York, Nov. 3.—Miss Ray Bogert, a model in a department store in this city, was held up by two men last night as she neared her home, at No. 648 Church lane, North Bergen, and her hair cut off. The men fled and escaped a posse which searched for them with lanterns and torches. Miss Bogert is twenty-two years old, of exceptional beauty, and until she was attacked last night was notable among her friends for her hair, which was very long and thick and of that bright chestnut color which modistes describe as the "fashion" of the present season. Her home is two blocks from the car line, and going there every evening she has had to pass a church and cemetery at Church lane and Bergenline avenue. The graveyard is surrounded by an iron fence, against which is a hedge seven feet high. The street is lighted, but there are few houses along it. At seven o'clock last night Miss Bogert alighted from a car at Bergenline avenue and Hudson Boulevard and walked with a friend as far as the church. There the friend continued and Miss Bogert turned into Church lane. As she was passing the cemetery two men sprang over the hedge and seized her. Before she could make an outcry one of the men grasped her by the throat and the other tore off her hat and loosened her hair from its fastenings. Then with an immense pair of shears which he had in a bag he cut off her hair close to her head and tossed it into his bag. He then ran away, while his companion stopped long enough to warn Miss Bogert that she would be killed if she cried out. He then disappeared after the other man, taking with him Miss Bogert's handbag which contained $2 and a few cards. The girl's father telephoned to the police and himself led a posse of his neighbors, who searched for Miss Bogert's assailants for two hours without avail. Miss Bogert was able to give only a meagre description of the men who attacked her. "Fifth grade this year, Tommy?" "Yes, sir." "You're in decimals or fractions now, no doubt?" "No, sir; I'm in crochet work and clay modeling now."

COBB HAS NEW AMBITION; WANTS FANS TO LIKE HIM

Ty Cobb has a new ambition. He wants the fans of all American league cities to like him personally. Toward this end Ty has changed his ways greatly. He used to fight with the fans, and he seldom missed gibbing them after he made a hit that helped the Tigers to a run or a victory, but this season he doesn't look toward the stands. "I've got a lot of foolishness to live down, and I'm going to live it down," said Ty. "I was a foolish kid when I broke into the league, and I did a lot of things that I blush for now. I hope in a couple of years they'll quit saying, 'There goes that swell-headed Cobb.' Ty began his reformation at home. He had several fights with his teammates in his early days with the Tigers, and one was so bitter—with Matty McIntyre—that Hughey Jennings had to put Ty in right field to keep Ty and Matty apart. But, it's different now. Ty's left knee was bruised and twisted recently so painfully that Ty went to bed as soon as he reached the hotel and remained in bed all evening, while Joe Sugden, scout, trainer and Tiger handy man, applied hot towels to his knee. Almost every Detroit player visited Ty's room. Sam Crawford, who didn't use to hit with Ty, was one of the first visitors. "You know what they said about me when I got out of the game last season when Larry Lajoie and I were fighting for the batting honors," said Ty. "Well, I don't want anybody to say that about me again."

A MOTHER'S PRAISE OF BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. B. S. Baker, East Margarettville, N.S., writes: "No mother would recommend for her baby any medicine of which she was not absolutely sure. A baby's life is too precious. A mother is always pleased to recommend to other mothers something that has been valuable in restoring the health of her own child. This is why I can highly recommend Baby's Own Tablets. They cured my baby who was suffering from constipation and I feel that I cannot praise them enough. I would advise all mothers with sickly babies to give them a trial, well knowing what the result will be." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

His condition just at present is one that would make the administration of an anaesthetic a very hazardous undertaking. GETTING READY FOR THE HOCKEY SEASON

Montreal, Nov. 3.—With the near completion of their big rinks, in the west the Patrie Brothers are getting their players into line and some lively developments are anticipated as far as the local stars are concerned. Ernie Johnson, who signed a contract last summer for the Victoria team, was notified today by wire that transportation is being forwarded him and that he is due to report in Victoria about Nov. 18. In that case Johnson will leave here about Nov. 12. Jimmy Gardner, the Wanderer's star left-winger, has received the same notification and Harry Hyland also. The latest development, however, is the fact that the western club wants "Pud" Glass. The latest communication from the west to Johnston stated that Victoria are willing to give a big price for "Pud" and the chances are that he will go. In connection with the contract which he has with the Wanderers Johnston states that when he signed it the contract did not contain a reserve clause, but that the clause was inserted later. Under the circumstances he does not consider it binding. Johnston and Glass are said to be preparing to go west as well as Hyland and Gardner. The Victoria team have been outlined as follows: Goal, Lindsay; point, Glass; cover-point, Johnston; forwards, Gardner, Donald Smith, Hyland, Rowe.

IDEAS ON THE CENSUS AMERICANS TURN HOMEWARD JUNGLE PERIL

TO SHORTEN TIME IN TAKING CENSUS

Mr. Rowland P. Falkner, in London, Compares American and European Methods.

HIS TRAVELS ABROAD
Much Valuable Information Gained Respecting Attention Paid to the Many Details.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
MR. ROWLAND P. FALKNER, Assistant Director of the United States Census and the legal adviser of the Liberian government, has completed an extensive tour in England and on the Continent, during which he made a close study of the various methods adopted in taking the census by the leading European nations.

Mr. Falkner was present at the meeting of the International Institute of Statistics held at The Hague in September, and later he went to Berlin, Dresden, Munich, Vienna and Paris, and concluded his investigations in London, where he was visited by your correspondent, to whom he gave his impressions of the differences in the systems in vogue in Europe and in the United States.

"What the United States Census Department is most interested in," he said, "is whether it is practicable to shorten the time required to get the returns in from the field and, in the second place, to ascertain a feasible method of getting out very much quicker the returns of at least some of the main facts of the population. Some of the countries I have visited are successful in getting out quite a complete statement in about two or three months. The figures are, of course, preliminary, like our own, but the variation from the official results is very small indeed.

"The best illustration I found was in the kingdom of Bavaria, where the population of the whole State is about six millions. The population of each province and the principal cities was announced ten days after the returns were called for. But, of course, the whole thing depends upon the degree of attention paid to that sort of thing. It is something like our election returns. The official returns are given some weeks after the election, but the enterprising newspapers have them the next day.

"I, however, think we shall learn something from my tour. I think I can safely say that the difference between our method of enumeration and theirs is not so great as it seems to be. In other words, the European census is not so much in a single day, but it is usually three to ten days before they are officially collected. In the United States we give the enumerators fifteen days in the cities and thirty days in the country districts, but there is one rather important difference. In Europe they take the people who are present on the given day, whereas we take the people who are resident on the day.

"The European method is, I admit, a good deal easier. The work is simple and greatly facilitates the issue of the returns. Also, it is less liable to produce duplications, but it is by no means certain that it does not produce rather more omissions. There are certain countries that take both the present and the resident population. France is an instance in point, and it is always found that the resident population is larger than the population actually physically present when the census is taken. That is caused by the absence from the country of persons who really belong to it, such as seamen.

"The difference in France is about two hundred thousand, and they tell me there the true figures are somewhere about midway. The fundamental difference really is that the European countries control, in a greater or less degree, local officials whom they can direct to take the work in hand at any time, while we have to construct the whole machinery every time. We must appoint our local supervisors each time, and while they are capable men they have not got the minute knowledge of the work that the European local officials have of the districts in which they are situated.

Mr. Falkner added that his tour had been extremely interesting and he had had the most courteous treatment everywhere. He would report upon the result of his investigations, and possibly it might lead to some little reform in the United States system.

TEST OF JAPANESE DESTROYER FAILS

[Special Despatch.]

TOKYO, Saturday.
The tests of the destroyer Yamakaze, constructed at Nagasaki, have proved unsatisfactory. At the speed trials the destroyer developed only twenty-seven knots an hour, whereas the required speed was thirty-three knots. In a further test, with the engines driven to their extreme capacity, she managed to work up 33 knots, but before the run was over some parts of the machinery gave way and five strokes were seriously injured. During a third test some of the bow plates buckled and extensive repairs will be necessary before the destroyer will again be seaworthy. The cause of this poor showing is claimed to be that the Admiralty ordered too many changes while the vessel was in course of construction.

JAPAN AND RUSSIA MAY DRAW CLOSER

[Special Despatch.]

DARREN, Saturday.
Political exigencies may draw Japan and Russia closer, but there are few indications as yet of an economic rapprochement. On the contrary, Russian suspicion of Japanese intentions has led to the failure of a plan for the exhibition of Russian products at a museum attached to the Russian Consulate here.

Tide of Americans, However, Is Setting Homeward—Many Women Prominent in Society Worlds of America and England Are Preparing for the Winter Round of Activity.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
THE "high season" in Scotland is almost at an end, and soon those who went there for the early autumn will be back in London. The Court has returned for a short time, and, by the same token, London is almost itself again. There are fires in the club rooms, new clothes in the shops, snow on the Highlands, new plays in the theatres, new turns at the halls; while the amount of society marrying and giving in marriage is filling up even Mayfair.

The tide of Americans is now setting homeward. Mrs. William Leeds, after a long summer spent in Europe, soon will be taking her departure for home. Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont are still here, and do not intend returning to America till November, when they go to their home in Washington for the winter.

The Duchess of Marlborough means to spend part of the winter on the Continent for the benefit of the health of her younger son, Lord Ivor Spencer-Churchill, but some time in the spring she may possibly go to America on a visit to her mother, Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont. The new country house she has taken in Sussex is not yet ready for occupation. Crowhurst Place is a fine old manor house, which the Duchess has taken on a long lease from Mr. George Crawley. The estate lies in one of the prettiest parts of Sussex, and the house is one of the oldest in the county, dating back, it is said, to Norman times.

The Countess of Ancaster, who when she married the present Earl, when he was heir to the title was Miss Eloise Breeze, of New York, has been very busy during the last few months superintending the improvements and alterations at Grimsthorpe Castle, near Bourne. Although the old place was kept up perfectly in every other way, it lacked such modern conveniences as electric lighting and a sufficiency of bathrooms, which nowadays are considered indispensable, especially when the chateaux is an American. Grimsthorpe will now, it is said, be one of the most comfortable as well as one of the most interesting places in England, and Lord and Lady Ancaster will entertain a succession of shooting parties there when they return from Glenartney, the Perthshire shooting lodge they have occupied during the last month or two.

The Earl of Craven, who also has an American Countess, has just had the honor of being appointed to the captaincy of the Yeomen of the Guard, a position which in recent years has been held by the Duke of Manchester, Earl Waldegrave and other well known members of the Upper House. They, too, will be back in London very soon, for London, socially speaking, is awakening, and it is everywhere prophesied that 1911 will end in a blaze of festivities which will form a fitting conclusion to a year marked by unprecedented State rejoicings and a record summer.

Even the Durbar, which will necessitate the absence from England of the King and Queen and many notable personages, will not, it is stated, have any great adverse influence on the season. "For one thing," said Mr. Kroell, manager of the Ritz Hotel, "there will still be such a large number of prominent persons in London that there will be all kinds of social functions going on, and then there will be so many entertainments and hospitalities in London before the Durbar guests go that the season's total will not be in any way affected by that ceremony. One thing is noticeable among all the functions that are being arranged. There will be no frank dinners this year. That sort of thing appears to have been laughed out of court."

One sign of the revival of the London season is the demand for singers and entertainers for private at-homes and concerts; and among the lighter amusements of the season skating will undoubtedly take a leading place. Prince's Hall's new floor has been flooded, and the members, who include the Duchess of Bedford, Lord Lytton and many others prominent in society, assembled for the first time on October 21.

The Olympia Skating Club, in the reconstructed Holland Park Rink, will be one of the greatest social playgrounds of London. Among the five hundred members who will be seen there on Sunday afternoons will be the Grand Duke Michael Michaelovitch and Countess Torby, whose daughter, the Countess Vera, is an expert skater; Lord Rockingham, whose "figures" are renowned; the Princess Alexander and Maurice of Battenberg, two of the keenest regular visitors, and many other prominent persons, including the Marquis of Cholmondeley, the Earl and Countess of Portlinton, the Earl and Countess of Londale, Viscountess Crich-ton, Lord and Lady Coke, Lord and Lady Vivian, Lord and Lady Churston, Lord and Lady Hugh Grosvenor, Lady Lansborough and Lady Clementine Waring, who is devoted to the pastime.

The season is to open with a big fancy dress ball on November 1.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
MR. CARL AKELEY, an American naturalist and explorer, who is making a brief halt in London before returning to America after two years in Africa "after elephants," on behalf of the American Museum of Natural History, New York, very nearly lost his life in his quest of specimens.

It is indeed surprising that he is now alive to tell the tale of how a wild elephant attacked him and knocked him down, attempted to gore him, and finally left him for dead.

"I set out with a few native boys to discover, if possible, the altitude to which elephants go," says Mr. Akeley. "We went to the top of Mount Kenya, about 17,000 feet, found a herd and followed it quietly for two days. They led us round the mountain till we lost sight of them in a bamboo forest. Suddenly, without warning, we heard something coming on us. Before I could seize a gun a great bull elephant dashed through the bamboos straight at me and struck me with its trunk.

"I was falling face downward, but luckily, as I fell, I had sufficient presence of mind to twist my body in the air and grab the lowering tusks in my hands. I went down flat on my back, but I managed to do the one thing needful to prevent the animal goring me—I forced my body between its tusks.

"I remember seeing the little angry eyes and hearing him making a noise between a hiss and a grunt as his tusks ground into the earth and his head came upon my chest, but that is all I do remember.

"Four and a half hours afterward, so I was told, I regained consciousness. The elephant had left me for dead; so had my boys, for it is against their religion to touch a dead body. But I heard them chattering a little distance away and shouted to them. Very astonished they came to me and sent off runners for help. I was almost done for, but not quite, and they rigged up a stretcher for me and carried me back to camp."

LITERARY WOMEN TO HAVE A NEW CLUB

The Halcyon Will Be Opened Soon and Is Expected To Be All Its Name Indicates.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
THE latest club for literary women will open its doors in a few days under the title of the "Halcyon," a name chosen, it is said, to indicate that it will be a calm, peaceful retreat, which all women's clubs in London, so the rumor runs, have not been. The Halcyon Club House, handsome and brand new, stands in Cork Street, behind Burlington House, in Piccadilly, where a few months ago stood the noted dining house for bachelors, the Blue Posts.

Over the way is the Ladies' Army and Navy Club, and not many doors away in the same street is the Imperial Rifle Club, an imposingly housed club for both men and women. But the street where are the greatest number of women's clubs is Dover Street, in which are situated the Albemarle, the Australia, the Empress, the Ladies' Athenaeum, the Ladies' Imperial, and the Sesame Club. So far the male club members still retain the exclusive possession of Pall Mall and St. James Street, but there is one notable intruder in his domain, Piccadilly, the Lyceum Club, which SHANGHAI, Saturday.

REPORTS from the interior continue to show an intensification of the serious condition of millions of sufferers from the inundation.

The water has not yet subsided. It is gradually receding, but the drainage of the interior will be a long process. From two to ten feet of water still covers hundreds of square miles. Refugees are now beginning to make their way toward the larger cities and river ports. At Wuhu alone there are estimated to be more than thirty thousand. The officials have tried to induce them to return to their various districts, but they will not trust the officials when they promise aid.

The Magistrate attempted to move the refugees back by beating them, but they simply shifted on from one camp to another, carrying their mat coverings and belongings with them. Cattle which could not be bought at $6 per head before the flood are now offered at $2.

DISEASE IS RAMPANT

Hunger and disease are rampant in the camps. In a hollow between two camps over twenty corpses were counted. Some were naked, others covered with rags of matted, and dogs and pigs were at large devouring the flesh.

The Chinese of the cities have shown a desire to give assistance, but they are hopeless when it comes to organizing. The greed of the leaders and the inability to systematize effort is deplorable and enraging. Some bread was taken around and thrown into the mud for the refugees to scramble for. The strong got armfuls—the weak went without. Several people were crushed to death in the scramble.

CRIPPLE SINCE TWO, PORCELAIN WALLS PREACHES AT 95 ARE NOW IN SIGHT

The Rev. Robert Brandon, Minister, Tailor, Poet and Author, and His Amazing Life.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
THE REV. ROBERT BRANDON, Baptist minister, tailor, poet and author, who has just passed his ninety-fifth birthday, is the oldest officiating minister in London. He preaches on an average only once a month, but in rain or sunshine he never fails each Sunday to make his way in a Bath chair to the place he has ministered at in Chelsea for sixty-four years.

And yet this wonderful man, whose record has been one of amazing activity and energy, has been a cripple since he was two years old, when one of his legs became paralyzed. He practically educated himself, paying for his tuition out of his earnings as a tailor, till he passed the necessary examinations to make him a minister.

He was the Robert Brandon who created a sensation some forty years ago by his denunciation of the notorious Cremorne Gardens, in an impassioned poem called "The Trial of John Fox, or the Horrors of Cremorne," which resulted in a libel action against him, which he won, and ended in the abolition of the gardens. "You of to-day," said Mr. Brandon, in discussing his fight, "can have no conception of what sort of plague spot that den of infamy was. Under the guise of gaiety, it was a hotbed of immorality, drunkenness and abominations of all kinds. At all hours of the night there were fast peepers, Lord and Lady Coke, Lord and Lady Vivian, Lord and Lady Churston, Lord and Lady Hugh Grosvenor, Lady Lansborough and Lady Clementine Waring, who is devoted to the pastime.

The season is to open with a big fancy dress ball on November 1.

English Pottery Expert Succeeds in Perfecting New Idea for Construction.

[Special Despatch.]

LONDON, Saturday.
WALLS of porcelain at a comparatively cheap cost have been made possible by an English pottery expert, Mr. W. H. Turner, who has been working out his patent for many years, and now has succeeded. The material is simply glazed slabs of pure porcelain, the material commonly known as "china," so translucent that light can be seen through its half inch of thickness. The slabs are made in single pieces of any size up to that of the largest sheets of plate glass, and "are so strong that an elephant could stand on one without breaking it."

It is said to offer a means of imperishable decoration which "in color, grace and brightness rivals the painted wall decorations of Pompeii," for there can be printed on the slab in its "blis-cuit" or porous stage of manufacture designs or pictures with such gradations of coloring that any masterpiece can be faithfully copied.

To line the walls of a room with this everlasting covering costs no more than ordinary panelling, and architects believe that these plates will solve the problem of housing in the tropics, since a house built with walls, floor and roof of these plates will resist damp, heat, disease and white ants. A factory is to be built on the bank of the Thames for turning out the new porcelain walls and panels.

CURE FOR LEPROSY FOUND IN POISON OF GLOBE FISH

Japanese Scientist, Dr. Tahara, Reports a Discovery of Vast Importance.

ODORLESS POWDER BASIS OF TOXIN

Osaka Higher Medical School Says Marvellous Results Have Been Obtained.

[Special Despatch.]

TOKYO, Saturday.
A newspaper reports may be credited, a Japanese scientist has discovered a new and effective treatment for leprosy, the basis of which is the application of "tetrod toxin," a substance extracted from the poisonous elements of the globe fish, known in Japan as fugu. The scientist referred to is Dr. Tahara, president of the Tokio Hygienic Laboratory.

Dr. Tahara's special studies in this direction date from twenty years ago, after his return from Europe. He devoted himself more particularly to the investigation of the poison obtained in the globe fish. After much labor he succeeded in extracting the poison element from the fish, and from this prepared a pure white, tasteless and odorless powder, soluble in water, which he named tetrod toxin. Tests showed that four milligrams of powder constituted a fatal dose in the case of rabbits, and it was estimated that 200 milligrams would put a man to death. This discovery was made public seventeen years ago, but Dr. Tahara continued his studies, and in 1909 published a further report.

Dr. Tahara represented Japan at the Brussels Hygienic Conference last year and on that occasion submitted a report on his discovery of the toxin which attracted a good deal of attention in the scientific world. A German chemical manufacturing company subjected the toxin to a series of tests, whence it was concluded that it was too poisonous to be employed for medical purposes. Little more was heard about the toxin until recently, when it was applied to the treatment of leprosy by Messrs. Yoshikawa and Yamazaki, young medical students of the Osaka Higher Medical School, with, it is claimed, brilliant results.

It appears that a few months previously a young leper patient entered the Osaka hospital where these two young students were on duty, and asked to be treated with the globe fish poison, which, he said, he had heard was efficacious in the cure of this disease. He was fully aware of the danger involved, but was willing to run the risk, and, as a matter of fact, found himself greatly relieved by the treatment.

The young students took careful note of the case and resolved to pursue their inquiries with a view to the systematic application of the tetrod toxin to the cure of leprosy.

A quantity of the medicine was prepared in conformity with Dr. Tahara's report, and after this had been successfully tested on animals the two young men began to treat human patients, under the guidance of Dr. Sakurama. In one instance the toxin was administered to eight patients suffering from various forms of nervous leprosy. The quantity applied was 0.01 gramme, which was injected subcutaneously in five to eleven portions. So effective was this treatment that after five injections a patient who had been suffering intense pain for seven months experienced instant relief and was able to sleep at night, and in other cases marked improvement in the symptoms was recorded. The toxin was further applied to patients suffering from nervous ailments, and again with satisfactory results.

It is as yet too soon to say that the toxin will completely cure leprosy, but it is at least certain that it can be employed on human beings without fatal effect and as an auxiliary agent. Investigations are being continued with official co-operation. Mr. Kobayashi, director of the Hygienic Bureau of the Home Office, has issued to the Tokio and other leper asylums instructions to conduct experiments in the new treatment, and small quantities of the toxin have been distributed for the purpose. The results of these experiments will be published from time to time.

THE JIJI'S REASONS FOR THE SHYNESS

[Special Despatch.]

TOKYO, Saturday.
The Jiji, referring to the growing disinclination of the American Far Eastern squadron to visit Yokohama, mentions the following as among the principal reasons for this tendency:

Formerly Americans thought that the climate of the Philippines was unhealthy, but now that they know this is not the case they no longer deem it necessary to come to Japan to recuperate.

It is true that there is an American naval hospital at Yokohama, but the one in Mindanao is better.

The American Far Eastern squadron has been greatly reduced in size, the flagship Saratoga being no more than 3,000 tons.

The fleet is supplied by American transports which lay in stocks at free ports like Hong Kong and Kioachow.

THE TENTATIVE CONSTITUTION

Demanded by the National Assembly for China—It Is Not Republican in Form.

Peking, Nov. 3.—The draft of the tentative constitution proposed by the National Assembly is as follows:

1. The Emperor will reign forever.
2. A person of the Ta Ching dynasty (the Great Pure dynasty, the same being the name adopted by the ruling family) shall be Emperor invariable.
3. The power of the Emperor shall be limited by the constitution.
4. The order of succession to the Throne shall be prescribed by the constitution.
5. The constitution shall be drawn up and adopted by the National Assembly and promulgated by the Emperor.
6. The power of amending the constitution shall belong to Parliament.
7. The members of the Upper House shall be elected by the people from among those particularly eligible.
8. Parliament shall elect and the Emperor shall appoint the Premier, who will recommend the other members of the Cabinet, who shall also be appointed by the Emperor. The imperial princes will be ineligible for the office of Premier or members of the cabinet or administrative heads of the provinces.
9. If the Premier, when impeached by Parliament does not dissolve Parliament he must resign. No cabinet shall be allowed to dissolve Parliament more than once.
10. The Emperor shall assume direct control of the army and navy, but when this power is used in connection with internal affairs the Emperor must observe special conditions to be decided by parliament.
11. Imperial decrees cannot be issued to replace the law except in the event of urgent necessity, in which case they may be issued in accordance with special conditions.
12. International treaties shall not be concluded without the consent of parliament, but a treaty for the conclusion of peace or a declaration of war may be made by the Emperor if parliament is not sitting, the approval of parliament to be obtained afterward.
13. Ordinances in connection with the administration shall be settled by acts of parliament.
14. In case the financial budget fails to receive the approval of parliament, the government may not act upon the budget of the previous year nor may items of expenditure not provided for in the budget be appended thereto. The government shall not adopt extraordinary financial measures outside the budget.
15. Parliament shall fix the expenses of the imperial household and any increase or decrease thereon.
16. Regulations in connection with the imperial family must not conflict with the constitution.
17. The two houses shall establish the machinery for the administration of the court.
18. The Emperor shall promulgate the decisions of parliament.
19. The National Assembly shall act upon Articles 8, 9, 10, 12, 13, 14, 15 and 18 until the opening of parliament.

An edict was issued this afternoon. It confirms the throne's acceptance of the principles for a constitution as drawn up by the National Assembly, and promises that:

"We shall arrange a day to swear before our ancestors in the temple and to issue the constitution to the whole empire on yellow papers."

A committee of the assembly will be appointed to draw up the actual constitution. It will be assisted by representatives of the army, and the work probably will occupy months, as the provincial assemblies will be consulted.

The outlines of the proposed constitution have excited much interest and the outcome of this latest step toward popular government is a matter of lively speculation in the foreign quarter. A study of the programme shows it to be a demand upon the Throne or Manchu ruling family.

It refers wholly to the reduction and control of the dynastic powers, and gives no idea of what the parliament intention is with respect to the duties and responsibilities of the parliament. It is entirely directed at the Manchu scepter.

It is a revolutionary advance over the constitutional scheme promulgated by the Throne in 1907, which was modeled after the constitution of Japan and which was thought by conservative foreign friends of China to be an acceptable one.

The first four articles in the demands of the National Assembly conform to the first four articles of the Japanese constitution. In the tenth article the Emperor of China is granted the direction, but not the supreme command of army and navy, which the Japanese Emperor enjoys. Whereas in Japan the Emperor makes treaties the parliament in China assumes the government or ministers of the Emperor in consultation with the Emperor framed the imperial house laws, the reformers in China intend that the parliament shall make these laws.

the currency loan, as well as the reported war loan negotiated with Belgium and France financiers.

Hankow, Nov. 3.—via Wu-Hu.—Representatives of the British consulate today visited General Li Yuen Heng, the leader of the revolutionists, and protested against the firing upon a British ship by the rebels.

General Li this morning warned the consuls at Wu-Chang that the forts held by the rebels would bombard the imperial batteries situated behind the British and Russian concessions unless these batteries were removed. He declared such a step would be rendered necessary by the fact that the presence of the batteries endangered the foreign concessions. The consuls thereupon asked the imperial General Chang to move the batteries, which he promised to do. General Chang says that lobsters in the native city of Wu-Chang are being suppressed and that several of them have been shot.

MORE LIGHT SHED ON GORDON'S TRAGEDY.

Mr. Wilfrid Blunt's book, "The Secret History of the Occupation of Egypt," is admittedly a valuable document on a question that still has its secrets; and as much may be said of the continuation of that book, "Gordon at Khartoum," which Mr. Blunt has just issued. The second volume tells us a good deal about Gordon and about Khartoum, and a good deal about the political events and great personages of the time, but it leaves much untold. It cannot be said that Mr. Blunt has supplied the answers to the questions that have been asked so many times in the past twenty years. Who was really responsible for sending Gordon to Khartoum? What were Gordon's instructions? Ought the relief expedition to have been sent sooner? It is still possible for people to differ on these points, not that there has been no answer made, but that there have been many different answers. Lord Cromer, in his "Modern Egypt," has much to say on some of these matters. The Duke of Devonshire's biography discusses them, and so does Mr. Blunt; but rarely do they coincide on important points. However, it is interesting to hear from Mr. Blunt.

Gordon a Religious Fanatic. As to the character of General Gordon, he agrees with the others. There is not much difference of opinion about this remarkable man, and what Blunt says probably Cromer and Devonshire would re-echo. "Gordon therefore, carried with him, untouched, into his active life the Biblical foundation of his childhood. He held the text of Scripture from the first verse of Genesis to the last verse of Revelations to be God's written word, and that it was given to every man by faith and prayer and constant study to find it all necessary directions for both his temporal, and his eternal needs." Gordon was, in short, one of the Old Testament prophets with a military training, and more than a touch of military genius. The only fault Blunt could find in his character is one that Gordon himself acknowledged, and that few public men are altogether without: it was a certain tendency to court publicity, to keep in the spotlight, and to do the spectacular, thrilling thing. It may be that this flaw had as much to do with the tragedy of Khartoum as had the greatness of Gordon's character.

A Cabinet Conspiracy. As regards the Egyptian situation, it was, as Mr. Blunt says, the Crimean situation over again. The Government in charge was not the Government that was responsible for the situation; Gladstone had no sympathy with the British occupation, and would have been glad if it had never taken place. Being a fact, however, opinion differs as to what his real feelings in the matter were. It differs also as to whether Gladstone was deceived by his colleagues, Hartington, Granville, Northbrook, and Sir Charles Dilke. Mr. Blunt does not hesitate to charge these men with having conspired against Gladstone to mislead him, probably at the instigation of the Rothschilds, who had many millions at stake in Egypt, and were shaking in their boots lest the British garrisons should be withdrawn and the country left to the anarchy that they felt sure would follow. It may be said that the Duke of Devonshire's biography completely repudiates this suspicion on the part of Mr. Blunt, and takes the ground that the Prime Minister was not deceived by his colleagues. Whether Gordon's temperament or the situation itself made it impossible for the General to accomplish the task set him remains a question.

Gordon's Mission. According to Mr. Blunt, Gordon was despatched to Khartoum at the suggestion of Lord Escher, his general instructions being to place himself at the disposal of Lord Cromer, the British Agent, who would give him details of the work required of him. From Cromer he received orders to proceed to Khartoum and arrange for the withdrawing of the Egyptian garrisons as rapidly as was consistent with the saving of life and, so far as was possible, of property; and the establishment of some rough form of government that would prevent anarchy and confusion on the departure of the troops. Mr. Blunt is of opinion that these instructions were considerably in advance of anything Gordon had heard in England. Both Mr. Blunt and Lord Cromer seem to agree, however, that Gordon had wide discretionary powers, and yet the latter makes the charge that Gordon exceeded his powers. Mr. Blunt's theory is that the Rothschilds and the members of the Cabinet who desired the occupation of Egypt to be permanent knew well that it would be impossible for Gordon to withdraw the troops; and that a man of his character, once on the scene, would provoke some such tragedy as did in fact follow, and forever sealed the fate of Egypt.

A Prejudiced Witness. Mr. Blunt, entertaining historian though he is, cannot be accepted as an unbiased witness. He was a great friend of Arabi, and had much sympathy for the Mahdi and the cause for which he was fighting. He quotes passages from his diary which show him to have been engaged in praying for the failure of the British expedition; he rejoices when Burnaby falls, and speaks of the British soldiers as mere murderers. However, after making full allowances for his prejudices, Mr. Blunt was in a position from which he could be one of the most intelligent observers of the game, and his book is a valuable contribution to the political literature of modern Egypt.

OLIVE OIL INDUSTRY IN SOUTHERN ITALY.

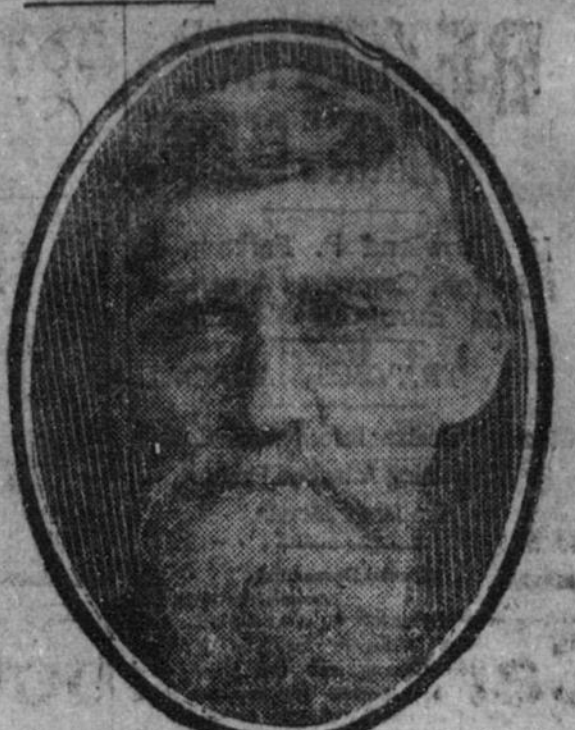

The manufacture of olive oil is one of the most important industries of southern Italy, and particularly in the region known as Apulia, of which Bari is the port of export. Fifty years ago the greater part of the crop consisted of common oil; now nearly the whole can be used for edible purposes, and the quality obtained is not inferior to other well-known Italian oils that have been successfully introduced in the foreign markets.

The area in olives in Apulia is estimated at about 520,000 acres, with an average production of about 60,000 tons of oil. The exact quantity produced during 1910 is not yet known, but 40,000 tons may be taken as a fair estimate. Considering the partial failure of the crops in Calabria and Sicily and the poor yields in Tuscany, the 1910 crop in Apulia may be regarded as fairly satisfactory.

The quality did not prove satisfactory in all districts, particularly in the lower levels and along the seacoast, where a large part was affected by worms. The quantities exported to the principal countries during 1910 were as follows, in tons: France, 1,691; Great Britain, 810; Austria-Hungary, 615; United States, 493; Germany, 215; Portugal, 155; Egypt, 155; and Argentina, 100.

CATARRH OF THE HEAD RELIEVED BY PERUNA

"Peruna Is a Great Medicine and a Fair Trial Will Convince Any One of its Efficacy."

F. M. JOFFRION

Mr. F. M. Joffrion, cor. Seventh St. and D. Ave., Bogalusa, Louisiana, writes: "This is to certify that the latter part of February I commenced taking Peruna for catarrh of the head, and have gained eleven pounds. Peruna is a great medicine and a fair trial will convince any one of its efficacy."

Chronic Nasal Catarrh. Mr. Chas. H. Stevens, 122 Sixteenth St., Detroit, Michigan, writes: "It affords me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Peruna as a remedy for catarrh. I suffered for some time with chronic nasal catarrh, but after five months' treatment, during which time I used seven bottles of Peruna, I am pleased to say that I am entirely well, there not being the slightest trace of catarrh left. "Peruna is without a doubt (in my mind) the greatest remedy known for catarrh."

Mr. J. G. Steffe, R. R. 3, Sherman, South Dakota, writes: "For four years I had been a continual sufferer from that dreadful disease, chronic catarrh. I tried all kinds of so-called catarrh remedies and found no relief. I was advised by a friend to write you about my case, which I did, and you kindly advised me to use a course of Peruna and Lacopia, which I com-

HERO OF THE REVOLUTION

Stirring Career of the "Garibaldi of China"—Price on His Head.

The most striking and dramatic figure in the stirring news from China is Sun-Yat-Sen, the leader of the movement among educated Chinese which has at last shown itself in open revolt against the Manchu rulers. He is the man who is said to have been selected as the President of a Chinese Republic.

His life story proves that the spirit of romance and adventure is not dead, for this man, who was kidnapped in London, imprisoned in the Chinese Legation in constant fear of execution till the British Government sternly ordered his release, and on whose head a price of £10,000 has been placed, has yet spent most of his time in China in disguise, though discovery meant torture and death, educating the people in preparation for the day which now appears to have dawned.

Born forty-nine years ago, of Chinese Christian parents in Canton, he studied medicine at the Anglo-American mission there for a time. Then in 1887 he went to Hong-kong to become the first student in a College of Medicine which Dr. James Cantlie, now a well-known medicine man in Harley-street, London, had founded. This association with Dr. Cantlie is an important incident in his life, for it was through the doctor's efforts that the Chinese Legation was, some years later, forced to release him from a bondage that seemed inevitably to lead to the scaffold.

In 1892, as a duly qualified man, he began to practise in Macao, and there came into sympathetic contact with that desire for reform that has shaped his whole life. "There," he wrote, "I first learned of the existence of a political movement which I might best describe as the formation of a 'Young China' party. Its objects were so wise, so modest, and so hopeful that my sympathies were at once enlisted in its behalf, and I believed I was doing my best to further the interests of my country by joining it. The idea was to bring about a peaceful reformation, and we hoped, by forwarding modest schemes of reform to the throne, to initiate a form of government more consistent with modern requirements. The prime essence of the movement, was the establishment of a form of constitutional government to supplement the old-fashioned, corrupt and worn-out system under which China is groaning."

The Government of China, Sun-Yat-Sen explains, is carried on chiefly by the Viceroy, who has entire charge of a province, raising an army and a navy, levying taxes, and administering such justice as they choose, their only responsibility to the Court of Peking being to send in reports and money. Yet the Viceroy of Canton—to take an instance—ruling a country with a population greater than that of Great Britain, is allowed a salary of only £60 a year. In order to live and maintain his office, and accumulate wealth, he, therefore, resorts to extortion and the sale of justice.

Escape in a Basket.
At last things came to a head, and an armed rising was planned for October, 1895. But the authorities got news of the movement. Many of the leaders were arrested and executed, and Sun-Yat-Sen, who was at Canton, escaped over the city wall in a basket and made his way in a steam launch to Macao, after hairbreadth escapes. Then, on the advice of his European friends, he put on European clothes, removed his pigtail, grew a moustache, and made his way to Honolulu.

Sun-Yat-Sen first came prominently before the British public in 1896, when he was imprisoned in the Chinese Legation, in London, from Oct. 11 to Oct. 23, and eventually released on very strong representations being made by the late Lord Salisbury.
"I was walking near the Chinese Embassy," he explained afterwards, "When I met one of my countrymen. He asked me what my native province was, and I said it was Canton. He said, 'I belong there also.' He took a walk with me a short way, and then another Chinaman appeared. He came from the building where I have been detained; at the time I did not know it was the Chinese Legation. When the second Chinaman appeared, the first said, 'This is a countryman of ours, and I shook hands. As we walked slowly past the legation, these two Chinamen asked me to go in, and before I could reply they pushed me inside the door. The door was immediately shut, and the two then forced me in a room, and locked the door.'
Continuing his story, Sun-Yat-Sen said to him: "We are not going to you up and block your mouth, and carry you at night on board some ship that we have chartered. We have four men to keep guard and lock you up on board ship. If we cannot smuggle you away we can kill you here, because this is China."
"He told me that I should have no chance to escape," added Sun-Yat-Sen. "I asked him what they would do if they failed to get me off in that way. He said they would have me killed here and embalm my body and send it back to China for execution, for the Chinese punishment extends to the dead. He added that the Chinese Government wanted me to be captured at any price, dead or alive."
Rescue by Lord Salisbury.
"I wrote two notes to send to Dr. Cantlie and Dr. Mansen, but they were not delivered. Finding no reply came I attempted to throw a note from the window to the next house. It appears it was picked up by one of the men at the Embassy, and the next day the window was screwed up. The note thus flung from the window read:—"This will inform the public that I, Sun, was kidnapped by Chinese Legation, and shall be smuggled out from England into China for execution. Whoever picks this paper up please show to Dr. James Cantlie, 46 Devonshire-street, for his rescue."

Eventually, on Oct. 17, Dr. Cantlie got news of his friend's imprisonment. Means were soon contrived to communicate with him, a servant at the Legation being persuaded to pass notes to Sun-Yat-Sen in a coal-scuttle. In this way an evening paper containing an account of the kidnapping was also smuggled to the prisoner, and he was thus assured that his friends were working to save him from a terrible fate.

Dr. Cantlie promptly informed the Foreign Office, and at the same time had detectives posted around the Chinese Legation to prevent any attempt at smuggling Sun away. Before long Scotland Yard took up the task of watching the premises, and Lord Salisbury made a demand for the release of the prisoner, which was promptly obeyed.

Just before five o'clock on the afternoon of Oct. 23, Detective-Inspector Jarvis, of Scotland Yard, arrived at the Chinese Legation. He had with him a letter bearing the Foreign Office seal, and was accompanied by Dr. Cantlie. To Sir Halliday Macartney, Secretary of the Chinese Legation, he presented this letter, and in a few moments Sun walked out with his friends, a free man.

After that came a period of constant travel through England and America, with frequent visits in disguise to China. All the time he was arranging for the education of his fellow-countrymen in Western ideas, and raising funds for the release of his land from the foreign rule of the Manchu oppressors.

His English friends speak of him with enthusiasm. Mrs. Cantlie, wife of the doctor who has proved so good a friend, speaks of him as "The Garibaldi of China."
"He visits us almost every year," she told a "Lloyd's News" representative. "He was last here in January of this year, and seemed unusually optimistic and confident. Generally he was grave and thoughtful, like a man who feels deeply, but this time he was quite gay and lively. On Jan. 11 he sailed for America, but, contrary to his usual custom, left no address at which we might communicate with him. But I feel sure that after a visit to Honolulu, where he was going to see his son and arrange for his admission to an agricultural college, he went straight to China."

Through China in Disguise.
"Although for years there has been a price on his head, and people have said that he dare not set foot in China, he has, as a matter of fact spent most of his time there. Of course, he has been disguised, but even then he has been suspected, and has had hairbreadth escapes. Once, he told us, he had to remain in a Chinese house for six months, because his presence became known, and finally he was smuggled out to a steamer. But he is absolutely fearless, and bent only on his mission of educating his fellow countrymen and urging them to throw off the shackles of their Manchu rulers."

"When he was here in January we left confident that he was on the eve of a great coup—he spoke so hopefully of success," he used to say, and then he would add, "You will soon hear of me again."
"The impression that great things were coming was curiously confirmed on March 23 last, when a London detective—I do not know whether he was from Scotland Yard or the Chinese Legation—called here and asked whether we knew where Sun-Yat-Sen was. We were unable to say, and there the incident ended, but we realized that he was causing anxiety to someone, and this further prepared us for the present events."

"He is patient, and his sole aim is to reestablish his beloved country from the foreign rule of the Manchus. This should not involve any very great change. The rule is really in the hands of the Viceroys, and each province has more freedom than the States in the United States of America. Sun-Yat-Sen would retain these Viceroys, making them subject to a strong President, and giving the people a Parliament. Apart from this there would be little change in the actual machinery of government."
"As for any reform of the Court, he regards that as impossible. He points out that the Emperor is a child, that the Regent, his uncle, is a weak man, and everything is at the mercy of intrigues between two Dowager Empresses."

Will He be President?
"If this report that Sun-Yat-Sen is to be President of a Chinese Republic suggests that he seeks such a post, it quite misrepresents his character. That is not like Sun. He is so modest, so utterly without ambition, and I am sure he would not accept the Presidency if it were forced upon him, and he were convinced that the step was the only one to secure the welfare of his country."

"We think this must be China's greatest bid for freedom, for we are confident that this time Sun-Yat-Sen is actually on the spot, inspiring and directing it. In previous risings the train has always been fired too soon, before he could be on the spot. He has never been present before—that is what distinguishes the present rising from all previous efforts, and makes it so full of hope."
It was reassuring to hear that no anxiety need be felt for Europeans in China.

"Not only is Sun-Yat-Sen an earnest Christian (he used to attend church when staying with us), and the son of a Christian," said Mrs. Cantlie, "but the movement has nothing of the anti-foreigner idea about it. He knows well that if it is sought to set up another Government all possibilities must be avoided. The present nations must not be confused with Boxer outbreaks, fomented by the Government to get rid of foreigners."
Of Sun-Yat-Sen's ultimate and even early success his friends have little doubt. He has plenty of money from his supporters among wealthy Chinese merchants in the Straits Settlements and other places, he counts on two-thirds of the 180,000 well-armed and foreign-trained troops, and the capture of the arsenal at Wuchang has solved the problem of ammunition.

"When he was here last year," said Mrs. Cantlie, "he wrote to Lord Crewe asking permission to land at Hongkong, as his mother was lying ill there. Lord Crewe refused, on the grounds of Sun-Yat-Sen's hostility to the Chinese Government, and when the reformer arrived off the port his mother's dead body was brought out to sea in order that he might take a last farewell."

How well the present rising has been planned is shown by documents and other evidence that has come into the possession of the "Daily Chronicle." This evidence amply proves that Sun-Yat-Sen and his associates have been making secret journeys to this country and to America, using every endeavor to raise a vast sum of money in the two countries to finance the rebellion.

In the early negotiations Sun-Yat-Sen had stated that he had guarantees up to a large amount, and in reply to a request for information about these, the leader of the rebellion sent the following letter to the capitalists referred to, from New York, where he was consulting with American friends on the military part of his plan.
In regard to the matter of getting a loan for the political object in China by guarantee of Chinese merchants abroad, I have succeeded in bringing in a Chinese bank and three rice mills in Bangkok, Siam, and some merchants in Singapore, and three mine owners in the Malay States, who will give such guarantee.

In order to make sure of our success we need a loan of half-million pounds to perfect our organization, which will enable us to capture at least two of the rich provinces by the footing we will establish a provisional Government.

On receipt of this communication the firms to whom the project had been broached made inquiries of their own, and secured ample corroboration of Sun Yat's statement that the spirit of revolt was firing the Chinese, and that an outbreak could not be long delayed. They then wrote to Sun-Yat-Sen, care of a firm of Chinese merchants in New York—his permanent address—stating that it was necessary for them to know the names of the Chinese bank to which he referred, and the merchants at Singapore, Bangkok, and elsewhere to which he referred.

A Secret Mission.
This request brought no reply from the rebel leader for some weeks; for, as he explained in a subsequent letter, he had been away from New York on a "secret mission." Within two months of the despatch of this letter there came a reply in which Sun-Yat-Sen said:—
"There are in all twelve completed divisions of the new modern drilling army, five divisions are ready to give support to the cause, provided a fair starting could be made, and the other seven divisions is practically neutralized by the degradation of their late chief."

"As to the navy, though hitherto no arrangements support has been made, but an understanding can be easily concluded if funds for the purpose could be sufficiently provided. The naval force of China consists of which is only 4,000 tons, and the other three only 2,000 and 900 tons. Many of the officers and sailors are revolutionists."
"The whole of South China is ready for a general uprising,"—Lloyd's Weekly.

ARE YOU AS WELL AS A YEAR AGO?
Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Point the Way to Health and Strength

Ask yourself the important question whether you are as strong as you were a year ago, as bodily fit as you should be. Many a reader has to confess "No." Some weakening ailment has during the past year laid hold of the system, unfitting you for the duties of life and seriously clouding the outlook of the coming days. It may be rheumatism with its sharp twinges of pain, indigestion, headache, nervous debility, depression and lack of energy, or the pains and ailments which only common folk know. It is well to know that all these weakening disorders arise from an impoverished condition of the blood. Renew and enrich your blood and all your troubles will cease. This is a strong statement, but it is made on the testimony of thousands who once suffered, but who have gained health and strength by the aid of the new, rich blood supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. We can quote thousands of cases similar to the following: Mr. Jos. Grandmaison is a young man well known in the town of St. Jerome, Que. He says: "For a couple of years I began to find my strength failing, but did not dream that the trouble was serious. As I grew weaker I began to doctor, but it did not help me. The least exertion made my heart palpitate violently, my stomach seemed out of order and my whole system became so run down that I was finally forced to quit work. I had now been doctoring for almost six months, and was very naturally growing discouraged. At this juncture I read of a case similar to mine, cured through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and decided to try them. I took the Pills faithfully for about two months, gradually growing stronger and at the end of that time I was as well as any man could be. I shall always praise the medicine that raised me from despair to the blessing of good health."

Mr. Elisee Dupuis, of St. Paul de Croix, was suffering from weakness, ST. MICHEL'S WINE cured him and he acknowledges its value.

Mr. Elisee Dupuis' trade is a hard one, that of sawyer; he had used his strength un- sparingly and,—human endurance having its limits,—he began to grow weak until finally the day came when he realized that he must find a remedy for his enfeebled condition. Mr. Elisee Dupuis has the courage of his convictions. This may be seen by the following letter:

MESSRS. BOIVIN, WILSON & CO., Montreal.
Gentlemen:—Many people hesitate at the idea of seeing their photographs or testimony published in the newspapers. For my part, I am not of these. When one obtains relief from his sufferings through another's help, it seems to me only just to give credit to whom it is due and show gratitude for the good that has been done.
It is for this reason, gentlemen, that I take pleasure in thanking you for the marvellous results procured by means of your ST. MICHEL'S WINE, which I used for weakness, from which I suffered for many years. In my trade we are much more exposed than in many others. We over-exert ourselves, with the result, you know and we often become extremely weak. I have been through the mill and if to-day I am enjoying good health, it is due in great part to the restorative properties of ST. MICHEL'S WINE. Since I have been taking this treatment I can attend to my work without fear of feeling weak as I used to formerly. I heartily urge my co-workers to follow my example, because I am certain that ST. MICHEL'S WINE will be worth its weight in gold to them. Once more, thank you a thousand times, thank you.

Very truly yours,
ELISEE DUPUIS,
St. Paul de la Croix.
P.S.—You will find enclosed my photograph which I had taken after being restored to health. One dozen and a half bottles were sufficient to make me strong again.

Thousands of persons have thus felt the benevolent action of ST. MICHEL'S WINE. We are receiving new testimonials daily which we will be able to publish with the permission of our correspondents.

I Am Willing To Prove I Can Cure You

To That End I Am Giving Away $10,000 Worth of Medicine

In order to show beyond all doubt that I am in possession of a medicine that will cure kidney trouble, bladder trouble or rheumatism, I will this year give away ten thousand dollars worth of this medicine, and anyone suffering from these diseases can get a box of it absolutely free. All that is necessary is to send me your address.

I don't mean that you are to use a part of it or all of it and pay me if cured. I mean that I will send you a box of this medicine absolutely free of charge, a gift from me to the Uric Acid sufferers of the world, so I can show them where and how they may be cured. I will not expect payment for this free medicine, nor would I accept it now or later if you send it. It is free in the real meaning of the word.

For twenty-five years—a quarter of a century—I have been trying to convince the public that I have something genuine, something better than others have for the cure of uric acid, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney, chronic rheumatism, for torturing kidney, for annoying calls to urinate, but it is hard to convince people—they try a few things unsuccessfully and give up all hope and refuse to listen to anyone thereafter. Happily, I am in a position now to demonstrate to sufferers at my own expense that I have a medicine that cures these diseases. I don't ask them to spend any money to find out. I don't ask them to believe me, nor even to take the word of reliable people, but all I ask is that they allow me to send them the medicine at my own cost. That is surely fair.

To this end I have set aside ten thousand dollars, which will be used to compound my medicine. Most of it is ready to be sent out, all of it fresh and standard. There will be enough for all sufferers, though there are thousands of them. And anyone who needs it can get some of it free. But in order that I shall know that you have a disease for which this medicine is intended, I ask you to send me some of your leading symptoms. If you have any of the symptoms in the list printed here, you need my medicine and if you will write me I will gladly send you a box of it free with full directions for your use. Look the symptoms over, see which symptoms you have, then write me about as follows: "Dear Dr. Frank Lynott, I notice symptoms number—here put down the numbers, give your age, full address, and send it to me. My address is Dr. T. Frank Lynott, 339 Franklin Building, Toronto, Can.

The ten thousand dollars I am spending for the compounding of my medicine is not a part of the money I am devoting to this cause, for the package of medicine I send you will be fully prepaid at my expense. From any standpoint you view it, YOU incur no expense or obligation. Just tell others who you know are suffering who send you the medicine that cured you.

I am promising to give away ten thousand dollars worth of medicine, and I will do that; I am promising to send any sufferer who writes me a box of this medicine and full directions free of charge, and I will do that; I can say further that this medicine has been vouchsafed according to the law as complying in every detail with all requirements. It

You will be better in every way for having taken it. There is not an ingredient that can injure; not one that will benefit. All that I ask is that you use it yourself so that you may be personally convinced.

Owing to the large number of requests, I have had ten thousand more copies of my medical book printed. This book is new and up-to-date and contains complete descriptions, symptoms, causes, effects and cures of kidney, bladder and rheumatic diseases. All who write for the free medicine will be sent a copy of this grand illustrated medical book—the largest ever written on these diseases for free and general distribution.

If you need medicine such as I have, if you are anxious to be cured and don't want to spend any money LOOKING for cures, write me. Read the symptoms over and let me hear from you to-day.

BANQUET TO POSTMASTERGENERAL

Hon. L. P. Pelletier Will Be Offered Testimonial by Friends in Quebec District.

One of the most enthusiastic meetings that has ever taken place in this district, took place in the large cafe of the Chateau Frontenac last night, when over 150 gentlemen met together with a view of organizing a popular demonstration to Hon. L. P. Pelletier, the new Postmaster-General in Mr. Borden's cabinet.

The meeting was called at the summons of Dr. Michel Fiset, the energetic president of the new Cartier Club of St. Sauveur.

This club, which has been recently instituted, has already an active membership of nearly one hundred members and their initiative in this respect is most satisfactory and augurs well for the future of the organization.

At the opening of the meeting last night, Dr. Fiset was unanimously chosen chairman, and Mr. Charles Smith, the popular organizing secretary of the late campaign, was requested to act in a similar capacity as secretary of the meeting.

Dr. Fiset, in a few, well chosen remarks, explained the nature of the meeting and felt that he voiced the opinions and sentiments of all the Conservative party in Quebec in their desire to do honor to Hon. Mr. Pelletier, by means of a thoroughly representative banquet.

Excellent speeches were made by Hon. Thomas Chapais, Messrs. D. O. Lesperance, M.P., Albert Sevigny, M.P., Alderman Verret, D. Watson, Dr. Verge, C. J. Lockwell, Emile Gelley, and others, all with a view of stimulating the greatest possible enthusiasm into the project and with the purpose of making the demonstration one of the greatest of its kind ever held in this district.

The following committees were then formed for the carrying out of the banquet:

Lactic Acid is the arch enemy of the teeth. Under the microscope have been discovered twenty-two kinds of bacteria in the mouth; these feeding upon the particles of food carelessly allowed to remain in the teeth produce lactic acid. This acid seeks out the weak spots in the enamel and there decay immediately begins.

You can successfully contend against the depredations of lactic acid by the constant use of

This world-renowned dentifrice being alkaline, produces a normal condition by neutralizing the mouth acids.

MANITOBA GRAIN GROWERS SATISFIED WITH BORDEN.

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 3.—Directors of the Manitoba Grain Growers' Association have passed a number of resolutions expressing satisfaction at the attitude taken by Premier Borden in his address to Western farmers last summer re (1) Government operation of terminal elevators for independent commission; (2) Government construction and operation of Hudson Bay Railway; (3) an act to facilitate establishing co-operative societies; (4) facilities for exporting chilled meat and (5) compensation for stock killed by railways. The expectation that these promises will be implemented at the first session of parliament. Defeat of reciprocity is regretted though encouragement is found in the general support of the rural population. The general platform of the Grain Growers' is reaffirmed.

A GRAND ROAD TO RAPID WEALTH

Feed Rats to Cats, Skin the Cats and Feed Them to the Rats.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—"Get-rich-quick" schemes of J. Rufus Walling Ford, facile financier of the tried and true roads to wealth by thrift and industry which have met with more or less success when pursued by John D. Rockefeller, J. P. Morgan and others, are as the blundering activities of children compared with a plan submitted to Postmaster Campbell today. The plan is nothing more or less to feed rats to cats, skin the cats and feed the cats back to the rats, in endless succession, the only break being the deduction of the cat skins, the sale of which is to supply the profit. The writer, outlining his plan, said:

"We will start a cat ranch, getting 1,000,000 cats. Each will have 12 kittens a year. Cat skins are worth 10c. for white ones and 75c. for black. They will average 30c. each. There is 12,000,000 cat skins a year, a daily gross income of some $10,000. A man can skin fifty cats for $2, and it will take 100 men to operate the ranch, leaving our profit over $9,000 a day. We will have to feed the cats. How? Start a rat ranch next door. Rats multiply four times as fast as cats. We will have, therefore, four rats a day for each cat a plenty. How to feed the rats? Simple, feed them on the cat bodies—a fourth of a rat per rat—amply sufficient. Thus, you see, the business will be self supporting and automatic all the way. The cats will eat the rats, and the rats will eat the cats and we get the skins and wealth. Are you with me?"

RECEIPT FOR WARDING OFF AGE

Fat is commonplace—middle aged. It stamps a woman as unquestionably past the period of youth. Hence it lessens her influence. She may charm still—by nimbleness of wit—but that indefinite fascination a fine figure yields has fled from her.

For ever? No! for it can be regained, and that easily. Youth as expressed in the straight front, the lissome hip, the wavy outline, is not beyond recall. Let any woman who is too well filled out, take a Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and at bedtime. The sprightliness of youth will come back to her. Off will go the fat, uniformly and smoothly, revealing the foundation of the lost youthful form beneath.

Try this method. No exercising or dieting is necessary to take off a pound a day. The Tablet will do it alone. No wrinkles or haggard lines will form; instead the health, the brightness and the lissomeness will increase. The Marmola Prescription Tablet is absolutely non-injurious (being made of the famous fashionable formula 1-2 oz. Marmola, 3-4 oz. Fl. Ex. Cascara Aromatic, 4 3-4 oz. Peppermint Water); and it is also inexpensive, a large case, enough to show results, costing, at any drug store, or direct from the Marmola Co., 854 Farmer Bldg., Detroit, Mich., only seventy-five cents.

AMERICAN BRASS WORKS MAY COME TO CANADA

Sarnia, Ont., Nov. 3.—Two representatives of the American Brass Works conferred with the Board of Trade and council here today relative to locating their factory here. Several offers were made and they will be submitted at the company's annual meeting at Detour, Ill., on Monday. It is probable that the chain works plant here will be acquired by the brass works people and extended considerably.

EFFORT TO BUY A SEAT ON THE BENCH

At Long Island, N. Y.—Strong Evidence Given in the Case in Supreme Court.

New York, Nov. 3.—The judiciary scandal in Long Island had further light thrown upon it to-day in the hearing before Judge Scudder in the Supreme Court in the Queen's County Court House in Long Island.

A sensation of the day was the testimony of Patrick E. Callahan, one of the Democratic candidates for the three new places created by the last legislature for the Supreme bench in the Long Island district. Callahan turned upon his party associate, W. Willett, who is charged with conspiracy with others to secure nomination by the payment of money.

"Now Mr. Callahan, in view of what Willett did on convention day in borrowing the $10,000, did you consider him fit to be a Supreme Court justice?" asked Assistant District Attorney De Ford, referring to previous testimony of a loan secured by Willett.

"No," shouted Callahan, rising from his chair and looking straight at Willett, who was seated not far away with his counsel.

For the first time since the proceedings began Willett appeared to color and to lose some of his self control.

Callahan continued: "Ketcham (the other candidate) and I asked Willett to get off the ticket, and when he refused we told him that he would have to get off, but he did not. Willett said that it would make him a criminal to get off the ticket."

Others beside Willett named in the tentative charges into which the inquiry is being held are Louis Walters, who nominated Willett, Joseph Cassidy, Democratic leader in Queen's County, and J. H. McCooney, Democratic leader of Brooklyn. The latter was the only one of the four to be called as a witness to-day. McCooney declared that Cassidy had first brought up Willett's name, but that the Queen's leader also mentioned others and that he (witness) did not know to what decision the Queen's leader had come up to the time of the convention. He declared he had played no other part in the nomination, but added that when he heard of Willett's action in drawing $10,000 from his bank on the day of his nomination he considered the action as "indiscreet."

Surrogate Ketcham, one of the candidates for the Supreme-Court bench, was called to the stand and was asked incidentally about his appointment of McCooney to the office of Chief Clerk in the Surrogate's office at a salary of $9,000 a year. Surrogate Ketcham declared that his appointment was made long before the legislature had created three new judgeships and that he had made it without any idea of its playing a part in nominations which might follow. He told of making his usual $200 contribution for campaign purposes to the County Committee.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT AND AEROPLANES

Montreal, Nov. 3.—"The Canadian government will in all probability take up experiment with aeroplanes as an aid in warfare during the coming year," said Lieutenant-Colonel Maunsell, in command of all the engineering departments of the Canadian militia, who is at the Queen's Hotel today. "Petewawa will hardly be suited for the experiments, as it is undulating, and, in parts, stumpy. I know of no location so good as that of the level country between Montreal and Ste. Ann's."

Lt.-Col. Maunsell and Colonel Fiset have just returned from Atlantic City, where they represented the Canadian government at the attempt made on Oct. 20 to start the trip of the Vani-man dirigible across the Atlantic, a little excursion which Walter Wellman's chief engineer on the American hopes to complete in four days. The Canadian military men were compelled to return home without viewing the flight, as the weather was unsuitable. "It would not be good business for Canada to be spending largely for experiments in air navigation, when it can have the benefit of such expenditures as that of Frank A. Leterling, who is Vaniman's backer, and has $250,000 into the America's successor," said Lt.-Col. Maunsell. "We will start with aeroplanes, which can be had at short notice for $5000. Men can be trained to run an aeroplane in two months."

MUNICIPAL GAS PLANT FOR REGINA

Regina, Sask., Nov. 3.—Steps are being taken toward the establishment of a municipal gas plant in Regina, and it is confidently expected that before another year goes by there will be such a public utility here. The city already owns waterworks, electric light and street railway utilities, and these are such a success financially that a movement is now being made toward the establishment of a gas plant.

AN APPEAL FOR THE TWO YOUNG BANK CLERKS

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 3.—"Ralph Connor" is interesting himself in a petition to the Governor-General, which it is expected will be signed by many influential Winnipeggers, asking for the release of John K. McLeod and Gordon Nagle, condemned to Stoney Mountain penitentiary for thefts from the Union Bank. The petition urges that considering their age and responsible positions the two young bank clerks did not have sufficient supervision and points out that contact with habitual criminals will start them on a life of crime. Mrs. McLeod is prostrated by the shock.

SHORTAGE OF COAL SUPPLY IN SASKATCHEWAN

Regina, Sask., Nov. 3.—T. Crombie, Chief of the Information and Statistics Bureau of the Provincial Government, has completed an investigation into the coal situation, and finds that practically all the outlying points have not more than 20 per cent of the winter's supply of coal. During his investigation, Mr. Crombie visited practically all of the points along the Goose Lake line and portions of the Canadian Pacific Railway line and the Grand Trunk Pacific line from Saskatoon to the border. The shortage of fuel seemed to be general throughout the province. In some of the places visited the warnings of the government officials have been heeded and steps have been taken to secure an ample supply for the winter. Along the Outlook line, it was impossible to lay in a stock of coal at some points as the bins that should have been used for coal were used to store grain.

Don't Forget The Coal

Now is the time to remember it—and to get in your winter supply. Stack it in and be prepared for Jack Frost. We can deliver you good, clean, well-screened Coal in any quantity at the lowest market prices. It has great heating properties, is dry and clean, and will give you the greatest satisfaction.

HELD FOR DEATH OF HOLY GHOSTER

Federal Commissioner at Portland Fixes His Bail at $10,000—Women Bondsmen.

Portland, Me., Nov. 3.—After an all-day preliminary hearing before United States Commissioner William M. Bradley to-day the Rev. Frank W. Sandford, leader of the Holy Ghost and Us Colony, was held in $15,000 bail for the Grand Jury of the United States District Court, which sits on Tuesday, Dec. 12, in this city.

Bail was later reduced to $10,000 and was furnished by Anna T. Clement, Mrs. H. A. Perry, William M. Mars-teller and William Bailey, four members of the faith who pledged their small farms to release their leader from bondage.

Sandford was charged with causing the death of Charles Hughey, a sailor, one of seven who died aboard the Coronet Oct. 18, 1911, it is alleged, from neglect and insufficient food. He was also charged with keeping the crew of the Coronet at sea in a vessel insufficiently provisioned, when he might have made port.

Sandford appeared without counsel and refused all legal assistance. He refused to question witnesses or to make any statement himself. He wore a black chevrot sack suit, and his face betrayed no emotion as he sat at a table taking many notes.

The court room was crowded to the doors all day and in the crowd were twenty-five Holy Ghosters as stoical as their leader. Those who testified during the day were the Rev. Charles E. Holland, second in command to Sandford, and Roland Whitton, sailing master of the Coronet; Robert Mackay, former mate of the Kingdom; Dr. Charles E. Banks, acting quarantine officer at this port who was instrumental in having the charges preferred against Sandford; Jane Stewart Dart, a woman passenger on the Coronet, and several Government and State officers.

Holland read the articles of incorporation of "the Kingdom," which represents the land holdings of the colony, and "the Kingdom Yacht Club," which owns the Holy Ghost fleet. Holland said the Holy Ghosters considered Sandford a reincarnation of Elijah. His word was practically the word of God. Then he read the creed to which everyone must subscribe to before becoming a member of the faith. They are:

"I believe not only in the Father, the only Potentate, and in Jesus Christ, the King whose millennial reign is to prepare the globe for the great God, but also in the prophet, Prince, Priest, who is to prepare the Kingdom for the Christ.

"I believe the man as a prophet is called in the Bible Elijah, and as a prince is called David, and as a priest is called Teshnach or 'the branch.' I believe that F. W. Sandford of Chiloah Maine, United States, America, tells the truth when he makes proclamation that God said to him: 'Elijah is here, testify;' and again 'I have found David,' were words spoken as applying to himself personally. I believe in and accept him as such. I believe that Mr. Sandford's true yoke fellow from the first—C. E. Holland of Shiloh—is proclaimed by Mr. Sandford, the second witness, or as called by God himself to one of the Shiloh evangelists 'Moses' and that these two men are 'the two sons of oil,' the two candlesticks, 'the two olive trees,' the two 'witnesses,' the 'two prophets' and the 'two anointed ones' that stand by the Lord of the whole earth, Zach. 4 and Rev. 11.

"I believe that the kingdom was renewed in Jerusalem Oct. 2, 1902, by the authority of God, and I heartily accept the same as the kingdom set up by the god of heaven, Daniel, 2, 44, and the kingdom which is eventually to become a great mountain and fill the whole earth."

Roland Whitton, sailing master of the Coronet, testified that when the food fell short Sandford said that he had news from God, and everything would be all right. Sandford refused to go into port for supplies. He would rather trust in God. When the people on board wanted to go ashore Sandford said that he had commands from God not to land on either the United States or Canada. At another time he said that he would "head to hell, if God ordered."

Mate Whitton further testified that once he heard Mrs. Sandford tell her husband that there was only enough flour to last to the next Tuesday, and that Sandford told her to "shut up."

Dr. Banks, who boarded the Coronet on her arrival in Portland, said he had aboard any boat. In his opinion the seven Shilohites who died aboard the Coronet died of scurvy and starvation.

MRS. FITZGERALD WINS A PRINCE

Rich Divorcee Who Figured in Pullman Car Romance Bride of Thum and Taxis.

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 3.—Prince Victor, of Thurn and Taxis, bearer of one of the greatest names and former bearer of some of the greatest debts of Europe, author of the "Dear Little Snooksie" letters, "hero" of the "Mrs. Taxis" romance, and once defendant in a woman's suit to recover money she said she'd lent to help him win an American heiress, to-day married Mrs. Lida Eleanor Fitzgerald, former wife of General Gerald Fitzgerald, of Ireland.

Mrs. Fitzgerald, niece of J. V. Thompson, the multi-millionaire banker and coal operator, possessor of millions in her own right, heroine of the unusual Pullman car romance with the Irish General, and noted on two continents for her beauty, is the woman who declared last July that she would marry the errant nobleman and redeem him.

"He was born a prince, but I will make him a man," she said.

Increase of $35,000 a Year. And she has entered upon the realization of this ambition with due caution. The marriage to-day took place only after a deed of separation of property had been drawn up, by which the new princess will retain control of her American wealth.

It required a legal battle lasting almost a decade for her to establish her right to $35,000 a year income from the American mine holdings of her divorced husband, General Fitzgerald.

Her marriage to the prince was solemnized in the home of the bride on West Main street. Only a few relatives and friends were present. The bride was radiant in a creation of white broadcloth and blue messaline, with a large corsage bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Fitzgerald arrived home from Europe only last Saturday. Prince Victor arrived at 11 o'clock this morning. They will return to Europe shortly, though they have not yet decided where they will make their permanent abode.

Actress Said She Was His Wife.

Prince Victor of Thurn and Taxis first appeared in this country about five years ago. He was received for a time in the best society. But, after his return to his vast and vastly encumbered estates in Austria, Miss Josephine Moffitt, an American actress, set up the claim that she was his wife.

She started the public by the allegation that the ceremony consisted of crossing hands across a table and pledging the union. She went so far as to make public some of the Prince's ardent letters to her in which he gave her the titles of "Babsie" and "Snooksie," but never that of "Princess."

The Prince was so ruffled by these statements that he brought suit abroad to compel the young woman to stop saying such things.

Instead, another one came up. This time a Mlle. Kemper sued him for about $120,000, alleging that he obtained the funds from her to facilitate his marriage either to a princess or an American heiress. The action failed.

Ousted from Austrian Army.

It came out that the Prince had been asked to leave the Austrian Army, and that the magnitude of his debts was one of the wonders of the European capitals.

In the meanwhile Mrs. Fitzgerald, who met the dashing General on a Pullman car journeying from Chicago to California, and was married to him in the West, had lost her regard for her husband and had sued for divorce. She won it, but then the litigation over alimony continued for years. She finally won that also.

While she was abroad she met the Prince. Of course she knew about him from report, but his personality gave her the assurance that he was a true and worthy man at heart. When she admitted their betrothal last Summer she said:

"Prince Victor, unfortunately, was born under the sign of Aquarius, and he has no chance of accomplishing anything by himself. He needs outside help, and I purpose to give it to him. I don't care how much the Prince owes. He will pay every cent of it."

"I did not make him a prince, but I think I can make him a man. I am willing to devote the rest of my life to the task, and I think I shall succeed."

WOMEN ARE TO BLAME.

Mary Boyle O'Reilly says that the question of the East is the woman question. The sultan of Turkey is an official pauper, she says, and the Ottoman Empire a constitutional state, and women have brought about both conditions.

CRITICISES SCHOOL SYSTEM Mrs. H. Clay Harvey of Kirksville, Mo., criticises the educational methods in Missouri, which permits a child to leave school without knowing a word about the history of the state, of the Constitution of the United States, or of literature. And yet, 50 per cent of the children, she says, leave school at the fourth grade, before they know any of these things. They are expected to grow up and vote. She thinks that consolidation of schools will remedy of the evils of education in Missouri.

RUNAWAY TEAM DODGES CHILDREN But Man Hidden in Back of Van Guides Horses—Driver and Another Hurt.

New York, Nov. 3.—A team of horses drawing a heavy moving van ran into a Grand street surface car at Essex and Delancey streets at 8.30 o'clock last night. The driver, Louis Stern, of No. 152 Bond street, Brooklyn, was tossed under the wheels of the van as the frightened horses galloped east on Delancey street.

The street was black with children, but warning cries failed to reach the ears of several groups as the horses dashed upon them. A dozen or more men tried to stop the team. Fred Karcher, a railroad inspector of No. 129 Avenue A, was tossed to the curb unconscious when he tugged at the bridles.

The horses wheeled from curb to curb, avoiding children at play in their path. After they had run nearly five blocks they came to a sudden standstill.

Then a man stepped from the rear of the van and remarked to a crowd that he had a hard time stopping the team and avoided accidents to children. He was Louis Becker, owner of the team and van. When the horses started he was seated in the body of the van. After the driver was thrown he grabbed up the reins and directed the horses in and out among the children, sawing with the reins until they were brought to a halt.

Stern and Karcher were attended by Dr. Marchley of Gouverneur Hospital and conveyed to their homes.

WANTS ALL HUBBY'S KISSES.

Actor's Bride, Seeing Embrace on Stage, Takes Poison.

Philadelphia, Nov. 3.—The thought that her husband, Clarence Lacey, a vaudeville performer, should kiss any woman other than herself, even in the course of his duties on the stage, was so intolerable to Ruth Lacey, a bride of a few weeks, that she tried to kill herself to-day by eating bichloride of mercury tablets. Having witnessed a performance in which he had to take a girl in his arms and kiss her, Lacey's bride protested and sobbed and wept against it.

"But it's only in the day's work," said her husband. "It is only a mere mechanical kiss I give—have to give her. It is nothing like such a kiss as I give you."

Then he left her to go to the theatre and later she was found in their apartment, at No. 1,614 Vine street, suffering violently. She was taken to the Hahnemann Hospital, where her condition is said to be serious.

UNSANITARY HOUSES TO BE ABOLISHED

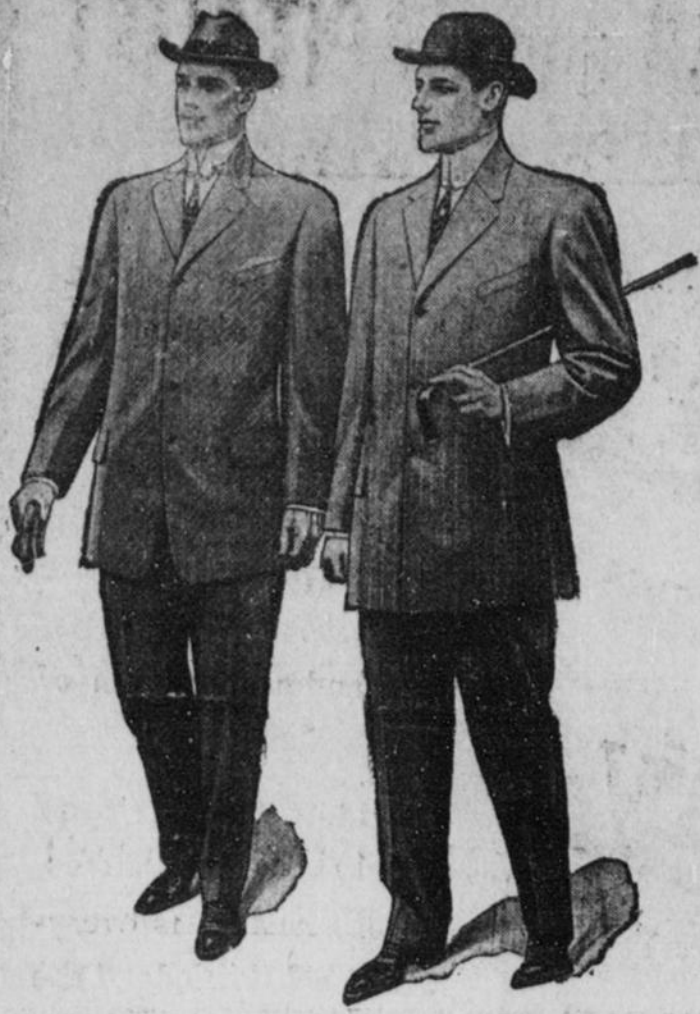

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Mayor Guerin has perfected some of the ideas which he proposes to advance for the abolition of slum conditions in Montreal. The new proposed health department law will give the city the right to disperse people living in houses where the conditions are not sanitary. They will, for instance, forbid people living in dark, unlighted rooms, and in houses which are not lighted both from the front and back. They can also order unsanitary houses to be torn down. The building by-law, which is in the course of preparation, will also have provisions which will assist in working out the scheme.

SLAUGHTER OF WOMEN AND CHILDREN

Charged Against the Italians in Tripoli—Telegram From a British Officer in Turkish Army.

London, Nov. 3.—The agitation against alleged atrocities by Italians in Tripoli which has sprung up in the British press and been taken up by a few members of the House of Commons since uncensored reports arrived here from English newspaper correspondents concerning recent occurrences in Tripoli, received fresh impetus tonight through a telegram received by a news agency from Herbert Montagu, a second lieutenant of the Fifth Fusiliers. Lt. Montagu telegraphed from Soukelyohma by way of Dehibat, on the frontier of Tunis, as follows:

"I feel it my duty to send to you the following telegram, and I beg you, in the name of Christianity to publish it throughout England. I am an English officer now voluntarily serving in the Turkish army here.

"As you know already about the ferocious resistance which the Turks and Arabs are offering the Italians, I will only express by admiration for their bravery and fortitude, which would warm the heart of any Englishman or of any true soldier in the world.

"Imagine my feelings when, on entering and driving the Italians out of Arab houses which they had fortified and were holding, we discovered the bodies of some 120 women and children with their heads and feet bound, mutilated, pierced and torn. Later on at (the name of the town was lost in transmission) we found a mosque filled with bodies of women and children, mutilated almost beyond recognition. I could not count them, but there must have been three or four hundred.

"In this European war are such crimes to be committed? Cannot England do something to stop such horrors? In our civilization and times you can hardly believe it, but it is true, nevertheless. I myself have seen it, so I know.

"Even now we are getting news of further massacres—of women and children—who were discovered in different farms lately occupied by Italians. The idea of the Italians when they slaughtered the innocents obviously was one of revenge for their heavy losses in battle.

"We are at this moment under a heavy shrapnel fire, so you must excuse me if these sentences are somewhat disjointed. There is also an aeroplane circling over our position and directing the nemy's gun fire on us."

Lt. Montagu's message is dated Nov. 2.

QUESTION REGARDING A FINANCIAL INSTITUTION

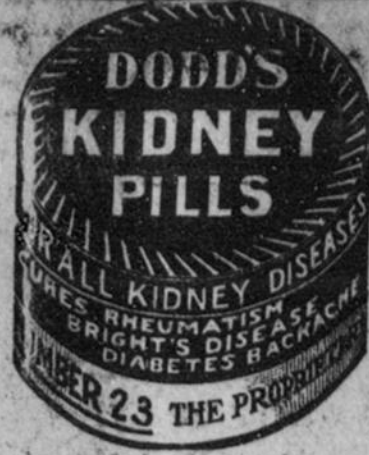

New York, Nov. 3.—It was stated today in well informed quarters that interests connected with the National City Bank are proceeding to dispose of their holdings of shares in other financial institutions throughout the country. These holdings are believed to aggregate from 50,000 to 60,000 shares and probably include several foreign banks as well as a number of domestic institutions. The value of these shares runs into millions of dollars. It is understood that this step in being taken by the National City Bank interests to overcome any further opposition on the part of the National government in connection with the organization of the "National City Company," a holding or securities corporation recently formed with a capital of $10,000, which was derived from a cash dividend declared by the National City Bank. The legal status of the National City Company has received the unofficial approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to whom the plan was submitted some months ago, but was opposed by Attorney-General Wickersham. As a result of this disagreement the matter was placed in the hands of President Taft, who, it is expected, will shortly announce his decision. Officials of the National City Bank declined to discuss the report except to deny that the bank as an institution has any interest, either direct or indirect, in any other bank. Representatives of the City Bank take the ground that the proposed National City Company is founded on lines similar to some 200 other companies in various parts of the country including this city, Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans.

THREE MEN KILLED AND ONE INJURED

Clinton, Ill., Nov. 2. Three men were killed outright and a fourth so severely injured he may die, when a freight engine today broke through a bridge under course of construction over Salt Creek, near here, and dragged part of its train to the creek bottom, 75 feet below. Engineer Harry Emmett of Clinton was brought here tonight in a serious condition. Fireman Griscom of Pana, Ill., Brakeman Crumm of Clinton and a young man who was learning to fire the locomotive, were carried to the bottom of the declivity with the engine. Two bodies still remain under the wreck tonight at a late hour.

MONTREAL'S DEFECTIVE WATER WORKS SYSTEM

Montreal, Que., Nov. 3.—At the investigation of the Fire Commission this afternoon into the fire which on Tuesday destroyed the Roman Catholic Church at St. Renee, evidence was produced to show that the fire started through the falling of a piece of glowing charcoal from a censer in the hands of a young acolyte in the sanctuary and that the total destruction of the church was in all probability due to the fact that the water pressure was low, being far below normal.

HOLD UP A TRAIN, BLOW CAR TO BITS

Five Bandits Get Only Registered Mail — Chickens and Dog Unharmed by Blast.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 3.—Five bandits held up, dynamited and wrecked a Rock Island train near Memphis this morning. They left practically nothing but the trucks of the express car. Railroad officials assert, however, that their haul was very light, as five packages of registered mail were all they got. They placed boxes of express matter on top of the safe, after holes had been bored in its roof and the caps placed therein. The charge was directed downward and blew the boxes of merchandise through the roof of the car. In this car were afterward found a coop of chickens and a bird dog, none of which were hurt.

It was the combination baggage and mail car that was wrecked. According to a statement made by a railroad man on the scene, it was found before leaving Memphis that the safe could not be opened, so valuables which are usually placed in this safe were deposited in the car ahead.

When the train stopped the flagman thought somebody had been run over, and told Dr. E. R. Scott, of Hurlburt, to get off and investigate. Dr. Scott went to the scene of action, and the robbers took a shot at him, but he was not hit. A passenger, M. O. Gay, stepped off the train and was held up also.

The train was boarded when it slowed down near Hurlburt, Ark. The engine crew was overawed by a display of weapons. The men forced the engineer to back the train several miles; stop to permit the express and mail cars to be sent from the coaches, and then to draw the forward section of the train a short distance, where the half completed robbery was executed.

Switch engines ran out from the Hurlburt yards and frightened off the bandits, who ran toward the old channel of the river. Bosse with bloodhounds, are scouring the Arkansas swamps. Three suspects have been arrested at Forest City.

UNLOADING OF WHEAT CAUSE BROKERS TO STOP

Chicago, Nov. 3.—One brokerage firm today suspended and another transferred it trades to avoid going to the wall, when the heavy holders of wheat poured their holdings into trade channels to clear decks, in common belief, for the threatened inspection by federal authorities on a hunt for possible wheat corners. The suspended firm, a small one, was that of Sam Finney. Pringle & Wing got under cover by transfer of trades when the call for margins went out. Wheat opening a point off from Thursday's close gave the market a depressed tone from which it did not recover and big holders as well as weaker firms were reported to have met severe losses. Brokers attempted to compute the supposed losses of A. J. Lichtner, who bought approximately 18,000,000 bushels of May wheat at the close of May and forced the price to an unusually high mark. Computing his price loss as nine cents and his storage charges another nine cents, the estimate approximated $3,250,000. The unloading is being done carefully to avoid severe financial upheaval.

MAKING A CARDINAL

The insignia of the Cardinalate is sent over by the Pope in care of members of the Papal household, and to a Cardinal is assigned the duty of placing the red berretta on the head of the new member of the college. In the case of Cardinal Satolli it was Mgr. Donatus Sbarretti who came to America as the Papal Alegate, bringing the berretta, and standing over the insignia during the ceremonies of investiture was Marchese Sacripante, of the Noble Guards, who brought the zucchetto. It was Cardinal Gibbons who placed the red berretta on the head of Cardinal Satolli, and for this task he was selected by Pope Leo. There was much speculation yesterday as to which Cardinal would play this part in the investiture of Cardinal Farley, and it was suggested that if either Archbishop O'Connell or Apostolic Delegate Falconio were to be elevated to the Cardinalate before him the part might fall to one of them.

The famous red hat is round, with a low crown and a wide stiff brim, from the inside of which hang 15 tassels, attached in a triangle from one to five. The red hat is used but twice, once when the Cardinal receives it from the hands of the Pope himself and after death, when it is put upon the Cardinal's catafalque and afterward hung up in his titular church at Rome or the cathedral of his diocese. The distinctive vestments are scarlet cape, cassock and berretta, with cappa magna and rochet. The cassock is a close-fitting garment reaching to the heels, the distinctive feature of all Catholic clerical dress. The cappa magna is a long, flowing garment

VOTES AT $2 EACH

Senator Stephen's Great Wealth Cause of Heavy Expenditures, Witness Tells Investigators.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 27.—Because Senator Isaac Stephenson was reputed to be worth $30,000,000, and some of his political workers thought they ought to be paid for their time, was the reason it cost the Senator so much to obtain the nomination at the primaries in 1908, according to testimony before the Senatorial investigating committee to-day.

W. R. Kenil, of Milwaukee county, campaign manager in the county he spent $11,800.

"Why did you have to spend so much money in one county?" asked Senator Heyburn, the chairman. "Was it a question of matching dollars? If the Senator received 50,000 votes in the county, his campaign expenses appear to have been $2 for every vote. Is that right?"

SHANGHAI IN THE HANDS OF REBELS

Captured Without Resistance—Chinese Soldiers Joined the Revolutionists.

Shanghai, Nov. 3.—Except for the foreign concessions Shanghai tonight is entirely in the hands of the revolutionists, who captured the city late this afternoon. There was practically no resistance, only a few shots being fired. All the Chinese soldiers have joined the rebels and the police and firemen apparently are sympathizing with them for they are wearing white badges on their arms.

After taking over the arsenal the rebels burned the Taotai's yamen in the native city. The Associated Press correspondent this afternoon covered the entire outlying section of Shanghai but did not discover a single instance of disorder. Even in the native city where the Taotai's yamen was burned to the ground, complete order prevailed. Every courtesy in being shown for fighters. The soldiers, police and firemen are continuing on duty. The shops are closed tonight.

The natives are evincing almost childish delight over the fact that the new government has taken over the affairs of the city. Their pleasure, however, is not of a demonstrative nature.

While the action of the rebels was expected the movement was made quickly. About 4 o'clock this afternoon a slight disturbance occurred in the northern section of the city and shortly afterward throughout the native city notices were posted announcing that "the military government of China" had taken over Shanghai. It warned the populace against disorder.

The arsenal, where recently there had been the greatest activity preparatory to assisting the up-river forts and providing ammunition for Admiral Sha, was called on to surrender by the revolutionaries. The chief officials of the arsenal quietly disappeared but a few other officials continued to hold it, without, however, any show of force. A few shots were fired there but the revolutionaries warned the officials remaining that they intended to take the arsenal even if they had to fight for it. None of them seemed willing to test the strength of the rebels in combat and quietly evacuated.

It is understood that one reason for the revolutionaries taking Shanghai today was that two Norwegian vessels had been loaded at the arsenal during the past two days with ammunition for Admiral Sha. These vessels succeeded in getting away.

Quickly following the demands for the surrender of the arsenal came an attempt to cut the wires of the Nanking-Shanghai railway, which was frustrated personally by A. W. U. Pope, general manager of the company. Mr. Pope found an armed revolutionary inside the station and disarmed him. Then he telephoned the British consul that the railway property was threatened and the British volunteers of Shanghai were called out and mounted guard over the station and outlying properties. This action has caused much comment, because this section of the railway is entirely outside. The British bondholders claim a prior right in the railway property. The revolutionaries say they were prepared to maintain order and while they intended to seize the railway they did not intend to destroy it. Therefore the British consul's action in calling out the British volunteers is regarded by the revolutionists as the first breach of neutrality and its effect may be far reaching. Throughout the night seventy armed Britishers stood guard over the railway property, while on the other side of the road an equal number of uniformed Chinese police, wearing the white badge, were drawn up and claiming the right on behalf of the Chinese revolutionary government to maintain order. It is said that the British guard is only temporary and that the volunteers will soon be withdrawn into the concessions.

During the night there was desultory firing in the city and two or three persons were killed and several wounded. The revolutionists have opened the warehouses and distributed rifles and revolvers. It is estimated that over two thousand volunteers were included in the government forces that went over to the revolutionists when they took the city. The rebels will ship machine guns and ammunitions from here to Hankow.

Wu Sung, Province of Kiang Su, Nov. 3.—The imperial forts here have been entirely taken over by the rebels. There was no disturbance, and the telegraph lines have not as yet been interrupted.

Wu Sung is ten miles north of Shanghai.

Peking, Nov. 3.—The action of Prince Ching, the Regent, in accepting today on behalf of the Throne the draft of the bases of a new constitution for China is considered to show his willingness to grant any demand of the people which is supported by arms. The haste with which the two-man government agreed to the National Assembly's nineteen constitutional articles is taken also as an indication of fear.

An edict issued today by the Throne accepts a preliminary constitution drawn up at a single sitting of an assembly, which refuses to permit half its membership to participate in debate. The hundred appointees of the Throne dare not speak in the assembly, and even the Moderates often are cried down during its sessions. From forty to fifty radicals dictate the policy of the chamber and the remainder of the members, like the Throne, are afraid to disagree with them.

"The country has gone mad," said a prominent diplomat to The Associated Press today, "and only a strong dictator will save it. The Radicals of the Assembly seem intimidated by the army and well wishers of China hope to see a man in office who can dictate, namely Chang Shao Tchang."

Two days ago a train brought to Peking an officer named Lu as the emissary of General Chang Shao Tchang, who commands 5000 modern troops at Lancho. Lu was accompanied by an escort of 200 cavalymen. The government at first considered opposing by force the memorial conveyed by Lu, which peremptorily stated that twelve demands should be granted. The last of these demands provided that the army should participate in the establishment immediately of a constitutional government.

Both the Assembly and the Throne complied and Lu and his colleagues remain in Peking, forming a military league to which already the various garrisons adhere.

ASTOR $50,000 POORER SINCE SECOND MARRIAGE

Tells Tax Board His Personal Property Has Decreased from $400,000 to $350,000.

New York, Nov. 3.—John Jacob Astor is worth less in personal property now than he was before he married the second time, judging from the affidavit he made at the Tax Department yesterday in having his assessments for 1912 reduced.

This year and for several years back the personal property assessment against Mr. Astor has remained at $400,000, and he has paid taxes on that amount. In making up the books for this year the Tax Board, following a general plan resulting from the new law taxing unregistered securities of certain sorts, raised "the ante" on Mr. Astor to $800,000 and thereby, as it proved, lost money for the city.

Mr. Astor visited the department yesterday and told President Lawson Purdy that his personal holdings were not worth more than $350,000. He made affidavit to this effect. The amount is composed almost entirely, it is understood, of money in the bank the greater part of Mr. Astor's fortune being in real estate and mortgages and not in personal property.

In accordance with the affidavit the assessment against Mr. Astor will be reduced to $350,000 and he will be taxed on $50,000 less than this year.

NEARING THE END OF HIS JOURNEY.

Imperial Junction, Cal., Nov. 3.—C. P. Rodgers, the transcontinental flier, arrived here at 10:27 a.m. to-day, 174 miles from the finish of his ocean to ocean flight, which began at Sheepshead Bay, N.Y., Sept. 17. Engine trouble brought him down, but not until he has established what is believed to be a new world's record in aviation. Rodgers flew 133 miles from Stoval Siding, Ariz., the desert water tank, where he was forced to spend the night, in 125 minutes, using fifteen gallons of gasoline. Rodgers started out to fly the entire 137 miles from Stoval Siding to Pasadena without a stop, but when he arrived over this place his motor was "missing" badly and he was forced to alight. His mechanics arrived shortly afterward on the aviator's special train and went to work on the motor, but the engine was in such condition that Rodgers thought it impossible to make Pasadena before to-morrow afternoon. It is possible that his arrival may be further delayed until Sunday.

MANY CORRECTIONS IN THE CENSUS SHEET.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—A number of the enumerators who were engaged in taking the census in this city have received sheets from the census department asking that corrections be made and omissions filled in. As a result there is a considerable pain among the enumerators. Some time ago they received cheques for about 90 per cent of their bills, but the remainder until the work was accepted as satisfactory. Most of the men who received the sheets back again have completed the extra work, but on some of the sheets there were so many errors that it requires considerable work to make the corrections. It is claimed that the "correction and omission" work will require much more time than the balance of the accounts are worth.

TREMBLAY DEFEATS GERMAN WRESTLER.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Eugene Tremblay, of Montreal, lightweight wrestler champion of Canada, defeated Jim Durie, of Berlin, Germany, before a crowded house at the Grand Opera House to-night. Tremblay won in two straight falls, taking the first in twenty-six minutes with the toe hold, which has won and retained the world's championship for Gutch many times. Durie, who showed wonderful strength, but little science, successfully staved Tremblay off after the latter had pinned him with a full Nelson. Tremblay then got the toe hold for the first time and Durie surprised the audience by breaking away. Tremblay got it again shortly afterwards, however, and this time Durie had to give in. In the second bout, which lasted 10 minutes, Durie was more aggressive, but Tremblay, who weighed 135 against Durie at 154, wriggled out of every hold that the German secured. Durie tired and ultimately Tremblay pinned his shoulders down with a combination leg and head hold. It was undoubtedly one of the fastest and most exciting bouts ever decided here. Good order was maintained and the police, who were present in large numbers, did not find it necessary to interfere after warning the contestants at the commencement. George Vermette, of Ottawa, refereed and it was afterwards announced that Caseaux and Dr. B. F. Roller would meet on the same mat next Friday night. Tremblay will pay a return visit soon.

UNKNOWN SCHOONER SUNK

Chatham, Mass., Nov. 3.—A three-masted schooner sunk to her topmasts three miles west of Handkerchief Shoals, was discovered by the life savers of Monomy Point today, but her name and the fate of her crew remained a mystery tonight. It is thought probable that the schooner went down after a collision with another vessel last night. Whether the crew of half a dozen men were picked up by the other vessel or made their way in safety to the Handkerchief Lightship and are now there waiting to be taken off, or whether they went down with their craft is not known. The revenue cutter Acushnet, stationed at Woods' Hole, was notified tonight of the accident and will visit the wreck early in the morning.

HOT BLAZE AT LACHINE LAST NIGHT

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Twenty small launches, two boat houses, a bakery, a wheelwright shop and a small manufacturing plant were destroyed by a fire which broke out in the village of Lachine, nine miles from here on the Lake St. Louis tonight. The total damage is about $15,000. The fire broke out from some unknown cause in the boat house of Leandre Douillet on the Lake Shore just opposite the post office, where some 20 small launches were stored for the winter. A high wind was blowing at the time and as it was some minutes before the outbreak was discovered the fire had gained considerable headway before the arrival of the fire brigade of the town under Chief Robert. After a hard fight the fire was prevented from spreading across the street to the post office, but the manufacturing plant of the Pindar Chemical Company and several small stores were destroyed. Chief Robert was burned about the hands and face and Fireman Brisson injured his leg under some falling debris; but there were no serious injuries.

AWARDED $200 DAMAGE

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Exemplary damages of $200 were awarded today in the case of Hon. Senator Dandurand vs. La Publicite, Limitee, and Tancrede Marcell. The case arose out of an article published in Le Devoir on February 6 in which Senator Dandurand's name was coupled with the disappearance of valuable lace curtains from the Canadian Pavilion at Paris in an article over Mr. Marcell's name. The Senator during the hearing asked that, in the event of the suit being decided in his favor, only a nominal sum be imposed for damages.

HARRY LAUDER IN TORONTO

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Harry Lauder, the famous Scotch comedian, was met on his arrival today by representatives of various Scottish bodies of the Militia of Nova Scotia from 1830 to 1867. Senator Power, in moving a vote of thanks, said that Nova Scotia had led British North America in training a militia force and that in

THE ONTARIO HOCKEY CLUB

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3.—The annual general meeting of the shareholders of the Ontario Hockey Club was held today in the company's office, Imperial Bank Building, Toronto. The chairman referred to the loss the club had sustained in the death of the late George W. Torrance, for so many years a director of the club. He felt sure also that they would regret the departure of Lord and Lady Grey, and the members of their family, from whom they had received so much kindness during their stay in Canada—one of the last kindly acts of Lord Grey being evident in the presentation to the club of a handsome challenge cup from Mr. Leopold De Rothschild. The chairman also referred to the introduction of the permit system at Woodbine Park the past season—which he maintained for the good of racing from a sporting standpoint. The following are the officers for 1912:

President, Joseph E. Seagram.
First vice-president, E. B. Osler, M. P.
Second vice-president, Sy. Lyman Melvin Jones.
Executive committee, D. W. Alexander, R. J. Christie, Col. Hon. J. S. Hendrie, C.V.O., M.P.P., Lt.-Col. Wm. Hendrie, A. E. Dymont.
Secretary-treasurer, W. P. Fraser.

TO REDUCE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

Toronto, Ont., Nov. 3.—The Ontario Motor League has set itself the task of assisting the police to reduce the number of automobile accidents. F. E. Mutton, vice-president, and E. M. Wilcox had an interview with Police Chief Grasset today and offered the league's co-operation. It was agreed that the public needed education on the dangers of crossing streets without looking out for vehicles. Reckless driving was another phase of the question, also driving by young persons. The league was asked to help in reporting cases of speeding, and the chief was asked to enforce the law that slow moving vehicles keep to the curb. Col. Grasset said that special police would be sent out on motor cycles to enforce this last point.

TO TEST THE LEGALITY OF A CIVIC BYE-LAW

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Eight small retail merchants are taking action to offset the working of the civic bye-law which forbids merchants to solicit trade by standing on the sidewalk and addressing passers-by. The eight have been convicted and fined under the bye-law and now are taking legal steps to have the bye-law declared illegal and beyond the jurisdiction of the civic authorities.

THE MILITIA IN OLDEN DAYS

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 3.—Major J. Plimsole Edwards of Londonderry, N. S., read a paper before the Nova Scotia Historical Society tonight on the Militia of Nova Scotia from 1830 to 1867. Senator Power, in moving a vote of thanks, said that Nova Scotia had led British North America in training a militia force and that in his opinion the work of forming and training a militia in the earlier days had not been surpassed by present methods. Senator Ross, ex-Minister of Militia, claimed the honor of having been the chief in establishing the Royal Military College at Kingston.

A VERY SHORT STRIKE

Montreal, Nov. 3.—A transportation strike of two hours duration occurred today when the sixty chauffeurs in the employ of the Canadian Automobile and Taxi Company went out. They claimed that they had two grievances—first, that they were charged a rate of fifty cents per day to cover wear and tear to their vehicles, and second, that they were forced to pay for their gasoline at a rate of fifteen cents per gallon. With these charges to pay, the men claim that the 20 per cent of the takings allowed them by the company, plus somewhat meagre tips, is not sufficient. A hurried meeting of the directors cancelled the fifty per cent charge and will hold the gasoline payments in abeyance until the matter is definitely settled. The men returned to work on these terms.

PIANO TUNER ALL RIGHT.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—The mystery of the disappearance of James Clark, the blind piano tuner, who had not been heard of for two weeks, has been cleared up. This morning Inspector of Detectives Duncan received a letter from Constable King, of Barrie, stating that Clark had been there selling 1912 calendars and tuning pianos. At the Salvation Army he testified, giving a brief history of his life. He mentioned his intention of entering the Baptist ministry, but did not give any reason for leaving Toronto without notifying his people.

WHEN MORMONS WENT TO UTAH

In an account of President Taft's meeting in the Mormon Tabernacle during an old folks' week celebration the greater part of the audience of 12,000 persons stood up, it is said, when Bishop Nibley asked those who had crossed the prairies in the migration of 1846-7 to rise. We know that the span of life is long in the Mormon land of steady habits, but the inference is too great a strain upon credulity. There could not have been present in the tabernacle thousands of people who took part in the migration of 1846-7, or, for the matter of that in all the migrations of the period.

In the first place, says the New York Sun, the advance guard of the Church of Latter Day Saints, the pioneers who went to spy out the land of promise, did not leave the banks of the Missouri until the spring of 1847. Their number was 143 men, three women and two children. With Brigham Young at their head they set out on April 14 with seventy-three wagons drawn by horses and oxen, leaving behind them the main body of the faithful in a settlement of seven hundred log huts and "dugouts" in the midst of which rose the rough but spacious tabernacle. The spot became the original site of Omaha. In the middle of January Brigham Young had issued a "divine revelation" entitled "The Word and Will of the Lord concerning the camp of Israel in their journeying to the West," in which the pioneers were enjoined to "prepare houses and fields for raising grain for those who are to remain behind this season."

On their way to the valley where Salt Lake City now stands the pious adventurers met with no serious mishaps, being well armed and organized into fighting companies but they did encounter a character in Jim Bridger, a squaw man and trapper, who, learning that their destination was the Salt Lake Basin, predicted failure for the enterprise. Jim promised to give them $1,000 for the first ear of corn they raised. He scouted divine intervention, declaring that he had seen the heavens dropping rain "only very occasionally." But the head of the church had made a study of irrigation. The rim of the Salt Lake Basin was reached on July 27. Camp was made on the bank of a stream southwest of and near the spot where the tabernacle was erected in the fullness of time. Six days later a city to be two miles square was plotted. Most of the pioneers returned to the Missouri in the fall to arrange for the great migration, arriving at winter quarters in the last of October. In Mr. Taft's audience there could have been only very few of the migrants of 1847. A youth of twenty in that year would be eighty-four to-day, and the pioneers were men picked for their strength and endurance.

The great migration occurred in the spring of 1848. An inventory of the first five companies comprised 1,891 men, women and children, 623 wagons, 131 horses, 44 mules, 2,012 oxen, 983 cows, 904 chickens, 134 dogs, 54 cats, 10 geese, 3 goats, 11 doves, 5 ducks, and 1 squirrel. The number of persons who reached Great Salt Lake Valley in September and October of 1848 was about 4,000. Most of the adults of that migration must now be dead, and most of the survivors must have been children when the motley assortment of people, animals and birds came in sight of the New Zion.

Still later there was the handcart emigration so called, a movement of wretchedly poor people who had been brought over from Europe. This occurred in 1856. Any survivors of that terrible experience must be blessed with iron frames and abnormal vitality. At a meeting of the church in Salt Lake City in the winter of 1855-56 it was agreed to adopt a system of emigration across the plains by handcarts as being cheaper and consequently better under the circumstances for bringing the faithful poor from Europe." Frail handcarts were constructed at Iowa City to carry the belongings of the converts, who were an ill-nourished and scantily clad lot when the migration began. Dragging their overloaded carts, many women being in the shafts, they toiled over the prairies and climbed the mountain deserts, more than 200 perishing from starvation and the rigors of an early winter. In one party one-sixth died in another party more than one-fourth. "It would melt the hardest heart," says a Mormon historian, "to listen to the personal experiences of that horrible journey which in moments of confidence the sufferers relate to their friends."

BIG LEGAL BATTLE EXPECTED IN MONTREAL
Montreal, Nov. 3.—The first shot in what promises to be a big legal battle was fired to-day when the Montreal Street Railway filed an application for a permanent injunction to prevent the Board of Conciliation, recently appointed by the Federal authorities to look into some trouble between the company and some of its employees, from taking any action. The company claim that the case is already covered by the provincial statutes and also that the Lemieux Act, under which the board was appointed, is ultra vires and that its enactment was not within the jurisdiction of the Federal Government. The case will likely go to Privy Council. The company have already been awarded a temporary injunction and the case is expected to make its first appearance in the courts in two months' time. The company some time ago dismissed some thirty employees and the men claim that this was done simply because these men were leaders in the organization of a labor union, which the company did not wish organized, considering that the Montreal Street Railway Employees Mutual Benefit Society was all the union men required.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

McDonald & Lesperance, stock brokers, private wire to New York and Montreal, Hochelaga Bank Building, Telephone 1227.

Canadian Press Service.

New York, Nov. 3.—The aggressive buying of stocks which raised prices rapidly earlier in the week was largely suspended today. Quotations moved uncertainly, ranging at times above yesterday's closing and again below it. During most of the day, however, prices were higher. It was apparent that the market still possessed a large degree of the underlying strength which has developed recently. The pause in the advance suggested hesitation as to the extent of the improvement justified at this time, rather than a change in sentiment.

Continuation of realizing sales was a material factor in the course of the market. Profit-taking has been carried on so extensively that it is now generally assumed that the short interest, particularly in United States Steel and in three or four other active stocks, has been reduced materially. The moderation of the demand for the speculative leaders today doubtless was due to this condition. To some extent this tendency was offset by the increasing prominence of conservative railroad stocks in the trading. The demand for the high priced dividend paying issues was heavier. Investment buying of this nature helped to sustain the market.

Reading, rose 3/4 points to 145 1/2.

It was the strongest among the principal stocks. All through the day this stock was firm at rising prices, being unaffected by the depressions in the remainder of the market. Canadian Pacific and Erie, which have been associated from time to time in reports in a fusion interest, was optionally strong. American Smelting halted after its swift advance. For a time it sold at 69, the highest of the movement, but it fell back and closed with a net loss. United States Steel apparently has resumed its normal place in speculation, showing no further effects of the dissolution suit.
 The recent improvement in the position of industrial stocks was continued, a number of the less active shares moving forward. Some of them retained their plans, although the majority of more prominent issues closed with only small changes. London again took profits here. Its transactions ran to about 15,000 shares, chiefly on the selling side, with the bulk of the trading in United States Steel and Amalgamated Copper. Announcement of the formation of a corporation with $65,000,000 capital stock, the largest enterprise of the kind to be floated for some time, was accepted as a further indication of better conditions. Stocks of general merchandise and dry goods in the hands of distributors throughout the country, wholesale and retail, are much below normal, being estimated by a trade authority at 30 per cent under the average of the last few years for this period. The demand for replenishment of stocks is expected to stimulate trade during the next few months. The hardening in-cash money during the last day or two was followed by a relaxation of rates, in spite of loss of cash by the banks. Preliminary estimates, based on the known movements of money, indicate a loss for the week of about $3,000,000. Trading in bonds contracted today. The tone was firm. Total sales, par value, $2,946,000. United States bonds unchanged on call.

come out, however, on the advance and the market soon quieted down and was inclined to be heavy, this in spite of the fact that Reading developed great strength advancing while the rest of the market was heavy or selling off. In the early afternoon this tendency to react became more pronounced and stocks as a rule were well below last night's close. In the final dealings a renewed burst of strength in Reading influenced the rest of the list which rallied so that at the close prices were irregularly changed as a result of the day's trading with advances and dealings about evenly balanced.

Reading showed marked strength at all times as did Canadian and Erie.
 Market undertone throughout remains firm. Total sales 590,000.

CLOSING LETTER

New York, Nov. 3.—The market started off in good condition, with a strong tone, notwithstanding fractionally lower cabled quotations.
 Smelters, which was bought so heavily by a leading manipulative broker yesterday, lost a point in the initial trade, but soon recovered and showed 1/2 of a point gain to 69. Atchison and Pennsylvania sell ex-dividend, but both improved slightly. Reading was 3/4 of a point up at opening and gained a further 1 1/2 points; Steel sold off 1/2 of a point and then up 1 1/2 points. The strength of the Erie issues called for comment, the common rising 1 point and the first preferred 1 1/2 points. After the noon hour the market grey dul and prices reacted from 1/2 to 1 point for the active issues. Lehigh Valley lost a several market selling orders, while the market was dull. Reading was bought in volume by a house with Philadelphia connections. It is said they have taken 50,000 shares in the past two days; the buying, however, is understood to have been for First National Bank interests. Bull points on International Pump shares were circulated, but the stocks were too inactive and unattractive to create interest. London sold about 15,000 shares, chiefly Steel and Coppers. Chicago and Northwestern Railroad reports net decrease for September of $136,261 and Rock Island a loss for the same period of $12,442. The speculation today had been confined principally to few issues and has been of a desultory and unsatisfactory character. The closing prices were at or slightly above last night's find, as a rule. We should regard the better class of railroad issues as a purchase on any weakness. Canadian Pacific earnings increased $404,000 for last week.

SPECIAL SERVICES IN TRINITY CHURCH

Sunday, 26th Instant, Being the 86th Anniversary of the Opening of Sacred Edifice.

Special services are to be held in Trinity Church on Sunday, November 26, being the eighty-sixth anniversary of the opening of the church for divine service. The Rev. W. H. Griffith Thomas, M.A., D.D., late principal of Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, and now professor of Old Testament Literature and Ecclesiology in Wycliffe College, Toronto, is to be the preacher on this occasion.

The following facts are of interest to our readers. Trinity Church was built by Chief Justice Jonathan Sewell at a cost of $16,000. The corner stone was privately laid in the northeast angle on the 16th of September, 1824. In May of the same year, Edmund Willoughby Sewell, second son of Chief Justice Sewell was ordained deacon in the Cathedral of the Holy Trinity. The Quebec Mercury, May 13, 1924, referring to the ordination, says: "Mr. E. W. Sewell's future office will be that of minister of the Chapel of Ease, which is immediately about to be erected in a handsome style in a convenient part of the city, and the want of which has been long and severely felt by the members of the Church of England."

On November 27th, 1825, the church was opened for divine service as a chapel of ease to the Cathedral. In the following year the Chief Justice deeded the chapel and the land on which it was built to his son, the Rev. E. W. Sewell. Mr. Sewell continued in active discharge of his duties as incumbent, assisted for many years by an evening lecturer, until, in 1868, the chapel was leased to the military for ten years as a garrison chapel. After the withdrawal of the imperial troops in 1871 it remained closed until 1877, when it was reopened by the Rev. J. S. Sykes, the post chaplain. Gradually a congregation was gathered and eventually, in 1822, the church was purchased by the congregation.

It will thus be seen that the history of Trinity Church dates back to the days of the first Bishop of Quebec. When it was built there were only eleven Anglican clergy in this diocese, four in Quebec City and seven outside of it. The four in Quebec were the Rector of Quebec and his assistant, the military chaplain and the incumbent of the Chapel of the Holy Trinity.

The founder of Trinity Church, the Hon. Jonathan Sewell, was born in Boston, Mass., of a distinguished New England family. He came to Quebec in 1789. In succession he was Solicitor-General of the province, Attorney-General and Judge of the Court of Vice-Admiralty, Burgess in the Provincial Parliament for the borough of William Henry, and finally, by His Majesty's mandamus, he was appointed, in 1808, Chief Justice of the Province of Lower Canada and President of the Executive Council. He was made an L.L.D. of Harvard University in 1832 and died in Quebec in 1839. In his public capacity he was intimately associated with the first Bishop of Quebec, whose diocese extended throughout both Lower and Upper Canada, and a close friendship is shown to have existed between the two men. He was distinguished alike as a scholar, statesman, jurist and a devout servant of God and was one of those rare characters of whom there are but few examples.

The Rev. E. W. Sewell was incumbent of the Chapel of the Holy Trinity for upwards of forty years. A singular incident of his incumbency was the statement circulated that he was chaplain to the Jesuits. This story gained currency because for a period his stipend was paid by the Imperial government from revenue derived from the confiscation of these estates after the suppression of the Jesuits by the Pope in 1774. Between the years 1846 and 1867 Mr. Sewell was assisted by an evening lecturer. The learned Dr. Hellmuth, afterwards Bishop of Huron, held this position for two years, 1859-60. During Mr. Sewell's ministry many of the leading men of Quebec worshipped in Trinity Church. The church records reveal the names of such men as Jeffery Hale, C. Wurtel, J. H. Clint, W. Newton, Colonel Fitzgerald, etc.

Trinity Church Sunday School is one of the oldest in the city and was organized in 1831. The church silver, which originally belonged to Rev. E. W. Sewell, and was presented to the congregation by the family after his decease, is very old and of unusual interest. The large paten is Queen Anne silver, made in London by Matthew Lofthouse about 1710. A small paten and a chalice are early and late Georgian respectively and were made in London. On the walls are interesting memorial tablets, and one fine monument in memory of the Chief Justice. It is the working of Manning, the London sculptor, and was erected at a cost of $3,000. The beautiful chancel window is in memory of the Rev. E. W. Sewell, the first incumbent.

The services of Trinity Church have ever been in accord with the doctrines and rubrics of the Church of England, care being taken not to exalt the sacramental offices in disregard to the plain teaching of the thirty-nine articles. Reverence, simplicity, heartiness have always characterized its worship. It has been the spiritual home of loyal and devout churchmen, men who have loved supremely the Church of England and with heart and mind and body have done her service.

WOMEN AND PHILANTHROPY.

Many Have Given Liberally of Their Fortunes.

American women gave liberally of their fortunes to public benefactions in 1910, and a list of their gifts shows that they are worthy seconds to men in their philanthropies, and doubtless were as liberal in proportion to the size of their fortunes.

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch gives the following list of notable gifts by women during the last year:

The largest amount in the list was $2,000,000 from Mrs. Amander W. Reid, of Portland, Ore., for the establishment of a college. Other large 1910 donations by women were $1,250,000 from Mrs. Mary B. Loomis, for an institute in Connecticut; $1,170,200 from Mrs. Russell Sage, for various purposes; $1,000,000 for Tuskegee Institute from Mrs. Flora L. Dotger, of New Jersey; $1,000,000, from Mrs. Harriet Coles of New York, for charity; and $1,160,000 for like purpose from Mrs. E. H. Harriman, in addition to 10,000 acres of land for a State park.

An extended list might be offered which would be even more interesting, though made up of smaller sums. Mrs. A. Brown, a Boston dressmaker, gave $75,000, the saving of her lifetime, for the assistance of struggling boys and girls who are seeking to get an education. Nearly all the smaller educational institutions of the country received small benefactions which represented similar self-denial and frugality. Hospitals, churches and missions came in for offerings from women, who seemed to give with the same definiteness of purpose which characterized the gifts of men.—From the Nashville Tennessean.

Traveler Describes Oysters That Grow on Trees.

"Business recently called me to Honduras. I had often heard of oysters growing on the trunks and branches of trees, and my friend set aside a day to investigate the fact. In half an hour we had left the town, with its convent and shipping and soldiers' barracks, behind us. We were nearly abreast of an island called Mona Cave. The front of it is embowered in graceful coconut trees, and the lower part trends off into swamp and is covered with a dense growth of the red mangrove.

"This mangrove tree grows either in fresh or salt water swamps, and even in water three or four feet deep. The limbs of the tree send shoots or roots down into the water, and so a thicket of mangrove is a matter mass of trunks and limbs and roots. Deep down under the surface of the water cling bunches of single oysters, and thus are formed the oyster groves I had heard of.

"We poled our dory over numerous oyster beds, and with an ordinary rake which had been provided we hauled aboard a lot of oysters. They were small and fat, but tasted all right, and our boatman swallowed them with a relish. I did not care much for them myself, except as curiosities, for the mud that stuck to them did not smell appetizing.—Correspondent in San Francisco Chronicle.
