United Nations ready to help in Peru avalanche disaster

(CP from Reuters-AP)

LIMA, Peru—The United Nations stood ready today to provide all possible help to Peru in the wake of one of the worst natural disasters in its history.

Between 2,000 and 4,000 persons—the total was still uncertain - were killed Wednesday night when thousands of tons of ice, rock and mud rolled over the Ranrahirca area, 200 miles northwest of here, in a 40-foot high avalanche.

U Thant, acting secretary-general of the United Nations, cabled Peruvian President Manuel Prado Thursday night that representatives of the UN technical assistance board and the children's fund had been instructed to place themselves at the president's disposal.

Relief workers and supplies were pouring into the disaster area.

The massive avalanche that thundered down from the 22,205-foot Mount Huarascan—Peru's highest mountain—wiped out an entire mountain community and buried the Ranrahirca area, with a population of about 3,000. At least 85 per cent of the village's 500 inhabitants were killed.

REPORT ROAR

Survivors said an earthshaking roar and clouds of thick dust preceded the "huayco," the Andean word for avalanche.

Only a check of last July's census figures may eventually determine the final death toll. In 1941, only 300 bodies were found after the Huaraz avalanche 25 miles from Ranrahirca, but a total of 6,000 persons died.

Airborne rescue teams hoped for good weather today to fly missions of mercy to the Andean valley where the avalanche virtually wiped two villages and 14 settlements off the map in eight minutes.

Only two planes were able to fly Thursday into Caraz, about 20 miles north of the disaster area, before dense fog and gen-

For U of S medical faculty

May convert Pavillon to general hospital

The Pavillon St. Georges, the 1,200 bed mental hospital now being constructed on Stoke Road, may be used by the University of Sherbrooke to house the university's newly formed medical faculty and a general hospital. A spokesman for the university said this morning that no decision had been reached but that the changeover was under consideration.

The government's decision whether to complete the building as a mental hospital as was originally intended or to change its plans is not expected before the end of January.

Dr. Gerard Larouche, head of the university's medical faculty said he would be in favor of the plan if it could be worked out by the government and the university.

If the Pavillon St. Georges does become a general hospital it will answer the needs of Sherbrooke's other hospitals which are currently asking for more facilities to cope with the increased number of patients, sources say.

Construction of the exterior of the Pavillon St. Georges is presently being completed but work on the interior will not be undertaken until the government reaches a decision on the future of the building.

If the original plans for the hospital are followed it will be completed as a mental institution. If it becomes a university hospital different plans will have to be drawn up for the interior.

A provincial board of pyschiatrists which has been investigating psychiatric facilities in Quebec has recommended to the government that mental hospitals contain no more than 200 beds, sources say. This recommendation may affect the government decision about the Pavillon St. Georges.

Sources say that part of the hospital will be set aside for psychiatric cases even if the university does take charge of the building.

Outlook seen dim for JFK plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy appears likely to win approval of less than half of the wide - ranging domestic and foreign programs he has handed to an election - conscious Congress.

A salvo of applause for Kennedy's state - of - the - union reference to the Berlin problem — "we are prepared to talk, when appropriate, and to fight, if necessary" — signalled general two - party agreement on foreign policy objectives in the cold war.

There was two - party approval, too —mixed with some Republican skepticism — for Kennedy's pledge to submit a balanced budget next week.

But these displays of unity did not dispel signs that many of the president's major proposals will be trampled under amid congressional pulling and hauling.

Not all of the news was bad for Kennedy, however.

LOWER TARIFFS SEEN

He and his leaders could look toward the likely enactment of a program—in a form yet to be determined — to give the president authority to negotiate lower tariffs with the European Common Market.

Kennedy could expect tax law revisions, closing of some loopholes and extension of excise levies. He was assured of an increase in the $298,000,000,000 debt limit, for which he has yet to make a formal request. He might get a postal rate increase.

He could believe that when the shouting is over he would wind up with at least restricted authority to buy $100,000,000,000 in UN bonds and to start the ball rolling on a special, three-year $3,000,000,000 fund for the Alliance for Progress program in Latin America.

But congressional reaction marked for future casualty lists his requests for emergency anti - recession authority: Standby power to lower taxes and to launch a public works program.

Congressmen, concerned about unemployment, might act on manpower training and youth employment programs. But, as usual in times of a rising economy, they seemed disinclined to give the president powers to be used at some uncertain future date.

It was almost a certainty that no new civil rights legislation would clear the legislative mills. And it would take an unexpected turnabout to get approval for a $700,000,000,000 program to help finance fallout shelters.

CARE 'DOUBTFUL'

Kennedy's request for action to provide medical care for the elderly through the social security system had to be put in the highly doubtful class.

Administration democrats called the president's presentation eloquent, forward looking and inspiring. Most Republicans found it unimpressive.

Some Republican members complained that Kennedy had adopted former president Truman's scatter - gun technique—asking Congress for a long list of things he knew he wouldn't get.

Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said the message resembled "a Sears Roebuck catalogue with the old prices marked up." He added that it will "make the new frontier blaze with controversy."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana though the message had "the authentic earmark of greatness." His assistant, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, praised the president for asking for "higher goals, higher standards and greater achievements" in an effort to see that "the amazing prosperity of the 60s is to be shared by all."

US Space Agency decision

Super rocket is decided upon; most powerful in free world

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (AP)—The Space Agency, leap - frogging over three concepts of the Saturn rocket, has decided on a super Saturn with more power than any rocket the free world has ever known.

The first stage will have five engines developing a total of 7,500,000 pounds of thrust. That compares with the 1,500,000 pounds of thrust built into the Saturn first stage which was launched at Cape Canaveral, Fla., last November.

The rocket will be capable of carrying a payload of about 110 tons, twice the normal maximum load of an ordinary railroad box car.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration and the Marshall Space Flight Centre here announced Thursday that a decision had been made on the five-engine cluster for the first and second stages of the advanced Saturn. The third stage will carry a single engine.

USE TWO STAGES

Two stages will be used for earth orbit trips and three for earth-escape missions.

Earth orbital trips for three men are to be accomplished with the present Saturn, the C-1.

The advanced Saturn, expected to be ready for launching in 1965, will be used first to send a three-man craft into orbit around the moon and back to earth. Later work for it will include a manned landing on the moon and the return trip to earth.

In deciding on this type of advanced Saturn, NASA bypassed three concepts—the C-2, C-3 and C-4. Each was more powerful in concept than the preceding number but none would have been as powerful as the one decided on, which probably will become known as the C-5.

Crackdown causes drug lack

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police said Thursday night the city's illicit drug famine continues in the wake of the arrest of 32 persons suspected of conspiracy in trafficking.

Drug investigators said they believe the initial panic by the city's addict population when supplies were cut off has been replaced by a desperate hunt for drugs from other sources.

In North Vancouver, five suspected addicts were arrested by the RCMP after officials at Lion's Gate Hospital reported seeing prowlers going through doctor's parked autos. No drugs were stolen.

Three of the five were later charged with theft of personal papers from the autos. The others were released.

Deputy Chief Gordon Ambrose said an expected petty crime wave by addicts has not occurred.

Police have been instructed to keep a close watch on drug stores and other outlets likely to be broken into by addicts in search of barbiturates and tranquilizers, he said.

City police and RCMP are also constantly checking the possibility of a new supply of illicit drugs entering the city.

Warrants are still out for six suspected conspirators who dodged Tuesday morning's police dragnet.

In court Thursday bail was set for six more suspected traffickers, raising the total bail for 16 of the 32 persons arrested to $635,000.

Bail of $50,000 was set for Maurice Silcotte, 33.

How did it become public?

Dorion note a mystery

QUEBEC (CP)—How a 1958 thank-you note sent to Quebec Liquor Police in the name of Noel Dorion became public remained a mystery today.

Mr. Dorion, now secretary of state and president of the Privy Council, said his political opponents arranged its publication. Photostatic copies of the letter appeared in Montreal and Toronto newspapers early this month. Mr. Dorion has denied writing the letter.

Sources close to the Quebec government indicated a serious check was being made to determine whether a document in the care of the Crown had been used for political purposes.

It was learned Thursday night that the original copy of the letter to Wellie Cote, late assistant director of the disbanded Quebec Liquor Police, was among documents seized under warrant from the home of Mrs. Cote.

The documents were seized when the attorney-general's department opened a fraud case against Rosario Lemire, former Quebec district director of the force.

Crown prosecutor Jean Bienvenue said the letter was not needed in the case and the original copy was kept by him in a personal file until Oct. 30, when he returned it to Mrs. Cote.

The letter, on stationery from Mr. Dorion's law firm, thanked Mr. Cote and some of his subordinates for their assistance in the 1958 federal election campaign in Bellechasse, Mr. Dorion's constituency.

Mr. Bienvenue said to his knowledge the only persons to see the letter while it was in his possession were Premier Jean Lesage, Crown prosecutor Gerard Levesque, court clerk Maurice Bazin, and "perhaps" a provincial police sergeant involved in the prosecution.

However, there were photostats of the letter in Crown files.

Attorney-General Georges Lapalme said Mr. Dorion obtained a photostat of the letter through his brother, Chief Justice Frederic Dorion of Quebec's Superior Court. It was Judge Dorion, Mr. Lapalme said, who asked Mr. Bazin to make a photostat of the letter.

The letter first came to public attention Dec. 30 when Mr. Dorion said in an interview that an attempt was being made to "frame" him by linking him with the liquor police.

After the photostats were published, Mr. Dorion denied writing the letter and handwriting experts confirmed it was not signed by him. Mr. Dorion said it was written and signed in his name by his secretary, Elisabeth Parent, at the request of someone whose name she could not recall. Miss Parent said in an affidavit she signed the letter.

Await return of Gizenga

LEOPOLDVILLE (AP) — The Congo parliament today awaited the return of Antoine Gizenga to explain charges that he has been trying to sever the northeast Congo from the rest of the country.

The leftist deputy prémier, in a sudden change of heart, agreed to leave his headquarters in Stanleyville after losing a test of his power there.

Stanleyville police, who have been his main military arm, defied his order Thursday to arrest Congolese Gen. Victor Lundula and members of a UN commission investigating the massacre of 13 Italian airmen last November.

Clip in kidney causes panic

TORONTO (CP) — They were taking x-rays on Stanley Trafford and a metal clip showed up in his kidney.

The family doctor consulted the patient, his family and lab technicians.

More x-rays were ordered —this time without clothing —and the mystery was solved.

The clip was in Trafford's new pyjamas.

To improve Bordeaux penitentiary

MONTREAL (CP) — After years of neglect, Montreal's Bordeaux jail is in line for a few improvements.

Rene St. Pierre, Quebec public works minister, met Thursday with his deputy minister and an architect to discuss changes to the building's interior.

The public works minister and his deputy, H. A. Gauvin, visited the institution after a New Year's Day riot by 400 prisoners that resulted in $27,000 damages.

"The buildings are very solid," said Mr. St. Pierre. "The changes will mainly allow classification of the prisoners inside."

The jail's acting governor Lt. - Col. Leon Lambert, laid most of the blame for Bordeaux' condition on its staff and asked Attorney-General Georges Lapalme for improvements worth $500,000.

At a press conference Thursday, Col. Lambert described prison guards as underpaid and generally lacking in discipline and incentive.

"The staff is very bad," he said. "All but a few are incompetent."

"About one-third of the staff can be trained to do their jobs properly. The rest should be dismissed."

Air pioneer dies

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Milton Wilcox, pioneer transportation meet organizer who was among a group that brought aviators Count de Lesseps and the Wright brothers to Montreal, died here Wednesday. He was 81. Mr. Wilcox and his associates organized the Montreal meet in 1910, Canada's first in the embryonic aviation field. The following year the meet was held in Toronto.

By private individuals

Claims infiltration of West New Guinea

JAKARTA (Reuters) — Defence Minister Gen. Abdul Harris Nasution said today Indonesians were infiltrating Dutch - held West New Guinea on a "growing and increasing scale."

But he added there were no armed Indonesian landings under way and an army spokesman later stressed that the infiltration was strictly by "private individuals."

Nasution, who also is army chief of staff, said in an interview that last year "there were landings going on all the time."

He said especially after President Sukarno's order for the "liberation" of the disputed territory in December "there will have been more activity."

SETS TERMS

Meanwhile, Foreign Minister Subandrio maintained Indonesia's position that negotiations could be held only after the Dutch have handed over West New Guinea, which Indonesia claims as West Irian.

After the handover, he said, "we in our turn will discuss with the Netherlands or the people of West Irian the implementation of self - determination."

President Sukarno in a press conference Thursday night said that Indonesia had no desire to expand.

"But Indonesians are now fully determined to free West Irian . . . which is part of our territory, from the colonialists."

Government sources reported small - scale uprisings against Dutch rule in the territory this week following the unsuccessful attempt on Sukarno's life last Sunday.

Sees third mill for Nfld.

By JACK PICKETTS

ST. JOHN's, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood said Thursday he believes his dream of a third paper mill for Newfoundland will come time this year.

Mr. Smallwood said he would be "surprised and disappointed" if construction of a paper mill in eastern Newfoundland does not begin "as soon as the frost comes out" this spring.

Speaking to a service club, the premier also announced that four companies started meetings in Montreal Thursday to discuss harvesting of Labrador's rich stands of black spruce — ideal for paper-making.

Raps 'two-headed' motorists

Cuddling drivers tongue-lashed

By PIERRE SAUVE
(Special To The Record)

Sherbrooke crown attorney Benoit Turmel yesterday lashed out at motorists who drive while cuddled up against a female companion.

His remarks were made a few moments before Mr. Justice William Mitchell, sitting in St. Francis District Court of Queen's Bench here, sentenced Andre Brousseau, 23, of Sherbrooke to six months in the Winter Street jail for criminally negligent driving.

The youth pleaded guilty to the charge. The car he was driving went off the road and killed Claude Boucher, 15, of Sherbrooke, a passenger, Sept. 24.

The prison term is retroactive to Brousseau's imprisonment which dates back to Sept. 25.

Judge Mitchell also suspended the accused's driving permit for 10 years.

Crown Attorney Turmel, condemned the conduct of too many drivers who demonstrate marks of affection while often travelling at a high rate of speed.

"If there ever was a dangerous person, it is the two-headed driver," said the Crown Attorney.

"It is an impossibility for the driver to maintain perfect control over his car when a female companion is locked in ardent intimacy against him.

"I never could understand a girl's lack of self-respect in adopting such a position in a car. This public show of affection is degrading."

"A car driver must be attentive at all times while travelling on public highways. The driver must be able to respond at a second's notice when a dangerous hazard presents itself. The two-headed driver is much too busy taking care of the other head to respond with alacrity when facing an unexpected danger.

Andre Brousseau, said the crown attorney, was, in such a position. He was a two-headed driver, besides being under the influence of liquor. His conduct resulted in the death of a 15-year-old boy.

"I ask the Court," the crown attorney said, "to impose a heavy sentence which will show the public in general that two-headed drivers musn't be tolerated and will be dealt with harshly."

Brousseau was the owner and driver of a car in which young Boucher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Boucher, 245 Alexander street, Sherbrooke, was a passenger.

Defence counsel Dewey Zaor told the Court that his client

About Television

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP)—Groucho Marx, who returns to weekly network TV tonight with a new show, Tell It to Groucho, suggests that some established shows are well equipped to convert their formats to the current trend toward medicine.

Next season, he suggests, it could be Hawaiian Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat, and Have Scalpel, Will Travel. And certainly, there's nothing the matter with Dennis the Doctor, Bedside 6, The Fee is Right, The Tall Surgeon, and The Gallstones.

Tuesday night's Dick Powell Show, was a pleasant little fantasy.

The anthology series, consistently the season's most engaging and varied in dramatic content, does have an inordinately long and often annoying beginning and conclusion — endless still photographs flashed momentarily on the screen and host Powell making a lengthy trip through a studio to a camera and back into limbo.

They don't do anything except take up time.

ROUND AND ROUND I GO IN OLD BLACK MAGIC'S SPELL

We're all familiar with the cycles in natural phenomena. Morning and night. Spring, summer, fall and winter. The return of the swallows to Capistrano on a certain day at a certain hour and almost at a certain moment.

Many of us are also aware of cyclic variations in the way we feel and react. Some of us function best in the early hours of the day and fade like morning glories as the day progresses. Some function best at night after frittering away most of the daylight hours.

You can see this illustrated in sports columns. Some horses are front runners that set a pace. Others are finishers that approach the tape with fantastic bursts of speed.

Then there are pitchers who excell in spring training and others who don't seem to get started until midseason. There are batters who alternate between hitting streaks and slumps.

Usually when questioned they have no explanation for their in-and-out performances. They all seem to say "I don't know. I'm doing everything the same. But some days, I hit right at a fielder. And other days, the ball 'has eyes' and goes between them."

Well, one possible explanation of these cyclic mysteries is suggested by revealing studies done at Charles University in Prague and at our own medical schools in Utah and Minnesota. Here is a brief summary of the principal findings:

A statistically significant number of women begin to menstruate on a Sunday or a Wednesday morning. Rarely on a Tuesday morning.

Unless artificially induced, labor starts most often after midnight with a peak incidence at 3 a.m. Least often at 4 p.m.

Thus a statistically significant number of children are born on or about dawn of a Wednesday. Fewest are born at or about twilight of a Monday.

But, I wouldn't take all this so seriously as to consider excusing a bad performance with the explanation that the relative positions of sun, moon and earth were out of kilter at the particular time of the foul-up.

Your boss or your teacher might be old-fashioned enough to want a better excuse.

HAND STILL MAKES FIVE

A letter from New Orleans reads:

"The game was duplicate. I won the opening diamond lead with my ace and played three rounds of trumps. Then I played dummy's ace and king of clubs in the hope that I would drop a doubleton queen. Instead, West showed out on the second club lead and I only made four odd. Everyone else made an overtrick and my partner criticized my play severely. Should I have played safe for five odd by leading a low club toward my jack after taking dummy's ace?"

The answer to his question is that his play of the ace and king of clubs was correct. It would gain a trick for him if either opponent held queen-small in clubs. It would break even if someone held queen and two small. And it might lose a trick for him with the actual club break.

However, I must join with North in criticizing South's dummy play.

He should have made five odd in spite of the bad club break. All he had to do was to continue clubs after the suit failed to break. East would take his queen and lead a diamond to West. West would lead a third diamond and South would ruff.

Now South, to make his five odd, would play out his last trump and discard down to ace-nine of spades and a small club in dummy. East would either have to chuck his last club or unguard the queen-jack of spades and South would make his overtrick anyway.

South Ward flash fire damages auto repair shop and dwellings

A flash fire, which raced through a South Ward auto repair shop Thursday afternoon caused damages estimated at $25,000 and destroyed belongings of two families.

Twenty-four Sherbrooke firemen and six fire trucks from Nos. 1 and 5 stations in Sherbrooke were called to the scene of Chartier Auto Spring, 180 Galt West about 3 p.m.

The building was owned by Donat Chartier, 275 Jacques Cartier Street, in Sherbrooke.

Chartier estimated damages to his building to be between $20,000 and $25,000.

"Most of the damage was done to the inside of the building and the roof," he said.

The fire, of unknown origin, also destroyed the belongings of Mr. and Mrs. Rolland Ayotte and Mr. and Mrs. A. Menard.

The two families lived in a house in the back of the Auto repair shop. The house, which is built about a foot behind the building was also owned by Chartier.

Chartier, who was the first to notice the fire warned his 12 employees to evacuate the building. Three trucks were moved from the building. Mr. Chartier phoned the fire department.

He said the fire started near the furnace in the south side of the building. His twelve employees refused to answer questions.

The fire did extensive damage to the roof and to equipment inside. Twelve hoses were used by the firemen to bring the fire under control.

Mr. Chartier's offices which were upstairs in the building were not touched by the fire, but some damage was done by water.

When the firemen arrived, they directed the streams into the heart of the fire and held them there until the fire was under control, about 5:30 p.m.

They also played hoses on an adjacent house.

"This was the only thing that saved the house from catching fire," one of the firemen said.

Mr. Menard, one of the tenants of the apartment house said that nearly all of his and his family's clothes had been damaged by the smoke of the fire.

"I managed to bring out two small armfuls before the smoke forced me to retreat," he said. "It's a good thing that they (the firemen) watered down the house, we have them to thank that the house did not catch fire too," he added.

Rolland Ayotte, the other tenant, said that he lost all of his clothing.

"I had no time to get anything out of the house. When I noticed the smoke I called my wife who was in the other room and we got out.

"I tried twice to return and get some clothes and things but the smoke was too strong," he said.

"All of our clothes were lost and some of the furniture is stained by the smoke," he added.

Both of the men warned their wives and sent them to a neighbor's where they watched the fire from a window. Menard has no children, Ayotte has five and they were all lodged with neighbors when the fire broke out.

Assistant Director Charles Audet, who directed the fire fighting said that he had no idea how the fire started.

FIREMEN — It took the 24 firemen three hours to extinguish the fire.

Quebec Shorthorn Club

Clifford Gaulin re-elected president

Clifford G. Gaulin was re-elected president of the Quebec Shorthorn Club at a club meeting at the New Sherbrooke Hotel on Thursday.

The president in reviewing the year of 1961 said.

"The Eastern Townships showed the best quality of Shorthorn bulls at the Sherbrooke Spring Fair, than anywhere else in Canada in a long time."

The president also said that anyone purchasing Shorthorn bulls at this year's spring fair to be held April 6 would be allowed an allowance of 10 cents per mile, per each animal, after the first fifty miles.

Other directors elected to the club were Allen Martin, 1st vice-president, of Montreal; Mrs. T. C. Stuart, 2nd vice-president, Arundel, and D. J. MacMillan, club secretary and agronome, Cookshire.

The following is a list of county directors elected for 1962-63.

Mrs. George McGibbon, of Lachute, for Argenteuil; Joseph Patoine, of Honfleur, for Bellechase; J. P. Macintosh, of Austin, for Brome; Harley Asker and Erwin Watson, of Bury, for Compton; Gaston Marson, of St. Eustache, for Two Mountains;

Clement Beauchemin, of Vercheres, for Vercheres; Roy Harrison, Bishopton, for Wolfe; G. Gaizele, of Roxton Pond, for Shefford; Azellus, Lavallee, of R.R. 2 Berthierville, for Berthier; Raymond St. Amour, R.R. 2, Maniwaki, for Gatineau; L. Bouchard, of R.R. 1, Chambord, for Lake St. Johns; Joseph Noppert, of St. Patrice, for Lotbiniere; Lawrence Allan, R.R. 2, Lemesurier, for Megantic; Romeo Veilleux, Causapscal, for Matapedia; Austin Clark, of Rouyn, for Pontiac, and Louis Gingras, R.R. 1, of Ste. Anastasie, Megantic.

The president announced at the meeting that the club's picnic would be held at the farm of Mrs. T. C. Stuart, of Arundel, about the first Saturday in August.

Don MacMillan club secretary said the club received a grant from the Provincial government about three times the amount of last year's grant, as a result of growing interests in beef production in the province.

The grant will be used to encourage dairy farmers to switch to beef.

Romeo Veilleux, from Causapscal, told club directors that farmer's in the Gaspe area bought their beef cattle from the Maritimes because it was closer and cheaper to transport.

"We bought our beef in the Maritimes, which is poorer in quality than beef in Quebec, because we could not afford the transportation from Sherbrooke or Quebec City," Mr. Veilleux said. He added it costs almost the full price of the animal for transporation if they would buy in Sherbrooke.

Allen Martin, 2nd vice-president of the club, said that the club this year was allowing 10 cents per mile per head for transportation after fifty miles and that the club is trying to make arrangementss to have big loads of cattle sent to the Gaspe area, which would cut transportation costs.

Deputy agricultural minister:

Quebec to be top beef producer

Stan Chagnon, assistant deputy minister of agriculture for Canada, said at a meeting here Thursday that he foresees Quebec as a leading beef producers' market of North America within a very short time.

The deputy minister said that there will be little beef in Canada, 1962 as a result of a dry spell in Western Canada this summer.

"Never has the demand from other countries been so good," the minister said noting that Quebec, and particularly the Eastern Townships, is the ideal place for beef raising in Canada.

"Quebec is the leading province in rich grass and hay, and it produces almost twice as much as anywhere else in Canada," Mr. Chagnon said. In a very short while Quebec would be leading America and may even later be at the top of the world beef market, he added.

Mr. Chagnon who was guest speaker of the Quebec Shorthorn Club at the New Sherbrooke Hotel Thursday, said that the USSR has raised its standard of living which has resulted in a shortage of beef.

During this shortage of beef "the taste for beef appears to be getting better than ever before behind the Iron Curtain," Mr. Chagnon said.

Demands in the Communist countries are becoming so great that they are buying beef from other countries, he said. The USSR last year bought a large quantity of beef from Canadian producers, he added.

Mr. Chagnon stressed the fact the 60 per cent of Ontario and Quebec farmers are making a gross profit of only $2,600 per year when they could double their amounts if they would change from dairy to beef farming.

He called upon Quebec beef farmers to encourage other dairy farmers to change to beef because of higher profits and its demands in coming years.

Other guest speakers at the meeting were Pierre Labrecque, director of livestock for Quebec, H. Steppler, professor of agriculture for Macdonald College and Paul Robert, from the Lennoxville Experimental Farm

Skiing: multi-million dollar industry

Almost overnight, it seems, the Eastern Townships have become a huge mecca for skiers.

Site development over the past few years has been little short of astonishing, and this season, more is available to skiers than has ever been available before.

There are, for the first time, nine fully developed ski areas in the Townships, all of which provide skiing conditions second to none anywhere in Eastern Canada. The ski industry here has become a multi-million dollar industry, and there is every indication that it will continue to get bigger and bigger.

If progress continues at its present rate, the Eastern Townships ski area will shortly rival, if not surpass the famed Laurentian area. Indeed, there are those who claim that in natural skiing conditions, the Townships district is already the finest in this part of the Dominion.

The future should be an extremely bright one. Looking at the situation from a business point of view, it would seem that the Eastern Townships is ideally situated for a major ski resort area.

Less than 100 miles to the southwest is the huge metropolitan Montreal area. The north shore is rapidly becoming urbanized; traffic tangles on highways north of Montreal are becoming more and more common; the Laurentian ski area is becoming crowded.

There is every indication that transportation facilities between Montreal and the Townships will shortly be tremendously improved, aided in large measure by rapid South Shore development. The Quebec Legislature Throne Speech this week held out hope that constructive action will begin soon on the projected Montreal-Sherbrooke autoroute. Sherbrooke's airport, virtually completed, will probably be in operation before too long.

To the south of us lie the ski-conscious states of Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. They have their own well-known ski resort areas, but the Townships are close enough to them to be regarded as all part of the same general ski district. In those areas, too, as in the Laurentians, the "market" has expanded so greatly that there is substantial overflow.

The Townships themselves are becoming more ski conscious every year. Development and skiing popularity go hand in hand; the more ski facilities there are available, the more people will ski. And the number of potential ski resort areas in the Townships is by no means exhausted. In seasons to come, a number of new developments, some already well into the planning stage, will spring up.

This kind of growth stimulates the whole economic climate of the district. The cry of "track" these winters is becoming more and more a welcome sound, not only to ski resort operators, but to men in many other lines of E. T. business.

Good farming requires top education

As any one who runs or lives on a modern farm knows, farming today is a far more complicated business than it was in the old days. As a matter of fact, successful farming is a more specialized occupation than it was even as little as a decade ago.

The trend throughout the country, and indeed, throughout North America has been away from the small family farm and more towards large, assembly-line-like organizations.

A new word has even been coined for modern farming. It's "agribusiness," and embraces all aspects of agriculture — the farms themselves, their suppliers as well as the processing and distributing concerns handling farm produce.

The average size of the present-day farm has gone up; mechanization and capital investment have soared, and the number of workers required has, as a result plummeted.

The head of a modern farm, therefore, has to be an astute businessman with managerial ability to cover a wider variety of fields than those with which most of his city counterparts have to cope.

For this reason, recommendations made last week to the Quebec government by a study committee are particularly timely.

The committee's report urged better agricultural training in this province, including the establishment of a French-language university-level agricultural institution.

And it told the government to get to work on its recommendations before any more time is lost.

The committee said that the study of agriculture should no longer be the "poor relation" of the other professions, but should be on an equal footing with medicine and law.

The point is well taken. The results of good farming are as vital to everyday life as good health and law and order. The days of the tradition-bound, ignorant farmer are gone forever.

Farming, as much as any other important profession, needs bright, courageous and hard-working men and women, and the proper facilities to educate them properly in the intricacies of the occupation. This can only be done at the university level.

City's disappearing post office

Sherbrooke's downtown post office has been moved about in the past few years like a yo-yo on a string, and there are indications that it may go for another spin shortly.

Sherbrooke postmaster J. C. Cayer said early this week that the operator of the business establishment on Albert Street where the post office is presently lodged is considering giving up the contract.

He said if this is done, a new one will be opened somewhere in the same area. Mr. Cayer said he has on hand two or three applications from downtown establishments to run the post office.

There is no guarantee, however, that at any of these locations, the post office will any more permanent than it has been in the past.

If the present site is moved, postal officials should give serious consideration to a more satisfactory arrangement for Sherbrooke's downtown postal facilities.

Surely, the city is large enough now to merit something more than an obscure store corner that shifts about with all the bewildering speed of a professional disappearing act.

Other papers say:

Falling off the labor union fence

One of the occupational hazards of labor union leadership is the danger of falling off the fence which divides the differing interests of members.

Take the case, for example, of AFL-CIO President George Meany. Last Sunday, he appeared on a nationwide television program on which he advised the President and Congress not to worry about balancing the budget. A deficit, he agreed, invites inflation, but inflation is a risk worth taking if more government spending will provide jobs for the unemployed.

So what happepns when deficit spending adds some unemployed to the payroll, and inflation follows?

Why, workers with jobs see the purchasing power of their wages decrease, their standard of living declines, and their savings and investments shrink in value. The workers' pensions which Mr. Meany and his associates work so hard to win for their members buy fewer and fewer old-age necessities and comforts.

Oh, it's hard to be a big labor leader and please all the rank-and-file. It's also pretty tough being a member of the rank-and-file which is subject to the vagaries of Mr. Meany's economic reasoning.

Roman Catholic position challenged

Quebec intellectuals look into separation of church and state

By ALEXANDER FARRELL

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec intellectuals are taking a new look at the problem of rendering unto God and unto Caesar.

In a book on church - state relations, L'Eglise et le Quebec (The Church and Quebec), eight contributors find that Quebec's solution needs to be modified and adapted to a radically changed situation.

The contributors, all Roman Catholics, are three priests, four professors and a lawyer.

They are in broad agreement that the role of the civil power in the two centuries since the British conquest has been a modest one. After the conquest the French - Canadian people found themselves without secular institutions of any kind, except those of an alien power. It fell to the Roman Catholic church to build the necessary framework in all the broad domains of social and economic activity.

They note, however, that secular institutions, notably the Quebec government, have since been born and matured. As a result, people were looking today for the proper dividing line between the duties and prerogatives of the church and of the civil power, or more precisely—since Quebec is overwhelmingly of the Roman Catholic faith—between those of the clergy and of the laity.

L'Eglise et le Quebec is the work of eight men who presented papers at the 1961 conference of l'Institut Canadien des Affaires Publiques in Ste. Adele, Que. Theme of the conference was the church's role in French - Canadian society.

The contributors are Rev. Vincent Harvey and Rev. Gilles Belanger of the University of Montreal, Abbe Louis O'Neill of Laval, professors Vianney Decarie and Bertrand Rioux of the University of Montreal, Fernand Dumont of Laval and Laurier LaPierre of McGill, and Montreal lawyer Marc Lalonde.

Prof. Rioux says the church, although officially separate from the state in Quebec, has been led by history and a "clerical ideology" into exercising an enormous responsibility for the functioning of all social structures, such as those of education, labor, public welfare and the co-operative movement.

The real significance of the current anti - clericalism, he says, is not that it wants to destroy anything but that it wants to put some vitality into Quebec's whole scheme of social organizaion. The clergy, distracted by too many mundane tasks, had been hampered in their spiritual mission of saving souls and too few laymen had been prepared to take their place in doing the work of this world.

Prof. Decarie says the traditional philosophy of education in Quebec has insisted upon the rights of parents and the church to the exclusion of those of the state, even to the point of opposing the free education that only the state can underwrite.

People who opposed the state's action in introducing free education last year forgot, he says, that such education is part of the Catholic tradition. The Third Lateran Council decreed in 1179 that "the right to learn . . . cannot be refused to anyone who is capable of being taught."

Prof. Decarie says much of the difficulty in education is being caused by the lingering motion that the replacement of the clergy as teachers and administrators means Catholic values will no longer exercise any influence or inspiration.

* * *

This notion has been repudiated, nevertheless, by no less a figure than Paul - Emile Cardinal Leger, under whose reform - minded leadership the clerical character of the social structure is being moderated and the laity is beginning to come into its own.

The cardinal, in his recently published Pastoral Reflections on our Education, wrote that "to reduce the church to its bishops and priests alone, to believe that it is necessary to wear the cassock or some other ecclesiastical vestment to be part of the church . . . is to weaken the church and to misunderstand its dimensions. Laymen are also the church."

Abbe O'Neill says it is "elementary realism" for the state to take into account the position of the Catholic church, particularly if the church occupies an important place among the people as a whole. "That is why, in a place like Quebec, where the church is everywhere and plays a predominant role in the life of society, it would be unrealistic to want the politicians to act as if they were unaware of it or to consider it as just one religious group among others."

* * *

Arrangements between the church and the civil power, however, were usually "compromises in constant need of readjustment . . . I do not believe that any ideal formula exists."

These arrangements had to vary according to the country, its circumstances and the mentality of the people. "Thus the case of Spain cannot be that of the United States."

Abbe O'Neill says the church's right of intervention in temporal affairs to protect spiritual and moral values does not mean that the clergy should run temporal institutions. The penetration of these values into the life of society "is normally accomplished by laymen acting as Christians."

ECM's FARM PROBLEM

(Calgary Herald)

The European Common Market is now trying to face up to a problem it has avoided for the first four years of its existence, getting agricultural products into the program of tariff reduction.

West Germany has been strongly protectionist. It has felt it necessary to lend state support to agricultural prices because of the marginal state of its agricultural industry.

France, on the other hand, urgently desires markets for its farm surpluses which have been encountering depressed prices.

The agriculture question is one of concern as well to Britain which is applying for membership in the ECM. Britain also has been giving artificial support to its agricultural industry. If tariff protection is removed under ECM rules British farmers will be challenged by low-cost imports.

The six European countries belonging to ECM have made great progress in freeing trade among themselves in industrial lines of goods. But all have been maintaining controls over agricultural goods. Now, according to the ECM time-table, agriculture is due to be taken into the charmed circle.

The Common Market must make up its mind soon because it is reaching its first great turning point. At the first of the year the second phase of the scheduled tariff adjustments is due to be put into effect. Unless all the members are satisfied their various interests are being well served any of them can block advance into the second phase for at least a year and perhaps more.

It will be of particular interest to Canada how the agricultural problem is settled. Canada has important agricultural surpluses which some day may seek entry into a larger European market than the one it now has.

Latin American report

Latins say US timid over Castro stand

By COPLEY NEWS SERVICE

There is a growing fear in Latin America that the remedy the United States prescribes to rid the hemisphere of Castro could be more deadly than the hemispheric ills it is supposed to cure.

Some statesmen fear the United States is using Castro's Communist label for its own purpose to snatch the revolutionary banner from Castro.

One Mexican editorial commentator wrote recently that one might conclud. "that the Communists and (President) Kennedy are in agreement and together are facing up to the great capitalist interests."

The suspicion that the United States is not really aware of what it is doing in Latin America has shaken the confidence of many Latins in the U.S. government.

MONEY FOR REFORM

As the Mexican editorialist wrote, the Kennedy program for the hemisphere, the Alliance for Progress, boils down to three points: U.S. aid, agrarian reform and tax reform. Practically no one objects to U.S. financial assistance.

But both agrarian and fiscal reform are programs that the Communists either have long advocated or applaud so vigorously as to arouse capitalist opposition.

So, that writer, concludes, facetiously, it appears President Kennedy and the Communists have joined forces against the capitalists in Latin America.

Consider, too, that the commentator is one of President Adolfo Lopez Mateos' advisors on Public relations and you may jump to the conclusion that official opinion of U.S. policy is not high in Mexico.

Elsewhere in Latin America there is consternation over U.S. policy. President Kennedy's announced plans to pay an official visit to Mexico this year is the latest surprise.

Why, some Latin officials are asking privately, did the President decide to visit Mexico when Mexico, apparently aligning itself with Cuba, voted against the proposal for an inter-American foreign ministers conference to investigate "extra-continental" threats to hemispheric peace and security?

INDEPENDENT POSITION

Is it, they question, that the United States pays more attention to those countries that oppose its international policies? And, if that is true, why should not those Latin countries that want more U.S. help adopt a so-called "independent" position?

To many people in Latin American it seems unreasonable that the United States should appear more partial toward countries, like Mexico, which opposed the United States on the Cuban case, or others, like Venezuela, that only recently switched from a pro-Castro or "neutral" stand, than those which have more consistently democratic traditions.

But all this fades in importance before the greater problem facing the hemisphere, what to do about the Communist threat emanating from Cuba.

That is the subject of the foreign ministers conference in Punta del Este, Uruguay, starting Jan. 22.

Many Latin nations, knowing that in final analysis the effectiveness of any decisions made in Uruguay depends on the United States, are anxious to know how far the United States is willing to go to eliminate the Red menace from the hemisphere.

SUICIDAL

Most Latin nations feel they cannot afford to appear more anti-Communist than the United States. To do so would be to place themselves in a suicidal position like that of the 1,200 Cuban exiles who invaded their homeland last April and fell captive to the Castro dictatorship when they did not get the air and naval support they expected from the United States.

So far, the United States has not made up its mind what it would like to see done about the Communist tyranny in Cuba. President Kennedy reportedly is waiting for last minute recommendations from his most trusted advisors.

The United States is wavering between a campaign for diplomatic and economic sanctions against the Castro regime and a bid for a resolution condemning Communist intervention in the Western hemisphere.

Latins recognized that neither sanctions nor a resolution would be much more than symbolic. Neither would rid Cuba or the hemisphere of Communism.

Administration prays for miracle

French officials are powerless in Oran

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

ORAN (AP)—Virtually powerless and infiltrated by agents of right - wing terrorists, the French administration pleads for help and prays for a miracle in Algeria's second city.

Oran, a city of 400,000, is no longer controlled by the officials sheltered in government buildings guarded by tommy-guns of riot troops.

The Secret Army Organization of right - wing French extremists reigns in European quarters. The Algerian rebels' National Liberation Front — the FLN — dominates the Moslem areas surrounded by cordons of French troops.

Death by terrorism strikes an average of five times a day in Oran. The Moslems fight with daggers, pistols and grenades, the Europeans with plastic bombs and machine-guns.

OFTEN SPARKS RIOT

Frequently, a Moslem attack sparks a European riot and the lynching of any Moslem found in the path of the surging crowd.

French authorities believe the Moslem rebels intend to increase their terrorism in Oran, apparently fearing the creation of a European stronghold that would resist Algeria's independence. The rebel government-in-exile announced that a meeting in Morocco this week that it was taking "new measures" to combat the secret army.

The authorities ask for more troops to halt the disaster and expected European revenge. But few officials believe that a major blood bath can be avoided.

"This is going to be worse than The Congo," said a French administrator.

Only a handful of officials in the modernistic, towering prefecture building overlooking the city are considered loyal to the government.

"We are surrounded by agents of the secret army," an official said.

Authorities estimate that 98 per cent of the city's 200,000 Europeans co - operate in one way or another with the right-wing underground.

Most Europeans appear convinced that it is their resistance which so far has blocked the establishment of the rebel regime in Algeria.

At this stage, French administrators doubt that any reasonable solution can be found in Oran.

"We no longer control this city," said a police officer while telephone calls reported terrorist attacks.

No European dares to walk into Moslem areas. Only a few Moslems are seen walking along the walls of European quarters covered by posters with the head of fugitive former Gen. Raoul Salan, chief of the secret army.

The two ethnic groups are leaving fringe areas in panic. Segregation is becoming more and more pronounced in the city.

European construction workers refuse to work on sites near Moslem quarters. Moslem newspaper vendors are being replaced by European boys in the heart of Oran.

Trucks loaded with troops watch over the seething city. Fatigue and apathy show on the faces of the soldiers.

Defence counsel Zaor asked the Court's clemency, pointing out that his client had been incarcerated since last September 25 and that as soon as he is released, he will have his old job back.

Judge Mitchell, told the accused that he probably didn't realize the danger he was causing while driving his car in such a manner.

"You are a young man and you have no criminal record," said judge Mitchell." "Taking everything into consideration, I sentence you to six months retroactive to the date of your imprisonment and suspend your driving permit for 10 years."

LOOKING AHEAD

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) Nottingham council plans to sell hot soup from vending machines at open-air swimming pools next summer. An official said: "Remembering the record of recent British summers we think it should be profitable."

erally bad weather delayed Peruvian Air Force plans to set up an air shuttle of doctors, nurses, medicines, foodstuffs and clothing.

But a doctor back from the stricken area said rescuers would have little to do but recover the dead—"there are no injured."

Roberto Thorndike, chairman of the Peruvian Red Cross, said initial estimates by representatives in the area put the number of missing at 2,300. U.S. Ambassador James Loeb reported estimates of 4,000 missing and presumed dead.

VILLAGE BURIED

The village of Ranrahirca and 450 of its 500 people were buried under a mass of muck a mile wide and nowhere less than 12 feet deep.

The village of Huarascucho, said to have a larger population than Ranrahirca, also was reported to have disappeared under the huge slide. Officials said 14 smaller settlements were destroyed, and that none of the residents of seven of them had been found alive.

More than 7,000 persons lived in the ranching and mining valley, 9,000 feet up with the snow-topped peaks of the Cordillera Blanca range looking down on them.

Volunteers struggled through quagmires of mud and melting ice to recover bodies that began to appear as waters of the Santa River began to recede. The avalanche swept hundreds of thousands of tons of debris into the river, swelling its waters and sending a torrent raging downstream. Dozens of bodies were recovered in Chimbote, a port on the Pacific more than 100 miles from Ranrahirca.

Many of the bodies recovered were mutilated beyond identification and were buried in a common grave.

Peru is no stranger to natural calamity, and this was one of its worst. Scarcely a year goes by in this Andean land without an earthquake or avalanche taking a deadly toll.

One of history's major earthquakes killed 70,000 persons in Peru and Ecuador in August 1896. Another in 1868 killed 25,000 in the same two countries.

The worst snowslide ever killed 9,000 Austro - Hungarian troops in 1916.

Bedford church holds special gift service

BEDFORD — The annual White Gift Sunday was observed at St. James Church, with the rector, Rev. W. J. White, conducting the special children's service, preceding the depositing of the gifts at the altar by the Sunday School pupils. A children's hymn was sung, with Mrs. Harry Jones as organist.

The gifts will be sent to the Sisters of St. John, who are in charge of St. Michael's Mission in Montreal, for distribution to the children in the mission.

In his address Mr. White took as his topic, Jesus Christ and His birthday. The church was beautifully decorated with evergreen trees in the chancel, trimmed with silver and red poinsettas and the windows were banked with evergreens and tall white tapers. White mums and red carnations were on the altar and the organ, given in memory of Lewis Currie, Lindsay Proctor, George Whitewick, Mildred Steel, Alex Steel, Jocelyn Bellingham, Mrs. C. Cooking and cleaning this executive's hobby

By HELEN PARMELEE

TORONTO — (TNS) — Caroline Grew is a young blonde widow who holds an executive position that's the envy of other career girls:

She's the only woman in North America working in her field and her business dealings are entirely with men.

Her job is as an account executive who sells prize incentive plans to industry; she's also an account advisor with a related premium company.

Sounds glamorous. And it is.

HOW TO SURVIVE

But Mrs. Grew has definite views about how to survive in a competitive man's world.

"When you're dealing with men you should be as business-like as possible.

"A woman could perhaps get away with batting her eyelids in a feminine approach to begin with, but she wouldn't last.

"You have to know what you're doing or businessmen see through you pretty quickly.

"When she first starts, a woman should keep her ears open and her mouth closed . . at least until she finds out what it's all about."

However Mrs. Grew—a feminine woman if there ever was one—insists that a career girl should maintain her femininity.

Her hobbies are especially feminine: cooking and cleaning.

COOKING

While businessmen get their relaxation from golf or curling, businesswoman Caroline relaxes while tidying up her York Mills apartment or cooking dinner for her mother and stepdaughter Donna, 14.

Says she: "I'm a housewife at heart."

Caroline Grew, a Branksome Hall grad, didn't become a female executive intentionally.

She started to work less than two years ago after her husband, Frank W. Grew, was killed when he crashed in his own plane on his way to their summer cottage near Bancroft.

Since then she's been to Chicago twice to address top groups in her field in the U.S. . . . all of them men.

TERRIFIED

"The first time I spoke there were 500 men and me," she recalls with a smile. "The speaker ahead of me was very good, so of course I was terrified.

"But you know what happens when you're a woman? I just started talking . . . and kept right on going."

Says Bill Folkard, sales manager of her company: "A man can be rude to another man, but not to a woman. Caroline can ask clients things a man would never get away with."

Says Caroline: "I felt my male colleagues resented me at first because I was a woman. But not any more.

"I prefer to deal with men because they are very direct. They're not influenced by petty details like women."

January "White Sales"

Buying guide for sheets and pillow cases

WHITE SALES

Across Canada this month many large stores will be advertising their semi-annual "White Sales." Often there are genuine savings at these sales, but sometimes the lower prices are due to inferior quality. The wise shopper may want to review her knowledge of sheets before taking advantage of these sales.

QUALITY IN SHEETS

In our discussion we will deal only with cotton sheets as they are the predominant sheeting in use in Canada today. The factors affecting sheet quality are also applicable to pillow cases.

The quality of cotton sheets is determined by three factors; the yarn, the weave and the size of the finished sheet.

YARN — The cotton fibres in the yarn are of two varieties: a shorter, heavier, carded (fibres are criss-cross) fibre which is found in "muslin-type" sheets; and the longer, lighter, combed (fibres are parallel) fibres found in the costlier "percale-type" sheets.

WEAVE — There are two weaves to examine in a sheet, the main body of the sheet and the selvage.

In the main body of the sheet the primary gauge of quality is the "thread count." This index is found by adding the average number of lengthwise threads per inch to the average number of crosswise threads per inch. For example: 64 length wise count plus 64 crosswise count equals 128 thread count. "Thread counts" range from about 110-200 and are often designated by various names. As these names vary with manufacturers and retailers, the thread count remains the reliable quality guide.

The selvage weave should be firm, strong, straight, and closely woven with a much higher "thread count" than the body of the sheet.

Thread Count	Names Commonly Used
110-112	Light Muslin	Fine Muslin	Select
128-136	Medium Muslin	Service	Service
140-150	Heavy Muslin	DeLuxe	Colonial
180-200	Percale	Combed Percale	Combed Percale

SIZE — Canadian manufacturers label their sheets in the finished sizes, that is, after hemming. Imported American sheets are usually labelled on the package in the unfinished sizes. However, some merchants advertise them in the finished size.

RECOMMENDED SIZES

LENGTH — Length of mattress plus twice the depth of the mattress plus five inches shrinkage allowance plus four to six inches tuck-in.

WIDTH — Bed Size (inch)	Finished Sheet width (inch.)
Single 36	63
Twin 36-48	72
Three-Quarter 48-57	72-81
Double	81
Extra Wide	90

Comparison of various sheets on the market

Muslin vs. Percale

The sturdier, heavier, "muslin-type" sheets are less expensive than the lighter, softer, "percale type." The lowest "thread count" 110-112 is the least expensive and correspondingly gives the least wear. Economically, the 128-136 count is the best buy, as it is less expensive than the higher thread count of 140-150 and, according to a recently reported study, wears for a similar length of time. Percale is a wise choice when paying for laundry by weight or for those who like a smooth, luxurious sheet, as it also wears well.

Fitted vs Flat

All fitted sheets sold on the market are preshunk ("Sanforized") that is they are guaranteed that they will shrink only 1%. Flat sheets shrink from 1½-5%. Fitted sheets save time in bed-making and in ironing as they can be placed directly onto the bed and wrinkles will be pulled out. They cannot be rotated as flat sheets, thus necessitating a larger supply of sheets. Before buying these sheets you must have the precise dimensions of your mattress to ensure a good fit.

Coloured Sheets

Coloured, printed, striped and embroidered sheets are more expensive than white sheets. The solid colours are the least expensive and the embroidered the most expensive. This is the result of the extra work involved in dyeing, printing and weaving. If you like the aesthetic effect of these sheets it is worth paying the few extra cents involved. They do take more care in washing and drying to preserve the colours.

Drip-Dry

These are a good buy for home launderers who dislike ironing but like a wrinkle-free sheet. They are slightly more expensive than the regular sheets.

Shopping Hints

1. Most sheets are packaged in plastic film. Ask to examine a counter sample. If one is not made available to you be wary of the merchandise.

2. Read the package label printed on the film. Check for thread count, finished size, colour fastness to washing, and percent shrinkage.

3. Hold sheets to light and examine for excessive slubs (uneven yarns), knots or similar defects. These are indications of weak spots. Be especially careful of slubs in the centre of the sheet where the wear is concentrated.

4. Wrinkle a corner of sheet to see if there is a large amount of sizing. This will fall out as a starchy powder. It may be used excessively on cheaper sheets to increase the body and give an impression of weights to the sheets.

5. Check the finishing details of hems, stitching, straight seams in pillow cases and make sure that colours match in sheets and pillow cases.

6. Most good quality sheets have a sewn-in label giving size which is helpful if you have sheets for beds of several sizes in your household.

Bargains

When examining "White Sale" sheets, beware of low thread counts with a starchy filler, shorter lengths and widths than normally sold, and mis-matched pillow slips and sheets. Prints may be off-grain and stripes woven unevenly. If the purchaser is aware of the defects and the price is correspondingly low, then the sheets may be a good buy. Similarly, seconds may prove to be a good buy if you are aware of the defects. Sometimes they are of first quality and cleared to reduce inventory.

Care of sheets

With proper care and rotation, good sheets should give approximately five years' wear.

Handling Sheets should be rotated in position and use. Each bed should have a supply of six sheets; two in use, two in wash, two in reserve. Beds should be checked for places that may rip sheets. Bed spring corners should be taped; the springs covered with a heavy cloth and the mattress with a pad.

Laundering Mend any tears before laundering and remove all stains. Badly soiled sheets should be pre-soaked in cool water for 15 minutes to loosen dirt which might be set in hot water.

White sheets should be washed in as hot water as can be obtained with a heavy duty soap or synthetic detergent. Solid-coloured and woven-striped sheets require fairly hot water and similar detergents. Printed and embroidered sheets should be washed in warm water. All must be thoroughly rinsed.

When bleaching is required for white sheets, follow directions carefully, adding bleach to water and mixing before adding sheets. Rinse very thoroughly.

Hang sheets lenghtwise with the hemmed edges dropped over the line by about a foot. White sheets may be hung in the sun; coloured in the shade. Do not hang sheets in a whipping wind. Handle frozen sheets carefully as the fibres are brittle and may break easily.

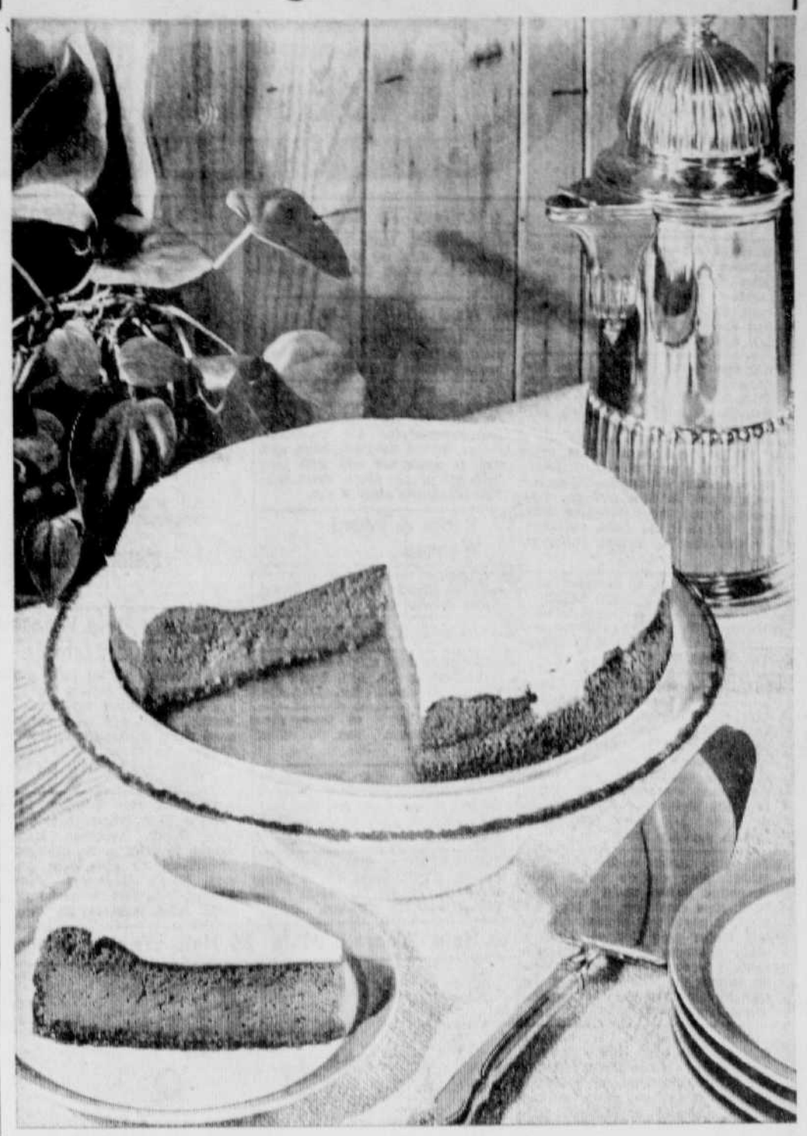

Ironing Do not press directly over folds. Vary your folding system to distribute wear. Always store linens freshly washed and thoroughly dry.

Something new for dessert

MILK CHOCOLATE CHEESE CAKE, made with a base of chocolate pudding and pie filling and a sour cream topping is just the thing to serve at the end of a "fun" gathering at home.

MILK CHOCOLATE CHEESE CAKE

3/4 cup finely crushed graham cracker crumbs, 1 tablespoon sugar, 2 tablespoon butter, melted, 1 large size package chocolate pudding and pie filling, 1/2 cup sugar, 1-1/4 cups light cream, 2 packages (8 ounces each) cream cheese (at room temperature), 4 egg yolks, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1/4 teaspoon salt, 4 egg whites, stiffly beaten, 1 cup sour cream, 1/4 cup icing sugar.

Combine crumbs, 1 tablespoon sugar, and the butter, mixing well. Press mixture on bottom of a 9-inch spring form pan.

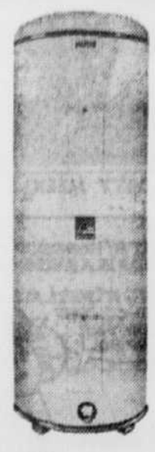

Combine pudding mix, 1/2 cup sugar, and the light cream in a saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat and cover with waxed paper. Stir cream cheese until smooth. Add egg yolks, one at a time, mixing well after each addition. Add cinnamon, vanilla, salt, and pudding; blend well. Fold in beaten egg whites.

Pour over crumb mixture in pan. Bake in slow oven (325°F.) 1 hour and 20 minutes, or until almost firm. Cool to room temperature. Remove sides from pan. Blend sour cream and icing sugar; spread on cheese cake. Place 3 to 5 inches from heat in broiler, using low heat, about 2 minutes, or until shiny but not browned. Chill thoroughly. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Be sure to do it now, buy now

Many families all across Canada are launching plans to step up "livability" of their homes during the current winter employment (Do It Now – Buy Now) campaign.

As the new year gets under way, the subjects of home improvement takes the spotlight of attention in family circles throughout the nation. This is no sudden upsurge of interest, but rather an acceleration of a movement that has been gathering momentum over the past several years.

In 1957 a thumping $15 billion was spent enlarging, remodeling, modernizing or restyling of Canadian homes. It will be remembered that sustained home improvement activities were one of the bright spots of the year in the building and related industries.

Now, with the whole economy moving forward steadily more and more families will take steps to improve their homes, with results which bid fair to push the year's over-all activities in this field to a new high.

To express the basic motivation for home improvements in the simplest possible terms, it might be said to represent the urge for "more of something."

The desire for more space, more convenience, more comfort, more utility, more livability, and/or more beauty is the mainspring of plans for home improvement now being formulated in countless family circles, the country over.

First step in embarking on a program of home improvement is take a long, close look (in which all members of the family should participate) at your house as it now is. Decide what's right with it and what's wrong with it, what you do like about it and what you don't like about it, and finally, just what is needed to bring your house more closely in line with your family's needs (present and future) and desires.

Since it may well be impossible to launch all of the indicated improvements at the same time, a schedule of priorities should be set up in which those projects most urgently needed will be undertaken first, with the others following along in a pre-determined order as financial and other factors may permit.

The important thing, make a start. There is probably no greater error than to postpone doing anything about your house until you can do everything that you would like to do.

Even the simplest and least expensive home improvement can make an immediate contribution to the well-being of the family and can be enjoyed in the interim while other projects in the program await their scheduled "target dates."

By adhering closely to a well conceived long-term plan you can be sure that each project undertaken will co-ordinate with the others and the final result will embody all of the advantages which you envisioned at the outset.

After deciding what you will do first, the next step is how to go about it. If, for instance, you decide that what you need most urgently is more living space, your next move is carefully to appraise all the possibilities which your home affords for achieving this end. Should the basement or attic be finished off to, provide an extra room? Or would it be better to enclose a porch, or perhaps to build an additional wing to your home? And, in each case, what will it cost? How much, if any, of the work can you advantageously do yourself, and how much of it should be left to professionals?

Depending on the scope of your project, you will probably employ either a specialized contractor (such as plumber, mason, electrician, roofer etc.) or a general contractor who will do all the carpentry and sub-contract the masonry work, heating, wiring plumbing, roofing or whatever else is required.

In the latter case, you will make one over-all payment to the general contractor, covering the work he does, together with that done by the sub-contractor.

How can you go about choosing the general or specialized contractors required for your project? Many of them advertise in the newspaper. Practically all of them are listed in the classified pages of the telephone directory. You can also check with your local bank or home loan company. Often, too, you will find that a lumber company or building supply company has its own list of contractors and artisans whom it recommends.

Once you have selected your general or specialized contractors, you will find their practical advice of great assistance in planning your project wisely and well.

In any event, be sure to get written estimates covering in detail just what work is to be done and what it is to cost.

Do it Now – Buy Now two slogans which can contribute to a surge in the Canadian economy.

WHILE MEN & MATERIALS ARE AVAILABLE!

You can help the nation-wide "Do It Now" campaign by having any of the following jobs done while skilled help is available and materials plentiful?

DO YOU WANT THESE JOBS DONE NOW?

DECORATION — Is it time for a change of scene in any or all your rooms via paint and wallpaper? It is amazing how a comparatively small amount invested in paint or wallpaper can make a room "wake up and sing."

LIGHTING — Study the present lighting in every room in your home. Is it adequate? Does it set off your furniture and furnishings to the best advantage? It is estimated that 80% of all Canadian homes are inadequately lighted, which certainly points up the importance of giving this subject careful attention.

BATHROOM — How about modernizing it with new fixtures, new wall tile or flooring? Or does your family really need an extra bathroom or lavatory, and is there space available for the purpose?

KITCHEN — Does it leave much to be desired on the score of efficiency or appearance — or both? Check it for needed cabinets, flooring, appliances, redecoration.

BASEMENT — Does the foundation need waterproofing? How about built-in facilities to hide those unsightly pipes? Should waste space in this area be panelled off to create an attractive family rumpus room?

Rockets edge Olympics in overtime, Beavers-Vics tie

Maurice Vachon tallies winner as Poliquin squad posts 4-3 victory, Claude Groulx standout for Rockets

DRUMMONDVILLE — Maurice Vachon scored a goal at the eighth minute mark of the overtime period here last night to give the Drummondville Rockets a 4-3 victory over the Montreal Olympics.

The game was played before the smallest crowd of the season, at the Drummondville Arena. The win marked the third consecutive victory for the Rockets.

The Montreal team showed up very well, and held an advantage in the play throughout the game. It was only the fine work of Claude Groulx, in the Drummondville net, that saved the Rockets from defeat. He stopped 42 shots, many of them dangerous ones.

Fern Lemay and Paul-Emile Michelin were not in uniform for the Rockets. Lester Lahaye was playing after missing the last five games.

Claude Richard missed some almost sure goals on at least four occasions for the Olympics. He missed the open net and hit both goal posts. The puck didn't seem to be rolling for the team from the Metropolis.

The Rockets opened the scoring when Raymond Fortin scored on a high shot at the 15 minute mark of the first period.

The Olympics opened with a bang in the second period, scoring after only 20 seconds of play. Latreille got the goal. In the hectic third period, each team scored twice to force the overtime period.

Lester LaHaye scored for Drummondville after getting a teammate's rebound. Claude Richard tied the game a few minutes later when he scored on a power play. With only a minute and fifteen seconds left to play, Claude Aubry scored again for Drummondville but the Olympics came right back with Labrose getting the tying goal fifteen seconds later.

In the overtime, Vachon fired a hard shot after taking passes from Michelin and Desy, to score the winning goal.

The Drummondville victory, coupled with the tie game between the Beavers and the Vics in Sherbrooke, leaves the Rockets 5 points back of the league leading Granby team.

By virtue of their loss the Olympics are now in last place in the league standings.

Jr. Canucks stopped by Peterborough

Pit Martin of Hamilton Red Wings scored three goals Thursday night as Wings defeated St. Catharine's Teepees 6-3 in Ontario Hockey Association Junior A play.

Lowell MacDonald got assists on Martin's three goals and scored one himself.

In the other league game Peterborough Petes beat Montreal Junior Canadiens 4-3.

Ladies advance in Provincial curling event

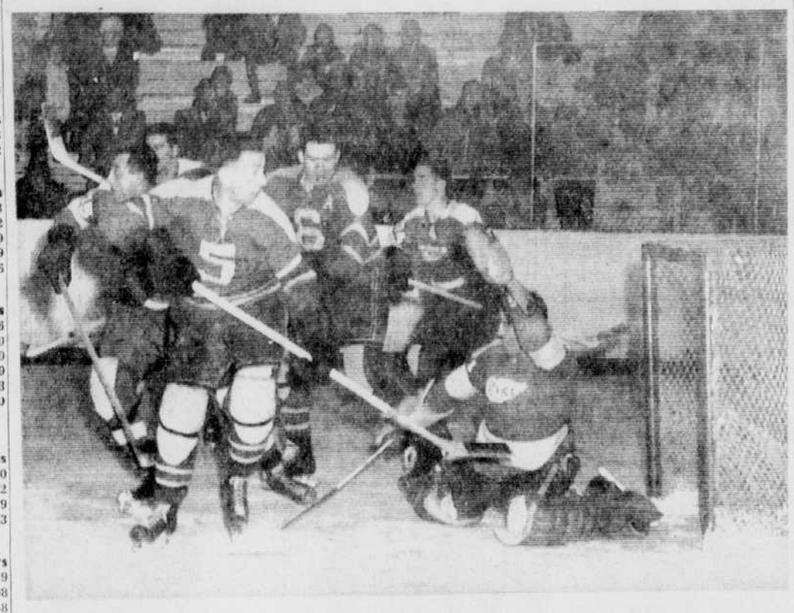

Mrs. A. W. Kerridge's Sherbrooke rink won a berth in the Silver "D" Curling Championships when they swept aside all opposition in three straight games in the local playdowns.

The finals are slated today in St. Lambert and the Sherbrooke quartet meets Mrs. H. J. McMahon of Ormstown. The winner of this series will earn a berth in the Provincial finals slated at Three Rivers next month.

Mrs. Kerridge's rink downed Mrs. L. Styan of Magog, Miss E. McMurray of Danville and Mrs. A. Michaud of Windsor. Mrs. F. J. Sangster, Mrs. R. J. Quintin and Mrs. G. Deslie comprise the local foursome.

CLOSE CALL — Real Rousseau, left, has Andy Payette of Granby down on his knees but the Sherbrooke winger's shot hit the goal post to remain out of the net. It was a tough break for the fleet-footed winger.

PAYETTE SAVES — The Granby netminder is forced to his knees but despite this he came up with a beautiful save to rob Gilles Dube, number five, from a sure goal as the Beavers are seen forcing the play. (Photo by Gerry Lemay)

Jacques Plante stars as Canucks win

It was a night for great goaltending in the National Hockey League Thursday.

In Montreal, Toronto Maple Leafs furiously outshot and outskated Montreal Canadiens in an attempt to hang on to the NHL's first place, but were thwarted 4-2 when goalie Jacques Plante turned in one of his best games ever.

In Boston, Chicago's invincible Glenn Hall turned in his fifth shutout of the season as the Hawks whipped the last-place Boston Bruins 6-0. Hall, who has never missed a game since he moved up to the NHL six years ago, coolly blocked 24 shots to become the league's shutout leader this season.

He is one ahead of Detroit's Terry Sawchuk, who has four.

The Toronto - Montreal game was judged critical by coaches of both teams. The rapidly-improving Leafs took over first place from Montreal by one point Wednesday night and could have stretched their lead to three with a win Thursday.

GO ALL OUT

They went all out, buzzing around the Montreal net all through the first and second periods, but couldn't get past Plante.

Carl Brewer of the Leafs was in the penalty box when Dickie Moore scored to put Montreal ahead 1-0 in the first period. Toronto outshot Montreal 14-9, and almost all the Montreal sallies were weak.

In the second period the Leafs outshot Montreal 16-7, but little Bobby Rousseau made it 2-0 for Montreal. Knocked down by Toronto defenceman Bobby Baun, Rousseau kept trying and as he was toppling over stretched out to poke a loose puck into the net past Leafs' goaler Johnny Bower.

In the third period, fairly even in the play, Henri Richard and Don Marshall increased the Canadiens lead to 4-0 before Dave Keon finally cracked Plante's armor at 12:58.

Keon fired a blazing 10-footer and Plante got a piece of it, but the puck had enough momentum left to roll past him into the net. Veteran Bert Olmstead followed up the goal 30 seconds later with the night's bets play. He took the puck behind his own net and twisted through the whole Montreal team to beat Plante with another quick 10-footer.

In all, Plante made 39 saves and Bower 25.

At Boston, Hall had less work to do as he blocked 24 shots and led Chicago to a third-place tie with New York Rangers. Each team now has 38 points, but Rangers have one game in hand.

The scoring was well spread. Bronco Horvath scored two goals and Bobby Hull, Reg Fleming, Bob Turner and replacement Chico Maki once each.

Hull added three assists and defenceman Pierre Pilote also had three assists.

ERNIE BANKS SIGNS

CHICAGO (AP) — Shortstop Ernie Banks has signed his 1962 National League contract, Chicago Cubs announced today. The Cubs have 6 players in the fold.

Joe Lacoursiere star of fray but Andy Payette was his usual self, Laplante and Picard are marksmen

Sherbrooke Beavers and Granby Vics battled to a 1-1 deadlock last night at the Arena before 1,000 fans and the Dube crew moved into sole possession of third place in the E. T. Intermediate Hockey League. The game commenced in a listless manner as both teams seemed to be roaming all around and were running into each other but finally half way through the middle session they settled down and the fans witnessed a fast-open battle.

Joe Lacoursiere and Andy Payette were the stars of the fray as both came up with spectacular saves in the battle. The masked man for the locals had a total of 41 shots fired at him compared to 26 blocked by the Vics' top netminder.

It was slow-starting affair as both clubs didn't get into the thick of things until the second frame. Checking was close on both sides as players were off balance and the goalies had only a few tough ones to handle.

Real Rousseau had a wonderful opportunity of putting the Beavers in the front when he broke in on Payette alone. The Sherbrooke winger drove a rolling puck which hit the goal post on the right and then slid across on the line to connect with the other. It was a tough break and it would have made a big difference in the game.

Lacoursiers had a close call from Samson when he rifled a tough one but the agile Sherbrooke net boy came up with the disc. Gilles Dube and his line mates were having trouble as time after time their shots were deflected when it seemed they were headed for the net.

The first goal of the game came just before the half way mark. Ray Laplante was the marksmen for the Vics. The faceoff was in Sherbrooke's end and the veteran pivot man outplayed his man to chalk up the goal.

Laplante drew the faceoff and then deked a defensemen to walk in on Lacoursiere, who had no chance on the shot, to make the red light flash. It was a nice play by Laplante but poor covering on the part of the defense.

Payette came up with a save in front of the net on a scramble as he stole the disc from Dube. Charbonneau was in but again Lacoursiere picked off his effort.

Just after the start of the third period Gilles Dube finally managed to put his winger in. Dube broke in on right wing, drew the Granby defense over and laid a perfect pass on Roger Picard's stick and the husky winger made no mistake as he batted the disc into the net.

Gilles Bedard and Gilles Dube went off for roughing at this point as both commenced to push each other around while going for a faceoff. Real Rousseau and Andre Black were both close when both teams got back to even strength but failed to click.

The teams were flying at this point but the goalies came up with the saves to ease the situation. The Beavers were having tough luck around the net. In the overtime Bert Bourassa came up with the big save for the locals when he smothered a shot at the empty net.

Lacoursiere had made a big save and was to the side when Bourassa stepped into the breach. Black saved what could have been the deciding tally when Mentis got in behind him. He drew a penalty for pulling him down but there was no penalty-shot although the Vics claimed there should have been one. The referee ruled that it didn't bother him as Mentis got his shot away first.

Miners defeat Paper Makers 8-4 to take over top spot in league, Border Jets edge Magog Aces 4-3

Asbestos Miners defeated the Windsor Paper Makers 8-4 last night and moved into sole possession of first place in the St. Francis Intermediate Hockey League.

In the other league game, the Rock Island Jets getting brilliant goaltending from Real Provencher defeated the Magog Aces 4-3 and moved to within one point of third place.

In Asbestos the Lavigne, Perron and Drouin line starred. Lavigne scored three goals, Drouin picked up three assists and Perron executed two successful passes. The other scorers for the Miners were Champagne, with two, Belisle, Y. Patry and C. Patry.

Ben Lapierre was the best for the losers, scoring two goals. Dubois and Spenard notched the other Paper Maker's goals.

The game was marked with a rock-and-sock-em style of play. Champagne was the bad man of the game, as he picked up 11 minutes in penalties before the evening was over.

Majella Dubois, the red-headed speedster for Windsor, impressed everybody, with his speed and play-making ability. He was on the ice a total of 35 minutes during the game.

In Magog a goal by Gerry Menard with only three minutes left in the game gave the Border Jets a hard-earned 4-3 victory over the Magog Aces. The game was played at the Magog Arena and was witnessed by some 450 fans.

The Jets rammed in three quick goals in the first period before the Aces were able to break through with a goal of their own. In the second Magog notched the lone tally to bring the count to 3-2. In the third, Magog scored first to tie the game before Menard came through with his winning goal. Gilbert with two, Beaudoin and Menard were the marksmen for the Jets. Dubois, Begin and Vachon scored the Magog goals.

The Jets were originally supposed to play the Richmond Braves but because of a fire at the Richmond Arena after a recent game when the Braves lost a good part of their equipment; the move was made.

Warm-up exercises to limber up your muscles and speed up your reactions are necessary for a good performance. In fact they may take a good half a second from your start.

Touching your head to your knees is one of many calisthenics commonly used before a race. However, my favorite method is to find myself a small steep area away from the course then see how many quick turns I can put into 20 feet. This is more of a jump than a turn. Double poling is most effective here as the upper body stays always in the fall line (see illustration). When climbing around at the start climb quickly and breathe deeply. Don't over-exert yourself but when you move don't be lazy about it.

Breathing is very necessary, of course, but oddly enough we tend to hold our breath for the first 30 seconds or so of a race. Then we are using borrowed oxygen from the body which results in a below par performance. This is why most athletes breathe with a slight whistle during a competition. They are then aware of their breathing habits at all times. (TNS)

Tummy turmoil on eat-and-run days?

Probably—but you don't have to suffer heartburn or acid indigestion! Not when you keep TUMS handy. Just eat one or two of these mild, minty tablets—no water or glass needed—and get fast relief from stomach discomfort. No after-taste with TUMS. Take TUMS any time, any place. Carry a roll in your purse or pocket. And TUMS cost so little.

The Record's Farm Report

TOWN and COUNTRY
Farming, Gardening and Building

By DR. M. A. MacDONALD
Macdonald College

Winter exerts an effect on our farm livestock in two principal ways.

First, the blanket of snow and cold weather denies them access to pasture and other forages which form the major portion of their diet during the spring, summer and autumn seasons.

Second, low temperatures place an additional strain on farm livestock, which, as warm blooded animals, must maintain body temperatures through body mechanisms which increase cold tolerance. These include removing water from the circulatory system, constriction of the blood vessels near the hide, huddling, slower rates of breathing, a faster heart beat, shivering, a thicker coat of hair or wool and an increased rate of feed consumption. Collectively, all these adjustments are termed acclimatization.

To determine the exact needs of farm animals in cold climates it is necessary to understand the principles of many sciences and their complex inter-relationships.

It is for this reason that, although we spend about half the year wintering our animals and a good portion of the remainder of the year preparing feed and housing in anticipation of the next winter, less is known about wintering animals than most of the other phases of animal production.

Let's consider a few of the phases of winter management, starting with livestock housing for swine, dairy cattle, beef and sheep.

Many years stockmen housed their livestock on the principle that temperatures that were most comfortable for the stockman were also the best for his livestock. More recent information has shown this is not necessarily so. Some examples will suffice:

SWINE

Studies in thhe United States have shown that pigs weighing 100 pounds gain most rapidly and efficiently in air temperatures of 75°, whereas pigs weighing 200 pounds find 75 degrees too hot for rapid and efficient weight gains. They do best in buildings heated to only 60° F.

DAIRY CATTLE

Dairy cattle are unable to produce well at temperatures which are either too high or too low. When the barn temperature goes up past 60°F. both milk and butterfat yield decline. Holstein cows at the University of Saskatchewan suffered no decline in milk by increasing the hay intake as temperatures went down below freezing to 25°F.

However even the extra feed intake could not compensate when the barn temperatures went below 25°F. and at 10°F the rate of decline in milk yield was four times as great as it was at 25°F. even though hay consumption increased considerably.

The ideal barn temperatures for dairy cows range between 40° and 60°.

BEEF CATTLE

Yearling steers fed at the University of Saskatchewan gained half a pound more per day when dry straw bedding was provided than when no bedding was available.

Dry bedding was more important to the production of the animals than shelter even when temperatures are well below zero.

It took approximately three more pounds of grain a day to keep the steers gaining satisfactorily if no bedding was available.

SHEEP

Not much is known of the temperature tolerance of sheep except that if newborn lambs are permitted to chill, their chance of survival is very low.

It may be seen that some animals need only the most elementary protection.

Now let's consider winter feeding of farm livestock.

In a broadcast of this duration it would be totally impossible to discuss uses for each of the home grown feeds available in Quebec. Fortunately, principles of nutrition apply to all classes of animals.

Remembering that yearling heifers, of both dairy and beef breeds, weaned beef calves and replacement ewe lambs, and dry cows in the first two-thirds of pregnancy are relatively unproductive and should be fed little more than a maintenance ration composed mainly of the hay and silage which is so abundantly harvested in Quebec.

Studies have shown that pregnant animals need no extra feed during the first two-thirds of pregnancy, hence there is no need to fatten these animals on feed which is so expensive to harvest similarly it was found that animals which were restricted in feed intake during the winter made greater and cheaper gains the following summer than animals which were full fed all winter.

It was also found that there was no sacrifice in conformation or market grade because of the feed curtailment.

Meat animals that are to be wintered should be fed to gain slowly during the winter unless they are to go directly from the feedlot to the packers.

Mention has been made of the minimum feed requirements for livestock during the first two-third of pregnancy.

In the last third of pregnancy the situation changes because it is during this period that formation of the foetus is quite complete and growth rate increases rapidly. To meet this lemand the best of the hay crop should be fed to the pregnant females, silage feeding should be restricted or eliminated and where necessary protein and energy intakes increased.

This is particularly true of sheep where ewes produce far heavier offspring relative to body weight than either cattle or swine.

The winter feeding of lactating dairy cattle is governed to such a large degree by levels of production that the only nutritional changes are that silage and hay replace pasture in the diet.

One feature of the winter management of farm livestock that is often neglected is drinking water and its availability.

It has been established that for every pound of feed consumed by animals in cold or moderate temperatures, farm animals drink four or five pounds of water.

Thus when animals must eat more feed to keep warm in cold weather they also need more water. The water should also be heated sufficiently to remove the chill so that animals are able to consume large quantities at a time.

If insufficient water is available the result is that feed intake is reduced and consequently production decreases.

The importance of winter housing, nutrition and water for farm livestock have been reviewed in brief. Each must be adequately controlled and managed if efficient animal production is to be realized.

Do-it-yourself

Grease, oil save tools from archenemy, rust

By MR. FIX

Nothing ages a new tool as quickly as rust.

Rust cuts down on the efficiency of the best tool. It also offers evidence that your basement isn't as dry as you thought.

There are a variety of rust preventatives. Pick one or more to protect your investment in tools.

Obviously, before measures can be taken to prevent rust, you must remove all existing rust.

BRIGHTEN METAL

Steel wool or emery cloth will brighten metal surfaces in a hurry. Emery cloth works best over a large working area, the blade of a handsaw for example.

Steel wool works well on small objects and irregular shapes.

You can hurry the action of steel wool by applying a few drops of cutting oil to it or to the surface on which you are working.

LIGHT FORMATIONS

There are commercial rust removers that are fine for light formations of rust. Follow the manufacturer's instructions in each case. Some people use ammonium citrate, available in most drug stores, to soak off rust. Apply and let stand for about 30 minutes before rubbing off.

In cleaning up saw blades—hand or power—be sure to remove all pitch that the blade picks up when cutting lumber.

OIL COATING

Tools that are not used often, or are not handled extensively, can be protected with a light coat of oil. Drill bits can be wrapped in oily rags. Petroleum jelly or light grease can be applied with a cloth to the blade of your power saw or to wood bits.

A few drops of oil in small jars of screws will keep them free from rust now, and later when they are in use as well.

PASTE 'EM

Some of the best protection possible is offered by a product you probbaly already have on hand—ordinary paste wax.

It offers several advantages over oil and grease. It can be handled afterwards, dust and dirt will not stick to it. Spread it over power saw tables, the base of any wood plane and on hammer heads. Paraffin can also be used in much the same way. Apply and wipe off excess.

GREASE HEAVY

Heavy grease can be used on the metal ends of garden tools before putting them in storage. It can be applied easily and it will remove itself once you start using the tool again.

In addition to these rust preventive measures, take steps to cut down the amount of moisture where you keep your tools. Use moisture absorbing chemicals, ventilate the area thoroughly in dry weather by opening windows. Check tools during long periods when they are not in use.

Safe storage for vegetables

Handy tips for the successful storage of vegetables for winter use are given by R. H. Anderson of the Canada Department of Agriculture's experimental farm at Melfort, Sask.

For instance: Leave the stems on pumpkin, squash and vegetable marrow and store at 60°F. for ten days before final storage in a dry place at 40 to 50°F.

Root vegetables should be stored at 36 to 38°F. in dry sand if the storage is damp, and in slightly dampened sand if the storage is dry.

Dry onions thoroughly at high temperatures and keep them in shallow boxes in a dry atmosphere at 33 to 40°F.

Store potatoes in salted bins at 38 to 40°F. and do not expose them to light.

Store a few cabbages by suspending them by the roots; for larger quantities use slatted shelves and remove the roots and outer leaves.

All vegetables intended for used from storage should first be sound, dry and mature and if some do not keep well despite all precautions, the fault may be with the variety.

Farm Forum Activities

IVES HILL AND DRAPER'S CORNER

The Guide questionnaire brought forth these ideas at the Ives Hill, Draper's Corner farm forum meeting.

Increase in services might include English forestry club, home economics and at 21 years of age, some more advanced farm organization provided.

Leadership training carried out by emphasis on group training, with more help from former members, parents showing more interest, and encouragement from agronomes would be a help.

Leaders do not receive the recognition and encouragment they deserve. It was suggested that for those agriculturally inclined some subjects in school cirriculum unnecessary for those who will be farmers substituted by agricultural subjects.

There are not too many organizations locally and this forum thinks a few well attended and interest shown is better than too many with just the idea of some where to spend an evening.

A note of thanks is to be sent to Milby W.I. for donation toward Radio for India, and secretary was asked to ascertain the deadline for sending our contribution.

Discussion on next 4th night card party Mr. and Mrs. L. Langlois of Huntingville offered their home for it.

Mr. Green reported that Mr. MacDougall wished farm forum to be part of committee on rural development.

The host and hostess Mr. and Mrs. Ian Kirby served lunch.

The next regular meeting will be at the Sylvester home at Waterville.

THIRD RANGE

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm McLeod entertained the Third Range Farm Forum for the 1st meeting of the New Year on January 8th with an attendance of 20.

A very good and interesting broadcast was listened to on proved?"

The Greenleaf was read and the following questions discussed: Should 4-H provide further services for young people? What are they? How can they be carried out?

Proper leadership was suggested and more encouragement from the parents, the agronomes and the community.

How can local volunteer leadership in 4-H be further developed?

It could be further developed through a good training program.

Are local leaders receiving sufficient recognition?

There are no leaders in this community so they are not in the position to say.

Should secondary school credits be allowed for some 4-H projects?

Yes, if the program is well developed and the school knows what training is expected.

Are there too many organizations for rural young people or too few?

This community is in a true rural community and find this difficult to answer.

Following the discussion period cards were played at five tables.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by other members.

Next meeting on the 15th Jan. at Mr. and Mrs. Melville ge's, Bulwer.

HIGH AND LOW FOREST

The topic for discussion on Jan. 8th was 4-H Clubs and what do they lack?

It was felt there should be a department in the 4-H for girls to have sewing and handicrafts and more reforestation for the boys with technicians supplied by the Department of Agriculture.

Also more short courses for leaders.

Not enough recognition is given to the leaders. There should be closer co-operation between the Department of Education and the Department of Agriculture.

It was thought it was better to make more use of the clubs the young people had now and they didn't need new organizations.

The meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave with 32 present including 10 4-H members.

Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Macmillan of Cookshire Agronome were present and Mr. Macmillan gave a resume of the 4-H Club from

Farm Forum subject for Jan. 22 broadcast

The topic that many have called "the world's most pressing problem," will be the Farm Forum subject on January 22. The big news this year is that a meaningful step has been taken, with Canada leading the way, toward a World Food Program of real importance.

Moderator of a distinguished panel will be James M. Minifie, journalist and broadcaster from Washington.

Panel members will include Dr. H. H. Hannam, President of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture; Dr. Nathan Keyfitz, Professor of Sociology, University of Toronto; and Mr. C. S. Krishna Moorthi, Economic Minister, Embassy of India, Washington, D.C.

Farm Forum Guides on this subject may be obtained from provincial Farm Forum offices or from National Farm Radio Forum, 113 St. George Street, Toronto 5.

when it was organized to the present time.

He also discussed other topics of interest to Agriculture and 4-H work and said that leadership should be stressed at local level.

The Greenleaf was real. Also two notes of thanks from members who had been remembered when ill.

A social time followed and lunch was served.

The next meeting will be at Mr. and Mrs. Clive Thompson on January 15th.

COOKSHIRE FARM FORUM

Forum met this week at the home of Mrs. E. Clarke with 15 persons present.

The broadcast for the evening was How Can 4-H be improved in which it sought to bring out answers to the following questions:

Should 4-H provide further services? What are they? And how can they be carried out?

4-H work in this area seems to have been confined to calf clubs which consisted of the formation of a club. Its administration, the raising of a calf and the ensuing competition as to who had raised the best calf and the showmanship developed in the boy or girl.

Much credit is due to those who have looked after these clugs but it was thought there are many other skills which could be developed in these young people to their future benefit such as household science, carpentry, mechanics, public speaking and an interest in the fundamentals of local government school and municipal to name a few.

Leadership. If the 4-H programme is to be enlarged then more assistance will need to be given to our agronomes.

In this respect it was believed that more adults who are mentally and intellectually equipped to provide leadership will have to be brought into the work.

It seems that one source for these people should be present 4-H members when they have passed the age limit of member participation.

Secondary school credits be allowed for some projects?

This forum did not wholeheartedly agree on this question but it seems as though it might receive investigation by those who control such matters.

Are there too many organizations for rural young people or too few?

Outside of the organization being carried on by the local churches or schools, 4-H appears to have the field altogether to itself. We think that if their program is more fully developed it can fill all the need in that respect.

SAWYERVILLE

The Sawyerville Farm Forum met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Grapes on Jan. 8 with 15 present plus 4 4-H members.

The topic for discussion was How can 4-H be improved.

The broadcast was listened to and the Guide questions were discussed.

It was thought 4-H should provide more services for young people. These services are home economics and household science. These services could be carried out by teaching agriculture in school.

Local volunteer leadership in 4-H could further be developed by giving a leadership training course at the Experimental Farm. Some felt local leaders were given enough recognition while others felt they were not.

Secondary school credits should be allowed for some 4-H club projects. If Agriculture is to be encouraged it should be taught in school it was felt.

There are not too many organizations for rural young people in this locality.

Forestry club could be reorganized.

There could also be something of more interest to girls such as sewing and cooking.

Following the discussion it was decided to send for a fish price list again this year.

Lunch was served by the hostess.

Next meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lionel Hurd.

HUNTINGVILLE —

New Year's guests of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Suitor were, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Suitor and three sons, Mrs. Frank Tarte, and Mr. Donald Tarte, of Ottawa, Mrs. Mary Raymond, Sherbrooke, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Suitor and sons, Lennoxville.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Suitor were guests Dec. 31, of Mrs. Chauncey Richardson and Mr. Melville Brown, of Bulwer.

Mr. and Mrs. Allan Suitor and son, Bruce, accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Davis, of Coaticook, to Montreal, where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Bennett, on New Year's Day. Mr. and Mrs. Suitor and Bruce were guests the previous day of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Davis, Way's Mills.

CLEVELAND —

To attend the annual meeting of Dairy Farmers

Among the delegates to the annual meeting of Dairy Farmers of Canada, to be held in mid-January at the Mount Royal Hotel in Montreal, are seven prominent Quebec dairymen.

J. K. Dickson of Ormstown, L. P. Poulin of Montreal, Romeo Martin of Montreal, Stanislas Panneton of Trois Rivieres, Philippe Pariseault of Granby, J. B. Lemoine of Montreal and Gilbert Macmillan of Huntingdon are directors of the 350,000 member national dairy producer group.

They will be among the contingent from Quebec who will meet with other farm leaders to consider the problems and opportunities confronting the dairy farmer in 1962.

General sessions of the meeting will last for three days, commencing January 16th.

Undoubtedly, the foremost topic will be that of marketing and possible steps that can be taken to bring added stability to this aspect of dairy farming.

An unusual feature of the meeting is the fact that it will be conducted in both English and French simultaneously.

An instantaneous translation arrangement will mean that all delegates, no matter which language is being spoken from the rostrum, will be able to follow all parts of the program.

Thirty seven regional and provincial dairy organizations and the four dairy breed associations are affiliated with Dairy Farmers of Canada which is regarded as the national voice of the dairy farmer.

Your garden

Plan with a catalogue

By MARGARET E. DOVE

Gardening interests and activities tend to diminish during the mid - winter season. However, as the new seed catalogues arrive with their descriptions of the many new introductions, the gardener finds himself eagerly scanning their pages, and begins to anticipate once again the arrival of another gardening season.

It is during these winter months when gardening activities are limited that we find the leisure hours for planning additions and changes to our gardens.

The catalogues will be found to give much valuable gardening information.

They definitely aid the gardener in the creating of better gardens and many an excellent garden has grown from the catalogue's practical suggestions.

CONTINUOUS COLOR

For example, our Ontario nurseries describe the cultural needs of perennials, their size of growth and time of blooming.

They list shrubs suitable for almost any site or purpose, and by an intelligent careful selection of plant material from such catalogues flowering shrubs may be selected to give a succession of bloom from early spring to late fall and ever-green shrubs to contribute contracts with pleasing color and form as well as interest during winter months.

Each year a completely new look can be given the garden simply by the use of annuals trying out new varieties with different color arrangements for special effects.

ALL THAT'S NEW

All the new 1962 introductions as well as the more common annuals are to be found in the seed catalogues.

For instance, we read: "Burpee's Super Tetra snapdragons, giant ruffled, exceptionally fine new strain of the popular Tetra snaps with extra large flowers flared or ruffled, well placed on long massive spikes; colors, white, yellow, orange, crimson, rose pink."

Larkspurs are among the most colorful of the early flowering annuals. Two 1962 introductions are Flamingo Super Imperial and White Swan Super Imperial.

The flowers on these plants are said to be fully double and almost two inches across.

SOW EARLY

The seed of larkspur must be sown as early in the spring as possible for it requires cool weather for good germination and vigourous growth. The small plants resent transplanting. It is therefore best to sow the seed in a permanent location.

At this season it is interesting to work out color groupings on paper. For the sunny border there are enough petunias, zinnias and marigolds listed in the catalogues to plan with each so many changes that any one of these flowers need never become tiresome.

This year more skiers than ever head for the slopes

Residents of the Eastern Townships and northern Vermont are in the enviable position of having skiing facilities right at their back doors.

With many ski areas in operation in the Eastern Townships and at least three more in northern Vermont skiers never have far to go to enjoy their favorite sport.

Two of the newest ski areas are Glen Mountain and East Angus. The East Angus resort has yet to be officially opened but already it is in full swing with pomalift, chalet and large parking lot as well as excellent slopes.

Glen Mountain is also in its first season. Located only four miles east of Knowlton in the scenic Bolton Glen it has two T-bars with slopes totaling 4,900 feet and a vertical drop of 1,050.

Mount Sutton is another up and coming resort. The slopes are equipped with a double chair lift and T-bar. There are five miles of trails and artificial snow facilities make ideal skiing always a certainty.

Since 1959, Sherbrooke skiers have been able to enjoy the sport in the city, with the construction of a new ski-trail and Pomalift in the West Ward on the slopes of the mountain near the illuminated cross.

The lift, which is about 1,500 feet long, takes skiers to an altitude of 1,300 feet from where they can start down the slopes, which are constantly policed by a volunteer ski patrol.

For those who desire more of a challenge, its less than a half-hour drive to the Hillcrest ski centre. Green Timber Mountain is 9 miles from Sherbrooke.

In spots, the hills are from 20 to 45 degrees steep, and are furnished with five tows, including a Pomalift of 2,500 feet.

Only twenty-two miles from Sherbrooke on Route 1 is Mount Orford, the site of the 1958 Canadian Olympic Ski Trials. It has been described by ski authorities as having one of the best potentials of any winter vacation area in Eastern Canada.

The site of Mt. Orford is one of the most picturesque and best adapted for all types of skiing. With its miles of trails, each one with its particular advantage, it is inevitable that it will one day be one of the most popular ski centres in North America.

What does Mt. Orford have to offer? The answer may be summed up in the following sentence. Cordiality, security, all types of skiing, well-kept slopes, competent administration, picturesque scenery, a long ski season and adequate means of transport.

South of the border are three well-known centres which have rapidly gained in popularity with Eastern Townships skiers during recent years.

The Burke Mountain Ski Area in the Darling State Park of Vermont is only a one and one half hour drive from Sherbrooke.

It is located near East Burke, Vt. on Ct. Route 114 and can be reached over a new hard-surfaced road recently completed by the State of Vermont.

All trails on the mountain have been improved during the past two years and several new cutoff and connecting trails have been cut.

Trails include two for the expert, two for the intermediate and three for the novice skier.

A popular addition last year was the addition of a well-stocked Ski Shop near the Base Station. Skiers can also have repairs made to equipment in the new repair shop.

Accommodations are plentiful and a full twenty-four hour information service is available.

Second of the three American centres is Stowe, Vermont, recently featured in a large national ski publication as a "quality" ski centre.

With extensive lift facilities able to handle 4,920 skiers an hour, Stowe calls itself the "Ski Capital of the East."

At the famed Sepp Ruschp Ski School, there are over 30 instructors who assist director Kerr Sparks.

Two peaks, Mt. Mansfield and Spruce Peak, offer widely varied skiing. Mt. Mansfield with a height of 4,393 ft. has a maximum skiing elevation of 4,070 ft. and a maximum vertical drop of 2,800 feet.

Spruce Peak has a height of 3,300 feet with a maximum skiing elevation of 3,300 feet and maximum vertical drop of 2,550 ft.

Sixty miles from Sherbrooke via Route 5, 105 and 101 is the Jay Peak Ski Area.

Trails here are suited to all types of skiers. The Montreal Trail, over two miles long, allows the beginner to swing down and enjoy his favorite winter sport. The Heaven Road and the Sweetheart Trail are also designed to improve the skill of beginners. The United Nations Express, the Haynes Trail and the new and recently opened Kitzhubel run are a challenge to all intermediate and expert skiers.

Uphill facilities consist of a Pomalift and a T-bar lift, capable of handling almost 2,000 skiers an hour.

And there is the Walter Foeger ski school with a large staff of instructors teaching the Natur Teknik system, which eliminates any kind of snowplow or steming.

Program for the ski season

Pierre Alain, Canadian Amateur Ski Association, Quebec Division President, and President of the Mount Orford Ski Club, listed the following, as the main amateur ski activities to be held in the Eastern Townships this winter. Jean Guy Ferland of Thetford Mines is the Eastern Townships Zone President for this term.

Jan. 13 — Invitation Meet sponsored by the City of Sherbrooke on Mount Bellevue; downhill and slalom.

Jan. 14 — Invitation Meet, Victoriaville, sponsored by Dow Breweries Ltd.; giant slalom with two runs.

Jan. 21 — Invitation, Thetford Mines (Mt. Ascot), sponsored by Dow Breweries, open to all competitors; downhill only.

Feb. 10 and 11 — Eastern Townships Alpine Championships, Mt. Sutton, sponsored by the Mount Sutton Ski Club; downhill on 10, slalom on 11.

Feb. 17 and 18 — Southern Canada Power Championship Races, Green Timber Mountain, open to juniors and women only; downhill 17, slalom 18.

Mar. 17 and 18 — Adams Memorial championships, which is an international racing event, recognized by the International Federation of Skiing, Mount Orford, sponsored by the Canadian Amateur Ski Association, and organized by the Mount Orford Ski Club, open to seniors, juniors and ladies; downhill two runs 17, slalom two runs 18.

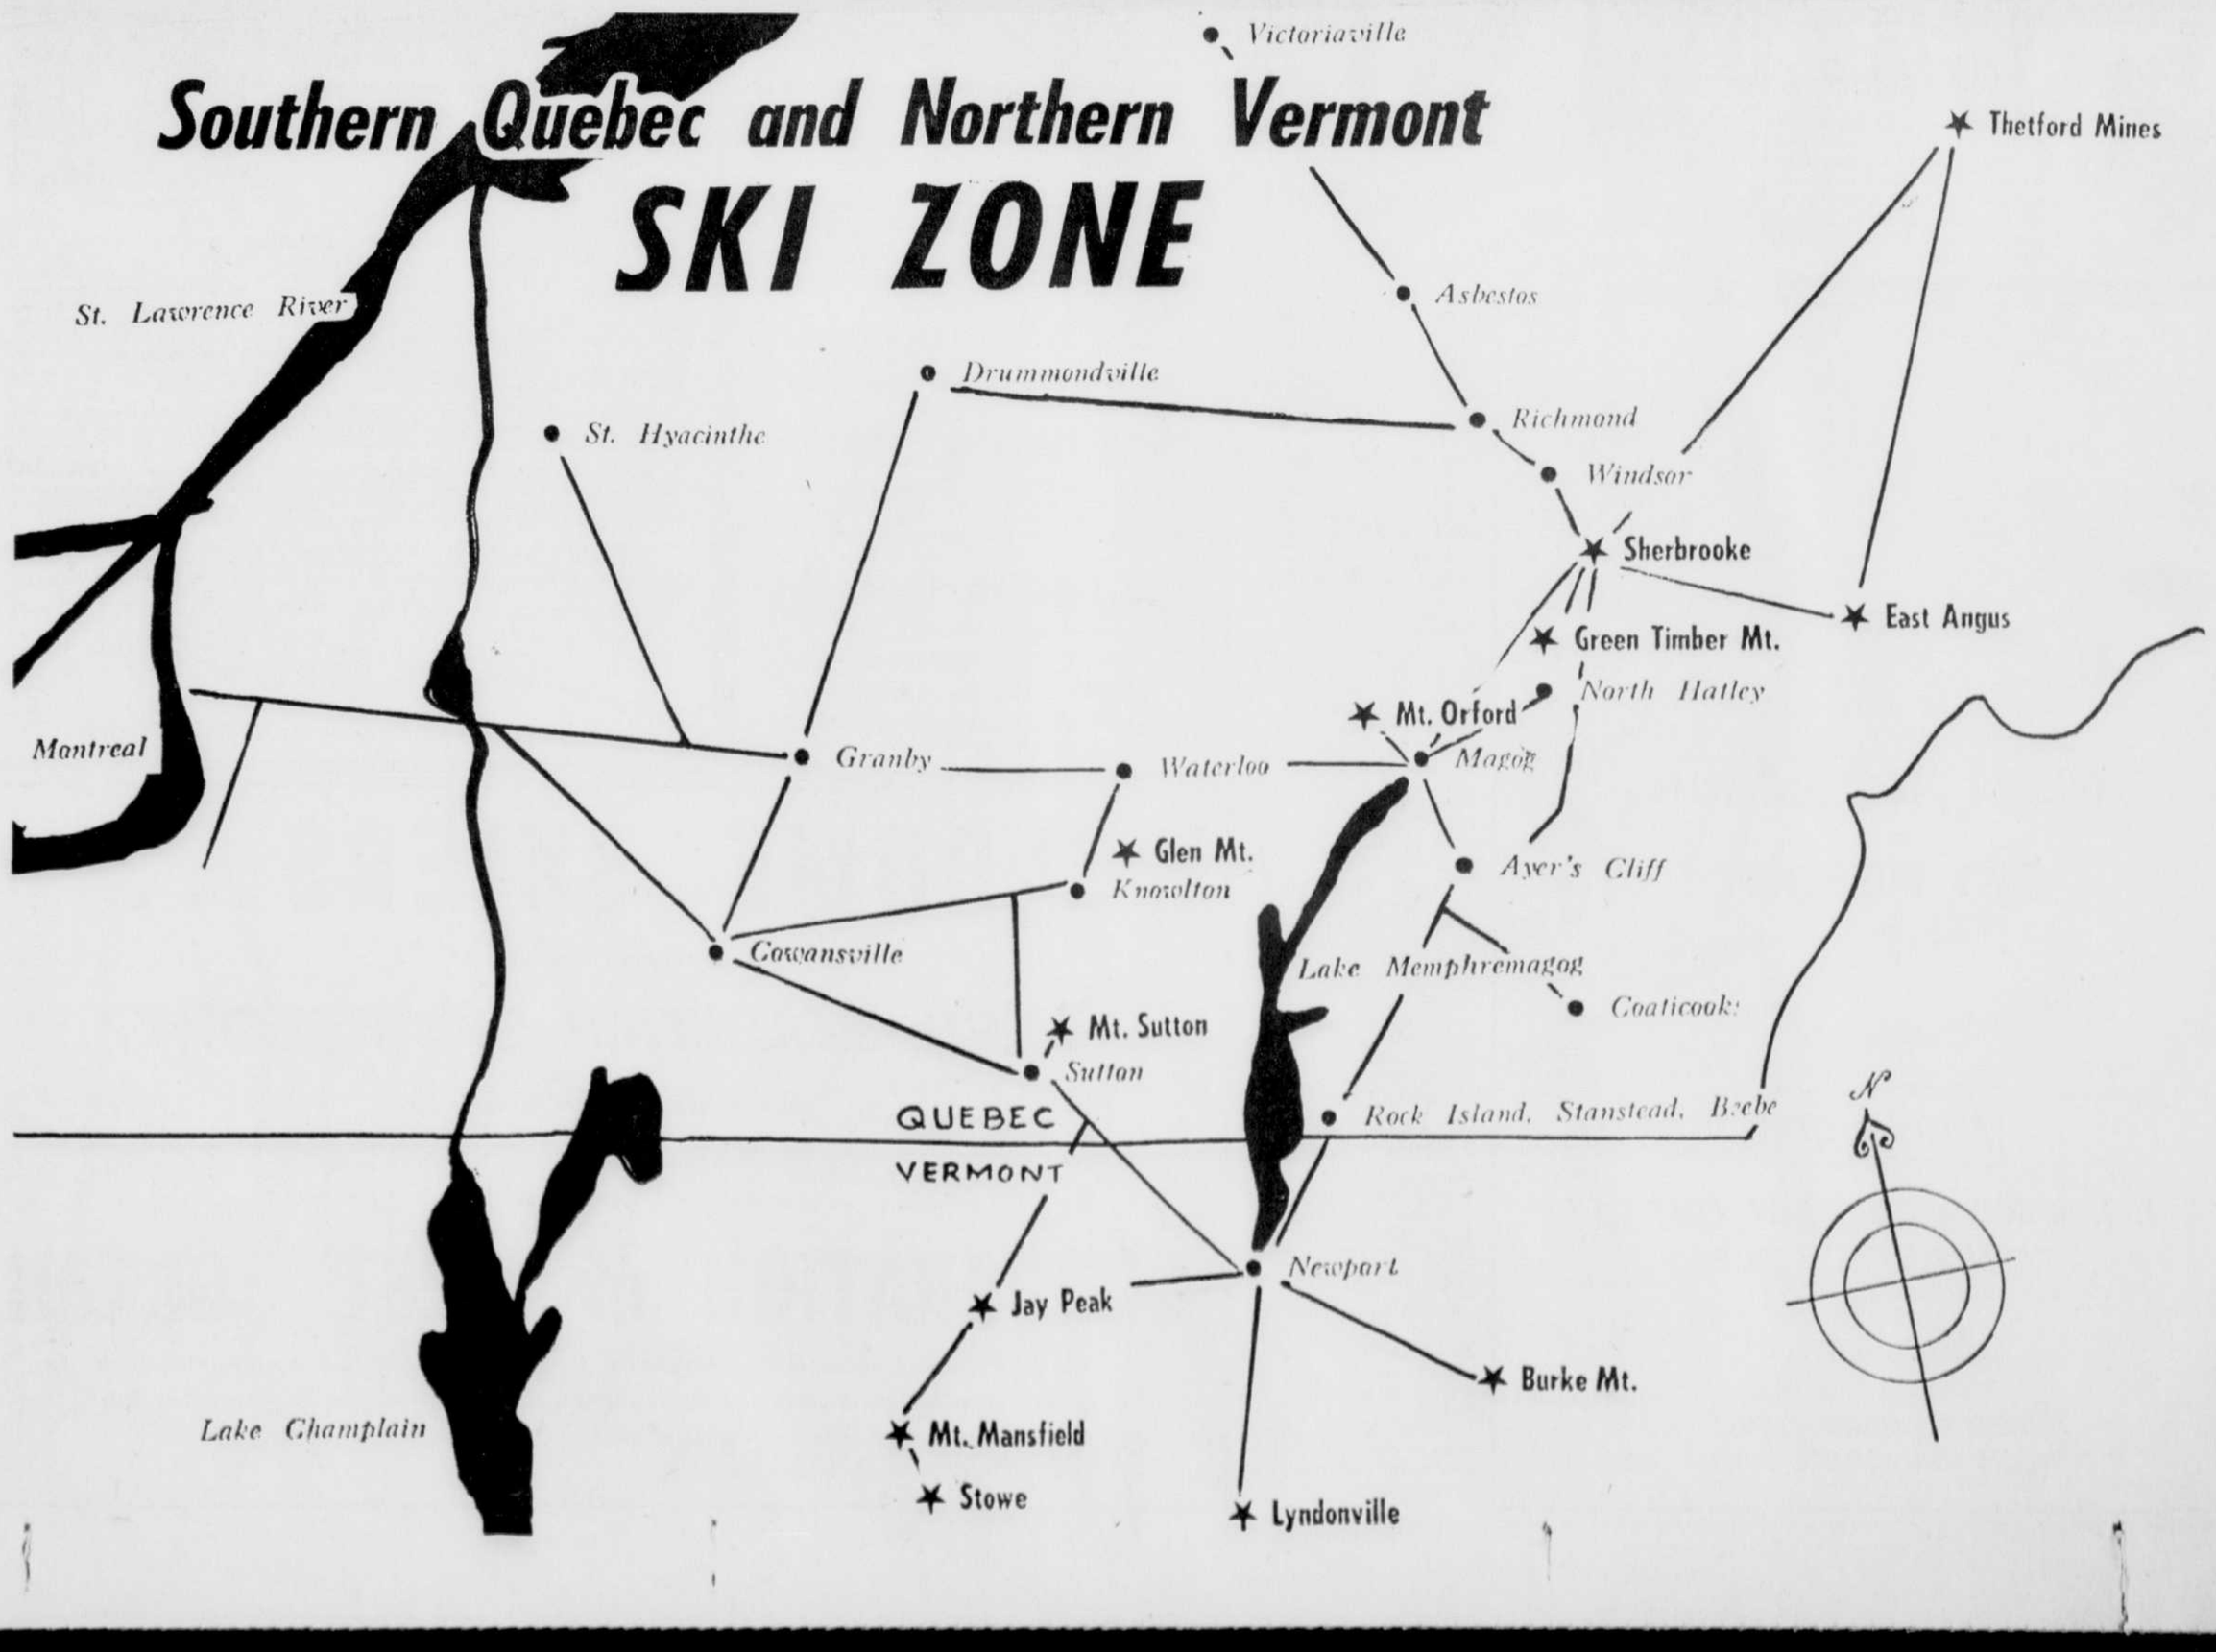

The Adams Memorial is considered one of Canada's top four ski events of each season, the other three being the Candahar and Ryan Cup held at Mt. Tremblant, and the Canadian Championships being held this year at Kimberly, British Columbia. This latter event was held at Mount Orford last year.

Mar. 25 — Invitation, Mt. Sutton; plans are for a giant slalom.

There are two professional events in Quebec this winter, the main one being the Canadian Professional race, being held at Mount Orford on February 24 and 25. This event is considered one of the continent's leading ski races, and will see some of the world's best skiers entered.

Skiing at Glen Mountain is full of pleasure, thrills for the expert and novice

Resort is the result of much hard work

Twenty years ago if you had told seven farmers at Bolton Glen that their area was to be turned into a ski resort, they would have laughed at you, and when G. C. Rotherham suggested such a project back in 1955, his proposal got very much the same treatment.

But, convinced that such a project was necessary to this area, Mr. Rotherham, encouraged by his wife pursued his dream until its present day reality.

On retiring from the Royal Canadian Navy, Mr. and Mrs. Rotherham took up residence in Knowlton, where they purchased the long existing Robb's Hardware business. Mrs. Rotherham had holidayed at Knowlton during the summers since her girlhood days, but as residents, both she and her husband found winters long and uneventful.

Their immediate reaction to the long months of waiting for the summer holiday trade was to do something about the slack seasons. The only answer was to develop some attraction for the cold weather, and taking a lesson from the Laurentians, the answer was skiing.

Before venturing into such a project, the Rotherhams surveyed the area, and were unanimous in their opinions that no part of the district was more beautiful, and adapted to skiing than Bolton Glen. Having a good friend in Mr. Smith Johannsen, The Jack Rabbit as he has been known for many years by leaders in the ski world, Mrs. Rotherham called on this noted sportsman for advice. She explained her and her husband's idea, and it was no time before Mr. Johannsen replied. It was a coincidence that the veteran skier had already visited the Bolton Glen area, and in his reply be asked, "Where are you going to take me, to Grayson Cousens' Farm? This was one of the seven farms taken over to make up the 1,600 acre resort.

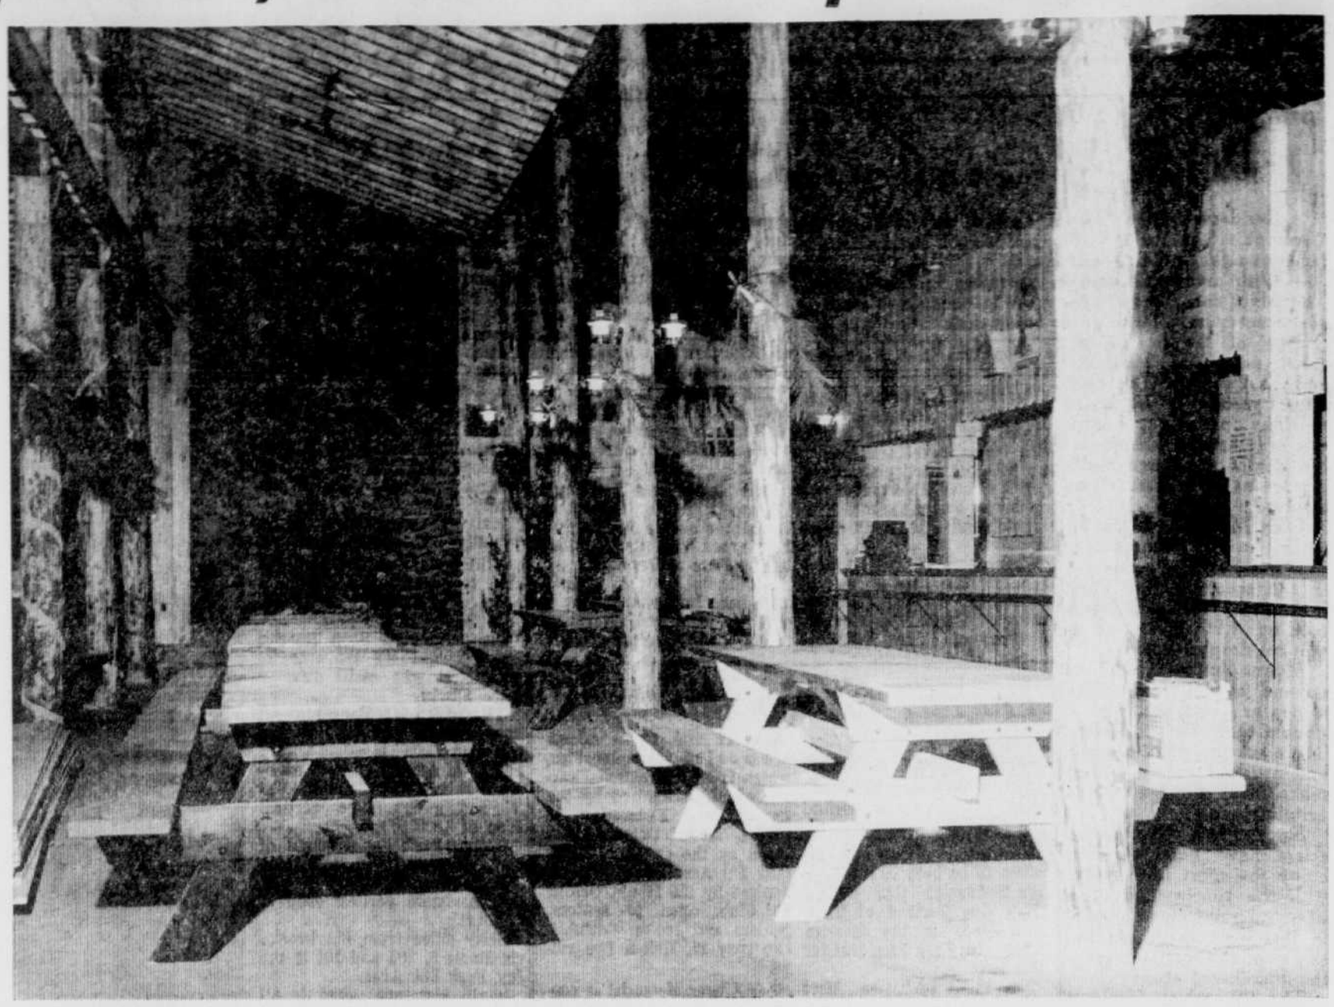

After a day long inspection of the site in a later visit by this great authority on skiing, Mr. Johannsen gave a full written report, in which he described the Glen as "better than anything we have in the Laurentians except for Mt. Tremblant."

A short time passed, and Mr Johannsen again visited the area, when he blazed a trail for the T-Bars. The line he blazed was still considered best last summer, when the two conveyances were erected at the centre.

In elaborating on his and his wife's trials in interesting others in the Glen ski project, Mr. Rotherham described enthusiasm by others as very weak. There were times when he considered abandoning the project, but through encouragement by his wife, Mr. Rotherham obtained options on the seven farms that were ultimately to be purchased by the Bolton Glen Development Company.

When fulfillment of the Rotherham's dream was about to die, Glen Brown, Member of the Quebec Legislature showed interest in the idea, having tried to have a ski tow built on his Bolton Glen farm. A native of this area, and a noted sportsman himself, Mr. Brown and Mr. Rotherham jointly purchased one of the seven farms needed. Soon after that another of the farms was purchased by a Montreal party, who was a friend of Mr. Rotherham. Confident that this friend would sell so the ski-resort project could become reality, Mr. Rotherham started preparations for the formation of the Bolton Glen Development Company.

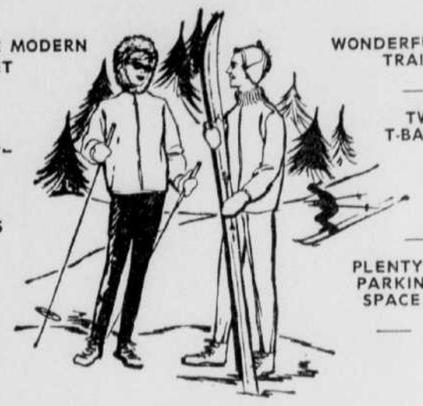

Such a project would mean winter employment for some of the area's farmers, and with suggesting a development that could provide work, Mr. Rotherham's undertaking immediately gained new support.

CHALET HAS PICTURESQUE INTERIOR — The huge open area of the knotty pine finished interior of Glen Mountain's ski chalet features a large field-stone fireplace, full length ground level and mezzanine observation windows, and large cafeteria — styled lunch and dinner counter along side a well equipped restaurant. Husband and wife team head resort ski school

Bob and Paule Richardson, noted instructor team head the Glen Mountain Ski Resort Ski School.

Formerly head of the Mount Orford Ski School, and manager of that area, this season Bob Richardson accepted the managerial position at the Glen Mountain resort, which he has described as having a wonderful future.

Bob was a member of the 1952 Canadian Olympic ski team, 1951 holder of the Canadian combined championship races, 1950 F.I.S. championship competitor, and is a holder of numerous other skiing titles.

Mrs. Richardson, formerly Paule Cartier, graduated with honors from the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance School in 1958.

Ski patrol is well qualified

Today one of the main features of any ski resort is its ski patrol, and like other centres, Glen Mountain has an efficient eleven man squad of patrollrs, headed by Ken Tannahill. Co-patrol leader is Gordon Snyder.

The Glen Mountain Ski-Patrol comprises of qualified St. John Ambulance men, all specially trained to administer first aid on the slopes. This group began training for this winter's duties in mid-September at Cowansville, and took qualifying examinations before snow came. All are skiers and recently took special skiing instruction, besides lessons on the handling of rescue toboggans.

Although a new group, the Glen Mountain Ski Patrol has been given a good start by those who own and operate the new resort, who have done siderable to adequately equip the eleven man squad. The patrol's equipment includes four first aid posts on the slopes, all with rescue toboggan, splints, and other emergency necessities. At the chalet special quarters have been alloted for the patrol.

Duties for the eleven men of the Glen Mountain patrol are same as at other centres.

I can't recall when the commencement of a new project pleased me more than did the official opening of the Glen Mountain Ski Resort, and I feel it suitable that I publish this advertisement to explain my enthusiasm. Maybe after the short but concise reasoning I'm about to offer, you shall share my enthusiasm.

GLEN BROWN

For more than a half century the Eastern Townships have been regarded as a summer vacation region. This popularity has always paid people of our area well for three months each year, however, to claim our own as a year round holiday district, it was necessary that winter attractions be offered. With the advent of skiing's popularity, other regions of Quebec and centres in New England capitalized on the public's approval of this winter pastime, and consequently gained fame and fortune. We of the Eastern Townships have only really commenced in the field of winter sports, and given a fair chance, we'll command the share that belongs to us. The Glen Mountain resort is the seventh ski project in the Townships, but because it is only the second in this immediate area, it will mean a lot to Brome County.

Resorts like Glen Mountain can provide a tremendous amount of good for our region, and I'm convinced that the benefits from projects of this nature will be spread out over the district, and shared by many of us.

Another reason for my enthusiasm, is the foresight shown on part of the men who pooled their capital and efforts to make the Glen Mountain resort possible. I'm proud of citizens like these men, and very happy that there are people like them in Brome County. It's gratifying to have these men invest in the future of our own district.

In concluding this message, I hope everyone in Brome County will look at winter sports as I have done, and consider the wonderful advantages we have before us which shall allow us to develop and promote our natural industry — catering to holidayers!

We've got what it takes, and we've got off to a good start . . . let's keep on the go!

The Eastern Townships in general have for years been regarded as potentially the most suited year round resort region in Eastern Canada. An article which appeared in The Sherbrooke Daily Record on January 10th, 1948, taken from an article by Colin A. Grovenor of Cardy Hotels, emphasizes without question that this district is far more suited for holidaying and the vacation industry than is the Laurentians.

The article, which carried the caption, TOWNSHIPS HAVE FINEST SKI TERRAIN BUT LAURENTIANS HAVE DEVELOPMENT EXPERTS, reads in part as follows:-

Stand at the corner of Broadway and 42nd Street in New York, or on Ottawa's Sparks Street, or anywhere along Philadelphia's Main Line, or on Toronto's Yonge Street, and ask the question, "Name the most glorious ski and summer resort in Eastern Canada," and the answer, if you get one, will surely be "The Laurentians."

But is this true?

Foot for foot, lake for lake, mountain for mountain, and snowbank for snowbank, the Eastern Townships can trim the Laurentians in a dozen different ways, and anyone who knows and compares the two regions on an unbiased basis is likely to agree without any argument.

Yet for every person who vacations in the Eastern Townships, ten or a dozen or perhaps a hundred go to the Laurentians. For every thousand dollars spent in the Eastern Township by visitors, a hundred thousand or more is tossed at the Laurentians habitants.

This of course was the opinion of Colin A. Grovenor back in 1948, but were he to appraise the situation today, he would undoubtedly show the Eastern Townships in a much brighter light, as we have reclaimed much of the winter as well as summer tourist trade that we should have had years ago.

With seven excellent ski resorts throughout the Townships, we've aquired something worthwhile to offer holidayers.

As an Eastern Townships firm, for over 60 years and having played an important role in the development of the Townships, we welcome the Glen Mountain Ski Resort and its contribution to the economy of our area.

We congratulate those responsible for this community development.

Glen mountain is a well developed ski centre

If you were to list the requisites of a good ski centre, Glen Mountain would qualify without question, as although new, it has everything one could hope to find at a well developed resort.

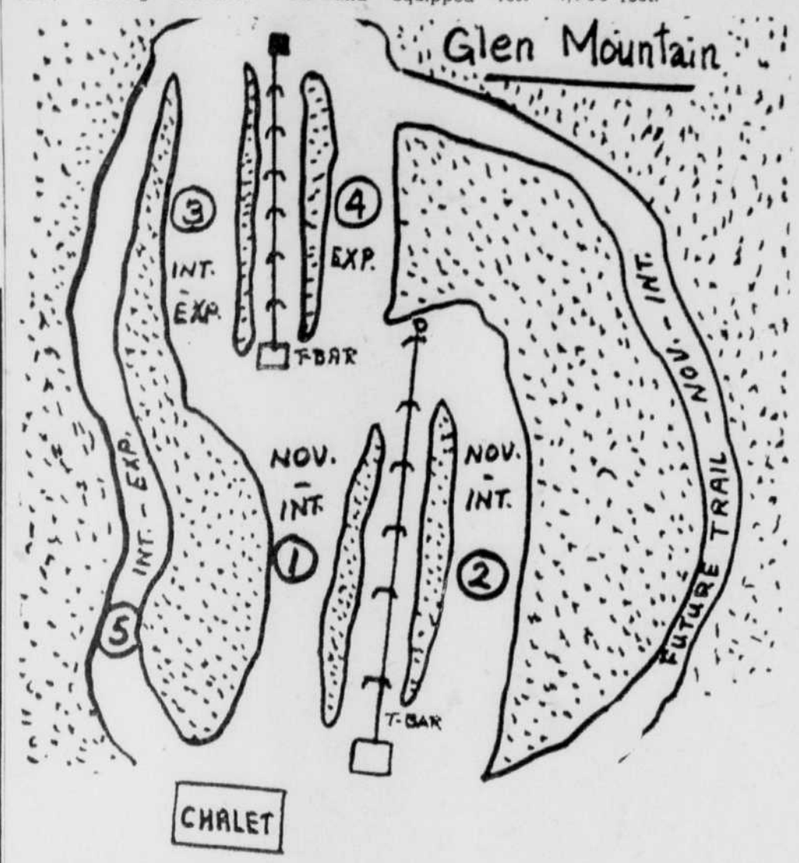

Although newest of the Eastern Townships' seven major ski centres, Glen Mountain rates with the best, having excellent slopes, good skier conveyances, a smart chalet and the numerous other extras, including a large parking area.

Taking you on an imaginary tour of the Glen Mountain Ski Resort, let's pretend we have just left Knowlton by car. We travel along the paved Bolton Pass highway for little over a mile, then turn left up the Bolton Glen road. Within ten minutes from leaving Knowlton we arrive at the resort, to be confronted with unlimited free parking.

Once unloaded, we head for the centre's new chalet, a huge building measuring 100 by 50 feet, and of modern design. The interior of this lovely structure is finished in knotty pine. Along the right there is a huge cafeteria with a long self-service rail, while the left is topped by a wide mezzanine. The whole north east wall consists of windows overlooking the slopes. On the main floor there are picnic styled tables and benches to accommodate upwards of 200 persons, while maple finished dining tables with matching chairs line the mezzanine, where an additional 100 persons can be seated.

The chalet has several other features, including a ski shop, smartly finished and equipped rest rooms, but it's now time we tried the Glen Mountain slopes.

Getting on the first-T-bar is no problem, as the rider lineup is on a down grade. Before you know it you're taking the first T-Bar, and after a no-delay ride we're off the first conveyance and ready for the second which will mean we've been towed 4,900 feet.

This is a rough draft of the Glen Mountain Ski Resort, illustrating the position of the chalet and two T-Bars in respect to the slopes.

Slopes No. 1 and 2 are served by the first lift, and are both suited to use by beginners and intermediates. Both slopes are perfect for practice as they are formed over what was perfectly cleared pasture land.

Slope No. 3, which is served by the second-T-Bar is made over well cleared, obstacle free pastureland, but considerably steeper than the lower slopes, and recommended for intermediate and expert skiers.

Slope No. 4 is over well cleared land also, but far faster. It is a very steep decent with numerous tricky turns, a run well designed to provide a challenge for the best of skiers.

Slope No. 5 will be opened soon, and will be intended for intermediate and expert skiers. It shall be a widely cleared run, over a mile in length.

Slope number 6 will be completed for next season, although some skiers may not be able to resist the long ride this run will provide, and give it a try this season. It shall be over a mile and a quarter in length, and designed for intermediates and experts, but under certain conditions, may even appeal to the advanced beginner. — The two T-Bars, in combined length carry skiers 4,900 feet to the summit of Glen Mountain, from were the vertical drop is 1,050 feet.

Mount Orford's many trails provide fun for every skier

Trails at Mount Orford include Three Creeks, a 1¼ mile mile run which was once restricted to expert skiers, but so many alterations and improvements have been made on the trail, that it is now considered an intermediate course, although still a challenge for better skiers.

The contour trail off the top of Orford, which joins Three Creeks half way down the mountain, is still the defying run it was meant to be, and a trial for the best of skiers.

A new trail from the summit of Mount Orford was cut last summer. It bears off to the north, and forms a long gradual semi-circle, ending at the chair-lift building.

Designed to accommodate beginners through to intermediate skiers, the course has a wide range of decents over its 8,000 feet length. The firm that operates the Orford centre, have asked for suggested names for the new course, and will offer a prize for the best title handed in.

Up Mount Giroux, you'll notice that the 45 degree turn has been lengthened and widened. This move was made to accommodate the Professionals' Racing event scheduled to be held here on February 24th and 25th.

The last, and possibly most publicized change at the Mount Orford Ski Centre, was the introduction of Heli Summeraurer as head of the centre's ski school. Assisting Mr. Summeraurer is famed sportsmen and sport store operator Bob Bousquet and Paul Henri Hamel; former ski competitors Ray Gallagher and Andre Noel; 1961 Junior Canadian Combined Ski Champion, Carl Whittier, and his close competitor and ski partner, Roy Bennett; and number eight on the instructional squad is ski shop operator, Conrad Gaucher. All instructors are approved members of the Canadian Ski Instructors' Alliance.

Highlight of each ski season is the International Professional Racers' Association competition, which will be held this year at Mount Orford on February 24 and 25.

The event will feature a giant slalom and a regular slalom with two courses for each race. A $3,000 purse is at stake to be divided among the winners.

The world's top skiers are entered in this competition, among which there will be Toni Sailor, Stein Ericksen, Christian Pravada, Toni Speiss, H. Molterer, Less Streeter, plus other instructors who have achieved international fame.

Mount Orford officials estimate that upwards of 10,000 spectators will attend this event In making reference to the expected crowd, Paul Albert, manager of the Mount Orford Centre, now under the direction of La Compagnie Gestion de Orford, noted that there were more than 5,000 at the 1960 Adams Memorial Races. At that time facilities at Orford were limited, and not nearly as large as at the present.

Other races planned for the Mount Orford centre this winter are the annual Adams Memorial Races, for which a date isn't yet decided, the annual Mount Orford Ski Club races and the annual competition held for district children, known as Junior Olympics Day.

RACING FORM — Bob Anderson one of the skiers who participated in the Canadian Alpine Races held at Mount Orford in 1961.

Surprises await skiers returning to Mount Orford

For those who visit the Mount Orford Provinical Park ski centre for the first time since last year's ski season, their first reaction is amazement.

There is little wonder at their surprise, considering the large number of changes and improvements made at the centre over the past ten months.

Heading the improvements is the first noticeable change, which consisted of alterations made in the road from the park gate to the centre. This phase of improvement included widening of the road in many places, building up the road shoulders, and improving the hills and curves in the route.

The second big improvement was enlarging of the ski centre's parking facilities. Almost doubled in size, the parking areas were completely topped with twelve inches of well packed gravel.

Leaving your automobile, you are first confronted with a change of the area in front of the chalet, which has been landscaped, providing a large flat level, suitable for spectators to stand on, and for skiers to use in stacking their skis.

On this raised area, which measures the full length of the main chalet building and is forty feet wide, there are a number of ski racks. There are also many new racks erected in front of the restaurant section. In all there are now racks that allow place for over 500 pair of skis. Skiers will appreciate this improvement, as it means they'll have a convenient place to place their equipment when not using it.

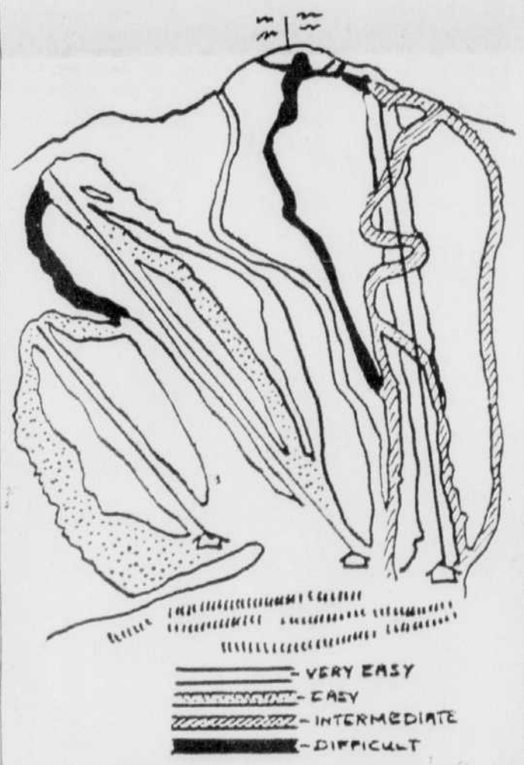

From the front of the chalet many changes will be observed, and others although not immediately visible will come to the attention of skiers who haven't visited Mt. Orford since all these wonderful improvements were made.

Taking the changes from here, in order of importance, the most noted alteration was that which saw an additional 200 feet built on the T-Bar, which has a new approach. The conveyance drive equipment is being housed in an entirely new log cabin effect building, presently under construction.

Distance from the T-Bar to the chalet is now half of what it was before, and besides being more convenient, those waiting to take the lift, are now on level ground, whereas before it was necessary to climb in order to get a ride up Mt. Giroux.

On the other side of the chalet we come to the double chair lift, Canada's longest double chair conveyance. Always capable of handling the large number of skiers coming to Orford, service will be even better this winter, as twenty new chairs have been added.

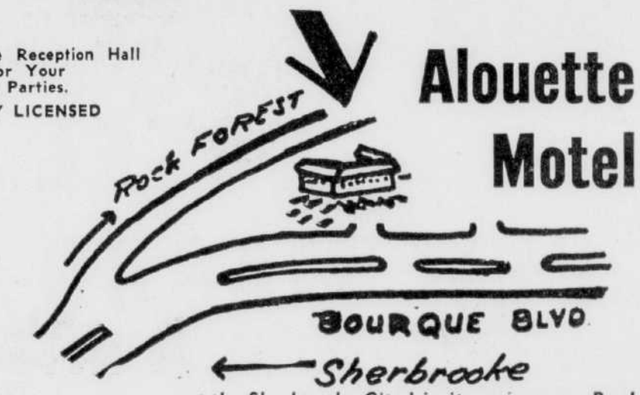

Before going up the rides and having a look at trails and slopes, let's visit inside the chalet. Skiers will welcome the remodelled ski shop, which is now directed by veteran ski instructor Conrad Gaucher. Other than changing the ski shop, no other alterations are noticeable, although careful maintenance has been conducted to keep the chalet and restaurant buildings in top shape.

Sports enthusiasts who ski at Mount Orford enjoy 12 miles of slopes

New route makes trip to ski area a matter of minutes

For skiers who travel to the Mount Orford Provincial Park Ski Centre, the new route through Cherry River, completed last fall is a tremendous improvement. To the citizens of this rural area, the new road represents a long sought improvement.

Prior to this winter, skiers had a choice of two routes which they could take to the ski area, one which left No. 1 highway two miles out of Magog at Four-Corners, and the other through Cherry River, the latter which offered difficult corners and several problem hills.

Either way, motorists could expect to spend at least twenty to thirty minutes making the trip from Magog to the ski area. Today, even under the poorest conditions, travelling time from Magog to the centre shouldn't require more than fifteen minutes, and under average conditions the drive requires approximately ten minutes.

The new highway, commenced several years ago from the Magog City limits eliminates the sharp corners and blind curves that were once a feature of the route to Cherry River, and in this little rural community itself, the new road has changed the whole appearance of the village. In order to go through Cherry River and avoid two right angle curves, it was necessary to eliminate one home and cut through a high hill which was once a gravel pit. By expropriating the house and adjacent buildings owned by Parker Powers, and some pastureland that belonged to Warren Buzzell, these curves were avoided.

The problem then faced was two hills that had always posed a problem to motorists, the first known as the schoolhouse hill, and the second Norton Hill. To beat the first, the hill was cut down, and to overcome the Norton Hill, approach to the grade was began far back, raising the road gradually until what was once a steep rise is now little more than an average incline.

This new Cherry River road leads motorists to the park entrance, three and a half miles from Magog's city limits. From the gate of the park area to the ski centre, there is still approximately two and a half miles of road, which was built prior to the Second World War under a special works project designed to lessen unemployment. Basically this portion of the drive has always been considered good, but to bring its condition in line with the new section between Magog are the park, it too was improved this past summer.

New roads now provide a pleasant, and much shorter ride to the Mount Orford Ski Centre from Magog, and to assure their proper care, a special winter maintenance project is now in operation. Speculation is that next summer the route will be hard surfaced. Skiers and citizens of the Cherry River area alike are hoping for an asphalt topping, and it looks as though their wishes will come true.

FINE STYLE — Shown in the upper photograph is Heli Summeraurer, head of the Mount Orford ski school. This is the first season in the Eastern Townships ski resort. The other photograph shows Carl Whittier, 1961 Junior Canadian Combined Ski Champion exhibiting the form which won him the title. He also is an instructor at the Mount Orford Ski School. Both men are members of the Canadian Ski Instructors Alliance.

MAJOR IMPROVEMENTS —

NEW HIGHWAY — An entirely new highway has been completed from Magog through Cherry River to the entrance of the Mount Orford Provincial Park. The map shown below will help those unfamiliar with this road to locate the new highway.

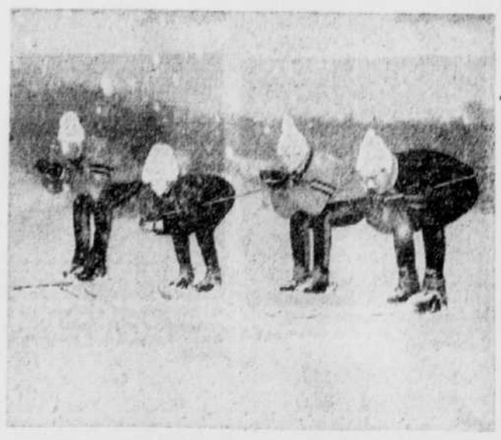

T-BAR LENGTHENED 200 FEET—An entirely new approach to our T-Bar has been built, making it easier to take this lift, and to guarantee perfect function of the apparatus, a new building is being constructed around the T-Bar power mechanism.

ADDITIONAL AND IMPROVED PARKING LOTS — We have enlarged our parking lots, and improved those that were in existence. Accommodation here now is for upwards of 1,000 cars.

NEW TRAIL — This year we have a new trail from the top of Mount Orford which hasn't yet been named. Designed for average skiers, the slopes are perfect for most skiers.

CAN YOU NAME THIS TRAIL? Anyone wishing to offer name suggestions for our new trail should write down their idea and leave it at the ski centre manager's office. The best name will earn the originator a prize.

SKI SCHOOL — We have one of the world's best skiers with us this year — HELI SUMMERAURER, who will head our ski school under his own name. Working with Mr. Summeraurer are a number of this district's better skiers and competitors. To get the most out of skiing, take lessons!

Paul Albert, Manager

Sherbrooke offers a municipal ski trail and pomalift for E.T. residents

West Ward has 2 ski trails

The Sherbrooke municipal ski-trail and pomalift is doing a booming business, according to Eric Schiller manager of the Sherbrooke Municipal Ski Lift.

The new ski-trail and pomalift which were added to Sherbrooke's recreational facilities in the West Ward on the slopes of the mountain near the illuminated cross has fast become the favorite skiing spot of Sherbrooke men, women and children. Centered in the city, the ski-trail is ideally situated for people living in town.

Eric Schiller said, "the ski lift which will accommodate 1200 persons an hour has a big line up waiting at all times. On the weekend some 5,600 skiers use the municipal ski - trail.

"From the city council's point of view the ski centre is considered very successful," he said.

Constructed by the city two years ago at a cost of about $80,000 the trail was officially opened on January 7. The ski trails have been improved and a new one added.

"We have a ski-school, but it is hoped that next year special slopes for beginners will be made" said Mr. Schiller.

At present there are only two trails, but sufficient land remains for the opening of several more in the future.

Last year a parking lot was constructed which will accommodate about 200 cars.

The lift, which is about 1,500 feet long takes skiers to an altitude of 1,300 feet from where they get their start down what is mostly a slalom course.

This year the Sherbrooke Municipal Ski lift will be operating on a slightly different schedule as a result of last year's experience.

These people enjoy the thrill of skiing in the Eastern Townships.

TRAIL OPENED — Mayor Armand Nadeau is shown at centre at the official opening of the Sherbrooke Municipal Ski Trail three years ago. Since then another trail has been added and the original slope improved. (Record Photo by Gerry Lemay).

Everyone can afford to ski

Today, with the rapid increase in skiing popularity, many persons who once skied, and now wish to take the sport up again, or others who feel they would like to try riding the slopes are asking themselves, "Can I afford to ski?"

To answer this query I believe it's necessary to determine whether or not these interested parties are expecting to start out in top fashion with professional equipment, or will they be satisfied with the inexpensive bare necessities. Very often would-be-skiers shy away from skiing because of what they term the high cost of getting equipped, but this is a false apprehension, as it costs very little to get outfitted. However, try to keep pace in styling, and buy brand for brand with the very serious type skier, and you'll find an enormous difference in price tags on the wares you choose.

To give a brief comparison in cost of equipment, it's possible that you buy skis just above $15.00 a pair, which have steel edges and a good base. Of course, there's hardly a ceiling in ski prices, as wood skis range up to $125., and the new metal makes range some $50. higher.

By the same token, bindings, poles, boots and clothing are available in a wide range of prices, for example; bindings sell from $4.50 to $35.; poles run from $4.50 to $40.; boots sell from $15. to well over $100., and in clothing, making a comparison would be almost impossible. However, like all other ski equipment, garments too are available in inexpensive price ranges.

To summarize, if you really wish to ski, don't let the fear of high cost stand in your way. Consider the bottom price equipment for instance; Boots - $15; skis with edges, base and binding - $20; poles - $4.50; jacket $12; slacks $9.

Skiing at Hillcrest is always challenging

You may not be able to ski in your back yard but a few miles from Sherbrooke at the Green Timber Mountain are the best hills, chalets and skiing facilities a skier could ask for.

At the most complete ski centre in the Eastern Townships, less than a half-hour drive from Sherbrooke awaits the traditional North Hatley hospitality for skiers from both sides of the border.

This year, the Hillcrest Ski Club is expanding rapidly, and the club is proud to announce that its membership is now 1,000, including family memberships. It is evident that the club is constantly growing in popularity, with nearly 400 new members joining since this year's season began.

The success of the Poma-lift at Hillcrest has been responsible for the increased business and it is hoped that in the future it will lend itself to more popularity.

Green Timber Mountain, nine miles from Sherbrooke rising to an altitude of 1,300 feet, is the meeting place of the majority of skiers.

Anne Heggteveit is acting as an instructor at the school this year.

Skiing is becoming an increasingly popular sport with teenagers, and schools have put it on the curriculum of competitive inter-school activities. Each year an inter-scholastic ski meet is held at Hillcrest and for older and more advanced skiers, Eastern Townships open meets are also held at Hillcrest.

If you are a timid type of skier who is content to stick to the gentler slopes or if you have ever had an urge to learn to ski but never plucked up enough courage.

These courses which are given in the evening are followed regularly by some 350 people who are enrolled in both day and night courses and the slopes are always filled to capacity.

The juniors are not to be forgotten, however, and more than 100 followed the training course held in December which was subsidized by the Hillcrest Olympic Fund.

Night skiing has an atmosphere which is completely different from skiing in the daytime and more and more skiers at Hillcrest are requesting night skiing. Skiing at any time is a sport that gives thrills from the first run down the hill to the last but night skiing seems to hold a very special something from the skiers.

As a result of the popular night skiing, skiing under the lights is held every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings from 7.30 to 10.00 p.m. at Hillcrest.

The trails are fully lighted the restaurants are opened, there is musical accompaniment, and the ski-patrol will be on duty at all times, for evening skiers.

And speaking of the ski-patrol, the Hillcrest ski-patrol is doing wonders. The very small number of accidents is a proof of their efficiency.

Obviously the old proverb, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, hold good here.

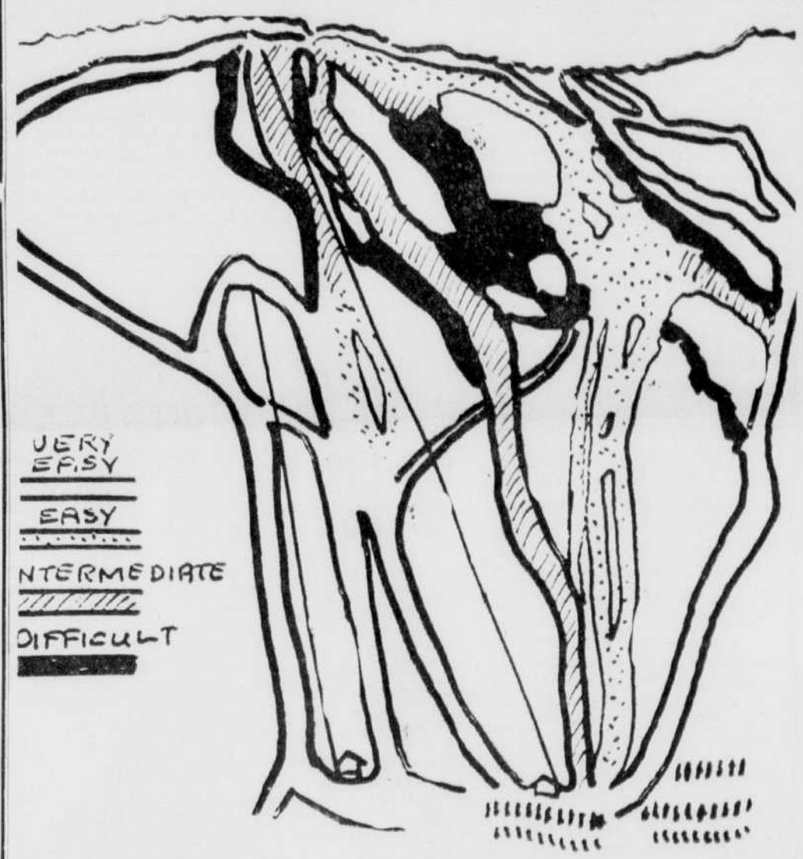

The patrols are constantly watching the trails, going over each at about 5 to 10 minute intervals. The good condition of the trails, also contributes to the low accident rate.

The untiring supervision displayed by Eric Schiller, manager of the Hillcrest Ski Centre, no doubt contributes largely to this enviable record. Mr. Schiller sees that the hills are dammed after every snow fall; this is even often done during the night.

Among popular winter hotels which are drawing more and more ski enthuslasts both from the Townships and from the Montreal area are Pleasant View, Connaught Inn and Hovey Manor in North Hatley.

ERIC SCHILLER head of the Hillcrest Ski School operates a snowmobile while getting the slopes in condition. Some enthusiastic sportsmen wait impatiently for a chance to take part in their favorite sport.

Mount Sutton is one of four major centres in cooperative

HEAD MT. SUTTON SKI CENTRE — Left, Francois Levesque, secretary-treasurer, J. Real Boulanger, vice-president and manager, and J. H. Boulanger, president, are the three men who direct the Mount Sutton. Ski Resort, Each of these men contribute considerable time to their centre and work enthusiastically in the interest of skiing for the district.

MT. SUTTON TRAILS — Over five miles of wide, downhill trails are available in this Brome county ski centre. Facilities include a double chair lift which is 4,030 feet long and rises to a 900 foot elevation and a T-bar which is 1,500 feet long and rises to a 250 foot elevation. A larchmount system covers the T-bar area to provide artificial snow. All trails are conditioned with a sno-cat, a sno-mo and a Bombardier tractor. Sleigh rides are arranged and there is a sun deck for relaxation. There are baby-sitting facilities and an X-ray equipped clinic.

Four major ski resorts in a 25-mile radius on the Canadian-Vermont border are working cooperatively this season under the banner of the Eastern Townships and Border Ski Region.

Three of the group are located in the Province of Quebec: Mount Sutton in Sutton, Mount Orford in Magog and Green Timber Mountain in North Hatley; the fourth is Jay Peak, located in North Troy, Vermont.

Although independently owned and operated, the four resorts are acting jointly to acquaint more skiers with the facilities available within a short traveling distance.

Under the "revolutionary" package plan developed by the four centres, a skier can arrange for lodging at one place and yet ski at any or all of the areas. One ticket is issued which can be used for the ski lift and school facilities of all four.

Another feature is a Learn-to-Ski program of 28 hours of lessons, ith use of lifts included, for $35 on a money-back guarantee basis. Parallel skiing is guaranteed or the money is refunded.

All four areas are equipped with modern facilities including ski trail conditioning equipment, excellent lifts, schools, shops, patrols, restaurants, first-aid facilities and many nearby lodging accommodations.

Mount Sutton, elevation 2400 feet, has its own snow-making equipment which guarantees skiing from early December thru April.

Mount Orford, elevation 2750 feet site of the Canadian Alpine Championships for the past two years, has the longest double chair lift in Canada, stretching 5500 feet.

Green Timber Mountain, formerly known as Hillcrest, is the oldest of the group, in existence for 22 years. It provides a model area with a variety of trails designed to serve the beginner to the expert.

Jay Peak, elevation 3700 feet, boasts a new double chair lift, 11 trails and two slopes and like Green Timber, offers night skiing on well-lighted, open slopes.

Mount Sutton's ski school is headed by one of Canada's top skiers former National Alpine Champion and Olympic team member Jean Lessard.

Spokesman J. R. Boulanger

Four-centre ski organization answers critics of cooperative

MONT SUTTON, Quebec. —The Eastern Townships and Border Ski Region have answered critics who have questioned the tie-in of the organization's three Canadian ski centers with an American resort.

Located within a 25-mile radius on the Canadian-American border, Mont Sutton, Mont Orford and Green Timber Mountain, all in the Province of Quebec, have joined with Jay Peak in North Troy, Vermont in a cooperative effort to attract patrons to the area.

J. Real Boulanger, general manager of Mont Sutton and spokesman for the four-centre ski organization, said that members feel the arrangement is mutually beneficial to both Canada and the United States.

"Although many persons have told us they think our collective effort is an excellent way to improve Canadian-American relations — by encouraging international skiing and promoting cooperative sports activity despite the border line — there are those who have expressed dissatisfaction with our program.

"There are even some Canadian officials who have taken a dim view of our three Quebec ski resorts engaging in a mutual promotion plan with an American ski center.

"However, it is our feeling that we can do much more as a group in publicizing and promoting the area than could be accomplished by working independently.

"And while it is true that the three Quebec centers are helping Jay Peak, the latter is also doing much to attract patrons to Mont Sutton, Mont Orford and Green Timber Mountain."

Boulanger explained that the four-center organization Ski Week plan is a revolutionary program that has attracted widespread attention in both Canada and the U.S.

The plan provides that interchangeable "Learn to Ski" tickets, costing only $35 and available from any of the four resorts, offer 28 hours of professional ski lessons, and use of any or all lifts at any or all four centers.

Parallel skiing is guaranteed a ticket purchaser on a money-back basis, Boulanger noted, adding that this provision is unique in ski circles.

Under the arrangement, skiers can stay at one of the many lodges near any area but ski all four areas.

The Montreal Trail, one of the best trails ever made in the States, is the family ski run; fun for the experts, enjoyable for the intermediates, and a challenge for the novice. The most famous places on this trail are called Bobsled Curves, Paradise Meadow, Snake Line, Hell Crossing, and Snow Bunny Shuss.

The Montreal Trail Variant brings the novice from the middle station of the Pomalift over the "Heaven Road" to the lower part of the Montreal trail. This lower sections is the superhighway for snow bunnies, and the training ground for young and old.

The Slope is the area for intermediates and experts to perfect their technique. The slope offers all kinds of terrain, and swinging down over the wide, open two-thousand-foot ski run is a thrilling and unforgettable adventure for everyone.

Vermont is a winter paradise

"Winter in Vermont," the land of a thousand ski-runs, is a phrase that conjures up the abundance of gay winter joys that only an enchanted paradise of snow can present. The sundrenched ski area of Jay Peak is the heart of this wonderland and is situated just 68 miles from Sherbrooke.

Jay Peak is not the biggest, but is one of the finest ski places in the East, because the friendly atmosphere, carefully cultivated, gathers all skiers together into one big family. Skiing at Jay Peak means real togetherness.

Every ski area boasts about abundant snow. Jay Peak, the highest mountain in Vermont, north of Mt. Mansfield (top) elevation 4,018 ft.) with shoulders extending on the south and north sides, creates a u-shaped bowl, which is an ideal situation to gather and hold snow.

The U.S. Weather Bureau places Jay Peak in the heaviest precipitation belt. For these reasons, and with a base elevation of two thousand feet, Jay Peak is proud to claim more snow.

Popular resorts in the Vermont mountains attract many Canadian skiers

2 nationalities meet at Jay Peak

More and more Canadians, and Americans alike are turning to the slopes and trails of one of the most popular ski centres in Vermont.

Here at Jay Peak, near North Troy, Vermont, just 68 miles from Sherbrooke, the two nationalities meet for a winter of the best that skiing can offer.

In the sundrenched ski area of Jay Peak, skiers come from such distances as Maryland, Virginia, Pittsburgh, Eastern Pennesylvania, Ohio, Michigan, all the New England States, the bordering mid-Atlantic states and the provinces of Quebec and Ontario.

Jay Peak, south of North Troy, Vermont, and now in its fifth season has a network of magnificently situated trails in Austrian style. This means that the terrain has been utilized so that each trail is designed to have perfect harmony and rhythm.

The slopes are made to suit the beginner, the intermediate and the expert. Jay Peak offers the jumping trail and the sliding trail for the ski school area; the ski school area for first day training; the training slope that is more than 200 feet wide and 2000 feet long, upper part for experienced skiers only with a vertical descent of 800 feet.

The Haynes Trail is for experts only, one file long, steep descent and a thrilling skiing experience with 1400 feet vertical descent. It is at this site that the Giant Slalom Races are held annually.

The Sweetheart Trail is 3450 feet long, fast, safe and thrilling. It is an intermediate trail with a vertical descent of 700 feet, while the Kitzbuhel run, is more than one mile long. Exciting, steep, in the style of the Kitzbuhel racing trail.

For the intermediate skier there is the 1000 feet long Jimmy Run. The Heaven Road beginning on top station of Poma Lift, ending with the Snow Bunny Schuss. One mile long—Novice.

The Montreal Trail, 11,478 feet long; is an ideal family trail, interesting for exports and yet easy for beginners. A vertical descent of 1400 feet.

The St. George Prayer trail is 16,731 feet long with 1600 feet vertical drop. The wide open terrain, alternates with narrow spots. The trail is very interesting for advanced beginners because of the junction to the whole system of trails with no real steep parts in downhill. This trail ends at the base station of the double chairlift.

For the skier who can't get enough skiing in during the day time, Jay Peak is one of the largest night skiing areas in the east. Every Wednesday and Saturday, from 7.30 to 9.30 pm., night skiing is permitted. Every ski area boasts about abundant snow. Jay Peak, the highest moutnain in Vermont, north of Mt. Mansfield (top elevation 4,018 feet) with shoulders extending on the south and north sides, creates a U-shaped bowl which is an ideal situation to gather and hold snow.

The U.S. weather Bureau placed Jay Peak in the heaviest precipitation belt. For these reasons, and with a base elevation of two thousand feet, Jay Peak is proud to claim more snow.

The Walter Foeger Ski School, under the direction of Walter Foeger, former technical director of the Austrian Ski Association, captain of the German Alpine National Ski team, and coach of the Spanish Olympic Ski team, is well known thropghout the country. The Jay Peak has a large staff of steadily employed and well trained instructors to give private lessons and group instructions which are available every day. Most popular are the Learn-to-ski weeks.

With three lifts, twenty miles of trails plus two ski school areas and the slope, Jay Peak is ready to serve many more customers from both sides of the border.

Do's & don'ts

Proper handling of equipment and basic knowledge of the sport are the first things a skier must learn. Here are a few of the do's and dont's that bear checking.

DO keep your equipment in proper shape. If it's worth having it's worth caring for.

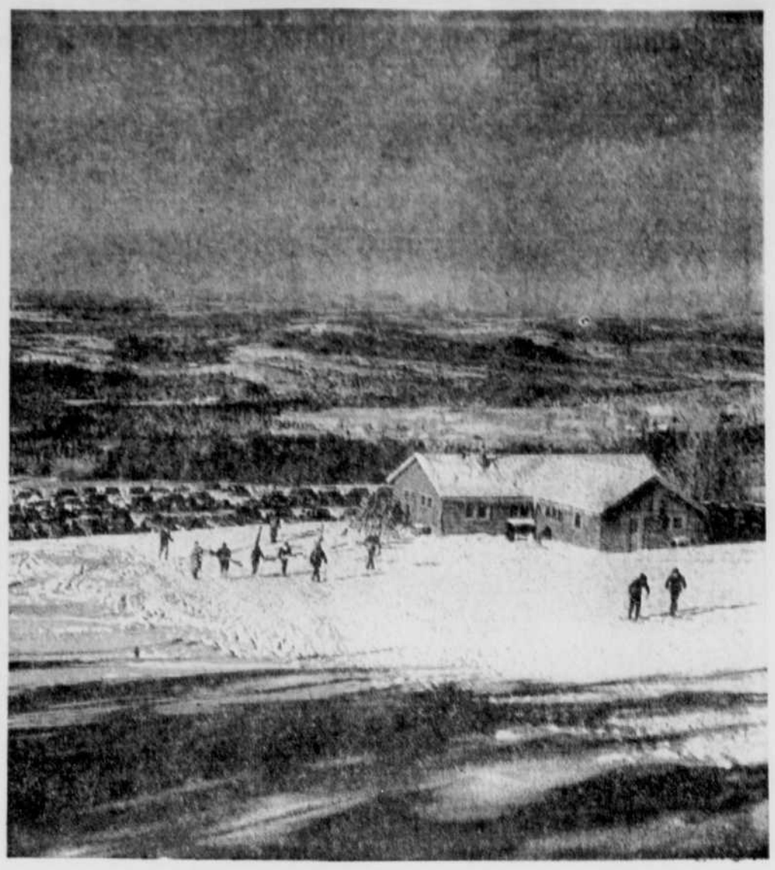

DO take your time in buying equipment. Get advice from your ski instructor or a reputable expert.

DO be guided in your purchases by quality and functionalism, looks are secondary.

DON'T economize in the wrong places. Poor boots and bindings can keep you from becoming a good skier.

DON'T be a passenger on runaway skis. LEARN TO CONTROL THEM.

DON'T yell TRACK unless you have to. Use your brakes instead of your horn.

Skiers start up the slope at Burke Mountain.

Burke Mt. is an ideal ski area

During the winter, the Green Mountains of Vermont are transformed from a summer-time vacation area to a skiers paradise.

Some seven miles from Lyndonville station, on the Canadian Pacific Railway, and easily reached by local transportation, is Burke Mountain in Darling State Park. Skiers from Canada flock annually to this favorite spot, located only 32 miles from the border. In fact the trip can be made from Sherbrooke in under two hours.

Everyone finds all the skiing he wants at Burke Mountain. The wilderness and famous Bear Den Trails will test the best, while the Toll Road offers a two and one-half mile thrill for the beginners and intermediates. The open slopes of the new Pomalift and the Rope Tow area offer additional opportunities for the novice and intermediate skier to improve his skill.

To reach the 3,267-foot summit of Burke Mountain, a Pomalift 4,880 feet in length speeds one up in five minutes and handles 575 skiers per hour. From this lofty perch the skier has a choice of three main trails suitable for skiers of all calibres and these trails in turn link with others allowing good skiing sport.

The 1¼-mile Wilderness Trail, which is for the expert, originates at the summit and winds down over a course suitable for the intermediate skier. Those who prefer a gentler slope can make use of the 1½ mile Toll Road that novices can navigate. In the rope tow area, a slope of 1,000 feet in length and 500 feet wide provides excellent sport for the beginner.

Warming shelters are located at top and bottom and first aid patrols are maintained on all slopes. A counter-type restaurant, with a capacity of 200, near the bottom of the Pomalift serves light meals and refreshments. Ski rentals, repairs and instruction are also available.

From the lofty peak of Burke Mountain a breathtaking view of the surrounding countryside is obtained. Mt. Pisgah and Mt. Hoar rear up a short distance north while beyond their gap is Jay Peak. Thirty miles due west the highest peak in Vermont, Mt. Mansfield, stands, while high in the sky to the east, Mt. Washington is plainly visible.

Number of skiers at Burke increases greatly every year

Burke Mountain, with its mile - long Pomalift and excellent rope tow area is located near East Burke, Vt., on Vt. Route 114 less than two hours' driving distance from Sherbrooke.

Access to the area has been made shorter and safer by the construction of a modern hard surfaced road and there is a paved parking area.

All trails on the mountain have been improved and several new cutoff and connecting trails have been cut. A new cutoff has been made connecting the Wilderness trail (Expert) to the Toll Road and Big Dipper thus opening up the Wilderness trail to intermediate skiers. A new wider cutoff has been made around the steep ledges on the Bear Den trail as well as general widening and improvement to the lower stretches and the runout near the foot of the Pomalift.

Burke Mountain offers a spectacular weekly rate of $15 for all towing charges. This applies from Monday through Friday.

A popular addition for this season is the well-stocked Ski Shop near the Base Station. Skiers can also have repairs made to equipment in the new repair shop. A full line of ski rentals is on hand for the occasional skier.

Early season skiers at Burke this season are proving the growing popularity of the Burke Mt. trails. This fact is further substantiated in that the total number of skiers visiting the Burke area each year has nearly doubled.

Weekend spectators can get enjoyment on an old time sleigh ride in the area at the base of the mountain. Sleighs leave from the warming shelter near the parking area.

Delmar Leach is general manager for Ski Burke Mt. Inc. This is his first season as manager.

In a special message to all Canadian skiers Mr. Leach says, "It is indeed a pleasure to welcome the many Canadian skiers to Burke Mt. and I hope that you will always feel free to stop in and have a visit with me. I am especially interested in hearing your comments about the trails and area in general. We aim to give you the best skiing and the most skiing for your money during your visit south of the border."

Ski Burke Accommodations with headquarters at The Christmas Tree on Vt. Route 114 is ready to assist all skiers and travellers with a full 24 hour information service.

This organization of hotels, merchants and business men actively asociated with the ski area is ready to assist and give full information concerning ski conditions lodgings, meals and directions to various points about the area.

History of Burke Mountain told

For many years the site of championship Interscholastic Ski Meets, Burke Mountain, in the Heart of Vermont's Northeast Kingdom, is now one of New England's finest and most popular ski areas.

New and varied trails, plus wide-open slopes for the novice-fast, modern up-hill facilities, plenty of uncrowded slopes, and excellent snow conditions make Burke Mountain ever-growing in popularity as a ski area for all the family. And the northern exposure means spring skiing at its best.

In 1933, L. A. and H. A. Darling made a gift of land contained in the Darling State Park to the state.

The idea and much of the work done to provide the area with such an asset was done by a former resident of Lyndonville, Dr. H. Monford Smith, who is now a resident of Barton. Smith practised dentistry in Lyndonville for a great many years and contributed much to the town through his willingness to promote civic projects.

The ground work for Ski Burke Mountain Inc., was started when he realized the value of Burke Mountain as a public playground.

In 1935, extensive work was done by the Civilian Conservation Corps to utilize the natural beauty of the mountain as a summer camping area. The toll road was constructed so that people could visit the top of the mountain by car. In this way the unsurpassed view was available to many who would have never seen it otherwise.

The original ski trails were cleared under supervision of two local members of the corps, P. H. Teachout and David Cassidy.

The following year saw the formation of the Lyndon Outing Club. This was a small group of local skiers who had the desire to promote the sport in the area by providing a place for group skiing and scheduling events to encourage the participation of the sport.

In 1937 the Outing Club sponsored the first ski meet to be held on Burke Mountain. This when we consider ski meets today, was a very simple affair with only one event, a downhill race that was held on the toll road. In the new development this is classified as excellent for the novice skier.

After this the growth of the Outing Club was fast and the interest in skiing snowballed until it was necessary to enlarge the facilities. At the same time the club became the most popular place in the east for holding ski meets, both scholastic and collegiate. With the more skilled competitors the club had to expand occasionally and use the trails on Burke.

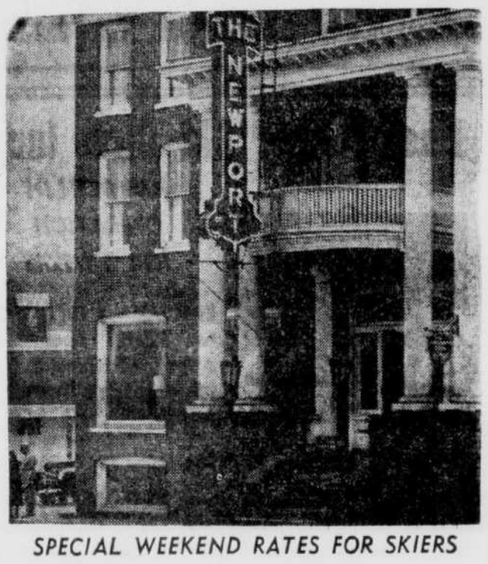

This created a more intense interest in the development of the area. Groups met to survey the possibilities. Experts were invited in from time to time so that their opinions could be obtained.

Their answers were always the same. It was the opinion of everyone that Burke was a natural site for the development of a ski area.

In 1953 thirteen area men got together and formed Ski Burke Mountain, Inc. The thirteen original stockholders were Milton Kerr, Kermit Grant, Allen Facteau, Frank Duggan, Herbert Gallagher, Herbert Gregory, Kenneth Hazard, Richard Rhoades, Robert Lewis, Ronald Moulton, John McHarg, Crawford Davis and C. V. Akley.

More ski areas develop as skiing increases in popularity

East Angus ski club now open

The East Angus Ski Club Inc. development has been in operation two weeks and is already proving to be a great success. An entirely local undertaking, the ski centre will be officially opened on January 21.

The sheltered slopes make good skiing available even when more exposed areas are storm-swept.

Three trails are open for skiers and a Pomalift can handle 800 pasengers an hour. A parking lot with a 200 car capacity is located near the chalet at the foot of the mountain.

Inside the chalet skiers will find tables and benches and a snack bar for quick lunches. The ski shop is operated by Felix Cormier.

By next week the ski school will be in operation under the guidance of Luc Aubin who is an experienced instructor and has taken courses in teaching.

All instructors at the school are bilingual. The school will operate evenings and Saturday afternoons for children. Night skiing equipment is presently being installed and will soon be in operation.

The ski area is located two miles from the C.P.R. station in East Angus on the Big Hollow Road. Arrows will direct skiers to the mountain.

The idea of a East Angus ski area was formulated about a year ago by a group of East Angus men interested in promoting their town and improving sports facilities.

The men responsible for the formation of the East Angus Ski Club development are:

Skiing in the Eastern Townships is always a pleasure.

At Thetford

Ski club members enjoy free lessons

One of the main features of the Thetford Mines Ski Club is free skiing instruction which is offered to all members.

A skiing instructor, a professional from Paris, Gerard Cercuel has been giving free lessons to all members since 1951

Through the generosity of the Kiwanis club, three buses have been provided for the past eight years to take youngsters up the hill for skiing lessons by some 10 instructors under the direction of Mr. Cercuel.

Two one-hour lessons are given every afternoon for ladies at Mt. Adstock, the first lesson at 1.30 p.m. the second at 2.30 p.m. Groups up to 40 women attend each class.

Other members take free lessons at Mt. Granite every night. Groups of up to 12 persons per lesson attend in the evening. First lesson is at 7.30 p.m. the second at 8.30 p.m.

Founded in 1938, the Thetford Mines Ski club opened its first hill at Mount Granite. The hill was illuminated in 1940 and since then skiing has been featured at night.

In 1950 a ski centre was opened at Mount Adstock, located just eight miles from Thetford Mines.

This hill, has three main trails the downhill trail named Normandie, the Bell Trail and the intermediate trail called the Bourgault trail. All trails lead from the top of the mountain.

Mount Adstock has a 900 foot drop. Two years ago Mount Adstock resort was the site of the Canadian Junior Championship.

Improvements at this Thetford Mines paradise for ski lovers are many. Only last year a 2,000 foot double chairlift was built and this year the Chalet is being enlarged and will be doubled in size.

The interior of this chalet will include a restaurant, lounge and a section for the Thetford Mines Ski patrol in case of accidents.

New trails have been opened too this year, and old trails have been improved and widened. One of the newer trails opened is for the beginners.

Membership to the Thetford Mines Ski club has been boosted considerable this year. The club now has some 350 members, not including its senior members.

This jump in membership is attributed by members to the fact that the Thetford Mines club has had excellent skiing conditions this year and last.

During the past two years the resort has been lucky to have the most snow of any ski resorts in the Eastern Townships.

MILLFIELD —

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Cromarty Cruickshank were Mr. and Mrs. Guy Davidson, Miss Betty Davidson, Messrs. Leonard Davidson and Fred Abrahams, Mr. and Mrs. John Cruickshank and Mr. and Mrs. H. F. MacNeill, of Inverness.

Mr. and Mrs. Dufferin Annesley and family, of Maple Grove, were New Year's Day guests of Mrs. Gordon Learmonth and family.

Some points to keep in mind when you hit those trails

For the benefit of the thousands of beginners who swarm to local resorts every weekend here are a few of the useful "dos" and "don'ts" which may help to avoid unnecesary accidents:

DO ALWAYS ski under control.

DO let your presence be known to other skiers near you on the slopes by the familiar shout "track."

DO allow yourself ample space for turns.

DO learn the proper method of gripping the tow.

And most important of all, DO buy the proper equipment. Heading this list are boots which experts say are the most important part of your skiing equipment. Harness comes next and a safety cable harness is the best type as it will give under stress and prevent broken ankles. Poles should be the proper length. If too long they get tangled, if too short they throw the skier off balance. Clothing should be streamlined. No fashionable sleeves or decorations which might catch in something.

Now for the "don'ts":

DON'T try the high slopes unless you are experienced.

DON'T be overconfident and try feats that "look" easy when executed by experienced skiers.

DON'T turn into the path of other skiers.

DON'T try to stop amidst a crowd.

DON'T grasp the tow too closely to the person in front of you.

DON'T ski when you are tired or ill or when snow conditions are dangerous. Better to lose a weekend than earn the right to a hospital bed.

DON'T rush the learning process. You can't expect to Wedeln on your first day. You'll never make a good fast turn until you can make a successful slow turn.

Skiing has been termed a dangerous sport. It isn't if you follow the rules.
