10,000 sign petition to save the Queen E

Action committee opens office, plans candlelight vigil June 1

By ALBERT KRAMBERGER
The Examiner

So far, 10,000 people have signed a petition to keep the Queen Elizabeth Hospital open, reports a spokesperson from the action committee set up last week to save the hospital.

Susan McGuire, the patient representative on the committee, said the committee expects to have more than 100,000 signatures by next month. She added that the petition along with letters of support from patients will be sent to the health minister in Quebec. The petition can be found at the hospital and at several stores and banks in the area.

The committee has also scheduled a candlelight vigil for next Thursday evening, June 1, in front of the hospital. The Union Church gospel choir is expected to perform at the vigil.

"It's to show solidarity within the community of the Queen Elizabeth Hospital," McGuire said.

Public meeting on hospitals in N.D.G.

NDG Community Council will hold a public meeting tonight, Thursday, May 25 on the closings of the Queen Elizabeth and Catherine Booth hospitals. The meeting is at Wesley United Church, 5964 Notre Dame de Grâce Ave. (corner Royal) at 7 p.m. For information: 484-1471.

Supporters are also being asked to wear a green ribbon — green is the official colour of the hospital. The ribbons are available for free at the information desk at the hospital and at kiosks in some metro stations.

"People should wear the ribbons to identify themselves as a supporter. They can even make their own, wear it themselves, place one on their home or on their car," McGuire said.

In the meantime, the hospital's oncology department is holding an open house on Monday, June 5, to demonstrate the effectiveness of the hospital's cancer treatment facilities. On Sunday, June 11, the committee plans to hold a picnic at Girouard Park, corner Girouard and Sherbrooke streets, in another opportunity for the public to show their support for the hospital.

Recently, the action committee opened an office at 5252 de Maisonneuve Boulevard, corner Marlowe. The office is open from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. For information call: 482-9334, 482-9266 or 482-9193.

Two weeks ago, the Montreal regional health board recommended that nine hospitals be closed, including the Queen Elizabeth and the Reddy Memorial, to reduce its deficit by $190 million.

Bring the kids — Saturday marks 20th annual Westmount Family Day

By BOB OLIVER
The Examiner

This Saturday, starting at 9 a.m., the Westmount Recreation Department will host the 20th annual Westmount Family Day at Westmount Park.

"We expect around 2,000 people and there's something for everyone," recreation department director Bob Aiken said. "It's a giant picnic for Westmount families."

Family Day 1995 will begin with a parade to Westmount Park featuring the Boy Scouts and Girls Scouts, firetrucks, and residents in costumes that will be judged later in the day.

Rounding out the day are pony and hayrides, races, games (tug-of-war, water-balloon and egg toss), concert and Dixie bands, magic and variety shows, carnival and booth displays, a petting zoo, a bicycle rodeo organized by police at Station 23 and the Westmount Rotary Club, costume judging, a picnic lunch and more.

Family Day started 20 years ago, in the summer of 1965 when former city councillor and mayor Brian Gallery decided to stage something for the community while promoting friendship and camaraderie.

Over the years, the event has grown. "The first year wasn't a resounding success; it started slowly," Aiken said. "But it got bigger and bigger. Now it's a huge community event."

Refreshments will be served by the Girl and Boy Scouts throughout the day.

$4 million spent on recent improvements at QE

New CT scan to be on-line in June

By ALBERT KRAMBERGER
The Examiner

The Queen Elizabeth hospital, one of nine hospitals recommended for closure by the Montreal regional health board, has recently had more than $4 million invested on renovations and new equipment.

In 1993, the emergency room was renovated at a cost of $3.3 million, with most of the money raised locally. The hospital has set June 19 as the date its newly acquired CT Scan will be put in use — a project worth more than $1 million. By that time, the regional health board could officially announce that the hospital will close next February. The public consultation meetings to address the closures begin June 12.

Michael Riccardi, chief technologist at the Queen Elizabeth, said the CT Scan and some accessories have already been purchased for more than $1 million. About $250,000 worth of renovations to the room that will store the scan are on-going.

"There's a target date of June 19 for the first patient but it could play a few days earlier or later," Riccardi said.

A CT Scan is a computer assisted X-ray that gives a two dimensional image of the internal body cavity.

"It's a very diagnostic and therapeutic piece of equipment," Riccardi added. "It's very useful in a wide range of applications."

Presently, the hospital sends its patients by ambulance to other institutions for such scans.

"We pay through our teeth for these services. To offer these services on-site is much more convenient for the security and safety of our patients. It gives us a quicker diagnosis and it's also cost effective."

Pat Titterton, the emergency room nursing manager, said it doesn't make sense to close the hospital so soon after renovating the emergency room for $3.3 million. "We have a brand new emergency department. We went from 800 square feet to over 3,000 square feet. There's a lot more privacy for the patients and it's much better." Titterton, who has been at Queen Elizabeth for 32 years, said both patients and hospital staff will suffer if the hospital is closed.

"It's a family hospital. We've all been here so long we get to know the families we treat."

The emergency room itself should become one of the hospital's selling points during the consultation process. The emergency room, which treats about 30,000 patients a year, was given a first rating by the Groupe Tactique d'intervention on their last visit. The rating was later confirmed by the regional health board.

Lightstone named to Concordia post

Jack Lightstone

Westmount resident Jack Lightstone has been appointed as Concordia University's vice-rector academic for a three-year term beginning June 1. Lightstone succeeds Robert Parker, who has held the position on an interim basis since June 1994.

Lightstone is a professor of religion at Concordia with extensive academic achievements as well as experience in a range of administrative posts. Lightstone has taught university undergraduate and graduate courses for 19 years.

Living with history talk is tonight

Correction

Last week THE EXAMINER incorrectly reported that the last lecture of the year sponsored by the Westmount Historical Association was Thursday, May 18. In fact the last lecture of the season is tonight (May 25) at city hall, with Phyllis Lambert as the guest speaker (see item above). THE EXAMINER regrets the error and any inconvenience it may have caused.

The Westmount Historical Association welcomes everyone interested in the history of Westmount to the fourth and closing session of the Spring 1995 lecture series, "Living with History" on Thursday, May 25 at 7:30 p.m. in the council chamber of Westmount City Hall, 4333 Sherbrooke St.

Phyllis Lambert, noted Montreal architect and founder of the Canadian Centre for Architecture will present a lecture and slide presentation on the subject of Westmount Square, a building complex designed by one of the great masters of modern architecture, Mies van der Rohe.

The cost of attending the lecture is $5; annual membership in the association is available at the door for only $10. For more details on the meeting, call 488-4677.

STATION 23 LOG

By CAROLINE KUTSCHKE

Dapper duo in rusty automobile

Two men robbed a high-end clothing boutique in Westmount Square last Saturday, fleeing in broad daylight with two suits. The incident occurred at about 2 p.m. A salesclerk tried to stop one of the men by grabbing the suit, but the man jerked the clothing away and she fell. The suspects fled on Greene Avenue to de Maisonneuve, then to Elm Avenue where they got into a rust-spotted grey car and drove off.

Both were described as in their late 20s, dark-skinned with straight brown hair, about 5 ft. 10 in. and 170 pounds. Both wore red spring jackets and beige pants. The getaway hatchback may have been a 1984 Ford Escort or Toyota Tercel.

p.m. May 16 after first bringing a can of cat food to the cashier. When she opened the cash drawer, the man said, "Don't move, I have a gun and I can shoot." The man then grabbed the cash tray, shoved it in a plastic bag and fled. The man was in his early 20s, white, with black hair balding in front. He wore a black jacket and jeans and spoke English.

Burglar cut piece out of window

A burglar cut a piece out of back-door window to enter a home on Shorncliff in a break-in sometime during the day last Saturday. After ransacking the home, the burglar left with a private safebox. Police think fingerprints may have been left behind and are investigating.

Drunken driver makes wrong turn

A 20-year-old Longueuil man is due to appear in Westmount Municipal Court July 12 on charges of impaired driving and driving over the legal limit in connection with a bizarre car chase last Friday night which ended in front of Stanton Street's Station 23.

The sergeant who was in charge of the station heard squealing tires near the station at about 3:50 a.m. Friday morning. When he looked out the window, he saw a car speeding past the station into the parking lot behind, followed by an Urgences Santé ambulance. When he inquired, a technician told him that the ambulance had been following the car because they believed the driver was drunk. Just as the car came by again out of the parking lot, the officer ran out and stopped the car.

The driver, who had trouble speaking, walking and getting out of the car, was arrested at 3:55 a.m. at the station. He was taken to a Quebec Provincial Police post for a breathalyzer test and where police later laid the two charges.

The driver was later released with the court summons.

Alleged car thief drives too fast

Police arrested an 18-year-old Montreal man last Thursday afternoon after a car and foot chase through Westmount and western Montreal.

They also recovered a car stolen from a Westmount resident earlier this month.

Constables Claude Paradis and Alan de Beaumont were en route to answer a call at de Maisonneuve and Atwater when a car sped past them. The officers gave chase along Lincoln to Fort and de Maisonneuve, where the driver jumped out of the still-moving car and fled on foot to an in-door parking lot.

Const. Paradis chased the man to the lot, where the man jumped down 15 feet into the parking area and continued to run. Const. Paradis followed him to a building on Lincoln, where the suspect unsuccessfully tried to hide by lying flat on a balcony.

Const. Paradis arrested the man, who was taken under police escort to Reddy Memorial Hospital by an Urgences Santé crew for treatment of his right ankle. He was later released with a summons to appear in Montreal Court.

The suspect's driverless car, meanwhile, had collided with a car on de Maisonneuve and Du Fort. A check revealed that the car had been reported stolen between 5 p.m. May 17 and 9 a.m. May 18 by a Westmount resident who lives on St. Catherine St.

Westmount business nominated for prestigious innovation award

Victoria Ave. office wired to the world

By CAROLINE KUTSCHKE
The Examiner

Talk about sending the right signals.

Last month, Westmount resident Joe Church, founder, president and CEO of LanSer Wireless, a communications company on Victoria Avenue, got word that he and 11 other Quebec innovators were nominated for the 1995 Manning Awards. There are 60 named in all. Top prize is $100,000. Award winners will be announced Nov. 8.

The Ernest C. Manning Awards Foundation is a national, privately funded, non-profit organization established in 1980 to promote the recognition and encouragement of Canadian innovators in all disciplines.

"It's an honour to be among the short list of people nominated in Canada," Church said. "The honour itself is wonderful."

The Westmount company's innovation? Cellpac — a wireless data equipment and networking system, designed and developed by LanSer Technologies Corp. a subsidiary of LanSer Wireless.

The company is targeting the device for use in a variety of services — it's so far negotiating with banks and retail outlets to get certification to use the system.

Card validations now use wires installed by Bell Canada.

Lanser's device, says Church, is cheaper and faster and thus provides a direct benefit to the storeowner.

Other applications

"There are tons of additional applications," he added, including for bank machines, lottery transactions and e-mail.

Lanser is also working on the capability to carry alarm information — with the same system at work, there are no wires to cut in the burglar alarm, Church notes.

Church, who holds 25 years of senior management experience in telecommunications, plans to go head-to-head against the giants in the field, banking largely on the growth of direct debit use.

Church founded LanSer Telecom in 1988 after holding senior positions with Cantel and Bell Canada.

"I felt there was an opportunity and I personally wanted to run my own telecommunications business," recalled Church, who recruited a senior team from Marconi Canada, Cantel, Bell and Sprint Canada. "I wanted to build it from scratch."

Staff has grown from five in mid-1993 to 45, including 15 in R&D. The Westmount office also houses employees in manufacturing, shipping and sales and is expanding to 50 sites in Canada, including Toronto, Quebec City, Ottawa and Vancouver. Expansion plans include Korea, the Phillipines and Indonesia.

Mayor to judge Greene flowers

To celebrate spring, Quartier Greene has decided to "flower" itself. Shops, galleries and restaurants will be decorated for the season with flowers and plants.

Mayor Peter Trent will judge and decide on the three most beautiful presentations today, Thursday, May 25 at 3 p.m. The prizes will be awarded at about 4:30 p.m.

For more information, contact Claude Gregoire of the Greene Avenue Merchants' Association at 931-8814.

Then on Sunday, the Cinq Saisons grocery store has planned a number of events in celebration of its 10th anniversary, including fundraising for the YMCA.

FIX-UP DOLLAR SENSE

In most decisions in life, there is often a choice available. A home improvement project is no exception. If the question is how to best use your improvement dollar, keep in mind the eventual resale of your home. The national average length of home ownership is seven years. So, if you are within the average homeowner statistics, resale time may come around sooner than you think. It's what a buyer sees, not what you tell him, that makes the difference.

Which do you think would add more to the visual value of a home - new insulation or a new kitchen? Unless the insulation is really on its last legs, a new kitchen is a better investment. A buyer can see a new kitchen or remodeled bathroom, an exterior paint job, but will he see the insulation behind the walls and in the attic?

Of course, it's always nice to do both, but if you have a choice, spend your money where it will be seen the most. It will make your house more attractive and more salable when the time comes.

Keep eyes on station shell game

It will be interesting to see whether the City of Westmount has any success with its unique approach to acquiring a suitable piece of land in the south part of the city for a new multi-security station.

The city is in the process of rezoning a number of parcels near St. Catherine Street, from Atwater in the east, all the way to some CP Rail property in the western part of the city. The rezoning would allow for municipal offices and protective and police services, which is the kind of zoning needed for a new police, fire and public security station. (Even the city has to obey the zoning regulations.)

Presumably the city really only has its eye on one prime site. It is rezoning a number of sites so that it will have room to negotiate the best deal. After all, the city would hate to let the owner of that prime piece of real estate realize that his site is No. 1. Better to make it look like you are seriously looking at 10 different sites, so that no one owner will be able to drive that hard of a bargain. Along the way the city might end up with a very good deal on what would have otherwise been its second or third choice.

Faced with an uneasy group of residents at a recent Ward 8 meeting, who said having the station in their neighbourhood would bring down property values, Mayor Trent said the station will not be on the south side of Dorchester — a statement that all but eliminates one large area being rezoned (called R6), except for a small piece at Gladstone Avenue. At the same meeting Councillor John Bridgman conceded only three of the sites are of prime interest; "some" are privately owned.

A number of sites are along the south side of St. Catherine St., and next to some rather residential-looking areas. At first glance they look like longshots.

Perhaps the most attractive site, with good road access and not too close to homes, is the old train station site — although one would imagine CP would have to extract a pound of municipal flesh to part with anything adjacent to the Glen Yards which, if not a valuable real estate development today, will be some day.

Officers from the 3rd Field Engineer Regiment told THE EXAMINER last year that the city intends to build at the city-owned Corporation Yard (they said they were party to talks on getting quarters in the new building, which fell through). They described how access to the Yard at Bethune across from the hockey rink would have to be widened for fire trucks. Interestingly, the chunk of land the city would need for improved access is among the parcels now being rezoned.

Wherever the station goes, the city has to make a deal and get shovels into the ground soon, if it wants to hang on to its infrastructure grant for the multi-station project.

Some good news at Met

I would like to take this opportunity to update your readership with regard to the MET. Although the financial pressure is still on as it is with all community-based organizations, we have had two pieces of news that brighten up our future. First, our flyer and telephone campaign has, as of this date, brought in over $3,000.

Secondly we will be supervising the sale of juice, pop and ice cream in Westmount Park this summer. This second endeavor will create summer employment for some of our teen members and much needed income for the Centre. The Board of Directors decided to recognize the City's support by accepting Recreation Permits held by all Westmount teenagers as equal to MET cards.

This is similar to what happens in like communities.

We have started our job bank program and have received work offers already.

All registrations forms have been sent to members currently on our list. Other forms are available at the Centre.

We also received a signed Montreal Canadiens Hockey stick as a prize to use in one of our in house contests.

All these items are for us a positive sign about what is happening and can happen at the MET.

Let's retrain our cities — Part II

It's a truism to observe that most cities, in need of access to the main transportation system of the time, originally sprang up next to a waterway. And it's equally obvious that's why today's urban core is found next to water.

In spite of this, Montreal was able to grow in a pattern that radiates out from this central core in a complete circle — thanks to bridges. Today, one-quarter of the region's population is found on the South Shore.

The Toronto region, faced with an expanse of lake to the south, could only grow in a semi-circle. In fact, it grew in a rather squashed semi-circle, since newer cities tended to hug the shores of Lake Ontario, thereby creating a 120 km neck-lace of cities from Oshawa to Hamilton.

This long but dense crescent favours the passenger train. So Ontario has retrofitted suburban trains back into their landscape. GO Transit has nearly four times the ridership of our own suburban trains, and nearly four times the trackage (353 vs. 93 km). And the whole $90 million operating deficit is picked up by the Ontario provincial government.

By contrast, Quebec cut its $16-million subsidy to the MUC for the Montreal/Rigaud line in 1992, and will be cutting a similar $19-million grant to the Montreal/Two Mountains line by the end of this year. It will also cut a $31-million subsidy to regional mass transit in general.

The good news is that Quebec is proposing to substitute a lot of these subsidies with the revenues from a proposed one-cent-a-litre tax on gasoline sold in the region. For some reason, Quebec has decided that transit costs in the Greater Montreal Region must be self-financing (so autofinancement has a double meaning!) I doubt whether other regions could likewise stand on their own.

The more you look into how Quebec finances transportation, the more you realize that the Montreal region (and the MUC especially) gets the short end of the stick. The big end goes to the sticks: rural Quebec. Total provincial spending on transport is about $2 billion, of which only one quarter will be spent in the Greater Montreal Region — where one-half the population happens to live.

Provincial contribution to mass transit and school bussing in our region is proportional to Quebec's overall population. But we get only 10 per cent of the amount spent on autoroutes (all 26,000 km of them) and local roads. That's because there's only 1,117 km of autoroutes in this neck of the woods, of which 455 km are in the MUC. So why should we have to self-finance our transportation needs, when the rest of Quebec is on the dole?

But back to trains. It is proposed that the Ministry of Transport study the proposal of CN and CP to add another four commuter lines totalling 200 km of track, and a new $75 million of yearly deficit.

The question for next week: who pays?

Our MNA Jacques Chagnon says...

Hospitals and hockey teams

Last week, much to the shock and sorrow of our community, two hospitals in our riding were hit by the Health Minister's unilateral decision to shut down nine hospitals: the Reddy Memorial Hospital and the Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc Hospital.

There are dozens of chronic care and elderly patients in these hospitals. No one knows what will become of these patients, who are not autonomous, in an area like downtown Montreal. Where will they go? Out on the street? I can't believe that any responsible government would allow such a thing to happen.

The PQ government points out that psychiatric wards were de-institutionalized under the Liberal government in 1982, 1983 and 1984. It is precisely a repeat of that situation that we would like to avoid. When these wards were de-institutionalized, the patients from such hospital centres as the Robert Giffard in Quebec City and the Saint-Jean-de-Dieu in Montreal were let out without any services waiting for them on the outside. These same patients were soon spotted everywhere in the city and became the cause of an increase in the number of homeless people in Montreal. With these cuts, the PQ has let us know that they intend to repeat the same scenario by closing down nine hospitals. Not only does this give us reason for concern but also a reason to be scandalized: all the government is looking to save, according to the budget estimates, is $100 million in the health and social services sector.

This is especially shocking when, during the same week as the proposed cuts, offers to the tune of $17 million were made to save the Nordiques, specifically $17 million on the first shot and $7 million a year for the next three years. One million here, one million there, what are this government's priorities? Getting involved in the NHL and paying players $3 million per year or making sure that patients in hospitals, whether in Quebec City, Montreal or elsewhere, get the care they need? Where are patients supposed to go when the government closes down emergency rooms, such as the one at Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc Hospital, that offers services even to the South Shore area if their emergency rooms are overcrowded?

The Minister of Environment was unable to find within the budget estimates the $30 million needed to meet the Premier's campaign promise concerning PCBs. The Premier's response? Quebec is not such a poor province, $30 million, we can surely find such an amount, no problem! $17 million a year for the Nordiques, with an additional $7 million a year for the next three years, we are not that poor! We can find that money, no problem! But money for the sick? None can be found for them. The Minister has decided that nine hospitals must be shut down and their patients must be let go. Where they will go, or what kind of care they will receive, no one knows. Unfortunately, the patients and the local population around the Reddy and Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc hospitals will have to be sacrificed in order to feed a Minister's ego and power trip.

MULTI-SECURITY STATION

Getting feet into gear before brain is engaged

Mornings are starting awfully early these days. That's partly because of those early-warning birds who issue announcements to let you know the light's a-comin' and they're happy about it. It's also because the daylight saving we yearned for all winter has arrived and, consequently, the sun is appearing just as early as the wretched birds claim.

I am waking at five.

I roll over. I stuff my head under the pillow. I swear at the birds. "Bloody males," I grumble. Don't get me wrong. I know enough about birds to be aware it's the males who sit out there bellowing at having found a fine spot for a nest. "Come take a look, baby." I know they'll quiet down once they've got a mate, mouths to feed, a mortgage.

For now, though, they and the sun are conspiring to have me up at this positively indecent hour.

Going back to sleep is out of the question. There's the regulation period of pretending I'm still asleep, followed by the fuzzy awareness that maybe I'm not. During this lacuna of uncertainty, I go for my run.

I am not a runner. In order not to be a runner with any success, I have to be up, dressed and out of the house before my brain realizes it has left the bed. The optimal time for this subterfuge is during the post-bird, pre-coffee window of opportunity.

My jogging clothes are piled on a chair in the order I need them. My shoes are unlaced, ready and waiting for my feet. I have to achieve a level of consciousness sufficient for lace-tying.

Four-year-olds can tie laces. I go out the door, stretch for a couple of minutes because someone once told me I ought to, then I run away.

Jog jog jog. Puff puff puff. There's an astonishing number of people doing things at this ungodly hour. Jog jog jog. There's my neighbour walking the dog. There are people pulling in to work at the nursing home. Puff puff puff. Good grief! There are people out running! They look awake, alert — like they're doing it on purpose.

Jog jog puff puff. Can I stop now? That little voice marks a critical moment. The brain has suddenly noticed it's not in bed anymore. Now's the time to get entertaining. A sunny day is good for a few "my, isn't it lovely" thoughts. Jog jog jog. The brain must be lulled back into its stupor. It may doze off again.

I've reached the cinder track. Now I can get into a monotonous rhythm which will, with luck, mesmerize the brain. Puff puff puff. Lots of dogs in the dog-run today. Lots of runners out, too. I look down at my feet and pretend I'm watching a movie. The Loneliness of the Long-Distance Runner. I start to feel noble. Jog jog jog.

My brain's come back. It's really awake now and not one bit pleased. "What the hell's going on?" it wants to know. "We're jogging," I tell it. "I can bleeding see that," it snarls. Then it asks how many times we're going to go round the track. It wants to leave right away. It comes up with really good reasons we should go round only twice — or once. "You started late." Jog jog jog.

Beside the Point

KATHLEEN

"It's going to rain." Puff puff puff. "This isn't fun!"

There are ways the brain can be chivvied into staying for a bit. Happy daydreams keep its mind off counting the number of circuits. Fury and worry work, too.

Fury isn't really great as the body tends to use a lot of energy keeping fists clenched and stomping the offending thought into the track. This gets pretty tiring and the brain may leave off being angry and start feeling shagged. At which point, it notices it isn't at home and it starts whining.

Worry is good, especially if you can come up with a single engrossing problem for the brain to cudgel itself over. It may be possible to finish the run and get home before the brain notices it's been had.

At last we're walking back. I walk to cool down. I cling to the conviction that one day I'll run far and hard enough to need to. My neighbour passes me with the dog and congratulates me. "I'm impressed. You're a runner," he says.

I smile weakly and try to look athletic. "No," I think sadly. "I'm not a runner. Runners' brains run, too."

Letters-to-the-editor are welcome

Letters are welcome and every effort will be made to print them, space permitting. The more concise the letter, the better its chances of being printed. Letters should be sent to: The Editor, 210 Victoria Ave., Westmount, Que., H3Z 2M4, or faxed to 484-6028.

Officers from the 3rd Field Engineer Regiment told THE EXAMINER last year that the city intends to build at the city-owned Corporation Yard (they said they were party to talks on getting quarters in the new building, which fell through). They described how access to the Yard at Bethune across from the hockey rink would have to be widened for fire trucks. Interestingly, the chunk of land the city would need for improved access is among the parcels now being rezoned.

Wherever the station goes, the city has to make a deal and get shovels into the ground soon, if it wants to hang on to its infrastructure grant for the multi-station project.

Some good news at Met

I would like to take this opportunity to update your readership with regard to the MET. Although the financial pressure is still on as it is with all community-based organizations, we have had two pieces of news that brighten up our future. First, our flyer and telephone campaign has, as of this date, brought in over $3,000.

Secondly we will be supervising the sale of juice, pop and ice cream in Westmount Park this summer. This second endeavor will create summer employment for some of our teen members and much needed income for the Centre. The Board of Directors decided to recognize the City's support by accepting Recreation Permits held by all Westmount teenagers as equal to MET cards.

This is similar to what happens in like communities.

We have started our job bank program and have received work offers already.

All registrations forms have been sent to members currently on our list. Other forms are available at the Centre.

We also received a signed Montreal Canadiens Hockey stick as a prize to use in one of our in house contests.

All these items are for us a positive sign about what is happening and can happen at the MET.

Let's retrain our cities — Part II

It's a truism to observe that most cities, in need of access to the main transportation system of the time, originally sprang up next to a waterway. And it's equally obvious that's why today's urban core is found next to water.

In spite of this, Montreal was able to grow in a pattern that radiates out from this central core in a complete circle — thanks to bridges. Today, one-quarter of the region's population is found on the South Shore.

The Toronto region, faced with an expanse of lake to the south, could only grow in a semi-circle. In fact, it grew in a rather squashed semi-circle, since newer cities tended to hug the shores of Lake Ontario, thereby creating a 120 km neck-lace of cities from Oshawa to Hamilton.

This long but dense crescent favours the passenger train. So Ontario has retrofitted suburban trains back into their landscape. GO Transit has nearly four times the ridership of our own suburban trains, and nearly four times the trackage (353 vs. 93 km). And the whole $90 million operating deficit is picked up by the Ontario provincial government.

By contrast, Quebec cut its $16-million subsidy to the MUC for the Montreal/Rigaud line in 1992, and will be cutting a similar $19-million grant to the Montreal/Two Mountains line by the end of this year. It will also cut a $31-million subsidy to regional mass transit in general.

The good news is that Quebec is proposing to substitute a lot of these subsidies with the revenues from a proposed one-cent-a-litre tax on gasoline sold in the region. For some reason, Quebec has decided that transit costs in the Greater Montreal Region must be self-financing (so autofinancement has a double meaning!) I doubt whether other regions could likewise stand on their own.

The more you look into how Quebec finances transportation, the more you realize that the Montreal region (and the MUC especially) gets the short end of the stick. The big end goes to the sticks: rural Quebec. Total provincial spending on transport is about $2 billion, of which only one quarter will be spent in the Greater Montreal Region — where one-half the population happens to live.

Provincial contribution to mass transit and school bussing in our region is proportional to Quebec's overall population. But we get only 10 per cent of the amount spent on autoroutes (all 26,000 km of them) and local roads. That's because there's only 1,117 km of autoroutes in this neck of the woods, of which 455 km are in the MUC. So why should we have to self-finance our transportation needs, when the rest of Quebec is on the dole?

But back to trains. It is proposed that the Ministry of Transport study the proposal of CN and CP to add another four commuter lines totalling 200 km of track, and a new $75 million of yearly deficit.

The question for next week: who pays?

closing down nine hospitals. Not only does this give us reason for concern but also a reason to be scandalized: all the government is looking to save, according to the budget estimates, is $100 million in the health and social services sector.

This is especially shocking when, during the same week as the proposed cuts, offers to the tune of $17 million were made to save the Nordiques, specifically $17 million on the first shot and $7 million a year for the next three years. One million here, one million there, what are this government's priorities? Getting involved in the NHL and paying players $3 million per year or making sure that patients in hospitals, whether in Quebec City, Montreal or elsewhere, get the care they need? Where are patients supposed to go when the government closes down emergency rooms, such as the one at Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc Hospital, that offers services even to the South Shore area if their emergency rooms are overcrowded?

The Minister of Environment was unable to find within the budget estimates the $30 million needed to meet the Premier's campaign promise concerning PCBs. The Premier's response? Quebec is not such a poor province, $30 million, we can surely find such an amount, no problem! $17 million a year for the Nordiques, with an additional $7 million a year for the next three years, we are not that poor! We can find that money, no problem! But money for the sick? None can be found for them. The Minister has decided that nine hospitals must be shut down and their patients must be let go. Where they will go, or what kind of care they will receive, no one knows. Unfortunately, the patients and the local population around the Reddy and Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc hospitals will have to be sacrificed in order to feed a Minister's ego and power trip.

Hospitals and hockey teams

Last week, much to the shock and sorrow of our community, two hospitals in our riding were hit by the Health Minister's unilateral decision to shut down nine hospitals: the Reddy Memorial Hospital and the Sainte-Jeanne d'Arc Hospital.

There are dozens of chronic care and elderly patients in these hospitals. No one knows what will become of these patients, who are not autonomous, in an area like downtown Montreal. Where will they go? Out on the street? I can't believe that any responsible government would allow such a thing to happen.

The PQ government points out that psychiatric wards were de-institutionalized under the Liberal government in 1982, 1983 and 1984. It is precisely a repeat of that situation that we would like to avoid. When these wards were de-institutionalized, the patients from such hospital centres as the Robert Giffard in Quebec City and the Saint-Jean-de-Dieu in Montreal were let out without any services waiting for them on the outside. These same patients were soon spotted everywhere in the city and became the cause of an increase in the number of homeless people in Montreal. With these cuts, the PQ has let us know that they intend to repeat the same scenario by

Mornings are starting awfully early these days. That's partly because of those early-warning birds who issue announcements to let you know the light's a-comin' and they're happy about it. It's also because the daylight saving we yearned for all winter has arrived and, consequently, the sun is appearing just as early as the wretched birds claim.

I am waking at five. I roll over. I stuff my head under the pillow. I swear at the birds. "Bloody males," I grumble. Don't get me wrong. I know enough about birds to be aware it's the males who sit out there bellowing at having found a fine spot for a nest. "Come take a look, baby." I know they'll quiet down once they've got a mate, mouths to feed, a mortgage.

For now, though, they and the sun are conspiring to have me up at this positively indecent hour.

Going back to sleep is out of the question. There's the regulation period of pretending I'm still asleep, followed by the fuzzy awareness that maybe I'm not. During this lacuna of uncertainty, I go for my run.

I am not a runner. In order not to be a runner with any success, I have to be up, dressed and out of the house before my brain realizes it has left the bed. The optimal time for this subterfuge is during the post-bird, pre-coffee window of opportunity.

My jogging clothes are piled on a chair in the order I need them. My shoes are unlaced, ready and waiting for my feet. I have to achieve a level of consciousness sufficient for lace-tying.

Four-year-olds can tie laces. I go out the door, stretch for a couple of minutes because someone once told me I ought to, then I run away.

Jog jog jog. Puff puff puff. There's an astonishing number of people doing things at this ungodly hour. Jog jog jog. There's my neighbour walking the dog. There are people pulling in to work at the nursing home. Puff puff puff. Good grief! There are people out running! They look awake, alert — like they're doing it on purpose.

Jog jog puff puff. Can I stop now? That little voice marks a critical moment. The brain has suddenly noticed it's not in bed anymore. Now's the time to get entertaining. A sunny day is good for a few "my, isn't it lovely" thoughts. Jog jog jog. The brain must be lulled back into its stupor. It may doze off again.

I've reached the cinder track. Now I can get into a monotonous rhythm which will, with luck, mesmerize the brain. Puff puff puff. Lots of dogs in the dog-run today. Lots of runners out, too. I look down at my feet and pretend I'm watching a movie. The Loneliness of the Long-Distance Runner. I start to feel noble. Jog jog jog.

My brain's come back. It's really awake now and not one bit pleased. "What the hell's going on?" it wants to know. "We're jogging," I tell it. "I can bleeding see that," it snarls. Then it asks how many times we're going to go round the track. It wants to leave right away. It comes up with really good reasons we should go round only twice — or once. "You started late." Jog jog jog.

Beside the Point

KATHLEEN HUGESSEN

"It's going to rain." Puff puff puff. "This isn't fun."

There are ways the brain can be chivvied into staying for a bit. Happy daydreams keep its mind off counting the number of circuits. Fury and worry work, too.

Fury isn't really great as the body tends to use a lot of energy keeping fists clenched and stomping the offending thought into the track. This gets pretty tiring and the brain may leave off being angry and start feeling shagged. At which point, it notices it isn't at home and it starts whining.

Worry is good, especially if you can come up with a single engrossing problem for the brain to cudgel itself over. It may be possible to finish the run and get home before the brain notices it's been had.

At last we're walking back. I walk to cool down. I cling to the conviction that one day I'll run far and hard enough to need to. My neighbour passes me with the dog and congratulates me. "I'm impressed. You're a runner," he says.

I smile weakly and try to look athletic. "No," I think sadly. "I'm not a runner. Runners' brains run, too."

What was our city's first name?

Q. What was our municipality's first name when it was incorporated in 1875?

A. Notre-Dame-de-Grâce. This was a much larger area than present-day Westmount and soon after there was agitation to have the eastern part declared a separate entity. This finally happened six years later when 1,000 acres were sectioned off and renamed the Village of Côte St. Antoine.

Q. When was our municipality named 'Westmount'?

A. William Murray's home, in the area which became Murray Park, was called Westmount and after years of controversy its name was adopted for the municipality, since it so accurately described the district.

Q. Where can you still see parts of an Indian trail?

A. Sections of an Indian trail remain alongside Westmount Park and in Arlington Lane. This trail led to the mountain springs on the hillside covered by Murray and King George parks. Côte St. Antoine was a major Indian roadway and became the principal street on the upper slopes of Westmount mountain.

KNOW YOUR WESTMOUNT
 By Aline Gubbay

New feature tests knowledge of Westmount's past

Westmount's rich history is filled with change — developments which have altered its landscape, creating new landmarks and obliterating others. How much do you know of Westmount's past and the events which underlie its present?

Today we begin a new feature by Aline Gubbay, local historian and president of the Westmount Historical Association, which tests your knowledge or perhaps your memory.

The title "Know Your Westmount" is the same column name used by the association when it contributed a weekly piece to THE EXAMINER in the 1940s.

You are also invited to submit questions of your own. These may be addressed to Aline Gubbay, c/o THE EXAMINER, 210 Victoria, Westmount, Que., H3Z 2M4.

Q. Where is the last of the city's 'Indian wells'?

A. On the eastern edge of Murray Park. It was long ago filled in and surrounded with a stone wall.

Q. Where were the toll booths?

In the 1800s, there were toll booths at Greene and Sherbrooke streets, St. Catherine and Greene and Vendome and Côte St. Antoine road. Charges were five cents for pedestrians, ten cents if driving a two-wheel vehicle and twenty-five cents for a four-wheel wagon or carriage. The gates were finally dismantled in the 1880s.

Q. Who was the first mayor?

A. The Hon. Eustache Prud'homme, descendant of Louis Prud'homme, Montreal's first brewer and Captain of its first militia. Eustache was a distinguished public figure, a member of the first Canadian Senate, a seat he held from 1867-1888.

Westmounters in CJC spotlight

While the race for president assumed the spotlight at the recent Canadian Jewish Congress assembly, three other elections took place including Westmounter Zave Climan edging out a Toronto candidate for the position of treasurer.

A chartered accountant and financial consultant and resident of Aberdeen Avenue, Climan is presently the treasurer of Shaar Hashomayim Synagogue in Westmount.

Walters talk raised funds

Journalist Barbara Walters, host of ABC's news magazine 20/20 and the Barbara Walters Specials, spoke to nearly 3,000 fans at Place des Arts.

Co-chair of the event was Westmounter Ann Birks. The event raised money for the Montreal Children's Hospital Foundation.

Walters was the fourth of five famous women to speak as part of the Unique Lives and Experiences lecture series.

He is a past treasurer of the Akiva School and has served on the board of directors of various local Jewish community organizations.

Two other Westmounters received awards. Former CJC National executive vice-president Alan Rose was presented with the prestigious Samuel Bronfman Medal while Andrea Bronfman was the recipient of an Award of Merit from outgoing CJC president Irving Abella for her work on the travelling exhibition A Coat of Many Colours. Westmounter Sharon Wolfe chaired the plenary program committee.

MacInnis delivers Fripp lecture

Dr. Joseph MacInnis was the guest speaker this year at the annual Molly Fripp Lecture Series held at Miss Edgar's and Miss Cramp's School. Students from several schools were invited to hear Dr. MacInnis speak about his explorations in deep-sea diving. Since 1964, MacInnis, a medical doctor who is an expert in physiology, has been involved in some of the deepest and longest dives made by man.

He was the first man to dive under the North Pole and was a consultant to the Titanic discovery team and the first Canadian to explore the shipwreck. MacInnis was also a co-leader in the Imax filming expedition of the Titanic.

MacInnis is currently working on a science project to accelerate the clean-up of the Great Lakes which will be the subject of another Imax film.

Former director-general nominated as secretary of WMA

Manley Schultz, former director-general of the city, has been nominated to the position of secretary of the Westmount Municipal Association, the long-established non-partisan citizens' watchdog organization. Schultz, a director for the past year, takes over from Bernard Guerin. He is currently with SNC-Lavalin as a senior consultant specializing in the international aluminum industry.

His other interests include a resumed amateur musical career. Schulz sings with the Desjardins-Favreau Lunchtime Singers, who give their annual concert at Complexe Desjardins today.

Broadway-bound mega-musical Jeanne still needs work

By SUSAN GRAY
The Examiner

Jeanne, the mega-musical-in-the-making which premiered at the Saidye Bronfman Centre to mega applause, is yet another theatrical attempt to tell the story of Joan of Arc, the warrior heroine who was burnt at the stake for heresy. The home-grown musical, written and composed, respectively, by Montrealers Vincent de Tourdonnet and Peter Sipos is a Broadway-style show which is primarily dramatic, but which has its comic side. The difficulties inherent in such an approach with a character like Joan are not insignificant.

De Tourdonnet's Joan (Naomi Emmerson) is an innocent who, while constant in her goal of beating the English out of France, openly shows her insecurities in the process. This in itself is interesting, because her reputation as a mythical heroine rests largely on her image as a steadfast figure.

But whichever way you slice it, the story of a 17-year-old girl who hears voices which lead her into a winning battle against the English is a difficult nut to pour into a bright-lights Broadway mold. I should probably state that I have a certain bias against splashy musicals; it's so easy for substance to play second fiddle with this genre, when substance is even an issue. Jeanne exhibits too much of this tendency for my taste; her emotions especially come across as pasted on too much of the time.

The musical's comedy works best vis-à-vis individual characters. De Tourdonnet's take on Charles VII, for instance (André Thérien) is hilarious. The heir to the throne was known for his timidity, and preference for peace over war - Thérien pulls this off with magnificent mugging and a sense of the absurd.

Unfortunately, director Roger Peace's take on Jeanne, irony and all, is rather lacking in several departments. The show feels as if it had been conceived for an actual Broadway stage, but was shrunk down to fit the Saidye's medium-size stage. This goes a long way toward explaining the overly predictable chorus work, and the tendency to go for the sensational when a more intimate choice would have been more appropriate. Peace also has introduced some stylistic anomalies into Jeanne, such as a choreography for the song When it's Right where the moves would fit much better with Aquarius from Hair than a show about a Medieval heroine.

Acting-wise, Emmerson, who possesses a rich voice well-suited to the young Jeanne, is lacking nuance early in the show. As things progress, and she leads the troupes into a (mini) battle at the siege of Orleans, the turning point of the Hundred Years War, she starts to come into her own, in an interesting parallel with the pattern of Joan's own life.

Sylvain Landry is an inspired La Hire, who jumps into his rock number with glee, and Pierre Bénard's Duke D'Alençon brings an air of sophistication which nicely contrasts with the wet-behind-the-ears Jeanne. On the weaker side, Marc Poulin as the Bishop of Beauvais is given too imposing a presence, which his full baritone voice reinforces.

A look around the soccer leagues

Westmount kickers take break for Family Day

By BOB OLIVER
The Examiner

Midway through the spring schedule, 650 male and female Westmount soccer players will take a rare break this Saturday as the community celebrates Westmount Family Day at Westmount Park.

For most, it will be time to reflect on past results and to prepare for the second half of the spring schedule.

"We didn't schedule any games for the long weekends this year because too many players go away," recreation department director Bob Aiken said. "It wouldn't be fair to the teams if they can't play at full strength."

Lawn bowling gets rolling

The Westmount Lawn Bowling Club will hold its official opening spring tea at the Clubhouse, on Wednesday, May 31 at 3 p.m. following a mixed triples game that starts at 1 p.m.

A rain date has been set for June 1.

While the teams take the weekend off, a quick glance at the standings shows some interesting developments in both leagues.

At the novice girls level, Fredericton will be itching to get back on the pitch and use their game-in-hand to break a first place tie with St. John. Fredericton is currently undefeated with a 3-0 record while St. John files a 3-1 mark. High scoring Fredericton has a 7 goals-for and no goals-against record. St. John is 3-3.

In three other girls categories, the teams to beat have also been established.

At the atom level, Sorel and Sherbrooke lead the pack with six and five points, respectively, while 2-0-1 Sherbrooke has a game in hand.

In peewee, Kingston has leaped to the forefront with seven points. Montreal West, with three points, is a distant second.

Edmonton tops the bantam charts with six points, but the lead is slim. Calgary and Montreal West, with four points each, are in hot pursuit of the league's frontrunner.

In the two-team midget girls league, Fiji is currently winning a tight battle, holding a 2-1 games edge over New Zealand.

Contrary to the torrid struggle going on in the girls division, the counterpart two-team midget boys league isn't tight. Russia has opened a huge gap over Germany, and is currently lead five points to one. However, in every other boys category it is tight, and the second half of the schedule will be the test.

Portugal and Poland are tied for first place in the atom division with four points each, while three other teams are deadlocked in second with 2-1 records.

At the bantam level, Uruguay holds a slim one point margin over second-place Mexico. In peewee, Japan trails first-place Italy five points to four.

After three games in the novice division, U.S.A. holds down top spot with a 3-0 record, good enough to hold a two-point edge over Argentina.

"There are a lot of kids in the community playing soccer and it's understandable because it's such a wonderful sport," said Aiken, also citing the financial advantages. "And there's virtually no equipment. As long as the child has shorts and shoes, he or she can play soccer."

GAA Olympiad
June 6-15

If you're aged 55 years and up, registration forms are available at the Westmount Recreation Department to sign up in the Senior Olympics.

The event, sponsored by the Golden Age Association, will run from June 6 to 15 and will be held in Montreal near Westbury.

A Fun Day in the Park June 11 kicks off the track and field events on the Monday in Mackenzie King Park.

Other events include basketball, volleyball, badminton, speed walking, tennis. Some indoor events include Name that Tune, Bean Bag Throwing, shuffleboard, bridge, and spelling bees.

Last year, Westmount had a good group of about 25 athletes at the Senior Olympics, said Westmount's organizer, Claude Danis of the recreation department. She's hoping for the same turnout this year. "We have quite a few very good athletes in Westmount which is nice. It's a good event to come to."

If you're not up to the athletic turn, the Senior Olympics still needs fans and support on the sidelines.

Registration is $4. T-shirts and caps will also be on sale. For more information, call the Recreation Department at 989-5353.

Parents C. Albright and D. Shannon man the hockey gear table at the 2nd annual ECS Rummage Sale at Miss Edgar's and Miss Cramp's School, which raised a whopping $20,000. The proceeds will benefit the school's technology program and the Westmount Public Library Campaign where a chair will be purchased in the name of the school.

Seniors have recreation role, Aiken says

By CAROLINE KUTSCHKE
The Examiner

However you define a senior, continuing to stay active can only be beneficial. Westmount's recreational department director told a group of senior citizens last week.

Bob Aiken's talk was part of a continuing series of speakers on resources for seniors in Westmount put on by the Seniors of Westmount Action Group.

Recreational activities need to be thought about as a person ages, Aiken said.

For example it might be good to think about amending facilities and the rules for the elderly.

"Why not make tennis rackets bigger, why not make the strings looser and make the courts softer." Manufacturers might change their products or facilities if enough seniors demanded it.

The recreation department supports clubs that start up by offering the use of facilities for free.

Aiken noted, suggesting clubs organize themselves first. Also available is the space under the canopies at the outdoor swimming pool. The pool itself can also be used, said Aiken, but he cautioned that it is heavily used as is.

Aiken suggested that seniors take a more active approach to sports.

"Another thing where seniors can do so much is volunteer their services," Aiken said. "So many have played hockey before, why can't they coach the children? The children would love it."
