THE SHERBROOKE RECORD — MON., JAN. 8, 1973

10 CENTS

Ten people dead, 13 wounded in shooting spree

Two snipers hold police at bay

NEW ORLEANS, La. (AP) — Two of the heavily-armed snipers who killed 10 persons and wounded 13 others held police at bay from atop an 18-story hotel today, virtually paralyzing a large section of downtown New Orleans.

Police Supt. Clarence Giarrusso, who lost his No. 2 man and two other officers during the sniping which began Sunday, said early today: "Time is our ally. They're at our will now. We're going to win."

The snipers were holed up in a bunker-like concrete-block structure on top of the Howard Johnson Hotel. They had peppered the area with gunfire throughout Sunday after setting sections of the hotel afire. The third member of the group was gunned down Sunday night.

Police shouts for the two to surrender drew only taunts to. "Come and get me."

LINK IS SEEN

A police spokesman said there was "some indication" that the incident might be related to the New Year's Eve sniping attacks on two other policemen, one of whom was killed.

Mayor Moon Landrieu, joining the police chief in a news conference, said several square blocks surrounding the hotel will remain closed to the public as long as the snipers remain free in the building.

The streets barricaded by police encompassed approximately 50 square blocks.

There were three snipers in the bunker at one time, but one was killed by police gunfire from a marine helicopter Sunday night.

The sniper exposed himself when he leaped from the concrete-block house to shoot at the helicopter.

Marine Lt.-Col. C. H. Pitman hovered the big chopper about 30 feet above the hotel roof so police gunners armed with AR15 automatic rifles could pour lead through a hole in the wall, hoping to hit somebody inside with a ricocheting bullet.

STICKS OUT HEAD

"He had been sticking his nose out before; but, this time, he popped right out of there and aimed his rifle," said police Capt. Edward Laporte, who was watching the scene with binoculars from the top of the nearby City Hall.

"Everybody on the chopper opened up on him, and he started running a zig-zag pattern, but they cut him down. He sprawled on his back, and you could still see the bullets hitting around him."

Police said the snipers were armed with pistols and rifles shooting 44-calibre magnum bullets.

A policeman was killed by a sharpshooter as he talked to a buddy in a brightly-lit entrance outside headquarters New Year's Eve.

Another policeman was wounded by gunshots minutes later when he responded to a New Year's Eve burglar alarm.

Authorities have not solved the New Year's Eve shootings.

Police and firemen first were drawn to the hotel before noon Sunday by fires apparently set by the snipers. Firemen managed to keep the flames under control even while ducking volleys of bullets hurled at them by the gunmen.

It was not immediately determined if all the victims died of gunshot wounds or in the fires.

Six bodies were found on the top floor of the hotel, where the fire was most serious. One body was found in a stairwell.

Two separate fires in which arson is suspected and which authorities say may be linked with the shootings destroyed two downtown warehouses Jan. 1.

Another arson-suspected blaze caused five deaths at the Rault Centre—a high-rise office and apartment building across the street from the Howard Johnson—just more than a month ago.

Asked if police expected the two remaining snipers to be taken alive, a spokesman said: "We don't think so, because they were apparently on a suicide mission and don't want to give up."

One of the policemen killed was Deputy Supt. Louis Sirgo, who was accompanying a group of officers searching for the snipers.

They were walking down a 15th-floor corridor when one of the gunmen stepped out behind them, shot Sirgo in the back and raced up the stairs to the roof.

Another patrolman chased him, kicking open a steel door to get on to the roof only to be blown back down the stairs by a gun's blast. He was not killed.

An ambulance attendant, Chris Caton, was shot while helping load a wounded policeman into his ambulance on a grassy mall across the street from the hotel.

French elections set, leftist coalition seen

PARIS (AP) — Trading charges of immorality and irresponsibility, the French government and the opposition kicked off the campaign Sunday for national elections that could bring an alliance of Socialists and Communists to power.

With the leftists climbing steadily in public-opinion polls and the governing coalition worried, observers feel it could be the most interesting election since Gen. Charles de Gaulle came to power in 1958.

Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand told a party rally in Paris that the Gaullists, led by President Georges Pompidou, have been in power too long.

"It is not possible to continue to leave in place a regime without law or morals," he declared.

At a Gaullist political rally, Premier Pierre Messmer assailed the Socialist-Communist election platform, including the defence plank.

"The defence policy of the Socialist-Communists is the work of irresponsible people," Messmer said. "It is more absurd than that which led us to the disaster of 1940," he added, referring to the defeat of France by Nazi Germany.

Mitterrand and Communist leader George Marchais have called for the disbanding of France's small atomic strike force, a prestige project started by de Gaulle. The Socialists say that in the current relaxed atmosphere in Europe it is an absurdity.

The elections for a new National Assembly are scheduled for March 4, with a runoff contest March 11 wherever necessary. At present, the Gaullist Union of Democrats for the Republic and two other parties form the majority.

One of the biggest question marks hanging over the election is Pompidou's position if the leftists gain control.

Mediation continues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A provincial mediator switched his attention Sunday night from the recently-settled teacher dispute in Essex County to another in nearby Windsor while another mediator was meeting with both sides in a similar dispute in Timmins.

Negotiations in Windsor and Timmins were under way Sunday night.

A news blackout was imposed on the talks in Timmins where 27 of the 244 secondary school teachers showed up for duty last week. Students were attending school on a voluntary basis to study independently.

Resolution of the Essex County separate school dispute ended an extended holiday for the county board's 13,000 elementary school students who were to be back in school today.

Mediator William McGuire presided over a 14-hour meeting Friday that produced a contract between the board and its 429 elementary school teachers.

PACT RATIFIED
The new contract, which gives teachers an average increase of about seven per cent for the current school year, was ratified by the board Saturday and the teachers Sunday.

At the teachers' ratification meeting, the president of the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association predicted similar disputes in other parts of the province.

James Carey urged that "fair and reasonable" legislation be enacted by the province to allow teachers and boards to arrive at reasonable settlements.

No legislation governing teacher-school board negotiations now is in existence.

Mr. Carey said similar disputes will "undoubtedly" occur in other parts of the province in the next few months unless legislation is enacted.

Caouette denies support for Samson

MONTREAL (CP) — Real Caouette, Social Credit party leader, said Sunday that Camil Samson, former Ralliement Creditiste chief, does not have the ability to lead the Sacred's Quebec offshoot.

Speaking on the CBC's French-language network program, Politique Atout, Mr. Caouette said Mr. Samson could have his support as a candidate for the Quebec national assembly or as a party organizer but not as leader.

Mr. Samson and two of the Ralliement's members in the Quebec legislature quit the party early in 1971 and formed the Social Credit party of Quebec.

Armand Bois took over as interim leader of the Creditistes and the two factions agreed to hold a leadership convention in Quebec City Feb. 3-4, when both Mr. Samson and Mr. Bois will run.

"Mr. Samson does not appear to have the qualities of a leader," Mr. Caouette said. "And you know that nobody was twisting his arm when he resigned. He did it all by himself."

"You can't dream in color when you talk about a party leader and even of an eventual premier."

SIX CANDIDATES

Broadcaster Yvon Dupuis, a minister without portfolio in the government of the late Lester Pearson in 1964, announced in December he would be a candidate.

Other candidates are Fabien Roy, Quebec national assembly member for Beauce, Jean Poulin, of the Social Credit Uni movement, and Yvon Dumais, a party worker in Saguenay-Lake St. John.

Mr. Caouette said he had no intention of leaving the federal scene and would lead his party in the next election campaign, adding that Social Credit would not be easy on the minority government of Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau.

But the party "will support the Liberal government as long as it submits legislation and adopts measures for the well-being of Canadians."

In the next six months, he predicted, unemployment would diminish, the eligibility age for old-age pensions would be lowered to 60 and the government would establish a guaranteed annual income for the handicapped and those unable to work.

Seven die in blaze

A mother and her six children who died when fire swept through their frame home in northern Manitoba were among at least 35 persons who died accidentally across Canada during the weekend.

The fire struck the home at Pukatawagan 625 miles northwest of Winnipeg, early Saturday morning.

A survey by The Canadian Press from 6 p.m. local times Friday to midnight Sunday showed 14 persons killed in traffic, two in snowmobile mishaps, 14 killed in fires and five drowned.

Ontario had 15 killed, including 9 in traffic, three in fires, one killed in a snowmobile mishap and two persons who drowned.

Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Saskatchewan were fatality free.

One person died in a New Brunswick snowmobile mishap.

Four persons were killed in Quebec, two in traffic and two in fires.

Payloader crushes man

COWANSVILLE (JD) — Fernand Desnoyers, 53, of Dunham, a provincial government roads department employee, died 9 a.m. Friday at the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital approximately one hour after an industrial accident.

Mr. Desnoyers was working in the roads department yard at 407 River street when the accident causing his death occurred.

Usually reliable sources indicated that a roads department vehicle driven by Mr. Moise Deland was backing up to a playloader with a load of asphalt for the storage area. Mr. Deland looked in his mirror and saw a hand where it should not have been.

He then moved his truck forward, freeing Mr. Desnoyers, who was trapped between the bucket of the playloader and the box of the truck.

Cowansville municipal police, under the direction of chief Yves Pouliot, are conducting an investigation to determine the cause of the accident.

Peace talks resume in Paris, Kissinger says last big effort

PARIS (AP) — Henry Kissinger begins today what he has called "one more major effort" to reach a Vietnam peace settlement with Le Duc Tho.

President Nixon's national security adviser and the North Vietnamese politburo member were to meet for the first time in almost four weeks at a house owned by the French Communist party in Gif sur Yvette, a suburb 15 miles southwest of Paris.

It has been more than 10 weeks since Kissinger told a Washington news conference that "peace is at hand." Arriving from Washington Sunday night in a more subdued mood, he said: "The president has sent me back to Paris to make one more major effort to conclude the negotiations."

"We expect that the talks this time will be serious and worthy of the yearning of people all over the world for an early end of the war," Kissinger said. "As far as the United States is concerned, we shall dedicate ourselves, to this effort with patience, good will and hope."

But Tho—on his arrival Saturday from Hanoi, Peking and Moscow—gave no indication he was ready to concede anything. He said the decisive moment had come for the United States to sign the draft agreement he and Kissinger worked out in October "or continue the war."

Kissinger and Tho broke off their last round of secret talks Dec. 13. The United States is reported to have demanded that Hanoi recognize the Saigon government's sovereignty over all of South Vietnam, and North Vietnam said that Nixon was trying to perpetuate the division of Vietnam.

The North Vietnamese also were reported to have balked at a U.S. demand for several thousand foreign military men to supervise the ceasefire.

BOMBING ORDERED

Following the breakdown of the last Kissinger-Tho talks, Nixon ordered the war's heaviest bombing of the Hanoi-Haiphong area. After two weeks of enormous destruction on the ground and the loss of at least 29 U.S. planes and 97 U.S. airmen, Nixon halted the bombing above the 20th parallel, and Hanoi agreed to another round of negotiations with Kissinger.

Strike vote today

OTTAWA (CP) — The possibility of strike action that would interrupt mail service hung on a vote being conducted Sunday and today among post office employees across the country.

About 30,000 members of the Council of Postal Unions were voting on a pay-and-conditions settlement proposed last month by a conciliation board. Results were expected Tuesday.

Postal workers, negotiating with the federal government for a new work contract since before the previous one expired last March, have been legally entitled to strike since Dec. 21.

Leaders of the council, including letter carriers, postal clerks and mail handlers, have been divided in their recommendations on whether to approve or reject the proposed settlement.

The three-man conciliation board also was divided, with only two members advocating a settlement.

NATIONAL WALLPAPER AND PAINTS LTD.

156 Wellington North — Sherbrooke — 562-1537

By ROBERT HAMILTON

The Prime Minister predicted last week that the record of his government is going to improve in the future. A more significant statement is that legislation will be better because his minority administration will be forced to listen to the public and the opposition.

This is a clear admission that legislation would have been better over the last four years had the Liberals not been so drunk with power that they simply refused to listen to the taxpayers and the opposition parties.

The pensioners and other fixed income groups have been unfortunate in bearing the brunt of the government's refusal to listen. Now the PM says that legislation will correspond more to the wishes and consensus of the House, or at least, to the political feelings of the parties in the House.

If Mr. Trudeau realizes this fact now that he is in a minority position, why did he not bend a little to hear the people when he had a majority? Was it because he thought that Canadians were so complacent that a few handouts on election eve would lock him into power forever?

GOVERNMENT EXTRAVAGANCE

The result of government extravagance is still beginning to make its appearance. Statistics Canada and the Economic Council revealed recently that the average weekly pay cheque in the manufacturing industry, before taxes, rose by five per cent in the first nine months of 1972.

By the end of the year all of the increase was consumed by rising prices!

The Economic Council, in setting performance targets for the next three years, says that after inflation and tax, per capita incomes should rise about 4.7 per cent yearly. It would therefore seem that the government is still incapable of finding a real solution to our monetary problems.

The prices and incomes commission has long urged price and wage controls but has met with the combined opposition of some members of the cabinet. All they offer is resistance, however, never a solution and no reason for being against controls.

Mr. Trudeau has stated he is not opposed to controls and Mr. Stanfield has also. Why then is not something done about it?

Some form of control has to come at one time or another. It does not take too much imagination to picture what is happening to those on pensions and fixed incomes.

NO ANNUAL INCREASE

There is no annual increase for them, just worry and heartache. There is the constant problem of stretching a meagre income to meet the ever-rising flood of higher food prices, higher prices in home maintenance, school taxes and so on. Where does it all end?

Irrespective of who is in power in the coming years, we pensioners must keep the politicians aware of our presence at all times. The present government has paid the price of underestimating the power of the people.

There is no doubt that the pensioners' vote was a big factor in the last federal election. I cannot repeat too often that we have to be alert and take an interest in what goes on in Ottawa.

The politicians are well aware of this fact now. Let us not give them a chance to forget!

Higher prices for milk urged

TORONTO (CP) — Dairy farmers should press for an increase of "not less than eight per cent" for industrial milk, Kenneth G. McKinnon, vice-chairman of the Ontario Milk Marketing Board (OMMB) said today.

He told the annual meeting of the OMMB that the Dairy Farmers of Canada (DFC) made representations to the federal government in October of last year for increases for industrial milk "but they did not achieve, unfortunately, any concrete results."

"It is all the more urgent in the light of developments since that time, particularly the effects of adverse weather on milk yields and feed costs, that producers of industrial milk receive an immediate and significant increase in their returns."

Industrial milk is used in milk products such as cheese and butter and is also made into powdered milk.

At the retail level, fluid milk increased between five and seven cents for a three-quart jug in Ontario last week.

Mr. McKinnon also said that the OMMB will press the DFC to seek increases from the federal government of three cents a pound in the support prices of butter and skim milk powder.

The DFC holds its annual meeting next month in Halifax.

SEEKS CHEESE HIKE

Mr. McKinnon also said the OMMB believes that the support price of cheddar cheese should be raised to the support levels on butter and skim milk powder in order to maintain stability in the price of milk used in cheese production.

He suggested that in the future cheddar cheese may only be manufactured for a known market, including the quantities now exported to the United Kingdom, the United States and the Caribbean.

With Britain's entry into the European Economic Community, "Canada will no longer find it feasible to clear surplus cheddar cheese supplies by subsidizing the export price to that market."

He also called upon the Canadian Dairy Commission "to provide more leadership and service in marketing matters."

There is a need for the commission "to assume the role of a central selling agency for dairy product export and market expansion purposes."

REPORTS SPENDING

In its annual report, the OMMB said that it spent $1.3 million to promote milk and milk products in Ontario last year and $687,625 to promote it nationally.

Fluid milk sales in Ontario were estimated at 780 million quarts or 100 quarts per capita, the highest consumption level since 1968.

The OMMB said there are 8,397 producers in its fluid milk pool and 10,086 producers in the industrial milk pool.

A text of Mr. McKinnon's remarks and the annual report were released in advance of presentation.

FCC loan summary, amendments disclosed

The Farm Credit Corporation (FCC), a federal farm loan agency, approved since April 1, 1972 to December 15, 1972, 83 loans in the counties of Sherbrooke, Compton, Stanstead, Richmond, Wolfe, Frontenac, Shefford and Brome, for an amount of $2,400,000, or an average of $29,000 per loan.

The amounts loaned can be broken down as follows: Brome and Shefford $583,000, Compton $359,000, Richmond $340,000, Sherbrooke $241,000, Stanstead $648,000, Wolfe $107,000 and Frontenac $113,000.

For the same period the number of approved loans in the province of Quebec was 666 for an amount of $21,233,000, or an average of $32,000 per loan.

For the fiscal year 1970-71, the FCC approved a total of 521 loans in the Province of Quebec for an amount of $13,200,000. The FCC foresees an increase of activity in the province for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1973, in the vicinity of $10,000,000.

At the start of 1972 the FCC made two major amendments to the Farm Credit Act. An individual farmer, an association, or a farm corporation may now borrow, based on the security offered for a farm loan, up to a maximum of $100,000 on a mortgage loan or on a combined chattel mortgage and mortgage loan.

The other important modification was the reduced age limit to 18 years for admissibility for a farm loan.

Besides approving mortgage loans to farmers, the FCC has made available to farmers several services including financial consultation, farm purchases, farm expansion and improvement planning and debt consolidation.

Presently 135 FCC borrowers in the Eastern Townships benefit from the CanFarm accounting system.

This system supplies the farmer with a monthly statement of incomes, expenses and obligations.

From May 1, 1972 to November 30, 1972, the FCC also approved loans amounting to $232,000 to farm syndicates in the Province of Quebec.

This amount was utilized by groups of farmers for the purchase of farm equipment, farm buildings and storage facilities to be used cooperatively.

The FCC has offices situated in various agricultural regions of the province where credit advisors may be consulted. The office serving the counties of Sherbrooke, Stanstead, Richmond, Compton, Frontenac and Wolfe is located at 4509 Bourque boulevard in Sherbrooke and the counties of Shefford and Brome are serviced by an office at city hall, Waterloo.

Fishing season said poor

By JAMES H. HUSSEY

CP Correspondent

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The 1972 fishing and trading season was a bad one for Newfoundland shipping in more ways than one.

Complications in the Canada Shipping Act, especially regulations establishing certain work hours for crew members, were the main reason a number of freight boats were sold to foreign and other interests.

And despite modern equipment and navigational aids, mishaps caused more havoc than storms or ice conditions.

July, usually the best month of the fishing year, recorded the greatest loss of life.

Two fishermen from the small south coast fishing community of Hermitage were drowned July 15 when their small boat sank on the fishing grounds. It was thought the small vessel was run down by a larger boat in heavy fog.

The 82-ton schooner Del Roy, which was collecting fish in Placentia Bay, caught fire July 27. Fifteen persons tried to escape in a small dory but the boat overturned and nine people, including four women, were lost.

STRUCK REEF

In November, two brothers and their brother-in-law left home at Castor River on the island's northwest coast for a day's fishing. They never returned.

There were other near-tragedies.

A 62-year-old fisherman from Fortune was fishing a few miles from home May 16 when his small boat was run down by a larger vessel. The man was rescued but could not identify the offending craft.

The French-owned islands, St. Pierre-Miquelon, off the south coast of Newfoundland, also took a toll of ships. One was the six-year-old trawler Zaadam, out of Burn, which sought shelter on the islands but ran on a reef two miles off shore. Her 16-member crew escaped.

But the biggest factor in the shipping industry's hardships was the laborers code of the federal shipping legislation.

HOURS REGULATED

A spokesman for the Newfoundland Shipowners' Association said the regulations, regarding the hours of work of crew at sea, were forcing owners out of business.

"If the ultimate goal of the legislation, which is to set a maximum 40-hour work week with a permitted eight hours of overtime, is allowed to go into force, about the only shipping left in Newfoundland will be Canadian National and department of transport ships."

The Canada Labor (Standard) Code, enacted in 1965, governs the working hours of employees under federal jurisdiction which includes those working in the transport industry.

The first phase in the work-week reduction came into effect Jan. 1, 1968, with a maximum of 832 hours in a 13-week period or an average of 64 hours weekly.

The following year the work week was reduced to 60 hours with a further reduction to the present maximum of 676 hours in a 13-week period and overtime for work in excess of 44 hours weekly.

The 40-hour work week becomes effective Jan. 1, 1974.

But by then, there may not be any local shipping left. Blue Water Steamships of St. John's, which operated ships in local and foreign waters, sold its fleet to foreign interests during 1972.

H. B. Dawe Ltd. of Cupids, in the freight-carrying business for a third of a century, has advertised to sell its fleet because, a spokesman said, "the code was making operations uneconomical."

Other private sales have depleted the island fleet.

The only bright spot is the increase in the off-shore fishing fleet. Five new stern trawlers were added during 1972 and an additional five or six are expected in 1973.

Each of the vessels creates 50 to 60 new jobs. A number of longhairs were also added to the fleet under a federal subsidy program and provincial grants and loans

December cloudy, higher snowfall

SHERBROOKE (WM) — December 1972 was warmer with more snow and less sunshine than average, according to statistics recently released by the Lennoxville weather research station.

The snowfall for the month in the Lennoxville area was more than double that of previous years. The average monthly snowfall for December is 22.37 inches and the recorded snowfall last month was 53.33 inches.

However, what was gained in snow was lost in sunshine. In December 1972 there were but 37.3 hours of sunshine compared with an average for the month of 57.83.

This was half the 75.3 total hours of sunshine of December 1971 and less than one third of the sunny December of 1963 which locked up 103.5 hours of sun's rays.

Temperatures in general were only a little higher than normal with 19.15 degrees as the average for the month compared with the normal 18.35 degree December average for the last several years.

However, unlike the present rainy January, December 1972 had less rainfall than average with only .78 inches. The normal rainfall is 1.18 inches for the month. The total precipitation, however, set a record at 5.93 inches, two inches above the average monthly level.

If the weather in January continues to be as freakish as during last week, we may expect additional records to be set this month.

Drew buried Saturday

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — George Drew's body returned to his native Guelph Saturday as the former Ontario premier and national Progressive Conservative leader was buried in a secluded cedar-lined plot in Woodlawn cemetery after a church service in Toronto.

About 100 civic and military figures turned out in biting 10-degree cold for a service at the cemetery's mausoleum. Officers and NCOs of the 11th Field Regiment, Royal Canadian Artillery, of which Mr. Drew was honorary colonel, lined the steps of the building.

The 78-year-old soldier-politician-public servant, who died Thursday in Toronto of a heart condition complicated by pneumonia, earlier was lauded at the ceremony there was a man of many talents who used them in the service of Canada and the Commonwealth.

At a funeral ceremony in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Rev. Terence J. Finlay of New York, an old friend and a former Ottawa clergyman, said Mr. Drew had been an outstanding premier, a vigorous national leader and a diplomat who made friends for Canada abroad.

Mr. Finlay's son of the same name, who is rector of St. John the Evangelist Church in London, Ont., delivered the eulogy at the graveside.

Members of the city council headed by Mayor Norman Jary—a successor to Mr. Drew who was mayor of this city at the age of 31—were present at the cemetery.

500 PRESENT

Representatives of the governments of Canada and Britain—where Mr. Drew served six years as Canadian high commissioner—were among 500 attending the Toronto service conducted by Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, retired bishop of Toronto.

The body of Mr. Drew lay in the church in a coffin covered with the flag of Ontario decorated with only a single poppy symbolizing his front-line service in the First World War in which he was seriously wounded in action. Lieut. Gen. Guy Simonds, a former chief of the general staff, was among those present.

Ontario Lt.-Gov. W. Ross Macdonald and Premier William Davis were there for the province along with Chief Justice Dalton Wells of the High Court of Justice. Minister of State Stanley Haidasz represented Prime Minister Trudeau and the federal government.

Robert Stanfield, national Progressive Conservative leader, headed a contingent of House of Commons Conservatives of the past and present while from the New Democratic Party Andrew Brewin, MP for Toronto Greenwood, was among the mourners.

Major Ontario figures included former premiers Leslie Frost and John Roberts and W. Earl Howe, Mr. Drew's predecessor as Ontario Conservative leader and later lieutenant-governor of the province.

BRIEFLET

LENOXVILLE — Annual meeting of the Lennoxville Library Association will be held in the library on Monday, Jan. 15 at 7:30 p.m.

HERE & THERE

EAST FARNHAM & SUTTON — The first in a series of the Winter Evenings Program, to be sponsored by the Brome County Historical Society will be given by the Rev. Carl Gustafson, in the Archives Building, Knowlton, January 10, 1973, at 8:30 p.m.

His talk will be about the book he has written, The Megantic Outlaw, and will be illustrated with slides. Refreshments will follow. There will be announcements of future programs.

Students present concert

MAGOG — This year, as in the past, the staff and students of the Princess Elizabeth Elementary School in Magog invited parents and friends to spend an hour or two enjoying various presentations which they had prepared.

After the parents had been greeted by Sharon Hornby, Lisa McTavish and Donna Catchpugh who acted as hostesses, they were asked to sign the Guest Book and were then ushered to the balcony section of the gymnasium.

The Master of Ceremonies welcomed everyone. The large number of parents in attendance attested to the popularity of this event. Their continued support is appreciated.

The program opened with a series of appropriate Bible readings and Christmas Carols. Mrs. Doris McLauchlan, parent aide, and Mrs. Grainger, teacher, worked diligently with the children and the performance was first class.

The second part of the concert was a series of presentations by the different classes in the primary unit. These children receive music instruction from Mrs. Steeves and Mrs. Laberee regularly throughout the year. This part of the concert was highlighted by a rhythm band and a recorder group.

The final part of the concert was a Christmas play put on by Mr. Magwood's class. This play was written by the children. The main characters were David Bailey (Santa) and Darlene Bossy (Mrs. Santa).

Shelley Dennis thanked the parents for coming and the children went back to their classrooms for their own class parties and the exchanging of gifts.

Mr. Paul Girard, an interested parent and School Committee chairman, recorded the concert on film.

GOING DOWN — After several months of persuasion city council has finally convinced the owners of this house situated at the corner of Laurier and Aberdeen to dismantle the building. The matter was introduced to council two months ago by Romeo Bergeron.

No consensus

The leaders of Canada's major national political parties have indicated that they would consider price and wage controls as weapons to halt inflation if circumstances demanded.
 But there is little likelihood, as the Canadian economy heads into another year, that political leaders would soon be weighing such a decision despite increases in the cost of living index over the past few months.
 Results of a Southern News Services opinion poll made public recently show no consensus among Canadians favoring controls. Although there was concern about the rate of inflation, there was no general feeling that the situation had reached the sort of crisis which would justify controls.

Provincial government leaders, whose co-operation the national government would need to establish controls, were found to have serious reservations.
 There seems no current inclination on the part of Canadians to follow the U.S. or British lead in imposing controls. The Canadian mood appears more attuned to the European wariness regarding controls.
 Special circumstances could have played a part in the U.S. and British decisions. The U.S. was concerned about a trade deficit when controls were applied in 1971.

Slowing the rate of U.S. inflation could help to make U.S. goods more competitive abroad. Britain was faced with the necessity of stopping the decline in value of its currency internationally. The Canadian government hasn't been similarly vexed.

That is not to say that the Canadian record on inflation control is as good as it could or should be. But some of the increases in the living-cost index resulted from uncontrollable factors such as food shortages.

The increase in the food-price index around the time of the federal election had some Canadians looking at that time to controls and political leaders saying they would use them if necessary.

But there has never been any explicit definition forthcoming as to what circumstances would be used to justify controls or what type of controls would be imposed. Nor has there been any assurance that steps are possible to prevent a sudden delayed-action inflation taking over after controls have run their course. The lack of such expertise makes the Canadian coolness understandable and even welcome.

New visitors' rules

Immigration Minister Robert Andras has announced further revisions to the Immigration Act which this time deal with temporary visitors to the country. The changes inspire several questions, and they fail to make clear the problems they were designed to solve.

Under the new rules, visitors to this country must obtain employment visas if they wish to work, and if they wish to stay in Canada longer than three months, they must register with an immigration officer.

It is entirely possible the changes were inspired by lofty motives, but so far the minister has not seen fit to share his reasoning with the public at large.

The term temporary employment covers an enormous range of employment categories. Is the employee of an international company assigned to several weeks' work required to have a temporary work visa?

Could one be blamed for reflecting on the advantages of tobacco and fruit farmers of southern Ontario who annually seek temporary help, at the lowest possible rates? Is it possible Mr. Andras' changes were at least partially motivated by a need to regularize the use of foreign labor in markets such as this?

To be fair, there are countless job categories of a seasonal type which attract golf professionals, ski instructors, geologists and others. There are also the management consultants, guest lecturers, writers, and exchange students, all of whom have a reasonable claim to be in Canada on a temporary basis.

Indications point to 1973 as 'European Year'

By LUBOR J. ZINK

OTTAWA — A few months ago, some analysts of east-west relations started referring to 1973 as "The European Year."

The term was coined as a descriptive label of an anticipated major shift of the political focus and diplomatic activity from Asia to Europe. That such a shift was in the making became evident from the emerging convergence of its manifold preparations.

Some of these preparations — such as West German Chancellor Willy Brandt's "Ostpolitik" and the U.S. — Soviet Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) — have been under way for several years. Others — notably President Nixon's trip to Peking — cropped up unexpectedly.

The impetus for these and many subsidiary steps in the same direction came from Nixon's 1969 version of a broad movement in East-West relations from the postwar era of confrontation into an era of negotiations.

In other words, a progression from the nuclear age barest necessity of conflict management through mutually beneficial detente to a partnership of the super-powers in securing "a full generation of peace."

Since the global cold war confrontation started and remained centre in Europe, the ultimate objective of all detente efforts had to be a European settlement.

For two decades, the western concept of a European settlement rested on the Yalta and Potsdam agreements in which the victors over Nazi Germany pledged restoration of national sovereignty and free political choice to the liberated countries. This was unacceptable to the Soviet Union which violated the wartime accords by forcing its totalitarian system on the nations of Eastern and Central Europe which had the misfortune of being "liberated" by the Russians.

For the Kremlin, a European settlement means western acceptance and international "legalization" of the Russian colonial empire Stalin had created by deceit and brutal force as a base for further expansion.

Confident that the West would not go to war to free the victims of Soviet imperialism, Moscow refused to consider any real change in "the new reality" of postwar Europe. It was equally confident that the democracies will tire of the tensions and risks of a seemingly futile confrontation and accept a "realistic" settlement on Soviet terms once the awareness of the origin and nature of the East-West conflict dies with the Trumans, Eisenhowers, Churchills and Adenauers.

The expectation of a Western cave in to persistent combinations of war threats and "peace" offensives proved correct, despite the clear demonstrations of communist perfidy and brutality in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and other parts of the world.

By the end of the 1960s, the old appeasement folly, draped in fashionable detente banners, dances onto the political stage with Brandt, knowing that Moscow would listen only to proposals fitting its own detente concept of legalization of Soviet expansion and withdrawal of American troops from Western Europe, offering a unilateral deal that would meet the Kremlin's first requirement and facilitate the attainment of the second.

In return for writing off the Soviet satellites, Brandt was hoping to get special Russian treatment of what he always endeavored to present as the special case of divided Berlin and divided Germany.

Moscow, certain of easy control of the minor concessions Brandt required for selling his "normalization of relations" scheme to his electorate and the NATO, accepted the package with alacrity.

While negotiations of the details of Brandt's "Ostpolitik" got under way, President Nixon found Moscow equally willing to make a similarly one-sided deal on strategic arsenals.

In both instances, the Kremlin was getting what it was after for negligible concessions, but both deals were hailed as major breakthroughs in detente diplomacy.

Presented as tremendous gains, these two Western cave-ins (the unfinished SALT exercise has already given Russia strategic superiority) set in motion an avalanche of wishful thinking which has the capacity of sweeping Western Europe into the Soviet orbit.

The shape of preparations for the Moscow-pushed "conference of European security and co-operation" leaves little doubt that 1973 is destined to be the "European Year" of the detente illusion.

Reparations vital with recognition

BERLIN (Reuter) — For 25 years, West Germany has shouldered the burden of compensating Western states for Nazi war crimes.

As East Germany now moves from resumption of relations with West Germany to diplomatic negotiations with other Western countries, the question of reparations is expected to play a large part in discussions.

The Potsdam Agreement of 1945 specifically exempted East Germany of liability for war damage claims by Western countries, stipulating that it was responsible only for reparations to the Soviet Union.

But a number of Western countries have indicated they expect the East Germans to pay compensation for assets in their territory confiscated by the Nazis from their Western owners.

SHORT OF CURRENCY

Most countries involved are expected to take a realistic attitude, recognizing that it would be impossible for East Germany to refund some debts because of a shortage of hard currency.

Finland, which has maintained a policy of neutrality toward the two German states, wants East Germany to pay its share of compensation for the destruction of two Finnish cities by the retreating German army at the end of the war.

Highly-placed East German sources said recently there were two successor states to the old German reich, and this has caused observers to speculate that East Germany now might be prepared to negotiate the compensation claims issue.

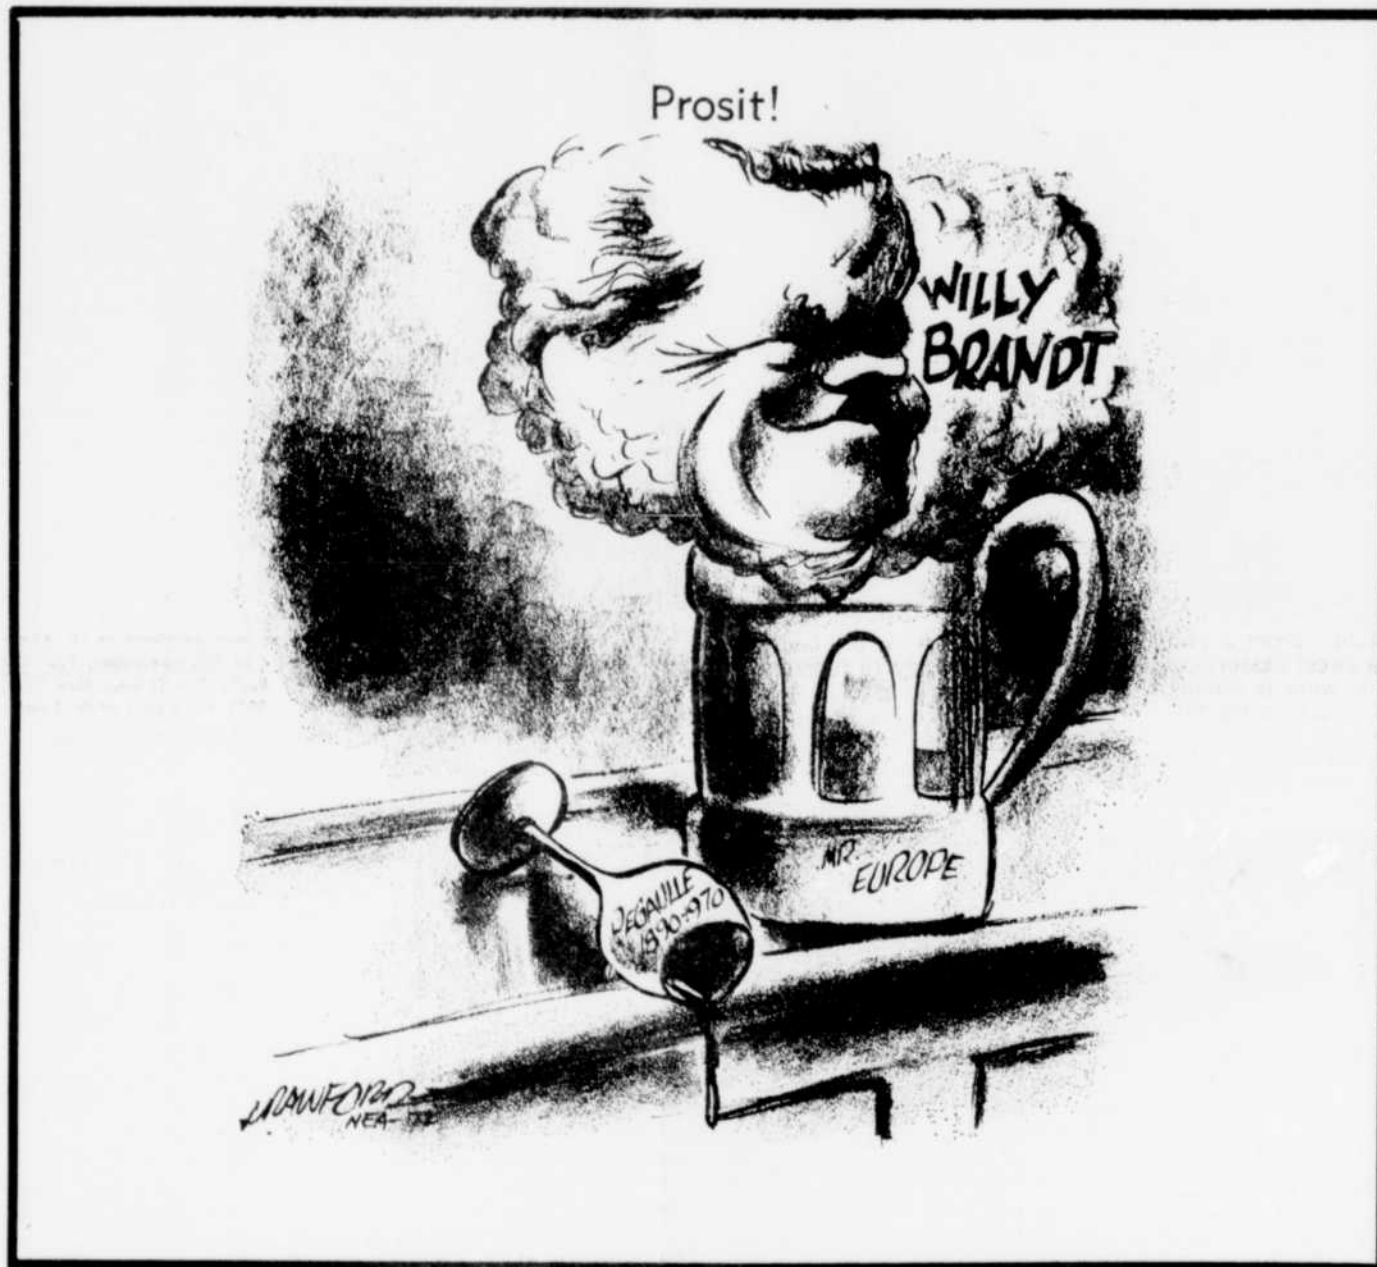

Hitherto, East Germany always took the line that because West Germany had insisted it was the true and sole successor to the reich, Bonn alone was liable to provide compensation to Western countries.

Another knotty problem concerns the particular claims of Jews. Austrian Nazi-hunter Simon Wiesenthal said recently that East Germany should pay compensation to Austrian Jews persecuted on its territory during the Second World War and that Vienna's Foreign Minister Rudolf Kirchschlaeger had promised this point would be raised after mutual diplomatic recognition comes into effect late in December.

Wiesenthal said West Germany had dealt with more than two-thirds of the compensation paid to Austrian Jews up to now and it was now up to East Germany to bear the rest.

West Germany has paid vast amounts to Israel over the years, whereas East Germany contends it has atoned for wartime guilt by removing Nazis from public life.

Jews living in East Germany also receive special pensions as "victims of fascism."

Throne speech: making up for past

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — The Trudeau Liberal government bid strongly Thursday to recover political ground lost in the Oct. 30 election, promising action on every front judged to have contributed to the setback.

The speech from the throne outlining government plans for the 29th Parliament is packed with promises for corrective action in fields as various as western Canadian alienation and high food prices.

The 3,600-word program, composed in a series of cabinet sessions last month, packs in more promises than any of the four previous session-opening throne speeches since Mr. Trudeau became prime minister in 1968.

The earlier speeches tended to be long on philosophy and generalities, short on specific programs.

Thursday's throne speech includes some measures clearly designed to appeal to the 31-strong New Democratic caucus in the Commons, which holds the voting balance between the 109 Liberals and 107 Conservatives.

APPEASES BACKLASH

At the same time, however, the program outlines a series of measures apparently designed to appease various groups of voters whom analysts judged to be wielding a backlash against Liberal welfare, bilingual, immigration, penal and regional policies.

Prime Minister Trudeau had said the government is prepared to learn from the mistakes he said contributed to the election setback.

For example, a lengthy section of the throne speech is devoted to a declaration of government intent to pay more attention to the economic development of the four Western provinces.

But, for the first time since 1968, there is no direct mention of the problems of Quebec or the Atlantic region. Ontario is not mentioned directly either.

Liberal strength in the four Western provinces fell Oct. 30 to seven of the 68 seats from 26.

The party gained slightly in the Atlantic region and won Quebec massively.

Meeting the so-called welfare backlash, the government promised a sweeping reconsideration and reorganization of social welfare legislation—in close consultation with the provinces.

Implicit in the message is that Ottawa will abandon its past role as instigator of major welfare programs, attuning programs instead to what the regions want.

At the same time, with an eye on New Democrat demands, there are promises to look after the aged, the blind and disabled even while amending the Unemployment Insurance Plan "to prevent abuses."

On bilingualism, the government merely reiterates its aim to promote second-language learning in schools and asserts that Canadians should have the right to educate their children in the official language of their choice—a contentious issue in predominantly-French Quebec.

There are promises, as expected, to "curb abuses" under the immigration law and to emphasize protection of the public equally with prisoner rehabilitation in penal programs.

The controversial department of regional economic expansion, a Trudeau innovation four years ago, is to be shaken up and control decentralized.

Perhaps aimed to appeal to the New Democrats, there is the promise of an improved program to screen foreign ownership of industry, but no direct mention of the government attitude between pressures for the development and sale of natural resources and advocates of a go-slow approach.

Others among the scores of items in the throne speech respond to currently popular pressures for reform in such fields as ties between politicians and big business interests—the corporate welfare bums theme used by New Democrat Leader David Lewis in the election campaign.

Among these are proposals to police conflicts of interest, curb election expenses and to reintroduce legislation for the regulation of competition in business.

Whether the substance of follow-up legislation and action will be enough to woo New Democrat support in the Commons and win back voter support will become clearer in the new Commons session.

MR. AND MRS. REAL GOUGEON at their wedding on November 4 at the Mont Pleasant Chapel, Granby.

Gougeon-Whitehead wed

A beautiful wedding which united Anne Debra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Whitehead and Real Gougeon son of Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Gougeon all of Waterloo, took place at 4 p.m. on November 4, at Mont Pleasant Chapel in Granby.

Father Jean Paul Reginald officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white satin peasant style dress, trimmed with pink and white lace. The dress had a deep flounce at the bottom and a founce on the bottom of the train. She wore a white muff with miniature white and pink roses attached.

The veil was white jersey net with pink and white trim and pink roses at the crest. It was shoulder length.

The groom was attended by his father.

Mrs. Whitehead, mother of the bride, wore a floor length gown of pale blue tulle with white applique down the front, long sleeves and high round neckline.

Prior to her marriage, Mrs. Gougeon was entertained at a miscellaneous shower in St. Luke's Church Hall with Mrs. Darlene Whitehead as hostess. A tea was held by Mrs. Cecil Marsh. Mrs. Walter Tibbits, mother of the hostess, poured tea and coffee.

If his only problem is too much television —you are a lucky woman

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Please, Ann, be fair. Tell every woman who gripes because her husband watches so much football on TV to button her lip. It so happens the games are played on weekends and holidays and that's when husbands are home.

How many of those housewives who complain are glued to their sets during the week, watching the doctor shows? When I was sick with the flu I couldn't get my wife to bring me a glass of orange juice. She was too busy with General Hospital, Marcus Welby M.C., Police Surgeon, The Doctors, Medical Center and so on.

I say, "Let her who is without sin cast the first stone." What do YOU say, Ann Landers?—A Husband Who Watches Football And Could Be Out Doing Something Worse

Dear Husband: I say you've conveyed two major messages—one in your letter and another in your signature.

The women are going to hate me but I agree with you. If the worst thing a wife can say about her husband is that he watches football on TV, she has a better marriage than most.

Dear Ann Landers: I hope you come up with an answer. I am beside myself. My married son has two children. One was born on December 8th, the other was born on December 18th. My son's birthday happens to be December 3rd.

My son's wife decided that the birthdays are too close together, also they are too close to Christmas. She claims it is a lot of work to put on three birthday parties within two weeks, plus the fact the kids get cheated out of birthday presents because relatives ignore the birthdays and send only Christmas gifts and say "Happy Birthday and Merry Christmas!"

My daughter-in-law wants to celebrate the older boy's birthday in October and the younger boy's in November. She says it is only for the purpose of spacing the parties and she doesn't plan to mess around with the birth certificates. I am opposed to this idiotic plan because I believe birthdays should be celebrated on the day of one's birthday. If this plan goes through I will never be able to remember my grandchildren's birthdays and neither will they. What do you think? —Mixed Up Grandma

Dear Grandma: I think she should leave the kids' birthdays alone. But I'll bet she changes them. And when she does, resolve to keep your mouth shut like a good mother-in-law and go along with it.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband is a very successful business man. We are both past 50. Our children are grown and we are in good health. So what's my problem? My husband has no interest in anything but making money. I am ashamed to tell you we have never been out of the United States. Not even to Canada. He's been promising me a trip to Europe for four years. I buy the tickets, make the plans and at the last minute he has a big deal and can't leave town. Will you please tell me what to do?—Married But Single

Dear M. But S.: Buy the tickets, make your plans and tell Mr. Gotrocks if he can't leave town you will invite a friend, cousin, niece or aunt, someone who couldn't afford the trip otherwise. Then do it—and send me a postcard.

ROME (AP) — Italian housewives complain in a survey on their sex lives that their husbands are no great Latin lovers.

"He is uninspiring, not like a real man," says a 42-year-old Roman housewife.

Says a 48-year-old Milan woman: "Once he was a good lover, now he has no passion."

The housewives also lament that, in marriage Italian style, sex soon becomes a household chore—only for the convenience and pleasure of the husband.

In return, one-quarter of the young housewives interviewed admit that they have betrayed their husbands.

Half of those who are still faithful say they remain so only because they didn't have a chance to be otherwise.

Latin lovers not so hot

The wives' complaints are outlined in a recent book by Lieta Harrison, a Sicilian-born writer who surveyed the sex habits of 1,056 married women. She interviewed equal numbers of mothers and their married daughters, posing the same questions to ascertain changing attitudes.

"Within a generation," she concludes, "the Italian society has changed radically. The married daughters have discovered sex."

"They believe that sex is not shameful. They have also found out their right to orgasm."

OLDER MOTHERS DIFFER
 The mothers of a generation ago think differently.

"Sex is a bestial thing," Miss Harrison quotes a 62-year-old woman as saying. "I am for platonic love."

Mothers and their married daughters agree on one thing: Disappointment with their husbands.

"My husband considers our home a hotel," complains one 34-year-old wife.

Between 25 and 30 per cent of the wives interviewed said they are aware of their husbands' extramarital affairs.

But the survey says more than one-quarter of the young housewives retaliate in the same manner, twice the percentage of a generation ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Graham and children of Kemptonville, Ont., motored to Inverness to spend the weekend with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Weston Graham. Due to the storm and bad road conditions they had a rather prolonged and unpleasant trip which caused a much abbreviated visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Longmore and Nelson were Christmas day guests of Miss Pearl and Messrs Clifford and Arthur Patterson.

Messrs. Truman and Willis Walker spent Christmas day with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley White.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

When Body Can't Absorb It

Some People Can't Use Sugar

Dear Dr. Lamb—In a recent article you mentioned that there are rare individuals who cannot handle ordinary sugar because they can't absorb it from the intestines. Will you please give me more information about this condition and how it is treated. I suspect that I may be a victim of this condition in addition to a lack of lactase which was proved by a lactose tolerance test.

My symptoms improved after eliminating milk and all milk products from my diet, but I have found that I must also eliminate most of the ordinary sugar and even fresh fruits such as pears, grapes, apples, and oranges in order to be comfortable. Even a single bite of a sweet dessert can cause me to wake in the night with a bad taste in my mouth and a feeling of nausea. A small amount of sugar at the evening meal causes me to have this problem. Is there a test to prove this lack? Doctors I have consulted I tend to think "it is all in my head," which I doubt.

Dear Reader—Lactose, the milk sugar, and ordinary table sugar are both double sugars, technically called disaccharides, which means they have to be split into single sugars, technically called monosaccharides, before they can be absorbed from the digestive tract. If they are not absorbed, then they act somewhat like a chemical laxative causing distention particularly, as well as diarrhea and irritability of the colon. The symptoms vary in different individuals, but they can include severe abdominal pain.

Of course the body requires energy to function, so if you are not absorbing enough food elements there is a tendency to fatigue.

Now, none of these symptoms may be related to your problem. However, a simple test that you can do is to stop using sugar and foods that contain sugar, such as those that you mentioned. For sweets you can use honey, since all of the sugar in honey is of the monosaccharide or single sugar variety. That means it can be absorbed directly from the digestive tract without an enzyme action as is needed to absorb ordinary table sugar. If you still have symptoms after using honey instead of sugar, your problem is not related to an inability to absorb sugar, but may be related to problems of low blood sugar or other difficulties.

While intolerance to the milk sugar lactose, is fairly common, intolerance to ordinary table sugar and the double sugars present in fruits is relatively rare, but it does occur. Special laboratory tests can be utilized to test for this problem, but to accomplish these you would probably need to see either a specialist in gastroenterology or metabolism.

Individuals who cannot eat fruit for any reason must be particularly careful to eat tomatoes or other foods that contain vitamin C or else take adequate amounts in vitamin supplements.

Your symptoms may be related to regurgitation of gastric contents into your lower esophagus because of a hiatal hernia or other problem in proper closure of the valve at the inlet of the stomach.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on low blood sugar, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Blood Sugar" booklet.

Mrs. Nixon not best dressed

By ANN FENCKEN
 NEW YORK (AP) — Mrs. Richard Nixon was suggested for the international best-dressed list of men and women for 1972. But she was not selected.

The winners, 29 women and 30 men, were picked by some 2,000 fashion designers, social and theatrical personalities and the fashion press throughout the world.

Among five women added to the fashion hall of fame was Mrs. David Evins, New York socialite.

"I think Pat Nixon's a lovely looking woman," she said. "She has a beautiful figure, lovely hair and skin. But her look is too contrived."

Mrs. Nixon is obviously beautifully dressed, beautifully turned out," commented Nancy White, former editor of Harper's Bazaar, now with Bergdorf Goodman Co. and a member of the committee that counted the ballots.

TWIGGY DROPPED
 Entertainer Cher, actress Twiggy and singer-actress Liza Minnelli who starred in Cabaret were dropped from the list. Two women from show business were added: Mrs. Mick Jagger, wife of the rock star, and actress Marisa Berenson.

Others include Mrs. Ronald Reagan, wife of the governor of California; Mrs. William Buckley, Jr., wife of the American columnist; Baroness Thierry van Zuylen, Paris socialite; Mrs. Samuel P. Reed, Jr., daughter of Mrs. Charles Engelhard, Jr.; Princess Salima Khan, wife of the Aga Khan; Mrs. Frederick Melhado, New York; Signora Gianluigi Gabetti, Milan, wife of the head of Olivetti Co., and Mrs. William Clay Ford of Grosse Pointe, Mich.

Along with Mrs. Evins, fashion hall of fame members are: Mrs. Charles Engelhard, Jr., New York, wife of the late metals magnate and sportsman; Mrs. Graham Mattison of Paris and New York, wife of the international financier; Mme. Gres, Paris couturiere, and Mrs. Richard Pistell, New York socialite.

Among the men are: Armando Orsini, New York restaurateur; actor Robert Redford; Fred Hughes, connected with Andy Warhol Enterprises; Richard Roundtree, star in the movie Shaft; New York Mayor John Lindsay; Mick Jagger, and David Susskind, television personality.

New hall of fame male members are: actors Harry Belafonte and Sidney Poitier; Baron Alexis de Rede, Paris financier and socialite; David Ogilvy, the Earl of Airlie, and his brother, Angus Ogilvy, husband of Princess Alexandra of Kent.

You don't have to be an expert to work a squeeze. On many occasions all you have to do is give the cards a chance.

East cashes two spades and shifts to the jack of hearts. Things look pretty bad for South, don't they?

He has lost two tricks already and there doesn't seem to be anything he can do to avoid losing a third one. However, the way the cards lie, all South has to do is play the hand out and he will make the rest of the tricks.

There is nothing fancy or difficult about the proceedings. He just runs off all his six trumps and takes care not to discard more than one club from dummy while he is running trumps.

The last trump lead squeezes West. He will only be able to hold four cards. He needs two hearts to protect that suit or three clubs to protect clubs.

You just can't keep three clubs and two hearts when you are down to four cards and as long as South has paid attention to the cards that have appeared he will make the rest of the tricks.

Will he know that he has executed a squeeze? Maybe not. Maybe he will just think that West discarded badly. It won't matter.

Doctor urges provincial licensing for acupuncture

By GLENNIS ZILM
OTTAWA (CP) - Provincial governments and provincial medical groups should get busy and develop some basic licensing regulations to cover acupuncture, says Dr. J. D. Wallace, secretary general of the Canadian Medical Association.

In an issue of the association's journal released this week, Dr. Wallace said controls and licensing should cover both doctors and non-doctors and should be determined "before we get into serious trouble."

The official medical view always has been that if a procedure can't be proven valid by scientific tests, then it is unacceptable in medicine, he said in his regular column, in the magazine for doctors.

However, the medical profession should be "honestly and thoroughly considering the use of acupuncture techniques as a potentially useful part of our medical armamentarium."

The procedure is based on an ancient Chinese medical technique and involves placing of needles into specific points of the body. There is no scientific explanation, but the procedure does relieve pain.

SWALLOW PRIDE
"The major point now is whether or not the medical profession in Canada is broad enough in its outlook to swallow its pride and accept the fact that there may be factors in the provision of good health care, in its broadest sense, that may defy scientific proof."

The requirement for proof has sometimes resulted in public confrontations between doctors and others on a number of issues, he said, mentioning the use of vitamin E in heart patients and chiropractic practice.

However, he said these past confrontations should not deter the profession from looking into the values of acupuncture, which now is officially used by western-trained Chinese medical doctors.

The procedure should not be considered a cure-all, he said. Advice from a recent medical delegation from the Peoples Republic of China was repeated.

"They do know that its efficacy is limited to conditions in which the nervous system is involved—primarily for the control of pain and shock."

Dr. Wallace, chief administrative officer for the 23,000-member association, said acupuncture is regarded in China as an exacting art that requires many years of professional training.

"Because of the public interest in this procedure that has been aroused by the new media, there is great danger that untrained personnel will capitalize on a lucrative market and exploit it in a way that could well discredit the art of acupuncture."

"The various legislative and licensing bodies must immediately set up requirements to protect the public from charlatans who will try, without proper training, to introduce acupuncture therapy into Canada."

This included doctors who were not properly trained, he said. Chinese doctors have said that even a doctor requires "considerable additional training."

"It is obvious that a person with no basic medical training would require a much longer educational period."

Compensation demanded for thalidomide victims

LONDON (AP) - Britain's crippled thalidomide children were the centre of a nationwide crusade today as sympathizers tried to win them millions of dollars compensation.

And there was hope the Distillers Co., the firm that marketed the drug here, would pay up as some of its powerful shareholders demanded action and supermarket chains, hotels and taverns banned the liquor company's products.

Distillers Chairman Sir Alexander McDonald told representatives of a half dozen big institutional shareholders at a closed-door meeting it was the company's "urgent desire" to find a "speedy and satisfactory solution" to the tragedy.

Although he disclosed no new compensation offer, those words were enough to convince financial experts a new offer more acceptable to the children's families than previous ones was in the wind.

Some financial sources predicted it could come within the next week. The statement sent the company's shares up on London's stock exchange after alarming falls.

CRUSADE GOES OVERSEAS
As protest over the company's failures to offer acceptable compensation swelled all over the country, the father of one of the thalidomide victims carried the crusade to the United States and he talked passengers on his jumbo jet to Washington out of buying Distillers drinks.

London air dealer David Mason, whose 10-year-old daughter Louise was born limbless, said he grabbed a microphone aboard the Washington-bound plane and offered to pay passengers not to drink Distillers gin and whisky.

"I helped with the drinks tray and I must say the boycott was 100-per-cent effective," he was quoted as saying in Washington. "Distillers made no sales on that flight."

Planning board meets
DERBY LINE - A group of people, residents of the village of Derby Line gathered for a meeting of the planning board at the village hall on Thursday evening, January 4.

In the absence of the chairman, Frank Spates Jr., who was ill, U.E. Cargill chaired the meeting. Village trustees and committeemen on the planning board, Benoit Blais and Gordon Johnston, were present.

This meeting was called to review the amendments to zoning regulations. Mr. Blais read the warning which had been posted the required length of time. Mr. Cargill read the former section of the articles and the amendments.

There were additions, deletions and suggested changes. These changes will now be brought before the planning board for discussion.

January 15 at 8:00 p.m. there will be a town meeting in the auditorium of Derby Academy. In another 30 days, a date to be set in mid February, an election will be called and Australian vote of the citizens will determine the acceptance of the zoning regulations or their rejection.

It is therefore suggested that every person eligible to vote attend the January 15 hearing and information meeting to learn about the amendments and rules.

If the regulations are rejected by the election vote, regulations will be taken over by the state government for control.

Snow shoe 'Ladies Night'

On New Year's day, a capacity crowd attended the ladies' night held at the Sherbrooke Snow Shoe Clubhouse on Prospect Street for the annual President's reception.

The members of the executive and head table guests were piped in by piper David Moore. A delicious roast beef dinner was served by honorary purveyor Brian Clark and his kitchen committee.

The members and guests were welcomed by President Bob Bell. Chorister Robert Leech led a group singing accompanied by Wright Gibson at the piano.

Clarence Blake introduced guest speaker E.J. Struthers, Mayor of Stanstead, whose topic was "73 A Time to See" and gave a very interesting talk which embodied many historical facts. Ed Mills thanked the speaker.

Entertainment for the evening included the highland fling and sword dance by Shelley McComb, Christine and Heather Moore, accompanied by piper David Moore as well as a number of songs by the Blenkhorn family of Sherbrooke to the accompaniment of the piano and guitar.

Following the entertainment, the remainder of the evening was spent dancing to the music of Ron Ward's Orchestra.

Grants announced

DERBY LINE - The U.S. federal government is granting a revenue share to all villages, towns and cities in the United States.

Gordon Johnston, trustee of the village of Derby Line states that the village has received $5,517. Another cheque for the same amount will come in January for the 1972 year.

Then the coming five years a cheque will be received each year. This is given on a per capita basis so the ensuing five year cheques cannot be determined at this time.

The money is to be used for maintenance expenses and costs but not on a major project such as the issue of the sewage installation facing Derby Line.

Inverness

Opposition is strong here to a reported move by our Provincial Government to close the Sacre-Coeur Hospital in Plessisville. This little hospital enjoys a well-deserved reputation for providing wonderful medical and nursing care dispensed in a friendly and home like atmosphere. Resolutions have been forwarded from many local councils, representing some thirty-five thousand people, asking that the government reconsider this step, and it is quite clear, that if denied their request that the indignation of the people of the area will be expressed in no uncertain manner in the next Provincial election.

It seems strange, indeed, that the Bourassa Government which boasts of its medicare Scheme, should neutralize such a worthy project by closing one of the best local means of providing medical care in this district instead of increasing the facilities of the Sacre-Coeur.

Mrs. Arthur Beattie, Mr. Marion Beattie and Miss Nancy Perkins, of Dunham, and Mrs. Thomas Anderson, of Cowansville, were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Carroll.

Mr. Hollis Patterson, of Rectory Hill entertained members of the family at dinner on Christmas Day.

We regret to report yet another death among our Senior citizens in the person of the late Mr. Moise Martineau, who passed away recently at the age of 88 years.

The Old Timers of the YMCA were given a special evening at Christmas time and Mr. Emmons was the oldest member there. He still attends the "Y" every day and also takes part in the Masonic Order. In the past, he was a frequent visitor in and around Vale Perkins and Mansonville.

Happy New Year everyone - and good health!

Artificial blood tests successful

BOSTON (AP) — After 35 rats survived an experiment in which all their blood was replaced by an artificial substance, Harvard University researchers have begun tests on monkeys and hope to extend the benefits to man.

If the work is successful, the substance could be used to preserve organs for transplants and to provide an alternative for patients who have built up a reaction to ordinary blood transfusions, Dr. Robert Geyer, the chief researcher, said Wednesday.

Geyer, head of the medical team at Harvard's School of Public Health, said the rat experiment was the first successful transplant using an artificial substance for blood.

The breakthrough, which came late last fall, had eluded the specialists for several years.

Geyer said that the closer 100-per-cent transfer is approached, the more difficult the task becomes.

"Two years ago we were able to do 98 per cent," he said. "By juggling the ingredients—in amounts and molecular characteristics—we finally were able to achieve 100 per cent."

The blood replacement is made up of a class of compounds called fluorocarbons and is a liquid that can be colored anything from milky white to dishwasher grey to clear, Geyer said.

VEHICLE FOR OXYGEN

The important feature, he added, is that it carries oxygen to an organism's cells, a job previously done only by red blood cells.

"We were almost convinced as recently as last spring that our substance would have to have at least a few red blood cells," Geyer said, but the chemical used for the rats was totally artificial.

Since a body continues to produce new red blood cells all the time, it is important that they be able to mix with the artificial substance, which was the case with the rats.

Since the blood replacement, the rats have survived and gradually replaced the substance with their own blood.

The change to monkeys will provide more answers on the usefulness of the preparation to humans.

In the coming year the researchers plan to begin seeing if replacing blood in rats afflicted with leukemia helps to cure the disease.

Geyer said no human experiments are planned at this time, but it is hoped that "within several years" the preparation, or one like it, will be able to keep various human organs alive for days and weeks for transplants.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy George, Waterloo, were callers at the same home.

Mrs. Ernest Boucher and son, Louis, and friend, Bobby Willis, Abercorn, were Christmas morning callers and Mr. Erwin Gardner, Morrisville, Vt., spent the holiday weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Ray Gardner.

Galt drops two

MONTREAL (BP) — Alexander Galt Regional began its new sports year on the wrong foot Saturday when the senior and junior hockey players lost 2-1 and 5-1 respectively to Loyola High School.

Jim Kennedy was the lone scorer for coach Rod McKell's senior squad while Jim Sharman earned an assist. McKell noted that his team gave a good effort and outplayed their opponents but fell behind on the scoreboard.

He also commented on the good goaltending supplied by Bruce Burnham and added that both Loyola goals were power play efforts.

Barons drop decision before sparse crowd

Cleveland Barons may move to Jacksonville. If they do they won't be missed by many American Hockey League fans in Ohio city—mainly because they don't have many fans.

The Barons played what may be their last game in Cleveland Sunday night and only 412 showed up as the home team took a 5-0 thrashing from Virginia Red Wings.

Owner Nick Mileti says lack of support necessitates moving the franchise and he wants to go to Florida. The Barons are supposed to meet Springfield in Cleveland Jan. 23, but the move will probably have been made by then.

The win kept Virginia in third place in the Western Division with 45 points, one behind second place Hershey Bears. The Barons are fifth with 31 points.

In other games Sunday, Nova Scotia bounced Baltimore 9-3 and it was Cincinnati 6 Richmond 2, Springfield 6 New Haven 2, Hershey 4 Providence 1 and Rochester 4 Boston 1.

COOK SCORES TWICE
 Bob Cook scored twice for the Red Wings with Art Stratton, Bill Hogaboam and Brian McCutcheon getting the others. The Barons replaced first-string goalie Fern Rivard after he let in three first-period goals. Ted Outmet was nicked for two second-period goals, but played strongly in the last period.

Nova Scotia scored four times in the first and last period and once in the second on their way to the rout of Baltimore Clippers. Chuck Arnason led the way with three goals.

The victory put the first-place Voyageurs eight points ahead of Boston Braves in the Eastern Division.

The Braves took their third loss in as many nights, bowing to Rochester.

The Americans jumped into a 3-0 lead and were never in trouble, outshooting Boston 36-18. Bob Ellett scored after 27 seconds and the Americans were on their way. Rod Graham, Bob Malcolm and Barry Merrell scored the others. Lynn Zimmerman's shutout bid was spoiled by Ron Anderson who scored for Boston late in the second period.

REDS CAN'T WIN
 Robin Burns scored three times for Hershey in its win over Providence, extending the Reds' winless streak to four games. Burns scored just 12 seconds after the game began, again in the second period and on a breakaway in the third.

Springfield and New Haven played their second penalty-ridden game in two nights with six majors handed out. Saturday, New Haven players went into the stands after the fans as well as taking on the Kings.

Norm Dube didn't get into any fights—he did his damage with two goals for the Kings.

Cincinnati built up a 3-0 first-period lead and extended it to 5-2 by the end of the second period as they coasted past Richmond. The Swords lead the West Division by 16 points over Hershey.

Beavers tie Quebec

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
 Even a coaching change could not spur the hapless Drummondville Rangers on to greater heights Sunday.

The Rangers, in last place in the nine-team Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League, nine points behind Trois-Rivieres Ducs, saw their coach, Gordie Haworth, resign shortly before a 7-6 loss to Sorel Black Hawks. He was replaced by Gerard LeFebvre.

The loss, Rangers' 27th in 35 contests, leaves Drummondville with only 15 points—45 fewer than league-leading Cornwall Royals.

In other action Sunday, Quebec Remparts and Sherbrooke Beavers battled through a scoreless overtime period and ended up with a 4-4 draw. Shawinigan Bruins humbled Laval Nationals 8-1 and Montreal Red, White and Blue clipped Trois-Rivieres 7-2.

Pierre Larouche added to Haworth's ignominious departure with a two-goal performance for Sorel. Other Black Hawks marksmen were Denis Desgagnes, Raynald Gill, Pierre Mondoux, Michel Bergeron and Jacques Cossette.

Funseth surprises

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rod Funseth, one of the faceless legends who normally play supporting roles to the game's great stars, broke through with a solid three-strike victory Sunday in the $135,000 Glen Campbell-Los Angeles Open golf tournament.

Funseth, 39, a 13-year tour veteran, put together a carefully-constructed 69, two under par on the 7,028-yard Riviera Country Club course as he left the field in his wake.

He collected the biggest check of his career, $27,000, after posting a 72-hole total of 276, eight under par.

Funseth wasn't crowded after taking consecutive birdies on the eighth and ninth holes. He parred

Hawks nip Bruins 5-4

Mikita back to old form

By IAN MACLAIN
 Canadian Press Staff Writer

The spirit has mellowed but the zest and determination with which Stan Mikita terrorized opposition goaltenders in his early years with Chicago Black Hawks is back.

The slightly-built centre, fully-recovered from back injuries that have plagued him the last two seasons, was up to his old tricks: Sunday against Boston Bruins.

He scored Chicago's first goal then drew assists on the other four as the Black Hawks nipped Boston 5-4 to move eight points ahead of Minnesota North Stars, whom they blanked 2-0 Saturday, in the National Hockey League's West Division.

The five-point game moved Mikita into second place in the individual scoring race at the half-way point in the schedule with 58 points, two behind Boston's Phil Esposito.

Elsewhere Sunday, shutouts told the story as Buffalo Sabres downed Philadelphia Flyers 2-0, New York Rangers blanked Pittsburgh Penguins 3-0, Toronto Maple Leafs whitewashed California Golden Seals 4-0 and Detroit Red Wings burdened New York Islanders with a similar setback.

FLAMES BURST
 In another contest, the surprising Atlanta Flames, a first-year franchise along with the Islanders, trimmed Vancouver Canucks 5-2 to climb into third place in the West.

Saturday's other scores were: Montreal Canadiens 5, California 0; Toronto 4, Los Angeles Kings 2; Buffalo 4, the Rangers 1;

Detroit 4, the Islanders 0; Pittsburgh 4, Vancouver 2 and Atlanta 2, St. Louis Blues 2.

Montreal gets a chance to pad its two-point lead in the East over Boston when they entertain Minnesota tonight.

It marked the second Chicago victory in as many meetings with the defending Stanley Cup champions this season. And the scrappy Mikita engineered the win, setting up linemates Cliff Korral and Dan Maloney for two goals each.

Maloney's second of the game, at 19:09 of the second period, broke a 4-4 deadlock and goaltender Tony Esposito blanked the high-scoring Bruins the rest of the way.

Bobby Orr, the Bruins' ace defenceman, drew three assists but was in the penalty box when Malone scored the game-winner.

HOME STRING INTACT
 The Sabres meanwhile, stretched their unbeaten string at home to 27 games—18 wins and three ties. Dave Dryden registered his second shutout and got all the scoring he needed when Jim Lorentz beat Philadelphia's Doug Favel at 14:41 of the second period while the Flyers' goalie had stopped two successive drives by Gerry Meehan.

Referee Ron Wicks caught Schinkel the second time although the Pittsburgh winger, who has been inactive of late, was obviously skating off the kinks in his aging legs at the other end of the rink and had no interest in the fights.

PENALTY COSTLY
 While the Penguins were short-handed because of the double minor to Schinkel, Walt Tkaczuk scored New York's go-ahead goal.

Bill Fairbairn's insurance score in the second period drew a Happy Birthday blast from the Madison Square Garden organist and 17,000 fans joined in.

Pittsburgh coach Red Kelly admitted in a post-game interview the penalty to Schinkel was properly interpreted by Wicks but the call "is no more mandatory than anything else."

"I didn't argue with him. What are you going to say?" He said Schinkel was going for a skate, "certainly not to get into the fight."

"It might have been a costly skate."

WHA west stars bomb

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goal-scorers for the East team were: Gary Jarrett of Cleveland Crusaders; Larry Pleau and Jim Dorey of New England Whalers; John McKenzie and Danny Lawson of Philadelphia Blazers; and Wayne Carleton of Ottawa Nationals.

Veterans Gerry Odrowski of Los Angeles Sharks and Bobby Hull of Winnipeg Jets scored first and third period goals for the West.

Gerry Cheevers of Cleveland and Al Smith of New England shared goaltending duties for the winners—each working 30 minutes. Cheevers allowed Odrowski's goal at 10:39 of the opening period, but then went on to stop an additional 12 shots before Smith took over.

Hull beat Smith at 3:05 of the final period on his first shot of the game. It was not a patented Hull slapshot blast, but a short drive fired from close-in that earned him his goal.

The East defenders allowed Hull only one other shot after his goal, as the West wound up on the short end of the 47-33 shots-on-goal statistic.

WAKELY STARTS
 Ernie Wakely of Winnipeg started in goal for the West. He gave up the tying goal to Jarrett, 12 seconds after Odrowski had given the West a 1-0 lead. But Wakely performed well in the 20 minutes he worked as the East outshot his squad 18-8 in the opening period.

Jack Norris of Alberta Oilers replaced Wakely at the start of the second period and allowed goals by McKenzie, Pleau and Dorey that earned the East a 4-1 edge after 40 minutes.

Mike Curran, the former U.S. Olympic team netminder, played the last 20 minutes for the West. While Curran gave up goals to Lawson and Carleton within 31 seconds, he looked sharp on several other plays.

Curran had little chance on either of the two goals he allowed. He made a spectacular skate save on a Jarrett shot only to have the puck carom off toward the corner. Lawson fired from a bad angle and Curran watched disbelievably as the puck bounced off him and behind his body into the net.

Carleton broke in right up the middle and got a change-up shot away with only one hand on his stick to beat Curran for the final goal.

The contest was a tame affair with referee Bill Friday calling only four minor penalties—all in the first period.

Gaiterettes third

DALHOUSIE (AR) — Bishop's University Gaiterettes travelled to the Maritimes over the weekend, placing third in the Dalhousie University Invitational Tournament for women.

The Gaiterettes won two games, 61-47 over University of New Brunswick and 65-47 over Moncton Schooners, and lost a third encounter to St. Francis Xavier University 68-63.

Tournament honors went to St. John's Alouettes, a senior team from New Brunswick, while Dalhousie won the consolation. St. Francis Xavier placed second in the elimination.

In their opening game victory against UNB the Gaiterettes were paced by Nancy Knowlton and Anne Williams who scored 19 and 14 points respectively. Bishop's took a commanding 33-19 lead after the first half and matched their eastern opponents in the remaining twenty minutes to preserve the victory.

In the second game St. Francis Xavier jumped to a 49-24 lead and held off a determined Bishop's drive in the second half to win by five points. Audrey Jones led the Townships crew with 19 points while Helen Castonguay notched 14. Nancy Knowlton hit for 14 while Anne Williams chipped in with 10.

The Gaiterettes ended the tournament on a promising note by defeating Moncton 65-47. Nancy Knowlton led all Bishop's scorers with 26 points. Helen Castonguay and Sue Garand scored 15 and 14 points respectively.

An all-star team was selected at the end of the tournament and Nancy Knowlton of Bishop's was named to the team.
