SHERBROOKE FIFTY YEARS AGO.

(By MRS. MARY BROOKS GRAVES, 530 S.
Seneca Street, Wichita, Kan.)

Sherbrooke, at the present day, must present a very different appearance from the Sherbrooke of my earliest recollections. I have not seen it since my visit in 1878, but even at that time I found a great many changes.

Born in 1844, I can recall many events before the opening of the sixth decade of the nineteenth century. I remember the lumbering coaches that came and went to and from different points, and better still, the teams that went to Montreal and brought out goods to my father's store. I remember the building of the Grand Trunk Railroad through the town, the grand celebration on the opening of the road, when people from all the region round about gathered and took their first ride on platform cars.

It was in 1849 that my grandfather, Samuel Brooks, died in Montreal, at the close of Parliament, of which he was a member; and after a public funeral in Montreal, was brought to Sherbrooke and laid to rest in the New Cemetery in Upper Town, where soon his only daughter was buried near him. It must have been about 1849 that his son, George Brooks, with some other young men, went to California, drawn thither by the cry of gold, to return later with more experience than nuggets.

When 1850 dawned upon Sherbrooke it was a period of financial depression. The company that controlled the water-power of the Magog River held the rentals so high that manufacturers were carried on at a great disadvantage, and this restriction was felt in all branches of business.

In order to realize the growth of Sherbrooke during the past half century, I have written a partial description of the town as I remember it up to the time we moved away in 1860.

Beginning with the Magog bridge and going north on the east side, there was first a row of two-story frame buildings, in one of which was Griffith's store. Turning to the right along the river bank we only saw one large building, the ancient tannery, and one or two small huts. On the north side of the street was the home of Hon. Hollis Smith, who succeeded my grandfather as member of Parliament. There were some cottages, in one of which lived Manny Rice, a captain in house-cleaning times, and her husband, Daddy Rice. Grandma Barnard's house was here, very large and close to the street. A part of this house was, for a time, occupied by Miss Felton, who had a private school and taught music. She is the well-remembered people of that period. A lady of fine education, she had had all the advantages which could be obtained from a residence at the courts of Spain and Portugal, where her brothers represented England. She had spent a long time on the island of Malta with another brother, and followed these brothers to Sherbrooke. She had fine conversational powers, and it was always a delight to talk with her after the music lesson, or better still, to be invited to take tea with her and listen to her tales of other lands.

On the corner of the Island or Commercial street, stood the Magog House, kept for a great many years by Mr. Cheney and his family. Before the advent of the railroad this hostelry was a busy centre, from which the coaches came and went, and its large halls and parlors were in frequent use for social gatherings.

The next building was my father, Wm. Brook's store, frame at first, of only two stories, but was moved to Court street, to make room for a large brick block of three stories and basement. Near by, on the north side was the brick house occupied by my grandfather and family until his death. In the front room of the first floor was the bank, of which he was president.

There was only one other house, a cottage, before we came to the lower end of Court street. This was the office and home of Dr. Johnson, and was still standing in 1860. East of this was a large tenement house. On the north-east corner of Court and Main street stood the cottage of Charles Bell, low-roofed but roomy. It was very near both streets, but the garden extended north as far as the present site of the Congregational Church, and east to the edge of the bluff. I remember the wonderful beds of tulips and hyacinths, the lupins and bee larkspurs, and the Persian lilacs about the verandah. For many years after 1850 there was only a granite boulder north of Mr. Bell's, quite bare, except when covered by the mud pies of the little girls around. Later, this was made the firm foundation of the Congregational Church, or Scotch Church, as we called it. For lack of funds or lack of skill the front of the boulder was not disturbed, but was faced with a brick wall, and the entrance to the church was by steps at the south-west angle. As soon as the basement was completed it was used during the week by the academy girls until the new academy was built.

Behind the church was a cottage and pearl ashery, and beyond these swampy banks of bluffs. To the north, on Main street, was the home of Mr. and Mrs. Willard, almost hidden behind the orchard of crab apple trees. They lived alone, for their children were dead or moved away. Their yard extended to the north to the spacious home of my mother's uncle, Wm. Ritchie, later the home of Eleazer Clark. Northward there was nothing but gardens to the end of the street. At the end of the street, on the west side, Walter Beckett built his large brick house not far from 1850.

Starting back at the bridge again, and following north on the west side, there were two brick houses, one large and one a cottage, where the bank now stands. The larger house was rented for a great many years. One of the families in this house that I remember was that of Col. Crowski, exiled from Poland for his political opinions, who found a refuge in cosmopolitan Sherbrooke, where all true men were welcomed, without regard to politics, religion, or nationality. Later, Judge Gardner spent the last years of his life here, and later still, George Robertson lived here many years. In the cottage Mr. Halliwell lived a lonely life with his son Jack. Some of the occupants of the large house were disturbers of the peace, and he built a brick wall between the houses so high and so long that no prying eyes could annoy him. North of Mr. Halliwell's came a narrow, crooked street that went up the hill past the old Episcopal Church on the left, which was at one time used as a school room for the Academy boys. On the right hand, high up on a boulder, stood the old Academy school house of blessed memories to those who studied there. From 1852 until its burning in 1856, I was a fortunate student there under Miss Margaret Robertson, with only a short intermission, when Miss Jerusha Terrill took her place. Miss Robertson was one of those rare geniuses of the past, who could not only be proud, quick of intellect, warm of heart, no better teacher ever taught in those days. She made the interests of the scholars her own, and when she did not find the text books for us that she wanted, she wrote them herself, so we had Margaret Robertson's History of Canada, and History of Rome. I wonder whether any are in existence now. In order to interest us on composition days, she read to us the advance sheets of her stories. She was industrious out of school and a very rapid knitter. Down the girls' school stairs, Mr. Brown, the best known was a bright young man who had been lately studying divinity, but who was now studying medicine out of school hours, until one day the whole town was startled by the news that Mr. Brown, principal of the Boy's Academy, was one of a gang of burglars, and suspected of murder. When he was led by the Academy, his whilom loving pupils were ready with rotten eggs. The poor man's conscience troubled him; he could not bear to look upon the happy school children from his cell, so he hired an accomplice to burn down the Academy. A few years later he died in the penitentiary a thoroughly repentant man.

South from the school house, down by the river bank, was my father's paper mill, twice burned to the ground while he owned it. Farther up the narrow street on the left was the brick cottage of M. Tonancourt, a well known figure on the street, apparently without kinsman or friend, who lived and died alone.

Going back to Main street, the house on the corner, north of Mr. Halliwell's was the store and dwelling of Mr. Thompson, afterwards of his son-in-law, George Brooks. Later, the Eastern Townships Bank made its home here. The three two-story houses north were built very much alike. The first and second were occupied by the Rankins and Bryants. The third one was memorable as being the home for a long period of Captain John Felton and his wife. He had been court-martialed for some slight misdemeanor while in the English army, and came to Canada to forget, if possible, the dishonor. When the Prince of Wales visited Sherbrooke he restored Capt. Felton to rank and honor, a deed which gave great pleasure to all who knew him. Mrs. Felton was, I think, Portuguese, and spoke with the accent and idiom of her native land. It was a great pleasure to me when a child to go to her house, for she was a very charming woman.

The next building, on the corner of Court street, was the old Methodist Church up-stairs, while below were a shop and dwelling rooms. During the week, the long straight Methodist benches were shoved together to make room in one corner for Miss Mary Short's little school. The school appliances were few. An old box stove, a large square dining table, with benches devoid of backs ranged around it and a chair for Miss Short, were all. Here many of the children I knew began their school life, the Bells and Bowens, Clarks, Coles and Brooks among them. When we entered and left school we were required to salute Miss Short, the boys with a bow, the girls with a curtsy, saying, Good morning, or Good-day, Miss Short. We obeyed the letter, but not the spirit, for we seldom turned our faces towards her as we left the room. She was too refined and gentle to be very severe with the little girls, but boys were an enigma to her. It seems but a little while since Frank and Ned Bowen Methodist seats while she tried to catch them, ruler in hand. I shall never forget one noon, when Johnnie Griffith stood on the stove while Miss Short went through the form of kindling a fire under him. We fully expected to find him roasted to a crisp on our return to school.

Proceeding up Court street, the next house was the home of the Misses Cockburn. They had a little shop, where we children bought our wooden dolls, a penny or a copper apiece, and sticks of molasses candy rolled up tight in strips of discarded copy-books. Next came the last house on the street, so long identified with Joseph Walton and the Sherbrooke Gazette, for here, in the upper story, that paper was published until the new Market and Town Hall was built. Joseph Walton was a man whose influence for good was felt where ever the Gazette was carried, and its circulation was large for those times. He was strong to uphold what he believed to be the right, and "his faults even leaned to virtue's side." The first Mrs. Walton was one of Sherbrooke's most gifted daughters, not only a great help in the literary work upon the Gazette, but more than one brilliant lecture delivered before the Sherbrooke Lyceum, was the product of her bright intellect. Some years after her death, Mr. Walton was very fortunate in finding such a mother for his orphaned children, and into this peaceful home Miss Felton came when laid aside from work. The Walton yard was our highway to the school beyond. We climbed the little stairway to the upper garden, ran up a steep path, and a door in the garden wall opened directly into the school yard.

[The balance of this interesting narrative will be concluded in our Wednesday's issue.—EDITOR.]

NO BRONCHIAL ATTACKS SINCE THE USE OF CA- TARRHOZONE.

Mr. William Pollock, of Blyth, Ont., says: "I received your Catarrhozone in due time and have used it for six weeks and am well pleased with the results. My head feels better and I have had no bronchial attacks since I commenced using your treatment."

If you understood the properties of Catarrhozone you would not wonder that Mr. Pollock had no return of his disease and dangerously malady. Catarrhozone is carried by the air to the remotest air cell of the lungs, it bathes the bronchial tubes with its stimulating and healing powers, promotes expectoration, heals sore spots, soothes the inflamed mucous membranes. Surely a remedy capable of doing all this must and cannot fail to cure. Ask your druggists to tell you about Catarrhozone. 3ms31.

R. G. TRENHOLME DEAD.

WAS POSTMASTER AND A PROMINENT CITIZEN OF COATICOOK.

One of the best known and respected citizens of Coaticook and Stanstead County passed away at his residence in the former place on Friday, in the person of Mr. R. G. Trenholme, postmaster, after an illness extending over several weeks from heart trouble.

Mr. Trenholme was 60 years of age and was born in Trenholmeville, Que. He was the third son of the late Edward Trenholme, who came to Canada from Yorkshire, Eng., when a young man. Mr. Trenholme began business in his native village of Trenholmeville, conducting for several years a saw and grist mill. He sold out and went to Coaticook about thirty years ago. There he bought out the mill owned by Louis Sleeper and conducted it for several years in company with Mr. Tomkins. Later they built what was known as the Phoenix grist mill. Later, Mr. Trenholme, in company with Mr. F. H. Nuns, established the Coaticook woolen mill. After a few years, Mr. P. H. Armitage, brother-in-law of Mr. Trenholme, purchased Mr. Nuns' interest in the business. The mill was burned down some four years ago and soon after Mr. Trenholme sold his interest.

Soon after the coming to power of the Laurier Government in 1895, Mr. Trenholme was appointed postmaster of Coaticook, which position he has held ever since. Mr. Trenholme was a staunch Liberal in politics, and in 1892 was the Liberal standard bearer in Stanstead County at the Provincial election, his successful opponent being Mr. Hackett.

Mr. Trenholme was a prominent member of the Methodist Church and always a strong supporter of the temperance cause in the county.

Mrs. Trenholme, eldest daughter of the late Joseph Armitage, of Kingsley, survives her husband. Of several children, two sons and four daughters are living, viz.: Dr. Gilbert Trenholme, Dr. Ed. Trenholme, Mrs. (Dr.) Tomkins, of Stanstead, Mrs. Demary, of Springfield; and two married daughters who reside at home.

He had two brothers, Messrs N. W. Trenholme, K. C., Montreal, and the late Dr. C. H. Trenholme, Montreal.

The funeral took place at half past one this afternoon.

Hot After The Boers.

TWENTY OF DE WET'S WAGGONS CAPTURED.

A MAXIM AND TWENTY PRISONERS.

London, Feb. 16.—Lord Kitchener, telegraphing from De Aar, Cape Colony, under-to-day's date, says: "De Wet's force crossed the railway at Boartmon's Siding, north of here before daylight on Feb. 15, closely followed by Plumer, Crabbe and armored trains. They engaged the enemy while crossing. The Boers, however, cut the lines north and south of the place of crossing. "We captured over twenty waggons, many of which were loaded with ammunition, and also a Maxim, twenty prisoners and over a hundred horses. The troops are still in close pursuit."

Colesberg, Cape Colony, Feb. 14.—Plumer's column engaged De Wet between Colesberg and Philipstown on Feb. 13, and gradually pushed back the Boers. The British had a battery of field artillery and the Boers one 15-pounder. The shrapnel burst splendidly.

Ten of the British were wounded during many hours' fighting. An occasional dead Boer was found. The engagement is being continued to-day.

KITCHENER ON DE WET'S TRAIL.]

London, February 17.—A despatch to the Daily Telegraph from De Aar, dated February 16, confirms the report of the arrival there of Lord Kitchener and his staff to superintend the chase of General De Wet. The correspondent says: "De Wet's force is now denuded of almost all transport vehicles, and his horses are exhausted."

KILLED BY FALLING TREE.

Coaticook, Que., February 15.—A sad accident resulting in the instant death of a young man named Elsiear Dion, occurred about noon to-day in the woods a short distance from Coaticook. The deceased was in the employ of Mr. P. Dion, contractor for Messrs. St. Pierre and Laroche, cutting timber for pulp wood. A falling tree struck him on the head causing instant death. Deceased was about 21 years of age and had only been married a few months. The corner for the district of St. Frau, Dr. L. C. Bachand, was telephoned for from Sherbrooke, but did not deem an inquest necessary.

QUEBEC LEGISLATURE.

Quebec, Feb. 15.—The session this afternoon of the Legislative Assembly was a very short one, but none the less important for all that. Hon. Mr. Parent proposed a vote of condolence with His Majesty the King, and there was no speeches except that by the Premier and the leader of the opposition. When the speeches were concluded the House adjourned until Monday.

THE JOURNAL ON THE CON- TESTED ELECTION.

The Stanstead Journal ends an article on the Stanstead contested election case as follows:

"Bribery and corruption are now no new elements in Stanstead county elections and so long as they are practiced by both parties public sentiment will not be greatly aroused by contesting the election of the successful candidate."

SOME PEOPLE THINK that because we sell only good and thoroughly reliable Pianos, with the most musical tone qualities, we do not sell cheap enough Pianos to enable some to buy here. 'Tisn't so, just as we sell the best first grade at lowest prices, so we sell the best second grade Pianos at lowest prices, or the most musical tone best third grade Pianos. The fourth grade, the cheapest Pianos, we do not sell. The cheapest is always the poorest, and in Pianos you can't afford to buy them at any price. Why not call in and see the instruments, and learn the prices, and the very reasonable terms upon which each is sold. Or, if you can't call, write. Your communications will have prompt attention and all desired information will be cheerfully furnished.

SUDDEN DEATH.
Mrs. Woodward, relict of the late Capt. John Woodward, died very suddenly this morning. She had gone into the pantry for something about 8 o'clock, when she suddenly fell down and expired. The deceased has been failing in health some time and was quite a sufferer, but with patience and resignation she bore it all until rest has come at last. She was a faithful member of the Methodist Church, highly esteemed by all who knew her and given to good works. She will be missed greatly by her sorrowing children and friends, to whom we extend sympathy in this their hour of grief.

NERVOUS HEADACHE.
A very distressing and common malady doubtless has its origin in some unbalanced condition of the nervous system. One of the simplest, safest, and most efficient remedies is Nervine. Twenty drops in a little sweetened water gives almost immediate relief, and this treatment should be supplemented by bathing the region of pain with Nervine. To say it acts quickly fails to express the result. Druggists sell it everywhere. 3in31

SIXTY LIVES LOST.
MINERS ENTOMBED IN COAL MINE.
ENERGY OUTLET BLOCKED BY FLAMES.

NOT ONE WAS SAVED.
A late despatch from Vancouver states that not one of the entombed miners were saved. It will be several days before the bodies can be recovered as the water which was poured into the mine to quench the flames will have to be pumped out before a rescuing party can enter the mine.

Interest Laws of China.
The interest laws of China, with which the operations of banking are intimately connected, date from the year 1250 of our era. The enormous rate of interest is curiously defended by several writers. It results, they say, in securing economy, in that the borrower may repay the loan, in producing greater industry, in deterring persons from borrowing, in reducing the number of renters of land, thus increasing the number of landowners, and in inducing circumspection with regard to new enterprises. It is further stated by men of business that this 30 per cent is only a maximum founded on the probability that the oscillations in the price of silver will never exceed that sum. It is not to be understood, also, that the ordinary rate of interest rarely exceeds 20 or 22 per cent and that money may be had as low as 12 per cent, though the rate sometimes exceeds even 30 per cent.—Forum.

Christmas in China.
In China Christmas is a sun festival and has connection with the winter solstice. It is called the festival of the tree spirits, or in other localities the festival of the forest dragon. It is an occasion of much merriment, and one of the accompanying formalities is the renewal of the "ghost papers."

Muscular Rheumatism. produced by exposure, if neglected, develops into the chronic form with almost incredible rapidity. South American Rheumatic Cure is a quick-acting, safe, simple and harmless cure, acts directly on the system, not a liniment to temporarily deaden pain. An internal treatment that will absolutely cure most acute forms in from one to three days.—114

FUTURE OF GOOD HORSES.
Good Prospects For Breeders of Draft and Carriage Horses.
In harmony with progress generally the breeders in America have learned that horses must be raised for special purposes if the breeder would make his business most profitable, say Mr. Loughlin Bros. in The National Stockman. Of all the different types and breeds of horses probably the most in demand are work horses and carriage horses for pleasure driving. A rule, work horses are used for heavy draft, while carriage horses are intended to pull a light load at a moderate rate of speed.
The draft horse must in the first place have size and substance. He must have heavy bone to carry his great weight. Along with size he must be a good walker and a fairly easy trotter. However, the most serviceable gait for a draft horse is the walk.
With the renewal of industrial activity in this country the demand for draft horses has very largely increased, and no other class of horses have the market prices advanced so rapidly as they have for draft horses in all our American markets. Consequently there is a larger demand for stallions among farmers and breeders at the present time than has ever been known before in this country. The demand has developed so rapidly and has become so great in proportion with the supply that we have not been able to find in any of the draft horse breeding countries of the world one-tenth enough stallions. This condition of things leads us to believe that it will be impossible to also as many draft horses in America as there is a demand for, and as there will be a demand for, for 10 or 15 years in the immediate future.
The present prosperous conditions have increased the demand for pleasure horses as well. Men who are successful in their business, who are making money, are much inclined to invest in fine carriages and horses. There is probably no other means that contribute more to a man's pleasure and happiness than driving or riding behind handsome, high acting, fine appearing, attractive horses.
Although high class coach horses add for high prices during times of depression on account of their scarcity, yet the demand for them has also increased, and prices have advanced.
The farmers and breeders who have good trotting bred road mares and who breed them to high class coach stallions are sure to derive a profit in any event, because no matter what the times continue prosperous or the reverse there has been and always will be a demand for the kind of high acting carriage horses they will raise.

Improvement of English Short-horns.
Professor C. F. Curtis says: The Short-horn type appears to be more firmly established in this country than in England, breeders in the latter country being divided in their adherence to the true Short-horn type. There is more variation in public opinion there than here. I was disappointed in many of the herds I saw in England. This is the case with every American. Our foremost breeders raise as good cattle as the best in England. The British have more good breeders than we have in this country, but none better than our best. Great emphasis is placed on size. They are continually on the lookout for something that may improve their herds. Their best animals are not sold, but are kept as long as fit for service.
Inbreeding is practiced by all the leading breeders, but the breeding is preferable. More attention is given to the important matter of selecting a sire than here. Each breeder tries to get the best male out of his rival's herd. Even common breeders are looking for high priced sires. First consideration in purchase of sire is individual next, pedigree; third, price. A man had better pay $1000 for a sire if needed to improve his herd. Not doing this he had better stop. Make your cattle good enough, put them in good condition and they will sell themselves. The greatest barrier to successful breeding today is the scarcity of good sires and the multitude of poor ones.

A Piano Owned By General Grant's Mother was Made by Mr. T. A. Heintzman, Founder of the Old Firm of Heintzman & Co.

There is in existence to day a piano that was owned by General Grant's mother some sixty years ago. The instrument, of course, is of the old fashioned kind, but is still in good condition, and its so id rosewood case is bright and polished. It was made sixty years ago by Mr. A. T. Heintzman, founder of the old firm of Heintzman & Co., Toronto, who was then engaged in the manufacture of pianos in Buffalo, N. Y. The splendid condition in which it is found to-day, combined with its beauty of tone, is evidence of the fine work that Heintzman & Co. have always put into their pianos. There are hundreds of these firm's instruments throughout the Dominion, that have passed down from grandfather to father, and a link down to another generation. It is a fact that this old-established Canadian firm their pre-eminence as piano makers, not alone in their own country, but the world over. Complete stock of Heintzman & Co. Pianos may always be found at the warehouses of Sherbrooke Defeat Crescents.

SCORE WAS NINE TO THREE.

GAME WAS A FAST ONE.

The hockey match on Saturday evening, between the Crescents of Quebec and the Sherbrooke hockey team in the intermediate series was one of the best exhibitions of hockey ever witnessed on Sherbrooke ice this season. Long before the play began the rink was crowded with enthusiasts who had turned out to witness the contest between two of the best teams in the league. It may be mentioned, however, in passing, that when a match is advertised to start at a certain hour, that an attempt should be made to begin play near that hour and not keep the spectators shivering in the cold for an hour after the time advertised. There were more stops, too, in this match than in any played this season here, with the result that it was some time after eleven before the game closed. It speaks well for the interest in the game when it is mentioned that few if any left before time was called.

It was some time after 9 o'clock when Mr. MacLean, Montreal, who acted as referee, called the teams together for the face. Both teams seemed to be in the pink of condition. That the play would be close was generally conceded, for both teams started out with a rush. Within a few minutes of the start the strangers scored the first goal, but the Sherbrooke boys, nothing daunted, returned to the charge. That the Crescents' tactics were to be of a defensive nature was at once apparent when they placed two men in goal, and they came prepared for such a contingency, for both were padded, such as goalkeepers generally are. A captain of a team is no doubt at perfect liberty to place his men wherever he likes, but such a proceeding cannot be said to have the true ring of sport, and this certainly did not raise the team in the estimation of the spectators. The Sherbrooke forward line kept things lively around Crescents' goal, and sent in shot after shot, only to be caught by the two stalwarts from Quebec.

Crescents' forwards caught the puck on the outside and with a rush they scored goal number two. With the spirit that always predominates the home men play was again resumed and the attacks were just as frequent on the strangers' goal. The puck came up near the centre of the rink and Wiggett caught it. Like a flash of lightning he was down through the Crescents' defence, and the puck was landed in the net. Drooping spirits revived. There was hope yet for Sherbrooke. The same fast gait was maintained and within a few minutes the score was equal. It lacked but a few minutes of half time when Crescents scored the fifth game, and both teams withdrew for a rest with the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of Crescents.

The excitement was intense when the second half began. Both teams were quite fresh, and started in for the same fast work which characterized the first half. The play had only been on but a few minutes when Sherbrooke called the score equal, and with a rapidity that was lovely to behold, piled on three more in rapid succession. The two men were still in goal, and of them, when the Sherbrooke forwards came up with the puck, assumed an attitude as if supplanting that no more hot ones would come his way. But they did. Towards the latter part of this half one of the men in goal went out to the point and an endeavor was made to rush things, but the reliable defence was there and broke through it they could not, and they did not succeed in scoring a goal through this half. The whistle blew for time with the score: Sherbrooke 9, Crescents 3.

For the Sherbrooke team every one played a splendid game. The forward line at times exhibiting splendid hockey, while the defence cleared at critical moments in grand style. As regards the goalkeeper, it is only necessary to say that the old reliable Roque was between the posts.

The game all through was devoid of roughness.

The visitors no doubt were handicapped by the small rink. They knew just how to play into each other's hands, and when they got an opportunity showed that they were no mean exponents of the game. C. Nolan, one of the best fellows that ever slipped on a hockey boot, in the defence, and Demers in the forward line, put up a great game.

The teams were:

Crescents. Position. Sherbrooke.

Moran goal Roque

Doyle point Sangster

Nolan c. point Spafford

Garneau centre forward Moe

Demers centre Povey

McCarron rt. forward Johnston

Power lt. forward Wiggett

Bishop Gets Three Years

HAD PREVIOUSLY SERVED TWO TERMS.

PRISONER REMARKED THAT HE WOULD SOON BE SENT TO KINGSTON.

In the District Magistrate's Court this morning—Judge Mulvena presiding—Charles Bishop, who pleaded guilty on Saturday to obtaining money by false pretences, in that he went around the city and county with a subscription list claiming to be in aid of a party who had lost everything by fire at North Hatley some time ago. His companion Desendes, was liberated on Saturday for want of evidence.

Bishop, on being placed at the bar this morning, admitted that he was the same Charles Bishop who was sentenced to two years in the penitentiary in 1895, and again on the 15th of October, 1897. "This time," said the Court in passing sentence, "you have pleaded guilty to a charge of obtaining money under false representation. The law was such that a charge could be laid against you for every one of the persons from whom you obtained money, and there were over one hundred of them. You appealed to the best instincts of those parties by telling them a pitiable lying tale that was made out of whole cloth. I cannot see any hope of reform in you, and you will continue to be a burden to society by preying upon them when out of the penitentiary. The limit of punishment under the charge to which you have pleaded guilty, was three years, and I have not the slightest hesitation in giving you the full limit."

Prisoner—Can you let me have a word with you?

The Judge—You cannot make any remarks now.

Prisoner—Well, I want to get time to dispose of my horse and sleigh.

The Judge—You can apply to the proper officers for that.

Prisoner (stretching out his arm for the bracelet which High Constable Moe presented him with)—They will not keep me long at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. I would sooner go to Kingston than St. Vincent Penitentiary.

He was then removed.

One of the members of the Bar remarked that prisoner seemed to have sufficient experience so as to be able to make a choice.
