PERRY BEATON | SPECIAL TO THE RECORD

Talented musicians flock to Wellington Street Sherbrooke fest will have you feeling blue

By Sylvia Warden
SHERBROOKE

The KGB is in town this weekend.

No not the notorious soviet spies, but Lennoxville's own blues band KGB, which is home to play the Sherbrooke en Blues festival.

The band is just one of the more than 60 groups playing in the seventh edition of the event which opened on Wednesday and runs until Sunday on Wellington Street.

"Blues is a language spoken by many," says Paul Shine, front man for the Dream Team, a band that opened the festival.

Last year 55,000 people stopped by the fest and this year organizers are hoping to attract at least 60,000 visitors to the downtown core. To do that they've enlisted the help of some old and new faces.

Lucky Peterson is perhaps the headliner of the five-day extravaganza. The blues icon appeared on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show when he was only five-years-old. The Buffalo, N.Y. native is playing tonight (Friday) at 11 p.m. at the Granada Theatre.

KGB is also on stage tonight at the Granada. This local group has worked with fellow Canadians Sue Medley and Jeff Healey. The quartet of Kevin Groves, Jeff Coates, Daniel Poulin and Alain Blanchet recently returned from Germany where they were on tour for three weeks. They released their first album, Call It What You What, in 1994.

Last year's surprise artist of the festival, Andy J. Forest, is back for another session. The New Orleans resident is set to play the Le Well Pub at 11 p.m. tonight (Friday) and Saturday. Another group of musicians you can hear for free is Little Jo and the Hurricane. This group will blend blues with funk and rock for a unique sound on Saturday at 11 p.m. at Le Deelite.

Otis Grand, the best blues guitarist in England for the last five years, takes over the main stage from 10-11 p.m. on Saturday. If you like B.B. King, you're sure to love Grand.

Also performing throughout the weekend: is Delta Noise, they'll be at Le Bla Bla nightly at 9 p.m.; Stephen Barry at 11 p.m. tonight (Friday) at Les Graffiti; Jimmy James at the same time and location on Saturday; Carlos del Junco plays Le Sharky's tonight (Friday) and Saturday at 11 p.m.

"First of all I think it's a celebration, a chance to see other musicians on the same street and the visibility," said Shine when asked why the festival attracts some of the best blues talent.

If you want to see some future stars of blues music, be sure to stop by the Blues Pepsi Contest

Finals at Café du Palais. Participants were selected from battle of the bands shows in March and April. Performing tonight (Friday) at 8:30 p.m. is Only Blues Band from Quebec City followed by Sherbrooke's Baby Blues. On Saturday at 8 p.m. Steffen Hartleib, Trouble 700 Pounds of Blues from Montreal and Must of Sherbrooke will perform. Top prize includes 1,000 CDs of the group's live performance at the festival, $500, a show at the Blues Festival in Rockland, Me. and a spot at next year's Sherbrooke en Blues.

The second prize winner walks off stage with a new Yamaha guitar and $500.

This year, visitors on Wellington Street can listen to the music simulcast on 88.5 FM.

But if music's not your thing, street performers will entertain visitors and artists are painting their impressions of the festival on Wellington Street.

All shows are free except those performed at the Cafe du Palais and Granada Theatre. Most shows are $6 each but a special all-event ticket that gives you access to every show is available for $25.

The Sherbrooke en Blues festival wraps up with a jam session featuring more than 30 Quebec musicians on Sunday evening.

Talk of the Townships

Summer sucks: Bring back winter before I melt

I'm hoping that by the time this column is printed, all of this will be a distant memory, but right at this moment, the hot weather is really getting on my nerves.

Yes, I am indeed the only person in North America who prefers winter to summer. Call me a traitor but a snow-bird I shall never be.

I'm the first to admit that there are inconveniences to winter - anyone who's ever had to bundle two kids in snowsuits or start their car on a January morning knows exactly what I mean - but I personally find it's much easier to warm up after an hour of pulling my kids on the sled in the freezing winter than it is to cool down after spending even 15 minutes in the scorching hot July sun.

So why don't my kids feel the same way?

It can be 30 degrees out with not a drop of water or hint of breeze in sight, and my kids will still run around the park without running out of steam. They also have the audacity to make fun of me because I'm huddled under a tree, fanning myself with the Frisbee and hallucinating about Auntie Em.

Where the kids get this endless supply of energy is beyond me.

Maybe it's the multi-vitamins I give them in the morning, or the natural sugars from the fruit they eat. Or maybe it's just that they're five and three years old, whereas I'm... well, let's just say I'm old enough to be their considerably older sister, and my tolerance for heat is much lower than theirs. It doesn't help,

LINDA'S PLAYGROUND

either, that I happen to be fair-skinned and get a sunburn just by opening my oven door, so Mr. Golden Sun is hardly a friend of mine.

Summer was fun when I was a kid, but as an adult I find there just isn't any respite. I don't fit in the kiddie pool. I can't cool off by swinging in the park without some kid demanding I give him his turn. I can't hide in the trees much longer because the other parents are getting suspicious of my activities in there.

During the day, I try to dodge the sun like a vampire and by night my ceiling fan is on turbo drive. I'm considering taking naps in my deep-freezer and I'm in the process of inventing a waterproof shirt with slots in where I could put tons of ice cubes before heading out with the kids. When the ice cubes melt, it's time to head back into the great indoors.

I realize that these aren't exactly the most popular sentiments to express around here.

After all, most Canadians complain that our summers aren't long enough. You wouldn't believe how many times I've been told to "enjoy the summer because it'll be over before you know it." Really? By my count, I've got about two more months of this stuff before I can dig out my wool sweaters and army boots again. And you know what that means. Two more months of complaining, two more months of whining, two more months of moaning...

Aren't you glad you get to read all about it?!

Piggery play has a few surprises up its sleeve

Sylvia: More than male mid-life mayhem

By Kathy Mercier
RECORD CORRESPONDENT
STE-CATHERINE-DE-HATLEY

Typical stories of male mid-life crises usually involve hot little sports cars and luscious young women. Sylvia, the season-opener at The Piggery Theatre, adds a few new twists to those oft-heard tales.

A.R. Gurney's play, directed by Greg Tuck, replaces the fast car and young woman with a lab-poodle cross. However, the pooch is in fact played by a woman.

Montreal actor Peter Smith, who performed at The Piggery last year in Dead Together, plays the middle-aged Greg, who is finding his career less fulfilling than it used to be. His wife Kate (Margot Dionne) is enjoying a budding career after raising the kids. During a regular escape from the office to the park, Greg picks up a frisky little lost mutt named Sylvia (Kristen Thomson), who soon becomes a point of conflict between the couple.

Smith said the play is about much more than a man facing mid-life doldrums.

"It's more interesting than that. It's about developing a relationship," he said. "The idea of a mid-life crisis is like a hook-in for people. It's not just about me, but about everyone trying to adjust to each other. It's about expectations and how we react to things that happen out of sync, about doing things you wouldn't usually do."

DOG IS LIKE A CHILD

Any pooch owner knows that a dog is like having a child and Kate believes she doesn't have the time or energy to devote to a new pet.

"It's a life change having a dog," said Smith. "They are at a point of their life where they are supposed to be going to things like dinner parties."

Toronto actress Thomson, a National Theatre School graduate last seen at The Piggery in 1993's Lend Me a Tenor, said the friction between Sylvia and Kate comes from the latter's perception of her life.

"I think she has a different image of how her life should be - more glamorous. She doesn't want the responsibility of a dog," said Thomson.

Smith said Kate is simply reacting to a very rude interruption in the couple's life.

"It's a mystery to her why Greg needs a dog," he said. "Actually, Kate is the voice of reason."

Greg (Peter Smith) tries to comfort a pained Sylvia (Kristen Thomson) after having the dog fixed, while his wife Kate (Margot Dionne) demands his attention.

Preparing for her physically challenging title role, Thomson spent the first week of rehearsals exploring the 'dogness' of her character.

"We had to make decisions on how much I would be behaving like a dog," she said. "The first week I played a lot of doggie stuff."

Once she established the gestures and vocabulary of Sylvia, the exaggerated dog movements were toned down. The dog-human character that evolved added to the pet-friend-mistress quality in the relationship between Sylvia and Greg, making for a few strange moments in the play.

"It's the strange parts that gives this play its heart and comedy," Thomson added. "When Sylvia goes in heat for the first time, Greg is jealous that she is after another dog, and he has her spayed. The operation is a watershed in his relationship with his wife (who is facing a job opportunity in England)."

Sylvia can't go to England without being quarantined for six months, and Greg feels guilty about having his dog fixed.

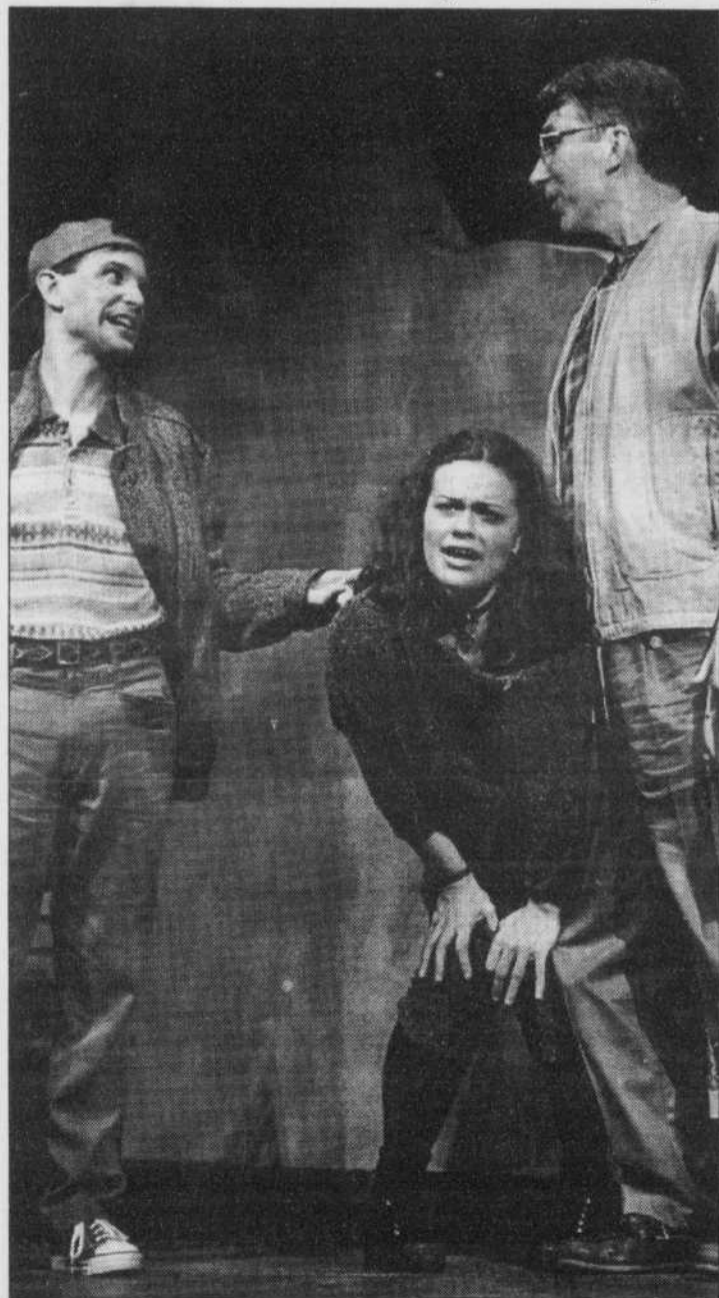

"Out of this ridiculous situation, he and his wife are at a difficult juncture," said Thomson.

Greg must choose between his dog or his wife.

Also starring Ian Watson in a trio of roles, Sylvia promises thoughtful insight on how people deal with changes in their relationships and their lives, all the while providing some good laughs.

Sylvia is playing at The Piggery Theatre in Ste-Catherine-de-Hatley until July 12. Performances are Tuesdays to Saturdays at 8:30 p.m., with matinees at 2 p.m. on Wednesdays and 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Tickets cost $15.50-$19. For reservations, call (819) 842-2431.

Reviews help fans wade through new releases

Time for another course of country music

The country music menu has a lot to offer this summer - from concerts to special shows on TV - you can find anything. Record companies are cooking up a succulent brochette of new country releases. Some are by newcomers while others are by well-established artists. It's a tough choice, so here are a few reviews to make it easier to digest.

Victoria Shaw, Victoria Shaw, (Warner/Reprise)

Shaw is well known as a very successful songwriter. She has a proven track record of crafting No. 1 records for other artists. Her credits include "The River" and "She's Every Woman" for Garth Brooks, and "I Love The Way You Love Me" for John Michael Murphy.

In this self-titled album, Shaw proves once again that she's an excellent songwriter. "Just To Say We Did" sports the message that everybody just needs to have fun.

There's also "Don't Move", a touching poem about breaking up and "Let's Talk About Me," which could be the perfect song for an assertiveness training course. "All For The Sake Of Love" is very familiar to fans of the TV soap opera As The World Turns because it is heard often during the show.

Highlights on this album include

COUNTRY CONNECTION

JESSIE AULIS

"Stuck On You," "Wild Rose," "Don't Move" and "One of Those Days". Each one blends the emotion of the lyrics with the richness of Shaw's vocals superbly.

Hopefully this sophomore effort, far better than the first album, will take Shaw's music to the top of the charts.

Alabama, Dancin' On The Boulevard, (RCA)

Dancin' On The Boulevard is Alabama's 12th album and after selling 35 million records, the good 'ole boys are still very popular. As usual the album shines with top-notch production and Alabama's fine vocals and tight harmonies.

The collection is a mix of country and pop-edge material, most of it written by the band. They also cover a couple of rock standards, popular at the time when they were performing in night clubs in Myrtle Beach, South Carolina.

Their cover of "My Girl" and "Hey Baby" are very fresh and very much in tone with the rest of the album. The pop-flavored "Dancin', Shaggin' on the Boulevard" also has this charming retro touch.

On the more country side there's "I Couldn't Just Say No" might just become another classic Alabama ballad, while "Of Course I'm Alright" has that strong Nashville feel expected from a heart-breaking slow dance.

There's also a catchy tribute to a working man - the musician of course - titled "One More Time Around" and the high-energy "Sad Looking Moon". Alabama always sings about the good old days, but don't worry there's a very contemporary feel here.

If you are an Alabama fan, you will love this album and if you don't know them, what a wonderful opportunity to discover this talented bunch.

James Bonamy, Roots & Wings, (Epic/Sony)

This sophomore effort is excellent and since the second album is most of the time what makes or breaks a new artist, James Bonamy will survive. He really met the challenge head-on with this high-quality production.

Bonamy is and will remain traditional country with the heart touching "Daddy Never Had a Chance in Hell" or the rollicking "I Knew I'd Need My Heart Someday". If you compare the two you'll understand the depth of the whole collection of songs featured on Roots & Wings.

The title track is a moving, sentimental definition of what family values are all about while the first single released "The Swing" is hoe-down music that tells a tale of real lasting love.

Bonamy is really impressive when it comes to ballads. His heartfelt, soulful vocals have a way of bringing out the most in a song such as "Naked to the Pain." Bonamy's growth as an artist and a new acquired confidence are strongly visible on this second album, which ranks him with the best.

Tim McGraw, Everywhere, (Curb/Emi)

Since his very first album McGraw has never stopped getting better and more confident, offering collections which are always more polished than the one before.

The joy of his marriage to fellow country star Faith Hill and the glow of fatherhood are all over this idyllic and romantic album. The first single released "It's Your Love" a duet with his wife is an ode to a soul mate in which love and affection are the key words.

"Where The Green Grass Grows" is a mid-tempo ballad on which McGraw's positive outlook and family values are evident as he outlines a wholesome plan to raise his kids.

On the upbeat "For a Little While" the chiming piano and swirling synthesizers are a perfect blend for an unusual sound. "Ain't That The Way It Always Ends" is a country-style rocker or maybe I should say McGraw's style.

Dealing with personal choice and wistful reflection are the two ballads "I Do But I Don't" and "One of These Days", while "Hard On The Ticker" is a humorous honky-tonker that compares an attractive woman to a horror movie.

With "Everywhere" McGraw returns to the sensitive mood of the album, a song about a love that still haunts him. There's no fillers on this collection and it should do great with fans and on the radio.

McGraw is no ordinary country singer. Everything he does, offers new ideas, new approaches. It's revitalizing and when you compare it to the work of other artists' work, McGraw is always a notch higher. Everywhere is a breath of fresh air.

COUNTRY COLLECTIBLE No. 19

Trisha Yearwood

From her first single "She's In Love With The Boy," audiences have been in love with Trisha Yearwood. Since then the simple home-town girl has seen her songs go to the top of the charts more than once and has become one of country's most popular entertainers.

Born: Monticello, Georgia on September 19, 1964.

Spouse: Robert Reynolds, bassist for the group The Mavericks

Latest single: "How Do I Live" which is also the theme song for the movie Con Air with Nicholas Cage.

Quote: "I just flat-out love to sing. If you really feel it, other people will hopefully feel it too. But even if nobody's listening, I will do it forever."

AVRIL IN THE MORNING

Avril Benoit has been chosen to co-host CBC Radio's new national morning show alongside Michael Enright. The new program, which replaces Morningside and Sunday Morning, debuts Sept. 1 and airs Sunday to Friday from 9:05 a.m. to noon. Benoit said the opportunity to work with Enright, of As It Happens, is the chance of a lifetime. Townshippers will remember Benoit, 31, as The Record's Townships Week editor prior to moving to Montreal where she hosted CBC-TV's sports and recreation show Busy Bodies and, most recently, her own talk show on CJAD.

Garou hitting new heights

By Jean-François Laverdiere
SPECIAL TO THE RECORD
SHERBROOKE

He was five years old when he strummed his first chord on the guitar and now, at 25, Garou is carving out a place for himself on the musical scene.

Pierre 'Garou' Garant has never studied music, except for piano lessons when he was eight. However, his innate talent for music can be felt through his live performances.

After working solo as a chansonnier for a couple of years, he formed The Untouchables three years ago and began playing in numerous bars in Montreal and Sherbrooke. In April, people had the chance to see him performing with the Sherbrooke Symphony Orchestra at the Granada Theatre for its first-ever rock concert.

He is also making headway in the theatre world.

"I'll be playing the starring role in a Broadway-style musical comedy composed by Luc Plamondon," Garou said. "The comedy will be based upon The

JEAN-FRANÇOIS LAVERDIERE

Garou... to make waves on theatre scene.

Hunchback of Notre-Dame. I can't wait."

After rehearsals in Europe for the musical slated to be ready for the fall of 1998, he plans to record his first soul/funk album which should be released during the summer.

Garou fans fear not, he will be back in Magog this summer for a couple of gigs.
