THE CUBAN REVOLT GROWS.

Insurgents Ready to Take the Offensive.

BLOW UP BRIDGES—OUTLOOK IS MORE SERIOUS.

Havana, Sept. 8.—(Special.)— Two bridges on the Western Railway, between Pinar Del Rio and San Luis, south of that city, were blown up with dynamite yesterday morning. A force of men sent to repair the bridges which were built of concrete and steel, were stopped by a body of rebels numbering at least five hundred men.

General Avalos, commander of the Government forces in the province of Pinar del Rio, has telegraphed to the Havana authorities, asking them to send three rapid fire guns to the scene of the bridge destruction on the Western Railway in order to enable him to protect the workmen sent to rebuild the bridges. With proper protection the railway company officials think they can repair the bridges in five days. Guerra's force, however, is becoming increasingly numerous in that part of the country. The people there do not think that the Government can suppress the insurrection.

New York, Sept. 8.—A cable despatch to the Herald from Havana, Cuba, says: Colonel Pino Guerra, leader of the insurgent forces in Pinar del Rio province, announced Thursday that he was ready to begin an offensive campaign against the Government. To a correspondent Colonel Guerra said: "You can tell the people North that I am now going to take the offensive. If I have not done so already, it is because I had to perfect the organization and attend to matters which appeared to me of first importance. I shall not attempt to hold towns or fortify a position in the hills. I shall continue to move rapidly everywhere."

"Has the Government made any proposals of peace?" was asked.

"Officially none," replied Guerra. "A committee came to see me two days ago, and another of veterans Thursday. Many veterans are awaiting further movements. Unless we obtain an honorable peace they will join us. I have made no proposition to the Government. I have no authority to name conditions of peace. I am simply a soldier obeying the orders of the central committee, which is merely a revolutionary body, without taking the form of a government. I obey their directions and recognize their authority. Perhaps you would like to know who is my candidate for president. I have none. If Palma should be elected by the people I would be the first to declare my allegiance. I will support any man elected. If the American people had such a government as exists here they would not let it remain in power five days."

The insurgent forces commanded by Pino Guerra are moving nearer to the city of Pinar del Rio. General Menocal, it is said, will probably visit Guerra personally and confer with him regarding peace terms.

ROME MAY BREAK WITH SPAIN.

Pope Likely to Recall Madrid Nuncio.

PROPOSED ASSOCIATION'S LAW PROMISES TROUBLE—ROME MAY ANTICIPATE.

Madrid, Sept. 8.—Spain has submitted to the Vatican the names of individuals whom it considers suitable for appointment to the Spanish embassy, but has received no reply. It is rumored that the Vatican will withdraw Mgr. Rinaldini, the papal nuncio at Madrid. It is also reported that the concordat between Spain and the Vatican may be repudiated by the Vatican in advance of the completion of the law on religious associations.

As soon as the Spanish Parliament assembles the Government intends to introduce a bill making all religious orders amenable to the law which controls industrial corporations. It will also introduce a bill providing that members of orders recently expelled from France shall not be allowed to settle in Spain unless they become Spanish citizens. The Vatican is strongly opposed to these measures, but members of the Spanish Cabinet declared recently that they would be carried through regardless of that fact.

Lieut. G. C. Sweet of the Navy, has been engaged on this work for a year or more, having been sent to the Asiatic station by the bureau of equipment to install wireless apparatus on the ships of the Far Eastern fleet.

ATTACKED SLEEPING MAN WITH KNIFE.

Assailant Had Been Subject of Many Jokes.

AFTER INFLICTING NINE WOUNDS WOULD-BE MURDERER FLED, BUT WAS CAPTURED.

Vancouver, B.C., Sept. 8.—(Special.)—Goaded to madness by continued teasing, William McLaren, section worker on Canadian Pacific, near Ashcroft, attempted to murder Foreman Albert Dow, stabbing him nine times with a pocket knife.

McLaren is a simple sort of fellow, and Dow had made him the subject of many practical jokes. He brooded over his humiliation and misery until finally when he found him asleep in bed he threw himself upon Dow, and before the latter was thoroughly awake, inflicted nine gashes. One stab in temple come dangerously near right eye. Four other gashes were made on head, and rest are in arms.

The would-be murderer fled to the hills after stabbing, but was easily captured.

LORD GREY UNWELL.

COLD COMPELS HIM TO GIVE UP HIS TRIP TO ROSSLAND.

Nelson Sept. 8.—His Excellency the Governor-General is suffering from the effects of a feverish cold, and under a physician's advice reluctantly cancelled his intended visit to Rossland, arranged for to-day. Earl Grey has, under doctor's orders, remained quietly resting all day, and attended only to some pressing correspondence. While sorry to cancel his visit to the Boundary and Rossland, His Excellency is enjoying his restful stay in this city. He will remain here to-day, and on Sunday will take a trip up Kootenay Lake as far as Lardo on the C. P.R. new river steamer Kuskanook. He will leave for the coast on the regular C. P.R. train at 7.15 on Sunday evening. The younger members of the vice-regal party have made the most of their stay here, and have gone in for trout fishing and launch trips, and to the local fruit ranches. To-day they go down to Bonnington Falls, 111 miles from here, and spend the day trout fishing and picnicing. They were entertained at a private dance last evening in the armory here.

WILL RECEIVE MEDAL.

(Ottawa Journal.)

City Clerk Henderson has received a bronze medal from the Royal Canadian Humane Society to be presented to thirteen-year-old Charles Fleming, of this city, for a daring rescue from drowning of Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Pedley, of Montreal.

The youthful hero is a son of Mr. S. H. Fleming, of Chapel street, and when the rescue was made was holidaying at Brockville. The medal will be presented at next month's meeting of the local Humane Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Pedley were in a canoe near a Brockville wharf when the swell from a passing steamer overturned the frail craft. Both were helpless in the water and young Fleming, who was on the wharf, immediately jumped into the water and swam to their aid. He aided Mr. Pedley to straddle the overturned canoe and then dove for Mrs. Pedley, who was sinking. He helped her to the surface and supported her until aid arrived.

ECHOES OF THE EXHIBITION.

Gate And Grand Stand Receipts Reach 1904 Mark.

DOMINION FAIR IN PROSPECT FOR NEXT YEAR—TWO RACING EVENTS CANCELLED YESTERDAY.

Owing to the rain yesterday and consequently the very bad condition of the track the two trotting events were cancelled.

The handicap hurdle race yesterday afternoon, with three starters, was a keen contest between "Marston Moor" and "Greenfield," the former winning by a head. It was a mile and one half heat. The hurdle was cleared in good style the first time but thrown down in the second round.

The musical act by the eight Vassar girls was the most popular item of the specialty programme. Yesterday afternoon they were generously applauded twice. Their saxaphone, trombone and cornet playing brought forth much applause. Theirs was a refined and highly entertaining contribution to the programme.

Dominion Exhibition next year. This is the prospect. It will be a big undertaking, but the success attending the Sherbrooke Fair management for years past is a strong assurance that, after these years of experience, it is well qualified to carry through successfully the larger enterprise of a great Dominion Fair.

The need of a larger grand stand was again demonstrated this year. On Wednesday a stand of nearly double capacity could have been filled. The reconstruction of the grand stand would be an expensive operation but seems justified by the inadequacy of the present accommodations on the big days of the fair.

The total gate and grand stand receipts for the fair of 1904 created a record up to that time. Last year these receipts fell behind about $1900. It is learned this morning that this year's total receipts are likely to exceed by a small amount the record of 1904. The gate receipts this year have not been quite as large owing to the falling off yesterday, but the grand stand receipts have more than made up the falling off at the main gate.

Troop "G," U. S. Cavalry, marched out of the city this morning on their return to the States. They will appear at the Barton fair. The musical drill and rough riding acts of this troop have proven one of the most attractive features of the entertainment programme this year. The conduct of the troopers themselves has been unexceptional. At the conclusion of their drill Thursday they were given three rousing cheers by the 53rd Regimental Band, which furnished the music for their drill.

Though the Street Railway Company has not been able to handle all who were disposed to patronize the cars yet they have transported an almost incredible number of people. On Wednesday of 1905 over 26,000 fares were taken on the street cars. Wednesday of this year was a still bigger day. It is learned on good authority that nearly 30,000 fares were received on the street railway cars on that day. Though the conductors were very thorough in their difficult task of collecting fares they must have missed a few hundred during the rush hours. The cabmen were kept very busy providing for those, who preferred not to join the rush to the street cars.

The programme of specialties provided by the Association this year was the best ever offered at Sherbrooke fair. The only criticism to offer is on the fact that the execution of the programme was at times allowed to drag. This was most noticeable at the night performance. The fire works are the grand feature of the night programme. As probably ninety per cent. of those in attendance have witnessed the other specialty acts in the afternoon, it would be well for the management to consider another year the advisability of running these items off with more speed, and to avoid between act delays, so that the fire works may be brought on by a quarter of ten at the latest. Otherwise many of those leaving on the trains miss this most interesting part of the programme. This point is worthy of consideration.

THE DOMINION TOBACCO CO. whose headquarters are in Montreal, had an exhibit in the Main Building, which was recognized by the many thousands to be second to none of any exhibit in the building. Much time was spent in displaying the different grades of makufacture. The credit of this exhibit was due to Billie Herring, the popular representative of the Company in the Eastern Townships. The Company manufacture many brands of tobacco, but they made a specialty of three, "Sunny Jim," "Red Cloud," and "Old Tom." These brands were represented in character and certainly they acted their part well. The Dominion Tobacco Co. are the largest manufacturers of tobacco in the Dominion, and their business is increasing so that they are rapidly coming to the forefront of tobacco manufacturers in the Dominion. They give employment to a large number of hands and the greatest care is exercised in the selection of the leaf that they put into their many brands. The Company have placed on the market a cigarette known as "Sweet Violet." It has met with great success and is rapidly coming to the front as one of the most popular cigarettes now being used by smokers.

A three days' polo tournament opened at St. Lambert, Wednesday. Toronto defeated Kingston the first game 7 to 1; 2nd game Calgary beat Montreal 14 goals to 1.

PICKPOCKET MADE A BIG HAUL.

Took $477 From Passenger Near Richmond.

W. W. WILSON, OF FITCH BAY, THE VICTIM — THIEF ESCAPED.

Richmond, Sept. 8.—(Special)—Yesterday on the arrival of the morning train from Sherbrooke a passenger by the name of W. W. Wilson, of Fitch Bay, Que., found that he had been robbed of a roll of bills which contained $477. Mr. Wilson was on his way from home to Richmond to purchase some cattle, and at Sherbrooke he did not have time to purchase a ticket and when paying the conductor his fare he pulled out this roll and it was evidently seen by some light-fingered artist who in the jam coming out of the car here relieved him of it. Mr. Wilson was not aware of his loss until about 15 minutes after the train had left the station. He at once notified by telegraph the conductor to be on the look-out for it but word was received later from the conductor that no trace of the money had been found. The town authorities were also notified but as yet have not been able to locate it.

CITIZEN EXCITED AT SIGHT OF STARS AND STRIPES AT FAIR —SCURRILOUS LETTERS.

Toronto, September 8.—There was a flag incident on the exhibition grounds Wednesday morning. It was American Day and in honor of visitors from across the line the flag of the republic was run up on the pole of the administration building. While it was being hoisted an excited and ultra-loyalist individual attempted to prevent the flag going up. He was unsuccessful, of course, but he afterwards went to the management with a complaint.

Large delegations from Buffalo and other border cities were on the grounds Tuesday.

During Wednesday night one of the glass fish tanks burst in the natural history building and there was a small flood there.

It has leaked out that a number of anonymous letters and postcards were sent from Canada to Lord Dundonald and nearly all the principal officers of the Second Life Guards, to the effect that the band was not wanted in Canada. A number of these letters were of the most insulting character.

Miss Bradford and Miss Mabel Bradford, of Granby, are spending the week in Lennoxville, the guests of Mrs. S. A. Johnston.

JUDGE McCORKILL.

(Wayside Warbler in the News.)

With the biographical details of the life of the Hon. J. C. McCorkill; with his professional life and his political career, I have not the time now, perhaps, would it be seemly for me, at the moment to write? But as a lay preacher of unrecognized merit and classification, it may be within the limits of my call to draw the attention of our young men to a career which has not been without its painful vicissitudes and its arduous struggles. If I was to point out the means by which he has won success, the paramount one would be his constant hard work. And, of course, while work accomplishes much, there must be capacity to make it effective and a proper ambition to give it an object. Industry, capacity and ambition are what raises a man above his fellows. There must be a union of the three, with opportunity, to win popular success. It is now about twenty years since, as a young man, Judge McCorkill began his political career in the Conservative stronghold of Missisquoi, by contesting the seat for the local legislation on the Liberal side. And here it may be said, that, prior to that local fight, he had been a member of the once strong Young Men's Reform Club of Montreal, founded by the late Honorables, Messrs. Huntington and Holton. Of the large number of young men associated with him in that club many have since attained distinction and honors, whilst many others had not the stamina requisite to stand by a living cause went over to the enemy, and have never since been heard of. It does not seem to be generally profitable to change from the Liberal to the Conservative side, but the old guard among Liberals sometimes claim that to the Conservative recruit, or the old-time wavering Liberal, gets the best plums in the market.

Mr. McCorkill was not the kind which changed because his side happened to be running a losing race. He fought on. In his first essay to enter public life he was thrice defeated and then victory came. Defeat disheartens the weak man. To the strong it is an incentive to strive for success. In the ten or eleven years which elapsed before success came, there was no sulking or waiting upon Providence. It is hard for young ambition to indulge restraint and patience. It was a time which he devoted to party work, which aided personal growth, and party acknowledgement, and it may be said, because it is admitted by his party friends, that it was his personal attention to party organization which brought about a change in a county theretofore almost uninterruptedly Conservative. Mr. McCorkill would probably admit to-day, that the best thing which happened to him in his political life, bitter as it seemed at the time, was his defeat in 1886. To begin with it was a bad era for the entrance of a young man upon political life. With early success there would have been less inducement for the hard work and study which counts, and which, in the end, made him a member of both branches of the legislature, a representative at different times, of two different counties in the lower House, and a Cabinet Minister, and now a Judge of the Superior Court. It is the rounding up of a career which, among other things, should teach to the ambitious young man the old lesson—"learn to labor and to wait"—though to work and patience there must be added a proper ambition and sufficient discernment to grasp opportunity when it is within reach.

It is a hard lesson in a day which is characterized, more or less correctly, as the day of young men. When, 11 years ago, it was urged against Mr. McCorkill that he was too young, it was said by that rural philosopher, the late Humphrey Chadburn, that he would be older before he was elected. —which prophecy was true both ways.

HEARST FOR "AMERICANISM."

HIS PROGRAMME IS NOT SOCIALISM, RADICALISM OR EXTREMES OF ANY KIND.

Syracuse, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Wm Randolph Hearst was guest of local trades' assembly Tuesday. He was escorted with a band and delegations of labor unions to the Alhambra, where he addressed an immense throng. He was given a hearty reception, and his speech was warmly applauded.

Mr. Hearst spoke in part as follows:—"My programme is not socialism, or radicalism, or extremes of any kind. I call it Americanism, and, to my mind, it is simply a plan to put into practical operation the American theory of government. I believe in action rather than words. Let public servants promise only what can be actually performed, and then positively perform what they have promised. I believe in the impartial enforcement of the laws that exist. The rich and powerful thief is as much a criminal as is the weak and insignificant law breaker.

"I believe in independence among patriotic citizens, irrespective of party prejudice. Let citizens remember that parties are managed by machines; that machines are manipulated by bosses that bosses are bought and privileges purchased, and the traffic is in the people's properties and the people's liberties. I do not believe in private ownership of public property. I believe in public ownership of public utilities. I believe in the retention by the people of the public franchises. But the first qualification for public ownership is honesty in office and independence in voting.

I believe in protection for American labor. But I believe American labor should be protected against the high protectionists, who use the protective tariff to build up monopolies, and use those monopolies to increase the cost of living and to control the demand for labor and the rate of wages."

RRAVED FIRE FOR CHILDREN.

ST. JOHN MOTHER SUCCEEDED IN SAVING ALL — BADLY BURNED.

St. John, N.B., Sept. 8.—Sinclair McKiel's bakery was burned early on Wednesday morning, and Mrs. McKiel and four children narrowly escaped being burned to death. Mrs. McKiel twice tried to pierce the smoke and flames before she was successful in reaching the air with her children, and all were badly burned about the hands and face. The bakery and stables were destroyed and also Cortell's stables next door. The loss will amount to $5,000.

NEW HAMBURG LINERS TO BE BUILT.

COMPANY TO INCREASE CAPITAL BY $5,000,000 TO BUILD STEAMSHIPS.

Hamburg, Sept. 8.—The Hamburg-American Steamship Company Wednesday announced a plan to issue $5,000,000 new capital, making a capital of $30,000,000. The official statement given out explains that the increase is necessary to build new steamships and says the Amerika and the Kaiserin Auguste Victoria have hitherto been unable to take more than half the passengers asking for accommodation. Hence the company intends to build others of the same type and establish a regular weekly service to New York of that class of vessels. Additional tonnage is also required for the lines from New York to the West Indies, Hamburg to the West Indies, and Hamburg to La Plata.

The Twenty-Second Annual Over.

Sherbrooke Fair is past and gone for another year and once more a signal success has been registered. By right of merit alone Canada's Great Eastern Exhibition has won a place in the front rank of fall fairs and no sign is present that the distinction will be lost. As the late President McKinley remarked on a memorable occasion, "Expositions are the time-keepers of progress." Thus in the same sense that clocks have a use, exhibitions have a use. They serve the purpose of marking progress. Being located at the center of the Eastern Townships Sherbrooke Exhibition fills this office for a numerous and intelligent population. Given capable management so that the Exhibition will continue the thing of real interest that it now is, there remains no doubt that the people of the Townships and beyond will continue and gladly continue to furnish the sinews from year to year. It may be opportunely borne in mind at this time that hopes have been entertained of securing the Dominion Exhibition for Sherbrooke next September. No time should be lost in taking all steps that will ensure as far as possible this desirable end being brought about.

Not a Square Deal.

Some twenty regularly licensed places were dealing out liquor this week to all who wanted it and could pay. Considering the thousands of outsiders present, all on pleasure bent, it was inevitable that some would get drunk and many did get drunk. Here and there, for cause not especially abnormal, speaking from the irresponsible drunk's point of view, some unfortunate would be arrested and driven through the laughing, hooting crowd to Police Station in the open patrol. The experience must have been sobering. For this reason it was all the more humiliating. It is a fine sense of even justice which permits the most seductive temptations to drink to be put in a man's path, then when he falls inflicts on him this humiliation, the sting of which may never leave him. Deserved, some will say, yet it is not deserved. For a man cursed with a craving for liquor it is natural for him to drink when every opportunity is given him, and when he gets drunk he is not responsible. He is no more responsible than an insane man is, and he should be given the same care and protection, not held up to the jeers and ribaldry of a howling crowd. In the modern Christlike sense the object of punishment is reform and reform is made ten times more difficult after such an experience. It may not be contended that a disorderly drunk should not be taken care of. He should be the same as an insane person should be. But let us not allow the reproach to continue of seeing them carted like dogs in the open patrol. This is an abomination, a relic of medieval forms of punishment, and should be replaced by a closed wagon which would serve the purpose quite as well and be free from this unfair feature.

An Estimate of Judge McCorkill

Wayside Warbler in the St. Johns News contributes to his paper this week an able estimate of the career of Judge McCorkill and from one incident, perhaps it should be said a series of incidents, in his career points a pithy moral for young men everywhere. Mr. McCorkill was thrice defeated before he was finally elected to the Legislature ten years ago. He is said to account these seeming misfortunes and setbacks as fortunate circumstances in reality. It was probably the truth in his case and would be true in the case of other men of similar mould. He had a grim tenacity of purpose and these defeats were allowed to dishearten him not at all but acted as spurs to yet greater effort. In his case this effort took not the form of the small politicians devious methods to gain an entrance into public life by fair means or foul but he applied himself earnestly to a study of politics and political conditions in his county and province, believing, it may be assumed, that the man who knew, would be the man his county would want to represent it in the long run. So it proved at any rate and so it will ever prove in the case of men who join to a laudable ambition the capacity to learn and a willingness to study. Cultivated ability in the arts of public life gravitates naturally to the forum. Individuals of no aptitude as public men may get there somehow, and often do, but their tarrying is either brief or inconspicuous and sometimes both. The greatest men in the public life of all ages have been profound students of political history and political science, which is the chiefest reason why they have risen to greatness. There is a dearth in this country of men of Judge McCorkill's capacity and intellectual attainments. Wherever men of his capacity and similar attainments are to be found they will be wanted in the councils of the nation. Wayside Warbler impresses on the youth of the Townships the necessity of preparation, at the sacrifice if necessary of some of those pleasures and pastimes in which the leisure hours of the young are commonly spent. He would have them remember that

"The heights by great men reached and kept
Were not attained by sudden flight,
But they, while their companions slept
Were toiling upwards in the night."

The Exodus of the English.

(Montreal Witness.)

Our veteran correspondent, Mr. Jas. Findlay, says that the exodus of the English from Quebec is the result of our fathers not having voted for representation by population, and that there is now no remedy for it. If we gather the meaning, it is that if the united provinces of Canada had remained a unit and if representation had been distributed in proportion to population, the English would have had the upper hand and would in some way have been able so to arrange things that the movement of population would not have taken place. It is not clear how this would have followed. The very struggle referred to implies that Canada was not then a unit. Two provinces had indeed been united, but the marriage was not one of mutual attraction, and had been followed only by quarrelling. The Upper Canadians could see nothing but wickedness in the refusal of their demand for representation in parliament in proportion to their numbers, while the Lower Canadians, who had for a time been under-represented in the days when they were in the majority, saw no fairness in changing the rule just because Upper Canada, or as it was then called, Canada West, had now come to have the majority. The solution that was reached was almost inevitable, namely, to federate the two provinces in a way that would give each to a considerable extent the management of its own affairs.

Nor are we sure that Mr. Findlay is right in saying that there is now nothing for it but to accept what he considers the result of this arrangement, namely, the monopolization of the province by the French. We prefer to believe that the worst will soon be over, and that as the west fills up there will be a back flow which will produce a much more fraternal condition of things than is implied in these old recriminations. There was a time when Ontario had filled up and before the Northwest was opened, when business houses in Montreal were thronged with young men from Ontario, who were the very life of business here. The opening of the west changed all that, but there will ever be ebbs as well as flows. It is far better to live in hope than die in despair. The "Canada" yesterday said, speaking of the exodus of English Protestants from this province, as referred to at the education meetings: "It is with the greatest pleasure that we join our own entreaties with those that come to our friends from their natural advisers. We wish our English Protestant fellow-citizens to remain with us, and that wish is not one of mere courtesy. It is also in our interest to wish it." The writer goes on to ask why should the English leave Quebec, where they find a field for their activity and where their views, customs and religion are respected, and concludes: "Since we agree so well and have everything to gain by remaining together in the same conditions (of mutual respect and friendly competition) why go to new parts and run risks that can be avoided at home?" The spirit of the writer is kindly and his advice is good. We commend his words of wisdom to our readers who are concerned.

Fought the Whole Class.

Many a year ago a "plebe" at the Naval academy astonished an upper class man by going to him and announcing, "See here, I don't like the way my class is being treated." The upper class man was nearly surprised out of his wits, but, recovering from his stupor (and only one who knows the full meaning of "rate" among the midshipmen can have a correct appreciation of what that announcement from a "plebe" to an upper class man carried), the "rating" demanded, "Midshipman, do you want to fight?" "That's what I am looking for." The fight was arranged and the "plebe" whipped his man, says the New York Herald. Then another youngster was supplied, and he went the way of the first, and so on until a half dozen had been discomfited. Sometimes several fights would follow in succession, when the "plebe" would say: "Gentlemen, I am tired now. I'll see you again another day." The academy authorities found out what was in progress and sent for the "plebe," and then, before official authority, he announced, "I can whip the whole class." It turned out that the "plebe" had been a prize fighter before entering the academy.

KNOWLTON.

Sept. 8.—Dr. J. W. Bonnier, of Montreal, assistant Inspector of the Board of Health of the Province of Quebec, took samples of the water from the reservoir and from the river to make an examination of them at his laboratory.

All who went to the Sherbrooke fair Wednesday were well pleased with their day. The C.P.R. gave a good train of luxurious and commodious cars, and although these were well filled, all were accommodated, and the beautiful day and good show compensated for the unavoidable delay of the excursion and all returned in safety though at a late hour.

The owners of good horses and other stock are getting their best specimens in order for the Brome County Fair next week. We have seen a number of fine horses on the street being carefully exercised, with their coats shining. The members of the Horticultural Society are carefully guarding their finest blossoms and best vegetables and apples to vie with each other for the various prizes offered.

The pond is filling gradually and the water improving in the reservoir. For a few days it was rather fishy. But few drink the water from the mains, and it is funny to see different ones from different directions starting out with pails of all sizes, and asking permission "to get a little drinking water" from those fortunate by having a well or spring in good order.

Mrs. F. A. Knowlton has returned from a trip to Ayer's Cliff, North Hatley and Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Pettes have gone to spend a few days in Montreal.

The Boat House Club has closed for the season the building used for bathing, recreation and dancing during July and August. It has been well patronized during the season and many have paid fees of membership so entitling them to the privileges of the Club House.

Mrs. Costie, who has been at the Sanitarium for the past six weeks, has returned to her home in Cambridge, near Boston, much benefitted by the treatment received.

Mr. Marchecourte and family have returned to the States, having found barbering and fruit-selling not so remunerative as he desired here.

Recent arrivals: Mr. George Armitage and Mr. White, of Sherbrooke, to adjust the claim of Mr. M. M. Knowlton, whose store and buildings were burned; Miss Louise Miller, from Clarenceville, Que., to teach in the Knowlton Academy; Mr. and Mrs. Baker, manager of Sovereign Bank of Frelighsburg, to spend Labor Day; Miss Pinco at Mr. Bullard's from Newport, Vt., for a few weeks rest; Mrs. A. Sheppard and Miss Grace Blinn, from Frelighsburg, visiting at Miss Smith's and Mrs. Bedee's.

Mr. Hunter, of Brome, father of Mrs. Carmichael, died at his home on Monday afternoon. Mrs. Carmichael has for several weeks driven out to be with her father, very often nursing him for several nights each week.

KNOWLTON ACADEMY.

A fund has been started ($100) for a scholarship offered to those intending to attend college after leaving the Academy, to be divided as follows: $50 to first in A.A. class; must have attained 75 per cent. marks; $25 to second in 3rd grade Academy; must have attained 70 per cent. marks; $12.50 to third in 3rd grade Academy; must have attained 66 per cent. marks; $12.50 to highest aggregate made in 1st grade Academy; must have attained over 1000 marks.

The following were recipients of prizes presented at the opening of the Academy this week, based on last year's work: E. T. Bank medal, Walter Macfarlane (not presented owing to his absence); H. Acad., Samuel Baxter medal, Miss Florence Smith; Chas. Adams Jackson medal, Austin Wilson; book prizes for punctuality and regular attendance—Lena Greene, Henry Bancroft, Hazel Stone, George Dryburgh, Winnie Willson, Harold Dryburgh, Pearl Duboyce, Glen Copeland. Prize by Mr. Fleury, to Minnie Benoit. The rest of prizes for the French Department had not arrived, but will be presented in a few days. For highest standing in their grades: Grade II., Academy, Austin Wilson; I., Academy, Alice England; III., Model, Gordon Bartlett; II., Model—Hazel Stone. L. Arthur Hawkins a prize for highest aggregate marks.

A new prize is offered by Judge Lynch for the ensuing year on an essay written by any pupil in the school on an historical topic. Mr. Fleury has offered the same prize as last year in the French Department.

Mr. Fuller will hold the same connection with the Academy—as in the past three years, and his work and the interest taken by the scholars in his teaching surely is manifest by the appearance of the gardens at the rear of the Academy building.

PROUD OF ITS PARENTAGE.

A Canadian Club Which Can Compete With British Goods.

When the Ottawa Free Press was under the management of the former proprietor, a young man who had ideas, the Canadian woollen men asked for higher protection. The editor at the time told the woollen men that their failure was caused by the tremendous profits exacted by the middlemen and by their allowing their best product to be sold as imported British tweeds and serges. "Blunoz" serge was pointed out as an example of what might be done. It was the first serge which proudly proclaimed its Canadian parentage. Alive to business the Semi-ready Company agreed to take every yard of Blunoz worsted serge which the woollen mills could produce. They have a monopoly of the best serge made in Canada, and they are putting this famous cloth in their $20 blue and black serge worsted suits.

The additions and alterations of partitions and other improvements which Mr. W. G. Brown is rapidly pushing to completion in his newly-acquired "Hub Block," are making all the differences in that building between a large store with good light and a small one which he has utilized before this date. Other improvements will, later on, be undertaken with a view to making that block good enough and large enough for the business corner on which it is located.

Three Thousand Dollars Canadian Piano

A Magnificent Gold-laid Piano Purchased by the Hon. S. N. Parent, ex-Premier of Quebec---Where Canadian Workmanship Leads the Continent.

Amid the keenest competition of leading piano manufacturers of the United States and Canada, the order was given the old firm of Heintzman & Company of Toronto a few weeks since, by the Hon. S. N. Parent, ex-Premier of Quebec, and now Chairman of the Trancontinental Railway Commisson, for a magnificent parlor grand piano. The style is that of Louis XV. The entire piano is finished in gold; the body of the piano is mat finish, and the carvings and mouldings beautifully burnished. Perhaps more delicate workmanship is not called for in the making of any any piano than in an instrument of this character.

In not a few respects there is found in the artistic case of this piano the peculiar art finish that is familiar to the rococo period. Throughout the lines and scro ls are all of the most artistic character, and there is something specially graceful in every turn, however one views the instrument, whether as a whole, the artistically finished legs, or tne pedal lyre, all emblematic of the period of Louis XV, which the instrument represents.

Heintzman & Company, this is the old firm who have been doing busines in Canada now for over fifty years—naturally feel delighted in having secured the order for this special and magntficent piano, one that in price costs $3,000. They feel like congratulating themselves all the more in the knowledge that the order secured after the closest investigation had been made by the purchaser, and an opportunity given to examine and study not only the pianos made in Canada, but those that stand first the United States.

NATURE'S JOKE IN COAL.

(New York World.)

While anthracite coal was discovered in Pennsylvania in 1770, its record in actual trade dates from 1804. So the American product is barely past its first century of utility. In the beginning it was rather a drug on the market. People did not know how to burn it. The proper grates were not ready. As late as 1833 it was difficult to place the new fuel as plentiful as it could be mined.

With anthracite once established consumption increased by bounds. Of an output of 62,590,000 tons in 1905, there was sold 58,000,000 tons. Instead of studying how to get the coal burned, men have been figuring for years how long the supply would last. The latest geological estimate gave the mines a life of a hundred years more.

And now comes nature with another of her little jokes. Freshly discovered anthracite fields in the Heckscherville valley in Pennsylvania, add millions of tons to the available supply.

The use of gas for fuel has greatly increased within a quarter of a century. The consumption of soft coal has been doubling every decade. Both of these circumstances act for the saving of hard coal. In addition there have been wonderful growths in the field of applied electricity, and there is in present evidence an increasing return to the use of water power—of nature's "white coal." Man has anticipated, perhaps he will make unnecessary, the exhaustion of the mines.

At any rate the situation is easy and the geologists have another guess.

STREET RAILWAY EMPLOYEES STOP CARS AND SMASH THEM UP.

Tokio, September 7.—The trouble between the street car companies and their employees resulted last night in a demonstration that degenerated into incipient rioting in several districts. Cars were stopped by mobs throughout the city, and five of them were smashed to bits. Several persons were seriously injured. Further agitation is expected.

DEATHS REPORTED

MRS. A. W. BROWN, BOYNTON.

Boynton, Sept. 8. — (Special)—The community was shocked Tuesday, Aug. 21st, when it was learned that Mrs. A. W. Brown had been found dead by her husband in the dining room of their home here, as he came in about noon for his dinner. She had been alone in the house since ten o'clock when Mr. Brown went into the garden to work, leaving her in the house as he supposed as well as usual, as she had made no complaints. Dr. Whitcher was hastily summoned who made a thorough examination of the body and pronounced death due to apoplexy.

Mrs. Brown had been able to attend to her home duties that morning and prepared her dinner for cooking. Mrs. Brown (or Aunt Lizzie) as she was familiarly called) was a worthy lady in every sense of the word, one of the best of neighbors and kindest of friends.

A short funeral service was held here in the Church by Rev. C. Pedley, of Ayer's Cliff. The remains were taken by her husband to her old home, Rockland, Me., for burial. She leaves a husband, three sons, a daughter, also, a sister and brother in California, and a sister in British Columbia. She was 55 years old.

BUTTER

MARKET FIRM AT THE ADVANCE.

Montreal, Sept. 8.

The position of the butter market appears to be a legitimately strong one, at ½c to ¾c advance on last week's prices. For fresh receipts of choice Eastern Townships creamery 24c has been paid for several round lots on this market, but kept lots of finest in cold storage have brought less money and in the case of undergrades considerably less has been paid. These qualities, however, are not taken for export, but are used by the poorer class of local consumers and forcers. The finest lots of held creamery have brought from 23½c to 23¾c whilst good to fine grades have been dealt in at 22c to 22½c and 23c. Quite a lot of creamery has been shipped from here to Ontario points. About 700 pkgs. of Manitoba creamery was offered on this market a day or two ago at 22½c laid down here, but as 300 pkgs of it had a Western flavor it was not placed. There is a fair export demand for Manitoba dairy some holders asking 18c to 18½c, but a car was offered at 17½c without finding a buyer. Of course smaller lots bring more money. Western is quoted at 18½c to 19c in round lots. Some holders asking 19½c. Advices from Manitoba state that a Montreal buyer is paying 16½c f.o.b. Winnipeg for dairy butter which is equal to 18½c laid down here.

CHEESE

STEADY AT THE DECLINE.

Montreal, Sept. 8.

There is a little better inquiry over the cable this morning for both white and colored, and a buyer admitted that he bid 12½c for a lot of 500 boxes of Western colored but that he could not get them under 13c. At the same time we have sales reported to us of Western, half white and half colored at 12½c and finest Townships at 12½c. Receipts so far this week have fallen off considerably which would seem to confirm the reports of a greatly reduced make. The shipments will also show quite a reduction this week. The concensus of opinion in the trade is that we shall not see much lower prices if any for the coveted September cheese. Quebec goods have sold at 12½c to 12¾c.

THE BUTTER TRADE.

STRONG AND SOMEWHAT EXCITED AT COUNTRY POINTS.

Montreal, Sept. 8.

The strong tone of the English market as cabled by our London correspondent of late, appears to have stimulated the market here, and induced a much better export demand especially for the finest grades, which have advanced ½c per lb. transactions being reported at 24c in round lots. As mentioned by us a week ago, the imports into Great Britain aave recently shown a large decrease owing to the falling off in the supplies from the Antipodes and Russia. Consequently there is more demand for Canadian butter and prices have advanced 2s to 4s per cwt. in the various markets in Great Britain. Orders for English account have been filled recently for finest Eastern Townships creamery at 12s to 115 c.i.f.— The outlook at the moment certainly favors a strong market between now and the commencement of the new season for the Australia and New Zealand products which it is feared will be late. The range of creamery butter on this market is from 22½c to 24c for good to finest grades. There has been some active buying at country points, where excitement has been quite noticeable. American butter is still in demand in England, the shipments from New York to Liverpool and London last week being 18,803 pkgs creamery firsts which were purchased at 22c to 22½c and seconds at 20c to 21c, whilst renovated sold to exporters at 19½c to 20½c.

MISCELLANEOUS COUNTRY PRODUCE

BEANS—There has been some further sales of several cars of new crop beans three pound pickers made this week at $1.37 on track Montreal for September shipment. Some of the shippers in the primary markets are not quoting while others are asking up to $1.39 on track Montreal.

TALLOW—There is a good demand for tallow, for the local trade, but prices are unchanged. Rough tallow is quoted at 2½c to 3½c per pound as to quality. Kidney suet 6c. Domestic rendered 5½c. Export tallow 6c.

HOPS—The market is quiet and prices are without quotable change, as noted below are purely nominal at 12c to 14c for medium grades and 15c to 17c for the better grades.

MAPLE PRODUCTS—The demand for maple products is exceedingly dull. Sales in a jobbing way at 55c to 65c per small tin. Syrup in wood is selling at 6½c to 7c per pound. There is a fair demand for sugar.

HONEY—There has been a fairly good demand for honey during the past few days, prices being fully maintained. Comb honey is commanding 12½c to 13½c per lb. White clover 10c to 10½c. Buckwheat 8c to 9c.

ASHES—The market is unchanged but steady for first pots, owing to the light supply, business is limited. Pearls and seconds are very quiet, with prices purely nominal We quote the following prices: Pearls $6.50 to $6.60, first pots, $5.40 to $5.50, seconds $4.50 to $4.65 per 100 lbs.

DRESSED HOGS.

Montreal, Sept. 8.

The receipts of live hogs for the past week were 5,320 head against 4,806 head a week ago.

The market has shown a weaker feeling during the past week. The supplies of live hogs were sufficient and buyers were indifferent. Choice stock sold at $7.00 per hundred pounds weighed off cars. The easier feeling in live hogs has caused the prices of dressed hogs to drop about 25c per hundred pounds from our outside quotations of a week ago sales this week being made at $10.00 per hundred pounds.

JOHN R. KIRKPATRICK.

NATIVE OF FRELIGHSBURG, QUE., DEMOCRATIC REPRESENTATIVE.

The Newport, Vt. Express and Standard says:

"Newport will send a Democratic representative this year in the person of John R. Kirkpatrick. This is the third time in the history of the town when such is the case. The first time was in 1860, when Lucius Robinson was chosen; the second time was in 1892, when C. O. Miller was elected.

"With apparently no personal effort, Kirkpatrick pulled a large number of votes outside the Democratic party.

"John R. Kirkpatrick was born in the village of Frelighsburg, Que., on June 12, 1863. His father was Andrew Kirkpatrick, a native of Aberdeen, Scotland, who came to Canada in 1844. At an early age, John R. Kirkpatrick began work for the South Eastern Railroad, and continued in the employ of the company until it was absorbed by the Canadian Pacific system. He remained with the Canadian Pacific during the rest of his railroad experience; was appointed station agent at Newport in 1892, and held that position until 1902, when he resigned to enter into the mercantile trade with his brother-in-law, George L. Macdiarmid. Mr. Kirkpatrick was made a Mason at Memphremagog Lodge, on July 27, 1885; exalted in Cleveland Chapter, July 8, 1887 and created a Knight Templar in Malta Commandery, May 25, 1888. He is a past master of Memphremagog Lodge.

THE TUG POTOMAC ORDERED TO NEWFOUNDLAND.

Portsmouth, N.H., Sept. 8—The United States tug Potomac, Lieutenant Hines, now at this port has received orders to proceed to Newfoundland to protect American fishing interests there. She is now coaling and receiving supplies, and will sail in a few days. The United States Fish Commission schooner Grampus covered this ground last winter, making her headquarters at Birchy Cove and Bay of Islands, N.F. The Secretary of Navy has instructed the commander of the Potomac to take A. B. Alexander, chief of division of Statistics and methods of the Bureau of Fisheries for the Department of Commerce and Labor, on board at Gloucester within a week and to proceed to St. Johns. From this port as headquarters, Professor Alexander will make frequent cruises along the coasts of Newfoundland and Labrador to warn American fishermen against infringement of the local fishing laws and gather facts connected with the season's fishing for the use of the State negotiations.

CHILE NEEDS HELP.

OUR MINISTER URGES MORE RELIEF CONTRIBUTIONS.

Washington, Sept. 8—"Suffering is very great," says Mr. Hicks, American minister to Chile in a despatch received by the State Department yesterday urging the people of the United States to lend a helping hand for the relief of the distress caused by the recent earthquake that destroyed Valparaiso and did great damage in other Chilean towns. The despatch says that action should be prompt, and suggests that funds may be sent to Santiago by cable. Officials at the State Department regret the apparent lack of interest shown in the misfortunes of this sister republic of the United States. Agents of the Red Cross report that responses to their appeals and to the proclamation of President Roosevelt have been few. Chile as a nation has made no direct appeal to the generosity of the United States, but through diplomatic representatives of other Governments has let it be known that financial aid would be received with everlasting gratitude.

NOW HAVE STENSLAND.

FUGITIVE HANDED OVER TO CHICAGO AGENTS.

Chicago, Sept. 8—Assistant State's Attorney Barbour yesterday received the following telegram from Assistant State Attorney Olson, who with James Keeley of the Chicago Tribune, is in Tangier, Morocco, watching Paul O. Stensland, president of the wrecked Milwaukee Avenue State Bank of Chicago: "Stensland turned over to us." It is believed that Olson and Keeley will start home with Stensland immediately.

A telegram from Attorney Binns at Washington to Assistant State Attorney Barbour said that the President had cabled a warrant to the American minister at Tangiers, requesting him to surrender Stensland. Word was also telegraphed that the State Department had arranged to have an American-bound passenger steamer, touching at Gibraltar, stop at Tangier and take on board the prisoner and his captors.

Jefferson Thompson, chairman of the racing board of the Automobile Association was praising the French as automobilists.

"The French are a remarkable and odd people," he said. "In fencing and, above all, in motoring they excel. In football, in racing and, above all, in swimming they are nowhere.

"Three French sportsmen were once out after robins and cuckoos. A robin appeared overhead; they fired simultaneously, but the robin escaped.

"Then they asked all together:

U. S. WOULD END FISH DISPUTES.

STUDY OF NEWFOUNDLAND ISSUES UNDERTAKEN — AGENT WILL INSTRUCT AMERICAN FISHERMEN.

Washington, Sept. 8.—By direction of President Roosevelt preparations are being made in three of the executive departments for a resumption of the study of the Newfoundland fishing dispute which was carried on throughout last year. A. B. Alexander, chief of the bureau of statistics and bureau of fisheries at the Department of Commerce and Labor, who spent several months surveying conditions in Newfoundland waters has again been selected as the agent of the Government. He will have the use of the naval tug Potomac in making his investigations and will be armed with authority from the State Department in his negotiations with officials in Newfoundland. The date of his departure for Newfoundland has not yet been fixed.

A new treaty defining the rights of American fishermen in Newfoundland and waters is the probable outcome of Mr. Alexander's visit, but of prime importance to the fishermen themselves will be instructions he will undertake to give to captains of fishing smacks as to their exact rights under the existing Newfoundland treaty.— It is believed at the State Department that fully one-half of the seizures of American fishing vessels have been caused by ignorance on the part of fishermen as to their treaty rights, or their exact location at the time seized. While the question of getting bait for the fishing smacks has been one of the serious factors, the real trouble has come from violations by Americans in getting labor to man their fishing vessels. On several occasions Americans have entered Newfoundland ports and there have contracted for local fishermen, taking them on board beyond the limits of the waters patrolled by the British. This has resulted in the seizure of many fishing smacks when they entered Newfoundland ports, and the violation of the Newfoundland regulations has been held to have been as great as though the Canadian fishermen actually were taken on board within the ports. Other troubles have arisen through trawling for fish, which is not permitted in Newfoundland waters, yet Americans have construed existing treaty rights as authorizing them to use trawl lines.

Mr. Alexander will gather statistics concerning the extent of the fisheries and the value of the industries, making comparisons between the British and American interests. This investigation will be for the purpose of determining just what damage there has been to the interests of both countries by reason of the long-continuing dispute. Chandler Anderson, who was secretary of the Behring Sea Arbitration Commission, is preparing data which will be useful in the event of negotiations for a new treaty. This information will be given to Secretary of State Root, who has arranged to take up the entire subject immediately upon his return from his South American tour.

CONVENTION AT BUCKINGHAM.

QUEBEC PROVINCIAL WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION TO MEET ON SEPT. 25TH.

The twenty-third annual meeting of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the Province of Quebec will be held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, at Buckingham, Que., beginning Sept. 25th, at 2.30 p.m., and continuing until Sept. 28th. The Buckingham Union will provide entertainment for the executive committee and all regularly appointed delegates. The convener of the billeting committee is Miss C. A. McCallum, Box 35, Buckingham. Members of the executive committee will please notify Miss McCallum whether they will be present or not. Local secretaries should also send her the names of delegates, if possible, before Sept. 15th. The executive committee will meet at 2 p.m., on the 25th of Sept.

The first session of the convention will be a consecration and memorial service. The annual meeting will be composed of the executive board, two delegates from each affiliated union, and one additional delegate for every fifty paying members of each union. This means that every local union that has become auxiliary by paying the provincial fees, no matter how small the membership, is entitled to send two delegates to the annual convention, and that unions having a membership of fifty or over may send three delegates; those over one hundred, four, and so on, in proportion.

Each local union is invited to contribute towards the expenses incurred by the union entertaining the provincial convention, any surplus money contributed for expenses of convention to be given to the provincial union. Every union is requested to respond to this appeal. The treasurer's books will be closed for auditing ten days before the convention. Unions should pay all arrears before Sept. 15th, so that they may be entitled to full representation.

Reduced railway rates can only be secured by purchasing a single-fare ticket at the starting point, and obtaining at the same time from the agent a certificate to show that such ticket has been purchased. Tickets on the certificate plan must be purchased ten minutes before train is due to leave.

County and local unions having banners are requested to send them to the convention.

Mrs. Louise S. Rounds, of Clifton Springs, N.Y., will be the speaker at the convention.

NOT GUILTY, SAYS CASHIER.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Cashier Henry W. Hering, of the Milwaukee avenue State Bank, denied Wednesday Stensland's charge cabled from Tangier that Hering was the author of the ruin of the bank. He declared that Stensland led him into the trouble.

THE SCOTT ACT.

HOW IT WORKS WHEN ENFORCED.

The Sydney (C.B.) Record says: The leading liquor dealers of the city are beginning to become alarmed over the turn Scott Act affairs have taken in the last several weeks, when no less than three small dealers have been sentenced to imprisonment without the option of a fine on charges of selling liquor.

For the last several years it has been the custom of a majority of the large dealers and hotelkeepers to admit the charge when a Scott Act paper was served on them and pay the fine to the inspector without the case being brought into court.

Yesterday (Aug. 31), however, a leading hotelkeeper was served with a paper, but on his admitting the charge and agreeing to pay the fine without further trouble, he was told that all the cases would have to go before the court in the future and he is now naturally uneasy lest he should be found guilty and sent to prison in the same manner as the two dealers who were sentenced last week.

TILTED PEERESS OF SOCIALISM.

DRESSED IN FINE RAIMENT SHE COMPLAINS OF PERSECUTION BY THE ARISTOCRACY.

London, September 8.—The Countess of Warwick appeared as a prophetess Wednesday at the session of the Trades Union Congress at Liverpool. Wearing a big Gainsborough hat covered with a mass of black ostrich feathers, and a handsome black and white costume, she told the horny-handed delegates that she was persecuted by the aristocracy for her adhesion to the cause of Socialism. Then, stretching out her arms, which were immediately gloved with white kid, she exclaimed: "Before long the storm will burst. There will be a social revolution, and in a social revolution I will be more useful than now. Socialism is the only hope for the workers."

Despite the undoubted sincerity of the Countess there is a marked divergence between the Socialists and the Laborites regarding her championship of the cause.

Many think that a wealthy, richly-gowned aristocrat on their platforms must weaken the movement. They express contempt for her protestations of earnestness. The vanity of others is tickled by intimate associations with a peeress, whom they call "Comrade Warwick."

Quebec, Sept. 8.—Word has reached the city of a head-on freight collision on the line of the Intercolonial Railway at St. Charles de Bellechasse. Both trains were badly wrecked, the eastbound being reduced to kindling wood. Engineer King, of the eastbound, was buried beneath his engine and met instant death.

TO ENCOURAGE GOLD REPORTS.

SECRETARY SHAW DECIDED TO YIELD TO EXIGENCIES OF MONEY MARKET.

Washington, September 8.—Secretary Shaw Wednesday yielded to the exigencies of the money market and announced Wednesday afternoon that he would on Sept. 10th resume his policy of making deposits in National banks to encourage gold importations.

It had been apparent that the Secretary was considering some such action, but he kept his counsel until just before the Treasury Department closed Wednesday, when he issued the following statement: "At the close of business Wednesday Secretary Shaw announced that on and after Monday, Sept. 10th, and until further notice the Treasury will make deposits in National banks to facilitate the importation of gold. Bonds available by statute for investments by savings banks in Massachusetts and New York will be accepted at 90 per cent. as security, pending the arrival of the gold. The actual engagement of the gold must precede the deposit, and the deposit must be paid as soon as the gold arrives."

THE ROCK ISLAND CANAL.

The Stanstead Journal says: "The ditch which has been accorded the somewhat pretentious title of a "canal," now promises to furnish material for a bitter legal conflict. Recently Butterfield & Co., who have a woodworking factory on the "canal" at Foundry Hill notified the other power owners of their desire to shut off the water for the purpose of making repairs to their dam and installing a new water-wheel. They had the material on the ground ready to begin operations but before the water was shut off, Mr. J. B. Goodhue, who owns the first power on the canal, secured from the Superior Court an injunction restraining them from cutting off the water. The case must now be settled by the courts."

FARMER'S SUDDEN END.

FOUND LYING DEAD BESIDE WAGON WITH RIBS BROKEN.

St. Thomas, Ont., Sept. 8.—A farmer, William Gage, living near Mull, and formerly of Ridgetown, met with sudden death Wednesday while drawing beans. He was found lying dead beside his wagon with several of his ribs broken over his heart. It is supposed that the end of the double-tree struck him. Deceased was 50 years of age, and leaves a widow and four children.

Ingersoll, Ont., Sept. 8.—The four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Christie, Wenham street, died at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning from the effects of burns received Tuesday evening by having her clothing ignited by matches, with which she was playing.

"Hecla" Furnace

I don't believe you can find fault with any part of the 'Hecla.'

Waterpan—is placed so that it does just what is wanted—that is, it evaporates the water and keeps the air from getting dry.

Door—big enough to admit big chunks of wood. Lined, to prevent escape of heat into the cellar. Patent gravity catches keep the door shut.

Dust Flue—carries ALL the dust up the chimney.

Ash Pan—broad, deep, strong pan—big enough to hold the daily fall of ashes.

Fused Joints—that absolutely prevent gas, smoke and dust escaping into the house. FUSED JOINTS are the only possible way of having a clean house.

The "Hecla" is the only Furnace having Fused Joints.

Send me a rough drawing of your house and I will let you know just what it will cost to install the right "Hecla" Furnace. I will also send our new catalogue of Hecla Furnaces, and Peninsular Stoves and Ranges. All free if you write to "Hecla Furnace Builder," care of 38

BRITISH RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

(From the London Times.)

The general report of the Board of Trade upon the accidents that have occurred on the railways of the United Kingdom during the year 1905, prepared by Colonel Sir H. Jekyll, secretary of the railway department, has just been issued as a Parliamentary Blue Book (Cd. 3140.)

The report shows that the total length of the railways of the United Kingdom at the end of the year 1905 was 22,847 miles, the total track mileage (i. e. single lines) being 38431 without sidings, and 52,322 with sidings. The accidents are grouped under three main heads, namely: —(1) Train accidents, (2) accidents caused by the movement of trains and railway vehicles, exclusive of train accidents, and (3) accidents on railway premises not due to train accidents or to the movement of trains and vehicles. They are further subvided in each group according as they relate to passengers, servants, or other persons. It appears that within the year 1099 persons were killed and 6459 injured by accidents due to the running of trains or the movement of railway vehicles, the average figures for the previous nine years being 1149 and 6651 respectively. The year was remarkable for the number of passengers killed in train accidents, which was greater than in any year since 1899; but 38 out of a total of 39 such cases were attributable to four collisions and derailments. The number of passengers injured in train accidents, 396, was much below the average. Six railway servants were killed and 112 were injured in train accidents, these figures being far below the average of previous years. In the second class of train accidents, that is, accidents caused by the movement of trains and railway vehicles exclusive of railway trains, the report shows that there is little change in the list of casualities to passengers, the figures for 1905 being 109 killed and 1972 injured, and for 1904 109 killed and 2145 injured; but it is pointed out that, taking into account the number of journeys, fewer passengers were killed and more injured in 1905 than usual. The casualities to passengers in this class are much more numerous than those caused by train accidents, but they mostly arise from the carelessness of the passengers themselves.

The casualties to railway servants, the report says, from this cause are always numerous, as the men exposed to peculiar risks; and close attention is given to this class of accident because it includes a proportion though not a large one, of accidents that may be termed preventible. It is therefore satisfactory to note their diminishing frequency, as shown by the fact that, while in the nine years ended 1904 the casualties among railway servants exposed to danger averaged one in seventy, they fell in 1905 to one in eighty-one. This improvement has occurred mainly in the small class of preventible accidents. It further appears that out of every 100 casualties of this kind 57 were due to misadventure, 32 to want of caution or misconduct on the part of injured persons, and 5 to want of caution or breach of rules on the part of other servants, leaving only six attributable to preventible causes. By accidents under this head 393 railway servants were killed and 3688 injured in 1905, as against 409 killed and 3807 injured in 1904.

As regards other persons, not passengers or railway servants, the number killed during the year was 552, of which 57 were persons passing over railways at level crossings, 439 were trespassers, including suicides, and 55 were persons on business at stations, etc., and other persons not coming under the above classifications. In addition there were 291 other persons injured. Finally, a large number of accidents unconnected with railway working occurred on railway premises and were reported as required by the Act of 1871. Accidents of this kind accounted for the death of 81 persons, and injury to 11,777, the average figures for the previous nine years being 86 and 11,418 respectively. The bulk of these accidents were due to misadventure or pure accident for which no remedy could be prescribed and comparatively few could be attributed to preventible causes.

While the Play Was On

By Virginia Leila Wentz

Copyright, 1906, by Beatrix Heade

They came in rather late—the first act was well under way. The girl in her soft evening gown swept quietly down the aisle and took the seat indicated by the usher with serene noiselessness. The man with waxed mustaches and flashy diamond studs followed ostentatiously. He sat down, much to the annoyance of the party directly behind, after unduly pompous delay. Ostentation and pomposity were in Mr. Smart's line.

Mechanically the girl drew out her opera glasses from their bag, but she did not use them. Instead, with a little sigh of content, she leaned back against her wrap, a gorgeous thing, ermine lined, belonging to her aunt, which she had been coaxed into wearing. The lights of the house were low, and as she leaned for a second, a billowy mass of chiffon and lace against the ermine, her heavily lashed eyelids half closed, and she smiled faintly.

Ah, it was so good to be faultlessly dressed from the top of her head to the tip of her shoe all at once—just once sure of herself all around! Not as it had always been with her down in dear old Kentucky—a gown achieved just as her hat was going out of fashion, a new wrap when her evening dresses were beginning to look a bit worn, boots a little shabby just as she was able to get fresh gloves and veil. Her eye fell on the billowy blouse of her bodice. How all her life she had loved lace—real, cobwebby lace! And ermine to nestle against—the lordly "feel of the thing!"

Well, now she was in the way to have it all. This month's visit with her aunt in New York had been fecund in results. Dances and dinners, suppers, theater parties, had filled the hurrying days and nights, but still, with her aunt's worldly insistence, she had found time to engage herself to the man beside her. "Capital, my dear!" her aunt had said when she heard the news, kissing her lightly on the cheek. "You see, Alberta, I knew what I was doing when I sent for you to come up from that poverty stricken Kentucky, and you had only to come to conquer. Of course Mr. Smart isn't exactly a paragon of beauty, and he's a bit 'new,' but think of his cool little million, his yacht, his horses, his splendid motor and all that sort of thing. Oh, I'll be proud of you yet, my poor little southern niece!"

"Beastly stupid play!" broke in upon Alberta's reverie. Mr. Smart spoke in a voice a trifle louder than conventional good form allows.

The girl lifted her eyebrows slightly and then nodded her head in indifferent acquiescence. As a matter of fact, she hadn't noticed a single bit of "business" on the boards nor heard a single line. Now, however, she raised her glasses. It gave her right hand some occupation. It had been lying perilously close to his, she observed.

During the second act the man fidgeted more than ever. "Come," he said finally; "don't let's waste any more time on such twiddle twaddle. It's weak tommyrot. We'll run up and order our supper instead."

But a girl with an ermine cloak thrown over the back of her chair was leaning forward, her elbows resting on her knees, her chin in the cup of her two hands. Her eyes were strangely wistful as she watched the players on the stage.

"No," she whispered oddly without turning to Smart; "I like it. Let's stay."

'Twas a simple enough little scene that she watched; a homely enough setting, too—a lane hedged with wild roses and honeysuckle, at one end of which stood a white cottage, sunny in the light of early morning. Just outside, by the hollyhock bushes, was a man fair and strong, looking like a young god in his splendid strength. He was catching up a child playfully and holding it high in the air, as is the way with proud fathers. Then out of the cottage, rosy, smiling, came a girlish figure with her sleeves rolled up and an apron on, to say goodby to her lord before he went to his day's labor. The sire kissed his child and set him down, patting the curly head. Then he drew the woman to him. "Goodby, and God bless you, dear, till I come home tonight," he said in a voice softened with reverence.

There were actual tears in Alberta's eyes. Homely as was the setting, simple as was the scene, it had brought to her a revelation. After all, that was the real sum of life, was it not, dear God—love and a home and a clear, unbartered conscience?

"Well, if you still want to stay, I'm going out for a whisky and soda," Smart laughed unctuously, laying his heavy hand on hers as the curtain dropped on the second act. "You don't seem up to conversation tonight. I might as well have taken your aunt out—old lady's a corker when talk's scarce! If I'm not back by the time the curtain goes up don't get frightened. I'll be here before the bloomin' thing's over."

As he was turning out in the aisle unconsciously even to herself Alberta's eyes swept him from head to foot—shambling physique, obtrusive jewels and all. She shuddered involuntarily, pressing his ring which she wore rather sharply into her flesh.

Oh, if only the orchestra would play that "Spring Song" of Mendelssohn's She had been trying so hard to shut Robert Harvey out from her life, and this fetched him so vividly before her!

But, if I live with Idas, then we two
On the low earth shall prosper, hand in hand—

Those were the words from Stephen Phillips' "Marpessa" which Harvey had been wont to set to that music, saying, "They seem to be made for each other—just like you and I, sweetheart."

How ever in the world had she made herself able to give him up? It was her cursed love of luxury, she told herself, and what would luxury profit her without him? What a fool she had been! But the worst was yet to do. Tomorrow she was to write the letter which was to stab his dear heart like a knife.

—"and an awfully stunning fellow, regular Gibson type, you know. We tried to induce him to join us tonight; but, you see, he lives in Louisville."

Alberta turned her head ever so slightly. The people back of her who had been annoyed at Mr. Smart's inconsiderateness when he first came in were talking.

"And he leaves for the south tomorrow. Fancy arriving in fascinating old New York one day and leaving it the next! Ma says she'll warrant he has a sweetheart in Louisville, for he's dead set on going there immediately. This morning on deck just before we sailed into the harbor"— But "ma," who was from Chicago and full of western enterprise, finished the sentence for herself.

"I came on him unexpectedly, and what d'ye think he was doing? Leaning over the rail and looking at a picture in his watch. 'Ah-ha, Mr. Harvey!' I cried. 'You're caught at last! Will you let me see her picture?' 'In a few moments I'll show you the statue of Liberty instead,' said he, closing his watch softly and unstrapping his field glasses. And, would you believe it, the winning sweetness of his smile took all the sting out of his refusal."

"Why don't you strike for him, Maude, and cut the Louisville girl out?" came a laughing poser. "Or wasn't he looking for a rich wife?"

"Don't know, I'm sure," was the response. "But anyhow he's not rich. Get the information from his chum coming over—the one who's going to take us to the Union League reception tomorrow. He owns some sort of a plantation in Kentucky, however, and people there call him le grand seigneur 'cause he's considered so exclusive. It appears Mr. Harvey in his aristocratic poverty had a horror of the neuveaux riches." She sniffed daintily and giggled.

The lights went down, the orchestra stopped playing, and the curtain went up on the third act.

Presently, having had one glass of whisky and soda too much, Smart came back. He looked at Alberta closely with a look before which she suddenly shrank. She'd seen it focused ere this on many things—his automobile, his diamonds, his horses—but never wholly on herself. That glance of possession shot through her nerves with a sickening humiliation.

"You'll loosen the stone in your ring if you keep turning it round like that," said Smart in a blurred whisper. "An' that sort of diamond ain't stumbled against every day, let me tell you."

At the close of the third act, although there was still the fourth to be played, Alberta turned to her companion.

"We'll go now," she said simply. But as he helped her on with her wrap he wondered at the strange, soft illumination of her face. It was an illumination he had never seen before, an illumination in which he knew instinctively he had no part.

When Smart, having got his hat and coat, joined her in the lobby and was about to call for a cab, one of the girl's hands went out to his ready arm, but the other deftly handed him his ring.

"I've decided you'd better keep it," she said calmly, while, his fingers closing tightly about the jewel, Smart gazed with amazement at her strange smile. "I'll explain to you as we walk along. No; not a cab. I prefer to walk. It isn't far to auntie's." She would not suffer his proximity, however brief, in a carriage.

"Have you gone mad?" he demanded, putting the bauble securely in his wallet. "Of all idiotic nonsense! And, besides, you're not dressed for walking."

"Oh, what does a little thing like that matter?" cried she, with almost a child's fresh joy in her voice. "Nothing matters now but the big things." And, gathering up her skirts, she added, half to herself, with a queer little thrill; "I'm going home tomorrow! I'm going home to Louisville tomorrow!"

MURDER OF A WELSHER.

KICKED TO DEATH BY THE CROWD ON AN AUSTRALIAN RACE-COURSE.

(London Leader.)

The Australian mail brings an account of a murder which, for sheer savagery, can have few equals in the annals of Antipodean crime.

The scene of the tragedy was Flemington race course, and the victim one Donald McLeod, a "bookie," whose methods had brough him into great unpopularity with the crowd on the course.

His plan was to lay all the bets he could at longer odds than the other bookmakers were offering. When those who backed winners presented their tickets he would return them the amounts they had paid to him with a promise to pay at some future date. Needless to say, the winners never saw their money, McLeod making his profit on the rest of the field. His clients dealt chiefly in shilling bets.

The day on which he met his death was the date of the Grand National Steeplechase.

The first two races on the card were won by favorites, and McLeod pursued his customary tactics, which increased the crowd's hostility, and then the unfortunate bussiness culminated with the favorite's win in the steeplechase. He had £8 10s. to pay and £2 7s to pay it with. His usual "promise to pay" enraged the seven backers of the winner.

Blows were struck and the frightened welsher made for the booths, the crowd behind him. He became the butt of popular fury, kicks and blows hailed him from all sides. One of them broke his nose and the fatal one broke his neck.

Especially For Women

FRUIT-A-TIVES are the finest medicine in the world for women.

As a mild and gentle laxative—as a positive and speedy cure for Constipation and Biliousness—as the only cure for weak and irritated kidneys and especially for "that pain in the back"—as a positive cure for headaches—and as a general tonic to build up and invigorate the whole system — FRUIT-A-TIVES stand supreme.

In cases of irritated Ovaries, Ovarian Pains, Vaginal Catarrh, Excessive and Scanty Menstruation, Ulcerations, Bearing Down Pains—and all those troubles peculiar to women—have the most remarkable effect.

Fruit-a-tives
OR "FRUIT LIVER TABLETS"

Ninety-nine cases out of a hundred of Female Troubles are due to neglect. Bowels become constipated — kidneys irregular — skin neglected — and the poisons of the body, which should be carried off by these important organs, are taken up by the blood carried to the female organs and poison them, thus starting up a train of female troubles.

FRUIT-A-TIVES are made from fruits and by their remarkable action on bowels, kidneys and skin, rid the system of poisons, purify the blood, and restore the delicate organs of generation to new vigor and health.

No woman, who suffers, should ever be without them. 50c. a box—6 for $2.50, at your druggist's or sent postpaid by

THE GERMAN PRESS ON THE RECENT MEETING OF THE TWO MONARCHS AT CRONBERG.

(Continental Correspondence.)

It is indicative of the friendliness with which King Edward's visit to Cronberg has been received, that even the "Vorwaerts", the chief organ of the Social Democratic Party has denied itself the pleasure of girding at the two sovereigns in its hitherto favorite fashion. It knew that were it to do so, it would be setting itself in direct opposition to the whole of the people—even to those who socialistic views—for the entire German folk sees in the meeting of the two monarchs a strengthening of the peace of the world.

And so 'Vorwaerts' has devoted to the Cronberg meeting a futile article in which it comforts itself by the assurance that nothing of any importance for international politics is likely to result from the interview. Thus far certainly the whole independent German press agrees with 'Vorwaerts' and acknowledges that no significant political arrangements have been come to at Cronberg. The press has also, with one accord, managed to steer clear of those rash political combinations, which just during the dog days it is generally so fond of indulging in.

The difference between the interpretation of the social democratic and that of the neutral papers consists, however, in the fact that 'Vorwaerts' wishes to represent the meeting as being of no consequence whatever, because, according to its view of matters, princes and kings have absolutely nothing to do with foreign politics, whereas the neutral or non-party press is of the opinion that a meeting between two sovereigns, even if no hard and fast political aggeements are entered into, is nevertheless, far from being wanting in political importance, especially when the monarchs which come together are men like Kaiser William and King Edward. Without in any way wishing to be disrespectful to the heads of other European states it must however be allowed that these two princes are the most distinguished and decided personalities amongst the European rulers. In order to find men who can be compared to them one must cross over to America, the home of Roosevelt and Diaz.

When, therefore, men of the exalted position and intellectual acumen of the Emperor William and King Edward meet together and talk for hours on political subjects, such an event is of importance. It may, of course, be said that these rulers have always had the opportunity of thrashing out political questions, either directly by means of letters, or through their respective embassies, but every business man knows that a personal interview of one hour is, as a rule, of greater value than several dozen letters.

To this must be added the fact that for several months—one might almost say years—a certain coolness has existed between the two sovereigns, and that this visit marks the beginning of a period of better understanding. The personal relationships of two such prominent men are, however, not only of importance for themselves, but also for the people whom they govern, and for the world in general. The German press is then correct in interpreting this meeting as the crowning work in the series of efforts which, for the past year or so, leading men, both in Germany and England, have been making for the betterment of the relations existing between the two countries.

NATURE'S COURSE

By NORA BRYANT

Copyright, 1906, by Ruby Douglas

Mrs. Humphrey shelled the peas in silence, waiting for the outburst. She was a meek little woman accustomed to listening to her beautiful, tall daughter and obeying her behests unquestioningly. Alice possessed all the independence of spirit which her mother lacked.

"No, mother," said Alice, seizing viciously on a pea pod and breaking it open, "no, you can't. It just isn't born in you. I've got to do it alone."

"Why, Alice!" exclaimed her mother with hurt inflection.

"Oh, I know it, mother. I'm a horrid cross girl, but I can't help it. Father's gone off again and left us with no wood. This has been going on for three years now. Sometimes he remembers to buy a load, but when he does we have to split it. And in the meantime we have to scratch and scramble for wood just as if we were as poor as poverty. Just look, we've burned most of the fences till the place looks more ghastly than ever, if possible."

"Alice, Alice," sighed Mrs. Humphrey, "you shouldn't talk so of your father."

Alice's face flushed deeper and she shelled a handful of peas before replying. Then she looked out of the door at the jimson weeds.

"Everything is all wrong, and it's all father's fault. Why shouldn't I marry Bob Phillips? Tell me that? Just because he is a college man and his people live in town father has set himself against him. Now, why does father send me to college if he expects me to settle down to chopping wood and cooking for the rest of my life? No, mother, I'm a sophomore now and I know more than I did once. I am going to marry Bob and father is going to agree to it too."

Alice looked at her mother sternly. "See your hands, blistered and hard. You creep out and chop wood every time I turn my back. Look at my hands." She held up slender fingers. "Nice things to carry back to the college this fall! Now, I'm going out to chop enough to get dinner with." And, pulling a shade hat over her eyes, Alice walked out into the hot harvest sun and picked up the ax.

Straight up to the new brooder house she went and with a neat swing of the ax began battering up the brooder house door. In a few moments the door had disappeared and in its stead on the ground near by lay a neat pile of stove wood. Still not quite satisfied, Alice looked about her. A hayrack lay on the ground waiting for the afternoon trip to the oat field. A few firm blows from the broad of the ax, and the side boards showed signs of weakening. Half a dozen clever cuts with the blade, and the boards dropped to the ground. In five minutes the pile of wood by the brooder house was augmented by a pile of heavy sticks, and before Mrs. Humphrey could catch breath to inquire the source a brisk blaze lighted up the front of the old cooking stove.

"Mother"—Mrs. Humphrey paused, with a bit of bacon poised on her fork—"mother, can you tell me what has happened to the old hayrack and to the brooder house door?"

Mrs. Humphrey looked at Alice. "Why—why, father, I don't know. Alice, do you know?"

Alice poured the steaming peas into a china dish and then glanced at her father. "Well," she said calmly, "you will find part of the door still in the wood box, but the last of the hayrack is just going up the chimney." Then she carried the dish of peas into the dining room and set it carefully down on the table.

Then Mr. Humphrey began: "Alice, if you were not grown up I'd send you to bed for two days."

Alice squared her shoulders, looking into her father's eyes with an expression strangely like his own. "Father," she said, "you are not fair. You give your men the best sort of implements with which to do their work. You keep the horses and cattle in buildings that are for their greatest comfort, but you expect mother and me to find our own means for doing work that neither of us is strong enough to do and to live in a building that scorches us in summer and freezes us in winter. To say the least, you are not fair."

The great veins swelled in Mr. Humphrey's forehead, and he took a single step toward Alice and then stopped as if controlling himself by a physical effort.

"Alice," he said, "I forbid you to destroy any more of my property. Just how to punish you for what you have already done I don't know. I shall wait until tonight."

That afternoon Alice was left alone, as her mother was called away to see a sick neighbor. For awhile she sat quietly, then suddenly she flushed a little. Far down the road she could see the figure of a man and a horse moving leisurely through the heat. Alice smoothed her hair and glanced down at the dainty whiteness of her gown. Then she waited. Soon the rider turned into the yard, with an eager shout at the sight of Alice. A fine looking young fellow was Bob Phillips in his natty riding togs, sitting his saddle with the ease of a westerner. And a charming figure was Alice in the doorway with the color deepening in her cheeks, her great dark eyes brightening and the dimples coming to the corners of her mouth.

"Oh, Bob," she cried as he dismounted and tied his horse, "I've been wishing for you. Everything is so topsy turvy in this horrid place!"

Bob looked anxious. "Is it your father again?" he asked as he drew her down on the step beside him. Alice told him of her morning's experience. Bob's face darkened.

"Look here, Alice," he exclaimed, "I'm not going to stand this. I knew things were pretty bad, but I never knew you had to do this sort of work." He took her hand, looked at the pretty pink palm with the row of blisters across it. "I'm not going to say any of the things to you that I think about your father. But this is going to stop! This architect business is slow in starting, but I've got enough to keep the pot boiling. I'm on my way out to the Scotts' summer home now. They want me to plan an addition for them. But tonight I'm coming back to tell your father that we are going to be married at once."

Alice shook her head a little fearfully. "No, Bob, dear," she said. "I can't leave mother that way, and I want to finish college first. No; father has got to change. There is no sense in his acting so to such a dear as you."

Bob grinned appreciatively as he drew her to him, but he lost none of his look of determination. "That's all very well, Alice, darling, but I've a few rights, and after supper I'm coming back and read the riot act to your father."

Alice sighed. Then she nodded her head. "Yes, come back, I don't know just how, but some way I'm going to shame father."

"Don't you worry," said Bob. "I'll fix him."

As Bob disappeared Alice's glance wandered toward the broad stump of a tree that stood in the dooryard. As she looked her eyes lighted with a mischievous smile. Then she began her preparations for supper. In a short time she appeared in the yard with two covered dishes in her hands. These she placed on the top of the old stump where the sun blazed down on their shining covers. Then she returned to the house to set the table.

The hay wagon rattled into the yard.

"Well," called Mr. Humphrey, seeing Alice in the door, "isn't supper ready?"

Alice looked anxiously toward the old stump. "I'm afraid things have not begun to boil yet," she answered.

Mr. Humphrey looked at the strange array of utensils on the stump. "Alice," he said, "what nonsense is this?"

"It means just this," answered Alice bravely. "You refuse to buy wood for us, and this noon you forbade me to destroy any more of your property. So when it came time to get supper the stump seemed the hottest place at hand, and I put the vegetables out there to let nature take its course. It is much easier for me."

Mr. Humphrey stood in silence. Alice watched him anxiously. Slowly the angry flush died away, and the corners of his mouth twitched. He turned to the man who had been an interested spectator.

"Jim," he said, "you might as well finish up the old hayrack. Split up enough wood to get supper with." Then he walked into the house with never so small a twinkle in his eyes.

That evening, as Alice and her father sat on the steps waiting for Mrs. Humphrey's return, Mr. Humphrey broke the silence.

"I've been thinking it over, Alice," he said, "and—and—well, I guess father has been negligent of his two girls. You see, I didn't realize how hard some things are for women folks. Now, do you suppose you could plan a—a porch or a—a window or something?" he asked vaguely. "And we'll surprise your mother on her birthday."

For a moment there was silence; then he heard a low sob beside him. He reached out an awkward hand and drew his daughter toward him.

"Why, little girl," he said, "I didn't know it meant so much to you."

Alice nestled against his shoulder. "It means more than a porch," she sobbed; "it means that, after all, you are nice, like other fathers."

Mr. Humphrey cleared his throat. "And I've been thinking, Alice," he went on, "that I've been hard on Bob. A rough old fellow like me gets prejudiced against these college chaps. When you finish school and Bob gets a start—well, you'll find that father wants you to be happy after all."

The Man Who Arrived

By CLAUDE PAMARES

Copyright, 1906, by Homer Sprague

As Briggsville was a town of 2,000 inhabitants and boasted a fair hotel, there had been arrivals there by train for years, but they were what might be termed everyday arrivals. Drummers paid the town a visit; men when looking for an opportunity to go into business would come that way; strangers who didn't always unburden themselves to the inquisitive landlord would come and go. Each and every guest received more or less public notice, but dropped out of mind when he dropped out of sight.

The man who finally arrived slipped in so quietly that he had been a guest for three or four days before it was generally known that he was present. He walked up from the depot instead of riding in the bus and paying a quarter extra. He didn't make a rush for the bar as soon as he arrived. He didn't cuss the train for being late or cuss the town on account of the mudholes in the streets. He took the landlord into his confidence at once and explained that he was in poor health and might spend a month in recuperating. He ate supper and then sat down in the barroom and smoked and dozed and answered but few questions and asked none at all, and it was the general verdict before he went to bed that he didn't amount to shavings compared with other arrivals.

George K. Jones, as the man who arrived had given his name, moved about town for the next week without attracting any particular notice and without any one caring particularly about his health. The landlord of the hotel had just told a friend of his that Jones was apparently a softy, who had tired himself out in wondering why a coffee mill turned to the right instead of the left, when he was asked for a private interview. He instantly made up his mind that Jones wanted to stand him off, but he granted the request.

In two minutes there was a great transformation. Jones of the sleepy eyes and lagging feet became as alert as a fox. He acknowledged that he had registered under a false name; he confessed that he was not what he seemed; he owned up that he was at the head of a detective agency and ready to do business with his host on the most liberal terms. There hadn't been any crime of any account around Briggsville for several years, but this state of affairs could not last much longer. There would be a crime wave sweeping along pretty soon, and his agency wanted to be in it and make most of the arrests and receive most of the rewards.

He was there in advance of the wave to lay his wires. He wanted to make of the landlord a detective—a real old sleuth of the first order—and he had a printed commission duly dated and signed that would be exchanged for a twenty dollar bill. The landlord was to spot robbers and murderers as fast as they turned up and send in his reports and receive half the rewards.

It did not take the proprietor of the Clarion over five minutes to decide on handing over. His income from the detective business would not be less than $2,000 a year and might run to three times that, and his opportunities for "spotting" were A1.

Of course he was told that looking wise and sawing wood was the foundation of detective work and given many verbal instructions, and half an hour later he was down in his bar and sizing up three or four old topers he had known for fifteen years and wondering which of them was plotting murder. That evening he picked out no less than seven men to keep an eye on in future, and it was generally remarked that he seemed more alert than usual.

Next day the man who arrived sauntered into the livery stable. He had sauntered in there before, talked horse for a few minutes and then sauntered out again, much to the disgust of the owner. This time he didn't talk horse. The liveryman was all alone, but he was taken to the rear end of the barn to be communicated with. Mr. Jones had noticed that he had a head on him. Jones had also noticed that he had an eye like an eagle and a perspicacity that enabled him to tell a horse from a cow on sight. The liveryman was flattered. He couldn't help but be. He had been called a fool often enough for trying to conduct a livery business in a county where there were 264 separate, distinct and steep hills and to find that all the people had been wrong about it all the time was like pouring sweet oil on a burn.

After an hour's conversation the man of horses and buggies gave up $25 and received a commission to act as detective. He was not to be confined to any one sort of crime, but could go ahead and do business with criminals of all sorts regardless of age or sex. Before Mr. Jones had left the stables the newly made detective had made up his mind to keep an eye on the landlord of the hotel. He had long suspected that counterfeit money was being made in the garret of the Clarion.

The man who arrived took another saunter that day. He sauntered in to see Mrs. Bascomb, who kept a small millinery and notion store. He had not come for a fall hat or a paper of hairpins. What he had come for he related in whispers, accompanied by a confidential demeanor. His agency needed women detectives. A word caught up now and then as a woman customer was trying on a hat or buying a yard of tape might lead to the unearthing of a great mystery.

Mrs. Bascomb was located next to the postoffice. She could keep her eye on the postmaster. There was a blacksmith shop opposite. She could have the smith and all his customers under constant espionage. As it was dull times in the millinery business, it took a full hour's talking to make Mrs. Bascomb part with $30 in cash in exchange for a detective's commission, but she finally parted and was advised to "spot" all crosseyed men mailing letters at night after the postoffice had closed.

During the next week the man who arrived was on the saunter most of the time. The two dry goods merchants and one of the grocers refused to buy commissions on account of religious or some other scruples, but everybody else approached had only to be talked to for a few minutes to pay a price. If they wouldn't pay $30, the price was gradually reduced to $5. The arrest of a single murderer, they were told, would make them good a thousand times over.

Not less than twenty women were included in Mr. Jones' list, and when he could secure no more clients in the town he worked the surrounding country. Not a farmer or a farmer's hired man turned him down. It happened in several cases that both the farmer and his man took commissions and were instructed to watch each other.

When Mr. Jones departed he left more than a hundred detectives behind him to watch for the coming of the crime wave. They were to make reports to the home office whenever they struck a clew. Not on their life or lives were they to give away the fact that they were working for the agency or keeping their eyes peeled. Craft, cunning and silence must be the order of the day.

During the next two months Briggsville had an uncomfortable time of it. Every one had a feeling that he was under espionage, and his feeling was right. There was prowling about by day and by night. Men and women sitting in their church pews of a Sunday glared around in a suspicious manner and forgot all about the sermon. Boys and girls of tender years found themselves shadowed and went home to tell fathers and mothers who were shadowing some one else.

It was at a church social that the grand expose occurred. Mrs. Bascomb brought it about by charging the cross eyed cooper with mailing a letter at midnight. This was in revenge for his hogging down more than his share of the ice cream. In five minutes it came out that there were about forty detectives present and that each one had been spying on the others, and then a free-for-all scrap occurred, and the police made several arrests. This brought out the whole plot and laid bare the character of the man who arrived, and there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth.

That was ten years ago, but the detectives of Briggsville have never forgiven each other. The crime wave has not arrived, but they glare and shake their fists at each other. And in some locality the man who arrived is arriving again and repeating his performance.

AN INTERESTING DAIRY EXHIBIT.

A very interesting exhibit is found in the Dairy Department at the Fair, shown by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, from the Consolidated Cool Cheese Curing-Room at St. Hyacinthe, which is made here under the charge of Mr. Lemieux, the Superintendent. It consists of 30 cheese, two from each factory which were placed in the Cool Curing Room in the months of July and August, one cheese from each factory being cooled under the Curing Room process, and the other cheese in each case not being subjected to this process. The result even in the short period of time in which the cheese was subjected to this Cool Curing system is most marked, and the benefit to be derived from it seems to be patent to anybody. The idea is to put the cheese at a temperature of about 58, and there they are paraffined. The result shows that there is a very marked shrinkage in the cheese which has not been subjected to this process as compared with the others, and besides that the general appearance of the cheese has been much improved by this process.

Mr. C. D. Warrington, the judge, reports on these cheese as follows:

"Having inspected your exhibit of cheese at the Sherbrooke Fair on the 3rd of September, 1906, I have much pleasure in stating that I found the August made cool cured cheese far more merchantable than the ordinary cured cheese. This was the more noticeable in the general appearance, mildness and silky texture of the curd. In the July make the difference was more pronounced, as you will notice by my scoring on the enclosed cards.

"There were in particular several lots in the August and July makes which have been saved by your cool curing process from becoming very ordinary second quality cheese and I should strongly recommend you to urge the Dominion Government to continue the cool stations as it results in a large saving to the dairy farmers of the country.

"Most of the prizes, as I daresay you have noticed, go to the Government cool cured cheese, and I only regret that samples from your station were not exhibited for competition."

THE CHURCH AND THE LABORING MAN.

(Boston Transcript.)

It was the supreme proof of Jesus' greatness as a revelation of truth and incarnation of love that the people heard him gladly; and following him down the ages men like St. Paul, St. Francis of Assissi, John Wesley and Wm. Booth have secured their grip on humanity by meeting it on the plane of the multitude, not that of the aristocrat few whether it be an aristocracy of family, wealth or knowledge.

The proximity of Sunday to the day which has been set apart by this country for celebration as Labor Day of late years has naturally led many preachers of the Christian gospel to utilize the day for re-statement and discussion of such problems of our modern life as grow out of labor's organization for its defence and its ever increasing assertion of a class spirit. This gives the preacher who wisely uses his opportunity a chance to set forth his views of the applicability of Jesus' ethics to twentieth century life, of the wisdom or unwisdom of monopolies whether of capital or labor, of the abiding need of worship and religion, no matter what changes time brings in philosophy or theology, and of the present duty and best method of the institution which conserves religion and ethics—call it what you will—in meeting the present day indifference of "the multitude" toward institutional religion.

That all is not well with institutional religion to-day in Europe and in America is candidly admitted by those men most anxious to see the Church hold its former relative place in the community; and those who thus believe are not altogether consoled if the saying of Gladstone be quoted, viz., that "believers in the perpetuity of the Church are not tied to believing in the perpetual health of the Church." Nor does it make the situation much better to say, as has been said by so many, that the decline of interest in and loyalty to institutional religion is coincident with a waxing interest in religion as religion. Men are solicitous to know what the Church has done to cause the indifference or alienation, and what it may do to regain its former place. They will not admit that "the success of the Church means her extinction," as has been argued recently by one brilliant young London divine.

The Church, when it is true to its Founder's ideal, knows nothing in its organization or in its proclamation of truth of any racial, class, or personal distinction. Christianity's distinctive note is its universality and its democracy. When it allies itself with autocracy as in Russia to-day, or when it permits any distinct segregated group in an American community to be drawn together mainly by uniformity in mental attainments or size of income, it misses its place in society and in the divine economy and lends itself to embitterment rather than amelioration of the life of society.

If, therefore, we have entered upon in this country a sharper drawing of class distinction in the secular world, if the wage-earners are to frankly group themselves as a class distinct and apart, the Church which in theory knows no class, whatever its practice may be, evidently has a somewhat more difficult task before it than it has had in the past. It will be worth noting to-morrow just what the tenor of the pulpit appeal is, whether a reiteration of the message that knows no other distinctions among men than Jesus knew, or whether an appeal to a class. Charged as it is to-day with being a class organization, subservient to the employing class, the Church is bound to make it clear that it is not that; and it is equally under obligations not to succumb to the temptation of increasing its ranks by catering to the wage-earner as such. The Church when properly functioning is a mediator and not a partisan advocate; a reconciler and not an inciter of class feeling. Its supreme power as an institution is in its truth-telling; and the truth needs to be told impartially to rich and poor, manual and mental laborer, individualist and socialist.

MISCELLANEOUS SPORTING NOTES

The annual meeting of the Toronto Argonaut Rugby team was held at the English Chop House in Toronto Friday evening.

On Labor Day Rosedale sent twelve men to play the Brantford Golf Club at Brantford, the former club winning by a score of 16 to 6.

Dr. Moore, of the Canadas, won the lawn bowling trophy competition on Wednesday afternoon at the Canada Club Tournament, Toronto. The game was played under perfect conditions.

The rumor is current in New York that Battling Nelson defeated on Monday night at Goldfield, Nevada, by Gans, is dead from the result of the injuries he received in the long light.

The famous Corinthian Association football eleven of London arrived in New York Wednesday afternoon. They will play two matches on the grounds of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club at Livingston, Staten Island.

This year's Ontario Rugby rules show no radical change from those in force a year ago, and the game will not differ from that of last year in any essential way as far as the playing code is concerned, although the game promises to be more skillful and scientific owing to the improved methods and systems.

The County Council of London, England, lays out and keeps up, in the public parks, grounds for the different sports. An interesting return has just been issued of the games played in the season of 1905, and the figures will be read with surprise in some instances.

DOWIE DEFENDS HIMSELF.

ISSUES LONG STATEMENT DENYING CHARGES AND ATTACKING VOLIVA.

Chicago, September 8.—In a lengthy printed statement issued from Shiloh House in Zion City John Alexander Dowie replied categorically to charges of immorality, extravagance, misrepresentation, misuse of investments, and polygamous teachings, made against him by Wilbur Glenn Voliva, who deposed him from authority and usurped his place as leader. Replying to the charge of immorality, Dowie said that he had demanded of Voliva time and time again that the charges which Voliva made against his moral conduct be made public, and each time Voliva had refused to comply. "Before God and man I say I am without taint upon my personal purity," he asserted. "If there is aught to the contrary, let them stand forth and prove it."

The charge of polygamous teaching, in the face of his public teachings for years and his printed addresses, he declared to be absurd and foolish. Answering the charge of extravagance Dowie said: "The general overseer and first apostle of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, must necessarily, in his representative capacity, use more funds than a private individual in Zion. To say that I have made wilful and extravagant use of money in connection with my private affairs can only proceed from a petty, envious, and malicious spirit." After denouncing Voliva and leading officials of Zion who joined the revolt, as "men who are guilty, confessedly, of the rankest dishonesty, the basest deception and the most monumental ingratitude," Dowie appeals to those in Zion still faithful to him to aid financially in his fight to regain leadership.

Facts About OUR $4 Shoes.

The soles of most shoes sold for $4 are made of hemlock tanned leather.

This is made from old dry hides, and tanned with hemlock bark or chemicals, by a quick process.

When painted you couldn't tell the difference between it and oak-tanned leather.

For $4 INVICTUS Shoes oak-tanned leather is used.

This is made from green hides, with oak bark, by a slow process. Takes longer to tan but gives three or four times as much wear.

REVOLT IN FIVE REPUBLICS.

CENTRAL AMERICAN RISING SAID TO BE PLANNED — AGENT IN NEW YORK.

New Orleans, Sept. 8.—The existence of an alleged junta, which is said to be collecting funds and supplies for a revolution to be started simultaneously about Nov. 1st in the five Central American Republics—Costa Rica, Honduras, Salvador, Nicaragua and Guatemala—was announced here yesterday. Don Angel Urgatel, who says he is a cousin of Policarpo Bonilla, brother of the President of Honduras, said in an interview:

"I am informed that there is to be a general uprising in the five republics. My mission is to collect funds for a revolution in Honduras, where Policarpo Bonilla, my cousin, will lead the insurgent forces. The people of the five republics in Central America are all dissatisfied with their rulers." Urgatel added that he believed an attempt at revolution in Salvador will be a failure, but that he hopes for success in the other republics.

SAYS HE SAW AN ISLAND BORN

LIEUTENANT HEPBURN DECLARES IT A VOLCANIC GROWTH.

San Francisco, Sept. 8.—Lieut. Hepburn, United States Navy, navigating officer of the United States Albatross, believes that he witnessed the birth of the volcanic island which arose from the sea in the midst of the Aleutian Islands about the time the city was shaken by the earthquake last April. One of Hepburn's shipmates is willing to corroborate the navigator in his belief, but other officers aboard are inclined to ascribe the lieutenant's vision to a trick of the mind. Whether he saw the island born or not the new peak was so sizzling hot that the Albatross passed it that no attempt was made to land, but when the revenue cutter Perry came along Hepburn's officers did go ashore and christened the new island Perry Island.

Professor H. Heath, who fills the chair of invertebrate zoology at Stanford University, and who arrived here on the liner, America, left the Albatross at Nagasaki. He was on board at the time Lieut. Hepburn witnessed the growth of Perry Island, but has heard both sides of the story and believes Hepburn really saw the island grow.
