

Great Battle of Aisne Is Not Yet Decisive Allies, However, Are Confident of Success

Turning Movement Progresses German Position Exceedingly Strong Lull in Battle as Night Falls

SUPREME CONFLICT OF CAMPAIGN—MAY BE GREAT ASSAULT ON GERMAN TOWNS TO-DAY.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—The battle of the Aisne, now in its sixth day, and beginning as a rear guard action, has developed into the supreme conflict of the French campaign.

The latest official news sets forth that there has been a lull in the titanic artillery duel. This is taken to indicate that today's struggle may be marked by a tremendous advance of infantry, such as made the battlefield of the Marne a scene of indescribable horror and desolation.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—The War Office reports a lull in the great battle along the river Aisne.

Up to the present the Allies have failed to dislodge the Germans. Many hand to hand combats have raged. ALLIES DELIVER FIERCE ATTACK ON GERMAN'S STRONG POSITION.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—The correspondent of the Express at Soissons, telegraphing under date of Sept. 17, via Paris, says:

"The great artillery duel continues unabated, and the position is the same as it was four days ago. The Germans have prepared elaborate trenches and barbed wire approaches to protect the positions of their heavy guns behind the hillcrest. 'A British officer said to me to-day, 'If we had the same position we would never be shifted while our ammunition lasted. We realize the serious task which faces the Allies. 'The infantry losses must be extremely heavy. The aeroplanes of the Allies are doing splendid service. Last night one located a train filled with retreating German soldiers, and the pilot dropped a torch to indicate the range. Our artillery blew the train to atoms in a few minutes.'"

AUSTRIANS PREPARE NEW LINE TO MEET RUSSIANS. London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—A despatch from Rome to the Exchange Telegraph Company says: "Despatches from Vienna state that the Austrians on Friday fortified an extended new defensive front which will reach to Cracow. General Boveriz will command the right wing, with his centre resting at Przemyśl. The centre will be commanded by General Von Auffenberg, with Tarnobrzeg as his base, and the left wing will be commanded by General Dankl with the Germans supporting his extreme left.

"The entire Russian left wing, under command of Generals Ruzsky and Brusiloff, is expected momentarily to begin an attack. The initial assault is expected against Przemyśl."

ALLIES DEVELOPING TURNING MOVEMENT.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—A despatch to the Times from Bordeaux dated Friday says:

"Throughout yesterday the whole front was engaged, the fight again being hottest on the left flank, where the turning movement is becoming well defined. The enemy made a series of vigorous counter-attacks.

"General French's army has again been singled out for the enemy's particular attention, but their three attempts to get a hold upon it were in vain.

"While the fighting is hard on the eastern half of their front, the Germans are digging hard in the centre from Rheims to Argonne, and this probably will form the pivot of the battle."

BATTLE RAGED FIERCELY ALL DAY YESTERDAY.

Paris, Sept. 19.—(Special)—Fragments of news from the front confirm the serious character of the combat on the Aisne. Some of those wounded on Thursday, who have arrived here, declare that the fighting was even more violent than on the Marne and say the losses on both sides must be heavier.

The British, as on the Marne, are bearing the brunt of the counter-attacks and are conducting themselves brilliantly.

After a four days' constant hammering, the German artillery slackened its fire last evening, during a heavy downpour of rain, which lasted all night.

The trenches must have been nearly filled with water, diminishing greatly the advantage of the defence works prepared by the Germans, and at the same time adding to the suffering of the wounded.

KAISER'S PET CORPS BLOTTED OUT.

Paris, Sept. 19.—The Prussian Corps de Garde, the Empire's military elite and the Kaiser's special pride, has been practically blotted out in the battles fought along the Meuse, Marne and Aisne.

7,000 GERMAN PRISONERS AT BORDEAUX.

Bordeaux, Sept. 19.—Seven thousand prisoners belonging to Bavarian, Saxon and Hanoverian regiments arrived to-day. Most of them are wounded.

RUSSIA WATCHING TURKEY.

Rome, Sept. 19, 1.55 a.m., via Paris.—(Special)—The steamer Pavignans has arrived at Naples from the Orient, and her officers report that the Russian Black Sea fleet, comprising twenty units, is cruising off the entrance of the Dardanelles, ready to attack the Turkish squadron if it should leave the Golden Horn.

FRENCH AVIATORS NOW USE NEW WEAPON.

Berlin, Sept. 19.—(Special)—A shower of steel arrows, released by French aviators over a mile high in the air, is the most modern terror of war, according to accounts of German wounded, printed in the Munich Medical Weekly. The arrows, which are of pressed steel, from four to six inches long and a quarter of an inch in diameter, have a heavy pointed head and a skeletonized shaft. The arrows seem to have caused more surprise than actual damage. Only one man was killed by a head wound in the attack described. The others caused mostly flesh wounds. The regiment to which the wounded belonged, resting in close battalion formation, paid little attention to two aviators circling a mile overhead, until the novel projectiles suddenly rained down, scattering far and wide. Men were wounded in three companies.

The battery in the rear, at first non-plussed, later realized the source of the missiles, and as many as possible crawled under the waggon and escaped another shower of them.

AUSTRIA SENDING AID TO ALBANIA.

London, Sept. 19, 12.08 p.m.—(Special)—The Star has published a despatch from Rome saying that a warship cruising in the Adriatic has captured an Austrian steamer flying the Greek flag, loaded with arms and ammunition destined for Albania.

BRITISH ARREST GERMAN AND AUSTRIANS IN ENGLAND.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—In the great steel pavilion known as the Olympia, there are now detained some hundred Germans, Austrians and Hungarians whom His Majesty's Government thinks best to keep under key until the end of the war. The number often passes six hundred, but the daily arrivals and reduced by drafts being sent to the detention camps in the country.

London, Sept. 19.—(Special)—A French officer who has just returned from the battle front is authority for the statement that the straining on both sides of the line promises soon to get beyond human endurance. He likens the antagonists to two exhausted pugilists and says that soon they will be unable to inflict further punishment on each other. If this situation develops, the only possible way for the Allies to prevent a weary and disheartening winter campaign, it is argued here, will be a successful assault on the German communications. Such an assault, it is admitted by the Allies, will not be an easy matter. The Belgian army is harrying the invaders and probably prevents the despatch of any great part of the German army now occupying Belgium to reinforce their countrymen in France.

ALLIES CONFIDENT OF SUCCESS

PRESENT GREAT BATTLE MAY BE LONG, BUT VICTORY IS EXPECTED.

Paris, Sept. 19.—Frank admission was made last evening that neither the Germans nor the Allies have scored any decisive advantage in the great battle which has raged for six days along the Aisne river and eastward across the Meuse.

The French and British artillery has failed to dislodge the invaders from their strongly entrenched positions on the heights along the Aisne and north of Rheims. But the vigor of the Allies' assaults has compelled the invaders to remain upon the defensive.

Paris awaits the outcome without trepidation. A feeling of confidence exists that the French and British will ultimately triumph and there are no fears that the capital will again be put in jeopardy of attack.

General Gallieni, the French military governor, believes that the battle will continue for some days yet upon the present field.

"The Germans are far from their ammunition depots and compelled to keep up a constant bombardment," said General Gallieni. "The Allies can afford to wait and to refresh their troops before making a grand

"WE CAME PLUMP ON THEM ROUND A CORNER OF A LITTLE VILLAGE."

ENGLISH AND GERMAN CAVALRY DUEL WITH SWORDS IN FRANCE.—From a drawing by Philip Daud, who made his picture for the story told a correspondent by a British hussar: "We ran plump on a party of the German 4th Cuirassiers round a corner of a little village. Absolute surprise for both of us. Before you could wink we were flying at one another as hard as the horses could go, and the villagers were yelling and scrambling into the houses on either side of the road. There was no firing, it was absolutely a proper cavalry charge, like you see in the pictures—horses going hell-for-leather and every man sitting hunched up under the No. 1 guard and hoping he wouldn't get his knees crushed by the fellows on each side of him. Lighter though they were, the Hussars went at a pace that more than compensated for their inferior weight. The Cuirassiers in full stride and on fresh horses might have ridden over us, but, slower at the 'take off' and, as was subsequently proved, mounted on horses already driven to death, they were taken at a tremendous disadvantage. Twenty-seven of them were killed and twelve were taken prisoners."

PEACE TALK FROM WASHINGTON

U. S. Believes Kaiser Would Quit and Call the War Draw

PRESIDENT MAY SOUND ALLIES ON THE QUESTION—MAY ASK FOR TERMS.

Washington, Sept. 19.—Through the Imperial Chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, to Ambassador Gerard at Berlin, following an inquiry sent by the American Government, Germany has suggested informally that the United States should undertake to secure from Great Britain, France and Russia a statement of terms by which the Allies would accept peace.

According to high diplomatic authority, the Kaiser's attitude is as follows:

First—Germany would be glad to listen to mediation suggestions, but is absolutely prohibited by the attitude of England.

Second—Germany will not stop fighting so long as England declares this must be a war to the finish.

Third—Germany can take up the question of mediation and peace only when the Allies are willing to assume a like attitude of conciliation and consideration.

RESIST DISMEMBERMENT.

Fourth—If this is to be a war to the finish, as England declares daily, then Germany will fight on. If the Allies are determined to crush and dismember her, then she will fight to the last man.

Fifth—If the world at large hopes

The young ladies certainly are to be congratulated on their ability to entertain. A short play was one feature of the programme, given by six young ladies. A "silver wand" drill was another enjoyable thing. Songs and recitations were also very good. The girls served ice cream and home-made candy at the close, thus netting a nice little sum for their treasury.

"It is interesting to note that this amount was collected by the Ladies by weighing people on the Toledo Heavy Capacity Automatic Scale, which I offered to your Association for the week of the Sherbrooke Fair, especially when you consider that this amount has been collected in very small sums.

"I think that you will agree with me that the ladies who were in charge of the scale deserve all congratulations for the untiring efforts that they put forth and for the energy and enthusiasm they displayed in working for such a good cause.

"I am very thankful, indeed, to believe that I have been able to be of some assistance, if only in a small degree, in helping the good work.

Sincerely yours,

ROBERT W. HOGG.

BARACAS HELD MEETING LAST NIGHT

The Baraca club held their annual business meeting last night at the club rooms, Esplanade Avenue. The officers and board of management for the coming year were elected.

The secretary reported a slight deficit from last year's operations in connection with the football club but this was nearly wiped out by voluntary subscriptions from the members present. Everyone was of the opinion that the club should be continued this winter in spite of the rather uncertain conditions, which greatly affect sport and social organizations.

The officers elected for the coming year include: Messrs. C. G. Brown, E. Salter, G. Hall, F. Southgate and C. Connors.

The Baraca football team will play the Royals in a league game this afternoon on the Parade Grounds.

MR. AND MRS. MCKEE CELEBRATED 25TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A very unique and interesting event took place Monday evening at Wesley Hall, Court Street, in the celebration of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. J. Wesley McKee, their silver wedding.

The affair was in the nature of a surprise to Mr. and Mrs. McKee and would have been tendered at their own house but for the delicate health of Mrs. Clark Gordon, Mrs. McKee's mother. Both Mr. and Mrs. Gordon, however, were able to be present, with the Rev. G. A. McIntosh, Mrs. McIntosh, and some seventy-five intimate friends, principally members of the Methodist Church. The Hall was lavishly decorated with flowers and foliage, huge bouquets of bright colored autumn blossoms being arranged on the platform and about the room, and the evening was delightfully and informally spent with music, singing and conversation many remembrances of the past years being recalled.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee, the latter attended by the bridesmaid at her wedding, Mrs. G. E. Hyndman, were presented by their friends with an exquisite and artistic silver basket filled with flowers standing on a silver mirror, as a souvenir of the occasion.

The presentation was made by the Rev. Mr. McIntosh, who was especially happy in his brief address, voicing the affection and esteem of friends present and absent.

He congratulated the couple on the completion of a quarter century of happy wedded life and hoped for them many more years of serene contentment and usefulness.

Mr. McKee replied on behalf of himself and his wife, thanking the speaker and their friends for their kindness.

All present joined in the hearty singing of "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows," and after refreshments had been served, the pleasant evening came to a regretful end.

Mr. and Mrs. McKee, who were married on Sept. 10, 1899, by the Rev. Dr. Eldridge, their pastor of the Methodist Church, are old residents of Sherbrooke, the latter having been born and brought up here. They are both staunch members of the Methodist Church, and have hosts of friends both in Sherbrooke and elsewhere, who extend their cordial good wishes on the occasion of the anniversary.

Mrs. McKee received a number of handsome and valuable gifts of silver from her family and others.

THE GIRL GUIDES.

"What will you do for Canada, Dear little Canadian maid? You may be poor, weak and obscure, Still you can lend your aid. It matters so much to Canada What you will try to do; You can, if you will, make her great—er still, It lies, little girl, with you."

What is a Girl Guide? Just a bright, happy girl, willing to try to do a good turn every day, to take healthy exercise, learn to do useful things in the best and shortest way, prevention of disease, first aid to the injured, signalling (Morse code), and many other things which help a girl to be prepared for her future as a Guide of our fair Dominion.

"Please, how much does it cost to join the Girl Guides? Please, ma'am, do we have to have poles and jack-knives? Brother said so." These are questions from little upturned faces to the ladies who have been visiting the schools in the interest of this movement. It doesn't cost anything to join the Guides; no, little girl, you don't have to have poles and knives. We don't want our girls to try to imitate the Boy Scouts; the highest aim of the Girl Guide is to be a Lady.

There is a call for young men to help in the Scout movement. Every teacher in this city is in sympathy with this work, but is it fair to ask them to take offices when there are so many who could easily spare two or three hours a week? The committee will be glad to receive the names of two or three young ladies who are willing to act as lieutenants. No previous knowledge is required; just an interest in the work will ensure the right beginning.

The organization will take place on Tuesday, the 22nd, and it is to be hoped, with every girl who desires to be a loyal subject of our Empire, in line. Anyone wishing for information will obtain it from Miss Nita Hunt, 46 Melbourne street, or from Mrs. R. G. Price, 89 Bridge street.

HORTICULTURAL FAIR A SUCCESS

Largest Attendance on Record
Dunham

ALL DEPARTMENTS WELL FILLED - PRIZE LIST.

Dunham, Sept. 19—(Special)—The 36th Annual Horticultural Fair closed Thursday night and was generally conceded to be the best in several years both in attendance and exhibits. The weather was ideal, and the roads in perfect condition for the motoring and for carriage driving, were in no small way responsible for the better attendance than for the last two or three years. The apples were not up to the mark, but the exhibit of the musk melons, water melons, and citron, were unusually good. The vegetables were all good. Hubbard squash especially. The display of fancy work and flowers would have done credit to a City Fair as far as they went. The special prizes were all competed for with the exception of one class of the special prize given by the Home-makers Club, The tea in aid of the Patriotic Fund was well patronized, in spite of the short notice. Donations of sugar and tea were received from the merchants in town which was a great help. The sum realized amounted to over $12, which will make a good beginning for a worthy object.

RICHMOND'S SECOND DAY

PARADE OF LIVE STOCK A FEATURE—SUMMARY OF RACES

Richmond, Sept. 19—(Special)—The most successful fair ever held by the Richmond County Agricultural Society, came to a close last night. The directors, officials, exhibitors, and the general community are to be congratulated upon the results. ... Four thousand five hundred persons passed through the gates yesterday.

The weather was perfect and a cooling breeze rendered the atmosphere most agreeable.

In the forenoon a parade of the driving horses took place. There were some smart turnouts and keen competition for the prizes. Some of the ladies showed great skill in handling the ribbons.

The parade of live stock headed by the Richmond Town Band was held in front of the Grand stand in the afternoon. This was a fine display and far ahead of previous years. An Ayrshire bull and a pair of oxen were among the leading features. The horses too were much admired.

The races were again the principal attraction. When the first event was called at 1.30 the grandstand was filled. The track was in splendid condition, every heat was followed with intense interest and some of the best racing that has been seen in the Townships this year was witnessed. In the Free-for-all the track record of 2.17 1/2 was broken; this was the fastest race ever trotted over the Richmond track.

The following is a summary of yesterday's races:

THREE MINUTE CLASS

Prize money $100, divided 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.
Nellie S., (J.A. Lefebvre) 1 1 1
Ruby Lee (E. Allen) 2 3 2
Sir John (H.D. Houde) 3 2 3
Vangelina (G. Libby) 4 4 4
Time—2.29 1/2; 2.29 1/2; 2.31.

FREE FOR ALL

Prize money $200, divided 50, 25, 15 and 10 per cent.
Red Wilkes (W. Dube) 2 2 1 1 1
Go. Tel. (H. Dufresne) 1 1 5 4 4
Manzer Girl (H. Houde) 5 3 2 2 3

Amongst the visitors yesterday were E.W. Tobin, M.P. for Richmond and Wolfe, and H.B. Miller, Secretary of the Sherbrooke Exhibition.

Mr. L.A. Bayley, President of the E.T.A.A., and Mr. F.B. Wilson, one of the directors, were present on Wednesday.

The ladies of the Patriotic Booth held a food sale yesterday afternoon. If the results of the efforts of the young ladies who were collecting on the grounds for the Patriotic Fund, were in proportion to their zeal, the amount received should represent a nice little sum.

There was only one disconsolate face amongst the vast crowd yesterday, and that was of a cattle dealer, who was trying to purchase animals and found none were for sale.

It is understood that a subway will be built next year from the centre of the field, via the west corner on the left side of the grand stand to Main Street. This will be a great convenience in getting to the station and in crossing the track.

In the baseball game yesterday afternoon, Melbourn tried for the third time to defeat Richmond but were unsuccessful. The score was—Richmond 15, Melbourn 12.

Carry Your Patriotism Into Your Buying!

For ten years we have been talking practical patriotism—urging Canadians to buy the Canadian-made Gillette Safety Razor in preference to cheap German makeshifts.

The war has clinched our arguments.

So confident are we of the future of the only safety razor made throughout in Canada, that we are bringing out within a few weeks a New Model the

GILLETTE "BULLDOG"

It's British to the hilt, and looks the part. The price stands at $5.00—no increase over the Standard Gillette Set. Watch for the Gillette "Bulldog" ["what we have we'll hold"] in the shop windows—you'll like it.

The war has not checked Gillette progress. Our factory is running full time, with complete staff. Thus we are doing our part toward maintaining Canada's prosperity. Do yours by buying, in preference, goods

NOTES

Amongst the visitors yesterday were E.W. Tobin, M.P. for Richmond and Wolfe, and H.B. Miller, Secretary of the Sherbrooke Exhibition.

Mr. L.A. Bayley, President of the E.T.A.A., and Mr. F.B. Wilson, one of the directors, were present on Wednesday.

The ladies of the Patriotic Booth held a food sale yesterday afternoon. If the results of the efforts of the young ladies who were collecting on the grounds for the Patriotic Fund, were in proportion to their zeal, the amount received should represent a nice little sum.

There was only one disconsolate face amongst the vast crowd yesterday, and that was of a cattle dealer, who was trying to purchase animals and found none were for sale.

It is understood that a subway will be built next year from the centre of the field, via the west corner on the left side of the grand stand to Main Street. This will be a great convenience in getting to the station and in crossing the track.

In the baseball game yesterday afternoon, Melbourn tried for the third time to defeat Richmond but were unsuccessful. The score was—Richmond 15, Melbourn 12.

WINDSOR FORMS PATRIOTIC BRANCH

Large and Enthusiastic Meeting of Citizens Held to Form Organization

OFFICERS AND COMMITTEES FORMED AND AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN STARTED.

Windsor Mills, Sept. 19.—(Special)—On Wednesday evening a large and representative meeting was held in the Council room. Mr. J. Campbell, in the absence of the mayor, occupied the chair and briefly explained the object of the meeting and said he was pleased to see so many present, and felt sure that the town of Windsor would not be behind the neighboring towns in helping forward the good work of helping those whom our noble defenders had left behind to our care. He thought the best plan would be to form a branch of the National Patriotic Fund, and to do so we must first appoint a secretary. Dr. J. A. McCabe proposed that Mr. John Quinn be appointed secretary-treasurer, and Mr. F. Millette seconded. Mr. Quinn said he had been in communication with the central committee in Ottawa and had received circulars and rules with regard to branches, which he read to the meeting.

Dr. McCabe said that it would be best to form committees to canvass the town and district for subscriptions, and said a number of young people were busy arranging for a concert, and that he would be pleased to allow the committee the use of the hall for their meetings at any time and suggested that the ministers of all the churches preach a sermon on behalf of the fund next Sunday. The chairman said that the Rev. Mr. Muir and Rev. C. Huxtable were present and would like to hear their views. They both said they would be willing to do their part as suggested. The secretary was requested to write and ask the other two ministers.

The following were appointed officers of the Windsor Branch: President, Mr. J. J. Campbell; vice-president, Dr. J. A. McCabe; secretary-treasurer, Mr. John Quinn; committee, with power to add to their number and to form sub-committees to canvass the town and district for subscriptions, Messrs. T. A. King, F. Millette, J. Pendar, Mr. Samson.

The first meeting of the committee was held in Mr. Quinn's office at 9.30 Thursday morning.

ASKED TO GIVE ONE DAY'S PAY.

Windsor Mills, Sept. 19.—(Special)—At the meeting of the executive committee held yesterday it was decided to ask the employees of the Canada Paper Co. and the Canadian Explosives Co. to donate a day's pay to the fund. The ministers of the town have consented to announce from their pulpits on Sunday next the object of the fund and to ask their parishioners to contribute generously to the same, each and every one according to his or her means. It was decided to appoint captains and teams for each ward and have them work in each ward and district to which they are appointed. Messrs. F. Millette, R. St. Laurent, Louis Frenette, Joseph Noel, Ambroise Debois, L. O'Hara, John Jacques, North Ward; Messrs. J. W. Quinn, G. Chutier, J. Dunlop, J. O'Reilly, South Ward; Dr. J. A. McCabe, Messrs. H. H. Bourque, P. Lemire, Greenlay, A. W. Sykes.

TOLD OF TRIP THROUGH EUROPE

Mr V. Morrisset, Thetford Mines, And Party Had Interesting Experience After War Broke Out

SUCCEEDED IN COMPLETING ORIGINAL TRIP THOUGH SOMEWHAT DELAYED EN ROUTE.

Thetford Mines, Sept. 19.—(Special)—Mr. Victor Morrisset, N.P., gave a very interesting lecture on his travels through Europe from which he has just returned, to the Odd Fellows and a few friends, after the regular lodge meeting on Tuesday evening. Mr. Morrisset and the party with which he was travelling seem to have been much more fortunate than a good many Canadian and American tourists who were in Europe after the beginning of hostilities. Mr. Morrisset, in giving a brief resume of his trip said that they were in France, on their way to Italy, when war was declared. For many days they had heard much talk of war being declared and preparations were going on everywhere, but they being accustomed to living in a country where there has been nothing but a peaceful understanding for so long, did not realize what it all meant, until it broke out. They thought it best to leave France at once, as all trains, motor cars, etc., were being requisitioned for military purposes, and they hurried into Italy, which at the time had declared her intention of remaining neutral. They went on to Rome where they met many American tourists. There was great excitement amongst all these tourists most of whom were trying to reach an Italian port as quickly as possible, in an effort to get passage home at any cost. Instead of doing this and getting crowded into the steerage of some boat, which was where most of them suffered the greatest hardship, they decided to stay in Rome for a few days and await developments. From Rome they decided to return through Italy, Switzerland and France as they had first planned. Although they were put to considerable inconvenience and loss of time, mainly by being packed in trains which were very much overloaded, or by being put off trains very often, which were cancelled for public use, and were turned into military trains, they suffered no real hardships. They found the soldiers wherever they rode with them on their trains, very gallant and accommodating under the circumstances. The greatest difficulties they encountered, besides the ones mentioned above, were the inability of getting their travellers' cheques, both express and banks' cashed, and the lack of room on the trains for baggage, much of which was lost.

At the beginning of the war they could not get their cheques cashed at all, but afterwards, although they had some difficulty in some places, they could usually get them cashed. After going through France they sailed to England from La Havre and sailed from London on the "Sicilian."

PLEASED WITH CAMP LIFE.

NEW BUILDING FOR THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE

Handsome Structure Erected In Ayer's Cliff

NEW HOME OF THE CANADIAN BANK OF COMMERCE, AYER'S CLIFF, QUEBEC.

Readers of this paper will be interested to see in the accompanying photograph a picture of the new office building, which has been recently erected by the Canadian Bank of Commerce, at Ayer's Cliff, Que. The building is a photograph of a picture of the new office building, which has been recently erected and is universally acknowledged to be a decided acquisition to the town. Its base is of stone, with a superstructure of dark red brick. The joints are white and, with its wide steps and columned portico, it presents a dignified and attractive appearance; the effect being still further enhanced by the situation it occupies on a large lot on the south side of Main St.

On the interior of the building, the same care and thought have been expended as on the outside. The banking office, which has an area of nearly 30 feet square has been carefully decorated so as to harmonize with the counters and other fittings which are of oak, the effect thus produced being one of dignified simplicity.

In the arrangements of the office, every effort has been made to consider the comfort of the customers of the Bank and to provide them with a place wherein their business may be transacted with a maximum degree of safety and convenience.

Electric light is used throughout the bank, and an up-to-date hot water heating system has been installed.

In seeking to provide the citizens of Ayer's Cliff with a building worthy of their patronage, the bank has not lost sight of the comfort and welfare of its officers. The four rooms that comprise the upper storey of the building have been comfortably furnished and arranged as staff apartments. Ample accommodation is provided, and it would be difficult to estimate the comfort which such an arrangement must provide for the officers of the Bank.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce, with which the Eastern Townships Bank was recently amalgamated, is exceedingly well represented in the Province of Quebec and is thus enabled to offer unexcelled facilities for the transaction of any legitimate banking business.

Regarding the 6 h.p. Renfrew Standard Gasoline Engine sold to me some months ago, I have used it for cutting wood and have cut about 2,000 cords and am pleased to say I have had excellent satisfaction with it. I found it very easy to start even on the coldest days. It never gave me any trouble whatever, and only used on an average of 4 GALLONS OF GASOLINE PER TEN HOUR DAY. I am pleased to recommend it to anyone intending to buy a gasoline engine.

Mr. McDonald's letter is only one of scores received this year from buyers of the

Renfrew Standard

It starts without cranking

These letters bear out our contention that we have the most economical carburetor built. They prove that all we have claimed about ease of starting is more than justified. They more than uphold all our advertised claims. We are sorry we haven't the space to print these letters, but we have an engine booklet that describes the Renfrew Standard. Write for a copy.

Gate Receipts Larger Than Ever

REV. H. A. DICKSON SAYS PRESENT IS FARMERS' GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

Inverness, Sept. 19.—(Special)—Mégantic Agricultural Society No. 1 scored a decided success on Thursday the 17th when their annual exhibition was brought to a close. Not only was the weather ideal but the farmers throughout the county who, owing to several fine days had about finished harvesting turned out in large numbers. All departments were well filled, although there was a noticeable decline in number and quality of horses shown. Never in the history of the association has there been such an excellent show of cattle. Many very favorable comments were heard from stock dealers and raisers as to the splendid exhibit of best type, the Durham breed leading. One exhibitor had on the grounds a pair of two year old heifers for which he recently paid ninety dollars each. It is not often that such prices are paid as that stated above. The best informed claim there is no prospect of live stock declining in price as the quantity is limited and demand great. This is to a certain degree brought about by the present war, also home consumption as this is a beef raising section consequently the exhibits of sheep and swine were small. The society financially is in good standing. Mr. Allen Hill, who had charge of gate receipts reports an increase over those of last year, very nearly one hundred dollars. Lunch was served for the directors, judges and guests at the home of Mr. J. B. Smythe. Nothing could have been added to the sumptuous repast spread. After justice was done to the food, Mr. S. W. Mooney, President, in a few well chosen words, stated the pleasure of again meeting those present, also stating the object of the exhibition held, saying that all games of chance, etc., were debarred, and an effort to further agriculture was the sole purpose of the Society.

Several short speeches were made by Dr. Watson, A. J. Lyster, R. Husk, L. Fréchet, Col. Ward, also Mr. Wm. Dinning, Vice-President, who urged very strongly that the farmers of Mégantic strive to improve their farms and stock and in every way advance agriculture for which their county was splendidly adapted.

THE FARMERS' GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY

Rev. H. A. Dickson, of Rectory Hill was called upon by the President who said that Mr. Dickson had done much during the nineteen years he had resided in the county to advance not only agriculture but every matter pertaining to the betterment of the community.

During his remarks, which were most deeply appreciated he touched upon the present labor situation owing to the war and claimed that the golden opportunity was offered the agriculturist to at this time turn the waste and barren land into productive fields. As it mattered not how soon the war came to a close millions would require food stuff and the farmer must produce it from the soil. Mr. Dickson closed a most interesting speech by strongly urging those of Mégantic County to get the best possible out of the soil and see to it that this county continues to advance as in the past.

The judges in the various departments were as follows:

Horses—Dr. Watson, Horwick.
Cattle—A. J. Lyster, Kirkdale.
Sheep and swine—Thompson and Wark.
Fancy work—Mrs. A. A. Kinnear, Mrs. H. A. Dickson.

Tire Attacks

Which Goodyears are Best Fitted to Resist

The Fiercest Four

These are the four chief tire troubles:

Rim-Cuts Loose Treads
Blow-Outs Punctures

Note, for your own sake, how Goodyears meet them in ways exclusive to these tires.

Rim-cuts are impossible in Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tires. We control the way—the only feasible way—to prevent it.

Blow-outs—most of them—occur in weak spots, due to wrinkled fabric. We remove this cause by our "On-Air" cure, which no one else employs.

Loose treads are combated by a patent method, which creates in each tire hundreds of large rubber rivets.

Punctures and skidding are best met by our exclusive All-Weather tread. It is tough and double-thick. The grips are deep, sharp, resistless. Yet the tread—flat and regular—runs as smoothly as plain treads.

No tire ever built offers one of these features save the Goodyear No-Rim-Cut tire.

It's Up to You

These things mean safety, strength, endurance. They mean maximum mileage and minimum trouble.

Getting them depends on you, for any dealer will supply you Goodyear tires. And at less than usual tire prices because of our mammoth output.

Countless men do get them, and tell other men to get them. More men now buy Goodyears than buy any other tire.

Please remember these things when you next buy tires. Don't trust to luck. Don't think that tires are much alike.

And remember that Goodyear tires are made in Canada—at the Goodyear tire plant, Bowmanville, Ontario, where master standards and equipment mean the best, always.

The only way to save tire troubles is to buy tires that combat them.

Synopsis.

The 5 of Hearts is the "death sign" used by Seneca Trine in the private war of vengeance which, through his daughter Judith, a woman of violent and criminal temper and questionable sanity, he wages against Alan Law, whose father (now dead) Trine held responsible for the accident which made him a helpless cripple. Rose, Judith's twin and her only friend, is a girl of fine character and noble spirit. She leaves her home to aid him, whom she loves.

Trine lures Law back to America by secretly sending him a rose, while he is asleep in his club in London. This was the sign that Rose, whom he loves and who has rejected him, tells him to come to her. He receives a tray of hearts through the mail. It is the sign that an attempt is to be made upon his life. He therefore, to avoid his enemies, comes out on a C.P.R. steamship, travelling second class. At Quebec he engages an Indian guide and starts to tramp through the Maine woods.

In the woods he encounters a tremendous fire, and is diverted from his course. His guide proves treacherous, and he is left to be in the company of Judith. Law is seized, bound and tied on a funeral pyre, but the flames burn his bonds and he escapes. Rose, who has learned of the trap set for him, starts out to find him and is fortunate enough to rescue him from drowning in a Maine lake. She carries him to New York, but Judith chloroforms Rose and substitutes herself. She is discovered and sent off to her friends on a Gloucester schooner, which has been following the yacht. Then she sends a boat loaded with dynamite to ram and blow up the yacht. Law and his captain jump overboard, escape and are washed ashore on the sands. A boat load of men pursues them to the beach. Law and his captain (Barcus) evade their pursuers, steal the boat and board the Gloucester schooner. There they find Rose a prisoner. They weigh anchor, but are becalmed in a fog, enabling Judith and her assistants to board on land and make them prisoners. The schooner is run down by a steamer, but Alan and Rose escape and are picked up by Capt. Marcius in a boat. Judith apparently has been drowned.

I.—The Masked Voice.

For a matter of twelve hours, the fog, laden, dank, viscous as inextinguishable the dominion of evil, had wrapped the world in an embrace as foul and noxious as the coils of some great, grey, slimy serpent.

Through the sluggish folds the ponderous, power-impelled lifeboat crept at a snail's pace, its stern parting and rolling back from either flank a heavy-hearted sea of gray.

In the bows a young woman rested in a state of semi-exhaustion, her eyes closed, her head pillowed on a cork-belt life-preserver, her sodden garments modeled closely to the slender body that was ever and again shaken from head to foot with the strength of a long, shuddering respiration.

Seated on the nearest thwart, Alan Law, chin in hand, watched over the rest of this woman whom he loved with a grimly hopeless solicitude. He was in no happier case than she, so far as physical comfort went—he was in worse, since he might not rest.

Premontion of misfortune darkened his heart with the impenetrable shadow.

In the stern, Tom Barcus presided morosely over the steering gear, and Law was no more jealously heedful of his sweetheart than Barcus of the heavy-duty motor that chugged away so purposefully at its business of driving the boat heaven-knew-where.

Thus for hours on end it had been with these three; ever the boat ploughed steadily onward; ever the fog yielded grudgingly to the thrust of its stern and ever closed in again astern; ever their destination remained a riddle as inscrutable as the course they held.

Lacking at once a compass, all notion whatsoever of the sun's bearings, and any immediate hope of the fog lifting or chance bring them either to land or to rescue by some larger and less comfortable craft, Barcus steered mainly through force of habit—the salt-water man's instinctive feeling that no boat under weigh should ever in any conceivable circumstances be without a hand at the helm.

For some time subsequent to the shipwreck which had brought them to this pass, fog-signals sounding now near, now far, in the encompassing obscurity had fostered hope with sardonic mockery; more than once the waters in their neighborhood had been so clamant with complaint and warnings of horns, bells and whistles, that it had seemed impossible that the lifeboat could long escape repetition of the disaster.

But, somehow, it always did escape, and that by a wide margin; never once had it passed near enough to another vessel to see its shadow looming through the mists.

And now for more than an hour the silence had been unceasingly constant, broken only by the rumble of the motor, the muted lip of water slipping down the side, the suck and gurgle of the wake.

Foreboding no less portentous than Law's crawling in the mind of Barcus. It was as likely as not that the lifeboat was travelling straight out to sea. And gasoline tanks can and oftentimes do become as empty as an official weather prophet's promise of fair weather for a holiday.

More than this, Mr. Barcus was a confirmed skeptic in respect of marine motors; on terms of long and intimate experience with the ways of the demon of perversity that tenants them one and all, he knew that the present sweet-tempered performance of the exhibit under consideration was no earnest whatsoever of future good behavior, that when such a complicated contraption was concerned there was never any telling.

In view of all of which considerations he presently threw open the battery switch.

And the aching void created in the silence by the cessation of that uniform drone was straining enough to rouse even Rose Trine from her state of semi-somnolence.

With a look of panic she sat up, thrust damp hair back from her eyes, and nervously inquired:

"What's the matter?"

"Nothing," Barcus told her. "I shut the engine off—that's all."

Temperament short in that hour, and Alan was annoyed to think that the rest of his beloved should needlessly have been disturbed.

"What did you do that for?" he demanded sharply.

"Because I really well want to," Barcus returned in a tone as brusque.

"Oh, you did—eh?"

"Yes, I did—eh! I happen to be boresing this end of the boat and to have some enough to realize there's no sense at all in our wasting fuel the way we are—cruising nowhere!"

"Well," Law contended, struck by the fairness of this argument, but unable to curb his uneasiness—"Just the same, we might—"

"Yes, of course, we might," Barcus snapped. "We might a whole lot. We might, for instance, be heading for Spain, for all you or I know of the contrary. And in such a case, for one reason or another, I for one would respectfully prefer to have gas enough to take us home again if ever this da—blestem fog lifts!"

Alan, contemplating retort in kind, discreetly held his tongue, reminding himself that this was the first time in the course of their rather thoroughly perli-haunted acquaintance that Barcus had ever failed to meet emergency or hardship with the utmost confidence and good humor.

Instead of speaking, then, he made a gesture of impotent commiseration to the girl, who, mustering a wan smile in response, sank listlessly back upon her makeshift couch.

For several seconds longer the stilling and feral spirits in its ruthless grasp.

Then of a sudden a cry shrilled through the fog, so near at hand that it seemed scarcely more distant than over the side.

"Ahoy! Help! Ahoy! Help! Help!"

So instant so urgent was its accent that, coupled with the surprise, it brought the three as one to their feet, all a-tremble, their eyes seeking one another's faces, then shifting uneasily away.

"What can it be?" Rose whispered, agast, shrinking into Alan's ready arm.

He replied, obviously with an effort overcoming the superstitious construction of his throat, "Some other unfortunate."

But still his flesh crawled with dread; for he knew that voice; and it was the voice of one whom he had believed dead, drowned fathoms deep in the sound, miles from that spot.

"A woman," Barcus put in harshly. "Judith, the girl moaned."

Alan shook himself together. "Impossible!" he contended. "I saw her go down."

"She doesn't prove she didn't come up," Barcus commented acidly.

"Ahoy! Motorboat ahoy-o-y! Help! Help! Help!"

"And that," Barcus pursued sadly, "just proves she did come up—blame the luck! Alvo she is, and kicking, stand clear. An able-bodied pair of lungs was back of that hail, my friend; and you needn't tell me I don't know the dulcet accents of that angelic contralto!"

Without heeding him, Alan cupped hands to mouth and sent an answering cry ringing through the murk:

"Ahoy! Where are you? Where are you?"

"Here—on the reef—half-drowned!—perishing with chill!"

"Ahoy! Does my voice bear?" Alan called back.

"What the dickens do you care?" Barcus interpolated suspiciously.

"To port," the response rang through the fog. "Starboard your helm around in a bow!"

"Right-o! Half a minute!" Alan replied reassuringly.

"Like hell!" Mr. Barcus muttered in his throat as he jumped down into the engine pit and bent over the fly-wheel.

Leaping on the forward thwart and balancing himself precariously near the gunwale, Alan strained his vision vainly against the opacity of the fog.

"Can't make out anything," he growled, looking back. "Start her up—but slow! The word—'ware reef!'"

"Nothing doing," Barcus retorted curtly. "The motto is now 'Full speed astern!' as you must know."

"O come! You can't leave a woman out here in this like that!"

"Can't we? You watch!" Barcus grunted malevolently, rocking the heavy fly-wheel with all his might; for the motor had turned suddenly stubborn.

Rose pleaded, laying a hand upon his sleeve. "Think what it means! I know it sounds heartless of me—and it's my own sister—but you know how mad she is—wild with hatred and jealousy. If you take her into this boat, it's your life or hers!"

"If we leave her out there," Alan retorted, shaking his arm impatiently free. "It's her life on our heads!"

At this juncture the motor took charge of the argument, ending it in summer fashion. With a smart explosion in the cylinder, it started up unexpectedly, at one and the same time, almost dislocating the arm of Mr. Barcus, and precipitating Alan overboard.

It was not given him to know what was happening until he found himself in the water, he struggled to the surface just in time to see the bows of the lifeboat back away and vanish into the mist.

II.—The Island.

Not more than twenty seconds could have elapsed before Barcus recovered from the shock of the motor's treachery sufficiently to reverse the wheel, throttle down the carburettor and jump out of the engine-pit.

But in that small space of time the lifeboat and Alan Law had parted company as definitely as though one of them had been levitated bodily to the far side of the earth.

It could not have been more than a minute after the accident before Barcus was guiding the boat over what, going on his sense of location and judgment of distance, he could have sworn was the precise spot where Alan had disappeared, but without discovering a sign of him.

And for the next twenty minutes he divided his attention between attempts to soothe and reassure the half-distracted girl and efforts to reduce a reply from Alan by stentorian hailing—with as little success in the one as in the other.

steamer that ran us down, and proceeded to make a prize of it—or to try to. One thing's certain: she must have found or stolen a boat from somebody; they couldn't have made Norton's reef by swimming—it's too far. That's the answer: they were picked up, stole a boat, and piled it up on the reef."

His accent died away into a disconsolate silence that was unbroken for upwards of an hour. Rose crept back to her place in the bows and slouched down beneath a huddling shape of wretchedness, her face averted to hide its pallid misery.

And in the stern Barcus sat, submerged in dejection no less profound, his lugubrious gaze directed vacantly to the deck at his feet.

Alan was lost; delivered at length into the hands of the enemy; a loser in the gallant game he had played with such spirit, his life forfeit.

And brief as their friendship was in point of actual lapse of time, Barcus had come to hold the man in such affection as only grows between men who have braved danger and hardship shoulder to shoulder and hand in hand.

And nothing now might save him, that Barcus could invent or effect; too late now for a rescue, even granting a miracle, for the sands in the hourglass were running out.

What imaginable consideration should serve to stay so long the hand of that strange, mad creature, Judith, sister to this broken woman in the bows? She had vowed the death of Alan Law—and now the tenure of his life was dedicated solely to her whim. It was not to be believed that Barcus was destined ever to look upon Alan alive.

He mourned a brave man and a friend.

So slowly the current bore the lifeboat toward the beach, and so still the tide that Barcus never apprised that they were within touch of any land until the bows grounded with a slight jar and a grating sound.

With a cry of incredulity he leaped to the deck, and by all that's lucky!—and stooping, lent a hand to the girl, aiding her to rise.

The fog inshore was less dense of texture—or perhaps it was dissipating in natural course—at last! At all events, a broad stretch of sandy beach was visible to their wondering eyes, backed by a looming wall of rock whose top, however, was lost in the vapor. A sharply shelving beach; the boat had grounded with less than a six feet width of water between its stern and the bare sands.

Hardly had Rose had time to comprehend what had happened, when Barcus was over the side and wrestling with the bows, dragging the boat farther up upon the shoals.

She was, however, more than stem man could manage; and when her stern had bitten a little more deeply into the sands, Barcus gave over the attempt and, lifting Rose down, set her on dry land, then climbed back into the vessel, and, having fastened the anchor cable, and carried them ashore, planting the former well up towards the foot of the cliff.

And as he rose from this last labor he was half blinded by the glare of the western sun as it broke through the fog.

In less than five minutes the miraculous commonplace was an accomplished fact; the wind had rolled the fog back like a scroll and sent it spinning far out to sea, while the shore on which the two had landed was deluged with sunlight bright and beautifully warm.

Swiftly Barcus took account of their position; it offered him little information. The ragged brows of the last cut sharply against the exquisite blue of the new-found sky, not thirty feet overhead. On either hand the beach curved away to twin points, long spits of land heavily embowed with rocks, jutting well out into the sea. Offshore a mile or two the fog skulked, offering sullen resistance to the breeze, a dun cloud clinging to the face of the waters and masking all that lay to southwards. There was not a sail nor a funnel in sight. And the mid-afternoon tide was low, the irregular volutes of seaweed on the beach indicating a rise of at least six feet to come. More than this, he gathered no clue to the locality. It might be the mainland, or it might be Katama island, or it might be another.

He showed a thoughtful and considerate countenance to the girl.

"You're about all in?"

She nodded confirmation of this, with a thick and slow coming up so sociably that I actually got a chance to whisper a word to Alan and tell him you were all right, and that he'd find us both down here on the beach. If luck served me with an oar, while I take a turn up the beach and have a look around? We can't be far from some sort of civilization; even if it's an island, there are no desert isles along the lands of your realm, and I have some notion, no fear."

By tacit consent both avoided mention of Alan, but each knew what thought was uppermost in the other's mind.

There's a niche among the rocks up here," Barcus indicated, "almost a cave. You'll be warm and dry enough, and secure from observation overhead. Maybe you can even snatch a few winks of sleep."

She negatived that suggestion with a weary smile; no sleep for her until sheer exhaustion overpowered her, or she knew of Alan's fate.

And reiterating his promise to be gone no longer than absolutely might be needful, he left her there.

III.—This Mortal Tide.

She was very certain she would never sleep before her anxiety was assuaged by word of Alan's fate; but she reckoned without her host of trials that had bred in her a fatigue anonymous even to her mental anguish.

For a time after Barcus had left her, she lingered upon the sands, in the mouth of the shelter he had selected for her, staring hungrily out on the shimmering sea that, now wholly undimmed by its shroud, smiled up to the heavens, whose sapphire face it mirrored, as fair and sweet of seeming as though it had never veiled a heartless tragedy.

Slowly it darkened as the sapphire grew darker, blending imperceptibly into rare ultramarine, with the slow decline of the sun; by whose altitude above the horizon, the day had not more than ninety minutes more to run.

And she thought drowsily that if that sun sank without her learning that her lover lived, it would not rise again upon a world tenanted by Rose Trine.

It was not true, she told herself, that people never die of broken hearts. She knew that, were he taken from her, she could no longer live.

And sleep overwhelmed her, suddenly, like a great, dark cloud.

But its dominion over her faculties was not of long duration. Slowly, heavily, mutinously, she was rescued from its nirvana—came to her senses with an effect of one who emerged from some vast place of blackness and terror, to find Barcus kneeling over and gingerly but persistently shaking her by the shoulder.

And then she sat up with a cry of mingled compassion; for in the brief time that he had been absent—it had not been more than an hour—Mr. Barcus had most unquestionably been severely used.

He had acquired a long cut over one eye, but shallow, upon which his blood had dried, together with a bruised and swollen cheek that was badly scratched to boot. And what simple articles Barcus had most unquestionably been of clothing remained to him, after his strenuous experiences of the last forty-eight hours, had been reduced to even greater simplicity; his shirt, for example, now lacked a sleeve that had been altogether torn away at the shoulder.

"No!" he told her, as soon as he saw her wits were awake once more—"don't waste time pitying me. I'm all right—and so is Alan! That's the main thing for you to understand; he's still alive and sound."

"But where is he? Take me to him!" she demanded, rising with a movement of such grace and vigor that it seemed hard to believe she had ever known an instant's weariness.

"That's the rub," Barcus confessed, squatting on the sands and knocking his hair. "I don't take you to him. Judith might object. Besides, you can see for yourself it isn't safe to mingle with the inhabitants of this little island—and you can't get to where Alan is without mingling considerably. Sit down, and I'll reach you all about it, and we'll try to figure out what's best to be done. Maybe we can manage a rescue under cover of night."

And when the girl had settled herself beside him he launched into a detailed report.

"It's Katama island, all right," he announced; but a change has come over the place since I visited it some years ago. Then it was a community of simple-hearted villagers and fishermen; now, unless all signs fail, it's a den of smugglers. I noticed a number of Chinese about; and that, taken in connection with the fact that when I ventured to introduce myself to the

THE ONLOOKER COMMENTS

The Patriotic Fund Appeal.

Millions of dollars are being raised in Canada for the Patriotic Fund. In Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships sums are being collected, but only a small proportion of the people of this territory have yet responded.

It is possible that many do not realize the pressing need of this fund and the tremendously large sum that will be required. If they will reflect upon the situation as it exists, however, they will be able to appreciate the urgency of the call.

Some six or seven hundred men, it is said, have volunteered from the Eastern Townships. A considerable number of them leave families. Most of them leave some dependent who requires aid.

Even on the basis of one dependent for each man, a very large sum would be required. For example, one dollar per day for one dependent for each Eastern Townships Volunteer would mean a minimum $600 per day. In one hundred days this would amount to $60,000, but the need will extend over a longer period than one hundred days. There will be other contingents and further need of home assistance will develop.

Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships sent its full quota to the first contingent, who will soon be on the way across the ocean to the battle line in Europe.

An immediate fund of $100,000 subscribed in the Eastern Townships would not be more than our share in the Canadian Patriotic Fund.

Sherbrooke should provide $25,000 of that amount and the balance should come immediately from the towns and villages. This should be supplemented by nearly a like amount from the rural territory, and this could be easily accomplished through the method suggested by Mr. Lyster. If all the municipal councils could be interested in the movement.

'The Eastern Townships' population according to the last census was 240,000.

A contribution representing on the average a dollar per head for the entire population would not be too much for the Eastern Townships to give to this great patriotic cause.

High-Priced Art.

"There is no great art possible to a nation but that which is based on battle."

There have been optimistic lovers of poetry and art, who have viewed the present war in Europe with appreciation, expecting a greater art, a nobler poetry, to arise from the strenuous sentiments of war-time. Many hold this faith in some "higher good" of the battlefield. One English writer has stated that "no great art ever yet rose on earth, but among a nation of soldiers. There is no art among a shepherd people, if it remains at peace. There is no art among an agricultural people, if it remains at peace. Commerce is barely consistent with fine art, but cannot produce it. Manufacture not only is unable to produce it, but invariably destroys whatever seeds of it exist. There is no great art possible to a nation but that which is based on battle."

According to this theory, peace must be sacrificed on the altar of art. That great poets and painters and dreamers may arise, thousands of men must be slaughtered in inhuman combats. We must have stirring times like the present to awaken the super soul of the artistic genius. Men may come and men may go, may be born in travail, only to die in the greater travail of the battlefield. What matter, so long as Art is satisfied? "There is no great art possible to a nation but that which is based on battle."

The story runs, admittedly fantastic, that an artist painted a picture so wonderful in color that all the world marvelled. Other artists searched the world over for a color like it, but could not find one. Finally the artist died. When they dressed him in his grave clothes, they found the mark of a wound, from which he had drawn his own blood to color his extraordinary picture. He had given his life to immortalize his work.

Such is art born of battle. The life blood of men color the poetry and painting, whose inspiration is war. But, though the theorist who glorifies art may consider war a legitimate color scheme for artistic genius, the ordinary human can not. We do not like pictures painted in blood, nor poetry inspired by tragedy of human slaughter. War is a nasty business, necessary to us at this time, and to be bravely and fearlessly gotten through with, while the armies of the Empire march on to victory. But as an inspiration to art, we would not sacrifice one of those sturdy marching men, more wonderful in their human organism than any picture ever painted, and more ideally patriotic as they calmly face death for their country than any written sentiment of patriotism.

If art must flourish by war, let art perish. We shall be satisfied with natural beauties, and the noble sentiments of peace and human brotherhood. But against this theory not only does nature, but history, contend. What are the world's greatest paintings, those of Perugino, Botticelli, Da Vinci, Michelangelo, Titian, Raphael, Del Sarto, Correggio? Almost wholly religious. Among the French, the landscape, the animal, the domestic life, predominate—as these subjects also do in Flemish, Spanish, Dutch, German and English art. Instead of any evidence of strenuous war-time influence on any notable group of painters, we have Madonnas and like subjects in profusion. Napoleon alone stands out as a notable exception, for painters on canvas have revelled in depicting that most "extraordinary" man.

Did war inspire the "Divine Comedy"? Did the great Shakespeare owe his inspiration to battle? Did Goethe?

The great Englishman who declared that all art is based on battle is dead. If he were not, we should wish to ask him: How? Where? When?

Business Optimism Patriotic Virtue.

General business in Canada, disturbed by the outbreak of the war, is fast readjusting itself. Agriculture is booming and industries are picking up.

There are business men who believe that by next spring, even should the war continue, general business in Canada will be materially better than it was last spring and prior to the opening of the war.

It is not given to all to go to the front and fight for the Empire. It is well argued, however, that the man who remains at home, if he sticks to business and pursues an optimistic progressive policy, is also serving well the cause of the Empire and of the community.

The London Daily Chronicle makes an appeal, in verse, in this connection, under the caption of "The Man Who Keeps His Head." It runs as follows:

There's a man who fights for England, and he'll keep her still atop, He will guard her from dishonor in the market and the shop, He will save her homes from terror on the fields of Daily Bread, He's the man who sticks to business, he's the man who keeps his head.

Let the foe who strikes at England hear her wheels of commerce turn, Let the ships that war with England see her factory furnace burn; For the foe most fears the cannon, and the heart most quails with dread, When behind the man in khaki is the man who keeps his head.

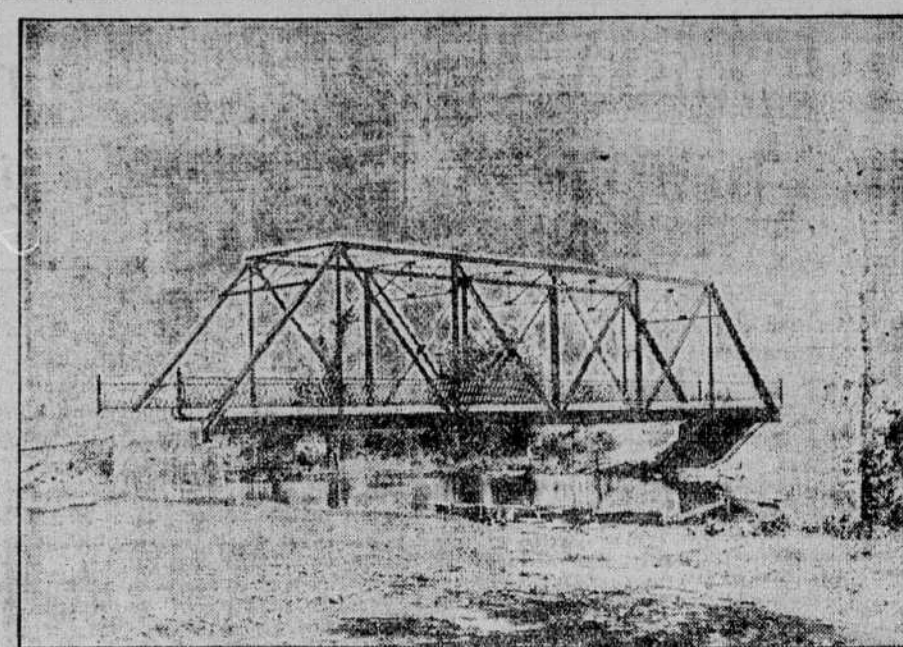

Brand him traitor and assassin who with miser's coward mood Has his gold locked up in secret and his larders stored with food, Who has cast adrift his workers, who lies sweating in his bed, And who snarls to hear the laughter of the man who keeps his head.

Let the poor man teach the rich man, for the poor man's constant strife is from day to day to seek work, day by day to war with life, And the poor man's home hangs ever by a frail and brittle thread, And the poor man's often hungry, but the poor man keeps his head.

When the ships come back from slaughter, and the troops march home from war; When the havoc strewn behind us threatens the road that lies before, Every hero shall be welcomed, every orphan shall be fed, By the man who stuck to business, by the man who kept his head.

What's In a Word?

During the weeks following the outbreak of the European war, when France and the British Empire were counting time, while their allied forces retreated and again retreated, back to Paris, the one encouraging message that came to those waiting in painful suspense was that the troops were still "intact." That was the word that brought a certain patient courage to the War Offices in Paris and London. As day followed day, and the Germans neared the French capital, there seemed no possibility of stemming the flood of these grey-clad soldiers. That their own men were still together, still "intact," was the sole consolation of

UNCLE JOE'S COLUMN

"Business is as usual."

Father says this season's millinery creations are very nice, but the millinery bills are simply "stunning."

How many times have you told the directors of the E.T.A.A. that it is too bad the exhibition was not held this week? Did it ever strike you that they, too, realized this?

When you are paying your other just debts remember the National Patriotic Fund.

The charges against Mr. Beaman sound like the Kaiser's counter-charges against the Belgians.

How would you like to be the valuator on Monday evening, when the authors of the 600 complaints, now in the hands of the City Clerk, are called upon to speak.

The Cluster Light.

The City Electric Department is to be congratulated upon having at last made a move in the direction of better lighting of the business streets. It has established at the corner of King and Wellington streets four iron poles with cluster lights, as a demonstration. Judging from public comment, the cluster light plan as illustrated here would meet with general public approval.

The standard with the five lights is much superior in attractiveness to the three-light standard.

The Electric Department owes it to the city to modernize its lighting system on Sherbrooke's business streets. It should proceed at once to establish the five-light standards on all the business streets. The present clothesline system has already existed too long.

It is to be hoped the department will proceed at once. It has the money and can afford to undertake this work. The business streets, so far as their lighting system is concerned, would thus be modernized. The cluster light system has now been adopted for the business streets in all up-to-date cities.

City Officials.

Reports from the City Hall state that a determined effort is being made in certain quarters to bring about the discharge of Mr. Gatien, Mr. Demers and Mr. Beaman. In the opinion of many citizens, these officers are the most efficient the city has. Mr. Gatien has made good as secretary-treasurer. He is a hard worker, methodical, energetic, and has brought order out of chaos in his department. Mr. Demers is said to be especially efficient in his department, and the general opinion prevails that Mr. Beaman has done good work for the city as road superintendent and is a capable and satisfactory official.

Made For Germany

One of Sherbrooke's iron industries is reported to be at present working on a line of goods for German consumption. But, lest some reader might fancy there is something disloyal in this industrial activity, it may be explained that the goods are cannon balls and projectiles. This is about the only class of imports Germany is receiving at present. The Allies are facilitating their entry via the aerial line.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

VALUATION ROLL.
Editor Sherbrooke Daily Record,
City.

Dear Sir:—As I understand from the Record of a day or so ago, the City Council have decided to deal with the present valuations as usual—that is, to retain the present valuations, and are willing to hear the complaints brought in by a great number of ratepayers. It is mentioned that this decision is based on the advice of the city attorney. Now, after the two petitions, one by the citizens, and one by the Board of Trade, being tendered, and, after it is clear to all that an overwhelming majority of the ratepayers are against the present valuation, and are begging the council to retain the valuations of 1913, and as I understand that the city fathers have a legal right to retain a valuation for 3 years without changes, I am very curious to know the reason of the present decision of the city council in regard to the valuation.

Yours truly,
M. ECHENBERG.

HOW TO HELP.

Sir:—England and her Colonies will emerge from this terrible conflict victorious. The British Empire will be cemented together not only with the precious blood of her noble sons but with a bond of love that will make for the Peace of the World. I believe the great British Empire and the great United States will form a compact between them so strong that they will be able to dictate to the great powers of the world and stop building of large navies and the maintaining of great standing armies.

Canada has been blessed this year by an abundant harvest. Our people will not feel the nip of poverty as will be felt in England, France or Belgium this coming winter. Should we not organize some regular system of giving of our abundance to our less favored brethren in these war zones, where the distress is heart rending? Wouldn't it be everlasting to the credit of Canada to do such a worthy deed? Suppose every County Council constituted themselves a committee and through the Municipal Councils, solicited from our farmers, our merchants, our manufacturers, and our citizens in general, such help as each could freely give, in bags of oats, or other grains, which might go as provender for the horses of the army, or be ground into flour to help feed the soldiers of the British Empire, or their needy ones at home, and also help relieve the suffering of our comrades in both France and Belgium. With some such system of gathering up food, clothing and other useful necessities, what a vast amount of help Canada could render to the soldiers in the field, to the ones dependent on them at home, and to this great cause in which we must for our very lives win.

Our farmers would hardly miss a bag of grain from their bountiful harvest or a bale of hay or a barrel of potatoes. Each County in the Dominion should take some such step, just as the various provinces are doing, and give to the cause the things they are best able to give.

Yours truly,
E.T. CITIZEN.

SHERBROOKE HOSPITAL

Represents The Best in Architecture, Design and Equipment

DEDICATION OF NEW BUILDING WILL TAKE PLACE ON THE 8TH OF OCTOBER NEXT.

The dedication of the new wing of the Sherbrooke Hospital which was opened by the Duke of Connaught in June will take place on October 8th. A reception will follow the dedication ceremony.

The President, Governors, and executive extend a cordial and general invitation to the people of the Eastern Townships to be present on that occasion and wish them to feel that they are being asked to visit their own institution.

The new portion, or to be more exact, the new hospital—because the old building has been absorbed into the new, and only the walls of the original part are left—represents the very latest in hospital architecture—design and equipment. The outward appearance of the building is very striking and is a great improvement upon the old. The front of the Hospital, which was formerly in the rear now faces Pine Street, and the Nurses' home also faces the same way.

A very pleasant effect has been obtained by the odd manner in which the masonry foundation has been laid, the latest design, rarely seen in this section being used.

The building is entirely fireproof, the elevator being enclosed in fireproof partitions; all the floors of the new building are of reinforced concrete and with the exception of the sleeping rooms have a cement finish. The main corridors are covered with cork matting laid into the concrete in such a way as to leave no cracks where dust can gather.

The main feature of the design is the kitchen, which is placed on the top floor, thus preventing any unpleasant odours from penetrating through the building. On the same floor is the nurses' dining room, a very nicely arranged apartment. The ice house is also on this flat adjoining the kitchen.

The entrance to the building has granite steps and the main entrance and public hall down stairs have polished marble floors and marble nooks. A handsome staircase entirely in concrete with marble steps runs to the top of the building.

The interior woodwork is finished in white enamel and the walls are tinted in light colors which give an appearance of extreme cleanliness. An air of cheerfulness and brightness pervades the whole building. The sanitary arrangements are first class; there are no square angles between the floors and the walls, the bases all being curved to avoid dust as far as possible.

On entering the building one sees the photograph of the late R. W. Heneker (first president), on the right, and on the left that of Major Wood, who devoted so much time and money to the Hospital. Directly opposite, the eye meets the photograph of Major Williamson of Kingsbury, who very generously bequeathed a sum in the vicinity of $30,000, a source which made the erection of the new building possible. Last, but not least, is the photo of Mr. Wm. Farwell, who has done and still is doing so much for the institution.

To the right of the entrance is the doctors' consultation room and on the left the lady superintendents' office is situated. On the ground floor is the room furnished by the Hale estate in memory of the late Edward Hale. In addition the donors have furnished an endowment to the extent of $3,000. This ward is available for all needy patients who wish to take advantage of it.

On the same flat is the ward endowed under similar circumstances, for children, by Mr. M.A. Macfarlane and the children's ward so generously furnished by Mr. E.J. Page.

Several other private wards have been furnished by friends of the institution in a luxurious manner.

The Masonic Lodge endowed by the Grand Lodge of Quebec, A.F. & A.M., which has been in use since 1905 is still in the old building on the ground floor and has been moved to a very fine and large ward—the best in the Hospital. The new X-ray room which is situated on the ground floor of the old building is a decided acquisition to the institution.

The second floor of the old Hospital has been remodelled and refitted into a maternity department with four private wards, a public ward, and a nursery and other necessary rooms in connection. These are complete in every respect and meet a long needed and much felt want.

The operating suite is on the third floor and the rooms are so situated that light is obtainable from nearly every corner, therefore ensuring daylight at all hours of the day. The major operating room has both natural and artificial lights, the latter being of the special type such as are used in the Mayo clinic, Rochester. No inconvenience is caused through the location of the operating rooms on this floor on account of the ease with which patients are conveyed to and from by means of the elevator. Adjoining is the recovery room specially used by patients after undergoing minor operations and who intend leaving the hospital the same day upon recovering from the anaesthetic.

There are public wards on each of the first, second, and third floors, with sun parlors off each, also a ward kitchen on every flat.

The private wards in the new wing are equal in every respect to any which can be found in Canada. They are well lighted, convenient and well equipped.

The Sun Parlors endowed by Major Wood, have been transferred from the south side to the west and cover-

INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITIES

Extracts From Letter Received From Hon. W. S. Fielding

DISCUSSES SITUATION ARISING FROM THE WAR TO BOARD OF TRADE

Hon. W.S. Fielding, ex-Finance Minister, who is now president and Editor of the Journal of Commerce, Montreal, has been publishing several articles upon Canada's trade opportunities in the present crisis.

In response to an enquiry with regard to this subject, Hon. Mr. Fielding, in a letter to the Sherbrooke Board of Trade, writes:

"I have observed with much pleasure the efforts of the Sherbrooke Board of Trade to take advantage of the opportunities which apparently are now offering for the extension of Canadian trade.

"With regard to our home market, it is to be expected that, to some extent, goods hitherto supplied by German and Austrian manufacturers will hereafter be furnished by their keenest competitors, viz., the manufacturers of the mother country. It is probable, however, that in a number of lines it will be found that our Canadian manufacturers can themselves furnish what is required. There is, I believe, a widespread desire among the people to make larger use of our own products. In this happy position of affairs, all that would seem to be necessary is that our manufacturers shall take special care as to the quality of their goods and push their business by their ordinary methods.

"With regard to export trade to South America and other foreign countries, there is naturally more difficulty. Under any circumstances, there are obstacles to be overcome in securing distant markets. But the opportunities now opening seem to be so marked that it is worth the while of our manufacturers to make a special effort in this direction. I feel that it would be a mistake to look too much towards the Government for aid in the movement. Of course, there are things which the Government can and should do. The Government should, and I have no doubt will, promptly use its commercial agencies and other available channels for the collection, publication and distribution of statistical and other information as to the opportunities for trade in countries hitherto supplied from Europe. In this work the press can also render assistance which, I am sure, will cheerfully be given. The Government in some cases now aids transportation by subsidies to steamship lines and there may be cases in which this policy can usefully be extended.

"When we come to the making of actual arrangements for the transaction of business, it is not easy to see how the Government can take action. It will probably be necessary for manufacturers, either acting individually or in groups, to send out agents to the countries in which there seem to be opportunities for business. No Government agent can do what is needed in this respect. Then, when we have ascertained the markets, which are available, and the most convenient transportation facilities and so forth, the most important question is banking accommodation. Our Canadian banks have proved that they do not lack courage or enterprise in assisting business abroad. The branches and connections of our leading banks in Great Britain, in the United States, in Mexico, in Cuba and in the British West Indies all testify that where there is a reasonable prospect for business, our banks will be ready to do their part. In the case of countries where other chief banks are not already directly represented, they would probably upon seeing a fair prospect of business open branches, and in the meantime establish connections with similar institutions in those countries which would enable them to facilitate business transactions.

"Of course, new movements of this kind take time. There are always difficulties to be met and obstacles to be removed; but the courage and enterprise which Canadians have so often shown at home and abroad will I am persuaded, meet the situation, and enable us to make use of the large opportunities which the world's changing conditions seem to be placing within our reach.

"With best wishes for the success of your Board in the good work."

I am,
Yours faithfully,
W.S. FIELDING.

ed with a Pergola roof. They receive the sunlight all day long. The floors of the building are all hardwood finish. A new fire escape with concrete platforms and spiral iron staircase, has been built in the angle of the old and new buildings, and situated so that access can be had from both ends.

The above is by no means a complete description of the new hospital but will give some idea of the improvements and additions made. The building throughout has been constructed on the latest and most modern methods of hospital architecture, with special attention to light and ventilation, and the whole is well furnished and equipped.

One of the most important features in connection with the new Hospital is the appointment of a house surgeon. The need of a resident doctor has long been felt, and the authorities are fortunate in having secured Dr. Bayne, of Montreal, to fill the position.

THE FORMAL OPENING.

The formal opening and reception on October 8th promises to be an exceedingly interesting event. Friends of the institution from all over the Townships will be invited and the reception will continue both afternoon and evening.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC!

WE the undersigned, representing the Merchants of Sherbrooke who desire to serve the best interests of the City and Dominion, pledge ourselves to do our utmost with a view towards controlling retail prices in Sherbrooke that they may not increase beyond the means of the citizens during the present war. It will be understood that prices may increase, but we, as loyal Canadians, promise to carry on our business with the least margin of profit possible.

War was unavoidable and Canada must do her share. We firmly believe that the merchant who attempts to gouge the public at a crisis, such as this, is as much a traitor to his flag as the man who sells the plans of a fortress.

Despite the fact that the great nations of Europe are engaged in war, the people of Canada must eat, sleep, buy clothes and carry on the usual routine. War does not mean ruination unless unscrupulous merchants seek to wring blood-money out of the people. We are all going to stay in business and do everything we can to protect our customers. It is entirely unnecessary to purchase your stock all at one time. Forget the war during business hours—Great Britain cannot lose.

There was a much better and a more general enquiry from English importers today and as prices had from Liverpool and Bristol were higher a fair amount of business was done. The Liverpool public cable quoted finest Canadian white cheese at 73s, and colored at 74s which shows an advance of 6d on the prices quoted on August 29th.

WARNING TO TRESPASSERS

Walking Along Railway Track Now Strictly Forbidden

TWO DEFENDANTS FINED BY JUDGE MULVENA FOR TRESPASS AND DAMAGE.

Joseph Theriault was brought before Judge Mulvena on a charge laid by Special Constable Ritson of the C.P.R. for breaking the fence along the line of the C.P.R., opposite the Fairbanks Mfg. Co.

It appeared from the evidence that the fence had been broken down seven times within the last six months by people using it as a short cut.

Another charge was laid against the same defendant by the same constable for walking along the line of the C.P.R. and using it as a highway.

A third complaint was laid against Joseph Breton for trespassing along the track. All the charges were proved, and the Court imposed a penalty of $1 and costs in each case, and referred to the fact that a large number of similar charges had been brought during the last six months, in which sentence had been suspended owing to the fact that perhaps the public were not sufficiently aware of the law forbidding trespassing on railways, but that now the railway companies had erected large signs warning the public, and a large amount of publicity had been given the matter, the Court could no longer avoid imposing a penalty as a caution to others.

GERMAN ATTACKS ARE REPULSED

FRANCO-BRITISH SOLDIERS USED BAYONETS ON ENEMY

London, Sept. 19.—"Ten times the Germans charged the Franco-British lines along the Aisne and ten times they were driven back by wonderful counter charges in which the Franco-British soldiers used the bayonet with such terrific effect that the fields, the roads, and the river were choked by German dead."

This is a stirring yet tragic report of an attempt by General Von Kluck's army on the German right, heavily reinforced, to break its way through the French left wing. This wing includes England's first army under Sir John French, a wing of which hurled the German right back from Paris, forcing the whole of the Kaiser's great army to retreat.

This fierce battle along the Aisne, which is only part of the fiercer and greater "battle of seven rivers," began on the 14th, when the Germans delivered a serious night attack. But the French and British were not surprised, and gave not a foot, though the fighting of the Germans in this engagement has not been equalled for ferocity and daring since the war began.

The French lines, which were the Franco-British stonewall were appalling, but General Von Kluck continued to hurl dense masses of his troops at the Allies all through the night, in a supreme effort to check their forward march. When the dawn came the French and British had not only held their own, but had even gained ground.

GERMANS HEAVILY ENTRENCHED

RESIST FIERCE ASSAULTS OF THE ALLIED ARMIES.

London, Sept. 18, 9.15 p.m.—For five days the British and French armies have been trying to dislodge the Germans from the strong line of defences which they have constructed on the battle front stretching from the Oise to the Meuse rivers. There have been attacks and counter attacks, but, in the words of the official communications, "there has been no change in the situation."

The Allies claim to have made slight progress at some points against the German right wing north of the river Aisne and to have repulsed counter attacks there and between Craonne and Rheims, while they say in the centre and on the right the Germans are acting purely on the defensive, having "dug themselves into entrenchments."

The German official reports are almost identical with those of the French and they say that no decision has been reached but that the Allies' power of resistance is relaxing that a French attempt to break their right has failed, that in the centre the Germans are gaining ground slowly and that sallies from Verdun have been repulsed.

It would seem from all this that the commanding generals have not yet found the weak points in their opponents' dispositions and that each is withholding his determined blow for, as Lord Kitchener said in the House of Lords, "the right moment."

GO WITH CONTINGENT

London, Sept. 19.—Dean Starr, of Ontario, who was among the first Canadians in England to be accepted for active service has been appointed drill instructor to the recruits at Purfleet. Thirty Canadian Oxford undergraduates have joined the King Edward's Horse and will go with the first Canadian contingent.

tions were vividly portrayed and listened to intently.

During the evening the singers entertained us with the Russian and French national anthems. Mr. Townsend gave a solo, "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," the singers joining in the chorus, which was effective.

Mrs. Hunting gave a piano selection, a military march, and also acted as accompanist.

Miss Alice Colt gave a recitation, "Stirring Scenes" which was heartily applauded. The President voiced the sentiments of all in thanks to Mr. Townsend, the speaker, the singers, Mr. Stebbins, who gave the free use of the hall, and all who assisted.

Refreshments were served and the evening closed by singing, "The Soldiers of the King" and "God Save the King."

A collection was taken which amounted to $15.50, and a subscription was started and quite a sum subscribed. It will be circulated from house to house, giving the people generally a chance to help the fund, yet been decided just which fund the money will be sent to.

GREAT BATTLE OF AISNE

assault along the line. At the present time the conflict seems to be little more than an artillery duel, but I look for a decisive turn when our heavy batteries at the front are reinforced. The Germans now hold strong positions, but I think that they will not be able to maintain them.

CONFIDENCE IN LEADERS.

"The people have confidence in the strategy of General Joffre and Field Marshal French. The troops believe in them implicitly. The Allies will doubtless manoeuvre to swing a terrible attack against the weak position in the German lines after a long, hard bombardment. It may be two weeks before the final stage of battle is reached, but we believe that there can be but one result, victory for the Allies."

It is believed that at least 2,700,000 men are engaged along the mighty battle front from Noyon to Etain and Thiaucourt, east of the Meuse. So far, however, there has been but little work for the infantry and cavalry, the issue being waged with heavy artillery.

GERMANS HEAVILY ENTRENCHED

RESIST FIERCE ASSAULTS OF THE ALLIED ARMIES.

London, Sept. 18, 9.15 p.m.—For five days the British and French armies have been trying to dislodge the Germans from the strong line of defences which they have constructed on the battle front stretching from the Oise to the Meuse rivers. There have been attacks and counter attacks, but, in the words of the official communications, "there has been no change in the situation."

The Allies claim to have made slight progress at some points against the German right wing north of the river Aisne and to have repulsed counter attacks there and between Craonne and Rheims, while they say in the centre and on the right the Germans are acting purely on the defensive, having "dug themselves into entrenchments."

The German official reports are almost identical with those of the French and they say that no decision has been reached but that the Allies' power of resistance is relaxing that a French attempt to break their right has failed, that in the centre the Germans are gaining ground slowly and that sallies from Verdun have been repulsed.

It would seem from all this that the commanding generals have not yet found the weak points in their opponents' dispositions and that each is withholding his determined blow for, as Lord Kitchener said in the House of Lords, "the right moment."

GO WITH CONTINGENT

London, Sept. 19.—Dean Starr, of Ontario, who was among the first Canadians in England to be accepted for active service has been appointed drill instructor to the recruits at Purfleet. Thirty Canadian Oxford undergraduates have joined the King Edward's Horse and will go with the first Canadian contingent.

tions were vividly portrayed and listened to intently.

During the evening the singers entertained us with the Russian and French national anthems. Mr. Townsend gave a solo, "Tenting on the Old Camp Ground," the singers joining in the chorus, which was effective.

Mrs. Hunting gave a piano selection, a military march, and also acted as accompanist.

Miss Alice Colt gave a recitation, "Stirring Scenes" which was heartily applauded. The President voiced the sentiments of all in thanks to Mr. Townsend, the speaker, the singers, Mr. Stebbins, who gave the free use of the hall, and all who assisted.

Refreshments were served and the evening closed by singing, "The Soldiers of the King" and "God Save the King."

A collection was taken which amounted to $15.50, and a subscription was started and quite a sum subscribed. It will be circulated from house to house, giving the people generally a chance to help the fund, yet been decided just which fund the money will be sent to.

BALACLAVA CAPS ARE APPRECIATED

Captain Sampson Extends Thanks to Sherbrooke Ladies

JUST WHAT THEY WANTED—BUSY DAYS AT VALCARTIER CAMP

The regular Friday meeting of the Sherbrooke Patriotic Association was held yesterday in the D. O. E. Club room, Mrs. Jack Morkill presiding, in the absence of the President. Representatives of the different committees were present, but as considerable business had been disposed of on the previous day the meeting was adjourned.

A letter from Captain Sampson of the 53rd Regiment, now in command of a company of the 12th battalion, was read by the Secretary of the Association. It was as follows:—

"I received your letter yesterday and the caps (Balaklava caps) today. They are just what the men want, and are indeed very much appreciated."

"The men all join in sending their best thanks to the Sherbrooke Patriotic Association, and only hope that they may have a chance to wear them on German soil."

"I think about fifty-five more of them would fully supply the company."

"We lost quite a number of our men but have replaced nearly all with men from No. 6 Co. C.A.S.C."

"Colonel McCuaig called to see us Sunday and handed me fifty dollars to spend on the men."

"The men are all in good condition and behaving themselves well. There is a rumor among them that no letters will be allowed out after tonight, but it has not been confirmed."

"I would have written yesterday but we were out all day and did not get back 'till 7 p.m."

"Then immediately after dinner we had a lecture lasting 'till 10.30."

"Up at five this morning; marched out at 6.30 for a sham fight, and back again at noon. As a result we are all tired out."

"We are having very warm weather now, though it gets rather cold at night, probably owing to the high altitude, as we are pretty high up in the mountains."

"Thanking you again, and with best regards, Yours sincerely, etc."

PEACE TALK FROM WASHINGTON

for disarmament, then the crushing of Germany is the poorest way to accomplish it. Crushed, Germany will repeat the era after the Napoleonic wars and arm every man and child in the Empire for the day of revenge.

Sixth—Germany is willing to call the war a draw. Such a solution, she maintains, would be most conducive to future peace in Europe and to disarmament. Complete victory on either side would not lead to stable conditions.

There are three prerequisites to Germany's consideration of peace negotiations: First—There must be something more substantial in the offer than the mere tender of good offices of the United States. While recognizing the kindly interests of this government, yet it contains no assurance from the Allies. England must forego her demands for war to a finish and the complete crushing of Germany. As long as that attitude is persisted in Germany will be compelled to turn a deaf ear to all friendly offers.

WAR OF SELF DEFENCE.

Second—Germany in Europe must not be dismembered. While negotiations might be considered concerning colonies, the German Empire must remain intact.

Third—Germany must be let alone by other powers around her in the future. Every man in the Empire believes sincerely and honestly to-day that the war is one of self defence against the hostile encroachments of Russia, France and England. Live and let live is the policy that Germany wishes its enemies to observe.

The offer of American mediation is declined by Germany because there are no assurances from the Allies that it would be considered by them.

President Wilson took no action as a result of the message, waiting to hear from Ambassador Gerard whether anything of a more formal character could be obtained by him which the United States might communicate to Great Britain, France and Russia.

It was understood to-day that neither the British nor French Ambassadors, who are in Washington, was informed officially or unofficially by Secretary Bryan of the exchange between the Imperial German Chancellor and Ambassador Gerard.

The general belief in well-informed circles to-day was that the President, after waiting a few days for more information from Berlin, probably would instruct the American Ambassadors at London, Paris and Petrograd to communicate what the Imperial German Chancellor had said to Ambassador Gerard.

It was believed that the Ambassadors would be asked to reiterate the wish of the American Government to be of service in bringing about peace and to point out the readiness of the United States to communicate to Germany and Austria any statement of terms which the Allies might care to make.

MANUFACTURERS HOLD MEETING

intends having this done. It was pointed out that this would very likely at once give Canadian manufacturers an opportunity to enter a new field.

A BROAD NATIONAL SPIRIT.

Mr. E. W. Farwell made a most enthusiastic address, pointing out that the small group of Sherbrooke manufacturers had something more to look into than the means of taking advantage of the present situation to increase their own output. The question must be handled to get the best results for our country as a whole.

The question is a great big one, an opportunity is one of vital importance. Mr. Farwell thought that the Government should invite the manufacturers of the country as a whole to come together to study the situation. Have complete information and statistics prepared and after careful study the manufacturers will see where they can best step in to take their part in the open field of the world's commerce. "The whole matter must be handled on a systematic basis," said Mr. Farwell, "divide the business up so that the whole country will get its share—suppose, for instance, statistics show that there is an opening for some particular article if all those who can, start a big output of this article the consequence will be that the market will be overloaded, but if one section takes the one article, another something else, then the whole country will be at work." The speaker was in favor of sending a resolution to the Associated Boards at Granby on Wednesday next with a view of taking the matter up with the Government.

BANKS ARE READY.

In answer to a question Mr. Farwell said that the banks of Canada have the money and will stand behind the people of Canada in any legitimate enterprise. The Canadian banks are in a better position than any banks on the North American continent.

MOVEMENT SHOULD COME FROM MANUFACTURERS' ASSOCIATION.

Mr. W. R. Webster was of the opinion that the movement should come from the Manufacturers' Association. The E. T. Boards of Trade were sectional while the Manufacturers' Association represented the whole country.

He thought the manufacturers should go to the Government and not the Government to the manufacturers.

Mr. A. G. Campbell thought it a good idea for the Government to invite the manufacturers. In view of the extraordinary possibilities it would be a good auger to see the Government behind the movement.

by Dr. Watson, A. J. Lyster, R. Messrs. McCullough, Blue, Root, Sangster, Haight and others took part in the discussion.

A resolution was adopted which urges the Government to call a convention of manufacturers and other interests to discuss with the Government this all important subject of trade and industrial expansion under the conditions which now exist.

MONDAY NIGHT'S PATRIOTIC CONCERT

The programme is now complete for the Patriotic Concert to be held Monday night. This will no doubt prove one of the most stirring events that Sherbrooke has experienced for some time. The speakers, the solos, the enthusiasm of the people should light a flame which will find vent in the strongest sentiments which will stir every British heart. No great drama or great opera can do what a great occasion can do. No one who has a bit of patriotism should fail to be on hand. The price is within the reach of all. Those who wish to reserve seats should not delay.

TIPPERARY A FEATURE

Those who have been practising the song "It's a long long way to Tipperary" find that it has a remarkable swing. The words will be printed on the back of the programmes with other songs and the music will be such as will bring everyone into line with his sonorous voice. This song is being sung in the trenches in France. It is the song they sing when they hear the withering artillery fire in the stubborn defence or attack. It is the marching song in England and was sung by the Prince of Wales' regiment as it marched into London with the Prince. It was sung by the sailors in their fight for life when the Pathfinder was sunk. So then, on Monday night, when we remember the splendid deeds that are being done to the tune of its refrain we shall be proud to sing about "It's a long long way to Tipperary."
