SIU denies government tie

BUILDING DAMAGED — The wall of a building at the corner of King East and Curtis Street was extensively damaged early Sunday morning when a car went out of control and struck the side of the building. Although Sherbrooke Police refused to release information about the accident pending completion of their investigation, the Record has learned that one occupant of the car was killed and the passenger was taken to hospital.

TORONTO (CP) — Roman Gralzewicz, president of the Seafarers' International Union (SIU) in Canada, Sunday denied telling a union meeting that federal Labor Minister John Munro supported the SIU.

Mr. Gralzewicz was interviewed from Montreal on the CTV network's W-5 program.

Earlier in the program, Edward Devereaux, a dissident SIU member, said Mr. Gralzewicz told a union meeting in Toronto last January that the SIU, in its tough bargaining stance, had the support of the Liberal party and Mr. Munro.

Mr. Devereaux also said a senior SIU executive told him last summer that Mr. Munro is "in our pocket."

Mr. Gralzewicz said the charge was "an outright lie."

He said the SIU "never expected anything from anyone" when it donated money to political campaigns.

Mr. Gralzewicz said the union supported Mr. Munro and Finance Minister John Turner because they were "on the same wavelengths as the sailors of Canada."

NOT FRIENDS

He said he is neither a personal nor business friend of either minister.

When asked whether he thinks a royal commission investigation of the SIU is needed, Mr. Gralzewicz replied: "I don't think an investigation is necessary, there's nothing to investigate. There are just charges and counter-charges."

Mr. Devereaux was one of six SIU members who made the news last summer with complaints against the union and its officials.

In the television interview, he said he telephoned Roy Willis, the SIU headquarters representative for Ontario, to ask why he was being "blacklisted" by the union.

"He wouldn't give me no satisfaction and I told him that I was phoning the labor minister," Mr. Devereaux said. "And he told me: 'Good, I'll give you his number.'"

IN 'POCKET'

Mr. Devereaux said he was told by Mr. Willis, "You'll get nowhere with the labor minister because we've got him in our pocket."

Mr. Munro has publicly acknowledged that he received $500 from the union in June. He returned the same amount to the SIU in September.

Also on W-5, Michael Sheehan, former SIU director of organization, said the union members to help Mr. Turner in his first campaign for a House president Hal Banks boasted about giving $500 to Mr. Turner.

Mr. Turner was first elected in 1962 in St. Lawrence-St. George. Mr. Sheehan said former SIU Turner at that time.

Federal-provincial talks centre on resource taxes

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal and provincial finance ministers will pick up today where mines ministers left off Friday on sharing resource taxes. One finance minister already expects the issue will be passed on unresolved to premiers and the prime minister.

The federal-provincial split on oil revenue is turning into a test case on resource taxes. Several provincial governments are assessing the potential impact of the federal policies on other energy developments.

Two premiers—Dave Barrett of British Columbia and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba—were to attend the two-day meeting of finance ministers.

At the mines ministers meeting, nine lined up against the federal position and only Nova Scotia supported Ottawa.

The mines ministers spent more than three hours on resource taxation Friday and participants later said discussions mainly involved restating their positions.

The federal government, in a budget brought down last month, made a series of changes in resource tax policies. The budget included a plan to distribute some of the oil profits among the seven provinces where tax revenue is less than the national average on a population basis.

ROYALTIES INCREASED

The three western-most provinces had previously increased royalties on resources—Alberta and Saskatchewan on oil and B.C. on minerals. The federal budget stopped the practice of allowing companies to deduct royalties before calculating federal tax.

Leo Bernier, Ontario mines minister, said after the Friday meeting that most provincial governments are worried about the possible effect the federal policy will have on future supplies of energy.

Industry executives have argued that the combined federal and provincial tax take does not leave sufficient money for exploration.

Sources said there were varying degrees of concern among provincial governments about the long-term effects of the current fight. The results of the oil fight might set an example for federal tax treatment of other resources.

Also involved is how much the provinces share in profits from resource developments in various parts of the country.

HELL NEGOTIATE

Finance Minister John Turner indicated, when questioned in Parliament following introduction of the budget, that changes in the formula establishing amounts of federal support payments to the seven poorer provinces would be subject to negotiation.

A Edison Stairs, New Brunswick finance minister, said Friday he doubted that the resource tax issue would be resolved at the meeting of finance ministers. He was mines minister until a cabinet shuffle last week and attended the Friday meeting.

"I think it will probably end up at the first ministers' meeting," he said of the resource tax issue.

The premiers meet with the prime minister early in each year. No dates have been set yet for 1975.

Greeks choose republic, monarchy is rejected

ATHENS (AP) — The Greeks by a vote of more than two to one have rejected the monarchy for the third time in this century, and the government announced today that parliament probably will elect a provisional president this week.

The final official count from Sunday's plebiscite was 3,236,345, or 69.2 per cent, in favor of a republic and 1,443,804 votes, or 30.8 per cent, for the return of the monarchy. Twenty-five per cent of the eligible voters did not vote.

There was no immediate comment on the outcome of the plebiscite from ex-king Constantine, who fled from Greece in 1967 after an abortive attempt to overthrow the military junta that had seized power eight months before. He said shortly before the vote that he wanted to return to "the home of my forefathers whatever the result," but Premier Constantine Caramanlis said Sunday night: "I don't think it would be wise for him to attempt to return in the near future."

NOT WELCOME

Other government sources said the former king would have to relinquish all his royal titles and claims before his return could be considered.

Constantine has been living in England with his wife, who was the Danish Princess Anne-Marie, and their three children.

When the military dictatorship abolished the throne last year and made Greece a republic, it wasn't the first time. Greece was also declared a republic in 1924. The monarchy was restored in 1935 in a plebiscite. In the 141-year history of the Greek throne, five other kings have lost their thrones due to forced abdication or foreign occupation.

Constantine's reign was short and turbulent. He became king in March 1964 on the death of his father, King Paul. The next year he forced the resignation of elected Premier George Papandreu in a dispute over the appointment of a new defence minister, and appointed a succession of premiers of his own choosing. The resulting political chaos generated street riots in Athens which opened the way for the military coup in April 1967.

Asbestos mill hit by fire

THETFORD MINES, Que. — A fire of undetermined origin Sunday destroyed a mill owned by the Asbestos Corp. and police estimate the damages at about $10 million. Quebec Provincial Police spokesmen said the fire is believed to have started in a conveyor belt but there was no immediate indication as to its exact cause. No injuries were reported. Theftford Mines is 50 miles south of Quebec City.

Quadruplets... then sextuplets

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Undaunted by the loss of quadruplets last year, Charlotte Lange continued to take a fertility drug. Now she has given birth to sextuplets and the five tiny survivors are clinging to life in respirators.

"They're all normally formed, all pretty little babies," said Dr. James Harrow, director of newborn services at Valley Medical Centre. "But their condition is guarded. It's going to be up and down this week."

The infants—slightly more than three months premature—started their procession into the world at 6:36 a.m. Sunday. Officials referred to the new arrivals as babies A through F. The smallest, a boy, died about four hours after birth.

Mrs. Lange, 26, of San Jose, was in excellent condition after being in labor 7½ hours before giving birth to two girls and four boys ranging in weight from one pound, 15 ounces to 2½ pounds.

The five survivors were placed in respirators because of hyaline membrane problems, a common disorder among premature babies in which the lungs have difficulty absorbing oxygen.

NO WAY TO PARK — This car was discovered by Lennoxville Police at 7:50 a.m. Saturday on the front lawn at 24 Wilson Street, Lennoxville. The car, a 1968 Chevrolet Impala belonging to Alphe Brochu of La Patrie, was reported stolen at 3:30 a.m. from 146 Wellington Street South in Sherbrooke and abandoned in Lennoxville. Although the car slid across a lawn, hit a rock wall at 50 miles per hour, and had extensive front end damage, the occupants of the house, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon McClay, slept through the incident and the thief escaped.

Says US influence down

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States moral, political and economic influence has declined in the world, says Prime Minister Trudeau.

However, he said in a copyrighted interview in U.S. News and World Report, the overwhelming leadership in world affairs still appears to come from America.

"I mean that the mood in the world over the past few years has been one of less acceptance of the overwhelming moral and political and economic leadership of the United States," Trudeau said.

"There is no doubt the period of uncertainty over the past year or so in the United States has also resulted in a decline of moral leadership."

But he said the decline has not produced "a great vacuum" and is not necessarily dangerous.

TRADE WAR UNLIKELY

Trudeau, who conferred with President Ford here last week, said he did not expect a trade war to develop between the U.S. and Canada.

"Talking for Canada, I can say this: There won't be a trade war because, darn it, we can't win a war with the United States, whether it be trade or economic or military, or any other kind."

He said that if tensions exist between the two countries, "let them be creative tensions, leading to improved relationships."

Trudeau defended Canada's decision to phase out its oil exports to the United States.

"When we talk about phasing out exports to the United States, it should be noted that we're talking about phasing out over a period of perhaps eight years, more or less," he said.

"At the end of that time, we know there won't be enough oil produced in Canada for Canadian needs."

In South Africa Tries for black-white detente

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Despite the breakdown of reconciliation talks, South African Prime Minister John Vorster pledged Sunday to continue efforts toward detente between the region's black and white governments.

"If this were to signify the end of all negotiations it would be a tragedy," Vorster said.

Talks in Lusaka, Zambia, among black Africans had been expected to lead to settlement of the differences between Rhodesia's white government and its black majority and eventual detente in all of southern Africa.

However, Prime Minister Ian Smith's Rhodesian regime rejected a call Saturday by ZANU, the Zimbabwe African Nationalist Union, at the Lusaka meeting that Rhodesia allow immediate majority rule as a condition for turning the negotiations into a constitutional conference.

ZANU, the main force behind the guerrilla war on Rhodesia's northern border, said it would not halt its raids "unless it was agreed that a precondition of a constitutional conference was that it would be on the basis of immediate majority rule."

The same day, two black Rhodesian soldiers and three African guerrillas were reported killed in a clash.

The Lusaka summit came after nearly two months of secret diplomacy in which South Africa was involved. Vorster is said to have made some trips into black Africa although he has declined comment on this.

Taking part in the Lusaka meeting besides black Rhodesian nationalists were presidents Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia, Julius Nyerere of Tanzania and Seretse Khama of Botswana.

The four Rhodesian nationalist movements said Sunday they had decided to unite into one organization. Previously, Smith had said he could not talk with the nationalist movements because there were so many divisions.

Under the agreement, reached at the Lusaka meeting, the Zimbabwe African Peoples Union, Zimbabwe African National Union, the Front for the Liberation of Zimbabwe and the African National Council joined under the umbrella of the African National Council with Bishop Abel Muzorewa at its head.

Fatalities in safe driving week

Eight children who died in two house fires, one on Manitoulin Island in Ontario and one near St. Donat, Que., were among at least 43 persons who died accidentally in Canada during the weekend.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday night showed 29 traffic fatalities, 10 fire deaths, two persons believed to have been asphyxiated, one drowning and a death in a fall from a balcony.

The traffic fatalities, combined with 34 during the week, bring the unofficial fatality count to 3,704 in Canada this year.

Those who died in traffic through the week were among 65 persons killed in highway accidents in Canada during Safe Driving Week—Dec. 1 to 7. The total for the week was down from 76 during Safe Driving Week in 1973.

Ontario recorded the highest weekend total with 15.

Men's clothes industry facing stiff competition

MONTREAL (CP) — Spokesmen for Canadian men's clothes manufacturers say their industry has reached a critical stage because of stiff competition from foreign producers like South Korea.

Maurice Fogel, president of Hyde Park Clothes in Montreal, said manufacturers have no objections to imports from countries which are "wage competitive." But, he said, the Far East and some eastern European countries pay such low wages, the resulting retail price in Canada is well below that of the same garment produced domestically.

Another manufacturer said he pays wages of $3.50 an hour and cannot compete against the wages paid to workers in South

Korean garment factories.

"In the short term, we are in trouble," said Mr. Fogel.

"We want to find out the government's thoughts for the medium and long term."

Mr. Fogel is on a committee, established by the men's fine clothing industry, which plans to submit a brief to the textile and clothing board in Ottawa.

The board reviews cases where "the importation of textile and clothing goods... is causing or threatening serious injury to production in Canada."

On the basis of evidence submitted, it decides whether to recommend that voluntary restraints be implemented.

The men's fine clothing industry, which has been hardest hit by imports, produces men's and boys' business suits, sports jackets, tailored slacks, topcoats and overcoats. It is heavily concentrated in Quebec where there are 14,000 workers.

LAYOFFS STARTED

In some factories, layoffs have already begun. In others, layoffs have been avoided by shortening the work week.

The number of hours worked for the first nine months of this year has declined by 10 per cent from the same period last year, industry statistics show.

The industry's woes are ascribed to several factors.

—Imports from low-cost countries, confined in the past to items such as shirts and casual pants which require less skill to produce, now are entering the better garment scene.

Says budget change could clobber markets

TORONTO (CP) — A largely unnoticed change in the Nov. 18 federal budget could "clobber" Canadian capital markets and seriously affect provinces and Crown agencies, a Canadian investment analyst said Thursday.

P. A. T. Campbell, director and vice-president of Wood Gundy Ltd., said the federal government has made a significant departure from its former treatment of the withholding tax.

Withholding tax is a tax imposed by Ottawa on dividends and interest paid to foreign investors.

The change will create considerable uncertainty for foreign investors, he said.

If the uncertainty is not clarified, "the provincial governments will face a crisis that will make the resource taxation punch-up seem like only a sparing round," he said.

Mr. Campbell was speaking to a one-day business outlook seminar sponsored by the University of Toronto that was attended by about 100 leading Canadian businessmen.

EXTENDS EXEMPTION

The change extends exemption from the tax for provinces and municipalities indefinitely.

However, a second change ties the exemption to interest that is paid or credited to a person resident in a country to be set down by regulation.

The investment analyst said that the effect of these changes is that exempt borrowers are being tied in with exempt lenders for the first time.

Clarifying its implications, he explained that the withholding tax serves two purposes, to bring in additional revenue and influence the flow of money on the balance of payments.

These payments refer to the amount of money leaving Canada compared with the amount of money coming into the country.

PAYMENTS REFER

Introducing another factor, he said the finance minister has urged Canadian borrowers to fully explore the Canadian capital market before floating bond issues abroad. By retaining this guideline, the minister has reserved the right to exercise informal control of capital issues, he said.

Mr. Campbell said that during 1974, the national revenue department has been "harassing" tax-exempt foreign lenders by requesting they demonstrate that they would be tax exempt if they theoretically operated in Canada.

This has thinned out the broad range of lenders to Canadian corporate securities, he said.

Mr. Campbell said borrowing by the provinces and Crown utilities will increase by 22 per cent to $3.3 billion in 1975.

Traditionally, about 50 per cent of their borrowings have been found offshore.

Since municipalities and corporations borrow almost all their funds within Canada, and because of the subsequent changes in the withholding tax, provinces and utilities could have an extremely difficult time trying to find money in 1975.

Italian economy in nosedive

ROME (CP) — Companies here can't evade taxes quite like they used to, the businessman smiles, "but we're still running anyway."

Another seasoned Italian observer analyses the current decline of the economy, then offers two reasons why the country will not go bankrupt: The United States and West Germany.

With their economy in a nosedive, Italians seem to be relying on those old instincts of survival—never obey a law unless forced, take cover when you are weak, enlist a powerful ally for protection and run when you get the chance.

Businessmen, the government and politicians agree that the economy is in trouble. But is it a catastrophic crisis?

Largely because of high imported oil prices, Italy's trade deficit is seven times what it was last year.

Inflation, now more than 22 per cent a year, is the worst in Europe.

Unemployment, now just under a million, may rise by another 125,000 by winter's end. That would be about five per cent of the labor force out of work, but that does not include widespread underemployment, where two men do the work of one.

INDUSTRY RETRENCHES

Industry, straddled by rising costs and uncertain demand, is cutting investment and production. The crucial car industry is down to a three-day week.

A top-level Bank of Italy analyst says these are all "clear signs of a recession" and predicts no early improvement.

It all presents a nasty picture for an economy already troubled by volatile politics and a bureaucracy everyone agrees is riddled with incompetence, corruption and patronage.

But there are signs of underlying strength that leaves Italy fitter than, say, Britain, to fight off an international depression.

Italy enjoyed its so-called economic miracle in the 1960s, an investment and production boom that transformed its economy from agricultural to industrial. By 1970, 85 per cent of the population earned a living in industry, compared with about 50 per cent after the Second World War.

Even under the weight of oil price increases, business investment rose 25 per cent in 1973 and continued to rise in the first half of this year. Some industries—chemicals and textiles—are working at capacity.

HAS POTENTIAL

With wage increases still running ahead of high inflation, consumer demand remains high, though higher taxes and import tariffs are planned to try to dampen it.

That all means that Italy seems to have the potential for economic recovery, especially if rich friends such as Germany and the United States help pay its enormous foreign debt.

"Italians live by their wits," says a diplomat discussing current problems.

With almost no resources of its own, the economy is based on importing raw materials and exporting processed goods.

With resource prices up, some companies already are shifting production to manufacture more highly-finished products, which can attract higher export prices.

"What we need is a sound government," concludes an executive.

Indeed, Italy's most serious problems seem to be its oldest.

Italian government corporations control about 40 per cent of industrial investment through a myriad of inter-company partnerships, but the public service itself has often been inert.

HOUSING LAGS

An official of the National Confederation of Industry says about 400,000 families seek housing each year, for example. But only 170,000 new units are being built this year, largely because of legal and bureaucratic tangles.

Hospitals cannot pay their bills, schools are overcrowded and whole cities are going bankrupt.

The best-intentioned tax systems are thwarted by routine evasion. Says one journalist: "Only fools pay their taxes."

One official said Italians keep enough money abroad illegally to balance the trade deficit if it were all repatriated.

It is noted that Italians, always beset by political unrest, are perhaps well equipped to face world-scale economic turmoil.

"Psychologically, for the Italians this crisis is nothing," a Canadian Embassy official remarks.

Finally, Italians say that oil is everybody's problem. And that means somebody will solve it, no matter what Italy does.

Will Canada follow US in freezing some prices?

TORONTO (CP) — There are no indications that Canadian supermarkets will follow the lead of two United States chains in freezing prices on some grocery items.

Great Atlantic and Pacific Co. of Canada Ltd. (A and P), which has 170 stores in Ontario and Quebec, plans a press conference Wednesday to announce "a change of pace" to help consumers fight inflation.

A and P in the United States and Kroger Co. announced plans Friday to freeze prices on about 10 per cent of their products for one to two months. A and P intends to freeze prices on about 1,000 private-label brand items, including bread, cheese, coffee, pasta products, tuna, canned fruits and vegetables and frozen foods until at least Jan. 1.

A and P also plans to start an "Early Warning System" in U.S.

stores by posting a weekly list of increases on all items seven days before prices are changed.

Edward Mossop, director of sales for A and P in Canada, said in an interview Monday that no similar moves are planned here.

But Ida Burns, A and P's consumer consultant, said there is going to be a change of pace.

"Things like better service to the customer and some of them are fairly drastic steps for us," she said.

While no comment was available from Dominion Stores, Canada's largest supermarket chain, James Gregory, vice-president of grocery merchandising for Loblaw Ltd., said Canada's second largest supermarket chain is not planning to copy the A and P—Kroger moves, terming them "just another gimmick."

Most of the items affected by the price freeze are house brands—those which the supermarket sells under its own name, while most people buy national name brands.

Norman Knevel, vice-president and Toronto divisional manager for Canada Safeway Ltd., the country's third-largest supermarket chain, said the U.S. scheme to announce future price changes "would be impossible the way price changes are coming," and more costly in the long run.

Predicts strong economy for Canada

TORONTO (CP) — A leading Canadian economist said Thursday the federal budget's substantial boost to consumer spending will give Canada one of the strongest economies in the industrialized world in 1975.

T. A. Wilson, director of the Institute of Policy Analysis, said that "consumer spending will jump through the roof next year" in response to huge cuts in personal income taxes.

He estimated consumer spending will increase by six per cent and the personal savings rate will rise by 1.1 per cent to about 8.5 per cent of disposable income, the highest level since the Korean War.

Mr. Wilson made his remarks to a business outlook seminar for 1975 sponsored by the University of Toronto Faculty of Management Studies. About 100 senior corporate officials attended the one-day conference.

The economist said there are significant differences between the economies of Canada and the United States.

Canada did not have an energy crisis last year; its capital goods spending boom has lasted much longer, and the Canadian fiscal policy is expansionary compared with the restrictive policy followed by the U.S. government.

PRODUCE INCOME

The Canadian government's indexing of transfer payments (social-welfare costs) and personal income tax will produce about $1.5 billion in disposable income next year.

In addition, the federal budget Nov. 18 will produce another $2.2 billion to $2.5 billion in disposable income, he said.

Business investment will be another major source of strength in the 1975 economy.

Investment in non-residential construction will rise by 6.11 per cent and machinery and equipment by 7.9 per cent.

Mr. Wilson said Canada's economy will rise by 3.9 per cent in 1975, about one per cent less than its potential growth rate. It will grow 6.11 per cent in 1976.

Because Canada's growth will not achieve its potential, the unemployment rate is expected to peak at 6.4 per cent by the end of next year and then gradually decline during 1976.

INFLATION WORRIES

Mr. Wilson said inflation "remains the fly in the ointment."

He forecast a continuing high rate of inflation, saying it will be the most serious aspect of the economy.

Inflation will run around 10.5 per cent in 1975 and drop to about 8.5 per cent in 1976.

He said he expected that inflation will be digested through the system and a lot of the inflationary shock will be absorbed by increased spending.

Unless Canada is willing to undergo a severe recession and a high rate of unemployment, inflation will remain high.

The economist predicted a higher rate of wage inflation through to 1976 with the average wage increase about 12.5 per cent.

Profits are likely to decline and will temper the high wage demands expected next year, he added.

Quebec druggists divided

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec's pharmacists have split into two camps, as a dispute rages over proposed regulations that would cause drugstores to sell only pharmaceutical goods.

Some pharmacists feel such a move is needed to make the business more professional and to reduce over consumption of drugs.

Opposition to the regulations proposed by the Quebec Order of Pharmacists to the provincial government has been loudest from the owners of discount drugstores who fear a loss in profits and an increase in the price of drugs.

The regulations, which also would limit pharmacists to advertise only with professional cards, are still to be accepted or rejected by the government.

In making its proposals, the pharmacists order recommended that a pharmacy be "completely distinct and entirely separate" from a store selling non-pharmaceutical items.

The order maintains medical professionals should not be selling such goods as cigarettes and candy.

NOT MERCHANTS

"We go to university for four years to become pharmacists—we are professionals, not merchants," says Roger DesGrosseillers, assistant treasurer of the order.

Among those opposed to the regulations is Louis Michaud, who along with a partner owns 12 stores scattered throughout the province.

Mr. Michaud refuses to accept the theory that selling non-pharmaceutical goods makes him less professional.

He maintains that profits from non-pharmaceuticals allow him and other discounters to sell drugs at lower cost.

"Unlike other professions, such as doctors and lawyers, we are not paid for advice. We are paid for what we sell."

Mr. Michaud also does not accept the argument stores such as his contribute to over-consumption of drugs.

Beebe council meets

BEEBE — The December meeting of the Beebe Municipal Council, was held in the council chamber with Mayor H. Lapenna presiding and all councillors in attendance.

Routine reports were read and approved.

Correspondence was read and given attention.

A resolution was passed asking for an annual grant from the provincial government to support the Beebe Museum which is part of the Stanstead County Historical Society.

Due to the expansion of the municipality through many new residences being erected, it is necessary to locate more water to meet the demands. The well digger is to arrive soon to drill test holes.

Much discussion arose over the water and road situation. Information is being sought or a fire alarm, as a new one is needed in the municipality.

A piano, which was stored in the municipal hall will be returned to the Curling Club House.

Sidewalk on Canusa Street will be kept open by David Elliott.

On behalf of the Stanstead County Historical Society, an invitation was extended to the mayor and councillors to visit the museum in Beebe (formerly Boy's School) as a group or individually.

Chairman of each committee made his monthly report.

Youths charged on pub break-in SHERBROOKE (BP) — Two Lennoxville youths were given suspended sentences here Friday on counts of breaking and entering.

Judge Benoit Turmel handed down the verdicts after both pleaded guilty to forcing their way into the Len Pub Inc in Lennoxville early last Wednesday morning.

Paul Galvin, 20, and Daniel Samson, 18, were also ordered to pay damages incurred during the break-in totalling $600.

The third accomplice in the crime, a juvenile 17-year-old, will have his case investigated by a probation officer before judgment is rendered in early January. The juvenile is also a Lennoxville resident.

Modern dance to be performed at Bishop's

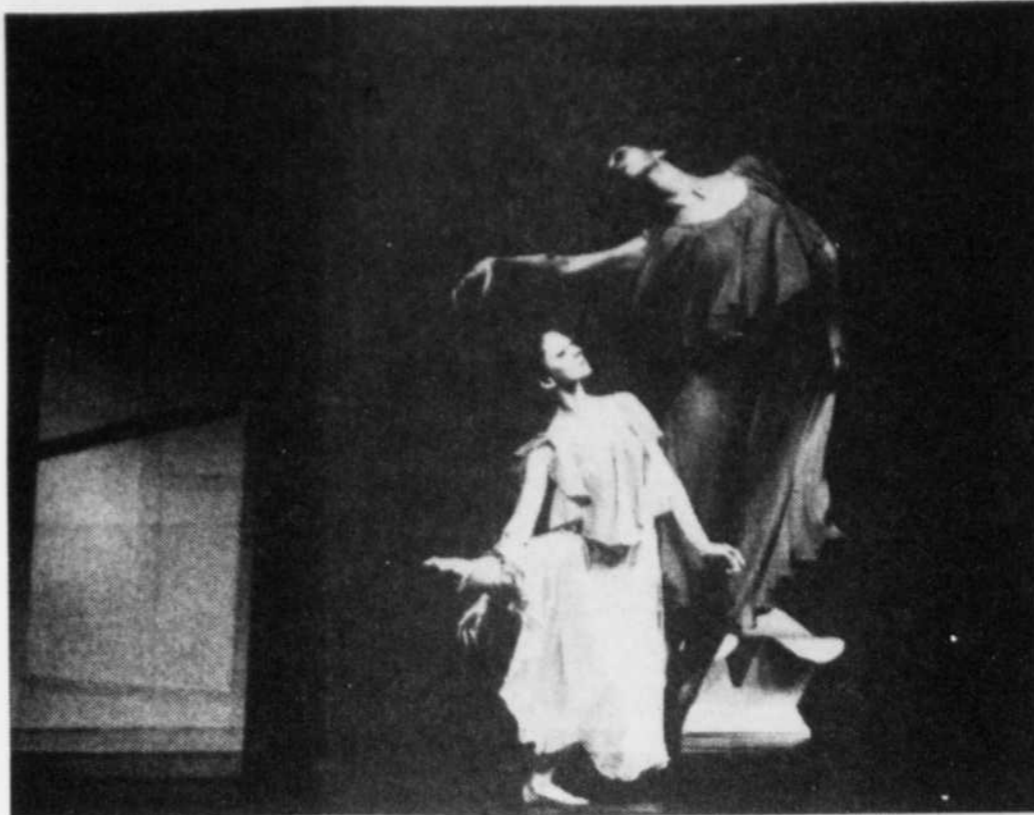

LENNOXVILLE — The Toronto Dance Theatre performs modern dance Wednesday night at Bishop's University Centennial Theatre at 8:30 p.m.

Since its debut six years ago, the company's policy has been to concentrate on the quality of its artistic development, gradually building the repertoire, the reputation and the managerial abilities to undertake more and more extensive touring.

At this point the repertoire, which consists of more than 50 original works in modern dance drama, is large enough to permit choosing appropriate pieces for varying audiences. The company carries out its second European tour this year.

The Toronto Dance Theatre leaves from a home base that is increasingly secure with enthusiastic and supporting audiences and critical acclaim. It travels with a strong identity, an integrated artistic policy and a reputation for diligent professionalism. In the words of Toronto Globe and Mail dance critic, John Fraser, the Toronto Dance Theatre is "now unquestionably, the finest modern dance company in the country — technically and creatively."

The repertoire which the Toronto Dance Theatre is taking on tour demonstrates the creative strengths of the Company and the vitality of modern dance. Whether its message is laughter or despair, whether pure motion or complex emotion, the choreographers speak with a vocabulary both accessible and meaningful to contemporary audiences, a press release states.

MODERN DANCE will be performed at the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre by the Toronto Dance Theatre Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas at the Border

By IVY HATCH
(Record Correspondent)

It's beginning to be very much like Christmas here at the Boundary with bright and colorful lights decorating homes, wreaths hanging at the doors and other designs of the Yule season in evidence. Rock Island streets are gay with colored lights and the snow, so white, adds to the festive atmosphere.

Schools are busy planning closing events. Church Choirs are rehearsing for special music. Delicious smells are in the homes as special foods are in preparation. Invitations are being sent out for parties and many parties have already taken place.

The Christmas season usually opens the first Sunday in December when the Christmas Festival of music is presented by the several youth choirs in interdenominational churches of the Border and Vermont. This year it took place at St. Mary's Church, Star of the Sea in Newport.

Here are a few church special service announcements and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone to attend.

The Sunday School Family Christmas Service of Stanstead South and Centenary churches, will be held on Sunday evening, December 15, at Centenary Church in Stanstead. The service and pageant will be conducted by the various departments of the Sunday school.

During the service, the traditional White Gifts will be presented and afterwards they will be distributed to the residents of the Butters Memorial Home at Austin, the Dixville Home, and the Newport Day Care Center in Newport. It is hoped this will be a well attended service.

After the service that evening, there will be a family gathering around the Christmas tree in the hall of Centenary Church for refreshments and then after this, Carols will be sung.

Another special feature of the Christmas month is the annual Christmas Cantata at the Wesley United Church in Beebe at 7:30 p.m. This will be presented by a combined inter-denominational choir and is titled "The Christmas King." This is a Christmas event no one will want to miss.

Sunday, December 22, and the traditional candlelight service that has been held for many, many years in the Universalist Church at Derby Line, will take place at four o'clock in the afternoon. This too will be a gathering of congregation and friends who are invited to come a little early for meditation and hear the beautiful Christmas carillons playing.

Rev. M. Keir of Newport will be the guest pastor. Christmas Eve, Stanstead South Church will celebrate the eve of the birth of Christ with its traditional Candlelight service of song and prayer at 8:00 p.m.

The usual Christmas midnight mass will be held at all the Catholic Churches and at Christ Anglican Church. There will also be a Carol service on Sunday evening, December 29 at 7 p.m. at St. George's Church in Ayer's Cliff with a Christmas Eve Service at the same church at 8 p.m. At Christ Church, the midnight service will start at 11 p.m. and a Carol service at Christ Church on Sunday evening, January 5.

There will not be a morning service at St. George's on December 29, nor will there be an 11 a.m. service at Christ Church on January 5.

Can't go home for Christmas

DIXVILLE (RH) — Two young residents of the Dixville Home here, will not be able to make it back to their home in the Northwest Territories for Christmas.

The two, Norman Kindy, 23, and John Soupe, 17, have not been given the funds to make the trip north, because, according to a letter sent by the Northwest Territories' department of social development, the money just isn't available for the trip.

The letter, signed by Mrs. Kelsie Preamer from the department, added that since the boys have no family in the Northwest Territories, they would have no one specific to visit and there might be a problem of finding them a place to stay.

John Visser, Superintendent at the Dixville Home, pointed out, however, that the youths had been brought up in foster homes there, and would, in fact, have people to visit if the trip were feasible.

The two have lived in the Dixville home for approximately four years, and have not had a chance yet to return to the Northwest Territories. Of the 120 residents at the centre, an average of 25 usually leave the premises yearly to spend the holiday season with their relatives or friends.

According to John Visser, some teachers from the school run by the home, have offered to help the two boys make the return trip. He added that any offers of aid should be made through him by telephoning 849-4831.

"In all fairness," Mr. Visser said, "the letter we received from the Northwest Territories officials said that the trip might be a better idea when the weather is warmer so that the boys could get around more easily. I don't know whether or not this was a justification on their part, but I think they may have a point."

More trains on holidays

MONTREAL — A total of 29 special trains has been added to Canadian National's regular passenger train schedule to meet the heavy rush of Christmas and New Year holiday travellers.

Adrien Levasseur, St. Lawrence Region's Passenger Sales and Services Manager, announced recently that these supplementary trains will operate to and from Central Station between December 20 and January 5. Extra equipment will also be added to regularly-scheduled trains as well. The morning Turbo which operates between Montreal and Toronto, from Monday to Friday, will make an extra trip in both directions on December 21 and 29.

On the eastern route, the Ocean and Scotian trains, which operate between Montreal and the Maritimes, will be doubled on December 20 and 21. An extra train consisting of coach accommodation only will be heading for the Gaspé on December 20, at 10 p.m.

Mr. Levasseur recommended that travellers make their reservations as soon as possible to avoid delays and a long wait at the ticket wickets.

Investment firm predicts price rise in gold

A Toronto-based investment firm says there is a better-than-average chance that the price of gold will rise to $250 an ounce by the end of January.

Wills, Bickle and Co. Ltd., in making the prediction, also recommends shares of six gold producers: Camflo Mines, Kerr Addison Mines, Pamour, Dickenson, Dome Mines and Campbell Red Lake.

Although the price of gold has set a record, prices of these shares are below their highs.

The prediction of $250 an ounce for gold by Jan. 31 is based on a chart of bullion prices showing a 43-week period between highs. Extending a line through the peaks indicates the price at that time.

The investment firm says additional support for the projection comes from the fact that it is not uncommon for a commodity to rise by the same percentage amount as it did from its low to its break-out point.

That happened this year in the rise in the price of gold to $179.50 an ounce in April. "We can expect a rise of 39 per cent from $179.50 now that the breakout above the old high has taken place. This again works out to $250."

The Toronto Stock Exchange gold index is well below the record 622.04 set in April.

"It appears inevitable that when the price of gold nears the $250 mark, gold shares will be making new highs. Even if they just match their previous highs (which may well offer considerable resistance), the potential gain from the present level is considerable."

The firm also says it sees no conflict in the assumption that both gold stocks and the market as a whole may move in the same direction.

"In the old days when gold was pegged at $35 an ounce, gold stocks were considered a hedge in falling markets and therefore moved in a contrary direction. However, now that gold is a free commodity, there is no longer any reason to consider gold stocks a haven to be used only in time of adversity."

Lower temperatures can net cold cash

By Don Oakley

Americans who want to save energy or money or both this winter should start lowering their thermostats early. The odds are 14 to 1 that this winter will be colder than that of 1973.

The word comes from those who should know—the Commerce Department's National Ocean and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA), the old "Weather Bureau."

According to NOAA's Environmental Data Service, some fairly dramatic fuel savings can be made for each degree the thermostat is lowered, ranging from 2 per cent per degree in Anchorage, Alaska, to 9 per cent per degree in Orlando, Fla.

Interestingly enough, in terms of percentages the farther south you go the more you save. The actual quantities of fuel saved, of course, are much greater in cold areas because much more fuel is needed to heat buildings.

The calculations are based on a statistic called the "degree day."

Heating engineers have found that when the outside daily mean temperature (the high and low divided by two) is 65 degrees or higher, most homes and buildings need no heat to maintain comfortable indoor temperatures.

For each degree the daily mean temperature is below 65 degrees, you accumulate one heating degree day. Thus if the daily mean is 62, three degree days accumulate for the 24-hour period. For each degree day, more fuel is required to maintain a comfortable indoor temperature.

A day with a mean temperature of 35 degrees — 30 degree days — would require twice as much heating fuel as a day with a mean temperature of 50, or 15 degree days.

Will they or won't they?

The audience at the first in a series of public lectures on energy sponsored by the Graduate School of Business of the University of Chicago heard some good news.

The price of crude oil will come down and the international oil cartel will subsequently break down — according to Robert Z. Aliber, professor of international economics and finance at the university.

The reason is that as the costs of paying for oil accumulate, oil-importing countries must necessarily curb their imports, thus driving down the price of oil. Falling prices, Aliber, went on, will then generate intense pressures on cartel members to increase production and breakdown of the cartel will follow.

The audience at the second in a series of public lectures on energy sponsored by the Graduate School of Business of the University of Chicago heard some bad news.

The oil cartel is not likely to fall apart and may well survive into the 1980s — according to Morris A. Adelman, professor of economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology and a leading authority on the petroleum industry.

The cartel, not a shortage of oil or a world upsurge in demand, is responsible for high prices, said Adelman. Hence any reduction in demand for oil is not likely to result in lower prices but may even increase them.

Well, as they say, you pay your money and you take your choice — except that this particular lecture series, happily, was free.

Anti-Tank

As minister responsible for Canada's defence, James Richardson should know better than to talk about weaponry and tactics to the losing side in a war. He should know better than to accept the opinion of the losers — as he apparently has — in determining the future role of tanks in the Canadian army.

Mr. Richardson's latest statements indicate that, on the basis of talks with Egyptian officers, he now believes that the best anti-tank weapon is not another tank, but a shoulder-fired missile. He was apparently impressed by the fact that Egyptians destroyed nearly 500 Israeli tanks with these weapons before they brought their own tanks into action. He reasons that, since Canada had wanted its tanks in Europe for defence, rather than offence, we might be better off to drop them and use our own brand of shoulder-fired missiles instead.

It may not have occurred to Mr. Richardson to ask the Egyptians why these weapons were not effective enough to keep Israeli tanks from crossing the Suez canal, or reaching to within 20 kilometers of Damascus. Had he asked, he would have discovered that initial Israeli tank losses were caused by the tactical blunder that cost Napoleon the battle of Waterloo — the use of cavalry, of which tanks are the modern-day equivalent, without infantry protection.

Once the Israeli army learned this lesson, their tanks became as efficient as before, and the shoulder-fired infantry missiles could not be used effectively while those required to operate them were pinned down by opposing infantry fire. Tanks once more met tanks, and proved that nothing to date has made them obsolete. But the Egyptian opinion was apparently what Mr. Richardson wanted to hear, besieged as he must be by a cabinet determined to carry out what NATO officers of every nationality have described as the peak of folly — the removal of Canadian tanks from our NATO brigade.

Pressure is being put on Mr. Richardson to find an excuse to do away with the tanks, because their replacement, or even their renovation, represents an expenditure which has a cabinet priority far below the payment of welfare benefits or unemployment cheques. That the action may some day be responsible for Canada having less of a voice in world affairs seems, to the government, remote. That it may cost Canadian lives, remoter still.

By his most recent statements, Mr. Richardson seems to have let the cat out of the bag as far as a replacement for the aging Centurion tanks is concerned. There is to be no replacement. If Canada decides to keep her tanks (a question apparently to be settled on the basis of the recent talks with Egyptian officers) the Centurions will be renovated because, as Mr. Richardson says, the Israelis have proved that this can be done. Mr. Richardson said that the renovated Centurions were used by the Israeli army effectively — a statement which is a little difficult to reconcile with his remarks that Israeli tanks were ineffective against shoulder-fired missiles.

The minister should know that the Israeli army renovated Centurions only because they could be made available faster than new tanks could be built. The renovation was not one of choice, but of necessity. Surely Mr. Richardson also recognizes that Canada's main infantry anti-tank weapon is the 106 mm. recoilless rifle, which is something of an unarmored, one-shot type of tank weapon itself. This gun is mounted on a jeep, and, soldiers using it go only one shot at any tank, because once it is revealed, a second shot becomes impractical against an alerted target.

Amin's Advice

WASHINGTON — Throughout his first three months in office, President Ford has been getting unsolicited advice from the madcap president of Uganda, Gen. Idi Amin.

Gen. Amin's own regime has been distinguished by mass slayings of opposition tribesmen, deportation of Asians, a decree permitting unrestrained polygamy and the appointment of a chic Vogue model as his foreign minister.

But his own eccentricities have not prevented Amin from counseling the American president on how to pick a vice president, how to wrap up the Watergate affair and where to relocate the United Nations.

Amin began butting into U.S. affairs when he urged President Nixon not to get reinvolved in Vietnam. He later wired Nixon a wish for a "Speedy recovery from Watergate."

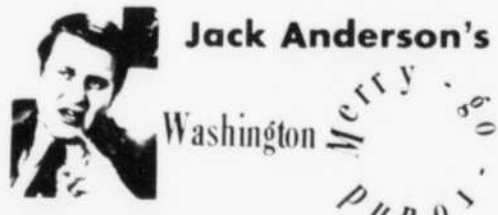

No sooner was Nixon out of office than Amin began advising Ford on how to run the United States.

"You may have been following my communications to your immediate predecessor," began the general in a telegram to Ford. Amin then advised Ford to solve the Middle East problem by "supplying the opponents of America's traditional allies with war materials."

"Pass on my best wishes and sympathy to President Nixon in his retirement," concluded Amin, who signed off by listing some of the medals he has bestowed upon himself as president of Uganda.

Shortly thereafter, President Ford was pondering whom to pick as a vice president. Again the ubiquitous Ugandan chimed in with some advice. The name didn't matter as long as he was black, counseled Amin. Amin also advised Ford to replace Secretary of State Henry Kissinger with a black.

A few weeks ago, Amin felt Ford needed some guidance on Watergate. Although Amin frequently solved his own political problems with a firing squad, he advised Ford that "amnesty" was the best policy. All those prosecuted in the past and under prosecution now should get immediate "amnesty," said Amin. He congratulated Ford for extending "amnesty" to President Nixon.

Some days ago, Amin branched out in his consultative services. Although his last advice to Britain had gone unheeded ("free" Wales, Scotland and Ireland), Amin tried again.

In a telegram to the United Nations, with copies to Britain, France and President Ford, Amin declared the Charter of the United Nations was irrelevant in today's world. The world body would work, he said, only if it were moved from New York to a "nonaligned capital."

His suggestion: Uganda's backwater capital of Kampala, which Amin praised as "the center of the earth between Asia, Europe, Australia and the Americas."

So far, this advice like the irrefragable Amin's other counsel, has gone unheeded.

Hassling The Handicapped: Although Postmaster General Elmer Klassen has thrown away millions on foolhardy postal projects, he has been a Scrooge when it comes to paying handicapped workers.

The Postal Service has employed hundreds of deaf people to sort mail. In the banging, clanging atmosphere of the sorting rooms, they often work better than those who can hear.

Yet Klassen, according to a recent federal survey, has been hiring many of them at substandard wages under a program designed to get the seriously handicapped into government jobs.

Washington Whirl: Sugar industry officials met privately a few days ago with White House aides about reports that the Russians and Arabs are artificially jacking up sugar prices. The reputed purpose is to help Cuba, which produces a large portion of the world sugar crop, but is always short of cash. At West Point's annual student conference, delegates privately discussed a possible American military move on oil-rich Arab lands. We had reported similar talks were going on in the White House. Among the students, surprisingly, those most cautious about the idea were youths from the military academies.

The federal government is trying to take 83,000 acres of the Osage Indians' best land for a flood control project. Although the land brings the Indians $1 million a year in natural gas and oil royalties, the Army Corps of Engineers has offered but a measly $317,000 and a vague promise of more later. The Justice Department, which is supposed to defend the Indians, is trying to help the Corps of Engineers take the land away from them.

Rep. Charles Sandman, R-N.J., who loudly questioned the motives of his colleagues while he carried water for Richard Nixon during the impeachment hearings, has left himself open to some ethical questions. Sandman recently joined other Judiciary Committee members on a taxpayer-funded junket to Germany, France, Spain and Italy to study "military claims procedures."

The difference for Sandman is that, unlike the other junketers, he will not even be back in Congress for the new session. Joel Barkan, a top Health, Education and Welfare official supervising civil rights compliance at New York University and other schools in the New York area, was earning money on the side as a teacher at New York University. When we inquired about this conflict, Barkan abruptly quit his teaching job.

PLO's plight: first listen, then judge

By Tom Tiede

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — Some time ago, while on assignment in the Middle East, I paid a routine visit to a Palestinian refugee camp in northern Lebanon. As it happened, several dozen Israeli soldiers paid a visit at about the same time, killing large numbers of camp inhabitants.

The situation was coincidental, of course, but admittedly suspect. The following morning I received a call from the Palestine Liberation Organization which questioned my motives, suggested I was a Zionist spy, and pointedly urged my departure from the country lost a full investigation be made of my politics.

I recount the story here so that the reader will understand I have no illusions about the PLO. Some Lebanese friends are still saying I was lucky not to be shot in the street. More suspicion and sometimes even less than this is enough to provoke the PLO. The group knows little morality in the pursuit of its goal of nationhood.

Yet my belief is that the guerrilla organization, if often horrid, is completely legitimate and its pursuit entirely just. The current Jewish anguish over the sudden rise in PLO stature is understandable, the fear of many that continued PLO gains may lead to new Middle East ravages is real, but these arguments are moot in the face of historic and contemporary reality. The PLO is Palestine at present and the western world gets nowhere by pretending otherwise.

Actually, much of the resentment of the PLO is not only regressive but hypocritical. Israelis who condemn the refugee guerrillas as murderers and baby killers are correct but unconvincing because of their own history of bloodletting. Murder and mayhem were much a part of the beginning of Israel, post World War II groups such as the Stern Gang stopped at nothing to reinstitute the Jewish homeland. Some Israeli leaders who now righteously refuse to "negotiate with terrorists" were active members of guerrilla sects which, on one pre-Israel occasion, bombed to death 90 people in a Palestine hotel, including not only innocent Arabs but Jews as well.

Even today, as Israel laments PLO-provoked slaughters at Munich, at Lod airport, at Malet, the truth is that there is terrible sin on both sides. Palestinians have killed an estimated 800 Israelis since 1967; Israelis have killed three times that number of Palestinians. To call the former acts terrorism and the latter mere "reprisals" is muck. Both sides use senseless extremism, both employ terrorism and neither can argue piety with candor.

Ironically, the similarities between the two peoples does not end with violence. Their histories and goals are remarkably alike. As the Jew did for centuries, the Palestine Arab has for the past 25 years struggled for sovereign identity.

PLO leader Yasir Arafat, not particularly brilliant concerning anything else, is incisively persuasive on this point: "We want only what the Jews have always wanted," he once told me, "our own place. And we will use what the Jews used to get it, force and public opinion." At the time Arafat made the comment, Palestinians were using only force. Now, as he predicted, public sentiment is being added to the quiver.

No doubt the public sentiment will grow. Palestinians are third world people and the third world man is now the average man of this generation. Even U.S. State Department officials privately concede the tide is unstoppable. In fact, some at State feel the Israelis are being unfair in expecting the United States to stay with the past in a time of the future. Tomorrow's dialogue in the Middle East will not be so much of righteousness as of coexistence.

There is no question that Israel deserves to exist. There thus can be none concerning the same right for Palestine. For 25 years the refugees have been largely ignored by a world impressed with Israeli progress — now it's time to correct the imbalance, as Goethe said, "one man's word is no man's word, we should quietly hear both sides."

Sweets are royal treat for Queen's taster

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The English sweet tooth is world famous and a Britisher can meet any challenger for the "fastest sugar spoon" title when it comes to total consumption. The Queen's Taster is no exception.

When dapper Col. A.J.B. Rutherford, C.B.E., visited this city recently, he saw several tempting desserts on a table and with a glint in his eye asked, "Who's going to attack the trifle?"

He was pleased to have the honor.

"I love good solid English desserts," Col. Rutherford explained when asked about his favorite foods. Ice creams and roly-poly, a steamed dessert, also rated high on his list of what makes for a pleasant eating experience.

His mentioning of such sweets reflects on the eating habits of those who cling to the traditional in foods in Great Britain.

Col. Rutherford proved a good source of information on the eating patterns, except for the sweets, in his homeland since he lives by his taste buds.

As a Queen's Taster, he is one of those wine experts known for their rare olfactory talents. He is the fifth generation of wine shippers and his great-great grandfather began shipping Madeira in 1814 when it was still an American favorite along with Porto. There is a new interest in these fortified wines in the U.S. As a member of the Advisory Committee for Wine for the Royal Cellars, he and a panel of four plus two Buckingham Palace officials participate in blind tastings of wines — the identity of the wine is not known to the tasters so their impressions won't be influenced, for example, by a distinguished chateau name on a label.

Their selections are served at the Queen's table for the family and at official functions in the five Royal residences — Buckingham Palace, Windsor Castle, Balmoral, Sandringham and Holyrood House.

After 53 years in the wine business, with time out to serve with the British Army staff in Washington, D.C. during World War II, he plans no book on wine or food.

"After all," he said, "I haven't done anything exceptional except shattering my stomach."

Mrs. Rutherford gave a wily smile at this comment but added that they both enjoy good food. Although she doesn't cook that much now she said she began cooking during the War. "I had three hungry children, one cooking and queuing up with our food stamps was a part of our lives."

Col. A.J.B. Rutherford attacks a trifle.

Although she claimed she "wasn't a good cook," her children like good food and enjoy preparing it, too, so something did rub off. She admitted that there has been a drastic change in attitude toward food in Great Britain, despite the belt-tightening due to the economy.

"People didn't take the proper interest in preparing tasty food before," she said as an explanation to the criticisms of English foods she often hears.

"Deep freezing," she said, "is taking over in England and people in villages are more conscious of paying for the cost of a freezer by buying in bulk. Supermarket shopping is big, too. I think we have better fresh vegetables in our gardens than Americans do and tend to eat more vegetables. The English climate is so good for these and for fruits."

The Rutherfords share the English love for fish and seafoods and he prefers mutton to beef. "Lamb chops, too, are easier to digest and I like simple things like kidneys and bacon."

Since so much of his work is spent in wines he faces the problem of what to drink. "I have so much to choose from so I drink everything," he smiled, "within moderation. One can get frightfully greedy with bad results."

However, along with his preference for mutton, kidneys and sweets, he follows the old tradition of topping off his dinner with a glass of Porto. There are some things that even supermarkets can't change in Great Britain.

 - 1 pint heavy cream
 - 3 tablespoons confectioners' sugar
- Arrange the macaroons in a single layer in a shallow pan. Pour one-quarter cup Porto over them. Let stand until wine is completely absorbed. Place pan in a 350-degree oven and toast macaroons lightly for about seven to eight minutes. Cool.
- Cut the sponge cake into three cross-wise layers. Place one layer on bottom of a nine-inch spring-form pan. Sprinkle with one-third of remaining Porto.

Cover the layer with one-third of the softened ice cream, add the second cake layer. Sprinkle another third wine over cake. Cover the second cake layer with half the remaining ice cream and sprinkle generously with crumbled macaroons.

Add the remaining cake layer and spread with remaining ice cream. Pour remaining Porto over the cake. Freeze for four to five hours. Loosen and remove sides of springform pan. Whip cream with confectioners' sugar until it will hold soft peaks. Cover cake with whipped cream. Sprinkle with remaining crumbled macaroons. Store in freezer until ready to serve. Serve with sauce. Makes six to eight servings.

*PORTO SAUCE

- 5 egg yolks
- 1 ounce sugar
- 1 1/2 ounces Porto wine

Put all ingredients into fireproof mixing bowl on top of double boiler. Beat with wire whip until firm. Cool.

RUBY TRIFLE

- 1 pound sponge cake, sliced
- 1 cup ruby Porto
- 1 package cherry or raspberry flavored gelatine
- 1 cup boiling water
- 1 pint heavy cream
- 1 cup vanilla pudding, cooked and cooled
- Whipped cream, maraschino cherries, angelica

Line shallow pan with slices of cake. Pour wine evenly over cake. Dissolve gelatine in the boiling water; cool until it becomes slightly thickened. Pour gelatine over cake. Refrigerate until gelatine begins to set. Whip cream until it begins to thicken. Add vanilla pudding a little at a time, continuing whipping until the mixture stands in soft mounds. Carefully spread or spoon whipped mixture over the gelatine layer. Refrigerate for at least four hours or overnight. Serve topped with whipped cream, maraschino cherries and bits of angelica. Makes eight to ten servings.

FILLETTS OF SOLE VALE DO DOURO

- 4 tablespoons sweet butter
- 8 fillets of Dover or lemon sole
- 1/2 cup diced raw mushrooms
- 1/2 cup diced cooked artichoke bottoms
- 2 tablespoons chopped shallots
- 1/2 cup white Porto
- 1/2 cup fish stock or water
- 1 cup light cream
- Juice 1/2 lemon
- Salt and white pepper, to taste
- 1 tablespoon chopped pistachio nuts

Use a shallow skillet or pan large enough to hold fillets. Melt two tablespoons butter in pan. Arrange fillets in pan and sprinkle with mushrooms, artichoke bottoms and shallots. Pour Porto and stock or water over fish. Cover and cook over low moderate heat for about 10 minutes or until fillets flake easily with a fork. Remove fillets to a hot serving platter. Keep warm. Bring ingredients remaining in pan to a quick boil. Reduce to half.

Add cream and stir in lemon juice, a little at a time. Stir in remaining butter. Do not boil. Pour sauce over fish. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Makes four servings.

The family

Prah-Hunt united

Mr. and Mrs. J. Prah

A pretty summer wedding took place at the Church of the Advent, Sherbrooke, when Dianne Susan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce H. Hunt of Chicoutimi, became the bride of Joseph Paul Prah, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Albert Prah of Uniontown, Penn.

The Rev. O.M. Merriman performed the double-ring ceremony assisted by Father John Prah, uncle of the groom. Mr. Ian Richards played the wedding music.

Arrangements of feathered shasta daisies graced the altar and the pews were decorated with white satin bows and daisies.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an original empire gown of imported embroidered nylon. The scallop of the hem was repeated at the low neckline and on the cuffs of the long full sleeves. A white satin ribbon was tied in streamers in back. She chose white shasta daisies for her hair and carried a long-stemmed bouquet of yellow sweetheart rosebuds, white daisies and baby's breath.

Miss Brenda Hunt, as maid of honour for her sister, wore a pink empire gown with a wide ruffle at the bottom. It was styled with a low neckline and short puffed sleeves. A pink satin ribbon was tied in streamers in back. She carried a bouquet of baby's breath and multi-colored daisies, and wore white shasta daisies for hair.

The mother of the bride wore a flowered chiffon gown in shades of green and a white orchid corsage.

The mother of the groom chose a pink dress and wore a corsage of a white orchid and stephanotis. Mrs. Hunt, grandmother of the bride, was in a red and blue natural linen print dress and wore a corsage of red carnations.

The gentlemen in the bridal party all wore white carnation boutonnières.

The groom's best man was Mr. Joe Alexander of Uniontown, Penn., Mr. Vic Gismond and Mr. Barry Hunt acted as ushers.

Mr. Ian Richards played appropriate music during the signing of the register after which Mr. James Hunt played recorded selections as the bride and groom left the church.

Many of the guests shared communion with the newly married couple and their families. This was administered jointly by Rev. Merriman and Father Prah.

The reception following the service was held at Ripplecove Inn where tables were arranged beneath the trees in a beautiful summer setting. The three-tiered wedding cake had accents of yellow and was topped with a miniature vase of flowers. It was placed on an heirloom centerpiece embroidered with white bluebirds.

The best man proposed a toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

Guests attended from Pennsylvania, Mass., New Jersey, Halifax, Seven Islands, Toronto, Ottawa, Belleville, Cornwall, Chicoutimi and the Lake St. John Area, Montreal and the Townships.

For travelling the bride changed to a yellow linen party suit. Mr. and Mrs. Prah now live in Greenfield Park, P.Q.

Recent callers of Mr. and Mrs. Willis Willey and family were Mrs. Mildred Atyeo, Mansenville; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fuller, Bolton Pass Road and Mrs. John Davies and infant daughter Carrie, of Knowlton.

Friends will be pleased to know that Mrs. Ettie Lane has returned home from hospital feeling much better.

Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Davis, Miss Heather Davis and Mrs. Rodney Davis and Mr. Douglas Davis were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haskell and family, Coleraine, Que., on Sunday.

Mrs. Walter Smithers, Delson; Mr. Russell Bedard, Candiac; Mrs. Albert Cameron, South Bolton have returned home from a three-week trip to Arizona. They called on Mr. and Mrs. Albion Taylor in Colorado Springs and spent a few days visiting Mr. Carroll White in Thatcher, Ariz. They also spent one night with Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Macdonald and Arlene in Burlington, Ont.

Mr. and Mrs. W.E. Bloomfield, Smithfield, Penn., spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bloomfield. Other recent callers at the same home were Mr. and Mrs. Edward Blake, Lachine; Mr. and Mrs. Roger Rouse and Mr. and Mrs. William Ross, all of Dorval.

Mrs. Merle Bedard, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence White and son, John, of Mansenville and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Smithers of Delson were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cameron and David

Ann Landers

She's got it together

Dear Ann Landers: I am a reasonably attractive, sensible girl, age 18, and in college. My friends consider me vivacious and fun to be with. I am a virgin and have every intention of remaining so until marriage.

I'm writing about my boyfriend, but it is HIS problem and I'm not going to let him make it MINE. He says he loves me and that I'm torturing him to death because he needs more action.

"H" happens to be very good-looking, bright, knows all the right words, and is accustomed to getting what he wants. But the fact that he can't get it from me is driving him crackers.

I'm not writing for advice, Ann. I don't need any. I'm just hoping you will print my letter to a Morning Owl who is married to a Morning Canary? It CAN work because we've been happy together for 32 years. The secret is to have respect for one another's Prime Time.

I am nearly 60 years old and my peak efficiency is between midnight and 9 a.m. I have to be at work at 5:00 a.m. and the air is beautiful at that hour of the morning. I am also proud that at my age I can accomplish things when most folks are laid out. Of course, when I fold up at 4:00 p.m. some people laugh and make bum jokes, but I don't mind. Someone has to take care of the world during those odd hours.

I wonder how many people realize what goes on while most of the world sleeps? Tell'em.

Where did I fail? — Lonely And Heart sick

Dear L.: You didn't fail. Your husband did. He failed to grow up and accept the responsibilities of marriage.

After 11 years and four children, it's a fine time to discover he has "untried wings." My guess is that after a little high flying, his wings will get tired and he'll turn into a homing pigeon.

Don't make the dumb mistake of giving him a divorce. Insist on separate maintenance. And if you're smart, you'll leave him alone until he gets his head screwed on straight (with apologies to Herb Klein).

Dear Ann Landers: Can you use one more letter on a Night Owl who is married to a Morning Canary? It CAN work because we've been happy together for 32 years. The secret is to have respect for one another's Prime Time.

I am nearly 60 years old and my peak efficiency is between midnight and 9 a.m. I have to be at work at 5:00 a.m. and the air is beautiful at that hour of the morning. Ann. Offhalls like me help keep the wheels going 'round. — Owl From Minnesota

Dear Owl: I wouldn't call you an oddball. You sound great. The world needs Nocturnals as well as Diurnals. Bless you, Dad.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How to Tell the Difference." Dr. Lamb
Reader misinformed about vitamins

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have been told that biochemists, as well as medical scientists, proved many years ago that synthetic vitamins cannot become part of human tissue, because they are inorganic and the body will reject them. And, the only thing that a chemical vitamin can do is to stimulate or nudge a sick or lazy cell. Is this true?

Also, I have heard that the natural vitamins found in the stores are called "crystalline" or "altered" vitamins. In the preparation of these natural vitamins, extreme heat is used which destroys the natural enzymes and the entire molecular balance created by nature. Is this true?

In any case, which do you think is best, the "synthetic" or "natural" vitamins?

DEAR READER — Gertrude Stein put it very well when she wrote, "a rose, is a rose, is a rose." A vitamin is a vitamin, is a vitamin. I might add your letter is a treasure trove of misinformation. Unfortunately such ideas are widespread.

First, chemists consider organic those compounds that contain carbon. This includes alcohol, table sugar, oil, gas, coal, plastic and thousands upon thousands of other compounds. Inorganic are the chemical compounds that do not contain carbon, such as table salt made from the two elements, sodium and chlorine. All vitamins are organic whether they are manufactured in a laboratory or extracted from a plant or other food.

The body does not reject inorganic items. We use what salt we need, regardless of whether it comes in our milk, vegetables, meat or out of the salt shaker. Calcium, an inorganic element, is used to build our bones. So that idea is ridiculous.

Salt mined from the earth is no different than salt extracted from meat or a plant. We can't change the chemical elements. So it is with organic and synthetic vitamins. We know the chemical structure of the vitamins, including every blessed atom and how they are hooked together like a crossword puzzle. It makes no difference whether vitamin C is extracted from a plant or built in the laboratory atom by atom, so to speak. It is the same.

Natural vitamins are not destroyed by processing. The package label must reflect the final amount of the vitamins present regardless of how they are obtained. And, vitamins are not enzymes. They are used to help build some enzymes inside your body.

The form vitamins come in sometimes makes a difference. A good example here is folic acid (folacin). In the leafy vegetables it is hard to separate and absorb through the intestine. For this reason the synthetic form, unattached to other food elements, is more easily absorbed and more effective. If you extracted the folic acid from the food and used it in pure form, however, it would have the same effect.

I know this will not satisfy many people who don't want to be confused by the facts. These people will continue to pay extra money for "natural" vitamins or for a special brand name, but the truth remains: a vitamin is a vitamin, is a vitamin.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Balanced Diet" booklet.

Italy: too many governments or too few real choices?

ROME (CP) — Bombs are blasting piazzas, there is an endless drumroll of strikes and the cabinet is engaged in another game of musical chairs.

No wonder Italian politics are unstable, you may think, with 37 governments since the Second World War and seven political parties to choose from.

But the real problem of Italian politics may be that they are too stable and unchanging, with too few real choices open to voters.

Here is one picture of Rome's Byzantine politics gained in interviews with Italians and knowledgeable foreigners here, a stop-action replay of a crazy game almost nobody understands.

Start with the Christian Democrats, the conservative middle-road party that has formed the core of every government since Mussolini's fall and has produced every prime minister. They got the largest slice of the votes—38.8 per cent—in the 1972 elections.

At the far left are the Communists, who have never been in a coalition government although they came second in 1972 with 27.2 per cent.

Others don't count. Between the two, and then off to the right, lie the other five—Socialists, Social Democrats, Liberals, Republicans and neo-Fascists.

But don't try to remember them. Hardly anybody votes for them and their policy differences rarely matter. Except, of course, for the neo-

Fascists. Because the Christian Democrats get the most votes, they get first crack at forming a government. From 1963 to this fall, that had always meant a centre-left coalition of Socialists, Social Democrats and Republicans. But in the latest coalition only the Republicans have been included in a two-party cabinet.

So, because voters can be almost sure that the Christian Democrats will lead a government and the Communists the opposition, their real choice boils down to these two.

The statistics show that is just how the voters reason. Votes rarely veer more than a few percentage points from one party to another in elections.

In this all-Catholic country, the church has always supported the Christian Democrats, which some still call its political right arm.

COALITIONS UNSTABLE But if the voting pattern is rigid, the coalitions created never are. The Socialists, especially, often find it difficult to share cabinet responsibility while retaining the power of opposition criticism.

It means constant bargaining among coalition partners and eventually yet another cabinet breakup and perhaps an election.

The frequent muddle of government has been aggravated by two other factors.

First, every party has demanded a cut of the patronage in the public service, which has often just ground to a stop.

Second, power in Italy is dispersed among a network of government corporations, the Vatican and private industry. Again it means the government is often paralysed between conflicting forces, or persuaded by the most influential.

But what about the Communists and the neo-Fascists?

The Communists run a score of city governments in Italy—some say the best-run cities in the country.

They share none of the taint of corruption of the other parties, none of the blame for past mistakes.

COMMAND RESPECT Italian writer Luigi Barzini says that even the United States state department looks blandly on the party. Time magazine recently called it "perhaps the world's most appealing and flexible Communist party."

But Barzini adds that they really are Communists and predicts revolution and repression if they ever win power. But he doesn't think they will.

Meantime, they are a respectable opposition and never quite rule out joining a coalition government, if they ever are invited.

The neo-Fascists (fascism itself is officially banned) have not been as powerful as the occasional demonstration or bombing might imply, observers say.

But reports have been emerging about at least one attempted right-wing coup in recent years. Even skeptical observers agree there are some small groups with money, arms and a few supporters.

They also agree that the reaction by the powerful unions to a Fascist takeover would be quick and deadly.

The unions have been able to mobilize scores of thousands of members in demonstrations against neo-Fascist-inspired incidents.

Italy's biggest political problem, as Barzini says, is that after 30 years of power, the Christian Democrats are "worn out and corrupted."

"They have run out of ideas, out of men."

So the country lives day to day, hand to mouth. The trains, post office, airlines and hospitals continually break down. A diplomat stresses the impact of the oil crisis, which has hit Italy harder than most countries.

"Suddenly they saw they did need a government."

Most observers agree that Italians will regain some political stability in the coming year and not sink into disintegration. But nobody here ever predicts how long a government will last.

Typically British
No ruffians among these brawlers

By Dick Kleiner

LONDON — (NEA) — There will always be an England, bless it.

They're shooting the next James Bond film, "The Man With the Golden Gun," at Pinewood Studios near here and I watched one of those typical Bondian brawls. Roger Moore is playing Bond again, and he was trapped in the dressing room of a belly dancer by the bad guys who try to beat him up.

The scene had been "choreographed" by the head stunt gaffer, Les Crawford, and Moore and the stuntmen went at it, full speed ahead. And then, after the brawl was over, one stuntman wiped his forehead and said to Moore, "Thank you very much."

During another take, one stuntman asked another to get him a cup of tea. As he was pounding his adversary's stomach, he looked at him and said, "Do you take sugar, luv?"

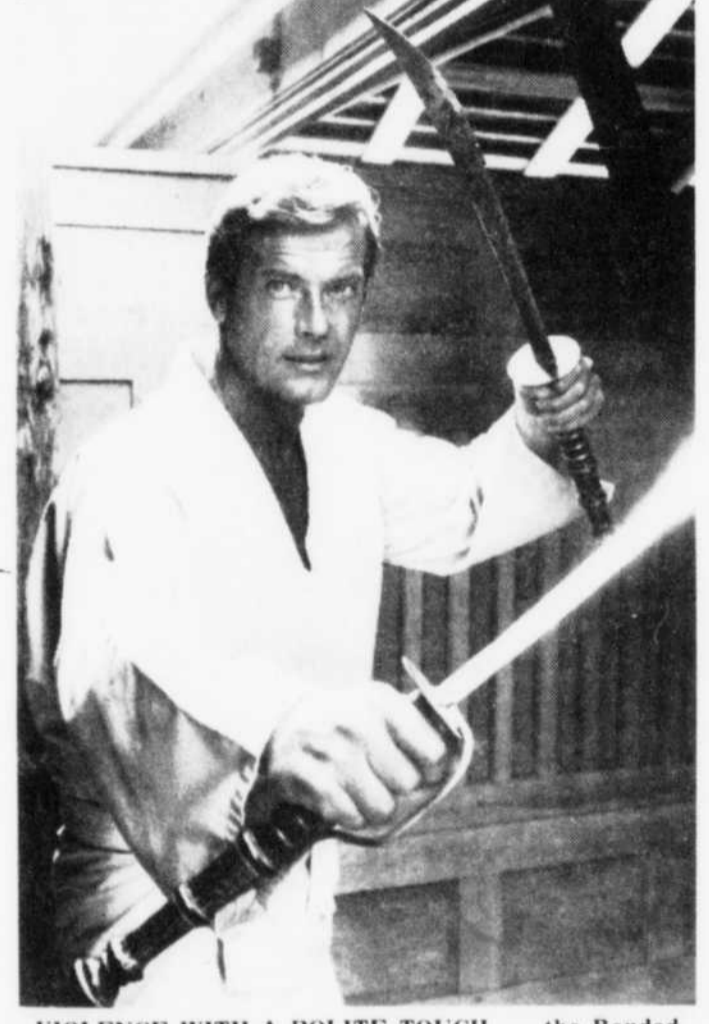

Perhaps that's the secret of the success of the Bond films, the combination of semi-violence and typical British politeness. Whatever the reason, they keep rolling along. Co-producer Oubby Broccoli told me there's no sign of any let-up in public enthusiasm for Bond movies and they plan to continue making them, one every 18 months.

Broccoli says the interest is worldwide, and he's had feelers to make one in Russia. "We've been invited to film there," he says, "by Russian film interests. But we won't do it unless they exhibit our films there and I doubt that will happen because we've never been too kind to Russia in our films."

This is Moore's second Bond film and he seems happy with the project. The rumor is that after he's done the four he's contracted to do he will be independently rich. It's worth a man's trouble, that goal.

He came out of the dressing room brawl scene hardly puffing. He keeps himself in good shape through a program of exercise.

VIOLENCE WITH A POLITE TOUCH ... the Bonded formula still works for the latest 007, Roger Moore.

LIVING SYMBOL of fire prevention was Smokey the Bear. Found by forest rangers in 1950 after a catastrophic blaze at Lincoln National Forest in New Mexico, the orphaned cub was sent to the National Zoo in Washington D.C. to serve as the national symbol for fire prevention. The 25-year-old Smokey, considered old for a bear, has acted as foster father to "Little Smokey", his successor, a cub found abandoned in New Mexico in 1971.

when North went into a long huddle before passing to his partner's three club bid. East, an alert player, realized that North would now take a push and bid three spades.

Now South bid what we consider a rather unethical four clubs. He had paid full attention to his partner's slow pass and apparently came to the conclusion that North held a trifle more in the way of club support, but had made up his mind not to bid; so South bid for his partner.

Incidentally there was nothing wrong with North's thinking. A player is entitled to think. His partner should not act upon that thought.

TODAY'S QUESTION

You do bid four notrump and your partner bids five diamonds to show one ace. What do you do now?

Answer Tomorrow

By Oswald & James Jacoby

When we watched today's hand bid in the Olympiad fund pairs, we saw very few contracts made. With no one vulnerable there was a tendency for East and West to go to three spades. South might double or pass. In either case careful play would see East going down one trick.

It wouldn't be a bad score. South would make three clubs by the simple expedient of ruffing a diamond in dummy before losing control of the trump suit. With the 5-point part score bonus, three clubs bid and made would count 110. Three spades doubled down one would only be 100.

The rather peculiar bidding in the box developed

Miami Dolphins and Pittsburgh Steelers clinch division titles

Miami Dolphins and Pittsburgh Steelers clinched division titles Sunday, leaving just one post-season berth to be contested in the National Football League.

The Dolphins nipped Baltimore Colts 17-16 and, with the help of New York Jets' 20-10 upset of Buffalo Bills, clinched the American Conference East title.

Pittsburgh beat New England Patriots 21-17, and Detroit Lions' 23-19 upset of Cincinnati Bengals enabled the Steelers to clinch the AFC Central Division.

The only undecided playoff berth is in the National Conference, where Washington Redskins, Dallas Cowboys or Detroit still could gain the playoffs. Minnesota Vikings and Los Angeles Rams have clinched their divisions and St. Louis Cardinals have clinched at least a wild-card spot.

Bob Griese engineered two first-half Miami touchdowns drives, one ending with a four-yard pass to Howard Twilley in the first quarter and the other on a one-yard run by Larry Colts came back in the second period. The first drive covered 80 yards and consumed eight minutes.

COLTS CAME BACK

Baltimore, 2-11, came back with two second-half field goals by Tom Linhart and two-yard scoring pass from Bert Jones to Bill Olds with 1:02 remaining. Gary Yepremian's 27-yard boot in the third quarter provided what turned out to be the winning points.

In other NFL games Sunday, New Orleans Saints shut out St. Louis 14-0, Philadelphia Eagles beat New York Giants 20-7.

Oakland Raiders nipped Kansas City Chiefs 7-6. San Francisco 49ers edged Green Bay Packers 7-6. San Diego Chargers defeated Chicago Bears 28-21, and Denver Broncos clubbed Houston Oilers 37-14.

Washington plays in Los Angeles Monday night, capping a weekend that started Saturday with Dallas clubbing Cleveland Browns 41-17 and Minnesota beating Atlanta Falcons, 23-10.

Pittsburgh, 9-3-1, spotted New England, 7-6, a one touchdown lead in the first quarter but came back with a touchdown by Franco Harris and two field goals by Roy Gerela. Harris gained 136 yards on 29 carries.

PLAYING OUT OPTION

Joe Namath, in what could have been his last home performance as a Jet, tossed a couple of scoring passes and led New York, 6-7, to its fifth consecutive win. Namath is playing out his option year with the Jets.

Ron Jessie ran 18 yards for a touchdown, set up another score on a 45-yard pass play from Greg Landry for Detroit.

Rookie Alvin Maxson gained 148 yards, including a 67-yard touchdown run—both New Orleans records. The Cardinals, 9-must win next week or Washington must lose for St. Louis to clinch its division.

Tom Sullivan rushed for two touchdowns and rookie Mike Boryla, who took over the Philadelphia signal-calling job from Roman Gabriel, threw for 240 yards in the Eagles' win.

Daryle Lamonica, making only his second appearance of the season, threw a 10-yard pass to Cliff Branch in the fourth quarter for Oakland's winning touchdown and Del Williams scored in the last period for San Francisco after a pass interference penalty gave the 49ers position deep in Green Bay territory.

Rookie quarterback Jesse Freitas threw two touchdown passes in the last 10 minutes to lead San Diego past the Bears, and Otis Armstrong ran for 183 yards and three touchdowns in Denver's victory.

183 yards and three touchdowns in Denver's victory.

Few Heisman winners make great pros

By Ira Berkow
NEA Sports Editor

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The annual Heisman season is open. Some 1,200 sportswriters armed with pencils will again select among the helmeted throngs the best grinder in the land. This is always a precarious affair, since these writers see no more than a virtual handful of the thousands and thousands eligible for the trophy.

The selection is an arbitrary process at best, and yearly suffers an onslaught of criticism, particularly from mothers of the legion of also-rans.

The closest standard that can be used to determine the accuracy of the Heisman trophy selection might be to check up on how the winners performed in professional football.

Now, this is not fool-proof, by any means.

First, maybe a fellow was the greatest ever for one season and one season only. Second, maybe because of size or style he was not suited for the pro game. Third, not all Heisman winners went into pro ball. Fourth, some players improve. And fifth, in checking over pro Most Valuable Player awards, Rookie of the Year awards, all-pro selections and Hall-of-Famers, we may conclude that these choices are as arbitrary as the Heisman one.

Regardless, we'll proceed warily.

Of the 39 Heisman winners selected since the process began in 1935, not one of them went on to make the pro Hall of Fame upon retirement. Of those playing today, O.J. Simpson (Heisman winner of 1968), Jim Plunkett (70) and Roger Staubach (63) might have a shot at it.

Only a handful of Heisman winners made all-pro: Davey O'Brien (38), Johnny Lujack (47), Doak Walker (48), Leon Hart (49), Alan Ameche (54), Paul Hornung (56), John David Crow (57) and O.J.

Only one Heisman winner has won the NEA-sponsored Jim Thorpe Trophy, the official NFL Most Valuable Player award. That one player was Simpson, last season.

Rookie of the Year awards are rather incomplete. The NEA Bert Bell Trophy winner goes back only to 1964, while the Associated Press goes back only to 1957.

But of all those chosen as best first-year player in the pros, only one was a Heisman winner, Jim Plunkett.

A number of Heisman trophy winners, though not necessarily stars, did perform creditably in the pros. Tom Harmon (40), Bruce Smith (41), Frank Sinkwich (42), Glenn Davis (46), Vic Janowicz (50), John Lattner (53), Howard Cassady (55), Billy Cannon (59), Steve Owens (69).

Steve Spurrier (66) was about to get his first full-season start as quarterback for San Francisco this season when he separated his shoulder. John Rodgers (72) has been outstanding in Canadian football. John Cappelletti, last year's Heisman winner, has shown fine potential.

Heisman winners who were disappointments in the pros included Angelo Bertelli (43), Billy Vessels (52), Joe Bellino (60), Terry Baker (62), John Huarte (64), Spurrier, Gary Beban (67) and Pat Sullivan (71).

A number of Heisman winners never played pro ball. Ernie Davis died of leukemia shortly after he graduated college in 1961. In the early years, pro ball paid relatively little and so Jay Berwanger (35), Larry Kelley (36), Clint Frank (37) and Nile Kinnick (39) went straight into a less sweaty business. So did Dick Kazmaier (51).

Doc Blanchard (45) and Pete Dawkins (58), went into the service after they played for Army, and never came out to play pro ball.

All of the above detail may prove very much, or it may prove nothing. It is about as decisive as the legitimacy of the Heisman trophy winner.

LONDON (Reuter) — Stoke City's climb to the top of the English League First Division last week seems to have provided the soccer club with some added incentive.

Stoke displayed its determination to stay on top by scoring three times in the first half Saturday, beating Birmingham 3-0 for Stoke's first away win in three months.

Two of the goals came from former Birmingham player Jimmy Greenhoff who was sidelined with a broken nose five minutes before half time.

Greenhoff opened the scoring in the 15th minute with a 25-yard shot and then passed to Ian Moores 13 minutes later to set up the second goal. Greenhoff then closed the scoring in the 38th minute with a header off a free kick by Geoff Salmon.

Stoke now leads the First Division by one point over Everton and Manchester City. Everton scored a 2-0 win at Leicester and Man City won 3-2 at home to Sheffield United.

Next with 25 points each are West Ham and Liverpool. Ipswich, in second place before Saturday's games, lost 3-0 to Middlesbrough.

"If we keep on playing like this, I don't see anybody stopping us," said Stoke manager Tony Waddington. "We have so many skillful players I can only see the team getting better."

DOBSON LOST

Everton lost Martin Dobson with a leg injury in the seventh minute but won easily with goals from John Hurst and George Telfer.

Liverpool, without a win since the last week of October, rallied to force a 2-2 draw against Derby. Derby got the first goal from Jeff Bourne before Liverpool rallied with scores by Ray Kennedy and Steve Heighway. Roger Davies scored the tying goal for Derby.

West Ham moved into the top five for the first time by winning 2-1 at home to defending champion Leeds United.

Bobby Gould and Bill Jennings scored for West Ham before Duncan McKenzie got a late goal for Leeds.

Graham Soumess scored twice in two minutes in Middlesbrough's 3-0 win over Ipswich while Newcastle goalie Tony Bell allowed three goals in seven minutes to give Tottenham a 3-0 win.

Carlisle ended its string of six defeats by beating Arsenal 2-1 in a light-marred match. The light involved eight players but none were booked or sent off.

In the Second Division, leading Manchester United came from behind for a 4-4 draw against Sheffield Wednesday. That match was marred by crowd trouble with several arrests before the kickoff and some fans carried out on stretchers during the game.

Rangers and Celtic both won by 2-1 scores to remain deadlocked atop the Scottish League First Division with identical points and goal average.

Rangers beat Aberdeen and Celtic beat Dunfermline while Hibernian, with a scoreless draw against Airdrieonians, dropped four points behind the leaders.

Johnny Miller chalks up his 9th win of year

Miyazaki, Japan (AP) — United States Open champion Johnny Miller fired a five-under-par 67 Sunday in the final round of the Dunlop Phoenix golf tournament and scored a seven-stroke victory for his ninth triumph of the year.

The slender, blond American finished with a 72-hole total of 274, 14 under par over the 7,012-yard, par-72 Miyazaki Country Club course. On the way to adding the $33,333 first prize to his record winnings of $346,933 on the U.S. tour, Miller shot a 33 on the front nine, then took complete control with birdies on the 11th, 12th and 13th holes. After bogeys on the 16th and 17th holes, he finished with a flourish, sinking a six-foot putt on the 18th for his eighth birdie of the round.

Lu Liang-Huan of Taiwan closed with a 70 and finished in second place at 281. Ray Floyd of the United States was third at 283 after a final round 70.

Blank Sorel 7-0 Sunday Beavers double Cornwall 6-3

SHERBROOKE — The Sherbrooke Beavers came back from a 3-1 loss against the Cornwall Royals the night before and romped to a 6-3 victory Friday evening at the Sports Palace. Michel Brisebois skated in from center ice, around a fallen defenceman and drilled a sharp-angle shot past goalie Mario Vien to open the Beaver scoring in the game. Brendan Lowe and Daniel Chicoine assisted on the 5:36 goal.

Mark Green took a rebound from in front of the Cornwall net and put it between the goalie's legs for the second Sherbrooke score. Richard Mulhern shot the puck in from the point after receiving it from Bob Simpson.

Sherbrooke kept up pace in the second period for three more goals. Dan Chicoine slid the puck home with the goalie way out of his net at 2:18, after Vien had gone into the corner to poke the puck away from Brisebois. He failed to do that, and Brisebois passed the rubber easily to Chicoine.

Brisebois let go a low screen shot from the slot at 14:21 for the fourth Beavers goal. Sidney Veysse shot the puck in from the point to Francois Robert, who shot it out to Brisebois. Both were assist on the power-play effort.

Robert had his turn next to score over a fallen Vien. After Green failed to reach the mark on the first shot, Francois went behind the Royals net, stole the puck from a defenceman and flipped it past the netminder on his second try.

Cornwall outscored the Beavers in the third period, but ran out of steam before they could get close enough to a win. Bill Smith scored a power-play goal at 4:53. The puck was picked up behind the net by a Cornwall player, and passed out in front. Before a surprised Nick Sanza could get set, the damage had been done.

Rejean Monty, brought up from the Granby Junior 'A' club by the Beavers, made his scoring debut with the Sherbrooke squad at 6:54 of the third. Rich Mulhern shot from the point and the rebound came all the way back to Monty at the top of the circle. He let a fast shot go that eluded Vien just inside the goalpost. Brisebois also picked up an assist on the play.

Yvon Disotell caught the Beavers off guard when he jumped out the penalty box, took a pass from his teammate and went in and scored on a break-away. Cornwall's Denis Rochon took advantage of sloppy clearing by Sherbrooke to score his marker at 18:46 during a scramble for the puck.

The crowd of 4,796 was given the chance to see only four fights in the game. Andre Leduc paid for his part in a one-sided altercation before three minutes had gone by in the second. He speared a Cornwall player, then jumped on him and threw several punches to the head while the Royals player covered his head with his gloves. Leduc received a spearing major and a game misconduct.

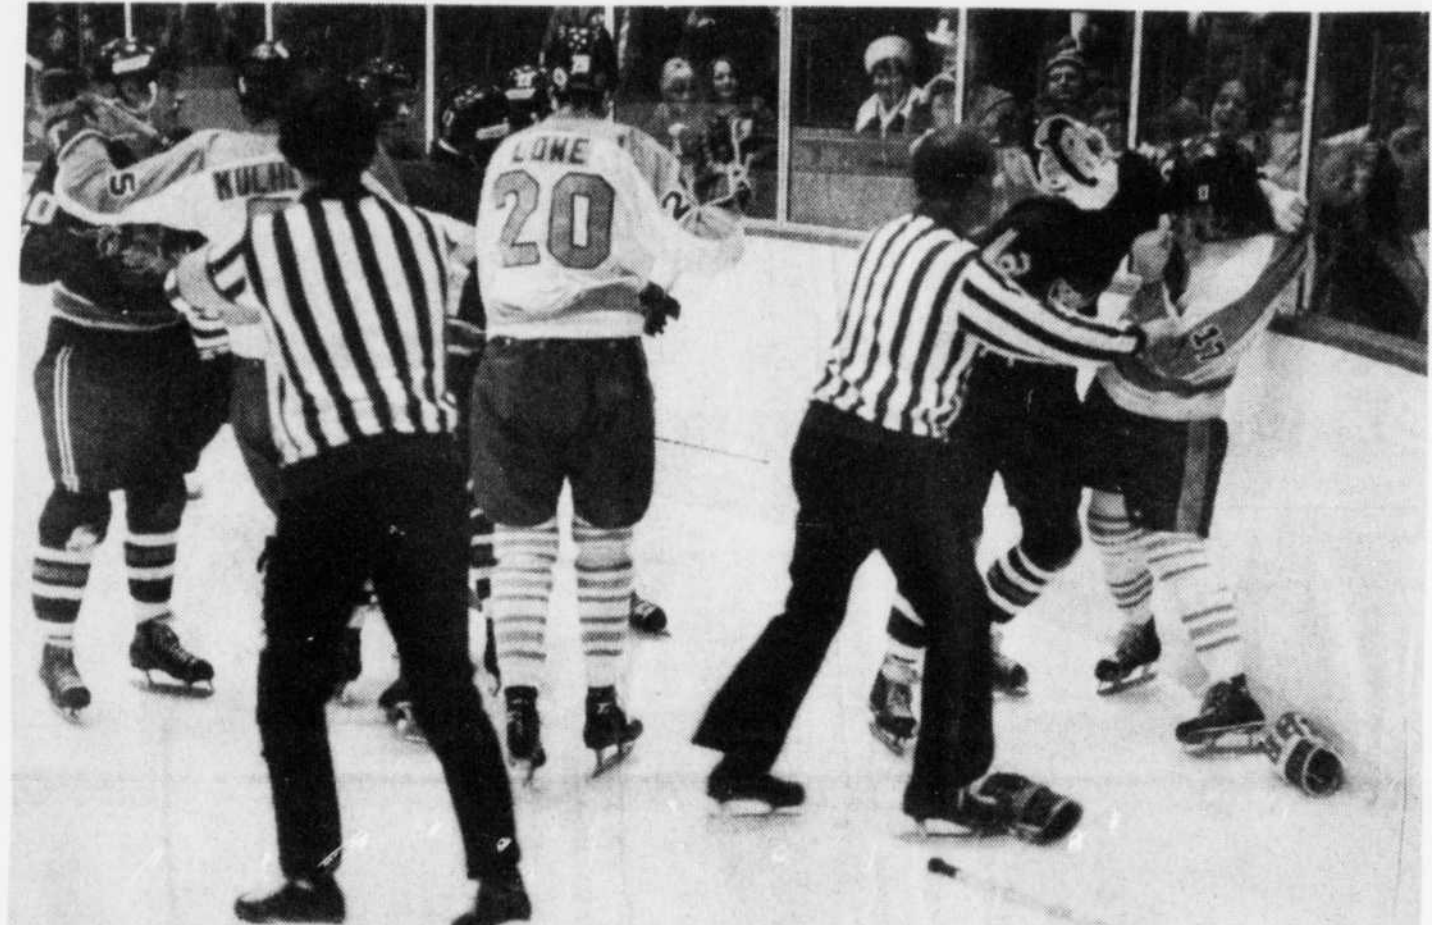

Almost nine minutes later, Schmo Simpson and Gerald Barden tangled with, for a change, the Cornwall getting the larger number of penalty minutes. Simpson was given a fighting major, while Barden got two minutes for elbowing, two for roughing and five for fighting.

NETTED A BIG ONE — Members of the Sherbrooke Beavers raise their arms after they scored their fifth goal against Cornwall on Friday. Francois Robert (4) scored the marker.

Mario Vien, the Royal goalie, sprawls head-first into the net in an attempt to stop the puck.

"SCHMOE" DOES IT AGAIN — Bob Schmo Simpson (17) literally takes the block off of Cornwall Royals' Gerald Barden during the second fight in their game Friday night. Richard Mulhern and Brendan Lowe take two Cornwall players out of the action at the same time.

Vancouver beats Minnesota

Considering the way Vancouver Blazers have been moving lately, you might expect coach Joe Crozier to assume a more relaxed attitude. Such is not the case.

"My heart is not as good as it used to be," Crozier said Sunday after Vancouver defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 4-2 for the Blazers' fifth win in their last six World Hockey Association games.

"When I'm behind the bench, I'm making saves for the goalie, winning faceoffs and backchecking."

Even if Crozier can't relax, the record is improving for the Blazers who had only three wins in 13 games until their recent six-game upsurge that has included victories over two division leaders—Toronto Toros and New England Whalers.

In other WHA games Sunday, Quebec Nordiques edged Quebec Aeros 2-1, Edmonton Oilers blanked Michigan Stags 7-0, Toronto beat Phoenix Roadrunners 5-2, Winnipeg Jets defeated Chicago Cougars 5-2 and Indianapolis Racers beat San Diego Mariners 5-3.

Saturday, the Blazers beat Michigan 4-2, Chicago whipped Toronto 9-3, New England defeated Indianapolis 6-3 and Cleveland Crusaders beat San Diego 3-1.

HAD TO RALLY
 The Blazers had to come from behind a 2-0 deficit with three second-period goals by Bryan Campbell, Danny Lawson and Jimmy Jones for the win over Minnesota.

Despite outshooting the Saints 15-5 in the third period, the Blazers got only one more goal by Rob Walton.

Norm Beaudin scored once and helped set up another goal for Winnipeg in the second period as the Jets padded a 2-1 first-period lead and went on to beat Chicago.

The Jets outshot the Cougars 37-31 in the game but Winnipeg goalie Joe Daley had to be sharp in the third period when Chicago surged back with an 18-6 advantage in shots.

At Quebec, the Nordiques trailed Houston 1-0 until third-period goals by Michel Parizeau and Andre Hinse gave them the win and ended Houston's record nine-game winning string on the road.

TARDIF TRADED
 It was the first game in Quebec uniform for Marc Tardif, Chris Bordeleau and Steve Sutherland.

Bordeleau was acquired last week in a trade with Winnipeg while Tardif and Sutherland came from Michigan on Saturday in a swap for Pierre Guite, Michel Rouleau and Alain Caron.

Jacques Plante, 45, made 24 saves to help Edmonton shut out the Stags while the line of centre Mike Rogers and wingers Blair MacDonald and Ron Climie had five of the seven goals.

Rogers and Climie each scored twice and Rogers added three assists while MacDonald had a goal and four assists.

Tom Simpson scored two goals—his 20th and 21st of the season—while Vaclav Nedomansky had a goal and an assist to lead the Toros against the Roadrunners at Phoenix.

John Sheridan scored twice in the first period to start Indianapolis to its fifth win in 26

Buffalo's French Connection line appears to be on its way to setting a few National Hockey League scoring records and could lead the Sabres to a few team records at the same time.

The three French Connection members—Gil Perreault, Rene Robert and Rick Martin, each scored his 20th goal of the season in Buffalo's 5-0 victory Sunday over Minnesota North Stars.

That gives the trio 60 goals in 29 games this season, but a look at the line's more recent production gives a better indication of the hot pace they're setting.

In the last 17 games, the Sabres line has scored 44 goals—17 by Robert, 15 by Martin and 12 by Perreault. Continuing that pace through this season's 80-game schedule could easily put them beyond the season record of 140 goals set by the Phil Esposito-Ken Hodge-Wayne Cashman line of Boston Bruins in 1970-71.

Meanwhile, the Sunday victory was Buffalo's 10th in a row on home ice and extended the

LEAFS WIN
 In other games Sunday, Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Chicago Black Hawks 4-1, Detroit Red Wings upset Vancouver Canucks 4-2, Boston beat Pittsburgh Penguins 3-2, St. Louis Blues defeated Washington Capitals 3-1, Philadelphia Flyers beat New York Islanders 3-2 and Montreal Canadiens tied 3-3 with New York Rangers.

Saturday, the Rangers beat Chicago 7-4, the Islanders defeated Kansas City Scouts 4-1, Los Angeles Kings defeated Atlanta Flames 6-2, Montreal beat Pittsburgh 5-2, St. Louis whipped Washington 8-2 and Detroit tied Toronto 3-3.

Rookie goalie Gary Bromley recorded his 14th triumph and second shutout of the season for Buffalo. He only faced 14 shots Sunday.

At Chicago, Errol Thompson scored two third-period goals for the second night in a row to rally the Leafs.

The Hawks took a 1-0 lead in the second period on a goal by Cliff Koroll, but Norm Ullman tied it early in the third period and Thompson followed with the tie-breaker and the clincher before Blaine Stoughton hit another on an empty net in the final minute.

At Boston, the Bruins gained the victory in the third period when defenceman Bobby Orr got his 16th goal of the season to break a 2-2 deadlock.

LARRY EARNS TIE
 Larry Robinson's 40-foot slap shot early in the first period at New York gave Montreal the tie with the Rangers.

Washington, playing before a home crowd of 10,215, equalled St. Louis' 23 shots on goal but goalie Eddie Johnston made the difference for St. Louis against Capitals netminder Michel Belhumeur. The win broke a 10-game winless streak for St. Louis on the road.

Centre Orest Kindrachuk's two goals led the Flyers over the Islanders at Philadelphia. The Islanders, who earlier this season were challenging the Flyers for the Patrick Division lead, now trail the division standings, 10 points behind Philadelphia.

At Detroit, Hank Nowak's goal midway in the second period broke a 1-1 tie and the Red Wings added two more goals in the third period to upset the Canucks who still enjoy a 13-point lead over second-place Chicago in the Smythe Division.

Clippers down Kings, Eagles

Uncertainty about the future didn't hold back Baltimore Clippers over the weekend. In the midst of rumors that the World Hockey Association might invade their territory, the Clippers used a pair of weekend wins to take command of the American Hockey League's Southern Division.

The Clippers blanked Springfield Kings 4-0 Saturday night, then downed Syracuse Eagles 5-3 Sunday night to open a four-point lead over second place Richmond Robins in the Southern Division.

Marc Dufour, Howie Menard, Kent Douglas, Dunc Rousseau and Morris Stefaniv scored a goal each for the Clippers against Syracuse. Baltimore goalie Lynn Zimmerman, who recorded his second shutout in a row Saturday, had 29 saves in Sunday's game.

Dick Sarrazin, Joe Norris and Allen Rycroft were the Syracuse scorers.

MOVE DENIED
 There were reports last week that Chicago Cougars of the WHA would be sold to a Maryland group and moved to Baltimore. Cougar officials denied the reports, but they persisted. In Sunday's other games, Providence Reds edged Nova Scotia Voyageurs 1-0, New Haven Nighthawks beat Springfield 4-1 and Rochester Americans edged Richmond 2-1.

Virginia Red Wings nudged Richmond 5-4 and Rochester downed Hershey Bears 4-2 in Saturday's other games.

Kurt Ridley of the first-place Reds won a goaltender's duel with Nova Scotia's Dave Elenbaas before a Halifax crowd of 4,309.

MONAHAN HAS WINNER

Ridley made 22 saves while Elenbaas had 36 stops. A second-period goal by Hartland Monahan gave the Reds the victory.

Tom Colley scored two goals and rookie Sam Clegg made 30 saves in his third game of the year for the Nighthawks. Alain Langlais and Rick Kessel had New Haven's other goals while Dennis Abgrall scored for Springfield.

A Richmond crowd of 4,835 saw Rochester's Craig Sarner and Rod Graham score in the third period to overcome a second-period goal by Larry Goodenough of the Robins. Action resumes Wednesday with the Voyageurs visiting Syracuse and Baltimore at Virginia.
