The plans and machinery were supplied and installed by the Alis Chalmers Co., world renowned flour mill builders. The work of enlarging the building was under the direction of J. M. Lamotte, of Valleyfield, and Donald McNair, of Huntingdon.

The new mill will have a capacity of 3600 bags of flour per week.

CIRCUIT COURT County of Huntingdon

On the 7th day of November, 1925, the Honorable Justice J. C. Walsh rendered judgment in two cases which were heard before him, at a Special Session of the said Court, held at the Court House, Town of Huntingdon, on October 20th, inst.

The cases were as follows:

The Corporation of the Township of Godmanchester, Plaintiff, sued Frederick Harrigan and Dame Mary Nicholson, Defendants, for the sum of $111.58 for taxes due as appeared by the assessment roll of said Township for the years 1922, 1923, and 1924, after Notice and a seizure made, in virtue of a warrant of distress issued against the defendants.

The defendants opposed the seizure, alleging that the said seizure was null, because:

1. The lots subject to taxes were not designated;
2. The name of the opponent was incorrectly entered on the roll;
3. The moveables and immovables, appearing in Fred Harrigan's name, are held by the mother, the other defendant, as Institute of a substitution, under a bill filed, and not liable for said taxes; Wm. F. Harrigan, the co-defendant is only a substitute under a substitution not open;
4. F. Harrigan signed a note for said taxes to assist his mother, the other defendant, which note was accepted by plaintiff and not returned to defendant.

Plaintiff contested the oppositions of defendants and denied the allegations thereof, adding more-over:

1. That the two defendants used the property in common and were in possession thereof;
2. Opponent did not give her note to the Corporation, but to T. W. Furey, who was not authorized to accept same and said note was deposited in the present case;

Whereas, Opponents alleged in answer that the note given to Furey was to the knowledge of plaintiff and ratified by the latter;

Whereas, the parties joined issue by their other pleadings;

The following are the conclusions of the Judge:

Considering that opponents acted as proprietor of the property taxed that all necessary formalities were observed; that opponent acknowledged his indebtedness to plaintiff that the note given by opponent was not given to plaintiff; that opponents failed to establish the allegations of their oppositions; that plaintiff has established the allegations of the contestation.

DOTH DISMISS the said oppositions with costs.

HERDMAN

The ladies of Rennie's United Church held a very successful Chicken Pie supper last evening in the Herdman Town Hall. The proceeds which are to go towards a building fund amounted to $108. After the supper was served the Rev. H. Gillingham called the gathering to order when a varied programme was rendered. Those who assisted in the program from distant communities were Miss Taylor, Ormstown, and Mr. G. P. Osmond of Ormstown, soloists, accompanied by Miss Winter of Ormstown. Mrs. Chas. Cleland gave a number of readings, and Mr. John Graham favored the audience with violin solos and was accompanied by Mrs. Goldie. The Rev. Father Amals was present and made short and inspiring remarks which received a

QUE. HOLSTEINS WIN AT TORONTO

Donat Raymond's Entries Take Two Championships — T. B. Macaulay's One

Toronto—Montreal owned Holsteins came out well at the Royal Winter Fair here.

In the face of keen competition from representatives of the United States and Canada, stars from the Raymond Farm, Vaudreuil, of Donat Raymond, and stars from the farm of T. B. Macaulay, Hudson Heights, took considerable honors. The Macaulay entry took one championship while the Raymond entries took two reserve senior championships.

W. S. Moscrop of Stelmo, Minn., the judge, declared it was the best show he had judged in years. Mr. Moscrop judged at the national show in the United States, which corresponds to the Royal Winter Fair here. He declared that the class of aged cows, in which Mr. Raymond's cow, Countess Heimke, came out on top, to be the finest aged cow class this year.

The quality of the Quebec exhibits can be gathered from the fact that Mount Victoria Farms' champion heifer Bonheur Abberkerk Posch II. was made all-American junior champion for 1925, while Raymond's two-year-old bull Brookholm Inka and his yearling half-sister were made reserve all-American progeny of cow.

The Quebec herds either topped the classes or stayed in the money in every class exhibited. Raymond's bull won his class and was later made reserve champion. Brookholm Inka also won the four cows in milk class.

Surprise Reception Tendered To Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kelly

Upon their return from Montreal last Friday, Mr. James Kelly and Mrs. Kelly (formerly Miss M. L. O'Connor) found around sixty of their friends and neighbors of the Gore assembled at their home to welcome them. A splendid supper was daintily served by the ladies and in a few very fitting remarks Mr. Herdman presented Mr. and Mrs. Kelly with a Silver Tea Service and a quantity of Flat Silver. Although taken very much by surprise, Mr. Kelly very gratefully thanked all those present, on behalf of Mrs. Kelly and himself, for their thoughtfulness and every-one left feeling that a very pleasant evening had been spent.

The Girls' Branch of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Mark's Anglican Church gave one of the most enjoyed bazaars and enjoyable concerts on Saturday afternoon and evening that has been held in Valleyfield. At the bazaar there were attractive booths with handwork and foodstuffs on sale; there was a fishpond and a fortune teller. In spite of the wet weather a good crowd turned out. In the evening the day's effort was capped by a concert whose program was largely local talent but included numbers by Mr. Albert Brown, tenor of the St. James United Church choir, Montreal and Mr. Tally, also of Montreal, who, assisted by his son, contributed considerable fun. "Nora" the bewitching doll was raffled and the lucky number was 127, held by Mrs. Bissonnette, Valleyfield. Several popular songs were rendered by a chorus of pretty girls, daintily and tastefully dressed in white, the ensemble effect of which was both delightful to the eye and pleasing to the ear. A playlet "Sewing for the Heathen" provided much mirth and displayed acting ability of such merit that it should be fostered and developed. The girls were under the direction of Mrs. C. W. Gurnham, who was assisted in the music by Miss Lulu Gurnham. Rev. C. W. P. Baugh was chairman for the evening.

FRENCH TEACHING GRATIFIES INSP. PARKER

Inspector Parker Expresses Hope That School Boards Will Seriously Consider Question of Consolidated Schools

Inspector Parker who has just visited Huntingdon Academy, we were very pleased to hear that he was very much gratified over the great advancement made in the teaching of the French language. Mr. Parker said that 1924 showed marked improvement over previous years, but this year the pupils are much more fluent and have good pronunciation, all of which reflected much credit upon Assistant Principal Hall, who is performing duties as French Specialist. Inspector Parker not only spoke highly of the successes made through the efforts of Mr. Hall but also expressed his gratification over the successes attained by the whole staff under Principal McMillan. The one outstanding feature which impressed Inspector Parker was the harmony which prevailed amongst all the classes and the staff.

Inspector Parker is in hopes that the School Board will take up the question of Consolidated Schools and act upon it in the very near future. He stated that in other sections of the province where such consolidations were being carried on, the pupils were receiving a much better education. Many a mother having made the remark to him that in two months education at a Consolidated School the pupil received as much education as they would during the full term at the rural school. In regards to the financing of such a school, he said it had cost a little more than the present system but that the difference in the education the child received outweighed all such questions, and that this year the Department of Education had increased the grants so as to encourage such a form of education as that the extra cost to manage such Consolidated Schools was now such, that no increases were necessary in school taxes. He was under the impression that if such an educational move were made here the matter could be financed easily without making any advance in the rate of school taxation. The children from the rural parts are taken to the schools in vans and during 1924 not a single day was missed on account of bad roads and only one day missed during the previous year. This is a matter well worthy of due consideration by all the school boards, the parents, and every citizen who is interested in the welfare of the young people of Canada.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH BURNT AT FT. COVINGTON

Net Loss Reckoned To Be $25,000. Fire Thought to Have Originated in Furnace Room.

On Monday at 1 p.m. the Presbyterian Church on High Street was discovered to be on fire. The firemen were promptly on the scene but it was beyond control. It is thought that it had been burning all night from the furnace in the basement. By 3 p.m. it was burnt to the ground. The buildings nearby were carefully watched. The church was a brick structure with a pipe organ and had been refurbished a few years ago. The church was insured for $5000 and it is estimated that the net loss will be in the neighborhood of $25,000.

Fort Covington's First Presbyterian Church was erected in 1827 and the brick edifice now destroyed was constructed in Covington street in 1866. The first pastor was the late Rev. Chas. A. Savage, who, in after years, became president of a Wisconsin college.

Rev. John H. Gardner is the present pastor of the church. He stated that no effort will be made to rebuild the edifice until next spring. SUCCESSSES AT ROYAL WINTER FAIR TORONTO

Some Notable Triumphs In Ayrshire Cattle Class — Quebec Honors

For the first time in the history of Canadian show rings Eastern and Western animals have competed under one roof. At the Royal Winter Fair dairy cattle from British Columbia and Prince Edward Island came out in the same classes, with animals from all of the intervening Provinces as well. The Royal show this year is really a national show. Indeed, it is more than that, for some of the best blood from across the line is also represented. To add the final touch, the Ayrshire men have selected a notable Scottish judge, A. W. Montgomerie of Ochiltree, to place their awards.

Ayrshires were out in the largest numbers. The Scottish judge, Mr. Montgomerie, was frankly amazed at the showing. "It far exceeds my expectations," he stated. "I doubt whether we could gather together in Scotland as strong an aged-bull class as you have here." In numbers the Ayrshires were about 30 below last year, but with 273 animals entered they easily led all other dairy breeds. The classes were so uniform that the judge had a difficult task in placing the first four or five. Stratglass Roamer, a two-year-old bull owned by James E. Davidson, Ithaca, Mich., won the senior and grand championship. He was the grand champion of the National Show in 1924 and 1925, and he easily topped his class and carried off the championship honors. The junior championship went to Ottawa Supreme 15th, a youngster owned by the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa. He is a bull of exceptional type and quality. In the five-year-old cow class 22 animals came out, making one of the strongest classes ever seen in America. The President of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association, Edwin E. Wells, of Sardis, B. C., did very well with some animals he brought down from the Pacific Province.

Quebec Honors.

In Ayrshires the province of Quebec was well represented and the breeders were again successful in bringing more honors to the province by their winnings at the Royal Winter Fair.

R. R. Ness and Sons, of Burnside won first in dry record class, senior and grand champion honors on Burnside Bystress Andriette for the fourth time this year, seventh on senior yearling heifer, fourth on junior yearling, eighth on senior calf, fifth on graded herd, third on junior herd, fourth on dairy herd, second on progeny of cow, fourth on record sire.

D. T. Ness, Howick, seventh on two-year heifer dry, and junior yearling, fifth on junior herd, first on Brachura Farms, Ormstown, first on Jenkins Special, seventh on graded herd, eighth on junior herd, sixth on dairy herd.

Mr. E. C. Budge, of Montreal, won third on Thornecroft Hyacinth, two-year heifer dry, second on senior yearling, with Thornecroft Trinker, also eighth with Thornecroft Cony, eighth on record cow dry.

The Howick-Huntingdon Club exhibited won first place. James E. Davidson, Bay City, Mich., won first on get of sire and progeny of cow and dairy herd on Quebec-bred cattle.

TO PREVENT POWER EXPORT

Quebec Clause Forbids Sale to U.S. Through Another Province

In view of water power developments expected at points near the Ontario border, the provincial Government has altered its terms of lease contracts for the harnessing of such waterfalls, so as to prevent any of the horsepower being exported to the United States.

Not satisfied with the clause which, in the case of the Grande Decharge and the Chute a Caron works, prevented the export of power across the border, and not even with the ordinary condition that permits granted could be altered from time to time, an additional clause has been inserted in lease, by which power, even when taken to another province, cannot from that province be exported to the United States, or the lease may be subject to cancellation. A few recent leases have been subjected to such terms, and in future, until the policy of the prime minister has been altered, a protective clause must be signed by those intending to harness waterfalls in this province.

Fraser, Secretary of our Municipality accompanied Mr. Philps, M.L.A. to Montreal when they jointly waited upon Mr. Perron, Minister of Roads in regards to the claim against Dundee for $2600. INDIANS WANT CANADA GO DRY

Indian Writes Miss Helen Clark and Asks, "Is Canada a Slacker?"

The following passionate appeal from an Indian woman, in the state of Washington, was received by Miss Helen Clark, a former missionary amongst the Western Indians, a few days ago. It speaks for itself and shows not only our lack of neighborly kindness, but also the strong effort we are making to destroy our own sons. We cannot clear our skirts by asking, "Lord, is it he?"

The answer is immediate, "He that dipeth his hand with me."

We, who are called by His holy name are the wreckers of our brethren. When the writer knew the Reservation from which this letter came, it was governed by a strong Christian Chief. He had been saved from drink by the grace of God and he mercifully fought the traffic. He skookumed any one bringing it into the Reservation. Drinkers from other tribes who wanted to be free from the curse sought a home under his protection. His son, who succeeded him, followed him in his sin, but not in his repentance, and died as a fool dieth. Coming home the worse of drink, his horse struck a stone in a shallow brook and he fell face down in two inches of water. The Reservation is now open and the Canadians are flooding it with rum. Why kick the drunk on Indian for his weakness, when we, his stronger brothers and sisters are putting it in his hands by our influence and vote.

"Up, Christians up, and be doing, Arouse from your base repose, If you take not the part of His foes, Fling the headage of party spirit, And fetters of self aside, Why waste with your light and knowledge?"

The souls for whom Christ died." This letter is addressed to every Canadian who loves his country and her good name. This cry is from a mother who has suffered as only a mother can suffer.

"I have a boy of nineteen years, and another boy son of seventeen. They are at the age when they resent the least restraint. The oldest is by nature a clean boy, he does not smoke but he drinks. The youngest smokes too much and drinks too when he can get it. The fault is mine, I must have made a mistake some where in bringing them up."

What I want to know is why our country does not go dry? We are near the line, the stuff is smuggled across and it is not fair. What with air, motor and truck transportation we are utter helplessness to keep it out. I pray for the pardon of those who thrust it on us before God takes his restraining hand from them. In the meantime, my grip seems to slip on my sons. Should a leading nation like Canada sneeze into our homes and rob us of our much needed money and sappy young boys with their grog?"

What was the temperance movement doing in your country when we were working here?"

I am an Indian, but, I always knew the evils of drink, and endorsed every move that won against the saloon. Can it be that a white people who must be wiser than an Indian woman shut their eyes to the sin of drink enough to impose it on those who have proved again and again the benefit of a sober mind.

It is like a stab in the back by a grown up sister. Is Canada a slacker? We have stills, but they could be run down easy, if Canada would go dry and empty her whiskey into the rivers.

This is the thorn that tears at my heart.

You, who can speak, why not tell people these sad facts and see if they will not do something."

The Control of the St. Lawrence.

Last week the Privy Council delivered a judgment which declared that the bed of the St. Lawrence was under the control of the Provinces of Quebec and Ontario and not within the jurisdiction of the Dominion government. Hitherto the Dominion has expended all the monies required for building harbours, wharves, and dredging channels, because the St. Lawrence is a navigable river of first importance to the Canadian people, but, if the summaries of the judgment which have been cabled from London are correct, it would appear that the highest judicial body in the Empire has ruled that the ownership, and therefore the consent, vests in the provinces.

The case rose in a simple way. A resident in the east end of Montreal disputed the right of the Harbour Commission to erect works so that his access to the river was cut off. By the judgment his argument was upheld, but it also appears to have opened up a far wider issue. If the ruling is correctly reported it would appear that the Dominion has no primary obligation to build harbours, dredge channels, or build the South Shore Bridge. True, there is little fear of any provincial government refusing to let the Dominion spend money on such works, but nevertheless the change of status must be considered.

For hundreds of years the St. Lawrence has been the great highway into Canada. Of recent years that traffic has greatly increased and each year millions of dollars are spent in order that navigation may be safer. At the same time an agitation has arisen to set the river to another use; the development of electric power. This plan has been endorsed by Ontario and opposed by Quebec. The Dominion government has an investigating board considering the question, but no definite conclusions have been arrived at. With the Privy Council ruling the the Provinces are in control of the river bed, it is possible that new steps will be taken United States so that the upper levels may be put to power uses, although it must be admitted that this is not likely to be done. Quebec might in retaliation seek to control and direct the lower levels of the St. Lawrence. Each province would incur heavy expenditures and Quebec would have to tax the shipping while Ontario would place a still heavier burden on its taxpayers to uphold the success of the public-owned Hydro. The people of Canada do not crave sectional ownership. To Canada the St. Lawrence is part of the common heritage. The wheat farmers of the West benefit just as much from it as the farmers and manufacturers of the East, but the possibilities for a technical squabble are such that the authorities should come to a common understanding at once. Years ago, before the Union of Upper and Lower Canada, much bitterness was caused by the navigation taxes on goods passing through to Upper Canada. By uniting the provinces this was overcome, but this is another day and recent events have shown another split between Quebec and Ontario, a condition which Canada cannot allow to grow worse.

The Bloc System.

One of the ironies of the recent federal election was that the two old parties went into it with the determination to wipe out the Western bloc. The speakers roared and the editorial writers pled, with the result that on October 29th the Western bloc was wiped out and in its place came the Maritimes Rights bloc, the Quebec bloc, and the Ontario bloc.

Mr. King crossed Canada asking for support on a plea for national unity—and three large bloc groups resulted. Mr. Meighen preached a gospel of high protection and failed entirely in one of the great industrial provinces, Quebec. There are those who say that the campaign in Quebec was based on racial cries and not protection, but those of us who read Mr. Patenaude's speeches and listened to his candidates, know that it was protection that he was making the issue. La Minerve, the official Conservative political weekly, on November 7th declared:

"La question du tarif A, certainement, encore été la dominante, au cours de cette élection. C'est la répétition du genre de discussions faites, dans les luttes électorales, depuis plus de trente ans. Politique de protection, d'un côté, politique de libre échange ou encore de réciprocité limitée de l'autre. Et après chaque élection, qu'est-il arrivé? Le parti que le vote populaire a élevé au pouvoir a modifié sa politique tarifaire autant que possible, suivant les besoins et exigences de chaque province, de l'est et de l'ouest du Dominion, et le parti de l'opposition de s'écrier souvent: le parti ministériel nous a emprunté ou ravi une partie de notre programme politique tarifaire."

(The tariff question has certainly been the dominating one during this election. It was a repetition of the species of discussions raised during the election campaigns of the past thirty years. A policy of protection on the one hand, a policy of free trade, or restricted reciprocity on the other. And after each election, what has happened? The party placed in power has modified its tariff policy as much as possible following the needs and exigencies of each province, East and West, and the party in opposition has as often cried: the government has borrowed or stolen a part of our tariff program.)

There is no doubt about it the tariff was an issue in Quebec and it failed. In the Maritimes the so-called "Maritime Rights" played a far greater part in the fight than did the tariff. The Eastern provinces do not stand to gain anything by a high tariff wall, but with them times are bad and the Liberal rule of the last four years has not brought about the change they wanted. In the West, the voters followed provincial leaders and not Mr. King or Mr. Meighen. No, neither Mr. Meighen nor Mr. King can find much satisfaction in the results of October 29th, so far as the main issues raised by them are concerned.

Race Cries.

A personal letter has been received by the editor taking us to task for our statement published last week, that in the elections race and creed cries were raised in Ontario. It would give us greater pleasure to agree than to disagree with the writer's statement, for we, as English-speaking citizens of Quebec, do not view with any satisfaction the continuation of the anti-conscription cry in our Province. Yet, as we read the Toronto papers during the election campaign we found that flag waving and conscription were being used just as much, if not more, in English-speaking Ontario, than contrary cries were shouted in Quebec. For example in the Toronto Telegram of October 27th there was a page report of a Conservative meeting in Massey Hall. Near the bottom of the page was a two column box which read:

"Let West York honor the soldiers who fought for Liberty and vote for Sir Harry Drayton, the civilian who stood behind the soldiers."
"Let West York never forget the civilians who fought for Laurier in 1917. And West York should vote against Alexander Macgregor and every other civilian who stood behind Laurier."

Part of the reading matter which followed was:

"Personal kindness of Mr. Alexander Macgregor's private procedure in relation to returned soldiers in the years after the war cannot atone for the Public Cruelty of Mr. Alexander Macgregor's policy to the soldiers, who would never have returned if West York and other constituencies had supported Sir Wilfrid Laurier and opposed the Military Service Act in 1919 as the W.L.M. King candidate opposed the military Service Act and supported Sir Wilfrid Laurier in 1917.

"Every vote for Alexander Macgregor, every vote against Sir Harry Drayton is a vote for Hon. W. L. M. King. Just W.L.M. King, per his Laurierite anti-conscriptionist candidate, that's all. And its plenty. In fact too much for the men and women of the great recruiting constituency of West York."

We came across many articles of similar nature during our election reading, and for that reason think that we are correct in assuming that race, religion and flag-waving played a part in the campaign in Ontario, just as they played a part in Quebec. It is not to the credit of either province, but it is better to look facts in the face than to assume a 'holier than thou' attitude. The task for the people in each province is to discourage these shouters of sectionalism.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. JAMES PRINGLE

Death has again visited our community and taken from our midst one of our highly respected members. After a very brief illness Mrs. James Pringle passed to the Great Beyond on Thursday evening, Nov. 12th. The deceased was much loved by her many friends and neighbours for her genial, kindly spirit and her ever-ready word of appreciation and sympathy for all. Hers was a life of quiet faith in God and trust in her fellowmen.

The funeral service which was held at the United Church, Franklin Centre on Sunday at 10 a.m., was conducted by the Rev. H. H. Gillingham, who took for his text, "What is your life?" The burial was at Athelstan, where the deceased lived for a number of years prior to her residence in Franklin.

She leaves to mourn her loss five daughters and three sons, Mrs. M. E. Young, Franklin Centre; Mrs. S. B. Pelton, Burke, N.Y.; Miss Margaret Pringle, Chateaugay, N.Y.; Mrs. Fred Coulson, Jersey City, N.J.; Mrs. Nettie Vallie, Groton, Conn.; James and Henry Pringle, Groton, Conn.; and John Pringle, Rhode Island.

THE LATE

MRS. ELIZABETH CORBETT

Mrs. Elizabeth Corbett, formerly of Huntingdon passed away at her late residence, 200 North Underhill St., Peoria, Ill., Oct. 31st, 1925 at 2 a.m. in her 78th year. She was the widow of the late Wm. W. Corbett, a resident of Huntingdon for fifty years. She is survived by four children, Mrs. Maude Henderson of Winnipeg and Violet John and Cliffina Corbett of Peoria, Illinois.

DEWITTVILLE

Last week Mrs. Geo. Moore visited in Russelltown Flats with Mrs. Pettes, an old lady of ninety-four years, who is still in good health and spirits.

Miss Beatrice Holiday was home for the week end.

Miss Upton returned home on Friday after visiting for a week with Mrs. Allan Ritchie.

There being a Masonic service in the Presbyterian church, Huntingdon on Sunday afternoon, there was no service here.

Miss Irene Holiday visited her sister Mrs. Cogland in Huntingdon, a couple of days last week.

Mrs. Trueman Derick of Noyan, Que. is spending a short time with her aunt, Miss Margaret Gilbert, who is convalescing after an operation for the removal of a small growth on the side of her face.

Mrs. Van Vliet returned home on Saturday after staying a week in Lacolle with his daughter, Mrs. Hewson.

The young people are busy practising for the concert which they intend to stage about Christmas time.

The heavy rains of the past few days, have brought the water in the Chateaugay River up almost to flood mark. The water is also exceedingly muddy, showing that the earth is being carried from the surrounding fields, into the river to be deposited nobody knows where.

RIVERFIELD

Guests at the Manse for Thanksgiving were Misses Ella Brown and Florence Seybold.

Miss Yeoman, Maisonneuve, is visiting with her sister at Miss Logan's.

Special Armistice and Thanksgiving services were conducted in Riverfield and Howick on Nov. 8th. At the close of the morning service, all marched to the War Memorial where a wreath was placed at its base by Mrs. John Milne, Sr., and all joined in the singing of the National Anthem.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Esdon, of Cornwall visited at her home for Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Wallace Younie and children spent the past week with her parents at Riverfield.

BEAUHARNOIS

Last Friday evening a most instructive address was given in Trinity Church by Rev. H. H. Corey, of Japan who told of his work among the Japanese during the past five years. Mr. Corey is a very rapid speaker and gave a great deal of information in the time he was speaking and held the interest of the audience from start to finish.

Last week when Mr. and Mrs. Geo. McTherson were absent from their home, their house was broken into during the afternoon, by breaking the glass in the window and then opening it. Everything in the house was thrown around, evidently in search for money. We understand some money was stolen. There are suspicions as to who the guilty ones are but there is no evidence as yet to bring about conviction.

On Saturday evening two cars crashed into each other on the road in front of Miss Kilgour's, one of them being sent over the ditch and through the fence, knocking down two panels and ending up against an apple tree. This car just escaped striking a large tree that is in line with the fence. There was no occasion for an accident such as this, as there is a straight road with plenty of room. Some say the cars were racing. Both had to be taken away by Langlois service car to his garage.

Mrs. Millidge, wife of the manager of the paper mill, has taken up her residence here. She has come from Cornwall, Mr. McNaughton, with Mrs. McNaughton, late from Scotland, have also arrived. Mr. McNaughton is to have the oversight of the work which is to be carried on in the mill, in making some changes in the paper-making machines.

ORMSTOWN

A congregational meeting of St. Paul's United Church was held in McDougall Hall, Wednesday evening for the purpose of launching the drive for this church's share of the Maintenance and Extension Fund. The large attendance showed the interest taken by the congregation. The audience enjoyed the addresses of Rev. N. McMurray and Mr. Dent Harrison, as well as the music furnished by the choir and a vocal solo by Miss Walsh. Also the social hour held at the close when refreshments were served.

School Inspector Parker paid his annual visit to the High School on Monday and found everything in a very satisfactory condition. At a meeting of the School Commissioners in the evening he complimented the Board on the high standing the School had taken in the past year, and now that the teachers had overcome the hard part of taking the school out of the rut that it had been in for the past few years, he looked for still further improvement with the present efficient staff of teachers. Inspector Parker, recommended that hot tea or cocoa be served during the winter months at the noon hour to scholars bringing their lunch to school. Mr. Parker was told that the commission had already taken this matter up and that arrangements were practically completed for serving hot drinks at the noon hour.

The Annual General meeting of shareholders of the Live Stock Breeders' Association of the District of Beauharnois will be held in the Town Hall, Ormstown, on Wednesday, Nov. 25th.

The time-honored knife of the surgeon, the barge of his calling, now has a successful rival, which already is in use in the Jefferson Hospital at Philadelphia. It is the cutting needle, in which such a high degree of heat is generated by electricity that when it is gently applied to the skin the tissues instantly fall apart, cleanly, by mere contact.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY NOW RANKS SEVENTH

That over a million motor vehicles have been manufactured to date in Canada is one of many interesting facts relating to the Automobile Industry contained in a booklet "Facts and Figures of the Automobile Industry in Canada" recently published by the Automotive Industries of Canada, the trade association of manufacturers of motor vehicles, tires, parts and accessories in this country, of which Mr. T. A. Russell, who recently spoke in Orillia, is President.

Automobile manufacturing has been carried on in Canada continuously for just twenty-one years. Ten years ago the industry assumed large proportions and to-day it stands in the front rank of the Dominion's industrial enterprises. More than a hundred thousand Canadians are now employed in relation to the industry and its products, and over half a million persons in Canada are dependent on the manufacture and use of motor vehicles.

There are only two countries in the world—the United States and Great Britain in which a greater number of motor vehicles are owned than in Canada; while in proportion to the population, one car to every fourteen persons, the Dominion of Canada ranks next to the United States.

In value of Canadian products of all classes the Automobile Industry stands seventh. At the top naturally are the agricultural products, first being flour and grist mill products, then pulp and paper, third, meat products and so on.

It is interesting to note, however, that while the industry stands seventh in total value of production, it stands fourth in value of exports, being surpassed only by grain and grain products, pulp and paper products and wool and wool products. All of these are specially related to Canada's natural resources, and the development that has taken place in export business of the motor industry is remarkable in that Canada has no special advantages for manufacture due to availability of necessary raw materials.

It is also interesting to note that while for a number of years imports of motor vehicles were large, Canada has now exported twice as many motor cars as have been imported and this tendency should continue more and more marked in the future.

It is an interesting fact that 80c today will purchase as much motor car as $1.00 would in 1913. This is the more remarkable in that prices of other manufactured goods, many of which are used in motor car manufacture, have so increased in price that it takes on an average $1.59 to purchase the same articles as was purchased for $1.00 in 1913. This reduction of sale price of motor vehicles and of tires has been brought about by tremendous efficiency in manufacture and by mass production, and has been accomplished at a time when prices of other commodities have steadily and almost universally advanced.

In 1923 and 1924 the Federal Government collected $32,000,000.00 in customs duties, sales and excise taxes on motor vehicles, parts and engines, while the Provinces collected $24,000,000.90 in fees of various kinds—a total of $56,000,000.00 collected in two years on motor vehicle account, or an average of $28,000,000.00 per annum. Allowing $3,000,000.00 for customs drawback on exports, a net revenue of $25,000,000.00 annually accrues to the Dominion, including the Provinces, from motor vehicle use in Canada.

The extent to which cars are now being manufactured in Canada is not generally understood. When tires, wheels, springs, axles, chassis, body, fenders, lamps, windshields, motor, transmission, differential, battery, upholstery and top are individually the products of Canadian factories, the car in which these component parts are assembled has well earned the designation—"Made in Canada."

The booklet also contains the interesting information that although a few motor vehicles were made in Canada before the beginning of the present century, automobile manufacturing on a considerable scale dates from 1904, a total of 117 motor vehicles being produced in the fiscal year ending July 31st, 1905. The total by the following year dropped to 99, but thereafter rose steadily—327 vehicles being built in the year ending July 31st, 1907; 524 in the following fiscal year, 1,185 in 1908-09, 2,643 in 1909-10-11. By the end of 1916 a total of approximately 135,000 cars had been made in Canada. In the year 1917 the industry made rapid progress, a total of 93,810 cars being built in that year. Complete statistical records for year 1925 give a total of 1,031,046 cars, in value $789,011,129.

THE BARBER SHOP

It used to be a jolly place
Where men could smoke and chat
And swap the latest funny yarns—
But the girls have stopped all that.
No prize-fight pictures on the walls,
The pink gazette is gone.
The waiting men sit, silent, sad
With now and then a yawn.
Each time the barber calls out "Next!"
The flappers all arise:
If some poor guy claims it's his turn,
They freeze 'im with their eyes.
The girls now go to fights and games;
Their shyness all has flown.
There's soon won't be a spot on earth
That men can call their own.

Gold is being sent in large quantities from New York to Canada. Through the vagaries of exchange a Canadian dollar is at present five thirty-seconds of one per cent more than a United States dollar. Hence the shipment of gold instead of paper credits to balance exchanges. It is estimated that these shipments will amount to $30,000,000. Five thirty-seconds of one per cent would equal $30,000 on $32,000,000. The premium has since risen another point, 3-16ths of one per cent, or $60,000 on $32,000,000. This profit goes to New York financiers, not to the people of Canada.

MEN AND BOOKS

The history of the crises of modern France has always been that of one outstanding personality. Possibly this is more or less true in all the Latin countries, while among the more stolid, or shall I say less temperamental peoples like the Anglo-Saxons or other Nordic races, the policy and not the person assumes the leading rôle.

The French mandate over Syria was apparently hailed with delight and at the present moment all Syria seems to be flinging with revolt with the extreme nationalistic tendencies, bidding fair to drive out the French. Who, what, then is responsible for this bouleversment? The Syrians blame the French, and the same of the French blame the government, others place the responsibility squarely upon the shoulders of General Sarrail, High Commissioner to Syria.

This city is the oldest in the world and the Oriental has a saying to the effect that the world began at Damascus and will end there. There are a few outstanding chapters in the chronology of this city. In the book of Genesis there is mention several times, David led an expedition against it, and after the battle of Issus in 333 B.C., when Alexander destroyed the Persian armies of Darius, Damascus was delivered into the hands of the Greeks.

Under the Peace Treaty at Versailles France was given the mandate over Syria, while Britain received that for Mesopotamia. There has been but little trouble in the latter place since Britain has acted as a counsellor and guide while France has looked upon Syria as a colony and this the Syrians resent.

This is Canadian Book Week when for seven days out of the year Canadians are asked to focus their attention upon the authors of whom the whole land should be so proud; we are asked to render our adoration complete by reading Canadian authors' books. Why shouldn't we do this the year round instead of overlooking the productions of fellow-Canadians and glutting ourselves with the frothy halberdash from the South? There have been several good books written in Canada and by Canadians. One of the best novels in years is "Wild Geese" by Martha Ostenso, who received a large part of her education in Winnipeg, from which place she undoubtedly received the inspiration for the setting of this prize novel. The author was born in Norway, among the mountains and came with her parents to America where she lived in the State of Minnesota. Later she attended school and college in Winnipeg. The place of her novel might easily be in the great stretches of country either in Canada or Western America. "Wild Geese" is the story of one man, Caleb Gage, who has become a slave to the land and to his family, the diabolical impersonation of tyranny, cruelty and intolerance. The action takes place between the spring and fall flights of the wild geese that fly honking high above the farmstead. This novel is perfect fiction, pressing home truth and reality. The book won a prize of $13,500.

Another novel that should be read by all Canadians is the book published recently from the hand of that master craftsman, Sir Gilbert Parker—"The Power and the Glory"—a tale of the very early days of this country when Lasalle was gaining a foothold for France. I have not yet read this story but hope in the near future to review it.

Another book that appears at the proper time is "Ten Years After" by Sir Philip Gibbs—George H. Doran Company. Everyone is acquainted with the revelations in his "Noel Can Be Told" which described conditions during the war and in the army. This volume discusses present world conditions under the headings, The Uncertain Peace, The Present Perils and The Hope Ahead. There is no doubt that the book is intended to be "a reminder—"Ten Years After!" he exclaims.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of the Women's Institute was held in the County Building on Friday afternoon and quite a number were present.

Miss B. Morris, County President of the Women's Institute was present and gave a most interesting and original talk on citizenship. She first gave some ideas and asked for suggestions re, the County Convention to be held in the Spring. Female citizenship is not a new thing but rather a new expression. We usually think of citizens as men and there are queer ideas as to the rights and privileges of women citizens.

Women are in politics to stay—they will have always have the vote and take a more active part in public affairs. They are making good in the business world. But woman's best and highest place is in the home. Here she has opportunity and scope for great achievements. When we have perfect homes, with perfect mothers presiding then will we have perfect citizens.

Woman is mistress of the Social Life. She did not seek it, it was always so. There is a social life where ever you find human beings—in the back woods as well as on 5th Avenue, New York. This is not society as enjoyed by the women of leisure—we judge a people by their social standards.

Citizenship is the privilege of a citizen to enjoy the rights political and otherwise of the town he lives in. To be a good citizen one must think more of his duties than his rights. A member of a family who is always thinking of his rights will not be likely to bring happiness or prosperity to the household.

Women have the opportunity of bringing in a new democracy, a democracy built on high ideals, purity of motive, simplicity and obedience to the Golden Rule and a love for beauty. All these things will drive out our pettiness, our selfishness and our superficial idea of beauty.

During the war a fine community spirit prevailed amongst us and we all hoped a new order was established. Why cannot this same spirit of mutual helpfulness prevail in times of peace?

The Rest Room report showed 75 guests during October. The Bus man has promised to stop and tuck at the Rest Room door. Anyone taking the bus may wait inside.

It is expected a bookcase will be had for the books already collected and the nucleus of a library started in the Rest Room before the New Year.

Arrangements were made for Miss Adams, Instructor at Macdonald College, to give a demonstration on Foods and Dry Cleaning on Friday, November 20th., at 2:30 p.m. in St. Andrew's Church Annex. The articles sent to the Handicraft's Guild, Montreal, will be on exhibition.

Afternoon tea will be served (15c) all ladies, especially those who so kindly lent articles are invited to be present.

MILITARY BRAND CAMBERT

A Product of Which America is Proud—France Shows Nothing Better, Says Alfred McCann

In the case of manufactured articles which sell directly to the consumer, very few products stand out pre-eminently over the rest. Where the products appeal to the instincts—appetite, comfort, vanity, etc.—the individual, of course, has his favorite.

Some kinds are favored because a strong and persistent advertising campaign has won over the minds of a group of consumers on that particular brand; some sell because of an especial individuality or adaptability of the package; some for one reason and some for another.

At any rate, the diversified tastes and peculiarities of the buying public open up the avenues of sale to a number of different commodities of the same character and type.

Military Brand CamBERT an Exception

One of the few exceptions to this rule is the famous Military Brand CamBERT Cheese, about which Alfred McCann said in the New York Globe of March 11, 1922: "France can do nothing better in the cheese line." It is in a class by itself—a universal favorite.

Military Brand CamBERT is manufactured in Jefferson County, New York, by one of the oldest concerns in America which manufactures fancy cheese. It was 65 years ago, in the year 1857, when Francis X. Baumert originally started the business which to-day, as F. X. Baumert & Co., Inc., is one of the largest cheese manufacturing concerns in the world.

Not Easy to Make CamBERT

CamBERT cheese was first produced over a century ago in the Commune of CamBERT, Normandy, France, and for many years practically all of the CamBERT consumed came from this district. Production of CamBERT was first attempted in America about the year 1900. Many difficulties were encountered and the heavy initial losses led to the abandonment of this undertaking by all but the Baumert concern, which persevered. Just prior to the outbreak of the World War, F. X. Baumert & Co., Inc., had perfected the manufacture of CamBERT to the extent that their brand had gained much favor. By securing the services of expert CamBERT cheese makers and conducting endless experiments, all obstacles were finally overcome. It is difficult to make CamBERT cheese. It requires absolutely clean, sweet milk and a careful selection of the factory's location. Effective control of conditions during the period of manufacture is essential. The mold on the surface of the cured cheese, which imparts the characteristic flavor, is properly developed only under the most ideal conditions. This was the most difficult part of the process, and once F. X. Baumert & Co., Inc., succeeded in propagating this measure, the quality of the cheese became equal to any CamBERT in the world.

During the war, when all importations had ceased, the American buyer and consumer recognized the delicious flavor and creamy texture of the CamBERT made in their own country, and the prejudice in favor of the imported was swept away forever. To-day the Military Brand CamBERT, showing on its label the figure of a French soldier on horseback, is universally found in the leading hotels, restaurants, clubs, retail stores and delicatessens everywhere.

OTHER PEOPLES' INCOMES

September first was official gossip day in the United States, it being the first day of thirty when citizens may have a legalized peek into their neighbor's income tax returns. We note that the incomes of the Fords, Henry and Edsel, took a drop in 1924 as compared with the former years, but as one paid $2,600,000, the other 2,150,000 and the Ford Motor Company nearly sixteen and one-half millions, they are still not in actual need.

In movie star land Gloria Swanson leads the list, having paid Uncle Sam $57,000 as her share of her 1924 profits, while Mary Pickford parted with $34,000, and Douglas Fairbanks from his production profits over $182,000. Harold Lloyd, as the most prosperous of the comic stars, paid a tax of $28,000, while Charley Chaplin was taxed only $345.

We note that Billy Sunday paid $10,000 as the tax on his income for 1924, while Babe Ruth paid $3,400, which goes to prove that evangelism as Sunday handles it pays better than baseball.

President Coolidge paid a federal income tax of $14,000, while Vice President Davis paid $24,000, which shows that big jobs and big money do not necessarily go hand in hand.

PLUMP AND THIN SHOULD EXERCISE

Reigning Beauty Gives Members of Her Sex Pointers START DAY RIGHT

Regular Exercise Will Keep Body Supple and Eyes Bright

Miss Fay Lanphier of San Francisco, who was recently chosen as the most beautiful girl in the United States, has written an article in which she declares that regular exercise is just as necessary for the girl who is thin as it is for the girl who is too heavy. The reason is that exercise keeps the eyes bright and the body lines supple as well as providing pep and poise.

Continuing, she says: "The thing to get into your mind about exercise is this—it isn't a routine to be gone through for health or beauty, fighting fat. It's fun. It is something to look forward to instead of dreading.

"If you start your day right, I defy you to be 'dead tired' at the end of the day. Here's what I recommend: When you get out of bed stand before the open window and take ten long breaths, holding them just as long as you can. This will awaken you thoroughly and give you strength to go on.

"Then rise on your tiptoes and extend your arms upwards as you take ten more good drinks of oxygen, being sure to rise as you inhale and to go down slowly under control as you exhale. By this time your lungs know what they are for, and they will get on the job for the day.

"Then stand erect with your heels flat and your arms limp or at your hips, as you will—they aren't important in this exercise so you might as well let them be comfortable. Then stretch as far as you can to the left, then to the right. Do this ten times, and you will warm any fat cells that your waistline has a 'no parking' sign on. Then give fair warning to your abdomen and your back that there are to be no dangerous curves ahead of you by bending as far back as you can stretch.

"Then with your feet planted firmly on the Brussels carpet, stretch upward as far as you can, till you feel a good healthy pull about your waistline and your abdominal muscles. Then stretch one arm up as high as you can toward the ceiling, and let the other one extend as near the floor as it will. Do this one quickly and reverse the action, as many times as you like.

"And here's the last touch to the perfect morning. When you finish the stretching exercises, select a good dance record, put it on the phonograph, and do whatever you feel like doing to the music. I stretch, kick, jump and step about in a way that is rough on the floor, but very exhilarating to me, and when I finish that I'm ready for the tub and then for whatever the day offers.

"I don't know where you stand on the corset question, but you can well dispense with one if you keep the muscles of your waistline firm by these exercises. And if you control your waistline, you won't need to worry much about flesh any place else. But as I said, whether you want to reduce or not, these exercises are necessary to keep you graceful and alert—and to keep that schoolgirl figure."

To commemorate the seventh anniversary of the declaration of Armistice, a delightful dance and social evening was held Wednesday at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Richardson under the auspices of The Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire. The guests which numbered nearly 165 were received by Mr. and Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. Fenwick Regent in the large hall, which was decorated with flags, and red geraniums. On the newel of the wide staircase stood an Armistice Emblem—Miss Canada who had for a helmet, the shield of the I.O.D.E.; she held in one hand poppies and in the other the Union Jack. The orchestra was stationed in the living-room and here, and in the dining-room dancing was carried on enthusiastically; ferns and chrysanthemums were used to decorate these rooms. In the sun-parlor, a bright fire blazed in the grate. The flowers in the conservatory attracted all with their beauty. During the evening, Mrs. J. R. Dickenson sang a solo, also Mr. Dumbrell, Mr. Smith giving a recitation, which added to the enjoyment. Refreshments were served around mid-night, as the guests who came from Montreal returned by auto, dancing was resumed and kept up until nearly 2 o'clock. The singing of the National Anthem brought a very pleasant evening's entertainment to a close. The success that attended the evening's entertainment was largely due to Mr. and Mrs. Richardson and Mrs. L. A. Wyse and her committee.

CANADA IS GAINER BY EMPIRE PLAN OF 500 FAMILIES

Specially Selected Households Brought to Dominion and Established on Farms

As a result of the agreement entered into between the Governments of Canada and the United Kingdom, 500 specially selected families were brought to the Dominion this year and settled upon farms.

Under the agreement 3,000 families are to be brought out. The 500 who now are in the country are but the first contingent. This agreement marks a new departure in immigration work. It provides that the Government of the United Kingdom shall furnish $1,500 per family, and that the Canadian Government shall provide farms with suitable buildings at a reasonable cost. Thus between the two Governments the settler obtains low cost land and sufficient capital to equip his farm.

Repayment is on Easy Terms

The agreement further provides that repayment shall be made in 25 equal annual instalments, commencing at the end of the second season, and that the interest shall be 5 per cent per annum.

Particular pains have been taken by the Immigration Department to ensure the success of this scheme, and the reports received from the 500 families already settled are of a very encouraging nature.

Incidentally, counting the children, there were 2,500 people transferred to Canada under this agreement.

Out of the 500 families that left England, only 20 are not now actively and happily engaged in agriculture. These 20 have declined to proceed with their contract and are now obtaining livelihoods in other walks of life. However, 480 additional working farms in the Dominion are considered as well worth the effort which has been expended on this scheme.

HOW DIAMOND BROKERS GUARD AGAINST THEFT

(The New York Times)

In the wholesale jewelry district of New York, where millions of dollars' worth of diamonds and precious stones are daily handled, extraordinary precautions are taken against possible hold-ups. It is of course a simple matter to provide burglar-proof vaults. In buying and selling precious stones it is necessary, however, to remove the gems from the safes to display and examine them. The offices are ingeniously safeguarded.

The casual visitor to these offices will scarcely notice the precautions taken to guard against attack. The offices usually contain an outer room enclosed by high partitions. The only employee in evidence is seated behind a small window. When the visitor satisfies the observer at the window, and not before, a door is opened in the partition, and on his entering is quickly divided into a series of rooms or cubicles, each closed with high partitions. To enter any one of these the door is opened by the observer behind the window in the outer office. Listen carefully and you will hear the click of the catch as it is controlled, opened and closed from the outside office.

It is impossible to gain entrance to one of these inner rooms without the help of a man in the outer office. Once inside, the door is fastened, and it can only be opened from the desk outside. Should a hold-up be attempted in the outer office the thief would find himself confronted by a formidable barrier or series of barriers. Should the man in the office be overcome the doors to the inner rooms would still remain locked. Let the thief attempt to hold up anyone after gaining admission to the offices and he would be locked in without the assistance of the man in the outer office.

TRYING TO SELL HONESTY

New York City is trying to accomplish with printer's ink what her laws have failed to bring about. She is trying to sell honesty by means of advertising—to impress upon the criminal population the futility of pursuing a dishonest course. The experiment is creating considerable comment, and the Stratford Beacon-Herald quotes the following observations from a Bloomington, Illinois, authority on social reform.

New York is using advertising as a remedy for crime. There are warning cards displayed in every elevated, subway and surface car in the city, and in all the commuters' trains, pointing an effective moral to any real or potential criminal who happens to be on board. A typical card reads:

"You CAN'T win! The cleverest stickup in New York police history is now old and broken, with 20 years yet to serve in Sing Sing."

Along with this statement there is an impressive illustration of a hold-up man cowering before a huge policeman with drawn pistol.

Another illustration shows a murderer being led to the electric chair.

Moral appeals and appeals to self-interest tell the same old story, verified by all the ages, that honesty is the best policy, that decency and squareness pay, in material rewards as well as an easy conscience.

Advertising ought to be as good for "selling" honesty as for selling goods. It will be fun to watch the New York crime curve after this innovation.

A navy airship, practising at Spezia, Italy, struck the periscope of a submerged submarine. The periscope was carried away and the seaplane turned upside down. No lives were lost.

If you want all the folks in this town to see your store lit up like a new Christmas tree—ya gotta let it sparkle through the window of Newspaper Advertising!

"Number, please?"

You have noticed, of course, that 'Central' in answering when you lift your telephone receiver, is adding an engaging "Please?" to the interrogative "Number?"

"What is the reason for the 'Please?'" the subscriber asked the Manager of the Bell Telephone Company to-day.

"In the use of that word 'please'" said the Manager, "we are simply adding a little more emphasis to the idea that our service should be above all, a courteous service. It's just a little finishing touch, that's all. We have always laid stress on the use by our operators of the rising inflection when they use the single word 'Number'. That has always seemed to give a pleasant and courteous implication to the word. Now we are going a step further and adding 'please'. We feel that a great deal can be accomplished by adequate attention to the matter of courtesy in telephoning, and this simple word 'please' should give impetus to that idea.

Whither Thou Goest by Mark Allerton Author of "The Stealer of Souls."

"I'll go, Mr. Adrian Manning," he said, between his clenched teeth. "But you'll hang, Adrian Manning. I'll see to it that you hang. That is—unless you come to terms with me tomorrow morning. You'll find me at the Red Lion."

Richard Verrinder had done Hazel the honour of offering himself as her husband, and she had refused him. And all because of this vulgar, this barbaric, this man from the backwoods, this Adrian Manning, a homeless person who openly declared that he never went to a theatre because he preferred a music hall!

Richard Verrinder was forty. His clothes obviously came from Savile Row. Even at this early hour of the morning and in a country cottage he had turned out as for a Bond Street Promenade. A diminutive black mustache adorned his upper lip. His black hair was brushed carefully back.

According to the interviewers, faithfully reporting what they had been told, Richard Verrinder lived in the country because the country gave him inspiration. As a matter of fact, the work that had brought him popularity had been done in a flat off Piccadilly, and he had taken his cottage at Peckham so that he might, with the least possible inconvenience, see Hazel Byron. And now Hazel was going to marry Adrian Manning!

Richard Verrinder, being a student of psychology, tried to think out why Hazel should prefer Adrian Manning to himself. True, Adrian was very rich, but so was he, and Verrinder knew quite well that Hazel was not the type of girl to take money into account. Looks could not have come into the question for Verrinder, with his out being conceded about his personal appearance, knew that he was a much more presentable person than the man Hazel was to marry. Socially, for all Manning's money, Verrinder took the lead. He knew all sorts of important people on intimate terms. The gates of the political, literary, artistic and dramatic worlds were open to him.

Adrian knew nobody—nobody that is, who counted. He did not appear to want to know them. Married to Adrian Manning, Hazel would drop into insignificance. Married to himself, she would become a social success.

Richard Verrinder tried to console himself with the thought that Hazel had made a very bad bargain. CHAPTER IV Stabbed in the Back! If Verrinder failed to console himself with the thought that Hazel had thrown herself away on Manning, it was because, in his own selfish manner, he loved the girl—or rather, since love is capable of numberless definitions, he was attracted by her beauty, her charm of manner.

Richard Verrinder made a study of such attributes. They were to put it crudely, his job. Of such a type as Hazel he made his heroes on the stage. What she should prefer Adrian Manning to him hurt his vanity.

He looked around the luxuriously appointed room in which he was sitting and thought of Hazel here in fancy he saw her pouring tea, dimpling at him across the table, her delicate hands flashing among the tea-things.

He pictured her small poised head resting against the cosy chair by the fireplace, the flight flush of her exquisite face. What a wife she would make for a playwright! Always gracious, tactful, mistress of herself and of those he met. She would help him, help him to write more successful plays, to be a better man—he broke off suddenly in his musings. That is, she would if this damned Manning!—he set his cup down with a clatter and rose from the table.

Looking out upon the snow he shivered, and he had more legs on the fire. He thought longingly of London, where there are men who sweep up the snow almost as soon as it falls. He felt to framing an advertisement to subtlet the cottage and was so engaged when the telephone bell rang. He found himself talking to Hazel.

"Hello! Is that Mr. Verrinder? This is Hazel, Adrian's here, and he's got the loveliest toboggan. We are going to do Primrose Hill, but we really need six. Will you be one, Daddy's coming. Isn't he a dear old sport?"

Richard Verrinder paused before he replied. He had regard to the dramatic possibilities of the situation. As a rejected suitor what should he do if this were the second or third act of a charming comedy?

He decided, very quickly, that he would play the magnanimous part. In any case there was nothing to be gained by quarrelling with Adrian Manning. Who could tell but that he might one day be useful as a backer in a theatrical venture?"

whose lank, sandy hair fell over his forehead. "That man Potter's been murdered in Mr. Manning's wood!" he gasped. "The police are there and Doctor Macgregor, an' the doctor says as he's been stabbed in the back."

Solemn empty faces were turned toward the speaker in alarm. Here was news with a vengeance! "What you say?"

The Tyke repeated his information. He enjoyed his sudden importance and the feeling of playing to an audience. Unconsciously he became dramatic and told his tale with gusto, saying how Sir John Byron was there, and Miss Hazel, and Mr. Manning and Mr. Verrinder and others besides, not to mention the police and the doctor. He gave all the gory details, and it was a very much impressed group of men that he faced, when he had finished.

"Who was this man Potter, anyways?" was demanded of the landlord. "Stavin' here wasn't he?" "Yes, but that's not naught to do with me," returned the landlord hurriedly. "Canadian or American he was, by his talk. Didn't know nobody here, so far's I know."

"Was 'e tight last night, then?" "That he wasn't, not from anything he got 'ere, anyways. I'm goin' to keep out of 'is. I am, Hullo!"

John Philbey, landlord of the Red Lion, rose to receive the two uniformed policemen who entered as he spoke. A pleasurable air of excitement pervaded the dusty old tap room. A gay party had assembled for tobogganing at the Manor House and were preparing to depart, only awaiting Verrinder's coming.

Never had Hazel looked more infinitely desirable than when she stood on the steps of the old Manor, while the wind whipped a lovely colour in her cheeks, and her eyes glowed with excitement. His love for her grew with each passing hour, it seemed.

It was, of course, Verrinder, who brought the news of Potter's death. Instantly, although the man was a stranger to most of those present, a lightning chill fell on the party at those grim tidings. After rushing to the scene of the crime and making sure that the body was properly attended to, their plans for tobogganing were abandoned, and the entire party settled down to discuss the situation.

"It was Manning who spoke first. 'I knew the man,' he stated quietly. If any present were surprised at this information, there was no indication of it, although Verrinder looked fixedly at the speaker. With well-bred calm, the party awaited Manning's next words.

"Since I knew him," he said, "I suppose I'll have to appear at the inquest. He was one of our little gang at Brekers Drift." Verrinder asked the question, "I don't think so, I don't know." "What was he doing over here?" Adrian Manning faced his questioner. "How on earth should I know?" he demanded. He disliked Verrinder, not because Verrinder had been his rival, but of certain characteristics which he could not define.

It was natural that these two men should find themselves antagonistic, one so polished, so thoroughly the gentleman of culture, the other made of sterner stuff, less fine perhaps but more enduring.

"You told us that you had met him and talked to him, so I thought he might have told you," Verrinder lit a cigarette as he spoke. "From the point of view of the drama they present I am deeply interested in crime and murders," he continued. "The calculated murder is a crude thing, but the state of mind that gives rise to the state of mind—what the law might, under some circumstances call manslaughter—that is interesting from a psychological point of view."

"In this case, it would seem, from what I have heard from the sergeant and Doctor Macgregor, that this man was attacked unawares. Probably he had had a quarrel, an altercation about something, and, as he set off back to his hotel, his adversary, who probably had fallen to have the last word, suddenly and unexpectedly attacked him. What do you think, Manning?"

"I am trying my best not to think about it," replied Adrian, curtly. "You see, I knew the man, and now he's dead." "Friend of yours, was he?" "No, I've told you that he was an employee."

"At Brekers Drift, I wonder what brought him over here? I wonder..." Hazel interrupted him with an impetuous gesture. "Please don't talk any more about it," she said. "Don't forget that I saw him, when he was being carried away. He looked dreadful. He seemed to be smiling—a horrible, mocking smile, as though he knew that his revenge would come soon."

She drew Adrian aside. "Adrian," she murmured, "I feel so afraid. This happening at our very door, and on the eve of our wedding, it doesn't mean bad luck, does it?" "My precious, how can this poor fellow's death affect us? I'm shocked, of course. Murder is execrable, but the man was—well, he wasn't a good man. Try to forget it. In three days from now I want you to have not one gloomy thought. I want you to come to me with your dear little heart full of joy, full of the hope of certain happiness, happiness that will last for ever."

"I know the man," he stated quietly. If any present were surprised at this information, there was no indication of it, although Verrinder looked fixedly at the speaker. With well-bred calm, the party awaited Manning's next words. "Since I knew him," he said, "I suppose I'll have to appear at the inquest. He was one of our little gang at Brekers Drift." Verrinder asked the question, "I don't think so, I don't know." "What was he doing over here?" Adrian Manning faced his questioner. "How on earth should I know?" he demanded. He disliked Verrinder, not because Verrinder had been his rival, but of certain characteristics which he could not define.

many, many years." A chill fear shook her for a moment. Try as she might she could not master it. Verrinder was looking at her with a curiously triumphant expression. "What could it mean—this gloomy premonition that swept over her? She pressed Adrian's arm. "I'll try to forget," she whispered. "But, somehow, I can't help being afraid. I wish, Oh! how I wish you had never known this poor man!"

CHAPTER VI Adrian forced a laugh. "I wish I had never known him, too," he said. "I suppose I'll have to give evidence. That's a nuisance. Still, the formalities will be over before three days have passed—oh, do let's forget the beastly affair."

"Hazel!" it was Sir John Byron who spoke. "Take Mr. Verrinder to see your presents. We have talked too much about this unfortunate affair."

Hazel immediately left Adrian and took Richard Verrinder to the library where the wedding gifts were displayed. "The candlesticks you gave us are perfectly lovely," she said. "I have never seen any more beautiful." Richard Verrinder inclined his head, gravely. "I'm glad you like them," he said. "I picked them out many years ago in a little shop in Vienna. I understand that they were made by Gagliostro himself."

"He was a famous metal worker who died in the sixteenth century, I think." "But how tremendously good of you to give us such a valuable present!" "I do not think so," Richard Verrinder spoke slowly, choosing his words carefully, as he chose the words for the actors in his plays. "Have I not already told you that you possess my heart?" Hazel was amused.

It is a curious fact with women that although as a rule they enjoy in dramatic scenes enacted by their heart's-chosen, accompanied by suitable gestures and burning words of love—they have no sympathy for a dramatic lover rejected.

Now Verrinder, in his dramatic moods got on her nerves. Still she did not wish to quarrel with him. "That's over and done with," she replied rather sharply. "We agreed to be pals, didn't we? We shook hands on that." "Forgive me, I cannot forget," accompanying the words with a wistful smile.

Verrinder, at that moment, emulated his own leading man at the Majestic Theatre. He considered that rather a neat little bit and calculated to produce a favorable impression on Hazel. Being a woman, she surprised him by changing the subject abruptly. Here was a man, she considered, who needed pulling up with a jerk.

"Isn't this a ducky little silver egg cup?" she asked, hurriedly, pointing to a very blatant type of Birmingham work. "We got that from Tom Bradley, the Tyke, you know. He works for Philbey who keeps the Red Lion."

"He's half-witted I think. Adrian was kind to him once and he's simply doted on Adrian ever since. Wasn't it good of him to send us something? I wish they wouldn't call him 'the Tyke.' He's a perfect dear."

"I wish you would call me that!" Verrinder spoke with a sudden fierceness. "Another beautiful line gone to waste," thought Hazel as she observed Verrinder's tense attitude and his graceful pose. How the man loved to dramatize the slightest affair!

Accustomed as she was to Richard's posings, she laughed heartily. "Then I do!" she cried. "You are a dear to have given us those delightful candlesticks. Adrian!" she called out, loudly.

CHAPTER VI Adrian forced a laugh. "I wish I had never known him, too," he said. "I suppose I'll have to give evidence. That's a nuisance. Still, the formalities will be over before three days have passed—oh, do let's forget the beastly affair."

"Hazel!" it was Sir John Byron who spoke. "Take Mr. Verrinder to see your presents. We have talked too much about this unfortunate affair."

Hazel immediately left Adrian and took Richard Verrinder to the library where the wedding gifts were displayed. "The candlesticks you gave us are perfectly lovely," she said. "I have never seen any more beautiful."

Richard Verrinder inclined his head, gravely. "I'm glad you like them," he said. "I picked them out many years ago in a little shop in Vienna. I understand that they were made by Gagliostro himself."

More SERVICE to Our Advertisers

Our New Modern Equipment Gives You Up-to-the-Minute Service.

The Gleaner has just installed the Bonnet-Brown Advertising Mat Service and Stereotyping Machine. You will now receive the same ad service that the large metropolitan newspapers render their advertisers.

ILLUSTRATIONS FOR ANY ADVERTISEMENTS

Under this splendid New Service Plan, we receive fresh each month, ads and illustrations for every kind of advertising. We receive these illustrations in matrix form—a paper mold or the cut-to-be. This new stereotyping machine enables us to pour metal into this form and make a plate for printing the illustration in the Gleaner or on a circular. Advertisers who receive matrices of their merchandise from their manufacturers or wholesalers can bring them to us and we will make cuts for use in their advertising.

Advertising Service for Every Business

And, in addition to being able to supply you with suitable cuts for illustrating your ads, we are prepared to furnish advertisements covering practically every line of business. These ads have all been written by advertising experts—and hence are so planned and executed that they exert the maximum amount of pulling power possible in the space used. So, when you want to run an ad, instead of spending time to write it yourself, come in and let us help you. We'll give you one that will exactly fit your needs—illustration and all.

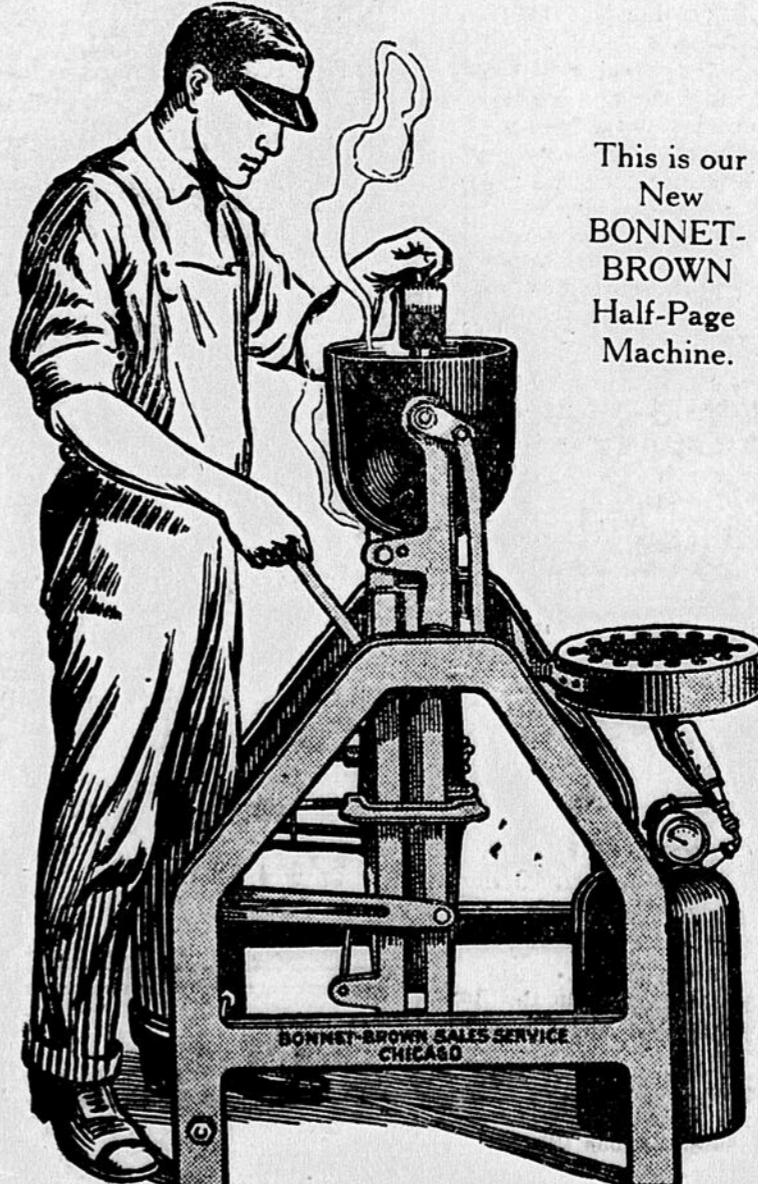

This service, we are confident, will result in greatly increased business for every advertiser who takes advantage of it.

You will be better able to tell the people of the District of Beauharnois about what you have to sell or what you want to buy.

And you can put your message across in a concise, easily-understood manner that will be pleasing to readers of the Huntingdon Gleaner and most satisfactory to you in the greater results obtained.

Sunday afternoon towards 5 o'clock an auto accident occurred on the highway near Rennie Bros. farm. A Ford sedan, driven by an American couple who had spent the day in Valleyfield, was driving towards the U.S. when by fate they drove into a telephone pole. The pole was broken, the top of which was suspended in the air by the wires. The car was, comparatively speaking, damaged little for the amount of damage it did.

WHITHER THOU GOEST

"Hullo?" came the reply from the other room.
"I'm going to give Dick Verrinder a kiss for giving us those candiesticks."
"Right O! old girl. But in three days I'll put my foot down on those little pranks."
She kissed Verrinder lightly on the lips, and the next moment was in his arms, hot kisses raining on her cheeks, her lips, her brow.
She dragged herself free, fury in her eyes. "You rotter!" she panted. "Didn't you know it was a joke?"
"A joke!" his words came thickly. "It is no joke for me, Hazel."
"Go away!" she stamped her foot. "Leave the house. I don't want ever to see you again."
Richard Verrinder hesitated. He wanted to say something, but the moment was not opportune.
"I'll go," he said. "But you'll see me again, just as often as I choose."
Hazel rushed from the room, trembling and ashamed to face her father and Adrian.
"Ugh, the beast," she sobbed to herself. "I will never have anything to do with him again. I hate him!"
Meanwhile, Verrinder, with a hurried excuse to the men in the other room had left the house, and was pursuing his way homeward, his brain teeming with his thoughts of Hazel.

The touch of her lips on his had fired his senses—had left him with but one thought—he must have her! He was resolved to get rid of Manning now, at no matter what cost.
In the study in his cottage he took from a drawer a knife. The blade was open, and there was red rust on it. Blood! On the knife were the initials "A.M." Verrinder stood fingering it.
"That's Adrian Manning's knife. Young Macgregor had him having a row with this man. Adrian Manning killed this man. Now, I wonder what's best to be done."
"By one means or another I am going to bring Hazel Byron to heel. If she doesn't jolly well do my bidding, then, Adrian Manning will hang." With this resolve Richard Verrinder applied himself to the third act of his new comedy.

New Idea in Sale Bills
Two central Missouri farmers have just announced their plans to retire in unique and singular fashion. Carl W. Ross, who lives near Laddonia, in Audrain county, says in his sale bills that "on account of getting tired or lazy, and my wife refusing to milk any longer, have decided to sell at public auction my herd of good milk cows." W. P. Rogers of near Perryville has also advertised that, "having concluded to go South, and in order to satisfy the bank and relieve my neighbours' minds, and that the public in general may feel safe, I will sell—"

Huntingdon Town Council

Met Tuesday night. Mayor O'Connor presiding. Aldermen Hunter and Bicknell absent.

The Sec.-Treas. read a letter from Mr. Plante, re Mr. McMillan's case, stating that on the night of Oct. 31st, a riotous gang of men and boys had gathered near their residence and proceeded to take their auto. In the attempt to stop this matter Mr. McMillan had taken a cold, been hit on the head and some of the boards on the barn had been destroyed, also that the fence in the rear had to be pulled down and that Mr. McMillan had stood much abuse.

Ald. Small: Was not the larger part caused on personal property and not the tow 's?

Ald. Brown: Mrs. McMillan stated that the boys had gathered at an early hour.

Ald. Hooker: When I went down street at 10.30 everything was peaceable.

This matter was left in the hands of the Police Committee to investigate.

Mr. Kipprien was present and petitioned the council to look into the matter of drainage at the west end of the town, stating that he had suffered much with water in his cellar and that he had been unable to do any ploughing due to so much water on the land.

This matter was left in the hands of the road committee to act upon.

Mayor: Mr. Dunn is present and would like a definite statement concerning pumping power for the town.

Sec.-Treas: I wrote to Mr. Thompson of Montreal asking him to interview this council, but I have received no answer yet.

Mayor: Mr. Dunn, we have no definite answer to make to-night.

Mr. Harry McCallum was present and laid a complaint regarding the boys' conduct at the post office, stating that he and other men had been teased and insulted.

Ald. Faubert: I for one am in favor of having order at the post office. It is a disgrace.

Moved by Ald. Faubert, seconded by Ald. Small that the Chairman of the Police Committee be authorized to have the town policeman on duty each night until further notice and to exercise his authority.

A discussion ensued concerning the upkeep of the registry office.

Regarding the lamp on the fountain, it was stated that the fountain was not strong enough to hold the post and that it would look funny to have the post out alongside the fountain and also that it would interfere with the connections if put on top of the fountain.

The matter was left over until a later date. Being too near winter nothing much could be done and

QUEBEC TOURIST ASSN. TO BOOST CHAT. VALLEY

Moir Hotel Highly Recommended to Association. Maps and Guides Now Being Prepared for 1926.

The Quebec Tourists' Association are now very actively engaged in preparing guides to supply the American Tourists next season when visiting Quebec. The plan of the association is to endeavor to persuade the tourists to remain in Canada for a longer period. In conversation with Secretary Furse he claims that if they are successful in persuading the tourists to average one day longer stay in Canada, their efforts will be more than well repaid. It is the purpose of the association to prepare a guide with maps, historical sketch and items that may be of interest to visitors who might take the trip through the Chateaugay Valley. The maps will show the roads from Montreal to Beauharnois, Valleyfield, St. Anicet to the Trout River road and along the Highway passing through Huntingdon, Ormstown, Howick to Caughnawaga. Points of interest will be marked on the map, also the picture of a thoroughbred dairy animal which is to be the trademark indicating that this trip should prove of particular interest to people who are interested in livestock. The hotels which are approved by the association will be given due recognition on the map. No doubt our American neighbours will take much interest in viewing the Battle of Chateaugay monument which marks the scene where Col. de Salaberry and his handful of men succeeded in defeating Gen. Hampton and his 5000 men. A number of dairymen are being asked by the association if they would permit strangers to view their stock if they should so desire. In such cases a few of the farms will be so marked on the map so that the tourists will know they are truly welcome.

In regards to our local hotel the following letter received by Mr. Furse is very gratifying to the Hotel management.
Montreal, Que., Nov. 16th, 1925
Mr. Charles F. Furse,
Prov. of Quebec Tourists Assn.
Dear Sir:—
On my way back from Buffalo last fall, I happened to be in Huntingdon at lunch time in search of a place where to eat. I was led to a hotel which had the sign of your Association, where we got not only a very good meal, at a reasonable price, but also a warm reception. I am sorry I do not remember the name of this hotel proprietor, but should I chance to be in Huntingdon at meal hours, I would gladly stop again at this same place.

Very truly yours,
Chas. E. Geoffrion,

Newspaper for Sale, Cheap
An editor recently wrote a "puff" for the bells of the ball, "mer-dainty feet were encased in shoes that might have been taken for fairy boots." The blundering compositor made it read, "her dirty feet were encased in shoes that might have been taken for ferry boats."

Wonder Ball At Malone
Something new in the line of dances will be offered for the approval of the public at the big Wonder Ball, at the State Armory, Malone, November 26th. As the title implies novelties of all kinds will be introduced in an effort to make the evening one long to be remembered by dancers who are expected to fill the huge drill shed to overflowing on that night.

The Wonder Ball being promoted by two Ogdensburg, New York, newspapermen who recently had charge of the "Cinderella Ball" at the Ottawa Auditorium, will see the introduction of the famous "Charleston", the "Dance of the Balloons", the "Battle of Music" and "A Trip through Fairyland."

Two widely known orchestras, the Northern Dansonians, of Ogdensburg, and Willard LaFave's King Jazz Seven, of Malone, will vie for the plaudits of the dancers starting at 9.30 p.m. and continuing until 3 a.m. The Northern Dansonians played throughout the Cinderella Ball at Ottawa with three other orchestras while 5,230 couples graced the floor in the biggest event ever staged in Canada.

A new system of decorations for the big ball at Malone is being arranged by an out-of-town decorator. Thousands of yards of crepe paper, 800 balloons of various colors, miles of serpentine and bushes of confetti will be utilized. In addition each lady will be presented with a suitable favor as she enters the hall and each gentleman will be handed a novelty headgear to live up to the party.

During the intermission at midnight those who desire refreshments may secure the same in the spacious dining hall in the basement of the armory.

The management has announced that the Wonder Ball will be entirely informal and the only restriction placed on the dancers will be that all must wear a smile.

Prizes will be awarded the most popular young lady in the hall, the best dancing couple and the couple travelling the longest distance to attend the Wonder Ball.
At the stroke of midnight—a real, live baby, a six months old, will be given away free. This is not a fraud, but a real live baby, not a dog, cat or other animal.
Don't forget the place, Malone State Armory, and the date, November 26th, Thanksgiving Day, in the United States.

"One man is knocked down by an automobile every twenty minutes in Los Angeles," says The Vancouver Province. The poor fellow must be moving by leaps and bounds.

VENTILATION
At no other time during the year is insufficient ventilation in the poultry house more likely to prove disastrous than during the next two months. Restricted ventilation is almost certain to be accompanied by dampness, especially if the house is in any degree overcrowded. In practice the two things are almost synonymous, for the reason that the unfavorable results from crowding are, in the main, due to insufficient ventilation, rather than to insufficient floor area. The laying quarters should always be as comfortable as it is possible to make them, but making a house warm at the expense of dryness is never a wise thing to do. Hence one should not reduce ventilation too rapidly at this season.

HINCHINBROOKE SCHOOL COMMISSIONERS
Met on Monday, Nov. 16th. Present Chairman N. J. Fennell and Commissioners J. H. McCracken, A. H. Crutchfield and A. E. Farquhar.
Moved by Comm. Farquhar that the following bills be paid: Gleaner adds $47.00, W. S. Jamieson, painting No. 8, $106.45, Renouf Publishing Co., books No. 6, $7.23, Lawrence Wilson, cleaning No. 9, $6.10, E. C. McCoy, supplies No. 9, $1.20, Otis W. Travisee, express 55c, Scarborough Co., maps No. 4 and 7, $12.60, C. H. Cooke, supplies No. 3, $5c, Otis W. Travisee, supplies, $1.75, and excise stamps $10.00, Mrs. A. Varin, cleaning No. 4, $4.00, C. R. Stone, supplies, No. 5, $6c.

Moved by Comm. McCracken that interest at the rate of 7% be charged on all uncollected taxes after December 1, 1925.
Moved by Comm. Crutchfield that a special notice be inserted in the Gleaner, regarding interest to be charged on all uncollected taxes.
Moved by Comm. Crutchfield that the secretary be authorized to advertise for tenders for wood to be delivered to the different districts in the municipality, 20 cord for Athelstan, and 10 cord for each of the remaining schools. Wood to be all hard wood, beech, birch and maple, 2 ft. long and free from chunks.

The latest addition to the air service between London and Paris is a new giant plane capable of carrying thirty passengers and equipped with a restaurant. A steward will be in attendance at all times during voyages to serve hot meals to the passengers.
Another machine now under construction in London for the Constantinople aerial route will be a winged copy of the modern railway sleeper, having berths and dressing rooms.
The gigantic Ford industry of today is the creation of twenty years, and Ford's vision of big and constantly bigger accomplishments ahead is just as keen to-day as when he was turning out fifteen or twenty cars a week, says the American Reviews' writer already quoted. Standing on the pinnacle of present accomplishment, represented by a production of 7,000 motor cars a day and 150,000 tractors a year, he still looks forward. His first "benzene buggy" dates back to 1892. In twenty years he manufactured 5,000,000 cars. But that was only a beginning. The second 5,000,000 were produced in three years! Contemplating such a record, one must hesitate to conjecture what another twenty years, or even another ten, may bring forth.

BEST TURKEYS FOR BREEDING

Cull Before Marketing Starts—Making Every Bird a Good Layer

Before the best birds have been sent to market is the time to select next spring's flock of breeding turkeys.

Every season finds a few turkeys which are slow in reaching marketable size. Too often these are allowed to remain on the farm where they naturally make up part of the breeding flock. The slow and backward birds may be kept over for the December market, but should never be used as breeders.

For the breeding flock, only well developed, vigorous and healthy individuals should be retained. The toms, especially, should be carefully chosen, since the greatest opportunity for improvement lies in the use of superior males.

Continuous Culling
"I have a neighbor living about a mile away whose flock I have culled for four years," writes Miller Purvis in The Breeder's Gazette (Chicago, Ill.). "He keeps more than 200 White Leghorn hens, and the flock is becoming a heavy laying one. Usually, in the fall, he has about enough pullets to fill his poultry house, and he calls me to cull out his yearling hens and the old ones that have laid two summers. Then he fills the house rather too full of pullets and old hens, and during the winter he culls out the poorest of the pullets until he has the flock down so that the house is comfortably filled."

"The result of this continuous culling, and a thorough culling in the fall, is that by spring they have a flock nearly every one of which is a good layer. The principal task I have is to determine which of the yearlings shall be kept the second year. This flock is profitable."

Ventilation
At no other time during the year is insufficient ventilation in the poultry house more likely to prove disastrous than during the next two months. Restricted ventilation is almost certain to be accompanied by dampness, especially if the house is in any degree overcrowded. In practice the two things are almost synonymous, for the reason that the unfavorable results from crowding are, in the main, due to insufficient ventilation, rather than to insufficient floor area. The laying quarters should always be as comfortable as it is possible to make them, but making a house warm at the expense of dryness is never a wise thing to do. Hence one should not reduce ventilation too rapidly at this season.

HOWICK

A joint meeting of the Howick and Aubrey-Riverfield Institutes was held in the Howick Hall on Tuesday afternoon. Miss Jarvis and Miss Adams were present from Macdonald College and addressed the meeting on dry cleaning and household management. Both addresses were interesting and instructive.

Whilst for the season of the year the weather has not been colder than usual, there has been a greater fall of rain, the rivers being swollen to flood height and the clay roads badly cut up, and farmers have still a large area to plow before the ground freezes solid.

Another gasoline pump is being installed in front of Cavanagh's blacksmith shop where the public used to enter the Wm. Cunningham general store several years ago. This addition to the number of pumps makes eight in the village of Howick.

A concert for the benefit of Red Cross work was given by the scholars of the Howick Model School on Friday, which filled the Hall with an audience that were amply rewarded for turning out on such a disagreeable night. The programme was varied, consisting of dialogues, readings, drills, vocal and instrumental music, living pictures and wax figures that were galvanized into life by a crank motion. The different items on the program provided a most pleasing entertainment for the large audience present. Mr. Robert was chairman.

The Community Club on Tuesday night was entertained by original magazine contributions from the members which were exceedingly amusing, two contributions varying in the program by being of a more instructive character, given by the President, Mr. Welch.

Guests visiting at Mrs. J. W. Logan's, "Sunnyside Farm" last Saturday were Mr. and Mrs. Hector Allan and son of Calgary, Miss Allan and Miss Brock of Westmount.

Mr. J. W. Logan returned home from Toronto Sunday evening. Mrs. Wm. Templeton left for Westmont last week, where she expects to spend the winter months. Mrs. John Anderson has been spending a few days in the city with her daughter Mrs. Wallace Baxter.

Miss Ellen Robertson spent Friday of last week in the city. Mrs. Wm. Black expects to leave this week for Salt Lake City, Utah. Mr. J. M. Scott of the Canadian Bank of Commerce Staff has been transferred to North Hatley, and is replaced by Mr. B. V. Quinlan of Sherbrooke, Que.

The will of the late Margaret L. Logan of Howick was probated at the Prothonotary's Office, Montreal leaving all she possessed to her sister, Mrs. J. W. Dugdale, nee Janet Logan, with whom she was living at the time of her death.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK
By E. R. Waite, Secretary, Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.
THAT well advertised products have been proven the best for every use.
THAT the public has learned by years of experience the advantage of buying well advertised products.
THAT progressive dealers know that the selling of advertised products gives satisfaction and gains good-will.
THAT purchasers of well advertised products are certain to be satisfied with their price, quality and service.
THAT satisfied customers are keenly alive to the service given by advertised quality, and not only buy again but will have no other kind. They show their appreciation by telling others, which makes new customers.
THAT to achieve real success in business to-day, a business must have volume. Volume is necessary to cut down overhead, get highest efficiency, reduce costs so as to be able to sell quality at the most attractive price to buyers.
With present day competition many business concerns have a hard struggle for existence. Only those concerns who use continuous advertising are able to increase volume.
The use of advertising in the development of business is growing by leaps and bounds. Advertising through the printed page unquestionably offers the greatest opportunity to increase volume.
