Story of Norman Macleod is told by Dr. D. M. Grant

Guest speaker at the Heather Curling Club's luncheon Saturday was Dr. D. M. Grant, senior chaplain of the club, who told the members the story of Norman Macleod — the man to whom a simple granite memorial stands in St. Anne's, Cape Breton, N.S.

Norman Macleod was born in war-torn mid-eighteenth century Scotland. His parents had been deprived of their lands because of their hostility to the English king, and like all other Scottish people of that time he had a deep longing for knowledge.

Eventually he went to Aberdeen university and after that to seminary. But due to his refusal to live a normal conformed life the Church refused to ordain him.

In 1817, two hundred highlanders who had decided to emigrate to Canada asked Norman to go with them. Although he held a BA degree and was a gold medal winner for modern philosophy he decided to leave his home and go with these people to a new and untried land.

They landed in Nova Scotia, and he began to preach. The settlement grew up slowly and Norman quickly became accepted as their leader by sheer power of personality.

A few years later some Scottish immigrants living in Ohio visited Norman's church, and after hearing him preach asked him to bring his people and go back with them to Ohio.

Norman agreed. He supervised the fitting out of the vessels, charted the route, and despite the advice of the pessimists, who called the ship 'the Ark' and Norman 'Noah'—they set sail.

But they were caught in a storm and driven back up the Atlantic coast until they sailed into St. Anne's Bay for shelter.

Liking the place Norman decided that they should stay there. They built their own settlement, and built a school-house and a church.

In 1826 the government of Nova Scotia appointed Norman schoolmaster, postmaster and justice of the peace. He dictated the very lives of his people. He made himself personally responsible for their morals and habits of the people and they loved him for it. It is even said that he castigated his own wife in Church one Sunday for wearing a new hat that he disapproved of.

But his just and hard treatment...

ment of the people suited their moral fibre. Every time he preached his church was full, and in 1846 he built a new one to hold 1500 people.

Shortly after he received a letter from his son Donald in New Zealand, who described the new country and spoke of the work needed to be done out there.

Norman prayed and thought over the problem for many months, then went to his people and told them that God had summoned him to Australia, and he asked them to leave their homes and go with him.

At first there were loud objections from the people. They now had families, they had seen their old people buried in St. Anne's, and had seen the younger ones married. Many of them refused to go. But under Norman's insistence and under the influence of his faith, almost a quarter of the two thousand people now in the community decided to go with him.

After many delays due to lack of money and materials, two vessels set sail. It was an epic story. The Pilgrim Fathers cannot compare with it, neither can any story from the Iliad. These were people who had come across the Atlantic to a new country, and now the sheer personality of one man was persuading them to sail half way around the world to yet another new land. And Norman at that time was 71.

After twelve thousand miles sailing and 164 days they arrived in Adelaide, Australia. But Norman was very disappointed with his new land, and two years later moved on yet again to establish a settlement north of Auckland in New Zealand. But all the time he preached, and his people never lost faith in him.

Behind him, in Nova Scotia, St. Anne's rapidly became deserted, and the thriving settlement that he had established was soon gone.

Norman Macleod died in New Zealand at the age of 86. A great leader, a teacher, a preacher, a schoolmaster and a navigator. But above all, Dr. Grant concluded, a man of God.

Anna Russell here Sunday, Nov. 17

Anna Russell, famous international concert comedienne, whom England's critics have called "the funniest woman in the world" returns to Montreal in two recitals at Her Majesty's Theatre Sunday, November 17.

Well established as "one of the world's greatest entertainers," Anna Russell has consistently broken box-office records throughout the world. Appearing recently at Royal Albert Hall in London, England's largest concert hall, she dominated a 7,000 plus audience. Shortly before, Miss Russell won great acclaim starring in the Edinburgh Festival, and for the first time in the history of the festival extra performances were added.

Audiences the world over have rolled with laughter and rose to their feet with thundering applause over the hilarious antics of Anna Russell. In a class by herself, she has brought new life and laughter to the one-time sedate world of classical music. Uproarious spoofs on popular music, instrumentalists, and serious musicians in general have won her world-wide acclaim as a comedienne "par excellence."

Miss Russell began her career sedately enough in the realm of

Kilted Pipe band of 401 will march

Among the contingents taking part in the annual Armistice Parade to Westmount Cenotaph Sunday will be the famous pipe band of the 401 Squadron, RCAF Auxiliary. It will be a fitting climax to the highly successful year the band has enjoyed.

This summer they have made award-winning appearances at Syracuse, N. Y., and Fergus and Maxville, Ont. They have also given impressive displays of piping and drumming at the USAF's Strategic Air Command base, Plattsburg, N.Y.; and at the Griffis Air Base, near Rome, N.Y.

In the nine years since it was formed the band has travelled a long way both in terms of improvement and distance.

'Grasp Hands' is topic and not 'Grass Pants' speaker tells Rotary

Stories about "Grass Skirts" are a dime a dozen, but lectures by distinguished speakers on "Grass Pants" are not. That is why members of the Westmount Rotary Club can be forgiven for being intrigued and curious when they read in their bulletin that the speaker on Wednesday Lt. Col. Leonard (Red) Martin MBE had chosen "Grass Pants" as the subject of his address.

Colonel Martin an official of the Boy's Clubs of Canada and a director of the fossils club soon disillusioned them, when he explained that he was not there to give a preview of next year's Fossils' variety show, nor did he intend to perorate on the possibilities of herbal habiliments.

It was all a mistake attributable to that infernal device the telephone. The subject was "Grasp Hands". The bulletin editor presumably got things mixed up.

On the subject of "grasp hands" Col. Martin proved to be more entertaining than he might have been on the other subject. He started off by expounding the possibilities of the manual signal as a means of communication. "The grasped hand" he said, "is a sign of good fellowship, it is also a sign of congratulation and gratitude. Hands he said have always been used as symbols or a substitution for language. There are certain signs that require no explanation such as the clenched fist, "stop", "come on", and there is no doubt that when the boss points towards the door he means "Go".

There are signs that have not been universally accepted. Different peoples wave in different ways. In Italy during the war troops of the 1st Canadian Division were answered by what they interpreted as a come on sign when they whistled at the senoritas. This led to a certain amount of understandable confusion as the Canadians responded with screeching brakes. Let us say they were baffled until it was explained that the beckon was merely the European version of the wave.

Also in Italy there is the gesture to indicate appreciation.

'Y' Teens Club splash party on Saturday

If you haven't been attending the YMCA Teens Club dances every Saturday night, you don't know what you've been missing!

The next event on the club agenda is a Splash Party and a dance following. These will be held on Saturday, from 8 to 9 and dancing from 9 to 12. There is only one catch. You must be a member of the Teens Club to attend the Splash Party. The only way to remedy that is to buy a membership card for two dollars. These may be obtained at the door at any of the dances. However, to enter the dances, non-members pay fifty cents and members pay twenty-five cents. Actually, you gain in the long run by being a member.

The Teens Club has numerous projects planned for future dates and if you don't attend you will be missed — so join the fun. There'll be a Bowling Party on the sixteenth for members with the price twenty-five cents. A regular dance follows. On the twenty-third and thirtieth all are welcome to attend the dances. So guys and dolls, keep in tune with special events and join the ever-active Westmount YMCA Teens Club.

WE SAY *An Examiner Profile:Armistice rites deserve turnout

ARMISTICE Day is set aside each year to honor the memory of those who served, and especially of those who died in the fight against the tyrannies that precipitated the great wars of 1914-1918 and 1939-1946.

Sunday there will be services in churches and at cenotaphs throughout the country where our people will gather to pay silent tribute to a son, a brother, a husband, or a friend the memory of whom still lives.

Services will be held throughout West End Montreal, in most of our churches and at the Cenotaphs in Verdun, Notre Dame de Grace, Westmount and Montreal West. As the years pass, attendance at these services has been declining. First World War survivors are fewer than they once were, and many relatives of those who served and died in the Second World War have moved to other towns and cities where the names on the cenotaph roll of honor are strange to them.

It would be regrettable to see these services discontinued because of lack of attendance. They are a reminder of the sacrifices of two generations of our youth — sacrifices which preserved the liberties we enjoy today. We owe it to their memory to pay them this annual tribute.

Let us have large turnouts at these services on Sunday. Let us remember them.

WITH this issue, we are proud to present our readers with another "first" — a comprehensive guide to recreation, entertainment, and hobbies.

In this complicated age when so many have to work under pressure, under constant anxiety, or at unimaginative routine tasks, it is essential to a balanced, healthy life that we develop spare-time activities that help us to counter-balance the worries, the monotony, or the physical effort of our regular occupations.

It is especially important for those who contemplate retirement within the next few years to develop a hobby that will enable them to use their

25th year with Children's Theatre

By CYNTHIA JONES

WHEN the curtain goes up on Cinderella in Victoria Hall on Saturday afternoon, the predictable pandemonium from the young audience will mark the silver anniversary production of that unique institution, Children's Theatre.

For two generations these plays have been the greatest source of enchantment to the children of Montreal. For the past 25 years the two good providers of this exciting fairy-tale fare have been Dorothy Davis and Violet Walters.

This pair of gentlewomen, both of whom enjoyed a theatrical childhood, teamed up to establish the Children's Theatre in 1933. Their anniversary has been the occasion for a reception, many congratulatory messages from former pupils who now number in the thousands, and published praise from the critics. The Montreal Star and Herald's Walter O'Hearn recently referred to them as "two of the best troupers," who command his affection and respect.

"Needless to say we were thrilled," commented Miss Davis, while Miss Walters, dark eyes aglow, nodded.

"It was always a dream of mine to establish a theatre for children and when we teamed up 25 years ago our friends were glum and very skeptical," continued Miss Davis. "They scoffed that two women could get along together in business for very long but do you know that we have never had a signed agreement and what's more we have never had an argument."

TAKEN FOR SISTERS

THE two have been taken for sisters and their voices, rounded and throaty, are very similar. They met first at the Orpheum theatre when both were playing in a Russian melodrama called "Lithuania," produced by Edwin Waite. Dorothy was the 90-year-old grand dame; Violet, the delicate daughter.

During an interview at the Children's Theatre studio at 3835 Girouard avenue, these two charming women filled in their individual careers until their meeting.

Dorothy Davis was born into a London theatrical family. Her mother loved the theatre. A cousin, Julia James, was a leading light in Drury Lane pantomime. As a toddler Dorothy appeared in the London music halls. She remembers doing a comedy skit at five with her brother at the famed Paladium with Harry Lauder on the bill.

"He seemed like 99 to me then," said Miss Davis. "I remember I sang a Cockney song called 'Wouldn't it be love-ly?' very similar to the My Fair Lady song, and I was dressed in a pearl button suit."

HERE 38 YEARS

MISS DAVIS attended a West End theatrical school in London before coming to Montreal 38 years ago. She married Louis Stein here, has a son, Bob, who was a radio announcer in the United States for a time, and now is with Twentieth-Century-Fox in Montreal.

Dorothy pointed to Bob in a picture of the first Children's Theatre play, "The King of the Caves," with a cast of 14 from the original 20 pupils. "Now we have 300 pupils in five branches and there are as many as 70 children in the cast of 'Cinderella,'" said Miss Davis.

Violet Walters was a fine dancer and has a lithe, graceful figure. She was born in Colombo, Ceylon, the daughter of a government doctor who died when she was five months old. Her mother took Violet and her two sisters to Edinburgh. From there the family emigrated to Canada in 1918.

Violet was educated at St. Gabriel's Academy here in Montreal. She trained as a dancer in New York and joined a road company to tour about the States. "In my late teens I came back to Montreal and danced at the Palace, Capital, Imperial as one of the 'Six Rosebuds,' if you can believe it," she said.

WITH ATTENBOROUGH

AFTER starting theatre classes for children, Violet and Dorothy joined the John

DOROTHY DAVIS*VIOLET WALTERS

Attenborough Company in 1934 and had great fun in the old melodrama productions staged next to Her Majesty's in the Corona Barn, which was destroyed by fire in 1937.

"We revived that old company in 1950 and put on such plays as 'The Drunkard' and 'No Mother to Guide Her' in the Astor Cafe for three and a half years," said Miss Davis. "The summer before last we put on plays at Ste. Adele Lodge."

But their main interest is the training of the young in a school of theatre which gives instruction in diction, poise, deportment, elocution, mime, stage technique, TV and radio. "We are now teaching the children of our first children," said Violet. "Can you imagine it?"

"Thousands of children have passed through the door of the Children's Theatre since its opening," said Dorothy. "Lots of our children have done well in the theatrical profession and we've had quite a few lawyers, too."

THEIR SUCCESSES

THE women pointed with pride at the success among others of TV-cum-movie actor Bill Shatner; Pat Joudry, the TV playwright and actress; Dick Easton, who has played Shakespeare at Connecticut's Stratford; and actress Joy Mackenzie.

"We have done every conceivable fairy tale and adaptation of the classics," said Violet. "We only do repeats every five years. Besides doing 'Cinderella' we are presenting 'Little Women' and 'Snow White' this season."

The only adult who appears in the plays is Walter Wakefield who is the king in this week's production of "Cinderella." "He's

Stanley B. Wilson painting exhibit November 9 to 23

There is an exhibition of paintings by Stanley B. Wilson at 231 Elm Avenue, every afternoon and evening from November 9 to 23, and those especially interested in water colors will find it is in that medium he specializes. There are about 70 works in all, including half a dozen oil paintings, all done within the past year.

Most of the landscapes are the Laurentians in the vicinity of St. Adolphe de Howard, but some of the most important are of Westmount. One of the street scenes was shown at Cowansville and Granby last summer in the Independent Art Association exhibition.

All times of the year are represented, but the artist is at his best in spring and autumn.

A feature of the exhibition is the portraits, Mr. Wilson says, "It requires many years of practice and a thorough knowledge of the technical handling of water colors before one is able to make a finished portrait in that medium, that is, a reasonably good likeness which comes to life."

He considers his best portrait is an oil, "Sixty or So", a man with a good deal of character in his face. This was shown last spring by the Independent Art Association, in their exhibition in Montreal.

A few still lifes and two studies of birds complete the exhibition. Art students are particularly welcome.

The hands are normally used in salutations. The open hand of friendship that shows no weapons are concealed, which is used by the Indians usually accompanied by "How".

Col. Martin said that there various versions of the Nazi salute seen during the last war. There is also the clenched fist of the Communist International. The military salute is attributed to knights in armor raising their visors, whereas the naval salute is supposed to date from Nelson's time. The sailors were told to shield their eyes from the dazzling beauty of the Queen when she stepped on board to inspect them.

The most common form of salutation involving the hand is of course the hand shake. The handshake as we know it today is very revealing. There is the hairy chested character who gives you the old bone crusher and leaves you with a sodden soggy mass of bloody pulp dangling at the end of your arm. grasps because they believe it indicates virility. They almost rupture themselves in their effort to impress. Then there is that distasteful and unpleasant handshake we all know as the wet fish.

Then continued Col. Martin there are symbolic gestures accomplished by the hands. A chinaman is insulted if you rub your teeth in front of him. There are derisive gestures such as thumbing the nose and others with an almost universal significance, although Winston Churchill imparted a doubtful respectability to the most common. There is the sign of benediction, the soothing effect of hands waving languidly before the eyes as used by hypnotists and there is the bank on the table. Getting back to Churchill's V for victory gesture which was interpreted by the soldiery as "Up Your Kilt Milt" or had vague connections with a wire brush".

But the hand has other associations. The most elaborate mechanism made by God it has enabled man to rise above the brute and build a great civilization. With it he has tamed the animals of the wild, and constructed the mechanical marvels that we take so for granted in our time. With his hands Col. Martin concluded man can equip himself with the tools of industry. Therein lies the only hope for the swarming millions in the Far East. Prosperity can be made universal. When this is done then the energies of all men can be turned to human advancement — physically, mentally, morally and spiritually. The tools that created civilization can now show the way to world peace.

Looking back on Hallowe'en

By

The Venerable

R. Kenneth Naylor, D.D.,

Rector, Trinity Memorial Church

Hallowe'en is a curious manifestation of human behavior. It seems to meet certain needs. As we all know, children love to dress up and play adult parts. Adults love to dress up also, but they tend to conceal the fact. We all revel in the mysterious; and children particularly like the thrill that comes from something out of the ordinary.

When I was a boy the local country fair was held in September in the village where I lived. It was a grand affair; the men exhibited prize cattle, and the women prize pies. There were trotting races for fifty dollar prizes; and there were walking races where the man who came in first did not win the prize. There might even be a lacrosse match. But the high point of the Show Fair, as we called it, was the parade of the Terribles through the village streets. The Terribles were men with masks and clubs and all kind of fantastic costumes. I called it a parade. It was really a double parade — the Terribles and the small boys. I can assure you that we got a thrill out of the strangeness and mystery of it. There is something in mystery which appeals to all of us. We try to unlock the mysteries of the natural world, but it will be a sad time if we ever know the world so well that there is no mystery left. We try to understand the mystery of the spiritual world, and we find that it is beyond us. When we have made that discovery we react in one of two ways: some of us give up the mystery and make for ourselves a natural religion with a conception of God which we can understand, a god, in fact, made in our own likeness. We can even be proud of our success in understanding God.

On the other hand, some of us rejoice in the fact that God Himself is a mystery, a Person beyond our understanding; One who can only be known when He reveals Himself; and who best reveals Himself by taking on Himself our Human Nature.

The first kind of religion depends on the cleverness of men; the second depends on the goodness and love and humility of God. The first ministers to our pride; the second calls up the sense of awe which is the root of all true religion.

Christian Science

Man's perfect, sinless nature as the spiritual child of God will be emphasized in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "Adam and Fallen Man" at Christian Science services Sunday.

Keynoting the Scriptural readings is the following passage to be read from Genesis (1:27): "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

A correlative passage which refers to this record of creation will be read from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy (516: 27-29): "To emphasize this momentous thought, it is repeated that God made man in His own image, to reflect the divine Spirit."

The Golden Text is from Psalms (112:4): "Unto the upright there ariseth light in the darkness."

Dorothy Sproule, Canadian poet honored on occasion of birthday

By MILLICENT HICKMORE

Monday was a big day for Mrs. Dorothy Sproule, the distinguished Canadian poet and author, when she celebrated her 90th birthday. Talking to Mrs. Sproule, she said, "I never expected anything like this, visitors have been coming all day long, and I have received hundreds of cards, gifts, flowers and messages, some from people I scarcely know".

The Notre Dame d Grace Women's Club, which Mrs. Sproule helped to organize thirty-four years ago and of which she was the first president, sent flowers and the President, Mrs. I. K. Lowry and Past President, Mrs. Robert Japp visited her in person.

This homage, however, is well earned, as many of the finest Canadian, American and English magazines have bestowed eulogistic reviews of Dorothy Sproule's books of poetry, a beautiful brochure called "A Garland of Orchids" bound in gold, was at one time presented to her by thirty contemporary poets, among whom were three editors of poetry magazines. Over a period of time the following books have been published by Dorothy Sproule: "Poems of Life" (with introduction by the celebrated author Lloyd C. Douglas); "The Mystic Star," "Earth and Stars," "The Golden Goal" (with introduction by Lady Tweedsmuir); "Bread and Roses," "The Gold of Dawn," with preface by Sir Andrew MacPhail; and "The Silver Cloud," "The Cloud and the Fire," and many others.

Letters from the late King, Queen Mary, High Commissioners, Prime Ministers and many dignitaries adorn the walls of her modest living room. These are expressions of thanks and appreciation of her books.

The medals worn by Mrs. Sproule in the photograph, are the Coronation Medal, and the Gold Medal of the New York World's Fair which were granted her. The photograph is taken from a painting by the well known artist Oscar de Lall and was shown some time ago at the Art Association.

Mrs. Sproule is the widow of the late Rev. Frederick Sproule, B.A., and has a son, Lieut. F. A. Sproule, B.Sc. residing in Ottawa. Her looks and actions belying her years, Mrs. Sproule is interested in everything and every person and is a most charming person.

Remembrance Day

*With muffled drum, and silent tread
Thousands of marching feet draw near,
With reverence, for the gallant dead,
Our Nation's flower, — brave and dear.*

*Triumphant, tragic, day, — that dawn,
With sullen rain, and smoke and guns,
When Canada, her victory won;
At what a cost, — our hero sons.*

OVER 50 YEARS EXPERIENCE

Mrs. Esther Birnbaum, president chairs Cancer Research meet

The Cancer Research Society disbursed $36,160 towards the fight against cancer during the 1956-57 season, according to Mrs. Esther Birnbaum, president.

Speaking before the society's annual membership tea and fashion show held Monday in the Sheraton Mount Royal Hotel, Mrs. Birnbaum said the year was the most successful ever recorded in club history.

Since the society was founded 12 years ago, a sum of almost half a million dollars has been disbursed to city hospitals, researchers and institutions for the care and treatment of indigent cancer patients and for the continuation of research projects being carried on in Montreal, she said.

Those which received research grants amounting to the sum of $23,760 were the Montreal Cancer Institute of Notre Dame Hospital; Montreal General Hospital; Jewish General Hospital; McGill-Montreal General Hospital Research Institute and McGill University.

Senior and junior fellowships granted amounted to $16,900.

A total of $15,500 was granted to provide care, treatment and medicine for indigent cancer patients to the Reddy Memorial Hospital; Jewish General Hospital; Montreal Children's Hospital and to the Well Women's Clinic of the Royal Victoria Hospital.

And, in addition, indigent grants of $1,000 each will be presented to eight Montreal hospitals shortly.

Dr. Arnold Grossman of the Montreal General Hospital was guest speaker at the meeting and he paid high tribute to the eight thousand members of the Cancer Research Society.

"We of the medical profession in Montreal," he said, "realize that you are a consecrated group of women who put in long hours of intense and devoted effort trying to raise funds in order to help hospitals, doctors, research workers as well as the patients themselves in their fight against cancer."

Dr. Grossman reviewed the work of the Montreal General Hospital's Tumour Clinic for 1956 and said out-patient visits to the department totalled 1,958. The number of new cases registered through the tumour registry department in 1956 numbered 823.

Speaking of his own department — in ear, nose and throat — Dr. Grossman said 376 persons were examined and 340 endoscopic procedures carried out.

"Insofar as cancer of the larynx is concerned, the statistics for cure in this region are highly encouraging. Results at the Montreal General Hospital compare easily with those of the best clinics in the world," he said.

Dr. Grossman said he was looking forward to the day when the Cancer Research Society will join with the Canadian Cancer

'Every child has a sense of music' says Sonia Chamberlain, ballet teacher

Four is the best age for a child to start ballet lessons, says Sonia Chamberlain, of 237 Kensington avenue, Westmount, holder of the advanced certificate of the Royal Academy of Dancing, who is now giving lessons in Montreal. Miss Chamberlain, herself, took her first lessons in her native Yorkshire when she was a year younger.

Every child, Miss Chamberlain believes, has a sense of music. It may not be immediately apparent but it's certainly there. The aim of the ballet teacher in the early years should be to develop this sense, to get a child to listen to music and express what it means to her. So she presents music which may symbolize toy soldiers marching or fairies playing, and teaches the child to follow the tune and explain it through gesture.

Mime is a great aid to self-expression, for it brings out a child's creative instincts. Gradually pupils are led to act the characters of their favorite stories and to perform nursery rhymes in dance. But it's most important, Miss Chamberlain says, that the teacher provide a varied program. Even the most interested little ballerina-to-be will get bored if she has to do the same thing for too long.

To many people ballet means point-dancing. Here Miss Chamberlain has a word of warning. It's most unwise to start a girl on her points until she's at least twelve. For bones are still very soft and strain can easily distort the legs or muscles. In fact, she herself gives her pupils three years of special muscle exercises before they are allowed to do any point work.

Miss Chamberlain's ideas are the product of considerable experience as a teacher of both ballroom dancing and ballet. After initial studies at Bradford, she qualified as a teacher at the North Wales School of Dancing. She then taught for three years as head assistant at an Edinburgh ballet school. Next she was appointed ballet mistress to the Conservatoire de Musique in Alexandria.

"There were 30 pupils when I joined the Conservatoire. We had 250 when the Suez crisis made it impossible for me to carry on," Miss Chamberlain remarked. Teaching in Egypt, she recalls, was quite different from anything she had previously experienced. Turkish coffee was one of the hazards. Pupils and teachers were expected to drink it at all hours of the day, and so much liquid on the stomach was no aid to dancing. It was considered very rude to refuse an offer of coffee, but she did manage to limit her own consumption to four cups a day.

One of the highlights of her time in Alexandria was putting on a ballet in his private theatre for local notable, Count Patric de Zogheb. It being the 150th anniversary of the birth of Hans Andersen, she designed a ballet of his most famous stories to Grieg's Holberg Suite. her work won the hearty approval of the famous French composer Georges Ibert, who was judging the final examinations at the Conservatoire.

Another incident was a surprise party on a scale that took her breath away. One of her pupils, the wife of a pasha, insisted on giving her the party as a birthday present. It turned out to be a ball and banquet with 80 guests, and culminated in cutting a monumental birthday cake decorated with a pair of ballet slippers.

Though there are times she misses the exotic excitement of life in Egypt Miss Chamberlain thoroughly enjoys working in Montreal and Bedford, where she also runs ballet classes. "There is a tremendous interest in ballet here and lots of talent," she says. "It's a great challenge to adapt successfully the methods of European schools to Canadian requirements." She regrets though the lack of interest in serious ballroom dancing, for there is nothing, she believes, so effective for teaching a teenager social ease and personal grace.

Hospital dance well attended

The Blue Room of the Windsor Hotel was decorated with blue and gold on Saturday night for the annual dinner dance of The Reddy Memorial Hospital. Tall standards of roses, palms and greenery were used as decoration around the dias and orchestra platform.

National Ballet to give special student matinee

An unusual feature during the forthcoming engagement of the National Ballet is a special matinee for students. Mrs. Gordon Small, Chairman of the Montreal Guild, has announced that the school children will be privileged to attend a performance of the delightful "Coppelia" in two acts on November 20 at 4 p.m. at Her Majesty's Theatre.

Seats for this matinee will be reserved but will be sold at the Ballet Guild office, Room 26, the Windsor Hotel. All tickets are one price and will be sold on a first come, first served basis. Adults will be admitted only if accompanied by a child. This is quite a departure from the scheduled matinees in the past, but the Guild feels that more school children should be given an opportunity of seeing good ballet at an hour when neither school attendance nor homework is interrupted. If the event is successful this season, more special matinees may be performed next year.

Further information may be obtained by calling the Ballet Guild office or from members of the appointed committee: Mrs. M. E. uation is that the statisticians tell us that the numbers will grow considerably greater in the years that stretch immediately before us.

Probably there is no single problem that has caused educators so much distress in this decade as that of attempting to provide an adequate education for the ever-increasing numbers of boys and girls swarming into our schools and colleges. The saddest future of the entire situation is that the statisticians tell us that the numbers will grow considerably greater in the years that stretch immediately before us.

The causes of the present unsatisfactory situation are, as usual, complex. The low birth rate of the depression years, the virtual halt to school construction during the depression era, and the vastly increased birth rate of the war years and of the prosperous post-war years have all combined to produce today's nation-wide educational headache comprised of overcrowded schools, overcrowded classes and understaffed faculties.

LARGE CLASSES

It may be that there are some who do not realize the full gravity of the situation. Why, they may ask, cannot teachers handle classes of 40 or 50 with the same skill as they could handle 20 or 30? After all, what is the difference between explaining algebraic questions to a small group or a large group?

Such questions, of course, are never asked by those who have had any teaching experience. They know better.

Research workers in the realm of education tell us that the ideal class would contain 20 students, that no class should exceed 30 if teaching that is to be maximally effective is to be carried on. Yet outside the realm of the private school, the class of under 30 has virtually disappeared. The class of 40 is not uncommon. Classes of over 40 have ceased to be the rarities that they once were.

What is the result? The result is that the students are being educationally shortchanged. The larger the class, the more difficult it becomes for even the most gifted of teachers to meet the individual needs and interests of the students in a class. The amount of written work that a teacher can demand is reduced by the sheer impossibility of correcting it all.

PRESENT SITUATION

It takes only a few moments' reflection for a person to realize the full effects of the present situation. Pressure is brought to bear on educational administrators to hire unqualified teachers in an effort to ease the chronic shortage of teachers. There is a tendency for academic standards to slide downwards. The school's guidance personnel find that it becomes virtually impossible to provide all the students with the guidance services which they have a right to expect.

What is the role of the parent in all this? It seems to me that the parent's first task is to get

HIGHEST PEAK

Mount McKinley, in Alaska, with an altitude of 20,269 feet, is Mount Aconcagua (pronounced well known as the highest point of land in North America; but the Book of Knowledge points out that the loftiest peak in the whole western hemisphere is Aw-kon-kaw-gwa) on the borders of the Argentine and Chile. It stands 23,081 feet above sea level.

Alaska is notable for its profusion of great peaks and has at least 15 that are higher than any mountains in the United States proper. The highest mountain in Canada and the second highest in North America is Mount Logan, 19,850 feet. Everest tops them all at 29,002 feet, monarch of the mighty range in which stand half a dozen mountains each over 25,000 feet high.

STAMPS GALORE

Wayne L. Bungay

On September 30, 1931, Sir George Elienne Cartier was subject of a 10-cent green Canadian stamp. Cartier was a French-Canadian statesman who took over leadership in Lower-Canada (Quebec) on the retirement of Lafontaine. This stamp was to have been issued in 1927 but was delayed.

On July 12, 1932, a 13-cent green stamp depicted two hemispheres, with the portions of the Empire in a darker shade of green and Britannia seated between the hemispheres viewing the western hemisphere where the conference was being held.

On May 18, 1933, the executive committee of the Universal Postal Union met in Ottawa. To recognize this event, Canada issued a 5-cent blue stamp showing Parliament Hill in Ottawa and revealing the wooded cliff from the Ottawa River.

In 1933 the World Grain Conference was held in Regina, the studied art at an early age in London, Paris and Rome. He follows no particular school, feeling that by so doing an artist becomes stilted. Instead, he has attempted to express his conception of form blended with color harmony in such a way that his works will find their proper setting in the home.

This novel exhibition is a "first" in Montreal and members of the auxiliary feel that the works of Mr. Marchand, who is now coming into prominence in Canadian art circles, will draw considerable comment.

Broncs and Mules clash in playoff Saturday

Saturday will be a big day for the Broncs and the Mules as they move into a sudden death final game for the league championship.

Coaches McCullagh and Guilfoyle of the Broncs are quite confident that they can out hustle the Mules in this one, but coaches O'Neill and McFadden of Mules are going to put up a stubborn fight to try and take the league championship.

In last Saturday's games, Huskies continued their winning ways by downing the Bull 6-0. David Tyldsley went 20 yards up the gut for the loan major of the game. Both teams played good defensive ball.

Coaches MacDonald and Wilson have done very well in improving the calibre of play of all players on their teams.

In the second game, the Broncs galloped all over the Mules to score a shutout 31 to 0. Georgie Spare, quarterback of the Broncs, jumped into life for this game and counted four majors himself.

His first was a 35 yard run around right end; his second a pass interception and 70 yard run; his third a 25 yard run around end after receiving a lateral pass from Tony McCullagh who had carried for 20 yards before passing to Spare. McCullagh went over for the Broncs 5th. T.D. from one yard out. Tony also kicked the only convert of the game.

Broncs could not do anything wrong while the Mule seemed to be completely flustered. Doug Fisher, Gord Robson, J. D. Tilley, Hugh Daw, Jackie Britton, Tim Rothwell, and Bobby Willis, all played exceptionally well for the winners. Tony Tyrrell, Mike Ditomasso, Gary Duncan, and Bert Wingfield were the only ones showing any spark for the down trodden Mules.

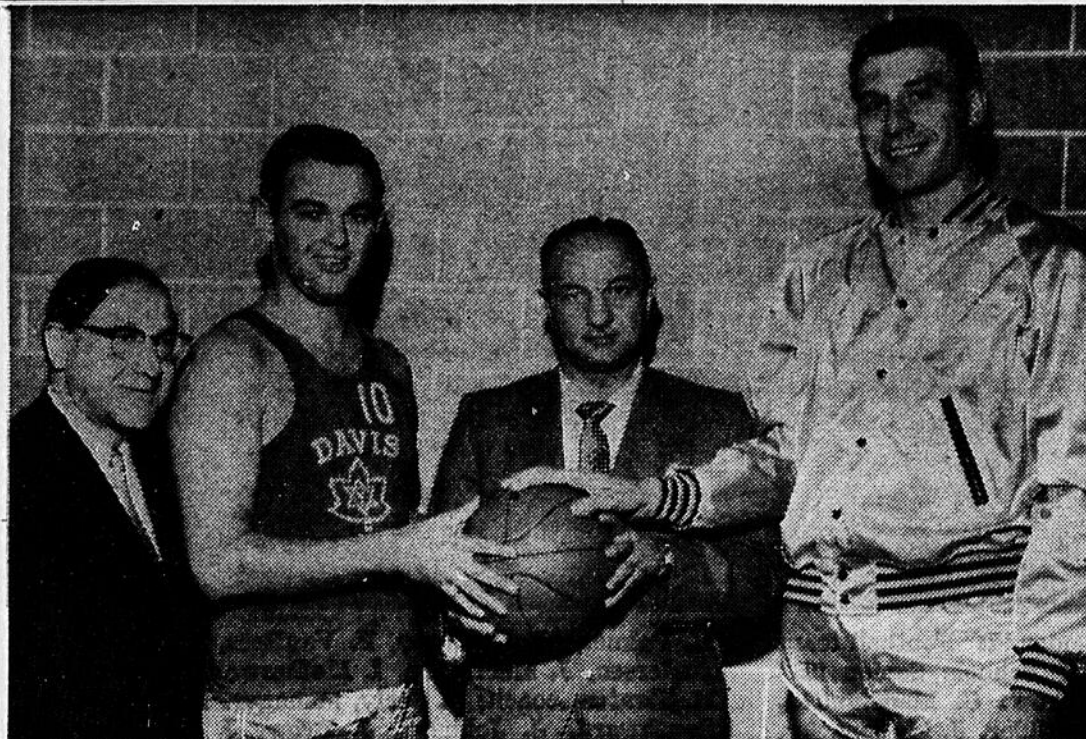

Tentative plans have been made to play an all star team from St. Lambert on Saturday November 16th at the Westmount Athletic Grounds at 10:00 a.m. The Westmount All Star team will be named next week.

Lakeshore upsets YMHA Blues 75-70

Phil Fleurquin's sensational second half scoring binge carried Lakeshore to a 75-70 Golden Ball basketball triumph over Davis YMHA Blues at John Rennie High School.

Fleurquin and playing-coach Ed Lucht both rode the bench until the start of the third quarter when, with Lakeshore behind 34-32, they went into the game and spurred their club into the lead.

A former De LaSalle star, Fleurquin hit the hoops for 24 points while Lucht was outstanding at controlling the backboards. Lucht sank nine points.

Mel Mikalchki scored 16 points for the Blues with Altman getting 14 and Ben Vogel 13.

Upsets were the vogue in Senior B Golden Ball.

Last year's provincial champions, Unity Boys, were toppled 44-35 by Holy Trinity and league newcomers Victors upset University of Montreal 54-39.

Daskalakis and Jim Tjelios led Holy Trinity to its surprise win, the latter scoring 12 points. Hodgeman tallied nine digits for the losers. Robert sparked Victors with 25 points.

In a Saturday game St. Lambert downed Westmount Y 75-63. Dowe led the team with 28 points while Bryant tallied 21 for Westmount.

Jets unbeaten, untied in metro junior hockey league play with four victories

SAINT Laurent Jets have started to run away from the Metro Junior Hockey League pack. They have scored four straight wins and the rail-birds are picking the Jets to be in the finals and possible win the title which they lost to Nationale in last year play-off.

The Jets came up with an 8-5 win over Lachine Maroons which is not news as Lachine are going on with only local hockey products. Considering the power of the Jets, Maroons did alright to score five goals.

In their other victory, Jets had to go all out to beat Snowdon Ponsards 3-2 at the Forum Monday night. It was new coach Con Broden's first loss in two starts since he took over the Ponsards team. He has been working with the club while Don Penniston was busy with his business.

There's a three way fight for second place with Quebec Baronets, Ponsards and St. Jerome. Nationale and NDG Monarchs are also tied with one win each while Lachine are without a win in three starts.

The Nats are not doing so good. They were beaten by St. Jerome 5-0 on Monday at the Forum. But, the Saints suffered a 7-5 loss from the hands of Ponsards. The Quebec team beat Nats 4-2 in the Sunday tilt.

Loyola captures senior 'A' title

Loyola are again senior 'A' interscholastic champions and the team they beat were West Hill. It marked the third straight year that the two teams have tangled for the crown and the third time that Loyola had come out on top.

In winning, it was Loyola's 18th straight game in three years of play. John Roche scored in the first quarter from 10 yards out. Mike Ferrie converted.

A series of ground plays saw Key Danaher tally his second major from 20 yards out in the second quarter. Roche scored the convert on a pass from Ferrie.

Mike Costain threw a fourth quarter pass to Danaher to end the scoring.
