LACROSSE.

TORONTO VS. QUEBEC.

A magnificent struggle this afternoon.

A splendid exhibition of our national game will be given this afternoon, 3.30 o'clock, on the Q.A.A.A. Grounds, when the Toronto lacrosse team will try and down Quebec.

The Torontos are a very sturdy lot of men and look to be able to put up a very good game. They arrived in town yesterday morning by the C.P.R., accompanied by W. J. Suckling, Esq., the President of the Club, and are registered at the Clarendon. They had a fine practice on the grounds yesterday afternoon and appeared delighted with them. No doubt this excellent team will draw a large number of spectators to the match. The Torontos will most likely be the best exhibition of the game on our grounds this season. Two hours' play, rain or shine. Ball faced at 3.30 o'clock.

Through the kind courtesy of Admiral Esbriene, the fine band of H.M.S. "Crescent" will be present at the game and render a choice selection of music.

Emperor on Street Car.

Nicholas II Teaches His Officers a Lesson in Common Sense.

Nicholas II of Russia has had some trouble in bending the stiff-necked military etiquette of his St. Petersburg regiments to suit his rather liberal ideas. He is not popular with the army, as were the three Alexanders, despite his gifts of reading rooms and dining halls to crack regiments, and therefore the innovations he recommends are introduced very slowly. Ever since he ascended the throne, for instance, he has been trying to discredit the notion that an army officer may not ride with propriety in a common street car. The army officer in St. Petersburg has long been supposed to be too rich and powerful and too far superior to civilians to associate with the ordinary street-car crowd.

One of the few untitled officers in the Russian capital ventured, a few weeks ago, to ride in a street car to his barracks. He was a presumptuous and courageous act, for he had to alight before the crack cavalrymen's casino of the city. It proved to be a very indelicate act, too, for his fellow officers at once took him to task for disgracing his uniform, refused to listen to his citations of the Czar's remarks on the subject, and eventually, after days of persecution, began arguing on him the propriety of his resigning his commission. The indignant president officer turned to a friend in the Ministry of War, who begged the whole affair to be dropped. He was 4 o'clock in the afternoon when Nicholas heard the story. He at once put on a dark suit, ordered his Adjutant to do the same, and together they went to the spot where the persecuted officer had taken a car. They boarded a car, rode on to the barracks, alighted, boarded a returning car, and went back to the palace. The Czar wrote out a brief account of this little trip, and added to it the inquiry:—

Am I still worthy to wear the uniform of a Russian officer?

He signed the document "Nicholas," and sent it to the Colonel of the persecuted officer's regiment. Since then there has been peace in the officers' quarters of that regiment, and the man who rode on a horse car has been treated with the deference belonging to one who pulls wires at Court.

Perhaps Nicholas got his idea of an object lesson in this case from Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. The Emperor heard several years ago that his officers in Vienna were agitated over the question of the propriety of riding in omnibuses. He remarked impatiently that this was a weighty subject for large brains and should be settled before anybody's mind broke down under it. He then put on full uniform, took with him an Adjutant in full uniform, and had an omnibus ride. The ride was reported in the newspapers, and the question was promptly settled.

Aggravating—"I've never seen my wife as angry as she has been made by that echo." "What's the reason?" "When she talks it won't her have the last word."—Pileague.

Nervous

People often wonder why their nerves are so weak; why they get tired so easily; why they start at every slight but sudden sound; why they do not sleep naturally; why they have frequent headaches, indigestion and nervous

Dyspepsia

The explanation is simple. It is found in that impure blood which is continually feeding the nerves upon refuse instead of the elements of strength and vigor. In such condition opiate and nerve compounds simply deaden and do not cure. Hood's Sarsaparilla feeds the nerves pure, rich, red blood; gives natural sleep, perfect digestion, is the true remedy for all nervous troubles.

Aluminum Torpedo Boats.

(From the Mechanical World.)

Among the thousand and one purposes for which aluminum has been held to be eminently adapted, its use as material of construction for torpedo boats appeared likely to promise good results. Subsequent experience showed that the metal usually met with in commerce exhibited corrosive tendencies which seemed calculated to militate greatly against its adoption for this purpose. Some time ago the French Government, in order to obtain some definite data, had both a torpedo boat and a yacht built of aluminum, and recently an examination of the vessels has been made, the result of which is, on the whole, favorable to the use of the metal for this purpose. The torpedo boat was found to have suffered most, the protective covering of paint or varnish being less impervious than is desirable, while in places it had peeled off entirely. In the yacht it was found that repainting stopped the deterioration, and in general it would appear that both vessels had stood service well. No doubt much has yet to be learned as to the nature and proper treatment of the material, and probably it is to a lack of this knowledge that many of the past failures have been due. One condition which certainly appears to be indispensable is that for all such purposes the metal must be pure. The further necessity of homogeneity in the plates is for self-evident reasons. The plates, as experience in rolling the sheets is being gained daily, it will not be long before most, if not all, of the difficulties which now seem almost insuperable will be successfully surmounted.
