Maclear told prisoner list is 'a full one and complete'

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP) — A Canadian correspondent said Monday that North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong told him emphatically the list of 368 U.S. prisoners of war held by his country is "a full one and complete."

The list was handed to representatives of Senators Edward Kennedy, and J. W. Fulbright by North Vietnamese diplomats in Paris Dec. 22.

The Pentagon has indicated it believes the North Vietnamese hold more men than those on the list.

Michael Maclear, London-based correspondent of the CBC, saw Dong after meeting seven U.S. prisoners and filming interviews with two of them on Christmas Day. The interviews were broadcast Sunday in the United States and Canada.

Maclear said Dong told him he regarded release of the list as a "humanitarian gesture." After talks with other North Vietnamese officials, the Canadian reporter said he was convinced they would "stick to it as a final figure" and the truth of their position may not be known until the end of the Vietnam war.

Maclear said he believed release of the list put "far greater responsibility" on the North Vietnamese for the prisoners' final well-being.

Maclear conceded that his visit with the prisoners "was a limited look" and that the rules of what he could or could not do were laid down in advance.

He said he found the prisoners "not only physically fit but mentally alert." The two he interviewed—navy cmdrs. Walter E. Wilber, 40, and Robert J. Schweitzer, 38, both pilots—responded easily and articulately, he said.

He had no way of knowing whether there were other prisoners in the camp, Maclear said, but judged it might have housed about 30. Subsequent photos taken of Christmas dinner by the Nihon Denpa news service, which works closely with Hanoi, showed 30 men.

Maclear said the interview was arranged through Hanoi's cultural committee for foreign relations, which picked him up and delivered him at the camp within the Hanoi city limits.

"It was in the suburbs, surrounded by and hidden by poorer type houses with sloping straw roofs," Maclear said.

"Inside, it was a very spacious camp, with grass growing in a centrepiece area, and a concrete-lined pond overhung with willow trees. I suppose the whole came to a space of 80 feet by 100 feet. On all sides there was a low single-storey building with six to 10 rooms on each side. We were restricted to one room about 20 feet by 12 feet.

"On one side of the building was a long verandah with bamboo curtains and behind the curtains bolted doors. The windows had iron bars. But aside from this, there was no suggestion of a cell.

"There were three beds, only two of which were made up, suggesting that there were only two in the room, those interviewed. The furnishings were minimal—a small wooden bench, boxes, or local basketware in which the prisoners kept some family pictures. On the walls there were Yuletide messages.

"These rooms backed onto a volleyball-basketball court which the prisoners said they could use all day."

Though it was the cold season, the weather was not chilly, he said. "It was like an English spring."

It was Maclear's second visit to Hanoi. He covered the funeral of Ho Chi Minh in 1969.

Fire roasts peanuts

SHERBROOKE (PK) — A short while after Suzanne Gendron, of Apt. 5, 585 London Street, left her apartment yesterday afternoon, a fire broke out in the living room.

Neighbours reported the blaze, which was brought under control and extinguished shortly after firemen arrived at 1:30, a fire department spokesman said.

He added that the fire, apparently caused by overheated wiring, was confined to the living room, where the heat was so intense it melted a plastic wall phone and roasted peanuts lying on a table.

The rest of the apartment was coated by a black layer of soot, he said, and the fire caused an estimated 3,000 damage.

Water dripping through the ceiling of a first-floor apartment was the only damage done to other apartments, he said.

Fire station 1 answered the call with 11 men in four trucks.

Death verdict for six Basques

Three get second death penalty

BUFGOS, Spain (AP) — Six Basque separatists, all in their 20s, were sentenced Monday to die before a firing squad. A military court convicted them of murder in a terrorist campaign seeking to win independence for three northern provinces of Spain.

Three of the six drew a double death sentence—and prison terms besides.

Nine defendants including two Roman Catholic priests who were accused of lesser crimes were ordered to serve 12 to 70 years.

The court did not spell out the reason for sentencing the three men to death twice. It was noted outside the court that they had led a charge when all 16 defendants on the final hearing day, Dec. 9, tried to attack the five judges.

One of the defence lawyers,

Gregorio Peces-Barba, pointed out that the three were charged additionally with banditry. The death sentence was affixed to this crime two years ago in an effort to smash terrorist activities. All 16 defendants admitted membership in ETA, the Basque terrorist organization.

There was speculation, too, that the double death sentence was imposed to permit Gen. Francisco Franco to commute one death sentence imposed on all six but to leave the second sentence standing for three.

The case goes to him for confirmation or commutation of the sentences. There is no time limit for his action. But if he confirms a death sentence, it is carried out the following dawn.

The six doomed men were charged specifically with the killing of a political police chief. They denied this.

The convicted prisoners remained defiant and appealed "to the world" to protest.

They agreed to the release of the following statement on their behalf:

"These brutal sentences have not affected our revolutionary morale. ... We will go on fighting to the end. We appeal to the world, to every person with human feelings, so that they do everything they can to avoid this new crime of fascism."

In nearby San Sebastian, West German consul Eugen Beihl said he was "astonished" that death sentences were imposed on six of the defendants.

Beihl was kidnapped by Basque terrorists from his San Sebastian home Dec. 1 and held until Christmas Eve. Many had thought his release, after having been held hostage against the fate of the Basques on trial, would inspire a measure of clemency in the military court.

Beihl described the sentences as "most severe."

In Madrid, six members of Franco's cabinet met to discuss the sentences. Franco usually confers with the cabinet before deciding whether to commute or confirm such sentences.

The trial of the Basques has brought sharp reaction in Spain as well as abroad, with leftists generally leading protests.

Defence lawyers denounced the sentences and refused to sign the sentencing documents. One lawyer, Ivon de Navascues, called the sentences "horrendous, monstrous and horrible."

In four cases the defendants received stiffer sentences than the prosecution had sought.

New election for Magog

MAGOG (CC) — Magog will have a new mayoralty election within the next 30 days.

Judge Jean-Louis Pélouin of Provincial Court yesterday upheld a motion by Gerard L. Longpre and invalidated the results of the Nov. 1 Magog mayoralty contest which saw Maurice Theroux the victor by 11 votes, after a judicial recount of the vote which earlier saw Gerard Longpre declared the winner.

Group insists on War Act repeal

MONTREAL (CP) — Eight influential Quebecers, who had to cancel a scheduled interview with Prime Minister Trudeau last week, have sent a telegram insisting on a meeting to discuss repeal of anti-terrorist legislation.

They sent the telegram Saturday after Mr. Trudeau suggested a meeting with Justice Minister John Turner and Solicitor-General J. P. Goyer.

A spokesman for the prime minister's office said Mr. Trudeau had agreed to meet the group Dec. 23 after the Committee of Eight, which includes Claude Ryan, publisher of Le Devoir, and Prof. Guy Rocher of the University of Montreal, said it wanted to discuss repeal of the legislation and the granting of bail to persons held in jail under the War Measures Act.

The prime minister's spokesman said the group was informed Dec. 22, the day before the meeting, but Prof. Rocher said the group could not go to Ottawa due to the short notice and a blinding snow storm in Montreal.

He then sent a telegram requesting new date but Mr. Trudeau replied that he could not see them personally because of preparations for the Commonwealth conference Jan. 5.

Prof. Rocher rejected the suggestion of a meeting with the justice minister and the solicitor-general because the committee wanted to discuss political issues "which concern your government and not only the minister of justice."

Other committee members include Raymond Laliberte, former president of the 70,000-member Quebec Teachers Corporation, Vincent Harvey, editor of the magazine Maintenance, labor leader Jean Gerin-Lajoie, Laval University professor Fernand Dumont, McGill University professor Charles Taylor and economist Pierre Harvey.

Negotiator says Fugitives received little help in evading police

MONTREAL (CP) — The three men arrested Monday in connection with the kidnap-murder of Pierre Laporte apparently had received little help in evading police for nearly three months, one of the negotiators in the capture said Monday.

Dr. Jacques Ferron, a 49-year-old doctor in suburban Longueuil, said in an interview he could see no evidence of help when he spoke to the men shortly before they gave up to police.

Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard had been the subject of an intense police manhunt for more than two months.

Dr. Ferron, called in to negotiate on behalf of the men, said "when I talked to them, and later when I saw them, they were tired and dirty."

The men were hiding in a tunnel dug under the cellar of a farmhouse in St. Luc, about 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

"When I got to the farmhouse, I didn't go down into the hole where they were hiding. I stood on top and talked to them from there."

"I talked to the man in charge, that is, Paul Rose, of course," he said.

"They all realized there was no sense in asking anything for themselves. They asked for help for those in prison (in connection with the affair which blew up with two political kidnappings last October) and a return to normal justice."

"They were really defenceless in any case. They were completely calm and composed, but if they had decided to fight ... well, there was just nothing they could have done."

"I don't know what part if any I played in the affair. All they wanted was to exit with some sort of honor. I just acted as a go-between."

Dr. Ferron said earlier he was asked to help mediate the arrests of the suspects when he received a phone call just after midnight Monday morning from Crown prosecutor Jacques Duroes.

Dr. Ferron and Mr. Duroes were taken to the St. Luc, Que. farmhouse where Jacques and Paul Rose and Francis Simard, key suspects in the kidnap-murder of Labor Minister Pierre Laporte, were hiding.

There the two men negotiated the safe arrest of the three suspects without shots being fired or physical violence taking place.

Dr. Ferron, 49, said in an interview that the Rose brothers first sought the intercession of Dr. Serge Mongeau, head of the Quebec Family Planning Centre and of the Movement for the Defence of Quebec Political Prisoners.

He said the Crown refused the request, suggesting instead that Jacques Hebert, head of the Quebec Civil Liberties Union, act as mediator. The suspects refused the offer.

Both parties then agreed to seek Dr. Ferron's help because

Longtime friend of Rose showed tunnel to police

MONTREAL (CP) — The Gazette says Michel Viger, who rented the farmhouse where three prime suspects in Quebec's political kidnappings were arrested Monday, showed police exactly where the fugitives were hiding.

The newspaper says Viger, a 30-year-old accountant and long-time friend of Paul and Jacques Rose, pointed out the entrance to a tunnel under the farmhouse in St. Luc, about 20 miles southeast of Montreal.

The tunnel hiding the Rose brothers and Francis Simard, sought in an intensive manhunt for more than two months on Canada-wide warrants was camouflaged by four concrete slabs cemented together to form part of a square around an oil furnace.

The newspaper says Viger was arrested a few days before Christmas and released after questioning. But he was picked up again Sunday, the newspaper says, and released after he told police about the tunnel.

On Christmas night, police made a search of the house and even knocked holes in the walls but did not find the three fugitives hiding beneath their feet.

It was reminiscent of a police raid in a Queen Mary Road apartment Nov. 6 when police arrested Bernard Lortie, also sought on a Canada-wide arrest warrant, but missed the Rose brothers and Simard who were hiding in a secret compartment behind a clothes closet.

The warrant for Paul Rose, 27, was issued Oct. 18 charging him with kidnapping both British diplomat James Cross and Pierre Laporte, the Quebec labor minister killed Oct. 17 a week after his abduction.

Warrants for Jacques Rose, 23, Simard, 23, and Lortie, 19, were issued Oct. 23 charging them with conspiracy in the kidnapping of Mr. Laporte.

The Gazette says the tunnel bottom was a mass of mud from water dripping from the walls and roof. A frame of wooden beams, nailed together in the form of a box, kept the earth from caving in.

The newspaper says police found drills, hammers, saws and three police jackets as well as a large supply of canned food, a small electric stove for cooking, a gallon jug of water, a hand-operated sump pump to keep the tunnel dry and sleeping bags.

In the house itself, police found more canned food, a bed and dresser, two portable television sets and two pairs of binoculars.

he knew the Rose brothers and Simard.

Dr. Ferron said the late-night phone call was his second encounter with the police since the kidnap crisis began with the Oct. 5 abduction of British envoy James Cross.

He said police interrogated but did not arrest him on Oct. 11, the day after Mr. Laporte was abducted outside his suburban Montreal home.

Dr. Ferron practises medicine in suburban Longueuil and is known in Quebec for his writing and political activity. He won the Governor-General's Award for literature in 1963 with his work Les Contes d'un Pays Incertain—The Story of an Uncertain Country—which examines Quebec's social and economic climate.

In the 1966 provincial election, Dr. Ferron ran as a candidate for the now-defunct separatist Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale.

Mr. Duroes, 35, has handled FIQ cases since the first outbreak of terrorist bombings in Montreal in 1963.

He was appointed assistant deputy justice minister in the Lesage government in 1965. He later returned to private practice and since has served as chief counsel for the Quebec Liberal party, participating in that role in the 1970 provincial elections.

Soviets allow sky-jackers to appeal

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union, in a surprise move, has set Wednesday for an appeal hearing for 11 persons convicted in the Leningrad hijacking case, reliable sources reported Monday night.

They said the defendants, two of them under death sentence, were ordered to appear at the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation in Moscow at 10 a.m. Wednesday. Normally it takes six to eight weeks before an appeal hearing is scheduled.

Lawyers for the prisoners, 10 Jews and one Gentile, said they were given no reason for the speedy hearing but it was rare for a higher court to act so quickly.

Worldwide protests against the convictions continued and in Moscow 60 Soviet Jews demanded justice—"not mercy"—for the two sentenced to be executed.

"Spilling the blood of our brothers will not stop or frighten us," they declared.

The Soviet Union charged Zionist organizations and the American press "with picking up every kind of filthy anti-Soviet fabrication" to launch "an unbridled anti-Soviet campaign."

Reliable Jewish sources reported, at the same time, that 21 more Soviet Jews are to stand trial for the alleged involvement in the unsuccessful attempt to hijack a Soviet Aeroflot airliner.

A lengthy commentary published by the Soviet news agency Tass defended the death sentences and prison terms for nine others handed down by the Leningrad city court Christmas Eve as "based on irrefutable facts."

"The facts are that a handful of traitors to the country, having knocked together a group of criminals, began preparations to seize an aircraft and fly it abroad."

Tass singled out the Jewish Defence League, a militant Jewish organization, for stirring up an anti-Soviet campaign and said of the United States press:

"They are striving to slander the Soviet government, to aggravate world tension."

Tass added: "Your efforts are to no avail, gentlemen. Lies have short legs."

who value justice."

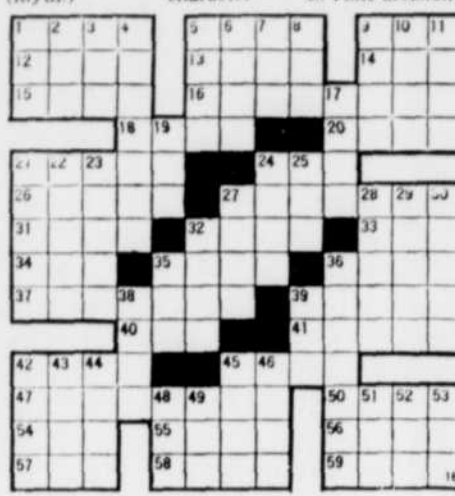

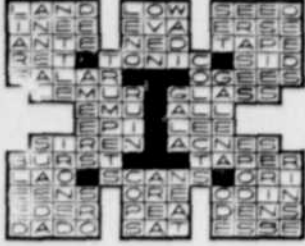

The appeal, one of several circulated among foreign correspondents by Soviet Jews, said: "We demand for the condemned not mercy, but justice. We demand that the senseless murder should not be permitted of people whose only fault was an invincible desire to live in their own land."

The 21 new defendants will be tried in three separate trials to be held in Leningrad, Riga and Kishinev, the informants said. Nine will appear in a second Leningrad trial.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) — The year is nearly over. Be sure to clear up any 1970 business before you face the New Year.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) — He alert where possessions are concerned as aspects indicate possible loss. Gullibility also accented.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) — Peaky friend irritates you as you're busy and he or she has time to idle away. Don't show feelings.

CANCER (June 22 to July 22) — Let some extra rest tonight as you'll need all your energy at the big "doing" tomorrow night.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 21) — Stay away from the unfamiliar—both places and people. Alertness required.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Accent is on convincing others to get something from you—not necessarily money.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Don't precipitate an argument even though you find yourself at odds with those with whom you live or work.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — A new cycle is about to begin and you have some doubts about your ability to cope with the future.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — If moral issues aren't involved, go along with the majority in order to keep things running smoothly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Optimism is admirable as long as it doesn't replace facts and common sense. Keep your eyes open.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — You can avoid a handle on the job but it will take real restraint and diplomacy on your part.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) — You can avoid a handle on the job but it will take real restraint and diplomacy on your part.

THE OLD AND THE NEW — 75 year old Xavier Pouliot of Magog finds it fun to trek through the woods on his snowshoes, a sport he began as a boy. Here, he has photographed at the Mt.

Seeks authority to publish Vallieres book

TORONTO (CP) — McClelland and Stewart Ltd. announced Monday it will publish in February an English translation of a book by Pierre Vallieres, who has been charged with sedition in Montreal.

The book, Les Negres Blancs d'Amérique—White Negroes of America—gives Vallieres' reasons for joining the Front de Liberation du Quebec about 1966.

"It is because I cannot bear to be a nigger that I joined the FLQ," Vallieres wrote, "The Quebec revolution will not stop."

Jack McClelland, head of the publishing house, said Monday he asked Justice Minister John Turner whether publication of the book would contravene any legislation, including the Public Order (Temporary Measures) Act, 1970, which bans dissemination of FLQ propaganda.

Mr. McClelland said Mr. Turner told him the provincial attorneys-general would be the ones to decide in such a matter.

"I'm not going to try to get permission from every provincial attorney-general in the country," the publisher said.

SAYS IT'S IMPORTANT

Mr. McClelland described the book as "an important social document."

Vallieres, a 32-year-old self-educated journalist, wrote Les Negres Blancs d'Amérique while in prison in 1968.

In 1963, he was chosen by Pierre Trudeau and Gerard Pelletier to succeed them as editor of the review Cite Libre, but by 1966 Vallieres was a prominent supporter of the FLQ.

Three years later he was given a life sentence in connection with a 1966 bombing. The sentence was reduced to 30 months after an appeal and he was released on bail while awaiting the outcome of a second appeal.

Vallieres now is awaiting trial on charges of plotting to change the government of Canada through a seditious conspiracy and of still being a member of the FLQ.

Holiday doldrums slow activity at city hall

By DAVID MAGIL

SHERBROOKE — It's that time of year again.

The week of Dec. 25 to Jan. 1 is one during which most of the people spend the first four days recuperating from Christmas parties and the rest of the week preparing for New Year's Eve.

Sherbrooke's municipal council was no exception to the rule last night, as the aldermen spent less than an hour on their agenda.

A bid by Fontaine et Freres to build a warehouse garage on the city's dumping grounds and a request to pave Montjoie Street were referred to further study.

Council agreed to the incorporation of Loisirs St-Jean de Brebeuf to allow the group to contract an insurance policy for the Montclair School rink which they administer.

Council will go over the soon-to-expire lease with the Sherbrooke Racing Club with a fine tooth comb. Certain clauses in the lease are outdated and must be removed, Mayor Marc Bureau said, while others have been ignored. Municipal Manager Richard Fabi is to file a report on the subject.

Council ratified a Quebec Housing Authority resolution which increases the cost of the near-complete Jacques Street low-cost housing project to $809,000 from the previously estimated $770,000.

CITY HALL MARKS — Most aldermen arrived in high spirits after attending a testimonial dinner for Hydro-Sherbrooke's ex-superintendent Gaston Masse. Except for Ald. Romeo Bergeron who barely made it back in time from the Maritimes. Quote from Mayor Marc Bureau on provincial roads minister

Pinar's announcements last week, "You haven't heard the last from me (on that subject)". The John Paul Jones of the city's executive suite is perturbed that the proposed Magog-Sherbrooke bridge near the Lowney plant was not accorded priority treatment. In addition, he is not overly pleased with the time in which the announced projects are to be completed...next week's council meeting is open to the public...whatever happened to Ald. Gerard Deziel's famous 'blue book' on circulation control???

Israelis ready for peace talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — The Israeli cabinet voted Monday to rejoin the United Nations peace talks on the Middle East which the country boycotted four months ago. Egyptian President Anwar Sadat called the Israeli decision "a mere manoeuvre."

civilians were killed in several hours of fighting. The Israelis reported they lost one soldier killed and five wounded.

Lebanon filed a protest with the United Nations in New York, accusing Israel of "two successive" operations. Ambassador Edouard Ghorra said in the protest that two civilians were killed, two wounded and four houses destroyed in the "unprovoked unjustified" attacks.

In Washington, a state department spokesman said State Secretary William P. Rogers "would like sometime to visit Egypt, Israel and other countries" in the Middle East.

Robert J. McCloskey, the state department press officer, said the visit would take place "at a time we would judge to be most productive." An Egyptian government spokesman in Cairo said such a visit would be "welcomed if it serves the interest of peace."

Heavy machine-gun fire rattled throughout Amman for about an hour in the late afternoon.

The Arab Higher Commission, which is trying to mediate disputes between the Jordanian army and Palestine guerrillas, issued a statement saying the fighting was "a mistake" and there were no casualties.

The Israeli cabinet's decision to rejoin the indirect talks with Egypt and Jordan at the United Nations was reported by Premier Golda Meir as she emerged from a 5½-hour session.

Sailors missing from stricken ships

NEW YORK (AP) — The United States Coast Guard searched separate expanses of the wintry North Atlantic Monday for 27 missing seamen from two tankers, 600 miles apart and sinking. In a dual drama with high winds and strong seas, 48 of their mates were saved, at the cost of one rescuer's life.

Seventeen of the survivors were picked up in their lifeboat after they abandoned the 19, 183 ton Panamanian tanker Chryssi, sinking 270 miles southwest of Bermuda. Twenty-one other crew members were reported missing, apparently pitched into the sea when their life boat capsized.

The other foundering vessel was the 11,000-ton Finnish tanker Ragny, which broke in two 600 miles southeast of New York. Thirty-one men clambered to safety from the pitching stern section.

However, the overturned bow drifted away with the skipper, chief engineer and four other Ragny seamen aboard. The coast guard relayed a report that the six were feared lost.

A seaman from the 607-foot American tanker Platte was lost when a small boat capsized during an initial attempt to rescue the Ragny crew.

Fully loaded, the Ragny left Freeport, the Bahamas, a week ago for Trondheim, Norway.

Built in Sweden, the Ragny was 19 years old.

The 540-foot Ragny sent out a distress signal Sunday at midday and had split in two by the time the Platte arrived at 8 p.m., the first rescue vessel on the scene.

The Platte later was joined by a freighter, the Marie Leonardo, the coast guard cutter Escanaba, and four coast guard aircraft.

With winds near gale strength and seas running 20 feet high, the rescuers stood by, awaiting more favorable weather conditions. But when the stern of the Ragny began to sink, the Escanaba lowered two motor-driven boats, which shuttled Ragny seamen to safety after they clambered down the side of the stern.

The coast guard said Ragny survivors aboard the cutter eventually would be landed at Boston. A spokesman could not estimate when.

EATING UP: Sherbrooke Hydro's Gilles Couture joins retiring General Superintendent Gaston Masse (right) in sampling the birthday cake.

Gaston Masse leaves Hydro

SHERBROOKE (PK) — The Sherbrooke Hydro Company gave a farewell party to Gaston Masse, who served the company for 31 years as General Superintendent, last night at the City Hydro building.

The Mayor and the city council as well as about 75 active and retired members of the company attended to pay tribute to Mr. Masse who at the same time celebrated his 66th birthday.

Mr. Masse is succeeded by Mr. Jean Bourassa who gave the major address of the evening. Mr. Masse graduated from McGill in 1931 and joined Sherbrooke Hydro in 1933. He played an important large role in Sherbrooke's Centennial in 1937 as Superintendent of Cables when all city streets, bridges and public streets were profusely lit up. Bourassa noted what a marvellous sight it was through his youthful eyes.

Masse became general superintendent in September, 1939. The city had only 50 per cent of the household electric refrigerators and fluorescent lighting it has now, while television had not yet been invented.

There were fewer than 8,000 customers and an output of 13,000 kilowatts. Today there are almost 30,000 customers and an output of 83,000 kilowatts, Mr. Bourassa said.

Among other achievements noted were the interconnection of the Sherbrooke power complex with the Shawinigan network in 1939 and the construction of the Richelieu and the St. Francois power stations to meet the increased demands in electrical power.

Mr. Masse plans to retire in Sherbrooke.

War Act prisoner will get bail

MONTREAL (CP) — Former policeman Arthur Vachon, charged under the War Measures Act with being a member of the outlawed Front de Liberation du Quebec, was granted $500 bail Monday.

His application for bail was started before Monday's promise by Justice Minister Jerome Choquette that the courts would be allowed to consider bail for about 40 persons charged under the War Measures Act.

He made the promise after the early-morning arrest of Paul and Jacques Rose and Francis Simard, prime suspects in the Oct. 10 kidnapping of Pierre Laporte, former Quebec labor minister killed Oct. 17. Previously, bail was at the discretion of the provincial attorney-general rather than the courts as is the case in normal criminal cases.

Vachon was a founder of the Quebec Provincial Police union and was later fired. He was reported to have been on a hunger strike since his arrest under the act and did not appear in court.

Cost priorities vital

The increase in government spending in the past decade has been phenomenal and in most ways this has been a necessary and good investment in the future.

Today, for example, more than 20 per cent of total government spending in Canada goes to education, and health care costs have increased from $60 per capita in 1955 to almost $170. per capita in 1967. By 1975 they could double.

The Economic Council of Canada makes this frightening forecast: "If the rate of increase of the past five years were to continue unabated, these two areas of activity alone would absorb the entire national product before the year 2000."

The rate of increase will have to be abated, and now we can realistically expect that the worst is over in capital expenditures for education and health facilities.

But now the time has come to take a closer look at public spending, at our priorities and at the way public money is managed and by whom. Educators and doctors, for example, often hide behind a cloak of professional integrity when they are asked to account for what they have spent and how they have spent it. They are not directly accountable to the taxpayers.

And it is becoming increasingly apparent that our money must be managed more efficiently. There also is a critical need for us to establish goals and priorities in spending. What are they?

They must be established. And along with them a new and more equitable way to pay for them. The time has long since passed for a restructuring of the tax system.

It is time that corporations and industry and people in what appear to be tax protected positions pick up more of the tax bill.

If not, that worn cliché will become truer than ever: "The rich get richer and the poor get poorer."

Asian need for more land

The Economic Commission for Asia and the Far East (ECAFE) recently came up with some disturbing statistics about the world's most populous region. Within 28 years, the population of the 22 developing countries in the region (excluding the Chinese colossus) will double from almost 1.1 billion today to 2.2 billion.

Add the population of China to this already astronomic total, and it seems there will be well over three billion Asians before the end of the century.

Only about one-third of the present land area in Asia is suitable for cultivation at the present time and this figure can be increased by another 50 per cent in the coming decades.

But the need for more land is only part of the answer. ECAFE says that constantly shrinking land resources and leaping populations leave Asian countries with only two practical methods to grow more food for the hungry millions — better irrigation and improved farm management.

In both these fields, Western knowhow and increasing Western aid is vital if disaster is to be averted in the impoverished Asian lands. More water, high-yield miracle seeds, better fertilizers are all part and parcel of the solution.

But in the final analysis, the Asian nations must help themselves by pushing population control programs for all they are worth. For even scientific miracles cannot save Asia from calamity if the continent's population continues to mushroom at the present rate.

The overlooked science report

DOUGLAS
FISHER

It is worth noting the contrasts between the Senate inquiries which have recently published major reports.

The inquiry on the mass media is known simply as the Davey inquiry or the Davey report.

The inquiry on science policy has produced what is called the Science Policy Report.

Yet Maurice Lamontagne, the chairman of the latter inquiry, contributed much more in ideas, leadership and authorship to his committee's report than did Senator Keith Davey.

This rather unimportant distinction is not meant to denigrate Mr. Davey. His subject field was "pop," a natural attention-getter. He depended much more on his research staff than on his committee, most of whom took a perfunctory attitude to hearings, cross-examination, and the writing of the report.

Mr. Davey reveled in the publicity of the hearings, spurred his researchers, and schemed very practically for hard impact on publishing.

He did it all up with the budget-type honors of "a locked room" for pre-release examination. His reward has been a spate of attention, coverage and a ripple of criticisms and feedback which promises to go on for months.

Frankly, Senator Lamontagne's task was harder. Judging by the quality of the first volume — A Critical Review: Past And Present — the accomplishment is greater and intrinsically more important.

Further, the science endeavor has been largely a personal accomplishment of the chairman and two of his colleagues, not the work of researchers or any contracted authors. Mr. Lamontagne, Donald Cameron and Allister Grosart were much more encyclopedic in the range of their hearings; they drew a broader involvement from all phases and wings of science. Their examination of witnesses was much more informed and persistent. But none of the three has been as accomplished as Senator Davey at gaining public attention for their mission.

This is not all because of the more complex and mysterious nature of their subject. Mr. Lamontagne proved long ago that he has one of the best minds in Canada. And then as a politician he proved that such capacity did not include a feel for either political self-defence or personal aggrandizement.

A Critical Review is very sobering. Mistakes galore. Millions wasted. Not deliberately... but wasted. A dolorous present state in Canadian Science.

It's disturbing enough that the general public, including all political parties and almost all the politicians, have known nothing much about our inadequacies and cross-purposes in science. It's much more shocking that much of our science community is still pretty blithe about its affairs.

The more sober and constructive response of Mr. Trudeau to the science policy report than he managed for the Davey inquiry, is promising.

Even a most uninformed outsider can appreciate that the second volume, due in the spring, with recommendations for a new or real science policy for Canada, is likely to be influential beyond any contributions ever made before by the Canadian Senate.

The crucial chapter in the science report's first volume is the last: The Need For An Overall Science Policy.

Here the senators analyze the two main schools which argue against a broad science policy, directed by the Government.

The first school is labeled "The Republic of Science." The scientist, in this argument, "should be free to select his research projects and should receive the funds to carry them out, provided they have been found by his peers to have scientific merit."

The scientific community, not the politicians or their administrators, should determine where and how much scientific activity should go on.

This line has been much approved by the National Research Council: "The control of a scientific organization must be in the hands of scientists." It is most cherished in Government labs and in the universities.

This Republic of Science sounds remarkably fresh and free. It fails, say the senators, because it provides no strategy for organizing a national research and development program.

It rejects Government intervention, except to finance. This school has links with economic liberalism — laissez-faire. Its attractions delude. The results of unrestrained or unregulated scientific decisions, like similar private economic decisions, do not maximize economic and social progress.

The second school, called the Republic of Management, has an apparent, pragmatic attraction. It denies the need for an overall policy.

While science is useful for solving problems, these are normally separate and distinct.

The definition of the problems and science's role in examining them cannot be decided at the level of Government grandeur but down below in the particular arms and agencies which have been working the areas where the problems develop.

Here the image of science is "a set of isolated and separated subsystems regulated from outside by the requirement of economic, social or cultural missions."

The senators agree that the managers are good at determining the research and development services their particular operations need. But as each pursues his own needs, gaps and overlaps and waste, through conscious and unconscious competition, develop.

Fads and cycles, new ministers with ambitions and abilities or the lack of them, all create an imbalance and so many isolated science policies that no particular policy ever proves adequate when tested by urgent public needs.

It's a near travesty to synopsise any of this excellent chapter of the Science Policy Report. I like its aggressiveness, its clear definition of who has been for what in our science history. Best of all, I like its delineation of great failure without either despair or a search for scapegoats.

COLUMN

WASHINGTON — Our friends the Carbunkles really take their Christmas cards seriously. Perhaps it is because Mr. Carbunkle works in the credit office of a department store.

On Dec. 1 we received a card from the Carbunkles with a photograph of the family, and inside "Warmest wishes for a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from all the Carbunkles."

I remembered the card, because I had commented to my wife how well everyone in the Carbunkle family looked, though Carbunkle himself seemed to be putting on weight.

We thought nothing of it until two weeks later when we received another card from the Carbunkles which had stamped on the envelope "Second Notice."

I opened it and inside there was a printed note which read: "Two weeks ago you were sent a Christmas card from the Carbunkles wishing you a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year. Probably due to the rush of the holiday season you were unable to acknowledge it. While we are very understanding of your situation, we would like to remind you that your Christmas card is one week past due, and we are hoping you will attend to this matter at your earliest convenience. Sincerely yours, the Carbunkles."

I meant to do something about it, but it slipped my mind. My wife, who is supposed to look after Christmas cards, also let it slip her mind, and three days later in a yellow envelope arrived a third card. This time all the holly and mistletoe decorations had been removed and in letters stamped on the front was: "Third Notice." I opened it up and a note said: "Sir, it has been called to our attention that you are now two weeks in arrears on sending our family a return Christmas card. Nothing would please us more than to carry you right through the holiday season. But this would be impossible because if we carried you, then we would have to carry our other friends, and then we would soon be out of the holiday greeting business."

"When we sent you our Christmas card on Dec. 1, we assumed that you would send us one back by return mail."

"To put it bluntly, you owe us one season's greetings plus a 'Joy to the World' as interest. We are enclosing a self-addressed envelope for your convenience and would appreciate your remittance immediately."

My wife became very upset about the notice. I accused her of letting the first two slip by in her typical sloppy bookkeeping fashion. She said the Carbunkles were originally my friends, and I should have handled their return greetings through my office.

"Look," I said, "we don't have any cards left. They've waited this long, they can wait until New Year's. Besides, we owe our holiday respects to the Geylins and the Krafts before we pay our greetings back to the Carbunkles."

Just two days ago we received a registered special delivery letter from the Miserecordia Collection Agency.

The letter read, "The Carbunkles have turned over your bad debt Christmas greetings to this office and have asked us to collect it for them immediately."

"We are hoping you give us no difficulty in this regard as we have methods of collecting holiday wishes that are not pleasant. It would be to your advantage to send to us not only your Christmas and New Year Best Wishes, but also to include several 'Peace on Earths' to compensate for all the trouble you have caused our client. Unless we hear from you by return special delivery registered mail, we will see to it that you will be listed as a bad Christmas card risk and will never receive another greeting. This is your last warning."

MATTER OF FACT JOSEPH ALSOP

BEN TRE, KIEN HOA PROVINCE — If you remember the rather recent past, and also take the trouble to go district-hopping in Vietnam nowadays, what you see and hear makes your eyes pop with astonishment. Here are a few samples from an overflowing collection.

In Long An Province, the proudest unit in Hanoi's army, the First North Vietnamese Regiment that took the surrender at Dien Bien Phu, has reached the end of the road. After the invasion of the Cambodian sanctuaries, the replacement-flow from Hanoi dried up. The ragged remnants of the First NVA are now merged with other enemy remnants, and the regiment has become an empty number on the roster.

In this same province, only a year ago, they still numbered their Viet Cong-controlled hamlets in scores. And a brigade of the U.S. Ninth Division, plus two full regiments of the South Vietnamese army, were needed to support the task of pacification.

Today, however, Long An has no Viet Cong-controlled hamlets. It has almost no "contested" hamlets, among many hundreds. No regular troops, either American or South Vietnamese, now remain in the province. But the little units of the regional and popular forces are briskly continuing to grind down what remains of the enemy in Long An.

Then in the U Minh Forest in the Delta no government forces used to attempt any serious penetration. This huge, swampy Viet Cong base area was simply too strong and too well defended. But here, on a bright morning, are the wiry little troops of the South Vietnamese 21st Division, busily building themselves a firebase in the muck by a riverbank.

Two regiments of the 21st are now working in the U Minh, meeting little opposition, but finding huge caches of arms and every kind of strong fortification. Other firebases are being built. One regiment will stay behind until the U Minh is under safe government control.

Nor is this the end of the story. Today there are South Vietnamese troops on the grim summits of the Seven Mountains. That dire waste, Base Area 470, is already half-controlled. The Three Sisters are slated for early occupation.

The overlord of the U.S. civilian effort in the Delta, the brilliant John Paul Vann, makes a confident prediction:

"In six months, for the first time in over a quarter-century, the enemy will not have a major remaining base area in the whole Delta."

Yet again, in Kien Hoa Province, where the Communist movement began in South Vietnam, it is now possible to spend a tranquil night in the pretty village that used to be the enemy's Delta show place, where the VC equivalent of Arlington Cemetery is also located. In Kien Hoa, in fact, the enemy's greatest and most ancient strongholds in the countryside are now being cracked wide open.

There is much still to do. Except that all the burden is being carried by units of the South Vietnamese army and the regional and popular forces, this province today looks the way that Long An looked a year ago. But here, too, John Vann, who is not noted for overoptimism, makes a startling forecast:

"In another six months, Kien Hoa Province will be just like Long An Province today."

To those who do not know the past in Vietnam, all this may seem meaningless or petty. But to those with knowledge, all this is just like seeing Gibraltar fall, not once but over and over again. In the new situation in Vietnam, in truth, enemy fortresses that had always seemed impregnable are now being attacked with such rapid success that it has begun to be regarded as commonplace.

That does not mean that the long, hard struggle here is over. The Vietnamese Communists have a tenacity and courage, a resilience in defeat, that modern Americans ought to envy. But these things seen and heard, and many others like them, certainly mean that the struggle has entered a radically new, vastly more hopeful phase.

49ers only miffed

Colts badly hurt by playoffs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Baltimore Colts came out of the weekend National Football League's playoffs with the most serious injuries while San Francisco 49ers had only their pride hurt.

The 49ers were a jubilant crew heading home to prepare for another step against Dallas Cowboys Sunday toward the NFL's $25,000 final playoff—the Super Bowl—but they also were a bit angry.

After letting Minnesota's great front get to quarterback John Brodie only one time in San Francisco's 17-14 win over the Vikings Sunday, the 49ers were particularly miffed that not one of their offensive line made the all-star Pro Bowl team.

"It was ridiculous," complained offensive line coach Ernie Zwanen Monday. "Our five linemen set a record when Brodie was dropped only eight times all year. How can it be that none was selected for the Pro Bowl?"

That line will get another test against the visiting Cowboys' defensive front four, which caused quarterback Grey Landry all kinds of problems as Dallas beat Detroit Lions 5-0 Saturday.

ENDS INJURED
Baltimore might well have begun devising a way to replace tight end John Mackey and Tom Mitchell. Mackey suffered a pulled left hamstring muscle in Baltimore's 17-0 victory over Cincinnati Saturday and Mitchell left with an injured knee.

Tackle Bob Vogel finished the game at tight end, the first time he had played the position. While Mackey insists he'll be ready for Sunday's game against visiting Oakland the Colts might be toying with the idea of moving running back Tom Nowatzke to tight end.

Guard Glenn Ressler of the Colts also suffered a hamstring pull and wide receiver Ray Perkins aggravated a fractured little toe, but both are probable for the American Conference title game.

Pettis Norman, who shares tight end duties with Mike Ditka, is the most serious Dallas injury. He is questionable with a sprained left foot. Offensive tackle Rayfield Wright had a sprained left knee, but it should not keep him out of the 49ers game for the National Conference crown.

The 49ers and Oakland came out of their games with only minor injuries.

Only Baltimore held a light workout Monday as the glow from the weekend victories, worth only a day's pay, began to fade and attention was turned to the more lucrative $8,500 payoff for Sunday's winners in the two conference title games which match four division winners. The losers get $5,500.

Another $15,000 goes to the Super Bowl winner; $7,500 to the loser.

Hockey Canada Finals

Loyola, York face tougher net-minding

TORONTO (CP) — Forwards for Loyola College Warriors and York University Yeomen may find it tough collecting goals against proven netminders in tonight's final of the Hockey Canada invitational tournament.

York goalie Bill Holden earned the first shutout of the four-day tournament Monday night as the Yeomen defeated University of Toronto Blues 2-0 in the west division here. The Blues outshot York 38-32.

In the east division at Montreal, meanwhile, Loyola netminder Rocky Martin made 29 saves against the high-scoring St. Mary's Huskies from Halifax to back the Warriors in a 3-2 victory.

Both Loyola and York emerged with three wins and no losses to go into the final game scheduled for 8 p.m. EST at Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Blues and the Huskies each wound up with two wins and a loss to gain second place in their respective divisions.

In other games Monday, Laval University beat University of Sherbrooke 6-3 at Montreal and Laurentian University of Sudbury downed University of Calgary Dinosaurs 8-6 here.

Laval and Laurentian thus finished with one win and two losses each while Sherbrooke and Calgary went winless.

YORK SCORES 15

York, which beat Loyola 7-3 in the consolation round of the national college finals last season in Charlottetown, scored 15 goals while allowing only four in the three games here.

Loyola scored 12 goals in its three games at Montreal while allowing 10, but were most impressive in holding St. Mary's to only two goals Monday. The Huskies scored 25 times while allowing six against in their three games.

Loyola coach Dave Draper had special praise for his goalie after the Monday victory.

"He did it for us again," Draper said. "He came up with the big saves, especially in the third period."

"I was confident our boys would be ready for tonight. They have never really let me down."

Draper said his team gained revenge for their loss to St. Mary's in the national finals in Charlottetown.

"Not too many of our boys forgot that. They beat us badly in Charlottetown."

The Warriors got the winning goal from team captain Chris Hayes late in the second period on a power play. John Hutton and Pat McCool beat goalie Chuck Goddard for the other Loyola goals. Richie Bayes scored both Huskies goals.

In Toronto, Murray Stroud scored with less than five minutes remaining to spark York. Stroud banged the puck home after goalie Grant Cole failed to smother the rebound on a shot by Steve Latinovich, who got York's second goal less than three minutes later.

In the early game here, John Valiquette led the Laurentian victory with three goals. Bill McEwan, Doug Forrester, Eddie Taylor, Andres Lajeunesse and Tom Deacon scored once each.

John Fraser scored twice for Calgary with single goals coming from Steve Richardson, Bob Wright, John Kinsman and Don

Sawyerville

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Gadapee of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and Mrs. Karl Ferguson and son Steven and Mrs. B. Green and daughter Vicki, all of St. Johns, were recent weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gleason Painter.

Laurentian and Frank Richardson of Calgary started the fight. In the other game at Montreal, Bruno Gagnon and Jean Rioux each scored twice for Laval and Roger Lachance and Jean Bruno got one goal apiece. Normand Gingues, Normand Delisle and Daniel Bouillon scored for Sherbrooke.

U of S finishes round-robin by dropping third straight

By SCOTT ABBOTT

MONTREAL — University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold suffered their third defeat in as many games and Loyola College Warriors earned a trip to Toronto to compete in the championship game in action in the Montreal section of the Hockey Canada Intercollegiate Invitational Tournament yesterday.

Loyola, 3-2 victors over St. Mary's Huskies at the Forum last night, meets York University Yeomen at Maple Leaf Gardens tonight for the tourney title. York won out in Toronto in competition with University of Toronto, Laurentian University and University of Calgary.

The Warriors got goals from John Hutton, Pat McCool and captain Chris Hayes in downing the favored Huskies.

Rich Bayes scored both St.

NORMAND DELISLE

Mary's markers. Bayes posted the Huskies to a 1-0 lead at 12:36 of the opening period, but Hutton knotted the count at 1-1 before the session ended.

McCool put Loyola into a 2-1 lead at 3:59 of the middle frame, and Bayes retaliated for the Maritime contingent exactly two minutes later.

Hayes scored the winner and last goal of the game at 17:50 of the second stanza, and the teams battled without further scoring for the remainder of the contest.

The Green and Gold dropped a 6-3 decision to Laval University Red and Gold in a meeting between teams without championship aspirations in the round-robin event.

Bruno Gagnon and Jean Rioux paced the Quebec City squad with two tallies each, while Roger Lachance and Jean Bruno each dented the twine once. Normand Gingues, Normand Delisle and Daniel Bouillon scored for the Sherbrooke side.

Trampled by losing Royals, Beavers face leading Ramparts

SHERBROOKE (SA) — Sherbrooke Beavers, still smarting from a 4-2 loss at the hands of the last place Cornwall Royals Sunday at the Sports Palace, travel to Quebec City today to meet the first place Ramparts in Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League action.

Having lost at home to a team that had managed only two victories in 28 outings, the local side must now meet a club that has lost only two games in 31 — and on the frontrunners' home ice.

The Beavers will have all hands available with the exception of Claude Rancourt, a hardrock who suffered a broken nose in practice Saturday.

The shaky Beaver defence can count on having its hands full at the Quebec Coliseum. Guy Lafleur, if no one else, will see to it.

The Beavers currently possess exactly half as many points in the QJHL standings as Quebec — 29 to the Ramparts' 58.

Verdun Maple Leafs, however, are hot on the heels of the fourth place Beavers and are one point back at 28.

In addition, four teams are bunched close behind and could pose serious threats at any time. Drummondville Rangers, Rosemount Nationals, St. Jerome Alouettes and Sorel Hawks are all within four points of the Beavers.

Quebec City doesn't fall every day, but the Beavers would do well this evening to scale the Ramparts and escape with two points.

Club says Coy-dog packs menacing hunting areas

DERBY LINE — The directors of the Derby Fish and Game Club expressed concern at their most recent meeting about the increasing packs of coy-dogs seen in the area, some weighing as much as 90 or more pounds.

During the hunting season, several persons observed the woods wildlife, and many reported seeing very few fawn deer and rabbits. They feel this is because these animals are being killed by the coys. The club hopes to be able to have a bounty placed on the coys. It has also been noted New England coys are crossing over the border into Quebec.

Hank Sanders said a golden eagle with a five-foot wing spread had been found in a sickened condition in Holland and was taken to the department, where everything possible was done to save the bird's life, without success.

A study of the bird did not reveal it had been shot or harmed in any way. It is believed it died of poisoning, possibly through DDT or mercury intake. Golden eagles are becoming scarce in the United States.

There was considerable discussion about antlerless deer season. While the club directors represent the club members, it is impossible for them to know the feelings of their 553 members.

It was decided that cards will be printed and mailed each club member and his family asking him to vote whether or not the seasons should continue. The decision must be known early in 1971.

The department agreed on the antlerless deer season five years ago, and the act expires March 31, 1971. Now is the time to express opinions for or against, so that the club delegate may know how the members feel and so vote.

"Something is happening to our deer," the directors said. In a 3,000-acre site during the two weeks of Vermont deer season, only six were seen.

Partridge are also reported to be on the decline.

The directors will invite a department representative to attend the January meeting. Any member interested is invited to attend as well.

The reports noted a very successful money-raising project in the fall, with the grand prize of a rifle going to Edwin Shaw of Orleans.

The club has hit an all-time high membership with 512 adults and 41 juniors. Approximately 40 members came for the signing-in day at the club range Nov. 8.

The club is still receiving entries for rifle-shot deer from men, women and juniors to be measured for Boone and Crockett rack by president Paul Bedard. The winners will receive a trophy at the annual April meeting.

Bout date released, no contract signed

NEW YORK (AP) — "It's always been our policy that no contract means no fight," Harry Markson, director of Madison Square Garden boxing, said Monday in connection with a Joe Frazier-Mohammad Ali fight.

Markson did not deny the fight would take place in the Garden but added that announcements that the fight has been made were premature.

A news conference had been planned for the Garden today, but Markson said the conference probably will be Wednesday.

Sunday, Bruce Wright, a lawyer for Cloverly, Inc., which handles Frazier, said in Philadelphia that the fight was set for the Garden March 8.

Canadians hit the road

Travellers increase, trends change

By VICTOR STANTON

For more and more Canadians each year the prospects of winter include a few weeks of warm sunshine in some frequently exotic foreign land.

The seasonal migration from the snows of home will take thousands of Canadians this year to such far-away places as Spain, Portugal, Australia, New Zealand, Africa and Guam, in addition to the traditional resorts of Florida, California, Mexico and the West Indies.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press showed that in most provinces there is an increase this year over last year in the number of people succumbing to the combined appeal of sun and travel.

Indeed, only in Manitoba were there indications of a sharp decline in the winter exodus to sunnier climates, although east of Ontario there were pockets of resistance to the hard-driving campaigns of tourist-hungry countries offering an escape from the Canadian winter.

Most of the winter vacationers will do their travelling by air, an increasing number economizing on charter and package-tour flights, but sea cruises retain their popularity among those for whom getting to where they're going is still half the fun of going there.

For the Florida — and California — bound, buses and cars are alternatives that appeal to a small percentage.

This is the picture across the country:

NEWFOUNDLAND

A spokesman for Harvey's travel agency, the oldest travel agency in St. John's reported an increase in bookings this year, with more people showing a preference for Portugal, Spain and the Canary Islands than for the main West Indies resorts.

He said Jamaica is becoming over-priced and the growth of large gambling establishments in the Bahamas discourages many Newfoundland travellers. Also, eastbound flight rates from Newfoundland are cheaper. The standard economy return to Lisbon from Gander is $324 compared to $340 to Nassau.

A spokesman for the Diners Fugazy agency in St. John's said their main bookings were for Florida and Barbados.

NOVA SCOTIA, P.E.I.

A spokesman for Maritime travel agency in Halifax also spoke of increased interest in Spain and Portugal, although in general winter bookings were down. However, it was expected they would pick up later in the season if the trend of recent years continued.

Many Maritimers travel to Florida by car. Barbados, Antigua and other Caribbean islands are popular with Nova Scotians, but there is little travel from the Maritime to far western states.

NEW BRUNSWICK

Travel agencies in Saint John have had heavier bookings by winter travellers this year than in 1969.

"As usual, Bermuda and Florida are most popular because they are closer and easier to reach by air," a spokesman for the H. E. Kane travel agency said.

He estimated that about 90 per cent of winter vacation traffic is by air, the remainder being booked for sea cruises.

QUEBEC

A CP Air spokesman in Montreal said the number of passengers and planes to Mexico, southern Europe and Honolulu remains unchanged from last year.

An Air Canada spokesman anticipated passenger increases this year of 10 per cent to Florida, six per cent to Bahamas and Jamaica, 12 per cent to eastern Caribbean.

Travel agencies offered conflicting appraisals of the 1970-71 winter travel season.

Mrs. V. Zafouk, travel consultant with Diners Fugazy Travel, reported travel this year at its lowest ever, down about 25 per cent from 1969.

J.C. McKee, manager of Cook's World Travel Service, felt that the volume of traffic was in line with that of a year ago. He said Mexico was "as strong as ever," and the Caribbean a popular resort for both air and sea cruise programs.

ONTARIO

Ottawa travel agencies also reported that the Caribbean is by far the most popular vacation area for Canadians this winter, with Barbados drawing the most vacationers.

One agency spokesman said the Caribbean islands might sink if any more Canadians set foot on them.

Most agencies reported increased business this year, with other popular spots being Hawaii, California, Mexico, the Canary Islands, Portugal, southern Spain and the French Riviera.

In Toronto, Richard Bevir, sales manager for Sun Tours Ltd., said sales of package-tour flights — including air fare, hotels, some meals and sundry extras — were "well ahead of last year."

The prime destinations were Barbados, Hawaii and Mexico, while reports of tensions in Jamaica and the Bahamas have hurt their image.

"Spain and Portugal are definitely on the way up" in winter bookings this year, Mr. Bevir added.

Jim Byrne, manager of Fairway Tours Ltd., of Toronto, said more people were taking shorter duration seven-day sea cruises "than ever before," but that the 13-14 day cruises were not doing as well as in past years.

A spokesman for Gray Coach Lines Ltd., said bus tours to Florida and California this year were "just about on par" with 1969.

MANITOBA

Preben Salomonsen, president of the Associated Tourist Services and secretary-general of the Winnipeg Tourist Agents Association, painted a bleak picture of the travel situation in his province.

"We're in a semi-recession and unemployment is high. This is the general trend. No matter what people say, these are the facts of life — the traffic is down."

"People just don't have the funds. Travel is a luxury, the same as buying a tuxedo. You don't buy a tux if you don't have the money. You cut down on the things you don't need."

Mr. Salomonsen said that two years ago people were holidaying in Portugal and Spain, but that travel from Manitoba to these places this year has been "a complete failure."

SASKATCHEWAN

In Regina, Peter Whitney, of P. Lawson Travel Ltd. said the volume of bookings this season is about the same as last year.

"We're having a good average year."

"People phone up and say, 'Get me somewhere warm.' They don't care where, but they're willing to spend $500 each and want to have a guaranteed 75 degrees above and a sandy beach."

Mr. Whitney said Hawaii and Mexico are the most popular vacation spots at this time of year to most people, but many farmers are interested in Australia and New Zealand and some people operate farms both in Saskatchewan and "Down Under."

H. U. Kent, manager of Burrill Travel Ltd., in Regina, said Hawaii is still his agency's biggest seller. He said many people from Saskatchewan also go to California or Arizona, while the Canary Islands, Spain and Morocco were becoming more popular with those who venture farther afield.

Certainly "there hasn't been any recession as far as travel goes," Mr. Kent said.

ALBERTA

This is another province where the travel bug has bitten hard and often this season.

Bob Neville, vice-president of the Edmonton and District Travel Agents' Association, said travel to sunnier climes has taken a big upswing this winter.

"I think everybody's believing the Indians. They said this was going to be a tough winter."

Mr. Neville said he booked 146 people to Hawaii through his agency this year up to the time that last year he had only booked 36.

"There's also about a 30-per cent increase in traffic to the South Pacific ... Australia's also showing a big increase this year."

REMINISCENT OF EXPO'70...the Oriental influence is evident in the ankle-length gown designed in Du Pont nylon by VanEsa Lingerie Ltd. of Montreal. The look is interpreted with a mandarin collar and frog front closures of a contrasting color. Contrasting trims also complete the raglan-cut shoulder line and full-flowing hemline.

Richmond, Melbourne units conduct affairs

RICHMOND — The U.C.W. of the Richmond and Melbourne United Church met in the church hall Wednesday, Dec. 9 at 2 p.m., with the president, Mrs. Ralph Healy, in the chair welcoming the large number present, it being such a stormy day.

The devotional period was conducted by Mrs. M. Fraser of the Chalmers Unit.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved after which the treasurer's report was given showing a very substantial balance on hand. Several donations were also approved.

Correspondence consisted of thank you notes from Mrs. C. Manning and Mrs. Pritchard, a letter from Mr. Robert McClure concerning the new hymn books, one from Mrs. M. Coote about vacancies in the presbytery executive and from Mrs. M. Mayhew, stewardship secretary.

The Unit reports were then given. Chalmers Unit reported holding the regular meeting when plans were made for the Christmas tea and sale, devotions and refreshments for the December U.C.W. meeting and the Wales Home birthday party.

The Melbourne Unit reported their December meeting was held at the home of Mrs. F. Roster, after which they attended the tea and sale at the French Presbyterian Church, Melbourne, and that there are two foster children being sponsored.

The Evening Unit helped with the Christmas tea and sale and discussed possible better arranging of sales tables to provide space for visitors to sit while waiting for the tea and sale they had visited at the Wales Home.

The New London Unit reported a good number at their meeting and said they sold the remaining articles from the Christmas sale and gave a donation of $150 to the board of stewards, as well as $25, to the M. and S. Fund.

Miss E. Pepler the card convener reported, three sympathy cards, three hospital cards and one birthday card had been sent out, making a total of 39 sympathy cards, 20 hospital cards, three birthday cards and one cheer basket given this year.

Mrs. W. Moreland reported 87 Wales Home visits and 32 local calls, with the yearly report 1,050 to Wales Home and 429 local calls made.

The annual reports were given by Mrs. E. McNally for Chalmers Unit, Miss T. Mills for Melbourne Unit, Mrs. D. Perkins for New London Unit and Mrs. E. Clark for Evening Unit. Mrs. N. Wheeler's report for flowers and social functions was read by Mrs. E. Clark. Miss E. Pepler for community friendship and Mrs. W. Moreland for visitations.

Mrs. Healy then thanked all who had helped with the Christmas tea and sale and the hostesses for the meeting. Christmas cheer was planned for Wales Home members and local shut-ins. The Chalmers Unit are in charge of decorating the church for Christmas.

Miss Mabel Boast gave the nominating report with Mrs. J. S. MacNaughton in the chair.

The slate presented was — past president: Mrs. B. Armatage; president: Mrs. R. Healy; first vice-president: Mrs. D. Dykeman; second vice-president: Mrs. A. Mallette; recording secretary: Mrs. F. Roster; corresponding secretary: Mrs. F. Roster; treasurer: Miss J. Pepler; committees of membership, community friendship and cards: Miss E. Pepler; visiting: Mrs. W. Moreland; supply and social welfare: Miss Audrey Millar; flowers and social functions and Unit leaders: Mrs. Royce Griffith; press and publicity: Mrs. John Wilkins; finance: Miss J. Pepler, Mrs. D. Dykeman, Mrs. K. Nourse, Mrs. J. Barrington and Mrs. A. Mallette; Christian and missionary education and enjoyed a carol sing interspersed with scripture readings. Miss Laura Thompson favored the ladies with a solo entitled Do You Know the Christ of Christmas?

After a short period spent in prayer, Mrs. Allison Welch brought a heart-searching message on Mary's ordeal from the human aspect. Many of the ladies participated with scripture readings.

Jan. 11 is the date of our next meeting. Mrs. David Brooks closed with prayer.

The hostesses for the evening were the Misses Byrl, Mildred and Evelyn Beckwith.

stewardship: Mrs. R. A. Cameron and Mrs. J. S. MacNaughton; nominations: Mrs. D. Perkins, Mrs. H. Dapp and Mrs. F. Wintle; program: Mrs. R. A. Cameron and Miss R. Lanigan; literature and communications: Miss M. Kerr; manse representatives: Mrs. Nourse and Mrs. Barrington; representatives on board of stewards: Mrs. J. Barrington and Mrs. Nourse; representatives on officiate board: Mrs. R. Healy, and organist, Mrs. W. Moreland. A motion was passed that this slate of officers be accepted as read.

It was moved and carried that a workshop be held in February, and plans for this are to be made at a later date.

Mrs. R. Healy thanked everyone for their co-operation in the past year, and the meeting was closed with the Mizpah benediction after which refreshments were served by the Chalmers Unit.

Recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Beliveau were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Beliveau and Miss Joan Beliveau of this place and Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Beliveau of Chomedey, it being Mr. Roger Beliveau's birthday.

Miss Florence Randall of Montreal was a recent weekend guest of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McMorine. Recent Sunday guests at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Grime and Mr. and Mrs. Herbie Winget of Sherbrooke.

Under the chairmanship of the president, Rosaire Benoit, members of the Danville-Shipton Federated Charities held their December meeting, when the various case histories were discussed and plans were made for the purchasing of the groceries needed for the Christmas baskets. Mr. Allan Fulker will again head this committee.

Two of the Bridge Clubs held their annual Christmas party at the Danville Curling Club on Dec. 9 when all enjoyed the delicious roast beef dinner prior to the Bridge game. There was the usual exchange of gifts, with the highest scorer having the privilege of choosing first.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cleveland, Wales Home, Richmond, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Cleveland.

Sympathy is extended to Mrs. Kenneth Hall, whose mother, Mrs. J. Chatterton, passed away at New Carlisle on Dec. 9, following a lengthy illness. Mr. and Mrs. Hall have been in New Carlisle for some time, caring for her, and were joined by Mrs. John Lodge for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gillim spent the weekend in Pierrefonds as the guests of relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Ross, Lachine.

The annual Christmas Party for the Carry On Christmas Club was held at the Danville Curling Club on Dec. 1 when the members enjoyed a delicious roast beef dinner served by Mrs. Graydon Heath. Later there was an exchange of gifts, and then many of the members adjourned to the Legion Memorial Home where they spent a very pleasant evening.

Mrs. B. F. Olney of the Wales Home, Richmond, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Olney for a few days.

Mrs. Roy Whitehead is spending a few weeks in Pointe Claire as a guest of her son, Mr. Hubert Whitehead, and Mrs. Whitehead. Mr. Whitehead, who has been hospitalized, is now recuperating at the same home.

Mr. Gary Smith, Bagotville, spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Smith.

Friends of Mrs. Rejeanne Lamothe will be sorry to know that she is a patient at the Medical Centre, Sherbrooke, having sustained painful injuries in a car accident on Dec. 5.

The Second Danville Girl Guide Company enjoyed a Christmas party at the home of the Guide captain, Mrs. M. Knowles, Tuesday evening, Dec. 15. Games were played and a short time was spent in practicing the carols which were to be sung at the Wales Home. There was an exchange of gifts from the gaily decorated tree, and then the two Guiders, Mrs. Knowles and Mrs. Duffy, served lunch. The large living room was decorated for Christmas, and made a beautiful setting for this evening of pleasure.

Friends of Mrs. Stanley Taylor will be sorry to know that she had the misfortune to fracture her arm.

Rev. Jean Marc Allaire of Sherbrooke was a guest of his mother, Mrs. F. X. Allaire, for a few days.

Friends of Mrs. R. C. Johnston of the Wales Home, formerly of Danville, will regret the fact that she entered the Sherbrooke Hospital, having suffered quite severe injuries in a fall in her room Tuesday, Dec. 15.

Friends of Craig Horan will be sorry to learn that he fractured a bone in his leg, and will be on crutches for some time.

The Community Choir under the direction of Mrs. A. J. McCoy presented their Cantata "Born a King" by John Peterson, on Dec. 20, at 8 p.m. in the Advent Christian Church.

The Junior Choir of St. Augustine's Church presented their annual Christmas concert on Sat. evening Dec. 12, in the Parish Hall under the direction of their leader, Miss Hope Clark.

Mrs. Fred Mitchell acted as accompanist for the group. The silver collection will be used for the foster child who is sponsored by the Sunday School.

Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Matthews, Ville LaSalle, were Sunday, Dec. 13th guests of Mr. and Mrs. Redvers Noble.

Good Luck

Seventy-one is here, time to wish all the best. Please have a happy, happy New Year and "Thank You."

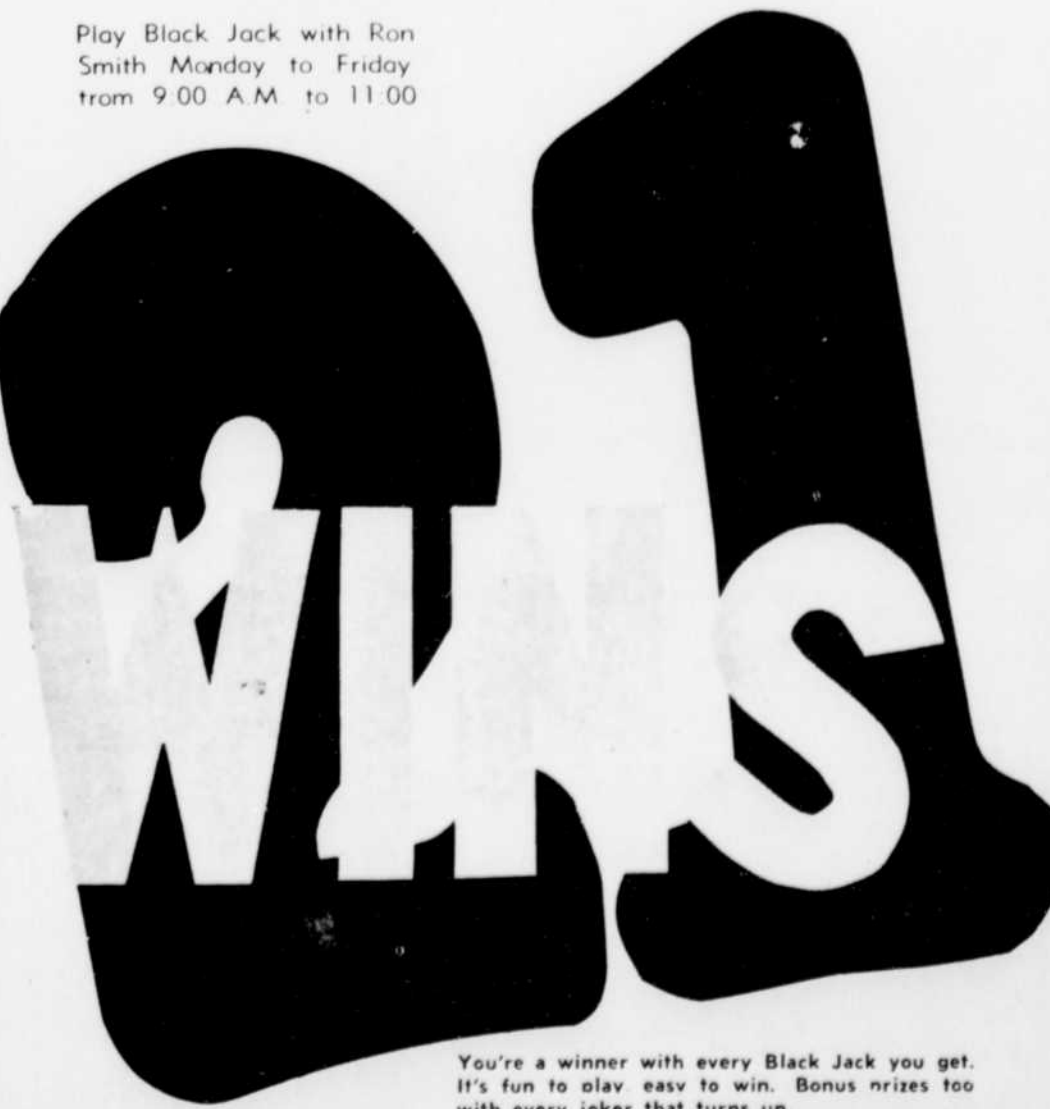

20, Wellington Nord

Yule meeting thrills young

GORE — The Gore Women's Institute held its Christmas meeting in the South Durham United Church hall, Dec. 5.

The hall was decorated and featured a Christmas tree which delighted the children.

Mrs. M. Duffy, president, welcomed 18 members, and the meeting opened by repeating the collect. The roll call was answered by several members reading Christmas poems.

Minutes were read by Mrs. L. Newell with several thank-you notes following and Mrs. M. Griffith gave the treasurer's report.

A donation was given for the use of the hall, and six children of the Dixville Home were provided with Christmas parcels. Ten gifts were sent to the same home and 18 gifts were sent to Douglas Home to the forgotten patients.

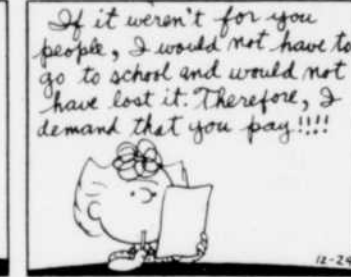

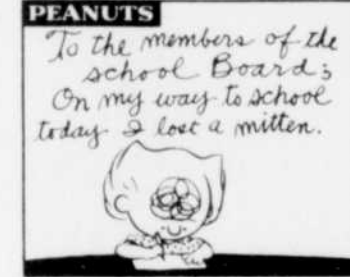

Each member was asked to bring in two diapers, 30 inches square, to the January meeting to be sent to the Cecil Butters Memorial Hospital, as well as jams, jelly or pickles to be brought in for the Wales Home.

Mrs. Julia Griffith was asked to try to get a guest speaker for the January meeting.

The monthly drawing was won by Mrs. Reta Hughes.

During the afternoon the children were entertained by a number of older girls. After the meeting all joined in singing Christmas carols accompanied by Miss Anne Mountain at the piano, after which the gifts were given out to each child with a bag of candy.

An exchange of gifts was held among the members and a happy Birthday song was sung for Allison Scott who was celebrating her fifth birthday. Refreshments were served with all members helping. The January meeting will be held with Mrs. Muriel Griffith on Jan. 9.

IODE holds open house

STANSTEAD — The Dec. 7 meeting of Stanstead Chapter IODE featured Open House, held in the reception room of Stanstead College Le Baron Hall.

Mrs. W. B. Dustin, the regent, welcomed the visitors. Mrs. Edward Hyatt, Mrs. S. J. Dubois, Mrs. Peter Howard and Mrs. Maurice Moore.

It was voted that starting in 1971, a sum of $10 will be given annually to the local Legion poppy fund in appreciation of the evergreen wreaths made by the Legion Auxiliary.

A sum of $50 was voted to the Boundary Rotary Community Christmas basket funds. Mrs. W. T. Greer attended the meeting as representative of this chapter and gave her report. Mrs. Mabel Wallace and Mrs. J. S. McCannell assisted by others, will pack the baskets Dec. 23.

Mrs. Howard Aikman, secretary of Services at Home and Abroad noted 51 articles valued at $51.18 had been taken to Montreal by Allan Greer for the Douglas Hospital in Verdun for the "forgotten patients," as well as another box valued at $39.10 to Montreal to go to Fort Chimo for Indian and Eskimo children. Many of these gifts were donated by members and others were purchased by a committee of Mrs. H. M. Cass and Mrs. Howard Majury. Mrs. Aikman asked the members to save stamps from Christmas card envelopes, also Dominion store sale slips.

Mrs. Aikman also read excerpts from the provincial bulletin concerning welfare work in Canada and abroad.

Mrs. Dustin was congratulated on her appointment by the provincial president as one of the Provincial Counsellors, thus bringing honor to this chapter.

A sum of $40. was voted to the Minor Hockey Association of the Boundary.

Because of the great need after the tragedy in East Pakistan the members agreed to have a public card party as soon as possible after the holidays. This will be a dessert party tentatively at the Border Curling Club and all proceeds will go towards the IODE contributions. Final plans for this will be made at the Jan. 4 meeting.

Mrs. W. T. Greer, on behalf of the members, in a few words of tribute to Mrs. Ruby Wilding, presented her with a gift and wished her every happiness in her new home after the New Year, be it in England or the Montreal area. Mrs. Wilding has retired as Librarian of the Haskell. Free Library after 14 years as such, effective the end of the year. During her years in Stanstead she has given freely of her many talents for the good of the chapter and its aims. Mrs. Wilding graciously thanked the members for the remembrance.

It was noted several members are shut-in for various reasons. Good wishes for improved health goes out to them all.

Refreshments in the Christmas motif were served by Mrs. Howard Majury and Mrs. Margo Skelton. Mrs. Moore presided to pour.

Marbleton ladies vote storm funds

MARBLETON — The November meeting of the St. Paul's Ladies' Guild of Marbleton was held at the home of Mrs. Worth Bishop.

Rev. Genge opened the meeting with the Litany from the Living Message and prayer.

It was voted to send a donation to Rev. Genge in Tobago to add to the fund to rebuild a church destroyed by a hurricane six years ago. The Corporate Communion was held Dec. 13, and the annual meeting will be held at the parsonage Jan. 20 with Mrs. Mark Genge as hostess.

Rev. Genge closed the meeting with prayer and benediction. The hostess served tea and a pleasant social hour was enjoyed by all.

Hard Luck Joe gazed at dummy with that air of intelligence. He counted two spades and four clubs and saw that he needed three tricks in hearts and diamonds to make his contract.

He thought, "With my usual hard luck, it won't matter which suit I lead."

Neither will break for me.

Furthermore, that ace will be held by East, so that he will be able to return a spade to his partner. Still, I won't mind if diamonds don't break 3-2. I need a 3-3 heart break to develop that suit with just one loser."

So Joe led a diamond to dummy's king. East took his ace and led back a spade, whereupon the best poor Joe could do was to cash his tricks for down one.

Joe was mighty unlucky.

He was correct to attack diamonds rather than hearts, but he had failed to see the beautiful forest on account of all the trees. Joe had an absolute cinch for nine tricks.

At trick two, he should have entered dummy with the 10 of clubs. Then, at trick three, he could lead a diamond from dummy. If East went up with the ace, Joe would be sure of three diamond tricks. If East ducked, Joe would return to dummy and lead a second diamond. If East ducked that also, Joe would abandon diamonds and set up one heart trick.

Suppose that West held the ace of diamonds? He could take it when he pleased but he wouldn't have any damaging lead. Joe would still be sitting with the ace and queen of spades.

Yule party packs 'em in HATLEY — It was standing room only at the Town Hall in Hatley on Friday evening, Dec. 18, when the children and young people of the community held their annual Christmas entertainment.

The entertainment was under the supervision of the Sunday School teachers of the Anglican and United Churches — Ann Walker and Elvera Patterson for the Anglican Church and Mildred Miller, Judy Drew, Thelma Cote, Corinne Drew, Hazel Hartwell, Tess Stoddard, Dorine Morse, Lester Drew and Gary Drew for the United Church.

The program consisted of a welcome by Kevin Drew and recitations by Joanne Antink and Martin and Susan Wallis, several choruses by the pupils and several short plays by different classes. The senior girls sang at intervals during the evening, while the younger folk were preparing the stage for their numbers.

In the absence of Rev. Jervis-Read, William Cutler announced the numbers.

Mayor Gerald Johann presented Mrs. Dorothy Barnfield with gifts from the community and Athletic Society in appreciation of her work as supervisor at the swimming pool during the summer.

At the close of the program, Santa Claus arrived to the delight of the young children and assisted the Sunday school teachers in distributing the gifts from the well-laden tree. Each child received a candy bag, apple and orange as well.

Time Is Healer of Infectious Polyneuritis

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—Could you please answer some questions for me regarding the virus Guillain-Barre? The virus is named after two Frenchmen who discovered it. I had this virus, four weeks at home in bed, three weeks in hospital, four more weeks at home in bed. I was off work four months all together. This affected me in both feet and both knees and right hand and arm. The right hand and arm became thin. I am male, 36 years, never been sick before this. Can you tell me what caused this and what are the after-effects? My legs are tired most of the time and I have to rest often.

Dear Reader—Your story is not unusual for this disease. It goes by other names, such as infectious polyneuritis, meaning involvement of many nerves. Sometimes it is confused with polio. The truth is we don't know what causes it. Guillain and Barre did not describe a virus but the disease.

Polio commonly affects nerves by causing abnormal changes in the spinal cord. Polyneuritis affects the nerves just after they leave the spinal cord with similar effects. Swelling and degeneration of the nerve occurs and the muscles the nerves supply become weak or paralyzed. The legs are most often affected but the process may spread up the spinal column, picking up nerves to the rest of the body and affecting the arms as in your case. Rarely are facial muscles and eye muscles involved.

The muscle weakness and paralysis often begins without warning. There is no fever or other sign of illness. A few patients complain of muscle pain. Most patients do recall a mild respiratory illness two or three weeks before muscle involvement. This has caused scientists to think that it is a form of allergic reaction the body sometimes has to developing an immune response to an infection. We have a fancy term for this, "autoimmune mechanism." One literally becomes allergic to a natural reaction of the body building a defense against infection. The swelling and changes in the nerves in this instance is an example of the allergiclike response.

Muscle involvement continues to a peak when all the muscles that are going to be affected have been. Then there is a plateau phase with few changes followed by rapid or gradual recovery. Sometimes maximum recovery is not obtained for months. Most people recover completely but about one in 10 continue to have muscle weakness. In this respect the outlook is far brighter than paralysis from polio.

There isn't any really good treatment. Good nursing care, perhaps hormones, time and hope are the best that can be offered. It sounds to me as if you have passed your peak problem and are well along the recovery phase.
