Over 2,500 new COVID-19 cases in Quebec

Record Staff

Quebec broke another record yesterday, reporting 2,511 new cases of COVID-19 in the province. The total number of people infected in Quebec since the beginning of the pandemic is 199,822. According to public health, 170,045 people have recovered from the virus.

The data also reports 41 new deaths, for a total of 8,165.

The number of hospitalizations increased by 80 compared to the previous day, for a cumulative total of 1,211. Among those, the number of people in intensive care increased by 4, for a total of 152.

Yesterday 2,739 doses of vaccine were administered for a total of 25,315 so far in the province.

In the Estrie region 123 cases were reported yesterday, bringing the local total to 7,733.

There were two new deaths in the area; one at the non-traditional care facility on Bowen Street in Sherbrooke set up for seniors awaiting a CHSLD placement, and one at Résidences Soleil Manoir in Granby.

The total number of deaths reported in the Estrie related to COVID-19 is 166.

The CIUSSS de l'Estrie-CHUS has 74 beds reserved for the care of COVID-19 patients and 25 spaces available in intensive care.

Iraqi refugee nurse feels welcomed at Grace Village

COURTESY

By Michael Boriero - Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

Savio Habash spends his day resting and taking care of his children, alongside his wife, Rana Osanah, before heading off to work a night shift as a nurse at Grace Village Pavilion in Huntingville.

The 38-year-old graduated from the nursing program at Champlain College in Lennoxville in June, completing his degree in three years. He quickly passed the Ordre des infirmières et infirmiers du Québec (OIIQ) exam. And this month he passed the French-language exam.

It was a long time coming for Habash. He has only been in Quebec for six years. He immigrated to Sherbrooke in 2015, after fleeing Iraq a year earlier with his wife and three-year-old daughter. His village was taken by ISIS, a militant Islamist group, in 2014.

Habash and his family escaped to Kyrgyzstan and then to Jordan, where they spent nearly a year living with other refugees. He was slowly losing hope, he told The Record in an interview, when St. Ephrem Syriac Orthodox Church reached out.

"We didn't know these people and they were really good to us," said Habash. "They were like a big brother, they helped us with everything."

The Year of the Cat: An Oral History

Ross Murray

In January, columnist, writer and candle-wax aficionado Ross Murray announced to the world and his therapist that every one of his 2020 columns would reference a cat or cat-adjacent subject. The world scoffed. His therapist relocated offices. And yet, 52 weeks later, who's laughing now? Certainly not readers of this column.

No one could have predicted that grey January morning that the Year of the Cat would become the phenomenon that would define 2020 for generations to come or at least until next Wednesday. Today, we look back at the Year of the Cat through the words of those whose lives it touched as well as the people who did the touching.

Ross Murray, columnist, visionary: Some people might call me a visionary, but I'm just a guy who looked around one day and said, "You know, people sure do like cats. Maybe I should just write about cats. Who doesn't like cats?" After they escorted me out of the funeral parlour, I went straight home and started writing. I had no idea it would take off the way it did. I also had no idea how I got home. It's all a bit blurry.

Gordon Lambie, Sherbrooke Record associate editor, mensch: When that initial column landed on my desk, I said, "HEY, LOOK OUT FOR MY COFFEE!" At first, I thought it was a joke, which is something I hadn't seen from Ross Murray in some time. I thought, there's no way the public's going to put up with a cat reference for 52 weeks. I knew for sure we'd get letters: C, R, L, a P, maybe even a W.

Murray: The paper tried to talk me out of it. They said it was suicide. Sorry, wait: they said it was sauerkraut. Which turned out to be the mystery stain on my futon, so they weren't wrong.

Matthew Farfan, local historian, Instagram influencer: Something like this has been tried in the past. Throughout 1884, LeRoy Robinson, founder of The Stanstead Journal, attempted to reference in every issue something called "butterscotch bum cake," which was a popular New England treat. He lasted 15 weeks before he had to be briefly institutionalized.

Lambie: We decided to give it a shot, but if people started cancelling subscriptions, we were pulling the plug. We gave him ten weeks at best.

Douglas Trenchant, subscriber, malcontent: At first I was confused. That was normal after reading one of Ross Murray's pieces. But as the weeks went by I started feeling befuddled and then discombobulated and finally flummoxed. Then, around the middle of March, I realized, "Ohhhhh, I see: cats." I didn't get it.

Elizabeth Mange, journalist, not hard on the eyes: It's difficult to know how these things take off. Sometimes everything just falls into place, much like my hair right now. As far as the Year of the Cat is concerned, it seems the Chinese were the first to pick it up. Ross Murray quickly became popular over there. They call him "Youqù de shòu moo nánhái," which means "funny skinny cat boy." They brought it to North America and before you know it, the Year of the Cat had seized the public imagination.

Murray: At heart, I'm just a regular guy with an extra toe who's slipping stupid cat references into his otherwise non-cat-related columns. I never expected it to become a movement. All I wanted was to make people happy. And for CBC "Breakaway" to regret canning me.

Zoe Baumgarten, activist, tattoo fancier: Ross Murray did more than anyone in 2020 to raise awareness about the almost total lack of feline content in traditionally non-cat-representative media. It's gone on too long and too far and too many and too much and too bad, you know? I think it was when Ross made a reference to a scratching post in his column about visiting his urologist that it really came together as a movement.

Steve Lussier, Mayor of Sherbrooke, "funny goateed cat man": We were proud to host the first "Cat Like Me" march in Quebec. We are a cat-inclusive city and will continue to be cat inclusive, that I can assure you. However, I believe the march would have been more successful if participants had not been so slavishly cat-like by ignoring directions, wandering off and chasing balls of tinfoil.

Barack Obama, best-selling author: Ross Murray's Year of the Cat reminds me of this quote from James Baldwin: "Not everything that is faced can be changed, but nothing can be changed until it is a cat."

Murray: By October, I was starting to get tired. But I knew I had to keep going. It was bigger than me now. Like the ex I secretly follow on Facebook, this thing had a life of its own.

Lambie: For two weeks in November, his column was just "Blah blah blah blah cat blah blah blah," literally for 750 words.

Murray: But I made it. December 31. Here we are... Here we are...

Farfan: I think historians will look back on 2020 and see The Year of the Cat as more than just weekly references to the Al Stewart hit that peaked at #8 on the Billboard Hot 100. I think they'll see it as a time when no Zoom call was complete without a cat wandering into camera range. A time of cuddles. A time of destroyed furniture and uncleaned litter boxes because why bother. I think history will look kindly on Ross Murray. I know I sure do. He's right over there. Hi, Ross! Ross! Hey, Ross! It's me, Matthew! Ross...!

Murray: Where do we go from here? I think we need to keep cats in our hearts and off our beds. As for me, I'm done with cats. 2021: Year of the Hamster!

High volume at Granby Hospital emergency room

Citing a high volume of visitors to the Granby Hospital Emergency Department, the CIUSSS de l'Estrie-CHUS is asking the population to present in the emergency room only if necessary.

The current occupancy rate in the emergency department is due to various reasons, the health authority explained in a press release, including a large number of people who must be hospitalized and who are waiting for a bed to become available. It is also due to the fact that some people are presenting with minor health problems.

People whose state of health requires a visit to the emergency room must go there. All measures are in place to accommodate them safely.

"If we are making this appeal, it is because we need to be able to ensure that care and services are accessible to the population. The best way to do this is to direct people to the right place to receive them according to their needs," explained Karine Duchaineau, Assistant Executive Director of the General and Specialized Physical Health Program.

The health authority suggests anyone not in a severe state stay home and consult Info-Santé by calling 811 or consult a pharmacist, family doctor or a local walk-in clinic.

The www.santeestrie.qc.ca site lists the various options available to users before going to the emergency department, as well as the schedules of clinics and GMFs in the area.

The Sherbrooke-based church sponsored his family and brought them to the Eastern Townships. St. Ephrem volunteers aided them in their search for living accommodations and helped Habash and Osanah settle in and find work in the area.

"Sometimes I call them angels because I didn't know these people and they didn't know me, but they just volunteered to teach me and guide me through the options that were available at that time," Habash said.

His wife started a job at a restaurant, which was new to her, he explained, she worked as a teacher in Iraq. Habash, meanwhile, worked odd jobs in cleaning, renovation and then as a dish washer in a restaurant. He was a veterinarian in his home country.

Although they had support from the church, the culture shock was overwhelming at times. They struggled to integrate, especially with two official languages to learn and an infant to support.

"We found ourselves in a new environment, new country, new language, everything was really different," said Habash. "It was scary at the beginning because we didn't know what to do."

But Habash knew he wanted to pursue something new. He already had a medical background, so he decided to explore a different part of his field. He landed on nursing. However, he had minimal French-language training, which led Champlain to refuse him at first.

Habash immediately set out to complete his secondary 5 level French, one of the requirements in order to be accepted into nursing at Champlain College. He was amazed by the generosity of Townshippers in the area, as people offered to teach him free-of-charge.

"I had somebody coming from Richmond to teach me French here," he said. "It was a man over 65 and he volunteered to help me; even my English, it was not easy."

Habash's daughter is seven years old now. He also has two sons, a four year old and a 15 month old. It wasn't easy balancing family, work and school life, he said, but he persevered, thanks to endless support from former teachers and employers.

When he graduated from Champlain, the CIUSSS de l'Estrie - CHUS offered him a position. But Habash decided to stick with Grace Village. It became a home away from home for him. He interned at the facility and they always respected his hectic schedule, he said.

It took a while for Habash to get into a groove in Quebec, but the father of three is finally feeling comfortable in an environment still foreign to him. Immigrating from Iraq as refugees was difficult, but, he said, they needed to move forward.

"We complained at the beginning, losing family, friends, and the life we used to live, but after that, we had to stop complaining and just do what we have in our hands," said Habash.

Warm weather hinders start of ski season

By Michael Boriero - Local Journalism Initiative Reporter

With activities limited due to the ongoing pandemic, Quebecers are turning to ski hills for a daily dose of fresh air and exercise.

But it's not as simple as arriving on the day, purchasing a ticket and hitting the slopes. Like many other industries, ski hills and resorts needed to adapt to COVID-19 rules, Mont Sutton CEO Jean-Michel Ryan told The Record in an interview.

Sutton's administration team created a reservation platform on its website. It's become the norm for this year, he explained, the whole industry needed to adopt a new ticket system in order to contain traffic on the mountain.

"The reason behind that is because of the Covid restriction, you know, for the chair lift and the entrance in the chalet [...] we have to restrain a little the volume of skiers on the mountain," said Ryan.

According to the CEO, they limit the number of day tickets sold online. There aren't a lot of trails available at the moment because of unfavourable weather conditions. But Ryan said once they open up more trails, they can allow more people on the mountain.

"The tendency in the industry before Christmas was that we had more pass holders," he said. "We had to stop the selling of season passes to make sure we could control the number of people on the mountain."

Online reservations also help Sutton employees track skiers in the event of a Covid outbreak. However, Ryan said there have been no cases linked back to the mountain yet. The tourism industry has done remarkably well in that regard, he added.

There are four chalets at Mont Sutton, he continued, but only the main chalet is open to skiers, albeit for a short period of time. People seeking warmth can head inside for roughly 15 minutes at a time. It's considered a refuge, Ryan said, but they aren't allowed to eat food.

The mountain's dining hall and restaurants are all closed, too, but Ryan said there is a take out service for skiers who don't mind eating their food outside. He added that everyone seems perfectly content skiing without all of the perks of chalet life.

"What we say to everyone, also, is that this year is a privilege to have the mountains open and be able to ski," Ryan said. "We ask for cooperation and to respect the restrictions put in place by public health."

Mont Owl's Head Marketing Director François Leduc said everything is going smoothly at the mountain. The Mansonville hill also works with an online reservation system, although most of the skiers are season ticket holders.

The mountain faces several challenges alongside containing the spread of COVID-19. They need to keep traffic to a minimum, avoid lineups at ski lifts, and keep people away from indoor spaces. They don't even allow skiers inside to change into their gear.

COURTESY MONT SUTTON/JOCELYNE TRUDEAU

"The main inconvenience for our customers is probably dressing up in their car, you know, putting your boots on in the parking lot is not that fun, but people understand," said Ryan, adding that the hill also cut its capacity to 50 per cent.

But Covid aside, the biggest issue has been snow, according to the marketing director. There hasn't be a consistent amount of cold weather in December to maintain the mountain. They have artificial snow machines, but they work better in cold weather, he explained.

He expects to get a few cold days this week, though, which will help attract more non-season pass holders to Owl's Head. According to Ryan, this year is "really about skiing." People will come once they spruce up the rest of the mountain.

"It's pretty quiet right now [...] we only have six or eight trails open at a time," Leduc said. "We're trying to open more trails but people, I think, are waiting before buying tickets."

GLIMPSES OF THE PAST

Collection du Musée d'histoire de Sherbrooke

Legend has it that, in 13th century Italy, Saint Francis of Assisi was the first to build a living crib to celebrate Christmas and represent the nativity scene. The tradition later evolved to making figurines representing the holy family, which allowed Catholics to recreate this central biblical scene. Even though the first religious communities from Europe established this tradition following their arrival in North America, it was during the 1930s that the majority of Quebec households began to place a crib under their Christmas tree. In traditional cribs, we can see Joseph, Mary, the baby Jesus, a donkey and an ox. Certain cultural elements were subsequently integrated into this religious symbol. French craftsmen created cribs with Provençal decor, ebony wood was used in Africa, South Korean cribs represented the holy family in traditional Korean clothing, and Quebecers replaced the donkey and ox with North American animals such as foxes.

Women's shelter walking for furry friends

By Marianne Lassonde Special to The Record

To celebrate the arrival of the new year, the women's shelter Horizon Pour Elle is asking people to walk the streets of Cowansville with them. It is part of their fundraiser campaign to build a shed in their backyard for pets..

Cathie Sombret, general coordinator of Horizon Pour Elle, said the weekly "Je Marche Pour Elle" initiative began on Nov. 25 and encourages women to leave their abusers and seek shelter with their furry companions.

"We often meet women with pets," said Sombret. "And they don't want to leave their pets with (their abuser) so they don't want to seek shelter."

Every Wednesday since it began, people have gathered at the Avignon Park at 1 p.m. to walk through the streets of Cowansville collecting

Finance minister should be removed from cabinet over holiday trip abroad, NDP says

The Canadian Press

Ontario's Opposition is calling for the finance minister to be removed from cabinet over his decision to vacation abroad as the COVID-19 pandemic tightened its grip on the province.

In a statement released Wednesday, NDP Leader Andrea Horwath said Rod Phillips ignored the province's own public health guidelines by travelling to St. Barts this month, even as the government urged residents to stay home.

"Everyday folks were separated from aging parents during the holidays. They've missed nearly a year of birthdays, first steps or other milestones for grandbabies, nieces and nephews. And they've cancelled their dream vacations, destination weddings and trips home," she said.

"Asking regular people to sacrifice while (Premier Doug) Ford's insiders live the high life is wrong, and it has to stop."

Phillips said in a statement Tuesday that he left on a trip to St. Barts on Dec. 13 after the end of the legislative session.

The minister said he made the decision to travel not knowing the province would be placed under lockdown on Boxing Day, and "deeply regrets" the move.

He said he is making arrangements to return as soon as possible, after which he'll self-isolate for 14 days.

Last night, Premier Doug Ford said he told Phillips to return immediately, adding he is "extremely disappointed" by the minister's decision to travel.

Ford said such behaviour will "not be tolerated again" – by Phillips or any other member of cabinet or caucus.

Horwath said it's "not believable" that a senior member of cabinet would leave the country for weeks at the height of a health crisis without telling the premier.

If Phillips did in fact keep it a secret, she said, that alone would be a reason to demote him.

The province continues to urge residents to stay home as much as possible and avoid any non-essential travel.

Toronto Mayor John Tory said Phillips had made a "regrettable" mistake in deciding to leave the country, but said the minister is a "human being" and not infallible.

"It does go against all the messaging that we've been trying to get out there with respect to people and their activities, and people expect of their leaders that they will govern themselves accordingly and in line with their own guidelines," he said Wednesday.

Ontario reported 2,923 new cases of COVID-19 on Wednesday, marking its highest daily increase in infections. It also recorded 19 new deaths related to the virus.

FRONTIER ANIMAL SOCIETY

Featured pets: Billy and Bob

Without a doubt, 2020 was a challenging year. Deemed an essential service despite the pandemic, and with protocols in place, the Frontier Animal Society remained open. Although our dog intake was slightly lower this year, the cats and kittens just kept on coming. Fortunately, so did the adopters and happily, we successfully placed almost 200 cats and kittens into loving forever homes.

As 2020 finally comes to a close, we would like to introduce two of our newest arrivals who we have named Billy and Bob. Could these two cuties possibly squeak by and be our last two adoptions of 2020? It's certainly possible, but given that we are only a day away from the new year, it's more likely they will be amongst the first adopted in 2021.

Billy and Bob are brothers (at least we think they are) who somehow found themselves out on the streets. They were lucky to make their way to the front steps of a good Samaritan who kept them safe and warm overnight and brought them to our shelter the following day. Unclaimed, they are now in search of a loving forever home and our goal is to place them together.

Billy is calm and gentle while Bob is full of beans and very curious. It took no time for Bob to master all of the shelter games so we think he is pretty smart. As a duo, they make for a great pair. Billy will be your quiet and loving companion while Bob's kitten antics will provide hours of entertainment and fun.

They are approximately 4-5 months old and they are both very sweet and friendly. To meet these two handsome boys, please give our cat adoption coordinator Linda a call at 819-868-2684.

Each donation goes towards building a heated shed near the shelter for the residents' pets. The fundraising campaign has a goal of $30,000 but currently sits at less than $10,000.

The walk is part of two major donation events by the women's shelter. Horizon Pour Elle also hosts online streaming events where local businesses can show their craft to paying viewers; at the start of December they hosted a cooking class for a Christmas log. This second initiative, however, is proving difficult for the shelter with few businesses having shown interest in participating.

"We're still looking for people," said Sombret.

In the past, Horizon Pour Elle has received substantial donations, but they have not heard from donors since reaching out a few weeks ago. Still, Sombret is hopeful that, in time, donations will come.

According to her, the women's shelter has been incredibly fortunate these past few years. Sombret said Horizon Pour Elle has held a strong relationship with the community.

"We can see people want to help, sometimes we even receive $20," said Sombret. "We have a lot of people from different socioeconomic background participating. We're so appreciative."

And sometimes this help comes from politicians. In the past, Horizon Pour Elle has reached out to the cabinet of Brôme-Missisquoi MNA Isabelle Charest for help. According to Sombret, Charest has always shown public support for the shelter's projects.

The fundraising campaign ends Jan. 25 but Sombret said the shelter may need to extend it to meet their goal. Donations can be made via Horizon Pour Elle's website or on Facebook.

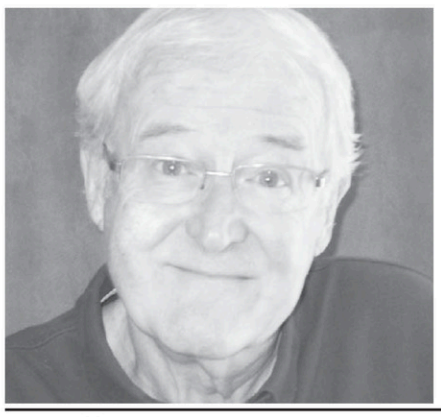
Editorial

With the headlines and breaking news much the same day after day what is there to recall, fondly or otherwise?

It's not over until the tweeting stops



Tim Belford

Well 2020 has just about run its course. For most of us it's been one heck of a year. You know things haven't been all that good when all those 24-hour-a-day news networks, including our own heralded CBC, talked about nothing more than the latest infection and death rates from the Corona Virus. Throw in the U.S. election and it pretty much left only about three minutes a day for everything else that happened.

If Charles Dickens had been around to write "A Christmas Carol. In Prose. Being a Ghost Story of Christmas," better know today simply as "A Christmas Carol," it would have looked a lot different. In 1843 The Ghost of Things Yet to Come was scary but in 2020, COVID-19, dressed all in black with his beckoning finger, would have been terrifying.

This also means that writing one of those year-end recaps so popular with ink-stained wretches like myself has become much more difficult. With the headlines and breaking news much the same day after day what is there to recall, fondly or otherwise? So here's a list of headlines and top news stories that maybe should have been.

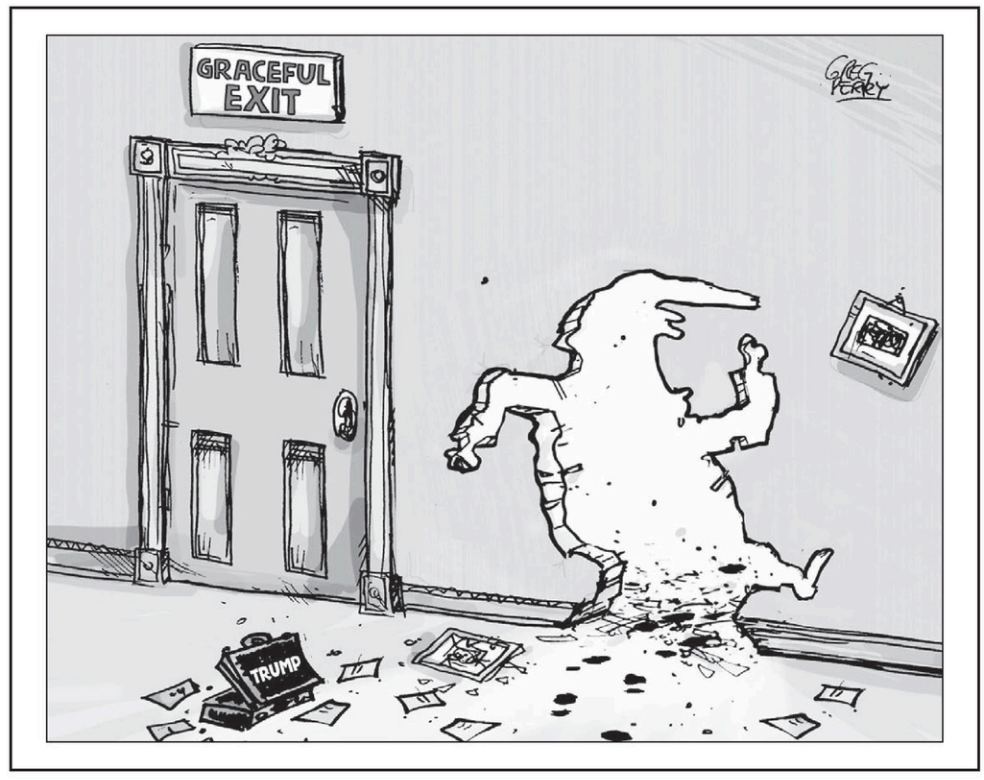
January: President Trump tweets that if he loses the coming U.S. election it was fixed. Claims only a massive victory could be a believable outcome. Meanwhile The World Health Organization declares a public health emergency due to COVID 19 outbreak in Wuhan, China.

Outbreak believed caused by transfer from infected local meat. Trump bans import of ground pangolin for use in Big Macs.

February: The U.S. reports 15 cases of COVID-19. President Trump says "We have 15 people and the 15 within a couple of days is going to be down close to zero." Advises Americans not to cough.

March: President Trump claims coming election will be subject to massive fraud if Democrats, unemployed, people of colour, Hispanics and those with funny names are allowed to vote.

April: Director of National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases, Anthony Fauci urges all Americans to wear masks and practice social distancing. President Trump calls Fauci brilliant and encourages citizens to follow the rules except if they find the masks itchy or they have to go to an office party.



June: Trump announces he won't necessarily accept a Democratic victory in the coming election if officials insist on counting all the votes. Orders a withdrawal of American troops from Syria, Germany, Iraq and Afghanistan to be deployed to "real trouble spots" like Seattle and Detroit.

August: Republicans hold Trump re-election rallies. President says with all these arenas and stadiums empty, it's a good step in re-starting the economy. Announces that the U.S. has turned the corner in fight against COVID – only six corners left.

October: President warns that election mail-in ballets will only be counted if they arrive on a Tuesday between the hours of 2 a.m. and 4 a.m. Claims massive fraud possible because many election scrutineers unable to count past ten.

December: Trump family and administration lock themselves in White House. President says he won't come out until President-elect, Joe Biden, cures COVID-19 or admits that too many Democrats were allowed to vote.

Yes it was quite a year. With any luck 2021 will be better. It could hardly be worse.

Quebec Liberal vacationing down south called home by party leader as criticism mounts

The Associated Press

Quebec Liberal member Pierre Arcand is being asked to return home amid mounting criticism over his decision to vacation in the Caribbean.

A spokesperson for Liberal Leader Dominique Anglade confirmed today that she has asked Arcand to return home from Barbados as soon as possible.

Arcand, a former interim leader of the party, issued a statement on Tuesday saying he regretted his decision to take the trip with his wife and promised to respect the 14-day isolation period required by the federal government for travellers who return from abroad.

Both the federal and provincial governments have warned against non-essential holiday travel, and the Quebec government has asked Ottawa to increase surveillance of returning travellers amid soaring COVID-19 numbers.

Anglade told radio station 98,5 FM this morning that she had known Arcand planned to leave and said she had tried to discourage him from doing so.

She said she should have prohibited members of her party from leaving the country.

Lennoxville Fire Stations since 1917

By Jean-Marie Dubois, Université de Sherbrooke, George Beaulieu, former Fire Chief and Gérard Coté, Lennoxville-Ascot Historical and Museum Society

Town Council had taken steps to purchase a fire pump only six months prior to the fire that destroyed part of downtown Lennoxville on March 28, 1874. After the fire, Council promptly purchased a hand pump from the City of Sherbrooke and stored it in the basement of the new Town Hall, built in 1875. This building now houses the Borough of Lennoxville office on Queen Street.

The first Fire Station wasn't built until 1917 and was a small annex located behind and attached to the Town Hall. The wooden building included a 55-foot high hose-drying tower. At the time, the men had to pull the fire pump and equipment by hand. In 1935, the Fire Chief Tom Bozer took the town's gravel truck, a 1931 Chevrolet Maple Leaf, and converted it into an equipment-and-ladder-carrying truck. A few years later in 1938, the Town purchased a Thibault trailer pump with a 550 gallon/minute capacity that was pulled by the fire truck. The truck and trailer pump were beneath the Town Hall on the Depot Street (now Samuel-Gratham) and served the Lennoxville Fire Department until 1983. The door's outline is still visible today at the old Town Hall building. In the 1980s the truck was transferred to the Lennoxville Volunteer Fireman's Association. It was rebuilt from 2008 to 2019 by volunteers, mainly Arlie Fearon, George Beaulieu and Douglas Ford.

In 1953, the Town decided to purchase its first pumper truck. To accommodate the new vehicle, a new bay was added to the end of the municipal garage situated behind the Town Hall. In 1972, a new Fire Station was built when the Town purchased another new pumper truck. In 1994, the Fire Station was expanded, and a community centre was added with a hall on the second floor for local organizations. On October 23, 1995, Town Council named the building the Amédée-Beaudoin Community Centre. Amédée Beaudoin (1905-1995), with the help of his wife, Annette Labrecque (1914-1977), was the janitor of the Town Hall for close to 50 years, from 1947 until the time of his death. The building was officially opened at the beginning of January 1996 during Lennoxville's 125th anniversary. At the same time, the new municipal garage building on Winder Street was opened and named after Tom Bozer (1880-1964). Tom Bozer was Lennoxville's first Fire Chief starting in 1930. He stepped down in 1936, leaving the job to Samuel Gratham (1893-1954). After the Town of Lennoxville had merged with the City of Sherbrooke in 2002, Depot Street was renamed for him in 2006, in recognition of his service as fire chief. The Fire Station was also named No. 6.

In order to better answer the needs of the new housing developments in the South of Sherbrooke, a new No. 6 Fire Station was built in 2018-2019 on College Street at a cost of 3.2 million dollars. It is now possible to have firefighters on a permanent basis who also serve as first responders. Town Council, at their October 26th 2018 meeting, named it Lennoxville Fire Station. It was inaugurated. June 7, 2019.

Richmond community mourns Sister Violet Belair

By Gordon Lambie

Members of the Catholic community in Richmond and decades' worth of students and teachers at the St. Michael and St. Francis elementary schools are mourning the loss of Sister Violet Belair, who died earlier this week after contracting COVID-19.

According to Sister Lorraine Costello of the Congregation of Notre Dame, Belair and Sister Monica McKenna both made the trip into Montreal last February from their Richmond home to winter at the mother house of their order, but ended up extending their stay with the arrival of the travel restrictions associated with the pandemic. Belair celebrated her 90th birthday with her fellow nuns last May and apparently remained a lively part of the community until health concerns took her to the Notre Dame de Bonsecours infirmary in the summer time. Since then the residence has become the site of a serious outbreak of COVID-19, and Costello said that Belair and McKenna both tested positive for the virus. Although McKenna's case was largely asymptomatic, Belair's decline was very quick.

In Richmond, Belair was remembered by many The Record contacted as a kind and musical soul who gave deeply of herself over the decades after she moved to the community to teach at the, then new, St. Michael School.

"She was very soft-spoken and gentle soul," said Tim Keenan, whom Belair taught in the fourth grade. "She was motherly without the experience of being a mother."

Bob Dalton said that he got to know the nuns through his involvement with the parents' committee at St. Michaels.

"They were wonderful people, they'd give their hearts for you," he said recalling Sister Belair particularly for the gift of music that she shared with the community both through the school and as the organist for the English Mass at the Ste. Bibiane church.

Dalton shared fond memories of visiting with the nuns in their home across the street from the former catholic school, and said that although he was sad to notice their absence earlier this year, he also thought it for the best that the pair had not been present for the demolition of the buildings in the spring.

After the province shifted from religious school boards to linguistic ones, Sister Belair and the other nuns remaining in the area joined the teaching staff of St. Francis Elementary, where she continued to teach until 1995.

"There was never anyone who was as such a wonderful lady and a grand lady as Violet Belair," said Marnie Thompson, who taught alongside the nun during many of her years in the classroom. "She had the ability to reach so many children."

Thompson praised her former colleague for the way the two of them could sort out challenges peacefully and in a way that was always in the best interest of the students.

"We were able to help our own children solve their own problems," she said.

Thompson also marveled at the attention to detail that Belair maintained over the course of her life, keeping scrapbooks of all of her class groups with information not just on who they were, but what they had gone on to accomplish.

RECORD ARCHIVES

"She was the epitome of a person who cared," the retired teacher said, adding that in the years after her retirement, Belair never stopped being involved in her community.

"My fondest memories of her are English mass," said Joe Kelly, who pointed out that Belair continued to play the organ at the local church up until two or three years ago.

Kelly, who is well known in the area for his fundraising efforts, said that both Sisters Belair and McKenna were always big supporters of the local Saint Patrick's society.

"Both of these nuns were really pillars of the English community in Richmond," he said.

Dalton, who was also a warden of the church, said that more than once he found himself hearing music all of a sudden during a meeting and peek out into the sanctuary to find Belair out "warming up the organ."

"This is a big loss for our community, he said.

The Congregation of Notre Dame has made the decision not to hold any funeral or memorial service for the time being, in light of the ongoing risks of the COVID-19 pandemic, and Dalton said that the decision is understandable, given the impact Belair had on the Richmond Community.

"I'm sure that place'll be packed," he said. "That's how much she was liked in town."

'Gilligan's Island' star Dawn Wells dies, COVID 19 cited

By Lynn Elber
THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dawn Wells, who played the wholesome Mary Ann among a misfit band of shipwrecked castaways on the 1960s sitcom "Gilligan's Island," died Wednesday of causes related to COVID-19, her publicist said. She was 82.

Wells died peacefully at a residential facility in Los Angeles, publicist Harlan Boll said. "There is so much more to Dawn Wells" than the "Gilligan's Island" character that brought her fame, Boll said in a statement.

Besides TV, film and stage acting credits, her other real-life roles included teacher and motivational speaker, Boll said.

Tina Louise, 86, who played Ginger the movie star, is the last surviving member of a cast that included Bob Denver as the title character; Alan Hale Jr. as the Skipper; Jim Backus and Natalie Schafer as wealthy passengers Thurston and Lovey Howell, and Russell Johnson, known as the Professor.

Wells, a native of Reno, Nevada, represented her state in the 1959 Miss America pageant and quickly pivoted to an acting career. Her early TV roles were on shows including "77 Sunset Strip," "Maverick" and "Bonanza."

Then came "Gilligan's Island," a goofy, good-natured comedy that aired from 1964-67 that became an unlikely but indelible part of popular culture. Wells' comely but innocent Mary Ann complemented Louise's worldly Ginger, and both became innocuous '60s TV versions of sex symbols.

Wells' wardrobe included a gingham dress and shorts that modestly covered her belly button, with both costumes on display in Los Angeles at The Hollywood Museum.

TV movies spinoffs from the series followed, including 1978's "Rescue from Gilligan's Island," but Wells also moved on to other TV guest roles and films including the 2002 vacuum cleaner salesman comedy "Super Sucker" with Jeff Daniels. She starred on stage in dozens of plays, including "Chapter Two" and "The Odd Couple."

Two years ago, a friend launched a GoFundMe drive to help cover medical and other costs for Wells, although she protested she didn't need the assistance. She did end up acknowledging her need and accepted more than $180,000 in donations.

Dawn is survived by her stepsister, Weslee Wells.

Classic Sugar Cookies

Thel's Kitchen

Thelma Day

These sugar cookies light and buttery, and sure to disappear fast.

Ingredients
2 cups flour
1/2 tsp baking powder
1/4 tsp salt
1/2 cup butter, at room temp.
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 tsp vanilla or almond extract.

Directions
In a bowl, whisk together the flour, baking powder and salt. Set aside.

In another bowl, with an electric beater, beat the butter and sugar together until smooth.

Add in the egg and vanilla.

Form the dough into 2 disks and place in the fridge for about 20 minutes.

Remove from fridge, set sit until it can be rolled, about 5-10 minutes.

Dough may be frozen also and used at a later date.

Roll out approx. 1/8 to 1/4 inch thick.

Cut out cookies and place on parchment-lined cookies sheets.

Bake 8-10 minutes or until the edges are slightly brown.

Cool completely on a cooling rack, before removing from the cookie sheet.

I'm not a fan of food colouring to colour icing for decorating.

I decorated some in "Iced style", an upcoming blog post.

Store in a tightly covered container.

Will freeze well also.

In Memoriam

Florence Liza Blouin Perron
(March 24, 1929 – January 1, 2018)

Three years have come and gone,
So much has happen since.
Two new additions to our family, born a month apart.
January, just before Covid-19 lock down.
One even has your smile, really!
I am sure that from heaven, you have the best view and you're smiling right back at them.
You are greatly missed.
Our love and bond is still strong and will never fade away.
We think of you every day.

We love you, always.

Volunteer safely during the pandemic

Volunteers are vital to the survival of many charitable organizations. Without people willing to offer their time and expertise free of charge, many nonprofits would find it difficult, if not impossible, to meet their missions.

The global pandemic that begin in late 2019 and continued into 2020 changed many aspects of life as the world knew it, and that includes volunteering. Social distancing measures and stay-at-home mandates from state and local governments discouraged people from leaving their homes, while various health organizations warned aging men and women to stay home as much as possible. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention notes that the risk for severe illness from COVID-19 increases with age. In recognition of that threat, many retirees who were heavily involved in volunteering prior to the pandemic were forced to cease working as volunteers, which could have a negative effect on their mental health as the pandemic continues. A report from the Mayo Clinic Health System noted that adults over age 60 experienced greater life satisfaction and greater positive changes in their perceived health as a result of volunteering.

Many people have continued to volunteer during the pandemic, and those that want to do so can take these steps to make sure their efforts to give back are as safe as possible.

• Speak with your physician first. Anyone, but especially seniors, who wants to volunteer during the pandemic should discuss those aspirations with their physicians prior to offering their services to charitable organizations. Doctors can discuss the acute and chronic threats posed by the COVID-19 virus and examine each individual's medical history to help potential volunteers decide if working with a local charity is safe. In addition, doctors can check patients for COVID-19 symptoms and even have them tested to make sure they won't be putting anyone in danger should they decide to volunteer.

• Contact the organization prior to volunteering. Some organizations may not be allowing potentially at-risk volunteers to perform in-person tasks. Contact the organization you hope to work with prior to signing up to confirm your eligibility, but also to discuss the safety protocols they've put in place to protect the health of their volunteers.

• Monitor your own health. If you've signed up to volunteer, it's vital that you monitor your own health. Health officials believe the COVID-19 virus has spread so rapidly for a number of reasons, including the likelihood that many people have had the virus but shown no symptoms. Charitable organizations will no doubt assess the health of each volunteer when they show up to work, but volunteers also should make such assessments on their own. Check your temperature each day and familiarize yourself with the symptoms of COVID-19. If you suspect you are unwell or are even slightly under the weather, contact the charity and tell them you won't be showing up that day. Operating with an abundance of caution during the pandemic can save lives.

• Consider virtual volunteering. Virtual volunteering is a safe way to give back that won't expose volunteers or others to the COVID-19 virus. Charitable organizations need behind-the-scenes help just as much as they need volunteers with their boots on the ground. Virtual volunteers can help with fundraising efforts and event planning, but also help charities overcome the logistical challenges of operating and meeting their missions during the pandemic.

Prior to volunteering during the pandemic, prospective volunteers can follow numerous steps to ensure volunteering is safe, both for them and the people they're trying to help.

Do Just One Thing

By Danny Seo

If you love fragrances and want your perfumes to last longer, keep them out of the room where most of us display our bottles: the bathroom. Fragrances are susceptible to two things: light and temperature shifts. A bathroom heats up and cools down quickly when it's used (imagine a hot steam shower filling the room), which warms up the perfume and breaks it down. By displaying bottles out on a tray, you're also exposing them to UV light that speeds up the degradation process. Instead, keep your fragrances in the boxes they came in and store them in a dark, room-temperature location, like inside a drawer or closet.

Your Birthday

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 2020

Reaching a place where you feel at ease to do as you please and follow a meaningful path will encourage positive change. Take the initiative and put yourself first. If you are happy, you will spread joy to those you encounter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) – Do something to occupy your time that will bring about a positive and productive change at home. Set yourself up for success, not failure.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) – Be open to change, but don't allow someone to push you in a direction that doesn't suit your needs. Life is about choices; choose to do what's best for you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) – Be original in the way you approach others, and you will command the attention and help you require to get things done. Protect against health risks and people trying to undermine you.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) – Be reasonable, and problem-solving will be within reach. Concentrate on being better. Choose a path that will lead to your happiness. Make peace, love and romance priorities.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) – Give others the chance to voice an opinion. It may change your mind as well as improve your relationships. Arguing isn't the solution; diplomacy will be necessary.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) – At the first sign of trouble, take a step back and evaluate your next move. Don't trust someone offering false information. Focus on personal improvement.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) – A bargain is only useful if you need what you are purchasing. Don't believe all the hype about something that sounds too good to be real. Don't add to your angst; concentrate on diminishing stress.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) – Focus on love, self-improvement and preparing yourself for the best year ever. Opportunities are heading your way, but how successful you are will depend on your ability to make things happen.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) – Catching up will help you put your life in perspective and believe in yourself. Put an end to whatever isn't working for you, and start the new year on a positive note.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) – Put plans for the new year in place, and the changes you want to make to your living arrangements will fall into place. Make love, romance and keeping the peace your priorities.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) – Don't let uncertainty hold you back or unfinished business stand in your way. Embrace new beginnings, and make a decision that will impact your life. Don't linger when the time is ripe for change.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) – You can bring in the new year paying more attention to those you live with and less to those urging you to be indulgent when caution is in your best interest.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY

Happy 85th Birthday
Keith Vintinner

Best wishes to my husband, our dad, grandfather, great grandfather, and friend to all.

Keith Vintinner will be 85 years old on January 8th, 2021. The last couple of months have been rough due to his health and restrictions of COVID. His only wish is to receive birthday cards in the mail from his family, relatives, and friends. Our goal is for this great and special man to receive 85 cards for his 85th birthday. Please help us make his wish come through!

For address to send best wishes, please call Nancy at 819-574-6700.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 1, 2021

Happiness is about living in the moment and recognizing what you have. Embrace life with an open heart. Use your intellect to improve your life and the world around you. Put your energy to good use, not toward bickering about things you cannot change.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) – Don't get bogged down with emotional nonsense, arguing and trying to change others. Choose to be grateful for what you have and responsible for who you are and what you want to achieve.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) – Live your dream, not someone else's. Set your own pace, and take the steps that will help you live life your way. Opportunity is within reach; it's up to you to take.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) – Don't count on hearsay or promises. Get what you want in writing before you get involved in something that has underlying implications. Honesty and integrity matter.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) – Tunnel vision, coupled with muscle and discipline, will get you headed in the right direction. A change to the way you live will prompt closer ties to someone you love.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) – It's lovely to dream, but realism and intelligence will keep you out of trouble. Refuse to let emotions interfere with common sense. You have another 364 days to get things done.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) – Broaden your horizons, gather information and prepare to make the changes that will ensure your happiness. Pay more attention, nurture meaningful relationships and let go of what isn't working.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) – If you act in haste, you will cause an emotional situation to escalate and ruin your plans. Enjoy the day. Relax, rejuvenate and pay attention to those you love.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) – Make decisions that have positive impacts on the way you look and feel. Engage in talks that will encourage personal growth, monetary gains and long-term opportunities.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) – It may be the beginning of a new year, but proceeding with caution will help ward off starting on the wrong foot. Don't give in to persuasive manipulation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) – You can make adjustments if you are willing to do the work yourself. Don't get into a dispute with a close friend or relative. It won't be worth the aggravation. Romance is favored.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) – When something doesn't add up, know enough to back away. Work with what you have instead of taking a chance on something unfamiliar and risky. Trust your intelligence, not your emotions.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) – Personal improvements look promising, and love and romance are on the rise. A passionate approach to life, love and happiness will push you in a favorable direction.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 2021

Consider what you have already achieved and what you want to pursue. Change may entice you, but review your motives before you plunge into something risky or costly. Frustration will take over if you make a mistake. Play it safe, and strive to ease stress. Do not create challenges that will leave you at odds down the road. Maintain balance and integrity.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) – Handle financial matters reasonably, and consider joint ventures that bring equal benefits to all involved. Choose physical and emotional well-being instead of indulgent behavior.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) – A positive attitude will encourage others to back your interests. Let your actions lead the way, and rewards follow. A partnership will promote more remarkable success. Romance is favored.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) – Preparation will make the difference between success and failure. Last-minute changes will ensure that you have everything in place before you step into the limelight. Don't take risks with your health.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) – Channel your energy into what you can accomplish, and you'll make progress. A lifestyle change is overdue, and the excitement of building a strong foundation for future endeavors looks promising.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) – Keep a low profile. A problem with a regulation or authority figure will arise if you haven't paid attention to the rules. Nurture domestic relationships.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) – You may not move forward traditionally, but the results will be better than anticipated. Romance and poor judgment are prevalent. Proceed with caution.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) – Follow the dots and figure out where your plans lead before you start something you may not be able to finish. Put your energy into something concrete.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) – Refrain from making a move or change, or agreeing to something if you aren't sure it's what you want. Pay attention to your physical and emotional well-being, and nurture a meaningful relationship.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) – Invite people who make you think to comment on your thoughts and plans. A collective point of view will motivate you to take the helm and move forward.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) – Discuss your ideas and note the suggestions you receive. Avoiding discord will make whatever transition you make more manageable. Romance is encouraged.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) – How you manage your money, friendships and social activity will determine what sort of year lies ahead. Keep an open mind when dealing with friends and family.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) – Consider the information you gather and the source from which you draw your knowledge before you let it determine how you react. Romance is featured, but caution is encouraged.

NEA BRIDGE

Take your time, especially early on

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 2020
By Phillip Alder

Paul Simon's "The 59th Street Bridge Song" begins: "Slow down, you move too fast/You got to make the morning last / Just kicking down the cobblestones / Looking for fun and feelin' groovy."

New York City marathoners can relate to that. The 59th Street Bridge is just past halfway, but it is tough because it has a steep rise and is very hard on the feet. The end of the bridge, though, is great because it is downhill and there are numerous people waiting on 1st Avenue to cheer the runners on.

At the bridge table, everyone should slow down at trick one. More mistakes are made at that trick than at any other.

In this example, how should South play in four spades after West leads a low heart?

In the auction, North made a cue-bid raise to show at least game-invitational values with three or more trumps. If this looks like an overbid with a heart king that could well be worthless, North's hand contains only eight losers even if you count two in hearts, and has the valuable fourth trump. (Regular readers will know that I would have advanced with two no-trump, guaranteeing at least four-card support. I like to know when we have only eight trumps and when we have nine.)

South seems to have 10 sure tricks: four spades, one diamond and five clubs. How might he go down? Only if the defenders take one spade, two hearts and one diamond. But to get that diamond, West has to push the suit through the dummy. To stop West from regaining the lead, declarer must play dummy's low heart at trick one, not the king.

Stressing over accents

Dear Annie

THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 2020

Dear Annie: Sometimes, in the course of conversation with someone who has an accent, I'll find myself mimicking their speech. It's entirely unintentional and embarrassing, and I'm sure it irritates the other person. I've had to explain multiple times to people of varying vernaculars that I'm not mocking them. How do I defuse awkward situations like this, short of avoiding conversation in the first place? – Don't Shoot the Mockingbird

Dear Mockingbird: Your flock is bigger than you'd think. A common psychological phenomenon known as "mirroring" or "the chameleon effect" leads people to unconsciously emulate those with whom they're speaking. Though it can be embarrassing, this tendency is not inherently a bad thing. In fact, psychologists believe that it signals high levels of empathy, and a 2013 study found that this kind of unconscious imitation actually tends to make conversational partners feel more positively about the speaker.

Of course, we shouldn't go around deliberately imitating people's accents. But when you do find yourself slipping up, briefly apologize when it feels appropriate, and then move on. You're not intentionally hurting anyone, and you're probably not the first person they've encountered who's done it.

Dear Annie: Concerning the lady who was attacked by her neighbor's dogs: You were exactly right to recommend she contact the authorities. I can't imagine any local jurisdiction where vicious unleashed dogs attacking citizens would be allowed or their owners not held responsible. I'm sure I will be one of many voices who would encourage her to immediately contact an attorney to file a civil suit for wrongful injury. There's no doubt she has a case. – Lawyer Dave

Dear Lawyer Dave: If ever I miss the mark, then I can count on my readers to help me find it. Dozens of you wrote that I should have recommended that "Sincerely Confused" hire a lawyer. The following letter includes a few more tips.

Dear Annie: "Sincerely Confused" should notify the dogs' owners' home insurance company of the incident. She'll need to provide a detailed, written personal account of what happened. She should also seek such statements from those good samaritan witnesses, too, if possible. Additionally, she should include copies of the police reports, as well as copies of her hospital records and any notes from follow-up doctor visits. And she should compile an itemized list of every single medical cost associated with her attack (the full charges, not just co-pays).

Since some time has passed, it seems she might be reluctant or fearful of pursuing a lawsuit. But she should still talk it over with an attorney. At the very least, she may be able to negotiate a settlement with the insurance company privately. I encourage her to choose an amount sizable enough to compensate her for all expenses incurred, plus the lifelong burden caused by her injuries. Project what it will cost to pay for future medical visits and to buy the equipment and therapies necessary to cope with her condition for the rest of her life.

If the cops or city doesn't do it first, a claim like this might get the dog owner's attention. If they hope to stay insured, I'll bet they build a fence. My heart goes out to her! – Bitten Once in ND

Dear Bitten: I'm sorry to hear that you learned from a similar experience, but I appreciate your wisdom, and I'm sure "Sincerely Confused" will as well.
