GOP moderates try to gain lead on right wing

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — Bitter quarrelling among leaders of the Republican party continued in the wake of Tuesday's shattering national election defeat and the chairman of the Republican Governors Association said the party must change leadership.

Governor Robert E. Smylie of Idaho, the chairman, said today in Boise, Idaho, that his party was "on the wrong side of every major issue" in the presidential election campaign.

If it doesn't change leadership it will court more defeats in 1966 and another disaster in 1968.

He said that in view of Tuesday's landslide defeat on the national ticket he believes even Barry Goldwater, the defeated Republican presidential candidate, will recognize the need to broaden the appeal of the party. Smylie suggested that Governor John Anderson of Kansas, who describes himself as a middle-of-the-road Republican, be named national party chairman to replace Dean Burch, a Goldwater supporter.

Anderson had no comment on that.

START NAME-CALLING
Richard Nixon and Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York engaged in a name-calling exchange Thursday as the moderates tried to wrest party control from the Goldwater conservatives.

At a press conference in New York, the former vice-president, who campaigned widely for Goldwater, said Rockefeller, who was cool to the Arizona senator's presidential campaign, "got his pound of flesh."

Nixon said Rockefeller was the "principal divider" of the Goldwater campaign, and the party's future rests with "unifiers rather than dividers."

Rockefeller is vacationing in Spain, but a spokesman in New York released a statement calling Nixon's remarks a "peevish, post-election utterance."

Party moderates are expected to press their drive for control of the party at a governors conference next month. And, if they make any headway, they can be expected to pull out the stops at a meeting of the Republican national committee in January.

Goldwater said at a press conference Wednesday that he wants to keep the party on a conservative course.

Governor Smylie, who said the party "must move toward the centre of the political spectrum," announced he plans to call a meeting of the Republican Governors Association about Dec. 1, probably in a midwestern city.

Here the 17 Republican governors can be expected to chart a course for reviving the party.

ALQ given bail
MONTREAL (CP) — Judge Emile Trottier allowed bail Thursday for four persons charged in connection with the activities of the Armée de Libération du Québec (ALQ).

Judge Trottier said $2,000 property bonds for each of the four ought to ensure their presence in court when the case comes up again.

The four are Yvon Huserault, 18, Claude Nadeau, 21, both students at the University of Montreal, Marc - Andre Parise, 20, of Arvida, Que., and Jean-Guy Lefebvre, 25, a laborer.

Attacks Wagner

MONTREAL (CP) — Claude Wagner, the new Quebec attorney - general, is inclined toward dictatorship, a French-Canadian civil rights leader said Thursday.

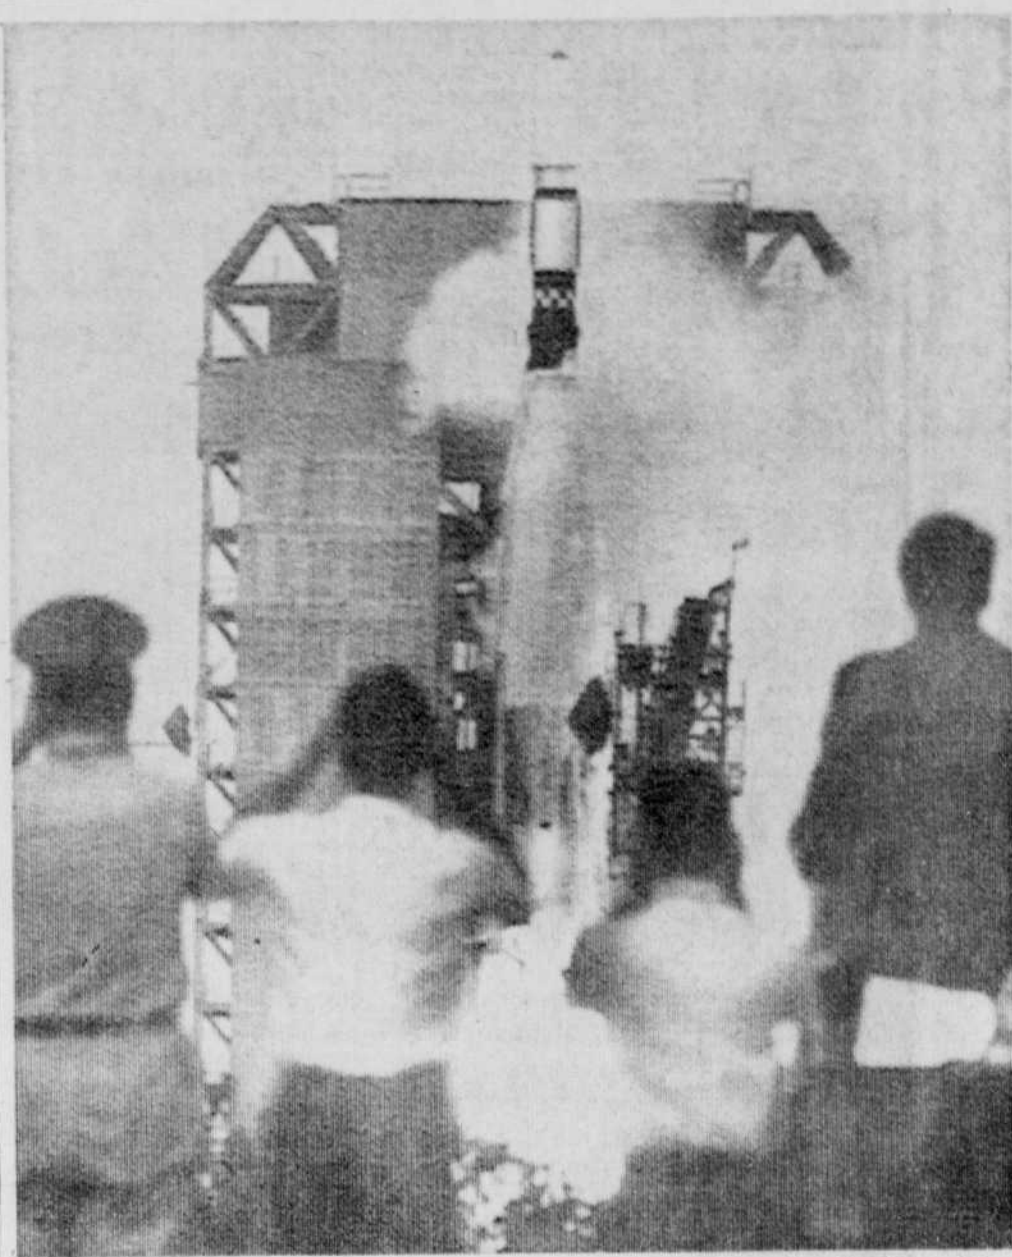

Dr. Jacques Mackay, president of le Mouvement Laïque de Langue Française, which has campaigned for secular schools and marriage ceremonies in Quebec, said Mr. Wagner is "violently bent on seeing his views, political and other, adopted."

Defer Concorde

LONDON (CP) — Amid wild shouts and jeers from the Opposition, Aviation Minister Roy Jenkins assured the House of Commons Thursday night the Anglo-French Concorde supersonic aircraft project is merely being reviewed—not necessarily doomed.

And he denied Tory suggestions that some sort of deal had been hatched between Britain and the United States whereby Britain would get out of the Concorde enterprise.

Space hulk aborts but twin has hope

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The stricken Mariner III spacecraft whirled through space as a helpless hulk today, unable to fulfill its mission as the first spacecraft to probe the planet Mars.

With Mariner III a $25,000,000 loss, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration turned attention to Mariner IV, a twin spacecraft which officials hope to launch within two weeks.

Exact date for the launching depends on evaluation of information from Thursday's failure. The space agency has until Dec. 1 to fire the Mariner IV rocket. After that, Mars will not be in position for a launching until December, 1966.

Mariner III was to have crossed 350,000,000 miles of space in 8½ months, skimming within 8,600 miles of Mars next July 17. During a brief encounter with the planet, the craft was to have snapped pictures and gathered scientific data.

Instead, it is racing in a silent orbit about the sun on a path that will miss Mars by 42,000,000 miles.

There were indications that the failure resulted because a fiberglass shroud did not separate from the spacecraft. The shroud was designed to protect Mariner III from aerodynamic stresses during the upward push through the earth's atmosphere, then was to eject.

Jack N. James, Mariner project director, said early today the shroud may not have separated cleanly and somehow "hung up" on the space craft. He said this was not certain but that tracking data indicated it was a distinct possibility.

A fuller evaluation of the data should pinpoint the exact cause of the failure in time to make a correction for Mariner IV, James said. He added this may take several days.

James said failure of the shroud to eject could account for an initial report that the Atlas-Agena rocket's second-stage shutdown prematurely and for the failure of the space craft's solar panels to unfold.

Red China's Chou En-lai attends

World Communists meet to chart future

MOSCOW (CP) — The stage was set today for a series of meetings which could have a profound effect on the future of the world Communist movement.

Premier Chou En-lai of China was one of many leading Communists already in Moscow or en route from different parts of the world for exploratory conferences on ways to restore Communist unity. That unity has been shattered in recent years as a result of a quarrel between China and the Soviet Union.

Chou's arrival here Thursday seemed symbolic of a mutual desire by the two countries to bury the hatchet because it was Chou who stormed out of a Soviet party congress three years ago thereby dramatizing a deep

German chancellor calls meeting

European unity plan is proposed

BONN (AP) — Chancellor Ludwig Erhard's government called today for a meeting of the foreign ministers of the six Common Market countries to discuss a political grouping that could be a first step toward a united Europe.

The six countries are France, West Germany, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg. The way is to be left open for other European countries to join, but the British government's eagerness to get in at the beginning of the talks was ignored.

The West German plan calls first for consultations among the six governments to set the conditions for other nations to participate.

It proposes an "advisory council" appointed by the six governments to take part in the consultations and speak for the interests of the area as a whole. Economic proposals would be discussed within the Common Market organizations which, under the proposal, would be unified. They are the European Economic Community, the European coal and steel community and Euratom, the European atomic agency.

WOULD INVOLVE NATO
"The proposed co-operation should serve the strengthening of the Atlantic alliance," the foreign ministry said.

But there was no specific mention of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, which President de Gaulle of France wants to reform radically. Nor did the statement refer to the plan for a multilateral nuclear force, in which the United States and West Germany propose to co-operate with other members of the alliance. De Gaulle opposes this plan.

A high West German official said the European co-operation on defence that West Germany is proposing could eventually cover the multilateral force. He did not suggest how this would come about, in view of de Gaulle's opposition.

On the economic side, Erhard's government proposed speeding up the elimination of tariff barriers within the Common Market area, starting with a 10-per-cent cut by early 1965. It suggested total tariff elimination by 1967, instead of in 1970 as originally planned, but only if by that time "the completion of a joint farm policy is in sight."

Rightist head is president in Bolivia

LA PAZ (AP) — Vice-president Rene Barrientos, a general and former air force chief of staff, has emerged from the Bolivian revolt as president just as ousted president Victor Paz Estenssoro said he would.

Barrientos, a rightist leader of the revolt against Paz, flew from his home in Cochabamba to La Paz Thursday, and the chief of the armed forces, Gen. Alfredo Obando Candia, announced he and the vice-president would be co-presidents.

An hour later Barrientos appeared before a cheering crowd in front of the national palace and announced Obando had decided to resign in his favor "to co-operate in the re-establishment of tranquility in the country."

Obando had taken control in the capital after Paz fled to Peru Wednesday morning, but the crowd in front of the palace booed the announcement that he would be co-president. Civic groups and students who participated in the overthrow of Paz considered Obando's installation a "continuance" of the previous regime.

EASE TENSION

Obando's withdrawal in favor of Barrientos eased the tense chaotic situation, but the country still was far from stable. The army has taken possession of public buildings in La Paz, but armed civilian bands roamed the streets. Possibly 40 persons were killed and 150 wounded in fighting Wednesday between supporters and opponents of the deposed president.

Athlete back via a crate

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — An Australian athlete had himself shipped home c.o.d. from Britain in a wooden crate because he couldn't afford a passenger ticket for the 11,000-mile flight.

Reginald Spiers, 22, of Adelaide, spent 63 hours in the box without food or water, Sydney newspapers reported. Friends and relatives in Adelaide confirmed the story today.

The accounts said a friend nailed up the box Oct. 17 in London and Spiers landed at Perth Oct. 20 on an Air India flight, then hitch-hiked 1,800 miles to Adelaide.

Members query Thompson trip to Africa with expense account

OTTAWA (CP) — For almost the entire afternoon Thursday, Social Credit Leader Robert Thompson held the attention of the Commons, and he was 5,000 miles away at the time.

The catch, so far as the opposition was concerned, is that Mr. Thompson is that far away a government expense.

The subject actually spilled over from Wednesday, when Conservative members were firing a barrage of questions about the Social Credit leader's current trip to Africa, with repeated demands for details.

Was it on behalf of the government? Who was paying the shot? What was the purpose?

Dief's ire descends on constitution, CNR and the faithful flag

MONCTON (CP) — Federal government handling of the flag issue and the formula for amending the Canadian constitution and the runthrough policy of the publicly-owned CNR were criticized here Thursday night by Opposition Leader John Diefenbaker.

A Progressive Conservative rally attended by 1,200 in a high school auditorium was told by the national party leader that the federal Liberal administration is a government dedicated to principles that can wreck this nation.

"I am afraid for Confederation," he said in a speech supporting party candidate J. Edward Murphy in Monday's federal byelection for the vacant Westmorland seat.

The flag issue, although it was "just part of the picture," had divided Canada "as never before in my time." Mr. Diefenbaker asked for a vote that would show constituents "do not want to see Canada split asunder."

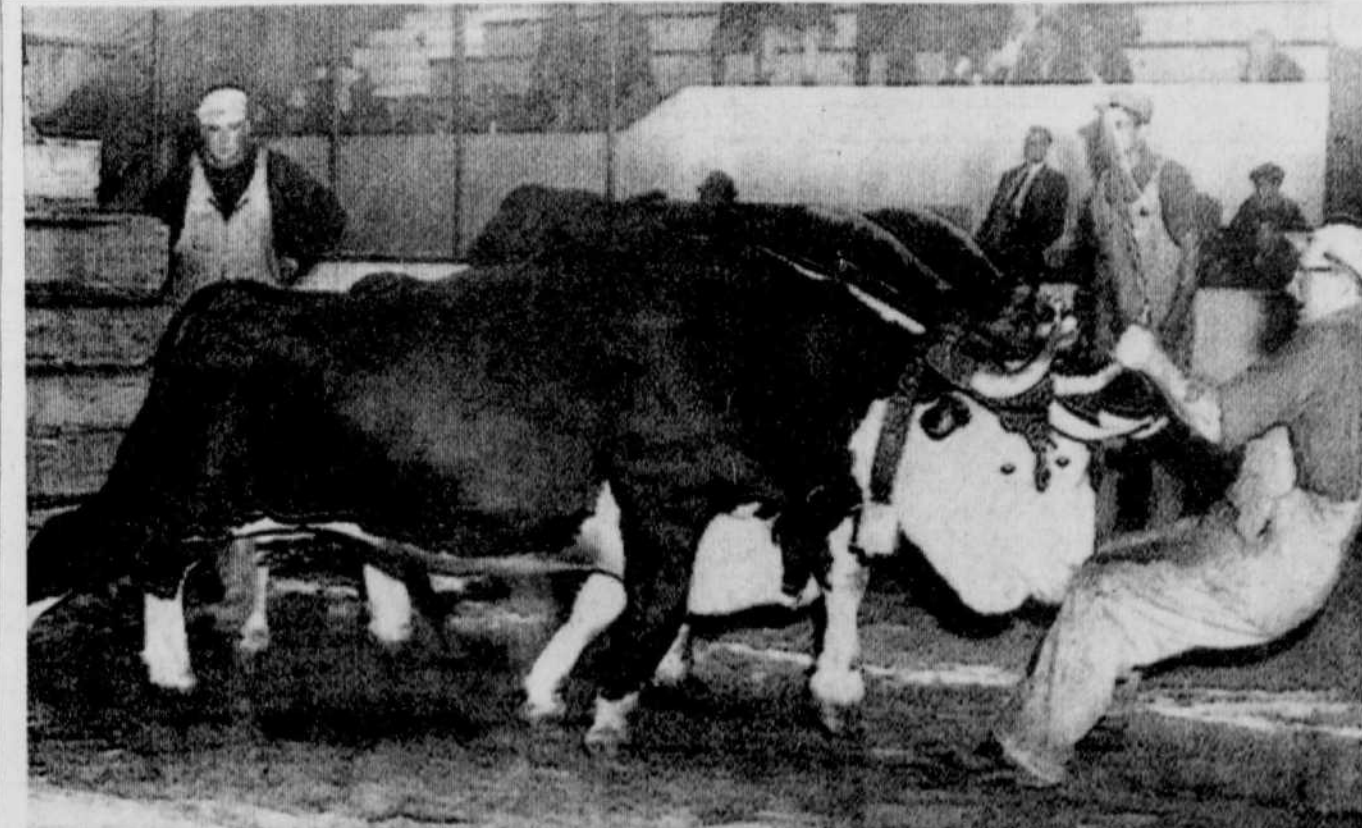

He asked "what's going to happen to Moncton if the same philosophy is applied here as in N. A. and Wainwright?" Moncton is the Atlantic region headquarters for the CNR.

DAVIES DENIES DESIGNS ON DIEF

TORONTO (CP) — Davie Fulton still has his eye on federal politics but denies he is trying to undercut Progressive Conservative party leader John Diefenbaker.

The 48-year-old British Columbia party head, a candidate for the leadership against Mr. Diefenbaker in 1956, said Thursday he is not in any conspiracy against the Conservative chief or involved in an "axis" with Quebec leader Leon Balcer.

Mr. Fulton became entangled in a touchy intra-party situation when a private memo he had written to Mr. Diefenbaker and other Conservative MPs, at variance in part with Mr. Diefenbaker's expressed views about the new formula for amending the constitution, leaked out to the press. Mr. Balcer is reported also to have opposed the leader's criticisms in caucus.

Dodd's Kidney Pills may help
One widespread recurring form of discomfort is what is commonly called back-of backache can be traced to sluggish kidney action.

This condition often may result in irritation of the urinary system, followed by backache and tired

JACOBY ON BRIDGE

U.S. TEAM BIDS
HOPELESS SLAM

By OSWALD JACOBY

The bidding in the box is that used by Bob Hamman and Don Krauss of the United States team in the match against the Netherlands Antilles at the World Bridge Olympiad.

Bob had no trouble making the heart slam because East held the ace of spades, as was indicated by the fact that East had made a takeout double of North's two-club response.

At the other table, North and South also reached six hearts after Vic Mitchell of the United States team, sitting East, had bid both diamonds and spades.
At this point, Sam Stayman, sitting West, decided that South was going to make his six hearts and proceeded to sacrifice at seven diamonds.

North doubled and South led two rounds of hearts. Vic trumped and led the queen of clubs. North won and shifted to a spade. Vic finessed the queen. South won with the king and led the 10 to Vic's jack.

Vic led a second club, and North was in again. He led a third club and at this point Vic, who had been playing the hand brilliantly, continued his fine play by discarding a low spade.

When South failed to ruff this, Vic was able to win the trick in dummy. Also, North had been marked with all four trumps. Vic still had to lose two trump tricks for down six but the 1,100-point loss was an improvement on the 1,430 his side would have lost if North and South had been allowed to play six hearts.

LUCK ON SIDE OF OVERBIDDER

Sweden finished twelfth in the World Bridge Olympiad. The Swedish team played a very aggressive game throughout, as may be seen from today's hand.
Sven Berglund, sitting North, had a really weak double of West's opening heart bid. Hans Goethe in the South seat had a sound two - spade jump. This jump would also have been sound if he had not previously passed.

Sven really had to reach down into the bottom of the barrel to find a raise to three spades.
Whereupon Hans decided to try a three no-trump call.

This was a really fine bid.
Three no-trump was unbeatable.
Perhaps, Sven should have let his partner play that contract.

but he was looking at five spades and only 11 high card points. He shifted the contract to four spades.

If West had opened the king of clubs and the defense made no later slips, four spades would have been one down.

However, West opened the king of hearts and that was all the help Hans needed. He won with the ace and led a heart right back. West won with the queen and shifted to the king of clubs, but he was too late. Hans won with dummy's ace, entered his hand with the ace of trumps, discarded one of dummy's clubs on his jack of hearts and led a small trump. This bumped the king and queen, so Hans only had to lose one trump trick.

He still needed a diamond finesse to make his contract, but this time the gods of chance were on the side of the over-bidder and the finesse worked.

Card Sense

1 Clb. Dbl. ?
You, South, hold: Spades, 8-6;
Hearts, K-J-7-5; Diamonds, K-J-

What do you do?
A—This is a tough one. It is poor tactics to show a four-card suit directly over a take-out double. If you pass you are likely to be shut out, so the recommended call is one no-trump.

Today's Question
You bid one no-trump. West passes. Your partner bids three clubs. East passes. What do you do now?

The familiar poppy, worn and sold by members of the Royal Canadian Legion, and made by disabled veterans, means much more than a fund-raising symbol, important as this may be.

In a recent message to Legionnaires, some of the profound meaning and sincere feeling surrounding the poppy is revealed.

The message reads:

More than ever in these unsettled times is it imperative that we of The Canadian Legion endeavour to keep fresh in the minds of the Canadian Public the memory of the sacrifices that have been made in two world wars.

The message of the Poppy is of more consequence today than ever before. While it is important that poppies and wreaths be sold in order to provide for the disabled and dependents of those who died, it is equally, if not more important, to ensure that everyone in this country either wears a poppy or displays a poppy wreath, and at the same time is thoroughly aware of the significance of their act.

It should therefore be considered the sacred duty of every member of The Canadian Legion to participate in this Poppy Campaign. It is our responsibility to see that the dead of two wars are not forgotten, that their memory is kept bright through the years by the little red poppy of remembrance which is worn as a personal token of tribute to those who gave their lives for Canada. Wearing their flower recalls their spirit and gives new inspiration for service to the country they served so heroically.

The facts about the poppy need to be told again and again, told so that everyone will understand and will welcome the opportunity to wear one.

It is not easy to find a new approach to the Poppy Campaign in our speeches and articles, nor indeed is it necessary, for the story is the same today as it was when the idea of the poppy was first conceived.

On Armistice Day let us pause to honor the memory of those who gave their lives that we might live in freedom!

Beaten up, loses his eye; assailant gets 3 months

A Sherbrooke youth yesterday afternoon was sentenced to three months in prison on the charge of being an accomplice in the beating of another youth of this city.

The incident took place August 27, 1964, at about 7:30 p.m. in front of the Queen's Hotel on King Street, West, near the market.

Andre Piquette 19, of 1103 Federal Street, Sherbrooke is accused of being an accomplice in the beating of Pierre Rodney 29, of Concession Street, Sherbrooke. Four other youths, it was learned in Court were also involved in the incident which caused Rodney to lose the sight of his eye.

One of the five men admitted yesterday to Judge Turmel that he was the one completely responsible for the beating of Rodney, according to evidence in court yesterday.

Following the preliminary hearing which lasted over two hours yesterday Judge Turmel decided their was sufficient evidence to sentence Andre Piquette, the accused, immediately.

"The other four men involved in the incident last August will each be summoned to appear before this court and be tried and if found guilty, which by the evidence brought out this day I believe they are, they too will receive the same sentence as you have received, Mr. Piquette — three months in prison, mark my word," said Judge Turmel at the conclusion of the trial.

$15 million city budget forecast

A WORLD OF FLOWERS — City greenhouse director, Tony Mikolaj spreads his genial smile over the model globe set up for the annual flower show starting this Saturday.

The countries are marked on the globe by over 2,000 cornflowers of varying colors. (Record photo by Doug Gerrish)

Feature of annual city 'mum' show

Flower world is displayed

The world will appear in flowers at the city's 13th annual chrysanthemum show starting tomorrow at the city greenhouse.

For a special attraction will be a globe on which the different countries of the world will be marked in cornflowers.

The globe, equipped with an apparatus to make it rotate, is decorated with more than 2,000 cornflowers of different colors, says greenhouse director, Tony Mikolaj.

This year's chrysanthemum show continues until Sunday, November 15, says the genial city horticulturalist.

The public is invited to tour the greenhouse, located near Howardene, to see the 5,000 chrysanthemums of many varieties on display there. Also on display, besides the globe of the world, will be cyclamen, azaleas, cherry plants and other exotic flora.

Doors will be open for the show from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., Mr. Mikolaj says.

The greenhouse is part of the city parks department. Parks committee chairman is Alderman Antonio Pinard.

In the globe Red China is marked by red cornflowers, the U.S. by silver, and Canada by a pale silver-gold shade. The countries are also designated by miniature flags.

Prominent in the show will be the large chrysanthemums. These plants have one large flower, almost spherical in shape, on a stalk up to five feet tall. The flowers reach a diameter of six inches and have a breath-taking purity of color. Their shades range from pure white, yellow to bronze and light mauve.

These large chrysanthemums start as two-inch shoots in May, says Mr. Mikolaj. Side-shoots are pruned off so that all the nourishment goes into the central stalk, he says. The plants grow so quickly that six months later (just in time for the flower show) many have reached their height of five feet.

Taxi driver robbed of $20

A Sherbrooke taxi driver was robbed of twenty dollars late Wednesday night in the vicinity of the city's luminous cross.

The driver, Jean Baron, 26 of King George Street was victim of the two men, armed with knives, who threatened him and drove off with his cab. They left him with his hands and feet bound.

Quebec Provincial Police recovered the car Thursday afternoon but have, as yet, found no trace of the missing men. The driver was not harmed.

Each visitor to the greenhouse will be given a ticket and invited to sign the registry book, he says.

From the tickets three door prizes will be drawn and awarded as follows: first prize, 12 of the best chrysanthemums in the show; second, eight chrysanthemums and two bunches of pom-poms; and third, six chrysanthemums and three bunches of pom-poms.

The drawing for the flowers will be held Saturday and Sunday.

After the exhibition is over the flowers are distributed to the public wards of hospitals and to old folks' homes in the city.

WHERE RIVERS MEET
Forty-eight principal U.S. rivers, with 102 branches, flow into Chesapeake Bay, the largest estuary on the U.S. Atlantic seaboard.

The city of Sherbrooke will probably have a record $15 million budget this year, Alderman Marcel Savard said today.

Last year's $14.8 million budget was also of record size, the chairman of the city's general administration committee added.

Alderman Savard pledged that city council would work to keep the mill rate low, while at the same time, providing citizens with all the services they want and need.

He said that the mill rate for the city has not increased for many years and is one of the lowest in the province considering the evaluation.

The budget usually is brought down around the middle of December.

At present the aldermen in charge of the various city departments are studying the budget with their department directors and City Treasurer Olivier Routhier, Alderman Savard said.

Afterwards the figures are tabulated and revenues the city takes in are studied by Mr. Routhier and Alderman Savard.

After this final study of the budget is done.

The city has been prospering in recent years, Alderman Savard said. This has been shown by the increased revenues of Hydro-Quebec-Sherbrooke, which in 1964 contributed $1.3 million to budget revenues, he said.

The 1965 contribution is being studied according to the 1964 figures and prospects for the coming years.

Alderman Savard suggested that the property tax be reserved for municipalities, while the six per cent sales tax be given to school commissions. "I hope that the Belanger Commission, presently studying taxation, makes this recommendation in its report," he said.

At present two per cent of the tax is given to municipalities while the other four per cent goes to school commissions.

The division was one of eight closed across Canada, he told Leon Balcer (PC-Trois-Rivières). The decision was based partly on the numbers of students entering permanent service from the division, the proximity of the schools to other divisions, and the difficulty in obtaining adequate staff.

Approximately 40 per cent of real estate taxes have been received in the two weeks since bills were sent out.

A check from the provincial government in the amount of $2030.68 was received during the past week, representing the first of three instalments in connection with the grant awarded the Municipality on purchase in 1963 of a new fire truck and additional equipment.

This amount is based on a grant of 40 per cent and it is hoped that an additional grant will be received to bring the total governmental participation up to the anticipated 50 per cent.

Three building permits were approved. Mrs. G. Bell and Mr. Wm. Astbury request permits for additions to their existing homes and Robert Goodsell requests a permit to convert an existing building to a store on Pleasant St.

Lighting committee reported that work would start this week on the changes and additions to the street lighting system.

Requests were heard from a few residents on private rights of way to have these lanes plowed during the winter months but, although council is sympathetic to their problem, it was felt it would be impossible to assume further responsibility in this matter this year.

Insurance on the band instruments has been paid for by the town. At the council meeting, acting on a direct request from the Ayer's Cliff Band Association, a resolution was passed absolving the municipality of its responsibility and control over the band property and returning same to that association.

The roads committee reported it was having difficulty in securing the services of a tractor back hoe for street drain repairs.

Speed up Quebec criminal justice

Attorney General Claude Wagner in his campaign to improve the administration of justice in this province could give a close look to the existing system whereby sessions of the criminal assizes are held but once a year in most judicial districts, including St. Francis and Bedford.

Under this system, a person charged with a criminal offence sometimes must wait months between his arrest and the hearing of his case if he elects for a trial by judge and jury. In a district where the Criminal Assizes open in January, the delay would be eleven months if the arrest were made in February.

During the interim, the accused must sweat out the time in jail unless he is fortunate enough to be granted and can provide bail.

Even where bail is provided, however, the uncertainty over the possible verdict is upsetting to the accused and often interferes with his pursuit of his normal affairs.

In cases where bail is not possible and the accused is subsequently acquitted, he may have to spend long periods in detention for a crime of which he was later cleared.

The Criminal Assizes system dates back to the days when the local judiciary generally consisted of non-legal justices of the peace and of lower court magistrates. The hearing of major charges was held over until a Superior Court judge from a larger centre could visit the district.

But with high court judges either stationed in or visiting all districts at frequent intervals, there appears no reason to the laymen why serious charges could not be heard within a short period after the accused is indicted.

Governors hold Republican future

Any overwhelming election victory, such as that registered by President Lyndon Johnson and his Democrat party in Tuesday's U.S. voting inevitably raises the question as to the future of the Opposition party.

Has Senator Goldwater's debacle so undermined the position of the Republican party it may cease to be a force in United States politics in the future? Will the Republican party become nothing more than a rump representing the radical right or can it be reorganized on a moderate base and thus restore the two-party system in the nation?

On their post-election statements both Senator Goldwater and his running-mate William Miller made it abundantly clear that they had no intention of giving up their control over the Republican party. Both talked of their plans for the 1968 campaign, which they hinted would be fought on the same ultra-conservative lines as the ill-fated contest just closed.

This recalcitrant attitude on the part of the Goldwater forces will add to the troubles of the moderate Republicans who saw many of their hopefuls go down to defeat in the anti-Goldwater landslide.

But the moderates salvaged some satisfaction with the re-election of Senator Glenn Beall of Maryland and Governor George Romney of Michigan, both of whom had disagreed with Goldwater on civil rights and other issues.

These men should find substantial support in their efforts to reorient the party from such holdover Republican Governors as Hatfield of Oregon, Rockefeller of New York, Scranton of Pennsylvania, Love of Colorado, Reed of Maine and Smylie of Idaho.

The task of reviving the Republican party as anything but a regional group from the reactionary South will rest with the Republican governors who have a record of moderation.

By-elections may determine future

In the excitement of the U.S. election campaign, the reorganization of the Canadian militia and the delicacy of certain CBC television programs, two federal by-elections to be held next Monday have been virtually overlooked.

Yet these two contests, one in Waterloo South in Ontario and the other Westmoreland, N.B., may have an important bearing on political developments in Canada during the next few months.

Westmoreland has been traditionally Liberal, Waterloo South consistently Conservative.

Should both ridings decide to remain true to their past record, it is conceivable that both major party leaders will decide to abandon any plans for an early general election and continue the business of the Commons in a more efficient and orderly manner.

But a double win for the Liberals might tempt the Government to pull a sudden general election.

Or a double win for the Conservatives might encourage Mr. Diefenbaker to tie up Commons business so tightly that a general election would be unavoidable.

Take turns governing

Splinters upset Colombia system

BOGOTA (CP)—The most intricate political game in Latin America is being played in Colombia.

Known as "El Sistema"—"The System"—the game has unique rules.

Every four years, until 1974, the presidency will rotate between the Conservative and Liberal parties.

The changeover between the two traditionally opposed groups will take place voluntarily and amicably—unless some unexpected political development, such as a coup d'état, upsets the system during the next decade.

Back in 1957, weary of civil war, Conservatives and Liberals got together and formed a so-called National Front.

Under this arrangement, for four years, a Liberal president would run the country, appointing to his cabinet six Liberals, six Conservatives and a minister of war. Then, for the next four years, a Conservative president would rule with a half-Liberal cabinet.

Under the constitution, all legislation must be approved by two-thirds of Congress to become law.

The two extremist parties, although three seats short of the one-third minority they need to block legislation, are still in a strong position to hinder the process of smooth government.

With growing discord within the National Front and increasingly stormy economic winds blowing across the nation—unemployment now has reached 10 per cent—many Colombians fear that extremist agitation could precipitate a political explosion.

Although, with a few notable exceptions, the armed forces have traditionally remained outside partisan politics, it is not inconceivable that such a crisis could result in a military coup d'état.

In many ways, Colombia is a paradox. It is the brightest hope of the Alliance for Progress; yet, the social and economic facade of the nation is covered in flaws.

The National Front government, through tax relief inducements, has established a healthy climate for foreign investment and an increasing number of North American companies are locating subsidiary plants in the republic.

As a result, some $258,000,000 in loans, grants and aid projects have poured into the republic since the beginning of 1962. After Brazil, which has five times its population, Colombia has received more "Aid" than any country in Latin America.

The 650-member Peace Corps contingent in Colombia is twice the size of any other in the hemisphere. Despite this, reform programs have been sluggish. Only 800 families have so far been resettled under the agrarian program, leaving 750,000 peasants struggling on farms too small to support them.

French Canada says:

Election expense control needs careful study but basically good

Quebec Le Soleil—The announcement by State Secretary Lamontagne of a committee to study electoral expenses has been well-received by all the parties in the Commons. It will be by the population as well. But one may wonder whether our politicians will show anything but surface approval. Will they really support a rigorous control of electoral expenses in practice?

The principle of a control of electoral expenses is an effect of the evolution of the democratic system. It stems from the fact that the voice of the people must be heard as freely as possible in the choice of public representatives. For this, the people must be well informed about the parties' platforms and about the various candidates. It would be unhealthy if this information depended too much on well-furnished party war chests.

But how can expenses be limited without limiting election information? This is what the new committee will have to study. Certain countries have already given themselves electoral laws aimed at restraining electoral expenses. Quebec has adopted measures of this kind. The steps taken here and elsewhere are worth study on the light of the particular needs of Canada.

Thus one might suggest free voters' lists for the candidates, remuneration by the state of party representatives at the polls, repayment of part of the campaign expenses of candidates who have received a determined number of votes (to prevent multiplication of parties), making time available on the state television network and so on.

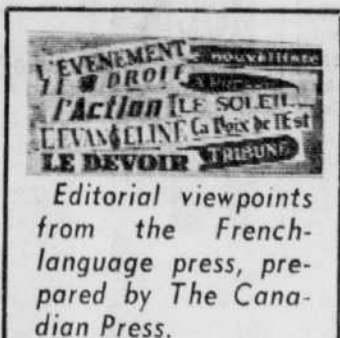

Where application of such measures might be difficult is in putting a ceiling on expenses, in the precise accounting needed and in the penalties required. One must keep in mind the great ingenuity of politicians—getting around the electoral law.

This study committee is based on an article in the federal Liberal party's platform. The members of the committee have the confidence of all parties. Later, it will be up to the federal government to correct the electoral law in the light of the main recommendations that will be made. Once it is recognized that it is "essential to limit and control electoral expenses," as Mr. Lamontagne said, let us hope action will soon follow and the principle will become part of reality of Canadian politics. (Oct. 29)

Montreal Le Devoir—The successors of Khrushchev are up against a terribly confused and difficult situation. Without doubt, they can preserve a semblance of unity in the international Communist movement only at the price of recognizing an almost total freedom of action among the national Communist parties. This freedom of action and choice would be recognized first in the Chinese party. It would seem certain that contacts were set up or restored with Peking even before the fall of Khrushchev and that the Chinese leaders were informed of the imminent fall of their sworn enemy in return for their advising Moscow about their first atomic blast.

The results of this series of developments would rank among the most important happenings of the post-war period. In the first place, there would be a radical transformation of the psychological and political positions of the Communist parties in Editorial viewpoints from the French-language press, prepared by The Canadian Press.

The West, above all in countries like Italy and France. The subordination of these parties to Moscow has, up to now, enormously falsified and hampered the actions of the left.

Already a rapprochement is shaping up in Italy and France between socialists (and members of the non-Communist left generally) on the one hand and the Communists on the other.

In countries considered until now to be satellites but which are less and less so, the desire for autonomy on the part of the Communist parties and governments feeds off a legitimate nationalism, the signs of which are multiplying. The socialist ingredient is there to stay but the assertion of national independence can signal the end of the Soviet "bloc" and, who knows, make possible the great Gaullist design for a united Europe—a "European" Europe—from the Atlantic to the Ural Mountains, or at least from the Atlantic to the Polish-Soviet frontier. Finally there is the enormous question mark hovering over the future of relations between Moscow and Peking: it is no longer a complete certainty that the West can depend on a continuation of the conflict between the two great powers of world communism. —Jean-Marc Leger, (Oct. 29)

Quebec L'Evenement—It doesn't seem that Canada will be affected to any considerable extent by the new import surcharges imposed by Britain. Our exports to Britain are largely made up of agricultural products and raw materials, which don't fall under the new surcharges. Great Britain suffers from a long-standing shortage of farm products and doesn't see the importing of such products as any threat to its own production.

The Labor government's measures are justified if they remain in force for a limited period. The trade deficit makes them necessary for a certain length of time. But in an age of general trade liberalization, it would be abnormal for London to follow too hard and fast a protectionist policy. This artificial protection would damage the British economy in the long run by leaving it in a state of false security, by depriving it of the steady spur provided by other countries. In the long run, it doesn't seem that Britain can find a real solution to its economic problems if it doesn't join the European economic bloc. What Europe is looking for, Britain wants too. The economic future of Britain lies in that direction. Its current protectionist stand can be only provisional. (Oct. 27)

Ottawa Le Droit—There are people in Canada who think in terms of the "melting pot." They would like to see French-Canadians mixed into the same dough as are other elements newly arrived from European countries and elsewhere. On this subject, let us cite for the edification of these biased bakers a statement made by the British Travel Association. While boosting the real charms of Britain, the agency notes that the country's variety is a result of its being composed of four peoples—English, Scottish, Welsh and Northern Irish, all loyally united and preserving their individuality. That's a state of things worthy of thought on the part of those in Canada who cherish the idea of one day seeing the French-Canadians assimilated into one big Canadian whole. It must be remembered that French-Canadians are proud of being Canadians but also are extremely fond of the adjective French.

People who are in the majority in Canada should not seek to wipe out the country's other people by more or less subtle means. On the contrary, they should aid that other group to fulfill itself so as to make Canada a country where the melting pot has no right to exist. In the United States the melting pot is not nonsense, because there is a unity of language. But in Canada it would be all wrong. Here the two founding peoples must perpetuate their ancestral virtues. The line leading from the past is still the vital force pointing to the future. —Maurice Huot, (Oct. 26)

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Scientists are studying a mysterious substance secreted by rocks found in the republic of Tadzhikistan when they are heated to high temperatures, the news agency Tass reports. The wax-like substance is called "golden tears" in ancient legends and is said to possess "miraculous medicinal properties."

600 years of sandwiches?

How do you pack for a space trip?

By WARD CANNEL

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It is a great relief to be over the election campaign.

We were getting quite impatient to start worrying about the news that a civilization may exist in a neighboring galaxy. But you simply do not have the energy to investigate anything while you are trying to keep an open mind.

Anyway, it is futile to begin a quest into the unknown when you are up to your ears in the commonplace, and must decide by Election Day whether haste makes waste or a stitch in time saves nine.

We were, therefore, glad to have made our choice and been done with it. The possibility that Russian astronomers had located another civilization in the universe was, the more we thought about it, overwhelmingly dismal.

Not that we begrudged the Russians their discovery if it proved to be true. What bothered us was the evidence—reception of civilized-sounding radio signals from a couple of pinpoint 3,000 million-million miles out in the universe.

If further radio reception confirmed the Russian report, we were quite certain that preparations for making the journey would begin at once.

(Do not laugh and slap your thigh. We are describing a basic instinct in human nature. Primitive people used to brave thousands of miles long before the space age in order to see for themselves the personalities they had heard on the radio).

And after talking with a space capsule designer the other day, we have no doubt that the trip can be made once a few mechanical details are worked out. Three-thousand million-million miles may sound like a lot, but if you travel at the speed of light, you can cover the distance in well under 600 years.

The part that we found overwhelmingly dismal was the packing for the trip.

We have done a lot of travelling in our time and invariably take too much. But even if you are very careful and economical in what you take, 600 years is a long flight. Why, the sandwich bags alone would probably take up all the closet space.

And what about the bottle tops and apple cores? Yes, and what about the people? It seemed to us that even a space scientist would clutter up the place after he got to be a couple of hundred years old.

So, the other afternoon we went down and conferred with a bunch of life-sciences laboratory men who are working on this problem. And we can report that there is hardly anything unknown about it.

Unfortunately, we cannot tell for sure what we saw there as we still do not believe it. Nor did we eat or drink any of it (nor anything else in the two days since) although we are certain it was both nutritious and pleasant. But that is beside the point. What really matters, we learned, is that nothing is ever lost in a closed life system such as a space vehicle. It only changes its molecular structure.

Rearrange the molecules and you're back where you started. All you need for the job is energy, and there's plenty of solar energy in space. Nothing could be more commonplace. Haste makes waste. And waste makes hay while the sun shines.

Bygone days

TWENTY YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Monday, November 6, 1944)

Members of the Sherbrooke Baptist Church yesterday celebrated the Burning of the Mortgage at an impressive evening ceremony during which Rev. H. E. Secord officiated.

Summarizing the history of the church mortgage, Deacon E. Holgate outlined work and efforts, which, in 1919, led to the consideration of the importance of building a new church structure.

TEN YEARS AGO

(From the Record of Saturday, November 6, 1954)

Once again, last weekend pranksters had their annual opportunity to get even with their friends by playing the customary Halloween jokes on them. The North Ward in the city suffered quite heavily from acts of vandalism. Pranksters tore down the boards of the skating rink behind the Sherbrooke High School. City officials were quite annoyed at the wholesale destruction of property.

$2 million plant being built soon in Cowansville

By DAVID SLABOTSKY
(Record staff reporter)

COWANSVILLE — (Staff) — A $2,000,000 plant for the manufacture of business forms will be erected in Cowansville by the end of 1964 by Moore Business Forms Limited. The plant will be operational early in the new year, said Cowansville City Hall authorities yesterday, and employ 50 people.

This plant is one of many that have established themselves here, said authorities, and these new industrial residents have had a very influence on the city in general and the city's youth in particular.

Before Cowansville began emerging as an important industrial centre young graduates were not offered ample opportunity here, authorities said, and they had to look for jobs elsewhere.

Now, authorities said, Cowansville can offer its youth a bright industrial future and careers can be made at home.

In the last 12 years, said authorities, 11 new industries have settled in Cowansville, raising the total employment figures for industry by 600.

At the present time, the total figure for industrial employment in Cowansville is 2,373, and 100 people are employed by construction firms.

Speaker talks on school for deaf

GRANBY — (Special) — The Granby Kiwanis Club held their regular meeting on Tuesday, November 3rd, at the Granby Social Club on Elgin St. at 6:15 p.m. There was a short business meeting when Kiwanian Jack Fanning, the new president was in the chair.

Following the dinner and the meeting, those who were present listened to an address given by Mr. Frank Magnussen who is connected with the Montreal Oral School for the Deaf, his subject being the "teaching of those less fortunate and what it has meant to them".

Mr. Magnussen has been with this type of work for some time and gave an idea of the tremendous strides that have been made during the past several years to the betterment of those afflicted.

This School has no grant from the government and the Granby Kiwanis help this cause. The meeting was well attended and the speaker was introduced by Jack Fanning, and he was thanked by Kiwanian Tom Tait. The next meeting of the Granby Kiwanis will be on Tuesday, November 10th, at 6:15 p.m. when the guests of the club will be the "Key Club". It is hoped that this meeting will be well attended as it is an incentive for the young men of the Granby High Key Club to work with the Kiwanis.

Quack, bang or hiss greeted the speaker in House of Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—No House of Commons is expected to be the very epitome of the nation's best in statesmanship, dedication to public service, and gentlemanliness—even if its members grow to think it is.

One of its greatest merits, as the late Professor R. Macgregor Dawson said in his renowned book, The Government of Canada, is that it is not a selection of the ablest or most brilliant men in the country.

"Rather, (it is) a sampling of the best of an average run, an assembly of diverse types and varied experience, the members of which are genuinely and actively concerned with the promotion of the national welfare."

In every body of 265 men and women—and the current Commons is the 26th freely-elected House since Confederation in 1867—there are a few who sometimes slip from the high ideals of honorable and gentlemanly conduct.

REVIVE GIMMICK

While this House of Commons hasn't produced anything like some of the scandals of dishonesty and moral misbehavior that have marred the Canadian Parliament's distant and nearly forgotten past, it has revived a distasteful gimmick under the nominal heading of "debating tactics" which hasn't been seen here for a decade.

That's the childish—and anonymous—noise that is designed to do nothing more than spitefully annoy an individual MP.

A decade ago, the target of this was Karl K. Homuth, Conservative MP for Waterloo South, a big rotund man with a booming but particularly raucous voice who had been an MP since 1938 and an Ontario MLA before that.

Whenever he rose to ask a question or make a speech, he was greeted by a chorus of "quack, quack, quack" from Liberal back-benchers. None of them were identified because they did it surreptitiously.

COULDN'T BEAT IT

But Karl Homuth found it was an interruption he was never able to deal with effectively. He died in 1951 after a long and distinguished parliamentary career.

Then there was Walter Tucker, Liberal MP for Rosetown, Sask., and parliamentary assistant to the veterans minister in the previous Liberal government.

Once during an election campaign, a farmer was reported to have become so annoyed at something Mr. Tucker had said in a television broadcast that he took a shotgun and blasted the TV set.

From then on, until Mr. Tucker's defeat in the 1958 Conservative sweep of Saskatchewan, whenever he rose in the House he was greeted with a series of loud retorts—"bang, bang, bang"—while members on the opposite side banged their desks tops just to throw him off stride.

NOW NEW TARGET

Now this anonymous annoyance - by design has started again, and the target is Donald MacInnis (PC -Cape Breton South), a war veteran and coal miner, and an outspoken critic of the government.

CANADIAN FASHIONS

Leather molds the shape for winter

Nylon fishnet overlay cages this two piece stretch nylon suit by Canadian designer Beatrice Pines from her Sea Sirens '65 collection.

Today's recipe

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

(8 servings)
1 baked 9-inch pastry shell
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
1/2 cup cold water
1 1/2 cups mashed cooked pumpkin
3 egg yolks, slightly beaten
1 1/2 cups undiluted evaporated milk
1/2 cup dark corn syrup
1/4 cup firmly packed brown sugar

1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ginger
1/8 teaspoon clove
3 egg whites
1/2 cup dark corn syrup

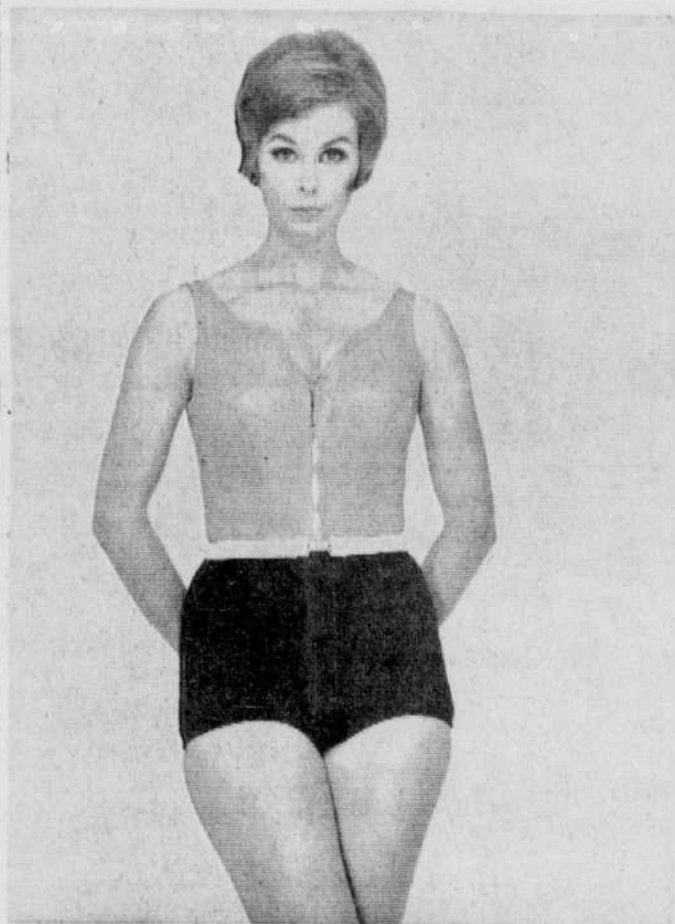

Sprinkle gelatin over cold water to soften. Combine pumpkin, egg yolks, evaporated milk, 1/2 cup corn syrup, brown sugar, cinnamon, salt, ginger and clove in saucepan. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until mixture is slightly thickened. Add gelatin; stir until completely dissolved. Chill mixture until it mounds when dropped from spoon. Meanwhile, beat egg whites until stiff peaks form when beater is raised. Gradually beat in 1/2 cup corn syrup. Fold into chilled pumpkin mixture. Chill until mixture mounds when dropped from spoon, about 1 1/2 hours. Pile into baked pastry shell. Chill until set. Garnish with whipped cream, if desired.

SALLY COLE'S PUMPKIN PIE

1 unbaked 9-inch pastry shell
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons corn starch
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ginger
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 cup canned pumpkin
1 cup milk

Combine sugar, corn starch, salt, cinnamon, ginger and eggs in mixing bowl. Add pumpkin and milk; blend well. Strain. Pour into pastry shell. Bake in 400 degree (hot) oven 15 minutes; set oven temperature control at 350 degrees and bake until knife inserted into filling 2 inches from edge comes out clean, about 30 minutes longer. (Center of pie will be soft, but will be firm when pie is cool.)

The Low-Tide neckline held with tiny bars is part of the new bare look in swimsuits interpreted here by Canadian designer, Beatrice Pines, in a lustrous Antron boucle maillot in navy, orange and white.

Women will dress like ladies this winter, if new Canadian fashions now being shown are an indication.

Fashions that sweeten the drab mid-winter picture — richly textured, warmly colored but above all feminine — are the features of Creative Pantino's holiday and cruise wear styles.

Pantino has sidestepped the boxy and angular shapes and sombre shades of previous fashion years to produce a line relying heavily on pastel wools in pinks, blues, lemons, mints or creamy whites for color appeal and softy shaped, finely detailed design for man appeal.

A standout is a completely co-ordinated outfit of white wool lace over pastel tinted silk — the rich underlay gleaming like jewels through the open work of the lace. The outfit includes several tops, street length skirt, evening skirt and slims.

The same high fashion wardrobe is seen in jewel-toned velvets, elegantly trimmed in some cases with layer on layer of lace.

With this year's reliance on evening skirts in fashion, there's a big range from which to choose. Besides velvet, wool lace over silk and pastel wools, Pantino has introduced a stand-out in deeply textured chenille with a matching bertha-collared top. Both skirt and top are detailed with fine scallops at the hems.

Young folks have holiday and cruise wear fashions for the first time this year. Favorites in the Pantino line are also wool. And the leading style is the jumper with its contrasting blouse or top underneath, adding up to the layered look.

CANADIAN FASHIONS featuring richly textured fabrics and warm colors will help relieve the drabness of midwinter. For the young adult (left) Pantino has designed the Hootenanny skirt with its copious pockets and bib ringed with contrasting stitching and casual gingham blouse. Double ruffle races to the hem of the supple Pantino shift (centre) — its vibrant tones of mint, lemon, pink or blue designed to dispel winter gloom. Sophisticated evening call for the sweep of an evening skirt (right), here in a co-ordinated Pantino outfit of deeply textured brown on black chenille. The hems and bertha collar are edged in scallops.

"More skin than suit" look highlights summer's swim wear

MONTREAL (CP) — The "more skin than suit" look highlighted a showing of next summer's swim wear to the press recently.

The Beatrice Pines collection, Sea Sirens '65, featured low backs, side and midriff cutouts and décolletages, but this trend was not extended to include the topless bathing suit.

The suits came in a variety of fabrics. The gentle persuasion group exemplified the more feminine look in beach wear, and these suits were shown in dacron and lighter knits. Ruffles and lattice sides showed up in both one and two piece suits.

Gleaming antron boucle was used for an aqua V-back suit with a built-in surplus top and lowered boat-neck front.

The overlay suit was given a number of interpretations. One suit featured swaying white nylon ruffles built over black knit. Another group of overlay suits consisted of two pieces—semi-bikini pants with long, sweater-like tops resulting in a stretched-out look.

A pink suit in arnel seersucker with deeper pink bias trim combined the two-piece stretched-out look with the ruffle bottom and came with matching overblouse and fichu.

SUITS HAVE SIDE SLITS The shift look in swim suits was shown to advantage in a hand screen flower printed nylon stretch with an A-line skirt and side slits. The surfer suits, simple and smart, featured laced fronts, boy-leg pants and engineered stripes. A two piece suit was shown in turquoise and orange stripes, the stripes occurring just below the waist.

The bikini, still very much in evidence, has also been given a more feminine look with ruffles. Most of the bikinis and many of the other suits came with their own coats or smocks.

The "caged look," perhaps designed for the girl too shy to wear a bikini, gave an illusion of bareness, and was shown in one and two-piece suits. A two-piece suit in black was overlaid with black nylon fish net to provide a see-through effect, and the same netting was stretched across a midriff cutout on a one piece suit.

Several of the suits boasted cut-out sides. This effected a one-piece look in front and a two-piece look in back. Bars and lacing heightened the allure of the side cutouts.

An extension of the surfer suit trends resulted in the "crazy pants" swim suit. In all nylon stretch, this suit consists of a halter top and pants that come almost to the knee.

A successful card party was held October 31 at the Community Hall, sponsored by the Brompton Road Women's Institute. The proceeds of $29 were donated to U.N.I.C.E.F.

Ladies first prize was won by Mrs. B. Clark and ladies second by Mrs. W. Bradford.

The men's first prize was won by Mr. D. Cullen, and second by Mr. L. Clark.

A raffle was held with Miss Mary Ann Hatch winning a ladies purse.

Mrs. G. Decoteau was the lucky winner of the door prize. A lunch was served at the close of the evening.

News flashes from around the world

MONTREAL (CP) — Habitat '67, a terraced artificial hillside of private concrete homes on a pyramid structure, may be smaller and less expensive than the originally planned $40,000,000 project of 1,200 to 1,500 units that was to be located at the entrance to the 1967 Montreal world's fair.

A fair spokesman said Thursday the project ran into trouble when three companies withdrew their offers to participate in the financing because the government was not prepared to give certain tax considerations required by private enterprise.

Ottawa has asked fair officials to re-evaluate the Habitat '67 exhibit to determine whether the futuristic complex, designed to solve the problem of high density living, will substantially benefit urban redevelopment technology in Canada and elsewhere.

Kruger firm reorganizes

MONTREAL (CP) — Kruger Organization Ltd., announced Friday a major reorganization of the company's Canadian operations has been completed.

All domestic operations of the Canadian-owned company, with international pulp and paper interests, have now been consolidated into a single corporate entity to be called Kruger Pulp and Paper Limited.

Kruger companies in Canada had separate and distinct names previously and operations now will become operating divisions of Kruger Pulp and Paper Ltd.

The company has acquired the assets of the three other Kruger companies in Canada and has been granted supplementary letters patent changing the company name to Kruger Pulp and Paper Limited.

Under the new corporate organization the company will have four operating divisions in Canada. They are the fine paper division, formerly Kruger Paper Co. Ltd., with warehouses and offices in Montreal and Quebec City; the newsprint division, formerly Richmond Pulp and Paper Co. of Canada Ltd., with a major newsprint mill in Bromptonville, Que.; the packaging division, formerly Sherbrooke Paper Products Ltd., with plants in Montreal and Toronto; and the paperboard division, formerly Turcot Paperboard Mills Co., with a plant in Montreal.

Executive offices of the firm are in Montreal.

The president, B. J. Kruger, said the reorganization program was undertaken with the broad objective of creating a more unified, simplified and clear-cut structure for the administration, operation and planned growth of Kruger companies in Canada.

The firm employs approximately 1,000 persons and has annual sales of more than $36,000,000.

UK's Sun wobbles a bit

By DOUGLAS MARSHALL

LONDON (CP) — The Sun, Britain's first new national daily newspaper in 34 years, rose in a blaze of unprecedented publicity some six weeks ago.

Today around Fleet Street the catch phrase about the newspaper is: "The Sun also sets."

The management acknowledges that the newspaper faces some problems, though not of the kind that are insurmountable. Periodic review may lead to some changes in the format and content but there is no anticipation that The Sun will go under.

A multi-million-pound gamble of the International Publishing Corporation, owners of the mass-circulation Daily Mirror, the newspaper was conceived by the corporation's chairman, Cecil Harmsworth King. He wanted a "radically independent" paper "born of the age we live in" to replace an aging, socialist-supported money-loser, The Daily Herald.

The original print order for The Sun was 3,600,000 but circulation dropped below 2,000,000 within the first week.

The circulation manager says he is unable to disclose the current circulation figure because of fluctuations but an unofficial estimate places it around 1,500,000.

SALES LEVEL OUT

An official associated with the corporation's operations said circulation was "levelling out." While The Sun's sales had dropped, so had sales of some competing newspapers. The management felt The Sun was pulling some readership away from rival papers.

The newspaper's design, brainchild of the corporation's overlord, Hugh Cudlipp, includes a mixture of straight news and feature material on the same page.

It has engaged a number of prominent columnists, including King and Jo Grimond, Liberal party leader. The management is searching for more feature material.

In politics, the paper tries to remain editorially neutral, although King is a strong supporter of the Labor party.

Remembrance Day is a time set aside to pay tribute to those who have fallen in battle and to civilian dead. Yet the celebration of Remembrance Day is empty if it does not prompt us to remember the causes for which they have given their lives and to rededicate our lives for the welfare of humanity. Let us, each and everyone, resolve to keep faith with those who have gone before us and to give substance to that faith in our daily thoughts and actions.

Canadiens tie Leafs, Wings down Rangers

SAWCHUK STOPS — Toronto goalie Terry Sawchuk goes down to stop a shot from the blueline as Montreal's Gilles Tremblay jumps aside and Toronto's Allan Stanley (26) looks on during a 2-2 National Hockey League tie in Montreal Thursday night. (CP Wirephoto)

Hopefully third, likely fourth, possibly fifth and even last.

Those were the pre-season predictions of Detroit Red Wings' destiny in the 1964-65 National Hockey League race. Even coach Sid Abel hoped, realistically, for no better than second or third.

"I feel this is a better club than last year," he said during training camp. "I'll be very disappointed if we don't move up a spot or two from fourth."

But look where the Red Wings are today: First place.

Tremblay jumps aside and Toronto's Allan Stanley (26) looks on during a 2-2 National Hockey League tie in Montreal Thursday night. (CP Wirephoto)

Detroit, riding a seven-game unbeaten streak, climbed into the top spot Thursday night with a 3-1 win over New York Rangers while Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs dropped one point behind because of their 2-2 tie in the only other game played.

SCORES ON POWER PLAY

A power play goal by Normie Ullman in the second period put the Wings ahead to stay as a crowd of 10,763 cheered Detroit to its sixth win in seven games.

Floyd Smith had opened the scoring for Detroit in the first and Bruce MacGregor bagged his fourth in three games for insurance in the third. New York's Dick Duff tied the score briefly in the second.

Ullman's winner came 44 seconds after Rangers' Vic Hadfield had been sent off for high sticking. He shot the puck over goalie Marcel Paille, who had fallen to block Alex Delvecchio's close-in drive.

Detroit outshot the Blueshirts 32-23 as Wings goalie Roger Crozier made 22 saves to maintain his hot average. The rookie backstop has allowed just 13 goals in nine games.

In Montreal, Canadiens defenseman Jean-Guy Talbot scored in the second period while Toronto was changing lines to tie the score 2-2 and Montreal struggled with the Leafs for the remaining 22 minutes and 21 seconds to forge the fourth tie this season for both clubs.

OPENS SCORING

Montreal opened the scoring in the first period when Henri Richard, returning to the lineup after missing the first three weeks with a groin injury, scored while Bobby Pulford was in the penalty box for the Leafs.

Rookie Ron Ellis got that one back near the end of the frame with his sixth of the year. Carl Brewer sent Toronto ahead at 13:52 of the second.

But the Leafs got caught flat-footed at 17:39 as they scrambled to change lines while the Canadiens rushed up the ice. Talbot scored from close in on a quick three-way play with Bobby Rousseau and Claude Larose.

Terry Sawchuk made 20 saves in the Leafs net while Charlie Hodge stopped 25 for Montreal. The game may not have produced a better team, but it did decide one point; television of week-day home games cuts deeply into the attendance.

DRAW BIG CROWD

A whopping crowd of 15,331 watched this encounter. Last season, when Montreal's home games against the Leafs were televised locally, attendance hovered around the 13,000 mark.

Detroit now has 13 points, one more than both Toronto and Montreal. New York remained tied with Chicago at nine points after losing their second straight game.

Montreal and Chicago will be the only two teams to play twice this weekend. The Canadiens play host to Chicago Saturday while New York visits the Leafs. On Sunday, Montreal is at Detroit and Chicago is in Boston.

Country Notebook

By WALKER RILEY

Have you ever seen a 225-acre lawn? I can tell you it is a beautiful sight. I walked across one the other day. Bill Campbell, an experienced nursery sod grower from Ontario, this summer established a second farm at Coteau Station in Vaudreuil County. By next fall, he will be supplying instant lawns to Montreal's galloping suburbs.

The surprising feature of the Fairlawn Sod Nursery is the speed with which it has been established. When Bill took them over seven months ago, these semi-idle farms on imperfectly drained sandy loam were renting for $75 or $100 for the hay which would grow on them. This spring, ditches were cleaned out and the encroaching bush pushed back with bulldozers. The whole area was ploughed and summer fallowed. Fertilizer (800 lbs. 5-20-20 per acre) was broadcast. The first seeding was made early in August, and the latest in October. Already, the whole area is a deep green carpet.

Next season, the turf will be clipped several times, sprayed with weed killer, rolled and irrigated. And by September, they hope to be cutting the first sods.

Bill has used five different grass-seed mixtures to have sod to suit the buyer's requirements. The choice is pure Bent-grass which will go for golf greens. Then there is pure Merion Blue-grass and three mixtures of Merion Blue with Kentucky Blue and Creeping Red Fescue.

Seeding rates were heavy—35 to 50 lbs. per acre. A Brillion seeder a hybrid between a seed-drill and a corrugated roller, was used for planting. Since no clovers were used, Bill doesn't expect winter killing from the late planting.

Oddly, the greatest hazards seem to be deer and wild geese. The deer punch holes in the soft, new seeding and the geese seem to think the bent grass, roots and all, is the best ever tasted.

The farm's development is being managed by Real Grenier, an enthusiastic young chap with confidence in the future. How he came to the position is a Cinderella story; I'll tell you about it sometime.

I noticed some bushes of European Buckthorn as I drove along the other day. They are the first I have seen in Quebec. At this time of year, you can spot it from a mile away; its leaves stay dark green and hang on long after everything else has fallen. You will notice it in the fence rows and along the edge of the bush.

Every bush of buckthorn you see should be destroyed. Pull it out by the roots with the tractor or spray the stems with Brusk-kill in oil. It is responsible for the leaf rust of cereal grains which can sharply reduce yields. In this part of the world, the buckthorn is the only place where this destructive fungus can over-winter.

Don't confuse the European Buckthorn with ordinary hawthorn; there is lots of that around but it is innocent. Hawthorn has sharp spikes an inch or two long. Buckthorn has only a quarter-inch spike, usually in the crotch of two equal twigs. Its leaves are dark green, and the veins run in a semi-circle from the stem to the tip, like the sections in a child's drawing of a pumpkin.

And while you are out looking for buckthorn, watch for bushes of Common Barberry. You can tell it by its single thorn; the ornamental, harmless barberry has a three-pronged thorn. This is the bush that carries the stem rust fungus over-winter.

I mentioned a while ago that the Department of Agriculture has organized an eradication program for barberry. Several wrote in to give locations of infestations, which I passed on to the department. I received a note of thanks in reply, and the information that they would be included in next summer's campaign.

Timothy seed production in Quebec is up 40% this year. This report is surprising in view of the short hay crop. But one farm I know in the Ormstown area harvested two tons of seed from ten acres. Four hundred pounds per acre is a commendable yield for a first try and in a dry year.

Plumbing rumbling? Fix now or weep later

Noise anywhere in the house can be annoying. If the noise is in the plumbing, there's more than just distraction over which to be concerned. There's probably damage occurring inside the plumbing system.

Eliminating the causes of the noise will eliminate the need for costly repairs later.

Even in the best of plumbing systems, you may detect a chattering sound when you open certain faucets. Sometimes the noises are even louder, an outright whistle for example.

The problem may be right in the faucet. A worn washer or the screw that holds it becoming loosened or broken will cause this noise. Replacement generally will end the trouble. If it doesn't, check to see if the spindle threads are worn.

With this or any kind of noise it should also be standard procedure to see that the pipes are properly supported. They should be fastened with hanger straps at studs or joists.

If the air leaks when you turn off the water and then turning on the nearest faucet. This should drain the pipe. If it doesn't you will have to open the pipe.

Hammering Much more annoying, even frightening, is the loud hammering when you close a faucet. This also can cause damage if not remedied.

Cause of the hammering is the immediate stoppage of water. Since water cannot be compressed, the momentum will cause it to bounce against the pipe when the flow is stopped.

What you need is a cushion in the form of a pipe which contains air, which is compressible.

Two or three feet of capped pipe, cut into the cold water line at the end of the line above the highest faucet, will cushion the impact.

Make certain you do a good

PLUMBING RUMBLING?

Hanger straps should not hold the line tight against the beam.

Sometimes you will hear a rumbling that is limited to the hot water line. If the water gets too hot, steam will cause a rumbling sound. Keep your thermostat set no higher than 160 degrees which is hot enough for household purposes. If you have it set at that temperature, but the water is getting hotter, then the thermostat needs adjusting. Have a plumber tend to this.

Sometimes the noise occurs just because hot water is hitting cold pipes and there is a sudden expansion. A coil of copper tubing, closed at one end, installed in the line just above the tank will take care of the expansion without noise.

Grow bulbs in pebbles

The list of spring-flowering bulbs that can be grown indoors in pebbles and water in the same manner as paper whites is steadily growing. February Gold and Cragford are two of the newer varieties of daffodils that are easily grown this way.

February Gold is an inexpensive variety belonging to the new Cyclamineus Hybrids whose flowers resemble those of a cyclamen. It produces lovely golden yellow flowers with exquisitely formed trumpets.

Cragford belongs to the Tazetta or bunch-flowered group. I don't know of a daffodil that's so early to bloom or so easy to force.

Flowers have a strong pure white perianth or saucer and a brilliant scarlet cup.

Exception

To force these daffodils in pebbles and water you do exactly the same as you would with paper whites with one important exception.

In the case of the paperwhites, you can put them immediately in a sunny, well lighted window and they'll go ahead and form roots and then flower in 5 or 6 weeks time.

Paperwhites will produce stockier and shorter stems if grown in full sunshine rather than putting them in the dark for a period as was done 25 years ago.

Not so with February Gold and Cragford. They'll need 7 weeks in the dark before bringing to a sunny window.

Here's all you need to do:

Select a dish or pottery bowl that's 3 to 4 inches deep. Fill it 2 inches deep with pebbles or small stones. Then set the bulbs on top of the pebbles.

An uneven number of bulbs (3-5-7), depending on the size of the bulbs, makes the best arrangement.

Add sufficient water at room temperature so that the water will come a half an inch up from the bottom of the bulbs.

Allow this to slowly evaporate away until it's a quarter of an inch below the bottom of the bulbs. Keep it at that level from then on.

Don't let the bottom of the bulbs sit continuously in water or they may rot.

Next move the containers to a cool dark basement or cupboard for 7 weeks so that they'll be well rooted.

Then bring to a well lighted room but not in the direct sunlight for a couple of days until the stems have turned green. Move to a sunny window until the first buds start to open.

From then on keep on a well lighted location but out of the direct sunlight. This will prolong the flowering period considerably.

Grape Hyacinths can also be grown without the benefit of soil.

At the time you order your bulbs ask your dealer to send you some vermiculite or perlite in which to set the bulbs. Scatter a layer of either material one inch deep over the bottom of the plate and moisten well.

Set the grape hyacinth bulbs in place and then move the container to a cool, dark cupboard or basement for the next 4 weeks.

Be sure to check every few days to see that vermiculite is staying moist. At the end of the rooting period bring to a well lighted but not sunny location until the leaves have greened up.

Move to a sunny window until the flowers appear and then take the container out of the sun.

Glasses for forcing hyacinths in water are now in good supply and this old fashioned method is very much in favor once again.

Fill the glass with water rainwater is almost a must! almost to touch the base of the bulbs. A few pieces of charcoal (same as you use for barbecuing) should be put in the glass to help keep the water sweet and clean.

Then move the glasses to any dark room, cellar or cupboard, until the leaves are about 3 inches high and flower bud is at least two inches out of the bulb. (TNS)

Ed. Note: The late poet Tom Gordon, of Lake Magog, on the occasion of the fortieth anniversary, in 1958, of the First World War armistice, submitted the following verse to the Sherbrooke Daily Record.

"Twas forty years ago this day, when Armistice was proclaimed.
When the fighting world lay

For none had won, as all had

MAGOG REMEMBERS...

We, the elected council of Magog, ask that citizens of this city again take time on November 11th, to remember those who sacrificed their lives in the two World Wars, the Korean Conflict and Boer War, for the cause of peace and freedom.

It is hoped that, at some near future date this community will see its annual armistice day celebration resumed, and until such time, it is our sincere hope that you will join the millions of others across Canada, and throughout the rest of the world, who take time on November 11th to pay tribute.

Address on meat presented to South of Border Home Demonstration Club

DERBY LINE — Members of the South of the Border Home Demonstration Club, held at the home of Mrs. Miriam Kelley Oct. 26, heard a well presented talk on the subject, Make Mine Meat.

The address was given by Mrs. Barbara Leavens and Mrs. Kelley, with Mrs. Leavens stating that meat makes the meal, it cooked properly. She said that the different grades on many meats is stamped on the outside with purple ink. Meat grades include prime, choice, good and commercial.

Mrs. Kelley displayed charts showing the various cuts of meats. The speakers were thanked for their informative talks.

The ladies, dividing into three groups, assembled in the kitchen of Mrs. Kelley, to make various meat dishes.

Mrs. Leavens said that it is advisable to purchase a larger piece of meat, which can be planned to serve three or four meals, thus realizing a money saving.

Later Mrs. Leavens, Mrs. Kelley and the hostesses, Mrs. Ellen Rohling, and Mrs. Myrtle Bowen, served these dishes as refreshments.

Mrs. Leavens stated that the tender tender cuts of meat may be tenderized by using tomato juice, cooking wine, vinegar or any similar liquid, which has an acid content. She advised taking the total price paid for a piece of meat, divide by the number of servings planned on for the approximate cost per serving.

It was decided that the Club accept the constitution and by-laws. Mrs. Hart gave a brief report of the County meeting recently at Derby Academy, which was attended by 24 members of this club, the largest attendance of any Orleans County club there.

Members were reminded that the treasurer, Mrs. Gertrude Macalusa, is receiving the membership dues, these should be in before January 1.

Mrs. Macalusa presented a tentative budget for the 1965 year, which is about $70 for State and County dues, Pennies for Friendship, for support of the Korean adopted boy. Any monies raised over and above the obligations, will be used for charity and club expenses. Any expenses in connection with nutrition, clothing or home management leaders' instruction will be paid from club funds.

Mrs. Lillian Kelley and Mrs. Davis were welcomed as new members which now brings the membership to 30.

It was agreed to go to a public place for a Christmas dinner on Dec. 14, returning to the home of the president, Mrs. Hart, for the Christmas gift exchange and party. A committee of Mrs. Shirley Davis, Mrs. Vivian Petelle, and Mrs. Ann Aldrich, agreed to investigate a suitable place for the dinner. Members will be notified later of the decision.

It decided to dispense with the December topic.

There will be a supper group meeting on Nov. 5, at Holland, to take the place of the local club meeting which all members are urged to attend. The topic, That's Life, will be in charge of the County agent, Mrs. Marion Buckland, there will also be professional people attending as guest speakers.

Interest was shown in a display by Mrs. Ellem Rohling, and Mrs. Hart of inexpensive Christmas gifts to make.

REMEMBRANCE DAY

By Wearing a Poppy on Remembrance Day you honor the dead and help the living

How much is your home worth? Of course you can't set a price — can you? Yet over 104,000 Canadians did. They gave their lives for your home, your family, will you remember them by wearing a poppy?

Your poppy contribution helps the Royal Canadian Legion fight human misery among Canada's disabled veterans and dependents. Yes, for some there are pensions, but no pension covers such emergencies as family illness, medical bills, or a fire. Your poppy contribution means quick help when it is needed most. Please give generously.

The money that you donate to the Legion's Poppy Campaign brings the necessities of life to thousands of Canadian Veterans and dependents. But it cannot heal the bodies broken in the service of their country. We can do so little for these men and women who did so much for us. However, we can express our gratitude by giving generously to the Royal Canadian Legion's Poppy Fund. All members of the community of Knowlton are most urgently requested to attend the Remembrance Day service at 11.00 a.m.
