NAZIS CONTINUE DRIVE TOWARD CAUCASUS AREA

Forces Slowly Gain Momentum On Volga Front

Russians Seem Unable to Gain Initiative in Fighting on Southern End of the Front Although Counter-Attacks in Kalinin Sector Are Meeting with Limited Success—Nazis Claim Forces Nearing Stalingrad.

(By The Canadian Press)

Hitler's army appeared to be slowly gaining momentum today in the drive toward Russia's industrial belt along the Lower Volga and her oil fields in the Caucasus.

The Russians, successful in winter counter-offensives that reticulated the vast battleline to their advantage, seemed unable to seize the initiative save in isolated sectors, as illustrated by today's Moscow reports that the Germans had been put on the defensive in a sector of the Kalinin front, Northwest of Moscow, while the Germans plowed toward the Volga and the Caucasus on the South.

Russian reports said a German attempt at "vertical envelopment" of Russian positions Northwest of Moscow with air-borne troops had been liquidated, with many of them shot down before landing and the remainder wiped out on the ground.

Despite this it was conceded that the Germans, with numerical superiority in the German-chose zones for offensive action, had gained ground both near Rzev, which lies Southwest of Kalinin and 130 miles from Moscow, and in their drives across the Don basin against the Lower Volga and the Upper Caucasus.

The Hitler command said that the trans-Don offensive had been extended with gains farther to the South and the encirclement of a body of Russian troops Northwest of Voronezh. The Russians announced the enemy had broken through at Voronezh, on the Upper Don, three hundred miles South of Moscow.

Axis reports via Stockholm said the German thrust toward Stalingrad, industrial centre in the lower Volga, had carried from Boguchar, Southeast along the Don through Kazansk to the outskirts of Migulinsk. The Russian communiqué spoke of fighting South of Boguchar, admitting an extension of the penetration there.

Migulinsk is about 160 miles Northwest of Stalingrad. The fight in this sector represents the deepest penetration of Russia since the invasion started June 22, 1941.

A strong force of British bombers set numerous fires along German industrial objectives in the Ruhr Valley overnight, their fourth raid on Germany this month.

The main objective of the attack was not identified by the British Air Ministry but the German high command indicated it was Duisburg, about fifteen miles North of Dusseldorf, between the Ruhr and the Rhine.

This city of about 275,000 is an important coal and iron centre. The

UNITED STATES A-A-BATTERIES CLAIM TWO JAPANESE ZERO PLANES

San Francisco, July 14.—(P)—United States anti-aircraft guns downed one Japanese Zero fighter plane and accounted for another "little more than twelve hours" after the battery had "landed with their guns at Port Moresby," the Sydney radio broadcast today.

"One Zero crashed in flames almost on top of the battery and the other was last seen diving towards the mountain range with smoke pouring from its engine," the broadcast said.

Claims Britain Maintains Superiority In Air Power

Oliver Lyttelton Tells House of Commons that Superiority Is Particularly Marked in Respect to Quality of Air Power—Claims Production of Tanks and Artillery Is Also Satisfactory.

London, July 14.—(P)—Oliver Lyttelton, Minister of State in Charge of Production, told the House of Commons in opening the debate on production today that Britain still maintains its "lead in the air, particularly in quality."

Mr. Lyttelton said that in field artillery there is no reason "to be frightened of our equipment compared with the Germans."

The tanks now being produced, he said, "have the necessary fire power for today's battles and new types designed to be made in the United States and this country give us reasonable assurance of that superiority which is required for victory."

He said the joint war production staff recently had given "higher allocation of raw materials to the merchant shipbuilding and naval programme" just as in 1940 the emphasis was put on aircraft and in 1941 on tanks.

Britain is not considering the manufacture of synthetic rubber at present, the production chief said, because "there is no saving in shipping unless synthetic rubber is derived ultimately from coal."

"Our policy is to concentrate on production of synthetic rubber in the United States," he said.

Mr. Lyttelton said an agreement had been reached whereby the United States would manufacture uniforms for the British troops in the Middle East while Britain would make uniforms for the Americans in Great Britain.

FORCED SAVING PLAN URGED IN UNITED STATES

Chairman Walter George of Senate Finance Committee Favors Plans to Beat Inflation Trends.

Washington, July 14.—(P)—Chairman Walter George of the Senate Finance Committee predicted today Congress would act to force people to save a part of their earnings as an aid in controlling inflation in the United States. He told reporters he believed Congress would have to direct enforced savings by regular percentage deductions from pay cheques and other income if it hoped to prevent runaway increases in prices.

"We must give special consideration to absorbing the increase in national income that has been brought about by the war as a precaution against price rises that might be disastrous," Price Administrator Leon Henderson has told the Senate Appropriations Committee this unchecked increase in national income threatened to leave a gap of $20,000,000,000 between the earnings and the amount of goods available for people to buy.

GERMANS PLACE LOW COUNTRIES ON WAR BASIS

German Military Headquarters Moved from The Hague to Inland Points as Invasion Is Feared.

London, July 14.—(P)—German occupation authorities were reported today to have put the Netherlands on an "invasion" footing and enforced new defence precautions in Belgium and Northern France.

A Netherlands Government spokesman said information had been received that many important German military offices at The Hague had been moved inland to Hilversum and other points closer to German border following a tour of Holland by Field Marshal Gerd von Rundstedt.

A Netherlands who just reached London from Holland said many Nazi families and high German Government officials have moved from coastal provinces to Drente and Overijssel provinces along the German frontier.

The escaped Netherlands said a large number of hostages had been seized in Belgium and Northern France on von Rundstedt's orders. The German-controlled Netherlands radio announced yesterday that many more hostages had been seized in the Netherlands.

Earlier this spring ninety-seven Netherlands were executed by the Germans on charges of plotting to aid an Allied invasion, 2,000 former Netherlands officers were interned and 400 prominent Netherlands were seized as hostages.

The Belgian Government said it had received word that the Germans had halted all construction work in Belgium except widening of paved roads over which motorized divisions could be rushed to the coast.

Equipment from dismounted Belgian divisions in the North has been moved to coastal area and three Nazi lines now extend about nine miles deep from the Channel, a Belgian Government source said.

TO INSPECT ARMED FORCES

Quebec, July 14.—(P)—Maj.-Gen. T. L. Tremblay, Inspector of the Canadian Army for the Eastern section of the country, left here today for Chicoutimi where he will inspect military training centres in the Lake St. John region. He was accompanied by Brig. George P. Vanier, Officer commanding military district No. 5.

Industrial Ruhr Areas Again Hit Heavily By British Air Bombers

London, July 14.—(P)—A strong force of R.A.F. bombers attacked industrial objectives in the Ruhr Valley last night in their fourth raid on Germany this month, the Air Ministry announced today.

(The German high command said the R.A.F. bombed the important industrial City of Duisburg, about fifteen miles North of Dusseldorf, between the Ruhr and the Rhine. Duisburg has many blast furnaces and metal plants and is an important coal and iron ore centre. It has a population of about 275,000.)

"Many fires were being burning," a communiqué said.

Five of the raiding aircraft were reported missing.

The communiqué did not name the target of the attack, but an informed British source said the bombs were aimed at heavy industries, blast furnaces, an electric power station, a rail junction and a railroad bridge across the Rhine.

A spell of bad flying weather interrupted the R.A.F.'s attacks on Germany after the daylight raids on Danzig and Flensburg Saturday. The last previous night raid by the R.A.F. was carried out against Wilhelmshaven on July 8.

Flying conditions still were not ideal last night, the informant said, but he added the loss of five planes was not proportionately large.

Canadian Forces Taking Leading Part In Great Invasion Drills

By ROSS MUNRO,

Canadian Press War Correspondent

With a Canadian attack force at a British Port, July 14.—(P)—Canadian forces, acting with the Royal Navy and the Royal Air Force and looking to the day when they will invade Europe, have completed the greatest sea-borne, air-supported attack manoeuvres ever witnessed in European waters.

Assaulting the coast of England in mimic warfare with infantry and mechanized units, the Canadians conducted practice landings for weeks, carrying with them for the first time lieutenants and sergeants from the United States Expeditionary Force stationed in Northern Ireland.

They carried the arms, ammunition and explosives they would require in establishing a continental bridgehead and went through the manoeuvres with such a show of reality that a field company of engineers required a full week to repair damage caused by demolition of defence works set up by British troops acting as "defenders" of shore establishments.

It was the most impressive and encouraging evidence of offensive intention and power I have seen since I came to Britain almost two years ago.

FRESH STORIES OF ATROCITIES IN YUGOSLAVIA

Spokesman Declares that Seven Hundred Croats Were Killed in Reprisal for Slaying Gestapo Chief.

London, July 14.—(P)—A Yugoslav Government spokesman declared today 700 Croats had been killed in reprisals by the German Gestapo following assassination of the Gestapo chief of Zagreb.

The spokesman said the Gestapo chief was a Major Helm and that he was killed by a hand grenade thrown into his car as he rode along the main street of Zagreb.

He declined to give the source of his information and said he could not state exactly when the killings occurred.

"The Gestapo guards ran amuck after the bombing," the Yugoslav spokesman said, "shooting at everyone moving on the street and hurling bombs."

BUS COMPANIES PLAN SERVICE CO-ORDINATION

Three New England Concerns Present Plan for Reducing Mileage in District Twenty-Five Per Cent.

Boston, July 14.—(P)—Three bus companies serving New England have submitted a co-ordination plan, intended to save twenty-five per cent of their present scheduled interstate mileage, to the Office of Defence Transportation for approval.

Participating in the co-operative move, which would become effective on July 22 if approved is received, are the Boston and Maine bus lines, the Maine Central bus lines and the Greyhound bus lines operating between Boston, Portland, Me., Bangor, Me., and St. Stephen, N.S., and between Boston and Manchester, N.H.

Under the plan, each company would eliminate lightly-loaded extra sections by asking overflow passengers.

PARITY LOANS APPROVED FOR LEADING CROPS

House Agriculture Committee Approves High Loans on Corn, Wheat, Cotton, Rice, Tobacco and Peanuts.

Washington, July 14.—(P)—The House of Representatives Agriculture Committee approved today a Senate bill providing for loans up to 100 per cent of parity on the 1942 corn, wheat, cotton, rice, tobacco and peanut crops.

The measure, the committee said, will assure co-operating farmers of United States Government loans amounting to the full parity value of their crops.

Even though the crop was selling at a price below parity, the farmer would not be the loser, since he could at any time allow the Commodity Credit Corporation to foreclose on the crop without making up the difference between the market value of the crop and the amount of the loan he received.

(Parity is the United States Agriculture Department's determination of the fair price relationship between what the farmer sells and what he buys. For most commodities, it is based on relationships which existed during the pre-war period 1909-14.)

Axis Armored Forces Again Repulsed On Egyptian Front

Enemy Attacks on South End of British Line Meet Failure as Royal Air Force Continues to Hit Heavily at Axis Supply Routes—Royal Navy Joins in Battle to Cut Off Reserves

Cairo, July 14.—(P)—Axis armored forces have been repulsed in another Eastward lunge on the Egyptian corridor battle front and the enemy has been hit heavily by the R. A. F. despite desert sandstorms, British headquarters announced today.

The enemy attacked with tanks and truck-borne infantry at the coastal end of the battle line West of El Alamein yesterday, a communiqué said, and contact was made also between opposing columns inland, on the Southern end of the line, but there was no indication which side was on the offensive there.

As the land front flared back into action, Britain harried the Axis Mediterranean supply lines, trying with the great guns of her fleet and far-ranging bombers of the R. A. F. to choke off reinforcements for the enemy and whittle down his reserves of machines and supplies.

"Air activity was intensified in the battle area," said a joint communiqué of British headquarters and the R. A. F.

"Our fighters, fighter-bombers and light bombers attacked landing grounds in the El Daba area, a column of tanks and large concentrations of vehicles.

"All attacks were successful, some tanks being destroyed and at least six enemy aircraft were shot down in addition to others destroyed on the ground."

The two agents occupied the stand from Friday morning until after the luncheon recess Monday, much of the time being used in cross-examination by defence counsel. After the second agent was dismissed in the afternoon, the Commission heard "certain other Government witnesses."

The Commission, announcing it would "sit without regard to hours," shortened its luncheon recess and sat an hour longer in the afternoon.

The military trial shared interest yesterday with the prospect of criminal proceedings in the civil courts against fourteen persons accused of assisting the eight Nazis. These include the wife of the leader of one group who landed from a submarine, and the parents and an uncle of one of his squad.

While formal charges had not been filed, there was speculation that at least some of the fourteen might be tried for treason or for violation of the Espionage Act, either of which could carry the death penalty.

The fourteen were arrested in New York and Chicago, the cities to which the Nazis went directly from their landings on lonely beaches on Long Island and in Florida.

REIGNING STATION DESTROYED

Rouyn, Que., July 14.—(P)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the Noranda freight shed and contents of the Canadian National Railways here early yesterday.

Minor Amendments For Budget Proposals Are Approved By Commons

New Levies on Luxuries Changed from Retail Tax to Tax on Manufacturers' Prices—Opposition Leader Demands Government Move to Curtail Wartime Consumption of Liquor by Canadians.

By JAMES McCOOK,

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, July 14.—(P)—Changes in budget resolutions providing for taxation of luggage, smoking accessories, and small candy packages, were announced in the House of Commons last night by Finance Minister Isley.

In the classifications covered, the tax of twenty-five per cent paid by the purchaser is changed to a thirty-five per cent manufacturer's level tax, and the Minister estimated revenue from it will be somewhat less than that from the retail levy.

The thirty-per cent candy tax is changed to provide that on packages costing five cents the tax will be one cent with ten and fifteen cent packages paying two and three cents respectively.

The changes approved by the House are effective for trading today as budget taxation provisions already are in force in many cases.

Navy Minister Macdonald announced that three United Nations ships were torpedoed in the Gulf of St. Lawrence about a week ago, with four members of the crews known to have been killed, four missing and ninety-nine safely landed.

The house devoted Monday's sitting to budget resolutions and will continue this study today.

In committee, it approved increases in the excise duty on liquor, malt, syrup, and Canadian raw leaf tobacco, announced by Mr. Isley in his budget speech June 23.

New taxes on telegraph messages, long distance telephone calls, telephone extensions, travel fares, cigarette papers and tubes, packaged cigarettes, manufactured tobacco, playing cards, wines, furs, and dance halls, cabarets and similar places of entertainment were approved by the Committee.

Operation of the twenty-five per cent purchase tax on a number of items, including clothes and watches, and also articles of jewelry costing more than fifty cents each, will be simplified by the placing of stamps on the recapitulation of sales of taxed items by the retailer. This stamped recapitulation will be open for inspection by revenue officials.

Conservative House Leader Hanson, who had urged Government action to reduce the country's increased liquor bill, expressed disappointment that the Minister did not feel there was a responsibility on the Dominion to take action.

Clarence Gillis (C.C.F., Cape Breton South) and G. K. Fraser (Cons., Peterborough West) proposed exemption from the extension telephone tax for households where a person was bedridden.

Mr. Isley said he would not care to make an exemption for such a

Navy Minister Flays Member For Disclosing St. Lawrence Attacks

Ottawa, July 14.—(P)—The third official statement on the U-boat toll in Canada's great St. Lawrence waterway has been placed on record with Navy Minister Macdonald's announcement in the House of Commons that three ships of the United Nations were torpedoed in the Gulf of St. Lawrence "about a week ago."

Mr. Macdonald gave few details in his statement to the House yesterday beyond the fact that casualties numbered four killed and four missing against 99 saved.

The Navy Minister said he felt "almost required" to make the announcement because J. S. Roy (Independent, Gaspé), had broken the news with his statement in the House last Friday about the sinking of three vessels in a 14-ship convoy July 5th.

This premature report, Mr. Macdonald said in stressing the need for secrecy to keep the enemy guessing did not add a "single jot or tittle to the safety of his (Mr. Roy's) constituents."

Secrecy had to be maintained, partly to prevent next-of-kin from being informed before official notification was received, but mainly to prevent useful information from reaching the enemy.

FIVE DEAD IN OIL EXPLOSION

Waynesville, N.C., July 14.—(P)—Five persons were reported killed and at least six seriously injured when tanks of the Standard Oil Company (N.J.) distributing plant here exploded early today. Cause of the explosion was not known.

A correspondent of the Asheville Times said two nearby homes were demolished and three others were badly damaged when flames roared skyward from the gasoline storage tanks. The five reported killed and those injured were understood to have been residents of the homes.

W. L. Hardin, manager of the plant, was injured in attempting to rescue persons trapped in the burning homes.

CHINESE SHOW FURTHER GAINS IN COAST AREA

Chungking Admits, However, that Japanese Have Completed Arc Across Coastal Chekiang Province.

Chungking, July 14.—(P)—The Japanese have completed an arc across coastal Chekiang province from Hangchow on the North to Wenchow on the South, the Chinese high command indicated today, but it said the Chinese in their counter-attack in Kiangsi province directly to the West had pushed the enemy back to the outskirts of Linchuan.

The Chinese communiqué said the Japanese had reached the environs of Wenchow on Saturday night. (The Japanese announced the port's capture Saturday.)

In Kiangsi, Chinese dispatches said that the Japanese who had fanned out Westward from Linchuan now were being pushed back into the city by three columns of Chinese. The Japanese force was estimated by a Chinese spokesman last week to number 30,000.

A Japanese attack on Ihwang, which has changed hands twice already, and now is held by the Chinese, was repulsed after a pitched battle lasting twelve days, the Chinese said. The town is thirty-five miles South of Linchuan.

small proportion of such a small tax. Speaking in support of the increased tax on fares, Mr. Isley said there was too much travel on railways and something might have to be done to discourage travel apart from taxation.

Mr. Graham (Lib., Swift Current) said the purchase tax should be applied on the basis of dollars and cents rather than twenty-five per cent as residents in remote areas had to pay the tax on transportation charges.

Mr. Isley said it would be impossible to say what number of cents or dollars a certain article should bear because of the wide range in prices.

G. K. Isnor (Lib., Halifax) said it should be possible to obtain a close estimate of stocks on hand in stores, and Mr. Hanson said he feared that in twelve months the shelves of small retailers would be bare.

The larger stores had an advantage because of their great buying power.

YOUNG PRISONER ESCAPES

St. Jerome, Que., July 14.—(C)—Adrien Chaille, 18-year-old Montrealer, yesterday escaped from the jail here and was the subject of a Laurier-Union search.

The youth, sentenced last Thursday to a three-month term of imprisonment for causing a disturbance and assaulting a police officer, swung over the top of the fifteen-foot wall at the rear of the jail with the aid of a bedsheet attached to the bars of a second-story window. Police believe Chaille was aided in escaping by one or more fellow prisoners.

KILLED IN THEFT MINE MISHAP

Theft Mines, July 14.—Anthrone Cote, forty-four-year-old miner at the King's Mine in this Megantic County town, was killed almost instantly yesterday when crushed under falling rock in a tunnel nine hundred feet underground.

A coroner's jury after inquiry returned a verdict of accidental death.

But Frenchmen, who could get near a radio last night, heard Gen. de Gaulle in London say that "France is making ready for the day when the entire nation will rise to drive out and punish the enemy."

The "Fighting French" leader called upon Frenchmen in Occupied France to fly the tri-color and sing the national anthem but did not encourage demonstrations in the occupied part of the country because of the danger involved.

President Roosevelt said in a message from Washington: "On this anniversary which has so deep a significance to every lover of democracy, I express the hope that the people of France may soon again enjoy the blessings of liberty, equality and fraternity."

As the bitterness and violence grew in occupied France, Marcel Deat, editor and enthusiastic proponent of collaboration with the Axis, warned the Prime Minister of France: "Watch out, Pierre Laval," he said. "To the right and left, behind and everywhere—they are there surrounding you. Pierre Laval, you are terribly alone."

Red Star said that along the whole Don front the Germans had thrown "great superiority in men and machines" into their offensive.

The attack, coming, expressing the Russian desire for a second front, said:

"The Germans want to defeat us before our allies can land on the continent."

There was no specific information as to how far the Russians fell back South to break through, but dispatches said several kilometers.

There seemed the possibility the Russians planned their next main stand on the East bank of the Don, as at Voronezh, rather than risk entrapment on the West bank.

Even at Voronezh, however, the Russians said the Germans had effected a breakthrough by pouring tremendous forces into a narrow salient.

After the one break-through, however, the Russian stand stiffened and defences held. From the North flank other Red army forces still holding the West bank of the Don Northwest of Voronezh, cut off the German advance back to new German tank divisions, the 9th and 11th.

Headquarters of the divisions were reported captured. A Hungarian cavalry regiment was wiped out and 99 tanks were destroyed, Russian dispatches said.

The seriousness of the situation, however, was clear.

Headlines at the top of the front pages of Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said:

"Fighters of the Red Army: Serious danger threatens your country. The nation appeals to you as sons to stronger your blows upon the onrushing enemy."

On the warfront Northwest of Moscow the Russians announced their troops had gained the initiative over Nazi forces and air-borne reinforcements on the Kalinin front.

The Soviet Information Bureau said a powerful German onslaught in the Rzhev area, 135 miles Northwest of Moscow, forced an outnumbered Russian force to yield ground, but denied German claims of a victory in which 30,000 Russian troops were reported trapped.

The fighting, certainly not more than ten miles from Moscow, has seen a potential new threat to the Soviet capital.

The Russian account said the Germans launched an offensive July 2, and that both sides lost heavily in fighting through July 13. Total Russian casualties were placed at 7,000 killed and wounded and 5,000 missing.

"The Germans lost over 10,000 officers and men killed alone," the Soviet Information Bureau declared.

"It is impossible," the statement said, "to conceal the fact that the Germans daily lose on the Soviet-German front thousands upon thousands of men. This, despite the temporary successes of the German troops, gradually sap the Hitlerite war machine and prepares the ground for the defeat of Germany in this war."

German masses forced a breakthrough in a narrow sector of the Voronezh front and a third motorized infantry division swung into the attacks across the Upper Don under the hammering of the Russian air force, dispatches said.

The Soviet Information Bureau reported setbacks in two other regions to the South with the invaders advancing anew at the point of their deepest penetration of Russian soil—South of the town of Boguchar.

Boguchar is on the big bend of the Don 140 miles Southeast of Voronezh and the report of combat South of that city implied a Nazi attempt to roll up the defenders against the river bank on the downstream toward the Caspian Sea.

Battling upon the approaches of Voronezh was reported particularly fierce. Foot troops fired from rooftops, churches, shrubs, trees and ditches. Artillery batteries poured out shells from hill and wood positions.

A dispatch said many positions were captured, lost and recaptured. Soviet aviation appeared active in dive-bombing the Don River cross-cost in planes was five bombers. The raiders numbered perhaps 200 or 300 planes.

In the battle of Egypt, where air war already had reached a superlative pitch for the desert struggle, fiercer air activity was officially reported, coinciding with the repulse of Axis tank and motorized infantry assaults on the North and a clash of manoeuvring columns on the Southern front of the British 8th Army's line West of El Alamein.

Despite clouds of sand borne on scorching desert winds Allied airmen attacked Axis vehicle concentrations and a landing ground in the El Daba region just behind the El Alamein front, which is only about seventy miles from Alexandria, main base of the British Mediterranean fleet.

"All attacks were successful, some tanks being destroyed, and at least six enemy aircraft were shot down in addition to others destroyed on the ground," said the Cairo communiqué, covering the last twenty-four hours of fighting.

Counting both African and Malta operations—at least five Axis planes were shot down over the Mediterranean Sea, and a visit to the club-room on the Auxiliary to Mrs. Watts for gifts and games, which with her consent, it was decided to send to the military hospital at St. Anne de Bellevue.

Finished knitted articles were brought in and besides knitting the members busied themselves preparing tin foil for the Red Cross.

Robinson, of Quebec, paid a visit to the club-room during a recent visit to Sherbrooke; also Petty Officer Bert Davis, R.C.N., who spent his leave here, called to extend thanks for the many kindnesses received from this faithful band of war workers.

Plans were made to hold a food sale the next evening, for which Mrs. Bert Davis will act as hostess at Mrs. Hamel's home.

The surprise box donated by Mrs. Whitaker was won by Miss Florence Moorcroft.

ings West of the town, troop movements before Voronezh and the German rear.

At one place seventy trucks loaded with soldiers were destroyed. At another a military train was wrecked by dive-bombing.

Far removed from the Southern fighting, Russians on the Kalinin front reported not only stopping attacks but throwing the Germans on the defensive. The battle area was described as "considerably reduced."

Soviet soldiers have driven the Germans from several villages on the Kalinin front and cut an important highway (perhaps a Rzhev-Stara Russa route), the Moscow radio said.

Details were scant, but a subsequent communiqué said a Soviet fighting force on the Kalinin front had killed more than 2,000 Germans and destroyed more than fifty-four tanks in six days, while Nazi attacks in another sector cost the invaders twelve tanks and 700 dead.

"The Germans dispatched airborne troops to the vicinity of point 'G'," it said. "Many of them were shot before landing. The rest were wiped out on the ground."

Furious fighting in the Rzhev direction assumed proportions that might mean another German bid to try to reach the capital, Russian reports indicated.

Loss of ground near Rzhev had been announced by Soviet authorities, but more than 10,000 Germans were declared to have died there in twelve days.

Gravely-phrased communiqués reported a series of reverses for Red army men at the hands of superior invasion forces striking toward Volga Valley industrial centres and Caucasian oil fields, a Nazi breakthrough in the Voronezh area and withdrawals to the South.

Nevertheless, it was declared that Hitler was losing thousands of men daily and this, "independent of any temporary success of the German troops, is gradually undermining Hitler's war machine and preparing the ground for Germany's defeat."

(Berlin's radio claimed in a propaganda broadcast that "catastrophe has broken on the armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko and the pursuit of beaten Soviet troops is continuing on a broad front.")

(London newspapers again urged a continental invasion. The Daily Herald declared that "if we fail to open a second front soon enough, because of under-organization and indecision or sheer low spirits, the price of our ineptitude may be no more freedom—anywhere—forever.")

The Russian Information Bureau declared the Nazi death list alone totalled more than 10,000, against Russian casualties of 7,000 killed and wounded and 5,000 missing in fighting July 2-13 which developed from a German attempt to "encircle our troops by flank attacks and cut their communications with the rear."

Numerical superiority of the tanked Germans eventually forced the Russians to withdraw, it was said. Most of the 5,000 missing Red army men were declared to have formed guerrilla bands.

(The German high command claimed earlier that 30,000 Russians had been captured in an encirclement Southwest of Rzhev and that several Soviet divisions were "under annihilation. It was not brought out whether the action restored direct communications between Rzhev and Nazi-held Vyazma, on the Moscow-Smolensk highway 70 miles to the South.)

ALLIES' WAR AUXILIARY

Mrs. Selvin Whitaker was hostess for last evening's largely-attended meeting of the Allies' War Auxiliary, which was held at the home of her mother, Mrs. H. P. Hamel, 42 Wolfe Street.

After the customary opening prayer a brief period of silence was observed in tribute to the memory of LAC Stewart Miller, R.C.A.F., and Mrs. J. Cline, the latter having been a generous supporter of the Auxiliary.

Letters from Overseas were read by the President, one from Mrs. Hamel's niece, Mrs. O'Brien of Birmingham, England, in which was enclosed a copy of a letter received by the "Butchers of Birmingham," from the Russian Ambassador, thanking them for their generous contribution of $5,000 towards the Russian Relief Fund.

Mrs. Hamel announced that five boxes had been packed and shipped Overseas since the last meeting. The President also extended thanks on behalf of the Auxiliary to Mrs. Watts for gifts and games, which with her consent, it was decided to send to the military hospital at St. Anne de Bellevue.

Finished knitted articles were brought in and besides knitting the members busied themselves preparing tin foil for the Red Cross.

At one place seventy trucks loaded with soldiers were destroyed. At another a military train was wrecked by dive-bombing.

Far removed from the Southern fighting, Russians on the Kalinin front reported not only stopping attacks but throwing the Germans on the defensive. The battle area was described as "considerably reduced."

Soviet soldiers have driven the Germans from several villages on the Kalinin front and cut an important highway (perhaps a Rzhev-Stara Russa route), the Moscow radio said.

Details were scant, but a subsequent communiqué said a Soviet fighting force on the Kalinin front had killed more than 2,000 Germans and destroyed more than fifty-four tanks in six days, while Nazi attacks in another sector cost the invaders twelve tanks and 700 dead.

"The Germans dispatched airborne troops to the vicinity of point 'G'," it said. "Many of them were shot before landing. The rest were wiped out on the ground."

Furious fighting in the Rzhev direction assumed proportions that might mean another German bid to try to reach the capital, Russian reports indicated.

Loss of ground near Rzhev had been announced by Soviet authorities, but more than 10,000 Germans were declared to have died there in twelve days.

Gravely-phrased communiqués reported a series of reverses for Red army men at the hands of superior invasion forces striking toward Volga Valley industrial centres and Caucasian oil fields, a Nazi breakthrough in the Voronezh area and withdrawals to the South.

Nevertheless, it was declared that Hitler was losing thousands of men daily and this, "independent of any temporary success of the German troops, is gradually undermining Hitler's war machine and preparing the ground for Germany's defeat."

(Berlin's radio claimed in a propaganda broadcast that "catastrophe has broken on the armies of Marshal Semyon Timoshenko and the pursuit of beaten Soviet troops is continuing on a broad front.")

(London newspapers again urged a continental invasion. The Daily Herald declared that "if we fail to open a second front soon enough, because of under-organization and indecision or sheer low spirits, the price of our ineptitude may be no more freedom—anywhere—forever.")

The Russian Information Bureau declared the Nazi death list alone totalled more than 10,000, against Russian casualties of 7,000 killed and wounded and 5,000 missing in fighting July 2-13 which developed from a German attempt to "encircle our troops by flank attacks and cut their communications with the rear."

Numerical superiority of the tanked Germans eventually forced the Russians to withdraw, it was said. Most of the 5,000 missing Red army men were declared to have formed guerrilla bands.

(The German high command claimed earlier that 30,000 Russians had been captured in an encirclement Southwest of Rzhev and that several Soviet divisions were "under annihilation. It was not brought out whether the action restored direct communications between Rzhev and Nazi-held Vyazma, on the Moscow-Smolensk highway 70 miles to the South.)

Shortage Of Asphalt Will Affect Highway Maintenance In Townships

No asphaltting work in the Province has been stopped this week, but the situation is "very delicate," says Hon. T. B. Bouchard, Provincial Minister of Roads, stated in Montreal yesterday. The Roads Department is "very anxious" to get material from two suppliers, and was notified yesterday that no more asphalt could be released by one of the firms. But the second had enough to furnish full needs for this week.

the week.
Shortage of asphalt will preclude complete suspension of asphalt shipments and acceptance of orders in Eastern Canada, except urgent priority needs for air field construction by the Department of Trans-

be spared for pressing public road repairs.

THE CANADIAN MANPOWER SITUATION

The critical position of the whole manpower situation in Canada and its growing gravity is well illustrated in the address delivered yesterday by Elliott M. Little, Director of National Selective Service, who said that within the next five months, 230,000 persons will be needed for war industries and armed services. This indicated a sharp increase in these needs as only four months ago Prime Minister King estimated in the House of Commons that approximately 230,000 persons would be required for industry and the services within the following year. He estimated that 100,000 would be needed for munitions work, 100,000 for the army, 80,000 for the air force and 13,000 for the navy. Mr. Little's estimate calls for almost as many persons in the five-month period.

Other statements by Mr. Little indicate that mass migrations of workers, unless organized on a long-term scheme, are not the only solution, or even the best solution for the difficulty, as they often create a greater unsettlement of industry than the benefits which they produce. The great spread of the Canadian industrial machine and its uneven expansion to meet the war needs have produced many headaches for these officials charged with the administration of the Selective Service Act, as in many cases workers in a depressed area might be moved over long distances to some other plant, only to find out a few days later that they were needed back in their home districts.

Thus it will be seen that Mr. Little is preaching no alarmist doctrines when he declares that hundreds of non-essential industries will have to curtail their operations, or perhaps suspend them entirely, to free manpower for the war industries. At the same time steps are being taken to organize manpower so that even a greater supply of labor will become available.

Perhaps the Government could help by reviewing some of its own services, transferring employees from departments whose functions are virtually suspended owing to wartime conditions to other departments, or perhaps releasing them temporarily for private industry. Dominion, provincial and civic administrations might get together in this respect to the mutual advantage of all concerned by cutting out overlapping departments and at the same time aid the war industries.

PROSPECTS FOR ENLISTMENT

A strong possibility is seen in Ottawa and other Canadian centres that if and when the time comes for the Government to impose conscription for Overseas service, most Canadians liable to be conscripted will be in the army. Exceptions to this are those men who are not old enough for army service but who will reach service age before the end of the war.

An amendment to the National Resources Mobilization Act, now before Parliament, will empower the Government to impose conscription for service Overseas at any time by proclamation.

The action of the Government last week in making single men up to forty years of age liable to compulsory service is construed by authorities as an indication the compulsory service law is scraping the bottom of the heap of eligible men for the army.

The August requisition of men for the army by the compulsory call route is for 25,000 men. Thus the new age classes now liable cannot be expected to provide more than enough for four monthly calls at that rate.

If more men are to be called it is believed the authorities will have to consider one or all of the following courses—rescinding the order which freezes farmers on the land, making married men liable to service, reviewing and cancelling postponements granted to men in the age classes already called, calling men in medical categories lower than "A," calling men aged more than forty.

According to information now available none of these courses offer any prospect of a large number of men. It is believed the military authorities are not keen on accepting men of more than forty in the army.

Some 25,000 men in "B" medical category are on record as having been medically examined and rejected from the age groups so far combed over.

When it comes to calling married men only those married prior to July 18, 1940, can be counted, as all married since that date are treated as single men. There were about 1,000,000 married men between twenty and forty-five registered in 1940 and of these it is estimated 100,000 might be fit and available for service.

The number of farmers who might be callable if the freezing order were rescinded cannot be estimated. If all the steps mentioned were taken it is not believed more than 250,000 men or enough for ten more monthly calls at the present rate would be available.

After that, presumably the forces would have to look to an annual crop of about 100,000 youths who turn twenty each year for reinforcements.

BASTILLE DAY

Celebrating the fourteenth of July today, Bastille Day, has a special significance for all French patriots. It means renewing the pledge of liberating France, and to liberate France means first to free her from the yoke and pressure of the invader. It means breaking this foreign tyranny. Such is the task for all Frenchmen worthy of this name.

It means also to rid her of those who have taken advantage of defeat, have forced upon France a dictatorial regime of foreign inspiration, contrary to all national traditions. Liberation means the destruction of this tyranny. The French people must be able to choose itself without any outside pressure, institutions worthy of its past and future.

These tasks of foreign and internal liberation are but one. Despotism in France could only take place under protection of enemy guns. It will go away with enemy vans.

The fourteenth of July is at the same time the celebration of French unity. For one century and a half, this celebration united all classes, all doctrines, all parties in the same feeling of national pride.

This year it is going to illustrate the deep unity between all French people helping to liberate the country.

It will weld into a vast militant community the French of France, shackled but not conquered, and the French who have the privilege of continuing on the battlefields.

It will be the day of fighting France under the double sign of St. Nazaire and Bir Hacheim. It will unite all true children of France, soldiers, sailors, aviators, members of Free French Committees outside and champions of resistance inside, those who strike in the dark, who sabotage the German war machine, who silently are getting ready to take up arms again; all French people who refuse any compromise with the enemy and show him nothing but haughty indifference, hungry and persecuted, prisoners and martyrs, millions who keep in their hearts the pride of being French and who are awaiting with clenched fists, and the head unbowed the hour of vengeance and national resistance.

The fourteenth of July will be the day of France that suffers and France that fights; of France that hopes; of France which will triumph.

The New Order is the new Bastille in which Hitler and his accomplices would like to enslave humanity forever. The free peoples will not let stone upon stone remain of that fortress. Walking upon the traces of Valmy they will re-establish in all the world an order based upon the respect for human dignity, national and international solidarity, an order that finds its everlastingly enduring expression in the words of the Revolutionary army, the words that are those of fighting France—Liberty; Equality; Fraternity.

WILL MAKE GOOD LIBYAN LOSSES

Prime Minister Jan Christian Smuts of South Africa, has appealed to the Union for seven thousand men to replace those lost or captured in North Africa. An especially strong response is being made by miners, railwaymen and natives.

In his broadcast recruiting appeal, the Prime Minister declared South Africa's chief task was to replace the men lost at Tobruk and to behave in a manner worthy of the heroes of the front.

"Their call to us is to carry on, continue the fight, and complete the work which they would have done had they not been struck down," he said.

G. Carlton Dones, President of the Transvaal Chamber of Mines, has assured the Prime Minister that 1,000 men will be released for active duty without delay and the General Secretary of the South African Mineworkers' Union has guaranteed fullest co-operation. The South African Railways has promised an immediate response. Already 10,000 men have gone into the services from the railways.

Col. E. T. Stubbs, Director of the non-European army services, after an appeal to a War Council of Native Chiefs in Northern Transvaal, was told: "You can tell General Smuts we gladly respond to his call for we realize that the veldt is ablaze and it is the custom of our people in such an emergency to go out any distance to meet the fire and extinguish the flames."

Many of the native tribes, including those in former German West Africa, have responded well to recruiting appeals.

It has been officially reported in Pretoria that contingents of South African land and air forces are now serving in Madagascar. These troops are under the command of Brigadier Seneschal, formerly officer in command of the Capetown "Dukes."

At home, new hoarding regulations have been announced by the Union Government. Heavy penalties have been provided for infringement by the trades as well as householders. Permissible quantities are to be defined by the price controller.

HAVE A SMILE

Humph. So you want a job. Do you ever tell lies?"
"No, sir, but I could learn."

"Why are you bringing me all your old socks to darn?"
"Well, when you refused to marry me, you said you'd always be like a sister to me."

Going his round during the blackout, the corporal of the guard was horrified—but not struck dumb—to find one sentry leaning negligently against a garden wall.

"Sorry, corp," replied the sentry. "The absurdity of it all suddenly overcame me."

It was her fourth or fifth venture into the lottery of marriage—the film star wasn't sure which. So when the registrar's clerk began asking a few questions she got annoyed.
"Have you been married before?" he asked. "And, if so, to whom?"
This was too much. In her most freeing manner the star demanded: "What is this—a memory test?"

"Any complaints?" asked the orderly officer, entering the mess-room.
"Yes, sir," replied Private Smith. "They've all got bigger dinners than me."
"Well," said the orderly officer, smiling, "they're all bigger lads than you, aren't they?"

"Yes, sir," Smith agreed; an allus was at this rate."

After a long, searching cross-examination, the little woman in the film star wasn't sure which. At last the lawyer exclaimed:
"You say you have no education, but you managed to answer all the questions smartly enough."
"Yes, sir," replied the witness meekly; "but you don't have to be a scholar to answer silly questions."

PRESS COMMENTS

THE BEST BUTCHERS

British Industries Bulletin
Men from Canadian Army units stationed in Britain are the brightest pupils among the Empire and Allied troops learning to be regimental butchers at Smithfield, London, in peace time the world's greatest meat distributing centre.

This is the verdict of the instructors at the London County Council's Smithfield Meat Trades Institute, which normally trains students of the meat trade from all over the world.

There is a long waiting list of men for the three-weeks' course, the object of which is to save meat and incidentally, shipping, by using economically all of it which comes to the Army cookhouse.

With this three-hour instruction each week, the students learn about the use and maintenance of butcher's tools and equipment, characteristics of the various breeds of cattle and sheep and of fresh, chilled and frozen carcasses, methods of slaughter and flaying, division of quarters and carcasses into various joints, cutting, boning and general preparation.

BOND INTEREST

Lethbridge Herald
For years Premier Albert talked about interest-free money bonds and loans. Interest-free bonds were among the bait he held out to the people of Alberta in the general election of 1935.

Then in 1936 the Social Credit Government showed its score of contracting obligations by summarily cutting the interest on Alberta bonds in two, bringing the average interest down to about 2 1/2 per cent.

Now, after seven years, the Government has said it is willing to pay 3 1/2 per cent on Alberta bonds.

That's another concession of one per cent, and 3 1/2 away from the famous declarations of pre-election times.

Hadn't Mr. Aberhart better now go to the four per cent average which applies to provincial bonds across Canada, and make an honest woman out of Alberta once more?

If three and one-half per cent is right four per cent can't be far wrong.

ADVERTISING IN WARTIME

The war has inevitably brought great changes to the advertising business. At a time when there are growing shortages of consumers goods it would be neither necessary nor desirable to seek to stimulate increased consumer demands for the products that are scarce. At a time when many industries have only one customer—the Government—there are some who question whether ordinary advertising is a legitimate business expense to be charged against the cost of tanks, planes and ships.

Advertising, however, recognizing these conditions, have been prepared for changes. But they have refused to believe that their business had no place in the war effort. They have been disturbed by an apprehension that elements within the Government were fundamentally hostile to advertising and were disposed to use the war as a pretext for driving it out of existence.

Whether or not these fears were justified, they should be set at rest

NO TRUMP PLAY SHOWS TECHNIQUE

One of the nicest events of the Southern Appalachian Tournament, which will be held at Asheville, N.C., August 28, 29 and 30, is the mixed pair championship. Mixed pair events have become increasingly popular everywhere. One of the South's outstanding woman players, Mrs. J. E. Folline, of Richmond, Va., won the event last year, playing with Ben O. Johnson, of Spartanburg, South Carolina.

Here is an example of Mrs. Folline's skilled play. Sitting South, she let the diamond queen win the first trick. The second was won by the ace of diamonds, and Mrs. Folline led the queen of clubs. East won and made the mistake of returning a low heart. The nine forced the queen, and West led a third diamond, forcing the king. Mrs. Folline cashed the club ace, dropping the jack. Then she cashed the spade king and went over with the nine of clubs to cash the spade ace in dummy. Dummy led the heart for the winning finesse of the jack, and the contract was made.

ALSO FORCED BACK IN RUSSIA

by President Roosevelt's message to the annual convention of the Advertising Federation of America. War conditions, the President said, do not mean "an end to advertising." On the contrary, advertising has a "worthwhile and patriotic place in the nation's total war effort."

That is certainly true. Total war demands the mobilization of the spiritual and physical resources of the entire nation. We in America have never developed or desired the skilled techniques of propaganda which the Nazis have employed to this end. But no other nation in the world has equalled us in the development of the art of advertising. Advertising, like propaganda, is a powerful means of carrying to the people the message of what each man's part must be in total war. But whereas propaganda, by masquerading as news, poisons the free press, advertising does not. It honestly sets itself off as distinct from the news. Through the revenues it produces it helps to finance at a price to the public that would otherwise be impossible the enormous news gathering facilities which produce the modern newspaper.

It is this revenue from legitimate advertising which has made it possible, here and in Britain, to develop and maintain a great free press. In contrast to the system of Government subsidies which supports the kept press in totalitarian countries. In a democracy the free press has a vital wartime role to play. It is, in effect, an essential wartime industry, although it has, of course, no war contracts. If arbitrary and unreasonable restrictions were to be placed upon advertising, it would not be the advertising business alone that would suffer. The loss of normal revenues essential to their existence would cripple if not destroy the newspapers. From this standpoint the suppression of advertising would be the first step in the suppression of the free press.

replace the missing burden bearer needed so badly to carry the nation's war load. For a mass of political potage it divided the country, instead of heading off the obvious trend of events by wise guidance.

YOUNG PILOT

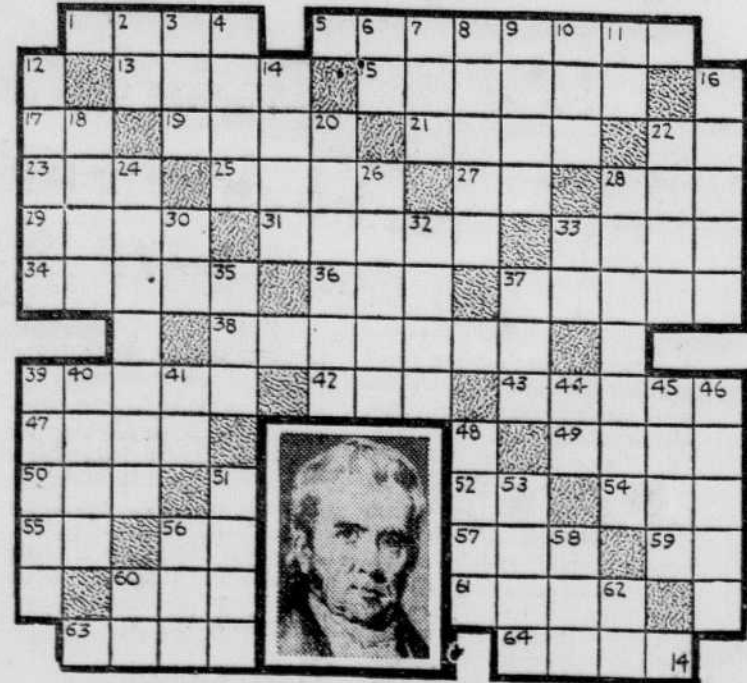

Mother—
Why are you off in a silver ship,
And why must you learn to fly?
What is it calls your heart from me,
And what do you find in the sky?

Son—
The wind might say, if the wind could speak,
Or the folk who love the mountain peak;
The birds could tell, for they all know,
Or the arrow flung from the hunter's bow.
But they are mute and I cannot Tell you the things my plane has taught,
Except that I want, until I die,
Weather that's fair and a ship to fly!

SCHOOL BOY ROWE SUBJECT FOR TRANSFER

Montreal May Receive Brooklyn First Liner

Protest Against Dodgers Having Too Many Men in Uniform at Game Sunday May Result in Drastic Revision of Line-Up—American League Suffers Chill in Pennant Race.

The American League has just suffered another chill in the region of its pennant race.

New York Yankees beat down Detroit Tigers again yesterday 4-3 and Washington Senators surprisingly shut out Cleveland Indians 7-0 in a night game.

These results, coming as they did on the heels of Boston Red Sox' double somersault before St. Louis Browns Sunday, placed an emphatic damper on whatever rivals were rash enough to think the world champions were collapsing.

The Yankees were held to six hits, but four of these were by Joe Gordon, who drove in two runs with a pair of doubles, and another was a two-run homer by Red Rolfe, who had returned to the Yankees' starting lineup Sunday after a long siege with illness.

Young Walter Masterson was the No. 1 boy for the Senators, holding Cleveland to three scattered singles while his team-mates pelted three pitchers for ten hits. Only the fact that the Indians' stalwart infield reeled off four double plays kept the Senators from making their conquest even more complete.

In the only other game played Philadelphia Athletics nosed out Chicago White Sox 4-3 in eleven innings. Phil Marchildon allowed Chicago just eight hits and he started the winning rally in the 11th with a single after two were out.

The only game scheduled in the National League, Philadelphia at Cincinnati, was postponed.

This left most of the attention in the senior circuit centred on Pittsburgh's protest of a game with Brooklyn Sunday when the Dodgers had 26 men in uniform on the bench. However, Manager Leo Durocher of the Dodgers contended that the extra players, Pitch Max Machon still was under contract to Brooklyn's Montreal farm in the International League and therefore did not violate the major league player limit.

Whether it did or didn't, the presence of Machon made the imminent subtraction of one player from the Dodgers' roster something to ponder and there was a possibility that the victim might be the veteran Schoolboy Rowe. The move may be hinged on whether the Dodgers can get waivers in order to send him to Montreal. If they can't, one of the younger pitchers may feel the finger.

Sport Shorts From Britain

By ALLAN NICKLESON (Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 14.—(P)—War-time soccer on these isles has proved to have a much wider appeal than many followers believe possible two years ago. There were gloomy forecasts made for the sport during that air-raided year with its inevitable transport dislocation and attendant public apathy.

But times changed and despite shortages of players and lack of transportation crowds poured to football fields for relaxation from the grim business of war. It's considered "amazing" by the experts that most clubs finished last season on the right side of the ledger.

For instance, Everton reported a profit—for the first time in a war season—of approximately $5,700, while Sunderland reaped $1,500. In soccer leagues donated part proceeds of some matches to war charities.

The football boom is shown, too, along other lines. Derby County, which hasn't played competitive soccer since war began, is to join the Football League next season, and Crewe Alexandra, after a year's absence, will play in another section of the loop.

Sixth Derby winner to go abroad in as many years, Pont L'Eveque, victor in 1940, has been sold to the Haras Ojo de Agua in Argentina at an unnamed price. The pony was owned by Fred Darling, the King's trainer who also maintains his own racers. The other five sold out of this country were Blenheim, Bahram, Mahmoud, Cameronian and Coronach.

Pte. Bobby Docherty of Toronto's 48th Highlanders, that efferent featherweight boxing champion of both the British and Canadian armies, outpointed his brother Jack, a private in the same regiment, in a fast bout at Camborwell. Docherty, smooth as ever, didn't hit his brother as hard as he did his army opponents when he won the British title at York last March.

The cables bring word that way out in Ceylon before a record crowd, including many brass hats, Johnny King, British featherweight bantamweight champ now in the Royal Navy, fought a draw with Fred Barry, navy lightweight titlist, Johnny Cusick, former British and Empire featherweight king, drew with a fellow member, Cpl. Joe Briggs, featherweight champ of Northern Ireland.

Deaths: Australia's youngest Test cricketer, Ross Gregory, 26, sergeant-observer in the R.A.F., was killed in operations overseas. He was an outstanding all-rounder. Boxing manager Ted Broadbent, died a short time after hearing a broadcast of the Mills-Harvey title fight. A former boxer, he fought under the name "Snowball of Walworth."

HOLD SURPRISE PARTY AT ST. GEORGE, BEAUCE

Large Number Attended Gathering for Keith and Donald Cathcart, Who Are Leaving to Join R.C.A.F.

St. Georges de Beauce, July 14.—A large number of friends met Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Cathcart, the occasion being a surprise party and presentation for Keith and Donald Cathcart, who both leave shortly to take up their duties with the R. C. A. F.

A happy time was spent in playing games and pleasant conversation, after which a treasure hunt was suggested and the two guests-of-honor were led on a special sport, where began seemingly endless yarning of string twined around almost every conceivable difficult spot in the house and which finally led the two bewildered boys into the far reaches of upstairs, where tied to the end they received their reward, a substantial sum of money for each and all good wishes from their many friends.

Those who attended from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Cathcart, of Bury; Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Armstrong, Misses Bernice and Joyce Armstrong and Master Gerald Armstrong, Mrs. Jessie and Miss Jean Colman, Masters Bobby and Leslie Colman, of Breakeville; Mr. Allan Wilson, of Osgoosock, Me.; Miss Elma Wilson, Miss Arleen Wells, Messrs. Ronald and George Jobel, of Sherbrooke; and Mr. S. J. Collins, of Three Rivers.

General Notes. Miss Irene Bachelder, of Sherbrooke, spent a few days visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Cathcart.

Rev. George Adams, of the British and Foreign Bible Society held his annual meeting here on Tuesday evening, July 7th, in the Presbyterian Church. A most interesting lecture was given on the work in China illustrated by lantern slides.

Mrs. Gordon Armstrong, of Breakeville, is spending a few days visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Cathcart. The Misses Joyce Armstrong and Jean Colman are also spending the week visiting their cousin, Miss Doris Cathcart.

Mr. W. W. Laurison, of Dorset, visited friends here on Sunday.

Mrs. S. J. Collins and children left on Monday for Three Rivers, with Mr. Collins, where they will reside.

Windblown Accounts Veil Real Story Behind Berger Trimming

By SCOTT YOUNG

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto, July 14.—(P)—It would be too bad if Maxie Berger should up and admit that Pte. Al Lust beat him squarely in that considerably windblown welter fight in Calgary. Such an admission would absolutely ruin the flow of equally-windblown accounts of the great struggle, and that would be disastrous.

For instance, it has leaked out somehow that Berger actually wasn't hurt so much by Lust's punching in that decisive final round. He went down, all right, but he would have been able to get up again if Al Lust's pals hadn't streamed into the ring, hoisted Lust on their shoulders, then danced with joy all over Maxie. By the time the gendarmes cleared the ring, Berger was beaten right into the canvas. It took his handlers eight minutes to find him and two to bring him to, adding up correctly to the ten-minute snooze recorded in the public prints.

From another source, it turns out that Lust's punching didn't even put Maxie on his back, much less keep him there. He was the heat, and the aurum. This explanation is given by Mr. Slitkin, of Slitkin and Slotkin, Berger's managerial partners. Slitkin accompanied Maxie, Slotkin remaining in Montreal to do his moaning among friends. Slotkin agreed heartily with his partner's explanation. He assured Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson of the unadulterated truth of Slotkin's diagnosis, took his leave thusly: "As soon as my podner returns we will be at it again, hammer and tongues explaining how this altitude got the best of our Maxie. We will then challenge this lust to fight Maxie, somewhere else, where ain't no such thing as altitude."

Incidentally Veteran Emil Sporri seems likely to retain his reputation as king of the half-mile tracks this summer. . . . He had thirteen firsts during the first week of racing at Vancouver's Hastings Park, which is plenty of wins for one week in any league. . . . Miken Genton pitched a no-hitter for St. Boniface Native Sons in a Winnipeg District Softball Game, but the opposit—Canadian Ukrainian Athletic Club—got two runs on errors. . . . Ken Lindsay, Vancouver's poker-fisted Bantam, has taken his first job. . . . it's in a coast shipyard. . . . A couple of good tennis players doffed uniforms to split a charity match in Ottawa. . . . Lieut. Bob Murray, R.C.O.C., and Cpl. Don McDermid, R.C.A.F., were the principals. . . . There may be something new in the Canadian Henley this year—a whaler race by navy men and a war-dance exhibition—The paddlers haven't a major competition of their own this year, and must be lonesome.

Clear Telephone Lines for All-Out PRODUCTION

From a report of an early Commando raid in Libya led by the son of Admiral Sir Roger Keyes. Keyes was killed in the action.

MEN'S lives depend on the speed of Canadian plants in putting grenades in their hands. These plants in turn depend on the managers and engineers and sub-contractors who direct production of the tens of thousands of hand and rifle grenades which Canada makes each month.

To keep in touch with each other . . . with suppliers . . . with officials . . . these men turn to the telephone a hundred times a day. Your unselfish use of the telephone will help them to get things done in a hurry. By observing "War-time Telephone Tactics" and by reducing the number and length of social but unessential personal calls, you clear other interlocking lines for these messages that must get through.

WAR-TIME TELEPHONE TACTICS

- BE SURE you have the right number, consult the directory.
- SPEAK distinctly, directly into the mouth-piece.
- ANSWER promptly when the bell rings. These things may look trifling, but on 6,500,000 daily telephone calls, they are very important.
- BE BRIEF. Clear your line for the next call.
- USE OFF-PEAK hours for Long Distance calls: before 9:30 a.m., 1-2 p.m., 5-7 p.m., after 9 p.m.

BROMPTONVILLE SOCIAL PROVED FINE SUCCESS

Proceeds from Event Donated to Cigarette Fund for Local Boys on Service Overseas.

Bromptonville, July 14.—9 very successful strawberry social was held at the home of Mrs. William Marchant, the proceeds of which were donated to the cigarette fund for the local boys overseas.

Between the hours of four and seven, the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Willard and other ladies of the community, served delicious refreshments. The proceeds, with additional donations, amounted to $18.05.

ST. LAWRENCE GUILD
 The St. Lawrence Guild met at the home of Mrs. Arnold Bilton on July 8, with Miss Freda Bilton and Miss Joyce Jackson acting as hostesses.

There was an exceptionally large attendance, including Rev. A. J. Oakley, of Windsor Mills, who invited the Bromptonville ladies to a garden tea, which was being held by the Windsor Mills ladies at the parsonage on Thursday afternoon. During the afternoon material was distributed amongst the ladies to be made up for the fancy work sale, some finished articles were turned in, and it was decided to hold a garden party and sale of work the first part of August.

At the tea hour some visitors joined in, and delicious refreshments were served to seventeen by the Misses Bilton, Jackson and Mayhew. The tea table was attractively done with a hand-crocheted cloth, and centered with a vase of vari-hued sweet peas.

Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant in "Bringing Up Baby," which begins tomorrow at the New Premier Theatre.

At The New Premier

"Bringing Up Baby," which begins tomorrow at the New Premier Theatre, co-stars Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant, last seen together in "Philadelphia Story." In this film they get in and out of more trouble than the average pair of screen lovers encounter in a dozen pictures.

Those who have viewed the offering with no preconceived idea as to what it was all about, got their first surprise when they learned that the "Baby" of the title was no human infant, but a full-grown leopard, used by the resourceful Miss Hepburn to aid her in capturing Grant, a zoology professor who, until she comes into

TWO OFFICERS FROM 74TH ON SPECIAL DUTY

Lieut. Thomas Ryan and Lieut. J. M. Thomson, of 74th Battery Reserve, Are Transferred to West.

Rock Island, July 14.—Two members of the 74th Rock Island Field Battery, R. C. A. reserve unit, who recently transferred to active service, have left for Western Canada where they will be assigned to special duties. The two men are Lieutenants Thomas Ryan and John Mitchell Thomson, both of whom received their training with the old 74th.

Lieut. Ryan, who is thirty-four years of age, was born at Hatley, Quebec, and educated at Stanstead Wesleyan College, and has been employed by the J. B. Goodhue Company as foreman for the past eight years. He joined the 74th in 1937 as a summer.

Lieut. Mitchell, thirty-five, was born at Kirkaldy, Scotland, and received his education and technical training in the Old Country, coming to Canada in 1929 when he entered the employ of the Stanstead Granite Company. He joined the 74th Reserve unit in 1940.

General Notes
The local Canadian Red Cross rooms will remain open all summer on Tuesdays and Fridays, with quilting other days as well. Shipments the last three weeks have

BEHIND THE GUN!

GIRL behind the man behind the gun is Gwen Bechard, who works long hours forging munitions—helping to win victory. A salesgirl before the war, she is now a top-ranking welder. Workday often starts at 7:30—no wonder Gwen votes for time-saving 30-second breakfast, no pans to wash afterwards. Thousands of Canadians agree... vote Kellogg's Corn Flakes first. included: Fifteen pairs hospital socks, twelve scarfs, three pairs of seaboot stockings, eight body belts, four army sweaters, twenty-two tuck-ins, four pairs of socks, four pairs of mittens, twelve pairs of two-way mitts, twenty pairs of gloves, one pair wristlets, one cap, three pairs auxiliary gloves twenty dozen pillowcases, eighteen sheets, eleven boys' outfits, thirty quilts, fourteen pairs of shoes. Wool is now placed on a quota basis and there is sufficient for our knitters. The quilts include donations from Heathton, Stanstead North Institute, Fitch Bay and a group of women on Bissonnet Street, Stanstead.

A joint parade of the Women's Auxiliary and Mobile Force, C.P.C., assembled at Stanstead on the evening of July 3, marching through Stanstead to Rock Island then by motor to Beebe. After parading through the streets there the group was dismissed. The Women's Auxiliary was under the command of Mrs. M. B. Quillman, Rock Island, the Mobile group being commanded by Mayor R. J. Meekren, Stanstead. A group of bandmen, under the direction of Donald Dixon, Rock Island, headed the parade, which did credit to the group. The purpose of the parade was to advertise the recruiting drive for the local Battery of the Reserve Army, which started on Tuesday, July 7.

From Cars to BATTLE WAGGONS

Canadian genius for mass production is now being applied with telling results to the output of motorized war equipment.

Production figures are already fantastic. Since the beginning of the war, Canada has produced and shipped to the battlefields of the world more than 250,000 military vehicles. Production is now at the rate of one unit every three minutes and is constantly mounting.

Canadian fighting men need 160 different types of motorized equipment. Canada is producing all of them.

One plant alone is turning out in a single day enough Universal Carriers to equip two battalions. Heavy tanks, with 25,000 parts, are in mass production and, at one plant, are coming off the assembly line at the rate of one every few hours.

This advertisement is published as a contribution to the general knowledge of our country's war effort and as an inspiration through the days ahead. For reasons of security complete figures are not available. The facts presented, however, are impressive evidence of the growing might of Canada's war machine.
