COMMONS FACES CRITICAL SESSION

Defence Has Spotlight In British Mind

Munich Agreement and Pact of Friendship With Italy May Also Cause Some Bitter Debates When New Session of Parliament Opens Next Week — Labor Party Makes Formal Statement of Programme Designed to Overthrow Government.

London, Oct. 29.—(C.P. Cable)—One of the most momentous peace time sessions of Parliament in Great Britain's modern history will be opened November 8th by the King with all the time-honored pageantry.

Parliament actually will meet on November 1st to wind up the business of the present session, sitting two or three days before proroguing. In both the short and long sessions, two topics will overshadow all others—defence and foreign affairs.

The Munich agreement will be discussed in the light of the final delineation of Czechoslovakia's boundaries and Germany's economic drive down the Danube.

The Government is expected to set a date sometime between the middle and end of November on which the Anglo-Italian treaty will come into operation, and then invite discussion on it. The agreement has lain dormant since April pending withdrawal of a sufficient number of Italian troops from Spain to be regarded as a "settlement" in Spain as far as Anglo-Italian relations are affected.

Another topic of debate—it may overshadow many others—will be Germany's demand for the return of War-lost colonies. On this subject, complicated because Australia, New Zealand and South Africa as well as Great Britain hold mandates over former German colonies, there are two sharply divided opinions.

Some Members of Parliament, cutting across political lines, believe Germany has the moral right to the return of colonies essential to an expanding European nation as sources of supply.

Others oppose the return of African and Pacific ocean colonies for economic as well as military reasons. They fear Germany might develop naval stations which would endanger Empire commercial communications.

New defence measures on a voluntary basis are expected to be announced by the Government at the short session. They will be designed to fill the gaps revealed when the country went on a modified war footing during the Czechoslovak-German crisis of September.

It was considered a strong possibility that Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, will present Britain's first £1,000,000,000 budget next April when he tables the annual financial statement.

The Chancellor is being pressed from two sides—to provide money for the rearmament programme of vast magnitude and to cut down expenditures. Obviously, he cannot please everyone.

Britain's rearmament programme is being financed partly by taxation and party by loans. If the Chancellor adds £50,000,000 to taxation reve-

A REAL FISHERMAN

Seattle, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Whether its work or play, fishing fills the bill for C. L. Dunsmore. Dunsmore, returning home from a season of commercial fishing in Alaska, tied up his boat at ten a.m. He greeted his wife and children and had lunch with them. Then he went fishing with a hook and line.

STRONG SYNDICATE TO OFFER $30,000,000 QUEBEC ISSUE

Montreal, Oct. 29.—(CP)—The Gazette said today "a strong syndicate" of Canadian banks and investment dealers, headed by the Bank of Montreal, "is offering to institutions today and will offer to the general public Monday, a new issue of $30,000,000 Province of Quebec short-term and long-term bonds."

The Gazette said it was understood the fund would be used in part for matured and maturing obligations, in part for the general purposes of the Province.

"The public offering will cover $5,000,000 three-year 2's at 99¼ to yield 2.26 per cent; $5,000,000 five-year 2½'s at 99¼ to yield 2.66 per cent, and $20,000,000 nine-year 3's at 98.06 to yield 3.25 per cent. It is expected that the issue will meet with a good reception."

OFFERED FULL COURSE MEAL

Postville, Ill., Oct. 29.—(AP)—All the ingredients of a tasty breakfast were dumped in the front yards of residents in this small community. A large trailer-truck jack-knifed and its contents—eggs, butter, dressed chickens and smoked meats—were strewn along the curbings.

Commissioner Seeks Speeding Of Bren Machine Gun Inquiry

Warns Opposing Counsel that Important Key Witnesses Must Be Available for Questioning When Probe Into Purchase of Seven Thousand Guns Resumes on Monday—Objection Offered to Presentation of Technical Evidence by Expert.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Next week the taking of evidence is expected to be completed in the inquiry being conducted into the Bren machine gun contract by Mr. Justice H. H. Davis of the Supreme Court of Canada, sitting as a one-man Royal Commission.

Following closely upon sharp questioning by His Lordship of Hon. J. L. Ralston of Montreal in the latter's capacity as "Government counsel appointed to assist this Commission," Justice Davis warned the assembled counsel yesterday he would be "very impatient" if certain witnesses were not called on Monday.

The Commissioner, after announcing some fifteen minutes before the time for customary adjournment that he would hear no more evidence at the moment, made a brief statement emphasizing the fact that the Commission has spent five weeks on actual taking of evidence.

Justice Davis ordered counsel to have Herbert Plaxton of Toronto, his brother, Hugh Plaxton, Liberal M. P. for Toronto-Trinity, and J. D. Cameron of the Toronto brokerage firm of Cameron, Pointon and Merritt, ready for examination Monday.

These men have been prominently mentioned at the hearings as associates of Major J. E. Hahn in the latter's acquisition of the assets of the John Inglis Company, Toronto, which has a contract to make seven thousand Bren machine guns for the National Defence Department and five thousand guns for the British War Department.

Criticism of the Canadian contract, mentioning the name of Hugh Plaxton, was levelled by Lt.-Col. George Drew of Toronto in an article published last August by Maclean's Magazine. Publication of the article prompted the Government to initiate the inquiry.

Aime Geoffrion of Montreal, counsel for the Inglis Company, reminded the Commissioner today that two

ANOTHER VOTE EMBARRASSES B.C. CABINET

Business of Legislature Again Delayed as Second Want-of-Confidence Motion in Two Days Is Presented.

Victoria, Oct. 29.—(CP)—The second want-of-confidence motion to come before the British Columbia Legislature in as many days was presented yesterday.

The motion, moved by Harold Winch, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation member for Vancouver East, expressed concern at the "continuation of economic chaos in our province and the increasing abrogation of the rights and civil liberties of our people, due to the failure of the Government to inaugurate constructive policies."

If further regretted "that the Government still fails to recognize the necessity of fundamental changes in our social and economic organization."

Thursday a Conservative motion of want-of-confidence in the Liberal Government of Premier T. D. Pattullo was defeated twenty-nine to sixteen.

In his address on the Reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Winch urged the Government to put into force immediately its present health insurance legislation or repeal it. (A health insurance measure which was to have come into effect in 1937 has remained inoperative following opposition by part of the medical profession and others).

Mr. Winch said single unemployed had had a "rotten" deal from the Dominion Government. Single men were put in camps in this province in winter and sent east in the spring. When cold weather approached the men again came west. The programme was being repeated year after year, he said.

$120,000 LYING IDLE

Durban, South Africa, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Natal Indian communities are asking legislation deeding to them disputed property valued at £25,000 ($120,000) resulting from investment of Indian Congress funds raised by Mahatma Gandhi and others here in 1894.

DRAGGED BY RAKE

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 29.—(CP)—Civic officials are perturbed over electric signs mistaken for traffic signas in several parts of the city. The City Souncil Works Committee is considering the removal of signs that constitute traffic hazards through misdirecting motorists.

Death Toll In Marseille Store Blaze Placed At Fifty-Six

Marseille, Oct. 29. — (AP) — The official death list from last night's fire mounted to fifty-six today and it was feared the toll might reach 100.

Besides those known to be dead, many others were missing, particularly in the Nouvelles Galleries de Paris department store where the blaze started. Firemen said there were "heaps" of bodies at the bottom of a stairway which collapsed.

Thirty-five persons were being treated in hospitals.

Some of the missing, ironically, were workmen constructing a fireproof cellar to protect employees against air-raid fires in the five-storey building. The floors of the department store collapsed less than twenty minutes after the fire was discovered.

Because of the fire, the national convention of Premier Edouard Daladier's Radical Socialist party adjourned this afternoon instead of continuing over the week-end. Daladier took personal charge of the fire fighting.

Troops with fixed bayonets stood guard throughout the night around the smoking runs to stop looting which started when thieves pillaged guest's rooms of three large hotels, ruined by fire and water.

Thousands of firemen from towns as far away as Lyons, 220 miles to the north, battled the flames which swept across wide boulevards under the force of winds of almost gale strength.

The cause of the fire, which apparently started on the first floor of the department store, had not been determined early today.

HEPBURN CALLS FOR BOOSTING OF ARMAMENTS

Tells Ontario Gathering that "Through Force of Necessity" He Has Changed Views on Canadian Armament Requirements.

Wiarton, Ont., Oct. 29.—(CP)—Premier Hepburn of Ontario has changed his opinions on Canada's defence policy, "through force of necessity." He now believes the Dominion should undertake immediately a national rearmament programme to "preserve that freedom we hold so dear."

Such a programme should be on a scale large enough to meet aggression without assistance, he told the Bruce Peninsula Resort Association here last night. "We can't hide under the paw of the British lion or the wings of the American eagle," he said. "This is something we must face ourselves."

As a member of the House of Commons, the Premier "was one of those who strenuously opposed any major armament policy in Canada," Today, "through force of necessity, I have changed my mind," he added. "There is no need to blind ourselves to the dangers that confront us if we are not prepared.

"There is a considered drive on the part of three great nations now to conquer and divide the world. We had better wake up before it is too late and we find ourselves in the same position as Ethiopia, Manchoukuo and those other conquered nations."

NO-SPEAKING POLITICAL CONTEST

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Spellbinders couldn't believe what they didn't hear from nearby Maryland today—a political campaign with no oratory. The fight is spirited, but Democrats and Republicans of Montgomery County have decided to replace "old-fashioned oratory" with "handshaking festivals."

TIME ALONE IS FUTURITY FAVORITE

Pawtucket, R.I., Oct. 29.—(AP) — Mrs. Frank Carreaud's Time Alone, victor in the Eastern Shore at Havre de Grace September 17th and the Pawtucket handicap at Narragansett Park October 19th, went to the post the favorite today in the $25,000 New England Futurity, for two year olds over a mile and seventy yards.

The Carreaud colt, carrying 117 pounds against the other juveniles' 114, faced his chief rival in A. G. Vanderbilt's impound.

Ranked as dangerous were W. L. Brann's Challedon, the Calumet Farm's Easy Mon and Joseph E. Brown's T. M. Dorsett. The Wheatley stable's Gilded Knight and the Walmac Farm's Olney, son of Burgoo King, also were listed to start.

FRANCE STICKS BY ALLIANCES WITH SOVIETS

Attempts to Achieve Rapprochement with Germany and Italy Not to Undermine Ties with Eastern and Central European Nations.

Marseille, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet today declared France remains faithful to her friendship with the Soviet Union — with whom she has a mutual assistance alliance — as well as to her ties with Poland, Rumania, Yugoslavia and Belgium.

Speaking to the Radical-Socialist party's annual Congress, the Foreign Minister, like Premier Edouard Daladier in his address Thursday, made a bid for an understanding with Germany and Italy. France, he stated, hopes for a real rapprochement with Germany and Italy.

He called for a widespread economic settlement in Europe as the sole means of preserving lasting peace. Insisting that peaceful organization of Europe was possible only with better economic organization, the oFreign Minister advocated:

Rational organization of world production and development of yet unexploited world riches;

An international monetary agreement to spur exchange and consumption of goods.

Bonnet's address was interpreted by delegates as forecasting Government efforts to bring about a world economic conference or at least economic conferences for Europe.

Bonnet devoted a large part of his speech to defence of his policy in the Czechoslovak crisis. He argued France acted in the best interests of Czechoslovakia in agreeing to dismemberment of that republic.

He declared, "We remain faithful to the League of Nations" but followed immediately with the statement that "France cannot build her policy of peace solely on it."

INVESTMENT BANKERS CONCLUDE SESSION

White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., Oct. 29.—(AP)—With its new president pledging himself to work in co-operation with the Securities and Exchange Commission for reopening of the capital markets, and a prominent economist predicting an increasing demand for capital to finance higher standards of living, the Investment Bankers Association of America concluded its four-day annual convention toady.

A PROFIT'S A PROFIT

Grants Pass, Ore., Oct. 29.—(AP)—No matter how small, a profit is still a profit these days. That's the way the Josephine County Fair Board felt when it deposited $1.60 in the County Fair Fund—the profit from the 1938 festival.

Deportation Menaces Thousands Of Jews In Polish-Reich Disagreement

Berlin, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Thousands of Polish Jews were held at German concentration points awaiting possible deportation to their homeland today while the Warsaw and Berlin governments debated the meaning of a new Polish citizenshp law.

Polish police estimated that 1,100 Jews, rounded up in swift night raids, already had been shipped to Poland through Schneidemuehl. An unrevealed number was kept at Neu-Bentschen, another border town, by secret police. Additional thousands in secret police custody elsewhere were ready to be evicted if Polish-German negotiations should fail.

Poland has ordered that nationals living abroad must have their passports certified by consular offices or lose their right to re-enter Poland. Polish Jews believed the law, effective tomorrow, might be an attempt to deprive Polish Jews abroad of their passports. Informed quarters said Germany feared many poles would become public charges if refused revalidation stamps.

The Government estimated that 150,000 Poles live in Germany, of whom only a fraction are Jews.

("Energetic Polish intervention" against the deportations was announced by Poland. Warsaw reported negotiations were under way to stop the deportations from Germany and to allow those already expelled to take their property with them. The Nazi drive was called a "misunderstanding" in authoritative Warsaw circles).

The thousands of male Jews who had been routed from their homes in the night throughout Germany and confined to barracks and border stations pinned their hopes to the negotiations, scheduled to continue today.

Nazi spokesmen, however, kept the strictest silence about details and the possible results of the negotiations the failure of which would set the deportation machine in full motion, with the deadline at midnight tonight.

Power Companies Order Expansion Policy To Increase War Potential

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The expansion programme that power companies have agreed to carry out in key manufacturing centres will help eliminate one of several industrial weaknesses already uncovered in the United States Government's restudy of the country's defence needs.

Among others are a shortage of skilled airplane mechanics, the railroads' difficulties and what the army considers an inadequate present supply of some materials which would be needed in time of war.

A Government group headed by Louis Johnson, Assistant Secretary of War, obtained commitments from outstanding utility executives yesterday to place immediate orders for generating equipment to step up power output by about 1,000,000 kilowatts.

Military experts had expressed concern that a power shortage might develop if industrial production was increased to war-time basis.

The expansion programme applies chiefly to fifteen manufacturing centres, all but Birmingham, Ala., in the industrial east or mid-west.

Utilities executives estimated it would result in expenditures of $2,000,000,000 in the next two years. Part of the expenditure will be financed through the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

The country's entire power capacity at the end of 1937 was just over 37,000,000 kilowatts, federal power officials reported.

HINTS OF SABOTAGE IN BLAZE REJECTED

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—An explosion and fire aboard the Hamburg-American liner Deutschland which sent three freighters racing to her rescue was blamed today by her master, Captain Karl Steincke, on an accumulation of gases in the ship's hold.

As the ship docked last night, its 591 passengers—laughing and joking—told anew of Tuesday's heroic nine-hour struggle by the 369 crew members to control the blaze.

Scouting the possibility of sabotage, Captain Steincke said that no estimate of damage could be made until insurance surveyors inspected the burned cargo today. There was no visible damage to the ship's exterior.

SNAKE USED AS NECKTIE

Regina, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Bicycle riders are increasing in Regina. Official records show 1,900 licences have been purchased this year, 185 more than in 1937.

British-United States Groups Unite To Oppose Jap Commercial Policy

British and American Chambers of Commerce at Shanghai Meet Jointly in Protest Against Japanese Effort to Monopolize Trade in Conquered Chinese Territory — Feared United States May Ultimately Become Involved in War.

Shanghai, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The British and American Chambers of Commerce in Shanghai met jointly today to discuss a united front against Japanese efforts to monopolize Chinese trade.

The move came as the Chinese press reported Japanese firms rapidly were establishing sales offices in all conquered cities and towns to handle all kinds of goods while foreign trade is blocked by the Japanese military.

Representatives of American commercial and cultural interests in China expressed hope yesterday that the United States would get a "satisfactory" reply to the October 6th protest to Japan.

A statement issued by the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Shanghai American Chamber of Commerce said that unless such a reply was forthcoming soon they hoped the United States would "promptly bring pressure on Japan to insure cessation of Japanese discrimination against American trade and cultural efforts in China."

"Failure now to secure correction of Japanese abuses of long-established treaty rights in China is likely to encourage the Japanese to further monopolistic encroachments and eventually bring conflict with the United States," the statement said.

(The United States protest to Tokyo warned against closing the "open door" and charged "unwarranted" interference with American rights. In Tokyo, the newspaper Asahi predicted the Japanese Government would attempt "to induce the United States Government correctly to recognize the new Far Eastern situation," which, it said, had modified the nine-power system. The nine-power pact, among other things, provided for equal opportunity for the commerce and industry of all nations in China.)

Shanghai Americans said Japan "already is implementing a programme designed to oust American business from China."

Meanwhile, Japanese forces in the Hankow area were engaged in mopping-up operations while advance detachments drove deeper into the interior.

PUBLIC FOOD TASTE SHOWS SMALL CHANGE

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 29.—(AP) — About the only thing that hasn't changed in the past thirty-two years is the public appetite says Durris Crane, a hotel food chef. The public still wants:

Ham and eggs for breakfast.

Chicken pot pie for lunch.

Steak for dinner.

Here for a convention, Crane said "salads and tomato juice" are the only notable food developments in the last three decades.

Shipment Of Planes To Spain Studied By Two Governments

United States Planes, Assembled in Canadian Plant, Shipped to Loyalist Spain Against Terms of Neutrality Legislation —Turkish Government Denies Responsibility for Placing of Order Termed a Forgery.

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP) — The Canadian Government and United States federal agents are investigating the illegal shipping of about forty American airplanes to Loyalist Spain.

The United States Department of State disclosed last night that the shipments had been made despite the neutrality law which forbids sending war materials to Spain. It said this was accomplished by use of what it now appeared were forged documents.

The aircraft were among fifty Grumman planes which were ordered from a Canadian company by a Paris agent of the Spanish Government, the Department said, explaining that the agent presented with the order documents to show Turkey was the destination of the shipments.

Export licences for the planes were revoked when the Department learned their true destination was Spain, but most of the order already had been sent. The planes were sent from the United States to Canada in assembled and unassembled form.

Canadian law requires a licence to ship certain war materials and equipment from Canada.

The State Department also disclosed that attempts had been made to obtain export licences for twenty-two Bellanca planes on the representation that they were destined for Greece, but that licences had not been issued because the Greek Government informed the Department the ships were not intended for use there.

A shipment of military airplanes, purporteoly to Turkey, was made from Canada about six months ago, it was reported in Ottawa last night.

The Department said it first issued export licences to ship the Grumman airplane engines and parts to Canada for assembly on assurance that the planes would remain in that country.

Then the Department was inform-

GARDINER HITS AT CRITICS OF WHEAT POLICY

Minister of Agriculture Derides Idea that Western Agriculture Benefited More by National Treasury than Eastern Agriculture.

Saskatoon, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Hon. James G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, last night derided the idea expressed in some quarters that western agriculture benefitted more by contributions from the National Treasury than eastern agriculture during the last ten years.

Speaking before a joint meeting of the Board of Trade and the Canadian Club, Mr. Gardiner said in the last decade the amount of money spent by the Federal Government for maintenance of the wheat industry had been "trivial" compared to that expended on the livestock industry of Canada.

He said of the $36,800,000 spent to maintain the livestock industry during the decade, $27,500,000 had gone to Eastern Canada.

The Minister added that the expenditure on the maintenance of the livestock industry did not include an additional $27,500,000 spent mainly in Western Canada during the last two years to meet the costs of feeding, marketing and transportation during a period of national calamity.

"Even if this year's losses of the Federal Treasury equal the most pessimistic estimates made by some persons, they would not swell the ten-year federal expenditures for maintenance of the wheat industry to anywhere near the amount expended on the livestock industry over the same period," the Minister of Agriculture asserted.

UNITED STATES DEMANDS PROBE INTO BOMBING

Details Still Lacking of Alleged Japanese Plane Attack on U.S. Mission Resulting in Death of American Girl.

Washington, Oct. 29.—(AP) — The United States Department of State sought additional details today about the reported bombing of a flag-marked mission in China which killed a three-year-old American girl and wounded her mother and eight-year-old sister.

A dispatch from Ambassador Johnson at Chungking, China, did not report the nature of the bombing, but press dispatches from Hankow said Japanese planes were reported to have destroyed the mission.

OSWALD PIROW LEFT BY PLANE FOR SPAIN

Lisbon, Portugal, Oct. 29.—(CP-Havas) — Oswald Pirow, South African Defence Minister, left today by airplane for Salamanca, Spain, accompanied by Nicolas Franco, brother of General Francisco Franco and diplomatic representative here.

After two days in Spain, including a trip to Burgos, Mr. Pirow will fly to Marseille, Paris, London, Brussels and Berlin. Representatives of the Portuguese Government, army and navy were on hand at the Cintra Airport to bid him farewell.

Four Women Carried To Death When Closed Car Jumped Over Canal Bank

Montreal, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Police today probed deaths of four women who drowned in Lachine canal last night when the automobile in which they were riding plunged over the canal bank and dropped ten feet to the water.

J. Morris Hunter, driver of the car and a resident of Huntingdon, Que., was the only occupant of the vehicle to escape. Night Watchman Dumorchel pulled him from the water after he had managed to crawl through a window as the car sank. He was suffering from a shock when taken to hospital.

The dead are: Mrs. Morris Hunter, twenty-eight; Mrs. Greta Hunter, fifty-three, Hunter's mother; Mrs. Louise Kelly, forty-eight, and Mrs. H. G. Gessner, sixty-three, his aunts. Mrs. Gressner was from New York City, the others from Huntingdon.

Bodies of the four women were found huddled in the car when it was raised from the canal bottom several hours after the accident.

Hunter could throw little light on the accident. He remembered trying to open a car door as the vehice sank, and of crawling through an open window when the door remained jammed, but had no recollection of the car leaving the road or of his rescue after escaping from the car.

It was believed Hunter failed to make a left turn to get parallel to the canal bank again after buildings had forced him to turn right toward the bank.

ARRESTED FOR PEDDLING PHOTOGRAPHS

Halifax, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Mrs. Marguerite Lafrance, of Quebec, was rearrested in Halifax yesterday after she had been convicted in Windsor, N.S., Thursday, of violating the Transient Photographers Act. She was taken to Kentville, N.S., where she is to face a similar charge.

DESCENDANTS OF PIONEERS HELD REUNION

Descendants of Early Settlers Attend Family Reunion — Many from Eastern Townships Were Present.

A number of Eastern Townships citizens attended the first family reunion of the descendants of Charles Gray and Winnifred Shannon Gray, County Roscommon, Ireland, held at Black Lake, N.H. One hundred and six years ago, their five children, Mary, Cormick, Patrick, Bridget and Catherine left for Canada. They were over eight weeks making the crossing and after landing eight miles from what is now Montreal, they walked one hundred and eight miles to Eaton Corner where they camped for over two days under the trees.

Among those from the Eastern Townships who attended the reunion were Mrs. Winnie Hurley, Oscar, Arthur and Mary Hurley, of East Clifton; Bryan McDermott, of Flanders; Mrs. Nora Gray, Charles Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Owen and Chirley Owen, of Hereford; Mrs. Cora Sunbury Austin, Mrs. Laura Gray, Percy Gray and Lynn Gray, Mr. and Mrs. Volney Hurley and Anne Hurley, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas French, of Sawyerville, and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Gray and Ellis and Owen Gray, of Canaan.

TWO ST. PAT'S CUBS RECEIVED INTO SCOUTING

Impressive "Going-Up" Ceremonies Are Held as Youths Leave Cubhood Behind and Enter Scout Patrols.

Two boys of the St. Patrick's Wolf Cubs—Bobby Marois and Donald Brault—left Cubhood behind last night and were accepted into the St. Patrick's Scout troop at impressive "going-up" ceremonies held in connection with the regular meetings of the two groups.

Marching from their chambers into the Scout room, where the Scouts stood in horseshoe formation, the Cubs formed a Council circle while District Cubmaster Gerald Giroux explained the purpose of the ceremonies. As the two boys stood in the centre of the circle the Cubs gave the grand howl, after which the youths shook hands with each of the Cubs and were taken by the Cubmaster to a chalk line halfway up the room, where they were introduced to Scoutmaster Herman Conley and George Loke.

Here the Cubmaster said farewell to them and they were welcomed into Scouting by the Scoutmaster and Mr. Loke. The two boys were then introduced to their patrol leaders and taken into their patrols to the accompaniment of cheers from the other Cubs and Scouts.

The Scouts were under the direction of Scoutmaster Conley, assisted by George Loke, and during the evening received a visit from Ed Waller, District Scoutmaster. Instruction was given on hand signals, artificial respiration and first aid.

District Cubmaster Gerald Giroux was in charge of the Cubs, assisted by Maurice Foucault and Miss Margaret Giroux.

Some time next week a number of boys will be invested into the Scouts.

Commissioner Seeks Speeding Of Bren Machine Gun Inquiry

of the witnessess he said would be required had been in court several days ready to testify but that he had put Major Hahn on the stand ahead of them to meet the wishes of I. F. Hellmuth of Toronto, counsel for Maclean's.

At the close of yesterday's hearing Mr. Hellmuth announced that because he had to leave for England next week he would have to withdraw from the inquiry. He would leave the case for Maclean's in the hands of Col. Drew who has been associated with him from the start.

Last witness yesterday was George W. Gillespie, for thirty-eight years an employee of the Royal Small Arms Factory at Enfield, England, and since August last with the Inglis Company.

Col. Ralston was questioning the witness on the problems and technical requirements of manufacturing the Bren gun when interrupted by Mr. Hellmuth who declared the evidence was irrevalent.

Justice Davis questioned Col. Ralston on his purpose and the latter said it was being brought out because of contention in some quarters that there were other firms in Canada who could manufacture the gun.

"Do you doubt that?" the Commissioner exclaimed. "Do you as Government counsel appointed to assist this Commission, doubt that?"

Col. Ralston replied he doubted if any firm could have tendered at a set price as low as that for which the gun was being made by the Inglis Company. Justice Davis told counsel to proceed if he wished to conduct the inquiry in that manner but warned him he would have to "take the responsibility."

"It is a responsibility I am very glad to take," Col. Ralston replied. He believed these were facts the public and the Commissioner should know.

Herbert Plaxton, who has been at the hearings almost continuously since the start, asked leave to address the Commissioner at the close of yesterday's proceedings. He said he and his brothers, jealous of their good name, were ready to be examined at any time and to assist the Commission in every way possible.

Major Hahn completed almost three days on the stand early yesterday afternoon. During that period he had been examined and re-examined by all counsel on his activities and business dealings dating back to his discharge from the army in which he served throughout the Great War.

Mr. Gillespie was brought over from Enfield as expert in Bren gun manufacture. He had been one of those selected from the Royal Small Arms Plant to go to Czechoslovakia more than four years ago to learn how to make the Bren gun. His plant had started producing finished guns last June.

Justice Davis questioned the witness on the retirement plan at the Enfield plant and asked him if he had not reached retiring age after thirty-eight years' service. The witness explained the retiring age was sixty-five and he was only sixty-four and a half.

Defence Has Spotlight In British Mind

nue, his budget will approach £1,000,000,000, a figure never before reached. On the other hand, he may decide to finance more by loans than by additional taxes, and in that event the budget will remain slightly below the £1,000,000,000 total.

During the short session, next Tuesday will be devoted to the consequences of the Munich conference, Wednesday to Spain, Thursday to defence and Friday to prorogation.

The Labor party laid down the basis upon which it will attack the Government in a manifesto issued last night.

It declared the Chamberlain Government had failed to achieve a strong peace, failed to provide a sound defensive system and failed to make Britain a happy and prosperous nation. For these reasons the Government had forfeited the confidence of the country and must be replaced.

The Labor party through its National Executive called for Ministries of Defence and Supply; for heavier taxation on large incomes and great fortunes; for national control and ownership of key industries, finance, investment, foreign exchange, food production, foreign trade, coal, power and arms manufacture; for intensified production of food in the United Kingdom, and for extension of trade with the British Commonwealth, the United States and other democratic, friendly countries.

It accused the Government of reducing the League of Nations to impotence, of shattering collective security and of bringing the country to the brink of war. It said President Benes of Czechoslovakia, and not Prime Minister Chamberlain, staved off war in the September crisis.

Meanwhile unofficial reports were heard that the Government had not yet fully made up its mind as to how the rearmament programme is to be organized. There are still two vacancies in the Cabinet to be filled and the question of a ministry of supply to attempt smoother movement of materials to the three defence services has not been settled.

United States Demands Probe Into Bombing

Pending receipt of further information there was no comment from the State Department.

Phoebe Nyhus, daughter of Arthur Nyhus, Lutheran Brethren Missionary at Tungpeh, was the girl reported killed. Ruth was the name of the daughter reported wounded.

The newly accredited Chinese ambassador told reporters an early peace between Japan and China was unlikey. The ambassador, Dr. Hu Shih, presented his credentials to President Roosevelt yesterday and told him that China was encouraged by the United States' "constructive international idealism."

Mr. Roosevelt replied that the United States would continue to advocate "principles on international law and of the orderly processes of international relations."

Graduates Of Asylums Seek Normal Lives

Chicago, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A group of persons cured of insanity pressed their campaign today for a normal place in society after a unique public meeting at which their objectives were outlined.

The fight to erase the stigma unjustifiably attached to such persons was undertaken by former patients of the University of Illinois Psychiatric Institute.

Last night they opened their public campaign with speeches and discussions before more than four hundred persons, including representatives of civic organizations, friends and relatives. The meeting was sponsored by the Psychiatric Institute and the State Department of Public Welfare.

The elimination of court procedure in committing mental patients to public hospitals was announced as a major objective of the organized group.

PENSIONS AID BLIND

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—(CP)—Some 3,633 persons, including 174 Manitobans, are receiving pensions provided by the Dominion Government for blind persons over forty years of age, Col. E. A. Baker, managing director of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, said here. He toured the West to inspect branches of the institute.

"Everlasting Punishment" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon which will be read in Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, on Sunday, October 30.

The Golden Text is: "Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy: when I fall, I shall arise; when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me." (Micah 7:8).

Among the citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon is the following from the Bible: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual, restore such an one in the spirit of meekness; considering thyself, lest thou also be tempted. Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfil the law of Christ." (Galatians 6:1,2)

The Lesson-Sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "We should become more familiar with good than with evil, and guard against the approach of thieves and murderers." (p. 234)

ATTRACTIONS AT THE LOCAL THEATRES

Frances Dee in "If I Were King," which opens at the Granada Theatre tomorrow.

At The Granada

Local motion picture fans who have come to look for something out of the run of usual screen fare from Frank Lloyd will find what they expect in "If I Were King," which opens at the Granada Theatre tomorrow with Ronald Colman portraying the beloved and colorful Francois Villon.

The Villon story revolves about the roistering poet who first wins widespread notoriety, not by his verses, but by looting the king's storehouses so that the people of Paris will not starve to death while Burgundy blockades the city. Made ruler of France for a week after meeting the king in a street brawl, Colman devotes himself to two great conquests; a princess at the court, played by Frances Dee, and the Burgundian armies.

A rollicking picture of medieval France is revealed in the tricky plotting of the old generals against the spirited newcomer and in the unpredictable actions of crafty Louis XI, who manages to keep them all at each other's throats. When the generals, comfortable behind the stout walls, refuse to go out and battle for their king, Colman saves the day for France by forming his vagabond friends into a people's army to meet Burgundy.

At The Premier

Crammed full of exciting air exploits and roaring action, "Atlantic Flight," which opens at the Premier Theatre tomorrow, stars Dick Merrill, the noted aviator.

Monogram showed intelligent showmanship when they signed a well-known flier to star in such a timely feature as "Atlantic Flight." The picture clicks perfectly with the current public interest in aviation developments. However, its timeliness isn't the production's only value. It is a logical story, told in a coherent manner, and spiced with humor, thrills and a touch of romance.

Merrill's co-pilot on the Coronation flight, Jack Lambie, also has a leading role in the film. The two novices acquit themselves creditably, making up for lack of dramatic experience by naturalness and ease of manner.

The other picture is "Desert Phantom," featuring Johnny Mack Brown.

SOUTH BOLTON

Mr. J. Holland, Miss Muriel Cameron and Mrs. Agnes Holland, of Rock Island, the Misses Ila and Connie Cass and Mr. Carroll Cass, of Georgeville, were tea guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Cameron.

Actions For $21,600 Damages Are Taken Under Advisement

Taking of Evidence Concluded Yesterday in Suits Resulting from Train-Truck Collision at Crossing Near Lennoxville —Mr. Justice Hector Verret Takes Cases En Delibere.

The two actions resulting from the level crossing accident that claimed the life of Aime Cyr and seriously injured Josephat Hamel were taken under advisement by Mr. Justice Hector Verret in Superior Court yesterday afternoon.

Hamel, driver of a truck that was struck by a Coaticook-bound train, is claiming $5,600 damages from the Canadian National Railways, and Mrs. Aime Cyr is suing Hector Lepage, owner of the truck Hamel was driving, for $15,000.

Only two witnesses were heard yesterday afternoon before counsels summed up their cases, first of whom was Odilon Dumont, keeper of a pumping station near the scene of the mishap.

Dumont, one of the first to arrive at the crossing after the crash, described the scene as he saw it. Mr. Gervais, counsel for Hamel, asked him whether he had noticed that the gate was defective. Witness replied he had not noticed any barrier.

Following Dumont's testimony J. Marchessault, contractor, who had appeared at the morning session, was recalled to the witness stand and was questioned in regard to the number of weeks Hamel would have been in his employ had not the accident occurred.

Cesaire Gervais, K.C., then reviewed the entire case for the plaintiff, Hamel. Stating that it had been established Hamel was a good driver, he recalled Hamel's testimony that he had stopped to see whether a train was coming or not. Witnesses had also proved, counsel maintained, the gate leading to the railroad track was defective, thus rendering the railway culpable of negligence. Mr. Gervais claimed that the train crew was also guilty of carelessness in the function of their various duties, stating that the engineer and fireman should have seen Hamel's truck. He concluded his summary by refering to the testimony of the doctors who attended the victim, contending that Hamel was now unable to do any heavy work and has a permanent partial incapacity.

Counsel for the defence, W. H. Lynch, K.C., started his summary by stating that the attorney for the plaintiff had failed to advance any conclusive proof of negligence on the part of the railroad employees. At the time of the collision, he said, the engineer's view of the track was limited and the fireman was engaged in stoking. Stressing the fact that expert testimony had shown that the brakes of the locomotive were in first class order, Mr. Lynch referred to the testimony of the air brake inspector who had stated that the train could not have been going at more than thirty miles an hour in order to have stopped in the distance it did.

Counsel for the defence also reviewed the evidence of civil engineers and others who had testified that visibility at all points along the road leading to the crossing was very good. Noting too, that the train hud the right of way, Mr. Lynch claimed it was quite obvious that Hamel had not stopped before crossing the track. Referring to the claim of wages during the sixty-six weeks of incapacity suffered by the victim, Mr. Lynch held that the sum demanded was exorbitant in that it could not be proven Hamel would have been permanently employed had he not met with the accident.

FIRE DESTROYS ISLAND BROOK POSTAL OFFICE

Volunteer Fire Fighters Remove Mail Before Collapse of Two-Storey Structure—Spread of Flames Prevented After House and Barn Burn.

Island Brook, Oct. 29.—Threatening destruction to a number of other buildings in the vicinity, the two-storey building in which the Island Brook postoffice was housed was levelled by flames yesterday afternoon.

All the mail in the office was removed by volunteer fire-fighters before the structure collapsed with a roar into a mass of blazing timbers.

Owned by Mrs. R. H. Burns, the building was occupied by Gordon Lister, the postmaster, and Mrs. Lister. Most of the furniture and household articles in the home were removed to safety, but the flames destroyed a barn near the postoffice.

Slight damage was caused to a house and barn across the road owned by Samuel Kerr and fears were felt for a time that the nearby Anglican Church would fall prey to the blaze.

Mr. and Mrs. Lister were not at home when the outbreak was discovered about four p.m. yesterday. Overheated pipes are believed responsible for the fire.

Vermont Youth Held Following Crash Death Of Sutton Girl

Sutton, Oct. 29.—A nineteen-year-old Vermont youth was held as a witness here today following an accident in this community last night which claimed the life of a twelve-year-old girl and seriously injured her older sister.

Victim of the accident was Marjorie Rattray, instantly killed when an automobile driven by Raymond Dudley, of Berkshire, Vt., struck her and her sister, Phyllis, fifteen, as they were crossing Main street at the corner of Western avenue.

According to Sutton police, Dudley was being held for appearance before the coroner's inquest into the tragedy. The probe, slated for this afternoon, was to be held by Dr. R. Noiseaux, of Sutton, district coroner.

The older of the two sisters, with a broken leg and internal injuries, was taken to the Brome-Missisquoi-Perkins Hospital in a serious condition immediately following the accident. The two girls were daughters of the late Rev. Rattray, Anglican rector, and Mrs. Rattray.

Heavy fog in the district at the time the tragedy occurred was believed to have prevented the girls from seeing the automobile which sped out of a side street and crashed into them. The accident happened at 8.15 p.m., as the sisters were returning home after getting the evening's mail.

DENIES FARM CREDITS USED TO BUY VOTES

Hon. Johnny Bourque Replies to Criticism of Duplessis Administration at Political Meeting Held at Rock Island.

Rock Island, Oct. 29.—Answering charges by Liberals that farm credits were being used to buy votes in the Stanstead bye-election, Hon. Johnny Bourque, Minister of Public Works and Lands and Forests, stated here last night that not one claim was being paid during the election. The Minister, speaking at a meeting held in favor of Henri Gerin, also asserted that all public works in the country were being suspended until after November 2nd, date when the people will go to the polls to elect a successor to Rouville Beaudry who recently resigned his seat in the Legislature.

Col. Bourque confined the greater part of his remarks to replying to criticism to which the Provincial Government has been subjected during the present campaign. In his opening remarks the Minister denied the charge that the Union Nationale candidate, Henri Gerin, had been chosen by a few in Quebec, stating that a representative delegation had approached the Government with his candidature, thus rendering a convention unnecessary. In answer to the claim put forward by the Liberal party that it was their regime that had instituted old age pensions, Col. Bourque stated that there were few payments made before the Duplessis Government was elected. In reference to the pension plans the speaker reviewed the legislation which had been put into effect since the coming into power of the present government, mentioning in particular the pensions for the blind and assistance to destitute mothers.

"The Liberals have claimed that, though we are spending large sums of money, payments in our rural credit scheme are slow in coming," said Col. Bourque in reference to the Farm Loan legislation recently passed by the Provincial Government. "Do they realize that during the period from 1936 to 1938, the number of claims has jumped from ten thousand to thirty-two thousand. We cannot dispose of these at once. They require close study and study takes time."

Col. Bourque justified the public works programme launched by the Duplessis Government, a programme which has been termed by the opposition as extravagant. He stated that if it had not been for the Government projects, Gaspe and Temiskaming would not have been opened up, reforestration would not have been started, and the unemployment situation would have been ten times worse than it is now. He also made mention of the opening of mills, due entirely to Provincial Government efforts, and stated this would not have been done under the old regime.

The financial situation of the Province was reviewed by the speaker who stated that the present administration was still paying for the "folly of the old regime," for which millions have had to be borrowed. Col. Bourque also denied the accusations that the Duplessis Government was controlled by trusts, citing instances to support his claim. The Minister came out strongly against the interference of Federal members in the present bye-election and stated that those who were taking an active part were doing so because of "personal interests."

Hon. T. J. Coonan, Minister without Portfolio in the Provincial Government, outlined reasons for the resignation of Rouville Beaudry. Charging that the principal excuse given by Mr. Beaudry for his resignation was the fact that he could not get enough favors for his constituency. Mr. Coonan stated that it was not the practice of the present administration to indulge in patronage. He also ridiculed the statement made by the ex-Member that he was forced to vote for laws of which he knew nothing and claimed that Mr. Beaudry and any other Member had ample opportunity to study any legislation before it was put to a vote. Commenting on the

FAVORITISM IN ROAD BUILDING WORK CHARGED

Select Few Receiving Contracts in Eastern Townships, Liberal Rally at Coaticook Told Last Evening.

Coaticook, Oct. 29.—Charges of gross favoritism in the granting of Government road contracts to a certain select few in the Eastern Townships were levelled at the Duplessis administration at a political rally held here last night in support of Dr. E. C. Cabana, Liberal candidate in the Stanstead County bye-election on November 2nd necessitated by the resignation of Rouville Beaudry from the Quebec Legislature.

Raymond Fregeau, of Rock Island, charged that the Province was being governed "by a select few who rule in an arrogant and domineering fashion." The Government's road policy came under fire, Mr. Fregeau claiming that Quebec had neglected the arteries leading into the Province from United States points and that as a result many American tourists were vacationing elsewhere than in Quebec.

Disapproval of Premier Duplessis' method of government was reflected in the resignation of Union National ministers and deputies, in the opinion of Charles Martin, of Montreal. Bills 19 and 20, relating to labor legislation, came in for sharp criticism from Mr. Martin.

Dalma Landry, of Sherbrooke, outlined the efforts being made by the Liberal party to obtain women's franchise in Quebec. He described Premier Duplessis' promise of two years ago as electoral camouflage. The Government's method of selecting a candidate without a convention was interpreted by Mr. Landry as the Prime Minister's wish for a "yes man" at Quebec.

"Premier Duplessis criticized the economic policies of the Liberal Government," Landry said. "But today, only after two years in power, he has sunk the Province into a tremendous debt."

Roger Bouchard, of Coaticook, presided over the meeting.

Georgeville, Oct. 29.—Spending of the Union Nationale Government since it came into power in Quebec was attacked here last night at a meeting in the interests of the Liberal party, which is seeking to elect Dr. E. C. Cabana, of Magog, in the Stanstead bye-election next Wednesday. Speakers at the rally were Dr. Cabana, R. G. Davidson, M.P. for Stanstead, and Ashton Tobin, of Sherbrooke.

Dr. Cabana, in addressing the electors, stressed the fact that he had been selected as Liberal candidate through means of a conven-

THREE ANNUAL ONE-ACT PLAYS AT UNIVERSITY

"Drums of Oude," "Bargains in Cathay" and "The Little Father of the Wilderness" to Be Staged by Bishop's Dramatic Society.

Bishop's University Dramatic Society presents its annual one-act plays next week on November 7th and 8th. The three chosen for this year's presentation are "Drums of Oude," by Austin Strong; "Bargains in Cathay," by Rachel Field, and "The Little Father of the Wilderness," by Austin Strong and Lloyd Osbourne.

The first of these, "Drums of Oude," is a thrilling drama of the Indian Mutiny. The cast includes the following: "Captain Hector McGregor," played by Hector Belton, of Winnipeg; "Lieutenant Alan Hartley," Hugh Mackenzie, of Montreal; "Sergeant McDougall," Merritt Bateman, of Thetford Mines; "Stewart," a sentry, Alan Magee, of Montreal, Mary-Elizabeth Hoye, of Sherbrooke, assumes the role of Mrs. Jack Clayton, while John Paterson, Fort William, and James Flintoft, Westmount, take the part of two Hindustani servants. Robert Mackie, Toronto, is a private in this play, which is directed by Lincoln Magor, of Montreal.

"Bargains in Cathay" is a light modern comedy with a large American department store as the scene. Emily Gray is a youthful, attractive salesgirl in love with Thompson Williams, Jr., a young poet who is the son of a gruff, hard-headed business-man. Miss Doty is a middle-aged clerk, Mr. Royce, a self-satisfied floor-walker, and Jerry O'Brien a delivery boy in the department store. Miss Bliss is an old maid with memories.

The parts are taken as follows: "Emily Gray," Ernestine Roy, Waterville; "Thompson Williams, Jr.," Hume Wright, Westmount; "Thompson Williams, Sr.," Sidney Meade, Coaticook; "Miss Doty," June Graham, Sherbrooke; "Mr. Royce," John Carroll, Brockville; "Miss Bliss," Patricia Hall, Sherbrooke; "Jerry O'Brien," Rex Nickson, Montreal. The directress is Vivian Parr, of Sherbrooke.

"The Little Father of the Wilderness" is termed a delightful episode at the Verseilles court of Louis XV. It concerns the bewilderment of two priests at the magnificence of the French court.

The two priests, Pere Marlotte and Frere Gregoire, are played by Leon Adams, of Toronto, and Patrick Boyle, of Westmount. Louis XV is portrayed by Anthony Carlyon, of Montreal, and his favorite of the hour, Mlle. Henriette, by Sarah Echenberg, of Sherbrooke. Other members of the cast are Robert Perkins, of Noranda, who plays Captain Chevillon, of the King's Guard; George Rothney, of Sherbrooke, and Gilbert Stairs, of Montreal, representing Duke de Saint Albert and Chevalier de Frontenac, respectively, and Gerald McKay, of Stanstead, taking the part of an In-

Fewer Building Permits Are Issued In City During Year

Decrease of $120,890 Seen in First Ten Months of Present Year as Against Corresponding Period in 1937—October Total Above September and Second Largest Month in Year—Top Permit During Month for $13,000.

With but two months remaining in the present year building permits issued in Sherbrooke during the first ten months were $120,890 less than during the corresponding period in 1937, it was noted in figures released today at the City Hall.

Permits issued during October totalled $83,650 as against $30,800 in September and $19,000 in the same month last year. During the month just ending a total of twenty-three permits were issued, thirteen for amounts over one thousand dollars. With the exception of July, when permits totalled $149,500, October was the largest month in the building industry this year.

The July total was swelled by the addition to the Ste. Marie Academy in East Sherbrooke and the permit for the construction of the building on the site of the Grand Central Hotel.

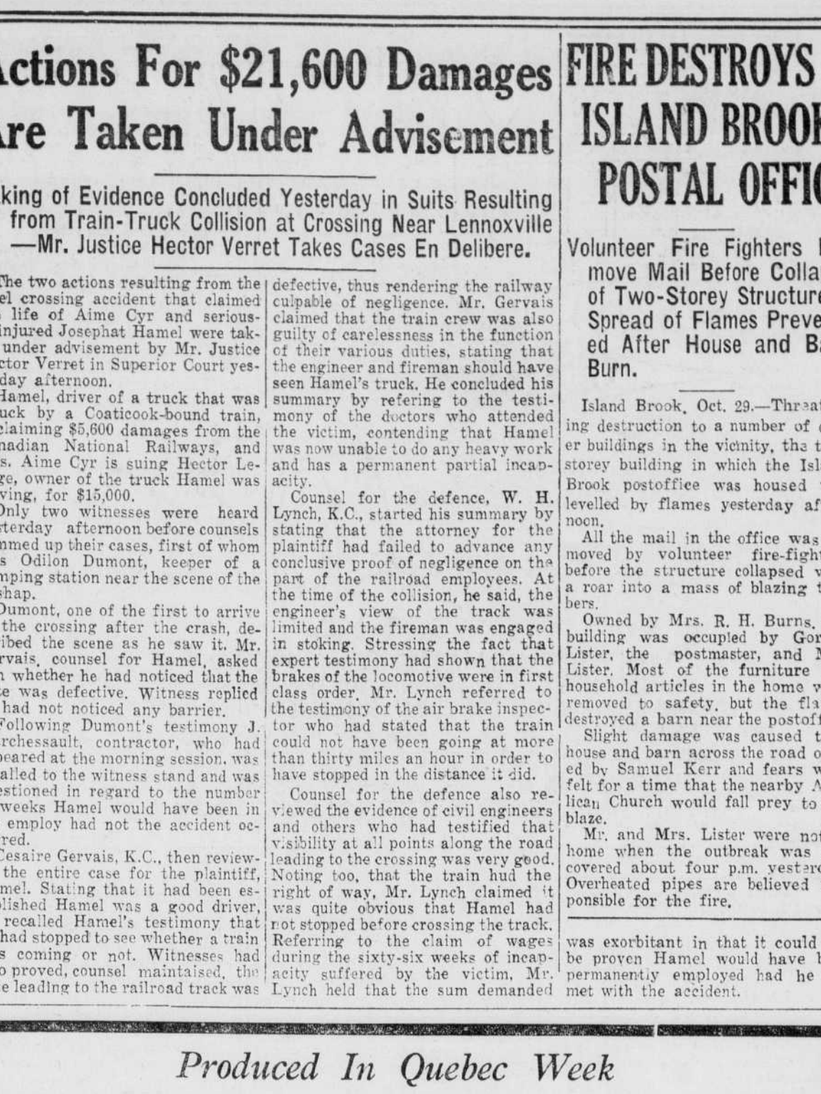

Largest permit this month was for $13,000 to Jean Paul Genest for the construction of a double house at 31 Brooks street. Next was for $10,000 for an apartment building at 149a King street west to be erected by J. L. Doyon. A permit for $8,000 was issued to the Metropolitan Stores for alterations to the front of their premises on Wellington street.

Permits issued during the first ten months of 1938 as compared with the same period in 1937 follow:

| | 1938 | 1937 |
|---|---|---|
| January | $19,300 | $ 71,000 |
| February | 25,000 | 18,600 |
| March | 47,900 | 30,500 |
| April | 70,200 | 180,000 |
| May | 78,200 | 96,690 |
| June | 61,600 | 87,750 |
| July | 149,500 | 57,700 |
| August | 37,100 | 76,300 |
| September | 30,800 | 149,500 |
| October | 83,650 | 19,000 |
| Total | $603,250 | $724,140 |

The Rotary Fair

The year 1919 saw the advent of the Rotary movement in Sherbrooke. The past nineteen years have witnessed the spread of Rotary activities, not only in Sherbrooke but throughout the entire Eastern Townships.

Eight years ago the local club launched a new venture—The Rotary Fair. So successful was this novel scheme that it has been repeated each year since, each successive Fair "going over" in a bigger and better way.

That the Rotarians and the citizens are wholeheartedly behind The Rotary Fair is evidenced by the large Rotary Fair supplement which the Record publishes today. This special section was made possible by the encouragement and co-operation of Sherbrooke business concerns who are proud of the opportunity of linking their names with Rotary, and thus encouraging a movement which has as its main purpose community service without thought of race or creed.

The 1938 Rotary Fair will be formally inaugurated at the Belvidere Street Armory on Thursday of next week and will conclude on Saturday night, November 5th.

During the three days of the Fair excitement will run high as thousands of people wend their way to the Armory to spend their money and to thoroughly enjoy themselves in the knowledge that they are supporting a worthy cause, and that their money is to be spent judiciously in the relief of suffering among needy families.

Work among crippled children is perhaps the outstanding achievement of Rotary from a community point of view. While some truly remarkable success has been achieved in this respect, Rotary efforts are not restricted solely to this field of endeavor. Financial assistance is also given to numerous charitable and health organizations in no way associated with Rotary. Every cent of profit derived from the Rotary Fair is spent on welfare work, generous grants being made to numerous organizations representative of all races and creeds in the community.

The Rotarians spare no time or effort to make this annual Fair a success. Busy businessmen—leaders in practically all branches of industry, commerce and the professions—gladly give up their time and sacrifice their personal interests that the Fair may achieve its desired results and the great work of Rotary continue and expand.

Between the Rotarians and the public has grown up a feeling of understanding and sympathy. The work of Rotary cannot but merit the highest commendation. It is a community project of the first order. It is a helping hand which is gladly extended to worthy cases in need of help.

The Rotarians ask for the same support and encouragement which has been given to previous Fairs. The 1938 Fair is being organized with the usual care and precision. An attractive programme has been drawn up. Three days of continuous activity are assured, and a good time is promised all patrons.

Support the Rotary Fair and by so doing help the Rotarians to carry on their splendid service to humanity—a service which is done in the Name of Him who has said that "he that hath pity upon the poor lendeth unto God."

France Looks To Her Colonies

There is nothing new under the sun which statement will be amply borne out in the case of France if Premier Edouard Daladier turns the nation's energies away from a fight to lead Europe to salvation in her vast colonial empire.

Once before France abandoned her struggle to lead in European power politics to find union and recovery outside the continent. After the disastrous war with Prussia in 1870, a divided and shaken France won the world's second largest colonial empire and prosperity in the forty-odd years before the Great War.

Today, although Daladier stoutly denies it, many French commentators have compared the French part in the Munich settlement which dismembered Czechoslovakia to the Battle of Sedan in 1870 when France's power was broken before the strength of a growing and rapidly uniting Germany. In the years following 1870, she played an active part in the concert of continental powers. But she abandoned her historic policy of fighting to be dominant in Europe to recover and develop her strength outside the continent, because Germany's power made it difficult to recover and develop that strength in Europe.

Massive rearmament followed the 1870 defeat and today Premier Daladier is pressing for an even greater rearmament programme to offset the danger of an expanding Germany.

Whereas the years that followed the loss at Sedan were engaged in conquering and building colonies, a similar French policy would seek economic development of those lands beyond the sea.

In Europe 45,000,000 Frenchmen compare with nearly 80,000,000 Germans, but there are 65,000,000 in her overseas possessions for compensation—provided their lands are developed and their status raised to somewhere near European levels.

The Shrine Of The Empire

Possibly the most sacred spot of the Empire, the quiet tomb of the British Empire's "Unknown Soldier" lying near the west door in the lofty beamed nave of Westminster Abbey may be altered by Armistice Day, 1939.

Already an experimental model carried out in wood has been put in place. The model, on the plain lines of the present granite slab, is an oblong box with a pillow headpiece, the suggestion being to use the present commemorative slab as a top piece monument with provision for a niche from which would burn a perpetual flame.

Canon F. L. Donaldson, Archdeacon of Westminster, said the decision on alterations was taken when it was found that thoughtless, unobservant Abbey visitors trod on the slab, which is flush with the floor.

"The grave itself will not be moved," he said. "There will be simply an alteration of the tomb."

However, before a definite decision the Abbey authorities will exchange views with Sir Fabian Ware and other representatives of the Imperial Graves Commission.

A Times writer suggested the simplest course would be erection of a guard railing, leaving the slab undisturbed.

The Star commented elaboration of the tomb should be carefully considered. "We doubt whether it would be received with general approval," the paper said. "Noble simplicity has been felt to be most fitting in all that has touched this humble reminder of the fate of British lives. If we make changes now why should not others be made later? Surely this is one place where restlessness should hold its hand."

Editor's Note-Book

Time and sanity work on the side of the democracies and against the dictators. Hitler's next move will be far more difficult to execute than this one was, and to oppose him in any new disruptions will be much easier. The world owes to Chamberlain's skill, patience and boldness a great deal of gratitude for having been able to halt the spread of an infection that threatened its peace.

Thirty Years Ago Today

From the Files of the Sherbrooke Record.
October 29th, 1908.

Montreal—Dean Evans informed the Synod that he had received a cablegram from the Bishop of Stepney declining the honor shown him by this diocese, stating that he could not see his way clear to accept the bishopric of Montreal.

Cowansville — The organization of the Young People's Club took place this week, the following officers being elected: President, A. L. McClatchie; First Vice-President, H. D. Hale: Third Vice-President, Miss Donna Scott: Treasurer, Thomas Jones; Secretary, Donald Hawk.

St. John, N.B.—The Maritime Provinces have been created a fourth degree jurisdiction by the Knights of Columbus and W. J. Mahoney has been appointed master. This is the second fourth degree jurisdiction in Canada, the other being Central in Montreal.

Lennoxville—The annual Bishop's College football dance was held in the Council room on Thursday evening. The patronesses were Mrs. Parrock and Miss Gill. Among those who attended from Sherbrooke were Miss Odell, Miss Hale, Miss Robins, Miss A. McCrea, Miss Anderson, Miss Clough, Miss Farwell, Miss Mitchell, Miss Gwyn, Miss White, Miss Somers, Miss Wyatt and Miss Lawrence.

South Roxton—Miss Amy Blompin spent one day this week at her home, her school house at Shefford Mountain being used for voting purposes. Walter Gailbraith has returned from the West. He was delayed at Winnipeg for a day and a half waiting for the snowbound train from Edmonton.

Marriages—In St. Peter's Church, Sherbrooke, Miss Ruth Kent, of Stanstead, to William Giroux, of Hatley, Rev. A. H. Moore, of Stanstead, officiating.

At Dunham, Miss Jessie M. Small to J. Emerson England, Postmaster of this place. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Pletts, pastor of the Methodist Church, assisted by the groom's brother, Rev. C. P. England, of Abbott's Corner.

In the Methodist Church, Sawyerville, Miss Julia Osgoode to the Rev. Frederick Williams. Miss Gertrude Osgoode, sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid while E. Gilpin, of Westfield supported the groom. Rev. D. A. Lough officiated.

MOUNTAIN PATH

I walk lightly on these pine needles and this pennyroyal
As I move through this green arch to the rocks above;
I walk swiftly past this ground hemlock
And the seductive mock of its red fruit, but even so
From the high seclusion of his fungus perch one goldfinch calls,
And a multitude of whirring birds in high pitched words
Resent this slight intrusion of their wild solitude.

Called To Be Saints

I Cor. VI, 20: "Ye are bought with a price."

When the writer of this epistle used the term "Saint" he invested it with a breadth of significance such as we in these latter days do not appreciate. A man will say: "I am no saint," meaning that the only legitimate application of the word is to some great and holy personage, like an apostle or a martyr; obviously no ordinary individual, like himself, can by any stretch of the imagination appropriate the term.

This, however, was not St. Paul's view. When he wrote a letter "To the Saints" in such and such city or church, he meant all members in the congregation, for all by their very enrolment in the body of believers were "called" out from the world, dedicated to God's service, "bought with a price!" It is to this last description of a "saint" that I would call your attention here.

This idea of "purchase" is very striking. It was peculiarly suitable in St. Paul's day, for a large proportion of the converts to Chrisianity were actually slaves. Men and women might any day be offered for sale in any of the great city markets, and literally "bought with a price!" For slavery was a flourishing business, an institution sanctioned by immemorial custom; and the apostle wanted to drive home by truth that, just as one could "redeem" or "emancipate" a slave by paying the price, so Jesus Christ redeemed us from slavely to sin to the "glorious liberty of the children of God."

And yet, even for us in these days, the words have a familiar ring. Wherever men foregather, conversation sooner or later turns to the state of the market, the desirability, or otherwise, of this or that security; for, "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

A little of the enthusiasm manifested in matters monetary and commercial might well be directed to the well-being of men's immortal souls! All the buying and selling on Wall Street, all the juggling of shares and bonds can only interest us for a few short years, and all Eternity lies before us. So, what about the business of the King of Kings?

After all, it is really a business matter, and St. Paul exhorts us not to be slothful about it. Let us ask ourselves, as men and women who are "called to be saints," does carelessness in religious matters really yield good dividends, does it pay?

How can it? An habitual transgressor of God's laws really puts a mortgage on his future in this world and the next. As the Psalmist so well expresses it, such a man "is fast bound in misery and iron, because he rebels against the Lord, and lightly regards the counsel of the Most Highest!"

There is a common type of youth, none too well furnished mentally, who actually deludes himself into the belief that "to gang his ain gait," and follow his own devices, is to be free!

A crowning error! In reality, the poor young chap is forging a chain for his own feet. This he might realize for himself, if he would take the trouble to think the matter out.

Can anyone in his right senses suppose that getting deep into the mire of debt in order to pay for one's extravagances leads to the high-road of happiness? Never yet was there a man who habitually gave himself up to a reckless career of dishonesty and selfishness, who could by any stretch of the imagination be styled "happy". His is but a spurious freedom; for sin is invariably a bad bargain, and persistence in evil courses leads to moral bankruptcy.

Consider, for instance, the all too common vices of gambling and overindulgence in alcoholic stimulants. There is, no doubt, a keen excitement in following the eccentric freaks of fortune, in the turn of a card, or the throw of the dice; but the man forgets what he pays. Win or lose, he parts with his good name, his peace of mind. Is it worth while?

Like Faust, such a man trades with Satan, and soon finds he has been "sold". Yes, he too is "bought with a price!"

So also is it with the intemperate man. His vice costs him his health, his brain power, his family's respect; he deliberately casts in the mire the fine gold of all that is good, and manly, and strong in his character —and what is his recompense? Could anyone suggest even one thing worth having that he receives in return for all this?

Men often make a fetish of Liberty. Indeed, there are few words in our language more scandalously abused. It is a word that comes readily to our lips. Like St. Paul, we boast that we are "free-born," and "citizens of no mean city." We glory in our heritage as British citizens, and in the great and free institutions handed down to us at such terrible cost. But, can a dope-fiend who cannot break away from his evil habit be described as "free"? Can anyone who is absolutely bound up in "self," who thinks and acts wholly and solely in reference to self, who is ready to sacrifice everything and everybody to his own pleasures—can such a creature be called "free"? I trow not!

Getting right down to business—does sin pay? Christian experience through the centuries testifies to the fact that only in the service of Jesus Christ can perfect freedom be found. No other service can yield such large returns.

The call to "saintship" comes down to us through the ages: "Ho, everyone that thirsteth, come ye to the waters, and he that hath no money, come ye, buy and eat: yea, come, buy wine and milk without money and without price!"

FASCISTIC POSSIBILITIES IN MEXICO

(St. Louis Post-Dispatch)

With matters in Europe at the most critical stage since the World War, attention has been diverted from the recent sharp exchange between Secretary Hull and President Cardenas of Mexico over problems arising out of expropriation of land held by American companies and citizens. Latest reports are to the effect that negotiations are going on a little more smoothly and bear some signs of progress. There are two very good reasons why the State Department should do everything in its power to continue these negotiations to an amicable settlement. First and foremost, a hard-fisted attitude could pave the way for a civil war that would be as disastrous to Mexico as the strife in Spain is to that nation. Secondly, nothing should be done that would cast a shadow on the New Deal's "good neighbor" policy which has had such beneficial results in Central and South America. . . The "good neighbor" policy should prevail in our relations with Mexico at all costs. Prevention of civil war and of any possibility of Fascist penetration in Mexico is of deep importance.

RADIO MAY END DICTATORS

(Howard Vincent O'Brien, in the Chicago Daily News)

No longer are we obliged to take what somebody says about somebody else and swallow it as gospel. It is one thing to read or hear that Hitler is crazy; and it is very much another thing to hear Hitler.

The idea grows on me that if the dictator disappears from our earthly stage it will be because of the radio. One may read of Mussolini addressing an ecstatic throng at Vicenza and be impressed. His reaction is different when he hears that funny little man screaming nonsense like a barker on the tailboard of a patent-medicine wagon.

Hitler shrank considerably in my esteem when I heard him, in the Sports Palast, tell me how brave he was. He thought he was telling the world where it got off. All he really told was his own fright.

Stalin, alone, has kept his head. He remains awesome and mysterious; but one of these days he will make the mistake of going on the air. Then he will be just another little man, trying to sell me a bill of goods.

A NATION GROWING OLDER

(New York Times)

Fewer children are being born. Our population is increasing, but fewer of us are of school age. The truth is that as a nation we are growing older. In 1900, for example, 17.7 per cent of us were over forty-five. At present at least twenty-five per cent. of us have passed that age. Presumably we should be wiser and more sedate, with our schools days so far behind us. We ought to be serious in our department and sit a good deal by the fireside. We ought to be growing more rather than less conservative. One might expect to find us quite settled in our ways. These generalizations may be true, in time. They scarcely fit the restless, experimental age in which we live. The time may never again come when nearly a third of us will be of the present school age. That stage was an incident in the settling of a continent, the adjustment of man to the machine. Yet a third or more of us may again be going to school in years to come. The spread of adult education and increasing college registrations suggest what may happen. Youth as well as maturity may be prolonged. We may be older, yet not feel our years.

Successful vaccinations against disease have been performed on silkworms, it is said.

McKENNEY ON BRIDGE

BY WM. E. McKENNEY,
Secretary, American Contract Bridge League

EXPERT PLAY REQUIRED TO OVERCOME HANDICAP OF 6-2 BREAK IN TRUMPS

Par Bridge—Par score is 100. Deduct 10 points for each numbered play you fail to make correctly. Gain credits for expert plays. A score of 90 shows expert play; 80 is good.

While the expert prefers a trump suit divided four and four to one divided six and two, today's problem is an exception to the rule.

1. West should overcall with two diamonds, even though vulnerable.

2. North should bid three clubs. He has two and a half tricks and a semi-fit with spades.

3. South should rebid spades. His partner's free bid requires him to make another bid, and he should show his strong spade suit by rebidding that suit.

4. South should play his singleton club, after West has cashed two diamonds and shifted to the spade 8, hoping to find a distribution of that suit that would give him his needed discards; or failing that, to develop a squeeze for the tenth trick.

In the play, East won the club trick and returned a trump, which was won in dummy, and a small club ruffed in the closed hand. Now declarer led all of his trumps, and East was forced to choose between a heart and a club discard. Naturally he dropped the heart, as he alone could guard the clubs.

South now entered dummy with the heart king, cashed the club king as a safety measure, and took the last two tricks with the ace and ten of hearts in his own hand. Expert credits are given for ruffing a low club from dummy, and for leading all of the trumps before playing the heart suit.

1. What should the final contract be?

2. If South reaches six hearts, should East double?

3. In which hand should the declarer win the opening lead and what card should he play to trick two?

4. After winning the ace of diamonds and trumping a diamond, what card should the declarer play?

There are two opportunities for expert play in this hand. Can you make them?

DOES NOT AGREE WITH MR. HOWARD

To the Editor,
Sherbrooke Record.

Dear Sir:—I was glad to read in the Record of October 26th the very appropriate article from you with reference to the Ayer's Cliff speech made by B. C. Howard.

I note he said "The world's finger is pointed at the Province of Quebec as the only section of the British Empire turning Fascist." Does Mr. Howard realize that it is only in the Province of Quebec that men in a position would make such statements as he is known to make too frequently.

Is it any wonder the populace is turning Fascist, as he states, when they listen to or read such ill will promoting statements.

Realizing no right thinking person would be influenced by such remarks, however, they do help create the very apparent loose-thinking that is prevalent today.

Is it not fortunate for Mr. Howard that there is such a place in the British Empire as this Province.

Thanking you for your valuable space.

I remain,
MRS. WALTER WINGEAT
Ascot Corner.

A WORD FROM A STANSTEAD WOULD-BE ELECTOR

To The Editor,
Daily Record,
Dear Sir:

In a recent address, Mr. Ashton Tobin, of Sherbrooke, speaking of the Liberal Party, referred to Premier Duplessis as a dictator. As you already mentioned in your editorial of October 26, in reference to what took place at the Ayer's Cliff convention, "Wild statements always fly in the heat of an election."

Now supposing that Premier Duplessis is a dictator, which he is not, do you not think it might be a good time to have a dictator at Quebec? We received a pamphlet through the mail headed "Vote for Dr. Cabana and Honest Liberalism." Whenever was it honest? Because Premier Duplessis has had a house-cleaning and gotten rid of some of his administrators he is termed a dictator. It was about time, anyway, that the old Taschereau regime was exposed and cleaned up.

If Mr. Rouville Beaudry did not understand politics, why did he present himself before the electorate? But if Mr. Beaudry did relinquish his mandate that is no reason why someone else cannot adequately fill his place. And, by the way, why do we not have a Protestant representative once in a while? After all, we live in Stanstead County where we are not all Catholics.

Yours truly,
A WOMAN WHO WANTS TO VOTE.
Way's Mills.

JUNIOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE EXPLAINS ITS STAND

To the Editor,

Dear Sir:—Could we ask you to please make a rectification concerning the "Buy at Home" campaign recently started in Sherbrooke and also the French-Canadian Bottin which has been distributed all over the City.

It has been rumored that the Junior Section of the Chamber of Commerce have taken part in these two movements. It is quite true that we published, in December 1937, a paper entitled "Spend Your Money in Sherbrooke," but this publication was both French and English and our aim was to urge the citizens to spend their money in Sherbrooke instead of spending it in Newport, Montreal or elsewhere.

The Junior Section of the Chamber of Commerce have always endeavoured to exclude any racial or political questions of its activities, and it would have been against our principles if we had participated, as a public body, to a movement of this nature.

Kindly accept, Mr. Editor, our thanks for the space so generously allotted us.

The Junior Section of the Chamber of Commerce of Sherbrooke.
DENIS TREMBLAY,
President.

BEEBE COUPLE WERE HONORED AT RECEPTION

Handsome Set of Dinnerware Presented Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cass at Social Event in Their Honor.

Beebe, Oct. 29.—The hall of Wesley United Church was the scene of a large gathering when Mrs. J. H. Turner, Mrs. Carroll Brainerd, Mrs. Irving Corey, Mrs. Cecil Miller, Mrs. R. R. Woodard and Mrs. Charles Woodard were hostesses at a reception given in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cass, whose marriage took place in Ayer's Cliff on October 11th.

At the door, Rev. T. W. and Mrs. Tyson received the guests of honor, and to the strains of the "Bridal Chorus," from Lohengrin, rendered by the Woodard Concert Orchestra, escorted Mr. and Mrs. Cass and their attendants to the reception room, which was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers.

After Mr. and Mrs. Cass had received congratulations and best wishes, Rev. Mr. Tyson, on behalf of their friends, in a very humorous and eloquent address, presented the happy couple with a beautiful set of English dinnerware. Mr. Cass, in well chosen words, voiced their appreciation for this reception tendered them and for the beautiful and useful gift.

Music was furnished throughout the evening by the orchestra, and a social hour was much enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were served by the intimate young friends of the couple at two beautifully appointed tables. Mrs. Howard Cass, Mrs. Leon Miller, Miss Esther Miller and Miss Beatrice Cass poured. The people of Beebe are pleased to know that Mr. and Mrs. Cass are making their home here. Mr. Cass is a well-known professional man and Mrs. Cass is a popular member of the teaching staff at the High School.

Guests from out-of-town were the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Rexford, and daughter, Beryl, of Ayer's Cliff, and Miss Joyce Rexford, of Marlington.

General Notes

The I.O.O.F. sponsored a very successful flower-whist party in their hall in aid of the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal. Cards were played at fifteen tables. Prize-winners were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Smith, Mr. Jack Smith, Miss B. Leith, Mrs. A. Brault, Mrs. Albert Fluet, Mrs. John Herbert and Mrs. G. Boisvert. Refreshments were served.

Mr. E. E. Beerworth, of Clarenceville, and son, Mr. Raymond Beerworth, of Ste. Anne de Bellevue, were guests of the former's brother, Mr. E. M. Beerworth, and Mrs. Beerworth.

Miss Lillian Crook, of Marbleton, spent a week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Crook.

Constable R. Crook, of the R. C. M.P., has returned to Yorkton, Sask., after a three weeks' leave spent with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Crook.

Mrs. M. P. Dixon spent a few days in Newport with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Magoon.

Mrs. Fred O'Leary and daughter are visiting relatives in Ayer's Cliff.

Mr. Scott Williams, of Montreal, spent a week-end with Mrs. Williams and son, John, at Miss M. Akins'.

Mr. and Mrs. Ashworth and daughter, Elaine, of Andover, Mass., spent a week-end with Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bachelder. Mrs. Dailey, who has been spending some time with relatives, returned home with them.

Mr. and Mrs. William Haselton have been visiting relatives in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lorimer, of Boston, Mass., are guests of Mr. H. N. Holebrook.

Mr. Elmer Bullis died unexpectedly at the home of Mr. H. Holebrook on Saturday morning, October 22nd. The funeral was held on Monday afternoon at the United Church with burial in Griffin.

YOUTH'S FLING FOR HALLOWE'EN IS NATION-WIDE

Even Rome Knew the Ancient Frolic but Greeting Varies as It Crosses Broad Canada.

Hallowe'en is an old Roman custom with its frolicsome objective little changed through twenty-five centuries and Canada's youngsters from coast to coast make a big night of it. However, a survey by The Canadian Press shows there is some variation in method of approach on October 31st in different areas of the country.

In the Maritime provinces the children in disguise call it neighbor's houses with a modest "guess who" and the implication anything in the way of candy, apple or money would be acceptable. The procedure in Quebec is much about the same, wierd-looking callers drawing generous contributions from householders prompted by previous experience to provide for the raid.

Ontario youngsters are a bit aggressive with their Hallowe'en rites. Store-keepers have learned through the years a little indulgence is good policy as the masqueraders bear down with their lusty "shell out! shell out!" The call almost invariably brings results be it in eatables or copper currency.

Dressed-up children calling at houses asking for apples, particularly red ones, feature street celebrations in prairie towns and cities. While the apple is traditional of Hallowe'en—and an apple is an apple on the prairies—it is noteworthy there are alternative requests nowadays for candy, suckers or peanuts. Grown-up folk, for the most part, remain at home to keep open house for the roving juveniles.

There's no maybe about the celebration in British Columbia. The children are "all over town as soon as the sun goes down, dolled up in their oldest clothes and wearing comic masks or copious layers of charcoal on their faces." The cry of the Pacific Coast is "How about a Hallowe'en handout?" Firecrackers and toy bombs give a lively touch.

In Canada the pumpkin is a common Jack-o-lantern in the windows or in the hands of the street rovers of Hallowe'en. But the apple is more closely associated with the feast of old than any other fruit or vegetable. In pagan Rome, at the festival of Pomona, goddess of fruits and nuts, particularly apples (poma) played important parts.

It would seem the Canadian children who go from house to house on Hallowe'en asking for apples are merely following a practice established by boys in other countries of the older world thousands of years ago.

Of the Hallowe'en celebrations of grown-ups, however, the tempo has probably slowed up a bit. Even the most hilarious of modern parties hardly hold a candle, so to speak, to the wild orgies of the ancients who went festive on a large scale to beguile the witches and evil spirits of the times.

Tested Recipes

IN A PINCH, YOU MIGHT NEED THE ADVICE ON USING SALT

Is your cooking worth it's salt? Better check up and see if you understand the magic of seasoning. There's far more to salt than the traditional pinch.

Salt should be added before cooking to extract meat juices, whereas meat juices are fully retained by salting food after cooking. Thus, broiled or fried meats should never be salted until just before the last turn on the broiler or frying pan. On the other hand, slow-cooked meats, such as pot-roasts, should be rubbed with equal quantities of salt and flour before cooking.

Prevents Sticking, Too

Broiled or fried fish should also be salted just before the last turn on broiler or skillet. In frying fish, sprinkle a little salt in the pan before cooking so that the fish will not stick.

Tender, young vegetables should be cooked in a small amount of briskly boiling salted water. Vegetables cooked in a large amount of water should boil until just tender, with salt added only during the last few minutes of cooking. The general rule for green vegetables is: Never salt until tender. For root vegetables: salt at end of cooking.

Salt soups and meat sauces before cooking, in order to extract meat juices.

Poach eggs in well salted water, to flavor the eggs and prevent whites from running. Boil eggs in salted water to keep the white from running out if the shell is cracked.

Potato Absorbs Excess Salt

If grapefruit is unusually sour, add a pinch of salt before serving. A very few grains of salt added to coffee, cocoa and chocolate will improve the flavor.

If food has been over-salted, add whenever possible a peeled, raw potato for the remainder of the cooking time. The potato will absorb much of the saltiness.

Perfection Was The Only Fault Of This Husband

Perfect husbands are bores. There's no doubt about it. Else why would young wives so often find them such dull marriage partners that they look around for someone more exciting?

It doesn't seem to be enough for a woman to be married to a man who makes a good living for her, stays reasonably sober, comes home every night on the dot, and lets her have her way—not even if he turns over his pay check to her intact, and brings her her breakfast in bed.

A woman can have all that in a husband—and still cast her eyes about for the missing ingredient—romance.

The usual end of the perfect-husband, bored-wife marriage is divorce, with the wife making a quick second try at marriage. When it turns into a triangle murder—as is the case of Rudolph Sikora, Margaret Sikora and Edward Solomon—it gets on to the front pages, and focuses attention on a not uncommon situation.

Rudolph Sikora was a "perfect husband." Both his wife and mother-in-law admitted that. But his wife wanted romance, and she met a man who read poetry to her. Her husband showed his love in more practical ways than the feminine mind has ever learned to appreciate. He gave her his pay check, did the heavy work around the house, and insisted that he get breakfast in the morning so that she could sleep late.

Women are suckers for romance—and Mrs. Sikora found such signs of devotion far less stirring than the poetry reading of Edward Solomon, whom the "perfect husband" is charged with having murdered.

If there is any lesson for husbands to be gained from the story—and many similar stories that are told in divorce courts, instead of criminal courts—it is this:

Don't try to be a perfect husband. A woman will only find you dull. Don't assume all of her responsibilities. She'll only have time to wonder what is lacking in her life. Don't make a door-mat of yourself, giving in to her every notion. She'll lose all respect for you as a man. Don't assume that a woman stops thinking of herself as being desirable the minute she walks down the church aisle. She'll fool you.

LEAGUE'S NEW CLUB ROOM IS FORMALLY OPEN

Opening Tea Given by Junior Welfare League at Howard Residence Y.W.C.A. Yesterday Afternoon Largely Attended.

The opening tea given by the Junior Welfare League at the Howard Residence, Y.W.C.A., yesterday afternoon was a brilliant and largely attended social event. The "Club Room" which through the generosity of Mrs. A. A. Munster, has been re-decorated and beautifully furinshed, is transformed almost beyond recognition, the drab and unattractive assembly hall, touched by the wand of this kind fairy godmother, has been changed into a charming and comfortable club room, which will fill a long-felt want for social and business meetings of women's organizations.

Mrs. Gordon Miller, president of the League, Mrs. A. E. Rowell, president of the Y.W.C.A. Board, and Mrs. B. C. Howard, donor with her late husband of the "Howard Residence" to the Y.W.C.A., received the many guests who patronized the opening tea, which was in reality a history-making epoch for both the Y.W.C.A. and the Junior Welfare League.

Mrs. A. W. Kerridge, treasurer, was on duty at the entrance and Mrs. Matthew Graham was in charge of the beautiful hand-crocheted cloth which was later won by the League's treasurer, Mrs. V. G. Southern and Mrs. W. L. Reford Stewart, first and second vice-presidents, and Miss Doreen Stewart, secretary, did the honors at the lovely tea table. Arranged on a beautiful lace cloth, a pumpkin bowl filled with snow-berries, formed the seasonable and appropriate centre-piece, while four green candles in Sheffield candlesticks and beautiful Sheffield services completed the charming ensemble.

To Mrs. Munster, the generous donor and instigator of the plan to re-furnish the club room, fell the pleasant task of presenting and turning over to the Y.W.C.A. the furnishings and other improvements. Mrs. Munster, in reviewing the history of the League, which was organized seven years ago, and had met at the homes of the members, said the movement had grown too large and she felt they had imposed for too long upon their generous hostesses, especially mentioning Mrs. L. S. Channell, Mrs. O. R. Webster, Mrs. Lennox Wilson, Mrs. Arthur Edwards and Mrs. Gordon Miller. "We wanted a 'home' of our own," said Mrs. Munster, "and this autumn we have realized our dream. Today I take much pleasure in presenting it to the Y.W.C.A."

Mrs. Rowell on behalf of the Board gratefully accepted the wonderful gift, and suggested that the now charming and attractive hall be call the Y.W.C.A. Club Room. Mrs. Rowell referred feelingly to the time twenty-five years ago when Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Howard gave the residence, since named in their honor, and to Mrs. S. A. Jones, who today was wearing the pendant presented to her on that memorable occasion. The magnificent gift of the MacKinnon Memorial by the late Mr. G. D. MacKinnon and other gifts by supporters of the Y.W.C.A. were also mentioned before Mrs. Rowell once more thanked Mrs. Munster and her associates in the Junior Welfare League. Miss Marjorie Haley, general secretary, also extended warmest thanks to Mrs. Munster, and stated she hoped the now beautiful room would be used both afternoon and evening for meetings and social gatherings.

No Use Looking Like A Lady Unless You Act Like One

With all the women in the country getting that upswept look, or counting the weeks until they will be able to manage it, it's time someone sounded a few warnings.

The feminity of curls piled high on top of heads will make a ridiculous contrast with:

Hard faces, or mouths that pull down at the corners.

Brisk efficiency that shouts, "I can take care of myself."

The stride that flat-heeled shoes produce.

Swearing.

Loud laughing and loud talking.

Telling or listening avidly to questionable stories.

Talking business after hours.

The abandon of a jitterbug.

The blank look that comes after too many drinks.

Leaning on a bar.

Grabbing the center of the stage and holding it against all comers.

Chewing gum.

Necking in public.

Slouchiness.

Trying to be "one of the boys."

Too much frankness.

Bawling out waitresses and salesgirls.

The "I'm a successful woman" attitude.

Despising out loud the feminine accomplishments.

Lack of sympathy.

Brittle, wise-cracking conversation.

Living up to the feminity of piled-high curls may prove to be a harder job than keeping the curls up. And that is something for us women to think about.

This theme was followed by Ashton Tobin, who stated that a higher rate of interest was being charged on the loan recently made by the Government.

WORK MEETING IS STAGED BY GOULD LADIES

Successful Event Held by the Ladies' Association of Chalmers' United Church—Large Out-of-Town Attendance.

Gould, Oct. 29.—The Ladies' Association of Chalmers Church met at the manse for a work meeting, and a nicely designed wool filled quilt was made.

At the tea hour the ladies went to the Motor Inn where they were received and entertianed by Miss Hattie MacIver, and a short business session was held conducted by the president, Mrs. K. N. MacIver, in the usual manner with Scripture reading, prayer and the singing of a hymn. A few important items of business were transacted before the conclusion and the secretary was asked to write letters of condolence to those who were bereaved recently. Very pretty aprons which had been donated were on display and found ready sale.

About thirty-five were present including a number of out-of-town guests, who were the hostesses two sisters, Mrs. E. Holgate and Miss Margaret MacIver, of Sherbrooke; Mrs. Wark and Mrs. Donald MacLean also of Sherbrooke, Mrs. Armine Wood, of Timmins; Mrs. P. A. Sherman and Mrs. A. A. MacAulay, of Scotstown.

During a pleasant social hour which followed, a delicious tea was served by the hostess, the dining table around where a number were seated was centred with a beautiful bouquet of cut flowers consisting of baby 'mums, daisies and ferns.

The hostess was assisted in serving by her sisters and the Misses Murdena MacIver, Eleanor Duffy, Cuyla MacAulay and Shirley MacKay. The proceeds amounted to the sum of sixteen dollars.

General Notes

Mr. Kenneth MacRae recently received the sad news of the death of his brother, Angus MacRae, who passed away suddenly on September 16, at the home of Mrs. Marshall Rublee, of Edgerton, Alberta. Mr. MacRae was born in 1865 at Tolsta, Que., and was the eldest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John MacRae. He is survived by two brothers, Kenneth, of Gould, and George, of St. Johnsbury, Vt., and five sisters, Mrs. Charles Shurtliffe and Mrs. Beck, of St. Johnsbury, Mrs. M. Rublee, of Edgerton, Mrs. MacDonald, of Detroit, and Mrs. F. W. Wood, of Gould, who have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Benny Seale, of Kinnear's Mills, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. K. N. MacIver.

Messrs. Gordon Mathson and Malcolm MacCaskill have gone on a motor trip and will visit friends in different parts of the New England States before returning home.

Mrs. Frank Corey is spending a week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. MacLeod.

Mr. and Mrs. Armine Wood, Mr. Kenneth Wood and the Misses Doreen and Edith Wood have all returned to their respective homes after having been here to attend the funeral of their brother-in-law, Mr. D. A. Beaton.

Master Robert MacDonald spent a recent week-end in Scotstown where he called on friends and was a guest of Master Ernest MacIver.

Mrs. W. E. Brook, of Coaticook, is a guest of her sister, Mrs. J. D. MacRitchie, and Mr. MacRitchie.

Mr. Bernard Atkins has returned home from the Royal Victoria Hospital in Montreal where he was a patient for a number of days.

Mrs. Lloyd Powell and Miss Isabelle MacIver have returned to Montreal after a couple of weeks spent at home with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. O. Martin and Mr. and Mrs. K. N. MacIver.

Mr. Malcolm Martin returned to Timmins recently.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith, of Bishopton, have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. MacDonald for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. G. T. MacDonald were in Marbleton as guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Staples.

Mr. and Mrs. Rupert MacAulay, Miss Lois Hamilton and Miss Edith MacDonald spent a week-end in Sherbrooke and Cookshire as guests of relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacRae were guests at the home of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mayhew, of Bury, where there was a re-union of the family and a dinner given in their honor to celebrate the thirty-seventh anniversary of their marriage. An additional guest was Mrs. Lily MacLeod, of Bury.

recent laws regarding capital and labor, Mr. Coonan averred that these bills had provided the Province of Quebec with the most advanced legislation on the North American continent.

Other speakers to address the meeting, which was presided over by Albert Fregeau were Jonathan Robinson, M.L.A. for Brome; Antonio Drolet, and Charles deL. Mignault, Sherbrooke.

Fundamental Subjects Most Important In Education

Elementary Schools Should Not Split Courses Along Purely Academic and Vocational Lines

I tried to explain to Mr. Miller that it would not be altogether possible for his son to skip arithmetic and give more time to music.

Mr. Miller plays in an orchestra and he intends to give William a musical education. So I was not surprised, as you may be, to hear that a father instead of a mother made the comment that the public school should concentrate more on the arts and less on the "R's". I was interested to hear, however, that he though it would be an easy matter for each child to select his group of studies, just as the students in high school are permitted to do.

What a chaos that would be, and how expensive. As it is, selective subjects in advanced school have increased the cost of education considerably.

In the old days, even with only one or two high schools in large cities, courses were arbitrarily laid out. There was some allowance made for those who wished commercial work instead of academic preparation, and sometimes there was latitude in one direction. A boy could take Greek instead of Latin, perhaps, or logic instead of chemistry. But that just about ended it.

There were, of course, no vocational high schools. One of the hottest debates I ever put up with was a high school principal who insisted that a smattering of mechanics and a dab of domestic science was the height of vocational training. And I insisted with equal fervor that the time would come when high schools would either have to put up or shut up, unless they built some of their schools with the intention of teaching children how to make a living apart from the field of liberal arts.

He thought I was most radical. I thought he lacked vision. Why continue to teach children dead languages when it was life they had to fight? Since then it has all been arranged. Today boys and girls are leaning, and learning well, trades that will be of service. The cultural courses, too, offer almost any assortment of subjects.

Foundation of Education

However, grade schools, I think, will never be able to split their courses with any success. And if parents would stop to think, the things the child gets in elementary school are basic foundations that every literate person needs.

It would be a happy time, no doubt, for everybody if the routine could be broken down into just what every pupil likes best, or what his parents wish him to concentrate upon. But except in the case of the backward child, and, of course, the mental deviate, the school body as a whole will have to learn what is is taught.

HATLEY GROUP NAMED MEMBERS OF COMMITTEES

Hatley, Oct. 29.—The regular fortnightly meeting of St. James' Church Ladies' Guild was held in the parish hall with the president, Mrs. Gordon Pocock, in the chair. In the absence of the secretary, Mrs. H. W. Parry, the minutes of the last meeting were read by Mrs. H. B. Whitcomb, and approved.

Further plans for the annual "Jiggs' Supper" to be held in November, were made and the following committees named: Fancy work, Mrs. J. A. Macdougall, Mrs. Leslie McClary and Mrs. Albert Bowen; mystery table, Mrs. Hugh Bowen and Miss Dorothy Brown; fish pond and fortune telling booth, Miss Lilian Macdougall; candy table Mrs. Henry Birch and Miss Nellie Birch; reception, Mrs. H. W. Parry and Mrs. Bert Brown; food committee, Mrs. Norman Eckmeier, Mrs. Sharman, Mrs. Reynolds and Mrs. Pocock; waitresses, the Misses Ruth and Lora Hartwell, Hilda and Rena Bowen, Lilian Little Nellie Birch and Nyla White.

A resolution was passed to authorize the purchase of new towels for the kitchen and Mrs. Macdougall kindly offered to make the towels. The meeting was adiourned and afternoon tea was served to the eleven members present.

A.Y.P.A. HELD BUSY MEETING

The regular meeting of the A.Y.P.A. was held in the parish hall with the president, James Townsend, in the chair. The hymn, "Jesus Lover of My Soul," was sung and was followed by prayers led by the president in the absence of Rev. H. W. Parry.

The secretary, Hilda Bowen, read the minutes of the previous meeting and read a letter from the Young People's Union of the United Church inviting the members of the A.Y.P.A. to spend an evening as their guests. The invitation could not be accepted. Fortunately, the president of the Y.P.U. was present, and said his association would set another date at the next meeting.

George Richards was elected to act as chairman on the night of the play. The candy table was to be in charge of James Pidduck. Posters were to be made by Lilian Macdougall, Iris Beaway, Andrew Macdonald, James Townsend and Tom Archer.

The hymn, "Thy Kingdom Come, O Lord," was sung and the meeting adjourned. Games and dancing followed with Mrs. Hugh Bowen at the piano, and a lively social evening was very much enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Gene Bowen, James Pidduck and Hilda and Rena Bowen. A vote of thanks was given Mrs. Bowen for her help with the music.

FINE CHILDREN'S DAY SERVICES ENJOYED

The third Sunday in October at St. James' Church was kept as Children's Day in accordance with the rule of the Church of England in Canada.

Twenty Sunday School children, in charge of their teachers, the Misses Lilian Macdougall and Lora Hartwell, marched in procession during the singing of the hymn, "Come, Sing with Holy Gladness."

Immediately at the close of this hymn the rites of baptism were administered by the rector, assisted by the Rev. A. F. G. Nichol, to little Geraldine Lee Sanford, with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dezan, of Massawippi, acting as godparents.

After the singing of the baptismal hymn, "In Token that Thou Shalt Not Fear," the order for the administration of Holy Communion was begun, accompanied by a choral service. Rev. A. F. G. Nichol read the Epistle and assisted the rector, who was the celebrant.

Children's hymns, "Good Sees the Little Sparrow Fall," "Just as I Am, Thine Own to Be" and "Yield Not to Temptation," were sung. The rector's sermon was based on the fifty-first and fifty-second verses of the second chapter of St. Luke, "And He went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them . . . and Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favor with God and man."

The special offertory was allocated to the General Board of Religious Education. At the same service twenty-two members of the A.Y.P.A. made their Corporate Communion.

GRANBY LADIES' GROUP ENJOYS ENTERTAINMENT

Granby, Oct. 29.—The October meeting of the Ladies' Aid was held in the church hall. The president, Mrs. G. A. Roberts, was in the chair and conducted the devotions.

Minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Walter Wright, and approved. Reports were also read by the visiting committee, showing thirty-four calls on sick and shut-ins.

The ladies decided to send post cards to E. Nicholson, the faithful caretaker of the United Church, who recently underwent an operation in the Montreal General Hospital.

A very pleasing programme followed consisting of a reading entitled "The Banquet Lamp," by Mrs. J. G. Fuller, a duet by Mrs. Saddler and Mrs. Blake, "Leaning on the Everlasting Arm," and a poem, "Thanksgiving," read by Mrs. George Blake. A vocal solo was rendered by Miss Margaret Sherrer and a recitation, "The Old Slipper," given by Mrs. Chester Swett.

The tea hostesses were Mrs. Thomas Scott, Mrs. John Coupland, Mrs. S. A. Horner, Mrs. J. W. Irwin and Mrs. Harley Irwin.

General Notes

Mr. H. Walter Blunt and son, David, were week-end guests of Dr. H. W. and Mrs. Blunt.

Miss Maureen Quinn, of Montreal, was visiting her mother, Mrs. F. D. Quinn, for a week-end.

Miss Margaret Bradford was hostess at a delightful tea. Twelve young ladies were present. The table was most attractive with yellow candles and centred with yellow calendulas in a silver basket. Mrs. Arthur Dickenson poured tea.

Mrs. J. G. Fuller was the organist at the recently redecorated Trenholmville United Church, when a memorial service was held. This occasion was the ninety-eighth anniversary of the church. Many descendants of the pioneers from the Eastern Townships were present at the services.

Mr. and Mrs. Benoit Marchessault and family have returned to Waterloo after spending the summer with Mrs. F. D. Quinn.

Mr. Robert Crossfield spent a week-end at Abbotsford.

Mrs. Katherine Mitchell was a week-end guest of her sister, Mrs. F. P. Williams, at Knowlton.

Mrs. George Keep visited her daughter, Mrs. L. M. Mitchell, and Mr. Mitchell and family, in Ottawa for a week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Martin and Mr. Douglas Martin were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Sharp in Ottawa for a week-end.

The Last Laugh

HALLOWE'EN, you know, is rather scarey, at least, I think it is, and so do Arthur, Frank and Paul Hyde. It's awful what funny things happen on Hallowe'en!

You see, Arthur, Frank and Paul were in such a state of excitement! Hallowe'en is always an exciting time. Arthur had a clown suit and Frank was going to blacken his face and Paul was going to dress up like a tramp. It was going to be riproaring fun to meet the other boys behind the woodshed at half past eight, and then maybe race past the grave yard! But just think of it! With all this on hand, what should happen but that a telegram should come from Judy Peterson's mother saying that Judy was coming to spend a week at the farm. She was coming all the way in her father's automobile with the chauffeur. Judy was a little city cousin and the boys hardly ever saw her.

Arthur Made The Head Himself.

"Oh, jimminy crickets!" snickered Frank, who had red hair and freckles and could think up more mischief in one minute than most boys would in a week (so his mother and teacher said). "Judy'll like our farm. I bet!" And he winked at Arthur as if he had something up his sleeve.

Well, little Judy Peterson arrived in time for lunch. She was seven years old, a sweet, shy, little lady, with such blue eyes and soft brown curls that even Frank had to admit that she "wasn't so bad-looking."

After lunch the boys took Judy and showed her over the farm and then Mother Hyde said the little girl must lie down a while, she had traveled a long way that day. Then the boy's slipped away to the barn.

"Let's play a trick on Judy!" said Frank. "She's going to stay a week. Let's do something to give her a big scare! It's Hallowe'en, you know."

They decided that it would be nice to make a dreadful ghost. It would have a pumpkin head with eyes and mouth cut out and a candle inside to give him a terrible expression. Then his body would be made of a broom-stick with a sheet wrapped around it. Then after supper they would hide in the barn and when Judy had gone to bed they would make the pumpkin-head ghost peep in the window while they themselves would hoot like owls and squall like cats, and they hoped to give their little city cousin a real bad scare.

Frank made the head by himself, and, being quite clever, he managed to give the pumpkin such a fierce expression that he was almost frightened himself. After supper the boys made some excuse and hid in the barn. They put the pumpkin-head ghost together, put the candle inside and lit it. Oh, it was a sight! Paul trembled like a leaf for he was only six years old, but he was too proud to show his feelings.

Then the boys sat down, and Arthur, who read a good deal, told some ghost stories in a low, creepy voice, while the other two huddled together. You see, it was Hallowe'en so Mrs. Hyde let them all stay up, and they had put on their Hallowe'en suits.

"I-I guess maybe I better go and see if Judy's in bed yet," whispered Frank, after Arthur had finished a 'specially blood-curdling story.

He peeped out of the barn, and there was still a light in the guest room window. So they sat down to wait. The candle in the pumpkin-head began to sputter and sputter. Frank got up to fix it.

"Let's blow her out," said Arthur. "She does have a mean look!"

"No, no!" cried Paul, "'cause then we'd be in the dark."

"That you would!" said a deep husky voice.

"What was that!" whispered all three boys, and Frank fell down in a heap, and grabbed Arthur around the waist.

Just then Grandfather Turkey began to gobble very fast and furiously.

"Shut up, will you, you old crazy!" cried Arthur, nervously.

"Sh-sh-sh!" hissed a ghostly voice, and Frank buried his head in Arthur's jacket.

It was the pumpkin-head ghost that had spoken. They all heard the voice coming right from that direction.

"Ow-ow-ow-ow!" cried the ghost and Arthur curled up and hid his face in the straw.

"Which one of you will come with me?" said the ghost.

Not a boy stirred and Paul began to sniffle.

Then he jabbed Frank in the back, but Frank only buried his head deeper in Arthur's jacket.

Then he jabbed Paul in the ribs and Paul began to scream as loud as he could—which was pretty loud —"Ma-a-a-a-a! Ma-a-a!"

"Come now, speak up!" said the ghost, stamping with his broom-stick leg.

The boys were as still as death, as they were too scared to speak up, and Paul felt that he was going to have a fit soon.

"No answer!" cried the ghost. "Very well then. Take that!"

The boys looked up in time to see the pumpkin come sailing right towards them. It hit Frank square on the forehead and knocked him flat. It broke in fragments and spattered over Arthur and Paul. The candle went out.

It was pitch dark. Paul yelled and screamed for his mother. Arthur shrieked! "Murder! Police!" Frank just screamed without saying anything and he made the most noise.

Soon a light was seen in the door-way and there stood Father and Mother with a lantern.

"For heaven's sakes, what are you boys trying to celebrate?" demanded their father.

"Oh, Ma-a-a-am-a-a-a-a!" cried Paul, rushing to his mother.

"A ghost!" cried Frank.

It said something!" added Arthur, struggling to his feet.

There lay the pumpkin-head, smashed on the floor, and there stood the broomstick with the sheet wrapped around it in the corner. And there on the ladder leading up to the hayloft sat Judy's chauffeur-man, grinning like a jack-o-lantern. The boys didn't notice that he gave Father Hyde a sly wink.

"I've got a good mind to give you a good whipping all round!" said their father, in his deepest voice. "You pretty-near scared your little cousin Judy."

"Oh, wait 'til tomorrow to punish them," said their mother. "This is Hallowe'en and, sakes alive; anybody's likely to get scared!"

Just then Grandfather Turkey set up another gobbling, only faster and faster and more frantic than ever.

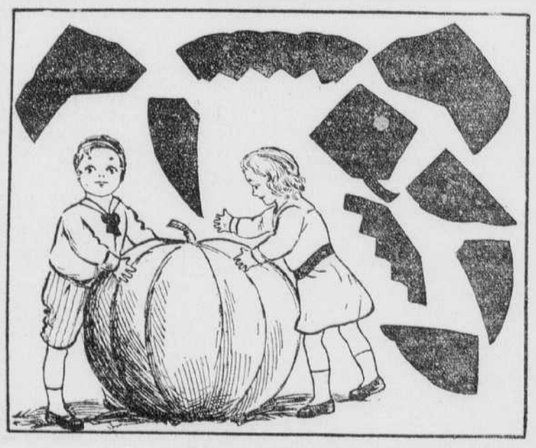

"He's a-laughing' at us," whispered Arthur to Frank. "Hope we have him for dinner soon!"

But whether Grandfather Turkey was laughing at the boys or not nobody knows. Judy's chauffeur-man got up and said:

"Well, the last laugh's always the best, so I've heard tell!"

Arthur was wondering and wondering if the chauffeur-man didn't perhaps know something about that talking pumpkin-head ghost!

ENIGMA

My first, second and third are in Thomas but not in Joe.
My fourth and fifth are in quick but not in slow.
My sixth, seventh, and eighth are in reap but not in sow.
My ninth and tenth are in deny but not in know.
My whole is a Hallowe'en custom.

CHARADE

My first is a planet
We see in the sky;
It shines very brightly
To be up so high.

My second is hard
Of surface, and cold;
Geologists tell us
It is very old.

My two joined together
In a trinket is seen;
Sometimes it looks white,
Or a pale blueish-green

Hallowe'en

HALLOWE'EN, a name given to the eve of All Saints' Day, is usually a time for merry-making by the young folks. Also it is a time for girls to see the faces of their future husbands. This wonderful revelation can be had in this manner: The girl who wishes to see the face of her future husband (so says old Dame Superstition) must carry a mirror in the hand, walk down a flight of cellar steps, which are wholly dark backwards. When on the last step she will see in the mirror in front of her the reflection of the face she desires to see.

Of course, many maidens, both young and old, have tried this experiment and failed, but something must have gone wrong with either the mirror, the darkness, the steps or the maiden; or, it may have been that the future husband was not near enough to steal down the stairs back of his future bride! But, however that may be, there are scores of girls who try this little "mirror trick" every Hallowe'en, and some will not admit that they failed to see the future husband's face. And they have a great deal of sport over the game of "Seeing the face of one's future husband in the dark."

A HALLOW-E'EN PARTY!

(To be colored with paints or crayons. Whenever you come to a word spelled in CAPITAL letters use that color.)

HOORAY!" cries BLACK-haired Peggy clapping her hands as she encourages YELLOW-haired Susie May. "You'll get it this time!"

Peggy is dressed as Mistress Mary Quite Contrary. Her frock is PINK (use RED lightly) with light BLUE bows. Her bonnet is PINK with a BLUE flower. Her slippers are BLUE, too. She has a GREEN watering can to water her flowers with.

Susie May is dressed as an old Mother Goose. She wears a tall RED hat over a White bonnet and a long RED cloak over a YELLOW frock printed with BLACK cat heads. She has a YELLOW-handled broom to ride. The broom is GREEN with PURPLE strings.

"Oh, I got a bite!" cries BROWN-haired Teddy. Teddy is dressed as Little Boy BLUE and his collar, shirt and cuffs are White. He has a dark BLUE tie and he holds his YELLOW horn in his hand as he tries for his RED apple.

"Bravo!" shouts Billie. Billie is quite disguised in a GRAY (use BLACK lightly) mouse suit. His hands and tail are PINK.

Susie May's apple is YELLOW.

The lantern on the high RED shelf is ORANGE color (use RED and YELLOW mixed) with a GREEN cap. There is YELLOW light coming from its eyes and mouth.

Paint the wall light PURPLE and the rug dark PURPLE on the outer edge with ORANGE color in the center. The floor is BROWN where the wall meets the carpet.

All the children have PINK cheeks and RED lips.

"Who'll catch the apple first?" cries Peggy.

"Oh, what an exciting game!" shouts Billie, bouncing about and lashing his long mousey tail about.

When Witches Walk

THE wind is howling through the trees,
The clouds conceal the moon,
The cat-calls carried on the breeze
Present a mournful tune.

It is the night when witches walk,
And spirits roam about:
It is not safe to laugh or talk
If you should venture out.

For who can tell what lingers near
Within the hallowed ground;
For on this night elves know no fear
But everywhere abound.

I think the place for you to be
That's safest without doubt
Is home, beside your mother's knee,
When witches roam without.

SOLUTION TO CUT-OUT PUZZLE

THE JUNIOR COOK

PARTY SANDWICHES

Use bread that is 24 hours old. Cut in ¼ slices, and shape with cutters.

Cream together—
2 packages of cream cheese
3 tablespoonfuls mayonnaise
2 tablespoonfuls butter
1 teaspoonful salt

Have ready a glassful of red jelly.

Cream ½ cupful butter.

Cut the bread into rounds with a round cookie cutter.

Spread with the butter, very little butter is needed.

Spread the center of the bread with the red jelly.

With a table knife, spread the cream cheese mixture around the edge of the circle making a rim about ¼ inch high. A little practice will make you very expert at this and you can get the cheese onto the bread in dainty scallops that are most attractive.

Serve with cocoa and marshmallows.

The HANDY BOY AT HOME

BY CHARLES A. KING,
STATE NORMAL SCHOOL, PLYMOUTH, N.H.

HALLOWE'EN MOONLICHT LANTERN

THIS Hallowe'en decoration may be used for several years for it will surely please any gathering of folks upon that ghostly evening. It is just a cylinder about 8⅝" in diameter and twice that high. Make it of rather heavy parchment paper or of any semi transparent paper that will take ink, though soft pencil or wax crayon may be used.

Cut a piece of paper 17" x 27¾" and lay off 1" squares as suggested; draw the figures by transferring them in pencil in their relations to their squares. Leave ¾" on one edge for gluing. With drawing ink, or any heavy black ink and a course stub pen or a flat point lettering pen, with a soft pencil or with a wax crayon, make the shading as suggested, being careful that each stroke is clear and distinct, and that no soft shading or muddy tones are present. Follow the directions of the lines or strokes carefully.

Make the top and bottom 8⅝" in diameter of pasteboard and fasten each in place with sewing and with adhesive paper tape over the joint. Before fastening the top, make a hole in the center of it to receive an electric lamp socket that is connected with an extension cord to a convenient outlet and fasten with adhesive tape. The effect of the lighted lantern in a darkened room will be somewhat spooky.

Playing Center

WHEN the boys in the neighborhood where I live started to organize a football team every position on the eleven was promptly spoken for except that of center.

First of all, and you must admit it is this way with boys wherever the grand old game is played, every last boy had visions of himself as a half, or quarter, or fullback fairly flying down the field through the opposing team for touchdown after touchdown.

Next in point of desirability came the two ends. Now, playing end usually does not afford quite so many opportunities for spectacular work as does any of the behind-the-line positions; but, at that, a good end can earn all the plaudits necessary to his soul's satisfaction in pretty near any game of football.

There were candidates galore among the youngsters for the positions of right and left ends, I know, because I had voluntered to coach the team, and I used to play myself in my younger days and just can't help mixing in, in some fashion when the football days roll round each year.

Then, in point of popularity, came the positions of tackles and guards. But, to my surprise, no one seemed to be especially eager to play center. And when I was in college, I remember, our center was one of the grandest players on the team and did as much, if not more, than any of us to win the collegiate championship for us in our section.

The boys themselves seemed to take it for granted that Tubby Grimes would play center. Why? Because he was all that his name implied, Tubby and fat and a regular lummax of a boy. But also, as I soon discovered, he was slow and awkward; and, more than anything else, he hadn't what my coach used to call the football heart.

That is to say, he wasn't a fighter; he really didn't love the game; he shrank from rough play and the scrimmage; and he seemed always to be thinking about how he could save himself from being hurt. Now, a fellow of that sort, boy or man, never does make a real football player. So I knew straightway that Tubby wouldn't do. Mere beef won't carry you far in football.

I explained that I wanted several boys to try for center and that it was by no means settled that Tubby should have the position. But, even then, there seemed a strange lack of enthusiasm about it; that is, on the part of all the boys except Danny Frank. "Ruddy," the boys called him because of his red hair.

Now Ruddy was by no means promising material, as they say. He was quite the youngest boy of them all, small for his age, and I am sure weighed but a little more than half as much as Tubby did. But there was something about Ruddy that was impressive.

His eyes fairly sparkled over my suggestion that he try for center. He knew he couldn't make any of the other positions, and he certainly did want to play with us. So, each afternoon, Ruddy was always one of the first on the field for practice.

The other boys, particularly Tubby, were inclined to scoff at his playing center; and they spoke of him as a kid and liable to break in two if you touched him. But Ruddy didn't break, and he was touched, pretty hard sometimes, too.

It was amazing, also, how he could handle Tubby. I placed the latter at center on the first team and Ruddy opposite him on the second team. At first Tubby would literally fall all over him and, by sheer weight, pin him to earth. But presently, I noticed, Ruddy began to smear Tubby around quite a bit.

Indeed, it wasn't long until two things happened which made me certain Ruddy was the boy for the job and not Tubby.

First of all, Ruddy seemed to have got Tubby's goat, as they say. No longer did Tubby scornfully hurl himself at his smaller opponent. Instead, he displayed an amazing tendency to wait a second or two to see what Ruddy was going to do. And that, in football, is fatal.

And the second fact was that one day I came to the field a little earlier than usual and found Ruddy at work all alone. He didn't see me for quite a while. He would stand in proper position for a center with the ball on the ground in front of him all ready to pass it back. Then at a signal which he evidently called out to himself, he would pass the ball back between his legs, just as a center would have to do in case a kick had been called for and the kicker had dropped back to receive the ball and punt it down the field.

Six times I watched Ruddy pass that ball back, and five out of those six times he hit a mark he had made on one of the goal posts. That mark was just the proper height at which the ball should be passed to his teammate who was to receive it and punt it.

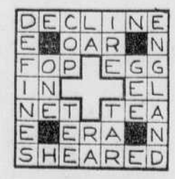

That settled Ruddy in my estimation. Also it settled Tubby. Any boy who would go about his job in so thorough a fashion as that was the boy for me! Right then and there I took Ruddy in hand and gave him every bit of individual instruction I could.

I am glad to say, too, that he proved most amazingly capable all during the season. And the way he would maul poor Tubby around in practice was sometimes ludicrous. The other boys were quick to recognize his ability.

And in our games with other teams but very few of their backs could make substantial gains through Ruddy. He generally outplayed his opponent, or at least held his own, no matter what his size. Ruddy was a born football player with a real football heart.

I have written all this to call your attention to a point which, it seems to me, most boys overlook in forming their teams. Namely, that the position of center is as important as any on the team and that just because a boy is fat is no assurance that he is the one to play center for you. Think this over, and perhaps you will find that it applies to your own team and to the boy who is holding down that position for you.

FAMILIAR WINNIPEG COURT FIGURE QUITS

Winnipeg, Oct. 29.—(AP)—When the next Assize Court opens here, a familiar figure will be missing.

Albert G. Petrin, King's Court Bench messenger and French interpreter, descendant of the first white settlers in Manitoba, has retired.

For the last time in twenty-five years, Petrin, who is seventy-two, cried "God Save the King, Vive Le Roi" as he opened the fall Assizes Court here.

He is a direct descendant of Jean Baptiste Lagimodiere and his great-grandmother was Marie-Anne Gaboury, first white woman in Manitoba, and wife of a courier who made the journey overland from the Red River settlement here to Montreal in 1815.

MEMOIRS OF THE LATE SIR ROBERT BORDEN

Borden Thought Laurier Judged Quebec Wrongly

By R. K. CARNEGIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

(Copyright, 1938, by The Canadian Press)

ARTICLE III.

Ottawa, Oct. 29.—(C)—Had Sir Wilfrid Laurier been ten or fifteen years younger when the Union government was formed in 1917 he would have entered it, believed the late Sir Robert Borden, leader of that government. In his memoirs Sir Robert wrote he was convinced Quebec would have supported Laurier had he joined the coalition cabinet.

An interesting feature of the memoirs, to be published on November 1 by the Macmillan Company of Canada, is the evident candor with which Bordon assessed the attributes of leaders with whom he came in contact. He was unstinting in praise of Sir Wilfrid.

"Sir Wilfrid Laurier was then in his seventy-eighth year," he wrote of his efforts to have the Liberal leader join the Union government. "If he had been ten or fifteen years younger, I am confident that he would have entered the proposed coalition. He held an unrivalled position in the affection and reverence of the French-Canadians; and he was convinced that he would lose this pre-eminence if he should commit himself to a policy of compulsory military service. I am convinced that he underrated his influence and that Quebec would have followed where he led.

"But in addition to the personal motive, there was, I believe, a higher influence. The prestige of Mr. (Henri) Bourassa, not then perhaps at its highest point, was still sufficiently powerful to arouse in Sir Wilfrid's mind a grave apprehension as to the effect of violent propaganda led by his former follower. Not only on this but on previous occasions, in intimate conversation with Sir Wilfrid I concluded that he regarded Mr. Bourassa's teaching as inimical not only to the spirit of Canadian unity but to the best interests of the Province of Quebec. Thus, an instinct of patriotism led Sir Wilfrid to believe that, in view of the considerations which I have merely outlined, his duty was to stand apart from the proposed coalition."

"I venture to believe," again he wrote of Sir Wilfrid, "that as leader of the two political parties Sir Wilfrid and I had no inconsiderable influence in lessening the virulence and increasing the amenities of political strife.

"No Canadian statesman was ever inspired by a higher sense of the dignity of Parliament than Sir Wilfrid and in no degree did he permit his responsibility to be interfered with by party animus."

Of Premier Asquith he said: "Although he was not an ideal prime minister in the awful stress of war yet his wide experience, his knowlege of European conditions, his judical temperament and his broad outlook would, in my opinion, have rendered him of invaluable assistance in the peace negotiations."

Admiration is expressed for Lloyd George who succeded Asquith as Prime Minister of Britain. Borden regarded Sir Arthur Currie as the greatest corps commander of the British army.

Several pages are devoted to Borden's difficulties with Sir Sam Hughes, war-time minister of militia, and he deals frankly with his relations with the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General from 1911 to 1916.

Undoubtedly Hughes showed great ability in organization of the first contingent but many complaints from offended people came to Borden. The prime minister reproved Hughes "for insolent language" to the Duke of Connaught. "Hughes was much cut up and when I spoke to him in the afternoon over the telephone he broke down and wept," Sir Robert wrote.

"There was difficulty during the year (1915) in keeping Hughes down to mere administration of his department . . . Like other very able men with whom I have been associated, he was incapable of forming a just estimate of certain favorites who were able to appeal to him, often through the medium of his excessive vanity. Equally he was incapable of giving just consideration to other men capable and worthy whose attitude and outlook did not happen to appeal to him. . .

"During 1915 he travelled extensively. He was extremely fond of military parade and liked to attend reviews in different parts of the country. . . He especially liked to cross the Atlantic for the supposed purpose of investigating and improving conditions in Great Britain and France. . .

"He discussed, from time to time, the proposal that he should take military command in France. The idea was congenial to him, although I doubt whether he would have had a successful career; but he was unwilling to relinquish his powers as minister of militia. To remain minister of militia and to hold an important military appointment at the front would have been the ideal situation as far as his outlook was concerned. .

"Undoubtedly he was a man of great ability. During this period excellent military camps were being established, enlistments were satisfactory, and military aviation in Canada had its beginning."

The memoirs tell of quarrels Sir Sam had with other colleagues, their resentment of friendship with Col. J. Wesley Allison, the Shell inquiry and the final exchange of letters between Hughes and Borden when the prime minister asked for Hughes' resignation.

Several expressions of admiration for the Duke of Connaught are contained in the memoirs. However, early in the War, Borden relates, "the Duke failed to realize that his status and powers as commander-in-chief in Canada were purely nominal, in the same sense as the King is commander-in-chief of the military forces of Great Britain."

Again in 1915 there was an exchange of letter in which the Governor-General warned Borden if his recommendations which had been "repeatedly sent in are not acted upon I shall feel it my duty to draw the Home government's attention to the situation." One of the recommendations had to do with recruiting of Americans for the Canadian Expeditionary Force, but the memoirs do not explain the nature of it.

In his reply Borden wrote: "I have the honor further to observe that Your Royal Highness is, of course, at perfect liberty to make such representations to His Majesty's Government as may seem warranted by this or any other occasion. My colleagues and I could have no possible objection to any such representation provided they take into account Canada's status as a nation possessing complete powers of self-government and provide also they do not overlook certain constitutional principles which are as well defined in this country as in Great Britain."

The incident ended with the Duke of Connaught in "a very kind letter expressed regret there had been any misunderstanding."

"I am perfectly convinced," the memoirs state, "that the Duke had been led into his unfortunate action through the influence of Col. Stanton, his military secretary. This gentleman had been governor of some small Crown colony or dependency and seemed to be under the impression that Canada occupied the same status as the territory he had governed. . .

"When war broke out in 1914, there were most absurd and utterly unjust suggestions in some parts of the country based on the German ancestry of the Duchess. She was closely allied in kinship to the Emperor Wilhelm and his family, but, first and last, there was no one in Canada more thoroughly devoted to the cause of the British Empire than was Marie Hohenzollern, wife of the Duke of Connaught, Governor-General of Canada."

Discussing the Prince of Wales' visit to Canada in 1919, Borden dwells on the Prince's "boyish and earnest manner" which he found "most attractive and charming."

The Prince asked Borden's permission to play golf on Sunday but Borden advised against it. "So far as I was concerned I could see no difference between playing golf and walking. However, there were in Canada many earnest people who thought otherwise and they would be sincerely grieved and disappointed if the Prince should play golf on Sunday. Thus I had always refrained from playing golf on Sundays while while Prime Minister as I thought the convictions of such earnest and loyal people were entitled to respect.

"He put his hand on my arm and said to me with great earnestness, 'I solemnly promise I will not play golf on Sundays unless you say that I may'."

STOCK MARKETS AWAIT OUTCOME OF U.S. VOTING

Except for a Few Minor Movements in Mines and Oils, Canadian Stocks Acted Listless During Past Week.

Toronto, Oct. 29.—(C)—Bulls and bears continued their truce through another week and in the resultant dull markets pivotal issues registered little change from the end of the previous period.

The political campaign in the United States appears to have diverted interest from the stock markets to some extent, and until the voting is over on the evening of November 8 for election of Senators and House Representatives, brokers anticipate quiet markets unless Canadian listings should break away from their usual procedure and stage a movement independent of New York.

Traders turned attention to junior listings and quite a few smaller golds were in the spotlight in the Toronto market in the last week. Several, including Bobjo, Naybob, Dorval-Siscoe, Bear Exploration and Bidgood-Kirkland, changed hands in heavy volume and at higher prices.

McIntyre was in demand in the early part of the week and the price swent up to an all-time high price of $54. This was shaded to $51.65 on Friday, still leaving a net gain of $2.12 for the week. A loss of seventy-five cents for Lake Shore was the only other adjustment of size. Medium-price gold issues posted changes of only a few cents. The index for the gold group advanced only .29 in the period.

Base metal stocks lost about a half point in the index despite a $2 advance for Noranda to $79.25. International Nickel, Consolidated Mining and Smelting, Falconbridge, Sherritt and Ventures and a few cheaper base metals moved to the down side, ignoring the stronger London market for metals. In the week the London price for copper recorded a gain of $6 a ton and lead and zinc firmed narrowly.

Allowable production in the Turner Valley oil field was again cut this week but the market took the shock calmly. Main change was a decline of $2 for Royalite. Okalta reflected the company's new drilling success by gaining thirteen cents and Calgary-Edmonton and Home posted minor gains. Cheaper issues were moderately weak.

Creamery Butter Rises As Egg Quotations Hit Slump

Creamery Butter Gained Two Cents While Eggs Took Corresponding Drop in Lansdowne Market Yesterday—Vegetable Quotations Generally Higher.

A rise in the price of creamery butter and a corresponding drop in egg quotations over a week ago featured trading at the Lansdowne Market yesterday. Vegetable prices were also inclined to take an upward trend, while other divisions remained generally firm.

Creamery butter rose two cents a pound to a price of from twenty-five to twenty-seven cents, while eggs slumped two cents a dozen. Grade A-1 eggs were demanding fifty-one cents a dozen, with Grade A-large at from forty-five to forty-eight cents and Grade A-medium from thirty-eight to forty-three cents. Pullets' eggs were anywhere from twenty-five to thirty-eight cents a dozen.

No variations were recorded in the fruit market, while in the vegetable division quotations were somewhat higher. Iceburg lettuce jumped two cents a head for a price of ten cents, while green Hubbard squash demanded a peak of twenty-five cents. Local lettuce was two cents a head above last week's figure.

In the provision market only one difference was recorded, pork carcass dropping from eleven and one-half cents a pound to ten and one-half cents.

But three variations over a week ago were recorded in Montreal grain market quotations yesterday. No 3 C.W. oats and No. 1 feed oats fell one-quarter and one-half cents a bushel, respectively, while No. 3 C. W. barley was two cents a bushel cheaper.

News Budget From Waterloo

Waterloo, Oct. 29.—At the regular meeting of St. Luke's Junior Women's Association held in the church hall the feature of the day was the packing of the bale which comprised an outfit for the Women's Association protege, Susan Ross, of the Lac Roche Indian school. Much credit is due the juvenile workers of the organization who assisted in making or contributing all the articles packed.

As a compensation for the exceptional interest shown by the members, a social afternoon was arranged to follow the packing which was prefaced and concluded by prayers led by Mrs. F. B. Staes.

Contests and games provided an interesting and entertaining period after which refeshments were served by superintendents, Mrs. W. H. Bridge, Mrs. Harry Williams, Mrs. Harry Shanks and Mrs. Gordon Kendall.

MISS A. SAUVE FETED

Prior to her leaving with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. Sauve, for their new home in Montreal, Miss Annette Sauve was guest of honor at a pleasant function at the home of Mrs. Harry Shanks, who was assisted by the Misses Geraldine Clark, Betty Moyse, Romayne Royston, Mary Faith King and Jean Richardson.

Sixteen friends were present to do honor to their friend and to enjoy various entertaining games organized by the sponsors. Prior to the refreshments served by the hostesses, Allan Cameron was delegated to ask Miss Sauve to accept a signet ring from the assembly as a future reminder of her Waterloo friends.

Miss Sauve expressed her gratitude for the gift and the kindly consideration of her friends, assuring them that the memory of each of them would always be treasured by her.

Robust Health For Young People

What a common sight it is to see a young person whose bloodless face and feeble frame are evidence of poor circulation and weakness where bounding health and rosy cheeks should reign.

Young people in such a condition are generally of an anæmic nature and require a preparation containing iron to help improve the blood content.

Milburn's Health and Nerve Pills meet this requirement, as they contain three concentrated forms of iron of an easily assimilated nature together with other valuable ingredients indicated for building up the system, strengthening the nerves, and adding to your physical attraction.

SHERBROOKE PREPARES FOR RAPIDES GAME

Raiders Build Lines For Lachine's Visit

"Brick" Calhoun Impresses Railbirds with Polished Pivot Play — Tentative Attacking Units Selected by Archie Wilcox—New Schedule Should Be Published Tomorrow.

More and more were fans impressed last night as the Red Raiders swung through formation drills under the supervision of Coach Archie Wilcox.

Stiffness leaving them after a long workout on Thursday night and another yesterday morning, the players cut loose with speed to burn.

In preparation for the game Sunday against Lachine, the Raiders worked in units. Players were switched around in an effort to find the combinations most likely to produce goals at a satisfactory rate.

"Brick" Calhoun, who missed Thursday's drill because of a trip to Montreal to bring Goalie Jack McEwan to Sherbrooke, looks like one of the best prospects to come down the pike in a long time. Husky, fast and shifty, Calhoun should be in there when the chips are down.

Calhoun was working with "Gramp" Cormier and "Guidoo" Roy on one attacking unit and is expected to feed the wingers a steady dose of rubber.

Several other lines were formed, but all of them are tentative, it being too early in the season for Wilcox to have decided definitely on his attacking line.

CHANGE PLAY-OFF SET-UP

Alteration to the Provincial Senior Hockey League play-off arrangement was made last night by officials of the loop meeting in Montreal.

This year the first-place and fourth-place clubs will meet in an elimination series, and the second and third will clash. The two winners will meet for the championship.

Last year the first and third teams played off to meet the winner of a second-fourth series.

The withdrawal of the Springfield entry was accepted, and discussion held regarding the new schedule. It was announced that the revised list of games will probably be published Sunday.

In Sporting Vein

By Allan Bryce.

Johnny Hanson, who played with Westmount last year, will trot out in uniform tomorrow when Sherbrooke tangles with Valois on the latter's team's home field. Good news to Eddie Wolfe, who was bemoaning his lack of players to hold down berths on the end of the line.

In spite of the injuries that have riddled their ranks, the Athletics face tomorrow's game with confidence and high spirits. They feel that if they can get off fast and run up a lead they will be able to hold on against anything Valois can offer. It is too bad that they couldn't field a full team for the play-off game, but they will fight just that much harder because they are so handicapped.

A crowd larger than those that witnessed intermediate encounters last season was at the Arena to greet the Red Raiders as they held their first workout on the ice. Railbirds were impressed with the newcomers, particularly Len Leblanc, George Bell, Bastarache, Lafontaine and Piche.

Even in the game of "shinny" in which every player on the ice took part Bell, Babe Leblanc and Len Leblanc teamed up in fine style. The three lads from the Maritimes anticipated each other's moves and whisked in on Roger Dion time and time again.

Majella Laforest should be in for a banner season. Showing the benefit of practice on ice in Quebec, he was fairly flying last night. His speed, coupled with experience gained last season, should make him a hard man to stop when goals are needed by the Red Raiders.

It is good to see "Sonny" Mooney and Bill Gordon, local boys who started to play hockey in Sherbrooke, moved up through the ranks at St. Pat's Academy, graduated to the city's crack intermediate teams and then went travelling last year, out there keeping right up with the rest of the team.

It is not so good not to see Henry Harris out there. Remembering all the goals "Hank" scored last year and how many times he stickhandled his way through opposing rearguards it seems certain that he would be as valuable a man this season. There are disagreements between Harris and the management of the Sherbrooke Hockey Club that need not be discussed, but the fact can not be denied that local fans, to a man, want to see Harris in the Sherbrooke uniform.

Leroux and Roger Dion wore the Raiders' new sweaters. They are deep red, with black along the shoulders. The stockings are red and black. In front is the team crest, and underneath the words, "Sherbrooke Red Raiders." Pretty nice stuff.

Most important developments along the intermediate hockey front are the entry of Victoriaville in the St. Francis Valley League and news that the Red Raiders will operate a farm club. Addition of Victoriaville to the ranks of the loop will make for larger interest over a wider area of the Townships, while by their plan to enter a club the Raiders will be able to place players who are not strong enough to make the Provincial League aggregation.

One youngster that seems to be coming along fast is Marcel Garant. Garant tried out with Shawinigan Falls, but landed back here the other day reporting that nearly all the players for the Falls unit have been chosen. He is skating faster and is more polished all the way through. In a year or two he should be valuable senior timber.

Maurice Bastien, the lad who was mixed up in the Seguin vs. Sherbrooke Hockey Club business, is going well with Lachine Rapides on a forward line composed of himself, James and Tag Miller, the latter a former Ottawa player. There are quite a few local fans who are sorry Bastien will not be with us this year.

Basketball is upon us again, and they are at it in the Y.M.C.A. House League, where everything goes, especially excess poundage. The Reds got away fast with a win over the Blues, while the Whites and Greens have yet to start. The loop provides lots of good exercise and amusement for the players, and serves as a tune-up for the City and District League, which gets away later in the season.

To touch on baseball for a time, even though the summer sport should be wrapped away in moth balls at this time of year. New York Yanks are not taking any chances with their world's championship. They have traded Glenn, second string catcher, and Myril Hoag, outfielder, for a picket man and flinger. The idea behind the move is to bring Charlie Keller and Catcher Rosar up from the Bears next year. These two young players are considered the finest prospects in the International League and will carry coals to Newcastle by strengthening the Yanks' attack.

FAVOR SWINGS TOWARD GARCIA AS TIFF NEARS

Experts Suspect Henry Armstrong at Last Has Been Over-Matched — Filipino Belts Sparring Partners but Armstrong Is Listless.

New York, Oct.—(AP)—There has been increasing opinion for the last several days that Henry Armstrong will get knocked off the hinges by Ceferino Garcia in their fight for the welterweight championship next Wednesday night at the Garden.

Garcia, a powerful, hard-hitting Filipino, has looked well in every workout and a lot of the wise old heads like "Dumb Dan" Morgan have looked the pair over carefully and have picked Garcia.

At first practically all of them were stringing along with Henry, the furious little negro, despite the ten pounds he must concede to the battle-scarred challenger. They said, "You've got to stick with the champion." But now they are beginning to suspect Armstrong at last has been overmatched.

Garcia has been belting sparring partners clear out of the ring with his terrific under-hand swipes but Armstrong's workouts during the past two days have been listless except for rare flurries. Henry's under lip that was so badly cut last August in the Lou Ambers fight became bruised in one of his first sparring sessions and he since has done his boxing protected by a mask, something like those worn by baseball catchers.

Fred Apostoli at one of Armstrong's workouts voiced the opinion of many when he observed: "He doesn't look like the same man." This recalled that Ambers poured a lot of leather into Henry in the closing rounds of their brawl.

It's costing Al Jolson's radio show ten grand to move to New York for next week's broadcast, so that the "Mammy Man" can take in the Armstrong-Garcia welterweight party. Incidentally, Garcia hit one Seaborn Ashley, a sparmate, with his pet "bolo" punch yesterday and knocked him clean out of the ring.

The Big Ten football officials have taken to wearing striped jackets for self-preservation. Seems too many teams were turning up with white sweaters, and 'twas getting so bad the boys were taking body blocks and tackles out of the refs and umps.

Turk Edwards, that 260-pound tackle of the Washington Redskins, admits his full name is Albert Glen Edwards but says no one has called him that since he was a sophomore at Washington State. Turk says Bronko Nagurski was the hardest running back he ever met—"just like a locomotive."

Cornell's Carl Snavely is so perturbed about those reports he'll be coaching football on the Pacific Coast next year that he's issuing an official denial. But his contract at Ithaca is up next March; U.C.L.A. is rumored looking for a new boss—so-o-o-o.

CHANGE TIME OF LACHINE-SHERBROOKE CLASH

Lachine Rapides and Sherbrooke Red Raiders will meet at the Arena tomorrow night at eight-thirty o'clock, and not in the afternoon, as had been previously announced by local officials.

B.C.S. AGAINST SHERBROOKE IN SCHOOL BATTLE

Classy Prep School Twelve Opposes Elton Butler's Fast-Improving Squad — Macdonald at Bishop's.

Bishop's College School, the team that nearly defeated the high-powered Stanstead College football team, plays Sherbrooke High School on the Parade Grounds this afternoon in what is expected to be the feature game of the local Interscholastic League schedule.

Crawford Grier's fine aggregation gave the Wesleyans a stubborn battle, but really threw away their chances for victory by sending in a batch of reserves with six minutes remaining in the third quarter. The Amaronmen, finding a weak spot in the B.C.S. line, poured play after play through the same spot and marched down the field for a touchdown.

An attempted forward pass from deep in their own area when they were still holding a very slim lead was another costly B.C.S. mistake. This occurred in the fourth quarter. Sam Abbott proceeded to boot enough points to give Stanstead the game.

Fresh from successive wins against Commissioners' High School of Quebec and Lennoxville High School, the local scholars may be counted on to provide much stronger opposition than they would have offered B.C.S. earlier in the season.

MACDONALD AT BISHOP'S

With Ernie Codere, colorful backfielder, expected to come in handy in the aerial attack department, Bishop's will bid for their second triumph over Macdonald College at Lennoxville this afternoon.

Other players expected to come out of retirement are Jack Martin, tall running half, and John Patterson.

Having defeated Macdonald in St. Anne de Bellevue earlier in the season, the Glass gladiators should win at home.

BOWLING

H. BENCH STARS FOR S. O. E.

H. Bench compiled the high single and aggregaete scores as the Sons of England five swept three strings from the Dormats in the Y.M.C.A. Five Pin Bowling League. Bench hit a single of 329 and a total of 738.

The Sons of England team total of 3,261 was the highest to be recorded to date in the "Y" alleys.

B.O.D.'s won two strings.

Henry Armstrong isn't worried about the "bolo" punch Ceferino Garcia throws. "How's he gonna hit me with it," asked Henry, "when I'll be inside working on him?" Gossip on Cauliflower Row gives Henry another year on top at the most: The boys think his terrific pace will overtake him then. "He'll go back as fast as he came up," said one.

THE STORY OF THE STORY BOOK BACK

CHATTER FROM PRO HOCKEY'S DRILL SCENES

Montreal Canadiens will send a group of veterans and promising youngsters to their International-American League farm club at New Haven, but the relegated hockeyists aim to make it tough for the National League regulars to hold their places. It all adds up to a favorable situation for Manager Cecil Hart, who can call up an eager Int-Am player any time someone starts to slip.

Canadiens took on New Haven last night in an exhibition at Cornwall, Ont., and just managed to scrape out with a two to one victory over the scrappy Eagles. Defenceman Walter Buswell snapped in the winning goal half-way through the final period after two sessions in which the minor leaguers held their own in both scoring and roughing.

Red Doran of Eagles and Toe Blake of the Habitants swung fists in the rousing third period and players of both teams joined in. Johnny Gagnon nicked Canadiens' first goal in the first few minutes but Don Willson, who was with the big team last winter and aims to get there again, tied the count in twenty seconds.

Detroit Red Wings tried out a new officiating idea in their eight to three win over Cleveland Barons of the Int-Am at Windsor, Ont. Instead of placing a single linesman on the ice, the officials put two in the seats in line with the blue line, like linesmen in tennis. The referee handled the game from the ice and the linesmen called offsides.

Bert (Butch) Foote, a Michigan-Ontario League referee who acted as linesman, said afterward he thought the plan should be adopted generally, for "there is no way we could make a mistake about an offside play." Referee "Rabbit" McVeigh echoed his approval, with the reservation that the linesman in the stands might have trouble exerting his authority in a hotly contested game.

Red Wings had to struggle for two periods to hold Bill Cook's Barons level at two to two. After that Defenceman Ebbie Goodfellow and the line of Eddie Wares, Carl Liscombe and Alex Motter turned on enough heat to score five straight goals.

Toronto Maple Leafs and their Syracuse farmhands formed two teams for an exhibition in the new Owen Sound, Ont., Arena. Bill Thoms' goal, with fifty-eight seconds to play and with Jack Fox of the opposition in the penalty box, gave the Blues a three to two decision over the Whites.

SPORT FLASHES

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Grapevine says Pitt is "going" all out for Fordham this afternoon as it hasn't for years. Goldberg & Co. are r'erin' to scramble those goose-eggs once and for all.

Fred Hill, the old six-day bike racer, held a $75,000 ticket on Dubonnet in this week's sweepstakes.

Sammy Baugh, farmed to Sacramento in the Cardinals' baseball chain for 1939, isn't too sure yet whether he'll make the trip to the coast. Figures if it's a good football year, (with money in the bank) he may give up baseball.

Japan has decided to send only a small squad to the '40 Olympics, mostly swimmers. Can't afford a full squad, and doesn't want to make too big a splurge after cancelling the games in Tokyo.

There's plenty of "foot" in the Michigan-Illinois football series. In the last five years, it's taken a field goal or extra point to decide every game.

If the college scouts don't start wearing a track to Augusta, Ga., this winter, then we miss our guess.

Ocean Duel Suggested As Verbal Sparks Fly

Boston-Bermuda-Halifax Race Proposed by Maritime Skipper in Answer to Challenge Posted by Gloucester Rival—$5,000 Stakes, Winner-Take-All Suggested by Captain Angus Walters.

Boston, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Two rival fishermen skippers stood figuratively toe-to-toe today and hurled in each other's weather-scarred faces challenges for a race to end all races for the sailing championship of the North Atlantic.

Captain Cecil Moulton, who skippered the Gloucesterman Gertrude L. Thebaud in a losing best-of-five series of races with Captain Angus Walters' salt-banker Bluenose a few days ago, started the challenging when he proposed a series off Massachusetts with each skipper putting up $500.

When the verbal firing ended last night Walters had raised the ante to $5,000 and suggested a "real race."

No more of this merry-go-round stuff over a triangular course for Cap'n Angus, of Lunenburg, N.S. This time he wants to "high-tail" it down to Bermuda from Boston and back to Halifax. And he is willing to wager $5,000 the fleet Bluenose will race home first.

The Gloucester skipper added zest to his challenge for a race off Massachusetts over a course of Captain Walters' choosing with the words, "Put up or shut up."

Peppery Captain Walters is hardly a man to let such words go unchallenged. He held his counsel for forty-eight hours. And then he let Captain Moulton have it, terming the proposed $500 stakes nothing but "poker money."

"Five hundred dollars, bah!" snapped Cap'n Angus as he hurled his counter-challenge. "That's only poker money those Gloucester people are talking about.

"Let's get this thing settled once and for all. Let's race for $5,000 from Boston to Bermuda, around the island and back to Halifax, winner take all. Let them think that over instead of spouting about chicken feed."

JOHN H. LEWIS STILL HOLDING CHAMPIONSHIP

Phoenix, Ariz., Negro Withstands Challenge of Al Gainer, New Haven Black Panther — Disappointed at Slim Gate.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis today is "the winner and still champion" of the world's light-heavyweights—but he doesn't know what to do with the title.

The Phoenix Ariz., negro, weak from making 174 pounds, successfully withstood the serious challenge of Al Gainer, New Haven black panther, four pounds lighter, in a fifteen-round title bout here last night. He unleashed a vicious attack in the final five rounds to win the unanimous decision of the two judges and Referee Dave Fitzgerald.

The bout attracted a small crowd of only 2,278 that paid a net gate of $7,085. The champion is to collect a cheque today for half of this amount while Gainer fought for ten per cent.

The Associated Press score card gave Lewis eight rounds, Gainer, who was an overwhelming favorite with the home town gathering, five and two were even. Gainer, who piled up an early lead with steaming left hooks, headed into the tenth round in the van, only to fade under the punishment doled out by the champ's smashing two-fisted attack to the head and bidy.

In the dressing room after the battle, Lewis said it was a "good scientific fight" but "I don't know what to do with the title. There doesn't seem to be any money in it and hasn't been any since I've had it. I had some trouble making the weight and what I got for risking the title tonight and going through a tough fight certainly wasn't worth it. I've nothing planned for the future, yet. Gus Greenlee, my manager, and I have to talk it over."

FAIR IS BIGGER, BETTER THAN EVER

New Booths To Be Feature Of Eighth Annual Rotary Event To Be Presented Next Week

Hosiery and Smokers' Supplies Booths Are Added to Long List of Attractions Found at Rotary Event Which Opens on Thursday, November 3, for Three Nights—Prizes Offered of Even Better Quality than in Past—Splendid Work Done Among Crippled Children with Proceeds.

For the eighth consecutive season the members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club are uniting this year in presenting their annual Rotary Fair, with indications that the 1938 show will eclipse that of any previous year. The Fair opens in the Belvidere street Armory on Thursday evening, November 3rd, and continues until Saturday.

Headed by Willard G. Cross, chairman of the Fair, the club members have been working diligently for weeks in preparation for the event. In addition to the many booths of all kinds found each year at the Rotary Fair, two newcomers will be housed in the spacious Armory when the doors open officially. The additions are a hosiery booth and a stall devoted to smokers' supplies of all kinds, from matches to high quality pipes. It is confidently expected that these booths will be favorites among the thousands who attend the event each year.

Another innovation this year is in the system of distributing blankets to those winning them. A blanket store will be inaugurated this year, at which the fortunate winners will present their tickets, receiving in return a blanket of their own choosing. Some delay has been caused in the past when blankets were awarded at the booth by winners unable to decide which blanket they wished and it is felt that the new system will do away with this delay.

Always noted for the high quality of goods offered as prizes, the Rotary Fair of 1938 will offer even more attractive awards. All the booths will contain articles of a generally higher quality than in the past, while particular pains have been taken to step up the value of the prizes in the ever-popular Superfine booth, although this booth has earned a well-deserved reputation for the excellent prizes to be won.

Still another effort made by the directors of the Fair to make it even more satisfactory to the public than ever before has resulted in making special plans for Children's Day on Saturday afternoon, November 5. A number of additional door prizes will be offered to the kiddies and a special programme sure to please them has been arranged, with Phil Mathias again in charge.

The splendid work done by the Sherbrooke Rotary Club with the profits of the annual show is clearly seen in Treasurer Lee Audet's financial report. A net of $7,400 was realized after all expenses were paid last year and out of this a total of $2,800 was held for work among sick and crippled children alone. Actually, however, approximately $3,700 has been expended by the club for this work during the year.

A total of $775 was reserved from last year's profits for purchasing footwear for children unable to procure shoes and rubbers, while five hundred dollars was donated to Le Bien-Etre de l'Enfance and four hundred dollars to the Child Welfare Clinic. The balance of the money was distributed among various charitable organizations in Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships. Each year many children's cases are brought to the attention of the Rotary Club, most of them pathetic in the extreme and with skilled surgical attention essential to recovery. This attention the Rotary Club provides with money spent at the fair by more fortunate persons, who, besides having an evening of wholesome enjoyment, do their bit towards aiding a crippled or sick child whose parents are financially unable do so.

Officers of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club at present are George Ewing, president; Jerry Wiggett, vice-president; Bert Williams, treasurer; James Wark, Ted Walsh, Alonzo Felteau and Rosaire Samson, directors; Arthur Kerridge, sergeant-at-arms, and Rosaire Samson, ex-officio.

Officers and chairmen of booths for the 1938 edition of the Rotary Fair are as follows:

Honorary chairmen: D. J. Salls, B. N. Holtham and J. R. Samson.

Rotary Carries On Much Fine Work Among Crippled Kiddies, Spreads Joy Into Many Homes

Many Crippled and Underprivileged Children Throughout District Will Benefit from this Year's Rotary Fair Proceeds —Rotary Club of Syracuse, N.Y., First to Interest Itself in Condition of Neglected Crippled Children in Its Community.

Many crippled and underprivileged children throughout the district will benefit directly from the proceeds of this year's Rotary Fair. The meritorious work carried on by the Sherbrooke Rotary Club every year, and particularly since the inception of the annual Fair, has brought joy and happiness into many a young life and into many a home.

Probably the first Rotary Club to interest itself in the condition of neglected crippled children in its community was the Rotary Club of Syracuse, N.Y.

In 1916 the Rotary Club of Toledo, Ohio, gave aid to neglected crippled children of that city and later to those throughout the State of Ohio with the co-operation of other Rotary clubs of the State.

From this work grew up the Ohio State Society for Crippled Children and later similar societies in other states of the United States and in the provinces of Canada. Finally, in 1921, the International Society for Crippled Children developed. Membership in these organizations is largely held by Rotarians, and many leaders through the influence of Rotary have been developed in all parts of the world.

In 1920 the members of the Ancient Arabic Order of the Nobles of the Mystic Shrine entered upon a programme of building hospitals for crippled children as a war memorial, or rather as a peace memorial for friendless, orphaned and crippled children.

The 1922 Convention of Rotary International adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas Rotarians have evinced an interest in crippled children and have expressed a desire to assist in bringing to crippled children physical corrections, surgical relief, and education, in cases where such treatment will be of benefit.

"Now, Therefore, Be It Resolved that the 13th Annual Convention of Rotary International commends this humanitarian activity on the part of the Rotary clubs so engaged and directs thereto the attention of the delegates present at this convention, that their own clubs may take cognizance of the movement as offering an opportunity for service in their respective communities."

Experience of Rotarians and Rotary clubs has shown that work for crippled children is an activity which has been "widely demonstrated by many clubs as worth while." To attempt to list or describe the crippled child activities undertaken by Rotary clubs is impossible, even if they were all known, and would not add additional weight to the proposition that Rotary is interested in the problem of the crippled child. It represents a field of action where the international spirit and structure of Rotary can give wonderful results. Through fellow Rotarians, the leaders in social welfare can follow and understand what is being done for cripples in the several countries of the world and thereby improve the service everywhere because of this most valuable interchange of experience.

It is now very well established that crippled and deformed persons are often "hidden away." Sometimes this is voluntary on the part of such persons and sometimes it is done by their parents or other relatives who, through ignorance or fear, dread to have anything remedial done. Cases have been known where parents believe that "it is the will of God," and that any effort to correct the condition would be a sin. As a result of the tradition which has come down to us from the time when cripples were ridiculed, forced into the position of cast-offs, beggars, or villains by the attitude which the public assumed toward them and even destroyed, there is undoubtedly a "psychology of the cripple" and a "psychology of the public toward deformity" that need to be changed by clearer thinking on the problem of the crippled child. Instead of being repellent or causing a feeling of revulsion, the crippled child pulls at the heartstrings of every person who comes into real contact with him.

Rotary Strives To Encourage And Foster Ideal Of Service

In Order to Carry Out this Object, Many Clubs Have Developed Various Community Activities as Affording Opportunities for Service by Their Members.

The policy of Rotary toward community service was set forth in Resolution No. 34 adopted at the 1923 convention, reaffirmed at the 1925 and slightly amended at the 1926 convention. Briefly summarized, the resolution suggests the following procedure:

After the needs of the community have been determined, a Rotary club should ascertain what existing agency or agencies are qualified to carry on the work in the community. If one is found, the club should confer with it and determine how the Rotary club can co-operate in and strengthen the work of the agency and elicit for it the united support of the community. If no suitable agency exists the Rotary Club may find it advisable to create a new agency or otherwise initiate a community venture. It is obvious that community co-operation can better be secured if credit or publicity for the Rotary Club is relegated to the background.

The third object of Rotary is to encourage and foster the application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business and community life. In carrying out this object of Rotary, many clubs have developed various community service activities as affording opportunities for service by their members.

For the guidance of Rotarians and Rotary clubs and to formulate a policy for Rotary toward community service activities, the following principles are recognized and accepted as sound and controlling.

Fundamentally, Rotary is a philosophy of life that undertakes to reconcile the ever-present conflict between the desire to profit for one's self and the duty and consequent impulse to serve others. This philosophy is the philosophy of Service — "Service above Self" — and is based on the practical ethical principle that "he profits most who serves best."

Primarily, a Rotary club is a group of representative business and professional men who, . . . have accepted the Rotary philosophy of service and are seeking: First, to study collectively the theory of service as the true basis of success and happiness in business and in life; and, second, to give collectively, practical demonstrations of it to themselves and their community; and, third, each as an individual, to translate its theory into practice in his business and in his everyday life; and, fourth, individually and collectively, by active precept and example, to stimulate its acceptance both in theory and practice by all non-Rotarians as well as by all Rotarians.

Rotary International is an organization that exists (1) for the protection, development, and world-wide propagation of the Rotary ideal of service, (2) for the establishment, encouragement, assistance, and administrative supervision of Rotary clubs, and (3) as a clearing house for the study of their problems and, by helpful suggestion but not compulsion, for the standardization of their practices and of such community service activities, and only such community service activities, as have already been widely demonstrated by many clubs as worthwhile, and as are within, and will not tend to obscure, the objects of Rotary as set out in the Constitution of Rotary International.

Because he who serves must act, Rotary is not merely a state of mind, nor Rotary philosophy merely subjective, but must translate itself into objective activity; and the individual Rotarian and the Rotary club must put the theory of service into practice.

Each individual Rotary club has absolute autonomy in the selection of such community service activities as appeal to it and as are suited to its community; but no club should allow any community service activity to obscure the objects of Rotary nor jeopardize the primary purpose for which a Rotary club is organized; and Rotary International, although it may study, standardize and develop such activities as are general and make helpful suggestions regarding them, should never prescribe nor proscribe any community service activity for any club.

THE OBJECTS OF ROTARY

The objects of Rotary are to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster:

1.—The development of acquaintances as an opportunity for service.

2.—High ethical standards in business and professions, the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations, and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

3.—The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business and community life.

4.—The advancement of international understanding, goodwill, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

A butcher sacked his shop boy. To his surprise, when he returned from the market on Monday morning there was the boy scrubbing hard at the blocks.

"Here, my lad," he said, "I thought I gave you the sack on Saturday."

"Yes," said the boy, "and don't you do it again. I didn't arf get in a row when I got 'ome."

Must Apply Rotary's Objects Daily To Avoid Sterility

In an article in The Rotarian, official publication of Rotary International, George C. Hager, president of the world-wide movement, declared that no previous age, one can safely venture, has heard more talk about ideals . . . more mass talk. In lumberman's conventions, in ladies' luncheons, in club-rooms, in back-yard chats, in the press, pulpit, and radio studio, the world discusses human conduct. The modern father scarcely blinks when his 'teen-age son turns to him at dinner to ask, "Dad, just what ethical concepts motivate the modern businessman?"

Continuing Mr. Hager says:

"Science, the science of communication, has effected this spread of social introspection. Yes, the same science that, having made a neighborhood of the world, says, 'Here, now you make it a brotherhood!'

"But with all this wider social idealism has come a narrower personal practice of it—as a glance at our turbulent world convinces. Why? Mainly because too often we leave our ideals up in the rare air of the abstract and too seldom bring them down into the heavy air of the concrete. The world needs a work-a-day idealism.

"Is Rotary that? For Rotarians it is. Its aims, by gradual accretion and change, have come to include the essence of the great enduring philosophies and social-moral patterns. Yet they escape being mystical. But Rotary's Objects, if they do not go beyond embellishing the pages of Rotary literature, run just as much danger of sterility as any others.

"Consider our Fourth Object, 'The advancement of international understanding, good-will, and peace. . .' Perhaps friends have said to me, 'It seems rather absurd, rather ironical, for you Rotarians to go on talking about world brotherhood when obviously the world is a dogfight.' And perhaps you, too, have answered, 'Well, when business is bad, you double your time at the office. When your house is burning, you rush water to the scene as fast as you can.' And then to clinch your point perhaps you have told them that:

"Not long ago Rotarians of Japan sent a tidy sum of money to Rotarians of China for civilian relief. . . That Rotary conferences in strife-wracked Palestine bring Jews, Christians, and Moslems together for a few hours of pleasant, prejudice-dispelling sport and talk. . . That few weeks of the year pass without witnessing one or many Intercountry Committee meetings and international good-will gatherings, conferences, and assemblies of Rotarians, and that somewhere during each hour of each day men of good-will assemble as a Rotary Club. . . . That Rotary has almost 200,000 members in some 70 nations —200,000 men who influence men!

"This is Rotary's Fourth Object at work, justifying itself as an ideal. But can an inland club—say, one in a town 1,000 miles from a frontier —put the ideal to work? It can. So say the hundreds of clubs that sponsor Institutes of International Understanding, conduct high-school essay contests, build peace parks and gardens, fête local nationals from other lands, entertain students from overseas . . . and do a hundred and one other things that foster border-ignoring friendships. Opportunities for International Service exist—yes, abound. And an imaginative look around any community will reveal them. Let us let them lie hidden no longer. Also, let those who have had success with such projects pass on their experience to others.

"In these days when the clouds of war and fogs of propaganda roll on all horizons, when nations are super-sensitive of their boundaries, it seems only logical to me that Rotary's stress should be on International Service . . . and actively so. We need to adopt a more positive policy in International Service than that which prescribes only a purely negative or passive attitude. Rotary, of course, must keep outside all international politics and argument, but it is not enough to tell the individual what he must not do if he would promote the Fourth Object when what he wants is a little more guidance as to what he ought to do to achieve that same end.

"But Rotary's emphasis is on the individual. His development is Rotary's reason for being. If, as individuals, we can rid our minds of racial and national intolerance and numbing bias, we shall have made no little contribution. And if, as individuals, we fulfil the obligations of Rotary's first three objects—that is, if we serve our club, our vocation, and our community well—we do much to advance Rotary's Fourth Object, for it is the ultimate extension of the three.

"Of course, let us go forward on the programme of Rotary extension, but let us also give particular heed to developing what we now have. Let us not forget the man.

"One of the best stories I have come across in my many years in Rotary is apt here. A little girl sat on the living-room floor, trying to piece together a puzzle map. Soon she shouted that she'd finished it. Her father asked how she'd done it so quickly.

" 'Well,' she answered, 'there was a picture of a man on the other side, and I just put the man together right and the whole world came out right, too.'

"Let us enjoy Rotary and its unique fellowship. But let us at the same time obviate today any chance that tomorrow's Rotarians, looking back, may say, 'Theirs was a vast opportunity. What did they do with it?' "

ROTARY PRESIDENT EWING'S MESSAGE

George E. Ewing, president of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, today issued the following message to the citizens of Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships:

"The Rotary Club of Sherbrooke, on the eve of its annual fair, wishes to take this opportunity of expressing to the general public its deep appreciation of the support which has been given the fair by the citizens of Sherbrooke and the surrounding district since the inauguration of the event.

"We realize that the generous support which has been given has been due to the realization of our friends that all monies received from the Rotary Fair are used on behalf of our Community Service Fund. This Community Fund is taking care of underprivileged children, particularly crippled children.

"Our work in this direction has increased by virtue of the splendid financial results achieved last year and we ask your co-operation at this time to make our annual fair the success we are confident it will be.

"Under the able direction of General Chairman Willard Cross we have arranged several new features, in addition to those which have been so popular in the past, and we extend a warm welcome to the citizens of Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships to be with us on November 3rd, 4th and 5th, in the Belvidere Street Armory."

Vocational Service Plays An Important Role In The Activities Of Rotary Club

In Urging Study, Development and Practice of Vocational Service, Rotarians Show Way by Which Business Obtains Not Only that Success Which Is Expressed in Monetary Terms but Also Far Richer Attainment of Self-Respect.

"To encourage and foster high ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society."

In these words the second object of Rotary International is expressed. Vocational Service is the name given to a Rotarian's efforts to realize that object.

Until 1927 this phase of Rotary activity was carried on under the title of "business methods." In order to unify the work of helping Rotarians to translate the ideal of service into practical reality, the Ostend convention amended the by-laws and provided for an aims and objects committee with sub-committees dealing with vocational service, club service, and community service. A fourth sub-committee dealing with international service was authorized a year later at the Minneapolis convention.

The word "vocational" is derived from the noun "vocation," which means "regular employment, calling, business, profession, or occupation." When speaking of vocational service Rotarians employ the word "service" in its broadest sense. They refer not merely to the merchandise sold or the work done in a business or professional sense, but also to the giving of due consideration to the needs and circumstances of the one served and to the continuous practice of the rule of thoughtfulness of others. Moreover, Rotarians recognize that they are not isolated individuals, but that each one has many relationships in his business or profession. These relationships constitute both opportunities and obligations to demonstrate by example and practice the highest type of service to his customers or clients, to his employees, to his competitors, and to those from whom he buys. In other words, vocational service means the active expression of the ideal of service by the individual Rotarian in and through the profession or business designated by his classification.

The objects of Rotary are:

To encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster:

1. The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service;
2. High ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations; and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society;
3. The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal, business and community life;
4. The advancement of international understanding, good-will, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

These four objects of Rotary deal with four avenues of service—club, vocational, community, and international. Because Rotarians are business and professional men, much of the service they render will be vocational, that is, in and through their occupations, even though it may be called by some other name.

For example, in "the development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service" (Object No. 1), Rotarians will naturally function most effectively in the business and professional field. Object No. 2, is, of course, wholly a statement of vocational service. No. 3 includes a reference to the application of service to the Rotarian's business life.

No. 4 proposes "the advancement of international understanding, good-will, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men." Since wars have frequently grown out of economic rivalry and commercial misunderstanding, it is obvious that a conscientious and service-minded body of business and professional men in more than seventy countries can make a significant contribution vocationally to the promotion of the fourth object. The establishment of mutual confidence across national boundaries, and of business honor in international trade will do much for world peace.

Interpretation of the ideal of service including the vocational aspect, has been purposely left to individual Rotarians and groups of Rotarians. Widely varying conditions, problems, and possibilities confront members of a world-wide movement. For each Rotarian the best interpretation should be the answer to the question: "What does it mean to me to apply the ideal of service in and through my vocation?"

The programme of service is neither visionary nor negative. In all four objects it is stated positively. While it may be necessary as a preliminary step to stop doing what falls short of "high ethical standards," the major emphasis calls for positive performance.

Many concerns have demonstrated that a service which is uniformly thoughtful of others is the best foundation on which to build a prosperous and enduring business.

Co-operation with and regard for competitors, understanding by management that getting depends on giving, sales based on the genuine serving of customers or clients, consideration by employers for employees, and a high standard of honor in international trade—these are fundamentals of economic progress. Rotarians do not urge this policy because of its money-making possibilities, but the vocational service programme could not appeal as it has to business and professional men if it were not demonstrated that the ideal is also practical.

In urging the study, development, and practice of vocational service, Rotarians show the way by which business obtains not only that success which is expressed in monetary terms, but also that far richer attainment of self-respect, the respect of others and the satisfaction of having made a real contribution to society.

The basis of membership in a Rotary club provides the opportunity for a community-wide programme of vocational service. A Rotary club may select only one member from each vocation in its community.

That member is not a representative of his classification in the Rotary club because the members of his classification in the community have not in any way selected him to represent them. On the other hand the Rotary club has chosen him partly because he can promote in his classification the practice of high ethical standards and he is expected to do so. Whatever Rotary succeeds in accomplishing in vocational service must be through Rotarians acting as individuals and as members of their business and professional groups.

As one way of encouraging and training its members in this phase of service it is suggested that each Rotary club present each year a number of programmes in which various questions relating to vocational service will be discussed. Just as each Rotarian will determine what method is most suitable in his vocation, so each Rotary club should work out its plan for vocational service in the light of national and local conditions.

The vocational service committee of each Rotary club should meet early in the Rotary year and formulate a vocational service programme to be presented at club meetings. For the assistance of this club committee Rotary International has prepared a large number of suggestions based on successful programmes in Rotary clubs, and on addresses and articles in the field of vocational service.

It has been proposed by the Rotary clubs in some countries that the various clubs in any country might well communicate with each other or conduct a conference through chosen representatives for the preparation of a uniform programme in vocational service, to be used by all the clubs in that country. This is recommended because it involves the careful consideration of all the details of the programme adapted to the localities in which it would be presented.

Economic problems, though not inherently a part of vocational service, are of interest to Rotarians and to Rotary International as indicated by the topics used for programmes in many Rotary clubs. This interest has been particularly marked in the clubs of Britain and Ireland. Certainly economic subjects closely allied as they are, not only with international trade, but even with international good-will, form a proper subject for thought and study by Rotarians and Rotary clubs.

Dumley (unthinkingly): Pooh! It would take a dozen men like Robinson to do that.

TRUE SPIRIT OF ROTARY

The true spirit of Rotary is perhaps no better expressed than in the following poem by Edgar A. Guest:

Roses for the living and handclasps warm and true,
A heart that's turned to giving, and strength to dare and do;
The sound of honest laughter, the joy of honest toil,
For those who follow after, to leave a finer soil.
All this has been and ever will be the Rotary plan,
A man's sincere endeavour to serve his fellowman.

A little less self-seeking, a little more for men,
Less bitter in our speaking, more kindly with our pen,
A little less of swerving from the paths of truth and right,
A little more of serving and less of dollar might.
More peaceful with our neighbors, stauncher with our friends.
For this all Rotary labors, on this its hope depends.

To smooth the way for others, to make of life the most,
To make the phrase "Our Brother" mean more than idle boast,
To praise sincere endeavor, when praise will spur it on,
Withholding kind words never until the friend is gone,
This is the Rotary spirit, this is the Rotary dream,
God grant that we may near it before we cross the stream.

FAIR ASSURES YOUNGSTERS OF WHOLESOME FUN

Clowns and Band Will Share Honors on Children's Afternoon, Saturday — More Door Prizes than Ever Before.

Children of Sherbrooke and the Eastern Townships have a real treat in store for them on Saturday afternoon, November 5, when the Rotary Fair in the Belvidere street Armory will be turned over to their enjoyment. The doors open at 1.30 p.m. and the entire afternoon is set aside exclusively for the pleasure of the youngsters.

This year's fair will be featured by the appearance of two genuine clowns, who will cavort around the armory to the music of Eddie Campbell's band, another feature of the event this year which the kiddies are certain to enjoy.

Because of the fact that the profits derived from the annual Rotary Fair are used by the club to help underprivileged and crippled children, the Rotarians make a special effort each year to provide an afternoon of fun for the younger customers and the programme arranged for this year will be no exception to this rule.

Another highlight of Children's Day this year is the fact that more door prizes than ever before will be given. Ten lucky ticket holders will receive prizes this year, compared with six last year. Tickets will be given at the door to each child entering.

Phil Mathias, celebrated merry maker and funster, is again in charge of the programme for the children and the afternoon is certain to be a grand success, with the clowns and the band sharing the honors.

Besides these features, the regular fair will be in full swing, with all sorts of attractions sure to provide entertainment for the youngsters, including games, wheels and automobile races.

So, with clowns, music, games and ten door prizes, the afternoon of November 5, Children's Day at the Rotary Fair, is certain to be an outstanding event and youngsters are urged to be on hand and take part in the fun.

Successful Year For Rotary International Is Predicted Under Guidance Of New Chief

Continuous Service in Affairs of Rotary International Since 1932, as a Director and as Member of Many Committees, Attests to Indefatigability of George Caldwell Hager, Recently Elected Chief Executive of World-Wide Organization.

The election of George Caldwell Hager as President of Rotary International seemed but a high point in a logical sequence of events, an article by Bradley C. Downing of the Chicago Rotary Club appearing in the Rotarian, declared. He was always expected to do things rapidly and well, and to mature speedily on any job. He himself set the pace when he squeezed four years of college work into two and a half, becoming a high school principal at eighteen and winning admittance to the Bar at twenty-two.

The first Hager to reach North American shores, Mr. Downing continues, came during the Colonial Revolution as an officer in the Hessian mercenaries. Deciding that the cause of the colonists was just, he transferred his allegiance and joined George Washington's staff. After the war he settled in Virginia, and during the Civil War between the States another Colonel Hager served with General Stonewall Jackson. That was George's paternal grandfather. It is interesting to note that George's maternal grandfather, a Presbyterian clergyman, served in the same war as a chaplain-at-large, one of two serving in this capacity in the Confederate forces. The colonel's son, John Jackson Hager II, and the chaplain's daughter, Maude Livingstone Caldwell, were married and to them were born four sons, of whom the second was George Caldwell.

George was born in Bristol, a town in the tree-tufted, brook-riven hills of eastern Tennessee. His birth date was January 1.

Putting high school behind him at sixteen, he entered King College in Bristol, and there, contemplating the ministry as his lifework, he concentrated his youthful enthusiasms on oratory. The Athenaeans, his campus literary society, used to hear him regularly, on such themes as the "Epic of Our National Life" and "The Working Principles of American Life." But George found time for serious study, for part-time work, and for participation in all the campus sports. He was, by the way, a hard man to match on the cinder track and on the basketball court.

At eighteen, George became Professor G. C. Hager, principal of the high school at Wyndale, Virginia. There had been, his school board conceded, an onerous disciplinary problem before he came. There wasn't afterward. One day, for instance, he received this note from a sadly perplexed and baffled parent:

"Mr. Hagy: i will Send my daughter Back to school and i want you to Correct heare and make heare mind you and do what you tell heare to do and if She disabeys your orders you must whip heare and make heare mind you."

George doesn't recall that such stringent measures as the father recommended were necessary, but many an old-timer in Wyndale remembers the young man who by kind but unswervable firmness made a decent, studious school out of what had been a nerve-ravelling "roughhouse."

There followed then for George two years as head of the Latin department of the high school at Knoxville, Tennessee — and new plans for a career. Law had now become his absorbing interest. Accordingly he began to study in the law department of the University of Tennessee and to read in a local law office. He was admitted to the Tennessee bar in 1915 and a year later took his degree in law. Maybe there's a prophetic note in the fact that George's highest grades came in corporation law—for today that's the branch of law in which he works almost exclusively.

George had just set up his practice—one that, while lean at first, gave prospects of later amplitude—when the World War came along. He enlisted as a private in 1917, obtained a commission in France, and served at the front as a lieutenant of the field artillery. He is at present a major in the Reserve Corps. George, like many another ex-service man, is taciturn about the War days. But it is possible that the psychological experience of those years left a residue in his subconsciousness which now seeks expression in his vital interest in Rotary's fourth object—International Service.

Back from the War, George went to Chicago in 1920, where, on the basis of his pre-War law experience, the Cook County Supply Company employed him to help it consolidate with its several subsidiary corporations. Out of this and several other reorganizations came the Consumers Company of Illinois, the largest combined coal, ice, and building-materials corporation in the United States. George is its secretary. George has this business institution—or rather a man then in it—to thank for his introduction to Rotary. And, conversely, Rotary has that man to thank for George. Marshall Keig, then executive vice-president of the company, was a member of the Chicago Rotary Club at the time and invited George to share his membership. "I didn't need a second invitation," George says, "for I used to hear great things about Rotary in Knoxville from some of my older lawyer friends."

One of the fine aspects of Rotary is the spirit with which men accept the responsibilities of committee membership. George accepted them—from the start. In fact, he welcomed them. His interest in the Membership Committee of the Chicago Rotary Club led to his Chairmanship of that group (in his eleven years in the Club he has added fifty members to the roll.) A term on the Board of Directors followed. He was elected president of the Club for 1932-33 and administered a very successful year, proving an able speaker, a fluent and charming toastmaster, and an affable host. He had, and has, an uncanny memory for names. During his term he could thumb the pages of the roster and call every member by his Tom, Dick, or Elmer, looking only at his picture. That was no inconsiderable feat in "Old Number One"—with its approximately 600 members.

George presided at board meetings with dignity and aplomb, and no phase of the more than complicated mechanism was too trivial for his specialized interest and action. While he paid strict attention to his business, he ate and slept with Rotary and he began to interest himself in the details of Rotary International. His horizon rising above the Chicago Rotary Club, he was made a member of the Foundation Committee of Rotary International, in which activity he was recognized as a serious worker. His reward was more work.

His continuous service in the affairs of Rotary International since 1932—as a Director an a member of many committees—attests to his indefatigability.

As if George didn't have enough to do, he has found time within the last few years to serve as president of the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Association and as an officer and director in many other corporations. He is active in many trade associations in his business field, and belongs to various patriotic societies and to Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

Does the man ever relax? Yes, By trotting out one of his three hobbies: deep-sea fishing, stamp collecting, and reading biography. And George is no tyro in any of these departments. There's nothing like tussling with a 186½-pound tarpon for an hour or two—as he did once in the Gulf of Mexico—to clear a man's mind for a tussle with the realities of living, George thinks. Yes, he got the fish!

George has one other hobby—at least for him it's a diversion rather than a duty. Writing to relatives! The old family unity persists even though George's father died some years ago. The mother and her four sons give mail routes between them little rest. Those three brothers, with whom from their father George first learned the principles of fair play in masculine society, deserve mention. Clint, the oldest son, was, for many years, United States district attorney at Atlanta, Georgia; John Jackson III, the third son, is in the United States postal service in Bristol, Tennessee; and Richard, the fourth son, is manager of the Eastern Air Lines in Atlanta. The boys are proud of each other.

Said William Jenson, the first Secretary of the first Rotary Club: "He has the experience, years, temperament, and ability to qualify fully for this great and honored position. I predict this coming year to be the best year for Rotary with its new general—George C. Hager."

How Foundation For Rotary International Was Laid By Enterprising Young Lawyer

Alone in Chicago Thirty-Three Years Ago, Paul Harris, Seeking Means Whereby Men in Similar Circumstances as Himself Might Become Acquainted and at Same Time Become Proficient in Art of Helping Others, Hit Upon Idea Which Developed into World-Wide Organization.

Thirty-three years ago a young and enterprising lawyer—his name was Paul Harris — found himself alone in a big city, Chicago, where he had established himself to carve out a career in the profession which he had chosen. Seeking a means whereby men in similar circumstances as himself might become acquainted and at the same time become proficient in the art of helping others, he hit upon the idea which developed into Rotary International.

The charter members of the group met in rotation at their respective offices, thus accounting for the name which has become the symbol of a world-wide fraternity standing for better business standards and service to one's city, state and country.

The first club struggled along for two long years before its first younger brother was born in San Francisco. The Pacific Coast proved a fertile field for the movement and soon the whole of the territory west of the Rocky Mountains was dotted with these service organizations. Later the movement headed back east again, an important fillip being given to the movement in 1910 when the first sixteen clubs gathered together to form a national organization to extend the principles and practices of the movement.

The objects of Rotary, no matter in what language they are written or where they may be proclaimed, are to encourage and foster the ideal of service as the basis of worthy enterprise and in particular to:

1.—Develop acquaintance as an opportunity for service;

2.—Develop high standards in business and professions, recognize the worthiness of all useful occupations and have each Rotarian dignify his profession as an opportunity to serve society;

3.—Apply the ideal of Rotary to personal and business life;

4.—Advances international understanding, good-will and peace through world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

By observing these ideals, business men have found that they become better friends, better competitors, better husbands, fathers and brothers and better citizens—the result of the efforts of Rotarians to make friendship one of the elements of true happiness, basing friendship upon a sympathetic knowledge and understanding of one's fellow men, his business, his thoughts, his joys and his sorrows.

The Rotary Club does not as an organization promote and carry on civic activities rightfully belonging to other organized agencies. A resolution adopted thirteen years ago decreed that:

A.—A Rotary Club should not engage in any general community service activity that requires for its success the support of the entire community;

B.—Should not endorse a project unless it is prepared to carry it through to completion;

C.—Should not engage in any activity or project that is already being well handled by some other organization, and.

D.—Activities that enlist the individual efforts of all Rotarians are most in accord with the genius of Rotary.

At present it is generally advocated that a Rotary club should not engage in an activity that by its very nature is continuous in character but, on the other hand, it should select an activity which is capable of being completed in a definite time, preferably not over a year.

There are many benefits a citizen derives from being a member of a Rotary club. Among these are the enlargement of acquaintances with men whom one ought to know well; stimulation of one's mind to travel in unfrequented channels of thought; obtaining enlightenment as to other men's work, problems and successes; an opportunity to obtain a broad outlook of one's business or profession by becoming acquainted with approved means for improving one's own business from the standpoint of its contribution to the well-being of its employees and customers; the securing of help and inspiration to assist one in his efforts as an individual to participate more effectively in the activities which make the community a better place in which to live, and an opportunity to learn the true meaning of "Service Above Self" and "He Profits Most Who Serves Best."

Rotary limits membership in a club to but one man from each classification, and an additional active member. The principal reasons for this policy are:

1.—Because it enables the club to be a true cross-section of the industrial and professional life of the community;

2.—Because it develops fellowship based on diversity of interest rather than on similarity of interest;

3.—Because if prevents the club from becoming dominated by any one business group;

4.—Because it makes membership more valuable and enables the club to demand attendance; and

5.—Because it allows freedom in making vocational talks that would not be possible if a competitor were present.

The ideal of Rotary is summarized in the statement that Rotary has but one ideal—that of service. The ideal of a Rotarian is to strive both to interpret and translate the ideal of service into his own life, and he has four ways in which he may manifest his adherence to this ideal;

1.—Club service, which means a Rotarian's contributions in attendance, fellowship, programme participation, etc., in his Rotary Club;

2.—In vocational service, which means his service in the business or profession and in the general trade of which his business is a part;

3.—In community service, which means doing his bit as a neighbor and a citizen; and

4.—In international service, which means widening his vision and extending his horizon beyond national boundaries. Doing this will help to make secure the good relations existing between his country and other countries and prevent the development of strained relations and war.

MINTON

A musical treat was provided for the congregation of Minton United Church, when the choir of Lennoxville United Church rendered a song service here recently. The service consisted of selections by the entire choir and featured a male quartet, duets and solos. Miss Jean Campbell, organist, was in charge of the music, while Rev. F. R. Matthews, Lennoxville, read portions of Scripture and offered prayer. The kindness of the members of the Lennoxville choir in giving of their time and talent for this service was much appreciated.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cowan and children, of Iron Hill, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Daintrey recently. On their return home they were accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Cowan, who has spent the past four weeks at the home of her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Ryan and sons motored to Richmond last week, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Banfill and family spent a day recently with the family of Mr. Banfill's brother, in Richmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Parker and daughter were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnson.

Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Parker and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parker and family were recent visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Conner.

Mrs. Leroy Bean has been spending several days at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Jenkin. Mr. Bean was a guest there on Sunday.

MAPLE GROVE

The Women's Auxiliary of Holy Trinity Church was entertained by Mrs. Norman Gill and Mrs. Bert Dinning as joint hostesses, at the home of Mrs. Gill. Due to the absence of the president and vice-president, the honorary president, Mrs. Henry Annesley, was in the chair. The meeting was opened with prayers, and the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Nugent, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were adopted. The afternoon was spent in knitting and sewing. Ten members were present. Lunch was served by the hostesses.

Mr. Clifford Amadon, Mrs. Harley Edwards and son and Mrs. Thomas Rowden and daughter, of Vermont, motored here and spent a few days with the former's brothers, Messrs. Natt and Irvine Amadon. They were also visiting their sister, Mrs. Hubert Bennett, and Mr. Bennett.

Miss Effie Porter, of Millfield, is teaching in the Maple Grove School. She is boarding with Mrs. Herman Bennett.

Messrs. Osmond and Otis Miller and their mother, Mrs. Ethel Miller, of Websterville, Vt., motored here and spent a few days with her brothers, Mesrs. Guy and Otis Bennett.

Mrs. Jasper Dinning has returned home from the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. Friends are pleased to learn that she is much improved in health.

Mr. Bennett, of Inverness, was visiting Mr .and Mrs. Hubert Bennett.

Miss Laurette Mercier, of St. Ferdinand, spent a day with Edna Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Dinning motored to Gould to attend the funeral of Mr. D. A. Beaton. Deepest sympathy is extended to the wife and relatives in their bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Gill and daughter, Hope, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Nugent and family spent an evening with Mr. and Mrs. Porter. Mr. Lloyd Annesley and Miss Olive Annesley also spent an evening at the same home.

A TRIBUTE

In the death of E. J. "Ned" Page last spring, the Sherbrooke Rotary Club lost one of its most valued members. His passing created a gap in the local club it has been impossible to fill. For "Ned," as he was familiarly known, had qualities of heart and of mind, possessed accomplishments of which few, if any, citizens of Sherbrooke can boast. A veteran member of the local club, he was its president in 1924-25. To its ideals he was ever faithful, to its traditions ever true. He was a conscientious worker in everything pertaining to the welfare not only of the club but of the community in general. In his death Sherbrooke and Rotary lost one of their finest men, in whom was embodied all that stood for good, generosity, kindness and loyalty.

IVES HILL

Guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Young were Mr. and Mrs. Byron Wilson, of Lennoxville, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Young and sons, of Sherbrooke.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cowan and family were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. Daintry at North Hatley. Mrs. J. A. Cowan, who had been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Daintry for some time, returned home with Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Cowan.

Miss E. Sykes, of Sherbrooke, and Mrs. C. Butler and son, Gordon, of Lennoxville, were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Farwell.

Mr. Clinton Draper spent a week-end at his home in Moe's River.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex McVety, of Inverness, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young, of Draper's Corner, were visiting Mrs. Sarah Smith and sons.

Mr. R. Carr, of Massawippi, was a week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Cairns.

Mrs. Nellie Dennison, of Somerville, Mass., has returned to her home after spending the summer with her sister, Mrs. J. E. Crawford.

Mr. John Smith was a visitor at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Smith, at Hyatt's Mills.

ST. ARMAND

Many local residents attended the card party held in Pigeon Hill Roman Catholic Church.

Mrs. Gertie Symington spent a week-end at Bedford.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Dean, were week-end guests of Mrs. Alcombrack, at Bedford, and also motored to Grande Ligne to visit their daughter, Kathryn, who is a pupil at Feller Institute.

Miss Charlotte Belval, nurse-in-training at St. Johns Hospital, was a recent guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Belval.

A reception was held for Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Menard at the home of the groom's parents. Mr. Menard was married on October 22, to Miss Yvonne Jean, at Philipsburg. They will reside on the Adelard Gendreau farm, which the groom has recently purchased.

Mr. and Mrs. Miles E. Krans have returned home from a trip to Belleville, Ont.

Miss Lucille Creller, of Bedford, was the guest of Mayor and Mrs. Luke.

Several local ladies attended the Women's Association meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Deuel at Philipsburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sager and daughters, Jean and Carol, of Stanbridge Ridge, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Russell.

Miss Loiselle, of Dunham, spent a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Larochelle, before starting in her new position in Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burley, of Montreal, spent a week-end at St. Armand.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Robinson and sons, Kent and Ivan, were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Neil Baker at Stanbridge Ridge.

Miss Ella Burley has been spending a week with relatives at Montpelier, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Elvidge and son, Duncan, of Cowansville, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Kidd.

ROTARY CLUBS ARE FOUND IN MANY NATIONS

Branches Established in More than Four Thousand Cities Throughout World, with Over 200,000 Members.

Rotary clubs are established in more than four thousand cities throughout the world and the total number of members in all the clubs is over two hundred thousand. The clubs are grouped into ninety-one districts, each with a district governor, and in addition a territorial unit known as RIBI (Rotary International Association for Great Britain and Ireland). The clubs in this territorial unit are grouped into eighteen districts.

Each Rotary Club is a direct member of Rotary International, which is governed by an international board of directors elected at the annual convention.

Rotary International publishes two monthly magazines, "The Rotarian" in English and "Revista Rotaria" in Spanish. RIBI publishes a monthly magazine, "The Rotary Wheel," and a quarterly review called "Service in Life and Work." In addition twenty-six periodicals are published by districts or groups of Rotary clubs in ten different languages.

Rotary clubs usually meet on a week day other than Saturday. Members who are travelling are always urged to attend where possible a weekly meeting of the club of any city in which they find themselves on the appropriate day. This is regarded as an attendance at their own club.

The first Rotary Club was formed in Chicago in 1905. With the organization of a club in Winnipeg, Canada, in 1910 and clubs in Dublin, Ireland, and London, England, in 1911 the world-wide extension began. Since 1914 clubs have been formed in at least one new country or geographical region each year. Most recently entered territories are represented by the Rotary clubs of Tunis Tunisia, Suva, Fiji Islands and Kutching, Sarawak.

The Six Objects of Rotary

TO ENCOURAGE AND FOSTER:

FIRST—The ideal of SERVICE as the basis of all worthy enterprise.

SECOND—High ethical standards in business and professions.

THIRD—The application of the ideal of service by every Rotarian to his personal business, and community life.

FOURTH—The development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service.

FIFTH—The recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupation and the dignifying by each Rotarian of his occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

SIXTH—The advancement of understanding, good-will, international peace through a world fellowship of business and professional men united in the ideal of service.

Service And Not Profit True Aim Of Businessmen Who Are Part Of Rotary International

Ideal of Service Removes Stigma from Trading Under Which It Has Labored for Years—Tremendous Field for Investigation and Good Service to Be Rendered by Thoughtful Rotarian in His Own Vocation.

"Industry and trade have suffered because of the interpretation of profit applied to trading transactions. Rotary recognized that this is a matter of psychology, but we are only beginning to appreciate how important the mental approach to this subject may prove," John Thomson, of the Rotary Club of Perth, Australia, writes in The Rotarian.

Continuing, Mr. Thomson says:

To put the matter crudely but clearly, Rotary says that it makes all the difference to a man if he regards the procuring of a tin of jam, holding it in his store, and supplying it to a client who needs it, as a service for which he charges one cent per tin rather than that the transaction is simply the purchase and sale of a tin of jam at one-cent profit.

The ideal of service removes the stigma from trading under which it has labored for many years. The professions in which service is paid for directly have always been regarded highly, and traders who treat their occupation as that of a service have every right to the same dignity as have the members of a profession.

If the vocation accepts this Rotary principle, it follows that competition is confined to that of service. Many frills are offered in the name of service to entice people to do business with a particular trader. Some are genuine; others, spurious. It is the Rotarian's task to see that the latter are eliminated from the vocation.

In collaboration with his vocation the Rotarian will find that there are services which the vocation as a whole can render usefully to the vocation. Thus doctors and dentists provide services to hospitals of certain kinds free of charge. Although there is no direct financial reward, they do gain valuable experience while poor persons obtain relief which may give them a new lease on life.

But the Rotarian has a far wider task in his vocation in representing a substantial part of a cross section of the community. It consists not only of those highly placed as leaders in industry or business, but of all grades of society down to its humblest members engaged in the menial tasks which cannot be avoided in the most highly organized concerns. The problems concerning the community, therefore, are a large edition of the problems of the vocation.

In the recent years of world-wide depression we have seen society deeply stirred by economic developments. In some countries fundamental changes in social arrangements have been brought about through force, either from above or from below. It appears to be only a matter of time until every country will be involved in some profound change, and surely it is wise that it should be planned by those with knowledge of the subject.

The vocation offers a ready means of study to the Rotarian who should know the details of that vocation better than any other man in the community. He should be able to see the weaknesses of that vocation in the present system, and it should be his duty to study, or to secure the help of others to study, the means by which remedies shall be brought about.

Naturally, no one vocation can perform a service without reference to other phases of community life, nor is that suggested. There are, however, certain aspects of social importance which are receiving attention of Governments, and which will have a very serious effect upon business and industry—such things as unemployment insurance, sickness insurance, and other matters of a a similar nature. Unemployment which must be expected at certain stages of the business cycle requires one type of treatment, whereas in all probability it will be found that unemployment caused by the use of labor-saving machinery or devices—technological unemployment, in other words—must be dealt with in a totally different manner.

To the thoughtful Rotarian there is a tremendous field for investigation and good service to be rendered in his own vocation if he will give it that community thought which Rotary demands of him. Rotary inspires us to give service, and leaves us to choose the manner in which we shall exert it. Many of us are incompetent or disinclined by nature to do one type of work, whereas we may be highly gifted and efficient in another.

However, a member is selected and holds membership in the Rotary Club because of his vocation. Hence the induction charge that "it becomes his duty to carry those ideals and principles of service which we here inspire, to those men whom he has the honor thus to represent." His first task is that of arousing in his vocation the dignity of service . . . not merely among the business heads, but the employees from the highest to the lowest.

Rotary International envisages the gradual widening of Rotary inspiration through the Club, the vocation, the community, and then the world. In each of these spheres a Rotarian has no set task, but, naturally, he will undertake that for which he is best qualified and which holds the greatest interest for him. Thus Rotary inspires us to give service, and leaves to us the manner in which we shall exert it.

"Fight the good fight, with all thy might," goes an old hymn; and accepted as a challenge it can make the sale of a tin of jam an adventure in true service.

EFFICIENT SECRETARY OF ROTARY FAIR

One of the most hard working members of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club is BERT WILLIAMS, above, who has been secretary of the local association since 1925, when Bob Richardson resigned that post after holding it for six years. Mr. Williams, devoted interest in the club and his conscientious work at all times are greatly appreciated by his fellow-members.

SERVICE MOTTO ESSENTIAL TO ROTARY CLUBS

General Policy of Organization Is to Make Individual Member More Bent on Service and Better Equipped to Carry It Out.

Fundamentally, Rotary and its unit the Rotary Club are an organization for the stimulation and education of that kind of business and professional man who is in sympathy with its objects. Its general policy, therefore, is not to advance its objects by means of corporate commitments or standpoints, but to do so by an educative programme which is designed to make the individual member more bent on service and better equipped to carry it out.

The organization does suggest this or that appropriate channel; but it leaves the member free to take such channels as appeal to him best.

For example, while it is realized that the best work to be done in advancing service in vocation is probably by the individual becoming an active member of his trade or professional organization and seeking to guide it in accordance with Rotary principles, it does not corporately lay it down that a good Rotarian should necessarily thus act, since there are Rotarians to whom such organizations are anathema. Generally speaking, however, Rotary does believe in corporate effort through appropriate "ad hoc" institutions.

ROTARY AID TO INTERNATIONAL RELATIONSHIPS

Obligation of Rotarian Is to Apply Ideal of Service in All Dealings Across National Boundaries.

It is evident that international relationships must become a concern of Rotary if it is to attain the establishment of international fellowship, good-will, and understanding, right business practices, and the substitution of peace for war.

Here, the first obligation of the Rotarian is to apply the ideal of service in all of his dealings across national boundaries. Certainly no distinctions should be drawn between the treatment accorded a customer of a competitor in the domestic field and one in the international field. Rotarians, disposed as they are to observe a high standard of honor in all their business dealings, can be instrumental in bringing into disrepute unworthy practices in international trade.

Each Rotarian should take advantage of every opportunity to exert his influence in the international field through his own business or professional group. This activity may be started in meetings of such groups at the Rotary district conferences or Rotary International conventions, with programmes definitely arranged. These may well lead to district, national or international meetings or conferences organized by the trade or profession.

In both types of meetings there should be consideration of problems in ethical and unethical practices that cross boundary lines. Those which have been prolific of friction and controversy inimical to business development and international commerce should be repudiated and emphasis placed on ethical practices which may be substituted for them.

Proper contact in the international relationship requires the right mental attitude. International problems of business practice can be worked out effectively only if they are approached in the spirit of goodwill and friendship, such as is exemplified in the relationship of the Rotarian to his fellow club members. If the Rotarian will maintain this friendly attitude personally and encourage it in others in international dealings, he will make an important contribution to the realization of the Fourth Object.

Local Rotary Has Built Up Enviable Record Since Its Inception Twenty Years Ago

Since Its Foundation in 1919 Rotary in Sherbrooke Has Steadily Increased Its Scope of Activity Until Today It Is Recognized as Leading Organization of Its Kind in this Part of Province—Living Up to Ideal of Internationalism.

The Sherbrooke Rotary Club, which next year enters its twenty-first year of service to the community, can well look back with justifiable pride to the better part of a quarter century in which it has built up an enviable record which has no equal locally. First established in 1919, Rotary in Sherbrooke has year by year increased its scope of activity until today it is recognized as the leading organization of its kind in this part of the Province. Since its foundation, the club has filled an enviable place in the Queen City of the Eastern Township, counting among its members the most active business and professional men of Sherbrooke and the immediate vicinity, actively engaged in the promotion of all worthy objects and finding pleasure and satisfaction in so doing.

Including among its members, English-Canadians, French-Canadians and others without any thought of bias, Rotary is truly living up to the ideal of internationalism which is one of its salient features. Harmony, such as is seldom seem where members of so many different nationalities are gathered together in one group, is one of the most notable aspects of the local Rotary club. Regardless of race or creed, the members have always put their shoulder to the wheel whenever co-operation between them was asked for. Situated in a locality where two great nationalities are strongly represented, the good feeling that has always existed among the members might well serve as an example to communities where race-hatred and individualism are so prone to rear their ugly heads.

"Service to the Community" is the motto by which all Rotary clubs are activated, and the record of the local organization has certainly proven that it is no mere phrase to be uttered and then forgotten: If a review were to be made of altruistic occupations in Sherbrooke in the past twenty years, it would be found that there is little community work in which the Rotarians of the local club have not been actively interested. This may come as a surprise to some, for it is not the practice of Rotary to vaunt their doings, and most of their community work comes to the knowledge of the members only. One other tribute to the club and its activities is the fact that it has grown steadily, and members, who for some reason or other, have been obliged to step out of the membership, are continually returning to the fold again when the opportunity occurs.

Looking back twenty years when the idea of Rotary first germinated in Sherbrooke, we find ourselves at its organization meeting in the Magog House, on May 22, 1919. Albert C. Skinner, who, incidently, is still an active Rotarian, was in the chair, and a large delegation from the Montreal Rotary Club was present. It was to these members of the mother club that the Sherbrooke organization owes its inception. The club was duly formed and claimed as charter members Bert Skinner, Rev. G. Ellery Read, Karl Barret, Harry Blue, Fred Dakin, Winn Farwell, Harry Haight, El Lunderville, Wesley McKee, George MacKinnon, Victor Morrill, E. J. Page, C. O. Palmer, Stewart Patterson, Joseph Rosenbloom, Fred Rugg and Andrew Sangster. This comparatively small group of men formed the nucleus of what was to eventually be a thriving organization composed of ninety-six members.

At the luncheon of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, which was held at the Magog House, election of officers took place and resulted in the choice of the following: President, Rev. G. Ellery Read; vice-president, Stewart Patterson, and secretary, El Lunderville. So, with the slate of officers firmly established, the good ship Sherbrooke Rotary Club set sail on its voyage of service, a voyage that has gathered a cargo of good-will and a crew of workers imbued with the ideals for which Rotary is so well known—co-operation for the good of the community.

The first in a long list of charitable donations was the gift of twenty dollars to the fund which was raised for the Corpus Christi disaster of 1919. From then on Rotary of Sherbrooke interested itself in all worthwhile charities, to such an extent that today many families are receiving what would have ordinarily been denied them had not the club come into existence. The activity which has received the most attention from Rotarians is that of aid to crippled children, and it is through the work of this organization that many a child who had no hope of leading the normal healthy life of his comrades, is today their most active playmate.

A review of the work and activity of the twenty-year-old local Rotary Club must of necessity be rather sketchy, as a detailed account of its doings would almost be impossible. From 1919 to 1924, perhaps the most notable single achievement of the club was the drive organized by Rotary of Sherbrooke on behalf of the Child Welfare Clinic which netted $950. Close behind this was the sum of $900 for the Shawbridge Boys' farm, which was raised entirely through the efforts of the Rotarians. During this period donations were made, at different times, to the Old Brewery Mission Fund, the Child Welfare Clinic, the Japanese Relief Fund and many other worthy groups. The Boy Scouts, which organization has always been heartily endorsed by the Rotary Club, also came in for its share of attention when the Club undertook to subscribe twenty-five dollars a year for their work.

During the five-year period from 1924 to 1929, Rotary of Sherbrooke expanded, not only in its membership ranks, but in the scope of its activities.

Following the formation of an endowment fund for charities, the club formulated a systematic plan for the determination of the number of crippled children in the city. It was in this period, too, that the practice of holding a joint meeting with the Board of Trade first was started. In the year 1925, Bert Williams took over the secretaryship from Bob Richardson who had held it for six years. Bert has been the club secretary from that day to this and a more efficient officer would be difficult to find. September, 1926, was notable for the big inter-city meet, held in the Masonic Temple, at which the Sherbrooke Rotarians were hosts to 204 visitors from all sections. Other highlights of this period were contributions to the Sacred Heart Hospital, l'Assistance Maternelle and the Salvation Army, while the practice of supplying new shoes and stockings to the poor at Christmas was another feature.

For the first time in the history of the local Rotary Club there was a hundred per cent meeting in April, 1930. Inaugurating a new era for the local Rotary, November, 1931, saw the first "Indoor Fair," an event which surpassed all expectations and which realized a profit of over $3,000, giving evidence of the splendid co-operation which all members extended. It was unanimously decided to make the Rotary Fair an annual event and every year since, this has been the highlight of every Rotary year.

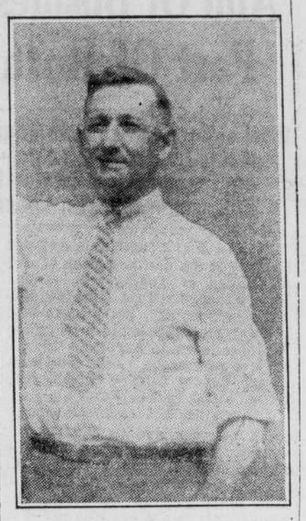

From 1930 until today, the history of Rotary in Sherbrooke has been one of ever-increasing service to the community. Adding to their activities, the members made possible the sending of a large number of poor children to the Y's Men boys' camp each summer. The Rotary Fair, improving each year, showed the magnificent profit of $7,500 last year, all of which was diverted to charitable purposes. The number of members, which at the inception of the club was only seventeen, has soared each year until today it stands at a healthy ninety-six. Some of the character members have left the club for ever, but the spirit of service which they left behind them lives on and flourishes to give testimony of the great work they started.
