QUEEN AND KING CROWNED

The students of Westmount High School selected the Queen and King of their Carnival late last week. The crowning took place at the carnival dance Friday night, C. Mackie, vice-principal, places a tiara on Queen Elizabeth Sparrow's head, while W. Osterman, head of the Physical Education Department, crowns King Tim Casgrain. For story and photo see page 14.

City Hall renovation tenders called again

The City of Westmount this week called for new tenders for the renovation of the interior of City Hall.

At the same time, the city called for separate tenders for the plumbing and heating, air conditioning and electrical work for the alterations.

SEPARATE TENDERS

The renovation tenders will be received at the office of City Clerk R. B. Seaman until 2.30 p.m., Thursday, Feb. 25. Tenders for mechanical and electrical work will be received until noon Feb. 23. Architects for the project are Balton, Ellwood and Aimers.

Unofficially it was learned that, depending on the bids received, the city hopes to deal with the renovation at the first council meeting in March, and that actual work might get underway in March. Once work has begun, the alterations are expected to take from four to five months.

RELOCATION

During the period of renovation, city departments will be relocated to the Public Safety Building and City Hall Annex on Stanton avenue. Some departments may be temporarily moved to Victoria Hall. Preparations for the move are now being made.

Tenders for the renovation were originally called late in November. When they were opened in public Dec. 18th, eleven bids had been received. The lowest was $262,785 and the highest was $308,949.

TENDERS LAPSE

Thirty days later the tenders lapsed. No official reason was given for the bids being allowed to lapse, but it was learned that city officials are taking extreme care to see that no problems arise in connection with the renovation — the first major change to the forty-year-old structure since it was built.

It has been stressed from the beginning of the project that no alterations are to be made to the exterior of the building.

Rotary told heart story

Dr. Paul David, director of the Montreal Heart Institute — planning a fund-raising campaign for a cardiac research centre here in October next — addressed members of Westmount Rotary Wednesday at their regular weekly meeting in Victoria Hall.

Noting that in the early months of 1964 President Johnson of the U.S. formed a commission 'to recommend steps to reduce the incidence of heart disease,' Dr. David explained the working of a similar group locally, a group that has been active in the battle against cardiac diseases for the past decade.

The present and future Montreal Heart Institute, he said, is the kind of centre for clinical and laboratory investigation, teaching and patient care now advocated in the U.S. by a team that includes the best cardiologists in the world.

Heart disease, he said, has no frontier, no language, no religion — and as a physician and a humanitarian he believes that the Montreal Heart Institute should unite the best workers in the field for the benefit of all patients.

Angina, coronary thrombosis, he said is the greatest killer of modern times and accounts for the death of one person in four (one male in three) of all over 40.

Laying the groundwork for the October campaign, Dr. David paraphrased the late Winston Churchill, saying "give us the tools so that we may continue our work."

Tucker to officiate

New flag to be raised Monday

The City of Westmount will raise the new Canadian flag Monday as Canadians from coast to coast inaugurate their national flag.

As The Examiner went to press city officials were still working out details of the flag raising ceremony here.

It will be the first time in the history of the city that a flag other than the Union Jack will top city flag poles.

The flag raising ceremony is expected to be held at noon — the time when all federal buildings and embassies abroad will lower the Red Ensign and raise the maple leaf flag.

City officials reported that Mayor Tucker will definitely officiate at the ceremony. However, it is understood that the rooftop location of the City Hall flag staff practically rules out any ceremony being held there. The flag pole can only be reached by climbing through a trap door leading to the roof.

There is a ground level flag pole outside the new Public Safety and City Hall Annex building on Stanton avenue, above Cote St. Antoine road, and as far as it could be determined at press time, the ceremony will be held there.

The most logical time to hold the ceremony, it is felt, is at noon when federal ceremonies are scheduled to take place; however the flag raising at Quebec City will take place in front of the Parliament Building at 4 p.m.

Barring any last minute change, the ceremony here will be held at noon.

Shortly after Parliament adopted the new flag, the decision was made here to fly the flag. There was, so far as can be learned, little controversy over the decision and no opposition to the move has been publicly voiced.

The city purchased three examples of the new flag several weeks ago and they were on display at City Hall.

Blier Report studied

Westmount city officials, including Mayor Michael L. Tucker are presently studying the report of the Blier Commission on Montreal Island intermunicipal problems.

Though the report was released Jan. 29, and portions appeared then in the Montreal press, complete and official English-language copies were not available until sometime later.

Mayor Tucker, though declining to comment on the contents of the report, has said that when the announcement was made that the members of the commission were unanimous, he felt that they were to be congratulated. Whatever recommendations were made, Mr. Tucker said, would at least provide a basis on which something might be developed.

Synagogue's plans face public meeting

The amended expansion plans of Congregation Shaar Hashomayim will face their first hurdle Tuesday evening when a public meeting will be held at City Hall beginning at 8 p.m.

Some 1,000 elector-proprietors, located in the district of the congregation's property on Cote St. Antoine road, are eligible to have a say on the zoning amendment that would permit the $1,000,000 development of the property.

The synagogue's expansion plans include provision for 70-car underground parking and 13 spaces for outdoor parking. Provision for parking was the main objection to the congregation's original plans. A public meeting was held last fall on the expansion and more than 10 property owners in districts R3 and R4 demanded that a referendum be called to approve or disapprove the plans. The poll was set for Nov. 10, but the synagogue withdrew its plans and altered them.

The new plans have been given first reading by City Council. If 10 eligible elector-proprietors make representations at the public meeting, another referendum will be called.

The expansion includes a two-storey addition, and will, according to plans submitted by architects Elisoph and Berkowitz, provide additional classrooms, a board room, meeting room, community hall, chapel, kitchens and a library.

Provision has also been made for shielding from view a service entrance, as well as enclosing play areas, and screening off the frontage along Metcalfe avenue.

A model of the property detailing the alterations is on view at City Hall.

Eligible property owners considered by law to be in the district of the synagogue's Kensington avenue-Cote St. Antoine-Metcalfe avenue site, own property south of Cote St. Antoine road between the eastern and western limits of the city.

Scripture sacred but not remote, Rabbi tells Institute on Judaism

"If Jews and Christians have been alienated in the past, it was not simply for divergences in religious views. Rather, it was for historical, ethnic and racial reasons," Rabbi Dr. Samuel Sandmel told the 24th annual Institute on Judaism at Temple Emanu-El this week.

Dr. Sandmel, Provost of the Hebrew Union College, Cincinnati O., is perhaps the world's foremost Jewish authority on the New Testament. He spoke to the some 300 clergymen and religious educators attending the day-long Institute both in the morning and the afternoon.

"Because scripture is sacred, many people assume that it is remote from the human heart and devoid of humor," he said. "In synagogue and church services, some of the richest literary gems are read in a monotone. I find myself mystified by this attitude.

I have never been able to understand why we are so blind to the rich drama and humor in scripture," he said.

"If we are to understand these narratives, we have to imagine the audience for whom they were created — a crossroads village or a campfire, a narrator speaking to hold the interest of people grouped around . . . These tales were not told to thin air. They were told to people," Dr. Sandmel said.

Speaking at the afternoon session, Dr. Sandmel told the Christians in the audience "I find you different, but not alien."

"I will never be able to understand the Christian God," he said. "nor will any Jew, no matter how much reading we do of the New Testament."

"Yet," he added, in spite of this, I say Christians and Jews have the same God. Both religious groups aspire after the same thing; they are both monotheistic . . ."

He said that Christians and Jews had lived in sheltered societies, each group shut off from the other. He spoke of the ingrained fear a member of one society had for another society believed hostile.

But things have changed, he said, "I can stand in front of you now and say — I am not afraid . . . I am different from you but I am not alien."

Both Protestants and Catholics owe "a lamentably late but none the less sincere apology" to the Jewish people, Dr. Carl Herman Voss, a prominent Protestant theologian who is professor of theology at St. Lawrence University, Canton, New York, told the luncheon session of the Institute. The Christians have not paid sufficient tribute to Judaism as "the mother faith of Christianity" and they have not done enough penance "for our stupidity in keeping anti-Semitism alive and giving credence to the monstrous lie that the Jews killed Christ."

The invocation at the luncheon was pronounced by Rev. Dr. Rudolph J. Berlis. Words of tribute to Dr. Stern who founded the Institute 24 years ago were spoken by the Rt. Rev. James S. Thomson and Rev. Father Walton Han-nah.

Unity Boys' Club

Teen Council to be elected this week

By MAURICE MARIASINE

It's election week at the Unity Boys' Club of Westmount. Ten Senior Club members have been nominated — six will be elected to the Unity Teen Council. The ten nominees, five boys and five girls are as follows: Heather Baylis, Heather Gwynne, Susan Burns, Lynne Lawson, Suzanne McCrea, Charles Joyner, Peter Whiteside, Bruce Norris, Jimmy Hotton and Johnny Walker.

The Teenage population at the Club, now numbering 123, will vote on Friday and Saturday, February 12th and 13th, and will elect a Teen Council comprising three girls and three boys, one of which will be elected to the position of president.

All week the nominees have been campaigning, speeches have been made, posters of every size and description were to be seen everywhere in the club, all leading up to Saturday afternoon at 3 p.m. when the ballots are to be counted and the results to be announced at approximately 4 p.m.

The "Teen Council" has been formed as a direct result of the Teen Conference held recently at the club. It was felt that the teenagers themselves should be given more responsibility and an opportunity to assist the full-time staff in planning more effective teenage programs.

TEEN TIME: The sudden upsurge in teenage activity at Unity was particularly noticed last weekend when over fifty teenagers participated in the Saturday afternoon Musical Jam Sessions and then proceeded to take part in a mixed deck tennis tournament. The four team league was organized by Bill Bain, one of Unity's four scholarship students attending Sir George Williams University. The four teams are: The Drops, The Drops, The Snoops and The Sneaks. The Drops edged out the Drops 15-13 while the Snoops defeated The Sneaks 15-12. The players: Drops: Russell Fordyce, Philip McHugh, Mike Radoman, Susan Burns, Judith Ann Mackereth, Pat Kenneway and Charlie Howes. The Drops: Jan Anamaet, Lawrence Crouch, Gary Taylor, Heather Gwynne, Zena Riff, Joanne Bellemare and Keith Gavin. The Sneaks: Douglas Fisher, Wayne Buckingham, Nicolo Missori, Heather Baylis, Loretta Fernandes, Lise Cusson and Allan Bechard. The Snoops: Peter Whiteside, Jimmy Hotton, John Pouliot, Lynne Lawson, Louise Colligan, Evelyn Irwin and Bill Bain.

INVITATION EXTENDED: The Neverlanders Drama Group have invited the residents of Prospect House to be their guests at the presentation of "ANNIE GET YOUR GUN" on Monday evening, Feb. 22nd.

Club members will have the opportunity to see the play on Friday evening, February 19th.

BOB JOHNSTON ELECTED: The "Larks" Group Club, operating for the second consecutive year, and one of nine group clubs conducted at the Unity Boys' Club, had their annual election and Robert Johnston was elected president. Bobby Johnston joined the Unity Boys' Club on May 4th, 1959. He has participated primarily in sports, however, during the last two years, in addition to his sporting activities, he has become a junior leader in the club, assisting in general activities on Thursday evenings and as co-coach for the Club's Girls' Basketball Team.

The Larks meet every Monday evening — the group's advisor is Charlie Howes.

RADIO WORKSHOP: The Radio Repair Shop is in operation under the leadership of Richard Wheeler and is conducted every Thursday evening starting at 7 p.m.

In addition to the repairing of radios, the boys will be learning the fundamentals of radio electronics.

JUST A REMINDER: The Unity Volunteer Institute has been scheduled for Wednesday evening March 17th. Although all the club leaders will be receiving formal invitations in the not too distant future, this notice is a reminder that March 17th, should be set aside for the Institute.

The objective of the Volunteer Institute is two-fold. Firstly, it will give all the club's volunteer workers an opportunity for a fellowship get-together, and secondly, it will provide an opportunity for the workers to iron out any problems that have arisen

In 1964 the 7,002nd boy was enrolled at Weredale House since the day its doors first opened in 1870, executive director Vernon F. McAdam reported this week at the 94th annual meeting of the Corporation of the Boys' Home of Montreal which operates the house and Camp Weredale at Lake L'Achigan.

"It is the proud record of this organization throughout the years that no boy was ever queried as to his color, his creed or his condition; the fact that he needed care justified his acceptance," Mr. McAdam said at the meeting which was held Tuesday evening at the home.

Among those attending the meeting was Mayor Michael L. Tucker, who moved the adoption of the annual report and later toured facilities at the home.

H. Roy Crabtree, who was re-elected president of Weredale House, stated in his annual report that operating costs continued to soar and demands on the services of Weredale became heavier.

"We are happy in the thought," he stated, "that other sources of revenue have picked up the slack, and our call on Red Feather continues to diminish."

Dr. Frederick Shoppam, medical officer, said in his report that "Very little illness of a serious nature had occurred and you will notice yourselves that our boys appear no different from other boys living under conditions much different from those of this house."

Fred N. Dundas was re-elected a vice-president, and G. Meredith Smith was named to a similar position for the first time.

C. F. Ritchie was returned as honorary treasurer and W. W. (Continued on page 15)

Library annual report

Herzog, 'Spy', Rector most popular in 1964

The readers' favorite characters in fiction in 1964 are a most unlikely trio — Moses Herzog, The Spy Who Came in from the Cold, and The Rector of Justin, Mrs. Norah Bryant, Librarian at the Westmount Municipal Library, states in the library's annual report.

In non-fiction the emphasis was still on people, Mrs. Bryant states. Philip Magnus wrote about Edward VII, J. K. Galbraith about The Scotch and Luigi Barzini about The Italians, while Charlie Chaplin, Evelyn Waugh, Compton Mackenzie and Jean-Paul Sartre wrote about themselves.

All these works have been exceedingly popular with the membership, according to reports.

The report shows that membership at the library rose to a total of 17,884 in 1964; of the total 2,907 were registered in the juvenile section.

Books in the library as of Dec. 1964 numbered 76,462, an increase of 3,462 over the previous year. The library was open a total of 288 days during 1964.

The public library today must serve two masters, the students and the general public, and how to do this with fairness to both is a problem widely discussed among librarians, the report states. No satisfactory solution has been found but each library strives to adjust its program to ever-increasing student demands, the report adds.

"With student demands in mind," Mrs. Bryant writes, "we have used the provincial grant in three ways — to enrich the book collection, to provide additional equipment for better service, and to employ extra (Continued on page 5)

WE SAY

Dr. Rondeau

MANY Westmounters
this week mourned
the passing of Dr. C. W.
H. Rondeau.

Dr. Rondeau, a pioneer
dentist in the community,
was one of the best known of the city's professional men. A great number of local residents
have visited his offices
near the Greene avenue-St. Catherine street intersection. He served them well.

He served the city in other ways as well — for many years as an alderman he was, at different times, commissioner of parks, police and finance.
He served too, when he ran as a candidate for mayor in 1927. He built his campaign around the need for open discussion
of city affairs at meetings
of City Council. He did not win, but in the struggle he made Westmounters more aware of how their city is run.

His loss is felt by many
— those who were his patients, those who knew him in public and private life, and they were many,
and by the members of the many clubs to which he belonged, as well as the members of his family. To them go our deepest sympathy.

Reason for pride

THE Ninety-Fourth annual meeting of Weredale House (Boys' Home of Montreal) was held this week. The Executive Director of Were-dale, V. McAdam, reported that as the home
closed its books in 1964
the 7,002nd boy was enrolled since the home
opened its doors in 1870.
One can only wonder

YOU SAY

Criticizes drivers, issues warning

Dear Sir:

The weather conditions of this week have brought to light at least two facts.

One, laws should be formed to curb irresponsible, unthinking drivers who make no allowance for weather conditions. While the streets were awash with slush and water, drivers roared through Westmount sending filthy
muck flying all ways around them. Surely some law could be passed that required drivers to slow down considerably when their speed almost drowns pedestrians in muck.
Some of the worst offenders
Wednesday in Westmount
were the Provincial buses
that pass through on Sherbrooke street. They took absolute smiling pleasure in coating pedestrians with the muck their bulk splashed. I saw one woman have to wipe their muck out of her eyes.
There must be some way to stop the unthinking, and even sadistic driver that seeks out
the largest puddles to play in.

Also, as the ice coated steps and pathways, it became apparent that potentially dangerous situations exist. The wide, relatively high stairs of the local YMCA
were complete sheets of ice.
The Y has no mats on the stairs nor do they have a temporary wooden railing
down the center of the stairs
as do most buildings with similar stairs in winter. If the stairs are not salted, or some precaution taken, there is going to be an accident
there.

The stairs at City Hall,
though mat covered, were completely frozen over and hazardous. Nothing was done to them until the afternoon.
Many elderly people have business there; the stairs
should be salted or cleared of ice at all times.

Wet-through.

what would have happened to those thousands of boys if the home had never existed. The home can be justly proud of its record — that no boy was ever queried as to his color, creed, or condition.

Westmount in 1905

The water dispute was deciding issue

Following is the third and final story in a three-part series on life in Westmount in 1905. This final article is a continuation of last week's story of the election campaign of 1905-06.

At that public meeting where Mayor Duclos and his supporters faced their critics, the mayor stated his position in relation to a lawsuit the city had brought against the Montreal Water and Power Company for failing to live up to its contract to supply pure and wholesome water.

"... I say none can misunderstand my position," Mayor Duclos stated. "I am now and always was against the prosecution of that lawsuit."

The mayor went on to give
his reasons:

"Even if you did win after all the appeals, all you would have would be a judgment.
What you want is pure water
as quick as you can get it,
and I say you will never get it until the termination of this contract unless you drop this suit and meet this company
like business people with a reasonable compromise, even at a slight loss."

Asked if he thought the matter should be submitted to the people, Mayor Duclos was reported to reply that electors
were apt to be carried away
by all sorts of reasons ...
while council would act upon
long experience.

A. McGoun, a candidate for council opposing Mayor Duclos and his supporters, after he had outlined the background of the city's fight with the water company, turned to the motives of the water company.

"... what these gentlemen
wish to do," Mr. McGoun said, "is to obtain from us for nothing a franchise extending over twenty-five years, and then to turn around and allow the franchise to be expropriated by the City of Montreal,
and anything from a quarter of a million to a million dollars paid to them for something that did not cost them
a dollar ..."

Later in the meeting, pro-mayor candidate J. R. Walker was asked if he now or ever has been financially interested in the water company.

"No," Mr. Walker replied,
"I am not, nor was I."

Were you not invited to become a director," opposition candidate W. Galbraith asked him.

"Yes, but I refused," Mr.
Walker said.

"Yes," Galbraith said, "but I must say that this is the first time in my business experience where a man has been asked to become a director of a company of which he is not even a stockholder."

As the campaign drew to a close, citizens of West-mount received a circular from the water company giving new proposals. A council meeting was called to deal with the proposals. The Advertiser charged: "They attempt on the very eve of retiring or being dismissed ...
to force a settlement on the town on the water company's terms."

Coun. Cross recommended that a by-law be prepared concerning the new terms,
and discussion went on for two hours, until a citizen in the audience asked if the proposals had been officially received by council.

Councillor Cross spoke up:
"I object to any answer being given to this question. It is a most improper one for any ratepayer to ask.

Councillor Galbraith spoke:
"If a citizen cannot get an answer to that question, I will ask it myself."

Mayor Duclos answered,
"I know nothing about it, except I have received a copy of the circular the same as other ratepayers."

Galbraith replied, "Then there is nothing before this meeting for it to consider,
and we have been talking two hours for nothing."

The proposed amendment was withdrawn and the whole matter referred to a committee.

As the election approached,
four candidates were running with Citizen's Municipal League backing, Mayor C.
A. Duclos, J. R. Walker, Fred
Fowler and John Stewart.

The minutes of the first Town Council meeting after the newly elected members took office, show the following:

James W. Knox, mayor
(Mr. Knox was supported by the critics of Mayor Duclos);
aldermen, A. McGoun, A. M.
Murphy, W. Galbraith, J.
Rogers, W. L. Lee, and A.
N. Scott.

Not one of the candidates
of the Westmount Citizens'
Municipal League was elected. That league should not be confused with the present-day Westmount Municipal Association, which was not formed until 1908.

C. P. Dutton is on leave of absence

C. P. Dutton, superintendent of Victoria Hall, is now on leave of absence until the date of his retirement, June 17, it was learned this week.

Mr. Dutton took time out from real estate examinations
he is writing — at, of all places, Victoria Hall — to explain that he is preparing for a second career, that of real estate.

"I don't approve of sitting down and doing nothing," he said. "Maybe when I'm 70."

Though Mr. Dutton is being feted by friends now,
he prefers to wait until the official date of his retirement
before receiving the accolades due his many years of service, including a full story
in The Examiner of his years
at Victoria Hall.

COMMON AILMENT?

In considering the drive
against gobblygook we are reminded of the patient who asked the doctor to tell him in plain English what was the matter with him. The doc replied that he was just plain lazy. The patient then asked now could the doc give him the medical term
so that he could tell his friends.

Dr. C. Rondeau, ex-alderman, pioneer dentist dies at 91

A link with an interesting period of Westmount's early political and commercial life was severed on the weekend with the death of Dr. C. W. H. Rondeau at the age of 91.

A dentist — Dr. Rondeau was born in Joliette and obtained his degree at the dental school of Bishop's University.

Practicing his profession first at Granby for a comparatively brief period he moved to Westmount where he was a professional and community factor for four full decades.

He is survived by his son Dr. Martin Rondeau, and a daughter, Mrs. Wesley King (Kathleen) as well as by five grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. His wife, the former Berthe A. Martin and a son C. Berthold predeceased him.

ELECTED IN 1917

Possessing a keen interest in municipal affairs, he was first elected to council in 1917 and was in and out of office several times until 1931. In 1927 he ran for the mayoralty and was defeated by former Mayor George Hogg.

From his office on St. Catherine street and Greene avenue he regularly presided over a morning coffee-club of business and professional friends in the area, and his opinions were strongly-held. He was against annexation with Montreal at an earlier time when that move was mooted by some, and a proponent of open council meetings where all business would be transacted before the eyes and ears of the public if they cared to attend.

He was one of the earliest proponents of the Quebec Union of Municipalities and at one period served as the president of this province-wide body. He was also a member of the Protestant School Board in Pointe-aux-Trembles, a life-long member of the Masonic Order, a member of the Heather Curling Club and the Seignior Club.

DOG'S FALSE TEETH

At one period he gained considerable notice when he gave a full set of false teeth to his 17-year-old fox terrier, a dog named Peter. The canine patient was written up in newspapers and magazines at the time and became so fond of posing that he automatically grinned to expose his 'store teeth' when he saw a camera.

During the First World War Dr.

In 1958 when this photo was taken, Dr. Rondeau was celebrating his 84th birthday. With him is his son Dr. G. Martin Rondeau, with whom he practised up until five years ago.

Rondeau served in the Canadian Army Dental Corps with the rank of Captain.

He continued in his profession until about five years ago. Burial was in Joliette.

staff so that more time can be given to the public."

In 1964 public libraries in Quebec received a grant from the Province calculated as follows: 1) a sum of 20c per capita of official population of the municipality; 2) a sum equal to 20 per cent of the certified municipal library budget; 3) one thousand dollars is granted for each full time professional librarian on the staff.

Interest in Canada and Quebec continued unabated, the report says. Canada has been beautifully photographed by Peter Varley, and Montreal sketched and described by R. W. Wilson and Eric McLean. The Quebec Revolution by Hugh Bingham Myers and Quebec States Her Case edited by F. R. Scott and Michael Oliver were on request before their publication day. There were many requests too, for the excellent French translation of Hugh MacLennan's Two Solitudes.

In the Reference Department, Miss Margaret Good reports that some important acquisitions were Thomas's Register of American Manufacturers, the latest edition of Chambers Encyclopaedia and also the Encyclopaedia International, the first completely new major encyclopedia in many years. Other useful items are Magill's Cyclopaedia of Literary Characters, The Code Names Dictionary, Harpers Dictionary of Classical Literature, and the third edition of Kane's Famous First Facts. Guy Sylvestre's Canadian Writers is a bilingual volume of biography and saw immediate use.

"With the aid of the Provincial Grant we subscribed to new periodicals both French and English in widely diversified fields."

Dr. Nancekivell named to succeed retiring Dr. Harold R. Griffith

Dr. A. F. Nancekivell has been appointed medical director of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital, succeeding the retiring Dr. H. R. Griffith, it was announced this week.

Dr. Nancekivell was formerly director of the Division of Medicine of the Defense Department in Ottawa and consultant to the surgeon-general's office.

He held these posts with the rank of colonel.

A graduate of McGill University, he served with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps during the Second World War and later was associated with military hospitals in Canada and Japan.

He has held faculty positions with McGill University, University of Toronto and University of Ottawa.

DR. HAROLD GRIFFITH

Dr. Harold R. Griffith in 1936 succeeded his father, the late Dr. A. R. Griffith, who had been Medical Superintendent since the very early days of the hospital, and he has continued in this post until the present.

DR. A. F. NANCEKIVELL

DR. H. R. GRIFFITH

In addition to his responsibility for medical administration, Dr. Griffith has been active, and has become well-known in the field of anaesthesiology. He was a pioneer in new drugs and methods, including the first use of cyclopropane in Canada, and the first post-operative recovery room; and in 1942 he was the first to use curare as a muscle relaxant during surgery. This new use for an old and poisonous drug revolutionized the whole practice of anaesthesia throughout the world, and today either curare or some other form of muscle relaxant is in use every day in every operating room everywhere.

Dr. Griffith's work has been recognized by the Award of the Feltrinelli Prize in Medicine by the Academia Nazionale 'Dei Lincei' in Rome in 1954, by the Hickman Medal of the Royal Society of Medicine, London, in 1956; the Distinguished Service Award of the American Society of Anesthesiologists in 1959; and by the Canadian Anaesthetists' Society Gold Medal in 1962. He is Emeritus Professor of Anaesthesia of McGill University, Past President of the Canadian Anaesthetists' Society, Past President of the International Anesthesia Research Society; "Founder President" of the World Federation of Societies of Anesthesiologists; and an Honorary Fellow of the Faculty of Anaesthetists of the Royal College of Surgeons of England.

Dr. Griffith was born in Montreal in 1894, and was educated at the Montreal High School and at McGill University (B.A. 1914 and M.D., C.M. 1922). He served as a stretcher bearer with No. 6 Canadian Field Ambulance from 1914 to 1917, and was awarded the Military Medal at the battle of Vimy Ridge. From 1917 to 1918 he served as a surgeon sub-lieutenant in the Royal Navy, acting as medical officer on a destroyer in the Mediterranean. During the second World War he was Consultant in Anaesthesia for the RCAF, with the rank of Wing-Commander. He is the author of about 100 papers which have been published in various medical journals throughout the world. Most of his papers were collected and published in one volume in 1963 with the title "The Boundless Realm of Anesthesiology."

Children more interested than ever in local Library

Miss Catherine Fraser, children's librarian at the Westmount Library says the children show more interest than ever in their library. They are eager to take part in its program and often lend their treasures for display, the annual report of the Westmount library states.

School classes also send exhibits. Alice in Wonderland puppets came from Roslyn, woodcarving from Mr. Myatt's class at Westmount Park School, and St. George's sent books written, bound and illustrated by the pupils. We allowed Mr. René Beauchamp, once a juvenile borrower and now a teacher at St. Leo's to hold meetings of the Science Club in the Library. We shared his pleasure when the club won a prize at last Spring's Science Fair, says the report.

"Friday's Story Hour is always an event for the children but sometimes a Puppet Show appears instead. Aaron Zimmerman, age twelve, was again a guest producer at Christmas and Easter. He brought his own puppets and his Beatles brought down the house.

"During Young Canada Book Week Miss Fraser appeared twice on television and talked about children and their reading. She was a judge at two hobby shows and speaker at a number of community groups. She made a list of Canadian

Westmount's Leslie Roberts writing history of Montreal

Leslie Roberts — Canada's controversial writer and broadcaster and a resident of Westmount — is hard at work on a new project. He's compiling a history of the City of Montreal.

Delving into the records, Mr. Roberts has discovered, he says, that there are many contradictions, but one thing is clear — Montreal was founded as a religious colony rather than a trading colony, and for a long time held its closest tie with France directly, rather than through the settlement at Quebec, where the governors of New France resided.

Prior to 1642 — the date of Maisonneuve's arrival here — France, says Mr. Roberts, had undergone a return to piety and it was in this atmosphere that circumstances brought together those who were to lead and finance the expedition that founded this historic city.

Behind it all, Mr. Roberts points out, was the secret or semi-secret society known as the Société du St-Sacrement, a group whose names are not revealed, but who, nonetheless, are believed to have been powerful people in France at the time.

A VISION

Following a vision which came to one of the group Maisonneuve was sought out, checked on, and given the O.K. as leader of an expedition that sailed westward in three ships.

Jeanne Mance, a woman who had nursed people through a cholera epidemic came along to found the first hospital which was financed by Madame DeBullion who put up an amount which today would be equal to about $20,000.

Apparently, says Mr. Roberts, behind the financing of the move there was considerable politicking and secret negotiations.

Primarily, the group was commissioned to go forth and convert the savages of the area — but as the savages were largely Iroquois, this part of the deal never really came off, although there was some success recorded with the Christianizing of the Hurons.

Digging into the records, says Mr. Roberts, one finds again and again the reference to the 'grain of mustard seed' to which the founding of Montreal was likened by Father Vimont, who accompanied Maisonneuve on that celebrated 18th of May 1642 when Montreal was officially founded.

TRICKY LIFE

Life was tricky in the young colony, and the settlers had a hard time keeping alive day by day, and little time left over for keeping records, according to Mr. Roberts. After three years there were only 72 people here and after eight years only 196 according to the records.

In a dozen years the total was still shy of the 500 mark.

Dealing with the question of Dollard des Ormeaux and the Defense of the Long Sault, Mr. Roberts points out that there are contradictions in the old records. Some see Dollard as a hero, others do not. Apparently he may have gone too far, too fast, and been cut off by the Indians, thus bringing about the massacre.

Things moved slowly, according to Mr. Roberts and the first wheeled-vehicle did not make its way from Montreal to Quebec until 1734, although there is a record that before that time Marguerite Bourgeois walked it.

Contrary to popular belief in

LESLIE ROBERTS

some circles, said Mr. Roberts, British rule did not follow immediately after the 12-minute battle of the Plains of Abraham.

The British took Quebec but Montreal and a large part of the St. Lawrence Valley remained in the hands of the French for a time.

The British worked their way into Ontario and into the New England states, while the Marquis de Vaudreuil apparently enjoyed life in his beautiful chateau and awaited Amherst.

NOT A SHOT

Montreal capitulated without a shot being fired — Mr. Roberts points out, and there was no oppression.

The governors of New France had largely played the situation by ear, says Mr. Roberts, and under British rule, the same laissez-faire attitude may be noted.

In this way, Mr. Roberts believes, the so-called 'rights' of the people were established, a development that is of particular interest in today's bicultural climate.

Anyone, he says, who preaches today of enmity between the founding races, should go back and read carefully the early records. The British, he says, when they took over, were more interested in trade, and left the government, justice and the law more or less to the French.

As a historian, Mr. Roberts apparently agreed with the late Stephen Leacock that 'history doesn't have to be dull'.

presents playChrist Church Cathedral, situated between Eaton's and Morgan's on the north side of St.
Catherine St., will present Christ
in the Concrete City by Philip Turner on Sunday February 14, at 7.30.The Chancel Players of Beau-repaire will perform the play on an elevated stage in the nave of the Cathedral. There will be no charge for admission but a green collection will be taken.The play depicts what can happen to today's concept of Christ
in a concrete city like Montreal.
Christ was tried as a heretic, sentenced and executed as a traitor.
Today's citizens, says the play,
as readily destroy Christ's ideas
as he himself was destroyed 2000
years ago. The action switches time to project alternately modern and ancient situations. For committed and curious alike, this production offers a point of view
on contemporary Christianity.

"Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy will include: "Soul

which to bless mankind, and happiness would be more readily attained and would be more secure in our keeping, if sought
in Soul."TWO MINUTES

WITH THE BIBLE

BY CORNELIUS R. STAM PRES.
BEREAN BIBLE SOCIETY
CHICAGO 35, ILLINOISSt. Paul, in his epistle to the Romans, refers to those who receive "the abundance of grace" and "the gift of righteousness" (Rom. 5:17) which God in love bestows upon all who trust in His Son for salvation.The Bible declares that no man can ever stand uncondem-ned in the sight of God, the Judge of all, unless he receives righteousness as the gift of God's grace.Quoting from two Psalms, the apostle says in Rom. 3:10: "It is written, There is none righteous, no, not one."This is why Paul pitied those who continued to go about "to establish their own righteousness" (Rom. 10:3). He knew that their struggle was utterly futile — that they needed to be saved (See Ver. 1).Let us thank God that the Lord Jesus Christ took the condemnation and judgment of our sins upon Himself at Calvary so that righteousness might be bestowed upon us by grace through faith. Regarding Abraham's justification before God,
the apostle says: "What saith the Scripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness" (Rom.
4:3).Abraham's justification, of course, was based on the fact that Christ was to die for sin,
but Christ's death is now past;
it is an historical fact. This righteousness is now proclaimed through Christ and offered

Exams over, students, teachers go skating

By BEVERLY JONES

With the exams finally over, St. Paul's was out to celebrate Tuesday afternoon. School was dismissed at 12.30 p.m., and everyone met again at 2 p.m., at the Westmount Skating Rink.

They got a real kick out of skating with the teachers, some who hadn't been skating for years. Afterwards all returned to St. Paul's for a baked bean supper and ate till beans were coming out of their ears. One energetic young freshman even made a bean sandwich. Next there was a terrific movie entitled "My Six Loves" which everyone thoroughly enjoyed.

This afternoon St. Paul's plays basketball against Verdun Catholic High in Verdun. We hope that there will be a large crowd there to cheer.

CARNIVAL

Next Monday evening, February 15, St. Paul's and St. Leo's will hold a skating carnival at Westmount Rink. Afterwards everyone will go to Mrs. CORBETT's house for refreshments. Mrs. CORBETT is a member of the Catholic Women's League.

The Graduation Committee has decided to hold the St. Paul's-St. Leo's Grad Dance at the Ritz

Carleton Hotel on Saturday, June 12. Everyone is enthusiastically making plans for this great event.

See you at the Valentine Dance tonight at St. Leo's Academy.

books for Juveniles which has been useful both here and abroad for it has travelled as far as Scotland and New Zealand.

"A box stands at the entrance to the Children's room, and at the request of the Montreal Children's Hospital our members and their parents fill it with small books and comics to go to the children in the Out-Patients' Department. With occasional reminders from Miss Fraser and Mrs. Clayton this fills quite rapidly and the Hospital tells us that the contents have helped entertain many a small patient waiting to see the doctor.

Dr. Smith holds Expo meetings

Rev. Dr. Douglas Smith, pastor of Dominion-Douglas United Church, Westmount Boulevard at Lansdowne, is meeting twice weekly with his committee in session dedicated to the proposition of speeding the construction of Ecumenical Centre for Expo '67.

On his committee are representatives of the Roman Catholic Anglican, Presbyterian, Baptist, Greek Orthodox and Lutheran churches.

The group is the board of management of the pavilion which will be constructed on the '67 World Exhibition site as the result of an unprecedented agreement among seven Christian denominations.

Dr. Smith, in a recent address before the local Rotary Club, in commenting on the situation declared: "I am thrilled by this development. These churches have not sat down in agreement for over 1,000 years and I am particularly thrilled to be able to play an active role in the planning of this pavilion."

Participation of the Roman Catholic Church in the joint pavilion means there will be no Vatican Pavilion at Expo '67.

"In the Christian Pavilion" explains Rev. Jean Mastucci, secretary-general of the proposed pavilion, "the churches will preach not about themselves, but about Christ."

The Pavilion, Dr. Smith explains, will house all available means of expressing the answers to visitors questions of conscience — painting, sculpture, music, songs, tapestries, stained glass windows and even the cinema.

Cost of the pavilion has not yet been set, but it is not the intention of the committee to build a structure that will be larger nor more impressive than others in the area.

However, it is believed the cost will be in the millions — and associations, corporations, and companies will be asked to support this unique venture in ecumenism.

Mr. and Mrs. W.D. Lambie celebrate Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lambie, who have resided at 370 Lansdowne avenue for the past twelve years, will celebrate their 50th. Wedding Anniversary on Saturday (February 13) at an At Home given by their sons and daughters-in-law.

Married in London, England on February 16, 1915 this very young couple were immediately separated until after Mr. Lambie's return from France and Middle East following the 1918 Armistice. In 1924 Mr. Lambie, OBE, received his first post abroad — to Wellington, New Zealand — as the United Kingdom assistant Trade Commissioner.

Subsequent posts brought them to Montreal in 1930, thence to Winnipeg, Toronto, Trinidad and finally back to Montreal in 1945. Mr. Lambie retired from the post of United Kingdom Trade Commissioner to the Maritimes and Newfoundland in 1954.

Since that time Mr. and Mrs. Lambie have participated actively in Westmount life. Mr. Lambie is a former president of the Westmount Bowling Club. Mrs. Lambie has been a member of the executive of the Westmount Women's Club for several years. Both are longstanding members of Westmount Park United Church, in which both their sons were married and several of their six grandchildren were christened.

To plan Saturday's celebration Barbara Lambie, who lives in Montreal with her husband Anthony, has made several trips to Ottawa to confer with her sister-in-law Beatrice, who moved there last August when her husband joined the Department of Trade and Commerce. On the latest trip Barbara brought back a 30-pound, four-tier wedding cake which Beatrice baked for the anniversary.

The two daughters-in-law, with their husbands, also sent out close to 300 notes and invitations to friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lambie in many parts of the world as part of a long-prepared surprise for their parents' Golden Wedding Day.

Jewish achievement documented

History of the Jews in Canada by Benjamin G. Sack — $2.50 paper; $6. cloth — Published by Harvest House Ltd., Montreal.

This book is a revised edition of the history of the Jews in Canada and tells of a history that we do not even know exists, which begins long before the British occupation and penetrates far into the era of the French regime.

The major cultural group of Canadians of Jewish descent with their achievements in the arts, sciences, trades and professions, should suffice to convince anyone that Canadians who are descended from a hardy Jewish stock, have taken their place as "Makers of Canada," as those of any other cultural connection.

The author relates how, when Jews were forbidden to settle in the colonies (the North American colony included), those of Jewish origin were well received in the colony provided that they desired and were able to embrace catholicism.

Henry de Levy, Duke of Ventadour, who held the position of Viceroy of New France (1625-27) was reputed to have been of Jewish descent, the City of Lévis was named after his descendent, General de Lévis.

A Portuguese Jewish family by the name of Gradis was noted for brilliant achievements and commercial leadership. Abraham Gradis was closely linked to Canada from the year 1744.

Benjamin Sack tells in detail the achievements of many great men with such names as Aaron Hart, Baron de Hirsch, Lazarus David, Solomon Levy, Samuel Jacobs and others too numerous to mention.

The Jews in Canada identified themselves with the struggle for political and constitutional liberties from its very inception.

This is a moving document, engaging and instructive.

Blind can be useful in industrial jobs

To catch flying objects as they come off a moving machine is not usually considered a blind person's work, but today in one Canadian factory, a blind man earns his living at this operation.

The project was described by A. N. Magill, managing director, The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, in a White Cane Week interview. Jointly sponsored by the CNIB and The Canadian Council of the Blind, White Cane Week is an annual education period that attempt to bring blind and sighted people closer together.

Mr. Magill explained that the flying object project came to the attention of the CNIB employment department when the operator lost his sight.

"The man had several years' seniority and the firm did not want to lose him," Mr. Magill said, "but to catch insulating pads without sight as they flew off a moving machine seemed impossible. Add to the problem the fact that the moving roller was covered with glue and that the pads were glue-coated on one side when they came

Bulletins from Birdland

Kingbirds, Pewees wintering near Peru

By WINNIFRED E. WILSON

Where are the many birds that left us last fall because they could find no more food in Canada once our cold weather started? Naturally, all flycatchers' hopes of survival here faded many months ago. Our Kingbirds, Pewees, and Olive-sided Flycatchers are somewhere between Costa Rica and Peru, our Phoebe's gathered together in the extreme south of N.A. Those aerial flycatchers, the Swallows, are long distance fliers. Tree Swallows and Bank Swallows huddle in Brazil, Barn Swallows may be found from Colombia to central Argentina, and no Cliff Swallow would think of wintering farther north than southern Brazil.

All Bobolinks are closely packed in the very centre of S.A.; all Red-eyed Vireos are wintering anywhere from Venezuela and Colombia down to southern Brazil and Ecuador. Rose-breasted Grosbeaks and Redstarts may be found from the southern shore of the Gulf of Mexico right into the north-western part of S.A. where all Scarlet Tanagers are tucked away. But some kinds of birds, like Meadowlarks and Robins, go no farther than the southern states, while some of these remain so near our border that when they imagine spring must be on the way they just cross back into Canada.

The majority of water and shore birds left as soon as ice appeared on our lakes and rivers. Golden Plover that nested even as far north as some of the Arctic islands are gathered in southern Brazil, Paraguay, Uruguay, and northern Argentina; Arctic Terns, having migrated long distances over the Atlantic, are wintering in the oceans of the Southern Hemisphere.

Although a few Double-crested Cormorants may be found along the coast of N.Y. state, most of them are on the southern coasts of N.A. Common Loons sometimes are seen in winter on the south shores of the Great Lakes, however, the majority are to be found near the Gulf of Mexico. American Bitterns spend the cold weather from Virginia down to Cuba and Panama, Great Blue Herons from Mass. to northern

S.A., while some are in Bermuda where they may be meeting Killdeer and Spotted Sandpipers, both found also as far down as Peru. A few Yellowlegs and Least Sandpipers fly a long distance, the one to the very southern tip of S.A., the other to islands off Ecuador.

Canada Geese and all kinds of Ducks winter no farther away than the southern states, and some manage to pick up a living right here in Canada.

WHERE'S THE PUCK? The girls donned hockey equipment Friday afternoon to play the boys who wore tunics at the Westmount Artificial Ice Rink as part of the carnival festivities. Even though the girls kept sending more players onto the ice, the boys won. At right one of the players (boy? girl?) takes a spill.

At Westmount High

Carnival rated a big success, school Alma Mater is chosen

By KATHI KRISTOF

The Westmount High Winter Carnival was a resounding success! It started with a rally on Wednesday, February 3, to raise Carnival spirits. And spirits were indeed raised to an all time high. On February 4, at noon, an assembly was held to vote for the Alma Mater of the school; there were three excellent entries.

The winner was Erica Shacter and the following are the words of our Alma Mater:

Westmount, our school we hail Spirit supreme

Filled with a pride and love
We'll fight 'til we rise up above
And always with sportsmanship

Striving for fame
You'll hear the people shout
Old Westmount sure has merited her name.

Leaders in every field
We'll reach the top
For heed that we approach
And guard yourselves from all reproach

When we enter battlefield
Spreading this cry
Our team will beat the rest
And victory will shine for Westmount High.

The day of Friday, February 5, started off with the distribution of the new issue of the school paper "Purple 'n' White". In the afternoon there was a football game in the snow. Then there was either three-legged skiing at Murray Park or a boys and girls hockey game (as expected the boys won). Then 650 students went back to the school in a torchlight parade for a chicken dinner, after which over 800 attended a very entertaining show featuring a combo the Scorchers and the folk-singing Question Marks.

Then 1100 including 140 graduates attended the dance featuring the Coachmen. During the dance the winners for the voting for a Prince and Princess were announced from grade nine; they are John McRae and Karen Harrison.

The Queen of the school is well deserving Elizabeth Sparrow and the King is Tim Casgrain. The runners-up for Queen were Elizabeth Weldon, Lee Davidson, Monika Kaiser-Vallé and Pam Mills; the boys were Rob Leggett, Dick Bourne, Andy Brodhead, and Steve Cakov.

The next day 140 happy but tired students went to Mount Orford to ski.

In sports, on Wednesday, February 3, there were tryouts for the girls Gym team. On February 4, the Senior hockey team tied with St. Leo's Academy 1 to 1. There was also an exhibition game between the Senior Basketball team and L.C.C.; we won 38 to 30. On February 5, the Senior Hockey team won an exhibition game with Mount Royal High.

Other activities are a debate next week at L.C.C. There has been $91.62 collected for the Milk Fund. On February 8, there was a trip to the Museum of Fine Arts for all those who will be matriculating in Art this year. The second course in Driver Education will commence on March 2.

Women plan skating party for St. Paul's and St. Leo's

The Westmount Sub-division of the Catholic Women's League is holding a skating party on the evening of Feb. 15th for the boys and girls of St. Paul's Academy and St. Leo's.

The skating will take place at the Westmount Park Rink from 8.30 p.m. to 9.45 p.m. The party will then proceed to the home of Mrs. J. Corbett, 65 Forden avenue for hot-dogs, cokes etc. There will be records, dancing and also Mr. G. M. Erratt and friends will provide some entertainment with their guitars.

Conveners for this party are Mrs. J. W. Howe and Mrs. F. H. Ditchburn.

'Y' plans animal cave course

The course starts on Wednesday, February 10, at 4:30 to 5:30 and will continue until March 31. This 8-week course is aimed at all ages and interests. The YMCA will be having Mr. Gerald Iles who is an expert on Zoos and the animals in them. Miss Budge will bring her dogs and talk about obedience training; Mrs. Johnston, from the SPCA and many other guest speakers, will also take part. There will be movies and question periods.

Through this course the YMCA hopes to help those that participate, to develop an increasing knowledge about and interest in all animals. They also hope to increase understanding of the care needed by animals, especially domestic pets.

The 'Y' will be encouraging the children to enter their pets in the Pet Show connected with the 28th Annual Hobby Show, being held on April 17 (entry forms will be available March 1 and must be returned by March 27).

If you have a pet or just like animals, come out to the Westmount YMCA's PET AND ANIMAL CARE CLASS. The registration fee for the course is $1.00.

St. Leo's sports

Saints and Westmount tie 1-all

By ANDY MCGILLIS

St. Leo's and Westmount High, battled to a one all draw in a drama packed senior school ice fixture played at Westmount Artificial rink.

The Saints had an edge in play most of the way but could not fanthom the close to perfect performance of Westmount goaler Grant, who was called upon to make more than a few shots from scrambles in front of his net. Reid Sherriffs, the Academy net custodian, after an early miscue that resulted in a goal, settled down to play well and was given strong protection from the defensive trio of Roger Lefebvre, John Donnelly and Dalton Barnoff, with the result most of Sherriffs work was long shots outside of the defense, however he did come up with a game saving stop from Westmount's fine center John Shayer, who broke through to test him severely.

With St. Leo's trailing by one goal in the second half, it was Neil Fernandes the clever little center of the Saints that came up with the big goal on a smart play, that saw him slide the puck to the far corner from about ten feet out, past the fallen goaler Grant. Pat Fennell picked up an assist on the play. The Clarke avenue puck chasers by virtue of this tie, took the season series from their neighbors on St. Catherine st. west.

ACADEMY BRIEFS: Andre Camill, who patrols right wing for the seniors, came up with a fine exhibition of positional hockey in his best game of the season last week against Westmount High. . . The recent releases from the GMIAA on scoring, reveals that three former Academy players are within the top twelve in the scholastic hockey scoring race; it includes John Kubacki and Lloidy McKinnon of Loyola and Doug Muncy of Westmount High. St. Leo's the smallest school operating in the GMIAA can ill afford to continue to lose many of its top prospects and make a good showing in competition. It is extremely rare when St. Leo's receives a good student and hockey player from another school. . . The curlers came up with a good effort last week at St. George's Club, to gain a tie with Verdun High. Ken Hamilton, John Hurley and Bernie Lefebvre were outstanding in this match. . . Mike Howlett has his Lions out in front in the schools intramural hockey circuit. . . The senior hockey club's goal production is low and is not helped any by Jules Desjardins blowing many scoring opportunities when in close. . .
