

Atlantic provinces assailed by snowstorm

HALIFAX (CP) — A storm system continued to assail the Atlantic provinces today and heavy snowfalls hurried by strong winds were expected to close schools and many businesses in most areas.

Sydney, N.S., appeared the most vulnerable as a strike by city workers continued into its third day.

Eight inches of snow covered most streets in the Cape Breton city. The workers agreed to operate only two snow plows to clear emergency paths in major streets.

All schools in the city were expected to remain closed today as were most businesses.

"I walked to work this morning on a downtown street and the snow almost came up to my knees," one Sydney resident said.

Police said the city was virtually paralyzed. Another four inches of snow were expected in Cape Breton and northern Nova Scotia today.

Power outages and telecommunications failures were reported this morning in Guysborough County in northern Nova Scotia as up to seven inches of wet, heavy snow took its toll.

In New Brunswick, the storm dumped up to 20 inches of snow in the southern part of the province.

WAS HARDEST HIT

Saint John was the hardest hit, with all schools and most commercial concerns closed. Police reported the city at a standstill, although main streets were being cleared.

Other areas of New Brunswick received varying amounts of snow in the biggest snowstorm of the winter.

The snow was accompanied by winds from the northwest at up to 40 miles an hour for part of the night. The winds dropped to 20 m.p.h. about midnight.

In Prince Edward Island, most schools were closed today after the storm deposited up to seven inches of snow.

Some business were reported preparing to open in Charlottetown, however.

In central and northern Nova Scotia, the storm left varying amounts of snow. Up to 20 inches were reported in Amherst, which was also afflicted by power outages.

Seven inches fell in Truro, 60 miles north of Halifax. Radio station CKCL in Truro was operating on emergency power.

Halifax escaped the brunt of the storm. It was buffeted by torrents of freezing rain and some flurries.

In St. John's, Nfld. this morning the skies were clear, but the city was bracing itself for a predicted assault of up to eight inches of snow starting at noon Newfoundland time.

Snowfalls across the province were expected to range from light to heavy.

Schools were expected to open as usual in St. John's as administrators decided to wait for the storm to hit.

Viet Nam fighting escalates

SAIGON (AP) — Waves of South Vietnamese planes attacked the Viet Cong headquarters at Loc Ninh and nearby Communist areas in retaliation for the loss of the capital of Phuoc Binh province, the Saigon command announced today.

F5 fighter-bombers raided troop concentrations, anti-aircraft positions, ammunition dumps and supply centres in the Communist zones below the Cambodian border north of Saigon Tuesday night and today, and pilots reported ammunition explosions that sent smoke 3,000 feet into the air, a command spokesman said.

A Viet Cong spokesman

charged that the bombers inflicted heavy civilian casualties and property damage in Loc Ninh, which is 75 miles north of Saigon and 30 miles west of Phuoc Binh City, the provincial capital lost Tuesday.

Southwest of Loc Ninh in Tay Ninh province, which is also threatened by the North Vietnamese offensive that began a month ago, the only action reported was a 14-round artillery barrage into the Trang Lon base camp. The North Vietnamese overran another base overlooking the provincial capital Tuesday, but no followup attack was reported today.

The North Vietnamese also kept up their siege of Hoa Duc, a town 75 miles northeast of Saigon. The government said an attack was driven back with five Viet Cong and one South Vietnamese soldier killed.

SEEKING SURVIVORS

Maj. Gen. Le Ngoc Trien, deputy commander for field operations of the Joint General Staff, told a news conference that South Vietnamese aircraft are flying reconnaissance missions over Phuoc Long province searching for survivors from the Phuoc Binh garrison.

He said the government forces suffered heavy casualties in the final attack, but "we are sure some of them escaped."

Trien added that the command is considering a major operation to recapture Phuoc Long province.

The South Vietnamese government sent an appeal to the International Red Cross, the World Health Organization, the UN Children's Fund and the UN High Commissioner for Refugees, asking for emergency assistance for thousands of civilian "victims of the current North Vietnamese offensive."

The Saigon command also reported that government forces repulsed a heavy attack Tuesday on a regimental base camp on the central coast in Binh Dinh province. It said 102 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and 10 government soldiers were killed and 16 government troops were wounded.

In Cambodia, Phnom Penh's airport was the target of a rocket attack for the third straight day, and again all the damage was outside the field. Military authorities said six rockets hit a nearby village, wounding six civilians and damaging several homes.

US navy carrier fleet heads for Indian Ocean

WASHINGTON (AP) — A powerful navy carrier fleet sailed toward the Indian Ocean today as rumblings persisted over State Secretary Henry Kissinger's interpreted warning of possible U.S. military action in an oil emergency.

The six-ship study mission, led by the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered aircraft carrier Enterprise, was expected to enter the Indian Ocean within a few days after a voyage from Subic Bay in the Philippines.

The Pentagon acknowledged the Enterprise's sailing but would not identify its destination. However, sources said the carrier, the nuclear-propelled cruiser Long Beach, two destroyers, a supply ship and an oiler were bound for the Indian Ocean.

Pentagon spokesman William Beecher said Tuesday the group is on an operational mission, but denied reports it is bound for waters off South Vietnam, where government troops have been reeling under Communist attack.

The White House affirmed the Pentagon statement. At the same time, President Ford was described as watching developments in South Vietnam closely.

Congress has banned any U.S. bombing or other military action in Indochina. Any such move would require prior congressional approval, officials said.

DISPELS REPORTS

In Honolulu, Admiral Noel Gayler, commander of U.S. military forces in the Pacific, said it is "difficult to imagine" any circumstances under which U.S. troops would be sent back to Vietnam.

Speaking on the NBC-TV Today Show to be broadcast Thursday, Gayler said the possible fall of the Thieu regime—or any regime—in South Vietnam would not justify intervention by U.S. troops.

Defence sources indicated the study group would come no closer than about 350 miles from the South Vietnamese coast.

Pentagon officials said the impending one-month Indian Ocean cruise of the Enterprise with its 80 warplanes had been planned for weeks. The six ships will replace another study group headed by the carrier Constellation, which left the Indian Ocean about a month ago.

The U.S. has been rotating naval groups in and out of the Indian Ocean on a fairly regular basis since late 1973, following the Middle East war. A major aim is to demonstrate that the U.S. intends to secure its oil shipping routes to and from the Persian Gulf.

There were reports that senior defence officials pondered in recent days whether to delay the Enterprise's entrance into the Indian Ocean because its appearance there now might agitate Arab and other countries already aroused by Kissinger's veiled remarks about possible U.S. military action.

Levesque says PQ won't drop independence bid

TORONTO (CP) — The Parti Quebecois will not attempt to court the support of Quebec voters by abandoning its fight for the province's independence, leader Rene Levesque said Tuesday.

Mr. Levesque, interviewed in Montreal for the CBC television program Primetime, was commenting on a recent poll which indicates his party might form the government after the next Quebec election if its separatist stance was dropped.

But "any kind of good healthy future for Quebec" depends on the province pulling out of Confederation, Mr. Levesque said.

"The rest of Canada would be better off without us and we would be better off in a new association with Canada."

Working for Quebec's objectives within the framework of the federal system was not a viable alternative to separation, Mr. Levesque added.

French-Canadian representatives in Ottawa, the "Trudeau-Marchand-Pelletier" bloc, have "frustrated away the possibilities for reform in Quebec" because of the English-speaking majority behind them.

OPPOSING PRIORITIES

He said Prime Minister Trudeau is "a sort of sop to Quebec opinion" and was elected to lead the federal Liberal party partly "to keep Quebec quiet."

Mr. Levesque added, however, that a Parti Quebecois government would not mean automatic separation for the province.

"We can't expect to yank Quebec out of Confederation without a clear democratic majority."

Mr. Levesque said he did not rule out future violent eruptions from Quebec separatist sympathizers if independence began to seem an impossible dream.

Brezhnev to US with cancer?

BOSTON (AP) — Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev is to enter the Sidney Farber Cancer Centre here today for treatment.

In a front-page story, the newspaper quotes a police source as saying the 68-year-old Soviet leader will enter the cancer centre at the Children's Hospital sometime today.

However, the Boston office of the FBI, state police, the cancer centre and airport officials all told The Associated Press they knew nothing of the reported visit. In Washington, initial inquiries to the State Department and the Secret Service drew no comment.

In Moscow, there was no immediate comment from Kremlin officials on The Globe story.

Last Friday, syndicated columnist Charles Bartlett reported that while Soviet spokesmen were saying Brezhnev cancelled a scheduled trip to Cairo next week because he had the flu, he actually was suffering from leukemia.

REPORTS VARY

The Soviet news agency Tass announced Dec. 30 that the trip was postponed indefinitely. No reason was given. Later, an Egyptian newspaper said "health reasons" forced cancellation of the trip.

Meanwhile, the body of Brezhnev's mother, Natalia Denisovna Brezhnev, lay in state in the House of the Academy of Sciences in central Moscow. Her death was announced Tuesday. She was believed to be about 87.

UK hijacker captured

LONDON (AP) — Police at an airport north of London overpowered the hijacker of a British airliner Tuesday night, freed the five members of the plane crew unharmed and recovered $230,000 in ransom.

The only casualty was a steward who was bitten by a police dog.

The hijacker was to appear in court today. Police did not announce his identity but said he was about 27 and wore a moustache. The pilot said the gunman was an Arab student.

It was the first hijacking ever of a domestic British flight.

The man commandeered the British Airways BAC111 as it was preparing to land at Heathrow Airport here after a flight from Manchester.

PRODUCES GUN

He held stewardess Barbara Brindley at gunpoint and demanded: "Tell the captain I would like to go to Paris. I have nothing to live for and we must go there."

The pilot, Captain Harry Lea, 53, radioed that the hijacker was armed with a .32-calibre revolver and a canister filled with explosives. Police said later the gun was a realistic-looking toy and the canister contained no bomb.

When the plane landed at Heathrow, the hijacker allowed the 46 passengers to get off and demanded the money and a parachute. Troops and police ringed the plane.

The hijacker held the crew for seven hours while Lea, seemingly angry, tried to talk security officials in the control tower into producing the ransom. He said the man was "obviously deranged" and was threatening to shoot the crew and blow up the plane.

TOURS ENGLAND

Finally, officials handed over a parachute and the ransom. But French authorities refused to allow the plane to land in France. Security chiefs decided to have Lea fly over England for more than an hour, then land at Stansted, an airport for charter craft north of London, where they would try to make the hijacker believe he was in France.

Two plane loads of troops and police were rushed to Stansted, and all signs and billboards there were covered, but the ruse did not work. Police said the hijacker realized he was not in France and demanded a car to take him to Dover, on the English Channel. When that was refused, he tried to make a break, taking steward Allan Bond, 35, as a hostage.

A police dog handler grabbed the hijacker a few yards from the plane, and in the melee the handler's dog bit Bond. His wound was minor.

The crew told reporters the hijacker was "very, very friendly."

"He was more frightened than anything," said Miss Brindley.

Arrest follows shooting spree

CALGARY (CP) — A 20-year-old man who was arrested Tuesday following a four-hour shooting incident here was described by medical sources as "a desperate man crying out for help."

Dallas Wittman was taken to hospital for a mental examination after a gunman fired about a dozen shots from an 11th-floor apartment in southwest Calgary. There were no injuries and police did not return the gunman's fire.

An official at Foothills hospital here said in an interview that Wittman is suffering from brain damage and had slashed his wrists twice in recent months.

The official said he felt Wittman's action was triggered by a gunfight in Calgary Dec. 20 which left a police detective and a gunman dead and six police officers wounded.

He said the shoot-out possibly gave Wittman the idea that he could draw attention to himself and his personal problems by re-creating a similar incident.

Wittman surrendered to police after talking to Dr. Keith Pearce, head of psychiatry at Foothills hospital and the University of Calgary.

KEPT RIFLE

Wittman accompanied Calgary police Inspector Ernie Reimer out of the apartment building, but refused to give police his loaded .22-calibre rifle until he arrived at the hospital, said a witness.

Dr. Pearce declined to discuss the incident, but he credited police with avoiding bloodshed.

"I was tremendously impressed with Inspector Reimer's actions and his cool, calm manner," said Dr. Pearce.

The Dec. 20 shoot-out involved more than 200 police and an armored vehicle from Canadian Forces Base Calgary.

Since that shooting, police have studied new tactics for such situations.

Officers were kept away from the area unless specifically ordered to take part in the operation.

Police were armed with military M-1 carbines and high-velocity target rifles with telescopic sights and used a secret radio frequency which could not be monitored. Spectators were kept far away from the scene.

Suggests asbestos in water can cause cancer

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Morton Shulman, NDP member of the Ontario legislature, said Tuesday that information to be released in the United States next week suggests asbestos in drinking water "can cause gastrointestinal cancer."

Dr. Shulman, who last month warned of high levels of asbestos particles in drinking water in communities on the Great Lakes, told a news conference the Ontario government is taking chances with the lives of Ontario residents through its "wait and see" stance.

The NDP member said he believes that asbestos in drinking water is a "far more serious carcinogen (cancer-causing agent) than tobacco."

He advised persons drinking water from the Great Lakes, particularly families with young children, to install stills in their homes.

Dr. Shulman said he has been told a filtration system to remove asbestos from Toronto drinking water would cost about $185,000.

Individual units for homes cost between $180 and $200, he said.

GIVES SOURCE

Dr. Shulman said his latest information came from a leading participant in a U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) conference on the biological effects of ingested asbestos, held in November, 1973, in Durham, N.C.

Minutes of that conference, to be published by the EPA next week, show that none of the scientists consulted by the U.S. government agency was willing to dispel suggestions of a link between ingested asbestos and cancer of the stomach or bowel, he said.

Dr. Shulman said that among them, Prof. Sam Epstein, professor of environmental health at Case Western University, Cleveland, Ohio, told him Monday:

"Every effort must be made at once to remove the asbestos from our drinking water."

Dr. Shulman said Prof. Epstein admitted there is no legal proof that drinking the water causes cancer, but there is no question that asbestos is a carcinogen.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market Tuesday pushed its year-end rally further into 1975 with prices closing higher for the eighth straight session. Trading was moderate.

The market overcame an early bout of profit-taking and advanced steadily from mid-session.

The industrial index closed up 1.51 to 162.06, highest since Nov. 15, after dropping almost half a point in morning trading. The index has gained more than eight points in a rally which began Christmas Eve.

Western oils also recorded strong gains, up 1.92 to 122.80, highest since Nov. 21.

The gold index fell 5.43 to 358.97, reflecting a continuing drop in the price of bullion. Base metals lost .54 to 58.14.

One factor contributing to the recent rise is the re-investment of year-end interest and dividend payments. The New York market, often a major influence on Toronto prices, has also been stronger due, in part, to the recent reduction by the Federal Reserve in its discount rate. This may signal declines in other interest rates, analysts say.

At Toronto, advances outnumbered declines by a wide margin.

Trading was halted at the open in shares of Electronic Associates of Canada, "pending clarification of the affairs of the company," the exchange said.

The stock last traded at 15 cents.

United Canso was traded actively and closed at $7 1/4, up 1/2. United Canso said it has been approached by several corporations for the possible purchase of the company or its off-shore petroleum interests in the U.K. but that no decision has been reached on the offers.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market ran into some resistance from profit-taking Tuesday but still managed to keep its 1975 record unblemished with a modest gain in moderate trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down about 4 points at its low late in the morning, finished with a 3.99 gain at 641.19.

The closely followed average now has risen slightly more than 39 points in a six-session uptrend that began on New Year's Eve.

Advances outnumbered declines 928 to 519 among the 1,786 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange.

NYSE volume totaled 14.33 million shares in a session interrupted for 35 minutes shortly after the opening bell because of computer trouble at the NYSE.

Equipment problems caused trading halts of about the same length twice last year — on April 10 and Oct. 15.

A separate problem which the NYSE said occurred in telephone lines outside the exchange shut down trading in odd lots — blocks of less than 100 shares — for more than an hour and a half at mid-day Tuesday.

Analysts gave the credit for the market's persistent strength primarily to two influences — increasing signs that the Federal Reserve was slackening its tight money policy, and expectations of some broad new economic and energy measures from President Ford soon.

The President is due to give his State of the Union message to Congress in less than two weeks.

MGIC Investment, the day's most active issue, dropped 1/2 to $8 1/4. The company, which insures home mortgages, reported that its loss ratio on insured loans for homes showed a large increase in the fourth quarter of 1974.

Sterling Drug, which estimated a 10 per cent decline in fourth-quarter earnings, tumbled 6 1/2 to $18 1/2. The news from the company clearly came as an unpleasant surprise to some of the many investors — including a good many institutions — enamored of the drug industry and its earnings growth record.

The Amex market-value index gained .38 to 64.06.

Gold rush cooled off

LONDON (AP) — The rush for gold cooled on European markets Tuesday and dealers said it was because of limited U.S. interest in buying the metal at a government-sponsored auction Monday.

In London, the five major bullion dealers set the price of the metal at $171.25 an ounce for morning trading and at $169.50 for the afternoon session. At Monday's close, before news of the auction reached London from Washington, gold was trading here at around $172 an ounce.

At Tuesday's close the metal failed to rally significantly. The Rothschild banking empire quoted its closing figure at $169.50 an ounce and Montagu's, another major bullion trader, at $172. In Zurich, Europe's other major bullion centre, gold closed at $170, a loss of $4.

Tuesday's prices were down $30 dollars from peak levels reached eight days ago as European dealers snapped up gold in expectation of high U.S. demand once dealings in gold bullion became legal in the United States.

GOLD, GOLD AND MORE GOLD surrounds Theresa Gutarra of the Consolidated Refining Co., Inc. in Mamaroneck, N.Y. Anticipating a heavy demand for gold by private citizens now permitted to buy it, the company has been processing gold into quarter-, half- and full-ounce ingots for sale to dealers who will then resell to citizens. Before Theresa are gold bars, a bag of gold dust and overhead is a thin strand of finely rolled gold.

Banks, furniture makers plan to hire more this year

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the economic slowdown, steel mills, furniture makers and banks plan to do more hiring this year.

A survey by Manpower Temporary Services, a private firm, indicates 30.8 per cent of foundries and steel rolling mills plan to add to their payrolls in the first three months of this year.

Nearly 25 per cent of the banks contacted by the firm forecast sizable increases in staff.

Metals and metalworking manufacturers, furniture and fixture manufacturers also had plans for staff additions.

The firm, which specializes in temporary help and business service, asked more than 1,100 firms across Canada about their employment plans for January, February and March.

However, the over-all picture was not as good as previous quarters. More companies were uncertain, waiting to see what the economy does before adding or reducing staff.

Both the construction industry and retail department stores planned significant reductions, following the normal seasonal trend.

Automotive parts manufacturers were looking for more reductions as a result of a slowdown in the auto industry.

According to the survey the employment situation looks most serious around the Niagara Peninsula, in Barrie and Kitchener, Ont., while St. John's, Nfld., Winnipeg, Man. and Edmonton, Alta., all have a very healthy outlook for work in the first quarter of 1975.

More cuts in copper prices announced

TORONTO (CP) — Three major Canadian producers Monday announced further cuts in the price of copper, continuing a trend in world markets.

International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. reduced the domestic price of ORC copper to 68.125 cents a pound, the fourth cut since last September when the price was 82.5 cents.

Prior to Monday's reduction, Inco's ORC copper was selling for 73 cents a pound.

Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Co. Ltd. reduced its price Monday for electrolytic copper wirebar sold in Canada to 68.125 cents a pound from 73 cents. Hudson Bay Mining does not sell copper in the United States.

Noranda Mines Ltd. lowered its prices for Canadian and U.S. customers Monday to 68.125 cents a pound for Canadian customers, and to 68.625 cents to U.S. customers from 74 cents.

All cuts were effective immediately.

US gold auction seen as a flop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government's great gold auction was a flop, but it proved that people have kept their common sense, officials say.

Although the government was auctioning two million ounces of gold, it received bids on only 954,800 ounces and accepted bids for just 750,000 ounces.

In addition, it appeared that most of the gold was bought by foreign banks. The biggest bid was for about 400,000 ounces from the Dresdner Bank of New York, a subsidiary of a major West German bank.

Except for a few industries and banks, most U.S. bids were for a single 400-ounce bar of gold, the minimum amount being auctioned.

SET A MINIMUM

The minimum bid price accepted by the government was $153 an ounce, considerably below world market gold prices, although a few bids ranged as high as $185 an ounce.

The gold sold Monday will bring the government more than $100 million in revenue.

Treasury Secretary William

Simon expressed delight that U.S. citizens did not buy up all the gold at sharply higher prices.

"It once again proves that the American people are a good deal smarter than many people give them credit for," Simon said at a news conference.

Of the 219 valid bids received, 100 were accepted.

U.S. citizens gained the right Dec. 31 to own gold for the first time in 41 years. But the small quantity of gold actually being bought has caused the price of gold to drop from a high of $200 an ounce to as low as $169 on the London gold market in recent days.

The two million ounces offered represented less than one per cent of the total U.S. gold reserves of 278 million ounces. The unsold 1,250,000 ounces from the auction will be kept in the official reserves.

20 face charges of impaired driving

SHERBROOKE (RH) — Present his case on February 21. Julien Brochu, who has been accused along with Corbeil for the same incident, will also appear at that time.

Once again, the incidences of impaired driving constituted the largest percentage of court appearances over the past week. A total of twenty people were brought before the judges on charges of dangerous driving due to alcohol, while other offences committed were particularly minimal.

One man was arrested for indecent assault and was brought to trial for the alleged offence on January 3. Jean-Yves Vigneault will be tried tentatively in mid-February on this charge.

As well, there was a minor rash of thefts which took place in Sherbrooke and the surrounding area over the holiday season. Michel Gagnon, to appear before sessions court on February 18, has been accused of breaking and entering and being a party to an offence. Louise Nault, who was also accused of stealing, will appear in court on this count March 30. Jeffrey Leroux, another local resident facing similar charges, has had his trial postponed until February 11, while Pierre Corbeil is due to present his case on February 21. Julien Brochu, who has been accused along with Corbeil for the same incident, will also appear at that time.

A betting operation, run by Robert Deslaurier, has resulted in having the restaurant's license revoked. This is the first such arrest made in the Eastern Townships over a period of four years.

Maurice Paquette, accused of breaking probation, will face this charge on February 28, while Real Goleau, accused of possession of an unregistered firearm is due to appear on January 10.

Roger Cyr, charged with fraud, was acquitted of the crime when he appeared before the judge on January 6.

Those arrested for impaired driving were: Normand Page, Serge Audet, Real Morin, Marc Madore, Renaud Cote, Richard Frechette, Jerome Blanchette, Danny Alsop, Gilles Couture, Maurice Cloutier, Gustave Parenteau, Richard Paquette, Andre Coulombe, Marcel Bilodeau, Real Pouliot, Charles Carrier, Leo Vachon, Guy Jean, and Marc Vachon. All received fines ranging from $50 or eight to fifteen days in jail to $300 or six months in jail.

Consumers group to fight rate hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC) has launched legal efforts to halt proposed rail passenger fare increases to take effect Jan. 15.

The consumers' association said Tuesday it has asked the Canadian transport commission for permission to appeal proposed 15-per-cent rail fare increases filed in mid-December by CP Rail and Canadian National Railways.

The association also requested an interim order to hold up the increases for 120 days. This would allow the commission to hold a public hearing on the fare increase, the consumers' group said.

Sherbrooke man missing

MISSING — Wilfred Nutter, of 689 Murray St., Sherbrooke has been missing since mid-December and is feared suffering from amnesia. Above, he is pictured with his wife. Mr. Nutter is a World War II Veteran.

SHERBROOKE — A World War II veteran, 59-year-old Wilfred Nutter, of 689 Murray St., Sherbrooke has been missing since mid-December. Mr. Nutter is possibly suffering from amnesia as six years ago he also disappeared and was found having suffered from amnesia.

He was last seen when he left home on December 17 to visit a doctor. He was wearing a grey-blue coat, navy blue corduroy trousers, a grey cap and brown boots. Wearing dark rimmed tinted glasses, Mr. Nutter weighs 180 pounds, is 5 foot, eight inches and has short grey-white hair. He speaks only English and is an osteomate, having had a bladder operation.

Anyone having information of his whereabouts is asked to call Sid Hart, Welfare Officer of the Sherbrooke Royal Canadian Legion at 563-5448 or 569-1484.

Around Town

After the Christmas calm, the cinema and stage life in Sherbrooke and area is starting to pick up again. Included in the next seven days' events:

"The Longest Yard," starring Burt Reynolds, is shown for tonight and tomorrow night at the Cinema 2, Carrefour de L'Estrie at 7 and 9.

Friday, also at Cinema 2, "The Taking of Pelham One Two Three" starts a one-week stand in town. Screening times during the week are 7 and 9 p.m., while on weekends, the film, which stars Walter Matthau, will roll at 1:30, 3:25, 5:20, 7:15 and 9:10 p.m.

Finally, at the Salle Maurice O'Bready, University of Sherbrooke, the first of 11 "Kineart soirees" will begin January 13. Show time for the first movie is slated for 7 p.m., with another showing at 9.

CN hikes rates

MONTREAL — Canadian National will increase inter-city and transcontinental passenger fares by 10 percent, effective January 15, the railway announced recently.

The new rates have been filed with the Canadian Transport Commission.

At the same time, the railway's minimum club car fare will be increased by $1 — from $7 to $8 — and club car fares on Montreal-Toronto trains will rise from $8.50 to $10. In addition, a $2 premium will be charged for travel aboard the afternoon Turbos between the two cities.

Garth Campbell, vice-president of passenger marketing for CN, said charges for coach travel on CN trains will continue to be among the best available. "Most rail travel costs are in the 4.5 to 5.5 cents per mile range while the 3,000-mile trip across Canada by CN will cost 3.2 cents per mile," he said.

The CN vice-president said the increases will be partially offset by the introduction, early in 1975, of reduced, off-peak, round trip fares between cities with high-frequency rail service.

The plan will differentiate fares by time of day, just as CN's red, white and blue fare plan relates travel cost to days of the week. The railway official said the fares will not only encourage off-peak travel but will also free needed space for business people and others who must travel at peak times.

CN's youth, family, group and 65-plus discount fare plans have proven popular and will be continued, the railway said.

BIRCHTON

Mrs. W.O. Todd returned from a week's visiting with her daughters, Debra and Catherine in Toronto for the Christmas. Catherine spent the New Year's holiday with her mother here.

The Cookshire-Birchton Youth Group were entertained at a sliding party by Rev. and Mrs. Ball, Peter and Michael, at their home in Bury, on New Year's Eve. The weatherman co-operated with a fine evening.

Evening of Carols held at Border

STANSTEAD (IH) — Sunday evening, January 5, a beautiful pre-Epiphany Eve Festival of Lessons and Carols was held at Christ Anglican Church in Stanstead. For the procession, the church was darkened and candlelit by the choir carrying lighted tapers and singing Once in Royal David's City. The recession was the same with the carol, O Come all Ye Faithful, sung.

People in the choir read the Lessons of the Christmas miracle 1974 years ago from Genesis, Isaiah, St. Luke, St. Matthew and St. John. Edward Hyatt, a layman, spoke the bidding prayer and later, brought the good news that Rev. Owen Merriman, Rector, was coming home from the Sherbrooke Hospital, the next day.

Mr. Hyatt also noted he and Mrs. Hyatt, en route home from Ottawa had called at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Reginald Carson in Pierrefonds and found his health much improved. Rev. Mr. Carson was a former Rector here. After extending New Year wishes to all, Mr. Hyatt read from St. John.

The children's and adult choirs sang anthems to include Ding Dong Merrily on High, by the youngsters; Spirit of God, The Magnificat, Shepherd in the Field Abiding, and by the children, There in the Straw. The choir also led for the singing of many of the lovely Carols of the season. Mrs. Alfred Middleton played the would make it grow.

"We are stopped by a basic conservatism," he commented. "Even though we fulfil our role as economic educators, and in spite of the fact that we provide a whole bank of services and information, we lack the vision needed to bring the economy back to a sound state."

Economic flux, according to Father Bouvier, is due in part to changing societal structures.

"Like inflation, the power of private interest groups is rampant, while political power is on the decrease. This partially accounts for the stagnation the economy is undergoing," he elaborated.

He described the Chamber's 1975 priorities as follows: "We plan to work with the municipal government to make Sherbrooke attractive as a conference and congress centre. It's essential to the growth of the tourist industry here. Further, we're backing industrial expansion all the way. We would like to see the size of the industrial park here increase by 50 per cent."

To this end, he explained, a meeting has been arranged with Premier Bourassa on January 20. "The premier needs to be exposed to the businessman's point of view," he mused. "We must discuss the role of private enterprise in government."

He urged English-speaking members of the community to participate in the Chamber of Commerce.

"There are too few Anglophones on the board at present," he maintained. "If we are to develop a realistic view, we need the English point of view."

"Together, we can help solve the economic problems that face us."

Visit planned by Bourassa

SHERBROOKE (RM) — As part of his schedule of visits in various regions of the province, Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa will be coming to Sherbrooke Monday, January 20.

The announcement was made at the Club Social de Sherbrooke yesterday afternoon by officials of the club.

After meeting with the National Assembly members from the Sherbrooke region in the morning, Mr. Bourassa will, at noon, give a short talk on government and the economy at the social club on Prospect Street, to be followed by about 45 minutes of questions and answers.

After this function, he will meet with the region's mayors and Sherbrooke city councillors, at 2 p.m. at Howardene.

Five hundred people are expected to attend the noon hour meeting over lunch at the social club, including members of area service clubs such as the Lions, Kiwanis, and the Chambers of Commerce, reporters, and about 100 people who will get their admission passes from the Premier's office.

The social club's president, Jacques Laverdure, said that the event is significant in that it is one of the first times that a Quebec Premier comes to a region to talk and discuss, informally, the region's economic condition.

The club learned of Mr. Bourassa's arrival from his office during the holiday season.

International Women's Year marked by club

By ROSA HARRIS
(Record Reporter)

LENNOXVILLE — Half the population of the world will have their day all year long with the advent of International Women's Year, sponsored by the United Nations. The women of the Eastern Townships are no exception.

The University Women's Club, for example, has already applied for government funds to set up a career counselling program, which, it accepted, will "open career avenues to women who are inclined to consider only traditional job roles," in the words of Rhoda Matson, club president.

"There's little doubt that International Women's Year will serve a valid purpose," Mrs. Matson maintained in a recent interview, "and we feel that a career counselling service for women is a suitable way to contribute to the activities."

The club, which boasts a membership of 100 women, intends to work with guidance counsellors in various schools throughout the region to bring a wider range of job information to the female students attending the institution.

"Not only will we do the usual pamphlet distributing," club member Marjorie Goodfellow explained, "we also plan to feature speakers with unusual careers to show the students that women can be something other than a nurse, a secretary or a teacher."

Mrs. Goodfellow feels that the Eastern Townships residents are particularly conservative in their attitudes toward women on the job.

"But, then again, people from basically rural areas tend to be conservative in every respect," she added. "Still, women's year will give us the opportunity to examine the specific problems we have as women here."

Club members themselves, according to Mrs. Matson, have also fallen into employment categories usually designated for women.

"Most of us were educators at one time — teachers," she mused, "although we have a fair representation from other fields as well. We want to give other women a chance to choose — to feel they have the right to choose."

Mrs. Matson elaborated on other plans on tap for women's year.

"We're planning to hold a seminar session on March 20 and 21," she remarked. "And we'll be hosting similar university women's clubs from Ontario, Quebec, Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont. Our discussions will revolve around three basic themes — women in education, women in politics and women in community service. Essentially we expect the conference to provide us with a chance to broaden our horizons and a means to exchange information."

However, the organization's main focus is definitely on the counselling program. "We're hoping to receive government funds for it," Mrs. Goodfellow reiterated. "Only $50,000 has been set aside by the federal

Sweetsburg Court

Judge Legare found Ghislain Gauthier guilty of two counts of being illegally at large.

Gauthier of Granby, had been sentenced to 20 weekends in jail. However, he failed to appear on the 19th and 30th of November. He was sentenced to four additional days, to be served on weekends, at the completion of his term.

Gauthier had produced a medical certificate indicating he required 10 days rest to cover his escape on November 19. Judge Legare cited jurisprudence indicating the rest could have been accomplished at the Sweetsburg Jail. He utterly rejected the motion the accused had been forced to move on 24 hours notice, and added he could have reported the following day.

Jean Pierre l'Heureux and Rosaire Larose, both of Granby, who were ordered to the next term of the assizes following preliminary hearing on counts of breaking, entering and theft and voluntary public mischief, changed their options and elected for trial before a magistrate alone. Their trials were fixed to April 4.

Denis Charpentier, Irberville, pleaded guilty to a count of theft in Bedford. Defence lawyer Andre Bachand told the court his client, who had no prior record, was drunk and availed himself of the contents of a cash register.

"It was a fool's act," Mr. Bachand said. "The accused has two jobs, and I feel the needs of justice would be well served with one year's probation."

Crown prosecutor Noisieux concurred with the defence. Judge Legare suspended sentence until June 16.

A bench warrant issued for Jean-Paul Matucha, of Montreal, was revoked when the accused appeared at the end of the session. He told Judge Legare he got lost on the drive from Montreal.

The judge then allowed Crown prosecutor Noisieux to withdraw from the case. Mr. Noisieux told the court the accused had already undergone preliminary hearing on the same accusation in the District of St. Francis.

Maurice Duchaine, St. Hubert, pleaded guilty to a count of impaired driving. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days, and was allowed one month to acquit the fines and costs.

Sessions court here will sit twice weekly, following assignment of speedy trial dates, dates.

Mining and Taxes

In Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, provincial governments should be getting a clear message that their interference in the mining industry is having serious consequences not only for the companies but for the workers and for provincial revenues as well.

In Manitoba, the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, one of the pioneers of this province's northern mineral development, has decided to cut back exploration and cancel plans to improve its Flin Flon plant. The company would also like to double the capacity of a Saskatchewan potash plant, but won't do so. In British Columbia, increasing costs and government taxation policies have resulted in announced layoffs of more than 1,000 miners, one in every eight of the total engaged in mining in the province.

The president of the Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting Company, H. A. McKenzie, has spelled out the economic consequences which were the inevitable result of political interference in the mining industry by the governments of Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Mr. McKenzie's address to the Winnipeg Society of Financial Analysts should end any argument that provincial governments can tax mining companies at any rate with impunity.

Because of taxes and the political climate, Mr. McKenzie said, his company will cut in half the amount it had planned to spend on exploration in the coming year. The reduction, $1.5 million, represents wages which will not be paid in the province, supplies which will not be bought, services which will not be hired.

In addition, the company has dropped its plans to spend $20 million to improve its Flin Flon plant, and will not go ahead with a contemplated $40 million expansion of its Rocanville, Sask., potash plant, a plant described by Mr. McKenzie as "ideally suited for expansion."

If Ottawa's planned mining tax is reinstated, and added to substantially increased provincial taxes, Manitoba mining companies can look forward to contributing up to 85 per cent of their revenues in the form of federal and provincial taxes. Hudson Bay Mining, because of earned depletion allowances, will have to pay 65 per cent of its revenues.

For experienced companies, the amounts are obviously too high. Hudson Bay Mining, Mr. McKenzie said, will, instead, participate in an $83 million project in Mexico, and involve itself in operations in Indonesia. These moves will probably be welcomed by these countries because of the employment, purchasing and taxation involved.

The largest mine layoff in British Columbia is planned at Granduc Mines, near Stewart, 100 miles north of Prince Rupert. Operating marginally in the face of increasing costs and falling copper prices, Granduc is required to continue its payment of 2.5 per cent royalties on production, a rate which is due to increase to five per cent in January. In addition to paying this, the company is required to pay a 50 per cent royalty on all gold it produces worth more than $99 an ounce. This is the same type of tax which was introduced and withdrawn with the promise of reintroduction next year in the Manitoba legislature.

The company was not required to pay a similar super-royalty tax on copper because of the depressed market and low prices. But the spectre was there, a situation which seemed to spell out conditions under which the British Columbia government would allow the mine to lose money without interference, but would skim off any profits which, without the new taxation, would help the mine survive during periods of recession.

Granduc has been forced to exercise one of its other options. The mine has announced it will drop 480 employees in January, further worsening the employment situation in British Columbia.

In west, only Spain has censorship

The fall of authoritarian regimes in Greece and Portugal in 1974 left Spain alone in Western Europe with an officially censored news media.

But in Europe and elsewhere inflation, the newsprint and energy crises and reduced income from advertising forced some independent newspapers to merge into communications empires or accept government handouts, jeopardizing their editorial autonomy. Some smaller journals died.

Correspondents of The Associated Press, making their annual survey of world news media freedoms, recorded several significant gains on the censorship front.

However, bleak reports came from South America and Africa, where predominantly military governments continued to view the media as a personal threat. The Communist world remained a staunch bastion against any freedom of expression.

EUROPE

The Portuguese media were freed from decades of control when the right-wing dictatorship was overthrown April 25. Circulation doubled but newspapers soon became entangled in a power struggle between the ruling Armed Forces Movement and the Communist party.

The military rulers banned "ideological aggression" against their movement and the vague rule has seen increasing use. Even more restricting has been the formation of Communist-led workers' committees at most newspapers that refuse to set type for stories they deem undemocratic.

In Greece, the exit of the colonels last July brought an abrupt end to 7½ years of censorship and the free flow of news quickly resumed.

Even in Spain, readers received more news than in any year since the civil war. But Information Minister Pio Cabanillas, who instituted the liberal policy of "apertura" (openness), was dismissed in October after 10 months in office.

His successor vowed to continue the liberal policy, but almost immediately media criticism of the government dropped sharply.

Sweden's 160-year-old history of news media freedoms was tarnished by the conviction of two journalists as spies after a raid on their magazine by police. They had written a series of articles disclosing a secret Swedish bureau that spied on foreign countries and domestic leftists.

Newspapers in Italy plunged into the red, partially from soaring costs and decreasing readership.

Italy has no censorship, but most papers tailor their news to the demands of their political or industrial sponsors.

COMMUNIST COUNTRIES

The media in Communist countries remained totally in the hands of the party and state.

AFRICA

The African media remained, for the most part, either under government control or largely ineffectual.

The overthrow of Emperor Haile Selassie by military reformers in Ethiopia allowed the media there to flourish only briefly. Newspapers soon began toeing the official line just as they had imperial policy.

Even in countries with significant independent newspapers, like Nigeria, Kenya or Zambia, the flow of information was subject to control and restrictions.

Letters to the editor

To The Editor:

First let me congratulate you on your appointment as editor of The Record. Fortunately I receive it every day and as the former editor of the Quebec Chronicle Telegraph (1969-71) I'm particularly interested in watching your paper survive against all the odds.

Your editorial on the "House System" was to the point in my opinion, and is the type of editorial, strangely found missing in our English press today — and the French press is not much better in that regard either.

I think it's about time the written media wake up in Canada and especially Quebec.

Everybody seems so complacent and comfortable in their "press conference" limbo, leaving the real meat of the news suppressed by government press attaches and public relations hot shots.

A lot of Quebec people who owe their survival to democracy are now trying to laugh it off as outmoded when other minorities need its support. I hope you will continue writing editorials that concern the problems of all Quebecers, but especially the English-language minority who are victims of the present political conflict in Canada and Quebec.

MYLES O'FARRELL

To The Editor:

Two weeks ago Sherbrooke lost one of its most prominent citizens in the person of Fred H. Wilson, or F.H. as he was known to his many, many friends.

He was prominent as a member of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club and was very active in the club's projects for many years. He was also very active in the many activities of the St. Pat's Old Boys Association and St. Pat's Parish Church where he did many, many services in the parish.

Back in 1952, he was co-organizer along with Ted Anderson and Maurice Parsons of the little league, who has many a time been thankful for the work he did while he was active.

His host of friends will miss F.H., not only for knowing him but for the little things he did to help. When a friend was needed F.H. was always there. Like many more I am proud to have known F.H. He will be sadly missed.

TED ANDERSON

To The Editor:

"The evil that men do lives after them."

The good is oft interred with their bones.

So wrote a very gifted person many years ago, and the truth of the quoted words has once more been indicated by the recent decision of the Liberal Administration in Ottawa to increase the sessional indemnities of the members of the House of Commons by a whopping 50 percent. The inspired writer of the two quoted lines must have had a vision of the late Mr. L.B. Pearson, who led the move (supported, it is true, by all members of the House at that time except one) to increase the sessional indemnities of the members by a shocking 80 percent, with a tax-free gift of $8000 to cover travelling expenses. Not content with this one move towards inflation, Mr. Pearson later, escorted higher prices further by giving the workers on the Seaway a 30 per cent increase in their pay without further argument or discussion. But, really, how could Mr. Pearson agree, or discuss, an increase of thirty per cent, when the workers know well that he and his colleagues, had voted themselves a whopping 80 per cent hike out of the Federal purse?

In my opinion, this recent move to vote themselves a startling increase is a sharp departure from business methods. When management and labor strive to reach common ground on the wage question so that work and progress may continue. I consider that the management in this case are the electors of this country; we pay the bills, we elect, as reject, any party at the polls on the basis of their past performance in the House, or on the strength, or weakness, of any new planks in their political platform, designed no doubt, to attract votes in their favor. On the other hand, the members of the House represent labor whom we have elected to enact, and implement measures which will bring peace and prosperity to the nation at large.

With this in mind would it not be logical for some members of the House, who do not believe in such a drastic rise in their salaries, to sponsor a motion, which, if adopted, would make it illegal for any party represented in the House, to demand an increase in their salaries, unless such a move had been made a plank in their platform before the preceding Federal election. In this way, we, the electors of the country — the management — would have something to say about hikes in the indemnities of our elected representatives, and determine if such an increase was justified, or not. In the present case, I firmly believe that our members in the House do not deserve a raise in pay, because of their very poor fight to combat inflation, the high cost of living, their lethargy in bringing a settlement in the transportation field, risking the movement of grain in adequate quantities, to satisfy home and foreign markets, and further. The attendance record of these same members in the House during debates also leaves much to be desired.

Two responsible members of the House of Commons would be required to present a bill before the House (outlines of which are mentioned in the foregoing paragraph) and it would be interesting, indeed, to learn the names of the members, and the political parties they represent, who oppose the placing of the amount of their remuneration in the hands of those who elected them, and, who, incidentally, pay them. Two more worthy members to espouse the merits of the proposed bill could not be found than Mr. John Diefenbaker, and Mr. E. Broadbent, who feel as we do, that a moderate increase in these salaries might be admissible on account of the high cost of living, but such an inflated rise, as demanded by the Trudeau administration, is completely INADMISSABLE.

Word from Wilbur

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON — From his hospital bed, Wilbur Mills has sent us word that he has experienced "blackouts" since his 1973 back operation, that he has "absolutely no memory" of his escape on a Boston burlesque stage but that he is now beginning to feel like his old self.

Because he has been forbidden by his doctors from talking to newsmen, he asked a fellow patient at Bethesda Naval Hospital, Rep. Walter Jones, D-N.C., to deliver the message to us.

Jones reported that Mills had been irrational when he entered the hospital. "Doctors have assured me that he was not responsible for some of his actions," said the North Carolina congressman.

This was confirmed by Speaker Carl Albert, who persuaded Mills to be hospitalized. Albert told us that Mills came to his office and babbled incoherently. "You're sick," the Speaker interrupted him. Mills halted his rambling chatter. "I'm terribly sick," he agreed, in a sad, soft voice.

But the deposed House Ways and Means chairman is now recovering. "I am happy to report that he is rapidly becoming the old Wilbur," Jones said. "He is coming out from the shadows into the sunshine."

Mills has discussed his fall from power, according to Jones, with no bitterness. He is "relieved" to relinquish his powerful chairmanship and may also give up his House seat. "He has not made a definite decision," said Jones.

Striptease dancer Annabel Battistella, the Argentine Firecracker who brought Mills front-page notoriety, has not been in touch with him at the hospital, reported Jones. But Mills' wife Polly spends several hours with him every day and takes his pajamas home for washing.

Mills used to tell his colleagues that his father always advised him: "You can't do a day's work if you stay out all night at parties."

For 35 years on Capitol Hill, Mills heeded his father's counsel. The congressman from Kensett, Ark., shunned Washington's night life. He stayed away from cocktail parties. He even turned down invitations to White House soirees.

"I remember seeing Wilbur at a Washington reception only once," Speaker Albert told us. Jones recalled flying on the same chartered plane with Mills on a festive occasion when drinks were served. "Wilbur asked for a Scotch and water, and didn't finish the first drink," said Jones.

Mills developed a reputation on Capitol Hill for hard work and political skill. He took the Internal Revenue Code home for bedside reading. He ran the Ways and Means Committee as his private fiefdom. He became probably the most powerful member of Congress.

Then, in the early hours of October 7, the Argentine Firecracker clawed Mills' face, bolted from his Mark IV Continental and splashed into the tidal basin. Washington has been buzzing ever since with the question: What has happened to Mills?

To find the answer, we have spoken to his closest associates, the doctors at the naval hospital and to sources on the seamy side of Washington. My associate Les Whitten, posing as a New York swinger, infiltrated the Washington striptease set. We have now carefully pieced together the story of Mills' fall from power. It began in July 1973, when a degenerative disc in his back began causing him excruciating pain. Surgery repaired the disc, but he never regained his health. Visitors in his Capitol office sometimes found him lying flat on his back, in pain.

He took painkilling drugs and began to drink. The mixture, apparently, was explosive. Sources close to Mills confided to us that he had a "Binge problem." When he started drinking, they said, he would lose control. This was one reason, they suggested, that he stayed away from cocktail parties.

At Bethesda Naval Hospital, three medical sources confirmed to us that alcohol was a factor in Mills' hospitalization. He was also suffering, they said, from physical and mental exhaustion.

After his back operation, Mills began showing up at striptease joints. Sources who saw him said on several occasions he became "extremely intoxicated" and "very rowdy." One employee said he once had to help Mills to his car "because he was so intoxicated he could barely stand up."

When he had a few drinks under his belt, Mills carried on flirtations not only with the Argentine Firecracker but with other strippers, reportedly including one known as the Peruvian Pistol.

We were unable to locate any Peruvian Pistol, but Les Whitten spoke for three hours with another striptease dancer who had been friendly with Mills. Whitten verified that Mills provided his telephone number to her on a piece of paper. But when Mills was called in the daytime, he wouldn't come to the phone.

Our sources say Mills' wife accompanied him to the striptease dive out of desperation, because she didn't know what else to do. Sometimes the intoxicated Mills would flirt with the performers in front of his wife.

It was clear to those who know Mills that he was not himself. His debased behavior was so uncharacteristic that they are convinced he was a very sick man. The doctors are now giving him tests to determine whether the back medication contributed to his breakdown.

The funeral service was held Dec. 11 at the Webster-Cass Funeral Home with Rev. D. Warren officiating.

Bearers were Kenneth Hutchison, Irbey Turnbull, Clifford Nutbrown, Borden Ross, Elwin Patton and Lloyd Beattie.

Interment took place in the family lot in Malvern Cemetery.

government for the province of Quebec — and that has to go a long way. If our project isn't accepted, we'll have to try fundraising on our own.

"The idea has gone over very well with the school boards," she emphasized, "and we intend to carry it out even if the government can't provide us with financial help."

The club is hoping the counselling service will become a permanent fixture after women's year has come and gone.

"That's one of the more important features of women's year," Mrs. Goodfellow pointed out. "The year will spawn a lot of new projects designed to raise the quality of life that most women have. Undoubtedly many of these projects will continue their work once women's year is over. Chances are, many would not have gotten underway without the impetus provided by the U.N."

Eventually the club would like to see the service housed in its own office, rather than have it operate through the schools as is the current plan.

"Our immediate goal is to see the program get off the ground, and this we can do best, for the time being, through the school system."

"But if all goes well this year, there's no telling what we can achieve in the future."

Marc Tessier gets 'hat', Brisebois two

Beavers surprise Soviets, take 7-0 victory

By BRUCE PORTER
Record Reporter

SHERBROOKE — A three goal performance by one of their newest players and outstanding goaltending led the Sherbrooke Beavers of the Quebec Major Junior Hockey League to a 7-0 clobbering over the Russian national junior team here last night.

Marc Tessier, recently acquired from the Trois-Rivières Draveurs, slammed home his first hattrick in a Sherbrooke uniform with Michel Brisebois adding two more in the shutout against the newly crowned world junior champions last Sunday. Bernard Harbec and Claude Larose scored singles in front of 5,399 spectators at the Sports Palace.

Netminder Nick Sanza notched the shutout against the seemingly tired Soviet squad, who put him to the real test only a few of the total 27 times, in the exhibition contest.

The Beavers opened the game up in the second period, adding four goals to the pair in the first, to surprise many of the fans who expected a better fight from the Russians.

"They played more with inspirations than with skill," said a Soviet team spokesman after the game. In the very short time he talked with journalists, he made it clear that the Russians were not motivated by the exhibition game in the least, inferring the game meant nothing because they are the world champions. He also said they had lost, but only by a few goals.

The fact that Sergei Babariko, the team's second-string goalie, started and played the complete game also led the reporters to believe the visiting team could have cared less about the outcome of the match.

On the other hand, Sherbrooke coach Ghislain Delage termed the victory as "terrific, fantastic...unbelievable." He praised the Beavers for their tight checking of the Russians and the good positional hockey they played in defending their goal.

Sherbrooke won the majority of the faceoffs and bottled the visitors up in their own end for a good deal of the game. The Beavers were left alone in front of the Russian net on more than one occasion, and some of the players said they weren't bothered there at all.

Sherbrooke captain Michel Brisebois scored the opener at 8:32 when he flipped the puck over Babariko who was down on the ice. Sidney Vessy and Jere Gillis assisted on the play which occurred during a goal-mouth scramble.

Bernard Harbec surprised the Soviet netminder three minutes later with a shot from the corner that went under his pads, after taking the puck from mates Francois Robert and Andre Leduc.

The prettiest goal of the contest came at 9:08 in the second period off the stick of Marc Tessier. Claude Larose took the puck from Daniel Chicoine and shot at Babariko. Tessier, placed in front of the net, tipped the two-foot-high shot between the legs of the goalie for the third Sherbrooke score.

Just over a minute later, Brisebois knocked in his second goal while two other Beavers stood by to help. He flipped the puck over the Russian netminder's shoulder on the second shot from close in.

With a Soviet player, Alexander Zotov, in the penalty box for tripping, Tessier skated behind the Russian net and tucked it in the open corner before Babariko could react. Brisebois had made the original shot, which ended up behind the net. Gillis also assisted on the goal.

Larose scored his goal at 19:19 of the middle period. A Sherbrooke shot had been deflected into Babariko by a Russian defender and Larose latched onto the puck as the goalie was trying to clear it to the corner. Brisebois and Robert 'Schmoe' Simpson assisted.

The Beavers went into the third period with confidence they hadn't known before the game or going into the second period. Their six goal lead was very comfortable, but the Russians made better attempt to cut the margin in the final period than they had done in the first two.

Tessier completed his 'hat' at the 8:43 mark in the last frame. His shot dribbled through Babariko's pads just moments after Sanza had robbed Boris Chuchin at the other end. Larose and Leduc assisted.

From the goaltender's point of view, the Russians are a good team to play against. "They (Russians) wait for a perfect shot," said Sherbrooke's Sanza, "and our guys checked them before they could get any real good ones off. On the other hand, we shoot from anywhere, which I guess is new for the Russian goalie."

Other Sherbrooke players felt the Soviet team wasn't all they were cracked up to be after they had tangled with them. Floyd Lachache said their style of play could never be used in Canada. He referred to leaving one player in the center-ice area, waiting for the puck to be fed to him for a breakaway. "That didn't bother us," he said, "it was like playing against a shorthanded team."

Schmoe Simpson thought the Russians were more aggressive on TV than they were last night.

He, too, agreed that slow player changes while play was in progress and leaving a loafer in neutral territory for an open pass didn't pose a threat during the match.

Michel Brisebois summed up the team's feelings when he said "they're strong, but we're pretty happy." He didn't think the Russians were up for the game and stated that the whole team hustled in the game. "The guys were a little nervous before the game," said the team captain, "but as soon as we got a chance to play them, we got confident."

Team hustle was the large factor in the choosing of the special trophy donated by Sherwood-Drolet Corp. Ltd. for the best player in the game. The selection committee couldn't come up with one, so they chose the complete Sherbrooke team as recipients.

Another happy moment for Beaver supporters last night was the return — though not to the ice — of Fernand Leblanc. Fern was the most seriously injured player in their accident on Nov. 24 and he did the honors of dropping the puck at the official ceremony before the start of the game.

Immediately after that, the teams swapped gifts — the Beavers receiving pins of the Russian flag in return for Sherbrooke Beavers pennants. Referee Tom Keeble handed out eight minor penalties, five to the Beavers.

Local fans will no doubt appreciate the work of Henry Crochetiere for bringing the Russians to Sherbrooke, and helping to prove to the area fans that the Beavers are tops in junior hockey.

The Soviets conclude their stay in Canada today after participating in the world junior championship tournament in Winnipeg. They took another loss at the hands of QMJHL players on Dec. 21, when the Montreal Juniors, boosted with players from other Quebec teams, defeated them 6-4. The Beaver game, however, was the lone game played against the Russians using a regular lineup from one team.

BACK IN ACTION was Fernand Leblanc last night before the Beaver-Russian contest. He did the official puck-dropping between team captains Vladimir Kucherenko (left) and Michel Brisebois. Looking on are Soviet Embassy Oleg Kodonov.

Sherbrooke mayor Jacques O'Bready, Sherbrooke MP Irene Pelletier and hidden behind Leblanc is Guy Bureau, president of the Beavers.

TESSIER'S THIRD GOAL ended the Beavers scoring last night on this play.

Bruins shocked, tied by Washington Caps

The high-flying Boston Bruins rolled into the Capital Centre at Landover, Md., Tuesday night and took on Washington Capitals, consistent losers this National Hockey League season.

The Bruins, who had road wins over Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars late last week, met a club that had managed only two goals in its last three games and had been blanked in its last two outings.

The Bruins had smashed the Capitals 10-4 and 12-1 in Boston earlier in the season, and expected another successful night. But the Capitals battled to a 3-3 tie, and the shocked Bruins players didn't want to talk about it.

In other action, California Seals surprised St. Louis Blues 3-2 and New York Islanders downed Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3.

The Capitals came from behind three times to gain their draw with the Bruins before 15,222 fans.

Washington's Mike Marson registered his second two-goal performance of his initial NHL season but Peter Laframboise got the game-tying goal at 3:50 of the third period.

Ron Low, beaten for nine goals in the Caps' 10-0 loss to Montreal Saturday night, was outstanding in the Washington net after starting goalie Michel Belhumeur left the game midway through the first period with a pulled muscle in his side. The two goalies combined for 41 saves.

The Bruins banned reporters from their dressing room after the game.

"They're in a bad mood," said coach Don Cherry. "They're very tired. They just feel very bad in there."

"We didn't play our hitting game. It showed. When we hit, we win."

Rookie Fred Ahern, called up from the minors for the Seals game last Sunday against Philadelphia Flyers, scored his second goal in as many outings to give California its win over St. Louis.

Ahern fired the puck off goaltender John Davidson's stick into the top of the net with 4:51 remaining in the third period.

The Blues jumped to a 2-0 lead in the first period on goals by Pierre Plante and Chuck Lefley but the Seals, unbeaten in their last four starts, got second-period goals from Joey Johnston and Al MacAdam to tie the score.

The Islanders scored three times in the first period and held on to defeat the Leafs.

Billy Harris, Eddie Westfall, Dave Lewis, Garry Howatt and Denis Potvin scored for New York. Ron Ellis, George Fergu-son and Jim McKenny replied for Toronto.

BU women's hockey tourney Jan. 10, 11

LENNOXVILLE (BP) — Bishop's University will host its first Women's Invitational Hockey Tournament this weekend, Jan. 10 and 11.

Four teams, including one from Ontario, will be participating in the first tournament of the new year. The Loyola College Tommies, Dawson College Blues, University of Toronto and host squad Bishop's Polar Bears.

Action starts Friday night at 7 p.m. at the W.B. Scott Arena with the Tommies opposing the Blues, while U of T faces Bishop's in the other semi-final match at 8:30 p.m. The consolation final, pitting the two losers from Friday, will play at noon on Saturday. The championship contest is slated for 1:30 p.m.

Both Bishop's and Dawson have played only one game to date, but both are victories. Toronto has a 4-4 record coming into the tournament while Loyola had four wins and three losses.

Loyola, last year's QUAA champions, have lost their super goalie and other players to bring them back into the regular competition status. The squad recorded nine shutouts last year and had a total of 23 wins, five losses and three ties. Bishop's amassed eight wins in the 1973-74 season along with three ties and two losses. Dawson ended with a total record of 5-7 last season.

It is the first time such a tournament has been attempted in the area, and having a successful meet will probably ensure the event to become an annual feature at Bishop's.

Sir George to hold second annual meet

MONTREAL (CP) — Four of Canada's top intercollegiate hockey teams will take part next week in the second annual Sir George Williams invitational hockey tournament, it was announced today.

Competing along with Sir George will be University of Quebec-Trois-Rivières, University of Toronto, and St. Mary's University, Halifax.

The tournament will begin Jan. 17 with Sir George playing Trois-Rivières and Toronto meeting St. Mary's in opening-round play. The next day, the winners will meet in the final with the losers playing in a consolation round.

Trois-Rivières leads the Quebec University Athletic Association and the game against Sir George will count in the league standings.

Toronto has not lost a league game this season and St. Mary's is the defending tournament champion.

Red Army squad takes 7th straight victory

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Second-period goals by Vladimir Vikulov and Sergei Glazov gave the Soviet Red Army its seventh consecutive tour win Tuesday, a 5-3 victory over Kitchener Rangers of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

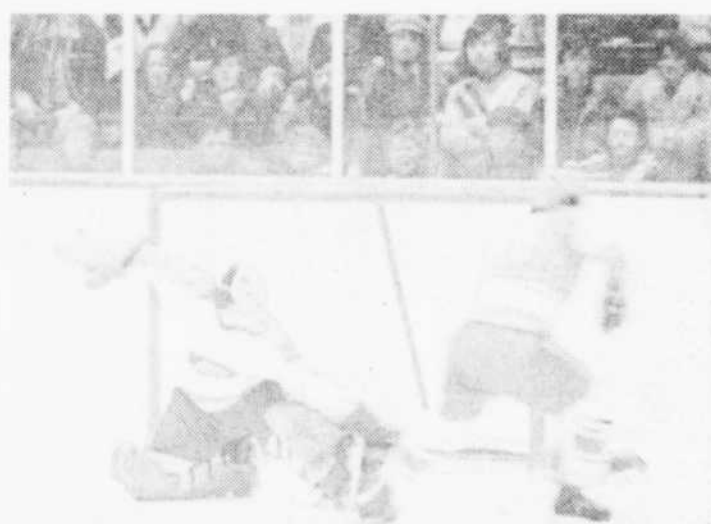

The Soviet team had a 3-2 lead after 20 minutes on goals by Glazov, Vladimir Popov, and Gennadi Tsyvankov.

They have beaten Hamilton Fincups, London Knights, Toronto Marlboros, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, an OHA Senior A all-star team, Ottawa 67's and the Rangers.

goalie Nikolai Adonin. Vladislav Tretiak started in goal for the Soviets but left midway through the second with Red Army leading 4-2.

The Soviet team returns home Thursday after attending Wednesday's National Hockey League game between Toronto Maple Leafs and Vancouver Canucks.

They have beaten Hamilton Fincups, London Knights, Toronto Marlboros, Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds, an OHA Senior A all-star team, Ottawa 67's and the Rangers.

NICK SANZA makes a miraculous save off a Russian player to preserve his shutout.

PROSPECTS LOOK BLEAK FOR BOTH FARMER AND CONSUMER

Trouble In The Beef Industry

By DAN MORGAN
WASHINGTON — If there was any real doubt left that the economies of the world's wealthy nations are strangely out of kilter this year, the Belgian government's cold storage warehouse in Antwerp should dispel it.

The riverfront installation is packed with frozen beef carcasses. They have been accumulating here since the European Common Market (ECM) began buying them up from private packing houses and farm co-operatives last summer to support the sagging price of meat.

Europe's growing mountain of unsold, surplus government beef — some 260,000 tons of it by now — is another striking symptom of the affluent nations' difficulties in managing their resources. If there is too little oil at low prices all over the industrial world, there is too much beef at prices which are threatening whole livestock sections with potential ruin.

Far from being a comfort to consumers, or hungry people, though, this global beef surplus seems to benefit nobody. It is a costly burden, embarrassing in a year of food shortages and threatened famine, with after-effects that may linger for years and political consequences that already have embroiled statesmen and trade negotiators.

The surplus has not resulted in any substantial reduction in the prices which consumers in Europe, North America or Japan pay for their meat. At the end of November, the average price of choice grade beef at North American supermarkets was about what it was one year earlier: $1.35 a pound. And a similar price pattern is evident in European nations.

Except for a few thousand pounds of cooked, canned surplus meat from Europe, starving people in South Asia and Africa have not received any of the glut. Although a handful of U.S. senators and farm lobbyists have called on the administration to add beef to its food aid program, there has been a lukewarm response.

U.S. officials say that beef is still far too expensive to use as a food for relieving mass needs. Cultural obstacles, such as the meat abstinence of Hindus, also stand in the way.

That is only one of the ironies of the present situation. Another is that the surplus — unlike others that have occurred periodically in the past — has arrived as some of the very consumers who must eat their way through it are asking fundamental questions about their own beef-eating habits.

Given the pressures that politicians in dozens of countries are feeling from their stricken livestock industries it is no surprise that officials are unenthusiastic about suggestions that affluent people reduce their consumption of grain-fed beef in order to free grain for hungry people.

That idea, says French Farm Minister Christian Bonnet, is "intellectually seductive but totally impractical at the present time."

If nothing else, a U.S. official's aid last week, the situation "does demonstrate that we live in an interdependent world."

The beef glut is international in its impact. And it is putting a strain on relations between all the major beef exporters and importers: the Europeans, the United States, Canada, Australia, New Zealand and Argentina.

Japan and the Common Market countries have virtually closed their borders to foreign beef imports in the last six months. The United States, which suspended its own meat import quotas two years ago, does not ship substantial amounts of beef to either of those two areas.

But officials are deeply concerned that the countries which do — Australia, New Zealand and Argentina, among them — may try to dump more of their beef into the United States in the near future, thus lowering domestic prices and further demoralizing the U.S. livestock industry.

The surplus itself has taken different forms in various parts of the world. In the European Common Market it shows up in the stored, frozen beef such as that at the Antwerp warehouse.

Each week, more beef for the warehouse comes in from nearby docks. Most of what has come lately was from Ireland, whose own traditionally heavy exports of boneless, frozen beef to the United States have dropped by 91 per cent from October 1973, to October 1974, because of the plummeting prices being offered by East Coast importers.

Antwerp warehouse manager Gerard Cop hopes that some of the stock can be sold off before the New Year, for a new deluge of excess beef is expected in January. Storage facilities have been able to handle the supplies so far, but there is a shortage of freezing capacity all over the continent, Mr. Cop says.

"Right now we are using our freezer to capacity, but even so, some of the beef has to be hauled to Germany and back where the facilities are bigger," he says.

European governments have been buying the beef under the Common Market's complex system of price supports since prices slipped to intervention levels last summer.

Not even sales — at cost — of some 90,000 tons of the government beef to the Soviet Union and Bulgaria, and donations to old age pensioners, have drawn down the stock substantially.

In Australia, where there are no such supports, ranchers have, in effect, "stored" hundreds of thousands of cattle carcasses rather than bring them to market at ruinously low prices.

Cattle prices are "close to the point where they might as well let 'em die, where it's not worth bringing them to market," said George Mackey, agricultural councillor at the Australian embassy in Washington.

U.S. livestock growers are caught in the same cycle. To cut losses they are slaughtering breeding cows and sending young steers to packing houses with little or no fattening on expensive grain. Yet the U.S. livestock herd continued to grow this year as young heifers more than replaced slaughtered older cows.

This situation has prompted Melvin Spencer, a rancher from Faith, South Dakota, to question the value of his life's work. He says it is painful to him to see so little demand for the animals he raises.

"We hope to get somewhere where we can do something — and not just sit there going backwards," says Mr. Spencer, who is earning half what he was for his heifers a year ago.

The world has been heading for the present overproduction of beef since the middle of the 1960s, but neither Mr. Spencer, his fellow ranchers around the globe, nor most government officials saw it coming.

Rising incomes and a steadily rising demand for a product that seemed to symbolize affluence — beef — spurred cattlemen and cattle feeding operations to expand their herds.

Yearly per capita consumption of beef in the United States rose steadily, reaching a peak of 116 pounds average in 1972, up from 85 pounds in 1956.

When cattle raisers all over the world made those decisions to increase their herds, they were starting an assembly line that could not be slowed down for three to five years. It takes that long between the time cows are prepared for breeding and the time the resulting heifers mature into sellable beef cattle.

In the middle of 1973, it became clear that the assembly line had been programmed for a demand that, suddenly and with little warning, was not there.

Beauce, then ET tops in maple sugar production

QUEBEC — The Eastern Townships came second in Quebec, behind the Beauce region, in maple sugar production during the spring, 1974 run.

However, production of maple products as a whole was down in 1974, reports a Quebec government report released recently.

The Townships turned out 271,000 gallons of maple products, measured at a standard expressed as syrup, including 23,000 pounds of maple sugar, 265,000 gallons of syrup, and 42,000 pounds of taffy.

Production was down, though, from the 1973 total of 334,000 pounds (expressed as syrup).

The same situation was evident throughout the rest of the province also in 1974. Expressed in terms of syrup, the total production in Quebec was 1,658 million gallons, down from 2,349 the year before.

The average production for the past six years has been 1,829 million gallons.

The 1974 figure is divided between 258,000 pounds of maple sugar, 1,599,000 gallons of syrup, and 334,000 pounds of taffy.

In terms of grade, syrup produced in Quebec was 1.1 percent AA, 15.2 percent A, 36.2 percent B, 29 percent C, 13.9 percent D, and 4.6 percent unclassified.

The report, done by the provincial bureau of statistics from data provided by the Quebec department of agriculture, put the blame on the 1974 crop on the spring weather.

"The sugar season was expected to start early. At the beginning of March some producers had already caught the first running of sap while the others were tapping their trees. The temperature then fell and sap stopped running for a few weeks."

The report continued: "The adverse weather conditions obtained caused production to be well under normal, and the quality of syrup was low."

Data on the value of the 1974 maple crop was not provided in the seven page report, pending availability of the year's sales figures.

MAPLE SUGARING — Townships maple sugar producers are beginning to plan their 1975 sugar season. A report just issued by the Quebec government points out that last year's syrup crop was under normal and the syrup quality was low. Here's hoping for a better season in '75.

Cattle shipping costs rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Since 1950, the cost of shipping live cattle by rail from Edmonton to Montreal has increased 67.4 per cent to $2.59, a hundredweight and the cost of shipping dressed meat has risen 47.6 per cent to $4.01½.

The gap between freight rates for live cattle and dressed meat has widened to $1.42 from $1.05 in 1950 and Alberta packing house representatives have expressed fears about the future of their businesses.

The Canadian transport commission decided Tuesday to end the two-year freeze on some railway freight rates and shipping costs for cattle and meat went up 15 per cent Wednesday.

CP Rail and Canadian National Railways had asked the commission's railway transport committee for permission to levy an immediate 30-per-cent increase on rates for cattle and meat.

Trapped bull rescued by Rock Island snowmobiler

BOUNDARY — One often hears of snowmobilers to the rescue, but it is usually to assist people. Recently it was to rescue a young Hereford bull.

Raymond Falconer of Rock Island, as a snowmobiler on the East trail of the Three Villages Snowmobile Club, was approaching a bridge over the Tomifobia river, when he noticed something under the span but not in the water. On investigation he saw it was an animal in distress.

Knowing a farmer in the region who had a herd of Herefords, he snowmobiled to the farm and there learned that the animal had been missing for eight days. Despite searching, he had not been seen.

Mr. Falconer left the farm and came home. Later, he phoned the farm to "see how everything went" only to learn the farmer and his help had run into trouble and could not reach the location with farm machinery.

Mr. Falconer, then attached to his machine a set of sleds and went to see if he could assist the farmers. He could and did.

First, by hand the men dragged the animal out from its cramped position under the bridge. He was weak and hungry and unable to stand. The men wrapped him in an old fur buffalo, got a good hot drink into him and placed him on the sleds, which was no easy task. Then, so he would not panic and roll off the sleds, the farmer straddled him and the second man jumped on the snow machine with Mr. Falconer to give added weight.

The machine and its load climbed the steep embankment, crossed the bridge and off they went to the farm where Junior given more hot drink and shots of penicillin.

It took a few days to recover, but he did and is now in excellent, healthy condition. The farmer said the snowmobiler saved him a good many hundred dollars by his good deed.

This is one of the many farmers who kindly give permission to use their land for a snowmobile trail, opening fences or gates to allow free travel. For him it paid off!

Looking to spring and gladiolas

WINNING GLADS — This photo illustrates the 1975 winners, of the All-America Gladiolus Selection, Green Lilac, Highstyle, and Summer Snow. Home gardeners rely for guidance on approval by reputable testing groups. All-America Gladiolus Selections is the recognized, nonprofit, testing group for gladiolus. It thoroughly tests new originations and gives approval to those varieties which seem to grow superlatively well in the United States and Canada.

This is the time of year when we anxiously look forward to spring and believe it is a good time to tell you that All-America Gladiolus Selections has announced three 1975 All-America glads, a press release states. The newest award winning varieties are Green Lilac, Highstyle and Summer Snow. These new comers to the parade of All-America glads seem sure to gain admiration from flower lovers everywhere. All three are available for planting this spring, provided, of course, you don't wait too long to place an order with your favorite catalogue or garden supply store.

Green Lilac is a dainty, orchid-lavender with a conspicuous chartreuse-green center. The delicacy of coloring, waxy texture and lovely ruffling of the needlepointed petals will surely charm the home gardener. It also has great show potential. The medium-tall spikes carry from 9 to 11 firmly attached florets open at one time on uniformly good spikes right down the row. Green Lilac has exceptionally pleasing contrast and is one of the most excitingly colored novelties in years; it will grow easily anywhere. Winston Roberts, Boise, Idaho, is the originator of Green Lilac. It is a fitting tribute to Mr. Roberts' nearly 40 years in hybridizing and cataloguing outstanding varieties of gladiolus.

The elegant ruffling and heavy substance of Highstyle, a rosy-lavender gladiolus, is nicely accentuated by the prominent cream-white throat which shades to white. The 5-inch florets are wide-open, flat and needlepointed. Up to 10 florets open formally on strong 5-foot stems above lush foliage, out of a total of 22 buds. Highstyle won many awards as a seedling before its selection as an All-America. Its gorgeous color and appeal will make it extremely popular. Lynn Coon, Paul, Idaho, created Highstyle; he can be justly proud of his first All-America winner.

Summer Snow is considered by many experts to be the most beautiful white gladiolus of all the whites. The classic refinement and the smoothness and purity of its whiteness, will make it a favorite wherever it is grown. The broad petals are gracefully recurved, the ruffling is highly tailored, and the 8-10 rounded florets are opened in formal arrangement on tall, strong spikes. The cool white florets have a mint-green throat, with light lavender anthers and faint magenta dots deep in the throat.

Summer Snow will make a refreshing display during the summer heat. This exquisitely beautiful gladiolus is a lovely addition to the impressive list of All-America winners created by Carl Fischer of St. Charles, Minnesota.

In the All-America parade other glads of recent introduction singled out for 5-star billing are such standout performers as the 1974 winners, Fire Chief (brilliant fire-engine red), and Navy Blue (velvety deep blue-violet); the 1973 winners, Mexicali Rose (bright rose with silver edging), Big Daddy (huge, gorgeous peach), and Brightside (intriguing yellow and red miniature); and the 1972 winners Orange Chiffon (ruffled rich orange), Cameo (delightfully different peaches and cream) and Miss America (stunning, prize-winning deep pink).

A generous planting of gladiolus will make your garden the reviewing stand for a gorgeous color spectacular all summer long. What a treat is in store if you take time to order your bulbs soon.

France legalizes abortion

A victory for first female minister

By Rosette Hargrove

PARIS — (NEA) — For the first time in the history of the French Republic a woman now sits on the governmental bench in the National Assembly.

She is Madame Simone Veil, appointed by President Giscard d'Estaing as Minister of Health. She is responsible for presenting before Parliament a law legalizing abortion. So important was the issue, so important the debate, that it took three sessions extending over 45 hours before the bill was put to the vote. It was adopted and now has to go before the Senate before it is put into effect.

When General De Gaulle gave the vote to Frenchwomen over 30 years ago this did not change things much. A small number went into politics seriously, but it is interesting to note that even in 1974 there are only seven women deputies in the National Assembly out of a total of 490.

All the same, Frenchwomen have always played an important, although unofficial role in the affairs of the nation.

Madame Simone Veil underwent her baptism of fire at the Assembly with tremendous equanimity and poise. In the past weeks she has made the cover of weeklies ranging from the purely feminine to the sterner political publications.

A petite, green-eyed brunette in her late 40s, she has three grown-up sons and two grandchildren. She is a conservative dresser, but she declares, "I like to look well and feel depressed when I wear what proves to be an unbecoming dress. Also I think I owe it to my entourage to look my best."

Simone Veil's life began tragically. At 17 she was deported, spent seven months in the concentration camp at Ravensbrück, followed by four at Bergen-Belsen. Her father, mother and brother all died in concentration camps.

With her recent and sen-

sational political victory that means the end of an archaic abortion law in France, Simone Veil has become something of a heroine in the eyes of her compatriots. By law every woman will now be free to decide whether she desires to end an unwanted pregnancy.

Records show that between 300,000 and 500,000 women have abortions in France each year. This number does not include the small number who can afford to cross the frontier into Switzerland, Holland or to journey to England.

The existing law, dating from 1920, makes abortion a crime. The new one would give women the right to abortion up to the first 10 weeks of pregnancy.

Up to now, it is a well-known fact that some doctors, persons in social services and even ordinary citizens have performed abortions, often with dire results, sometimes even leading to death through infection and other causes.

During the three days' debate Simone Veil insisted that contraception should be legalized and sexual education, family planning and all necessary information should officially be made available to women everywhere in France, even in the remotest villages, with contraceptives available free under the national health program.

There has been vehement protest against the legalizing of abortion. The most vocal has of course emanated from the church of Rome, while the Grand Rabbi of France issued a statement pointing out that abortion is a crime under Jewish law.

Advocates of free abortion in France some time back decided that they must force the government's hand by openly flouting the law. In April 1971, 343 women signed a manifesto published in a political weekly in favor of free and legal abortion, declaring that all had had abortions. The list included writers, actresses, movie stars and pioneers of birth control, such as Simone de Beauvoir, Francoise Sagan, Catherine Deneuve and Jeanne Moreau. Last year 300 doctors declared that they practised abortions. The president of the Medical Council, Professor Lortat-Jacob, described them as a "band of criminals."

The new law, however, does not signify that abortion will be made as easy as, say, taking the pill. There will have to be two medical consultations at a week's interval. The doctor will have to draw the woman's attention to the risks and drawbacks. He can refuse to operate if his conscience so dictates.

And after the first 10 weeks of pregnancy the 1920 law (suspended for five years) will still apply. Then only therapeutic abortions will be allowed, when the child may be abnormal or the mother's health endangered. The government has made it quite clear that it continues to regard abortion as a necessary evil and does not in any way propose it to be turned into a method of birth control. It will not be refunded under the national health scheme.

The government does hope the new law will drastically cut down the number of clandestine abortions. But it will not really eradicate them altogether until contraceptive methods have become widespread.

Abortion is still illegal in other predominantly Catholic countries like Belgium, Italy, Ireland, Spain and Portugal. In Eastern Europe the situation varies. Countries like the Soviet Union, Poland, Bulgaria and Hungary have recently made moves to restrict abortions.

A well-known columnist recently wrote: "It would be childish to believe that Frenchwomen will rush to have an abortion. There are very few who have submitted to one without feeling remorse. The majority will confess that they would have preferred to avoid it when faced with the problem."

Women take power course

VANCOUVER (CP) — People sometimes have to learn how to deal with power. And a new course at Vancouver's Capilano College concentrates on teaching a particular kind of person how to deal with particular kinds of power.

The kind of person is a woman, and the power is the result of woman's rapid ascent into corporate power structures that sometimes present problems they are unable to cope with.

Wanda Tilley teaches the three-month study session, and says women sometimes must learn the skills of supervising both men and other women, while keeping the feathers of the others in the pecking order unruffled.

"Women struggle twice as hard for power as men do," said Mrs. Tilley in an interview. "When they get it, they sometimes forget the rules of the game. This course helps prepare them for administrative positions, among other things."

She said the course discusses strategies for office interpersonal situations, communications with others, identifying and applying appropriate grievance procedures, sensitivity to non-verbal cues, and applying psychological principles of office dynamics.

SEE ONE OBSTACLE. One issue discussed is the obstacle female administrators face in the person who will not work for a woman.

"Things are changing but it's still very difficult. I feel there still aren't equal opportunities."

"Women aren't trained to be managers. They aren't trained to plan their time effectively. Men are counselled to take math courses while women aren't. They aren't given the tools of logic," said Mrs. Tilley.

"Women tend to operate intuitively—which can be good—but if men have intuition that makes them even better managers with the definite skills they've learned."

The last course was filled with women but Mrs. Tilley stressed that men are welcome.

"I would think men would want to be aware of the politics within their office," she said.

St. Paul's Church was the annual scene on December 24 of the special Midnight Christmas Eucharist and Candle Light Service. The church was filled to overflowing for the impressive and solemn ceremony to mark the Christmas Eve as it should be observed. The choir processed around the darkened church to the hymn, Once in Royal David's City, with solos by the young misses Mizener and Russell; then, following the lighting of the Advent and Christmas Candles, the church was restored to full lighting and the Rev. David Stanway conducted the Eucharistic Service, assisted by Stephen Morson, L.R. Similar services were also held in South Bolton, Bolton Centre and Mansonsville.

Fashion and Beauty Tips

Tired Feet
Tired, sore feet can make a face look drawn and tense, cause bad posture and possibly produce party-spoiling backaches.

Smooth Wool
When wool hats, sweaters and gloves start to pill, trim with a sharp scissor to avoid a shabby look and prolong wear.

Fashion Sense
Luckily, designers are switching to pretty, traditional colors and styles, partially because of tight money. Consumers can't afford to buy unattractive, one-season items.

Head to Toe
A complete outfit on male or female can be ruined by scuffed, unpolished shoes.

Covered Up
Yawning looks unattractive at best. When unavoidable, please cover with your hand.

Tight Fitting
An ill-fitting wig doesn't look good and is always in danger of falling off at the worst possible moment.

Button Up
January is the perfect time to begin a diet. Trying to deprive yourself during the holidays won't work and you'll only be edgy and irritable to boot.

Self-Control
Curb a pre-party appetite with a glass of milk (whole 159 calories). A lot less calories than the hors d'oeuvres you would nibble.

Don't forget to use drops to ease tired, red eyes after a big night out.

Ann Landers

"Swallow your pride" says Ann

Dear Ann Landers: Several years ago our son married a Catholic girl. This is not our faith. We weren't very happy about it, but we did attend the wedding and signed some documents wanted by the church.

After the ceremony my wife and I decided we could not participate in another ceremony in a Catholic church. We explained our feelings to our daughter who was then "unattached." The following year when she began to date a Catholic boy we reminded her of our feelings. Last week she informed us that they plan to be married—in a Catholic church. We reviewed our previous conversations and decided to give her a lovely wedding elsewhere. She refused.

We will not interfere with her plans if she chooses to go ahead, but we have told her that we cannot participate. She says we are "narrow" and "unfair." Need I tell you this has created a serious problem? My wife and I have agreed to abide by your decision. What should we do? — St. Petersburg, Fla.

Dear S.P.: Take a deep breath, swallow your pride, and give your daughter in marriage. You lived through it once. You can do it again.

Better to suffer through the hour than to absent yourselves and cast a dark shadow over the day for her and for others. Your absence on this very special occasion could inflict a wound that may never heal.

Dear Ann: I need your help badly. My wife and I have been separated for a month. It was probably because of my "foolishness" with other women. My wife reached the point where she decided "enough is enough."

Ever since she asked me to move out of the house I have been miserable. I have told her I am terribly sorry I behaved so poorly and I've begged her forgiveness. I love her and the kids and I want to come back home and be part of a family again.

My wife told me last night that if she takes me back it will be only because she doesn't want to deprive our children of their father. It's painful for me to go back on that basis. I want her to want me as a husband.

What should I do, Ann? You are a woman and you know the answers to such questions. I await your verdict. — Heartbroken Husband

Dear H.H.: Go home. Sometimes when a woman has been humiliated as your wife has been, she isn't emotionally equipped to accept an errant husband with open arms.

Once you are back in the house you will have a good opportunity to win her love. Actions speak louder than words. Good luck.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm

ashamed to ask anyone this question because they would think my husband and I are a couple of dingbats. We are having an argument at a time when we both should be out of our minds with joy.

I just found out I am pregnant, after seven years of marriage and four years of "trying." I plan to work at my job until the labor pains start.

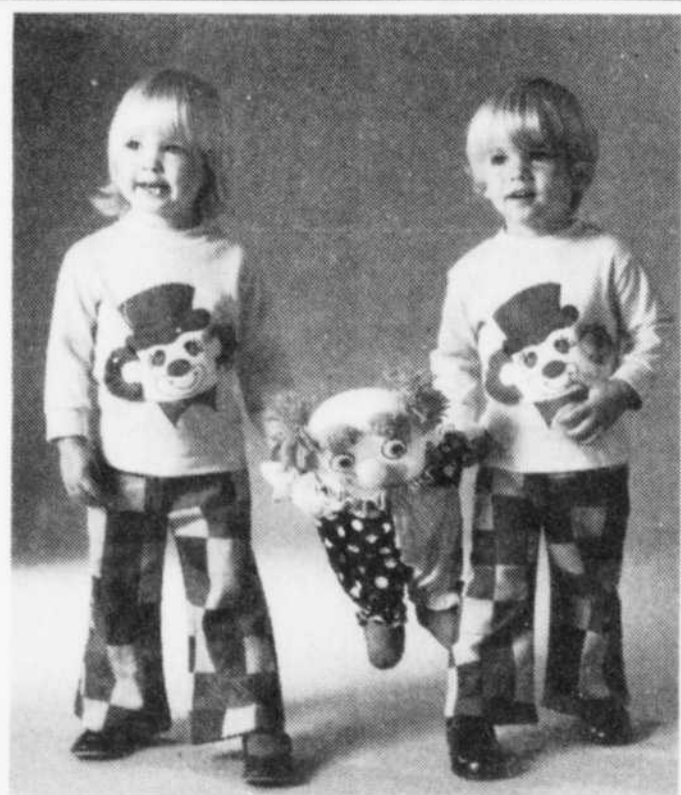

Question: Who should pick the doctor? I say I should. My husband says HE should — because he will be paying the bill. You're going to settle this. Thanks, honey. — Lady In Waiting

Dear Lady: Pick the doctor you want — and the sooner the better. If push came to shove I'll bet you could pay the doctor, but there's no way HE could have the baby.

W.I. hosts family party

CANTERBURY — On Dec. 21, the Canterbury WI members were hostesses at a Christmas party at which they entertained their husbands.

The party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie MacLeod with Mrs. MacLeod and Mrs. Lindsay Groom planning the evening. The house was decorated with festive trim along with a small tree in the living room and one in the dining room.

Several parlor games were played which were amusing and seemed to set the ball rolling.

Several ladies read beautiful Christmas poems and some ladies recited poems learned years ago. Several of our gentlemen read poems and one told of Christmas beauty he had experienced in another state. Again a member told of Christmas customs which we have borrowed from other countries.

The Christmas story was read and a reading suitable for the occasion by one of our older very respected ladies, which was very much appreciated by all.

Then carols were sung and a couple of Scottish songs and more carols.

The ladies served a delicious lunch of sandwiches, squares and cookies plus all the party foods.

Everyone seemed to have had a good time and a Merry Christmas wished for everyone brought the evening to a close.

Ladies Guild meets

GLEN SUTTON — The annual business meeting of the Ladies Guild, Church of the Good Shepherd, was held in December at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Burnham, with Mrs. Burnham as President presiding over the 13 members present.

After having served for eight years, Mrs. Burnham felt that she could not continue as President any longer and, therefore, resigned her position. The same applied to Mrs. Betty Wilson, who had served as Secretary for a number of years.

All reports were read and approved and it was found that 1974 was the best year, financially speaking, that the Guild has had for many years.

Elected to office were the following ladies: Mrs. Charlotte Burnham, Pres.; Mrs. Marilyn Cyr retained the Vice-Presidency by acclamation, likewise Mrs. Myrtle Bullock remained as Treas. and Mrs. Dianne Leavitt was elected as Secretary.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. Betty Wilson at 2 p.m. on Thurs., Jan. 9.

THE FARM SHOW — First staged in a barn in Western Ontario by Toronto's Theatre Passe Muraille, The Farm Show comes to CBC-TV in the Performance series, Sunday, Jan. 12, at 9 p.m. Created out of the theatre company's own experience, living and working on farms in the Clinton area two summers ago, The Farm Show reflects life in an Ontario farming community today, and the actors portray real people, as well as farm machinery and livestock. Group at left: David Fox and Anne Anglin (standing), Carol Galloway and Janey Amos (front), Miles Potter (right).

News from the entertainment world

DENVER (AP) — Singer Pearl Bailey was released from hospital Monday, two days after she was admitted with chest pains.

A hospital spokesman said Miss Bailey, 56, suffered from chest pains related to fatigue, previous heart problems and perhaps the altitude.

Miss Bailey, who was to have opened a four-night stand here Saturday, was admitted to the hospital before the first performance.

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Dustin Hoffman, critic Clive Barnes and others demonstrated for about two hours near the Soviet Mission to the United Nations Monday to protest against the imprisonment of Vladimir Bukovsky.

Bukovsky is a Soviet dissident who, the demonstrators said, has been imprisoned in his homeland for most of his adult life on charges of circulating anti-Soviet propaganda. He is said to be gravely ill.

Others carrying signs on the corner of Third Avenue and East 67th Street for about two hours included actor Anthony Perkins, playwright Peter Shaffer, author Paddy Chayevsky and released Soviet dissidents Essin Volnin and Pavel Litvinov.

LIEGE, Belgium (AP) — Rene Thomas, the world's top jazz guitarist in a 1963 poll conducted by Down Beat magazine, has died of a heart attack in Santander, Spain, friends here said Sunday. He was 47.

Thomas, a Belgian, began his career at the end of the Second World War when he formed a trio called the Bob Shots with Bobby Jaspas and Jacques Pelzer.

He also performed with such musicians as Chet Baker, Sonny Rollins, Lou Bennett and Denny Clarke before joining the Stan

Getz Quartet in 1969.

Thomas performed mostly in Canada and the United States.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A jury has convicted two members of a rock group of conspiracy and possession of heroin with intent to distribute.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ronald Muntean said Joe Harris and Calvin Stephenson, both of West Hollywood and members of the rock group The Undisputed Truth, were convicted Friday with five other persons in connection with the alleged smuggling operation.

Prosecutors said heroin was transported from Mexico through San Diego and Los Angeles to Detroit.

Others convicted were Darryle Calhoun, a rock music promoter, James W. Wimbly, Clifford Burton, James E. Ellis and Andrew Sheppard. Sentencing before U.S. District Court Judge Lawrence Lydick was set for Feb. 4.

Develops unique car

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dave Bradwell, 24, has a car that can cruise at 160 miles an hour, won't rust, and which he says will last forever. And he built it himself.

"I was watching TV one night and I started drawing the car," said Mr. Bradwell. "Once I saw it on paper I knew I had to do it. I quit my work and started on it in the garage the next morning."

The project took about five months with Mr. Bradwell working as much as 16 hours at a time on the car.

Having already built a few hot rods, the former high school shop instructor said he knew what he was getting into at the outset.

He has gone through about $12,000 in parts and materials alone, and the project still is not complete. To meet government safety regulations for new cars, he must install impact-absorbing bumpers which will cost an estimated $500.

The car has an aluminum shell. To rivet it to the frame, Mr. Bradwell drilled about 24,000 holes and installed 8,000 rivets. Three cheap drills met their end during that portion of the project.

It cost him $1,000 for the engine (a 425-cubic-inch rear-mounted V-8 normally used in the front-wheel-drive Tornado); $1,000 for aluminum sheets thick enough to last and last; and hundreds of dollars for instrumentation.

The car has sufficient acceleration to take it from zero to 65 miles an hour and back to a full stop within a city block.

STRESS-SAFETY

But Mr. Bradwell stresses safety and durability.

"It will last forever. There's nothing to rust," Mr. Bradwell said repairs are easy to make and parts can be obtained almost anywhere.

"All the mechanical parts are available at any GM dealer in Kamloops or anywhere else. There are a few Volkswagen parts but you can get those easily too."

And, except for the addition of the regulation bumpers, the car passed through the Vancouver safety test station with flying colors.

Now that he has completed his first car, Mr. Bradwell said he envisions the possibility of building more, each a little different, and selling them. The one he has completed bears a price tag of $18,000, but the seller willicker.

"I could do about four a year," said Mr. Bradwell. The first model was over-designed and far stronger than necessary. He said a second could be built for about $8,000 in materials plus labor.

Dr. Lamb*Noise in head won't quit

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Approximately four years ago I noticed a noise in my head, which greatly disturbed me because I imagined all kind of things that could be wrong. This noise is not with me all the time. I may have it one day and not the next. If I drop off to sleep in my chair after a day's work I wake up with it, and it may last for two days.

After going to several doctors and using ear drops and being examined for the prostate gland, which is normal, I have no relief.

This noise has caused me to become very uptight and nervous. I have taken many kinds of tranquilizers. I had a complete physical in a hospital, and they found nothing nor did they give me any relief from the noise. The brain scan was normal.

I have had three hearing examinations which showed that I have lost some high-frequency hearing and have been told this caused the noise. I was told I would have to live with this noise.

I'm 62 and weigh 150 pounds,
which is my normal weight.
This noise is hard to describe,
but it sounds like a high line
wire humming in the winter time.

DEAR READER — The
diagnosis and treatment of noises is either very simple or almost impossible. Apparently you fall in the latter category.

Any obstruction in the outer ear can cause ringing sounds in the ear. If it is wax, simply removing the excess wax in the ear may cure the difficulty. Unfortunately most cases are not that simple.

Ringing and noises can also be caused by some medicines.

When the medicine is stopped,
the ringing stops.
Circulation changes in the brain and around the hearing mechanism can cause ringing or buzzing noises. Some people are more aware of normal circulation sounds than others.

Damage to the ear, for example from a very loud noise such as gun fire, can cause this condition.

Increasing age is commonly associated with buzzing and ringing in the ears. This is probably related to changes in the arteries. For this reason I usually advise people with this problem to do the same things they should do to prevent heart disease, go on a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet, correct obesity and get regular sensible exercise.

Avoiding coffee and drinks that contain caffeine may help some. That is better than taking tranquilizers.

Patients with Meniere's disease may also have ringing in the ear, dizziness, nausea and loss of hearing. This is probably related to accumulation of fluid and changes inside the delicate ear mechanism, not inside the brain.

The best advice I can give you since you have already had a good examination is to try the diet, exercise program, and avoid caffeine-containing drinks and cigarettes. That may help some.

Lamb, in care of this
