Mysterious Old Scow is Finally Brought up From Bottom of Lake St. Francis

Thought to be a Century and a Half Old—Previous Attempts to Raise it Were Unsuccessful

The ageless river bed of Lake St. Francis has finally given up an old scow which is thought to be about a century and a half old and whose origin has remained a mystery to generations of residents of the district.

One of the pioneers of the district, the late father of Mr. J. E. Quenneville of St. Anicet, endeavored many years ago to try to find out how this old scow came to have been sunk in Lake St. Francis but was never able to do so, nor were residents of the district some years before this.

It has always remained somewhat of a mystery.

Yet for many years those who have sailed or rowed over the waters of Lake St. Francis on a day when the water was calm and clear could see the big scow lying on the bottom of the river bed.

Some Questions

Where did it come from? How did it happen to be sunk in Lake St. Francis?

When was about the exact date on which it was sunk?

Was it sunk near where it was located for the past so many years or was it sunk much farther up the river and finally drifted down to where it is now?

Was it used in the transporting of soldiers in the war of 1812? Was it used to transport freight up the river?

Regardless of whether there are answers to the above questions it is fairly definitely figured from the reports of early settlers of St. Anicet that the scow has been lying in the river bed for about a hundred and fifty years.

Use Lumber in Wharf

Today the parts of this scow have been used to build a wharf on the lake front at the rear of the property of W. Hussey at St. Anicet. After the scow had after all these long years been taken from the river bed of Lake St. Francis it was dismantled and the lumber used to build the wharf which is not yet completed. The big tamarack and pine planks taken from the solidly built scow now look over and across the water of Lake St. Francis after lying on the bottom of the lake for a century and a half.

The scow was finally brought up from the bottom of the Lake towards the end of August of this year, dismantled and finally built into the wharf level after a sleep of Hussey property. The scow, which was 140 feet long and 25 feet wide,

Local Residents "Hooked" In Advertising Racket

Man Representing Unexisting Firm Swindles Local Residents—Directory Telephone Card Was to be Mailed to All Bell Telephone Subscribers

A considerable number of residents in the County of Beauharnois and in the County of Huntingdon, and presumably other localities, were left "holding the bag" in an advertising racket which probably netted the salesman several thousand dollars.

A middle-aged man, business-like looking, travelling in a modern streaming car, visited some of the business and professional men and others here and sold them an advertising space on a telephone directory card for the sum of $2.50 or $3. The persons who paid cash were allowed the discount. The men who were "hooked" in this racket, unaware that it was a phoney, paid the salesman after giving their order. They are still waiting for their card.

This stranger, who seemed very familiar with his line of business, was successful in securing a number of Huntingdon residents on his list. At the time these men bought this advertisement, however, they were confident the man was honest since the list they had seen, showed the names of prominent citizens who did not seem to be the kind who would be caught "holding the bag."

The salesman in question, was in Huntingdon for several days during April. He advised the persons who intended printing a District Telephone Card, with a local scene predominating. The offer seemed attractive and many "bit."

After waiting in vain for these cards the local residents wondered if they had not been the victims of some smart crook. One of these men stated that he had been given a receipt but he had not noticed until a few days ago that it was not properly signed. Others, however, had signed receipts. A small investigation was started this week which resulted in finding that the address and the company, did not exist.

According to the information received, these men who had bought advertising space were to receive their card a few days after they had given the order. On this card were to be printed the names and telephone numbers of the space buyers with a local scene at the top of the card. To add more prestige to the affair, to make it look authentic, and to do away any suspicion which might arise in the minds of the customers, the salesman was to distribute more than 1,000 copies to the subscribers on the local Bell Telephone list.

The Bell Telephone, when asked about this situation, stated that they had no knowledge of the affair and that they had never heard of the firm in question. They said, however, that they had heard of such doings but that these directory

HOUSE BURNED NEAR ORMSTOWN

On Wednesday evening fire broke out and totally destroyed the house on the Alex. Rember farm on the Island road about three miles from Ormstown. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Primeau and their two daughters were living on the farm and they lost all their belongings. Since at the time of the fire no one was at home, Mrs. Primeau and Miss Blanche had gone to spend the night with relatives in Franklin, Mr. Primeau and Miss Pearl were in Ormstown. Mr. Lawrence McClintock, returning from town, was the first to discover the fire. He tried to gain entrance to the house not knowing the family were away, and thinking they were asleep at the time. He managed to get a double window off, but was unable to save the contents of the house. Help was quickly at hand but from the first the house was doomed to go. No wind that night saved the other buildings from the same fate, yet the origin of the fire is not known but it is thought to be defective electric wiring. Mr. and Mrs. Primeau are at present at the home of Mr. Albert Monique.

Good Lumber for Scow

There is excellent material in the scow, the type of lumber that is not so plentiful in this district today as it was back in the early years. The planks are mostly of tamarack while a few of them are of pine. These planks are three inches thick and from 9 to 13 inches wide. The square timber is of hemlock.

This summer was not the first time efforts were made to raise the scow. Back in 1887 when the church at St. Anicet was being built an attempt was made to raise the scow in order that the material in the scow might be used in the building of the church. A steam hoist was at this time used but without success.

Other Attempts

About fifteen years ago an attempt was made to dynamite the scow and bring it to the surface but this only broke the lumber up into splinters.

In 1928 a Government dredge was used to raise the scow. At that time it was hoped the dredge could be secured to draw the scow to shore. But there was an election on that year and as a result the dredge had a lot of work to do as quickly as possible and in many places in order to satisfy a lot of voters. Consequently the dredge had to say "nothing doing" as far as dragging the scow out was concerned and so right ahead with its vote soliciting work. It had no time to lose.

No Nails Used

As an evidence of the age of the scow it was noted that there were no nails in it. Instead, the ends of the scow were held together by wooden spikes. A number of people who took over a number of these wooden spikes or pegs as oddities.

But the old scow is out from the bottom of the Lake. No longer will strangers gaze down through the clear water of the Lake on a day that it is calm and see the old scow there. It is once more above in the water level after a sleep of years and years on the bottom of the Lake.

Remaining Parts of Venerable Scow That Once Plied St. Lawrence

Above are shown some of the remaining parts of scow, about a century and a half old, which was towed up and down the St. Lawrence at a time when the countryside along the river was not nearly so populated as it is today. After the scow was taken from the bottom of Lake St. Francis, the details of which are to be found in an article in this issue, the lumber was used in making the wharf seen in the photo. In the foreground are seen W. Hussey, Albert Dupuis and Ernest Oulmet who wrestled long hours with the scow. In the foreground are seen one of the old planks, a jack used to hoist up the scow and also an iron bar used for the same purpose.

The Conduct Of Funerals Is Discussed

Frontier Ministerial Association Holds Final Meeting of Year

The closing meeting of the Frontier Ministerial Association was held at the home of the Rev. Doctor and Mrs. E. H. Gray Howick, on the 10th inst. There was a very fine attendance of the members which was most gratifying.

The opening devotional exercises were conducted by the President, Rev. A. McKinley Rose. Following a prayer of soft music by Rev. Victor Rose, the hymns, Scripture reading and prayers were appropriate in keeping with the theme which was "Peace."

The President extended a very cordial welcome to Rev. and Mrs. Carl Dean of Caughnawaga and Mr. Dean replied by hoping he and Mrs. Dean would be able to attend future meetings of the Association.

The Rev. J. H. Woodside read a splendid paper on "The Question and Conduct of Funerals in Relation to our Work." It was very instructive and most helpful and evoked a fine response from the members, capably led by the leader of the discussion, Rev. Victor Rose.

The hostess, assisted by several young ladies, served a delicious supper. Revs. W. R. Fraser and H. L. Belbin on behalf of the Association tendered thanks.

The next meeting will take place in May, 1939, at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. J. H. Lynn, Dundee.

HOLD MAN AT MALONE ON A MURDER CHARGE

Dan Arthur MacDonald, 53, Canadian-born but American naturalized, is being held as a fugitive from justice in the Franklin County jail pending extradition to Canadian authorities who hold a warrant charging him with the murder of Capt. Fernandez James Cameron, 64, on Cameron's Island in the St. Lawrence River, near Fort Covington, N.Y.

Capt. Cameron died in a Cornwall, Ont., hospital at 5:40 p.m. Tuesday from blows on the head with a heavy stick which fractured his skull.

MacDonald was arrested Tuesday night after the U.S. immigration department had sent out a short wave radio alarm. He was picked up by immigration officers in a Port Covington dwelling near the Selmon River where he had left a rowboat in which he had travelled from Cameron Island to the mainland.

Turned over to the state police he was arraigned before Justice of the Peace James Baxter at Fort Covington, after Constables A. R. MacLeod, of Cornwall, and Ernie Soubiere, of Alexandria, Ont., members of the Canadian Provincial Police, had questioned him. MacDonald refused to waive extradition to Canada, and was sentenced to 30 days in the county jail.

The assault took place about 8:30 Tuesday morning. A younger brother took the victim to the hospital. (Continued on page 10)

Provincial Govt. to Keep Montreal-Malone Road Open

Duplessis Government to Keep Open More Than 525 Miles of Roads This Winter—Montreal to Valleyfield Route to be Maintained as Far as Beauharnois

The Montreal-Malone, N.Y., highway, which has become a much travelled road in Quebec in late years and over which many American tourists pass, both in summer and winter, will be kept open by the Provincial government, it was disclosed this week. The Montreal to Valleyfield road will also be kept open by the Government as far as Beauharnois while the road leading to St-Urbain from St. Chrysostome will also be kept open to traffic.

The 40 extra miles to be kept open this winter are made up largely of an additional 18 miles on the Ottawa route—from St. Estache to St. Hermas; about 12 miles from St. Chrysostome to St. Urbain; and some eight miles in Soulanges County.

The list of roads which the Roads Department office said would be maintained during the winter includes the routes from Montreal to Malone, N.Y.; Montreal to Beauharnois (beginning at the Caughnawaga bridge); Montreal to St. Johns, Que., and Roules Point, N.Y.; Montreal to Chambly and Marieville; Montreal to Boucherville (from Longueuil); Montreal to Assomption, Joliette and St. Felix de Valois; Montreal to St. Jerome; Montreal to St. Estache and St. Hermas; and Montreal to Toronto as far as the Ontario border.

If the proper arrangements can be made, it was also disclosed by the Roads Department, the Duplessis administration will probably also be prepared to grant the usual flat subsidy of $50 a mile where certain municipalities undertake to keep additional stretches of highway open.

In addition to the Government's programme, however, it is expected that as in the past there will be some roads kept open as long as possible by transport and trucking companies at their own expense on a pooled cost basis.

Howick-H'don Ayrshire Club to Meet

Program of Instruction And Entertainment on Friday Evening

Plans have been completed for the annual Howick-Huntingdon Ayrshire Club Banquet at the Chateau on Friday evening, November 25, at which an excellent program is to be presented.

Speaking at the banquet will be Mr. O. T. Conklin, secretary of the Ayrshire Breeders' Association of Brandon, Vermont. To illustrate his talk he will bring with him lantern slide equipment showing the proper ways of breeding and judging Ayrshires.

Present at the banquet also will be a number of prominent live stock men from the Old County. Among those who are expected to attend are Mr. Alex. Cochrane, of Nethercairn, Scotland, one of the judges of Ayrshires; at the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, and also Mr. George Templeton of Carnell.

A program of entertainment will be given which will include recitations by Mr. Fred Sweet.

Mr. J. K. Dickson, president of the club, and Mr. A. H. Taylor, secretary-treasurer of the club, feel that this year's banquet will be both instructive and entertaining.

Concessions Granted to Canada Cover 83 Per Cent of Our Exports to That Country in New Trade Treaties—Negotiations Have Lasted About a Year

By Spectator

The signing of the new trade treaties at Washington by Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States probably marks a new epoch in the economic relations of the English speaking democracies. The negotiations which have covered the greater part of a year have been intricate and complex, but hope is felt that the two treaties signed last Thursday will not only greatly extend and facilitate trade between Canada and the United States and the United States and Great Britain but that they will prove a major and effective attack on trade restrictions throughout the world. The treaties themselves directly affect over one-third of the international commerce of the world.

Among the most important concessions granted to Canadian exporters in the United States are those relating to live cattle, fisheries and lumber. In all 292 items in the United States tariffs are affected, and taking 1937 sales to the United States as a basis, concessions granted

Curling Club Holds Big Stag Party

More than 250 pounds of turkeys were handed out in bingo prizes at the Grand Stag Party held under the auspices of the Huntingdon Curling Club at O'Connor Theatre on Thursday evening.

In a grand raffle that was held Tuesday prizes were handed out. The first one of $15 went to John Baillargeon of Montreal while the second one of $10 went to David Watson of Athelstan.

Card playing was indulged in at about 25 tables. Many diversions were held such as a Chinese raffle, horse race games, balloon bursting, with darts, roulette, etc.

Only one unfortunate incident marred the proceedings. Mr. Hector Provost won one of the turkeys and set it aside at the back of the stage to pick it up later. When he returned to take his turkey home later on it was nowhere to be seen. Mr. Provost stated that if some one needed the turkey more than he did it was O.K. but he wasn't particularly enthusiastic about the way in which the turkey was taken.

Ormstown People in Car Crash

Five persons were injured as the result of two automobiles in collision on the Montreal-Quebec Highway last Thursday morning. Mr. and Mrs. W. G. McGerrigle and her sister, Mrs. Younie, had spent a week in Quebec City and were returning to Montreal accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Harold McGerrigle, when their Plymouth car was struck by a car owned and driven by Dr. Poissant of Grandmere, Que., who it was claimed was travelling at a high rate of speed. The accident occurred at a curve about twenty miles from Quebec. Mrs. Younie and Harold McGerrigle were taken to the hospital where they remained for a couple of days. Harold received broken ribs, cuts and bruises. Mrs. Younie received a deep gash on her head. Mr. McGerrigle escaped with a black eye and nose cut and the rest with cuts and bruises. The McGerrigle party came to Montreal and were brought to Ormstown by Rev. C. J. McGerrigle. Both cars were badly damaged.

District Breeders Awarded Numerous Prizes at Royal Winter Fair, Last Week

Gilbert McMillan, Wins Senior Champion Bull Title—P. D. McArthur Second in Ayrshire Group—Junior Herd First Prize to R. R. Ness and Sons—Hooker Bros. Take Several Awards in Swine

The Royal Winter Fair which opened on Tuesday, November 15th, showed this year, as it had done in past years, the best livestock exhibits in Canada. Among the better known classes of cattle which were shown this year, there were Ayrshires in larger number than any other cattle entries and the owners of which received several awards; Holsteins showed to advantage while the Jerseys were rated higher than at any previous Royal Winter Fair.

The Chateauguay Valley famed not only in the Province of Quebec but also throughout Canada for its excellent cattle breeders, had numerous entries at this annual fair. The district exhibitors received in many instances first prizes. Those who came out in this category were: R. R. Ness & Sons, Howick; P. D. McArthur, Howick; Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, and George Hooker of Ormstown.

Quebec exhibitors captured several championships in late cattle judging on Wednesday Gilbert McMillan, of Huntingdon, won the senior champion Ayrshire bull title. The reserve prize in this class went to W. C. Pitfield, of Cartierville, Que.

Among the first prize winners in Ayrshire cattle were George H. Montgomery, Phillipsburg, for a bull two years and under three, and Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, for a bull four years and over.

J. H. Black, of Lachute, Que., gained second place with his graded Ayrshire herd, scoring lesser prizes in other classes. P. D. McArthur, of Howick, made seconds in the Ayrshire groups.

The junior herd first prize went to R. R. Ness & Sons, of Howick. Their entries ranked second, third and tenth on two animals, any age, either sex, progeny of one dam; a third in dairy herds, third and fifth on four animals, any animals, any age, set of one sire and third and fifth on three animals, any age, sired by a qualified sire.

Market swine results at the Fair on Friday afternoon were: George Hooker of Ormstown numerous awards. They won first and sixth for a bacon type Barrow Yorkshire and also took the Brebrou Challenge Trophy for dressed carcasses on three animals, any age, sired by a qualified sire.

The champions in the Ayrshire cattle classes on Wednesday were:

Ayrshires
Senior champion bull—Gilbert

Junior champion bull—J. H. Black, Lachute, on Auchrain Farm, P. O. Reserve, Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, on Bois de la Roche Golden Glow.

Council Seeks to Improve Appearance of Chateauguay St. by Filling in Washout

Will Seek Financial Aid From Government—Spot Regarded as Dangerous—Alderman Lunan Appointed Pro-Mayor

The Huntingdon town council on Monday evening took preliminary steps towards the fixing up of the bad appearance of the slope on the south side of Chateauguay street between the Shell Station and the Lower bridge.

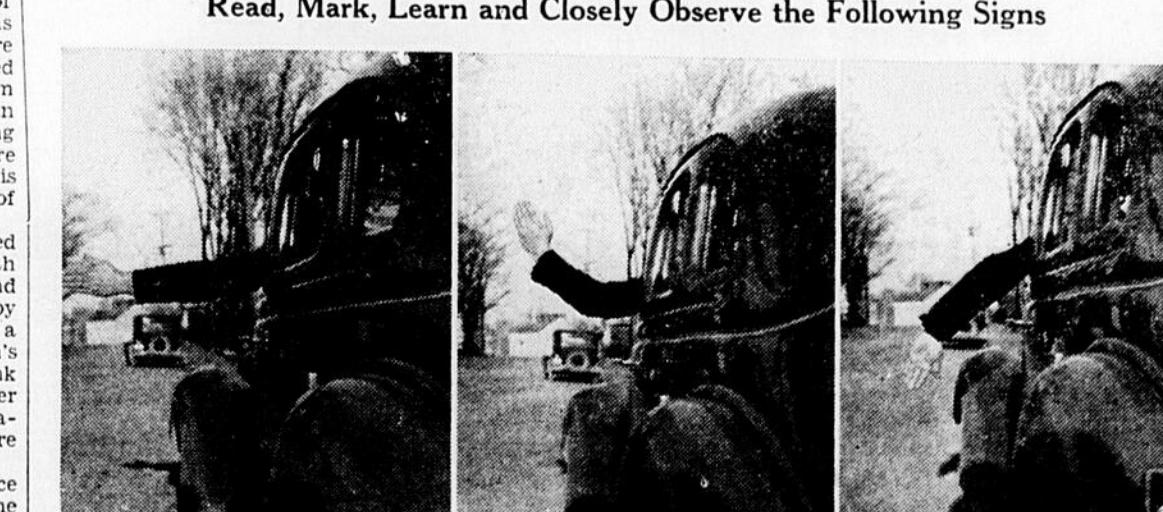

Besides having a bad appearance as an approach to the town it has been somewhat dangerous. Therefore the town council passed the following resolution: "Moved by Ald. Barrett and seconded by Ald. McWhinnie that the council ask Hon. M. B. Fisher to use his influence towards having the south side of Chateauguay Street filled in between the Lower Bridge and the Shell Oil Station, either through the Roads Department or through the Department of Labor, especially as this is a dangerous place for cars and trucks, and as there will be a considerable amount of filling from the construction of the Chateauguay Street sewer."

It was moved by Ald. Baillargeon and seconded by Ald. Lalonde that the council guarantee that the pavement on Chateauguay Street be replaced, following the construction of the new sewer, to the entire satisfaction of the Department of Roads.

The secretary was instructed to notify the Department of Roads that the council would maintain Chateauguay Street during the winter months.

The following accounts were ordered paid: Valleyfield, $12.65; A. Savard, $1.05; R. Auclair, $3; Provincial Treasurer, $30.19; W. Scully Ltd., $9.84; J. Macrow, $34; Jas. Kerby, $120; A. McArthur, $21.42; W. Saumier, $20; N. Lanctot, $2; R. Langevin, $2; R. Auclair, $6; R. Langevin, $11; Canadian Industries Ltd., $16.20; David Sauvé, $3.30; M. Donnelly, $29.20; J. H. Demers, $63.78.

A letter was received from the Provincial Minister of Highways in which he stated that the Government planned to keep open the Montreal-Malonne highway this year. The Huntingdon town council was asked if they would care to have the Government keep this road clear of snow through Huntingdon. The Huntingdon town council decided to do the same as last year, viz., keep the road clear of snow themselves.

Above are shown a group of signs which should be used by the motorist in the interests of safety. If the drivers use these signs, which are recognized as the standard ones, they will go a long way towards cutting down on the large number of accidents which happen each year. In the above photos is seen Police Chief Lanctot of Huntingdon demonstrating the various signs which all motorists should use. Why not pay more than passing attention to these signs. Learn them by heart and then put them into practice. You'll find that the universal adoption of such signs will mean not only more safety for others but also for yourself.

Inventor Wanted

THE inventive facility of telephone engineers has brought the telephone to a high degree of efficiency. Praiseworthy, from one point of view, is the advertising designed to encourage more telephoning and, incidentally, the rental of more telephones. It has, without doubt, helped the telephoner by suggesting ways in which the instrument can save his time; but what about the telephoner?

Strong-minded indeed is the man or woman who can let a telephone go unanswered. Even though the odds are in favor of the caller's being a subscription salesman or a seller of tickets for a concert in aid of under-privileged goldfish, curiosity will always triumph over reason at the third ring of the bell. After all, it might be a lawyer with the glad news that Uncle James has passed out, leaving you a million. When you are disillusioned, you not only dislike the goldfish more than ever but you also feel unreasonably annoyed with Uncle James.

Telephone convenience will be perfect when a device is invented that will show the face of the person calling. When the bell then gives its shrill summons we shall press a switch and see whether it is worth while to lift the receiver. If the caller is someone we know and like, he will be subtly flattered when we answer. If it is a stranger introducing on our privacy the deserved snub will also carry an implied criticism of the stranger's face.

Pending perfection of this overdue device, the tactics of one telephone user may be found helpful. He answers every call in a thick Swedish accent and maintains it until he discovers who is calling. To an intruder his responses soon become so unintelligible that the phone is hung up in disgust.

Buy From Those You Know

RACKETS of one kind or another are always flourishing here and there throughout the land. One that is said to be in current favour is a clothing racket. Although we know of no definite instances of certain clothing rackets being in operation here it is quite possible that they are.

A weekly newspaper tells of the racket in its particular vicinity in the following item: "Men are visiting the farm houses, selling cloth for overcoats. The sample we saw was black and heavy. They claim to be sailors just off ocean vessels, who have smuggled the cloth into Canada from England and can offer it cheaply because they have paid no duty on it. In proof of its English manufacture, each yard is stamped 'Made in England.' They offer it for sale in three-yard lengths, which is sufficient to make a man's coat, as it is 54 inches wide. The price they are receiving is $10 for the piece. They say they will be followed in a few days by a friend who is a tailor and who will make up the coat for $12. So far, the 'tailor' has failed to arrive.

"As it happens, we are able to give more than usually complete details of the transaction. The cloth is made in a certain Canadian town, not in England. It can be bought at the mill, wholesale, for $1.60 a yard or $4.80 a piece, and retails at about $6 at the stores. These fake sailors are therefore making about $3.20 on every sale."

The above serves as a warning that you should not buy from strangers. Just because an article looks good and feels good is not always proof that you are getting something genuine. The safest course is not to buy from strangers peddling from door to door but to buy from reliable merchants whom you know.

Bankers' Story

PERSONS professionally connected with the advertising business have been saying for some months back that the advertising of the Canadian Bankers' Association, now appearing in the public prints, is not good advertising. Even laymen are saying the same thing; perhaps because they have heard some omniscient young man employed by an advertising agency condemn the copy.

Except that we more than once, back in 1935 and 1936, recommended that the bankers tell their story in paid space, this firm has had nothing whatever to do with the present campaign. So there is no self-interest in these remarks.

Sometimes advertising is so bad, in the eyes of professionals, that it attracts more attention than something that is merely good or mediocre. We don't think that the bankers' story is told so poorly that it is falling to reach its audience, but it can be admitted without disparagement of its quality that there is an absence of the professional touch. The professional ad writers condemn it, mayhap, because it does not follow the pattern. We have met few ad writers who approved of other ad writers' work. And when approval does come it is usually because the new ad merely has developed more fully and strikingly the current theories of what is good advertising.

In any event it is questioned if professional advertising writers could do better than Mr. Vernon Knowles has done with this copy, considering that banking is a complex question, difficult to explain in laymen's language. Bankers in their profession are dealers in exactness to the last cent. They never would be content to have banking explained to the public in language which conveyed the story in words and phrases which were merely substantially and approximately accurate.

Yet aside from the possible behind-the-scenes difficulty in producing the advertising, there is one fact that stands out clearly—the public relations of the Canadian chartered banks are better today than they were before the advertising started. There may be few people who read any or all of the advertisements to the last line. There may be some who never have observed the advertising at all. There doubtless are the perennial cynics who would disbelieve even if they were told the truth dressed up in the fancy clothes of the creative departments of the most pretentious advertising agencies, all of which specialize on sex appeal, and newspaper reader has in spite of himself read frequently in the last year or so that Canadian banks are good institutions and aid in the stability and progress of the nation. A few years ago, the casual citizen was hearing only that banks were responsible for many of our troubles.

The important thing is that the bankers' story is at long last being told. Professional ad writers to the contrary notwithstanding, the ultimate effects will be excellent and effects to date appear to be good.

Growing Healthier

NOT only are the people of Canada and the United States a healthy people but they are growing even healthier.

For, following the best health year ever recorded—1937—the following gains have been reported for the first nine months of 1938:

A 34.5 per cent decline in deaths from influenza-pneumonia.

A 16.3 per cent decline in automobile fatalities.

A fall of 10.2 per cent in the death rate from tuberculosis.

A drop of 10.1 per cent in the mortality from diseases and conditions connected with maternity and childbirth.

An improvement of 7.4 per cent in the death rate from accidents other than automobile fatalities.

A fall of 8.5 per cent in the homicide rate.

A decline of 4.4 per cent in heart disease mortality.

A 2.4 per cent drop in the death rate for cerebral hemorrhage.

An improvement of 3.6 per cent in mortality from kidney disease.

These 1938 health gains are reported by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, based on records of the company's millions of industrial policyholders who constitute a reliable cross-section of the working populations of the two countries.

Mistakes in Hunting

THE hunting season has come and gone, but not without leaving its usual quota of accidents and deaths.

New York State can be taken as an example. The same things happen on this side of the line only to a lesser degree because of the smaller population. Hunting accidents proved fatal to 19 persons and brought injuries to 99 others. In every case the cause of the accident were guns, fatal or otherwise.

Of the 19 deaths, ten were caused by discharge of the victims' own guns, while the remainder were killed as the result of shots fired by hunting companions.

The deaths by communities as reported by the conservation department were as follows:

Rochester—William A. Shiner, killed a few minutes after the start of the pheasant season, when his hunting companion fired into underbrush.

Yonkers—Dominick Marsh, gun discharged while he was resting.

Churchville—Tracey Coon, companion's gun discharged while on a squirrel hunting trip.

Rose Valley—Bert L. Tuttle, gun fired while driving a dog from a coon he had killed.

West Bloomfield—Joseph Shelman, 11, gun discharged after placing it against barn door.

Schenectady—Edward Raczowski, gun discharged when he tripped.

Tonawanda—Richard Johnson, while cleaning gun.

Syracuse—Joseph Blais, struck by stray bullet.

Oswego—Claude L. Moody, companion's gun discharged while he was climbing a stone wall; Dominick Susino, while examining gun.

Whitesboro—Merle Bauer, companion's gun discharged.

Kingston—Leon Deyo, body found at foot of cliff with bullet wounds in neck, shoulder and face.

Nassau—Lester Clapper, stumbled down embankment causing shotgun to discharge.

Ausable Forks—George Bombard, mistaken for deer.

Crown Point—Lester Bemis, shot by other hunter.

Margaretville—Dr. G. B. Mauer, gun discharged.

Woodstock—William Frey, while examining gun.

Amity—Calvin Corbin, 12, shot by companion while playing.

Elmira—Frank Zito, Sr., mistaken for woodchuck.

From the above list it can be seen that some very foolish mistakes are made with guns. For example, one man was shot because he was mistaken for a deer while another was shot because he was mistaken for a woodchuck. And this, despite the fact that there is a considerable difference in size between a woodchuck and a deer.

Besides the fatalities with human beings there are many with farm animals. Many a farmer has been told by a hunter after the latter has shot his cow that the hunter thought it was something else, anything from a pheasant to almost an elephant.

Some hunters should never be let loose in the bush with a gun. They are far from responsible and are apt to mistake anything for anything.

The Railway Problem

A TOPIC of major importance in the national economic life of Canada was discussed in an address by Kris A. Mapp, F.C.A., which appeared in a recent issue of "The Canadian Chartered Accountant."

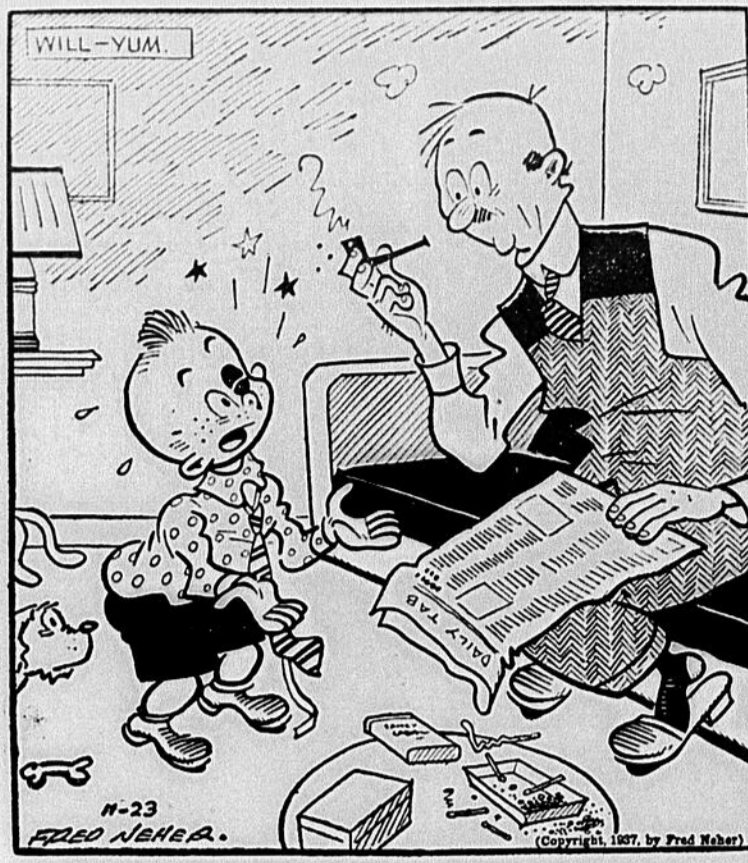

Referring to the railway problem, "which hangs over the economic life of our country like an ominous black cloud," and which is dissipating over a million dollars of the taxpayers' money every week, the speaker pointed out that the government was doing little to solve it. The last well-known effort but it must be admitted that even the most cast to provide a solution was through the Duff Commission in 1931-32 which reported: "In a little more than ten years the whole railway situation has passed from a position of manageability and moderate cost to one of financial confusion and over-extension."

The policy of co-ordination and co-operation advocated by the Commission has proved to be a dismal failure. The recent Senate Enquiry into the railway situation has been productive of little beneficial result. The railways appeared to display a mutual antagonism; they showed no desire to cooperate in finding the basis for a real solution of their problem.

The government must come to a realization of its responsibilities in a matter affecting so tragically the economic welfare of Canada. "The time has come," Mr. Mapp stated, "when all political parties must get together in one determined effort to solve this problem and put a stop to piling up a burden so gigantic that it can only be assessed in astronomical figures."

DEATH NEWS WITHHELD

At the time of the death of W. A. Nixon, on heart attack at Paden, Miss., his wife and son, Listen, were ill in a Memphis, Tenn., hospital. Fearing effect of news of his death, it was not reported to the wife and son. Eleven days later Mrs. Nixon died and for the same reason her death was not reported to her son. Six days afterward, the son passed away without learning of the death of either of his parents. Withholding the death news did not save a life but who will say it was not better for mother and son not to have known?

TRIES NEW PUNISHMENT

Children violating traffic laws on bicycles used to be fined. But Chief of Police Frank J. Nobles of Salamanca, N.Y., observed that, since parents usually had to be called on to pay fines, violators took the punishment lightly and often repeated the offense. His new disciplinary measure requires each reckless riding youngster to copy the broken law 200 times.

GRAND OPERA MOUSE

Richard P. Steiner, Lincoln, Ill., has a mouse which evidently has a grand opera complex and an affinity for canaries. He captured the mouse after it had squeezed into his canary's cage and joined the bird in a duet. Confined now to a finely screened cage, the mouse continues its singing, disdainful all food except—bird seed.

A NUTTY STORY

Town officials of Chester, Pa., soon may be able to harvest a municipal peanut crop. Joseph Diggins, Deshong Park trustee, has been feeding peanuts to squirrels since last spring. The squirrels buried what they did not eat. Now vines are coming over the place.

SUCCESS ALMOST KILLS

Last week a Topeka woman received a telegram. She read it and turned ghastly pale. Her daughter, who was with her, was certain someone must have died, but a quick mental survey of the relatives and their various afflictions recalled none who might have passed on. Her mother swayed gently to the floor in a dead faint, the telegram fluttering from her hand. The daughter read it and found it was an announcement that her mother had won $100 in a soap contest.

SARK RETICENT

The island of Sark, off the coast of England, is badly upset by a series of robberies. For Sark previously had had only one theft in the last 100 years. Sark is reticent about its new disgrace, but it is believed that a thief broke into the island's general store and took not only the entire season's receipts of the owner, J. Lanyon, but also his entire life savings.

EARACHE CURED AT LAST

Mrs. Lizzie Metcalf's ear—it plagued her for years—doesn't ache any more. After an X-ray examination, physicians removed a bug which Mrs. Metcalf recalled flew into the ear 26 years ago. She said she had forgotten about it. Physicians said the bug was well preserved.

PRETTY GOOD GOING

When the first movie was made starring the Dionne quintuplets, they received $50,000, or $10,000 apiece, put into the fund the government of Ontario is saving up for them. For their latest picture, "Five of a Kind," now being shown, they were paid $300,000, or $60,000 apiece, besides a royalty from receipts of the picture. Which represents pretty fair wages for girls four and a half years old.

COSTLY DIP

Disgusted at the number of foreign bathers basking on the beach at Waikiki, Honolulu, natives retreated to the solitary waters of the city's reservoir and took a dip. It cost $300 to drain the 3,000,000 gallon tank and refill it.

FINGERPRINTS HELP

According to records of the federal fingerprint bureau in the department of justice at Washington, 1,129 men and women in all parts of the country were saved from burial in nameless graves in 1937 by their fingerprints. Bureau officials report they are now identifying approximately one third of the corpses of unknown persons from their fingerprints sent to Washington.

MILK PRODUCTS

In the summer period, June to August, 1938, 41,200,000 pounds of whole-milk products were manufactured in Canada and 14,400,000 pounds of concentrated milk by-products, registering advances of approximately 14 per cent and 35 per cent respectively over the corresponding period of 1937. In the whole-milk group, the most important product was evaporated milk, the output of which amounted to 36,700,000 pounds, or 89 per cent of the total. The production of skim-milk powder, which ranks first among the milk by-products, amounted to 9,700,000 pounds, representing 67 per cent of the total.

ENJOY CANADIAN FISH
Our Canadian rivers and lakes and our two oceans give us such a wide variety of fine fish that sometimes it's hard to make a choice. If you come across something new to you in your market, try it! There will be a taste treat in store.

Here is a recipe for our famed Canada Cod which will make dinner an event. Use fresh cod steaks, frozen fillets, or the salt cod, well freshened of course.

Canada Cod a la Boulangere
1 lb. Canada cod, pepper, 4 tablespoons butter, salt, 1 fresh cod is used, 2 cups potato balls, 2 dried potatoes, 1 teaspoon chopped parsley, 2 tablespoons bread crumbs.

Put the cod in a greased fireproof baking dish, season and surround with potato balls or diced potatoes. Put 2 tablespoons butter on top of fish, and cook in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.) for 30 minutes, basting well with butter, adding more as necessary. Combine parsley with bread crumbs, sprinkle over fish, return to oven and cook for two or three minutes more until breadcrumbs are browned.

Now for a haddock recipe with a subtle kipper flavour:

Canadian Haddock en creme
1 1/2 lbs. Canadian haddock fillet or chicken haddock, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter, 1/2 cup milk, 6 tablespoons flour, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 6 kippers, snags, chopped, 1/4 teaspoon grated onion.

Cut haddock in pieces for serving and roll in mixture of flour, salt and pepper. Melt butter, add kippers and cook slowly for 2 minutes; then add haddock and brown lightly. Place in greased casserole, add parsley, onion and milk; bake covered, in a moderate oven (375 deg. F.) for 25 to 30 minutes. This will serve 6.

Canadian Salmon
For a hearty, nourishing soup on cold days, nothing can be more delicious than this Salmon and Tomato Bisque. Following with a vegetable main dish, or serve for luncheon or supper with a fruit dessert, and it makes a meal in itself. Of course, when it is the main course for dinner, serve in generous bowls, but if it is to precede dinner, serve in smaller portions. Here's the way to make this

Canadian Salmon and Tomato Bisque

1 lb. can Canadian salmon, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt, 1 No. 2 can tomatoes, 1 1/2 cups water, 1 small onion, chopped, 2 cups milk, 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Turn the salmon without draining into a saucepan, add tomatoes, parsley and water. Simmer 20 minutes. Cook onion in butter 2 or 3 minutes, blend in flour, add milk gradually and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Strain hot salmon mixture through coarse sieve into hot sauce, mix thoroughly and serve at once.

And here's a main dish as light and fluffy as anything you ever ate. Serve it with creamed peas for a decorative touch and subtle combination of flavours.

Canadian Salmon Puff

3 medium-sized potatoes, 1 lb. can Canadian salmon, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon flour, 1 1/2 cups milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/4 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire, 1/2 onion, grated, 3 eggs, separated. Cook potatoes in boiling salted water until tender, drain and mash. Drain salmon, remove skin, flake with fork. Combine potatoes and salmon. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk gradually, cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and salmon mixture. Add well-beaten egg yolks, fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour into casserole or individual ramekins. Place in pan of hot water, bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) until set, about 40 minutes for a large casserole and 20 to 25 minutes for individual ramekins. Serve at once, and enjoy heartily.

Ethics of Etiquette

SUPPERS

Supper parties are almost invariably informal, especially the after-theatre and after-dance suppers that are at present so very popular. Many people who attend the theatre go to a restaurant or hotel for a little supper afterward, but when there is a theatre party to which several guests have been invited, it is more fashionable to have a little supper in the home of the host and hostess.

This "little supper" is quite jolly and entirely free from ceremony. It is the most unconventional meal of the day, and the hostess may introduce whatever new and interesting menu ideas she likes. She must use judgment, though, in the food she serves. It must not be so heavy that it interferes with sleep, nor so rich that it causes nightmares.

Most of these suppers are cold, and served by the hostess without the help of servants. Sometimes, indeed, the food is arranged on buffet or table and the guests help themselves. A great bowl of nuts and another great bowl of fruit are almost indispensable on the supper table. For potato dishes, this type of supper is best. Turkey, or chicken, prepared the day before, cold sliced tongue, potato salad, olives, iced tea. If one prefers a hot dish, it may be prepared in a chafin dish right at the table. The old stand-by, Welsh rarebit, is a favourite; and other popular dishes are eggs or chicken à la king, chicken pâtés, scrambled eggs with sausage.

For a more formal supper, though still not formal in the true sense of the word, it is following a dance, an evening reception, a subscription ball. Bouillon in cups is usually served, a special hot course, a salad course, a sweet or dessert and black coffee. For potluck suppers, this type of supper is quite ceremonious and the table is laid with as much care as the dinner table.

Rockburn

The Thankoffering auxiliary meeting was held at the home of Mrs. John Oliver on Thursday last with good attendance. The president, Miss Johnson, occupied the chair, and after the usual business of the day and the Bible Study class was held, a delicious supper was served by the hostesses, Mrs. J. Oliver and Mrs. M. Oliver.

The Rev. E. White, recently inducted to the charge of Ormstown-Rockburn, preached his first sermon as pastor of this congregation on Sunday to a large gathering.

telling you the truth to your face are amongst the most disagreeable I know, and I also admit that agents are the pleasantest class of people I have ever had dealings with. But I would have the agent employ a happy medium in his game. I would not have him so clumsy a liar that I find him out next day as I did that first one who tried to sell me an electric washer, but neither would I have him such an adept at his Machiavellian arts that I shall not have plumbed the depths of his perfidy until after the bargain has been closed. I would be enlightened on his dark and devious methods ere it be too late.

"You've got the lights." I was greeted by a lad who marched into my kitchen the other day with long, tapering, pianist's fingers. "I go like this," he said, "I have the lights, but we haven't got the light." Yes, I am "wired" and am now "in the swithers" whether to wish that I was electrified or that all the agents for electric appliances were electrocuted. The first in the field had such a beaming countenance that my subconscious self said to my everyday self, "Too sweet to be wholesome, and she was right again." The second man told me that if the ladies whom the first claimed as his customers did not say that he, the second, had sold to them, then he would give me a washing-machine free. I believed him but, when I denounced his rival's dishonourable tactics, he condemned his offence, leading me to wonder whether he was an angel travelling incognito as an agent or whether he might not be equal to some of the tricks of the trade himself. My friends tell me I am too hard on agents, but I find it almost as hard to change my attitude in this respect as little Tommy found it when his mother scolded him for not setting up in the morning. "I should think you would be ashamed to have to be called so often," she said. "Yes, mother," replied Tommy. "I am ashamed, but I would rather be ashamed than get up."

THE ART OF CHOOSING FURNITURE
(Submitted by Belgium Upholstering Company)

Little do we realize, when in furnishing our homes, what infinite care must be taken, since furniture is truly the concrete exhibit of our innermost taste, the real expression of our own personality. Our children, too, soon appreciate the loveliness of such objects and subconsciously, their entire perspective is broadened with a background which constantly suggests the finer things in life. Furniture is something which cannot be amassed in one day—the buying takes place over a period of time—and after all pieces are put together they form the expression of our individual taste.

The question arises therefore, as to how the ordinary purchaser is able to know good furniture. Some may think price should be a consistent guide, if one piece of furniture is more expensive than another it should obviously be better. This is not necessarily so, since it may lack design, on the other hand the cheaper furniture may have design but lack workmanship, good material and finish. Hence, the purchaser must use as his standard the combination of good workmanship, good materials, good finish and design.

In speaking of design, differentiation must be made between design and current style. By design, individualism or creation is meant, something that will stand the onslaught of current fashion, yet survive and outlive all new modes. Fashion is catchy, like eye-spectacles, it is bought for permanence—remember, it has little or no trade-in value—therefore, look for design in furniture and not fashion. Admission must be made of the fact, that today, more than ever before, a great danger lies in the choice of furniture. Manufacturers have the means and machinery to produce furniture en masse, his aim therefore, is to produce as much as he can as fast as he can. The result being that the public gets an article, beautiful at a glance, but poorly constructed and with no finish. Good finish requires time, lots of it, it requires the skill of good workmanship which furniture produced on such basis cannot possibly offer.

The present trend in furniture is showing vast improvement in the matter of design and color scheme, but unfortunately, as these improve, the materials and workmanship decline proportionately. The manufacturer relies on beauty of design, attractive prices to sell his product, thereby necessitating the lack of appreciative quality. Good furniture, embodying all qualifications, cannot be sold cheap, it is reasonable being that the manufacturer's price is therefore to suffer, if the price is low the product has suffered intrinsically.

The purchaser is well advised to buy only after he has made a study of the article on the basis outlined. True, he is in no position to know as to whether the manufacturer has conscientiously used the elements to the required degree of quantity and quality, nevertheless in the course of time, he will sufficiently educate himself in such matters, to know good furniture as well as any reputable dealer.

Youngsters Display Smart Form in Absence of Three Stars; Lose to Bellerive

Duke and Wilson Supply Timely Scores in Intermediate League With Bellerive—Huntingdon Extends Losing Streak to Three Straight

Minus three of their stars, Huntingdon extended its losing streak to three straight games when they were defeated by Valleyfield, Bellerive, in the second game of a double-header played at the Valleyfield Arena over the week-end. The score in this game was 3-2. In the first game played that afternoon Moco tied the score, 3-3, in the dying minutes of the third period to split in points with the St. Timothee aggregation.

Howie Grant, who did not appear on the Huntingdon line-up for this contest was away from town while Jack Kirby and "Chick" Fortune were on the injured list. Although handicapped to this extent, the youngsters on the team played a game that they baffled their opponents with their smart offensive and defensive tactics. It was not until late in the initial stanza that the home team were successful in gaining the advantage in play.

Although the Huntingdon team is still in poor physical condition, and the other teams are practically in the same predicament, they put up one of the finest exhibitions. They covered their wings well with the defense given their smart goalie, M. Houle, ample protection.

Manager Fallie started the first line of Boyd-Duke-Smith against the first string players on the Bellerive line-up. This set of players held the many attacks of Bellerive far in between, with Houle blocking hard drives near his nets. This line often came close to scoring for Huntingdon but they seemed to lack the necessary punch when they were close-in. In a smart combination play, with less than three minutes to go in the first period, Lecompte beat Houle on a shot from the side of the rink. The puck hit the goalers' skate and deviated into the nets.

With Bellerive leading with a 1-0 score, Huntingdon organized several power plays but they were unable to beat the Bellerive netminder. The goal announced the end of the period without any further changes.

In the second period, White, B. Campbell and M. Levine worked like trojans inside the home team's defence and kept the goalies on constant vigil. Play was roughed up somewhat throughout this frame.

Huntingdon organized several power plays but they were unable to beat the Bellerive netminder. The goal announced the end of the period without any further changes.

BERT PEER LEADS PROVINCIAL LEAGUE WITH 12 POINTS

Bert Peer, star left winger with the Valleyfield Braves Hockey team, members of the Provincial Senior Hockey League, is leading all scorers in this loop according to statistics issued on Friday by the circuit. Peer had eight goals and four assists to his credit prior to the week-end games.

Theo Hamel, also of Valleyfield and Taz Millar of Lachine were tied for third position with 10 points each.

Huntingdon Badminton Club Reverses Decision Of Previous Week

The Huntingdon Badminton Club defeated the visiting Lacolle Club by 8 games to 4 at the Club here last night. Despite the fact that neither teams have had much practice so far this season a fairly good brand of badminton was turned in. Jim McCoy and Zeno D'Aoust turned in some nice work for Huntingdon amongst the men players, while Norma Lunan, Frances Cahill, Mrs. W. E. A. Rowat and Mrs. H. Provost played well.

The Lacolle club defeated Huntingdon last week by a score of 3 to 3.

An invitation has been received by the Huntingdon Club to go to Massena and it is expected this invitation will be accepted as well as one to Malone.

Following are the results of the games last night:

Huntingdon	Lacolle

Council Seeks to Improve This Scene

The above photos show the portion of Chateaugay Street which the Huntingdon Town Council seeks to improve. A resolution was passed at a meeting of the council on Monday evening which stated an attempt would be made to seek assistance from the Government on this matter. When the sewer is being put in there will be a certain amount of fill-in which can be used to build up this ill appearing and dangerous side of Chateaugay Street.

VALLEYFIELD'S SECRETARY RESIGNS

The directors of the Valleyfield Braves' hockey team received a bad blow on Thursday when they received Leo George Perron's letter of resignation as financial secretary of that hockey team. In his letter to the President of the Valleyfield team, Mr. Delpha Sauvé, M.L.A., Mr. Perron stated that he was in failing health and that he had not sufficient time on hand to handle this position as it must be cared for.

A special meeting of the hockey executive was called when the letter by the president was received, but no action was taken in the matter, probably hoping that Mr. Perron will give the matter further consideration.

Having been directly connected with hockey in Valleyfield for a great number of years, George, as he is better known to sport fans in the district, was largely responsible in having the Valleyfield hockey stars join with the Provincial League a few years ago. Again this year George made a name for himself when he contacted the many stars who are on the line-up today. These stars were sought by nearly all amateur teams in Canada, but George was always a step ahead of the others and the result obtained is widely known not only in the district but also in Canada.

The directors of the Braves are fully aware that they will have to do some deep "digging" to find someone to adequately replace Leo George Perron.

Loop Issues Schedule For 1938-39; 21 Games to Play

Teams in League Have 18 More Games to Play—Huntingdon to Play Only Four Games at Home; Ice Unavailable Before Late December

The Valleyfield Intermediate hockey league issued its schedule for 1938-39, over the week-end. It showed that each team has to play a total of 21 games before the season draws to an end on Monday, Feb. 29, 1939. It will be noted that Huntingdon plays only four games at home in this schedule due to the fact ice is not available here until the latter part of December. To date each team has played a total of three games.

Plans for playoffs will be played, it is presumed, according to the C.A.H.A. rules, as the teams in this loop joined this association at their first meeting a few weeks ago. Moco is now leading the league but the other teams are fast getting into shape and Harry Whitehead's players will have to do some fast travelling to stop these aggregations once they start turning on the pressure.

Following is the schedule and the dates when Huntingdon is scheduled to play both at home and away:

Nov. 24—H'don vs Bellerive.
Nov. 27—H'don vs Tigers.
Dec. 6—H'don vs St. Timothee.
Dec. 13—H'don vs Moco.
Dec. 19—H'don vs St. Timothee.
Dec. 26—H'don vs Tigers.
Dec. 30—Moco at H'don.

1939
Jan. 5—H'don vs Bellerive.
Jan. 10—H'don vs Tigers.
Jan. 13—Tigers at H'don.
Jan. 16—H'don vs Moco.
Jan. 20—Bellerive at H'don.
Jan. 27—St. Timothee at H'don.
Jan. 29—H'don vs Bellerive.
Feb. 2—H'don vs Moco.
Feb. 5—H'don vs St. Timothee.
Feb. 6—H'don vs Bellerive.
Feb. 13—H'don vs Tigers.

Mr. and Mrs. Whiteside Kearns celebrated their 45th wedding anniversary very quietly on Tuesday, the 15th. About noon two of their daughters arrived from the city and induced Mr. and Mrs. Kearns to go for a drive with their son-in-law, Mr. Tolhurst. When they returned they found tables set and guests arriving. Thirty relatives sat down to supper. In the evening Mr. F. A. Sweet gave several of his humorous recitations and several songs were sung. Mr. and Mrs. Kearns received several nice gifts. Those from Montreal attending were: Mr. and Mrs. R. Tolhurst, Mrs. Bradley, Mr. and Mrs. F. Schwer, Mr. Owen Schwer and Miss Edith Wilkins.

Mr. Melbourne Sample spent the week-end in Plattsburg.

Mr. Robert Blair accompanied Mr. Wm. A. Blair and Mr. and Mrs. W. Potter to St. Lambert on Tuesday and spent the day with Mrs. Wm. Orr.

Mrs. J. L. Robson, Mrs. T. E. Cleland, Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Barr and Mr. Charles Barr called at the Humphrey home at Moores, N.Y., on Sunday. Mrs. Humphrey has been quite ill the past week but is improving very slowly.

Mrs. Delia Nichol is very poorly at time of writing. She has been suffering from congestion and is under Dr. Gagne's care. In spite of her advanced age, 87 years, she has been up and assisting with light housework until last Tuesday.

New York City expects its 1938 death rate from tuberculosis to be the lowest in its history—between 51 and 52 per 100,000 population. In 1927, it was 57.4; in 1936, 62.3; and in 1918, 184.

VALLEYFIELD BRAVES LOSE TO FLYERS, 2-0

First period goals by Dick Proulx and Tommy McIntyre gave Cornwall's Flyers a 2-0 victory Tuesday night in a Provincial Senior Hockey League clash with Valleyfield Braves, keeping the Ontario team at the head of the standing.

The markers came slightly more than four minutes apart, with Harvey McClelland providing assistance for Proulx's opening tally after 7:20. Stan Robertson helped McIntyre as he pushed the other goal past Johnny Lascelles in the Valleyfield cage.

The powerful Penniston squad carried the play to Braves during most of the game, but the locals opened up in the final session and peppered Goalie Floyd Ferras with 17 hard drives.

SPORT NOTES

The Huntingdon Athletic Club changed its name to Huntingdon Leach Athletic Club, it was disclosed this week. The quarters, which are located on the ground floor of the O'Connor building, have been painted and furniture will be placed within a few days. It is expected that fifty members will join when the membership cards are issued.

That an athletic club is greatly in need in Huntingdon, is evidenced by the fact that a $25.00 donation has been received by headquarters from Hon. Martin B. Fisher, provincial treasurer. This personal donation from Mr. Fisher has been greatly appreciated by the executive. Another donation of $5 has been acknowledged from a friend of the young people in Huntingdon.

Now that the Leach team has been practically selected for the season it is assured that the youngsters on the team will carry the heavy burden in the remaining games. Their teamwork in their last fixture was beyond expectation. Aubrey McBride, who is actively interested in sports, has been appointed trainer of the Leach team. As a former participant in all sports, Aubrey will be a big asset to the local amateur team.

An editorial on sports which appeared in last week's issue of the Gleaner entitled: "Where is all our local hockey talent?" called somewhat of an uproar in local hockey circles. It is rumored that several older boys in Huntingdon are prepared to manage the teams in the Huntingdon Town League. The local schools could furnish some smart playing material to add class to these teams. These boys are young and willing to learn but this cannot be applied to all the boys who have participated to town league games previously.

The members of the Huntingdon badminton club played an exhibition game with Lacolle on Friday evening and lost 2-5. The directors of this club have enrolled several new members to their already long list. This is one of the most active and progressive clubs in Huntingdon.

The older "rents" in town are looking forward to the month of December when they can engage in the "roarin' game". Many engage in this sport which is both fascinating and helps to keep young and fit.

The Valleyfield Braves team lost their regular game with Lachine over the week-end. The Braves worked hard throughout but they were closely watched by the Lachine Rapides.

Badminton Club Appoints Committees

Report of Recent Dance Well Received by Members of Local Club

Committees were appointed at a meeting of the Huntingdon Badminton Club on Monday evening. They were as follows:

Match committee: Mrs. D. L. Kelley, Mrs. E. C. Martin, Jim McCoy, W. E. A. Rowat.

Entertainment committee: Rueie O'Hare, Francis Cahill, Lomyra Popeck, A. LeFebvre.

House committee: J. H. Provost, Z. D'Aoust, Mrs. J. H. Provost, Mrs. W. E. A. Rowat.

Miss Norma Lunan, the president, was chairman of the meeting. The secretary, Miss Lomyra Popeck, read the reports including that of the recent dance, which dance was most favourably received all round, it was stated.

The Kensington and Elgin Y.P.S. with a large number from the neighboring societies of Huntingdon, Dundee, Herdman, Gore and Ormstown met in Kensington Hall on Friday evening, where a pleasant evening was spent, games being played, conducted by Mr. Stanley Currie. The speaker for the evening was Mr. Gilles Rennie, who took as his subject, "Art of Living" and gave a very forcible address. A sumptuous supper was served at the close by the members of the local society. Proceeds of the evening $29.10.

The Kensington Y.W.A. was entertained by Miss Ida Anderson on Saturday afternoon, when about 25 members and visitors were present. The meeting was in charge of the Pres. Miss M. Salter. During the business hour plans were made for the amateur to be held in the Hall on December 2nd. Piecing quilt blocks was the work of the afternoon, after which a delicious tea was served by Mrs. Anderson, Miss Anderson assisted by Miss Gladys Taunton.

The Kensington W.M.S. met at the home of Mrs. J. E. Wilson on Wednesday afternoon with an average attendance. After the devotional period, a committee was appointed to value the bales which were packed and sent to the Supply Store, Montreal. Value of bales, consisting of quilts, new and second hand clothing amounted to $61.35. At the close of the afternoon meeting, lunch was served by Mrs. Wilson.

A meeting was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Mr. D. A. MacFarlane of the Protestant Board of Elgin cemetery, when nearly all were present. Mr. Arthur MacFar-

Modern Cattle Rustling Case in Franklin County

Cattle Carried Off in Trucks Under Cover of Darkness — Lavack Given Sentence of More Than Two Years

A drama on modern cattle rustling was brought to a close on Friday at the county court house at Malone when Clarence Lavack, 27, of Chateaugay, New York, was sentenced from two to five years in Clinton Prison at Dannemora, a jury of ten men and two women finding him guilty of second degree grand larceny.

Conviction of Lavack and pleas of guilty by four alleged accomplices in the splitting off of cattle in trucks under cover of darkness, is believed to have cleared up what District Attorney E. N. Lawrence characterized as a racket.

The court room was crowded for the occasion of the trial, a great deal of interest being shown in the case.

Morris Cassavav, 20, William Roy King, 22, and Howard Palmer, 20, of Chateaugay, and Raymond Joseph Trumble, 19, of Edwards, brother-in-law of Lavack, who were indicted with him, have pleaded guilty and will be sentenced later. King and Palmer testified for the state and Trumble was called as a defense witness in the Lavack trial.

District Attorney Lawrence, in summing up his case, had pictured Lavack as the "boss" of the rustling band, who made a point to be absent on the nights when the four younger men set out with his truck to raid Chateaugay pastures.

Although Lavack was tried on first degree grand larceny in the theft of five registered Holstein cows from the Frank Dwyer farm, the indictments returned by the grand jury covered two other cattle thefts.

District Attorney Lawrence, in summation, had asked the jury to convict the defendant to strike a blow against an incipient North Country racket.

"There is much talk of rackets in these days," he said. "If a guilty man should go unpunished in this case, I feel that a new kind of racket would be encouraged here."

Lavack was defended by Attorney Harold Soden of Lake Placid, and his defense testimony was introduced in an effort to establish alibis on the nights of the cattle raids.

The state's rebuttal testimony came largely from state police of Troop B, which investigation of the thefts led to the arrest of Lavack and the other four.

Huntingdon Locals

There appeared in The Gleaner of last week a picture of the bell tower of the church at St. Anicet and in the Gleaner of November 2nd a picture of the Huntingdon water tower. Under each of these pictures was "Gleaner Photo and Engraving." This was an error since the pictures were taken by Dr. Gordon P. Kelly of Montreal.

W.M.S. Thankoffering Meeting.—The Huntingdon United W.M.S. held their annual Thankoffering meeting in the church parlour, on Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 16. The President, Mrs. (Rev.) Miller, presided. The subject of the meeting was the Honan Mission in China. A very interesting and instructive study, under the leadership of Mrs. T. B. Stark, assisted by other members, was given on sketches of educational, medical and mission work. The Mission Band and the C.G.I.T. were present. The meeting closed with the benediction. Lunch was served.

The treasurer's statement showed a good balance on hand with which to begin the next year's work.

A letter of thanks for vegetables sent Red Cross Society had been received from Mrs. Ruth B. Shaw, was read at this meeting. Mr. Reid suggested this letter be passed among the different schools, so the children could know how their vegetables were appreciated.

Plans were made for enlarging competitions next year to include potatoes and oats, in addition to vegetables and flowers.

Mr. Reid reported having received an offer for a trophy to be competed for by all schools in the District of Beauharnois, that is the prize-winning gardens in the different districts now interested in this work, Hemmingford, Howick, Ormstown

The secretary was asked to attend to having this year's prize winner's name, Kathryn Maitner, placed on trophy cup.

The meeting adjourned, and Mrs. Fenell served refreshments to those present.

Thankoffering Meeting.—The annual thankoffering meeting of the Willing Workers' Mission Band was held in the Presbyterian Church basement on Saturday afternoon. The meeting was conducted by Jimmie Elder, and the opening devotional exercises given by Jean Hutchings and Patricia Rowat, who gave the Bible reading and lesson, and Peter Tully, who led in prayer. While the offering was being taken a hymn, "Because He Loves Us So," was sung by Arlene Grant, Betty Hampson and Helen and Rose Foers.

Rev. W. Scott Duncan gave the address, telling something of the boyhood days and later missionary work of David Livingstone.

The meeting closed with repeating the Mission Band prayer, after which the members served afternoon tea to their guests. The children then had their treat of hot cocoa with sandwiches and cake. The offering amounted to $9.60, with $5.00 from a sale of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Cochran and Mr. Shearer were Sunday afternoon guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Brins.

Miss Ellen Marshall spent the week-end the guest of her aunt, Mrs. T. S. Macfarlane.

"The Store of Good Values"

"The Ticker Tape Murder"

By Milton M. Propper

To Burke's Apartment

Luckily the captain was able to produce from his desk three papers covering the three previous days; he had been saving them to work out the cross-word puzzles. In their respective advertising sections he had no difficulty in discovering what he sought. Each item he located was unsigned; and except as Thomas had observed that the first were in less threatening terms, were written in the same tenor. All of them requested "the gentleman whose behavior on the 7-45 express had attracted attention" to communicate with the writer at once though in the last two the request had become a demand, and in that of the present day there was also added the promise of communicating with the authorities.

If the murderer saw these threatening messages could he afford to disregard their menacing terms? If the detective was right, and Stirling was the man he was after, the broker dared not fail to heed them. He would be putting his own head in the noose if he permitted an actual witness to the crime to report to the authorities a description of the criminal which they would be able to connect with him.

In fact, the same reasoning held true of any one else possibly concerned with the case, whose appearance was already known to the police. Whether the broker or another was the culpable one, they would be bound to recognize him from the conductor's observations. Only if he were some one Gilmore had not yet encountered could he dare to lie low.

It followed, then, that if the criminal saw the advertisement, Burke would today receive a visitor. Driven from cover, he would come either to pay the price demanded for the conductor's silence or to silence in his own desperate way the only witness to his deed. In either case before 3 o'clock that day he would be found at 3812 Mallory St., open to capture. If Gilmore but acted swiftly enough, the conductor could be compelled to assist Rankin and himself to set a trap into it the man they sought would walk, red-handed, his very arrival an admission of his guilt.

It was almost noon, and the alarming idea that his quarry might already have made his visit caused the detective to toss aside the papers.

"Rankin! You get the meaning of this? There might be a meeting on account of this article at Burke's apartment . . . and it's likely to end in tragedy. Have you your car handy?"

The younger man had; it was downstairs in the City Hall courtyard.

"Will you go down and get it going?" Gilmore continued. "We want to be present at the meeting and we're going to have to travel fast if we don't want to be late."

Chapter 20

Death stalks the Trail Rankin, quick to comprehend the possibilities of the situation, had the machine running and drawn up before the archway leading to West Market street when Gilmore joined him. As the latter entered the car an inexplicable premonition of impending evil seized him. It was a foreboding presentiment that he could neither define nor explain, but he was painfully aware of its existence. The conductor's message was a challenge that had since been in the paper to attract the murderer's attention. Gilmore could hardly resist putting his anxiety into words.

"You know the address, Rankin. Never mind the traffic and get there fast. This may be unnecessary, but I'll never forgive myself if we prove to be right—and we didn't act quickly enough."

The other nodded his understanding as the car swung into the swirling traffic of Penn Square. Rankin skillfully engineered the turn between the crossing pedestrians and the swift-moving line of machines. The light at Broad street, at the base of City Hall, was a bright red, but disregarding it and the traffic officer's signal, he turned at the intersection. A whistle appeared in the officer's hand, but Gilmore leaned out and, in evident recognition, the whistle disappeared.

3812 Mallory Street At Walnut street, with the signal still against them, they swerved to the right in the direction of West Philadelphia. A stout, elderly lady whose arms were filled with packages, started to cross in front of them. At the sound of Rankin's horn she came to a complete halt exactly in the middle of the street. By a swift turn of the wheel the detective barely avoided her, but her packages flew into a heap and she shrieked uncomplimentary things after them.

A jam of trolleys and machines blocked them momentarily at the corner of 16th and Walnut streets, and even the delay of a moment served to increase Gilmore's apprehensions. Once they were upon their way again he remarked to Rankin:

"You had better go down 16th to Pine, as we have to go out that way, anyhow. There's less traffic and we'll make better time."

To turn left on 16th street was bucking traffic, but Rankin obeyed, they encountered no officers, but were the object of much amazement on the part of northbound traffic. Pine street, at which a right turn was made, was narrower than Walnut, but the lesser number of cars and the absence of trolley tracks enabled Rankin to increase even the astonishing speed he was making through city streets. Amid the sounds of a raucous horn, the intersecting streets flew by at a rate that would have brought his passenger's heart to his mouth.

At 3rd street Rankin turned south again, to South street, and thence over the South Street bridge and the Schuylkill. In West Philadelphia he merely skirted the southernmost portion of the University of Pennsylvania campus; and after another few moments of travel, at every bit of speed of which the car was capable, they had arrived at their destination.

No. 3812 Mallory street was a small apartment house, in a narrow dingy avenue of imperfectly set cobblestones, the entire length of which was devoid of either shrubbery or yards of any size. The building was four stories high, of dull brown brick, just such a dwelling as might be expected of a man in the trainman's circumstances. Before an entrance, lacking ornamentation of any sort, a baby carriage stood and several children played. Before the machine had been drawn up at the curb, Gilmore was out of it and into the doorway. A plain hallway, with a series of steep stairs, greeted him. Passing only to verify Burke's address—Apartment C2—at the letter boxes in the vestibule, he took the steps three at a time. Rankin was close behind him; the combined clatter of their feet brought to the door a housewife in apron from a second-floor apartment. She stared in astonishment at the sight of two men dashing past her, the next men flight, and then followed them.

At the locked door of William Burke's room, Gilmore knocked thunderously, but there was no reply. He repeated the knock, this time reinforcing it with a deep command that it be opened. "The Fire Escape Flimsy fire-escapes clung precariously to the walls in successive tiers, a row of them on each wing, the bottom tier was manipulated by weights, and generally above the ground. But the ground steps on the side occupied by Burke's apartment had been lowered to the earth. Clothes hung from lines across the ground in front of the court, and the view permitted from the windows of the rooms opposite impressed upon Gilmore the possibility of witnesses having seen the murderer's flight on this side. (To be continued.)

"Is it Mr. Burke you're wanting?" the woman volunteered. "He ought to be in now. Generally, he don't get up till a little before this hour, and I didn't see 'im go out, so it's funny he doesn't answer."

In the silence that followed her statement, Gilmore heard a sound within. It was faint, barely audible, housewife in apron from a second-floor apartment. She stared in astonishment at the sight of two men dashing past her, the next men flight, and then followed them.

"Rankin—did you hear that?" Anxiously the detective turned to his companion. "That squeak was a window opening . . . Is there any other way of getting in the apartment besides the front door, madam?"

The woman had difficulty in finding her tongue. "You can get in the back," she said finally, "where the children play, by way of the fire escapes, but who in the world is going to use that, when . . . He's getting out that way," Gilmore exclaimed, cutting her short. "You're quicker than I am, Rankin; see if you can beat him to it. I hardly think you will, but run like mad . . ."

But the younger detective had started as soon as the woman had begun to reply to the question; and when Gilmore had finished his instructions, he was at the bottom of the stairs so that the last words were shouted at him. The detective's most calamitous presentiment of evil appeared to have been justified, and basically correct. Wisely, in the agonizing moment of waiting that followed, Gilmore refrained from dwelling upon the significance of that locked door and the sound of that opening window. Presently, from within, there came again a scraping, followed by distinct footsteps. Then the lock clicked and Rankin stood in the doorway. And from the look on his face, Gilmore knew that they were just too late to prevent a tragedy.

"There was no one in sight," Rankin said brusquely, "either in the back yard or on the fire escapes, when I got around. But the window was open and there's no doubt that he got away through that."

The two detectives, with the door of the apartment closed behind them, surveyed the scene before them. The room in which they stood was obviously the living room and bedroom combined. Simply furnished, a small couch pushed back against a huge closet door, an oblong table with several chairs drawn up toward it, one of which was upset, an armchair and a rug completed the equipment. All of it was light, easily movable, so that at night, it could make way for the Murphy bed which the closet contained. Two doors opened into the remaining chambers of the suite; and on the wall were suggestive prints, in lurid colors.

The adjoining rooms were a bathroom with the usual toilet accoutrements—and a tiny kitchen. The latter contained a miniature stove, a cupboard for storing groceries, an icebox and a table, all of it evidently that Burke prepared his own meals. A telephone rested on the floor—the telephone, thought Gilmore, which its owner had probably used to make the appointment which was to end so fatally for himself.

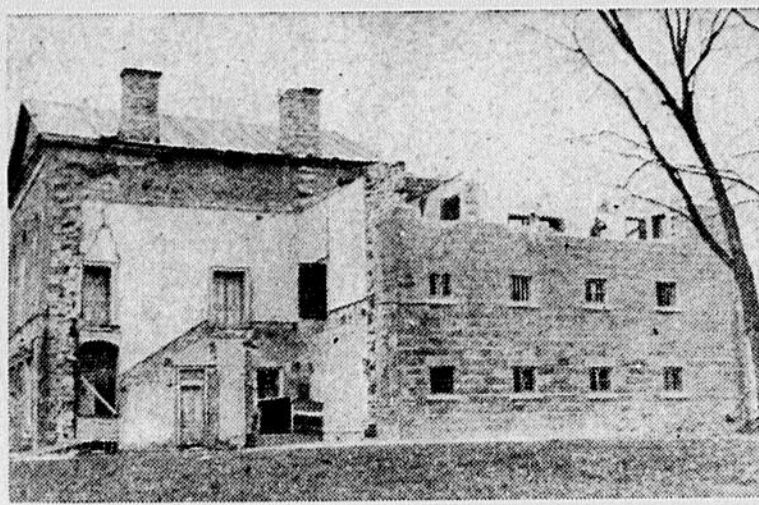

From the window could be seen the route taken by the escaping criminal. The rear of the apartment building was constructed in the form of a letter H, in which the narrow courtyard that divided the two wings extended back to a wooden fence skirting a street in the rear.

Flimsy fire-escapes clung precariously to the walls in successive tiers, a row of them on each wing, the bottom tier was manipulated by weights, and generally above the ground. But the ground steps on the side occupied by Burke's apartment had been lowered to the earth. Clothes hung from lines across the ground in front of the court, and the view permitted from the windows of the rooms opposite impressed upon Gilmore the possibility of witnesses having seen the murderer's flight on this side. (To be continued.)

FISHING IN LAKE WAS NOT QUITE AS GOOD THIS YEAR

The fishermen on Lake St. Francis are finding that the fishing is falling off now, as would be expected. However, the odd large one is still caught since one which weighed a hundred pounds was caught a week ago while about a month ago one which weighed 138 pounds was caught. It is reported that while the fishing was fairly good during the past season it was not quite so good as last year since there has been quite a bit of high wind this year.

The "Old" District Jail at Beauharnois

—Gleaner Photo and Engraving.

A few weeks ago, Delpha Sauvé, M.L.A., for Beauharnois, obtained a grant from the provincial government for the construction of a Park in the heart of the City of Beauharnois. Work has been underway for sometime and is advancing rapidly. The above photo shows one of the oldest buildings in the County of Beauharnois which is being demolished. The stone from this building is used at the Park in that City. This building was at one time the District jail and it was there that Shortiss was incarcerated after his arrest in Valleyfield for murder at the Montreal Cottons. It is believed that the "old" prison was built in 1823 and although it has been unoccupied for several years, it still stood firmly and the workers had a trying job demolishing it.

LOAN $24,998,889 TO FARMERS

Quebec—Work on Quebec rural credits steadily goes on. It is shown in a report which the board issued. The matter of titles has been one of the most vexatious which the board has had to meet, farms having been handed down from father to son during generations without adequate proof of ownership. During October of this year payments to borrowers amounted to $1,288,540.

Up to the present time 10,693 loans have been granted involving a total of $24,998,889. The total which the Legislature has voted for the purpose is $27,000,000, and the prospects are that at the ensuing session of the Legislature it will be necessary to vote an additional credit to the Government for this purpose.

The statistics show that of the 10,693 loans agreed upon by the board, there have been payments in 7,561 cases, secured on farm lands to the extent of 362,767 acres. The borrowers had asked for $19,622,236, based upon a valuation of $25,803,722 for lands and $17,896,946 for buildings, a total of $43,700,669.

Ormstown Locals

About twenty-five members of the Ormstown Presbyterian Young People's Society and their pastor, Rev. Mr. White, met in the church hall on Wednesday evening, November 16th, for a social evening in honour of their president, Miss Viola Gruer, on the occasion of her approaching marriage, and to Mrs. S. Gow, who coached the young people with interest and capability, in their recent play.

A sing-song and games were enjoyed throughout the evening. After all were seated and refreshments ready to be served, Miss Gruer presented Mrs. Gow with a silver mayonnaise dish. Then Miss Ruth Sills read an address and Mr. Mervyn Barrington presented Miss Gruer with a pyrex and silver casserole. Both were completely taken by surprise, as each came to the party in the another's honour. They thanked the donors very graciously for their gifts, afterwards all joined in singing "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows."

The address to Miss Gruer was as follows:

We, as a Young People's Society on the occasion of your approaching marriage, take this opportunity to show our gratitude and appreciation to you for your faithfulness, untiring efforts and capable leadership in the past.

We have spent many pleasant hours together and are only too sorry to have you disappear from our midst. Allow us to present to you this little token, as a symbol of the esteem that we hold for you, hoping that in your new home you may be blest with happiness, health and good luck.

Refreshments were served, after which the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

A large congregation assembled on Sunday morning, November 20th, at the Ormstown Presbyterian Church, to welcome and unite in the fellowship of worship with their new pastor, Rev. Edwin J. White, B.A., of Tyne Valley, Prince Edward Island.

The sermon was a very impressive one, taken from the text found in Matt. 16:18: "Thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build My Church." Pointing out that the Christian Church, being founded upon that truth is the greatest of all institutions.

The choir rendered an anthem of love and gratitude entitled "O Love That Will Not Let Me Go." At the evening service, the Rev. Jas. Adams addressed the congregations on the work of the Bible Society which is celebrating the 400 years of the Bible in English. The statement was made in this regard, that if every-thing else in our language should perish, the Bible would suffice to show the whole extent of its beauty and power.

Obituary

The Late Edward E. Bartlett

The death of Edward E. Bartlett occurred at his home, 399 McLean St., Ottawa, Ont., on Monday, Nov. 7th, 1938, although Mr. Bartlett was not in good health for the past few years his death came as a shock to his family and friends.

Mr. Bartlett was well-known in Ormstown, having served there as station agent for the Grand Trunk Railway from 1894 to 1905, then going to Ottawa where he remained until his death.

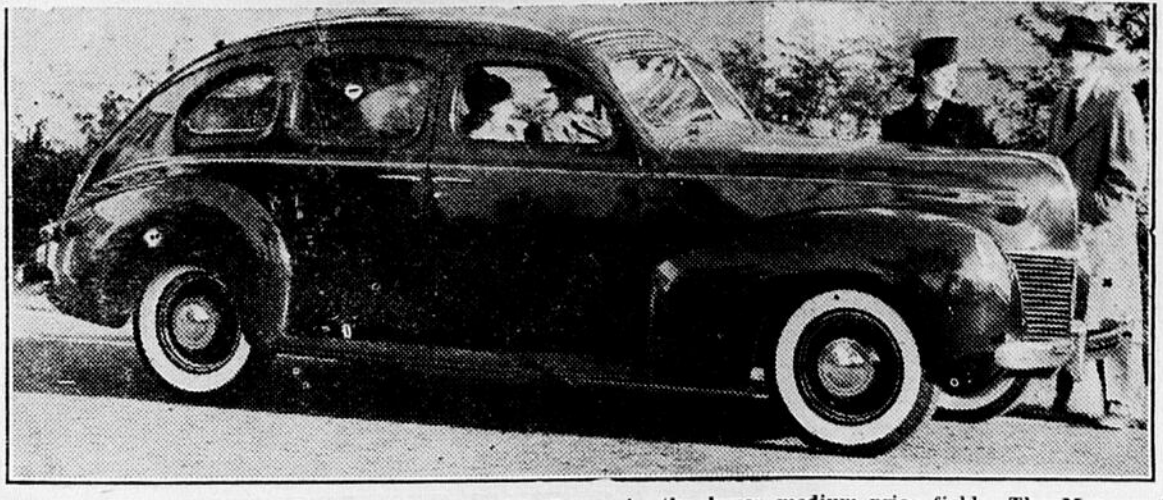

On September 28th, 1881, he was married to Annie McGovern. At that time he was station agent at West Bethel, Maine and it was there that they lived the first part of their married life. In 1905, when going to Ottawa, Mr. Bartlett entered the Civil Service from which he was superannuated in 1928.

When 16 years of age Mr. Bartlett left his native town of Richmond, Que., to join the railroad. He became a fireman on an engine running out of Montreal, but shortly afterwards he was seriously injured and his leg was amputated.

He was forced to spend months in the hospital, during which time he celebrated his 17th birthday. When he recuperated he became telegraph operator for the Grand Trunk Railway and then successively station agent and train dispatcher.

A very staunch Liberal in politics, Mr. Bartlett was an intimate friend of the late Sir Wilfred Laurier and later claimed among his personal friends the Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King. He was a member of St. Joseph church in Ottawa and a member of the Council of the Knights of Columbus.

He is survived by his wife, five daughters, Winifred, Oakland, Calif., Fabiola, of the C.N.R., Montreal, Eileen, Mrs. Wm. Connolly, Vancouver, Myrtle, Mrs. Laurie Coffin, Hildagarde, Mrs. Wilfred O'Connor, both of Ottawa and one son, Rev. Father Earl G. Bartlett, S.J., formerly rector of Loyola College, Montreal, and now of Midlands, Ont.

Prize Canadian Cattle to be Exhibited in Ultra-modern Half Million Dollar Building

Magnificent Show Building For Live Stock at New York World's Fair Next Year—Look at Prize Stock Through Glass Windows

Forty of Canada's resident representatives at the New York World's Fair next year will have accommodation comparing with the smartest and swankiest ever produced for the housing of exhibition guests. It will cost some half million dollars to erect and equip, and of itself will be one of the most striking exhibits at the fair.

That its guests will be visible to the 50,000,000 visitors to the Fair through glass will make little difference to them. They will be prize dairy cattle from this Dominion, selected by officials of the Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein-Friesian and Ayrshire Associations. They will be a part of a total herd of 150 prize cattle, all drafted from model prize herds and constituting one of the most important cattle exhibitions the world has seen.

The idea is that of Henry W. Jeffers of the Borden Company, president of the Walker-Gordon Farms, Plainsboro, N.J. Agreement was reached at a dinner in Toronto during the Royal Winter Fair, attended by 75 prominent breeders and officials of Canada and the United States.

Prominent in the deliberations which will make this North American dairy exhibit unique, were the following Canadians: S. J. Chagnon, Dept. Agriculture, Que.; Frank Napier, Ottawa; J. E. Ness, Howick, Que.; L. V. Parent, Lennoxville, Que.; W. C. Wylie, Montreal; W. L. Carr, Huntingdon, Que.; John K. Dickson, Ormstown, Que.; and Gilbert McMillan, Huntingdon, Que.

The plan, as explained to the gathering by Glen Campbell, Cleveland, chairman of the rules committee in connection with the forthcoming exhibit, is to have the 150 dairy cows exhibited on the famous rotolactor. There will be demonstrated all phases of feeding, cleaning and milking of the animals; processing and manufacturing the milk, packaging and packing of the products and their final distribution to the public, the latter to be effected among the visitors to the World's Fair.

It was the recognition which Canada's Royal Winter Fair has won as a major meeting place of prize dairy cattle breeders and their animals that led Mr. Jeffers to conceive a Canadian-United States exhibit for this occasion. The 75 guests which he assembled to settle final details represented some 50,000 breeders on this continent, and although members of the various breeders' groups usually are in keen rivalry, they found that on this occasion they could cooperate with enthusiasm.

The exhibition will open May 1st next and continue for six months.

Obituary

The late George Leggett, Sr.

On Saturday, November 19th, at his home at Herdman there occurred the death of George Leggett, Sr., an old and esteemed resident of Hinchinbrook Township.

Mr. Leggett, who was in his eighty-third year, had not been very well for some little time past, and about noon he passed away very quietly and peacefully.

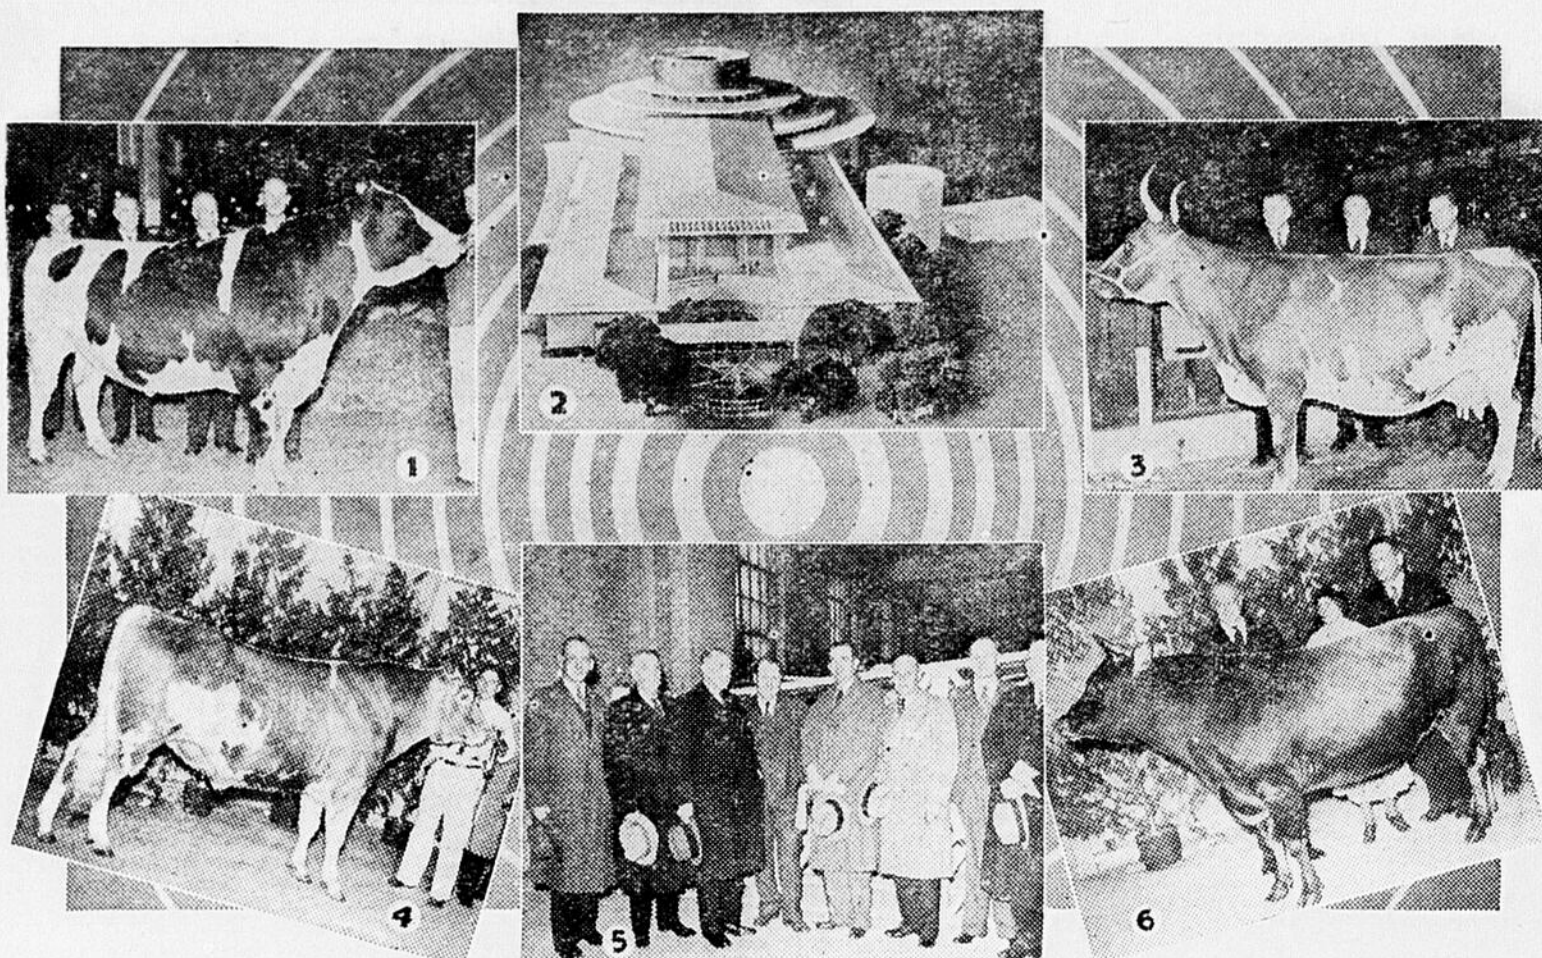

Born at Hinchinbrook on May 1st, 1856, youngest son of the late George Leggett, and of his wife, the late Martha Cooper, he lived there all his life. He was married on January 3rd, 1878, to Isabel Burns of Chateaugay, New York State, who predeceased him fourteen years.

Mr. Leggett had served many terms as councillor on the Hinchinbrook Town Council and was a loyal member of the Official Board of his church.

The funeral service was held at his home on Monday afternoon, the twenty-first, at two o'clock, his minister, Rev. T. F. Duncan, officiating, assisted by Rev. W. S. Hatcher. A large number of friends and neighbours attended, bespeaking the general high esteem in which Mr. Leggett was held and also the deep sympathy felt for the bereaved. Interment was in St. Paul's Cemetery, Herdman.

He leaves to mourn him one son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Verden D. Leggett; one grandson, George; and several nieces and nephews.

CANADIAN CATTLE TO LIVE AT NEW YORK WORLD'S FAIR

Four dairy breed associations of Canada (Jersey, Ayrshire, Holstein-Friesian and Guernsey) are participating in the most important dairy cattle exhibition ever held on this continent. It will be separately housed in a special $500,000 building at the New York World's Fair during the six months commencing May 1st, 1939. Although under the auspices of the Borden Co., which is providing the building, the exhibition will be controlled by the breed associations, each of them having one vote along with the single vote of the Borden Co. The Brown Swiss Association of the United States is also co-operating.

Forty prize-winning Canadian cows will be selected by the various associations to represent Canada. During the World's Fair they will be stabled under model conditions, together with 110 animals from United States farms.

All dairying processes, including feeding, cleaning, milking and conditioning and processing the milk, will be demonstrated through glass partitions to the public, and the produce from the 150-herd will be distributed among the 50,000,000 visitors expected at the exhibition. A novel feature will be the milking operation on the famous Rotolactor, each breed group being shown separately on this rotating device.

Arrangements for inclusion of the Canadian contingent in this important exhibit, centrally located at the Fair Grounds, were completed in Toronto during the Royal Winter Fair by Henry W. Jeffers of the Borden Co., president of the Walker-Gordon Farms, Plainsboro, N.J., and Glenn Campbell, Cleveland, chairman of the general rules committee, the governing body through which the breed associations will exercise control of the exhibit. The plan is that each breed association will select representative cattle for the exhibition and determine for itself how each breed is to be shown. In addition to the cows, champion bulls and prize calves of each kind will also be exhibited.

What's in the Wind

by PAULA DICKS

Our U.S. Customers and Us.

Mr. C. T. Conklin, secretary of the American Breeders' Association, is the author of an article in the December Country Gentleman on "One-Crop Farming in the North-east."

Mr. Conklin, by the way, was the guest speaker with illustrated lecture, at the Ayrshire banquet in Huntingdon about a year ago.

The Country Gentleman article deals with modern trends in dairy farming in the Northeastern Atlantic States and has special interest for breeders of cattle in this district, as a high percentage of our surplus stock now finds a market in bordering states. But if the present programme of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and interest on same, $144,665 paid off arrears of municipal taxes; $139,638 arrears of School taxes and $68,650 arrears of church dues; $8,080 Seigniorial rents; other liabilities $3,977.173.

Milk, he states, makes a greater cash return to New England farmers than the combined value of all other crops. Thousands of farmers have drifted into this business, and now face many of the problems and suffer many of the same ills as one-crop farmers of the South. At the door to the world's greatest market for fluid milk the dairy industry has expanded at the cost of other types of husbandry.

Since 1870 the sheep population of these hills has declined from six million to less than a million.

Since the turn of the century there has been a decrease in cattle population of over a million head, limited mostly to young stock and beef cattle. On hundreds of farms practically no calves are raised.

One of the most serious results is found on one-crop milk farms where cows are not raised to take the place of those worn out. Thousands of cows have to be purchased in other parts of the country as well as Canada—most of them well below the average of those which could be raised at home under good management.

Pasture Improvement
Is one of the answers to the difficulties of Northeastern dairymen, together with a general movement to ensile grasses and legumes to replace concentrates now purchased at the expense of the milk cheque.

This, along with a revival of diversified farming to include sheep and beef cattle on such improved pastures, is included in a programme designed to raise at home replacements to the dairy herds.

Even without an adequate supply of either whole or skimmed milk for starting calves, they can be raised efficiently and economically with calf meals and other foods," states Mr. Conklin. He mentions several farmers who have already adopted this plan, such as:

Donald Leach, of Wallingford, Vt., who started to fertilize his pastures in 1929 and now pastures a herd of 27 heavy milking cows on 27 acres.

Lack of capital and credit is a handicap to many small farmers and the writer foresees an expansion of holdings by the more efficient,

In Old Quebec Province

Although we cannot be classed with one-crop farmers to the same extent as those Away Down East, things are apparently no better. Within the last couple of years the Government has extended in Farm Loans $18,272,814. Of this amount $13,934,667 was used to pay off mortgages and interest on same; $144,665 paid off arrears of municipal taxes; $139,638 arrears of School taxes and $68,650 arrears of church dues; $8,080 Seigniorial rents; other liabilities $3,977.173.

I suppose that eighteen million odd paid back to mortgage holders is scattered all about the country, seeking re-investment. Unless, of course, the Government have foresight enough to offer long-term Quebec bonds in payment. It isn't hard to imagine a troop of mining-stock salesmen gleefully touring the country with a list of recent mortgage discharges and some pretty phony share certificates in a case.

More than 100 farmers in Huntingdon County have applied for and received loans under Quebec's Farm Loan Credit Bureau since May, 1937.

During the fall of the year the greatest number of loans are made. The above is the number of applications for loans that have been accepted so that it means many more than that were probably applied for.

Up to the present time throughout the entire province 10,693 loans have been made to farmers, making a total of $24,998,889.

Approval Expressed Of Treaty

Canada-United States Trade Agreement Looked Upon as Desirable

Considerable interest has been displayed in terms of the new Canada-United States Trade Agreement.

A number of the items affect this district directly but, generally speaking, no great difference will be noted. In the case of farm implements, for example, there is considerable from the United States comes in here and it is possible there might be a slight decrease in prices as a result of the "Trade Treaty."

A Huntingdon man when asked what he thought of the new Canada-United States Trade Agreement, said: "I do not think it will make much difference."

Five other opinions expressed on the same question were as follows:

I: "I have always been in favor of trade between the three English-speaking nations, because I feel that they can do a great deal together. The market in Great Britain is tremendous, and there ought to be room for American goods as well as Canadian. I think there have been equal concessions made on both sides. After all, if it's to be on a reciprocal basis, it naturally will have to be fairly well balanced, otherwise the treaty will be dumped overboard by one country or the other at the first opportunity."

II: "I'm 100 per cent in agreement with it, because I have a great respect for the men who drew it up and in their ability to make the treaty."

III: "I think it's a very good plan because I happen to live on the border myself. It will open up more business for both countries, and bring across more tourists to do some shopping."

IV: "Very good. They should have got together a long time ago on it. I think the United States and Canada make a fine team. It's opening up a new market for Canadian goods, so that I don't think we will lose anything by Britain's opening up her market to the United States."

V: "I think it's a great thing for that country—the greatest thing that's ever happened to them. Instead of going a thousand miles looking for trade, we have it right in our midst."

PACT HELPFUL TO FARMERS OF QUEBEC

Particular benefit to Quebec farmers and dairymen as a result of the new Canada-United States trade treaty was predicted by Quebec's Trade and Commerce Department.

Deputy Minister Louis Coderre said reductions in the United States duties on maple sugar products as a boon to the industry which occupies a great number of Quebec farmers during the slack months in late winter.

He expected cuts in duty on Canadian milk and cream crossing the border would help dairymen, especially those in the Eastern Townships who previously carried on a big export business.

Other benefits to Quebec farmers were expected to come from decreased duties on frozen blueberries, Christmas trees, potatoes, and possibly cheese.

The Deputy Minister said concessions accorded by the United States on potatoes would not be to the immediate advantage of Quebec farmers because of needed grading regulations.

Quebec potatoes, he said, were as "good as any produced in Canada," but their marketing was hampered by lack of proper grading, a situation under study at present.

Christmas trees for shipment to the United States already are being cut in Quebec province, a large number of them by farmers. Last year 782,748 were shipped from Quebec province under close Government supervision.

ELGIN COUPLE HONORED ON ANNIVERSARY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Merson in Elgin was the scene of a happy gathering on the evening of Friday, Nov. 11th, the date of their twenty-fifth anniversary, being but a few weeks later. Their neighbours and friends took advantage of the pleasant weather, and when Mr. and Mrs. Merson were away for a drive with friends, neighbours gathered at their home. When they returned they were met by about ninety friends who, with them enjoyed a bountiful and delicious repast. In the centre of the table was a beautiful wedding cake, the gift of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Merson, and son Harold, and made by Mrs. Mary Anderson. When the meal was served Mr. and Mrs. Merson were called into the living-room where Dr. Maclean offered congratulations, referred to their standing in their church and community life and voiced the wish of all present that they see the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage.

Mr. Malcolm Robb expressed his good wishes and Mr. John Reaney, in behalf of those assembled, presented them with a beautiful well-filled purse. Mr. and Mrs. Merson thanked them for their generous gift and thoughtfulness for the lovely evening.

USES BOTH HANDS TO WRITE

Letter From a Man of 90
He asks us to excuse his writing. We do more than that — we congratulate him on being able to write at all at his age, especially as he has been suffering from rheumatism. This is what he says in his letter:

"Three years ago I was in bed for six weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. Since that time I have been taking Kruschen Salts, and have not had another attack. But the complaint left me with inflamed feet and it hurt me to walk. My hands were also somewhat stiff. I took Kruschen every morning before breakfast, and still continue to do so, because I am sure they have kept me in good shape for three years. Excuse this writing, as I am ninety years old and use both hands to write."—J.R.G.

The pain and stiffness of rheumatism are often caused by uric acid in the muscles and joints. Kruschen helps to dissolve and remove excess uric acid in a gentle way through the natural channels. Renewed health and vigour is the result.

U.S. Campaign of 1812 to Capture Montreal

(From the Historical Booklet by the late Robert Sellar, to be Run in Weekly Instalments)

(Copyright, Canada, 1913) ROBERT SELLAR

On the 18th June, 1812, the United States declared war against Great Britain, and on the 12th July followed up its declaration by invading Canada from Detroit. The invasion had a disgraceful ending. From Niagara a second invasion was attempted on the 13th October, which was also repulsed. The results of the operations of 1812 made it plain to the authorities at Washington that efforts to conquer Canada by invasions west of lake Ontario must be futile, for the reason that overrunning the western territory left intact the source from which supplies and reinforcements came to renew resistance. It was Britain that furnished the means to continue the war, and the channel through which she sent them was the St. Lawrence. Block that channel and the current of supply would end. There were two points at which this could be done—Montreal and Kingston, and President Madison's cabinet were divided as to which should be attacked. The preference was for Kingston, as being nearer the United States and giving an opportunity for the co-operation of the naval force that had been organized on lake Ontario. With a United States army in Kingston no supplies could filter past it to the British forces in the west. This was admitted, but it was also obvious that all of Canada east of Kingston would be untouched, and that while Montreal was in British possession an army could be brought in by sea.

might be, would be powerless to effect its capture unless accompanied by a fleet of boats. This Armstrong fully realized, and while he issued orders to bring together an army such as the Republic had never before attempted, he also made preparations for the building of boats. Where they should be built was maturely considered, when it was decided Sackett's Harbor, at the eastern extremity of Lake Ontario, was the only place that combined security from attack with a commodious bay. While the snow was on the ground the felling of trees was started and the sawing of their trunks into planks. Attracted by high wages, carpenters crowded to the little village and a beginning was made on the boats. These were flat-bottomed scows of such simple construction that they were quickly put together. Over 300 were to be built. Depending upon the current of the St. Lawrence to sweep them to the island of Montreal, the cars placed in them were more for steering than rowing; crews to man them were drawn from the sailors of New England ports and New York. French Canadian voyageurs, who volunteered freely, were secured as pilots. What was going on was not unobserved by the British, and an attack on Sackett's Harbor was planned. On the 28th May

The War of 1812

Above is shown the Memorial at Albany's Corners to mark the battle of Chateaugay. Ceremonies were held there recently to mark the 125th anniversary of battle.

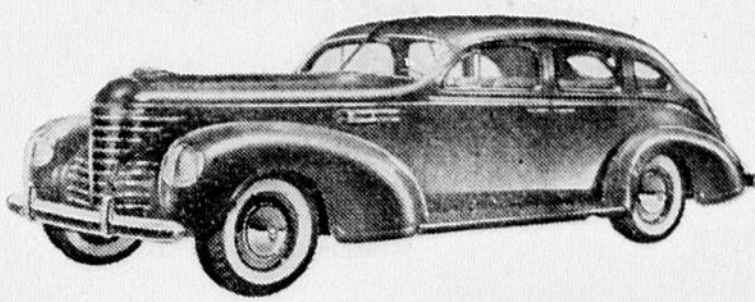

1812, its garrison sighted a fleet which had crossed from Kingston. Landing a considerable body of troops the assault was delivered next day from both land and water, and was being crowned with success when the Governor, Sir George Prevost, who accompanied the expedition, got into one of his fussy panics and, to the disgust of his officers, ordered the recall of the attacking forces. But for Prevost, the campaign of the Grand Army of the North would have ended that day.

It was obviously unnecessary to concentrate all the soldiers destined for taking Montreal at Sackett's Harbor. It would save the building of many boats were the army divided, the larger part to go in the boats which, after landing, were near or on the island of Montreal, would cross the St. Lawrence and ferry over the other portion of the army, which would be waiting their arrival on the southern bank. This plan not only saved the building of many boats, but had the further advantage that, in menacing Canada by two separate columns, the attention of the British commanders would be distracted. So it was decided the invading army should go in two columns, to meet at an agreed point convenient to Montreal.

WHO BURIED BOTTLE?
Workmen engaged in excavations for a new building in South Melbourne came across a bottle of Dublin stout, believed to be 80 years old. How it got there is a mystery. The River Yarra once flowed over the area, and whether the bottle was dropped overboard in the old days, or was buried by mistake with a load of empties, can only be conjectured.

Ald. Langevin Welcomed at Val'd Council

Newly Elected Alderman Refuses to Express Opinion on Question Which He is Not Familiar

Ald. Eustache Langevin, who was attending his first meeting of the Valleyfield Council as alderman for that City, left his seat at Wednesday's meeting when he refused to vote in favor of an account which he was not familiar. This incident occurred when a vote was asked on the $5,863.79 account presented by the provincial government for crushed stones at Parc Sauvé.

Ald. Brisebois moved that this account be settled for the sum of $1, but Ald. Hebert objected to this proposition, stating that such was not the proper thing to do in such a case. Ald. Hebert then asked that a vote be taken on the question and it was then that Ald. Langevin left his seat.

Ald. Hebert, Vian, Bourdeau, Meloché voted in favor of the amendment and Ald. Mallette, Brisebois, Desjard and Daignault against. Mayor Larin voted against the amendment and in favor of Ald. Brisebois' motion, stating that the local member of parliament, Mr. Delpha Sauvé, M.L.A., had obtained much money from the government for the Valleyfield for work in this City.

Ald. Hebert voiced his surprise that the pamphlet recently issued by the "Syndicat d'Initiatives Touristiques" did not include the names of the aldermen of Valleyfield. To this effect he asked that the grant sought by this public body be tabled.

At the opening of the meeting, Mayor Larin welcomed Ald. Langevin, who was elected in Salisbury Ward. The city clerk read several reports, complaints and petitions.

The engineer was asked to make an investigation where Mr. Lionel Perron's car was damaged on East Park street.

Paul Lauzon's petition asking for a position as policeman, fireman and chauffeur was filed. The "Garde Champêtre" invited the members of the Council to attend their initiation ceremonies which were held on Sunday. The municipality of St. Louis de Gonzague asked that the roads be kept open from Larocque road to the St. Louis road. Ald. Mallette explained that this question is awaiting further consideration by the Council.

Recorded Lezault was asked to send a notice to the proprietors of the Maple Leaf Brewery to pay their arrears in taxes, otherwise the building will be sold eight days after the notice has been issued.

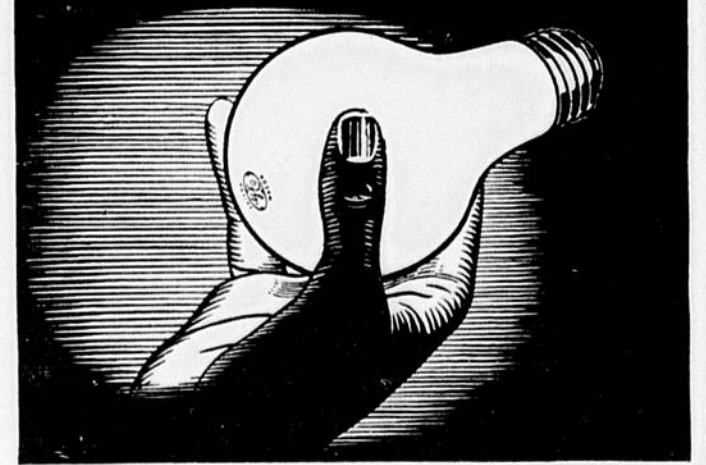

All tenders received at the engineer's office will be transmitted to the Council and Ald. Langevin asked that local merchants send in tenders for the purchase of pipes.

Construction permit for the installation of a galvanized roof was refused by the Dion Company.

Ald. Vian and Langevin will replace Messrs. Leger and Goyette on the different committees the latter represented when they were members of the Council.

The regular monthly meeting of the Georgetown W.M.S. was held Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 15th at 2 o'clock Mrs. Jas. Stewart presided and led in the devotional period, reading the 23rd Psalm. Mrs. J. Holmes led in prayer from the Glad Tidings. Members responded to the roll call with the text word, "Charity." A duet, "Blessed Assurance" was sung by Mrs. P. McCartney and Miss K. Ness. Convenors were appointed in the various districts to take charge of the winter's supply work. Miss J. Elliott read an interesting report on the Janet India Mission by Dr. Thurrott. Miss M. Slater, led in prayer for our missionaries, while Miss M. McFarlane closed the meeting.

Mrs. John Elliot is visiting at Isle Bizard at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Ness.

The November meeting of the Silko C.G.I.T. was held at the home of Miss Ina Bennie on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 19th. The girls decided to make clothes and repair toys for a Christmas box. The devotion was given by Joyce Melkie and the current events by Ruth Younce. A very interesting biography was given by Betty Templeton on Addison. A demonstration on the making of flowers was given by Ina Bennie which proved very interesting. The meeting was closed officially with "Taps." Songs were enjoyed for some time, after which a delicious supper was served by Mrs. Bennie and the girls.

Mrs. Jas. Stewart attended the executive meeting of the W.M.S. held in Knox Crescent Church, Montreal, on Thursday afternoon.

The men's supper recently held by the members of the Georgetown Church was a very successful event. Rev. J. Simpson of Valleyfield, who addressed the gathering gave a very interesting talk which was enjoyed by all.

Ever Wonder Why You're Constipated?

Do you ever have days when you just have to drag yourself along, when you feel tired, sunk—because of that constipation? Then why not find out the real cause of your trouble?

What have you had to eat lately? Just things like meat, bread and potatoes? If that's it, you may not have to look any farther. It's likely your trouble is you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean a lot of food. It means a kind of food that is consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and aids elimination.

If "bulk" is what you lack, your ticket is a dish of crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day. It contains the "bulk" you need plus Nature's great intestinal tonic, vitamin B.

Eat it every day, drink plenty of water, and join the "regulars!" Made by Kellogg in London, Ont.

How do Quebec textile wages compare with those in other provinces?

The Turgeon Textile Commission's Report, Exhibit 301, shows that of 12 selected cotton mill jobs for males and females in 1936, Quebec rates were higher than Ontario in certain instances, namely: male Speeder Tenders in Quebec received 28.8c. per hour; in Ontario they received 28.7c. per hour. Female Weavers in Quebec received 30.6c. per hour; in Ontario 29.3c. per hour.

The differences in comparable job rates in major occupations in favor of Ontario were also small. For example, female Spinners in Quebec received 25.6c. per hour; in Ontario 26.7c. per hour. Male Loom Fixers in Quebec got 41.7c. per hour; in Ontario 44.9c. per hour. Male Weavers in Quebec got 30.5c. per hour; in Ontario 32.4c. per hour.

Dominion Textile, according to the Turgeon Report, was paying wages which, on the average, were higher, in the case of males, than the wages in two of the Ontario mills, and, in the case of females, were higher than in four of the Ontario mills.

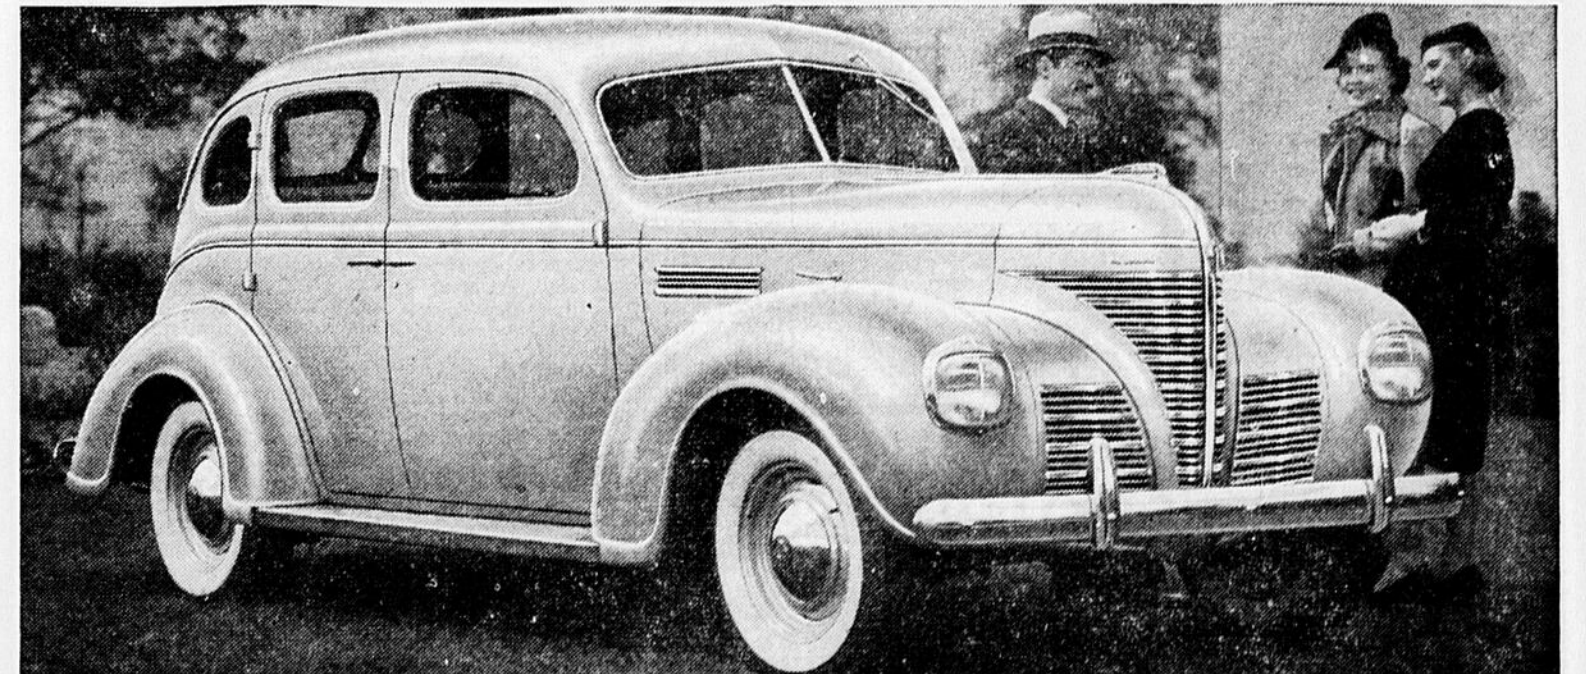

The figures shown above were taken from payrolls of February, 1936. Since that time the wage levels of Dominion Textile mills have been increased by 10.77 per cent for the regular 50 hours of the working week, and by 16.31 per cent for overtime.

Dominion Textile and affiliates in Quebec provide Employment for 9,700 People to whom they annually pay Over $8,000,000 in Wages They own and operate plants in the following municipalities: Drummondville, Magog, Montreal, Quebec, Sherbrooke and Valleyfield.

Hold Man at Malone.

(Continued from page 1) MacDonald, whose home is in Bucklin, Kansas, was a cousin of the slain man, and had lived on Cameron Island with the three Cameron brothers for over two years seeking to improve his health.

Patrol Inspector Henry A. Dube of Malone, passed MacDonald on his way to the Fort Covington station that morning and stopped him for questioning. His papers were all in order and he was released. Later when the happenings at Cameron Island was broadcast, Dube recalled having met MacDonald and a search resulted in his arrest by Dube, and Inspectors Earl O. Carleton and Francis H. Thompson, also of the Immigration service.

Inspector Joseph B. Lynch, head of the B.C.I. at Troop B, and Sgt. Ernest Havel questioned the suspect at Fort Covington. He is reported as having a wife and two children in Bucklin.

Parent-Teachers' Association—The monthly meeting of the Parent-Teachers' Association was held at the Junior Richardson School Hall on November 17th. K. D. Wood, President, presided. The guest speaker of the evening, Mr. L. Buzzell of Barclay's School, Montreal, gave a very interesting and practical address on "The Worth Whiles of Education," at the close of which a discussion followed and several questions were asked to which the speaker answered to the satisfaction of all concerned. Mr. Buzzell was introduced by Rev. A. M. Rose and thanked by Mr. H. M. Davidson. Mrs. A. M. Rose added to the evening's entertainment by playing an instrumental solo. The meeting closed with all joining in singing the National Anthem. A social hour followed when refreshments were served. The hostesses being Mrs. I. E. Jones, Mrs. I. Gilbert and Mrs. E. N. Suckling. Laymen service.

In St. Andrew's Church on Sunday morning the laymen had charge of the service which included Messrs. H. Kennedy, G. MacMillan, H. C. Jupp, K. N. Wood, H. R. Oliver, G. W. Hornell, I. E. Jones and T. Yarnell.

Mr. J. M. Graham, an elder of St. Luke's United Church, Montreal was the guest speaker who gave a spiritual and practical address. Messrs. James Clinton and E. N. Suckling received the offering. The music was under the direction of Miss Patience Reid and the selections were most appropriate for such an occasion.

The Week at Ottawa

Reduced rates were given in the American tariff on a number of agricultural products including grains, hog products, horses and hay. Silver-fox furs duties were reduced by 25 per cent. Reductions were made in duty on a number of metals and non-metallic minerals, on acetic acid and a number of miscellaneous manufactured goods.

Concessions granted by Canada to United States products affect 447 items in the Canadian tariff. Of these 283 items have been reduced in rate while 146 represent the bindings of rates that have been effective under the 1933 agreement. These concessions again taking the 1937 trade figures as a basis, represent 58 per cent of all imports from the United States. Many of the concessions given the United States have been made possible through a prior understanding and agreement with the governments of the United Kingdom and the government of South Africa. Similarly Canada agreed to certain cutting of imperial preferences in the British market to allow the United Kingdom to make tariff reductions to American exporters.

In the case of agricultural and fishery products Canada's new duties practically parallel duties to be charged similar products from Canada entering the United States. Rates on tobacco and spirituous liquors have been lowered on chemicals, drugs and paints, on earthenware and glassware, on machinery, on certain kinds of machinery including diesel engines, on textile products and on leather and manufactures of leather.

Canada has abolished the three per cent special excise tax levied on the duty-paid value of imports. The removal of this charge on imports from the United States will mean a serious loss in revenue to the Dominion exchequer which will have to be made up in some other way. It is stated however that the removal of the tax will "help to restore the competitive position of many Canadian producers who have had to pay this tax on their imports of raw materials and semi-manufactures."

Canada has given up the six cents a bushel preference on wheat in the markets of the United Kingdom. Great Britain has agreed in its treaty with the United States to make a seasonal reduction on apples imported from the United States from 4 shillings and 6 pence to 3 shillings per cwt. Canadian apples continue to be free of duty in the British market. Lower reduction on exports from Canada to the United States have also been arranged partially at least on a basis of compensation for reductions on certain classes of lumber from the United States imported into the United Kingdom. Canada has a quota on the British market is not affected but United States hams are stabilized on the free list. Canada's preference on automobile exports to the United Kingdom is not disturbed. There is a reduction, however, in the preference on automobile exports to certain colonies such as Ceylon and Hong Kong. There has been a reduction in the margin of preference on some canned goods to the United Kingdom market.

The intricate negotiations of the two treaties have been the extent to which the exporting country is the main or potentially the main source of supply of commodities affected. The interests of business, of the broad interest of consumers, and the retention subject to defined alterations of the British preferential agreements. The two inter-related agreements are a great experiment in the world of trade relations between the great English speaking democracies. "The friendly association of the great English speaking nations" has been heralded as raising the hope that a "new vitality" has been given to the basic principles of a civilized world order."

SENTENCED TO SIX MONTHS IN JAIL FOR A THEFT IN V'FIELD

Two Montrealeers were arraigned before Recorder Legault on Monday in the City of Valleyfield and sentenced to six months in jail. Armand Galardeau, 34, of Montreal, and Adrien Chalfoux, 46, also of Montreal, were arrested on Saturday for a theft at the Rexall Pharmacy, owned by J. L. Perron, Victoria St., Valleyfield. They pleaded guilty to the charge and were sentenced to jail.

Rev. E. J. White Inducted Into Ormstown, Rockburn Charges

Ormstown Church is Crowded to Capacity to Witness Beautiful Induction Service

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 15th, the congregations of Ormstown and Rockburn met in numbers that exceeded the normal capacity of Ormstown's beautiful church to witness and participate in an impressive induction service that will long be remembered by everyone present. Since the resignation of the Rev. Walter Ross early in the spring, this pastoral charge has been without a settled minister. It was therefore in a spirit of great joy written clearly upon their countenances, that the Presbyterians of both congregations gathered to welcome the Rev. Edwin J. White, B.A. of Tyne Valley, P.E.I., their unanimous choice among the candidates they heard.

After presbytery was constituted with prayer by that Huntingdon Divine and Moderator of the Presbytery, the Rev. J. B. Maclean, D.D., and the edict read a large representation from the Montreal presbytery entered the church and occupied one of the front pews. The service of worship which now followed, was under the charge of the Rev. W. Scott, Dunfermline, Atholstan. It is the custom in the Presbyterian system that the minister last inducted into a pastor charge shall conduct the service of worship. This task, the Rev. W. Scott, Dunfermline, most acceptably discharged. For his sermon he took his text from Matt. 7: 2. "For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged, and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." He pointed out in the course of his sermon the law abiding character of the moral universe in which we live. He declared that only by fulfilling moral conditions can we expect an eternal reward, and that it was futile to expect to escape adverse judgment if we lend ourselves to the practice of critically judging others wrongly.

After the singing of a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction by the newly inducted minister, an invitation was extended to everyone present to repair to the basement for a lunch and a social hour.

Rev. Mr. Nimmo, acting now as chairman with gifts in that capacity that rate high above the average called upon all the ministers present and a few laymen for some remarks. In addition to considerable wit and humour congratulatory words were extended to both the Rev. and Mrs. White and to the congregation.

There is no doubt that in Mr. White's new field of labour much fruitfulness will be realized. He is a young man but he has already given commendable proof of an effective ministry. He is a graduate of McGill University and of the Presbyterian College. He is a speaker with no ordinary gifts. His force and eloquence in the pulpit will surely reward him with well-attended services. His broad outlook, his sympathy and understanding will surely earn him a lasting place in the hearts and affections of the Ormstown and Rockburn congregations.

Mr. Nimmo stated that the congregation may have the privilege of hearing a number of candidates during the summer and fall months and that it was only after hearing the Rev. Edwin White that they realized that he was the "chosen one" whom they expected to call. They extended to him an unanimous ovation.

Mr. Robert Sinton and his daughter, Mrs. Sexton, of Regina, Saskatchewan and Montreal respectively, were Sunday visitors in St. Louis. Mr. Sinton intends spending a few weeks in Montreal visiting friends and relatives.

Week-end guests at the home of Mrs. George Tait were Messrs. Franklin, Irving and James Tait, also Mrs. Merton Crawford, all of Montreal.

There was no service held in Knox United Church on Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Sinton of Montreal, was a recent guest at the home of her mother, Mrs. James Howden.

Messrs. Oswald McChery and Ewart Tait were collecting for the Bible Society in connection with the Georgetown Presbyterian Church last week in the Grand Concession.

Mr. Charles Boyce of Huntingdon was a caller at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Goodall on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Keith and Walter McCall and Mr. Morrison Brooks of Franklin were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McCaig. The boys are attending the St. Martine Agricultural College.

Miss Gertrude Laframboise was a recent guest at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Lapage. Miss Laframboise graduated from Ste. Martine Convent last year, and is now teaching Domestic Science in Valleyfield.

The steam train which operates between Coteau and Aubrey, had the mishap to break a wheel one day last week, about one mile west of St. Louis Station. Later in the forenoon a steam train came from Coteau and struck the Diesel away. The steam train will operate between these points until repairs have been completed.

Mrs. George Tait received word of the death of her friend, Mrs. Pawthrop (nee Sara Reeves) of Cornwall, formerly of Ormstown.

Mr. Archie Howden is visiting his brothers, Messrs. John and Robert Howden, also other relatives and friends in this vicinity.

The Cercle des Permiens held a cooking class in the Parish Hall last week. The kindly extended an invitation to their English-speaking friends, which many of them accepted.

YOUTH ARRESTED FOR BEING A PUBLIC NUISANCE

A 21-year-old youth from the country, was apprehended on Saturday night and charged with making a nuisance of himself by bothering young girls in Huntingdon. He had followed three young girls who were returning home on Tuesday evening, November 15th, police claim, and although his identity was not known at the time, he was identified by the girls in question on Chateaugay street on Saturday. Constable Lanctot, of the local police force, arrested him and brought him to the local police station where he was held until Monday morning.

Taken to the Valleyfield jail, this youth will be tried on Friday, Dec. 2nd. Failing to post the required bond, he will be held in Valleyfield until the trial comes up.
