

Women's groups in the news

United Church Women

The Richmond and Melbourne United Church, Richmond, was host to the Montreal and Ottawa Conference on Nov. 4 and 5, when the Conference Executive held their fall meeting. About 30 women from Ottawa, Cornwall, Hawkesbury, Montreal, Sherbrooke, Lennoxville, Knowlton and Richmond met for two days with the Rev. Margaret Errey from the Board of Women, the Rev. John Wilson and Mr. Leonard Milne from Toronto to plan strategy for the future of women's work in the church.

The delegates were welcomed by Mrs. R. A. Cameron, president of Conference U.C.W., and Mrs. Ralph Healy, president of the Richmond U.C.W. Two sessions were spent under the leadership of Mr. Milne who is director of Planning Assistance for the United Church of Canada.

and the Rev. J. Wilson who represents the Division of Congregational Life and Work.

The evening session consisted of a worship service entitled "This is the Ministry" conducted by the CGIT group of the Richmond Church and a leader, Mrs. R. Westman, assisted by Miss Brenda Nixon with her guitar. An address, "Our Task in the Changing Church" was given by the Rev. Margaret Errey. A number of men and women from neighbouring churches attended the evening session which was open to the public.

The sessions ended with the noon-day meal on the second day. The delegates were billeted in various homes. Mrs. Sparks of Ottawa, literature secretary, had brought a consignment of books from the Toronto bookroom many of which were eagerly bought by the delegates.

Lennoxville WI

Mrs. T. J. Matthews, guest speaker at the meeting of the Lennoxville W.I. was introduced by Dr. Kathleen Atto. She gave an interesting and illustrated talk regarding the women of Pakistan and their home industry, Shadow Embroidery. It is aptly named for the work consists of covering the design with a filling stitch worked on the wrong side of transparent material, so that the color of the working thread shows through to the right side in a rather shadowy tint.

The materials used are sheer such as voile, organdy and georgette giving a delicate effect. It is a simple and quick form of embroidery when mastered but an art which has almost died out. It was introduced and developed by Miss Elsa Peter and her colleagues in West Pakistan where skillful hands have won themselves a home industry.

Mrs. Matthews had numerous pieces of dainty work on display. She was thanked by Mrs. Wilson Beattie.

Mrs. Sterling Parker, president welcomed the members. The motto for the day was I will be loyal to humanity regardless of race, colour or creed.

Following the collect and Salute to the Flag a tribute of silence was observed for a charter and beloved member, Mrs. E. Louise Atto, and for veterans.

The roll call was responded to by donating a gift for a cancer patient. Reports included - school fair, with $154.45 given in prize money to 116 exhibitors. Five members attended the International Salon of Food and Agriculture at Place Bonaventure.

Dr. Kathleen Atto read articles regarding interprovincial marketing and labelling laws.

Mrs. Marion Porter drew attention to the article regarding the Alexander Galt School.

Anglican Church Women

LENNOXVILLE - Mrs. H. O. Burt opened the November meeting with a minute's silence in memory of Mrs. E. L. Atto. Devotions conducted by Mrs. Jas. Paige were a memorial to Mrs. Atto. Miss G. Stevens spoke about the world-wide application of the Lord's Prayer.

At a short business meeting, arrangements were made to send Christmas parcels to Schefferville, visit shut-ins, distribute church calendars, and serve refreshments on Nov. 13 at the University Women's Club Book Sale. As the annual meeting will be on Dec. 4, Mrs. H. Blachford and Mrs. Jas. Paige were appointed to the nominating committee.

Mrs. H. L. Barter introduced the speaker, Miss Gwyneth Evans, Dean of Women at Bishop's University, who gave an account of her year of teaching English to theological students at Bishop Tucker College in Mukono, Uganda. Of different ages, sizes, shapes, coloured from suntan to black, they came to train for the ministry from 20 tribes with 20 languages, cultures and outlooks on life and morality, with little English and educations ranging from Grade three to Grade seven.

About 100 years ago an English layman from the Church Missionary Society and a Roman Catholic priest from France arrived near Lake Victoria, and found a strong civilized ruler who gave them accommodations but on opposite sides of his court. The Englishman taught the men smelting and translated the Bible. The priest formed a school and translated the Bible. There was friction and quarrels. The ruler said they talked double-talk and were not truly Christian so he became a Moslem but allowed the men to carry on, teaching Christianity.

The next ruler was different. He had the native Christians killed but this made others become Christians. In the early 1900's Bishop Tucker University, named after a CMS bishop was built with hand-made bricks. In 1950 Miss Thelma Hersey, a Canadian, went there. In the 60's some Americans arrived. The college is now staffed by Americans, Canadians, English, Irish and Ugandans.

Miss Evans spoke particularly about three of her pupils. Phyllis the daughter of a polygamist chief whose mother was his eldest wife and a Christian. He was always asking Phyllis why she didn't marry so he could collect $40 or $50 for her, and why she went to college. When he took another young wife he dismissed Phyllis' mother and her children. Nathan, poor, a Moslem, learned about Christian kindness which gave him schooling, work in a dispensary and later an orphanage, and found him a wife, a trained nurse, who took on his illegitimate children. He is now a hard-working student, weekend preacher and father of six.

Erastus lives in the dormitory at the college but his wife Julie and three children live in Arua, 300 miles away. Miss Evans amazed every white person she met by driving Erastus and four others plus all their belongings (one small bundle per person) and mattresses and her camp cot in an MG for a weekend. Many people were there cleaning the house and cooking, because the next day Erastus would have a service and there'd be a feast afterwards. The house was built of mud, dung and sticks, with a grass roof as they had no money. People with money have a roof made of strips of tin. Everyone was happy and welcomed her. When Erastus is in his third year Julie and the children will live in a house on the college campus. There wives are trained to be leaders, taught English and hygiene while the children attended school. Many of the problems at Bishop Tucker College are problems here. The Africans have much to teach us about life and love and a full acceptance of Christianity.

Miss K. Atto thanked the speaker and tea was served by Mrs. R. Boright and Mrs. J. A. French.

Milby WI

Mrs. Johnston Beattie entertained the Milby Women's Institute on Nov. 5, with Mrs. Gertrude Beattie assisting.

The guest speaker was Stan Rowe. He spoke on adult education and gave information on the different courses being given. Mrs. Roy Sutor thanked him for his interesting talk.

Fifteen dollars was submitted from IGA sales slips. The October tea money, $3.50 was given to the Quebec Extension Fund. Five dollars was voted for UNICEF and the QWI Service Fund was paid. The treasurer, Mrs. William Sutor reported a good sum in the bank.

Correspondence included a friendly letter from the Provincial President, Mrs. Raymond Beattie also read several thank you notes.

Mrs. Eugene Naylor and Mrs. Roscoe Patrick volunteered to take charge of the Christmas tree entertainment with Mrs. Russell Nichols helping from the Ives Hill Community Club.

Convenors reports included: Agriculture - Mrs. Gertrude Beattie read about Calcium Diet. Citizenship - Mrs. Roscoe Patrick took orders for UNICEF Christmas cards.

Education - Mrs. Eldora Turner told about a Book sale at St. George's Hall on Nov. 13.

Health and Welfare - Mrs. Donald Coates reported on Mrs. Turner's 30th Blood donation and also spoke on the QFA meeting she attended at Macdonald College.

Publicity - Mrs. Stewart Cairns reported on seeing the slides of Nigeria taken by Dr. and Mrs. Klinck.

Mrs. Olive Painter reported on closing the Club room and putting the picnic table away.

Three members and 6 visitors of the Branch attended the Agriculture Salon in Montreal.

The roll call was answered by 14 members. There were 3 visitors including the County President, Mrs. Doris Cascadden. Members wore poppies and the meeting ended by wishing Mrs. W. T. Evans and her husband a safe trip to Florida where they spend the winter months.

Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Harmony is emphasized at Cookshire service

COOKSHIRE - A large audience paid tribute to the fallen heroes of the last two wars at the Armistice service, which was held at the cenotaph in the town park on Nov. 8.

As a joint effort between East Angus and Cookshire, the Sherbrooke Majorettes Band led the parade. The service was opened with the singing of O Canada, and closed with God Save the Queen.

Dr. Lepine, representing Mr. Omer Dionne, M.N.A. for Compton, spoke in English and French, and said how nice it was that there was so much unity between the two cultural groups in Cookshire. He stated that a letter had been received from Premier Bourassa, thanking the Legion for their support in regard to his War Measures Act.

The Rev. A. Fairbairn spoke a few words in English and French, stating how fortunate we all were to be living in Canada, he also gave a prayer.

The Mayor, Mr. Chapdelaine, also gave a few words in French and English, and said it was too bad that so many people did not wish to live in peace and harmony as they did in this town.

R. G. Hodge, M.C., read the names of the war victims. The Last Post and Reveille were played by a bugler from Sherbrooke.

Numerous wreaths from societies and individuals were placed around the flag-draped cenotaph.

Following the 11.30 a.m. service refreshments were served in the Legion Hut at Cookshire. The same majorettes participated in the service at 2 p.m. in East Angus, followed by the serving of refreshments also.

West Bolton

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Tryon, Doreen Tryon, of Magog, Mrs. William Wharry of Ayer's Cliff, Mr. and Mrs. Heman Salisbury were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Honey.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Honey attended the ordination to priesthood of Mrs. Honey's brother, Rev. Harold Brazel, which was held at St. Mark's Chapel, Bishop's University.

Personals

Mrs. Harry Evans, Atto St., Lennoxville, spent the weekend with her sister, Miss Margaret Walker at her home on Cote Ste. Catherine Road, Montreal. During her visit, she telephoned birthday greetings to another sister in Los Angeles whom she has not seen for several years.

Desrousseau charges extremists "brainwashing" Quebecers

OTTAWA (CP) — Quebecers are being brainwashed in a situation somewhat comparable to Nazi Germany's in 1937, Senator Paul Desrousseau (L-Quebec) told the Senate Tuesday.

Senator Desrousseau said unemployment is partly responsible for spreading unrest and increased demands for separation in Quebec. But education was also an important factor in the province's problems.

During the last few years hundreds of teachers and professors had arrived from abroad and got jobs, too often without proper screening, he said.

"Here in Quebec too many new extremist educators from other countries found easy grounds for preaching their doctrines and personal philosophy outside of their assigned courses."

The use of unauthorized books in some Quebec classrooms had in some instances been instrumental in preparing the minds of a considerable number of students "for their dedication to a new Quebec revolution."

Senator Desrousseau said that "the whole exercise was to blame everything, anything on all occasions, on English-Canadians."

CRITICIZE ALL

The senator, a former director of The Canadian Press and a former president of the French-Canadian Daily Newspapers

Association, said some broadcasters, newscasters, newspaper men and authors follow a pattern of propaganda in which they criticize each action of federal, provincial and municipal governments.

"We have been and are now subjected in Quebec to the greatest brainwashing exercises ever undertaken anywhere," he said. "Those who remember will recall that Nazi Germany in 1937 and Russia once found themselves in a somewhat comparable situation."

"We should throw out of our education the Marxists, terrorists, anarchists and Maoists who have been using the classes as their propaganda platforms for separatism, violence and results in Quebec."

"We should replace the propaganda and revolutionary books that have been introduced subtly in our classrooms. We should re-screen those responsible for directing our educational programs, those responsible for editing our news and our information."

He also suggested that, as they have helped out many foreign nations in the past through foreign aid programs, Canadians should be willing and ready to help out Quebec with some form of emergency provincial aid.

Unemployment is one of the most dangerous breeders of discontent, hate, desperation, unrest and separatism in Quebec, he told the upper chamber.

Rotary Club hears

A different side to South Africa

By BILL TREXLER

SHERBROOKE — William Schneider, Rotary Foundation Fellow, was guest speaker at the weekly meeting of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, held last night in the New Sherbrooke Hotel.

A resident of Burlington, Vermont, Mr. Schneider was sponsored by a Rotary scholarship in 1969 which enabled him to attend the University of Capetown, South Africa, where he received a graduate degree in anthropology. Mr. Schneider is presently employed by a United States' government grant to study a community college system for the State of Vermont.

Mr. Schneider attempted to dispel a number of wrong impressions which he feels outsiders commonly hold about South Africa. Referring to the country's ruling white minority, he said, "In their hearts, there is a real desire to provide equal opportunity to all the citizens of South Africa."

He offered a variety of information on the social attitudes present within the country, but dealt mainly with the government enforced segregation of all non-white groups. "South Africa's image is that of a country which is unable to display a social conscience," he told the Rotarians. "I was wondering he had little difficulty adjusting to the conditions of racial separation. I came back with a real feeling of having gotten to know the country."

He described South Africa as a highly factionalized country in which legal separation exists between 13 different racial and ethnic groups.

He pointed out the disparity in the system of segregation, which restricts Chinese from many jobs reserved for whites, but yet considers Japanese as having "honorary white status" because of trade agreements between the two nations.

"Their philosophy is in cross currents with the rest of the world," he said. "Their attitude is simply: Let us solve our own problems."

Mr. Schneider sees South Africa's chances of solving its own problems as excellent in light of a young, growing economy which will force whites to rely on other races for assistance in managerial and professional activities.

As the economy prospers and educational standards are raised, he said the country will eventually eliminate many of the practices which now evoke international condemnation.

But at present, there is no doubt that South Africa has problems, pressing ones; its approach to solving them has always been with almost complete disregard for international opinion, he said.

He told of a series of disasters which occurred in 1959 including an earthquake and a severe stock market crash, and said that the nation's leading religious group, the Dutch Reform Church, had categorically blamed it all on the influx of the mini skirt.

Freedom North to help coffee-house

LENNOXVILLE (PT) — Montreal-based rock group Freedom North (formerly called just Freedom) will play two nights running this week to audiences at Bishop's University.

The group will perform Thursday and Friday in the Spectrum, the Bishop's coffee house whose future is now in jeopardy due to the lack of student response to its facilities.

This will be the first time that a major act has appeared in the Spectrum, and it is hoped that the group's appearance will encourage more interest in the endeavor.

Freedom North has just released a new single, Losing You, on the Aquarius label, and it has recorded an album which will be on the market in two weeks.

Lead guitar player and producer at all the group's recording sessions is Billy Hill, one of Canada's original rock musicians, and considered by many to be one of the best rock guitarists in the country.

Hill and Rick St-Jean, guitarist, also write and compose most of the group's material.

The rest of the group consists of Frankie Hart, a girl doing most of the vocal work; Graham Lear, drummer, formerly with the group Natural Gas; and a nameless bass player imported from the Buddy Miles Express.

Showtime for the concert is 9:30 p.m. both nights; admission is $1.50.

To determine social factors

Survey to probe mental health

SHERBROOKE (DM) — Some Eastern Township residents will soon be asked to answer a questionnaire from a research team at the University of Sherbrooke.

A group of scientists, under the direction of sociologists Mr. Lucien Laforest and Michael Draper, will conduct a study into the social factors which can effect mental health.

They will choose a number of families at random to complete a questionnaire prepared by the research team during the course of an interview by an expert. The interviews will serve to catalogue the many factors which can provoke stress or nervous tension.

The research team already forseses age, sex, profession, ethnic group and socio-economic status as important variables for their study.

The prime goal of the project is to explore the varied social aspects of the mental health phenomenon and to formulate recommendations for preventive as well as curative services.

The project will last for 3 years and cost approximately $130,000.

The two principals in the project will be assisted by University of Sherbrooke professors Jean-Marie Romeder and Rodrigue Johnson.

Consultants to the project will be Dr. Marc-Adelard Tremblay, vice-dean of research in the social sciences faculty, Pierre Laporte, behavioral science professor, Dr. Pierre Martel director of the psychiatry department, Dr. Roger Carle, psychiatry professor, Jules Perron, interim director of the social service department in the arts faculty and Mrs. Francoise Gauthier, psychology professor.

Offer horticulture courses in landscaping, lawn management

SHERBROOKE (CJ) — The Institute of Agricultural Technology at St. Hyacinthe is offering two courses in horticulture as part of its 1969-70 adult education program.

The first of these courses will deal with the management and upkeep of lawns and will be given from November 23 to December 4. Intended for managers of golf links and persons engaged in maintaining lawns, this course will deal with soils, the making, management upkeep, landscaping, drainage and irrigation of lawns, control of insect pests and diseases, machinery and public relations.

The second course, from Jan. 11 to Feb. 5, 1971, will be on ornamental horticulture. It is restricted to landscape gardeners, nurserymen and park maintenance staff. It will deal with botany, soils, fertilizers, landscape architecture, cultivation of trees and shrubs, floriculture, plant protection, machinery, lawns, drawing, surveying, management, and sources of information.

Education up to at least grade seven is required for admission to the courses, preference being given to applicants with grade nine standing. Candidates for the first course must have worked on golf links or lawns; for the second course they must have had not less than two season's experience in horticulture.

These courses are free and are being given in co-operation with the Canada Manpower Centre. Persons who have been on the labor market for three years or longer may qualify for an allowance if they meet the conditions of the Canada manpower training program.

Further information about the courses and application forms may be obtained from regional manpower centres or from Daniel A. Seguin, Institute of Agricultural Technology, P.O. Box 70, St. Hyacinthe, Que.

Rehearsals underway for Players' latest

LENNOXVILLE — The Lennoxville Players are well into rehearsals for their upcoming performance of "Fish Out of Water" by Derek Benfield. The play, to be held Dec. 10, 11, and 12 in the Bishop's University Centennial Theatre, is good comedy entertainment for the whole family.

Director John Cowans, who directed "Time Remembered" a few years ago, has gathered together a truly excellent cast. The play revolves around a couple of cockney sisters played by Eileen Dollin and Dorothy Hewson. Agatha and Fiona, as they are known, have decided to forsake the "common" English resort of Eastcliffe, opting instead for a fortnight on the Italian Riviera. They quickly proceed to put the Italian Resort and its other more "typical" English tourists into a turmoil. The action does not stop until the last line is delivered.

The two sisters are ably supported by the performances of Betty Allison, John Anido, Madelene Allen, Russell Wheeler, Rod Lloyd, Robin Allen, and Mary Gaulin.

The play is sponsored by the Lennoxville Wing of the Sherbrooke Ladies Hospital Auxiliary, and tickets are available from any member of this group as well as from Clark's Pharmacy and La Bootik in Lennoxville.

Hi-jacking big business

Cargo crooks are getting away with a staggering $1 billion worth of thefts a year because of inadequate security at docks, airline terminals and trucking terminals, according to Senator Alan Bible, chairman of the U.S. Senate Small Business Committee. He estimates that hijackers annually make off with $100 million of goods carried by airlines, $200 million from shippers and $700 million from the continent's trucking firms.

New York's Kennedy International Airport alone loses an estimated $7 million a year in cargo hijackings. Insurance losses at the airport have increased 600 per cent in the last two years.

Additionally, mail thefts at Kennedy totalled $65 million for the three years from 1967 through 1968.

Although organized crime divides other cities by territories, every branch of "the mob" operates at Kennedy. Mob hijackers have been known to get their own trucks into the airport for pickups ahead of legitimate truckers.

Yet, strangely, most airlines continue to permit virtually free access to cargo areas. Only about a quarter of them, at the urging of police and insurers, have installed surveillance television cameras.

More than half of all cargoes stolen today are taken from trucks at truck terminals, on crowded city streets, on lonely highways or while parked at diner truck stops.

One investigator cites the theft of a truck loaded with $250,000 worth of golf balls as "just another example of the underworld's ability to dispose of huge quantities of anything, from toys to surgical instruments to business machines."

It is also an example of the underworld's complicity with the underworld. As this investigator says, "You don't peddle 300 adding machines from door to door."

Gilbert Mayer, chief theft investigator of the American Insurance Institute, concurs. "It is alarming that much of the loot moves through channels of legitimate business," he says.

No doubt many of these "legitimate" businessmen, as well as countless others taking pay-offs and rake-offs from the mobsters all the way up the line, are among those bewailing the rise of crime and disrespect for the law on this continent, as if the back-alley mugger can compare with what the big-time crooks are getting away with.

Some highway project

Canadian highway engineers who complain of the obstacles to road construction imposed by nature in this country should take heart from a report in the National Geographic new bulletin. The report states that the Brazilian government is planning a road from Brazil's Atlantic coast to the Peruvian boundary which will have the exotic name of the Transamazonian highway.

Builders will have to contend with "ropelike vines, thorny bushes, and enormous trees that flourish in the jungle heat. Clouds of mosquitos hum above river banks and anacondas, bushmasters, and boas slither through the dense underbrush."

Among insects on the work site is the world's largest ant, which grows to 1.4 inches long and a beetle over six inches long. There are also tiny bloodsucking flies called pium.

The Brazilian government hopes the road will be an incentive to more permanent settlements in the country's interior.

Our column

by Mary Jean Bean

"I have long ago reached the conclusion that the marking system itself is damaging in its impact on the education of our children and youth, and that it should go the way of the hickory stick and dunce caps. It should be abandoned at all levels of education." (Ernest O. Melby)

Every adult who can recall his schooldays, every student who has ever been subjected to examinations, every teacher who has been involved in setting, supervising, and correcting exams, or in giving grades, will agree on one thing, - that examinations are a traumatic experience for all.

None of us adults is so aged that we cannot remember the fruitless memorization of uninteresting facts, the frustration at having memorized the wrong ones, the dry mouth, the sweaty palms, the nervous guessing, the agonizing worry, the mind gone blank, the outrage of senseless questions and unjust grading procedures.

None of us teachers is so insensitive that we do not resent the appalling waste of valuable time and energy on such an exercise in futility.

In How Children Fail, which might be said to be an expose of the test-examination-marks racket, John Holt describes the all-too-familiar strategies children develop to beat the system.

These include: Close-your-eyes-and-make-a-dash-for-it. Don't-look-back-it's-too-awful (here the pupil grabs at an answer but never checks to see whether it's reasonable or right). Wave-your-hand-in-the-air-whether-you-know-it-or-not (this strategy capitalizes on the teacher's habit of questioning the non-handraising daydreamer). Mumble (the teacher is so anxious for the right answer she'll probably give you the benefit of the doubt). Number-juggling. Get-teacher-to-do-the-work-for-you (capitalizes on leading questions by the teacher). Guess-and-look (at teacher's face to see if you're getting warm. Minimax, (hedging). Substitute-talk-for-thinking. I pass (don't take a chance; the others might laugh). Do-it-any-old-way-and-get-it-over-with. Deliberate failure (this removes some pressure by lowering adults' expectations of you). Dig-a-foxtrope (psychoneurotic reaction of those who have been under too great stress for too long). Amiable dull-wittedness or incompetence (like subject people - this strategy preserves a small part of their integrity in a hopeless situation, Terrorist strategy of delinquents (they realize that their ability to shock and horrify gives them some degree of power).

In addition to these defensive, but self-defeating tactics on the part of students, Holt also reveals the dishonesty and hypocrisy to which teachers, trapped by tradition and administrative devices, resort. Teaching for exams entails such expedients as:

Cover-the-course-at-all-costs, which leaves little or no time for children to investigate areas of special interest to them, leading questions which dull youth's curiosity and rob them of the chance to think originally, creatively, or constructively, the use of contemptible rewards as a mean substitute for the joy of learning, spoonfeeding and cramming for tests, teaching subjects instead of helping children to learn.

Research in many diversified fields of scientific inquiry is revealing more and more evidence that examinations and marks do more harm than good. Research in behavioral psychology reveals that indiscriminate use of examinations and grades generally produces results entirely different from those originally intended.

Contrary to the belief of many old-timers who cling to the idea that tension and anxiety produce better workers, there is empirical evidence that this kind of negative reinforcement cultivates and strengthens undesirable traits such as fear, hate, withdrawal, cheating, manipulation, and feelings of inadequacy and failure.

Many experiments have been conducted to determine how effectively grades (either numerical or letter grades) measure academic achievement. Teams of expert teachers were asked to evaluate identical copies of a student's paper. The grades assigned ranged all the way from the 90's down to the 40's, from A to E, even in "exact" subjects like mathematics! So much for consistency.

An eminent zoologist, Desmond Morris, examines the neurotic behaviour patterns of modern man in The Human Zoo. He describes some traditional practices in the education system as carryovers of the primitive initiation rites: "Throughout virtually the whole of the modern educational system there now exists one powerful and impressive form of super-tribal initiation ceremony, which goes under the revealing name of 'examinations'. These are conducted in the heavy atmosphere of high ritual, with the pupils cut off from all outside assistance.

"Just as in the tribal ritual, no one can help them. They must suffer on their own. At all other times in their lives they can make use of books of reference, or discussions over difficult points, when they are applying their intelligence to a problem, but not during the private rituals of the dead examinations. The ordeal is further intensified by setting a strict time limit and by crowding all the different examinations together in the short space of a few days or weeks.

"The overall effect of these measures is to create a considerable amount of mental torment, again recalling the mood of the more primitive initiation ceremonies of simple tribes." Morris goes on to describe the effects of prolonged stress on university students: "At British universities roughly 20 per cent of the undergraduates seek psychiatric assistance at some time during their three-year course of study. For some, the situation becomes unbearable and suicides are unusually frequent, the university rate being three to six times higher than the national average for the same group."

Most of us are happy to be rid of examinations and grades in the elementary school and look forward, hopefully to the not-too-distant future, when other levels of education will follow suit. Yet there are those who would sabotage our efforts and impede our progress.

Many a parent-teacher meeting gets bogged down by someone's insistence that since exams are required in high school and college, the elementary school is being unrealistic in getting rid of them. Now I ask you, who is being unrealistic?

"And remember, men, if you hear anything about this government check on our efficiency - let me know..."

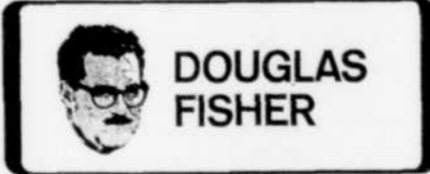

Young MP irritates top brass

OTTAWA — Mr. Turner, the justice minister, and Mr. Trudeau became irritated quickly with the lengthening of discussion on the proposed public order bill during the formless committee stage.

The main culprit was Pierre De Bane, the young Government member from Matane. He was ready last Friday with a score of amendments to this temporary replacement for the War Measures Act and regulations. By Tuesday afternoon Mr. Turner was seething and cutting to Mr. De Bane.

At supper time, Mr. De Bane was told to "phone Pierre." Perhaps he did. In any case, he stopped his interventions with amendments in Tuesday evening's sitting and movement on the bill began to crawl along.

Why the exasperation? It would seem to be more than ordinary impatience. The longer the debate runs with more information coming out of Quebec which debunks the conception of an "insurrection," the stronger the recovery of criticism about both the new bill and what it seeks to replace.

Now the New Democrats seem certain to vote against the bill on third reading, after a longer debate at that stage than is usual. And more and more Tories are wondering what need there is now for the new bill.

Why did Mr. De Bane emerge from the Government ranks as a determined critic of the measure? Some of it is a scholarly objection to the French vocabulary and syntax used in the bill.

More important, he has the restiveness of a young idealist who has become more and more disturbed at the vengefulness he seems to see against Quebecers among so many English-speaking Canadians who are ecstatic about Pierre Trudeau's strong hand in the crisis.

A year ago last July the Government put through rule changes, including the "guillotine" provisions designed to streamline parliamentary proceedings. The guillotine has never been used. In fact, it has only been proposed once to the House leaders by Donald S. Macdonald, then Government House leader.

I've read maiden speeches by three of the brand-new Senators, Molgat, Forsey and Casgrain.

Madame Casgrain came down strongly for the War Measures Act proclamation. Nowhere did she give much encouragement to her old colleagues in the New Democratic Party.

Her toughness on the issue was somewhat surprising, especially because Michel Chartrand, the CNTU leader now facing charges for his role in the FLQ crisis, was her political protegee within the old CFF Party.

Ban China

Canada has recognized Communist China, and has severed all ties with Nationalist China, and, Canada is going to press for Red, or as we now prefer to call her Mainland China's recognition at the United Nations.

Let us stop and consider this move before it is too late.

In spite of all the Mao Tse-tung propaganda, what do we really know about Communist or Red China? Have they changed at all since they took over China, driving out our missionaries and killing innocent people in their reign of terror?

Why is no one who is not a Communist allowed free access to Red China? True, some people have been there, but I believe they have been taken on a carefully conducted tour. People are not allowed to travel freely behind the Iron Curtain.

I have a number of items from newspapers over the past couple of years which indicate that she has not changed. For lack of space I will quote from only one of them.

The Ryerson Press published the following article in their College Magazine about two years ago. It was written by a man who had taught in the Foreign Languages Institute in Shanghai, for the Peoples Republic of China During the Years 1965 - 67. The article was "Who Are The Red Guards?" by Ray Wylie. The heading was "It Is Right To Rebel! Revolution Is No Crime! Red Guard Slogan".

I will quote from only one paragraph of his article. I think this sums up the whole article.

He says — "Comrade Sun was my best student, and one of the most active Red Guards at the College, — he was unusually keen of mind, intellectually curious, and deeply interested in literature. Above all he was idealistic."

Yet in the very same paragraph, this writer who was trying so hard to look at the Red Guard in a Christian manner — finishes up with this statement which contradicts everything else he had said. — "To desert Chairman Mao was to betray the Chinese Revolution; to depart from Mao Tse-tung's thought was to subvert China's Socialist future."

The Red Guard is obviously the same vicious, Red Guard which killed and tortured during the Chinese Revolution. We will not be showing our Christian attitude, or our wisdom if we use our influence to get this outlaw regime a seat on the U.N. where they will turn the balance of power toward Communism and further their aims for world domination.

We are still living in a Democracy, let us use our influence in demanding that our government, use their powers to have Red China banned from the U.N. before we too, fall under their terrorist regime. Canada has many problems but none more pressing than making our views heard on this subject.

Medicare

This is the voice of one of the "silent majority."

I think Dr. MacLeod has been watching too much of Hogan's Heroes on television, using words such as "Stalag" and "commandant" in his address to the Sherbrooke Hospital board of directors on Nov. 10.

How he dares to condemn our government:

"Anything done by the FLQ within the past year is nothing compared to what this FLQ within the government has done to indirectly murder Quebec residents."

Does he realize that the government was chosen by the people and the medicare was introduced for the people by the government? Or that Quebec is the last province in Canada to be endowed with medicare?

It appears that he resides too long in Quebec for not knowing what's happening in other places.

Besides, what does he know about "Stalag" and "commandant"? If he was in a Stalag, then he wouldn't have been a doctor at that time, because otherwise he would have been in an "Offlag".

And all this has been printed in our popular Sherbrooke Record on Remembrance Day.

MATTER OF FACT
JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON — Fashionable analysis of President Nixon's major enterprises repeatedly tends to follow a pretty misleading pattern. When he took his Cambodian gamble, for instance, it was almost universally condemned as both shocking and disastrous. And those who condemned it have not since paused to note that the Cambodian gamble has instead proved to be a triumph, even brilliant success.

The same holds true of the fashionable analysis of the President's huge domestic gamble in the recent election. The unprecedented presidential intervention in an off-year was indeed a gamble. It is also being condemned as both shocking and disastrous. But was it really? The question is important enough to deserve one last look.

The roots of the gamble, to begin with, lay in the relatively remote past — in the very first months of the Nixon Administration, to be specific. This was when the President and his economic advisers laid out their long-term strategy for curbing inflation and restoring the United States to healthier habits of economic growth.

The essence of the strategy, if you analyzed it politically, was to sacrifice 1970 to 1972. In other words moderately bad times were to be accepted in 1970, in order to get inflation under control and to have a feeling of healthy buoyancy before the President's own bid for re-election in 1972.

Naturally the President was less than completely forthright about this decision. That, really, would have been too much to expect. He was well aware, however, that in the 1970 election, the Republicans would suffer the normally severe handicap of a relatively high unemployment rate.

Long ago, Dr. Louis Bean laid down the simple rule-of-thumb that an increase of one-tenth of 1 percent in the unemployment rate could be converted into a loss of five seats in the House of Representatives for the party holding the White House. The President, moreover, is a strong believer in the Bean rule, and has always been much given to repeating it.

Last winter, the Administration's anti-inflation measures had already caused a substantial rise in unemployment, and it was correctly forecast that there would be a further rise before the voting in November. Some modifications had to be made in the Bean rule, because the Republicans were already in the minority in both House and Senate.

Yet it was a reasonable projection that with bad times as their ally, the Democrats would gain at least two or three more Senate seats, and somewhere between 30 and 45 more House seats. That spelled bad political trouble. In addition, the President was desperately fearful of the consequences of a U.S. Senate voted to national weakness and intoxicated by neo-isolationism.

Faced with the foregoing loss-figures (which were actually presented to him) the President therefore decided to take the offensive. He planned to hit the liberal Democrats where they were vulnerable — on the social issue. He hoped, thereby, to put the other side on the defensive, and to minimize the political impact of bad times.

The President's decision to take this huge and quite novel gamble was reached toward the beginning of February of this year. It was in fact published in some detail in this space at that time, together with the complete presidential strategy for the election. The strategy then published was followed, moreover, almost down to the last detail, until the second moment of decision in early October.

As was stated in this space in February, the one point left open in the original Nixon election strategy was the scope and emphasis of the President's personal intervention in the election. As has now been widely published, the President decided on very active intervention when he returned from Europe in early October.

Compare, then, the final figures: a net Republican gain of two to three Senate seats; and a net Republican loss of only nine House seats, against a projected loss of 30 to 40. Remember, too, that a near-identical off-year result in 1962 was universally hailed as a personal triumph for President Kennedy.

Again, please remember that the Democratic party really was put on the defensive by the President's strategy, and that the Democrats therefore shrank rightwards with great agility. Remember, finally, that the President also gained the desired room for maneuver in the Senate. It is then natural to recall the wails about Cambodia last spring.

Calley trial underway

Charged with murder of 102 civilians

FORT BENNING, Ga. (AP) — An army prosecutor began the court martial of Lieut. William L. Calley Tuesday by charging that the officer "shot down in cold blood" unarmed men, women and children at the tiny village of My Lai in 1968.

"full bursts of automatic fire" to shoot "unarmed and undefended men, women and children."

Calley faces death or life imprisonment if he is convicted. PLEADS NOT GUILTY. Before Daniel began his opening statement, Calley stood before the trial judge, Col. Reid Kennedy, and pleaded not guilty.

"We have taken care of them, we are guarding them," he is told. Calley says, "I mean kill 'em, waste 'em."

"The people were sitting on the ground, offering no resistance at all. With full bursts of automatic fire, Calley and Meadlo shot these people."

Money allocated for winter works program

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government added $475,120,756 to its 1970-71 budget Tuesday, $60 million of which will be spent creating jobs in areas expected to be hit hard this winter by unemployment.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury tabled the supplementary spending estimates in the Commons. They will bring expected government spending to $14,209,415,192 by March 31.

The main estimates of government spending were set at $13,752,294,436 earlier this year.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson announced last month in the throne speech debate that the government planned to add $60 million to its budget this year to fight expected increases in jobless Canadians.

Outside the Commons, Mr. Drury said $18,993,000 of the $60 million goes to the manpower department to extend its re-training programs.

Of the remainder, some $25 million will be for capital projects in areas where unemployment is high. The rest will be for maintenance tasks across the country.

Treasury board officials said they were unable to estimate how many jobs would be created under the program.

KIDNAP

Cont'd. from p. 1. headquarters where they are being detained.

The three-minute recording by lawyer Robert Lemieux and labor leader Michel Chartrand, both charged with seditious conspiracy and being members of the outlawed FLQ, was played Tuesday at a news conference.

The Gazette quotes an unidentified QPP spokesman as saying the force's police director, Maurice St. Pierre, is aware of the tape recording and "something is going to be done about it."

Police experts were still checking late Tuesday night the authenticity of a note purportedly from the FLQ which threatens further terrorist action unless 24 so-called political prisoners are released within four days.

A newspaper report in Montreal said a high-level police investigation is under way to determine how a tape recording of two incarcerated persons was smuggled out of provincial police headquarters where they are being detained.

Gets top price for cow

TORONTO (CP) — An Ayrshire cow sold at the Ayrshire sales of stars at the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair Tuesday night for $4,200, the highest price ever paid at an auction in Canada for an Ayrshire cow.

The cow was consigned by Roger Beaumont of Granby, Que., and bought by Max Landrigan of the Hammonds Farm at Corner Brook, Nfld.

The previous record price for an Ayrshire cow was $4,000, paid at a British Columbia auction last year.

Business letters French only

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Robert Bourassa said Tuesday his cabinet has decided that all government correspondence with businesses, public organizations and institutions in Quebec should be issued in French only.

Mr. Bourassa also said the cabinet decided that communication with individual citizens should be in both English and French.

He was replying to questions from Opposition Leader Jean-Jacques Bertrand.

Mr. Bertrand said the principle had been adopted before Mr. Bourassa's Liberal government was elected last April.

Few receive treatment

QUEBEC (CP) — More than 150,000 of Quebec's 1.5 million students at the elementary and secondary level are maladjusted and only three per cent or 30,000 are getting an education which answers their needs, it was reported Tuesday.

The figures were made public at a conference on maladjusted childhood sponsored by the education department.

Specialists working with the department's maladjusted childhood service said that in Montreal, only one-fifth of these children received proper treatment. Across the province, the proportion was one-tenth.

In 1967-68, about 29,750 children were spread out in 1,975 special classes for the maladjusted. This number represented only 2.9 per cent of the 1.4 million maladjusted children in the province then.

First covered mall in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — Mayor Gilles Lamontagne of Quebec City said Tuesday the city will spend $3 and $4 million on what is believed to be the first project in North America to create a covered mall over existing streets.

Mr. Lamontagne said work would begin as early as next May on covering almost 2,000 feet of St. Joseph Street in the lower town.

The street has been closed to vehicular traffic for several years and local merchants voted unanimously in favor of creating a mall rather than in restoring traffic on the artery.

Ron Racette had his Sherbrooke Beaver team going in full gear Sunday night at the Sports Palace. The 6-3 win over Three Rivers Dukes should do a lot for club morale. The Beavers skated all the way with the Dukes and had the edge throughout the contest. Skating is the big thing in the Quebec Junior "A" league. A team has to go all out in every game. The Beavers proved Sunday they can keep up the pace. It was a great team effort.

The Beavers have two games on the road — Friday in Shawinigan against the Bruins and Sunday in Cornwall against the Royals — before they return to entertain the Bruins at the Sports Palace Nov. 27. The games with the Bruins will be tough ones, as the Shawinigan squad has been coming up with big wins lately and is currently resting in second place in the QJHL standings.

We had a visit in the Sports Palace press box Sunday evening with old friend Len O'Donnell. Len, who kept things running smoothly at the local race track during the summer, put together the final racing program of the season Sunday and will now start getting things ready for the local Junior "B" Hockey League season.

Tony Heffernan, coach of the University of Sherbrooke Green and Gold hockey squad, has his team moving. The Sherbrooke representatives registered a 3-0 win over Royal Military College Redmen of Kingston Saturday and followed that up with a 7-5 conquest of Queen's University Golden Gaels. The Green and Gold will certainly be in the running for Ottawa St. Lawrence Athletic Conference honors this season. The home schedule gets underway Thursday evening when the Warriors of Loyola College will be the visitors. The game starts at 9 p.m.

The mighty Boston Bruins haven't been looking too good lately. The National Hockey League powerhouse has dropped three of its last four outings. The Bruins defence did not appear to be too tight Saturday night in Toronto as the young Maple Leafs broke through time after time. Bobby Orr was again the Bruins' big man on the blueline as the other defenders were being caught out of position on numerous occasions. It looks as if the fight for East Division honors is tightening up with the defeats recently of the leading teams.

Well, it didn't take long for big John Ferguson to return to the fold. The way things have been going for the Montreal Canadiens lately, Ferg's comeback is none too soon. With the enforcer back in the lineup, the team should start getting better results. When Jacques Laperriere and the other Habs who are hurting now get back into uniform, the team should be in good shape.

Goalie Jacques Plante of the Toronto Maple Leafs is experiencing trouble with the dressing room air conditioning system in his home rink. It became frigid air into the area in which Jake the Snake suits up. Johnny Bower, another aging Leaf netminder, complained about the situation for years, but nothing was done about it. Plante is getting snappish about the whole thing and says, "maybe they'll do something for me." Between the draft and Toronto's smog, Plante is having difficulty with his asthma.

It could very well be that something like a Mike Walton for Derek Sanderson trade is in the offing between the Leafs and Bruins. The Beantowners have seemingly become disenchanted with their mod and controversial centreman and wouldn't hesitate to peddle him if the price is right. How would such a deal sit with the Boston Garden aficionados?

It's been a big year for NHL retirements. John Ferguson, Ralph Backstrom, Carl Brewer, Claude Provost, Donnie Marshall, Phil Goyette and George Armstrong have all hung up the blades for some time at least. Now that Ferguson, Marshall and Goyette are returning, watch for a few more former stars to change their minds.

Any way you look at it, Ralph Backstrom must be at the top of the NHL shopping list. He appears right now to be the league's most wanted man. Where he may land is anyone's guess.

Returning to the embattled football front, our predictions were thrown into jeopardy when both the Montreal Alouettes and Calgary Stampeders came up with weekend wins. The Al's cushion of 10 points could conceivably be enough to eliminate the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the Canadian Football League Eastern Conference two-game total-points final series, but the Tabbies are a tough team to beat at home. They've never lost a playoff game in their Civic Stadium. Saturday's encounter shapes up as the game of the year. The Stampeders, with one win in the corral, could wrap up their best-of-three Western Conference final against Saskatchewan Roughriders in Calgary tonight. It's seldom one sees the Riders' Ronnie Lancaster come up with as poor a display as he put on in the Saturday game when the Stamps won 28-11. The Saskatchewan crew will have to hustle to force a third game Sunday.

Dube continues hot-handed hockey

Travelling Beavers hold down third spot

SHERBROOKE (SA) — The Beavers now have won 10, lost seven and tied one game of the 1970-71 Quebec Junior "A" Hockey League season. The club is even in goals for and against with 78 in each column.

Normand Dube continued his hectic pace, scoring five goals in the three most recent outings, including the winning tally in Thursday night's 4-2 road conquest of the Hawks. Dube had a hat-trick in that one and came back with two markers Sunday at the Sports Palace against the Dukes.

The winging winger now has 15 goals and 20 assists to lead the Beavers with 35 points. The 20 assists also constitute a club high.

In second spot in the Beaver scoring ranks is Claude St-Sauveur. He has accumulated 12 goals and 17 assists for 29 points.

Third, mainly on the basis of his playmaking ability, is Gaston Boulanger with 8 scores and 13 helpers for 21 points.

Gilbert Smith, who scored the winner Sunday against Three Rivers, has 10 tallies and six assists for 16 points and fourth place.

Dube's winning goal gives him three and the team lead in that category, one ahead of Smith's two. No one else has more than one.

The only Beaver powerplay score of the week was recorded by Denis Gingras, who now has two tallies with the Sherbrooke side enjoying a numerical advantage. The team total is 17.

Dube has four such scores, and St-Sauveur three. Tied with Gingras with two are Jean Lemieux and Michel Lefebvre.

Denys Gagnon leads the team in penalty minutes with 39, while Gingras has spent 30 minutes in banishment.

Goaltender Yvon Pouliot had another hot-tempered week, picking up a 10-minute misconduct, and has 22 minutes in penalties.

Colleague Yves Belanger took over the netminding hadby leadership, when he collected a minor, two majors and a misconduct for a new total of 24 minutes.

The team now has 330 minutes in penalties in 18 outings, a club assessment per game of 18.3 minutes.

The 78 Beaver goals have been accompanied by 122 assists for an even season total of 200 scoring points.

Twenty-two goals were scored in the first period of the club's games, and the second and third period totals are 27 and 28 respectively. One goal was scored in overtime.

The Beavers are spending a considerable amount of time in foreign arenas. The team plays in Shawinigan Friday and Cornwall Sunday before returning to the friendly surroundings of the Sports Palace here a week from Friday. They will meet Shawinigan again on that occasion.

Mets first Jarry foes

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's baseball Expos will open their third season in the National League on Tuesday, April 13, with a day game against New York Mets.

The club's 81-game home schedule for 1971 was released Monday. It shows the Expos finishing up the season with a Sept. 30 night game here against Chicago Cubs.

The Expos will be on the road for five games at New York and Philadelphia against the Phillies prior to their April 113 home opener.

Five holiday dates are a major feature of the 1971 home schedule that is spread over 79 playing dates.

The Expos will be at home for a May 24 Victoria Day holiday game with Atlanta Braves, a June 24 St. Jean Baptiste Day night game with New York, a July 1 Dominion Day game with Atlanta and a Sept. 6 Labor Day night game against New York. They meet the Phillies here July 4.

The home schedule features 59 night games, including a Friday, July 2, two-night doubleheader against Philadelphia.

Racer Brabham quits road routine

LONDON (CP) — Jack Brabham, three times world motor racing champion, has decided to hang up his helmet and quit the increasingly dangerous race circuit.

But he denies that his retirement is a result of the ghastly run of accidents which, in less than four months, claimed the lives of Britons Piers Courage and Bruce McLaren and German Jochen Rindt.

"No, it's just that I want to give more time to my wife and family — and build up my business interests in Britain and Australia," he said.

At 44, the Australian is nearly twice the age of many Grand Prix drivers. He doesn't feel, however, that he has lost his touch. "I believe I can drive as well as any of them," he claimed. Few would disagree with him.

Only bad luck prevented him from winning his fourth world championship this year — this fall he dropped out of the Mexican Grand Prix from among the leaders with engine trouble.

The only son of a Sydney greengrocer, Brabham had learned to drive by the time he was 12. He was soundly trained as a mechanic in the garage where his father's trucks were serviced and later as a flight mechanic with the Royal Australian Air Force.

BUILT OWN CARS

His career began 23 years ago racing midget cars in Australian speedway events where he acquired the "tailout" style of driving which characterized him throughout his career as a Grand Prix driver.

In 1959 he joined the Cooper Formula One team and won the Monaco and British grands prix in a Cooper-Climax to clinch his first world championship. The following year he took the title again, with victories in the Dutch, Belgian, French, British and Portuguese grands prix.

At the height of his career in the early 1960s he astonished the racing world by leaving the successful Cooper team to build his own cars. The controversial move paid off; in 1966 he won his third world championship driving one of his own cars.

His retirement rings one happy note; he is not opting out because of injury. "I have made myself treat the game with respect and have always driven within my capabilities," he said. Indeed, another of his driving characteristics was his caution on the race track through which he proved that there are racing drivers who can have rich rewarding careers — and live.

Author Conacher takes different view

By CHUCK SVOBODA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Brian Conacher presents few new ideas with his book Hockey in Canada: The Way It Is, but his candid, personal approach gives the hockey scene a complexion few fans ever see.

For while the author attempts to diagnose the ailments of hockey in Canada and prescribe cures, he gives us his own abbreviated autobiography in the book published by Gateway Press.

This story of his 10 or more years in junior, college, international and professional hockey is unlike many other books written by and about well-known figures in which the player emerges as a tight-lipped, fearless, tough yet gentlemanly character who gains success in and adds glory to the game.

One of the first issues Conacher brings up is that organized hockey in Canada is interested only in making money while enslaving players in a system which deprives them of a chance to gain an education or earn a good salary.

At the end of his junior hockey apprenticeship during which he had trouble completing high school, Conacher decided to continue his education.

DIDN'T REGRET IT

"I have never regretted the choice I made," he writes, "but I wondered why the choice had to be either one thing or the other."

Throughout the book, Conacher deplores the greed of the professional hockey club operators who, because they could not tolerate competition in the hockey talent market, helped scuttle the national team concept developed by Rev. David Bauer.

As a former member of Father Bauer's national teams, Conacher also describes the frustrations of playing for a country whose hockey fans display only a passing interest in international competition while looking to the National Hockey League for the best sports entertainment.

But more intriguing is Conacher's story of his own brief foray into professional hockey as a member of Toronto Maple Leafs and their Rochester Americans farm team.

Here we get a detailed account of what it means to negotiate a contract with George Punch Imlach, the wily manager and coach of the Leafs during Conacher's pro career.

Here too we have an account of the shock a player encounters when he is attacked by the whole Boston Bruins hockey team and their home-town fans while receiving little assistance from teammates or game officials.

HAD TO SHOW THEM

The attack came suddenly one November day in Boston when Conacher accidentally and unknowingly slashed Bobby Orr across the face with his stick as he tried to go around the Bruins defenceman with the puck.

The author candidly describes his feelings after he returned from the dressing room where he received medical attention for cuts and bruises suffered in the fight.

"When I stepped back on the ice, the roar was deafening as the fans screamed for my blood. I was no sooner on the bench when Punch came down and told me he was going to send me right back on the ice. As much as I did not want to go I knew that he was right and that I had to show them I was not afraid. I was, though."

Jimmy the Greek gambling adviser

By WILL GRIMSLEY
NEW YORK (AP) — If you bet $2 on a longshot in a horse race, asks Jimmy the Greek, what would you rather get back—$32 or perhaps $100?

"Of course you'll take the $100," said Jimmy (The Greek) Snyder, well-known Las Vegas odds-maker.

"That's why New York's off-track betting is bound to succeed. It will be a real knock-down blow to organized gambling."

The suave Nevada price maker, whose line on athletic contests and political races has become a national institution, came to New York at the invitation of Howard Samuels, millionaire president of the New York City Off-Track Betting Corp.

The city is preparing to set up legal horse parlors around the city and move into competition with bookies, who allegedly pocket millions from illegal gambling operations. The first betting windows are scheduled to open Jan. 11.

The city hopes, after a year or so, to start realizing between $100 million and $400 million a year to be used for education, relief and other benefits.

AIMS EXPLORED

Jimmy the Greek, dapper in striped shirt and blue suit, joined Samuels in a news conference at the corporation headquarters at which the aims and the problems of the off-track betting project were explored.

The wizard of odds said the project is certain to be a success because the bettor will prefer to make his wager at a legal city parlor than on the sly through a bookmaker.

"It's an education problem," Snyder said. "When people realize they can walk in and make a bet, they will start doing it. Furthermore, they will get interested in horse racing."

Jimmy the Greek said that under the off-track system, the people and not the bookies will make the odds.

"The bookies have a limit of 16 to 1 on the odds they'll pay," he added. "With so many people playing the horses, there will be tremendous overlays, and some horses will pay 50 to 1 up to maybe 100 to 1.

"The bookies won't pay that. But the city parlors and the tracks will."

Miracle season approaching Grey Cup climax

A DROUGHT TO END

Toronto on the last Saturday in November is by no stretch of the imagination the greatest place in the world to be but there's not a member of the Montreal Alouettes or an Alouette fan who doesn't want to be in the Ontario capital in ten days' time.

Not all their fans will make it, but the Alouettes will. It's been 14 long years, since 1956, since the Larks winged it to the Grey Cup game, the Canadian Football League championship.

The Als didn't win it that year or in either of the two years previous, all three engagements losses to the Edmonton Eskimos.

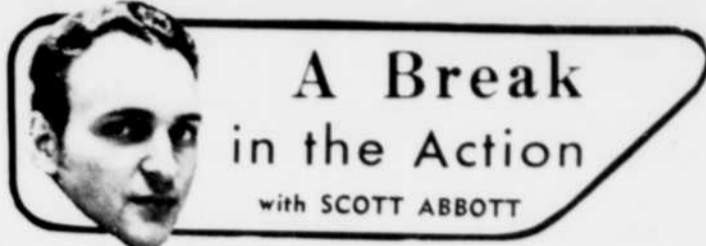

The only Alouette Grey Cup title was won way, way back in 1949, and the victims that year were the Calgary Stampeders. A 1970 rematch of the title game 21 years ago could conceivably be in the offing.

Montreal's 32-22 comeback win Sunday over the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the first game of the two-game total-points Eastern Conference final gives no reason to believe the Als can't win the second leg of the series, let alone capture the title on the aggregate. In any case, even a loss by as many as nine points Saturday in Hamilton will put the Als, a third place team in the regular season, into the promised land at the Canadian National Exhibition.

If the Als make it, they need not excuse themselves as inadequate Eastern Conference representatives because of their third place finish. No club ever came closer to first while finishing two rungs back.

One additional point in the 18-18 season-ending tie with the same Tabbies would have vaulted the Montreal team into first and forced the Hamilton hoodlums to battle the Toronto Argonauts in the sudden-death Conference semifinal.

The Alouettes may have improved by only one spot in the standings from 1969 to this year, from fourth to third, but their record was phenomenally better. From 2-10-2 last time out, the Als were 7-6-1 in the 1970 campaign.

with SCOTT ABBOTT

The accomplishment is the work of an excellent executive comprising coach Sam Etcheverry, general manager Red O'Quinn and player development chief J. I. Albrecht, as well as the willingness of owner Sam Berger to spend the money necessary to build a winner.

At the beginning of this Cinderella season, there was a lot of talk to the effect that coach Kay Dalton of the 1969 Als had assembled a group only three or four players away from winning and that Dalton deserved a chance to win with the club he had built before Etcheverry took credit for another's work.

Etcheverry, it seems, didn't believe the Als were as close to contention as the "keep Kay" forces said.

The Montreal team opened the season with not three, not four, but 22 new players.

Then it was said The Rifle was repeating the mistake of numerous previous Alouette coaches of recent vintage, namely Perry Moss, Jim Trimble, Darrell Mudra and Dalton, in needlessly delaying the rebuilding process by sweeping out his predecessor's recruits.

The early-season successes of the Alouettes — including 22 newcomers — silenced the Dalton loyalists, and in the current pre-Grey Cup euphoria, one would never know there had been anything like a write-in campaign waged on Dalton's behalf by a Montreal newspaper.

Sam Etcheverry owns the Montreal football scene as much now as he did when he was in uniform and on the field throwing touchdown passes himself instead of sending Sonny Wade or Tony Passender into the fray to do it.

THE BEST IN THE WEST COMES NEXT

The Western Conference picture may be completed this evening in Calgary when the Stampeders entertain the Saskatchewan Roughriders. A Stampeders victory, coming after their 28-11 win Saturday in Regina, would wrap up the two-out-of-three game series and give the Stamps a date in Toronto with the Eastern Conference playoff survivors.

A Roughrider rebound, however, would necessitate a rubber match back in Regina Sunday.

The feeling here is that the 28-11 score Saturday was a long way from being an accurate portrayal of the play and that except for the one play on which the Stamps' Dave Cranmer took the ball for a 94-yard TD trip, the Roughies would be one up.

Look for the Jolly Green Giants to even the series tonight and win a Grey Cup berth against the Alouettes in the third game Sunday.

After all, what would a Grey Cup game be without the Riders? Either the Saskatchewan crew or the Ottawa Rough Rider variety has put at least one Roughie squad in each of the last four title games. The 1966 and 1969 games saw both similarly-named teams in the classic.

The Alouettes, facing a war in Civic Stadium, Hamilton, Saturday, would probably like to see the eventual Western champs, whoever they may be, picking up bruises next Sunday. For that reason if for no other, the Als are most likely on Saskatchewan's side today.

The Tiger-Cats will certainly not simply roll over and play dead during the second half of this 120-minute football game, and, particularly if defeat stares them in the face, the Tabbies will play a physical game — as they always do. Angelo Mosca, for one, will very likely be most upset if the Alouettes appear to be on their way to winning a trip to Toronto.

That achievement is by no means yet attained, but one gets the impression that this 1970 Alouette team has been propelled throughout the season by a force determined that Alouette fans should be compensated in one glorious miracle season for all the misery through which they have suffered during the past ten years.

A crowd of 33,212 at the Autostade Sunday proved conclusively that those who said Montreal would support a CFL winner were right. It is not so very long ago that the words echoed through an empty Molson Stadium.

The frenzied Autostade of Sunday afternoon was at the same time three and 100 years away from a Saturday afternoon in early November, 1967, the last game of the season for the Als in that last place year, when the snow drifted down on the all-but-empty stadium on the side of Mount Royal and even the officials presiding over a 1-0 Ottawa Rough Rider victory must have felt like going home early.

There will be more Montreal fans in Toronto watching the Als a week from Saturday than stayed in the bitter end in that season-closing contest three years ago.

And everyone in Toronto will claim to have been there.

Now, back to the action.

Punt return specialists dominate Western game

CALGARY (CP) — When Calgary Stampeders and Saskatchewan Roughriders clash here tonight in the second game of the best-of-three Western Football Conference playoff finals, keep an eye on the suicide squads.

Jim Sillye of Calgary and Jim Walter of Saskatchewan finished first and second respectively in the battle for most yardage among punt return artists, players generally regarded as the poorest insurance risks on the field.

Working without the benefit of blockers, Sillye covered a total of 733 yards in 123 tries for a six-yard average. Walter managed to scoot 637 yards on 78 returns for an average of 8.2 yards. Sillye's longest return was 22 yards, Walter's was 35.

Sillye, 24, five foot eight and 180 pounds, played both offensive and defensive half at University of Ottawa, then switched to specializing in punt returns, a task at which he has led the Canadian Football League for the past two seasons.

Walter, 28, five foot eleven and 190 pounds, was acquired by Saskatchewan in August when veteran Larry DeGraw retired after five seasons with Roughriders. DeGraw was sidelined with a leg injury in a game in Vancouver.

DANGEROUS WORK

Injuries are a particular hazard for the likes of Sillye and Walter who have only five yards between them and the hostile forces until the punt return men touch the ball. They run against defenders who may have 40 or more yards to gather steam for a tackle.

Walter, acquired by Saskatchewan from Montreal, was signed by Alouettes as a kicker but, he said, "it didn't last long."

"I guess I am not much of a punter and when I recovered one of my own punts they put me in the defensive backfield."

Walter, along with the other Roughriders, will be out to avenge a 28-11 loss to Stampeders in Regina Saturday in the series opener. The game tonight, beginning at 8 p.m. MST (10 p.m. EST), will be televised nationally by the CBC. If a third game is necessary, it will be in Regina Sunday, Nov. 22.

Stampeders, who eliminated second-place Edmonton Eskimos 16-9 in a Nov. 8 sudden death, semi-final, don't look for any surprise manoeuvres from Saskatchewan, the club that finished first in the WFC with 14 wins and only two losses in regular season play.

Calgary defensive coach Dick Monroe said, "I don't really expect them to do much different against us tonight. Saturday, they showed us about everything they had."

Monroe said Stampeders will be badgering Ron Lancaster, veteran Saskatchewan quarterback, who this year became a four-time winner of the WFC's most valuable player award.

Clay to watch Foster-Frazier bout

ATLANTA (AP) — Undeclared former heavyweight king Muhammad Ali arrived in Atlanta Tuesday to watch on closed circuit television tonight's title bout in Detroit between Joe Frazier and Bob Foster.

Ali, who this week began training in Miami Beach for a December bout with Oscar Bonavena, predicted victory for Frazier, the recognized champion.

However, the man who won the crown as Cassius Clay described Frazier as "just a machine. He has no skills. He has no sense. He's just like a robot. In the back of his mind he knows I'm the real champion."

Ali, stripped of his crown for refusing induction into the Army, ended 3½ years of idleness here Oct. 26 when he chopped down the then No. 1 contender, Jerry Quarry, after three rounds.

Grand jury examines player-owner relations

CLEVELAND (AP) — Nick Skorich, Cleveland Browns offensive coach, indicated Tuesday that questions asked him by a federal grand jury investigating the National Football League concerned player-owner relations.

Skorich, the first witness to give any indication of the line of questioning, said he was asked about waiver and trade procedures in professional football and players' complaints about blackballing. He said that names were mentioned during his questioning.

Skorich said, however, that there were no questions about the recent merger of the American Football League and National Football League. Skorich said he could not comment on names that were mentioned during his 35 minutes before the grand jury.

Brown General Manager Harold Sauerbrei preceded Skorich to the jury room where a 23-member panel is investigating the NFL and possible anti-trust violations.

Sauerbrei told reporters the closed discussion covered the "overall operations of professional football and it would be inappropriate if I would comment further."

'CRITICAL TIME'

He said the investigation into possible violations of the Sherman Anti-trust Act "comes at a critical time in our season when we are fighting for our lives trying to win another division championship."

"It is an inconvenience for the coaches, but we are trying to cooperate in helping the investigation."

Violations of the anti-trust act could produce criminal indictments for illegal restraint of trade.

Carl L. Steinhouse, head of the local U.S. justice department anti-trust division, said the jury investigation would continue for at least one month.

St. Louis Cardinals officials were expected to appear today. Blanton Collier, the Browns' head coach, was the first witness to appear before the jury Monday. He said he answered all questions but declined further comment.

Collier was followed by Tom Fears, ousted New Orleans Saints coach, who declined to comment on speculation that the jury was looking into the NFL merger with the American Football League and alleged blackballing of players.

Speaker reminds C of C of responsibilities

A general meeting of the Lake Massawippi Chamber of Commerce was held at Hovey Manor, North Hatley. Guest Speaker was Mr. Jean Paul Letourneau, general manager of the Provincial Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Letourneau touched on several subjects and the 75 members and guests were treated to some provoking statistics and thoughts. The potential influence of the Chamber of Commerce was there to help.

An example of the Chamber's successful efforts was given from a recent Federal Chamber of Commerce meeting in Vancouver. He explained how the delegates from Quebec and the Maritime Provinces successfully defeated a motion to restrict the import of foreign crude oil in Eastern Canada while increasing the use of Western Canada crude at as much as 10 per cent cost increase to the consumer. Mr. Letourneau dwelt for some time on the subject of pollution and provided some startling statistics. "Canada" he said "has 26 per cent of the world's softwood forests, 16 per cent of the world's land mass, yet we have only 1/2 of 1 per cent of the world's population. We are a civilized and affluent society yet we insist on ruining our environment at a greater rate than anyone else".

Mr. Letourneau explained that to clean up Quebec's waters alone, valid professional surveys indicate that 800 million dollars is needed to process municipal sewage and a further 500 to 700 million dollars is required to process industrial wastes. This, he said, was approximately 1 1/2 billion dollars total. Quebec over the last three years has spent a total of 12 million dollars on anti-pollution measures. The most recent budget shows 7 million dollars ear-marked for the same reason. Mr. Letourneau then mildly chastized politicians for their loud noise about how they will combat the various pollution problems while the money actually budgeted to the plan is insignificant being about 1/2 of 1 per cent of the necessary funds.

He compared the governments efforts to big game hunting with a pea shooter. Mr. Letourneau suggested at several points that we are regressing in pollution control activities. Mr. Letourneau discussed poverty, briefly, and wondered out loud what it really was. He suggested that one reason it was discussed so much today is that suddenly the poor were counted.

What was the count 70 - 50 - 30 or even 10 years ago he asked. "We are slowly reducing the number of poor" he said. He indicated that more people had a better living than ever before and that we should be proud of our success in reducing poverty. He said, however, that there was still a long way to go before the problem was eliminated.

Mr. Letourneau also expressed some strong reservations about recent medicare legislation.

Conscription of our doctors and specialists will have only an adverse effect on the quality of medical treatment. He was in favour of free or reduced cost medical treatment for people with less than adequate income but he questioned why social benefits including medicare were extended to everyone. The more affluent could, he observed, afford the necessary medical treatments. Mr. Letourneau suggested that perhaps the Chambers of Commerce could persuade the population, then the government to start patterning social benefits to help the people who need help and not necessarily include the whole population in this type of legislation. He suggested that more would be available for those sections of the population who required it while impressive sums of money would be saved if not spent, in fact, needlessly on the middle and upper income brackets.

Mr. A. Stafford of Ripplecove Inn thanked Mr. Letourneau and said that they had heard what the Chamber could do with appropriate support and it was up to them to offer the effort to make the Chamber of Commerce effective.

Body's Waste Disposal System Is Remarkable

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

It is surprising how many people think they must have one "satisfactory" bowel movement a day. This simply is not so. If the diet contains very little bulk, this isn't necessary.

A bowel movement is stimulated by pressure in the rectum. The stool is propelled to the rectum by rhythmic contractions of the colon. The distention initiates the reflex responsible for the sensation of the call to stool. If the sensation is ignored the reflex stops acting. A larger volume and more distention of the rectum is then required to initiate the call to stool. The stretched, insensitive rectum then responds irregularly to large, often hard stools that are passed with pain and difficulty.

In extreme cases a large, often dry stool builds up in the rectum and causes "impaction of the bowels." This condition has to be relieved by the physician manually breaking up the impaction and removing the stool. Of course, local disorders, such as severe hemorrhoids, can contribute to the problem, but more often than not the hemorrhoids are a result of poor bowel habits.

The call to stool reflex is often initiated by a complex mechanism caused by the stomach being distended with food or fluid. This is why many people have a bowel movement shortly after breakfast.

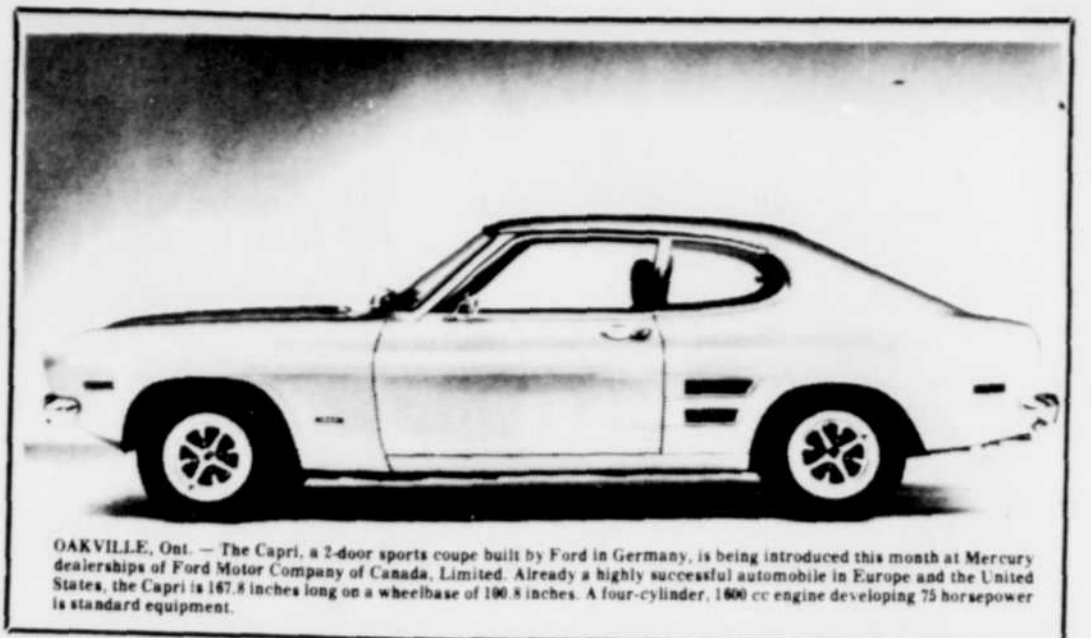

Whether a stool is hard or soft is usually related to how fast it is moved through the colon. The leftover bulk after digestion in the small intestine is expelled into the colon in the right lower region of the abdomen. The material is then in a semi-liquid state. It is propelled around the horseshoe-shaped colon to the left side and to the rectum by the rhythmic contractions of the colon. On the way, water is extracted from the stool until it is converted to its formed shape. If the colon is contracted or in spasm, small "pencil-like" stools are formed.

A tumor in the right side of the colon increases the speed of moving the stool.

Since the stool in the right colon is liquid it does not cause bowel obstruction but causes diarrhea. A tumor in the lower colon or rectum can cause obstruction. Any recent unexplained change in bowel habit that is persistent should require a complete examination, since this is one sign of a tumor. Many tumors of the colon can be cured if treated early.

The frequency and size of the bowel movements are related to what a person eats, how much they eat, their physical activity, habits and emotional patterns.

...fun by the hour!

All the excitement and activity of a real garage has been incorporated in an action garage. The make-believe garage has been made to simulate all the facilities necessary to service an automobile. To create the action four cars and four members of the Play Family are included.

One car at a time can be lifted in the elevator to the second level of the roof. The car is put in the elevator and with the turning of a crank on the side, the stop gate closes, a bell rings and the car goes to the level desired. At the same time the driver rides the passenger elevator. On the roof, a turntable operated by a front crank can rotate cars into parking spaces. When ready, cars roll down ramp with considerable amount of speed on their ball bearing wheels.

Manufactured by Fisher-Price, the largest maker of preschool toys, its other operations include a gas pump with removable hose and a separate grease rack that lowers and raises. Eureka! 43 Their Own Scissors

How many times have you heard Mother exclaim "what has become of my good pair of sewing scissors!"

Hardly a day goes by that someone in the house doesn't handle a pair of scissors or shears, of one type or another. And the chances are that Mother's favorite pair for sewing usually gets mislaid in the borrowing process, or just plain worn out by performing tasks for which they were not intended.

The J. Wiss & Sons Co. solves the problem with a beautiful array of sewing sets that will provide years of sewing pleasure. Representing Wiss craftsmanship at its best is the set called Heritage which should be high on your Christmas gift list because here are all the scissors and shears she needs the most: 9" pinking shears, 8" dressmakers' shears, 6" sewing scissors and 4" embroidery scissors.

Sewing and embroidery scissors are used for numerous light cutting tasks such as ripping, snipping, darning, cutting light material, wrapping gift packages, and can also be used for decorative finishes. Completing the gift set is a pair of dressmakers' shears made with bent handles which permits the blade to rest flat on the table, making it easier to follow a pattern outline precisely.

PRIZED GIFT. Sewing set contains: 9" pinking shears, 8" dressmakers' shears, 6" sewing scissors and 4" embroidery scissors. Famous quality, too. In durable simulated leather case (choice of Holiday Red, Como Blue, Nile Green, Ivory).

low a pattern outline precisely.

Attractive in a durable simulated leather case (available in four colors) offering lasting protection as well as beauty, there's a wide choice of smaller sets ideal for the career girl who travels in her work and the college girl returning back to classes after the holidays.

STUDENTS' RESIDENCE OFFICIALLY OPENS — At the Faculty of Medicine of the U. of S., only a bird's eye view reveals the space available for 152 students.

New residence offers comfort and conveniences

The first students to reside on the eastern campus of the University of Sherbrooke have already moved into their own quarters, even though the Faculty of Medicine has not yet completed all installations in the building and on the grounds of the residence.

The residence seems to appeal to female students more than was expected. Twenty-six are already registered and 10 more are expected shortly. Considering that the residence offers space for 152, the number of girl students represents a good proportion.

Of the 152 beds, 120 are in private rooms and 32 in double rooms. There are 15 singles and two doubles per floor, two floors in each wing, two wings in each pavilion and two pavilions in a wooded area of the campus.

Students will have the opportunity to do their own washing and drying in the basement of the residence, where they will also find ironing boards and other equipment. Part of the main floor houses the janitor and his wife. Their living room opens on the main lobby. A recreation room and a snack bar (with vending machines) are also located around the main lobby.

In each of the corridors leading to the pavilions... and on each floor, the first room is a lounge for the residents of that pavilion. In all, the students have eight such living rooms.

Cost to the students is quite reasonable. The single room is $40 a month and the rent for a double room is 30 dollars. This includes janitor service, telephone, bedding, ... and the advantage of being only a few yards away from the CHU but still far enough to forget its existence for a few hours.

DOOR TO DOOR — For the first time ever in Sherbrooke and Eastern Townships, Bell Canada telephone directories (1970 edition) have been distributed by a Service Club. And if you think that's an easy assignment talk to the members of the Sherbrooke Optimist Club. They made door-to-door deliveries of over 42,000 directories. For services rendered Bell Commercial Manager Bernard Murray (center) presented a cheque to past President C. Beaurivage (left) while incoming President J.-M. Dionne looks on.

Young Canada Book Week

KNOWLTON — The Pettes Memorial Library is again commemorating Young Canada's Book Week with a special display of books for children of all ages.

Young Canada Book Week is celebrated all across Canada during the week of Nov. 15 to 22. The purpose of this special week for children is to help arouse interest in good books for boys and girls, to encourage good reading both at home, at school and in the local library. It also makes adults aware of the fine selection of children's books that are available today and to impress on adults the importance of good books in the development of young minds.

Books can provide hours of enjoyment and fun, increase knowledge, give children a true sense of values, an understanding of themselves and others, and a widening experience.

Prime Minister Trudeau who is patron of young Canada's Book Week says in a message to Young Canada... "the Books that I remember best when I was young were Jack London's tales of distant lands, Call of the Wild, White Fang, and Sea Wolf. These stories created a whole new world in my imagination. They kindled a desire to travel which I have never lost. For young people the time flies by. There is so much to do and see. Books will stir your imagination. They will enlarge your horizons, so, do not miss the great adventure of reading."

The librarian, Miss Fraser of the Pettes Library will be on hand to help young children in the selection of books of their choice and recommend parents taking their children to the Library during this special week, where they may get good ideas for Christmas giving.

Fancy work convenor resigns in Scotstown

SCOTSTOWN — Mrs. John M. Morrison and Mrs. Kay Coates were hostesses for the coming year.

The Christmas meeting will be held in the church hall at 3 p.m. followed by a Bring and Buy Sale and a fancy work sale. A pot luck lunch will be enjoyed by the members.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction and the white elephant sale was very satisfactory.

Mrs. John D. MacDonald assisted the hostesses in serving refreshments.

Danville social notes

Eight members of the Second Danville Guide Company passed their Hostess Badges on Nov. 3 when they planned the lunch, games, decorated the church hall and the tea table and served lunch at the close of the evening.

This completes all the work required for this badge, and soon Connie George, Beverly Mosher, Susan Koski, Ann Pick, Ruth Perkins, Terry Knowles, Linda Murchie and Sandra Frost will be able to wear this coveted badge.

Mrs. W. Rick, Mrs. R. McDougall and Mrs. Ernest Frost were Drummondville Nov. 3 to attend the Richmond divisional meeting of the Girl Guides. Mrs. A. U. Leslie spoke

Birchton women told to use talents to fullest

BIRCHTON—At the regular meeting of the local unit of the U.C.W., Mrs. Gilbert Nutbrown dwelt on the topic of "a sense of worth" and "using your talents to the full".

The treasurer's report showed a satisfactory balance, after sending $200 to the committee of stewards and meeting the regular allocation. The results of the fall supper were very gratifying.

Plans were made to sponsor a Tupperware Party in the hall in the near future; and for the December meeting to be held at the Kirby-Harron home.

On motion, $50 was voted toward the work of the Sunday School, which has a good enrolment.

The guest speaker, Esther Farnsworth, of Cookshire, was introduced and thanked by Mrs. Murdo MacKinnon.

Miss Farnsworth showed slides of her Mediterranean Cruise in the spring... with scenes, from Italy, Greece, Turkey, Crete, Capri, and from many other places of interest. Her comments, historical and personal, added much to the enjoyment of the pictures.

An appeal was made to the area to contribute parcels, or unwrapped articles, to the Cancer Upboard for the Christmas season.

During the lunch, the hostess, Mrs. Picard presented her assisting-hostess, Mrs. Gilbert Nutbrown with a gaily decorated birthday cake amid the "Happy Birthday" ditty.

The Shipton W.I. is sponsoring a Cancer Film to be held Nov. 24 in the Anglican Church hall, Danville.

A visit to the Wales Home is also planned.

After a very busy meeting a lunch was served by the hostesses.

The community was shocked and saddened to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Guyle H. Clough, which occurred at the Sherbrooke Hospital, after a short illness.
