

Accept capital gains Committee modifies white paper proposals

OTTAWA (CP) — Government MPs recommended Monday an easier tax ride for the rich and the poor. They approved taxation of capital gains, but more lightly than the government has proposed.

A report on government tax change proposals by a majority of the Commons finance committee approves a reduced income tax burden on low-income Canadians.

The report, presented to Parliament, also recommends a top rate of 60 per cent when taxable incomes reach $60,000 or more instead of the present rate scheduled rising to just over 80 per cent at the $400,000 level.

The rate applied on taxable incomes of $25,000 or more should be reduced, the report suggests.

The report, 98-page product of almost 10 months of committee hearings, was approved by a vote of 10 to 2 with one abstention in the 20-member committee, said chairman Gaston Clermont (L-Gatineau).

SIX DIDN'T VOTE

The six Conservative members did not vote, an informant said. The two New Democrats—Max Saltzman Waterloo and John Burton Regina East—published a minority report opposing key features of both the committee majority and the tax white paper.

The committee, which includes 11 Liberals and two Creditists, received 524 formal submissions, more than 1,000 letters and heard businessmen, individuals and representatives of provincial governments at 146 meetings about the government's white paper on income tax of last November.

None of the proposals in the white paper, the report of the Commons committee or the sharply-critical report of the Senate committee last week are binding on the government. Finance Minister Edgar Benson has said he will consider all suggestions in compiling tax legislation, expected next spring.

Mr. Benson told a later news conference the report was "a further step in the white paper process."

It now was up to the government to decide what final form tax changes will take. "The report will be very useful."

The committee majority accepted the government's proposal to increase the standard amount of personal income free of tax to $1,400 from $1,000 a year for individuals, reducing taxes on lower incomes.

The report accords qualified approval to other features, including tax-free deductions for child-care costs and employment expenses up to $150 a year.

However, it suggests that the government should seriously consider in future introducing systems of tax credits in place of exemptions and taxation of the family as a unit. Both were recommended by the 1962-67 royal commission on taxation headed by the late Kenneth Carter, Toronto accountant.

Tax credits—advocated by both the Progressive Conservatives and New Democrats—provide a fixed reduction of tax for each taxpayer rather than exempting part of everybody's income from tax.

Tax credit advocates argue the system would be a better way of relieving the tax burden on low incomes.

The committee MPs tended to agree, but approved the exemption method for the time being on the ground taxpayers understand it better.

Highlights

OTTAWA (CP) — Highlights of the Commons committee report on the government's taxation white paper:

POINTS ACCEPTED

—Higher basic income tax exemptions, to $1,400 from $1,000 for single and $2,800 from $21,000 for married taxpayers.

—Deduction of expenses involved in moving to take new job.

—Averaging of income over several years for farmers, fishermen or others with fluctuating incomes.

—Canadian shareholders to get credit for half the Canadian corporation tax paid on profits from which dividends are paid out.

—Special quick write-off of cost of machinery and buildings for new mines.

POINTS MODIFIED

—Change deductions for child care expenses where neither parent is at home, allowing them where a parent is home but incapacitated by permanent mental or physical infirmity.

—Change general $150 deduction for expenses connected with holding a job to allow higher deduction substantiated by itemized claim.

—Add strike pay, when paid out of funds not subject to Canadian tax, to provisions to consider unemployment benefits and other allowances as income and subject to tax.

—Change top proposed tax rate of 51 per cent to 60, effective at taxable income of $60,000; rate of 50 per cent effective about $30,000 instead of $25,000.

—Only half capital gains instead of all to be subject to tax; half rather than full losses to be deductible.

—No capital gains tax, rather than partial tax, assessed against sale of a principal residence and up to an acre of land around it.

—Exemption from capital gains of $1,000 instead of $500 for proceeds from sale of lesser items.

—Increased exemption for estate taxes; no tax on estate valued at less than $150,000.

POINTS ELIMINATED

—Proposal to end deductions for conventions, clubs, yachts and other aspects of expense account living; instead, present law strictly enforced to stop abuses.

—Revaluation of capital gains every five years; instead, gains tax to be assessed at transfer of an asset or at death.

US nukes may be in Greece, Turkey

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — Heavily-censored Senate testimony made public Monday suggested the United States may have nuclear weapons stationed in Greece and Turkey.

Senator J. William Fulbright (Dem. Ark.), chairman of the Senate foreign relations subcommittee, hinted this when he questioned witnesses on the issue during closed-door hearings on U.S. relations with Greece and Turkey.

Under orders from higher Nixon administration officials, the witnesses refused to respond directly on the subject of nuclear weapons.

They were questioned in June by the Senate foreign relations subcommittee on U.S. security agreements and commitments abroad.

But the context of questions and answers in the censored transcript suggests that U.S. nuclear weapons have been based in the two North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries.

Subcommittee chairman Senator Stuart Symington (Dem. Mo.) has been investigating U.S. military commitments overseas and previously hinted that weapons are based in Turkey.

In the transcript published Monday Fulbright asked directly whether the U.S. has nuclear weapons in Greece. Robert J.

Pranger, deputy assistant secretary of defence, replied: "I have been instructed, sir, by the secretary of defence not to answer questions relating to nuclear matters."

Fulbright, a critic of the administration's reluctance to keep Congress informed on foreign policy matters, said angrily: "We know all about it and I do not understand it why you are given instructions not to discuss it."

Three injured in three-car pileup

WINDSOR — A spectacular accident took place, Friday evening around 6:45 o'clock on Route 32 at the town limits of Windsor when a vehicle went out of control and a three car pileup was the result.

Upon impact, one of the vehicles brokeout in flames igniting the two other cars involved in the incident.

Taken to hospital in Sherbrooke were Mr. and Mrs. Rene Roy, ages 47, of R.R. 2, Danville and Rolland Campagna, age 42 of 25 Prince Albert Street, Danville.

By the force of the impact, Mrs. Roy was thrown some 120 feet from the vehicles.

Investigation by the Quebec Police department showed that the car driven by Stanley McKirk, 697 Victoria Ave., Montreal, and, hauling a trailer apparently went out of control. A passenger in Mr. McKirk's vehicle, Gordon McKenzie was uninjured.

Windsor volunteer firemen were called to the scene to put out the fire.

Traffic on the highway was held up for an hour - and - a - half, and, backed up two miles in the direction of Richmond with another line of a mile long towards the town of Windsor.

Nasser successor named

CAIRO (CP) — Anwar Sadat, one of the late Gamal Abdel Nasser's oldest and closest colleagues, was nominated Monday night to succeed him as president of Egypt.

An official announcement said the eight-man higher executive committee of the ruling Arab Socialist Union, Egypt's only political party, had informed the party's 200-member central committee of its decision.

A later announcement said the central committee unanimously supported Sadat's nomination.

The nomination must also be endorsed by a two-thirds majority of the 360-member National Assembly before the holding of a nationwide plebiscite of the eight million ASU members qualified to vote.

The nomination, a move apparently aimed at avoiding a divisive power struggle, is tantamount to election of the 52-year-old Sadat.

Sadat was considered by many observers to be the least controversial of several contenders for Nasser's job. He was named vice-president by Nasser last year in a governmental shakeup. They were old friends, Sadat having joined Nasser in the coup that toppled King Farouk 18 years ago.

The doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, said the excitement of the kidnapping itself would have a serious effect on his blood pressure.

MONTREAL (CP) — Government officials in Ottawa and Quebec City have been given until Wednesday morning to consider a stunning ransom note for the release of James Richard Cross, senior British trade commissioner kidnapped at gunpoint early Monday.

The ransom note, part of which was made public by Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, asks, among other things, for $500,000 in gold bullion and the release of several "political prisoners" who would be put on a chartered flight to Cuba or Algeria with the gold.

A third demand, that the police take no action against the kidnappers, was fulfilled later in the day.

"A man's life is at stake," a police spokesman said. "We don't want to make the terrorists jittery."

He was referring to the general belief that the kidnapping at Mr. Cross' home at 8:15 a.m. was the work of members of the Front de Liberation Quebecois, a separatist-terrorist group believed responsible for scores of bombings in Quebec since 1963.

It was feared that the abduction of Mr. Cross, 49, might indicate a new tack in FLQ strategy, until now largely restricted to terrorist bombings.

NOTE GIVES DEADLINE

The ransom note, found at an east-end building of the University of Quebec after a false bomb threat, gave a 48-hour deadline for the demands to be met.

Justice Minister Choquette appealed to the kidnappers at a news conference Monday afternoon to show "human decency" by procuring a supply of a drug Mr. Cross needs for a high blood pressure condition.

A Montreal doctor said in an interview, Mr. Cross could be in grave danger in a few days without the drug.

"Certainly within a week he would begin experiencing symptoms of the rising blood pressure—headaches and other troubles felt by those with heart problems."

The doctor, who asked to remain anonymous, said the excitement of the kidnapping itself would have a serious effect on his blood pressure.

The note added that if the 48-hour deadline was not met, "we will not be held responsible for what happens."

It was not immediately known if the "political prisoners" mentioned in the note are in provincial or federal penal institutions.

In Ottawa, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp promised that additional protection will be provided for 1,000 plus foreign diplomats in Canada.

He said the kidnapping would prove to be a strong blow against the cause of separatism in Quebec.

Referring to the ransom demands, he said, at the moment, "we don't know how to deal with it."

The federal and Quebec governments are operating under shared jurisdiction in the case.

No reason seen for kidnap

MONTREAL (CP) — James Richard Cross, kidnapped Monday, came to Montreal to head the British government office a little more than 2½ years ago—at a time when Britain was experiencing a major balance-of-payments crisis.

The appointment included the job of senior British trade commissioner in Quebec and in this capacity one of his first tasks was to help increase British exports to Canada, herself a major exporter to the United Kingdom.

Known to his friends and colleagues as Jasper Cross, the Irish-born official made contacts quickly among the Montreal financial and business community.

Business associates found him to be a charming fellow, quiet in his ways but knowledgeable in the field of economics and political science.

His office said it was not aware of any threats against him, and figured the kidnapping was more an act against the office than against Mr. Cross as an individual.

BORN IN IRELAND

Born in Nevagh, Ireland, 49 years ago, he assumed the Montreal appointment after having been in charge of a branch of the British Board of Trade as assistant secretary and under secretary.

He came to Montreal with his wife, the former Barbara Dagg whom he married in 1945, and their daughter, Susan.

The kidnapping took place Monday morning, before Mr. Cross could get started on his way to his office.

Mr. Cross is suffering from high blood pressure and his office has expressed concern over his health if he is cut off from medication.

Mr. Cross graduated in 1944 with a first-class honors degree in economics and political science from Trinity College in Dublin. As a lieutenant, he saw service with the Royal Engineers from 1944 to 1947 when he joined the British Board of Trade.

In 1957, he was posted to Halifax as British trade commissioner for the Atlantic provinces. Subsequently, he spent two years as British trade commissioner in Winnipeg and, in 1962, was posted to Kuala Lumpur as senior British trade commissioner Malaysia.

Shows Joplin OD'd

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The coroner's office said Monday an autopsy showed rock singer Janis Joplin died from an overdose of drugs.

An autopsy on the body of the 27-year-old Miss Joplin, whose writhing, wailing and sometimes profane performances electrified the music world, disclosed numerous needle marks on both arms, with several fresh ones on the left arm, the coroner said.

He said further tests would be needed to identify the type of drugs involved.

Police investigators said they found small amounts of heroin and marijuana in Miss Joplin's apartment.

Miss Joplin was found dead in her apartment Sunday night, clad in a nightgown. The coroner said there was no evidence of violence or foul play.

The coroner also said a psychological autopsy, in which a team of behavioral scientists examines the subject's personal life to determine whether a drug overdose was accidental or intentional, will be conducted.

Miss Joplin had come here from her San Francisco home to record for Columbia, which had sold millions of her singles such as Piece of My Heart, Maybe, One Good Man and albums Cheap Thrills and I Got Them Ol' Kozmic Blues Again, Mama.

Plowing judge Page retires

ULVERTON — The St. Francis Valley Plowmen's Association held its annual banquet and prize presentations at the Ulverton halls, Wednesday evening.

Highlighting the event was a presentation made by the association to the field judge, Mel Page of Bulwer who has for the past 20 years helped the local group through his excellent experience in rating the various competitions. This is Mr. Page's final year of judging, and, in future years he intends to look on as a spectator at the annual events throughout the Townships. "I may not be completely finished - as yet," said the quiet gentleman, after being presented with a pair of hassoeks by the association director, Rodney Duffy. All-in-all newcomers to the task may well fall back on this man for advice and pointers.

Numerous cash awards and prizes were donated by local and district merchants along with the following trophies:

hydraulic, Stanley Weare.

Peter Rose took home the Wellie Poirier Trophy for plowing of highest merit on the field.

The youngest boy on the field was Scott Johnston who took the J.H. Coles trophy.

To settle next medicare move

QUEBEC (CP) — The Quebec cabinet met Monday to discuss the government's next moves in the medical care dispute that could include a free scale adjustment to approach the financial demands of the Quebec Federation of Medical Specialists.

Emergency legislation to implement the insurance plan by Nov. 1 and possible government action in case of a threatened general walkout by the province's 4,000 specialists were also said to be on the agenda.

Health Minister Claude Castonguay said Sunday night the government is prepared to discuss financial changes in the program. The fee scale and clauses in the Health Insurance Act dealing with opting-out rights and control of professional qualifications are the three areas of contention in the dispute.

The federation is withholding comment on the dispute until results of the cabinet meeting are known.

The minister said a clarification in the legislation will assure doctors that judgment on doctors' professional qualifications will remain with the Quebec College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Meanwhile, the absentee rate among specialists at offices and the province's 250 hospitals remained at about 30 per cent, spokesmen for both the federation and the government reported.

Most hospitals have restricted operations to emergencies and some have also begun screening admissions, the health department reported.

NEW YORK LYRIC QUARTET

New York Lyric Quartet in concert

SHERBROOKE — The New York Lyric Quartet, with musical arrangement and direction by the famed Robert de Cormier, will be heard here on Tuesday, Oct. 13th, at La Grande Salle, Université de Sherbrooke under the auspices of Sherbrooke Community Concerts.

In order to establish this delightful singing group, the four young artists — soprano Barbara Young, tenor Arthur Williams, baritone Cortez Franklin and mezzo-soprano Phyllis Bash have temporarily abandoned successful solo careers. Each member of the group has been chosen for his or her future potential. Youth, talent and spirit make this one of the most delightful ensembles to be heard today.

VARIED PROGRAM

Presenting a fascinating program which includes operatic excerpts, Broadway hits, madrigals, folk songs, "Porgy and Bess" excerpts, etc., the ensemble is able to exhibit the interplay and feeling of communication which adds the dimension of story and character so important to any dramatic-musical work.

Soprano Barbara Young is the youngest and newest addition to the Quartet. A native of New York City she received her basic education at Howard University in Washington, D.C.

where she received her Bachelor of Music degree. This past June Miss Young graduated from the Manhattan School of Music where she was awarded her Masters degree in Voice. Miss Young has appeared in numerous solo recitals including appearances in New York City and Washington, B.C. She studied and performed in Siena, Italy, prior to her acceptance of the Quartet's invitation to join this season's tour.

Mezzo-soprano Phyllis Bash was born in White Plains, N.Y., and studied both at the Juilliard School of Music and Manhattan School of Music in New York City. She has toured the United States in recital as well as Europe and Australia. She has also had solo appearances with the Westchester Symphony, the Washington National Symphony and the Arlington Symphony Orchestra in Washington, D.C. In addition to her many opera and concert performances, Miss Bash has appeared in the New York City Center production of "Carousel", "Brigadoon", "The King and I", and was in the production of "Showboat" at Lincoln Center with William Warfield.

TENOR

Tenor Arthur Williams completed his secondary education at the noted University of Indiana School of Music in Bloomington through the good offices of a Special Merit Scholarship. After completing a tour of duty with the U.S. Navy during which time he appeared on the Ed Sullivan Show, as a result of winning the National Navy Talent Contest, Mr. Williams came to New York to further his musical education.

He was admitted to the Juilliard School of Music where he majored in Voice and minored in Piano. While attending Juilliard, he often appeared as tenor soloist with orchestra and chorus in such works as the Mozart Requiem. He has also appeared on the Bell Telephone Hour with Louis Armstrong. Broadway credits for Mr. Williams include appearances in "Showboat", "Porgy and Bess", "Carmen Jones" and "Finian's Rainbow".

After completing his studies at Juilliard, he joined the Belafonte Folk Singers as tenor soloist and was featured with that group in concerts and on recordings. He has toured with the Robert Shaw Chorale, was a featured soloist in Leopold Stokovsky's "American Youth Performs" Series at Carnegie Hall and, in addition to the Quartet tour, is featured soloist with the Robert De Cormier Singers.

OPERA EXPERIENCE

Baritone Cortez Franklin, attended Fisk University, The Manhattan and Henry Street Schools of Music, and while in attendance, was awarded many competitive scholarships. In addition to appearing in "Porgy and Bess" at New York City Center, he has done the following operas: "The School for Fathers" and "The Turk in Italy" by Rossini; Puccini's "Il Tabarro"; "Rigoletto"; "Pagliacci"; and Gian Carlo Menotti's "Amahl and the Night Visitors". His talents have been brought to the concert stage in a wide variety of presentations throughout the United States and Canada.

Mr. Franklin has toured with Harry Belafonte, The Gregg Smith Singers, Clyde Turner's "Broadway Theatre Extravaganza" and for the past six years has been a featured soloist with the Robert De Cormier Singers, who recently completed a successful engagement at New York's Radio City Music Hall. This group has been very popular with Community Concert audiences here in Sherbrooke where they have appeared several times within the past few years.

On Command Records Mr. Franklin may be heard as soloist with the De Cormier Singers and radio has provided a sounding board for the presentation of the singer and several of his own compositions. On television he has appeared on "The Tonight Show" and was featured in the Stage Two productions of "Beyond the Blues", "Many Voices, Many Songs", "Let the Merry Music Ring" and most recently "Dial M for Music".

This will be the group's third successive coast-to-coast of several weeks' duration. Prior to their tour, The Quartet was featured on NBC-TV in a program entitled "Someone New", which is a showcase for young talent hosted by Leon Bibb.

From observing the background and activities of these four young artists, it is apparent that their names are on the way to being added to music's Hall of Fame, for each has made a large step toward stardom in his chosen profession. These are names to watch and voices to hear.

The Community Concert Association of Sherbrooke is to be congratulated upon its success in bringing such outstanding talent to us. These concerts are open to members of the Community Concert Association.

GRAND FUNK, Grand Funk Railroad (Capitol SKAD-406)

CLOSER TO HOME, Grand Funk Railroad (Capitol SKAD-471) After a first and rather disastrous album (On Time) where everything seemed to have gone wrong, Grand Funk Railroad presents us with two beautiful packages in both these albums. Grand Funk is a powerful, vibrant band whose imperson appearances usually bring the roof down anywhere due to their stage theatrics. Oh yeah, they're a great rock band, too. Now, let's look at the lp's. GRAND FUNK is something that sounds like the On Time album except that the music, vocals, and production is a hundred miles apart. Mark Farmer is proving himself as one of the better American hard-rock guitarists. Mel Schacher's bass lines are sounding very good, and Don Brewer's drums are more than adequate (though he does get boring in spots). The first side of GRAND FUNK is good but not great — it seems as if the band needs a lot of time to say something in a song. CLOSER TO HOME, on the other hand, is something else. GRAND FUNK is a good album, then. CLOSER TO HOME is excellent. Mark Farmer's song-writing shows incredible improvement over the first two albums and his guitar solos are bursting with emotion. Almost all the cuts are great but Aimless Lady and I Don't Have To Sing The Blues are especially effective. The Farmer-Schacher guitar-bass relationship is down pat on I'm Your Captain, and the song is sheer guts for 9:47. Everytime the band releases something, it seems to be better than what they have done previously. Good things to come from Grand Funk Railroad...

MCCARTNEY, Paul (Apple STAD 3363). After many months of listening to the Paul McCartney solo album in a thousand and one different places, I think that I've developed enough guts to review it. The fact is, so many people were going around just raving about it, and it wasn't all that crazy about it so I wondered if I was wrong about it. Whew... are we going to get letters! What it boils down to is that McCartney just doesn't make it all that well without the rest of the boys. Actually, the album is good, but it's just not what I had expected... best cuts are OO YOU, MOMMA MISS AMERICA, and MAYBE I'M AMAZED. Maybe if the man was to get himself a really good back-up band (horns, etc...) and stuck to vocals, bass, and piano, then we might really have something!

For me, I wish he would get off his egotrip, and really do something — he just doesn't play all his instruments well enough to warrant an all Paul McCartney album like this. Whew...

UMMAGUMMA, Pink Floyd (Harvest STBB-388) This review is directed to all the unstraight people in the area (can't say 'heads' in this newspaper — it's a family thing). One has heard experimental album and EXPERIMENTAL ALBUMS... this is an EXPERIMENTAL ALBUM: I love it, I can't listen to it under ordinary circumstances, but I love it. Pink Floyd are four very strange young men (David Gilmour, Roger Waters, Richard Wright, and Nick Mason) who have written strange songs (side three, cut six — Several Species of Small Furry Animals Gathered Together in a Cave and Grooving With a Pict) and put them together to make an album called Ummagumma.

STANSTEAD — A meeting of Christ Church Guild was held in the parish hall for the September meeting. The president, Mrs. R. W. Peirce presided and the meeting opened with prayers and the hearing of routine reports.

The committee for the family-style turkey supper on Sept. 26, Mrs. R. W. Wells, Mrs. Miriam Osborne, Mrs. W. Meade and Mrs. N. C. Chamberlain, gave their report.

Mrs. Holliday and Mrs. Perkins of the A.C.W. were welcomed. The two guests gave a delightful presentation of Pakistani embroidery which was on display and orders were taken. This was an art established by the Canadian A.C.W. in Pakistan and the work has developed until now some 600 women are employed to bring in money on which they and their families are able to eke out a living. The embroidery is very dainty and beautifully done.

PAST... After Vermont declared itself an independent nation in 1777, it had its own constitution, postal system, courts and army for 14 years.

FUTURE... Within the next few years entire communities may be moved—for example, from coal mining or cotton plantation locales to communities where there is a shortage of labor.

Both parties' official platforms expected soon

By CUTHBERT JONES

SHERBROOKE — With Sherbrooke's municipal elections less than four weeks away — on Nov. 1 to be exact — the electors have not as yet been told why they should vote for or against the candidates of either the Civic Action, led by Mayor Marc Bureau, or the Sherbrooke Party whose president, Marcel Savard, is running for the mayoralty.

To date both parties have presented a complete slate of candidates for the mayor's post and the 10 aldermanic seats. They have both stressed the desirability of having the party system prevail at the city hall.

They have indicated that the citizens would be served best by having the party the particular spokesman represents handle the administration of the city for the next four years.

But they have made no formal statement as to their policies nor the projects they will espouse if they gain control of the municipal government.

However, this condition should be alleviated during the present week, or by next Sunday at the latest.

Civic Action has called a public meeting for Wednesday night at the St. Francis School at the corner of Bowen South and Galt East, when its program will be unveiled.

Speakers will include Mayor Bureau, who has headed an interim administration since the resignation of former Mayor

Municipal election

Armand Nadeau a few months ago, Ald. Romeo Quintal, first Civic Action candidate to be elected to the city council, and Roger Gingués, candidate for a West Ward seat.

Sherbrooke Party president Marcel Savard announced Monday that his group had completed its program and that it would be made public either Friday or Sunday, also at a mass meeting. The site for the meeting has not been determined as yet.

In addition to the candidates already named by Civic Action and the Sherbrooke party, two independents have already entered the race — Ald. Everett Nicol who is seeking re-election in the North Ward seat he has held for the past 19 years and Guy Boutin, professor of geography at CEGEP Sherbrooke, running for a West Ward seat.

Like the major parties, Ald. Nicol has made no announcement of his policy as yet. In fact he has held no meeting to announce he will seek re-election. He is just in the race.

But Mr. Boutin was presented at a formal meeting last week at which time he presented his program which dealt largely with West Ward problems — improved recreational facilities, more low-rental housing, industrial expansion and improved bus service being his basic points.

As the politicians more or less mark time, city clerk Henri-Paul Emond is pressing forward with the arrangements for the voting.

Until tomorrow evening, he is engaged in supervising the revision of the electoral lists prepared by the enumerators. Any application for the addition, correction or elimination of names must be made to Mr. Emond by tomorrow afternoon.

City Report

Water pressure is campaign spoiler

SHERBROOKE (GF) — And you think you've got problems? For the second time in as many weeks, East Ward Ald. Romeo Quintal complained last night of water shortages in his ward which have been caused by insufficient pressure generated by pumps.

"And it would have to happen on a Monday morning when people are getting ready for the week's work," Ald. Quintal lamented.

"Now c'mon you guys," Ald. Quintal said as he glanced about the huge circular table at his fellow aldermen, "there's an election on and the water shortages are doing nothing for my campaign." The other not directly concerned seemed somewhat amused, but Ald. Quintal may have made a valid point.

For his Sherbrooke Party opponent in the Nov. 1 municipal election, lawyer Lise Dube, told her nominating meeting Sept. 23 that "for the East Ward, the most pressing need was to improve the water supply and end the periodical shortages which plague a large number of its residents."

As the incumbent glanced ruefully at Frank Mascolo, director of technical services, he was told that a reserve pump is just not available, and that the situation could not be expected to improve until the spring.

Council voted $550 for improvements to the North Ward intersection of Meilleurs and Des Cascades Streets, as city engineer Jean-Paul Lajoie said his study has proved that complaints by area residents of the danger of the corner were completely justified.

Information from Claude Neon General Advertising Ltd. was tabled last night, but no decision to proceed with the rental of four billboards for the winter to advise motorists of parking restrictions has been taken. Effective Nov. 15, on street overnight parking in the city of Sherbrooke is prohibited.

J. M. Jeanson Ltée., which submitted the lowest of three tenders for the replacement of the floor of the Sherbrooke Arena, has been awarded the $24,985 contract. But realizing the importance of having the arena operational as quickly as possible, there is provision in the contract for a $100 per day fine if the work is not completed on schedule by Oct. 31.

Aldermen Quintal and Gerard Deziel proposed appropriate sewers be constructed in the East Ward Châteaufort Street sector, as some residents have been bothered with flooding of basements for "a long time."

After a lengthy discussion during which Ald. Quintal invited others to come and view one of the basements, a resolution was passed to have the required work done immediately.

The city has hired Jean-Jacques Fontaine at a salary of $175 per week to manage the Municipal Housing Board.

Consider support for rural farm communes

VERNON, B.C. (CP) — Health Minister John Munro says the public should consider supporting rural farm communes as a peaceful refuge and worthwhile alternative to drug intoxication.

It was one of a number of suggestions put forward in his most extensive public review of the drug situation since the interim report last June 19 of the Le Dain commission on drug abuse.

Communes, the chance to meet urban challenges in community self-help programs, a national network of hostels and drop-in centres were several methods Mr. Munro suggested to rehabilitate drug users.

The health minister said too much attention is being focused on the legal aspects of the drug scene.

"Surely it is prevention and rehabilitation which ought to absorb most of our attention."

He said three basic assumptions must underlie the approach of drug users and nonusers:

"First, not all drug use will result in social chaos and personal destruction for the user. Second, despite that, drug use is a negative rather than positive

Symposium at U de S

To better francophone links

By BRENDA GILMAN

SHERBROOKE — An international symposium of delegates representing 33 French-speaking countries is being held this week, at the University of Sherbrooke, for the first time.

The purpose of the symposium is to establish better communication between people of French-speaking countries and discussions will centre around the importance of the French language around the world.

The representatives, from Africa, Asia, Europe, the American islands and North America, are all men of literary background — either writers or critics.

This Semaine de la Francophonie has been organized by the C.E.L.E.F. center for studies on French-language literatures. The C.E.L.E.F. is a central organizations here in Sherbrooke which does research in every country where French is spoken.

Its main interest is in literature and linguistics and aims for better communication between French-speaking countries on those levels.

The C.E.L.E.F. was founded in Sherbrooke on May 20, 1969 with a special research grant from the University of Sherbrooke. This year, 1970-71, it has received a grant from the minister of education.

The international symposium will feature an art exhibition at the U. of S. all week until Oct. 11. It will be opened to the public every evening from 6 p.m. to 10 p.m.

They will also have a display of contemporary novels, information pamphlets, works of art, handicrafts, as well as stamp collections, manuscripts, photographs, posters and paintings.

On Oct. 8, the conference as such will begin, with papers being given on the present standing of the French language around the world and its future.

Friday will be devoted to the contemporary novel as found in French-speaking Europe (France, Switzerland, Belgium), the Negro-African novel, the Madagascar novel, as well as the Asiatic contemporary French novel (Vietnam).

There will also be papers given during the afternoon on the Arabian Mediterranean novel and the American novel of French expression (Canada, Louisiana, Martinique, Guadeloupe.)

Everybody is invited to listen to these papers and there will be a discussion period after each session. The sessions start at 8:30 a.m. at the faculty of education building.

Friday night there will be a film: Documentaires et le Mandat in color and free of charge. This film, produced by Ousmane Sembene, won a special award from the jury at the Venice Film Festival in 1968.

Saturday will feature a confrontation between the authors themselves and literary critics.

Several repairs and extensions of town water services were proposed by Alderman Chailier, and after detailed consideration the council gave his department a go-ahead on projects to improve water pressure for residents on Lorne St. and to provide new service on Convent St.

With a view to future development in the community, the council chose larger water systems considering that the cost to the taxpayers would be far less if such systems were installed in the first place rather than immediately cheaper systems which would probably have to be torn-up later at considerable expense.

In that installations on Convent St. requires blasting, Mr. Frank Taylor reminded that the council should insure the proper protection of nearby residents and hire only a fully competent and insured contractor.

Buildings Chairman, Mr. James Mitchell, discussed proposed plans for fire prevention week activities.

"I can't stress too strongly that we must put on every effort we can to prevent fires," said Mayor Dougherty and informed the council that necessary funds would be available for fire-prevention week displays and other measures aimed at making residents aware of potential dangers.

He noted that Bishop's University has not had an effective fire drill. In many years, and suggested that town firemen thoroughly familiarize themselves with equipment and layout at both Bishop's University and Bishop's College School.

Mr. Bob Nichol, chairman of parks and recreation and instrumental figure in the renovation of the town hall, was commended by the Mayor and council for his excellent administration of the major renovation of the town hall.

The town's financial affairs were widely discussed, and the council considered the picture favourable with only the roads department projecting a possible deficit. However, it was pointed out that this was a result of including certain police expenses in the roads budget and that no problems were expected in road maintenance.

The meeting ended with winter preparations which included the purchase of a new truck to spread sand and salt on Lennoxville's roads.

Lennoxville Council

Examine water supply, offal-soaked insects

LENNOXVILLE — A dangerous health hazard being created by "urine and manure soaked flies" which persist in landing on the teacup of a Lennoxville resident was among topics discussed at the regular monthly meeting of Lennoxville Council, held last night.

Among the correspondence, presented by secretary-treasurer William Ross, was a complaint from a Lennoxville man whose neighbor has reportedly created a horse stable and manure pile both of which provide unexcelled breeding grounds for flies and assorted vermin.

Although the council completely overlooked the possible distribution of swatters or DDT, they did consider the matter in a serious manner and submitted the dispute for further study.

Mayor Cecil Dougherty chaired the meeting, whose first major decision of the evening concerned the town's annual donation to the Victorian Order of Nurses. "I don't know what we'd do without them," said Mayor Dougherty as the council unanimously approved a $400 donation in consideration of the considerable service the Order provides to the town each year.

QUEBEC IN FOCUS

School stays closed

MONTREAL (CP) — Authorities of the Lignery regional school commission in nearby Laprairie ordered the Romain-Robidoux school closed indefinitely Monday after a week of sit-ins and an incident with police involving the use of tear gas.

Only teachers at the 3,600-student institution were admitted into the building.

Students, parents and teachers occupied the building last week complaining of inadequate learning facilities and supporting an Aug. 28 strike of nonteaching personnel at the school.

Many classrooms had no desks or equipment to handle the students properly, they said.

Last Wednesday the demonstrators were tear-gassed by Laprairie police officers and forced to leave the building. They vowed to return Monday.

Support Cross kidnappers

QUEBEC (CP) — An organization for the defence of Quebec political prisoners launched a recruiting and $50,000 fund-raising campaign Monday only hours after the dramatic kidnapping of James Richard Cross, senior British trade commissioner in Montreal.

The Front de Liberation Quebecois, which advocates independence for Quebec by any means including violence, has demanded the release of political prisoners and $500,000 in gold bullion as part of the ransom for Mr. Cross, kidnapped from his Montreal home at 8:15 a.m. Monday.

Serge Mongeau, an executive of the Mouvement pour le Defense des Prisonniers Politiques Quebecois, refused to comment on the kidnapping at a news conference.

"We are not a movement for the defence of bomb-planters but of all citizens who have unpleasant dealings with justice for political motives and do not have the means to benefit from fair treatment," he said.

"We do not have to judge the acts of those we are defending; we simply think they have a right to full and complete justice like all other citizens."

If the kidnappers were caught and asked for help, Mr. Mongeau indicated the movement could provide funds.

The campaign is partly to raise funds to pay a minimal salary to Montreal lawyers Robert Lemieux and Pierre Cloutier and to provide bail for political prisoners.

Legion Hall robbed

BOUNDARY (IH) — Thieves had an active weekend here at the Boundary, with police reporting break-ins at Adu Granite, Inc., in Beebe, and at the Stanstead Legion Memorial Home.

Police said the offices of Adu Granite were broken into sometime late Saturday night or early Sunday morning.

A company spokesman said the thief made off with $130 in cash and equipment valued at $800, stolen from a nearby shed.

The investigation is being carried out by the Quebec Police Force, as the granite works are outside the village and beyond the jurisdiction of local police.

At 4:30 p.m. Monday, Stanstead Police constable Wilfred Cuerrier discovered that the Canadian Legion Memorial Home had been broken into. Mr. Cuerrier has made his rounds 45 minutes before and everything was in order at that time.

Police said entry to the building was made by smashing a lock on a side door with such force that the lock was thrown several feet across the main hall.

In addition to 60 bottles of liquor and a quantity of beer, the thief stole a record player valued at $150, along with some silver money in special funds.

The juke box was smashed, as was the top of a roll-top desk.

As of Monday noon the total amount of the loss was undetermined, although it is known that there is no insurance.

Caouette launches newbook

OTTAWA (CP) — Creditiste leader Real Caouette launched a book Monday he said is designed to explain Social Credit theory to the public in time for the next federal election in 1972 at the latest.

The book titled Real Caouette Vous Reponds—Real Caouette Replies—takes the form of 24 letters in French which Mr. Caouette said he has sent to persons across Canada in reply to their expression of worry over Canada's political administration.

He said 20,000 French-language copies of the book are available at $1 each and an English version probably will be distributed in a few weeks.

The book, published by Les Editions Regards, comes at a time when the Ralliement Creditiste is ready to spread into other provinces "where Creditiste organizations animated by a new fire are prepared to engage in battle to take power at the latest in 1972."

In the book, the 53-year-old leader of 13 Creditistes in the Commons, all from Quebec elected in the June 1968 election, severely criticizes communism as well as the Liberal, Progressive Conservative and New Democratic parties.

Roll certified accurate

SHERBROOKE (GF) — An elated Mayor Marc Bureau told city council last night that the City of Sherbrooke's 100 per cent valuation roll, deposited in August, has been rated 98.96 per cent accurate under present market conditions by the Sherbrooke firm of Morin and Tessier, professional valuers.

The information was contained in a report to the Quebec Government valuation commission by the firm, Morin and Tessier is currently assessing area valuations for the regional school boards.

The firm also said that as far as it is concerned, a valuation which is more than 90 per cent accurate in the current market shows the valuers have done an excellent job.

Three critical programs

When the next session of the Canadian Parliament opens later this week, just one day after the closing of the present session, it is probable that the legislation to be introduced will reshape this country, for better or for worse, for many years to come.

During its thirty months of office the Trudeau Government has displayed a certain cool style that contrasts favorably with the alarms and excursions of the Pearson and the Diefenbaker years.

Through the use of task forces and white papers it has opened the way for many reforms although it has done little in actually passing legislation to implement these various proposals. But in all likelihood, the legislative process is just ahead and the cabinet will be judged by the manner in which it implements the various proposals.

Probably the three key tests will be its handling of the revisions to the Income Tax Act, the new policy on foreign control of Canadian industry, and the massive overhaul of the federal welfare programs which are expected to flow from the Willard report.

The important issue is whether the cabinet has the real desire and the economic know-how needed to update an admittedly creaking tax structure without killing the goose that lays the golden eggs.

And it will be interesting to see if, unlike those administrations which have gone before, it can come up with a practical and non-harmful policy on foreign ownership that will arrest wholesale sell-out without discouraging the inflow of foreign capital so essential to the development of the Canadian economy.

And can it revise welfare policies to provide help where help is needed without overburdening the economy?

While these three interwoven issues are at the core of all economic programs, the one with the widest implications for society as a whole is tax reform.

The greediest continent

Our century has seen the unfolding then the blighting of a dream — the vision that modern science could bring Utopia, end poverty, hunger and war, cure most diseases, alleviate most forms of suffering.

It has not happened. Instead we live in a fear-stricken world of wars, polluted environment, riot-torn cities and virulent antagonisms, where every form of separatism mocks the vision of one beautiful, round, blue Earth the astronauts have viewed from outer space.

What went wrong? Why do not men live healthy, prosperous, fear-free lives, active but with ample leisure for enjoyment of the beautiful in nature and art, pressing on to explore the greatness of space and the smallness of the nuclear particle?

The answer is ignorance and greed, more specifically the greed of North America. Having had the luck to corner a major fraction of the world's capacity for technical mass production, North America has kept the fruits of such productivity largely to herself — mainly to her upper and upper-middle classes.

In the face of the world's poverty-stricken two-thirds, this greedy continent exhibits the psychology of the spoiled child who, after opening his twenty-fifth Christmas parcel, whiningly asks, "Is that all?"

Exploiting natural resources far beyond their replacement potential, we parade, without sharing, a standard of living that holds out two cars, a boat, a skidoo, hi-fi radio, TV and air-conditioning as the family norm, meanwhile recklessly wasting the food for lack of which Asians, Africans and South Americans go hungry to bed every evening of their lives.

"Oh, the ignominious repercussions, the psychological grass-roots reverberations — the four thousand bucks . . ."

THE ART BUCHWALD COLUMN

WASHINGTON — There's probably nothing more embarrassing for the President of the United States than to appoint a commission to investigate a serious situation in the country, and discover he's part of the problem.

This seems to have happened with the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, and the White House is taking it very hard. There is even some talk of a presidential commission to investigate unrest on presidential commissions.

A spokesman for this group, Harvey Troglodyte, told me: "It's a terrible thing for this country, not to mention the fall elections, when a presidential commission blames the President and his Administration for what's going on in the United States."

"It sounds like another Pearl Harbor," I said, trying to ingratiate myself to him.

"We're not going to let it happen again," Troglodyte said. "If we can't have a presidential commission that supports the President we'll do away with presidential commissions for good."

"That's a very serious step," I said. "It's not our fault. The President appointed the commission on campus unrest in good faith. He told them to get to the bottom of the student crisis and give him the answers to the hard questions that confront us all. He told Gov. Scranton to let the chips fall where they may. Instead of doing that, the Scranton report found the Vietnamese war, the President's decision to go into Cambodia and the rhetoric of his Administration partly responsible for campus unrest."

"But that isn't what the President wanted to hear," I protested.

"You can say that again," Troglodyte said. "Just because you tell a commission it has carte blanche to find out what is wrong in this country, the commission doesn't have a license to attack the Administration."

"What are you going to do about it?" "We have several plans in mind. For one thing, we're seriously thinking of writing the report first and then appointing a presidential commission to sign it."

"That would eliminate a lot of soreheads," I agreed. "It would also save the commission a lot of time and money. We know what should go into those reports. They have to start from scratch."

"It doesn't matter how you do it as long as you arrive at the truth," I agreed.

The purpose of a presidential commission has been misunderstood by a vast number of Americans."

"What is its main function?" I asked. "When the President announces he is appointing a presidential commission to study something, he is saying to the American people he is very concerned, and he is asking for answers to questions that all Americans are entitled to know."

"That's well put," I said. "What else?"

"That's it," Troglodyte said. "By the time the commission has come up with the answers, the President is counting on the problem to have gone away."

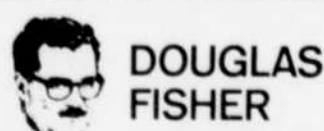

"By attacking the Administration, all the Scranton Commission has done is keep the 'campus unrest' issue alive." "Gov. Scranton should have known better," I said.

"We should have," Troglodyte said. "One of the rules of politics is, 'Never ask for whom the bells toll during an election year.'"

"O.K., everybody—stop the demonstration. Take five, while the cameras are being reloaded!"

The Seventh Day looks at Israel

DOUGLAS FISHER

Reading is my drug; books, any kind, several hundred a year. Many of them are junk or dull or slight, merely feeders of the addiction.

Two weeks ago I picked up a book in a Jerusalem store, began reading, couldn't leave it alone, drifted outside to a park, finished it. I've re-read it several times, I browse in it and get new insights. It's so honest, so penetrating in its outline on the human tragedy of the Jews and all of us, that I wish it a readership of millions.

The book has dozens of authors in that it is an edition of taped discussions and interviews. Hardly a classic form or a herald of literary worth. The English title is The Seventh Day. It first appeared late in 1967 in Hebrew as Soldiers' Talk. The publisher, Andre Deutsch, has brought out the English translation this year.

The Seventh Day has been described as a "spiritual reckoning." Immediately after the enormous success of the Six-Day War of 1967, a group of young Israelis who had fought in it began to ponder the experience. They decided to discuss and record their impressions.

Was it a just war? What had been their motives? Why had it gone so well? What had it done to them as individuals, as comrades-in-arms, as Israelis, as Jews? The project gathered momentum, not out of elation or the "esprit" of victory, but from the doubts of those young people. The interviewers moved from kibbutz to kibbutz, probing and listening.

The result is not the story of the Six-Day War, although it has stark, candid accounts of soldiers in action, vignettes that would grace Tolstoy or Blunden or Robert Graves.

The high morale and the involvement of the whole people in the crisis and the war is described by individuals and analysed incisively by many as they seek to understand the comradeship, the discipline, the strategy. There's much on the behavior of the troops as winners, as masters of prisoners and booty.

Here are two rather quizzical bits from it, the first by a landscape gardener who happens to be a college graduate in philosophy. He fought along the Jordan River.

"We tend to forget those days before the war, and perhaps rightly so — yet those were the days in which we came closest to that Jewish fate from which we have run like haunted beings all these years. Suddenly everyone was talking about Munich, about the holocaust, about the Jewish people being left to its fate. A new holocaust did not seem as real a possibility to us as it did to the people of Europe; for us it was a concrete picture of an enemy victory, and we had decided, that come what might, we would prevent it."

"We know the meaning of genocide, both those of us who saw the holocaust, and those who were born later. Perhaps this is why the world will never understand us, will never understand our courage, or comprehend the doubts and the qualms of conscience we knew during and after the war . . . those who see pictures of a father and a mother, who hear the cries that disturb the sleep of those close to them, those who have listened to the stories — know that no other people carries with it such haunting visions. And it is those visions which compel us to fight and yet make us ashamed of our fighting."

"The saying, 'pardon us for winning' is no irony. It is the truth. Of course, one may say that our doubts are only hypocrisy and nothing more; that we deck ourselves out in morality, perhaps even that our behavior is contradictory. But who says that war can be anything but contradictory?"

The next selection is from a 40-year-old father of seven, a commando soldier who normally teaches school.

"Defending ourselves doesn't make us into moral beings — but I say that the war was essentially a just one, because we never had any intention of annihilating or conquering or oppressing other people. On the contrary, it was the Arabs who had these intentions and we who defended ourselves, and that's why we're in the right."

"But there is the question of what will happen if it all just repeats itself in another 10 years."

"I tell you it may well happen . . . The question is, what alternative could there be? Let's look at it from the opposite angle: What if we don't fight? Can we give it all up, surrender, make peace? What else can we do except increase our strength: Economically, educationally, culturally, and militarily, all at the same time?"

But what I say is this: We're offering them equality, not supremacy — and they don't want to accept it.

And from their point of view it has a certain logic. That's what's so tragic, that's what this business of Zionism is all about, because as far as they are concerned, our being here in this country is seen as a conquest, while for us it's a matter of life itself.

"We say we've got something to give the area: Culture and enlightenment. They say: Leave us alone, we're not interested in your culture, we've got our own . . . We don't want you here. It's tragic. It's very nearly thesis and antithesis. But there's no other way out. We have to live with it. It was a long time ago that people first began saying, 'It's hard to be a Jew.' I agree."

An open letter

The following is published as an open letter to Health Minister Claude Castonguay, Marcel Pepin and Louis Laberge.

The two undersigned "damned" specialists accept with open hands and arms the government offer to work on a straight salary basis at $52,000 per year.

One of us is a radiologist with 13 years experience while the other, a pathologist, is in his first year of practice.

We consider your offer very generous because our revenues will increase by over 100 per cent, so please send us your application forms.

Lately, every union has been talking about money. We consider that quite normal because it is the only language they speak. If you will permit us during the next few minutes, we would like to talk about money also, but not with unprovable amounts, such as the young union squirt did recently on a French language television program.

Our books are open to anybody who wishes to verify the figures. Nothing is hidden because we are paid by check at the end of each month and just try to hide a check.

So, as far as radiology goes:

Year	Revenue	(part by government to hospital)	Value	Exams	Incr.	Mean Value
1965	$19,970	19 per unit	6,767	—	2.94
1966	$21,902	20	7,085	—	3.09
1967	$20,755	21	7,184	—	2.89
		(64 per cent of tariff)
1968	$22,522	66 per cent tariff	9,470	31.1	2.38
1969	$23,882	66 per cent tariff	10,086	40.5	2.36

As you notice, in 1968, working at 66 per cent tariff (which is equal to 16.5 per unit of work) the radiologist increased his production by 31.1 per cent and in 1969, by 40.5 per cent, compared to 1967, and not for very many cents more.

These figures contradict the affirmation of the young union member who said on TV that all radiologists had obtained an increase of $7,500 in the fall of 1967. He'd better let his belly-buttock dry before making such accusations.

So, Mr. Health Minister and union leaders, one can logically conclude that working at 66 per cent of the tariff, the radiologist contributed quite an amount of subsidies to finance the hospital insurance plan.

In fact, he pays them 34 per cent of his recognized tariff in subsidies. In other words, a little more than one-third of his work is not paid.

If Pepin and Laberge are honest, they will surely jump up and revolt before such a fact. Would they accept that for themselves and their members? We can just hear everybody laugh.

Would they give, to pay the political capital of a government, the sums of $11,602 (1968) and $12,309 (1969), we say, of a government which only knows about the political rentability of health and nothing else?

You will also notice that since 1966, the mean value of the radiological examinations has continually decreased from year to year. We are expecting the day that we can tell you that these examinations are not worth anything, so why cover them?

We have not talked about emergencies as yet — emergencies outside the ordinary working hours, at night or on weekends — emergencies paid from $1.65 to $1.98 (66 per cent of $2.50 or $3.). Our parents were so right when they told us to become television technicians, plumbers, electricians, politicians or even union leaders. We regret the day that we opted for medicine and did not follow their wise counselling.

Now we shall talk a little about pathology: The pathologist in question is only 34 years old, has had 22 years of schooling and is in his first year of practice. Boy . . . is he ever a dumbhead . . .

Pathologists have been paid on a unit system since about 10 years ago. Curiously, their "entente" has never been renewed even if negotiations have been going on for the last four years.

He would be extremely happy and satisfied to work at $52,000 per year, a salary that has been mentioned over and over in the newspapers, on TV and radio. He hopes that it is true, that the public was told the truth, that these are not amounts thrown in the air when the union leaders say that the government has made such an offer. Why should they lie?

Many have said that all doctors should be on a salary basis like all government employees. We have no objection at all. What could we ask for more than a 35 1/2-hour week, statutory holidays like everybody else, paid vacations, overtime paid at time and a half and at double time on weekends, sick pay etc.

Inasmuch as the control of the medical act is concerned, the quality of medical care, the professional secret, deontology etc., we offer you a just and easy solution: The one who suffers the consequences of a medical act is the patient, that is the ordinary citizen.

He who represents him socially is the intermediary bodies and, politically, his member of parliament.

We propose to you then, to choose a few intelligent and honest union members and members of parliament, if there are any left and give them an accelerated course in medicine. After that, they could do all the necessary controls. They have the right don't they because they are the ones that are paying? (funny, it seems that we do not pay any taxes . . .)

Their course should not be very long because it is only the "thickheads" that take 22-25 years or more to absorb all necessary medical matters.

As for that dirty word "opting out", we are not worried because once on a salary, we will affiliate with a union, we will have the legal right to strike for three or four months before negotiations end, as it seems to be the general rule to-day.

A radiologist is a man who passes half his life in darkness in order to tell you if you have a fractured skull, a gastric ulcer, twins, a brain tumor, a pin in your throat or a bullet near your heart.

We hear that some may even cure some types of cancer (but, that must not be true . . . fellows that spend their time in a hospital cellar . . .). We also hear that, from time to time, some of them die from leukemia or a cancer caused by radiations. But that is not important. A pathologist is a rare sort of nut who tells you if you have a breast cancer, a cancer of your stomach or your penis. (If not, you keep your breast, madame, and sir, your stomach or your penis). He examines surgical specimens taken at operations, he does biopsies, autopsies and many other more or less useless things. Usually, he dies of old age or of getting fed-up. Rarely, of septicaemia.

So please send us at once your application forms. We want to work at $52,000 per year. Otherwise, everybody will think that you are telling "fibs" like an ex deputy minister of health did in 1967.

Offensive reporting

I think your front page report on Oct. 1 of the traffic accident in which Jean Cormier died was completely lacking in taste and in respect for human dignity. I'm sure the offensiveness was apparent to all and doesn't require repetition here.

I ask one question of the reporter and the editor, for that matter: Had the victim been a member of your family, how would you feel after reading this report?

This might be a time for telling things as they are, but please don't take this freedom to mean that we must tell every detail of every situation regardless of peoples' feelings.

I have no wish to read such thoughtless and tasteless reporting.

Meet Baltimore in series

Reds finish three game sweep

CINCINNATI (AP) — Cincinnati Reds clinched their first National League pennant since 1961 Monday, defeating Pittsburgh 3-2. Bobby Tolan hit a two-out, two-strike single in the eighth inning to lead the Reds to their three-game playoff sweep.

The victory sends the Reds into the World Series beginning Saturday against Baltimore Orioles, who won the American League pennant with a similar sweep of Minnesota Twins.

The Reds, who were supposed to beat the Pirates in a sea of smoke from their bats, had only three hits off Bob Moose going into the eighth. He had set down 19 of 20 batters after consecutive first inning homers by Tony Perez and Johnny Bench.

But two outs later the stage was set for Tolan, the slender centre fielder who got the job done for the Reds in the second game by smacking a homer, two singles and scoring all three runs in a 3-1 victory.

Moose, a right-hander who will be 23 Friday, got Tommy Helms and Woody Woodward for the first two outs of the inning before Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson went to his bench.

CALLS IN CLINE

He tapped Ty Cline, the first game Red hero who triggered a 10th inning rally with a triple that led to a 3-0 victory. Cline responded this time by drawing a walk off the tiring Moose.

Pete Rose followed with a single, sending Cline to second. Pittsburgh Manager Danny Murtaugh then called for veteran Joe Gibbon from his bullpen. The crowd of 40,538 gave the Pirates' starter a standing ovation.

der, got two quick strikes on Tolan, but on the third pitch, the left-handed swinger poked a single to left. Cline scampered around third as Willie Stargell ripped a throw home, sliding in just ahead of Manny Sanguillen's driving attempt to make the tag.

The game that gave the National League crown to the Western Division champions was far from over as the Pirates attempted to battle back in the ninth.

Reliever Wayne Granger got the first two outs in the inning, but Roberto Clemente kept the Pirates' hopes alive with a line single to right center. Anderson changed pitchers immediately, calling for 19-year-old Don Gullett.

STARGELL HITS SINGLE

Gullett was hit for a single by Willie Stargell as Clemente raced to third with the potential tying run.

Gullett, however, reared back and got Al Oliver to tap to second and Tommy Helms threw to first for the final out as the Reds' bench erupted in delirium.

Pittsburgh got its first run in the opening inning against starter Tony Cloninger after a play involving leadoff batter Fred Patek.

Patek walked to open the game, advanced to second on a grounder and, while Cloninger was preparing to pitch, attempted to steal third. He was thrown out. That eventually cost the Pirates a run because singles by Clemente and Oliver around a walk to Stargell produced one run in that inning.

Cloninger got into trouble again in the fifth when the Pirates tied it 2-2. With one out, Alou singled to left. Clemente popped out, and with Stargell coming to bat, the Reds shifted fielding positions, leaving only one man on the third base side of the infield.

Alou raced to second on a wild pitch and stayed glued to the base for several minutes while Murtaugh protested that Bench had thrown his glove at the pitcher in an attempt to keep it from going to the backstop.

LOSES DISPUTE

Murtaugh was overruled, and Stargell then proceeded to line a single to left that beat the shift and brought the Pirates the 2-2 tie.

the Orioles had a 3-0 lead. One out later, Palmer laced a double past third for another run and then Buford's sacrifice fly made it 5-0.

The Twins managed their only run off Palmer in the fifth when right fielder Frank Robinson lost Cesar Tovar's two out fly ball in the sun and it fell for a triple.

Cardenas smacked the next pitch for an RBI-single and then Tony Oliva dropped a single in front of Buford in left. That brought up Harmon Killebrew, the Twins' top slugger. But Palmer blew a called third strike past the big guy to end the inning.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

Lions win another

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Lions exploded for 21 points in the third quarter and got a fourth-quarter touchdown after a key interception as they defeated Chicago Bears 28-14 Monday night to take sole possession of first place in the Central Division of the National Football Conference.

Mel Farr scored two touchdowns for Detroit on runs of three and 20 yards, Albie Taylor scored on a seven-yard sprint and Bill Munson passed 13 yards to Larry Walton for a touchdown. The Bears had a 7-0 halftime lead on a 20-yard touchdown pass from Jack Concannon to Dick Gordon in the first quarter before the Lion's third-quarter barrage.

Concannon and Gordon teamed on a 61-yard pass play on the first play of the fourth quarter to put the Bears close at 21-14.

Compton splits soccer

COMPTON (SA) — Alexander Galt Regional High School girls and the host King's Hall teams split a pair of soccer games here yesterday.

The King's Hall senior squad took the AGRHS representatives 1-0, while in the junior match AGRHS won by the same 1-0

Karen Cooney scored the lone goal of the junior game to give AGRHS the victory.

Meanwhile, at the Bishop's University athletic fields in Lennoxville the University girls' team downed the Alexander Galt girls' field hockey squad 9-0.

U de S defeats CMR

ST. JEAN (SA) — University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold football team followed up on its training camp promise and opened the season on a winning note here Saturday with a 13-0 victory over College Militaire Royal.

Pierre Piguet and Gilbert

Doucet scored Sherbrooke touchdowns and Piguet added a single.

This week the Green and Gold travels to Montreal to meet McGill University Indians, 9-3 losers Saturday at the hands of the University of Quebec at Three Rivers.

Galt takes cross-country

LENNOXVILLE (DC) — The first annual cross country meet sponsored by the Alexander Galt Regional High School held Saturday attracted 31 entrants from Alexander Galt, Stanstead College, the Massey-Vanier Regional School at Cowansville and Richmond Regional High School.

John Fitzgerald of Alexander Galt carried off the individual honors, running the 2.2 miles in 11 minutes 50 seconds.

In team standings, the AGRHS "A" group took top spot, followed by Stanstead College in the runnerup position. Massey-Vanier, the AGRHS "B" team and Richmond followed.

Les Canadiens to play here

SHERBROOKE (SA) — With the Sherbrooke Beavers in Sorel Thursday to play the Hawks in the second regular season encounter for the local club, area hockey fans will have an opportunity to view the Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League in action in their exhibition finale against the American League Voyageurs.

Coach Claude Ruel, a native of Sherbrooke, has let it be known that he will be dressing his starting team at the Sports Palace. The players who wear the big team's colors here Thursday will be in Philadelphia Sunday to open the 1970-71 NHL season against the Flyers.

One of the most interesting disclosures will be which goaltenders the Habs plan to go with this year. Holdovers Rogatien Vachon and Phil Myre have been receiving stiff competition from Ken Dryden, the former Canadian National Team netminder, and Ray Martyniuk, an impressive prospect from western junior ranks and the Canadiens' number one draft choice this past summer.

If you haven't picked up tickets yet, don't delay another day.

Bruins last night

HALIFAX (CP) — Boston Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 5-3 in a National Hockey League exhibition game before 8,200 fans Monday night.

Phil Esposito led Boston with two goals. Fred Stanfield, John Bucyk and Garnet Bailey got the others.

Marc Tardif, Guy Lapointe and Mickey Redmond tallied for Montreal.

Boston outshot the Canadiens 31-26.

Eagleson complains

Act to control endorsements

By AL McNEIL

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League and the NHL Players' Association, often at odds in owner-player sessions, have combined efforts to stop the use of hockey stars' pictures or names as product endorsements without consent.

The latest gimmick to come to the attention of NHL president Clarence Campbell and Toronto lawyer Allan Eagleson, executive secretary of the players' group, is a facsimile of the United States $10 bill with the picture of Bobby Orr, Boston Bruins' all-star defenceman, replacing the face of Alexander Hamilton.

This was the latest product to appear without Orr's consent.

"They are selling all kinds of souvenirs with Orr's picture and name on them," Campbell said in an interview Monday. "Eagleson was in Boston last weekend looking into the matter."

Eagleson, also personal adviser to Orr, moved on to New York Monday afternoon for further talks.

MEANS MONEY

The endorsement of products by NHL players has become big business over the last few years and both Campbell and Eagleson mention figures in the neighborhood of $500,000 annually as benefits to the players.

The league has set up its own services division in New York to handle products and endorsements, while the players' group has a similar setup in the same city, the Licensing Corporation of America.

Orr is one of a half-dozen stars who have their own private deals with sponsors to advertise their products.

Campbell and Eagleson agree that legislation is necessary to halt what Campbell calls the "invasion of privacy."

Duo rematch inconclusive

SHERBROOKE (SA) — Tor Kamata and Danny Lynch went at each other again Saturday in the Sports Palace wrestling card final and again couldn't arrive at a decision.

The match was declared no-contest when the two giant grapplers were counted out of the ring where they continued to battle until separated by other wrestlers in attendance.

Kamata took a one fall lead in the two-out-of-three affair but Lynch came back to even things up. The third fall was never decided.

Lynch's manager Eddie Creighton, under suspension by the Sherbrooke athletic commission, was a ringside spectator but was unable to lend his charge a hand as his wish.

Tag-team champions Michel Dubois and Fidel Castillo bent the rules sufficiently to cop a decision against the team of Andre Carpentier and Len Shelley.

In a match was enthusiastically enjoyed by the crowd of over 3,200, Detroit's Cuddles Anderson bested Windsor's Celine Fontaine in an event featuring women midgets.

In yet another tag-team tangle, the pair of Paul Leduc and Antonio Baillargeon were winners when the Chinese duo of Chen Lee and Sugi Sito was disqualified. The Chinese team insisted on making dual appearances in the ring.

Duke Myers, the Georgia Cracker from Atlanta, captured his match against Steve Manric of Montreal in short order, taking only nine minutes to turn the trick.

The brothers Petrov, Boris and Nikolai, had it over Eddie Auger of Montreal and Quebec City's Michel Vigneault as Boris captured the fall.

MEET THE 1971 CARS FROM CHRYSLER at your Dodge and Plymouth dealer's today!

1970—it's been great! Chrysler's share of new car sales highest in 14 years! To top it off, exciting new cars for 1971. All quality-engineered for value. You be the judge. Check their styling. Try the comfort. Drive them. That's how we want you to meet our new 1971 cars.

For 1971, the cars from Chrysler have more to offer: more of the styling you like, more of the performance you prefer, more of the dependability and value you want. When you've seen these new cars in person, you'll agree: it's '71 and Chrysler steps up the action!

Building on success.

1970 was one of the best years in Chrysler's history. Chrysler's share of domestic new car sales rose to a 14 year high! In the luxury car class, for the sixth straight year, more people in Canada bought Chryslers than any other luxury car. Obviously Chrysler models have what most luxury car buyers are looking for. In the compact car class, Chrysler-built cars also led the field. Plymouth Valiant was the best-selling compact car in Canada. And the combined sales of Valiant and Dodge Dart accounted for over 40% of all Canadian compact car sales.

Competing where it shows.

Chrysler has a long-standing reputation for engineering excellence and we're not afraid to put it on the line: the starting line. Dodge and Plymouth are both active in open competition in NASCAR-sanctioned racing. And when you want to find out how good your engineering is, that's the place to find out. From the amount of silverware the Dodge Daytona and the Plymouth Superbird have collected, Chrysler engineering is still top-dog.

On drag-strips throughout North America, Chrysler-built cars and Chrysler-powered cars are also consistent winners.

Chrysler Engineering

Over the years, Chrysler's ExtraCare in Engineering has developed some major automotive firsts, like super-strong unibody construction, Slant-Six engines, extra-stable torsion bar suspension and Seven-Stage rustproofing. Last year Torsion-Quiet ride was added to the list.

This year, all Chrysler-built full-size and luxury cars, including station wagons, have a Torsion-Quiet ride, as standard equipment. It's a combination of a rattle-free unibody, torsion bars, and a sound-insulation system that isolates annoying road noise from the car's interior and you. You have to drive one to appreciate the dramatic difference.

Another development this year: regular fuel engines. Almost all of Chrysler's '71 engines have been modified to use regular grade gasoline—and that includes the large displacement V8's, too. It adds up to a nice saving for you, over the course of a year. The only premium fuel engines in '71 are 3 high performance optional engines that are meant primarily for competition.

This year, Chrysler engineering has also added a part-throttle kick-down feature for V8's as well as Six's with TorqueFlite transmission. It gives you extra acceleration in city driving by downshifting from drive to 2nd when the accelerator is partially depressed. It saves gas, for you don't have to "floor it" to shift down to the lower gear.

There is also a brand-new engine for '71. It's a 360 cu. in. V8 that's optional on all full-size Plymouth and Dodge cars. It's a slow-revving, over-square design that is smooth, quiet and delivers plenty of low-speed torque. All our engines have been modified to reduce exhaust emissions still further.

Chrysler's ExtraCare in Engineering is also exemplified in the over 30 safety features that are standard on every car built by Chrysler in North America.

What's the action for '71?

There's plenty of it. Exciting things have happened to all our car lines, especially to the new Dodge Charger/Coronet & Plymouth Satellite models. For them, there's a brand-new design concept that gives more individuality to sedan and hardtop styling. But you'll catch the excitement yourself, the moment you step into a Dodge or Plymouth dealer's showroom.

Now, please accept our invitation. Take a trip down to your local Dodge or Plymouth dealer's today. Take a good, long look at the new 1971 models. Luxury cars, full-size cars, mid-sized cars, compacts and sports cars. Whatever size, shape, style, power or colour you're looking for, Dodge & Plymouth dealers have it.

Ask lots of questions. Take a test drive or two. That's what dealerships are for, to let you meet our products face to face. When you do, you'll agree that the 1971 cars from Chrysler have more to offer... more of the value you're looking for.

Drug abuse spreads to the very young

By LISA BINSSE
MONTREAL (CP) — Marie and Anne are pretty, intelligent and curious about life. They look like many other 13-year-old Montreal girls.

And, like many others even at that age, they have experimented with drugs — marijuana, hashish, LSD and mescaline. Both now say they have dropped the latter two.

Both started at the age of 12. They are not the youngest users in Montreal, but they are the youngest a social worker was able to find who were willing to talk about themselves.

Psychiatrists, doctors and social workers say that some youngsters aged 9 use drugs in Montreal. But, one social worker said, parents tend to hush up such cases and keep away professional helpers.

Marie and Anne didn't want their real names used. They are both Grade 8 students and, in the view of the contact who introduced them to a reporter, they are fairly typical of young Montrealers who are on drugs.

FLED SOCIETY

The girls live in an east-end middle-class environment. They said they "turned on" to the drug culture either to get away from a society they criticize or to explore their own feelings and emotions.

Marie, her thick and curly brown hair held by an elastic, smoked a cigarette while she talked.

A lot of kids in her school use drugs, she said. They are easy to get and the kids know where to go if they need a supply fast.

Anne said much the same. "You can get drugs downtown or with some connections. Lots of people have them."

Marie, who has two older brothers, 19 and 17, said:

"I started experimenting with drugs at the end of August a year ago. I don't know really why. I guess I was curious to find out what they were like.

"A bunch of my friends decided they wanted to try pot. We had never done it before."

"There's no problem at home, really. We never discuss drugs. My parents and older brothers are dead set against them."

She didn't know how her parents would react if they knew she was taking drugs, paid for with a $3 weekly allowance they give her.

"I have stopped dropping acid (LSD) which can be quite nice at times," Marie added. "I did it about 18 to 20 times."

"My first trip was really bad, crying and laughing, and there wasn't anyone there to tell us what was happening. But I enjoyed most of my other trips."

FELT LIKE GARBAGE

She tried mescaline only once and has no intention of trying it again.

"That was bad. I felt just like a garbage can after."

"I wanted to try it out but I was scared and there wasn't very much so I didn't get off too well. I don't want to try that again."

"I have stopped taking those drugs completely now. Whenever we have enough money, my friends and I get together and buy a few smokes, maybe twice a week, but that's all."

Anne, her blonde hair tied back in a neat pony tail, spoke without hesitation and rather defiantly about her experiences.

"All my friends were trying them and I thought I would too. I liked it."

"But maybe I started because I wanted to get away from my mother or something. She was always bothering me."

Anne is the second of two girls. Her mother is a widow and never mentions drugs. She has been caught twice at home.

"I usually get grounded and I'm not allowed to do anything."

"But that doesn't change anything."

Anne pays for the drugs with a $2 weekly allowance. She smokes about twice a week, at school, in the park, a friend's home or somewhere else.

TRIP WAS BAD ONE

"I have stopped acid because I realize how bad it is. My first trip was a real surprise, a bad one. I never expected so much from such a small pill."

"I dropped acid about 21 times. After my first trip I tried it a few more times and liked it, but that's all over now."

Anne didn't like mescaline any more than Marie.

"It wasn't at all interesting. It gives you a sort of tense feeling, very destructive, like tearing the whole place apart."

The effects of the drugs both girls have taken vary, psychiatrists and social workers say.

Marijuana or pot, and hashish both come from the cannabis plant, but hashish is six times more potent. Pot is smoked like a cigarette, while slivers of hash, sold in compressed cubes, are put on burning end of cigarette with the smoke inhaled through drinking straw.

Both tend to disorganize the thought process, distort perceptions and dull attention.

During a three-hour "high" time expands and space is distorted. The drugs take effect in about 30 minutes.

LSD is a natural product of ergot fungus, claviceps purpurea, found on rye and other plants. A synthetic compound can easily be made by college chemistry majors. As a white crystal-like powder, it can be eaten with sugar cubes or crackers and is also available as a little white pill. Effects are felt in about 30 minutes and a trip lasts up to 12 hours.

COLOR INTENSIFIES

During a trip perceptions alternate. Ego seems to divide into an observing, monitoring self. The user may feel he's making deep contacts with people around him, breaking down social barriers and inhibitions. Also, he may feel he's experiencing and feeling himself. Time is distorted; colors are intensified.

In a split second, a trip can become a nightmare of paranoid hallucinations or deep, sometimes suicidal, depressions.

Mescaline is the most active substance in peyote, a cactus-like plant found in the southwestern United States. It is weak compared with LSD, and large amounts are needed to get a proper "high." It is sold in tablet or capsule form. An average trip lasts four to 12 hours.

The user gets a trance-like feeling with vivid kaleidoscopic visions and bright colors, but there are no rapid emotional changes as with LSD. After a trip, the user often falls into a deep sleep.

Tomorrow: Doctor says drugs becoming major health issue.

Jewelry styles change with fall fashions

By MARGARET NESS
NEW YORK (CP) — The trend to longer skirt lengths not only changes clothing styles but also affects accessories, especially jewelry. As the legs become more covered, the focal point of interest naturally moves up.

Fashion authority Eleanor Lambert puts it this way: "This fall will be the jewelry year of all times for many years."

The longuette—one to three inches below the knee—also needs balance, and jewelry can help achieve this by long necklaces that draw the eyes up. These necklaces or ropes are a reversal from the fashion of the last couple of seasons when necklaces were retired to jewel boxes in favor of the large pin and ear-ring sets.

Now necklaces are back.

often a barbaric arrangement of beads or heavy beaten metal studded with uncut stones. A leader in this style is Cadoro. Cadoro's two partners and designers were winners of a 1970 Coty Fashion Award for their original and offbeat jewelry.

Already Cadoro has made fashion history with African-inspired wooden bead necklaces, introduced last year and now extremely popular for fall. The huge beads are polished, sculptured or sometimes silvered, with small glittering jewels embedded.

This fall Cadoro is featuring necklaces that look as if they cost a fortune, but don't, in rows of jeweled beads mixed with pearls and intricate gold work.

Kenneth Lane, another Coty Award winner, introduces the new long—waistline—lengths in necklaces in a trio that can be worn together or singly. A beaten gold pendant hangs from the long necklace of beads in two of them, while the third has large polished beads interspersed.

Another important name has entered the costume jewelry field and should wield a lot of influence. This is Lanvin of Paris, known for haute couture clothes and perfumes. Among some of the jewelry items shown was a necklace composed of tortoise shells in various odd shapes, linked in a pendant effect and suspended from a chain.

Tortoise shells are extremely popular this fall. In small squares and threaded with leather, they are a novel tie-on dog collar.

These dog collars are fashionably new again. The height of Edwardian elegance, they had a brief revival a few years ago and now have come in strong for fall. They are an obvious foil for long skirts.

They can be made of ribbons or soft leather or they can be in silver, gold or textured metal combinations, such as Lane's hammered gold ring chokers, worn singly or two or even three at a time. Dog collars are intended, of course, for late-day and evening wear.

Pins haven't been entirely overlooked with the return of necklaces. They will still be worn with sportswear, knits, sport dresses, or on evening costume coats. And there is a great variety, as Monet notes, such as dimensional, sculptured, bows, flowers, small animals.

LORRAINE DESMARAIS of Sherbrooke who has returned from Copenhagen in Denmark where she was with the Jeunesse Musicale world orchestra. Lorraine will resume her studies at the Conservatory in Montreal.

Pretty wedding in Knowlton

The marriage of Sheila Ann Darling, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glendon Darling, Knowlton to Stephen Eric Morris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Morris, Westmount took place at 2.30 p.m. in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Knowlton on August 29th. Rev. Ian Dodd officiating. Mrs. Wilson Frizzle presiding at the organ.

The church and altar were prettily decorated with summer flowers, with white satin bows marking the guest pews.

The bride given in marriage by her father looked lovely in a long sleeve floor length empire waist gown of peau de soie. White lace daisies trimmed the neck and down the front. Her cathedral length veil of tulle illusion was held with three white roses. She carried a cascade bouquet of red sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Linda Lafreniere of Sherbrooke as maid of honour wore a long pink empire waist gown of cotton brocade trimmed with white daisies, with matching daisies in her hair.

She carried a nosegay of shasta daisies and pink roses. The bridesmaid Jane Darling, sister of the bride was dressed in yellow cotton brocade styled identical to that of the maid of honour with matching daisies in her hair. She also carried a nosegay of shasta daisies and yellow roses.

Mr. Brian Berger of Ottawa acted as best man. The ushers were Winston Morris brother of the groom and Allen Chute of Sutton.

The bride's mother chose a dress of flowered chiffon over yellow taffeta, with white accessories and a corsage of white miniature carnations.

The mother of the groom wore a teal blue dress with matching veil hat, white accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the Glen Mountain Chalet, Bolton Glen. The hall was prettily decorated with wedding bells, glads and asters.

The bride's table was decorated with flowers and centered with a three tier wedding cake, made by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Raymond Streeter, and decorated by Mrs. M. McPherson. After lunch, music for dancing was enjoyed, furnished by the bride's uncle Durward Darling.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Morris left by car for a short honeymoon. The bride chose, for travelling, a red flowered chiffon dress over red taffeta, with black patent accessories and a corsage of miniature yellow carnations. The happy couple will live in Dorval.

Your Heart in Good Shape?

Sex Activity Requires Fitness

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

If your health is so bad you can't exercise, the probability is that you can't safely participate in sexual activity either. The sex act is exercise and causes a marked increase in the work of the heart. If exercise is good for you, sexual activity is one way of getting it. In fact, if it catches on, it may replace jogging.

Like other factors that increase the work of the heart, sex can also be harmful if you have serious heart trouble. More than one man has died just after getting home from the hospital after a heart attack.

Some have suggested that the problem of sexual activity for the patient with advanced heart disease can be solved by passive sex. Well, if it's passive, it's not sex. Besides laboratory studies show that the increase in heart rate and blood pressure comes at climax anyway.

The emotions have a lot to do with how hard the heart works in response to sexual stimulation. Your heart rate may quicken merely from desire. Then there is the response to a sensual kiss. According to a West German physician, Dr. Herbert Loellgen, the brain sends out signals, causing the spine to stretch, the nerves influencing the pelvis are activated, the sex glands start functioning and small adrenal glands over the kidneys release epinephrine (adrenalin). The heartbeat may increase to 150 beats per minute (about twice normal levels) and the blood pressure increase from a usual level of 120 to 180.

At this point, according to the good doctor, all rational functions of the brain cease. The changes in heart rate and blood pressure represent a major increase in work for the heart. This way of working the heart may be pleasurable, but it is not necessarily healthy without subsequent physical activity.

The excess adrenalin must be metabolized or its accumulated products cause harmful effects, just as occurs from other forms of emotional stress.

During sexual activity the heart rate at climax rises to levels between 110 and 180 beats per minute (as high as noted in the most vigorous forms of athletics). And the blood pressure may rise over 100.

Sexual activity, like other forms of athletics, requires a good level of fitness to do it well and safely. Practice may not make everyone perfect but it could improve their game.

Huntingville marathon 500 party planned

HUNTINGVILLE — The September meeting of the Huntingville Ladies Aid was held in the community hall with Mrs. Wesley Aldrich as hostess.

There were 11 members present, and the meeting opened with the Lord's Prayer. Mrs. Chute read the Second Psalm.

Mrs. H. Aldrich, president, welcomed the members back after the holiday, and a special welcome to Mrs. Fairbrother who was able to be present. The minutes and treasurer's report were read.

Mrs. W. Aldrich, sunshine convener, reported sending nine get well cards, two sympathy cards, two baby blankets, and two boxes of candy to the Cowhard boys.

Mrs. Booth, reporting for the social committee, said the marathon 500 party had been organized with 12 tables participating. Mrs. Aldrich thanked Mrs. Booth for typing the 1970-71 programs.

After the Mizpah benediction, Mrs. Crosby read the chapter entitled Battle Tactics, from Farley Mowatt's The Dog Who Wouldn't Be.

Refreshments were then served by the hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Chute.

Chalmers Unit meeting held at Richmond

RICHMOND — The Chalmers Unit of the Richmond and Melbourn United Church held the Sept. 15 meeting in the church parlor. The leader, Mrs. B. Armatage, welcomed the members and one visitor, Mrs. R. McManis. The meeting was opened by the devotional period conducted by Mrs. F. Wintle. A hymn, "Behold a Stranger at the Door" was sung and a reading on the parable of the Good Samaritan was followed by prayer.

The roll call was responded to by 17 members, with 54 Wales Home visits and 19 local calls reported. Fees amounted to $25.

Mrs. Armatage thanked the members who arranged the flowers in the church during the summer months.

Mrs. R. Andrews, Mrs. J.S. MacNaughton, Miss E. Pepler and Mrs. K. G. Nourse, were appointed to visit at the Wales Home before the next U.C.W. meeting.

A collection, to replace the annual fall supper, is to be looked after by Mrs. MacNaughton, Miss E. Pepler, Mrs. K. G. Nourse, Miss Jean Pepler, Mrs. J. Barrington and Mrs. M. D. Fraser.

Mrs. Armatage reminded members of the U.C.W. Fall Rally, which was held in the Richmond and Melbourn United Church on September 22 at 9:30 a.m. Conference of the U.C.W. Executive is to be held on Nov. 4 and 5 with further plans to be made at the October 20 meeting.

The leader reported that at the U.C.W. general meeting the president, Mrs. R. Healy asked for volunteers from the various units to decorate the church hall for the Christmas tea and sale. The Evening Unit has plates with a picture of the Richmond and Melbourn United Church, which are for sale at $2.50 each including a wall hanger.

The hostesses for the meeting, Mrs. R. Turner and Miss F. Fletcher, were thanked by Mrs. Armatage and Miss Jean Pepler. Mrs. R. Andrews and Mrs. A. T. Smith were appointed to act as hostesses for the October meeting.

Mansonville U.C.W. holds first meet

MANSONVILLE — The Mansonville United Church Women held their opening meeting of the autumn season on Sept. 17, in the church hall with a very good attendance.

Reports given showed that the members had continued their activities during the summer months by holding their annual auction in July, as well as catering to a wedding reception and a softball team supper, with receipts totalling $1,252 for the work of the church.

Plans were made for the members to attend the fall rally in Cowansville and Vale Perkins Units of the U.C.W. to be held Oct. 6 in the Vale Perkins Church Hall.

A very interesting talk was by Mrs. H. Ommerli on the trip which she and her husband took to Switzerland and Germany during the summer, where they visited relatives whom they had not seen for 36 years, and also showed pictures of interesting spots visited.

A social hour with lunch served by the hostesses, Mrs. Gloria Cabana and Mrs. Doris Gardner, brought the meeting to a close.

L'Avenir

Friends in this district were deeply saddened by the news of the death of Mrs. Henry Smith, of Melbourn (formerly of Ulverton). A number from here attended the funeral in Chalmers United Church, with burial in the Ulverton Cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Bogie and son Darrell spent the weekend with the former's parents, Miss Linda Bogie and Mr. Dennis Armstrong of Montreal were also visitors at the same home.

Funeral services were conducted in St. Peter's Church for the late Mrs. Alfred Fleury, a resident of this place who recently passed away.

Women's groups in the news

BROMPTON — The September meeting of Brompton Road Branch Women's Institutes met at the home of Mrs. Irene Berwick, with Mrs. Elgin Decoteau and Mrs. Harold Riches as assisting hostesses.

Mrs. George Hadenko, president, opened the meeting with the salute to the flag and repeating the Mary Stewart Collect. The roll call, an unusual word and its meaning, was answered by sixteen members and there were four visitors welcomed.

Gifts of jam and jelly brought by members were given to McKeage Nursing Home. Secretary, Mrs. E. M. Goodfellow, read the minutes of the August meeting and the correspondence.

The treasurer's report given by Mrs. Gordon Westman showed a satisfactory balance in the bank.

Food in Your Diet Can Be Ruining Your Health

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

What are you doing about your diet? Unless you make a real effort to eat right, the food you eat may ruin your health. One of the chief differences in our culture, afflicted as it is with early deaths from heart disease and mental senility, from those cultures free of these civilized diseases is what we eat.

Despite the importance of food to our health, vast numbers of intelligent people have only vague ideas about a proper diet. Others go on fad diets and there is more malnutrition in the United States because of ignorance than because of poverty.

The first basic necessity for a proper diet is that it must contain all the essential food elements, vitamins, proteins and minerals. Many fad diets fail in this regard. The amount of food calories you eat must be balanced against the calories you use in your daily activity to prevent developing dangerous fat deposits. You don't need to count calories. If you have or develop excess fat under the skin—usually around the waist—you are eating too much or exercising too little for you. No diet will be successful in preventing heart and vascular disease unless you prevent obesity.

If you eat foods with lower calorie content you can have a satisfying diet that shouldn't fatten you. Much of the diet problem begins in the kitchen. You don't need will power; you need proper food.

The amount of calories in food is influenced by its water content. Lean raw beef, for example, is over 70 per cent water, while raw beef fat contains less than 20 per cent water. This factor alone means that the fat contains many more calories than the lean. One gram (a teaspoonful of water is about four grams) of pure fat—without water—contains nine calories and one gram of pure protein in the meat contains only four calories. The net result is that, ounce for ounce, fat tissue contains five times as many calories as lean muscle tissue. Obviously, if you need to limit the calories in your food, you can't include too much fat in your diet.

Pure carbohydrate, like sugar, contains four calories per gram. A level teaspoonful of sugar (slightly more than four grams) contains nearly 20 calories. Unlike fat tissue and muscle tissue it has almost no water. For this reason a pound of sugar contains nearly three times as many calories as a pound of lean muscle tissues. Sugar or other concentrated carbohydrates and fat are major sources of calories. Lean meat, many vegetables and fruit are food sources with limited calories per pound and are rich sources of essential vitamins, minerals and proteins.

Dear Doctor—How much water should a person drink a day?

Dear Reader—There is no magic figure. Your sense of thirst is your best guide. You will get some water in the food you eat, plus the beverages you drink, such as milk, coffee, soft drinks and fruit juice. Roughly, a normal adult loses a quart of water a day from invisible perspiration of the skin and another quart in the urine. If your water intake in food and beverages doesn't equal this, you will be thirsty and need to drink more fluid. You do not need a specific additional amount of water to wash out poisons through the kidneys, as some people think.

SHERBROOKE — The 53rd Regiment Chapter I.O.D.E. held their first meeting after the summer recess with ten members present. The regent Mrs. C. Varney presided. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mrs. Billing also reported on progress of Sherbrooke County W.I. float which was being shown in Lennoxville Optimist Club Tombola Parade with our members Mrs. S. Sayer and her granddaughter Linda Decoteau acting the part of the old and the new. Reporting for Publicity, Mrs. H. Riches read an item on Country Women of the World from Federated News.

Saint Augustine Church services

EAST FARNHAM — The beautiful little Anglican Church of Saint Augustine, in the Village of East Farnham, will continue to hold weekly services because its members believe in the validity of its place in the world.

At the largest Vestry meeting seen for several years, the members voted unanimously that they would do most of the work in installing a new oil furnace and in painting, cleaning and preparing The Lord's House for the Holy Eucharistic Services on Sundays.

Far from being useless, by modern trends towards centralization and bigness, the people of East Farnham, with determination, foresight and devotion, intend to make Saint Augustine's Church an active centre for Christian Work and Worship.

The marriage took place on Saturday, Sept. 5 in St. James The Apostle Anglican Church, Montreal, Que., Rev. Canon H. C. Hilchey officiating of Penelope Louise Holland, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Holland, Montreal, Que., and Mr. David Logie Mitchell, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Mitchell, Lennoxville, Que.

The bride was attended by a matron of honour, Mrs. Alberta Moricz-de-Tesco, and Mr. Jan Moricz-de-Tesco was the best man. Both are of New York City.

The reception was held at the Ritz-Carlton Hotel and the honeymoon is being spent in Europe and Britain.
