MAINE HOLIDAY RESORTS SWEEP BY FOREST FIRES

28 KILLED, 100 INJURED IN LONDON TRAIN COLLISION

World News In Brief

Jerusalem, Oct. 24.—(Reuters)—Two members of the illegal Jewish defence organization Hagana were slightly wounded in a gun battle today with a squad of the terrorist group Irgun Zvai Leumi at Richon le Zion, a Jewish township south of Tel Aviv.

The Hagana patrol intercepted Irgun gunmen passing leaflets on walls, according to Jewish sources in Tel Aviv. The Irgun terrorists were reported to have been beaten off.

Peiping, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A shifting of Chinese Communist strength for an assault on the great Hsiao-fengman hydro-electric plant 15 miles southeast of Kirin-Manchuria, was reported under way today.

Chinese dispatches said the main Red force which had been attacking Kirin was being moved into position for striking at the installation. The plant supplies power and light for most of Southern Manchuria.

Capture of Hsiao-fengman possibly would be the greatest single strategic blow the Communists could deliver against the Nationalists.

The government claimed an important victory east of Kirin—recapture of Chuihai, on the railway leading to Changchun, Manchuria's capital.

Frankfurt, Oct. 24.—(AP)—A United States Military Government court in Salzburg, Austria, convicted a Yugoslav displaced person of murder for the wartime killing of a Nazi burgomaster, the United States army newspaper, Stars and Stripes, reported today.

The prosecution joined the defence in a plea for "extreme leniency" when sentence is pronounced next Monday on the D.P., Malorad Miljkovic.

Detroit, Oct. 24.—(AP)—The Associated Press today reaffirmed its intention of continuing its coverage of world news "without fear and without pulling its punches."

Alan J. Gould, AP assistant general manager, re-outlined the news-gathering agency's policy to 300 members of the Associated Press managing editors association who are holding their 14th annual convention here.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—(C)—Nine hundred delegates and alternates were registered yesterday for the one-day annual convention of the Ontario Progressive Association. Registration showed especially large delegations from Northern Ontario.

Bar Harbor Residents Are Evacuated, Heavy Damage In Kennebunkport District

Meat Plants Prepare For Normal Work

Estimate Five and a Half-Week Strike Cost Packinghouse Workers About $4,752,000 in Wages.

By The Canadian Press
Full production in Canada's meat packing plants was expected today to be reached early next week as the tabulation of financial loss to workers, companies and farmers from the five and a half-week strike ran into many millions of dollars.

It was estimated unofficially that more than 6,600,000 man-hours of labor were lost during the strike, costing the strikers approximately $4,752,000 in wages. Losses of the packers were set at $72,000,000 while it was estimated farmers would lose about one-third of their expected income from cattle and swine.

More than 8,500 of the 14,000 workers who struck in plants across the nation were back on the job today, and it was believed all the strikers would be back at work by early next week. Officials of the industry's "big three"—Canada Packers, Swift Canadian and Burns and Company—said full production also should be achieved by that time.

A talk preliminary to arbitration between the United Packinghouse Workers of America (C.I.O.) and the Canada Packers and Burns companies was held in Toronto yesterday under Charles P. McTague, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission. Actual start of the arbitration hearings will be Nov. 4.

Mr. McTague said the union and the companies would proceed by collective bargaining "to try and agree on as many issues as possible prior to the date of the arbitration hearings."

The union is expected to make a bid at these hearings to obtain a further ten cents an hour wage increase on top of the seven-cent gain agreed upon in the pact which sent workers of the Burns and Canada Packers companies back to their jobs. Swift Canadian employees received a ten-cent pay boost.

3,500 Townsfolk at Bar Harbor Evacuated by Land or Sea as Property Damage Estimated at $8,000,000—400 Buildings Razed in Kennebunkport Area in New England's Destructive Forest Fires.

After a flaming night of horror, famed Bar Harbor was a stricken, almost deserted town today, and Kennebunkport, 6 hours' ride by car from Sherbrooke and popular holiday resort for many Eastern Townships residents, reported heavy damages in the most frightening of New England's destructive forest fires.

Some 3,500 townsfolk at Bar Harbor had fled, by land or sea. Some 300 of their homes and summer estates of some of the wealthiest families of the United States were smoking ruins.

A raging forest fire that touched off the holocaust sped across Mont Desert Island, menacing other nearby communities. Shifting or stronger winds might wreak new havoc at Bar Harbor.

Four known deaths attributable to the flames were reported by authorities. Unconfirmed reports said three more lives were lost in a boat collision during the evacuation.

Fires ringed Biddeford, an industrial centre of 20,000 population in southwestern Maine.

At Kennebunkport, Henry Baker, assistant disaster chief of the American Red Cross, estimated that 400 buildings, 150 of them permanent homes, had been destroyed in York county alone.

Police Chief George C. Abbott reported the assessed value of the lost homes at Bar Harbor at $8,000,000, exclusive of furnishings. He wouldn't hazard an estimate of their worth.

Most of the evacuees, conveyed by troops through a flame-lined single road to the mainland, were sheltered at Ellsworth.

They were told of a "terrifying" crescent of flame that descended on their homes—"like a big furnace around us," said Mrs. Andrew Walls, 49.

Mrs. Walls, after hours of waiting on a chilly, wind-swept pier, was one of hundreds evacuated in lobster boats, pleasure craft and Coast Guard vessels in a Dunkerque-like exodus.

Despite the fearful experiences of the evacuees, "there was no panic," Abbott said.

Two-thirds of the refugees made their escape in the afternoon, before the flames reached the road.

For three hours the island was cut off. In the belief that a mass evacuation by sea would be necessary, the Navy and Coast Guard sent 10 ocean-going craft speeding to the port.

During those three hours, Abbott said: "All we did was sit here and wait."

COMMERCIAL RENTALS CONTROLS TO END
Ottawa, Oct. 24.—(C.P.)—Finance Minister Abbott announced today that federal control over rentals in commercial establishments will end March 5, 1948.

OTTAWA PAPERS RAISE PRICE TO FIVE CENTS
Ottawa, Oct. 24.—(C.P.)—An increase in price from three cents to five cents a copy has been announced by the Ottawa Journal and the Ottawa Citizen.

Simultaneous announcements said the increase was made necessary by rising costs of all elements going into a newspaper, including a jump of 100 per cent in the cost of newsprint since 1939.

Fire Sweeps Kennebunkport Area

The forest fire (above) swept through the Cape Porpoise section of Kennebunkport, Me., destroying summer cottages, two summer hotels and a grade school and then burned itself into Kennebunkport. More than 100 other forest fires were raging throughout drought-parched New England.

Forest Fires Spread Through New York Estates

This airview shows forest fires which are racing along a five-mile front at the Sterling Forest tract near Southfield, N.Y. Part of the tract is included in the estate of Communist Secretary Averell Harriman and his brother, E. Roland Harriman. As a precautionary measure, Gov. Dewey ordered closed 8,500,000 acres of forests around the Adirondacks.

Communist Group Making No Progress, Film Stars Say

Washington, Oct. 24.—Although the Screen Actors Guild contains a "militant, well-organized, well-disciplined minority" with Communist leanings, the group is small and has made no headway, three first-magnitude Hollywood stars, Robert Montgomery, George Murphy and Ronald Reagan told the House Committee on Un-American Activities conducting an inquiry into the degree of Communist infiltration in the film industry.

Ronald Reagan, president of the Screen Actors Guild, along with past presidents Montgomery and Murphy, described to the committee what they alleged were tactics used by Communist adherents in the acting profession, but emphasized that a "very small minority," less than one per cent, belong to that group and that its efforts to gain control were completely frustrated.

While making plain their aversion to the Communist movement, they stressed the necessity for applying democratic procedures in combatting it. In contrast to many of their Hollywood colleagues they indicated an unwillingness to label Hollywood personalities as Communists on mere hearsay without conclusive evidence.

Mr. Reagan pointed out there was in his field, as in virtually every labor organization, at least a small group that has followed policies usually associated with the Communist Party. He added that within "the bounds of democracy we have done a pretty good job in blocking their activities" and have been "eminently successful" in keeping them from "their usual tactics of running an organization by minority."

Two Electric Trains Crash In Dense Fog

London, Oct. 24.—(AP)—At least 38 persons were killed and estimates of the number of injured ranged from 50 to 100 when two London-bound electric trains, packed with workers, collided in a dense fog early today at South Croydon, on London's outskirts.

Scores of others were bruised and shaken when a train from Hayward's Heath, Sussex, crawling through the mist, was struck in the rear by a train from suburban Tottenham Corner.

The last two coaches of the Hayward's Heath train were thrown off the rails and the leading coaches of the Tottenham Corner train were telescoped. Residents along the line heard the deafening crash of the collision, then, after moments of silence, cries of agony and fear.

While a trainman ran 400 yards to telephone for help, residents climbed on to the line and tried to help the injured. Housewives tore up sheets for bandages and emptied medicine cabinets to provide emergency aid.

Soon the embankment was littered with bloodstained sheets. Ambulances and fire engines rushed to the scene but the fire engines were recalled when it was discovered there was no danger of fire.

One nearby resident said the crash of the collision "was followed by something like a lightning flash. We placed a ladder against our back garden fence and helped people off the line."

"There was no panic at all although some of them were groaning," another said. "One old lady who was nearly blind was carried off the tracks over a fence."

The accident occurred at about 8.30 a.m. GMT and both trains were packed to capacity with workbound crowds. The main line was blocked and scenes of confusion prevailed all along the route as crowds quickly collected due to the delay.

"I was in the last coach of the Hayward's Heath train," said T. Francis Redhill. The coach was thrown off the rails but didn't actually overturn.

"I climbed onto the window. There were a lot of women in our coach, but they seemed to keep calm although there was blood all over the corridor."

Doctors and rescue crews all paid tribute to the calmness of the passengers. Many with minor injuries refused first aid until these more seriously hurt had been helped.

Employment In Canada Tops 5,000,000 For First Time

Ottawa, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Employment in Canada topped the 5,000,000 mark for the first time in the week ending Aug. 16 while unemployment in the Dominion declined 18,000 to 73,000 at the same date, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today after an exhaustive survey across the nation.

The 5,000,000 figure—5,008,690 to be exact—was an increase of about 187,000 over the last week in May and 150,000 higher than in a comparable period in August, 1945. It was made up of 3,280,000 male workers and 1,728,690 women.

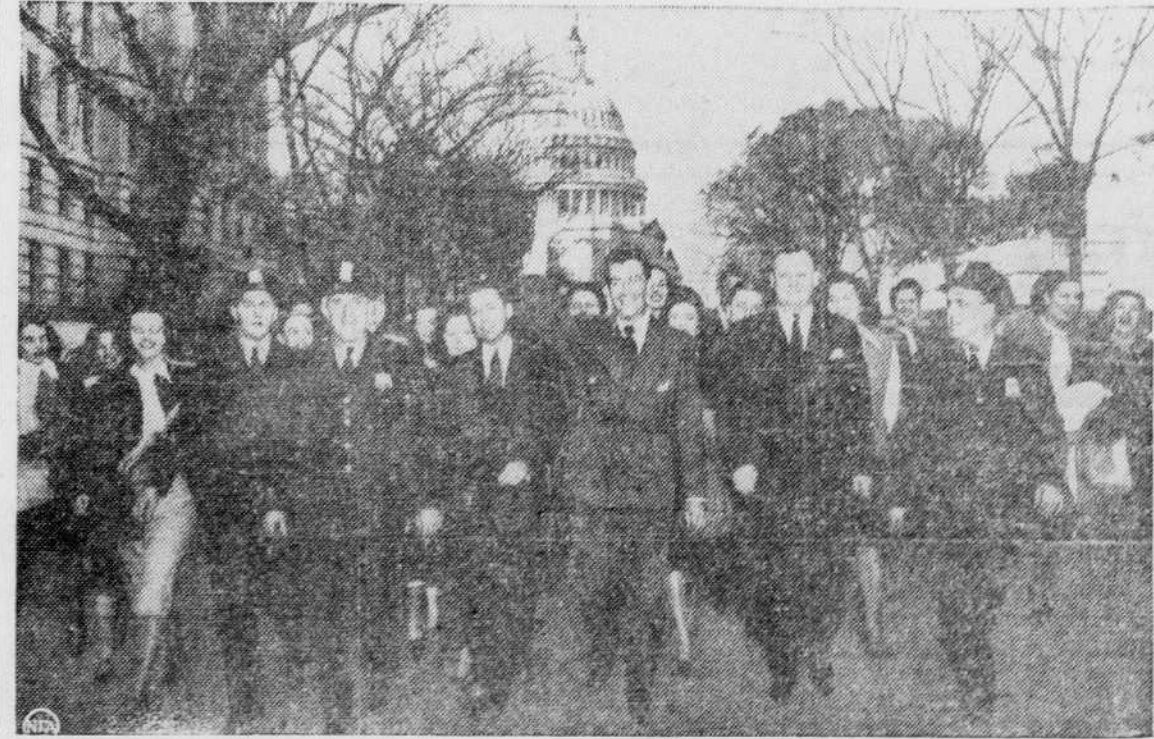

The 73,000 unemployed at Aug. 16 was a drop of 18,000 since the end of May and 44,000 lower than at the end of August, 1945, bringing the volume of those seeking jobs close to the lowest level reached during the peak employment of the wartime years.

The bureau said that the civilian labor force of the Dominion, which includes persons at work, with a job or looking for work, but not including those going to school, keeping house, retired persons or those too old to work, totalled 5,081,000.

One point brought out by the survey, the Bureau said, was a clear indication of a tendency for women to withdraw from the labor market. The Bureau reached this conclusion because of the "growing number of women engaged in keeping house."

SOME UNKIND WORDS ABOUT HOLLYWOOD

Hollywood, Oct. 24.—The screen is suffering because most writers and producers are lazy, thinks Bette Davis. I spent almost an hour in her dressing room, and what we said about Hollywood would get us both tarred and feathered and run out of town.

The censorship code, said Bette, has made Hollywood lazy because the producers and writers immediately admit defeat on any adult story along censorable lines. "Winter Meeting," her new film, is an example.

It was a censorable story, so the studio took the easy way out and sent the boy and the girl to the preacher in the screen play.

"I sent it back," said Bette. "The marriage had ruined the story. I told them to use a little elbow grease and give me the book. They did. Now we're filming the book and we get past the censors because we're subtle about it. It took a little time and some work. But now we have a great story."

Another Davis
I met Jim Davis (no relation), Bette's co-star. He's a big, black-haired fellow who got lost in the shuffle at M-G-M. Republic was about to sign him when Bette saw his test and said, "That's my man." It was the last test she saw. Bette was ready to pick Richard Widmark of "Kiss of Death" fame. They told her there was another test she hadn't seen. Bette looked at Jim's film, and Warner Brothers got a new star.

My mail is flooded with letters from mothers asking if there isn't some way to stop filming "The Life of Al Capone." There is a way. Wire or write Eric Johnston, president of the producers' association, and demand that the story be put in the garbage can, where it belongs.

Theaters on the coast are crying for slapstick comedy, which is the reason why Columbia is releasing the new Ginger Rogers film, "It Had to Be You," several months ahead of schedule. . . . Joe Cotton may be Ginger Rogers' co-star in "Wild Calendar." . . . Explanation of the "top secret" designation on two crime coats furrier Al Teitelbaum is turning out for Betty Grable to wear in "Lady in Ermine," is that the coats have to give the effect that Betty

But the yacht will remain in Jamaica waters. Says Errol: "I just can't afford a yacht here any more."

Looking backward: When Leslie Howard introduced Ingrid Bergman to her first American hamburger on the set of "Intermezzo," Ingrid wrote a letter to a friend in Sweden and said:

"The funny thing about a hamburger is that one can taste it for so long. It is now nine hours since I ate it, but the flavor is still on my tongue, even though I have brushed my teeth four times."

BILLY ROSE

Billy Jackson grinned as he saw the pink neon sign of the U-Like-It Diner. That's where it had begun two short months ago. The vaudeville had ordered a cup of coffee.

So had the dark-haired girl on the stool next to his. The Greek counterwoman had assumed they were together and yelled, "Two kids coffee for couple cute cups."

The girl—Sheilah—was her name—had giggled at the tongue-twister, and the boy had laughed with her. They had walked out of the diner together. A month later, they had brought the counterwoman a piece of wedding cake. The sentimental Greek had chuckled and told them, "This time it's on the house. Two kids coffee for couple cute cups."

Tonight the marriage was a month old. As Bill walked past the diner, Nick stuck his head out of an open window. "Where's the missus?" he shouted. "We got nesselrode pie tonight."

"File it for future reference," the vaudeville cracked. "Me and Sheilah are celebratin' tonight."

As he climbed the stairs to their two-room flat, Billy felt his handkerchief pocket to make sure the theatre tickets were still there. He opened the door a few inches, stuck his arm through, and waved the green pasteboards. "Hey, honey," he shouted. "Look what the man's got."

Sheilah pulled the door open and gave him the large-sized newlywed hug. Then she asked, "Those tickets aren't for tonight, are they?"

The vaudeville took it big. "For tonight and down front!" he announced. "Annie Get Your Gun. We've only got forty-five minutes. Shake those lovely legs, baby. We can grab a sandwich on the way over."

The hooper felt pretty good. A pair for "Annie" was big stuff for a guy who hadn't had a booking in a couple of months. He waited for Sheilah to get excited. Sheilah didn't. "What gives?" he asked anxiously. "This is our anniversary. You're supposed to be happy, Mrs. Jackson."

Sheilah walked him into the kitchen. The drop-leaf table had been pulled away from the wall. On it was the lace tablecloth the girls in his office had given her for a wedding present. A pair of Mexican tin candlesticks were in place.

"I planned for us to celebrate home tonight," said Sheilah. "Let's see 'Annie' some other time. It's my first roast."

The vaudeville felt as if somebody had dropped ice cubes down his back. The tickets to "Annie" represented a lot of cigarettes he hadn't smoked. Suddenly a lot of stinging little words were flying around the flat.

"If you feel that way about it," the hooper finally snapped, "I'll go to the show myself. I can put my hat on the other seat."

"Have a good time," Sheilah hollered after him. "I'll eat the roast."

As he walked over to 45th Street, Billy reviewed the arguments in his favor and decided he had a good case. By the time the curtain went up on "Annie," he was certain Sheilah was out of line. For the first half hour, the hooper kept his mind on the stage. But when Ethel Merman sang "Falling in love is wonderful," with that funny catch in her voice, he found himself thinking of Sheilah and the tin candlesticks. "Poor kid," he said to himself. "Alone in the flat, nibbling on that roast."

As the show went on, he kept looking at the empty seat next to him. Just before the end of the first act, Billy got up and left the theatre. He walked up Eighth Avenue and turned west to the flat.

Sheilah wasn't there. The lace tablecloth and the candlesticks were still on the table. He opened the oven. The roast hadn't been touched. He walked into the bedroom. The spread was mussed as if someone had been lying face down on it. The vaudeville took off his jacket and then put it back on again. He knew he couldn't spend the night in the flat without Sheilah.

Out on the street, he walked toward Ninth Avenue. As he turned a corner, he saw the pink neon of the U-Like-It Diner.

As he walked over to 45th Street, Billy reviewed the arguments in his favor and decided he had a good case. By the time the curtain went up on "Annie," he was certain Sheilah was out of line. For the first half hour, the hooper kept his mind on the stage. But when Ethel Merman sang "Falling in love is wonderful," with that funny catch in her voice, he found himself thinking of Sheilah and the tin candlesticks. "Poor kid," he said to himself. "Alone in the flat, nibbling on that roast."

As the show went on, he kept looking at the empty seat next to him. Just before the end of the first act, Billy got up and left the theatre. He walked up Eighth Avenue and turned west to the flat.

Sheilah wasn't there. The lace tablecloth and the candlesticks were still on the table. He opened the oven. The roast hadn't been touched. He walked into the bedroom. The spread was mussed as if someone had been lying face down on it. The vaudeville took off his jacket and then put it back on again. He knew he couldn't spend the night in the flat without Sheilah.

Out on the street, he walked toward Ninth Avenue. As he turned a corner, he saw the pink neon of the U-Like-It Diner.

He walked in and sat down. The vaudeville felt as if somebody had dropped ice cubes down his back. The tickets to "Annie" represented a lot of cigarettes he hadn't smoked. Suddenly a lot of stinging little words were flying around the flat.

"If you feel that way about it," the hooper finally snapped, "I'll go to the show myself. I can put my hat on the other seat."

"Have a good time," Sheilah hollered after him. "I'll eat the roast."

Board Named To Investigate Valuation Roll Protests — Bus Terminal Report Given

A four-man board to investigate protests against the 1947 valuation roll along with the valuers was formed last night at the regular meeting of the City Council.

The property owners are claiming the valuation is too high and are seeking reductions. The city representatives are Aldermen H. Lanctot, A. Trudeau, W. H. Bradley and S. Rousseau.

Alderman V. A. Fiset advised the meeting that he would present at the next meeting a motion to amend municipal by-law 514 regarding the tariff of taxes.

A motion from the Fire Department recommended the installation of 14 new hydrants throughout various sections of the city.

The actual council meeting was short but the members were in caucus previous to that for more than 2 1/2 hours.

Reports from the committees were read and approved along with the minutes of the previous meetings.

Absent were Aldermen Trudeau, Lanctot and Rousseau. Attending were Mayor Guy Bryant, Aldermen Fiset, P. E. Hamel, O. Deziel, C. G. Bishop, A. Charpentier, W. H. Bradley and H. Labonne along with City Clerk Antonin Deslauriers.

The meeting approved a motion from the previous meeting to have City Treasurer Maurice Cormier force the collection of arrears of municipal and school taxes as well as permanent improvements, due in 1948, in order to prepare for sale by auction on Dec. 11, 1947, all immovables upon which the taxes have not been paid.

Alderman Hamel reported regarding discussions concerning the development of Two Miles Falls as a power plant site, and said a decision would be forthcoming next week.

A motion by Alderman Charpentier, expressing regret on the death of Justice Dalma Landry of the Superior Court and paying tribute to his memory, was approved.

The report of the special committee formed to investigate the possibilities of the proposed autobus terminal at the market place was tabled. The committee was headed by Alderman Labonne with Aldermen Fiset and Trudeau as members.

The report included a letter from Antoine Lamarre, president of the Provincial Commission on Transportation and Communications, saying the commission recommended construction of the terminal as a means of a better public service.

The commission was of the opinion it was wise to construct the terminal in view of the continual progress and enlargement of autobus companies.

Mr. Lamarre's letter said the commission would not hinder construction of the terminal in any way. On the recommendations of the city, it would regulate autobus routes in Sherbrooke's streets.

He pointed out that although the commission could not directly force a company to route its vehicles to the terminal, it could revoke the permit of any company which refused to co-operate with the municipality in the interest of the public.

Eight companies or individuals hold permits from the commission to transport passengers to and from Sherbrooke.

A letter from H. J. Curtis, vice-president and treasurer of the Provincial Transport Company, said the company's consulting architect had visited No. 3 fire station, proposed site of the terminal building, and recommended that although the site was ideal for convenience, the building itself was in very poor condition.

Mr. Curtis expressed agreement with the architect's opinion that it would possibly be more economical to construct a new building than to repair the fire station, now unused except for the public scale.

The aldermen's report on the terminal revealed the cost would be $199,600. This included alterations to the market, the meat inspection building, the street and parking lot levelling.

Revenue would be about $4,495 per year after taxes and other incidentals had been removed. Annual rental from the building was quoted at $20,000 while annual obligations came to $16,905.64.

Parry Sound, Ont., Oct. 24.—An all-male jury today will probably be called on to reach a verdict in the case of Mrs. Edna Cottrell, 33-year-old mother of eight children charged with murder in the rifle slaying of her husband, Clayton, last July 27. She claimed he attempted to molest two of his young daughters.

With crown and defence evidence completed, the five-day hearing was all but over yesterday when Mrs. Cottrell entered the witness box to testify in her own defence.

Twice breaking under the emotional strain, the accused woman went to pieces while testifying, Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly, fearing her on the verge of collapse, twice ordered the hearing adjourned—one at noon for two hours and again for an hour almost immediately after the afternoon session started.

Mrs. Cottrell began her testimony in a clear, emphatic voice and for more than an hour she outlined for the jury the story of 17 years as a wife of a man who beat and abused her while on weekly drinking sprees. Finally, with flashes of terror on her face, she told the court how her husband, his mind "fired by cheap wine and beer" insisted it was time he personally taught his two oldest daughters "the facts of life." It was as she explained his advances toward his 10-year-old daughter that Mrs. Cottrell started to lose her composure.

Then, as she recounted how her husband "stripped off all his clothes," she broke down completely. Mr. Justice Kelly immediately ordered an adjournment.

In the afternoon session, she had hardly answered two questions put to her by defence counsel C. W. Cragg before she went to pieces again. In a voice choked and hoarse, she begged permission to continue but Mr. Justice Kelly ordered a second recess.

During the second recess, spectators remained in their seats as there was a lineup of people waiting for seats. To accommodate some of the overflow crowd, people were permitted to sit in the grand jury box, and additional chairs were placed along the wall.

On the day her husband was shot through the heart with a .22-calibre rifle, Mrs. Cottrell said that in the morning he had demanded that she help him stage exhibitions of sex before the children. At first she objected but later—"to keep him quiet and take his mind off the children"—she agreed.

She later loaded a rifle but went back to take it out because she feared an accident with the children. After taking the bullet out, she started up the step but suddenly

Testimonial Dinner Is Given Georges Sylvestre Upon His Retirement As Choir Leader

On the occasion of his retirement as director of St. Jean Baptiste choir, Georges Sylvestre was guest of honor at a largely attended dinner and presentation, given by choir members last evening at Hillcrest Lodge.

In addition to Rev. Canon Dolor Biron, parish priest of St. Jean Baptiste, Hon. J. S. Bourque, Minister of Lands and Forests and of Hydraulic Resources, and Mrs. Bourque, about one hundred and twenty members, with their wives and friends, assembled to show their appreciation to Mr. Sylvestre, who so ably guided the musical destiny of the parish for 23 years.

Irene Lemieux, president of the choir, said that it was with mingled feelings of joy and sorrow that he and the other members took part in last evening's reception, sorrow because it marked the end of the constant relations which had existed between them and the guest of honor for the past 23 years, and joy because of the opportunity to show publicly the esteem, admiration and friendship they felt for their director and friend.

"He has been an honor to our society, to the parish and to the city," he said. He then asked the guest of honor to accept from the choir a grandfather clock, together with their very best wishes. Little Louise Montour presented Mrs. Sylvestre with a beautiful basket of roses.

Rev. Canon Dolor Biron, speaking of the spirit of the choir, which persevered through the years, in spite of the joy and sadness occasioned by arrivals and departures, paid tribute to the wives of the members, who, he said, had contributed largely, by their sacrifices and co-operation, to the reputation which the choir enjoys today.

The next speaker, Hon. J. S. Bourque, congratulated the guest of honor on the achievements of the choir, saying that it was a great measure due to his untiring zeal that St. Jean Baptiste choir is today one of the best, if not the best, in the city. He paid tribute to Ernest Sylvestre, 80-year-old father of the guest of honor, who was also present at the dinner.

Mr. Bourque said that the example handed down by Ernest Sylvestre had been an exceptional one, both morally and musically, and that the son was walking in his father's footsteps and representing him with distinction.

"The Sylvestre name," he said, "is one which is favorably known and reflects credit not only on

JEAN DUPUIS IN COURT ON THEFT COUNTS

Jean Dupuis, 32-year-old Sherbrooke man, whose arrest by Provincial Police last week ended terminated a year's search by police authorities, appeared before Judge Joseph Marier this morning in the Court of Sessions of the Peace.

Four charges of theft have been laid against accused, who was arrested in Herbyville, Lake St. John District.

Dupuis is accused of having in his possession a Dodge Sedan, 1946, which he knew to be stolen property. The car belongs to Dr. G. Beaugrand, of St. Hyacinthe.

He is also charged with stealing medical instruments and equipment belonging to the Doctor, of a value of $500.

The two other charges are of theft from Dr. Roger Nadeau, first a Pontiac Coach, 1946, and secondly, medical supplies and instruments of a value of $500.

Dupuis is conducting his own defense and the case got under way this morning with Crown Prosecutor Roland Dugre presenting the Crown's proof. Several witnesses were heard, among them E. Anderson, of the Provincial Police, who testified that a large part of the loot had been found in a garage on Aberdeen Street.

Chile Orders Strike Heads Imprisoned

Authorities Declare There Is an Organized Communist Plot to Wreck National Economy.

Santiago, Oct. 24.—(AP)—Chilean authorities, declaring there is an organized Communist plot to wreck the national economy, today ordered the arrest of 360 strike leaders in the vital copper region where miners from the Sewell pits have joined a spreading walkout.

In another counter-move, the government dispatched troops last night to occupy two truck nitrate plants and ordered military control tightened throughout the four nitrate and copper-producing provinces which have been proclaimed emergency zones.

The Sewell pits employ some 8,600 miners and comprise eight mining camps.

The newspaper Diario Ilustrado reported yesterday establishment of emergency zones had been proclaimed after the government learned that the Communist-ordered slow-down at the Chuquibambilla mine of the Anaconda Copper Company had lowered weekly production from 80,000 tons to 60,000.

The newspaper added that the last 200 of the striking miners who tried to close down the southern coal fields had become hungry and abandoned their sit-down vigil. Earlier troops drove 2,000 strikers from one mine and 300 of the leaders now await court martial.

Labor Management Relations Are Reviewed At Local Rally

T. P. Dalton, personnel manager of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company, last night spoke to the members and guests of the Eastern Townships Chapter of Labor Management Relations.

With the announcement that the membership had increased to 38, Howard Moffatt introduced several of the new members as well as a number of guests.

J. Nelson Allen, of the Canadian Society of Cost Accountants and Industrial Engineers, explained his visit to Sherbrooke as a by-product of the organization meeting held last night at Three Rivers. With the addition of the Winnipeg and Three Rivers Chapters since the beginning of the year, the number of chapters now active in five provinces is twenty-four. In exhorting the students to persevere to the passing of the examinations, Mr. Allen pointed out that "surveys made by the Department of Veterans Affairs and by our Dominion Society indicate there will be positions for 700 qualified accountants each year for the next few years and from the students enrolled in all the accounting societies in Canada only 300 graduates each year to fill these positions."

Mr. Dalton was introduced by D. S. Beaman, Julius Kayser and Co. Ltd., and thanked by A. Hunting, Canadian Ingersoll-Rand. Observing that labor organizations were banned by law over 100 years ago and that membership in unions had increased seven-fold in the past 35 years, Mr. Dalton put before the meeting the necessity of labor-management co-operation. He summarized briefly the following Provincial Acts covering labor-management negotiations: Professional syndicates, collective agreement, labor relations, and public utilities. The speaker considered the most important part on an agreement the clauses dealing with grievance procedure and handling grievances already unsettled. He urged the recognition of the union but held that any agreement should include a "Management's Rights Clause" defining the functions of management. He stressed the importance of informing the employee of company developments and of training the employee for advancement. "Management must strive" said Mr. Dalton "to produce good and personalities as well as goods." The recent moves towards unionization of "white-collar" workers have been prompted by many conditions, prominent among which are pressure put on by and concessions made by management to production groups. He called on management-minded men to investigate their own labor-management attitudes and to remember that, while the capitalist system is the best system, it is not the only system nor is it permanent but must be fostered by good labor-management relations.

PLANE CRASH VICTIMS STILL IN HOSPITAL

Norman Edwin Threher, 25, from Freeport, Maine, one of the three injured in the plane crash which killed Eugene Gagnon Tuesday, was operated this morning for a fractured leg. His condition was reported as satisfactory by attendants of the St. Vincent de Paul Hospital.

Maurice Frank, 30, Cumberland Maine, another victim and a patient in the same hospital, was reported in a serious condition. He is suffering from injuries to his left side.

Maurice Berube, 29, from Brunswick Maine, the third victim of the crash was reported to be in good condition this morning. He is suffering from a possibly fractured spine and head injuries.

changed for Chilean diplomats in Moscow and Prague.

Chile broke relations with the two powers Tuesday night charging interference in Chile's labor troubles.

VOTE-CATCHING BY MR. BEVIN

Ernest Bevin, the United Kingdom's Foreign Secretary, speaking to his constituents in Southwest London, referred to Britain as a "Social-Democratic" nation standing between the "two mighty conceptions of free enterprise and communism," as represented respectively by the United States and Russia.

Mr. Bevin denied that England was tied to the United States, and affirmed that the country would stand alone. "I don't want to tie up to anybody, either to Moscow on the one side, or Washington on the other." These are strange words to come from Mr. Bevin, and will ring particularly false in Canadian ears.

The United Kingdom has borrowed millions of dollars from the United States, and must still look to this Western ally for further help along the hard road of financial rehabilitation. These remarks illustrate very clearly the difficulties of Mr. Bevin in combining the position of British Foreign Secretary and Socialist politician in the hustings.

As Foreign Minister he would probably be appalled at any weakening of the tie between the Commonwealth and the United States. He certainly realizes as well as any man in England, with the possible exception of Winston Churchill, how the welfare and peace of not only Britain and the Commonwealth, but of the whole free world, depends on the closest possible co-operation between the United States and the United Kingdom . . . and he also knows, realistically, that the leadership in this world partnership must come from the dollar-rich United States.

Yet as Socialist politician in the hustings Mr. Bevin is forced to speak as if British policy regarded the United States and the Soviet Union as equal friends—or opponents—on the world stage. He speaks as if free enterprise and communism were equal evils, with the British-type socialism standing in the middle as the perfect golden mean, and the hope of the world. This is, of course, ridiculous, and designed only to placate those supporters of the British Labor Government who look to Moscow for leadership, and loathe the United States and all it stands for.

It is unfortunate that a man of Mr. Bevin's standing is forced to stoop to these methods in order to defend his political actions to his own constituents. It is even more unfortunate that his words should be spoken just now, and published on the front pages of United States and Canadian papers, when the Marshall Plan to aid Europe is being considered, and will be debated at the next session of Congress.

Those opposed to the plan will certainly use Mr. Bevin's words as an example of the ingratitude of the British for American aid. But, the speech is no such thing. It is merely an example of the fact that even the mightiest Cabinet ministers are forced, from time to time, to kiss babies, and make other concessions to the sensibilities of their supporters.

THE SURPLUS MOUNTS

Each passing month only serves to emphasize the fact that the Canadian Government is taking too much out of the pockets of the taxpayers through taxation. For the first six months of the current fiscal year, the federal treasury reports a surplus of $482,605,520, with every prospect that the billion-dollar mark may be touched before the twelve months period ends.

The figure may even reach a higher total as each succeeding week sees the elimination of some control and the removal of some price subsidy which the Government had been paying out to keep the cost of living at an artificially low figure. The latest bonus to be discontinued is that on feed grains which was designed to stabilize meat prices. In almost every case, the removal of these subsidies has meant an increase in costs to the consumer and a saving to the government. However, the taxpayer, who is almost synonymous with the consumer, has been called upon to pay the higher tax rate which was levied to finance the subsidies, the result being that he was mulcted twice—the first time through higher prices and the second through excessive taxation.

The chief argument used by the government against tax reductions is that they would prove inflationary, giving the people more money to spend with a consequent increased demand for consumer goods. The latter part of the argument is perfectly correct, but the premise is open to question. Rather than proving inflationary, tax reductions, especially in the income and sales taxes, should have the opposite effect.

Workers in all lines of industry are demanding higher wages to meet increased living costs. But these wage increases are to a large measure illusory in that they result in higher production costs and further boosts in the prices to the consumer. Thus the inflationary cycle is started, or accelerated.

A reduction in income tax would put more real money in the hands of the worker without any increase in production costs. The removal of the excess profits tax would tend to lower operating expenditures, permitting a real reduction in consumer prices, while a substantial cut in the sales tax would further speed the decline.

With a surplus accumulating at the rate of almost a billion dollars a year, the government can offer no excuse for delaying taxation cuts, which would give the worker greater incentive to production and provide capital with the opportunity for a reasonable return upon its investment.

THE LATE R. W. S. NUTBROWN

The death of Robert William Simpson Nutbrown removes from the life of the Eastern Townships a man who had made himself known in almost every section of the district. First as a salesman and later as secretary of the Eastern Townships Colonization Society, he came in close contact with great numbers of rural residents who will sincerely miss his periodic visits, whether on business or pleasure.

A great music lover, Mr. Nutbrown did much for the development of music in the smaller towns and villages and for many years acted as choir director for various Eastern Townships churches.

In more recent years he has given loyal and devoted service to the cause of colonization and the success of the Protestant settlement at Lawrence is to a great extent due to the interest which he displayed in its welfare.

BY PETER EDSON
CANDIDATE TAFT'S FOREIGN POLICY

(This is the second of two dispatches analyzing Senator Taft's ideas on domestic and foreign issues which may be factors in the 1948 presidential campaign.)

When it comes to international relations, Sen. Robert A. Taft's ideas can best be summarized in one word, "Vandenberg." For the senator from Ohio has concentrated on domestic issues to such an extent that foreign relations have been left largely to the senator from Michigan, and Taft has taken his ideas.

In the first press conference on his recent Pacific coast tour, Taft admitted, "The whole foreign policy is just in a state of transition and you do not know exactly what the issue may be." Overcoming this uncertainty, Taft did make one major foreign policy speech and he issued several statements on the international situation. Again boiling down all his remarks in an effort to get an accurate line on the man's ideas, this summary index is presented, in direct quotations:

Atlantic Charter—"Beginning a Teheran we gradually abandoned most of the ideas of the Atlantic Charter until today attainment of many of them is impossible. We have won the war, but we have lost the peace."

Bi-partisan foreign policy—"It has covered a very limited field. It has really extended only to Senator Vandenberg's participation in the formulation of the United Nations Charter, in negotiations regarding peace in Europe, and in the regional agreement with South American nations."

Universal military training—"In the end, I think it would encourage war rather than discourage it."

Communism—"I do feel that Russia desires to make communism the accepted form of government throughout the world."

CRITICIZES OUR EUROPEAN POLICY

EUROPE—"The result of our policy has been to destroy the reputation we had acquired in the world for justice and fair dealing. Until this war, the United States was looked upon in Europe as a disinterested party, but today we are regarded as another imperialistic nation acting in our own self-interest. . . . We have failed to keep our promise to many people yearning to be free."

Exports—"We should restrict exports of those products where the supply is short, as in the case of corn, and restrict the total volume of exports more than we do today."

Germany—"There is only one way in which Germany can be effectively controlled. That is to control the production of a limited number of essential products."

International bank—"We hastened into a theoretical plan for an international fund and an international bank costing us $8 billion. It was a complete waste of funds to set it up before we had created a world in which it could effectively operate."

Japan—"We should proceed to make peace as rapidly as possible."

Latin America—"The Inter-American Treaty, credit for which must go to Secretary Marshall and Senator Vandenberg, offers more hope of future peace. It sets an example which ultimately may be extended to the entire world."

SAYS MARSHALL PLAN LOANS WON'T BE REPAYED

MARSHALL PLAN—"We have proposed the so-called Marshall Plan, which is not really a plan at all, but only a combination of suggestions. . . . We cannot afford to go on lending money on a global scale. These loans, in all human probability, will never be repaid."

National defense—"While the Russian attitude is what it is, we had better retain the atomic bomb."

Palestine—"I believe the United Nations special committee majority report (providing for partition of Palestine into a Jewish state and an Arab state) submits a sound compromise of the dangerous controversy."

Russian relations—"Until Senator Vandenberg entered the picture, our attitude toward Russia was one of complete surrender."

United Nations—"I believe our most creditable efforts have been in establishing the United Nations. . . . there we have made a serious attempt to keep our promises. There we have created a forum in which the problems of the world can be brought out in the open, at least, and partially solved. . . . (but) I do not see how we can abandon our own veto powers."

AH, ENTERS THE HERO

Press Comment

Following is a letter sent to British Foreign Minister Ernest Bevin by the political editor of a Dutch newspaper, published at The Hague, capital of Holland. It shows clearly the prevailing Dutch attitude on the Indonesian question, and it becomes increasingly apparent that the Dutch are determined not to yield their claims.

Editor.
The Right Honorable E. Bevin,
Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs
London.

Dear Sir,
We learn from the British press, that a great commotion reigns in your country as a result of the murder by way of reprisal of 2 British sergeants in Palestine. We can understand this and share your grief.

But, Sir, in the Netherlands East Indies, nowadays called Indonesia, hundreds of our countrymen have been killed and massacred. Two million natives died of starvation because of self-styled republic of communists and Japanese collaborators tried to rule the country, but were not able to do so.

We draw your attention to the fact, that, after the armistice with Japan, Britain promised to liberate the prisoners of war and civil internees, disarm and evacuate the Japanese. Notwithstanding however, your Government recognized the republic made by Japan and the Japanese arms were handed over to the natives.

At this moment thousands of our countrymen still suffer in concentration camps and European women are obliged to live as concubines of native soldiers. The result is that, though the republic signed an armistice, not less than 150 Dutch soldiers have been killed by snipers and guerrillas. In the last 2 years not less than 2700 Dutch men, women and children have been butchered in the most awful manner by what sometimes are called extremists, but who are in fact soldiers of the republic.

Java, once called the garden of the east, is now partly in ruins, estates and plantations have been demolished because the communists Government of the Republic initiated the scorched-earth policy. The advance of our troops about which you, your Government and your press are so excited, is intended to restore law and order, which was not done by British troops, though the rapid advance proves quite clearly, that you could have done so without great losses and even more quickly because at that time nothing in way of resistance had been prepared.

The enthusiasm with which the population greets our soldiers as liberators proves quite clearly that the Javanese are grateful that our troops free them from the fearful error under which they had to live in the republic. The majority of the people side with our Government, but you and your Government ignoring true democracy apparently want to continue the undemocratic state of the last two years viz a large majority of millions ruled by a minority of a few thousand communists and pro-Japanese semi-intellectuals. All this immeasurable misery has been brought over this country because the British Government instead of keeping its promises and restoring law and order has encouraged a republic made in Japan.

Our troops found at Tegal, a harbor place in Java, 76 freighters loaded with British arms, recently smuggled into the country, for the benefit of the Republic, but you tell the world that the Dutch may not receive British arms.

You are aware of the fact that the republic though having signed an agreement with our Government has never kept any promise nor lived up to its obligations. You are still boasting about your good services in bringing together my Government and the republican rulers, which in practice has meant a fearful amount of distress for the population. You still condemn the action of our Government to restore at last law and order and freedom from starvation and fear.

Press Comment

Now Sir, in realising this, you will perhaps understand why patriotic Dutchmen feel very sore about this matter which after all has been greatly your doing. What you think, say and write about the Jewish insurgents killing 2 British sergeants we think about the men responsible for the death of 2 million natives, the misery of tens of millions and the death of hundreds of Dutch men, women and children.

We remain Sir, yours truly
J. FABIUS.

THE AMERICAN SCENE

BY ROSCOE DRUMMOND
(Chief of the Washington News Bureau of The Christian Science Monitor)

Los Angeles.
California looks today as though it might be the decisive battleground of the 1948 presidential election.

President Truman cannot afford to lose it, yet right now Democratic prospects are gravely impaired by personal dissension among the state leaders and by the threat that Henry A. Wallace will enter the primary here next year and take the delegation right out from under the President. At the moment, the Wallace movement is quiescent, but it cannot be dismissed.

The Republican Party has not carried this State since 1928. And while the Republicans are in the best position they have ever enjoyed during the intervening nineteen years by virtue of their congressional victories last fall, they cannot by any means take California for granted in '48.

At this writing, the Democrats are looking toward California with considerable dismay and some hope. The Republicans are looking toward California with considerable hope and some dismay.

The Democratic presidential nominee cannot safely lose California, or, in the judgment of most political writers, he faces almost certain national defeat.

The Republican presidential nominee vitally needs to win here, more so than anywhere else. He is unlikely to be able to carry the country.

California determined the national election of 1916, when Wilson so narrowly edged out Hughes, and may play the same role in 1948. The leaders of both parties seem agreed on that and are working accordingly. That is one of the reasons Senator Robert A. Taft has opened his campaign for the nomination here.

That is one of the reasons Gov. Earl Warren looms as a considerable figure and force in GOP national affairs. . . . Policy dissension and personal dissension riddle the Democratic ranks here today, and it is going to be no easy task for Mr. Truman to bring harmony or vigor to the Democratic organization in the State.

criticized the President, played up to Mr. Wallace, backed away from insurgency, and has lately returned docilely to the Truman fold—none of which stirs much confidence or helps to win elections.

Meanwhile, former Democratic Attorney General Robert W. Kenney, flip, ebullient political mischief maker, deserting Mr. Truman entirely, is busy trying to keep his pro-Wallace kite in the air. He assures correspondents almost before he is asked that he is convinced—though you don't have to believe him—that "Wallace will lick Truman in the California primary next June."

He figures that if Mr. Truman loses to Mr. Wallace in the large and strategic State of California, the President cannot win the nomination. He contends that while this might not mean the nomination of Mr. Wallace, it would mean the end of President Truman. He expects Mr. Wallace to stump the State a month before the primary. Mr. Wallace is mum.

Wallace activities here are not visible to the naked eye right now, but they are destined to have a nuisance value, and the nuisance, large or small, will be no help to Mr. Truman.

But neither is everything rosy for California Republicans. The State has given its twenty-five electoral votes to the Democratic ticket by substantial margins for four consecutive national elections. Despite the large Republican congressional gains last fall, new registration continues to be about 60 per cent Democratic. The local political correspondents already see at least four of the newly elected GOP congressmen facing hard, doubtful contests in normally Democratic districts next year.

California voters wear their party labels lightly. The mood of the State and the voting in the State are consistently progressive. Anything less than a progressive Republican presidential nominee will have hard going.

California has determined one presidential election and can determine another.

MICMAC REPORTS SHOULD BE MADE PUBLIC

Montreal Gazette
Almost exactly three months ago all Canada was shocked at the dreadful tragedy that occurred when H.M.C.S. Micmac collided with a freighter off the Halifax coast. It was one of the Royal Canadian Navy's greatest peace-time disasters. The unfortunate loss of life alone made valid the instantaneous public demand for searching investigation.

The tragic accident was followed by a naval Court of Inquiry, privately conducted, which completed its findings late in July but issued no public report; the Department of Transport instituted a civilian investigation (described as "preliminary"), and finally, Mr. Justice Carroll, the Nova Scotia Admiralty judge, was commissioned to conduct a formal inquiry in public.

Evidence such as was reported in the press was necessarily haphazard and incomplete giving rise to bitter rumors by conflict in expert opinion and in recollection of fact. Since the middle of August, however, no further light has been thrown on the disaster. No full report of findings has been issued; no official explanation offered that either condones or explains the tragedy.

It is to be hoped that the Government does not consider that the public's notoriously bad memory will permit it to escape accounting for its stewardship. For that is an inadmissible view. It is the duty of the Government to inform the people of this Dominion fully on why the Micmac met its fate and how.

It is generally understood that the report has been delayed to allow for legal processes arising from civil claims against the Crown in connection with the accident. But the full official report is necessary evidence at any such

MCKENNEY ON BRIDGE

By Wm. E. McKenney, America's Card Authority

STRATEGY DIFFERENT IN RUBBER, TOURNAY

Is a good tournament player always a good rubber bridge player, and vice versa? The answer is no, because in rubber bridge it pays to stretch a little, and in tournament bridge it is necessary to bid accurately.

The bonus for making game at rubber bridge is big, while there is not much loss for going down one. When a tournament player sits in a rubber game, he is apt to double too quickly, become just a little bit greedy, and he probably will play contracts at no trump that should be played at a suit contract in rubber bridge.

Recently I saw a match between two fine tournament players, in which today's hand brought out my point. When North doubled, South bid two spades to show that he had almost an opening bid. North correctly showed his diamond suit, but when South bid three spades, North thought it would probably be easier to take ten tricks with the combined hands rather than eleven—so he bid four spades.

West then made a typical tournament error. He doubled. North promptly ran out to five diamonds. East doubled this, more or less in disgust rather than on merit.

It is true that West had made an original bid, and East held four trumps, but there was no way to defeat the contract. With the heart opening, North could lose only a diamond and a heart.

Repatriation Of Russians

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

This column has encountered—and solved, we hope—an intriguing Communist mystery which first gave a glimpse of itself several months ago and since then has kept popping up piecemeal in unrelated parts of the world, like a colony of Prairie dogs.

Not to make too much mystery out of this development for our readers, it has to do with an intensive campaign to repatriate all Russians in foreign countries. Moscow never announced it as a campaign and it was only after these repatriations had been noted in numerous widely-separated areas that observers decided something unusual was afoot.

Thus far parties of Russians have returned to the homeland from Canada, the United States, South America, China, France, Ethiopia, the Middle East and quite likely from other countries. The total repatriated runs into many thousands. Some 11,000 are said to have returned to Russia, or to be returning, from France alone.

Whole families are being taken, with all their movable belongings. In fact these people are being urged to carry back all they can, especially tools and surgical instruments. The Soviet Government foots the bill for everything, and promises homes and jobs in Russia. Of course it is required that those repatriated renounce citizenship in their adopted countries. Yugoslavia also has been carrying out a similar program.

Some of those being repatriated haven't set foot on Russian soil since Czarist days. Some of them were born abroad and so are making a voyage into the unknown. Indeed, it must be a daring adventure for all of them.

And why this attempt at wholesale repatriation? Well, your correspondent went to a good quarter which makes a business of solving mysteries, and the chief answer is that Russia is in great need of manpower and is anxious to get any and all of its people back home. The shortage of workers is understood to be serious, owing to the terrific losses sustained in the war.

Apart from this main issue, Moscow is said to want to get back the Russians who were displaced from their native soil during the ebb and flow of war. Many of these people are White Russians, and the government doesn't want them abroad, because there's a danger that they will talk about things which the Soviet Government wishes to keep dark.

The desire for manpower to rehabilitate Russian industry would be understandable under any circumstance. That calls for no explanation. However, we certainly should be slow-witted indeed if we didn't recognize that one reason the Bolsheviks want to acquire industrial strength as quickly as possible is because of the requirements of their world revolution for the spread of Communism.

You will recall that Gen. Zhdanov, one of the top Bolsheviks, recently told the Soviet bloc conference in Poland that "the U.S.S.R. will put all effort in seeing that the Marshall plan is not realized." The Marshall project is based on the economic rehabilitation of Western Europe, and the weapons for this battle between the Democracies and the Bolsheviks will be economic resources. Russia hasn't those resources now, and so is going after them.

Then, taking the long range view, it clearly is the intention of all the powers to keep a loaded rifle hanging on the wall—just in case.

How much success the repatriation program has achieved thus far isn't clear. Close observers say it started off well but later slumped. One interesting sidelight is that Moscow is particularly anxious to get Armenians to return home because many of them are skilled craftsmen.

Canadian Proposal Before Noted Prince U.N. Political Committee Of Church Is Dead At 77

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press Staff Writer
Lake Success, Oct. 24.—(P)—The Soviet-initiated "war-mongering" debate in the United Nations, which has rapidly produced a series of vituperative counter-accusations against the Russians, entered its third day today with a new Canadian compromise proposal before the political committee.

The proposal was advanced yesterday afternoon by Justice Minister Lile, as a substitute to the Soviet resolution which the Dominion, along with the United States and numerous other western countries, rejects as unacceptable.

The Canadian resolution simply calls on the United Nations to condemn all propaganda inciting to aggressive war or civil strife, which might lead to war and urge members to promote by publicity and propaganda friendly relations among nations.

The Canadians coined the word "peace-mongering" to describe their resolution. As Lile said, it is a straightforward, non-controversial proposal but it is one which a good many delegates believe may lead the committee out of the woods in which it has been thrashing about in this name-calling bee.

While the Canadian delegation declares itself as opposed to any form of "war-mongering" it finds it impossible to accept the Soviet resolution because it calls for a member government to prohibit, "on pain of criminal penalties," the carrying on of war propaganda.

"This proposal apparently means that governments should take it upon themselves to determine whether certain statements of their citizens, and mainly statements of their citizens, are deemed to be war propaganda and should see to it that criminal penalties should be imposed on those who make such statements," said Lile.

"I must say that the assumption of exercise of any such authority by the government would be out of the question in a country such as ours where liberty of press and freedom of speech have been, and continue to be, regarded as fundamental freedoms."

As far as the Canadians are concerned that is the crux of the whole dispute over the Soviet resolution and the United States' rejection of it. Speaking for the United States, Warren R. Austin said that liberty carried with it the necessity of restraint, but he insisted that it must develop from within and "cannot be imposed by governmental fiat or decree."

"You cannot afford to take the chance of passing this Russian resolution, even though you face the whole world under a consequent charge that you voted against a declaration against war-mongering."

"Here is one of the places where men will have to stand and fight for their liberties because we are the greatest of them all—that principle of free communication which is absolutely essential to

"They not only held it, but they reopened the road—the only road to Ellsworth."

Daniel McCloy, Bangor waterworks superintendent, who was on the island, told how bulldozers cleared a path for the first convoy of refugees.

Huge boulders had toppled into the road from the tops of cliffs lined with flaming trees, and the bulldozers had to punch the rocks aside.

Bar Harbor, thus far, is the hardest hit of scores of New England communities visited by forest fires in the last four days, in this 24th day of drought.

Special Congress

He later referred to this as the "crisis in Western Europe."

His designation of Nov. 17 as the date for Congress to meet came as a surprise to the capital, which had thought in terms of a special session in December if there was to be one at all.

But Truman said the need was urgent for legislative action on high prices, foreign aid and consideration of the Marshall program to help European countries help themselves toward recovery.

free government and to the liberty of man."

It was undecided whether Canada would enter the controversial debate until Lile arrived in New York yesterday from Ottawa.

He went over the speech which has been carefully prepared by practically the whole delegation, made only a few changes and then came out to Lake Success and delivered it.

He threw the Soviet charges of "war-mongering" right back at Moscow, declaring that the Russians themselves were guilty of this offence.

He bluntly told the 57-country committee that Russia was "war-mongering" by building up enmity towards Canada in the minds of the Russian people through its press and radio distortions of Canadian situations.

The Justice Minister then backed up his contention by citing three specific cases of flagrant disregard for the truth in Russian reports of Canadian events.

The New York Times, in an editorial today, while not mentioning the Canadian speech, takes practically the same line.

The paper says that "war-mongering" on the part of private citizens in the United States these last two years "does not even begin to match either in yardage or bitterness the 'war-mongering' of the official government-controlled and government-directed Russian press."

Lile himself referred directly to the Russian press saying "It seems a pity indeed that the Soviet delegation which has asked governments to undertake this serious responsibility, has not on its own record shown itself to feel under any obligation to exercise restraint in its press and radio comment in its own country."

"This is all the more strange because as we understand it the press of the Soviet Union exercises its functions with a special sense of responsibility to the government."

"And yet we hear every day hostile expressions of opinion which are not calculated to develop friendly relations among nations."

Ontario Body To Get Civil Rights Bill

Would Ban Discrimination on Grounds of Race or Creed in Employment and Education.

Toronto, Oct. 24.—(P)—A civil rights bill banning discrimination from employment or educational opportunities on grounds of race or creed is scheduled for introduction today in the Ontario legislature.

Now in the third day of its resumed session, the legislature yesterday killed two non-government labor bills and refused a third sufficient support to put it to a vote.

On hand for early consideration are the government's proposed amendments to the Milk Control Act, a new Securities Act and a bill providing for establishment of a broken-dealers association for securities holders.

The proposed Civil Rights Bill, sponsored by the C.C.F. party, among other things would prohibit hotels and theatres from refusing to admit any person by reason of race or religion and would make it an offence punishable by fine for an educational institute to draw the color bar against anyone seeking admission.

The bill, proposed as the Ontario Bill of Rights Act, 1947, would supersede the Racial Discrimination Act, 1944, which it would repeal. The new bill makes provision for injunctions to restrain persons who deprive or try to deprive anyone of privileges provided for by the act.

A minimum wages bill voted down 44 to 15 yesterday would have established a minimum wage of 65 cents an hour. The vote on the bill, sponsored by the Labor-Progressive party, came after Labor Minister Daley said he did not think a minimum wage advisable at this time as it would establish a floor but not necessarily a fair wage.

If the bill went through some employers required to pay the 65 cents might consider that in meeting the law they were paying a fair wage. On the other hand, by setting the 65-cent rate, the legislature might work hardship on persons who earned part of the income by odd jobs and on farmers and small town business men, some of whom could not afford to pay youths that much for casual work.

A C.C.F. bill introduced for second reading by R. H. Carlin of Sudbury proposed to give all workers two weeks' vacation with pay. The measure went down 59 to 11.

A Bill by J. B. Salsberg (L.P.P.-Toronto St. Andrew) to make a 40-hour week mandatory was rejected without a recorded vote. Mr. Salsberg had argued that cutting down working hours would give the worker more leisure, improve his health and provide for more jobs.

ly ran back and reloaded the gun.

She said she then called her husband by his name and after he got up, she said "look" and pulled the trigger. She continued: "He turned and faced the window, bent over. Then he screamed and I ran out of the house."

She said she got almost to the gate when she sensed he wasn't following her, and knowing she had wounded him in the chest, she guessed he might be dead.

Carlo Cardinal Salotti, Prefect of Congregation of Rites, Gravely Ill for Some Time.

Rome, Oct. 24.—(P)—Carlo Cardinal Salotti, 77, prefect of the Congregation of Rites, died today.

He had been gravely ill for some time and received the last sacraments and a special blessing from Pope Pius last Saturday. He had been a Prince of the Church since 1935.

His death deduces the College of Cardinals to 62 members.

Cardinal Salotti, regarded as one of the most brilliant princes of the Roman Catholic Church, bore at one time one of its strangest titles—the Devil's Advocate.

The curious designation was his by virtue of the office of Promoter of the Faith, which he once occupied. As such he had the duty of presenting before the congregation of rites every conceivable argument against a contemplated canonization to assure that no unworthy candidate be enrolled in the calendar of the saints.

He had equal claim to the title of "Saint Maker," having occupied also during his 30 years of service with the congregation the office of Advocate of the Saints and Consistorial Advocate. As such, he promoted more than 100 causes for canonization, including that of Joan of Arc in 1920.

His colleagues described him as possessing one of the ablest intellects in the Catholic hierarchy. He was reputed for his ability to turn a happy or incisive phrase. He held degrees in both canon and civil law, theology and literature.

As a student priest, Salotti attracted attention for his outspoken defence of the church during a period of anti-clericalism. On one occasion, he challenged one of his professor's statements and then strode from the classroom. The same professor later asked to conduct Salotti's examination for his degree and subjected the young priest to a two-hour grilling. Not only did the professor recommend him for a degree; he complimented him on his fine intellect.

ating Guild policy.

Another former Actors' Guild president, respected 36-year-old George Murphy, actor and dancer, followed Mr. Montgomery. Mr. Murphy echoed the views of his colleagues that there was "constant irritation" from a small group, described the difficulty of holding members, who have to arise at dawn, at Guild meetings and maintained there were in Hollywood "an awful lot of good honest liberal people who are being used" by the Communist fragment,

"Who, Bing Crosby?" he was asked.

"No, God," replied the director.

Employment

Ontario and Quebec showed equal increases or roughly 35,000 while there was a gain of 13,000 in the Maritimes and no change in British Columbia.

Employment in industries except agriculture increased by about 30,000 between the end of May and the middle of August. A drop in non-agricultural employment of about 10,000 in Quebec and the Prairies was outweighed by gains of about 25,000 in both Ontario and B.C. and about 10,000 in the Maritimes.

Unemployment continued to decrease in all regions, though the downward movement in the Prairies and B.C. was small. Of the total unemployed, 13,000 were women, representing a small fall in the number of women employed in May, 1947.

The Bureau said that the continuing decline of female employment "is one of the most striking developments in the Canadian labor market since 1945" and there is a growing number of women employed in housekeeping, indicating a tendency for women to withdraw from the labor market.

The most striking change in the composition of the group not included in the labor force between the end of May and the middle of August "is the expected drop in the number of persons going to school and the corresponding increase in the 'voluntarily idle'."

At Aug. 16 the permanently unable or too old to work group totalled 292,000 compared with 279,000 at May 31; the keeping house group 2,869,000 compared with 2,822,000; going to school 19,000 compared with 600,000; retired or voluntarily idle 701,000 compared with 300,000 and others 9,000 compared with 17,000.

The Bureau pointed out however, that estimates obtained from labor force surveys are subject to sampling error and the "sampling error associated with any estimate of less than 25,000 may be large and the figures should be used with these reservations in mind."

"less than one per cent."

Leo McCarey, veteran screen director, responsible for such hits as Going My Way and the Bells of St. Mary's, remarked that they had not brought in "one rouble from Russia" because "I think we have a character in them that they don't like."

"Who, Bing Crosby?" he was asked.

"No, God," replied the director.

by forest rangers who telephoned the company. A body of men was sent out at 6 a.m. yesterday and another large group followed them when the high winds threatened to spread the fire over a larger area. The flames were brought under control early today.

At the Chagnon Mountains fire, tractors and bulldozers were effectively used as firefighting equipment when fire-fighters threatened to destroy the homes of farmers in the vicinity.

The blaze was spotted yesterday morning and it is believed that sparks from a brush fire, started by farmers Wednesday night, ignited the trees on the mountain range.

Flames, fanned by a strong wind, spread rapidly and fearful farmers brought out tractors and bulldozers and 20 men to cut the heart out of the fire.

The machines uprooted burning trees and dug trenches to prevent flames spreading to the whole mountain range. The blaze is under control on the highly inflammable timberland.

At Bromes, a fire broke out at what is known as the "Last Nation" and more than 100 men were thrown into the fight Tuesday.

The flames moved rapidly through dry grass and the woods, starting two separate fires, one on the 600 acres owned by Russell Call, and the other on 60 acres owned by Stanley Ball.

Meanwhile, a fire which has been raging on the 60 acres of Bob Evans for more than a week is thought to be dying out.

During the past week-end, 100 firefighters were fighting the flames and were aided by a steady rainfall which lasted throughout Sunday.

The flames broke out again Tuesday, sweeping across grass and woods in the direction of the 30,000 acre lot of the Singer Manufacturing Company, of St. Johns, Que., and threatened to pour into the large area. The best efforts of 100 fire-fighters sent out by the company, have been needed to keep the flames from reaching unchecked and spreading to an adjoining property.

Also Philip, manager of the Canada Paper Company, said the firefighters at their blaze "were darn lucky" to beat the flames. He deplored the careless actions of persons in the woods, especially at this time when the woods and forests are bare dry and would go up in a flash if fire took hold.

He complimented the Record on its editorial on "Care in the Forests" in Thursday's edition and added: "I am glad to see the Record take the lead in this important matter."

The Doctor Says

WHO SHOULD TAKE "FLU" SHOTS?

By William A. O'Brien, M.D.

Influenza vaccination does not protect against the common cold or other respiratory infections. Most persons who are vaccinated with such vaccine do not contract influenza if exposed in the next few months.

Protection against influenza develops about two weeks after inoculation. Immunity goes down to about two-thirds strength in the next four to five months and to about half strength in a year. In some persons the loss of protection occurs more rapidly. Because of the relatively short immunity which it affords, health authorities recommend its use just before a probable outbreak of the disease.

An epidemic of influenza was prophesied last fall and winter on the basis of certain studies. Health authorities did not agree on the forecast. Most did not believe that an epidemic would develop, and they were right. There was a mild outbreak this spring which suggests that we might have some influenza this fall and winter. So if vaccinations are to be done, this is the time to do it.

General use of vaccination against influenza is not necessary. Some older individuals, those who are not well, key persons in important positions, and university or boarding school students might take the vaccine. Even though the influenza rate in young children is high, it is not a serious infection and if proper care and facilities are available, vaccination could be omitted.

When should vaccination be done? Health authorities could wait until the appearance of an epidemic in another section of the country. Disease takes about two months to spread from coast to coast. This would give them time to vaccinate when it would do the most good.

Flu Symptoms
Influenza is a specific highly contagious infection of the respiratory tract. It has a sudden onset, and the patient complains of fever, chilliness, sore throat, cough and weakness. The disease spreads in epidemic waves.

Other infections which occur between influenza outbreaks are not "flu." They are due to other viruses for which influenza vaccination is not effective. Intestinal "flu" is not influenza, as the influenza virus only attacks the respiratory passages.

Q—What is the cause of cramps in my legs which come on after I go to bed?

Impressive Thanksgiving Service Presented In St. Andrew's Church

St. Andrew's Church, Oct. 24.—Conducted by Mr. A. E. King, student minister, St. Andrew's United Church, a very impressive service was held on Thanksgiving Sunday when the dedication of a memorial plaque to the boys of the congregation, who had given their lives for their country, took place. The service opened with the hymn, "O God Our Help, In Ages Past," followed by the reading of Ecclesiastes XLIV, in unison. The beautiful bronze memorial plaque, covered with the flag, was unveiled by Mr. Angus MacLennan, who read the inscription, "Seeking nothing, giving all, answering to honor's call," and the following names: Thorstein Helgesen, Lorne Macdonald, C. Grant MacLennan, R. Leslie Scott, Grant Scott and Rene Brandt. The congregation, standing, observed a moment of reverent silence and the hymn, "Let Us Forget," was sung. The text, "Except a seed fall into the ground and die, it standeth alone but, if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit," prefaced the address, which follows in parts: "Thanksgiving Sunday brings a remembrance of those who gave their lives, that others might live. They have become forever a part of the glorious tradition that thrills the hearts of others. They died a death of heroism and sacrifice that those who live after them may be inspired to make a greater contribution towards the establishment of a greater understanding, co-operation to restore our world, concentrating the energy used in war to develop wider interests and spiritual ends, handing on to others the blazing torch, that they will have left behind." The speaker closed with the poem, "They Shall Not Grow Old," followed by the hymn, "Rise Up, O Men Of God." Resident relatives present at the service, were Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacLennan, Mrs. W. K. Gordon, Mrs. Dewar Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Scott, Mrs. R. A. Scott and Mrs. S. J. Scott; relatives from out of town, Mrs. John Macdonald, of London, Ont.; Mrs. N. G. C. Taylor, of Drummondville; Mr. John Sherman, and Mr. John M. S. McAulay, of Manchester, N. H. The church was appropriately decorated with large baskets of mauve asters.

General Notes
The theme of the Rally Day service, in St. Andrew's Sunday School was "Crusading In Our Sunday School," and a soft music was rendered by the organist, Miss Lois MacKenzie, as a prelude to the program. The call to worship, given by the superintendent, Mrs. J. D. Cox, was followed by the hymn, "O Worship the King," and the invocation and responsive prayer were led by the superintendent. The hymn, "Praise Him," followed the story, "The Church of the Friendly Henry," narrated by Mr. A. A. MacKenzie. The offering, received by Wayne Mac-

Aulay and Gerald Ladd, was devoted towards a new boat for the Pacific Coast Mission Work and to provide Christian Education in churches, homes, and schools, throughout Canada, Newfoundland, Bermuda, and in Overseas Missions. The hymn, "This Little Light of Mine," was sung by the Beginners and Nursery classes, and a dramatized conversation, on "The crusade in our Sunday School," was opened with a scripture reading, from Luke VI, by Alan Woodside, others participating were Mr. and Mrs. A. A. MacKenzie, Lois and Alan MacKenzie, Bobby and Mary Lou Ladd. The Litany of Dedication was conducted by Mr. A. E. King, and the hymn, "Now in the Days of Youth," closed the program.

Doherty, and was directed by the president, Mrs. Roy Desraisseau, who opened the meeting with the devotional period, which was followed by a business session, which was featured with the formulation of plans for a Christmas sale, to be held in the church hall, the last week in November, and it was agreed that no tea would be held, a food sale is to be held instead, as well as a sale of fancy and useful articles, with the addition of a donation table. It was announced that the next meeting would be entertained by Mrs. Harvey Parsons. The hostess was assisted at the tea hour by Mrs. G. McLaughlin.

MODERN MARRIAGE

THE "MASCULINE PROTEST"

Dr. Paul Popenoe

The girl who regrets that she is a girl is likely to become a woman who regrets that she is a woman.

Mrs. G. is one of that large group. She isn't happy as a wife, isn't happy as a mother, isn't happy as a woman. She has enough insight to recognize the cause.

"My own mother is to blame," she declares. "She was a fine woman in almost every way, and I know she didn't intend to make me hate my sex, but she succeeded, nonetheless."

As far back as she can remember, Mrs. G. can still hear her mother calling out, "Come down out of that tree, Marjorie May. Don't you know that little girls can't climb trees?"

Or "Of course you can't go down to watch the circus come in, Marjorie May. What do you think you are—a boy?"

Or "Now, Marjorie May, I simply won't discuss it any longer. Of course boys wear such things—but girls don't."

Or "Of course you'd like to go, Marjorie, but who's going to fix the salad for dinner? You know your brother is bringing home two of his friends."

After 20 years of such unpleasant reminders that this is a man's world; that the boys have all the fun; that it is a great misfortune to be born a girl—is it any wonder that Marjorie May grew up with a deep and bitter resentment against the fate that made her a female?

This feeling, which Alfred Adler called the "masculine protest," lends some girls not to marry, others to be unhappy in marriage. It produces sexual frigidity. It produces a woman who is critical of everything, always finding fault with the world—because it's a man's world!

We were able to re-educate Marjorie May, but we would have had a lot less trouble if her mother had handled her more intelligently. As Professor Lynn T. White, Jr., of Mills College (the principal college for women on the Pacific Coast) put it, "We shall continue to have a high divorce rate until we can create a civilization in which women are as glad to be women as men are glad to be men."

Questions and Answers

Q—How long should you go steady before marrying?

A—The most successful marriages seem to be those in which the couple have known each other for at least a year or two before becoming engaged (they may not have gone steady all that time) and then have at least six months or a year of engagement before the wedding.

Q—Wouldn't there be more children born if the price of medical and hospital care at confinement of the mother was not so high?

A—It's very likely. The province of Saskatchewan now offers free hospital service to all residents (covered by a tax of $5 per

MANY ATTEND CHURCH RALLY DAY SERVICE

Ayer's Cliff, Oct. 24.—The annual Rally Day service for the United Church Sunday School was held in Beulah United Church, when the prepared program was followed. The superintendent, Mr. A. H. Slack conducted the service.

Mrs. Winston Keeler acted as organist, and Mrs. Nelson Pierce conducted the singing. The theme for the service was "Crusading in our Church School."

The second hymn in the order of service "Praise Him Praise Him" was sung by the Kindergarten, Beginners, and Primary classes. The story "The Church of the Friendly Heart" was told by Miss Letta Dustin. Mr. Slack in his remarks regarding the work of the Sunday school referred to the increase in the cost of the supplies, that is the lesson books and papers. He gave the attendance, report stating that Gordon, and Howard Thompson each had a perfect two years attendance, while Lorna Dustin and Kathleen Kezar, had a perfect one year's record. Rev. T. W. Tyson led in prayer and following that made a statement about the collection, which was in aid of the Sunday School, and the religious scheme. The offering was taken up by Royce Martin and Robert McElarg, and the dedication was sung by the Sunday School.

Miss Edith Walker read the scripture lesson, and a very impressive address was given by Rev. Tyson, who spoke to the children about, when they were very small, when their mothers held them in their arms. "Suffer Little Children To Come Unto Me." Then speaking to their parents he emphasized their responsibility as parents in the "Crusade in our Church School."

THE W.C.T.U.
The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Temperance Union met at the home of Mrs. E. E. Temple, with a small attendance. The president was in the chair, and opened the meeting with scripture and prayer. The minutes were read and approved, as was the treasurer's report.

It was voted to send money to Almyer's, of Hamilton, Ont., to send an assorted box of their products overseas to a given address. After all business was transacted, Mrs. A. J. Macintosh, of Lennoxville, a member of this union, and our official delegate, brought us an excellent report of the Provincial W.C.T.U. Convention, which took place in Trinity Church, Sherbrooke.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Macintosh for this report, which was most interesting and very ably presented. The meeting closed with the "Mizpah Benediction."

THE SENIOR W. A.
The Senior Women's Association met at the "Parsonage," with Mrs. Tyson, and Mrs. James Robinson, the joint hostesses. The meeting opened in the usual manner. Definite plans were made for the Christmas sale and tea, when it was decided to hold it on the third Friday in November.

Regret was expressed over the illness of Mrs. Homer J. Drew, one of the members of this Association, who is a patient in the Royal Victoria Hospital, in Montreal, and it was voiced by all that a card of sympathy be sent to her with each member present signing it.

Print was given out for the making of aprons for the sale. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses and a delightful social hour was spent.

The new fire engine was in service on Saturday morning for the first time since its purchase. For a few days the woods on the south west side of town had been showing hazy appearance and on Friday afternoon, Mr. Lyle Thompson, and Mr. Moise Beaudoin decided that an investigation should be made to determine if this hazy was smoke, and upon approaching the wood lot owned by Mr. M. E. Leavitt, who is away in Hamilton, Ont., it was found that over a surface of between an acre and a half, the earth was smouldering. These men realizing the danger that could be caused by a few minutes wind went into action and thinking that the fire could be buried got a man to go in and he found that it was burning the ground to a depth of sixteen or eighteen inches. There, therefore they made the decision that nothing but the fire engine would save the situation.

DRUMVILLE BUILDING WILL BE AN ASSET

Drummondville, Oct. 24.—The Memorial Building is now rounding into shape. The foundation is completed and the building purchased at Bagotville, is now being erected. The interior work will be commenced shortly and the date of the official opening will be announced later.

The building committee thinks this is an opportune time to make a progress report through the press for the benefit of those who have made financially possible, the accomplishment of the project.

The plan calls for a hall 120 feet in length by 40 feet wide with a basement under part of the hall. This hall will have a stage and will seat about 500 persons.

The committee is pleased to report that it has obtained a very fine billiard table and has commenced to build up a library with a contribution of some four hundred volumes.

The committee wishes to impress on the public that this building will be a great asset to the community at large. The hall will be available for many functions such as lectures, meetings, dances and conventions, etc., and it intends to have various activities, where the public will be admitted. Strict supervision will be maintained at all times to ensure that the behaviour and general conduct of members and guests will be irreproachable.

The finance committee and all the members of the Canadian Legion are thankful for the generous response to their appeal for funds up to the present.

Everyone who contributed in one way or another to the realization of this project can be proud, as Drummondville is one of the few towns of its size that has been able to erect such a building as a memorial to its veterans. It is tangible proof of the co-operation that exists amongst the people of this community.

The committee wishes to inform the public that it is still short of funds to make up the total amount to complete the building. It hopes that you will as usual give your support at the annual fair, that will be held in the near future in the Memorial Hall. Your patronage will not only be a pleasure to you but a contribution to the hall.

The committee would appreciate further voluntary contributions that friends might wish to donate. Donations should be addressed to the Canadian Legion, Branch 51.

Athletics Hook Up With Eastward In Crucial Tilt; Bishop's, Gunning For Initial Victory, Meet Loyola

Football fans in the district will have to take a holiday this week as both Bishop's and the Athletics are playing out of town.

The Athletics travel to Montreal to tackle the Eastward aggregation in a regular Q.R.F.U. intermediate tilt tomorrow, while Bishop's also travel to the metropolis to hook up with Loyola in a regular intercollegiate fixture. Loyola is undefeated to date.

To date the Bishop's crew have been on the wrong side of the score sheet, but Chester Sobolewski expects his injury-riddled griders to cop the tilt. Those on the injury list are Bill Price, starry quarterback, Sutherland, Harrington and Williams all capable backfielders. Tony Lee, a rugged line-man, is also on the injury list.

The Bishop's starting lineup may look something like this: Snap, Stoker; inside, Vass and McMaster; middle, Wood and Blevins; ends, McFarlane and Turpin; quarter, Day; halves, Williams, Waldman, Wright and Andrews.

On Wednesday night the Sherbrooke Athletics and Bishop's held a scrimmage at the ball park and both coaches seemed satisfied with their charges.

In the scrimmage, Irwin Waldman, small in stature but a capable little halfback, turned in a

LARGE CROWDS PAY TO SEE JACK ROBINSON

New York, Oct. 24.—(P)—The five-week theatre tour in which Jackie Robinson is currently drawing "record crowds," is expected to gross $50,000 for Brooklyn Dodgers' negro first baseman.

Robinson completed a week's run at Harlem's Apollo Theatre last night and he starts a week's work in Washington today. He already has appeared in Detroit and will also be seen in Chicago and Los Angeles.

He does five seven-minute shows a day in which he gives a resume of his athletic career and answers fans' questions.

Dec. 1 he begins work in Hollywood on a film tentatively titled "Brooklyn, U.S.A." for which he has a flat guarantee of $50,000 plus a percentage.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 24.—(P)—Tom Lockhart, who claims hockey is "the international sport," really has an international team in this year's New York Rovers. The squad includes two boys born in the United States, Ben Swarthout of Evelev, Minn., and Angus McKay of Detroit; Gerard Claude, a French-Canadian from Valleyfield, Que., who only knows a few words of English; Bill Gikas, of Greek descent, and Larry Kwong, Chinese.

Tommy Timlin, the pro football referee, proclaims: "The officials never commit the fouls. They just call them."

Virginia Helis, daughter of oil magnate W. G. Helis, takes more than a lukewarm interest in her father's horses. . . . When the track handicapper at Belmont assigned 125 pounds to Miss Kimo, one of the stars of the Helis stable, Virginia took it as a personal affront. . . . she refused to go to the track, wouldn't listen to the race on the radio and wouldn't talk to friends about it. . . . so, inevitably, Miss Kimo rolled home in frot, enriching the Helis family by $12,450.

Cold War
International idealogies tangled in a turf setting, incidentally, when Russian Valor won the last race at Jamaica Park Tuesday. . . . unable to use the Veto, the Jamaica stewards did the next best thing and disqualified the horse.

Cleaning The Cuff

Harry Markson, the crumbstealer, is preparing some fancy, formal announcements that the Messrs. Francis Albertanti and Harry Mendel will be associated with him in handling press relations for the Joe Louis-Jesse-Joe Walcott heavyweight title fight. . . . that's just an indication that the book-making trade isn't dead as it has seemed all summer—nor quite as lively as Harry would like. . . . if business was good, there wouldn't be any need for such stunts. . . . Walcott, about whom you'll hear plenty in the next month or so, is about to set up a training camp at Greentown, N.J., that's on the Black Horse Pike—in case you're interested in hunches about dark horses. . . . Louis, now on an exhibition tour, will check in at Pompton Lakes, N.J., Nov. 1 and start boxing four days later.

Q.A.H.A. Registration Group Gives Approval For Paul Leclerc; Dube's Case Will Be Discussed Tomorrow

The Quebec Amateur Hockey Association has approved the transfer of Paul Leclerc, formerly of Lachine, to the Sherbrooke St. Francis Hockey Club, stated Ivan Dugre, coach of the local club, this morning.

Coach Dugre was notified late last night by Eugene Lalonde, local vice-president of the Q.A.H.A., that the registration board of the Q.A.H.A. had, after studying the pros and cons, approved the transfer of Paul Leclerc, who played last season for Lachine, to the local club.

At the meeting held Saturday, in Montreal, Lachine had refused to sign the transfer of Leclerc unless Sherbrooke paid the sum of $500, which they claimed as their share of money invested in Leclerc. But the board, under the chairmanship of Frank Dilio, after making a thorough investigation

British Ryder Cup Team Leaves For Portland Ore., For Match With U.S.

New York, Oct. 24.—(P)—Dapper and chipper and bubbling over with friendliness, the British Ryder Cup team paused here overnight before leaving by rail today for Portland, Ore., for the match Nov. 1 and 2 with the American pro golf stars.

Notably absent was any trace of defeatism. In fact, the Britons fairly oozed a quiet confidence and their captain, Henry Cotton, said emphatically it was "the best cup I've ever played on."

"I've brought a team of wonderful fellows," said the British ace. "It's not a young team, as the youngest player is 31 and the average age is 36.5, but in spite of the seven terrible war years we don't want to offer any excuses. We want to win, and hope to make a good showing."

Cotton, who was spokesman for the group at a press conference after the players' arrival on the Queen Mary yesterday, said he did not think the larger American ball players in the match will affect the play of his squad.

"It's not the big ball but the small cup that we're worried about," he said, pointing out the Britons had done very well in practicing with the larger ball recently.

"It is the first time seven of our players have been to this country," he continued, "and it is a thrilling experience for all of us. I know I have been put down as a

CLARKE STARS AS S.H.S. BOW 16-5 TO L.H.S.

Paced by Charlie Clarke, Lennoxville High School griders downed Sherbrooke High School 16-5, in a regular school tilt in Lennoxville.

Young Charlie Clarke, the sensational find of the Sherbrooke Athletics, ran riot and completely outclassed his opponents. He was, however, the only Lennoxville threat.

In the first half, Clarke hit pay-off dirt on a power play from the 10 yard line. He also kicked the convert. Sherbrooke picked up five points in the first canto as Richard Yorke recovered a Lennoxville fumble and ran 15 yards for a major.

In the second frame Sherbrooke kicked, and Clarke ran the leather 60 yards for a five-pointer. In the dying minutes of the game the visiting Sherbrooke team crossed the visitors' line for another major to end the scoring. Final score, Lennoxville 16, Sherbrooke 5.

Holdout Roy Conacher Traded To Rangers By League-Leading Wings

Detroit Red Wings and New York Rangers stacked up today as the two "trading" teams in the National Hockey League.

They achieved this status yesterday when it was disclosed that the league-leading Wings had traded holdout Roy Conacher to the Rangers for Eddie Slowinski and an amateur, unnamed as yet, who will be delivered at the end of the season.

It was the second deal of the season for each club. The Wings previously had traded Billy Taylor to Boston Bruins for Dep Guidolin while Rangers had obtained Frankie Eddolls and Buddy O'Connor from Montreal Canadiens for Hal Laycoe, Joe Bell and George Robertson.

Conacher, who scored 30 goals and helped in 24 others last season, was reported to have come to terms with the Detroit organization shortly before the trade was announced. Coach Frankie Boucher of Rangers said he did not expect to have any difficulty in getting the sharp-shooting winger to sign a Rangers' contract.

General Manager Jack Adams of the Wings said Tuesday that Conacher had requested a con-
