LABOR CABINET SEEKS WAY TO END BRITISH DOCK STRIKE

POINCARE'S EARLY FALL FROM POWER, RUMORED IN PARIS

City Seething With Reports of Clemenceau's Return to Premiership

CABINET A FAILURE

Facing Hostile Senate, Prime Minister's Supporters Desert Him

PARIS, Feb. 18. — (Special Star-Tribune Cable. Copyright.)—Political circles are seething with rumors of Premier Poincare's immediate overthrow and the establishment of a Cabinet by Georges Clemenceau.

Premier Poincare's staunchest supporters in the Chamber of Deputies and the press are falling away from him as he is unable to beat down the opposition to his decree laws and additional taxation.

The Government has not yet faced the Senate, which is more hostile, as the Radical Socialists control the majority and they are pledged to vote against the measures.

M. Clemenceau's name is mentioned as Premier Poincare's successor, because "The Tiger" was summoned to Elysee Palace, where he conferred with President Millerand early last week. It is pointed out that the only way Premier Poincare can be let out without loss to France's prestige, is by making M. Clemenceau—the father of the victory—the new Premier. Generally it is believed that M. Clemenceau is better qualified to solve the problems with Great Britain and the United States than anyone else.

The continual steady depreciation of the franc is another powerful factor against Premier Poincare. In January, when the currency dropped like a plummet, the Premier insisted that it was a foreign financial plot against him, and introduced new measures to strengthen the franc.

The failure of the Ruhr occupation to produce results and the collapse of the Separatist movement in the Rhineland, and the impasse of the reparations problem, with France receiving nothing from Germany, are additional causes for dissatisfaction with the present Government. Premier Poincare also has been weakened through stubbornly maintaining inefficient members in his Cabinet.

The last year is considered a failure for the Cabinet, the Finance Minister is unable to combat the increasing high cost of living. M. Raiberti, Minister of Marine, is disgraced over the loss of the Dixmude. M. Maginot is ridiculed as War Minister; M. Colrat, Minister of Justice, is assailed by the Left newspapers and Deputies for refusing to have M. Clemenceau's would-be assassins imprisoned, and M. Manoury, Minister of the Interior, is accused of inefficiency.

The venerable M. Clemenceau sits quietly chuckling at home, declining to make any statement for publication, but privately enjoying Premier Poincare's discomfiture.

LABOR PLANS TO RAISE DEATH TAX

Mexican Recognition More Complicated Than in Case of Russia

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(United News)—The British Government is considering an increase in death duties and super-taxes.

Labor has abandoned the capital levy so far as the present Parliament is concerned but there is every indication that large fortunes will be expected to contribute a larger share.

The death duties which are expected to produce $233,000,000 this year, are steeply graded. On £100 or $430 the death duty is one per cent. On £1,000 or $4,300, it is three per cent. On £1,000,000 it is 30 per cent. and £2,000,000 it is 40 per cent.

Meanwhile the Labor Government is contemplating economies in various Departments. There is reason to believe that the War Office expenditure will be reduced at least £9,000,000, while the Admiralty may have to make even larger cuts in expenditures. Expenditures for education will not be reduced, however, as the Socialists believe this Department must be supported.

QUERY RAISES LAUGH

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press.)—The question of recognition of the Mexican Government by Great Britain was raised by several members in the House of Commons this afternoon. Premier MacDonald replied that the recognition of Mexico had raised complicated issues which could not be very well dealt with in questions and answers. The Government had the matter before it, he said, and would lose no time in deciding one way or the other.

Asked by Viscount Curzon whether the position was more complicated than in the case of Russia, Mr. MacDonald caused laughter by replying that, as it happened, it was very much more so.

Answering a question in the House of Commons the Prime Minister said that the British Government had accepted the terms of the settlement of the British debt to the United States and therefore there could be no question about any proposals to re-open negotiations for the arrangement of other terms.

Premier MacDonald told the House there had been no formal agreement in any one document regarding the settlement of the Palatinate question, but as a result of correspondence between the British, French and Belgian Governments, it had been decided to entrust the representatives of these three Governments at Coblenz with the task of supervising reparations and the normal administration of the Palatinate and the disarming of all unauthorized [illegible] with the object of facilitating the settlement of the whole question.

STRIKES BIGGEST THREAT TO RULE OF LABOR PARTY

Shaken by "Poplarism" Cabinet's Fate Hangs on Industrial Disputes

PUBLIC IMPATIENT

Will Not Tolerate Nation's Return to Food Rations or Control

LONDON, Feb. 18 — (Star Special Cable by Windermere, Copyright.) — "Poplarism" will shake but will not kill the Labor Government. Its death blow may, however, come through strikes. The truth is that no responsible Conservative or Liberal wants to overthrow the Government now because they realize that there is national impatience with warring politicians and a general disapproval of the prospect of another general election upon confused issues.

There is a general belief among the other parties that six months, or even a year hence, when MacDonald will have had time to succeed or fail in his French and Russian policy, the real dividing line in British politics will have been defined, namely Socialism versus individualism. Then Britain will face her fate. The Liberal party might easily disappear in that struggle.

The Poplar crisis will probably be smoothed over by the promise of reform of "Bumbledom" on lines repeatedly recommended, namely the abolition of Boards of Guardians and the transfer of relief of the poor and other functions to borough authorities and county councils who, being directly responsible to the ratepayers, would not tolerate the Communist idea of making idleness pay better than toil.

The strike issue is far more immediately perilous for the Ministry. Public opinion will not tolerate a return to food rations and control just because one million dockers who are the gatekeepers of British commerce will not arbitrate on a demand for a shilling extra wage daily. That is the only point remaining in dispute.

The dock companies say that the dockers' demands would add two millions yearly to working costs of shipping and industry. The Labor year book admits that dock and canal dividends average only from 1.9 to 3.8 per cent.

Another crisis is threatened in the mining industry for the miners have given notice to terminate the national wage agreement on April 17.

Both dockers and miners count on sympathetic action of the railway workers and the refusal of the Labor Government to use soldiers and police for the protection of volunteer workers to whom the companies offer attractive terms. This is where the gravest trouble may come with serious political repercussions. The most acute danger to the Government comes indeed from within the Labor party itself.

Extremists representing at least one-third of the party in the House and country have forced into existence a method familiar in Australia and have created a vigilance committee of Labor members to watch the Government and to dominate Downing street from Labor headquarters in Eccleston square. That method in view of the strike and such like developments seems to point to a bread down in the seems to point to a break down in the Labor ranks. WINDERMERE.

SEVEN CONSTABLES HELD AS THIEVES

Moose Jaw Force Had Well Organized System of Robbery

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press) Seven city police constables are under arrest and held in the cells at the police station, and two others under suspension, all implicated by confessions made by four of them, of dozens of thefts from numerous Moose Jaw stores, extending over a period of about a year. Truck loads of loot have been recovered from homes of the men.

The robberies have ben coneducted systematically since early in April, 1923. The clean up came about as a result of investigations made by Chief of Police W. P. Johnson, Deputy Chief Townsend and Detective J. Douglas.

Those arrested are: A. E. Knight, O. Walters, J. W. Reynolds, D. Logan, W. D. Greenleaf, S. Wilson and J. H. Fiennor.

The series of robberies occurring over a period of nearly a year was conducted by a well-organized system. Members of the force concerned used skeleton keys to effect entrance to business establishments where they looted at will. Signals with flash lamps were used by the officers in the downtown sections to give warning of the approach of patrolling sergeants. It is believed the value of the plunder may run into many thousands of dollars.

THIRTEEN MINES PRODUCING COAL

Work in Full Swing for the First Time Since January 15

SOME MEN OUT

Springhill and Acadia Pit Forces May Return Tomorrow

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 18. — (Star Special.) — Thirteen collieries operated by the British Empire Steel Corporation are producing coal to-day, the first time the entire number of pits operated by the corporation have been employed since the mines were closed on January 15 following the expiration of the 1923 wage agreement.

On Saturday the nine collieries operating produced some 4,000 tons, which will form the nucleus of 400,000 tons which will be banked at Sydney Mines and Glace Bay before the opening of navigation on the St. Lawrence. Navigation in the river will likely open around the middle of April, so therefore the company has some sixty days yet in which to prepare against early shipments.

No dates has yet been set for a referendum by the rank and file of this district as to whether they will accept or reject the wage contract signed by their officers at Montreal. It is quite evident that the miners do not realize that no matter how they vote on this question the agreement entered into by their local officers and endorsed by President Lewis must stand.

NOT BACK ON JOB

A message received from Springhill stated that the miners employed there would be back on the job tomorrow. Springhill and Acadia miners have reiterated their determination to remain idle until such time as the company grants them the 1921 rates. According to U.M.W. officials here the miners on the mainland by this action have automatically read themselves out of the U.M.W. Workers of America.

"As soon as we are assured of sufficient coal supply the Dominion Steel plant will start again," was the information given to The Star by Superintendent Bischoff's office. With all the collieries producing coal there will be no lack of fuel for the plant. The daily requirements will run to nearly 4,000 tons, and as the daily output from the Dominion Coal Company mines will approximate 12,000 tons there will be no difficulty in giving the steel company all the coal required.

Number 8 blast furnace, which has been banked since the shut down some four weeks ago, will be made ready at once to produce iron. The open hearths have been lighted up and will be producing steel about the middle of the week. The rail mill will be made ready for rolling the 56,000 ton rail order for the Government railways. This department should be in operation within another week's time with an assured supply of coal and will be speeded up as rapidly as conditions warrant. Additional men will be taken on from day to day until the required staff is employed.

MAY RE-START WORK ON PHARAOH'S TOMB

Egyptian Gov't Lays Down Conditions Carter Must Accept

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press).—As a result of consultations with legal advisers on the situation arising from Howard Carter's cessation of work on Tutankhamen's tomb the Egyptian Government has decided that Mr. Carter will be permitted to continue his explorations provided that he accepts conditions formulated by the Government, according to a Cairo despatch to the Evening News.

These conditions stipulate that the work shall be carried out directly under control and direction of the Government. The expense of continuing and completing the work is to be borne entirely by the Government, the entire news service in connection with the tomb is to be undertaken by the Egyptian and foreign press bureau and in the event that Mr. Carter refuses to agree to their conditions the tomb is to be re-opened independently of him and he would then be free to take any legal action.

It is added that there is no legal obstacle to the opening of the tomb by the Government as Mr. Carter having broken his agreement the Government is held to be released from their obligations in the matter.

$100,000 FIRE.

ROLAND, Man., Feb. 18—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused here early Sunday morning when the Roland Supply Company's building, M. J. Horn's hardware store and Higgins and Company's general store were destroyed by fire.

A large part of the damage was suffered by various lodges housed in the upper part of the Higgins block, where vestments and insignia of several lodges were stored. The loss is partly covered by insurance.

COLLAPSE OF FRANC TAKEN AS HINT OF FINAL CRISIS

Tremendous Excitement on Paris Bourse at Record Low

23 TO DOLLAR

Experts' Report on Reparations Expected in Few Days

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Star Special Cable by J. E. Poole, Staff Correspondent). — A significant hint that the French situation is nearing a final crisis is the fact that travellers reaching Boulogne on Sunday obtained one hundred francs to the pound when one changing British money.

PARIS, Feb. 18. — (United Press) —The French franc collapsed to a record low today of 23.40 to the dollar shortly before noon.

When the Bourse opened, amid scenes of tremendous excitement and activity in foreign exchanges and securities the franc was within ten centimes of its previous low mark of 23.50.

Within a few minutes, further decline was in evidence, and at 11.30, while traders struggled frantically in the corridors and on the steps of the Bourse, the franc passed its record low

FINDINGS ARE REVIEWED

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(Star Special Cable.)—The findings of the experts in their investigations in Berlin were reviewed today, when both committees re-convened here, each holding a two-hour session. The statements obtained in Germany were compared with those previously assembled.

Brig.-Gen. Dawes delegated the sub-committee on the proposed German gold bank to meet Herr Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, this afternoon and discuss developments. Herr Schacht was not called at the morning session.

A sub-committee which is considering Germany's budget is now preparing its reports. The main committees adjourned until Tuesday morning.

CURTAILS FOREIGN CREDITS.

PARIS, Feb. 18—(Associated Press) —The Minister of Finance has circularized the banks advising against granting credits in francs against securities figured in foreign currencies. He also warns against granting similar credits to mercantile houses whose headquarters are outside of France and moreover to use particular care in extending franc credits even to French mercantile houses against holdings of foreign currencies. He gives as reason for the circular that such operations "in their very nature are susceptible of unfavorably influencing the exchange value of the franc."

GENERAL ELECTION TALK PREMATURE

Federal Government Not Planning Appeal to Country

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—(Star Special) —The Dominion Government is not planning an appeal to the country this year, so it is reaffirmed to-day in the highest circles. Outsiders in intimate touch with the Ministry also discount the forecast in Opposition papers of such a possibility in June. The situation, nevertheless, is one that is full of possibilities.

In the last two sessions the Government has received Progressive support on most of its measures. Last year when, for different reasons the two wings to the left practically united against the budget, sufficient progressives stood by the Government or were absent to ensure the necessary majority. Whether this same support will be forthcoming this year may be a bit problematical and will depend considerably upon the character of the budget proposals.

Unless signs fail, however, there will be certain tariff concessions, designed to enlist this independent aid, without alienating the regular support of the Eastern Liberals. How some such plan — undoubtedly in view — will work out cannot be predicted at this juncture, but certainly the Government does not plan or want a premature election while the attitude of the Progressives will have changed if any substantial body of them now favor such a course. Particularly adverse to it are the twenty farmer members from Ontario.

Undoubtedly, there are ticklish problems ahead — the tariff, redistribution and the banking situation, for example, while the Ministry will miss Mr. Fielding and Sir Lomer Gouin, especially unless there are compensating alliances. The fact, however, that the Government does not want or plan an election while a substantial element of the Progressives share that view, minimizes its probability unless there should be some particularly destructive development in the course of the session.

DECLINE TO COMMENT

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)— Premier Mackenzie King and Hon. E. J. McMurray declined to comment this morning on an Ottawa despatch to a Toronto paper attacking several members of the Cabinet. The attitude of the Solicitor-General, expressed on Saturday, is that the loans made by the defunct Home Bank to his law firm in Winnipeg were guaranteed by adequate securities, which remain in the custody of the bank. These securities are Western Canadian securities which declined in value during the war but which, says Mr. McMurray, with the revival of business in the West will be more than adequate to protect his firm's indebtedness.

Mr. King had nothing to say about the matter. Hon. John Sinclair, another Minister attacked in the despatch, is not in Ottawa at present.

RUSSIA NOW SEEKS LOAN OF $50,000,000 FROM BRITISH GOVERNMENT

LONDON, Feb 18.—(Special Star-Tribune Cable. Copyright.)—A fifty million dollar loan, following recognition, is the next thing that Moscow desires from the British Government.

This figure was named by Leonid Krassin, former head of the Russian Trade Commission in London, in the weekly Russian paper "The Information and Review." He said that without loans Russia would not be able to buy foreign goods, except in comparatively small amounts, and that internal development will be seriously hampered.

"Of course the Bourgeoisie will try to utilize the negotiations for credits to obtain various concessions," M. Krassin writes. "In particular they will attempt to introduce the question of the old debts and claims for losses suffered during the revolution. The Soviet has been ready to discuss these questions, but always on a basis of mutuality.

"The negotiations certainly will not be without their difficulties, but Premier MacDonald's Government, by its recognition of the Soviet, has swept aside the greatest difficulty of all."

STRIKE EPIDEMIC SPREADS RAPIDLY IN GREAT BRITAIN

Miners to Terminate Agreement—Lancashire Cotton Workers Quit

WOMEN CLERKS OUT

Union of Unemployed Refuse to Fill Places of Dockers

LONDON, Feb. 18 — (Star Special Cable by J. E. Poole, Staff Correspondent.) — The strike itch is spreading rapidly. The miners have given notice to terminate their agreement on April 17. Lancashire cotton operatives resent the introduction of labor saving machinery and have stopped work. Employers threaten to lock out building operatives who are demanding an increase of two pence per hour. Shipbuilding workers are demanding an advance of ten shillings per week. The National Union of General Workers and the National Amalgamated Union of Laborers are talking of terminating their agreement with the Iron and Steel Association. The women workers of two Woolworth stores are out and boot workers have left their benches in Somerset, besides scores of minor stoppages.

Jack Jones M.P. for Silvertown is raising a class cry and states that whatever steps the Ministry of Transport may take in order to preserve the nation's food supply they will see that the people who get the available food are the workers.

The National Union of Unemployed which was responsible for the demonstration in London last year declares that none of its members will take the places of the striking dockers.

With 120,000 dockers idle and orders issued to railwaymen at the docks not to handle so-called "blackleg" traffic an insignificant amount of foodstuffs and other merchandise is moving. London in particular is sure to feel the pinch within ten days. The only union remaining at work is the Stevedores union.

Frank Hodges, civil lord of the Admiralty, is the first member of the Government to overstep the bounds of strict neutrality in connection with industrial disputes. Speaking in Wales he declared.

"My sympathies are entirely with the workmen who are struggling for a living wage" but he must have had his tongue in his cheek when he added that he did not think that the fact of the unrest reaching a head now was in any way related to the fact that the Labor Government was now in power.

COURT ACTION OVER ATTACK ON SOLDIER

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Charged with "occasioning bodily harm" to Trooper Bowen of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, seven men of the regiment will appear in police court tomorrow afternoon. Crown Attorney Eric Armour stated today that he had issued directions to the police on instructions of Hon. W. F. Nickle, Provincial Attorney-General.

The charges are the outcome of an assault on Bowen by a number of his comrades two weeks ago because they claimed, he had had made remarks detrimental to the regiment at a religious meeting. The men have already been punished by Col. Gilman, O. C., at Stanley Barracks.

STRIKE OF BANK CLERKS IN VIENNA

VIENNA, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press.)—Managers and clerks of the four most important Vienna banks struck today for higher wages. About 6,500 men are involved. The bankers' association has decided to lock out the staffs of all Austrian banks involving 40,000 employes on Wednesday unless the strikers return to work.

Resigns Office

Edwin A. Denby, secretary U.S. Navy, whose resignation has been accepted by President Coolidge.

SECRETARY DENBY RESIGNS OFFICE IN U.S. CABINET

Action Effective March 10—President Praises Colleague

ROOSEVELT STAYS

Friends Advised Retiring Minister Not to Defy Senate

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press) — Secretary of the Navy Denby has resigned and will retire from the Cabinet on March 10.

He informed President Coolidge that in view of his connection with the oil leases he did not desire to further embarrass the administration by remaining a member of it.

The President, in a letter accepting the resignation, praised the official record of his retiring Navy Secretary and said he acceded to, the request with regret.

Theodore Roosevelt, who as assistant secretary under Mr. Denby had a part in drafting the order, which transferred the naval reserves from the navy to the interior department, conferred with the president and announced later he did not expect to resign.

Secretary Denby's decision was reached after personal and political friends had advised him not to continue the attitude of defiance he adopted when the Senate passed its resolution asking that he step out of the Cabinet.

Coincident with the resignation of Secretary Denby there were predictions among Senators that important disclosures of a new and sensational character were imminent in the oil inquiry.

These predictions revolved for the most part about the inquiry that committee experts are making into the books of various brokerage firms, in search of evidence of oil stock speculation by Government officials.

Mr. Denby's resignation was submitted on his 54th birthday just after he had gone to the Navy Department to find his office filled with flowers from his friends.

ROOSEVELT NOT GOING

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press.)—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant Secretary of the Navy, announced after half-an-hour's conference with President Coolidge today that he would not resign as the result of the retirement of Secretary Denby.

"I have just been to see the President and I am not resigning," Mr. Roosevelt said.

CHANGES MADE IN IMMIGRATION DEPT.

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 — (Star Special) — A. L. Jolliffe who has been Pacific coast superintendent of the Department of Immigration has been appointed Commissioner of Immigration of Canada with authority over the three divisional commissioners. Mr. Jolliffe will be replaced as commissioner and as controller of Chinese immigration at Vancouver by Percy Reid of the Ottawa staff.

A number of other changes in the staff of the Department are in progress. J. Bruce Walker of Winnipeg comes to Ottawa as head of publicity and the field staff connected with United States immigration while J. Saxon Fraser of Ottawa is promoted to commissioner of the Eastern division. He will take over the work of commissioner Little for whom a promotion is in progress. There will be no change in the Winnipeg staff apart from the transfer to Ottawa of Bruce Walker. Commissioner Gelley will continue.

CIVIC ELECTION DAY IN QUEBEC

QUEBEC, Feb. 18 — (Star Special) —Though a very heavy vote had been expected in the municipal elections, which are on here today, due to the fact that unusual interest had been manifested by the ratepayers, it was estimated this afternoon that hardly two-thirds of the electors would cast their votes.

Forecasts were that Mayor Samson would be returned with a majority of over 2,000 over his oppenent, Dr. V. Martin, a former alderman. There are twenty-eight candidates for aldermanic honors in the six wards of the city.

ALL PORTS EXCEPT LONDON PARALYZED BY MEN'S WALK OUT

MacDonald's Successful Intervention Alone Can Prevent Bitterest Industrial Fight Of Years — Mails To Canada Tied Up — Meat Prices Rise

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press) — Anxious to know the Government's attitude toward the dockers', strike, members of the House of Commons put in several private questions regarding it today. Thomas Shaw, the Minister of Labor, said he would appoint a court of inquiry under the terms of the Industrial Act to inquire into the causes and circumstances of the dispute and make a report thereon.

Premier MacDonald said the Government would not fail to take such steps as are necessary to secure the transport of necessary food supplies and already had set up the nucleus of such an organization.

"May I add," he said, "the expression of the hope that nothing will be said or asked to make difficult the only thing that really matters— a settlement of the dispute."

Large Section Of Public Shows Sympathetic Attitude To Demands Made By Workers

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(United Press) —The Labor Cabinet met this afternoon to discuss the nation-wide dock strike of 110,000 workers, which has tied up shipping and paralyzed transportation at every port in the United Kingdom, with the exception of London.

It was understood that the Cabinet undoubtedly would approve immediate intervention by Premier Ramsay MacDonald.

In Commons this afternoon, the Prime Minister declared the Government would not fail to secure the transportation facilities necessary to move adequate food supplies, and that a nucleus of an organization for this purpose already had been created.

Non-union workers have decided to adopt a general "go slowly" policy which will result, in chaos even at those docks where men remain at work. (This "go slow" plan is one of the favorite weapons of the British working man under strike conditions and means that the stevedores, while continuing on the job and incidentally drawing their pay, will do little, if any, actual work.)

Unless the Prime Minister's intervention is successful, it threatens to develop into one of the bitterest and hardest industrial fights of years.

Ramsay MacDonald, showing the strain of exhaustion after four weeks in office as both Premier and Foreign Minister, has to face the second nation-wide transportation strike of his administration. Through the Trades Union Council, his Government succeeded in intervening successfully in the railroad strike last month.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(British United Press.)—Britain awoke this morning to the reality of the dock strike when morning papers apologized for their reduced size upon the plea that the reduction was made in order to conserve paper.

The confident announcement was made this morning in semi-official circles that there will not be any shortage of foodstuffs for some days to come. This is expected to check any widespread movement to hoard, although certain shopkeepers are refusing to sell large quantities of staples. Meat prices are already slightly in advance in some districts.

With the exception of the little group that believes that all Labor troubles in Britain originate and are directed from Moscow, there is little perturbation over the strike, and it looks as if there was a large body of public opinion that is in sympathy with efforts of the dockers to obtain concessions.

There is a general feeling of confidence that the Labor Government will not allow matters to reach a real crisis. Premier MacDonald's direct intervention through the appointment of a Court of Enquiry, is expected today. It is pointed out that during the next few weeks there will be less than the normal amount of shipping, especially from Canada, than at any other time during the year.

The least hopeful sign of the affair is that the dockers' leaders resent the attitude shown by employers and claim that they are treated with lack of dignity.

RUSSIAN SOVIET IN MONGOLIA

Strange Story Comes Out of Shanghai Concerning Moves

SHANGHAI, Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press.)—The Russian Soviet is reaching out for territory in Mongolia, according to reports here.

The authorities now in control of Outer Mongolia have accepted a proposal from the Bolsheviki to make their country a self-governing state of the Soviet Republic. A secret agreement has been entered into. It stipulates that Outer Mongolia be placed under Soviet protection and its Government will invite Russians to organize laborers' and peasants' institutions; the abandonment of the rule of princes, government to be conducted by a revolutionary committee with the governor as chairman; Russian citizens of Mongolia to have the right to purchase land and exploit mines of Mongolia; railroads to be built by Russian engineers with only Russian capital; Russians to be permitted to organize labor and co-operative societies on the Russian plan, only Russian citizens to be employed in the service of the Government "in order to show their sincere wish for the unification of the two countries."

SOLDIERS BURNED IN FIRE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(United Press).—Army officials are seeking the cause of a fire at Camp Humphreys, Va., yesterday, in which two soldiers were killed and two buildings destroyed. Sergeant John Miller, Lewiston, Maine, and Private Charles L. Grannis, of Newcastle, Pa., died of their burns.

"Die Hards'" Club Ousts Member For Taking Labor Post

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Special Star-World Cable) The executive of the Conservative 1900 Club has expelled Viscount Chelmsford first Lord of the Admiralty, and Oswald Moseley, M.P., son-in-law of Marquis of Curzon, the Sunday Express announced yesterday.

The Viscount is expelled because he accepted office from the Labor party. Moseley is ousted, because at the last two general elections, he stood as an "Independent" and has acted as such in the House of Commons. The club holds that this action is a violation of its rules.

AIR DEFENCE PLAN IN RESOLUTION

Also Embodies Govt's Viewpoint on Imperial Conference Measures

LONDON, Feb. 18 — (British United Press). — The most interesting political event of the week outside the strike reactions is the resolution standing in the name of former Air Minister Hoare affirming the principle laid down by the former Government and accepted by the Imperial Conference that Britain must maintain a defensive air force for Home service adequate to protect her against the strongest air force within striking distance of the island. The resolution will demonstrate the procedure of the Government regarding the Imperial Conference resolutions and the general attitude of the Commons towards the resolutions passed by that body.

While Premier MacDonald has stated that the resolutions will be submitted he has also laid it down that the various Ministers and members of the party will be free to vote how they like. Certain questions which will be supported by the Conservatives will also have the approval of a large number of Conservatives and if they had been made a strict party question the defection of the Liberals from the Government might have seriously embarrassed MacDonald and the Labor Government.

French Deputy Proposes Law To Tax All Titles

PARIS, Feb. 18—(Special Star-Tribune Cable. Copyright)—Deputy Jean Loquin, Socialist, proposes a law to realize forty million francs by taxing all titles.

By the measure, it is proposed to tax a prince and princess 3,000 francs annually; a duke and duchess 3,000 francs; a count and countess 2,500 francs; a viscount 2,000 francs; a marquis 1,500 francs and a baron 1,000 francs.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Engagements Announced.

Invitations have been sent out by Mr. and Mrs. William Massey Birks for the marriage of their daughter, Harriet, to Mr. William Sutherland, son of Mrs. Louis Sutherland, St. Mark street, to take place on Tuesday afternoon, March 4, at five o'clock, at the American Presbyterian Church, and afterwards to a reception at their residence, 294 Stanley street.

Ellwood—Ross.

The marriage took place on Saturday afternoon at the Church of St. James the Apostle, of Evelyn Vardon Durnford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Ross, to Captain William James Howard Ellwood, M.C., fourth son of the Rev. C. E. Ellwood and Mrs. Ellwood, of Cottesmore Rectory, Oakham, England. The Bishop of Montreal officiated, assisted by the Rev. Canon Shatford. Spring flowers were arranged on the altar and smilax and greenery decorated the chancel. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a French gown of ivory satin simply made with long-waisted bodice having long, tight sleeves, and a circular godet skirt draped at one side, faced with satin-brocaded in silver, with a bow of brocade falling at the other side. Her court train, arranged capuchin hood effect and caught at the shoulders with clusters of orange blossoms was also lined with silver brocaded satin. Her veil, which was a family heirloom, worn by her great-grandmother, Mrs. Philip Durnford, on her wedding day, was of rare old real lace. She carried a shower bouquet of lily-of-the-valley with a sprig of myrtle grown from a spray carried by the groom's mother, Mrs. C. E. Ellwood, on her wedding day. She also wore a flexible gold bracelet with diamond clasp, the gift of the groom's mother. The bridesmaid was Miss Pixie Smith, who wore a gown of rose georgette over crepe de chine with a pin-tucked bodice and full skirt finished with large motifs of pin-tucked chiffon edged with French flowers. She wore a hat to match, with upturned brim, trimmed with a large silver rose, and carried an arm bouquet of spring flowers in pastel shades. The train bearers were little Miss Ann Creighton, who wore a Kate Greenaway costume of sprigged muslin made in high waisted style, with a broad pink sash and a poke bonnet with pink ribbon streamers, and Master Peter Leggat, who wore a costume of the same period with high waisted pink trousers and a white silk ruffled blouse. FARQUHAR ESTATE SUBJECT OF CLAIM

Administrator's Delay Payment—Lord Younger Disclaims Knowledge

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(Star-World Cable, Copyright.)—Claims apparently on behalf of the Conservative party, have been lodged against the estate of the late Lord Farquhar, who left bequests to nearly every member of the British royal family, according to the Sunday Express.

The Express explains that the firm of Maxwell, Hicks and Co., chartered accountants, which acts for the Conservative party in connection with party funds, brought the claim on behalf of themselves and other creditors.

Lord Farquhar was treasurer of the Conservative party.

The sums left in the will to Princess Arthur of Connaught and her son, the Earl of MacDuff, were expected to reach £100,000 for each. Lord Carnegie, who recently married King George's niece, was expected to get £50,000, and Prince George £2,000.

Now, as a result of the claim, the legal firm administering the estate will notify the beneficiaries that there may be considerable delay in paying the full amount of the bequests, if it is possible to pay them at all.

LORD YOUNGER DENIES IT.

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (United News.)—Lord Younger, head of the Conservative party organization, has denied that his party has made any claim on the estate of Lord Farquhar, treasurer of the party fund, who left large sums of money to King George, Queen Mary and Princess Arthur of Connaught.

A sensation was created here when the Sunday Express published a story that Maxwell, Hicks and Company, auditors for the Conservative party, had intervened in the distribution of the estate. In denying that his party brought the action, Lord Younger said he did not know who was responsible for the claim.

SHE KEPT HER HEAD; NOW SHE'LL LOSE IT

Aged German Woman Convicted of Fiendish Murder

BERLIN, Feb. 18 — (United News) —Seventy-three-year-old Frau Marie Blauel of Alsleben sits today in a jail cell at Halle awaiting beheading.

She has been condemned to this medieval form of death for poisoning 74-year-old Skipper Boettcher of Alsleben who sought shelter beneath her roof, promising to make her his heir in pay for his keep.

Frau Blauel, unmoved as the circumstantial evidence at the trial piled up against her, proving her cupidity and her strange attitude toward her guest, staunchly denies having murdered the old man.

But the evidence showed that on the evening of July 4 of last year she had given him an unusually heavy meal, followed by a cup of cocoa which he said tasted oddly.

He complained that he did not feel well and left the Blauel cottage to go to the home of a relative. He told the relative that Frau Blauel had tried to poison him to obtain his fortune.

WATCHED DEATH STRENGTH.

Finally forgetting his fears, he went back to the home of Frau Blauel. She watched beside his bed as he died there, writhing in agony. He expired as dawn came.

Neighbors began to talk. Alsleben is a hamlet in the industrial heart of mid-Germany, and the friends of kind, harmless Skipper Boettcher remembered his dire accusations against the aged woman.

Investigation followed. Poison was found in the man's body. Furthermore, it was discovered that the old woman had hoarded bags of a deadly poison.

Damaging evidence was introduced to show that Frau Blauel was eager for the old man's property. She denied all evidence stubbornly, but the verdict of "guilty" was returned.

The death sentence in the Alsleben districts call for beheading.

WOMEN'S WORK

WENT ON RECORD FOR SAFE MEAT

Resolutions of N.D.G. Club Deal With Food Supply and Other Matters

At a largely attended meeting of the Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club, held in Wesley Church Hall on Friday, on the motion of Mrs. W. B. Mathews, of the Household Economics Committee, the Club placed itself on record as co-operating in any action taken in regard to the milk and meat situations. The Notre Dame de Grace Club was among the organizations represented at the meeting under the auspices of the City Improvement League on Thursday, to consider ways and means of securing a safe meat supply.

A second resolution which was passed at the meeting read as follows:

"Whereas: various reports concerning alleged cruelty in the racing of dogs during the recent Winter Sports have been circulated and the attention of one of the officers of this club has been called to this fact, therefore, be it resolved that the Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club go on record as having the fullest confidence in the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and depend upon it to see that no cruelty is inflicted where that is possible; and failing that to prosecute those guilty of cruelty of any kind."

In regard to street-car service the following was passed: "Whereas: many residents of Notre Dame de Grace are finding the present arrangements of the Montreal Tramways Company inadequate in serving the needs of this community, and, whereas: from Hampton avenue, going east the cars are generally so crowded that passengers getting on after that point are obliged to stand, even between rush hours, and, whereas: residents of Notre Dame de Grace returning to their homes at the close of the day are forced to see several St. Catherine street cars, partially filled, going west, while the Windsor and Windsor (Snowdon) cars are intolerably crowded, passengers clinging on the outside steps wherever there is a foothold, therefore be it resolved: that the Notre Dame de Grace Women's Club, representing about 650 families, petition the management of the Montreal Tramways for some relief from this conditions; and that a delegation be appointed to present the ever-increasing need of this district for better facilities of transportation at all hours of the day."

At the close of the meeting, Mrs. Walter E. Lyman, president of the Local Council of Women, made a stirring appeal on behalf of the Save-the-Children Fund, to which a generous response was made.

CONVALESCENT HOME.

The annual meeting of the Montreal Convalescent Home will be held in the Board Room of the Home, 103 St. Mark street, on Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock for the reception of annual reports, election of officers, etc. The meeting is open to the public.

PLANNING FALL BAZAAR.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Kensington Presbyterian Church, Notre Dame de Grace, has already decided on the date for its annual bazaar, which is to be held on Friday and Saturday, November 7 and 8.

CABARET DANCER'S STORY DISBELIEVED

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press.) — Police were disinclined last night to credit the story told them yesterday by Miss Olga Morton, a cabaret dancer, that a mysterious man gained entrance to her West 48th street apartment this morning and bound and gagged her in a manner similar to that used in killing Louise Lawson, February 8.

A physician found only wrist bruises on the girl, who was said to have been lying on the floor of the hallway to her apartment in an unconscious condition when her negro maid arrived. Police examined the premises and after listening to a short recital of Miss Morton's story said they would question her later.

Unlike the murderers in the Lawson case, the attackers of Miss Morton did not touch her jewelry. She has been estranged from her husband, Frederick Camp, a bank employe.

MORE WHOLESOME RESPECT FOR LAW

Stricter Enforcement of Prohibition in United States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press.) — Attorney-General Daugherty has reported to President Coldge that a stricter enforcement of prohibition already has inspired "a more wholesome respect for law and order."

The Attorney-General sent to the President a resume of conditions after four years operation of the dry laws. From facts which had come to the Department of Justice, he said, it was apparent that his office was getting larger cases; that it was trying them more promptly and that it was securing much heavier penalties.

Expressing amazement at the volume of business which the federal courts have been able to handle, the Attorney-General explained that more than 115,000 cases had been concluded, of which 92,411 or about 80 per cent, resulted ain convictions and fines aggregating $15,526,923. During the last fiscal year, he said, the courts have disposed of prohibition cases at the average rate of 119 daily.

WHY THE WEATHER?

By DR. CHARLES F. BROOKS, of Clark University.

WINTER TEMPERATURES ALOFT

In summer the lower part of the atmosphere is much warmed by the warm earth, in winter, this effect is less marked. Thus we find at a latitude of about 40 degrees the average air temperature in summer is 77 degrees Fahrenheit at the surface and only about 45 degrees Fahrenheit at an elevation of 2 miles. In winter, on the other hand, at the same latitude the average surface air temperature is 28 degrees and the temperature at 2 miles, 16 degrees Fahrenheit. Hence, where the fall in temperature in ascending 2 miles is 32 degrees in summer, it is only 12 degrees in winter. Between 2 and 5 miles up there is little difference between summer and winter. Rates of temperature decrease with altitude, and at any level winter temperatures are about 25 degrees below summer temperatures. As we go still higher, however, we find a smaller seasonal change till at 7 miles the temperature remains about 65 degrees below zero throughout the year. An aviator, then, who attempts to make an altitude record must be prepared for bitter cold at any season. In February, Schroeder observed a temperature of 67 degrees Fahrenheit below zero at an altitude of about 33,000 feet over Dayton, Ohio. The normal winter temperature at this elevation is about as low as the lowest surface air temperature ever observed in the United States, which is 68 degrees Fahrenheit below zero.

CHINESE WOMEN THROW OFF OLD RESTRICTIONS

Emancipation of the Sex is Now Heralded

PEKING, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Among all the social changes in China since the revolution perhaps none has been more bewildering to patriarchal Chinese than the sudden emancipation of their wives and daughters, the latter particularly.

A few years ago the Chinese girl lived in the seclusion of her home in bondage to rigid etiquette. Then she received her scanty education. At a tender age she was betrothed. The choice of her future husband rested with her parents, with the aid of a middleman, and for her to repudiate the betrothal when she reached maturity was an act almost unheard of. There never was any courtship by the affianced couple after the western fashion.

But that has changed now. The girls have almost as much freedom as those of western nations. Public schools are being opened for girls in all provinces and the experiment of co-education is being tried in non-missionary schools. Objection is being made by the girls to early betrothals. When these have been made it is apparently becoming not infrequent for parental arrangements to be ignored and for the girl to marry the man of her own choice.

There is one unfavorable aspect of this growing freedom, which is prevalent among boys as well as girls. It is the gradual disappearance of parental authority. For instance, in an inland city a few days ago some Chinese school boys in the exuberance of their patriotism destroyed Japanese goods which were for sale in the various shops. One injured proprietor was very indignant and, seeing among the rioters two of his own sons declared he would disown them. The boys shouted back: "We disown you! You are not a patriot! You are a traitor!" In the old days such an incident would have been inconceivable.

CHARGE MALICIOUS BLOW AT CANADIAN CATTLE BUSINESS

Hold Irish Trouble Excuse for Excluding Dominion Stock from Britain—Appeal to Minister of Agriculture —Order Received Today—Many Protests

Charging the British Government with a malicious and deliberate effort to injure the Canadian cattle trade, the Canadian Livestock Exporters' Association, has wired Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, calling on him to protest against the order just received in Montreal from the British Government intimating that Canadian cattle are debarred from the entry into Great Britain.

The association draws special attention to the fact that 270 head of Canadian store cattle is loading today in Halifax on the Canadian Leader for Dundee, Scotland, and suggests that the Canadian Government should stand sponsor for this shipment, as the cattle were at the seaboard ready to load when the order was received.

IRISH DISEASE.

It is understood that the reason of the order is an outbreak of disease among Irish store cattle, but the association fails to see in this a just reason for excluding Canadian animals.

The association's telegram to Hon. Mr. Motherwell sets forth that Dr. Frood, the British Agricultural Live Stock representative, who resides in Montreal, has received instructions from Britain to the effect that an order has been issued prohibiting the importation of Canadian cattle. It states further that 279 Canadian store cattle are loading at Halifax today on board the steamer Canadian Leader, bound for Dundee, Scotland; that the order is believed to have resulted from an outbreak of disease among Irish store cattle, and that the Canadian Government should be sponsor for the shipment of cattle which was at the seaboard ready to embark when the order came.

It further calls on Mr. Motherwell to take action immediately, saying that an outbreak of disease among Irish cattle is no reason for excluding Canadian animals, and that Canadians believe the order has been made with deliberate, malicious intention to injuriously affect Canadian cattle interests.

RECEIVE PROTESTS.

Letters have been received from various parts of the West and Ontario, the dispatch concludes, asking why the Dominion Government representative is not in England now looking after the Canadian cattle interests, since the spring shipment of export store cattle has just commenced.

MYSTERY BOARDER DIED IN HIS ROOM

Did Not Divulge Even Name to His Landlord—Inquest Adjourned

Found dead in his room last Saturday at noon, the body of a man know only as "Joe," a Russian of whom police are unable to discover anything is lying in the morgue while Coroner's Court officials are working in an attempt to discover whether he committed suicide by drinking a bottle of alcohol, or whether he died from a hemmorhage.

Though the deceased had lived for the past three months at the home of George Cabba, 42 Dorchester street west, he was reticent as to his life, name and means of livelihood. In spite of strenuous efforts made by police since the discovery of the body, they have so far been unable to determine his name or anything about him.

At noon last Saturday Mrs. George Cabba heard him fall heavily to the floor of his room. The door was locked and the woman, unable to enter, summoned the police.

After battering down the door of the room, contables found the unknown man lying dead on the floor, and a half emptied bottle of alcohol on the bed.

When the case was called for inquest at the morgue this morning, Coroner McMahon refused to proceed with the hearing until an autopsy had been performed.

Tomorrow, with the medical report before him, he will endeavor to determine the cause of the man's death.

BOX OF COCAINE IN PANTS' POCKET

Six Months and $200—Alleged Trafficker Remanded in Bail

Caught with a box of cocaine in his pants' pocket by constables who had entered a tavern to make observations, Leo Pichette to-day was sentenced by Recorder Semple to six months in jail, $200 and costs or fifteen days in jail.

Special Constables Minogue and Lacasse told of locating Pichette in the wash room of a St. Catherine street east establishment, following a conversation they overheard. The man was searched and the drug found. Pichette swore he did not own the drug, but that he and his companion had found the box in the tavern and had gone to the rear to see if it really held drug.

Emery Bourgeois, 33 years old, living on St. Lawrence boulevard, opened the door of a Berger street house Saturday night only to find himself pinned by Special Constables Coulombe, Vanini, Bourassa and Grignon, who allege he had five decks in his clothing.

On a plea of not guilty to having drugs, and as Constable Coulombe declared the man "identified as a trafficker," Recorder Semple remanded Bourgeois for a week for trial under bail of $1,500 bonds or $500 cash.

CAMPAIGN TO LURE YOUTH TO SHAME

Judge of Juvenile Court Issues Stern Warning to Contributors

Emissaries of the underworld are haunting night cafes, theatres, and streets in the vice district, forcing acquaintance with girls from 12 to 16, trapping the children in houses, taking away their clothing and keeping them prisoners until such time as they are engulfed in a life of shame, according to information reaching Judge Lacroix of the Juvenile Court, who to-day called one woman to court and warned her that, if ever she came within his reach, he would jail her and all others like her.

During the week end, three girls, aged 14 and 15 — two from country points, drawn to Montreal by reports of gay life under the white lights, and one local girl, who also ran away from home — were arrested by Detectives Finel and Pelletier, of the Juvenile Court, who found them loitering in the heart of a section of the city dangerous to both boys and girls. They are under remand for investigation.

Information as to invitations they had received from strange women who approached them at different points was given by the girls, and as a result the woman in question was called and reminded that the Juvenile Delinquents Act provides jail and heavy fines for those inducing children to enter an immoral envirohment.

DELAY CALLING MORE WITNESSES

No More Subpoenas to Go Out Till the Trial Opens

Crown witnesses in former trials of Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with murder, who have not already been subpoenaed to appear as witnesses at the second murder trial on February 25, will probably not be summoned until after the trial actually commences.

This became known this morning when it was admitted that no further work of subpoenaing witnesses had been ordered, and that so far only 21 Crown witnesses had been called.

It was stated officially today that the Crown would await the trial and see how long it takes to form a jury before further summons are issued to witnesses.

This action leaves many former Crown witnesses in doubt as to whether their presence will be required at this trial.

TUBERCULOSIS

(Investigations by Star Commissioners)

Criminal Neglect—Measures That Have Saved—Medicine Will Not Cure—Simple Measures Effective Everywhere Need Enforcement in Montreal.

Between the years 1910 and 1921 tuberculosis killed 99,261 people in the city of New York.

During the same period approximately 9,200 persons died of the disease in Montreal.

Allowing for the difference in the population of the two cities the death rates are nearly equal.

A large percentage of the deaths were unnecessary, were sacrifices to ignorance and carelessness. The New York city municipal Government, the New York State Government, and the Congress of the United States recognized the fact, and by campaigns of education and wise health measures reduced the tuberculosis death rate by 67 per cent.

The Canadian Governments did practically nothing.

Under the direct control of the New York Tuberculosis Association the people of that city are gradually learning to lose their fear of the disease, are appreciating that it is curable and preventable, are reporting it in the early stages, and, under the guidance of the Association, are taking measures for recovery.

This counter-attack on the white plague with its highly encouraging results constitutes an object lesson for the people of Montreal and of Canada, and a standing challenge to the authorities to pay more attention to that fundamental basis of prosperity—the health of the people.

The work of the New York Tuberculosis Association is all embracing and is broad, based on the principle that the best way to prevent tuberculosis, and other diseases, is through increasing people's interest, knowledge, and determination to care for their health.

The Association spreads the truth and backs its propaganda up with service of the most efficient kind. It tells the people what to do when they have tuberculosis. How to avoid it—the truth about how to keep well and how to strengthen the body against tuberculosis. It does this through health exhibits, health centres, motion pictures, lectures, pamphlets, posters, newspapers and periodicals, and by special work among children who are particularly susceptible to the disease.

All this on an efficient basis is lacking in Montreal, not because good and public-spirited citizens cannot be found to undertake the task, but because the vital needs of the situation have long since gone beyond the bounds of private means.

Further, the New York Association conducts health classes, arranges summer outings and assists in the work of the open air classes. The latter is a phase of the campaign planned especially for the development of undernourished children, and for those who are in direct contact with tuberculosis. Important assistance is also given in other ways, and the seriousness of the situation has so impressed itself upon the minds of the authorities that health lessons are given to the children in the schools.

The Association renders assistance in the problem of selecting sanatoria for prospective patients, aids business firms in arranging suitable care for tubercular employes; and supervise the co-ordination and efficiency of the 31 tuberculosis dispensaries operating in New York city.

The average person in Montreal cannot tell when he suffers from tuberculosis in the early stages. The weakness, the coughing, is often put down to a bad cold and let go at that. There is no one to make the difference plain, to arouse sufficient suspicion to compel a visit to a doctor.

In New York authoritative popular pamphlets on the subject are always available. They illustrate the early symptoms—the cough that "hangs on," a "tired feeling" that won't "shake off," loss of weight, night sweats—and urge the advisability of a speedy visit to a doctor.

[Tomorrow's Star shows that tuberculosis kills more than war.]

UNAUTHORIZED PERSONS ARE COLLECTING MONEY

S.P.W.C. is Only Financed by Federated Charities

Many enquiries have been received by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Women and Children recently as to whether they are raising funds when they are financed by the Federated Charities which has its campaign only once a year. Several women have been canvassing under the pretense that it is for the S.P.W.C., but it has been discovered that they are really collecting money for another society which has given up its offices in Montreal.

Recently this Society has referred several cases to the S.P.W.C., according to G. S. Corbett, executive secretary, in charge of this division which has its offices in the Blumenthal Building. The situation says Mr. Corbett is very embarassing as it leads the public to believe that the S.P.W.C. are collecting independently as well as receiving support from the Financial Federation.

A well-known Montreal Worker, who is connected with the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Women and Children, was recently approached by one of these collectors, bearing a card authorized by the City Hall. The woman was offered a check made payable to the S.P.W.C. which she refused to accept stating that she would prefer cash.

LOITERING MAY BE DONE IN CAR

Automobile loiterers, beware!

"My opinion is that a man can loiter on a street in a car just as well as he can on foot," Recorder Semple declared from the bench today, when Kin Rifkin stood trial on a loitering charge.

Evidence was that Rifkin had been driving a car slowly on St. Catherine street between 12.30 and 1.00 a.m. just after Christmas. However, the accused was acquitted as the police got dates mixed in giving their evidence.

SLEPT IN C. N. R. CAR.

William Wilson was condemned to pay a fine of $2 and costs or serve eight days in jail this morning by Chief Judge Decarie, for sleeping in an empty passenger car, the property of the C. N. R. He said he would serve the jail sentence.

Twenty-seven women, girls and men, were taken by Morality squads in four raids made Saturday night. The women and girls will be tried next week. The men were fined $25 and costs.

BLAME COMPANY FOR ACCIDENT TO MACHINE

Carrier Concern Denies Any Liability

Responsibility of a carrying company for damages to goods in transit is the point at issue in a suit taken by the Canadian Fairbanks-Morse Co. Limited, against the Canadian Cartage and Storage Company, Limited, which is being heard before Mr. Justice Surveyer in Superior Court.

The former asks $1,221.50, claiming that while the latter was drawing a Walcott engine lathe to its premises, November 13, 1920, the machine toppled over and was smashed. The accident was due to the intoxicated condition of the draying company's driver, it is alleged.

The carrier denies liability, stating that the hiring concern should have provided proper facilities for unloading its goods, and that, moreover, no right of action lies as the suit was taken after the legal delays had expired.

In addition they plead compensation, stating that the Fairbanks Company still owes $171 for cartage, which sum would pay for the repair of the machine.

Principal Witnesses In Murder Trial are Confined to Cells

Corinne St. Jean and Joseph Duguay, principal witnesses in the Bergeron murder trial which terminated in the death sentence on the two accused, Alf. Dagenais and Ed. Frellier, are now held by the police on a charge of vagrancy.

In rendering a verdict of "guilty" against Frellier and Dagenais, the jury added a rider recommending that the two principal witnesses be charged as accomplices in the crime. Mr. Calder appeared in court this morning and stated that he had asked for a week's delay in carrying out the jury's recommendation, in order to consider the means of proof at his disposal.

NO COMMENT ON REPORT FROM B.E.S.

CAMERON CASE IS POSTPONED FOR WEEK; COUNSEL IN OTTAWA

Argument of counsel in the case of Colin O. Cameron, charged with theft of half a million dollars from the former stockbroking firm of Thornton Davidson and Co., is again postponed, until February 25. N. K. BOXING JUDGES TO BE PAID IN FUTURE

Star's Suggestion Adopted—Warning Against Speculators for Johnson Bout

The judges who give decisions in boxing bouts, under the jurisdiction of the Athletic Commission of the City of Montreal, will in future be paid a nominal fee, as suggested by The Star, so it was decided by the Commission at a meeting at noon today. This move, it is felt, will give the Commission better control over the judges, and possibly make for better decisions—at least, this is the aim of the Commission.

Two additional judges were appointed to act. They are D. I. Rubin, and B. Cummings. Both are well-known in local boxing circles and have had a lengthy connection with the sport.

The Commission passed upon the list of bouts scheduled for Friday night at the St. Denis theatre, and ratified these as follows:

Jack Johnson vs. Homer Smith, heavyweight, ten rounds.

Solly (Young) Green vs. Kid Dube, lightweights, ten rounds.

Elzear Rioux vs. Silas Green, heavyweights, six rounds.

George Gibbons vs. Jack Williams, middleweights, six rounds.

There will be one other six-round bout.

George Rivet will handle the Johnson-Smith, Green-Dube, and Rioux-Green matches. E. Boucher will officiate in the others.

The scale of seat prices, ranging from $1.50 to $5.50 was ratified by the Commission, and a warning will be issued to the management with regard to speculation in tickets.

PRESENT REPORT FUEL COMMITTEE

The general public is cordially invited to attend a meeting of the Montreal Branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada, to be held at the headquarters of the Institute, at 176 Mansfield street, on Thursday evening, at 8.15 o'clock. At this meeting a report will be presented by the Fuel Committee of the Montreal Branch of the Institute, which has been investigating the fuel situation in Canada for some time past.

The chairman of the committee, F. A. Combe, M.E.I.C., will address the meeting on the subject of domestic fuel and methods of operating domestic furnaces. His address will be illustrated by lantern slides.

PROBLEM OF DISEASED MEAT TO BE STUDIED BY LEADING SOCIETIES

Between eighty-five and one hundred organizations in Greater Montreal will receive tomorrow copies of three resolutions passed at the meeting held in the Board of Trade building on Thursday to secure a wholesome meat supply. These resolutions will be brought at an early date before the societies whose co-operation in the campaign has been especially solicited, for discussion and ratification. Most of the bodies which were represented at the meeting have expressed their intention of considering the matter this week.

Dr. W. H. Atherton, secretary of the Civic Improvement League, who is distributing copies of the resolutions, said today that an attempt had been made to place the issue before all the larger organizations in the city, French and English, which were directly interested in general humanitarian work for the community. If however any societies have not been approached, and would like to take a part in the campaign, he would be glad to forward copies of the resolutions on application.

The Montreal Women's Club will consider the question this afternoon at a special meeting of the Board called at 2:45 for this purpose. The Chambre de Commerce will decide whether they will support the motions at a meeting held on Wednesday at 4 p.m. and at the general bi-monthly meeting of the Montreal Trades and Labor Council to take place on Thursday evening the matter will be brought up for report, and the resolutions considered. The text of the motions will be considered by the Montreal Publicity Association at a meeting of the executive on Friday at 12:30.

SUES PULP COMPANY

United States Company Sues—Chicoutimi Concern

Breach of contract is charged in an action on the roll before Mr. Justice de Lorimier, in Superior Court, in which the Alexandria Paper Company, of Alexandria, Ind., U. S. A., is suing the Chicoutimi Pulp Company for $160,344.

The American firm states that it entered into a contract with the Canadian concern for the supply of 12,000 cords of pulp-wood at $23.50 per ton, f.o.b. Alexandria, in July, 1916. This was to be delivered at the rate of 1,000 cords per month.

In 1917, it is asserted, on the advice of the Chicoutimi firm, the paper company ordered 53,000 tons more. It is now stated that the contract was not fulfilled, causing damages to the buyer.

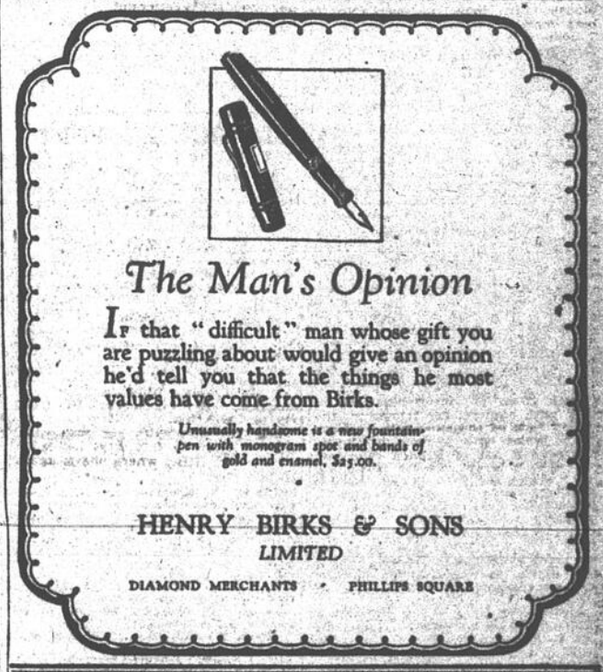

In defense, the pulp concern says the American company offered to pay a bonus of $5 a ton on the wood, and that when this was not paid the furnishing firm considered the contract broken.

Further, they add that the Canadian firm's manager, J. A. E. Dubuc, met the head of the Alexandria company in New York and both agreed to terminate the agreement.

McGILL RECEIVES LIBRARY BEQUEST

McGill University receives a bequest of another notable medical library under the will of the late Dr. J. W. Stirling, who leaves his medical books to the university. The bequest was announced this morning. Other recent bequests of libraries were the famous library of the late Sir William Osler and that of Sir Thomas Boddick.

Dr. Stirling joined the staff of McGill University in April, 1900, when he was appointed lecturer in ophthalmology. He became professor of ophthalmology in 1906 and head of the department in 1921. He resigned in April, 1923, just 23 years after his first appointment as lecturer in the university. His library contains many works on that subject.

HUMAN FACTOR NOT REGARDED; URGE SHORT DAY

Excessive Hours in Sydney Steel Plant Scored in Report

NEED SENTIMENT

Fundamental Changes in Working Conditions Recommended

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Fundamental changes in the working conditions of steel workers employed by the British Empire Steel Corporation are recommended in the report of the Royal Commission appointed to investigate industrial unrest in Cape Breton.

The commission was composed of Dr. J. W. Robertson, chairman; Fred Bancroft, Toronto; J. J. Johnston, Charlottetown.

The commission finds that the company has not paid enough attention to the essential difference between building and machinery equipment in materials and human equipment in men as factors in production and in the efficient carrying on of operations. "There is no sentiment in machinery," says the report, "which affects its smooth or rough running, but there is a great deal of it in men."

The commission takes the view that the hours worked by steel workers have been excessively long in some departments under the two-shift system of operation and recommends that in the interests of employers and employes "early and earnest consideration" be given to: (1)—Elimination of the 24 hour change over period and the abolition of the seven-day week.

(2) — Adoption of the three-shift plan (eight hours per shift) in continuous processes and a maximum ten hour day for other workers.

The commissioners claim the change would be advantageous to the company and beneficial to the men. They hold that the iron and steel industry at Sydney can be carried on successfully and amicably in such a way as to meet the reasonable desires and requirements of workmen, company and public.

RESERVE WAGES FUND

Since the industry is characterized by intermittent periods of prosperity and depression, the commissioners recommend that:

(1)—In the interests of shareholders and employes, the company should discuss with representatives of the employes the question of drawing to some extent upon the surplus accumulated during fat years to tide the workmen as well as the shareholders over lean years, when changes in rates of wages are in contemplation and when the prospect of regular employment is not good.

(2)—As an alternative, some competent authority should, in the public interest, be directed to investigate and report upon the use which is made of such surplus funds of the company.

Discussing the calling out of militia in the strike last summer, the commissioners hold that the local police force was inadequate to deal with the situation, that a riotous condition of mob rule prevailed for some days and nights and that the presence of the militia was necessary and beneficial. It appeared from the evidence, says the report, that the militia rendered effective aid to the civil power in the protecting of life, liberty, order and property under the law. The militia and Provincial police were not at any time or in any sense used as strike-breakers. They took no part and no side in the industrial dispute.

MILITIA NEEDED

If the true facts of the situation at Sydney had been disclosed at the time the troops were called out, the report continues, it would have been manifest that their presence was necessary and that but for their presence that the presence of the Provincial police there would likely have been loss of life, much more injury to persons than occurred and such damage to the plant that employment could not have been provided for the normal number of employes for a long time afterwards.

The commissioners, however, suggest a change in the Militia Act, to provide that a requisition requiring the active militia to be called out for active service in aid of the civil power may be made only by a judge and the Attorney-General of a Province, acting jointly, and that the requisition should contain a statement by the Attorney-General that he will, as soon as possible, and not later than one week thereafter, cause an inquiry to be made into the circumstances which occasioned the calling out of the active militia and report to the Minister of National Defence.

MANY AGITATORS

It was found that the prominent and prevailing cause of industrial unrest was the desire and repeated demands on the part of the workmen to obtain higher wages and shorter hours. With that during recent years was the determination of a number of the workmen to obtain recognition of the union in order to secure collective bargaining. From 1922 there came a campaign of agitation by speakers and publications urging the workmen to obtain quickly and in large measure what they wanted by threats of strikes and by actual strikes. There was agitation, stirring up hostile class feeling by speakers and writers who denounced those in positions of authority, including the judiciary; called capitalists and employers by such names as "slave drivers," "labor exploiters," "common enemy," etc., and urged workmen to seek redress for their grievances by hostile and violent action.

Workmen in the steel plant are chiefly Canadian-born, state the commissioners, most of them from Nova Scotia; a small percentage from Newfoundland; about 10 per cent. of non-English speaking races, and about 8 per cent. colored men from Barbados.

Relations between workmen and superintendents of departments and foremen were found to be generally satisfactory and considerate on both sides. They were much disturbed in the period between the February and June strikes by the continuous talk of an impending strike to force the company to do what the union wanted.

The commissioners are of the opinion that the employes' representatives plan, with a general works council and committees, now in effect, is a means whereby management and employes can get together to confer upon questions of mutual interest and obligation and seek settlement by full, frank discussion. Such contacts and conferences are not intended to impose settlements but to promote agreements and to provide regular and recognized opportunities in which mutual understanding can be promoted, confidence developed and co-operating good-will brought into play in the relations between the company and the workmen.

Testimony was received by the commission from 147 witnesses. Several steel plants in the United States were visited.

CHANGE LIKELY

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Introduction of an amendment to clauses of the Militia Act, providing for the calling out active militia in aid of the civil power, at the coming session of Parliament is considered likely.

Such an amendment has already been forecast, and the report of the Royal Commission which investigated the situation among the Cape Breton steel workers emphasized the need for it. Whether the Government will follow the suggestion embodied in the report that the militia may be requisitioned only on the joint request of a judge and the Attorney-General of the Province interested, is not known.

It will be recalled that the Prime Minister in a letter last summer in reply to one from the executive of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, stated that the Act needed amending.

"I do not hesitate to say," wrote Premier King, "that the presence of troops in Cape Breton to the numbers there at present, and under circumstances which appear to render it most doubtful that the expense incidental thereto will be borne, as the law clearly contemplates, by the municipalities concerned, renders it apparent that there is need for revision of the statute respecting the calling out of the militia in aid of the civil power."

WORLD FORCES PRICE OF FARM EXPORTS

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press). — "The United States farmer is rapidly learning that the price of imports can be regulated, but that the price of the produce which he exports is set in foreign markets, such as Liverpool. The United States is prosperous today not because of her high tariff, but in spite of it. We believe that there has been a very material change of sentiment and that United States citizens today realize that the tariff is not achieving the objects claimed for it."

Such is the opinion of Thos R. Marshall, vice-president of the United States during the Wilson regime, who arrived in Toronto last night and who addressed the Canadian Club at luncheon today.

He thought the balance of public opinion would lean slightly towards the democrats at the congressional elections next November. He figured this an advantage on grounds of economic reasoning rather than because of the odium heaped upon the Republican party by the Teapot Dome scandals.

NFLD. GOV'T CASH RECKLESSLY SPENT

Deputy Minister Testifies to Thousands of Dollars Lost

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Feb. 18.—(Star Special.) — Saturday's evidence of George Turner, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, before the Royal Commission, was largely a repetition of that of previous days, but opened up some new features. One was regarding a contract for rossing 20,000 cords of pulpwood given to Charles Bryant at $2.25. The final accounts showed a similar sum paid for expenses, so that the rossing actually cost more than the wood itself.

Details of three log cutting operations inaugurated by the Minister of Agriculture were also elicited. One conducted by Joseph Curran at Glenwood, cost $90,000, of which $50,000 represented horses, appliances, and provisions, and $30,000 for labor, while the value of the wood obtained was under $50,000. Then Curran contracted to take over the horses and appliances at half cost, but did not pay, and subsequently went insolvent. Another was by John Goodyear, of MacQuish Lake. His equipment and supplies cost $20,000, and the wood produced was $20,000 short. Another was by Andrew Moore at Twin Lake, whose wages account was $42,000 and equipment and supplies $77,000, and against this outlay of $120,000 the receipts were only $36,000, making a total loss of about $84,000.

Further evidence showed that no effective check was kept on supplies shipped from St. John's to centres where these operations were in progress.

ST. JOHN, N.B., PORT LEADS COMPETITORS

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 18—(Canadian Press).—That St. John was making a better showing in grain shipments, as compared with last year than any other North Atlantic port is the statement made by Commissioner of Harbors Bullock. He said that the Atlantic ports were shipping a great deal less grain this year than last, and at Galveston, Texas, there was practically none being shipped. He gave the following figures showing the percentage of decrease from last year.

St. John, 17½ per cent.; Portland, Me., 35½ per cent.; Boston, Philadelphia and Baltimore, 40 per cent.; New York, 30 per cent.; and Galveston, 90 per cent.

MISTAKE SENDS MAN TO HIS DEATH

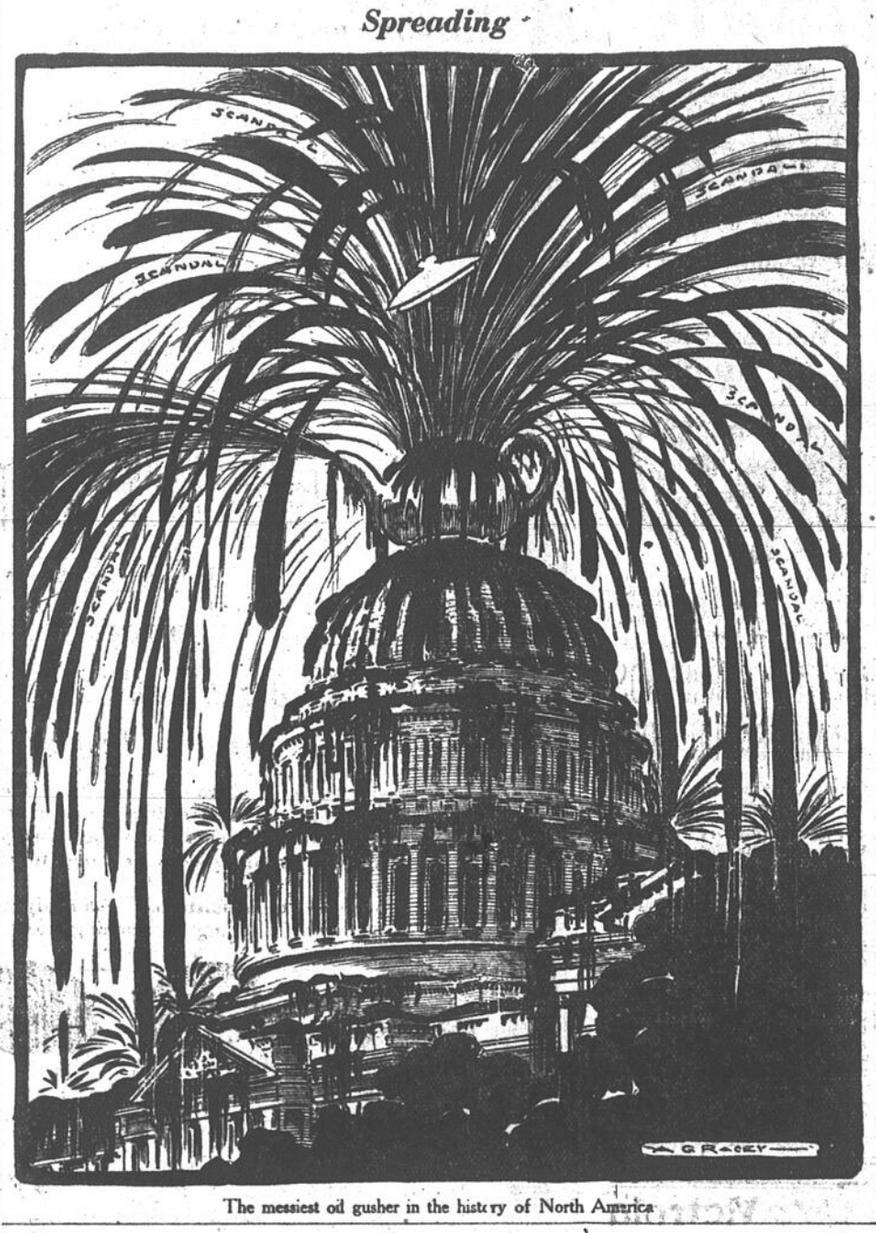

COBALT, Ont., Feb. 18—(Canadian Press).—A misunderstood order contributed to the death of Garfield Morris, killed at the Keeley Mine, Friday, according to evidence at the coroner's inquest Saturday. William Rupert had been told by the men on the cage to raise the bar at the station on the seventh level, but he thought the words were "raise the chairs," and he gave the signal to elevate the hoist. Morris was climbing over the bar on the opposite side, and lost his hold when the cage started, dropping 80 feet to the bottom of the shaft.

The jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

SCOLDS INDIANS FOR WHIPPING UP FRENZY

South African Delegation Puts Case to Minister

CAPE TOWN, S.A., Feb. 18.—(By Canadian Press Cable.) — Receiving a deputation of natives of India, now residents in the Cape, Transvaal and Natal, in connection with the Class Areas Bill, Patrick Duncan, Minister of the Interior in the Union Government, complained that though he had furnished representatives of the Indians with a copy of the bill before publication, to enable them to make representations on the subject, no notice had been taken by them. Instead meetings were held throughout the country and people were whipped into a state of frenzy. They were told that they would be ruined body and soul, their livelihood taken away, that there should be passive resistance.

Mr. Duncan asked the deputation what it mattered what he said about the bill when they had told their people they must resist it with their last drop of blood. He had desired the fullest consultation but now that was impossible. However, he had undertaken to see them and therefore he would give every consideration to the points put before him.

The Indians urged among other things that the bill cast a stigma upon Indians; that it was no remedy for unfair competition in trade and industries as between European and Indian and that it would cause considerable irritation on both sides and would prove detrimental to the interests, both of Europeans and Indians in the country which would ultimately gain nothing by it.

The Class Area Act provides for setting aside areas to be selected and supplied by local urban authorities for residential or trading purposes or both for a particular class of persons. Persons residing in such areas are prohibited from acquiring immovable property or leases of property. There are also restrictions on trading licenses but the Governor-General is given power to make certain modifications.

NIGHT OF RAIDS ON GROCERY STORES

$200 from One, Then 75c—Nothing at Third

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Five armed robbers, with a stolen motor car, Saturday night held up two grocery stores and secured $200 from one but only 75 cents from the other. They escaped in the car and have not yet been caught. The first victim, Erwin Whitley, advanced to serve four men who entered. The party swept $200 out of his till. Half an hour later an armed gang accosted William H. Dymond, outside the city limits, demanding his money. Dymond coolly stuffed his hands into his trousers pockets and started for the street. The robbers grabbed him and tried to pull his hands out of the pockets and in the tussle the trousers were torn and 75 cents dropped to the ground. Picking up the coins the robbers fled, scared apparently by the commotion. It is believed the same gang was concerned in both hold-ups.

Twa robbers broke into the store owned by Patrick Graham last night but were frightened away. There was $100 in the cash register and Graham had $500 in his pocket when he accidentally came upon the robbers in the lane beside his store. One man poked the barrel of a revolver into Graham's ribs and ordered him to hold up his hands but an instant later both robbers turned and fled.

BIG REVENUE LOSS FROM SALES TAX

Ottawa Expects Heavy Reduction for First Few Months

AMERICAN VIEW

Less Pyramiding in Canada Than by United States Income Taxes

OTTAWA, Feb. 18 — (Star Special by Own Correspondent.) — The new Canadian sales tax went into operation January 1, but it will be some time before an accurate idea can be gained of its effect. Returns are available for January, but the collections for that month are mainly on December business.

It is expected, that returns from the sales tax will show great reductions for the first four or five months. All raw materials imported for licensed manufacturers come in free of sales tax. Formerly, if raw materials were not exempt from duty, and very few were, they paid 3% per cent sales tax on the duty-paid value. Domestic raw materials purchased for manufacture paid 2¼ per cent. This is now changed. The revenue will be derived from a 6 per cent tax on the finished product in the condition in which it goes to the consumer.

The Customs Department is working on the December manufacturers' payments and returns from Customs outports have yet to come in. It is on importations that the effect of the tax will be first noticed. The sales tax on importations (raw and finished materials) for December, amounted to $2,401,866. That for January amounted to $2,401,866. That for January amounted to only $1,558,440. It is expected that there will be a loss of revenue of about $890,000 a month on raw materials, and the returns from the new tax will probably not begin to be materially visible until March returns at earliest.

SCIENTIFIC PLAN.

The effects of the new tax are being watched with interest in the United States. A bulletin recently issued by Babson's, the statistical organization, says:

"United States clients should watch the Canadian sales tax. Many people regard a scientific sales tax as a logical possibility for the United States instead of the present bungling methods of extorting revenue and virtually confiscating capital. When the manufacturer pays the tax the wholesaler is exempt. When the wholesaler pays the tax, the manufacturer is exempt. In other words, there should be less pyramiding of taxes, which, under the blundering tax system in the United States, has hurt business. Moreover, this Canadian sales tax does less to penalize efficiency and threaten enterprise than the suicidal income taxes. Undoubtedly, there are plenty of rough spots in this new tax, and only experience can perfect it, but fundamentally it is sounder than an income tax. It is one of the underlying reasons why we are inclined to be optimistic on the basic outlook for Canada. The United States takes great pride in their progress industrially; but when it comes to economics, they have much to learn from the Dominion's search for right public policies."

Montreal Radioists Lead All Dominion In Licenses Granted

OTTAWA, Feb. 18—(Canadian Press).—Revived interest in radio in Canada is revealed in figures issued here by the Department of Marine. Since December last 11 licenses for broadcasting stations have been issued by the Department, making a total of 45 broadcasting stations in Canada. The new stations are located as follows: Ontario 5, Nova Scotia 1, Quebec 1, British Columbia 2, and Alberta 2.

Montreal leads in the number of receiving licenses issued to amateurs with 6,600, while in Toronto 3,400 have paid the $1 fee for the Government permit. These figures do not represent the number of those listening-in, as the work of collecting the license fees is not nearly completed. Approximately 27,000 radio licenses have been issued to amateurs in Canada up to Jan. 31, according to the records of the Department of Marine.

Miss Wood, of Saperton, met death under the street car and Mrs. Percy Salt, Miss Gladys Rowell and James Kelvan, all of New Westminster, others in the automobile, were taken to the hospital, seriously injured.

Fred Homers, driver of the automobile, said he had been driving the party to a football game. The street car struck the automobile squarely in the centre and carried it 175 feet.

DENY ASKED MORE NIAGARA POWER

Beck Refutes Washington News—No Trace at Ottawa

TORONTO, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — "We haven't made any application for any increased use of power at Niagara Falls, I am not aware of a proposal for an agreement," said Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission, Saturday, relative to a despatch from Washington that the Canadian Government had sent the State Department a communication proposing an agreement for increased utilization of water power at Niagara.

U.S. DEMAND

OTTAWA, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.) — Inquiry in official circles here failed to disclose any communication from the Canadian to the United States Government proposing an increased utilization of water power at Niagara Falls. Under the present treaty Canada may divert 36,000 cubic feet of water a second and the United States 20,000 cubic feet. It is stated that recent installations on the American side enabled the United States power interests at Niagara to use a great deal more water than is allowed under the treaty limitations. It is also reported that these same interests are pressing at Washington for a new agreement which will permit them to divert more water for power purposes than is at present permissible.

EXPERTS IN LAST STAGE OF LABORS

Hopeful of Businesslike Plan to End Reparation Tangle

PARIS, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press.) — With the most complete statistics concerning Europe's economic condition assembled since the armistice, the committee of experts begins to-day the last of their labors, discussion on the construction of their recommendations. Their report will be delivered to the Reparations Commission and will endeavor to indicate the best method to solve the reparation tangle.

Both committees meet to-day for the first time in plenary session since their return from Berlin.

This afternoon the sub-committee on the question of a German gold bank will hear Dr. Schacht, president of the Reichsbank, on any final details with regard to the constitution of the bank.

Within the next day or two the first committee expect to give a final hearing to the special railroad experts, after which all the facts which the two committees set out to obtain will be complete and the conclusions from them drawn up.

An atmosphere of optimism pervades committee circles, notwithstanding the recognized fact that the investigation now is entering upon its most delicate stages. All the experts, professional business men, are declared to be concerned with nothing but a workable solution of the situation based only on the facts in hand.

It is pointed out that none of the personnel has any reason to fear a loss of political position because of his findings. "The only anxiety we have," remarked one of the experts to-day, "is that our conclusions shall be correct, judged from the standpoint of business and economics."

SIR WILLIAM PREECE WIRELESS PIONEER

Welshman Who Preceded Marconi, to Be Honored

CARDIFF, Feb. 18.—(Star Special).—Welsh patriots are much interested in a proposal to establish at Lavernock, on the Glamorgan coast, a memorial to the men who made the earliest experiments in wireless. Many years before Marconi appeared on the scene Sir Oliver Lodge as a physicist had discussed electro-magnetic wave propagation. Two Welsh employes of the Post Office, one of them being. William Preece, afterwards Sir William Preece, had detected the phenomenon that sounds were conducted by induction and without visible agency from telegraph to telephone wires. They conducted experiments at Lavernock and Porthcawl. They put out squares of gutta percha 300 yards apart and found themselves able to transmit readable signals from one square to the other. This took place in 1886 and were the first wireless messages. Marconi was then only twelve years of age. Ten years later Preece used wireless for a practical purpose. The military authorities wanted a means of communication between neighboring forts. There was a cable but this was liable to constant destruction by shipping. Preece therefore erected a line at Lavernock by which signals could be exchanged between the two fortresses. At the same time an attempt was made to signal a passing ship. This was actually done with a launch cruising within three miles of Lavernock. Marconi as a young man of 22, came to Lavernock because he had heard of the successful experiments there. Preece was taken off the work by the Post Office authorities and the field was left clear to the young Italian who, as everybody knows, made brilliant use of his opportunities. Wireless enthusiasts have grown by the million during the last few years and their enthusiasm has given rise to the movement for a memorial to the British pioneer of wireless at Lavernock.

USING GREENLAND AS CANADIAN GRANARY

Arctic Country Mentioned as Future Storage

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(Star Special Cable).—It is reported that negotiations are now afoot between Great Britain and Denmark for the purchase of Greenland, and one conjecture is that Britain wants Greenland as a storage point for Canadian grain, thus increasing the capacity of the Hudson Bay route during its short shipping season. It must be remembered, also, that Greenland lies directly on the best air route between Britain and Western Canada. At the Imperial Conference the then First Lord of the Admiralty pointed out that if airships are adopted for commercial communications the determining factor in choosing a route would not be mileage or the character of the earth's surface but the shape of the globe and the winds that blow round it. The north-east wind would send an airship north of Iceland across Greenland by the shortest route to Western Canada.

The Northward Course of Empire, of which Stefansson is the prophet, is being taken very seriously by thinking men in England, and Socialists are already talking of Arctic Imperialism.

DRAFT ARABIAN PACT VANISHES

Treaty Virtually Agreed Between Hussein and Britain

LONDON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press.) — An unsigned draft of a treaty between King Hussein, of the Hedjas and the British Government has been lost somewhere between London and the Arabian peninsula, according to a statement made by Najiassil, representative of Hussein, in London.

Najiassil announces that he submitted to the British Government three months ago a plan for a treaty with Hussein, which the Government has accepted in principle. According to the plan Britain would agree to recognize and support the Arabs in their efforts to obtain the independence not only of Irak and Trans-Jordania, but the whole peninsula. Great Britain, Najiassil says, was prepared to establish as soon as possible a national representative government in Palestine with the largest possible measure of independence for the Arabs, meantime safeguarding the interests of the Zionists.

Palestine Arabs were prepared to accept the treaty and so, he believes, were the Zionists. But the dispatch containing the treaty never reached King Hussein, and this has created a most embarrassing situation. The treaty had neither been signed nor definitely agreed to by Great Britain or Hussein.

German Price Tag Trick Played With Zest by Parisians

PARIS, Feb. 18—(Associated Press).—The German merchants' remarkable facility in sending up prices as the mark fell taught the French retailers the tricks of the trade, and the public now is getting a taste of modern methods in the feverish changing of price tags. Newspapers and public are complaining loudly that many stores have already anticipated Premier Poincare's as yet unvoted 20 per cent. increase in taxes, and, instead of raising prices from two to five per cent., as the economists say is justified, they are shoving up the selling figures from ten to fifty per cent.

Fortunately the heaviest of these increases are mostly on small items and luxuries, but the hardest blow to the Frenchman has been the higher cost of his aperitif. Coffee, which is easily the most popular drink, has been raised from four to six sous in the small cafes and from fifteen to twenty sous in the better class places.

Tips likewise have gone up, so that the time-honored ten per cent. frequently brings a look of disdain from the waiter.

MYSTERY SURROUNDS FAMED BANDIT'S DEATH

Chinaman Who Captured Foreign Hostages, is Slain

PERKING, Feb., 18. — (Canadian Press.)—Sun Mei-Yao, famous leader of the bandit gang which derailed the Tientsin-Pukow Railway express train at Lincheng last spring and captured a large number of foreign hostages, is dead.

The reason for Sun's execution remains obscure, although one report is that death was punishment for failure to suppress bandits, this being regarded as mutiny. It is said that Sun was invited to dinner by Gen. Cheng Shih-Chi, military governor of Shantung, and at a given signal from his host was surrounded and shot. Another story is that the general was poisoned. It is uncertain, however, whether a genuine charge of mutiny or a political motive was behind the slaying.

ANOTHER BULGAR CABINET CRISIS

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 18—(Associated Press).—The second break in the Cabinet of Premier Zankoff since it was formed last June was announced yesterday in the resignation of Dimo Kazassoff, Minister of Railways. The resignation followed a request by the Socialist party that the Cabinet be reorganized so as to include four Socialists. The request was a direct echo from the Labor party's success in Great Britain. The Socialists announced that they hoped to establish closer relations with the British Cabinet.

Premier Zankoff declined to demand Kazassoff's resignation, but the Minister withdrew. The Coalition Government is still in control in the Chamber, having 170 votes out of a total of 245. It is not considered likely that Premier Zankoff will resign.

FRENCH ARREST GERMAN RIOTERS

PARIS, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press) —A despatch to the Havas Agency from Coblenz says the French military secret police announce the arrest of a German nationalist student, named Kattler, as an accomplice in an attack on the Mayor of Roxheim. The despatch adds that many persons have been arrested for complicity in the trouble at Pirmasens last week, in which many were killed. The French say the disturbances were engineered by nationalist organizations directed by General Ludendorff and the notorious Captain Ehrhardt.

The chief of police of Kaiser Lautern and two of his subordinates have been arrested as instigators of the recent trouble there.

AROUND THE THEATRES

Climbing Mt. Everest Shown on Screen in a Rare Film at Palace

THE amazing record of human courage, human endurance and the indomitable spirit that has planted the British flag wherever the winds of the world blow free, to be found in the story of the Mount Everest expedition of 1922, is set forth upon the screen at the Palace theatre this week in a film of quite exceptional dramatic and pictorial interest. That the intrepid mountaineers who sought to conquer the world's highest peak failed at the last to achieve their objective when within a few hundred feet of the summit, only serves to lend the tale of their magnificent fight additional interest, and emphasizes the magnitude of the task they essayed in a manner even victory itself could hardly have done.

* * *

Major Yeats-Brown gives a lecture of running explanatory comment as the film is shown, and this takes the place of titles and preserves absolute continuity, avoiding any hiatus in the shape of temporary elimination of the scenes of the climb. The latter takes the audience from the assembly point of the expedition at Darjeeling along the trade route to Tibet and thence off the high road to Lhassa towards the sacred Rongbuk valley that leads to the foot of the great mountain itself. The marvellous revelations of the habits, customs, manners and life of the strange people who live nearer to the roof of the world than any other human beings strike a note of quite unusual interest almost at the outset, and then, as the preparations for the actual climb itself are begun, and we see the heroic little group in action, we are enabled to realize something of the incredible hardships they had to face, their persistence in spite of setbacks and accidents and failures that would have daunted any men not possessed of the unconquerable spirit that animated these determined pioneers.

* * *

The Rongbuk Monastery, the highest in the world, and its weird devil dances and other ceremonials, constitute but one of many revelations the film holds, entirely apart from the actual climb itself. But we always come back to the latter, for it is the climax of the whole, and it is shown us in a remarkably realistic manner, from films actually photographed at a height where no camera has ever been utilized before in history, and taken under such difficulties as leave us astounded at the photographer's hardihood and success. Perhaps nothing in the whole film is so impressive as a striking view of the whirling tempests of snow that surround Everest's still unconquered crest, driven by clashing winds that sweep ceaselessly at a velocity approximating a hundred miles an hour about the flank of the giant summit.

* * *

Scenically, this film is perhaps without equal. Certainly it presents views of great landscapes never before seen by the eyes of white men and never before revealed to the world. The wonder and the beauty are there, but over and above all there is the ever-present sense of the splendid courage that underlook this exhibition and carried it through to its heroic and spectacular close, with a record of achievement that set a new standard in the world-history of mountain climbing, and a failure so little separated from success that its glory is nearly claimed.

Nobody in whose veins red blood flows can see the film without experiencing a thrill of pride in the thought that the men who achieved this feat are the type who have made and who uphold the Empire today. Everybody ought to see it, for it is a lesson to all humanity in those essential qualities that lie at the basis of all human achievement.

* * *

The customary feature film, entitled "Painted People," is a diverting comedy of the adventures of two young people of humble origin with an ambition to enter into society. They finally achieve success by way of the theatre—a very hackneyed via media, but one that serves effectively in this comedy. The picture will be enjoyed by everybody who sees it, however, because of the altogether delightful and irresistible work of Miss Colleen Moore in the role of the heroine. The fascinating little flapper of "Flaming Youth"—that much-maligned, much exaggerated and mildly modern picture of young people avid for life—has in this film another role that seems to fit her like a glove. She reveals herself a born comedienne. Her acting is so natural, so artless, so devoid of design and so distinguished by allurement and a spice of diablerie wholly appealing, that it would carry a much weaker and less entertaining story than this to emphatic success. If she is given equal opportunities, and if some pompous director does not ruin her art by presuming to show her how to act, this girl should climb to the very top of the ladder. She has genius.

"Scaramouche" Pays a Return Visit, on This Occasion to Capitol

To those who appreciate the presentation of really artistic pictures "Scaramouche," which is being shown at popular prices at the Capitol theatre during the present week, offers an exceptional opportunity. In 'Orphans of the Storm" one got a glimpse of the possibilities of reproduction of scenes from the French Revolution, with Danton and Robespierre and other famous characters — but in 'Scaramouche" one gets a most realistic impression of the turbulent scenes that marked the change in France's history. The production is an education in itself. One realizes the insufferable callousness of many of the aristocracy of that time, the gradual rousing of the common people to a sense of their suffering, and then the sudden outbreak when the mob stormed the Tuileries Palace, and wreaked vengeance on all who were not of their class.

The mob scenes are almost terrifying in their vividness, and provide a tumultuous background for Sabatini's thrilling romance. Mr. Ingram, with the aid of a wonderful cast, has given everything its right proportion, and never for a moment does the interest wander away from the principal characters in the engrossing story, and it is with genuine regret that one comes to the end of the picture. One cannot help but love the upstanding figure of Scaramouche, as portrayed by Ramon Novarro, who first won fame as Rupert in "The Prisoner of Zenda," and has since by sterling work and unusual ability added many laurels to his crown. Always virile, he acts with the restraint of a real artist, flashing out into electrifying action when the occasion warrants, and providing the audience with thrills galore. And the pastel-like beauty of Miss Alice Terry quickly enthrals all hearts. One forgives her apparent dallying with the Marquis and remembers only her stately but intensely human role of the beautiful girl torn by conflicting emotions, and suffering from misunderstandings.

* * *

Another outstanding figure is Lewis Stone, who plays the role of the haughty, philandering Marquis de la Tour to the life, and engenders for him quite a little sympathy, especially in the closing draamtic scenes. With thirty prominent artists participating in the production, space does not permit of mention of them all, but Julia Swayne Gordon as the Countess de Plongastel, George Siegmann as the famous historical character Danton, Edith Allen as Climene Binet, and Lloyd Ingraham as Quintinde Kercadiou are particularly noticeable for their effective aid in portraying an exceedingly engrossing production which is much more than a photoplay. "Scaarmouche" is a flawless production that can be seen two or three times with added enjoyment each time.

The musical score arranged specially for 'Scaramouche" is admirably interpreted by the orchestra under J. J. Shea. Miss Marjorie Pringle, a dainty vocalist with a pleasingly clear enunciation, contributes two songs which win deserved applause.

Most Interesting and Novel Film Dealing With Faith-healing at Strand

Faith healing plays a big part in "The Day of Faith," a novel and intensely interesting film which is the feature at the Strand theatre this week.

Eleanor Boardman, who plays the leading role, seems destined for such a part. With a supporting cast that includes Tyrone Power, Ford Sterling, Ray Griffith and young McDonald, the Nova Scotian who has already done well in the "movies:" she works out a splendid plot to a well finished and successful conclusion.

The story concerns the motto of a small-town man, "My neighbor is perfect." Putting his theory into practice leads the idealist to release a criminal who causes a death. Enraged mobs lynch the idealist. The daughter of the man who died as a result of another's belief, is stricken with remorse at the lynching and during a resultant severe illness and delirium sees the light and truth of the faith of the mob's victim. In a New York slum she starts an institution dedicated to the martyr and his faith. The motto of the place is "My Neighbor is Perfect."

In this institution miracles begin to happen. A rich man's son becomes interested in the work in general, but in its leader in particular, and his family fortunes are drawn into the affair. The father, whose interests are in a morning newspaper, assigns a lame reporter to laugh the cult into the oblivion of ridicule with his typewriter, but faith and strange events again divert the stream of injustice. There is another lynching and a mob scene before the picture comes to a happy close. Taken as a whole, the picture is calculated to instil only the best thoughts and is undoubtedly a success.

* * *

The other feature film is "The Man from Wyoming," with Jack Hoxie in the leading role. More mob scenes play their part in the production. Hoxie is a sheep herder, an outlaw not only because of a fault which landed him some time before in jail, but because he is grazing his sheep on cattle land. Hoxie's courage and "squareness" make him friends with the pretty lady boss and the boys of the ranch on which he is located, and these friends save him from other cattlemen in the events which follow. Another happy ending meets with the approval of all.

St. Lambert Players' Club Will Present Galsworthy's "Pigeon"

The third and last production of the St. Lambert Players' Club for the season will be given at the City Hall, St. Lambert, on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 29, and March 1. The play to be presented is "The Pigeon," by John Galsworthy, and the cast will include Mrs. E. Drinkwater, Mrs. M. S. Threlfall, and Messrs. Rupert Caplan, Leonard Paul, Chas. Robinson, J. L. Heald, L. Tilley, B. S. Mackenzie, J. Thompson, Geo. Burroughes, D. Beatty, H. Tilley.

All the members of the club are working earnestly and no effort is being spared to make this performance as worthy of support as the previous productions of the players.

English Artists to Give a Variety Show At the Stanley Hall

The work of Miss Madeline Temple, Mr. George Temple, and Mr. Percy Baverstock with the Bransby Williams Company was marked by keen intelligence and histrionic skill of no mean order. As entertainers these artists possess a versatility that cannot fail to commend itself to those who enjoy the spirit of vaudeville. They will appear on the stage at Stanley Hall tomorrow night in a program of songs, character-sketches, and dances under the direction of Mr. Witty Warren.

From the Movie Offices

The popular dancing team of Daphne and Austin recently arrived from New York has been secured by the Regent, Papineau, Belmont, Plaza Corona and Moulin Rouge theatres for a four weeks' engagement. They will appear one night each week at these houses starting tomorrow at the Belmont, and will present all the latest dance novelties, with a complete change of program each week. Mr. Austin is from the Jack Blue Studio, New York, where a great number of stage and screen artists are taught special dances. It was Mr. Austin who taught Marion Davies the Irish jig dance she executes in her latest picture, "Little Old New York."

* * *

The story of every woman's husband—her home and the happiness of her children. So might the theme of "His Children's Children," which opened at the Regent yesterday, be briefly summed up. It has all the requisites of a good film—drama, humor, pathos and a splendid cast, featuring in the principal roles Bebe Daniels, Dorothy Mackaill, James Rennie and George Fawcett, while others in support are Hale Hamilton, Mary Eaton, Mahlon Hamilton and Warner Oland. "The Age of Desire," with Martha Mansfield and Myrtle Stedman featured, is the other feature film on this bill. The Melody Kings will appear as usual on Tuesday night.

* * *

Unusually intense and vivid drama with stirring situations following each other in rapid succession is the outstanding characteristic of the English made production of Sir Hall Caine's popular novel, "The Prodigal Son," which opened with big success at the Papineau yesterday. It is a story of brother against brother and sister against sister, with the action laid in England, Iceland, and Monte Carlo. The remarkable climax is powerfully depicted. The surrounding short subjects include a western drama called "Down in Texas" and a comedy special entitled "Flip Flap."

* * *

Cameo Kirby was a great play. It is quite understandable, therefore, why, without the limitations of the stage, William Fox has made such a splendid motion picture of the Booth Tarkington drama which was shown at the Belmont yesterday. The southern scenes, depicting the romantic life of the Mississippi river gambler, are excellent. The action of the play is carried out with realism by a cast entirely capable. John Gilbert plays the name-part, while Gertrude Olmsted has the feminine lead. "The Leavenworth Case," a thrilling mystery romance, is the added feature. Three acts of vaudeville will be presented tonight, in addition to the regular screen entertainment.

* * *

Pola Negri's latest picture, "The Spanish Dancer," now at the Plaza, has proved a big winner. The picture has been showing to capacity daily, and its splendid scenes, string characterisations, romance and thrills have won popular favor. A number of short subjects, including Pit Morrison in "Hats Off" and "No Loafing," a clever comedy, round out the bill. The Harmony girls will be a special added attraction on Tuesday night.

* * *

"Little Old New York," the outstanding screen offering at the Corona, is undoubtedly one of the finest photoplays of the season. In the role of a young Irish girl who comes to America disguised as a boy, Marion Davies gives the best portrayal of her brilliant career. She is ably supported by a large and distinguished cast. Larry Semon provides the comedy in his latest mirth provoker, entitled "The Horse Shoe." Tonight the Melody Kings will offer the latest in classical jazz.

* * *

Seldom does such a gripping story reach the screen as "Jealous Husbands," featuring Earle Williams and Jane Novak, now at the Passe-Temps theatre. The story revolves around the complications that follow the unfounded jealousy of Ramon Martinez, a wealthy San Francisco exporter. He gives his son to a band of gypsies after his suspicions of the boy's parentage, have been aroused by the discovery of an unaddressed letter in his wife's purse. A thrilling automobile accident is the means by which his suspicions are proved to be false.

FROM MOSCOW TO CHITA.

TOKIO, Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press).—The rejuvenated Trans-Siberian Railway from Moscow to Chita is daily growing better and the service is almost up to pre-revolutionary standards. The trip from Helsingfors to Tokio can now be accomplished in fifteen days, whereas it required several weeks to cover the route by steamer.

Although zero weather is being encountered in Manchuria, the coaches are almost too warm to be comfortable. Russian food is served in the diner. The entire trip is economical, the international or first class fare being only about $60.

MRS. SELFRIDGE BETTER.

NEW YORK, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press.)—Gordon Selfridge, London merchant, his mother, Mrs. Lois Selfridge, known as one of the most prominent women of the English capital, and his daughter Beatrice, left today on the Berengaria for home. Selfridge, when he arrived here recently chartered a special train to Washington where his mother was ill. Mrs. Selfridge, much improved, was taken to the ship in an ambulance.

PLEAD ST. JOHN NEEDS.

ST. JOHN, N.B., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press).—A delegation representing the city and the Canadian Pacific Railway left yesterday for Ottawa to confer with Hon. J. N. King, Minister of Public Works, on the construction of the Negro Point breakwater to Partridge Island and extension of conveyors.

They hope to confer with Sir Henry Thornton in Montreal as to a new passenger station.

CONSTABLE KILLED.

DANBURY, Conn., Feb. 18. — (Associated Press).—George Goess, 35, a constable of Kent was shot and instantly killed, and Thomas Stern, 30, of this city, is in a serious condition in a hospital here as the result of a shooting at a roadhouse in Mill Plain yesterday. Pietro Vasco, restaurant proprietor, alleged to have fired the shots, is being sought by Connecticut state police and New York state troopers.

The pessimist is always worrying lest there should not be enough trouble to go around.

BURNED, OUT HUNTING.

ALMONTE, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press).—When a frame cottage in which he had taken shelter while fox hunting caught fire Wm. Montgomery, 26, was burned to death at Duncan's Point near here.

Montgomery was alone in the cottage. The cause of the fire is unnown.

A doctor and his Irish coachman were driving past a duck pond, when the coachman said:

"Oi hate thim birds, sorr."

"Why should you hate the poor creatures, Pat?" the physician asked. "I'm sure they never do you any harm."

"Sure, sorr, don't you hear them mocking 'quack, quack, quack'!"

MUSICAL RECITAL AT MACDONALD COLLEGE.

A large number of people were the guests of President and Mrs. Harrison on Saturday evening at a concert given in the assembly hall of Macdonald College by Mlle Daisy Jean and Miss Helen Jeffrey. Mlle Jean, though first and foremost a 'cellist, is also an excellent harpist and a good singer, and the program included a group of songs in which she accompanied herself on the harp, — a very pleasing arrangement which is now so much out of fashion as to seem almost new. Her songs included a charming, though very short one, "Algonquin" by Mrs. Harrison; she also sang such well known things as Rimsky-Korsakow's "Song of India," Hahn's "L'heure exquise," and "La paloma," all with good effect. Her 'cello solos began with Handel's Largo from "Xerxes," which went very well to an organ accompaniment played by Mrs. Harrison. Besides this she played two Irish melodies and gave a brilliant performance of Popper's, rather fussy, Rhapsody. Miss Jeffrey, who is new to Montreal, is a very good violinist, both in tone and execution, so good that she will surely be even better when she has more experience and is a little less impetuous. Her numbers included an arrangement of a Chopin Nocturne and a Tarantelle by Sarasate but the best of all of them was Kreisler's arrangement of a Preludium and Allegro by Pugnani. These two ladies, together with Miss Jean Wiswell at the piano, played as a trio in Grainger's "Colonial song," a Brahms Hungarian dance and, better still, three "Miniatures" by Frank Bridge. H. P. EDOUARD RISLER'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL.

This distinguished French pianist, who was heard in Montreal shortly before Christmas, immediately after his arrival on this continent, gave a second recital at the Orpheum Theatre yesterday afternoon, under more favorable conditions which made it more possible to appreciate his powers. Quite appropriately, in view of his reputation as a player of Beethoven, he began with two Beethoven sonatas,—the Funeral March sonata and the Moonlight sonata. Their performance was thoroughly dignified and free from any striving after effect. In the first of the two the march was taken rather more slowly and the last movement rather faster than usual. The playing of the Moonlight sonata, though beautiful, was a little prosaic. A group, chiefly of ancient and modern French works, followed. Beginning with two pieces of Couperin, which were not very effective, it included as well known "Tambourin" by Rameau and Daquin's charming "Coucou." Saint-Saens "Bourree" gets a delightful result with the greatest simplicity of means. In Weber's "Invitation to the waltz," which ended this group, the audience, as often happens in this work, began to applaud before the player had finished. In reply to this applause Mr. Risler added a Chopin Waltz. The program ended with three works by Liszt,—two fairly well known, the Study in D flat and the noisy Polonaise in E major. These were preceded by "St. Francis of Assisi preaching to the birds." This, which is not so very often played, has beauties here and there, but, like the other two, is terribly long. H. P. B.

A GOOD CONCERT BY TWO YOUNG SINGERS.

Mr. Antonio Lamontagne and Miss Blanche Archambault had a large audience for their concert at the Ritz-Carlton hotel last night, and rewarded it with some very pleasing singing. Miss Archambault has a soprano voice which is always most tuneful and is particularly sweet in the higher notes. She did some very effective florid singing in two songs by Eva Dell'Acqua and in her most ambitious effort, — Charpentier's "Depuis le jour,"—she was most successful. Mr. Lamontagne's voice is much more a tenor than a baritone, though he describes himself as a baryton-martin." He uses it well and with understanding, though he sometimes lets its quality become rather hard, even throaty. His best songs were Mercier — Cinq-Mars' "Coup de soleil" and Faure's "Adieu"; he also made a very gallant attempt at the difficulties of the "Largo al factotum" from Rossinia's "Barbier de Seville." The "Air de Jean" from Masse's "Noces de Jeannette" seems to be a standing order on such occasions as this. The two singers together gave a good performance of a valse duet from Audran's "Miss Helyett." H. P. B.

GOV'T CONTROL OF LIQUOR IS LAUDED

Jail Without Option if Drunk on Vancouver Streets

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Feb. 18—(Canadian Press.)—Hon. T. W. McGarry, one of the framers of the Ontario Temperance Act, believes a referendum should be taken on the measure now. Addressing West Elgin Conservatives at their annual meeting Saturday, the former Provincial Treasurer said that, if a member of the Government now, he would be one of those to introduce legislation to take another vote. "I am hopeful," he said, "that before the session is over the people will be given the opportunity of voting on the Act."

"It was introduced as a war measure, and I think the intention of every man in the House, was that after the war was over and things settled down it would be given a fair chance and that then the people would have an opportunity to vote upon it. I have been living for three years in British Columbia and have seen the legislation there. On the streets of Vancouver there is less drunkenness than in Toronto. Vancouver is a city to which many sailors come, yet I have never seen a man the worse for liquor on the streets of Vancouver those three years, although we have Government control. Under it you can buy whatever liquor you want but they have a provision there that a man seen intoxicated on the public streets has no option of a fine but must go to jail for six months.

We must have from time to time opportunities of registering the opinion of the people upon this great question, and I am sure before the end of this session we will find the Government has provided an opportunity."

RAPS TARIFF.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, M.P., criticized the Federal Government for its tariff policy in failing to do anything to protect Canadian farmers and fruit and vegetable growers. He said that while high tariffs have barred Canadian agricultural products from the United States markets, Canadian schedules are so low that $97,000,000 worth of agricultural products, chiefly foodstuffs, came across the line in nine months last year. Enjoying the additional advantage of climatic conditions which permit them to flood the Canadian market before the home products are ready, United States shippers are enabled to use the Dominion as a convenient dumping ground.

CHILDREN'S HOME IS BURNED TO GROUND

NEWCASTLE, N.B., Feb. 18—(Canadian Press).—St. Mary's Academy was burned to the ground here Saturday night. The twenty-two children in the building were marched out.

The loss, it is estimated, will be more than $100,000. The building was erected in 1910 at an estimated cost of $60,000, and was insured for $10,000.

The firemen made a gallant fight under great disadvantage, owing to the severe cold. Near-by buildings were saved without serious damage, although at the height of the fire some of them were in great danger.

The children were cared for in homes near the academy, and yesterday many of them left for their homes. The fire originated in the furnace room, and was burning furiously when discovered by the Mother Superior.

At a parish meeting yesterday it was decided to continue the school, providing a home can be found for the children. School will be held in the new building recently finished.

MAGOG MAN'S FOOT CUT OFF BY TRAIN

SHERBROOKE, Feb. 18—(Canadian Press).—Amidee Belanger, Magog, a butcher had his left foot severed by a train, and is in St. Vincent de Paul Hospital in a serious condition.

Belanger had wandered along the tracks, and lay down beside the tracks, falling asleep. His left foot rested on the rail.

Suffering intense pain, and weak from loss of blood, he managed to make his way to a nearby farm house. He was rushed to the hospital. He is expected to recover.

COSTLY HALIFAX BLAZE.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 17.—(Canadian Press.) — The two storey frame building on Gottingen street owned by Mrs. E. Cullen, of Glace Bay, and occupied by William Tap, dealer in dry goods, ladies' and children's wear, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday night. The dry goods store of W. Simon, adjoining, which was uninsured, was damaged to the extent of about $5,000. The total loss is estimated at $40,000. There was some insurance on the building and the Tap stock and fixtures are reported to have been covered.

BRITISH COBLENZ PACT.

COBLENZ, Germany, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press.) — A protocol has been signed at Mayence between the mechanical experts of the British army of occupation and the Franco-Belgian railway administration concerning the details of the application of the agreement for the maintenance of railway traffic in the Cologne zone. Direct Mayence and Dusseldorf trains passed through Cologne yesterday for the first time since January, 1923.

MILK DRIVER INJURED.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—Wm. McIntyre, 23, driver of a milk waggon, was seriously injured yesterday when his horses ran away, pinning him under the waggon as it overturned. He was dragged some distance before the frightened horses were brought to a standstill by the waggon crashing into a telephone pole.

SECURITIES GIVEN WERE VALUABLE

Dealings of Hon. E. J. McMurray With Home Bank Bonafide

TORONTO, Feb. 18.—(Star Special.)—"There was absolutely nothing dishonorable about the transaction; they were entered into in perfectly good faith, at a time when the securities given were believed to be worth a good deal more than they are today," said G. T. Clarkson, one of the liquidators of the Home Bank of Canada, in regard to the dealings Hon. Edward J. McMurray, Solicitor-General for Canada had with that institution in Winnipeg.

"The securities are mostly equities in real estate and whatever the personal covenant is worth," said Mr. Clarkson, "unless the improbable happens, they are not likely to be worth any more than I said the other day."

Two items in the list of Winnipeg bad debts filed last week at Osgoode Hall by G. T. Clarkson, official liquidator were—Wilton, McMurray, Davidson, Delorme and Wheeldon, loans $47,618, losses $25,000; Wilton, McMurray and Co., loans $18,000, losses $5,000. John Wilton is a brother-in-law of Mr. McMurray and was his law partner for many years.

Hon. Mr. McMurray says the securities given by him were at one time valued at $600,000 and that the duration of the war was the main factor in reducing the value.

GIRLS' CONFERENCE.

SHERBROOKE, Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—A conference of Canadian Girls in training was concluded on Saturday with round table talks, group work, displays of handicraft, a banquet and entertainment. About 150 girls were present and greetings were brought by Miss Trotter from the Maritimes, by Miss Stevens from Quebec, and Miss Anglin from Montreal.

Officers elected, Margaret Pitts, president; Edth Genge, vice-president; Josepha MacKinnon, secretary. Delegates from Bury, Waterville, Kingsbury, Cookshire and other districts were present.

BROTHERS NOT GUILTY.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press). — Lieut. Governor W. B. Cooper and his brother, T. E. Cooper were found not guilty in United States District Court of a charge of conspiracy to defraud and violate the national banking laws in connection wit hthe failure of Commercial National Bank of Wilmington.

FORCE U.S. FISHERS PACK IN CANADA

TORONTO, Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press).—The Booth Fishing Company of Chicago, [illegible] years has been conducting its operations in such a manner that it has become a political issue in the district of Algoma, has been placed under restrictions by the Provincial Government.

In renewing the company's license there has been inserted stipulation that all fish caught by the company in Canadian waters shall be packed in Canada by Canadian workmen, and that the operations of the company's fishing vessels shall be carried on to the west of the Algoma shore line.

The restrictions are calculated by the Ferguson Government to remedy a situation in Algoma which has been bringing poverty to its many fishermen.

SENATOR URGES EMPIRE TRADING

Australian Visitor Tells Reform Club it Would Help Countries

Detailing some of the advantages that might accrue to Canada through the expansion of inter-Empire trade, Senator Wilson, Minister of Health for the Australian Commonwealth showed himself a staunch advocate of increased trading between the various parts of the British Empire when he delivered an address to members of the Reform Club at their weekly luncheon last Saturday afternoon.

In the course of his address Senator Wilson referred scathingly to the attempts of reformers to send people to Heaven by legislation. It was impossible to drive evil out of the world merely by passing laws, he said.

He appealed to his hearers to stand firmly behind all attempts made to develop reciprocal trade between the various parts of the British Empire. He cited a number of incidents showing how easy it would be for Canada to obtain a greater share of Australia's markets.

Discussing another angle of the situation he stated that Canada imported over 300,000 tons of dried fruit a year. Australia could supply the same product at a cost below what Canada paid in her present market.

WELCOMES IMMIGRANTS.

The speaker also referred to the immigration problem and its relation to the unemployment situation in England. While Australia and Canada possessed vast unpeopled spaces, two million people went about England without any hope of employment. Some steps should be taken to remedy such a situation. Speaking for Australia, he said that God never meant his country to remain undeveloped, and to further that aim a larger population was needed. Australia was anxious for immigrants of good British stock, and was making efforts to obtain them.

In conclusion the speaker appealed to his hearers to stand fast to the British Empire, which, he said, was synonymous with all that is good.

An explanation of the history of the Fascist movement in Italy was given by Signor Pio Margotti, Italian Consul-General in Montreal. He pointed out that while the Fascist movement was revolutionary, it was an organized attempt to ensure a change from tyranny to stable government.

The Fascisti was formed to counteract the effects of post war German propaganda and the seeds sown by the Bolsheviks, Signor Margotti declared.

FOUR MOOSE JAW POLICE ARRESTED

Five Suspended — Allege Confess to Robbing Many Stores

MOOSE JAW, Sask., Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press) — With the arrest of four members of the city police force for the alleged theft of goods from various stores and garages and the suspension of all other patrolmen, Moose Jaw last night was virtually without a police force. Chief of Police Johnson, three detective sergeants and a few volunteers are patrolling the city.

Following investigations by the chief and a special session of the police commissioners on Saturday, patrolman A. M. Knight, J. W. Reynolds, Daniel Logan and Owen Walters were arrested. Three constables —Reynolds, Knight and Walters—according to evidence given before the police commissioners, have confessed to theft. Five other patrolmen were immediately suspended pending investigation.

In a systematic robbery of stores, going on since April, 1923, the police are alleged to have stolen enormous quantities of merchandise, ranging from articles of clothing to trunks and automobile tires. According to police headquarters, detectives have found a quantity of clothing stolen from local departmental stores in the rooms of those under arrest.

Be Careful What You Wash Your Child's Hair With

If you want to keep children's hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Do not use prepared shampoos or anything else that contains too much free alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can not possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in. Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanse the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff, and excess oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and it leaves it fine and silky, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and a few ounces will last for months. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified. Beware of imitations. Look for the name Watkins on the package.

HONOR H. G. MUNRO.

A pleasant feature of the annual festival of Knox-Crescent Sabbath School, held on Friday last, was the presentation of a silver tea service to H. G. Munro, on his retiring from the office of Superintendent of the school, which he has filled for some years. Mrs. Munro received a beautiful bouquet of roses. A gold medal for ten years regular attendance was presented to Charles Stonefield, while four other scholars received silver medals for five years regular attendance.

To mark the 25th anniversary of his service as chief of the department of Oto-Laryngology in the Royal Victoria Hospital, members of his staff and former house surgeons entertained Col. H. S. Birkett, C.B., M.D., at a banquet on Saturday evening in the St. James Club. Among those who attended the dinner, at which Dr. E. Hamilton White presided, were: James T. Rogers, Dr. F. T. Tooke, Dr. David A. Ballon, Dr. D. W. McKechnie, Dr. George C. Anderson, Dr. J. A. MacMillan, Dr. Keith Hutchison, Dr. McNally and Dr. Tremble. Former house surgeons who were unable to be present sent greetings and messages of congratulation, and good wishes were received from Dr. S. H. McKee, Dr. R. P. Wright, Dr. N. C. Jones, Toronto; Dr. H. S. Muckleston, Los Angeles, Cal.; Dr. J. S. Jenkins, Charlottetown, P.E.I.; Dr. F. T. Coote, Chicago; Dr. Emmet McCusker, Regina; Dr. Goodridge, Moncton, N.B., and Dr. R. B. Coulson, Port Arthur, Ont.

Appreciation of Dr. Birkett's service in the administration of the department, as well as of his accomplishment during the war when, as Dean of the Medical Faculty of McGill University, he organized the McGill Hospital Unit, was expressed by Dr. James T. Rogers, who proposed the toast to Dr. Birkett. Dr. Tooke, in seconding it, dwelt on Dr. Birkett's helpfulness and consideration for his staff. As a memento of the occasion a silver dish was presented to Dr. Birkett by Dr. David A. Ballon.

TALKS ON JEWS

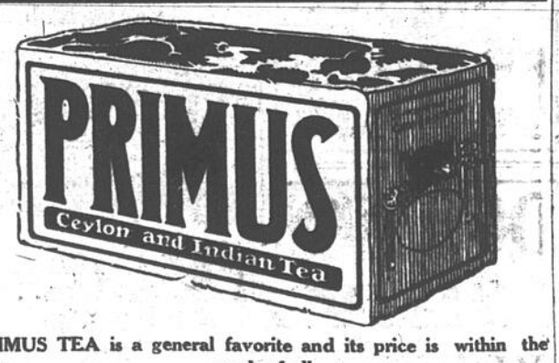

Rabbi Merritt Tells of Struggle Through Centuries

The misconception that surrounded the Jew in the Middle Ages has not yet lifted, and no people are so persistently misunderstood as the Jewish race, said Rabbi Max Merritt, in addressing a meeting of the Calvary Men's Own Brotherhood yesterday afternoon.

When the Black Death raged popular superstition had held the Jew responsible, and authors and dramatists of past centuries had developed this feeling by painting false pictures. The speaker showed how the Jews had struggled against the restrictions put upon them in the Ghettos of the Old World, and pointed out their achievements in the better days which have dawned since the French Revolution. On what was once a battle-ground Jew and Gentile were meeting and fraternizing and joining forces for the common good.

(This is the second of a series of articles on this very popular game. The first was published on Saturday. The third will appear in an early issue.

The Star strongly suggests that interested readers clip and keep each article as it appears. It will be impossible to supply either single article or complete sets after publication.

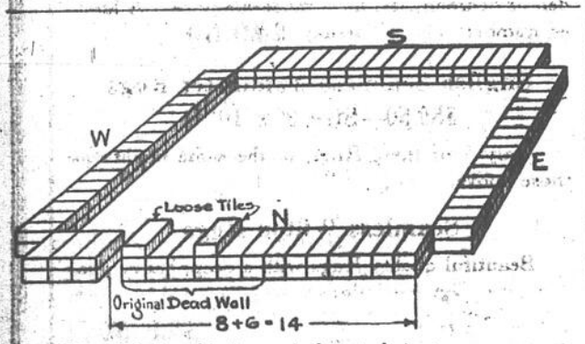

Questions arising from any part of the game of Mah-Jongg will be given personal answer in these columns. Address questions to Mah-Jongg Editor, The Star.)

ARTICLE II.

PLAYING THE HAND.

34—The next step is to get the routine of playing the hand correctly.

35. First Step — Turn the tiles all face down and shuffle them thoroughly by sliding them around on the table.

The wall built and broken ready for actual play to commence.

36. Second Step: Building the Wall—Each player builds a wall in front of himself—seventeen tiles in length, two deep. Each player then arranges his wall so that the four join up, forming a square (sometimes called a courtyard). The illustration will make this clear.

37—(The Chinese are particularly skilful in building their walls—and this is their method: From the mixed up tiles they take three tiles in each hand and bring them together. Then they take three more in each hand and place them on top of the first six. They then start again, three in each hand, and make up a second set similar to the first. Then they take three in one hand and two in the other, and make that lot two deep.

Then by quick movements, they divide the blocks of six, half with each hand, and just stick them on either end of one of the sections).

You note that you will not have to count the tiles in your wall—if you have built it in this way.

38. Third Step: Breaking the Wall—Each player throws the dice, and the one who throws the highest number is East Wind for that hand. He is the Banker, for that hand.

39—Note that whilst West Wind faces East Wind, the positions of North and South are reversed. South Wind is always on the right of East Wind. (This extraordinary arrangement has apparently been the rule for centuries. I have never been able to find a valid or reasonable explanation of the ideas. Please accept it as it stands, it is quaint enough).

40. Deciding Which Wall to be Broken—East Wind then throws the dice, to decide which wall is to be broken. Suppose East throws "eight." Starting with East wall as "one" and counting to the right (contra-clockwise). South is two, West is three, North is four, East is five, South is six, West is seven, so then "eight" falls to North Wind.

Therefore the North Wall is the one to be broken.

41. Deciding Where Wall to be Broken—North then takes the dice and throws—let us suppose "six." This number is added to the eight (which decided the North wall), giving a total of fourteen. North counts fourteen pairs of tiles from the right of this wall, and breaks the wall by taking the fourteen pair out, and placing them to the right of the break on the top of the wall. The illustration makes this quite clear.

You will note that by this method it is impossible to tell beforehand where the wall will be broken, the element of chance may bring it to any tile owing to the repetition of throwing the dice.

42. Loose Tiles—The two tiles on top of the wall are called "Loose Tiles"—they serve to show, at once, where the wall was broken. You will see later how these tiles are used in the game.

DRAWING THE HANDS.

43—East Wind now takes the first two pairs of tiles to the left of the break, then South Wind takes two pairs and so on, three time round the table, until each player has twelve tiles. East Wind then takes the top tile of the next pair, and the top tile of the third pair (making fourteen tiles to East Wind, because East Wind starts the game by discarding). So, when East Wind has taken "first" and "third" tiles, then South Wind takes one, West and North likewise, which gives South, West and North their thirteenth tile.

BANKER.

44.—East Wind is the banker. (He receives double his score if he wins, or pays double whatever losses he has to pay.)

STARTING THE GAME.

45.—East Wind starts the hand by discarding. The tile which he discards may be claimed by any player for a "Pung," or by South Wind for a "Chow." If no player claims the discard, then South draws a tile from the wall, retains it if it fits into his hand, otherwise he discards it.

DRAWING OUT OF TURN.

46.—If a player draws from the wall out of turn—the tile is replaced in the wall at the place from which it was drawn. There is no penalty attached to this mistake.

47.—You will note that a player cannot take any discarded tile unless he shows the play he completes with the tile he claims. The play must be a "chow," a "pung," a "kong," or "mah jongg," and it must be declared immediately the discarded tile is claimed.

48.—When a player declares a "pung" he discards, and the player on his right plays next. It may be that one or two players lose their turns through a "pung" declaration. For example:—Suppose—West discards a five circle, and South has a pair of five circles. South calls "pung" and takes the tile. When South discards West is the next player to play, so North and East have each lost a turn.

49.—If you have a pair in your hand, and you draw a third similar tile from the wall, you do not expose it on the table—it has higher counting value if hidden in your hand.

50.—If you fill a sequence by drawing a tile from the wall you do not expose the sequence. It has no scoring value it is true, but the knowledge of which tiles you hold might be valuable to your opponents.

DISCARDING.

51.—In playing the game, the Chinese do not name their discards—the players are supposed to be on the alert, but a player may ask the discarder which tile he discarded. However, there is a custom for each player to declare his discard, and for beginners it is very helpful. When you become familiar with the game you will outgrow the habit.

52.—In discarding you must expose the tile face upwards on the table so that every player can see it clearly. Ordinary courtesy requires that there be a few moments' pause before the next player draws from the wall, but there should not be any undue delay in the game—the tile discarded must be claimed promptly. All players should be watching the game.

53.—If the next player draws a tile from the wall, looks at it, and places it in his hand, and then one of the other players discovers that the last discard would give him a "pung," or "mah jongg"—it is too late—the discarded tile is dead and cannot under any circumstances be claimed. This rule is definite—there can be no question about it at all.

54.—It may be that it suddenly dawns on him that by a re-arrangement of his hand he can call "mah jongg"—on that discarded tile. It is too late. He should have known what his hand contained.

55.—Please get this idea quite clearly—the player who is waiting for just one tile to go "mah jongg"—should be watching the game. If the tile he wants is discarded openly, and he is not paying attention, it is his own fault that he loses the tile.

56.—However, if he makes the discovery, before the player drawing the tile from the wall has placed the tile in his hand (even though he has seen the tile)—he can claim the discard for whatever play his hand will allow him to make. In which case, the player who drew the tile would replace it in the wall.

57.—Once a player has drawn a tile and has seen what it is—he can not place the tile back in the wall, and take the last tile discarded instead. He has not the option of choosing between two tiles both of which he has seen.

58.—The game goes on, round the table, each player drawing and discarding in turn (contra-clockwise)—until the "dead wall" is reached.

(Author's Note.) — The rules being published here are the rules of the real Chinese game. Variations from these rules will not improve the game. The additions of 'freak plays' which foreigners have made (?) only spoil the game.

No claim is made for anything original. There cannot be anything original about "Mah Jongg"—it was all decided thousands of years ago. The real merit of the work shall be that it will explain "Mah Jongg" so clearly, that anyone may understand and play the game properly.

These rules and methods of play are not ideas of mine, they are just a plain, carefully arranged, orderly step-by-step explanation of how 'Mah Jongg' should be played, and has been played in China, from times before the white man knew there was such a country.

You will find here no reference whatever to any of these—please understand that they were left out intentionally.

It is quite safe to assume that ages ago all these new fantastic notions and combinations were thought of and set aside by the Chinese.

Leave "Mah Jongg" as the Chinese play it, and enjoy it. They know 'Mah Jongg" best.

There is just now a great deal of talk going on regarding "Standardizing" the game of "Mah Jongg." In the Chinese game every play is covered by rule—there can be no question when you know the rule. What is really needed is a deeper study of the game. There is no standardizing agitation whatever amongst the Chinese players — perhaps because they know the rules of the game.

Need of Christian Principles in Business Emphasized

How the Methodist Church through its Evangelism and Social Service Department is helping to solve some of the problems of today was explained by E. J. Moore, head of the Methodist Book Room department, in a sermon delivered in Fairmount Avenue Methodist Church last evening.

Prevention of the exodus of young people from farm homes to cities by provision of community halls and the stimulation of community interests, and the introduction into industrial establishment of Christian economic principles were suggestions made by the speaker.

The need of prevention of migration from rural districts to cities was shown by the growing number of untenanted farms in Ontario, caused by the natural craving by young people for more life and interest than they could find on a farm. Community halls were helping to solve the problem and the department was assisting in this work, he said.

In connection with the introduction of Christian economic principles into industry the speaker told of the efforts of officers of the department to interest heads of business firms in systems of profit-sharing. Already 400 of the leading industrial centres in Canada had appointed shop committees and 200 had embarked upon some system of profit-sharing. Some part of these results could be placed to the credit of the department.

The speaker also instanced work done by the department among unfortunate women and girls. Eleven homes had been established and records over eight years showed that 86 per cent. of those who had been helped continued true to the principles taught in the homes.

HOMEMAKERS GAVE CONCERT.

The members of the club sang glees and plantation songs, in costume. Miss Athol Carter added three solo dances to the evening's entertainment. Songs were contributed by A. Tessier, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. James MacDougall.

The Women's Conservative Association will hold an entertainment Friday evening at the Mount Royal Hotel. Bridge and euchre playing will commence at 8.30 o'clock and will continue until eleven o'clock. Supper will then be served during which there will be a musical entertainment by prominent artists.

The feature of the evening will be the presence of Nadja, a leading Spanish dancer from New York. She will give a performance of interpretative dances.

Prizes will be in plentiful supply, both for men and women. Some very handsome ones have been donated for this evening by business firms of the city. Guests are being asked to bring along their own cards and special provision has been made for those who wish to play Mah-Jongg.

Reservations for tables may be made by telephoning the secretary at Conservative headquarters in the Mount Royal Hotel.

HONOR POSTMASTER.

Victor Gaudet, Montreal's new postmaster, was the guest of honor at an entertainment held by the Montreal Postoffice Employes' Association on Saturday evening in the lecture room of St. Sulpice Library. Joseph Laframe, president of the Association, occupied the chair, and addresses were made by Mr. Gaudet, Mr. Laframe and others. The new postmaster emphasized that his policy would be one of justice toward all the employes of the department.

A well selected musical program rounded out the evening.

GRADUATE SOCIETY MONTHLY MEETING

The Assembly Hall of the Baron de Hirsch Institute was crowded with members and friends of the Dufferin School Graduates' Society yesterday evening at their monthly meeting, Isidore Charness presiding.

Isidore Poplinger, B.C.L., the scheduled speaker, was prevented from attending. A. J. Levinson spoke on "everyday law, as it affects the individual." Mr. Livinson quoted the saying of a famous Quebec Judge, that "our liberty of speech ends with the first word we speak." He then pointed out some of the restrictions of the Municipal Code that every man ought to know—for example, the rule—that any one who has served a sentence for any offence whatever, or who has been declared bankrupt must not present himself for any public office, and also touched on Commercial and School Law. Other features of the evening consisted of a vocal solo by Miss Eva Rost accompanied by Miss Esther Frank; Jewish Folk Song by Mr. Max Segal accompanied by Miss Bookman; H. Darbaner, Monologue, and Miss Mary Waltman, elocutionist.

LANDOWNERS FIGHT FOR RESTRICTED AREA

Following opposition by a number of landowners in Notre Dame de Grace against proposed changes in the building by-laws, which would allow tenements or semi-detached houses to be erected on Marcil avenue, between Monkland and Notre Dame de Grace avenues, Ald. Seybold, himself, has signed a petition bearing a large number of signatures which will be formally presented to the authorities today.

At present the section of the ward reserved for self-contained houses is bounded by Sherbrooke, Monkland, Girouard and Westhill, and the present change would have permitted duplex houses and flats to be built.

LEGACY OF GREECE.

Dr. E. M. Eberts will address the Medical Undergraduates' Society of McGill University this evening on "The Legacy of Greece to Medicine." The lecture will be given in the Medical Building at 8.15 p.m.

Not Only Moth-proof but Strongly Built, as Well

ONE of the biggest advances ever made in the upholstered furniture art, was, unquestionably, the introduction of Snyder's "Sani-bilt", guaranteed, moth-proof Furniture. Other so-called "moth-proof" furniture must take secondary place to "Sani-bilt". Our process is absolutely colorless, odorless and non-poisonous. In addition, the fillings are as thoroughly treated as the cover.

We take the prospective buyer closely into our confidence by laying bare the constructional secrets of "Sani-bilt" Furniture and back this up by a positive and absolute guarantee of replacement, in the event of the Furniture not being found as represented.

The Frames Are Solidly Built

The frame on which upholstered furniture is built must be strong, if the furniture is to give the service it should. The frames on which Snyder's "Sani-bilt" pieces are built are of exceptional strength and solidity. Some people say our frames are unnecessarily strong and solid. The answer to that is that Snyder's "Sani-bilt" Furniture is still in use years after other furniture, with weaker frames, has broken down and been discarded.

Snyder frames are made of well kiln-dried Canadian hardwood, properly planed and dressed. All frames are made with corner blocks which are glued and screwed.

The rigidity of the frame is due to the corner blocks being glued and screwed.

Solidly Built from Cover to Frames

Regardless of price, large suite or small, sound construction is the keynote of "Sani-bilt" Furniture. The japanned, oil-tempered springs, at the precisely correct tension, are securely interlaced to prevent displacement.

The high-grade, non-stretching webbing (made specially for ourselves) is closely interwoven and firmly anchored at both ends, to provide a permanent base for the whole construction.

Another point of superiority for Snyder's "Sani-bilt" Furniture is that only new, clean and sanitary materials are used in its manufacture. The fillings, the covers, the cottons, the webbing, the springs, the twine, the frame—all brand new. This is of great importance to the purchaser, because upholstered furniture made of second-hand materials can prove a menace to the health of every member of the family.

Note the thorough method of interlacing the webbing.

How easy it is to make upholstered furniture that is graceful of line and attractively covered, but which, because of its cheap interior, disappoints its owner soon after its purchase! Only by selecting furniture that carries Snyder's "Sani-bilt" guarantee tag and trade-mark label can you be definitely sure that it is positively mothproof, durable in construction and comfort, and made of new, fresh materials. Insist on seeing the "Sani-bilt" guarantee tag and trade-mark.

All Prices—All Styles

A trade-mark, identifying genuine Snyder's "Sani-bilt" Furniture, will be found under the cushion of every chair and chesterfield. Be sure it is there. Also, conspicuous on every piece of genuine "Sani-bilt", you will find the guarantee tag attached by a cord. Keep it. It is your assurance of satisfaction. "Sani-bilt" living-room furniture is made at all prices. It is not necessarily expensive. It can be had at any price you want to pay. All prices, sizes and styles guaranteed.

STEPHEN LEACOCK WAS "CHUNK OF ICE"

Creates Amusement at St. Lambert With Recital of "Stage Career"

Judged by the standard of the number of laughs per minute the lecture given by Dr. Stephen Leacock in the Auditorium of the High School at St. Lambert on Saturday night, was a pronounced success. Dr. Leacock's treatment of the subject: "The lighter side of Literature and the Drama," revealed a very light side, indeed, and highly amused the audience.

The lecturer produced a crumpled handful of notes to prove that he was giving a lecture, otherwise it might have been mistaken for a continuous vaudeville "turn" of a specially entertaining character.

The lecture, or entertainment, was under the auspices of the St. Lambert Women's Club, and was held to raise funds to start a library and reading room for the younger people of the town.

E. J. Davis, assistant principal of the High School, in a short speech, emphasized the value of a library in cultivating in children a taste for good reading, and congratulated the Women's Club on its enterprise. Mrs. W. G. H. Cam, President of the Club, acted as chairman and introduced the lecturer.

Dr. Leacock began with the "drama" part of his lecture, reciting his alleged performances as a Shakespearean actor — not in Forbes Robertson parts — and later in that "famous old drama, 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,'" in which his first part was one of the chunks of ice in the river on which Eliza crossed from Ohio into Canada, "for which nobody could blame her." His conscientious and talented work in this lowly capacity being noticed by a great theatre manager, he rose, by sheer merit to the role of one of the blood-hounds in the "Uncle Tom" drama. The audience "howled" with laughter when the "ex-actor" described how, when the stage lost him, he donated his perfectly good howl to Martin Harvey to use in the torture scene in "The Breed of the Treshams."

"You don't find such powerful acting in the drama nowadays," commented Dr. Leacock wistfully. "Today you have plays of reflection, when the people come on in ordinary clothes and sit in an ordinary room, and brood, and brood, and brood. When I was on the stage there was always something doing."

MODERN METHODS.

Turning to literature, Dr. Leacock demonstrated the modern way of dealing with the hero and heroine. The latest discovery was that the heroine in fiction is no longer needed; in fact, she only "messes up the plot." In the old love story, the heroine was introduced first, standing in front of her mother's cottage, swinging her sun-bonnet and singing to herself. It was a way she had. When you saw the young man in Norfolk jacket, with an air of the Oxford student, coming down the road, you knew he and the girl were destined for each other. You weren't worried at all, when the young man turned out to be Lord Ronald, heir to great estates. You knew it would come out all right, even when Lord Ronald's father threatens to disinherit him if he marries the "cottage girl." You can see the young nobleman draw himself to his full height and pronounce the ultimatum, "If you disinherit me, I shall work."

Now, said the lecturer, nobody cares for the love story. What people are interested in is the crime story. Dr. Leacock proceeded to burlesque a modern crime story, showing one, John Curbstone, a wealthy clubman, of old family, having lived in his palatial residence as much as eight and a half years — confronted by Miss Chetwynde, a "slip of a girl," who caught in the act of stealing his Victory bonds, turns on him with the accusation, "What have you done for social service, or sanitation, or re-forestation?" The ensuing romance cuts short the story, showing how a heroine in a crime story is a mistake.

If you must have a heroine, bring her up to date. Dr. Leacock gave a formula for concocting the kind of story the magazines buy, in which the heroine is usually the wife of the Other Man. The story doesn't end with "and so they were married and lived happily ever afterwards," because they are married — to the other person—when the story begins.

The enjoyment of the evening was enhanced by a program of music, contributed by W. J. Stephenson, baritone; Miss Doris Grose, soprano, and Miss E. Davidson, pianist.

ELEVATED RAILWAY ANSWER TO PROBLEM

City and Tramway Heads Discuss Proposal

Elevated lines as an emergency means of grappling with city transportation problems are at least a possibility, and both civic and street railway heads have been considering this step, it has been stated by Ald. Desroches, member of the administration.

The question of providing better tram accommodation has been discussed at length by a special committee of the council, which reported that it had a number of suggestions to offer, and requested that the city and tramways commission meet to express their views on the problem.

The two bodies have been in communication for some time, and the proposal has tentatively been made that an elevated line be constructed to provide express facilities between downtown and Mount Royal Avenue. The line, in prospect, would be built on City Hall avenue, it is thought, and would run from Craig north.

The authorities have come to the conclusion that multiplication of surface lines will not bring relief, and that some other means must be found. A subway would be too expensive a proposition to face at the present time, and so the only other way out of the difficulty is to erect an "L."

Future deliberations will be held with this end in view.

DR. F. P. VANIER IS DEAD AT ST. JEROME

The death of Dr. Felix P. Vanier, aged 65 years, occurred at his home, 236 Labelle street, St. Jerome, after a long illness. He was well known in the province and particularly in Terrebonne County.

Born in St. Martin, Laval county, he was educated there and in Montreal, where he took his medical studies at the old Victoria College. He was admitted to the practice of his profession in 1882 and went to establish himself at Lewiston, Me. From there he went to Paris to continue his studies. He returned to Canada in 1890, and went to St. Jerome, where he remained. Dr. Vanier served as alderman of St. Jerome town council for several years. At the time of his death he was a member of the St. Jerome School Commission, medical health officer for the town, and medical adviser to the Boys' Farm and Training School, as well as to the Dominion Rubber Company. He married Exirine Gauthier, of St. Jerome, in 1880 who survives him, with one son, Emilieu, also of St. Jerome. He is also survived by two brothers, Rev. Father Vanier, of the St. Laurent College, and David Vanier, mayor of Laval des Rapides. He was a brother-in-law of Hon. Bruno Nantel and of Dr. Ernest Gauthier, of Joliette.

The funeral will take place Wednesday morning at 10:30 o'clock at St. Jerome, the hour coinciding with the arrival of the morning train from Montreal.

Every Gray Hair a Sign Post of Age

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks streaked, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the recipe at home or get from any drug store a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which is merely the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients. Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.

LABOR SHOULD FAVOR IMMIGRATION

THOSE of us who realize that immigration is the great need of tax-ridden, railway-burdened and sparsely populated Canada will never get very far in our effort to spur the various Dominion Governments into vigorous and well-organized campaigns for settlers unless we consider with open minds the attitude of those who think such effort unneeded and untimely.

President Moore of the Labor Congress appears to be of this opinion; and he gave some of his reasons for this attitude at the People's Forum last night. His argument, in a word, is that "it is more logical, just and proper to keep our own people in Canada than to secure immigrants from Europe."

With this theory, surely no one has any quarrel. One Canadian kept at home is worth an indefinite number of strangers brought from alien surroundings and different political conditions to learn how to live in Canada. Even one alien—better still, one British subject from the Mother Country — who has spent a few years in Canada and has had that much "schooling" in fitting himself to our conditions of life, is far better than the same man just landed in Halifax or Quebec.

We should do everything we possibly can to keep our own. If Mr. Moore knows of anything effective which the Governments are not doing, and which they might do, he has only to outline it, and he will get our heartiest support in pressing it on the Ministers. We are with him, heart and soul, on that point. The unceasing hemorrhage of "the exodus" is precisely one of the most serious—if not the most serious—reasons why an aggressive, intelligent and selective immigration policy has become for Canada a matter of life or death.

By all means, let us staunch the suicidal flow if we can.

* * * *

Mr. Moore seems to think that there are a lot of "out-of-works" in the cities who were drawn there some years ago by high wages and the "bright lights" who would gladly return to the land if they had the chance.

If this be true, the Government should immediately co-operate with Mr. Moore and his organization to seek out these families and provide the most favorable terms on which they could at once take up farms and extend our area of cultivation. The money that it costs to bring an immigrant into Canada could be far better spent in re-settling a Canada-broke farmer on the soil.

But the men on the immigration job disagree with Mr. Moore. They think that there "is no such animal"—in any quantity—as a city man who can now go back and make a successful farmer. The chances are that he was not a very successful farmer when he left the job he knew, for the risks, confinement and loss of independence involved in taking a city wage. It is usually the men who either failed at or disliked farming who came to the city. If out of work just now, they might imagine they would prefer anything to starvation on a city street; but the chances against them sticking to the farm and making a success at it are surely appalling. Mr. Moore must be as fair in considering the other side of the question as in considering his own.

Nor will any dribble back from the cities solve our population problem. Our population must grow by the million if we are to carry our debt, make railways pay, balance our budgets and turn this nation back from the slippery path down to bankruptcy. We want more—far more—than mere shifting our people from one address to another. We want new people.

* * * *

Mr. Moore speaks for the working man. He must know that nothing can so benefit the working man as competition for his work. He must know that the only way to get that competition is to increase the output of the industries we already have and possibly call new industries of the same sort into being. He must know that the only way to do this is to add to the markets in which the products of these industries can be sold. He must know that the surest way in which augmented markets can be secured is by increasing the number of people in Canada, within our protective tariff, who will and can buy the output of these industries.

Thus every settler planted on a farm in Canada potentially increases or makes more secure the wage of every workingman in the city. Organized Labor ought, logically, to be the chief champion of a vigorous immigration policy. The only ground of objection that is conceivable is the fear that free and unselected immigration might bring in skilled workmen from Europe to compete with our own skilled workmen for what they regard as too few jobs already. But a wise immigration policy, enlisting the co-operation of organized Labor, would keep this fact in mind, and seek for immigrants who would join our employed and not our unemployed. No one wants to bring in men at the public expense who will simply walk the streets looking for jobs which do not exist.

It would seem as if there ought to be a chance here for intelligent and sympathetic co-operation. Needing more population as badly as this country does, we cannot afford to leave any influential class in an attitude of antagonism or even indifference if a little commonsense will win their hearty support.

THE DOCKERS' STRIKE.

THE Labor party in Britain may be said to have had its genesis in the great strike of London dockers thirty-five years ago. It is not without significance that within a month of the assumption of the functions of government by Labor, after a hardly-fought and patiently-won victory, the sons of these same dockers are embarrassing and challenging the party which their fathers made possible.

On August 22, 1889, negotiations between the London and India Dock Committee and representatives of the men reached a deadlock and a strike which had been threatening for some weeks became general. One week later close upon 100,000 men were numbered in the ranks of the strikers. A cessation of work on so gigantic a scale was something new for London, and when mass-meetings were held in Hyde Park on the first two Sundays of September there was considerable alarm and the ranks of the police force were enlarged by the enrolling of several thousand special constables.

The men's leaders in that strike were Mr. John Burns and Mr. Ben Tillett, while others who took a prominent part in the strike were Mr. Tom Mann and Mr. Keir Hardie. The conduct of the men was orderly and their temper was moderate. Nevertheless thousands of staid and steady-going householders held up their hands in horror at the "spectre of Socialism", talked of the imminent collapse of the ordered institutions of government in Britain and hinted at bloodshed and revolution.

Not the most sanguine of the men's leaders thought that the strike would spread so widely or that it would be so successful. The slogan "A penny an hour", which epitomized the demands of the strikers in asking that their wages be raised from fivepence to sixpence an hour, caught the popular fancy. The strikers found that while the very thought of strike was anathema to hundreds of thousands of British, yet sympathy with their aims and their appeal grew rapidly. The leaders themselves were amazed at the swift response to the public for funds to relieve distress arising out of the strike.

Thirty-five years ago Labor learned that behind the conservative traditions of England there was a mass of common sense that had practical sympathy with the sufferings of its fellow-men, and Labor, which was then a negligible quantity in politics, woke up to a realization of its powers. Four years after the strike J. Keir Hardie was elected first president of the Independent Labor Party of Britain and Labor became a real and a powerful force in British politics.

There will be some wondering as to why the dockers have chosen the moment of the greatest triumph which Labor has yet enjoyed for a strike. Perhaps they believe that the day of triumph will not be long enjoyed and that it were wise for them to make hay while the sun shines. If this is the explanation, then they can hardly hope to have public sympathy without which no strike can win a lasting success. It is a difficult position for the new Premier, but if, as seems likely, he has public sympathy on his side a firm handling of the situation will be more likely to bring him political credit than discomfiture. The element of surprise at least is not present. Moreover, with Burns, Hardie, Tillett and Mann there were giants in those days.

DESIRE A FOUR YEARS' TERM.

NOW that members of our City Council have ascertained there is not the slightest likelihood that the Legislature will give any heed to their desire for a four years' term of office—to replace the existing two years' term—a new tactic has been entered upon. Briefly explained, it is that the electors, at the civic elections in April, shall be asked to vote for a four years' period. Were this question answered in the affirmative, there would then be a change of Council every four years only.

The striking feature of this new move is that aldermen only are behind it. Not a single petition has been received by Council from the "man with the ballot" desiring a change. The cloven foot of self-interest is here very vividly seen. At the last civic elections, when aldermen were once more given control—succeeding the Administrative Commission—it was most clearly laid down that two years only should be the length of office of both the Mayor and the members of Council. Nothing whatever has occurred which would warrant any change in existing conditions. In nearly all cities the practice has been found a wise one of having aldermen put their records before the electorate every two years. There is nothing in past conditions in this city which would bolster up any hope that wiser government would prevail if the term of office were doubled. While it is only right that the people should be consulted at the polls, on a matter so important, there should first be some expression of public desire for a change. The aldermen will be wise to wait for this.

The windows of the house of Memory and the windows of the house of Mercy are not so easily closed as windows of glass and wood. They fly open unexpectedly; they rattle in the night; they must be nailed up.—Charles Dickens.

THE WORLD'S PRESS

Blame the Electors.

N. Y. Commercial: As long as a majority of our citizens who are entitled to vote fail to do so and take no interest in matters of a political nature it will be possible for men who are capable of grafting to get into office. In the last analysis such rottenness as most of us complain of can be traced to the fact that when men known by the public to be unfit seek office that same public many times calmly votes them in.

"Ask the Policeman"

London Chronicle: The main difference between the English policeman and all others is that he is an essential popular institution. He is not, like the New York police, brought up under a discipline which encourages him to be part of an exclusive caste. His views are those of the man-in-the-street; his moral code and his sympathies are those of the ordinary people with whom he mingles when he is off duty. He is not a repressor of the public, but its friend.

Misleading the People.

Natal Advertiser: It is mischievous in the extreme to lead the Dominion to suppose that the people of England prefer cheap raisins to a Commonwealth embracing a fifth of the globe. Yet this is the sort of thing that is being encouraged to go on, principally by the doctrinaires of the Free Trade school, ably assisted by politicians of the Masterman type; and an ill-informed and bewildered democracy is being misled into believing that another 1776 is looming ahead of it.

Testing Labor.

Westminster Gazette: The Labor Party is about to assume responsibility for the interests of the nation as a whole. Unless it can prevent unnecessary and unjustifiable strikes its efforts to cure unemployment will be doomed to dismal failure from the outset. We have never endorsed the silly declarations of various people that Labor is not fit to govern; but its fitness to govern the country as a whole must be judged to a considerable extent by its ability to control its own pledged supporters.

The People's Trustee.

Kansas City Star: It is trite to repeat that a public office is a public trust. But it is deviation from this unwritten law that brings discredit and humiliation to Governments and peoples. The public servant who is not scrupulously honest, who does not respect both individual and official standards of action and deportment, injures not only himself, but those he serves. He discredits the system of government adopted by the people. He breaks down confidence in public service generally. He weakens the fabric of society.

Watching for Bear.

Baltimore Sun: For those powers whose interests centre in Europe Russia is no longer a potential foe. She has abandoned the claims which made her so for two long centuries. But for the British Empire, when British interests in India and Russian interests on the wild northern border of that country are again in conflict, the proposition is not so simple. Under Czar or Commissar the Russian as a neighbor is to British rule in India a real problem. Diplomacy of the old school never laid this spectre altogether. It is too soon to say whether the dealings of a Labor Government will be more successful.

Begging in Britain

Yorkshire Post: The impression has become general among the less successful manual workers that no man, no woman, has any moral right to wealth; that fortunes are made by what is called "economic robbery"; and that money should be taken from the rich by force of law and given to the poor. Consequently, laziness is on the increase, and all too many unskilled workers are content to qualify for the State dole, or to adopt some mode of indirect begging from door to door, bitterly complaining the while of the absence of such a redistribution of the nation's wealth as might secure ease and comfort for them, without the necessity of regular labor.

"Movies" Not Art.

London Standard: The difference between good art and bad art is just this, that good art is the outcome of an idea by which the artist is truly possessed and inspired, whereas bad art springs from an idea which the artist accepts as ordinary currency, and which he sets himself to exploit. It is for this reason, for example, that the typical film is bad art. The man who makes it does not really believe in it. Very probably he has not even thought of it, but is simply adapting another man's idea. All he knows is that this is the sort of thing which impresses the public. And similarly with academic painting and the mass of popular fiction.

German Payments.

Le Temps (Paris): It would be foolish to reject in principle any method of payment. Some bold plans, though inapplicable to the problem in its entirety, might afford relief, if applied in special cases. But with regard to the general question of paying in capital, with the reservation of all exceptions which particular circumstances could justify, we believe we have the right to say this; the best system would be that which converted, by some convenient transition, the internal debt of France into an internal debt of Germany, the operation being conducted in such a manner that Germany did not alienate any definitive title and, with the prospect of recovering her capital at the end of amortization, she felt continually encouraged to fulfill her obligations to the end.

The Motherland.

When I have borne in memory what has tamed
Great Nations, how ennobling thoughts depart
When men change swords for ledgers, and desert
The student's bower for gold, some fears unnamed
I had, my Country!—am I to be blamed?
Now, when I think of thee, and what thou art,
Verily, in the bottom of my heart,
Of those unfilial fears I am ashamed.
For dearly we must prize thee; we who find
In thee a bulwark for the cause of men:
And I, by my affection was beguiled:
What wonder if a Poet now and then,
Among the many movements of his mind,
Felt for thee as a lover or a child!

CANADA'S STORY DAY BY DAY
By Blodwen Davies

February 18.

During the Rebellion of 1885 in Manitoba an Indian Chief named Poundmaker had been captured and imprisoned, and on this day in February, 1886, he was baptized, with twenty-eight of his braves, in the Stony Mountain Penitentiary by the pioneer-priest, Archbishop Tache. At that time he was just Bishop Tache, but already had a long record of service behind him. He was born at Riviere du Loup, Quebec, in 1823, and when twenty-two years of age went as a missionary to the new settlements in Manitoba, where he established schools and missions, and incidentally learned all there was to know about the half-breed population, sprung from Indian mothers and French and English fathers. For fifteen years or more before the revolution broke out he realized what was coming and did all in his power to secure official aid to prevent the discontent of the half-breeds from breaking into war. The astute old priest died in 1894.

LOCAL BROADCASTING O. K.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star:

Sir,—Referring to the letters about radio, I want to say that—to my mind—our local broadcasting is all right. It equals any from the United States. We owe a debt of gratitude to those who render their services free for our entertainment, as well as to those who broadcast. They give us jazz, classical and sacred music, and talks which, I am sure, are very interesting. We get this all for nothing, and I think that we should encourage our own Canadian talent rather than run it down. I wish to speak of the way in which CKAC shows consideration for us English-speaking people by broadcasting in English as well as in French. We have a one valve set with which we can at any time cut out local, but we always prefer to listen to local first. I feel sure that there are lots of radio fans who will agree with me in what I say.

A TRANSPORTER BRIDGE.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star:

Sir,—I agree with Mr. A. Nuttall (in his letter to The Star) as to the imminent need of a big bridge or tunnel for railway, tramway, automotive and pedestrian traffic to the South Shore. Dr. W. L. McDougald and Mr. C. N. Armstrong are already favoring these projects. I regret to say, however, that I cannot hold to Mr. Nuttall's negative views as to the utility, economy and immediacy of a transporter bridge, electrically propelled, to St. Helen's Island and beyond, via Ile Ronde. My proposition is now before the Montreal City Council for consideration by the aldermen, the executive and the Mayor. There are successfully operated transporter bridges at Rouen on the Seine (built 1837); Martrou, near Rochefort, on the Charente (1899); Newport-Mon, on the Usk, Monmouthshire, England; Runcorn-Widnes Bridge, England; Nantes, France, (1903); Marseille (1905); Duluth, U.S.A. (1905); Brest on the Penfeld, France, (1908), and a number of other important ones. The metal erection of the Nantes bridge was commenced August 25, 1902, and finished on October 20, 1902. On the Marseille bridge, from December 24th, 1905, to Jan. 31 1906, 106,849 passengers and 1,201 vehicles were carried; and 12,880 visitors made trips in the elevators to the tower or pylon lookouts (about 210 ft. high), of the bridge.

THE FARMER AND THE TARIFF.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star:

Sir,—Major Thorn, of Hawkesbury, Ont., has struck the nail on the head when he says that "after Canada's population has increased and many new cities have sprung up that will provide markets for the produce of mixed farming, the farmer's lot will be improved, but, as long as he has to farm wheat alone, his outlook is not rosy. Had Major Thorn continued his argument to its logical conclusion he would have shown the short-sightedness of the Dominion Government in lowering the tariff and in continuing to frighten capital by threatening to lower it still further by thus crippling the industries of the country, employment has fallen off, and during the past three years half a million of experienced city people, all good Canadian citizens, have been forced to emigrate to the United States. On the other hand, during the same period, our Government at great expense has brought into the country about half the number that have left it, all inexperienced strangers, from Great Britain and Europe. The main hope for profitable husbandry in Canada lies in selling the products of mixed farming to our city people. In order to increase our city population the farmers should support in Parliament a tariff policy that will encourage home industry and discourage the numerous unnecessary importations now going on of goods made in other lands.

TIME TO STOP PAYING TRIBUTE.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—I have read with much interest the articles in The Star concerning the financial strain from which Canada is suffering in having to pay what is practically an annual tribute of one hundred million dollars to the United States for coal. If Alberta coal can be used as a substitute for United States anthracite, or even for industrial use, every effort should be made by the Government to help the railways to bring it east, and thus have a portion at least of this enormous sum of money spent in our own country. If it should not prove a suitable substitute for anthracite, why not develop the enormous deposits of anthracite we have on the upper Skeena in British Columbia, said to be the only real anthracite west of Pennsylvania—a deposit which is conveniently situated midway between the new settlement on the Peace River and Prince Rupert? The splendid Peace River country is so remote that it cannot be colonized unless the settlers get an outlet to the Pacific coast for their grain. Another handicap from which Canada suffers is the payment of about fifteen million dollars annually to United States railways for carrying our western grain from Buffalo to New York and other United States ports, which take about eighty per cent of our grain, exported from the Prairie Provinces. Why not arrange it so that Canadian roads will bring this grain to Canadian sea-ports, and allow this freight money to be spent in our own country? Our good neighbors to the south must think that we Canadians are very much lacking in business intelligence.

THE PEOPLE AND CHURCH UNION.

The Editor, Montreal Daily Star.

Sir,—In The Star of recent date there appeared a document on "Vital Matters in Church Union," signed by members of a committee which consisted of Brig.-Gen. J. G. Ross, Professor R. E. Welsh, of the Presbyterian College, Rev. Dr. W. J. Clark, Rev. Dr. George Hanson, Rev. S. T. Martin, Rev. W. Munroe, A. D. Anderson, W. B. Wood, W. M. Birks and W. S. Leslie. This document says that "in the union of Scottish churches in 1900 no vote of the membership was taken." Do not the members of this committee know that the decision of the Scottish churches to unite in 1900 was sent down under the Barrier Act for two successive years for the opinion of the Presbyteries, to feel out the opinion of the people? This document further says that "A vote of church members on such a matter has no place in the constitution" (of the church). Neither does the constitution make any provision for the abolition of the church either by people or Presbyteries or Assembly. "Every requirement of its constitution, including the Barrier Act, has been carefully observed," we are told. My reply is that the Act was not sent down to Presbyteries under the Barrier Act as was done in the Scottish case. And the reason for this, I take it, is that Presbyteries could not deal constitutionally with such an astounding proposal as the abolition of the Church. The document also says that when the question of union was sent down to the people in 1915 only 22 per cent voted against it. This is not the important point; the important point is that only 32 per cent voted for it. Then we are told that non-unionists "owe deference, if not allegiance, to a decision of the Church through its superior court." What about the allegiance of this "superior court" to the members who, after all, constitute the Church? Did not the Assembly say repeatedly that union would never be consummated till the people were unanimous in asking for it? Are not these pledges moral? Had not the people the right to trust their leaders who made the pledges? Are not the present leaders of the movement, who disregarded these pledges, responsible for the strife which is dividing our Church? This remarkable document asks (in reference to another vote): "Would Church courts be likely to rescind past decisions and so stultify themselves?" May I remind this committee that in a number of cases Church courts have rescinded past past decisions? The Assembly of 1916 reversed the decision of the Assembly of 1912. The Assembly of 1917 reversed the decision of 1916. The Assembly of 1921 reversed this decision. So it would seem as if Assemblies allowed themselves a good deal of latitude in the matter of reversing decisions of previous Assemblies.

"Who ever heard of a bill being sent down to the people?" Well may they ask this question! History has no record of such a bill as is now before Parliament—a bill which destroys religious freedom and by law coerces tens of thousands into a Church which they do not wish to join. It is no wonder that people are asking if we are living in the Middle Ages! But the thing to be remembered is that the Union Bill is dividing the Church. We are facing a condition and not a theory, and the question is: Is the so-called union that will be secured by the passing of the bill worth the cost? Is not the disruption of the historic Presbyterian Church too big a price to pay for this union? There is a great deal of talk about the constitution of the Church, but what is worrying many of us is not the constitution of the Church but the present condition of the Church. Is it too late for representatives of both parties to get together and agree on an amended bill which will grant equal rights to all, and which will meet with no opposition in Parliament, simply because it will represent not a majority—nor even a minority—of the Church, but the Church as a whole?

Trading With Russia

(James Fairlie.)

ILLIMITABLE trade developments are opened up by the official recognition by Great Britain of the Soviet Government of Russia. No one here takes the slightest interest in the political aspects of this first dramatic gesture of the Foreign policy of the Labor Government, but public imagination is stirred as nothing has stirred it since the War, by the vast derelict areas of Russia for the reconstruction of which the Soviet Government are said to be ready with orders reaching the colossal figure of 250 million dollars.

Russia, in pre-war days, bought yearly more than 90 million dollars worth of British produce and manufactures. In the past three years British exports have been gradually reviving, but last year they barely reached 30 million dollars. British business men who have visited Russia recently declare that Russia is ready with orders for coal, machinery, textiles, ships, and other manufactures to the extent of from 200 million to 250 million dollars.

* * *

The first market to respond to the requirements of Russia has been cotton. During the week over 25,000 bales of cotton, aggregating about five million dollars, have been sold in Liverpool on Russian account, more business is pending, and there is tangible evidence that Russia is in the market for big lines.

In the machinery market there has been a constant stream of enquiries, particularly for agricultural machinery. M. Rakovsky, the Russian Charge d'Affaires in London, has intimated that the policy of the Soviet Government is to concentrate on a revival of agriculture, and to pay for her imports by a vastly increased export of agricultural produce. Agriculture in Russia has suffered so badly from the stagnation following the excesses of the revolution that export on a pre-war scale is out of the question for at least five years, but there are already expectations of a heavy increase in the export to Great Britain of wheat and flax. Russia's hopes in the direction of a big wheat export are revealed in heavy orders in Dundee for jute bags. An increased export of flax will mean an instant revival of the linen trade of the East of Scotland and in the North of Ireland. Linen prices are almost prohibitive and though Russia's exports cannot materially affect the situation for many months to come, the prospect of a big supply of raw material will at least maintain optimism and prevent the closing down of factories.

Another market which is keenly alive to the possibilities of the situation is the transportation industry. One of the most difficult problems of reorganization which Russia has to face is that of internal transport. Thousands of miles of railway are practically derelict. The rolling stock, engines, waggons and carriages of the Russian Railways, through lack of attention and repair, are little better than scrap metal. Millions will have to be spent on the reconditioning and refitting of the railways. The demand for automobiles particularly for trade transportation purposes will, it is anticipated, give a great fillip to the motor trade. "In fact," said Mr. Godfrey Cheeseman, Secretary of the National Union of Manufacturers of Great Britain, "our members are being inundated with enquiries for every article, required for the development of a great state, manufactured in Great Britain."

All this optimism in industrial and trading circles is, however, tempered by a cautious emphasis on the importance of an adequate recognition by the Soviet authorities of Russian obligations to British creditors.

* * *

R. R. Tweed, who is managing director of the Baku Consolidated Oilfields Limited, and chairman of the Association of British Creditors, in an interview, states:—"We have worked to get recognition only on condition that the properties which were confiscated were restored or compensated for. There is one class for whom we are very anxious something should be done. There are in this country about eighty men and twenty women who, a few years ago, were wealthy business people in Russia. They were thrown into prison, lost everything they had, and are now back home in such a destitute condition that some of them are dependent upon Poor Law relief. Although the claims against Russia are very large on paper, a great proportion consists of properties and factories in Russia. When they are restored, I should say at least 75 per cent of the claims disappear at once. We are, however, convinced that if the Russian Government adheres to the principle of confiscating the private property of foreign citizens, without compensation, it will get no assistance from the bankers in this country."

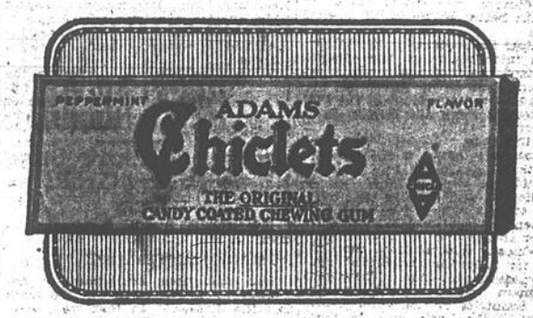

"The step which has been taken by the Government, while perhaps good in itself, can have no immediate effect," the Secretary of the Anglo-Russian Cotton Factories said. "Until Russia chooses to recognise private property, by some sort of compromise or other, she certainly will not get any credit from this side."

Cecil Talbot of the Russian Society of British Creditors is equally emphatic. He says "We wish to see credits opened to Russia, but at the same time no sensible man will keep on putting money into a hole which always swallows it up."

* * *

Interest now centres in the proposed Conference in London at which the Russian representatives will be asked to outline their suggestions for meeting the existing debts, the recognition of property, and other outstanding problems. The Conference is expected to meet almost immediately.

That the Soviet Government is fully alive to the necessity for re-establishing its credit is evidenced in an important statement by M. Rakovsky, the Soviet representative in London. He says:—"We regard the recognition of the Soviet Government by Britain as the most important factor in the relations between the two countries. Until now we have not been able to deal with trade matters on a regular basis, but, with official recognition, Russia will be able to develop both her import and export trade, particularly in timber, oil and flax, to the utmost of her capacity. We are at present drawing up plans extending over the next three or four years, for the reconstruction of our trade, and this, of course will mean buying from England all sorts of equipment for our industries."

SHOULD COMBINE MEDICAL SYSTEMS

President of Rockefeller Foundation Makes Suggestion at McGill Dinner

SPREAD OF DISEASE

Sir A. Currie Says Doctors Have to Shoulder Too Many Burdens

With words of praise for what McGill had accomplished and was accomplishing for the world of medical science George E. Vincent, A.B., Ph.D., LL.D., president of the Rockefeller Foundation, addressing the undergraduates of the McGill Medical Faculty at their 42nd annual banquet on Saturday night, stated that the University had adopted the teaching of the British medical system, under which doctors were better able to grasp the better points in all medical systems.

Principal Sir Arthur Currie, following his introduction of the speaker emphasized the fact that all great campaigns against disease among nations had been made by medical men, originated by them and for the most part carried out by them in spite of the indifference of the state. "Our governments, municipal, provincial and national, leave too much of the responsibilities in the matter of this public health on the shoulders of the doctor, and they do not always give these men the facilities which they require for their work" he said.

Mr. Vincent congratulated the University for following the British system of medical education. They were three main systems used in the various countries of the world today, the British, the Latin and the German. While it was his pleasure to note that McGill had taken the first as her standard, he hoped he would soon be able to congratulate her upon embracing all three systems.

His work in the Foundation had led him into the medical halls of over 400 universities in 74 countries of the world. Therefore he felt that he could speak with authority upon "the subject of an universal medical code, combining the three great systems, British, German and Latin."

Explaining the systems he proceeded to show the merits of each. The British methods was used in the Universities of London, and Edinburgh, Canadian Universities and the great majority of colleges in New Zealand, Australia, Singapore, Egypt, India and South Africa. The Latin Method had its seat of learning in Paris. It was adopted almost exclusively in Spain, Portugal, and Italy and had spread to Indo-China, Algeria and Syria, then across to Central and South America and Mexico. Japan had been influenced by the German Method; so with Central Europe, the Scandinavian Peninsula, the Balkan States, and some universities in Russia.

At the present time the United States and parts of the Dominion had blended the three systems.

"We must never lose sight of the fact that what Oxford and Cambridge have done in the development of the British method is one of the things of which modern English medicine is proud."

This was a system which had emphasized fundamental training.

LATIN METHOD

With regard to the Latin method, Pasteur had shown himself an apt pupil of that school. Likewise, along with the grand masters of the British school this noted figure had filled the world with admiration. His insight, resourcefulness, and vivid imagination had gone even so far as to influence the teaching of medicine and private and hospital practise everywhere. But the aim of France had been to turn out of her halls of learning great specialists. The fault lay in that her universities many were sacrificed for the great specialization of the few.

The speaker stated that in the University of Paris, with over 2,000 students, there were but seven internships. In some parts of the United States, however, the fault was just as great in the other direction where keen students were retarded too much by the great distribution of attention to the mass.

The speaker then proceeded to deal with the German system. It had developed the clinic and institute research into a sort of powerful machine, "the most powerful that the world has ever seen." Much effort and meticulous work had so systematized the research organization that it was conceded the finest in the profession. Medical men of all nations have gone to the German universities for the sole purpose of acquiring the knowledge and training of this research."

Realizing the virtues of all these methods it stood to reason that an universal method—"one school with all methods combined"—would be the logical scheme for universities on the North American continent, later to be adopted by the universities of the world.

In conclusion, he said that this ideal bore an international aspect which would cause medical colleges to assume the name of international institutions rather than national schools.

Sir Arthur Currie proposing the toast to "Our Guest," rendered tribute to the president of the Rockefeller Foundation as one who, in the highest official capacity, represented ably an institution doing its utmost to conserve human life and to prevent disease, "doing the very work that Governments should now be doing. These great campaigns against disease have all been originated and led to successful fruition by the medical man."

PUBLIC INDIFFERENCE.

Had the public ever found it necessary to take its share in the work to stifle disease? In that way, governments had well represented the people. These have done little or nothing towards that end. The indifference of the public had been appalling. Perhaps it was ignorance. Perhaps it was indifference. Had not the war shown the large proportion of needlessly unfit men? Couldn't the public remember that? Were governments, municipal, provincial and national to leave the onus of this unnecessary burden still upon the shoulders of the medical men? Now was the time for action. Disease could not be allowed to spread in its appalling way.

"The power to conserve life, so we have been told," he said, "is used to greater advantage and with more success than the power to destroy it on the fields of battle. The microscope was certainly mightier than the sword."

The toast to "The Faculty of Medicine" was seconded by Dean Dr. Charles F. Martin, after proposal by C. J. Tidmarsh, M.A., Med. '24.

Dean Martin assured the president of the Foundation that the department at McGill for Experimental Medicine was in the offing. Connections were being formed more closely with other universities and the hospitals, the advantages of the British, Latin and German systems were to be grasped by McGill.

Other speakers were Dr. E. W. Archibald, who proposed the toast to "The Graduating Class," seconded by H. C. Alward, president of that class; W. F. Emmons, M.Sc., Med. '24, proposed the toast to "The Sister Universities." This was replied to by Jean Coupal on behalf of the University of Montreal (which he represented), and the Universities of Toronto and Queen's.

It was announced by the chairman, J. C. Simpson, that E. W. Beatty, K.C., Chancellor of the University, was unable to attend. Along with the speakers at the head table sat Dr. L. de L. Harwood, Dean of the Faculty of Medicine, University of Montreal.

HISTORY OF HOSPITAL.

Dr. F. J. Shepherd will speak on "The Romance and History of the Montreal General Hospital" at 4:45 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in St. George's Church hall, 17 Stanley street under the auspices of the women's organizations of St. George's church.

SOCIAL AGENCES ANNUAL MEETING

General Sir Arthur Currie will address the annual meeting of the Financial Federation of Social Agencies in the auditorium of the Central Y.M.C.A. on Drummond street at five o'clock this afternoon. E. W. Beatty will preside at the meeting.

Negotiations are taking place with three new agencies in regard to participation in the 1925 campaign. J. Howard, T. F. Falk, executive secretary of the Council of Social Agencies, stated on Saturday. There are other agencies who do not wish to enter Federation just yet. No pressure will be brought to bear on these, said Mr. Falk, but it is hoped that all agencies outside the Federation will soon enter and combine their efforts, instead of continuing the arduous task of financial competition.

Delegates of the Social Agencies as well as all those who subscribed towards the annual drive are invited to the meeting today.

J. E. CHINIC FUNERAL.

The funeral of J. E. Chinic took place on Saturday morning from his late residence on Hutchison street, to Notre Dame church, and was largely attended. Instrument Illustrated
Victrola No. 100
$200.00

"I'm so glad it's a real Victrola"

"I am so glad you gave me a real Victrola, for in my mind no other instrument can compare with it."

"I have always thought of the Victrola as something human—a chum, a living individuality."

"Why John, now our entertainment can match our mood! Caruso, McCormack, Galli-Curci, if we like—then if we feel 'dancy' just think of having Paul Whiteman's famous orchestra to play for us."

"Truly, it's going to be the "Theatre of our Home."

Such pride of ownership, such joy of possession really comes only to those who possess "His Master's Voice" Victrola, for in conjunction with "His Master's Voice" Victor Records, it is the one instrument chosen by the world's greatest artists to interpret their genius.

It is an indispensable member of the household, an entertainer always in good humor, always ready for a clear voiced program of Romance, Song, Opera, or the spirit of Jazz.

If those in your home are to enjoy this wonderful entertainment; if they are to be able to say "I'm so glad its a real Victrola", then you must be careful to look under the lid of the instrument you contemplate buying and see that our famous trade mark "His Master's Voice" is there. In no other way can you be sure of getting a real Victrola.

Why "HIS MASTER'S VOICE" VICTROLA dominates

There is an essential difference between Victrolas and other sound-reproducing instruments. Victrolas are built with a most complete knowledge of the art, and with a steady view of their prime function—that of reproducing the most glorious music of the world as interpreted by the greatest musicians of the world. No compromise is permitted. Victrolas do not embody freak construction in order to provide selling points.

Genuine "His Master's Voice" Victrolas from $37.50 to $615.00

MEN AND GIRLS.

They pretend they don't like our company sometimes, but are nearly always willing to accept it.

I detest the girl who carries around a vanity case, and uses it constantly in public.

A large per cent of them pretend to be vamps, and look very foolish by trying to do so.

They love to talk among themselves about the wonderful man who took them out last night.

They pretend to like the boys and men who are good sports and not jazz-hounds, but are fascinated by the sleek ones, who polish down their hair and play "Valentino."

Another word, Little Dorritt, about hunting, fishing, etc. This is where men derive the main pleasure of Life. Why not let them alone and leave us in peace? AN ANTLER.

THE GIRLS THAT ARE WANTED.

The girls that are wanted are good girls
Good from the heart to the lips:
Pure as the lily white is pure,
From its heart to its sweet tips.

The girls that are wanted are home girls
Girls that are mother's right hand,
That fathers and brothers can trust to,
And little ones understand.

Girls that are fair on the hearthstone,
And pleasant when nobody sees;
Kind and sweet to their own folk,
Ready and anxious to please.

The girls that are wanted are wise girls
That know what to do and to say;
That drive with a smile or a soft word
The wrath of the household away.

The girls that are wanted are girls of sense,
Whom fashion can never deceive;
Who can follow whatever is pretty,
And dare, what is silly, to leave.

The girls that are wanted are careful girls,
Who count what a thing will cost;
Who use with a prudent, generous hand,
But see that nothing is lost.

The girls that are wanted are girls with hearts;
They are wanted for mothers and wives;
Wanted to cradle in loving arms,
The strongest and frailest of lives.

The clever, the witty, the brilliant girl,
There are very few understand,
But, oh! for the wise loving home girls
There's a constant and steady demand.—ANON.

FRIENDSHIP.

True friendship is the manifestation of the finest quality of love. There are four kinds of love. First, the love born of admiration—a lover's love. Second, sympathy—a father's love. Third, pity—a mother's love. Fourth, reverence or regard—a friend's love.

Be a friend. Be friendly. Be worthy of a great friendship, deep, without self-interest and lasting. The test of friendship is loyalty. Be true to your friend in the hour when he needs your friendship. Stand back of him when everybody is going back on him. Then he needs you most. Do not forsake him.

Friendship has sung the sweetest songs, painted the grandest pictures, carved the noblest dreams, given birth to the holiest memories, set in motion the most powerful inspirations and has proved itself to be the greatest social force in the world.

A false friend is the most dangerous creature in the world. Beware of those whom you love but cannot respect. Pages of history record many sad examples of false friendship. Under the influence of Anne Boleyn, Henry VIII. reached the lowest point in his degradation and from which he never recovered himself. The saddest tribute to a broken friendship is recorded in the sad words of Julius Caesar in the moment of his assassination: "Et tu Brute"—"and you, too, Brutus."

Be a true friend as was Edward VII. Six thousand persons were crushed and injured, in London, in their efforts to see the Imperial coffin of the dead King. In that moment the universal commend was expressed in these words: "He never forgot an old friend." FATIS.

TO LITTLE DORRIT.

In answer to your boast, namely: "I dare some man to tell us what he knows (or think he knows) about girls? I have dared to write this article and L. D., this is not, what I think, but what I know.

1—The more money we have the more girls like us.

2—Girls become infatuated by every good-looking man they see and bore whoever is with them by exclaiming: "How cute! How wonderful and sweet he is! Wonder what his name is?"

3—Girls ask us "to call again" when you see them home from—some dance or show.

4—Girls are crazy about men like "Vaseline" and his kind. Oh Mister Brilliantine!

5—Girls (so many) ask you to give them a call, (call me up) when you are leaving them after you have just been introduced.

6—Girls smoke, swear and flirt—just to play tough and to attract your attention.

7—When a fellow is sore at them—they are awful cunning.

8—They give unnecessary encouragement to every boy, who goes out with them.

9—Young girls (from (14 to 22) generally say they won't settle down—not just yet. (Why this is only my second year going out?) They will say.

10—We like pretty girls but we are most disgusted when we see some with war paints. A boy (the real and decent sort) does not enjoy or likes to go out with girls who paint and when they see a friend with one of these scarecrows, they tell him earnestly: "Why Mac, I wouldn't touch that girl with a ten-foot-pole! ——And they mean it. I also know many boys, who like girls and they are only too proud to admit it any time. Why sure we love girls who are nice, thoughtful, generous, unselfish, and good sports and naturally pretty girls, but I would sooner have an ugly one than a pretty and thoughtless.

ONE WHO KNOWS.

NICOTINE AND MOTHERS

The little group of serious female thinkers, with whom I associate intimately, are much given to talking about your page. These sweet girls, as a matter of fact, occasionally indulge in the smoking of a famous brand of cigarettes.

Its the smoke of a nation, all right . . . for the nicotine-stained forefingers, on our sensitive little girlies, God bless 'em, are self-explanatory.

The girls of "today" will be the mothers of tomorrow . . . nay, forget that "stuff."

The unfortunate souls of "today" go blindly to their fate, without realizing it. How, in the name of the be-lov-ed disciple, can they ever be the mothers of tomorrow?

G. F. H. and ELINOR,

HENS AND EGGS.

A few days ago I was somewhat surprised to see in your columns the old quiz about hens and eggs, though put in a somewhat different form. I imagined "Curious" was out to catch "fish," presuming naturally that he is aware of the correct answer, so I let it go at that.

Imagine my astonishment in perusing your page and finding that "Curious" had succeeded in obtaining a couple of "bites"—and "beauties" at that!

"Seven Falls" informs your readers of his or her familiarity with the question, but I fear, at least as regards arithmetic, the kindergarten stage was never left behind!

"The Sphinx" treats us to an elaborate explanation of the working of the problem but has apparently not yet reached the stage where the student is taught to apply logical reasoning; still he or she laughs at the easiness of the problem!

Loath to spoil any amusement that "Curious" may yet get out of his conundrum, I may say that the correct answer is considerably less than 70 and that it contains a fraction, which, if expressed in decimals would be a recurring one.

Evidently there is a place on the map for evening schools. I only received an elementary education, but I was at least taught to think and not jump at conclusions. I would recommend computing machines to "Seven Falls" and "The Sphinx," although these instruments have been declared unnecessary for the easy job at which I am employed.

"The Sphinx" reminds me of the schoolboy who was asked by the master the following question:—"If a herring and a half cost a cent and a half, how many should you get for a dime?" After a pause the lad "gave it up," the master telling him the answer, the lad looked up with an expression which seemed to betoken satisfaction at having an excuse for his failure, and blurted out:—"Herrings, Sir, oh! I was reckoning mackerel!" 54.

FOR "WEAKLING"

I wish to give my opinion regarding the article sent in by a man who is very much to be pitied and who signs "Weakling." Really it is a pity to see the way the men are soft and easy to run. When you try to talk to them about defending their rights the only answer they ever give is "you do not know what my wife is like." Is that so? Let me tell you, it depends on the way you started your married life and I certainly wouldn't stand for it. I believe in giving as much as I receive but I wouldn't make a dog out of my husband and wouldn't have him make a dog out of me. They make me sick when I hear them say they can't go on the back yard without permission from wife or run to the corner for cigarettes. And if there is a meeting or an evening at the club, the mayor of the town has to write a special invitation and the board of censors have to approve it before the fellow can promise to be there. Don't you think it ridiculous and I have seen it done. Don't think that because you let your wife lead you by the nose that you are better liked. Far from it. We get to hate a man that is not man enough to defend his rights, much quicker than we would a real man that would see that his orders are carried out when he wants it. I do not mean the kind that breaks every chair he sits on. There is a middle to everything. I will also talk about the way some women keep their husbands broke. There are men that never have a black penny the whole year round. The fact of having money in your pocket does not mean that you have to spend it, but to me it is darn lonesome without money even if it is a dollar (with a dollar you are badly bent but not broke). There is a kind of man that can't be trusted with a nickel without getting into trouble. I do not refer to that kind. I only mean the sensible people. Don't you think it is about time men should get a fair deal? It is too bad that they did not start the right way, but I don't think it is too late to try and if you are good and firm you will have what you long for. It may cause a little cool breeze but keep your head. Don't weaken even if you have to let the wife cry a bit. That is bound to happen. It is quite natural that she will try all kinds of tricks to have things her way but remember if you give way to her little act she will be on the stage forever and if you hold good you will be glad you followed my advice. I do not mean that you should be rough. Be gentle but firm. Be strong and simply get what is due to any man that has enough brains to rule his own home. And watch the results. Your wife will then be proud of you. She will be glad she has married a real man. You will hold a bigger place in her life as her lord and master. Answer me, Weakling, when you have regained your rights. It may be a big struggle for you as you are pretty badly off but if you are a man you will see it through. Regarding the children, I think it is an awful thing for a mother to teach her children to despise their father and she will have a severe count to render to God for that. May the good Lord forgive her. And you as the father you have the first right to their love and respect and you should see that your children have at least polite words for you. I feel sorry to think how soft you are. Be staunch. She knows you are afraid of her. Prove to her you are not and she will quiet down if you keep firm. If your wife were not the boss all these troubles would not happen. Fight for your rights and I am sure if you are firm to the end you will benefit, even if your struggles are long and hard.

BOURG JOLI JANE.

Trying to Oust the Cloche

The graceful ostrich feather is depended upon to lure modern woman away from the persistent cloche.

The downward tendency in millinery is plainly demonstrated by these photographs.

Notice the heroic effort to put something picturesque, dashing, expensive, where of late we have been wearing the simple cloche.

The new movement, however, has been going on for a season or more. The millinery business isn't what it used to be. Women aren't buying as many hats, nowadays. Style authorities have visions of women actually standardising their headgear as men have.

The mere thought of such a situation has caused them many a sleepless night, and urged them to desperation. This spring they are going to make a determined effort to discredit the cloche and bring back the picture hat.

So they have unpacked the ostrich feather and brought out all the trimmings that used to delight women and ensnare men, hoping to bring about the downfall of the cloche.

And may the best hat win!

HOW IT STARTED

By JEAN NEWTON

"POKER"

Because of its tremendous popularity poker has often been called the American game. Many a wife, no doubt, waiting for the player who could not stop has anathametized the author of the game and wondered perhaps about its origin.

The fact is that it is not of American, but of English origin, being derived from Primero or prime, a favorite English game of the sixteenth century. In France during the following century primero became "ambigu" and a little later another variation called "brag" sprang up in the West of England. It is from this last form that poker in its modern form is said to be directly descended.

For the origin of its name several theories have been advanced that are the product of conjecture; and without sufficient foundation in fact to justify the reliable investigator into the past to accept them. The most intrepid searcher into fact and truth into the past must admit this to have been lost in the shuffle of gradual change by a variety of influences and the changes of time and place.

They were from the Wyoming and Mohawk valleys, where most of the men had joined Butler's rangers; and a Whig mob burnt their homes, driving women and children, utterly destitute, into the bush, and hanging old men and boys. In retaliation for this, Butler engineered the "massacres" in Wyoming that followed, while Brant and his Mohawks picked up five starving women and thirty-one children, whom they escorted to Niagara, then without population. Life and Character Reading

The undeveloped Aquarius person is sometimes a great braggart, and very tiresome in calling attention to aristocracy and pedigree. Their people are the only people, and their friends are the only ones on earth entitled to any consideration.

There are some liars found in this sign, but they are never malicious, it is only their innate desire to be better than the other fellow and to make their friends and acquaintances appear at an advantage.

Aquarius is the sign of the waterbearer, and the last sign of the Air Triplicity. The governing planet is Uranus, and the birthstone is a sapphire. The astral colors are nile-green and blue.

MOTHERS AND THEIR CHILDREN

A PLEASANT ROAD TO COOKERY.

One Mother Says:

I have installed my old chafing dish in the dining room and turned over the Sunday evening meal to my two little girls. They think this is great fun and are learning to serve father and mother with simple rarebits and creamed dishes, trying something new each time. This plan doesn't seem like cooking to them at all, for they simply could not be interested in the kitchen stove. I want them to learn how to cook, but I certainly wish to avoid making it a drudgery.

GOD'S MINUTE

He hath inclined His ear unto me, therefore will I call upon Him.—Ps. 116 : 2.

OUR FATHER, Who art in Heaven, may it be of Thy good pleasure, now in the light of a new morning, to look favorably upon Thy dependent children here kneeling as a united family of worshippers within the home which Thou hast appointed us, and to receive our humble thanksgivings for the perfect protection of Thy care, and for the refreshment of a healthful sleep granted by Thyself through the darkness of the night that is gone.

And do Thou now, we beseech Thee, ordain to us for yet another day Thy watchful providence for our guard against all sickness and bodily peril; Thy wise counsel for our guidance into every right thought and unto every fitting word; Thy sufficient grace for our defence from all temptation to wrong, as likewise for our enablement unto all fidelity in duty, and Thy atoning love to cover all our sins.

Following Thee, may our hearts be cleansed from every motive unworthy of those who bear Thy Name, and may we be led to walk in charity and helpfulness among all those who surround us, making manifest to every companion and acquaintance some forecast of Thy coming Kingdom, and dedicating our several lives to the service of Thy blessed will — through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THE LOST SONG

Lolling one day in a desk chair,
Thinking of nothing at all,
As I listened to wandering footsteps
Of people outside in the hall,
Feeling somehow that existence
Was cruelly, terribly wrong,
I suddenly got an idea
For a peach of a popular song.

It had nothing to do with bananas,
Or similar tropical fruit;
It dealt with the human emotions,
And the line at the end was a beaut;
A line that would loosen the tear drops,
And plunge even cynics in woe,
When sung by a mournful-voiced tenor
At a popular musical show.

"Now riches are mine," I reflected,
"To fame and to fortune I'll leap;
At last I'll achieve my ambition
Of making the multitudes weep.
I only need give the sad story,
The proper melodious swing."
And then, as I started to write it,
It faded as if it had wings.

Perhaps, in some future existence,
I will capture that wondrous refrain,
So richly abundant in heart-throbs,
So trite—so sublimely inane.
But I fear, when my memory functions
I'll be quite beyond reach of a pen,
And I know that some song-writing person
Will thing of it long before then!

STARVED HEARTS

By MILDRED BARBOUR

TIME BRINGS CHANGES.

Weeks dragged their weary length while Madelon still attended to the sickroom wants of Chandler. He made progress slowly and his convalescence was more trying to her than the days when he had lain in stupor, or tossed restlessly in half consciousness.

For, during his slow return to health, he developed a querulousness that was more than the mere petulance of a convalescent. His tortured nerves were craving the stimulus denied him, and he made no effort to curb his displeasure with nurse and doctor.

Through the long hot days and sultry night, Madelon remained loyally at hand to minister to his slightest need. She allowed herself only two hours freedom in the garden while he slept.

Sometimes the doctor, a hale, bluff old fellow with a cynical eye but a heart of pure gold, would join her there after his daily examination of his patient and tell her interesting tales of the early days of Honolulu and the curious mystic legends that surrounded it. He had come there thirty years before to pay a visit merely. But he had eaten of the lotus, and for him there would never be any returning to the world of affairs outside the exquisite little island paradise.

Madelon grew to look forward to his visits. She felt a deep comfort in his presence. Though he never referred to Chandler's besetting sin, or the curiously lonely life she led as his wife, she could sense Dr. Stewart's sympathy. She felt in him a champion and the knowledge sustained her in her loneliest hours.

When Chandler was sufficiently mended to permit the Jap to take her place in the afternoons while he dozed, the doctor drove Madelon around the island occasionally, pointing out places of interest. She came to regard him as her only friend.

At length, Chandler was discharged as a patient. On the day of the doctor's last visit, he remained closeted with his patient for more than an hour. Madelon could hear his grave, emphatic voice through the open window which overlooked the garden where she sat amid the riot of blossoming shrubs. From an occasional audible word, she knew that he was warning Chandler against further indulgences and their consequences.

She could hear Chandler's replies, but when the doctor had finally gone, after a brief chat with her, and Chandler came out into the garden, leaning weakly upon a cane, she noted that he wore an expression of amused scorn. Apparently he had not taken the warnings to heart. Indeed, always after that, he referred to Dr. Stewart as "the old dotard."

Hardly har Chandler recovered strength before he was once again setting a hard pace for his numerous followers. The card games were resumed in the evenings; night after night, he spent partially or entirely away from home.

Madelon made no protest. She had drifted far beyond that. She spent her days and a great part of her nights in the garden, seeking to find companionship and solace in the wondrous beauties of a tropical nature. She missed the good doctor's friendly visits. He had called once or twice since Chandler had been dismissed as a patient, but the latter had received him curtly, almost coldly, and after that he didn't come again. . . . .

Again months passed and it was nearing the second year of Madelon's marriage.

By that time, she had lost all memory of an existence other than the dreary, lonely, unsatisfactory one she was leading. She could scarcely recall convent days. The early springtime of her love, the one love for Julian Barton, was only a beautiful dream which had never happened. Golden California days with Barbara were a mirage which vanished before her conscious thought could capture it.

It seemed to her that her whole life was centered on this strangely lovely tropical island against which the blue Pacific launched its ceaseless waves. She dwelt in complete isolation without one single kindred soul to lend companionship. She believed that it must always have been that way. Surely no other man than Chandler, petulant, morose, quick-tempered now, had ever figured in her life. Was it possible that she had ever danced her way through the sunlight of a living world? Was it possible that attractive young men had ever sought her favor, paid homage to her? Was it possible that other men had desired to marry her, that Chandler himself, — a vastly different Chandler — had wooed her ardently back in bygone days when life was filled with laughter?

Often she would take these questions to her room, and, sitting before her mirror, she would study her own reflection, expecting to find some terrific change registered there.

But all she saw was a lovely, fair-haired girl with flushed cheeks and lips like the velvet petals of the reddest rose. It was true that her eyes were no longer those of a girl. They had known tears; reflected heartaches. A shadow lay there, deepening their violet. Her red lips too, learned to curve to bitterness and scorn.

But these minor changes had brought a certain indefinable charm. They lent a hint of mystery, an aura of experience, to a beauty that had been hitherto untried. . . . .

On the night of her second wedding anniversary, Chandler was brought home unconscious.

Figured Silk Dress

Figured materials are expected to be fashionable this spring, and an especial vogue is predicted for both silk and woollen materials, in which the design is woven or brocaded.

Many of these fabrics are figured in their own color, others in a shade differing little from that of the background.

The dress sketched shows a figured silk with side pleats of plain stuff. The coat is brocaded wool, with plain trimmings in the same color.

REDDY AND OLD MAN COYOTE DIVIDE A DINNER.

By Thornton W. Burgess.

Half enough is better than None at all for Fox or man.
—Reddy Fox.

Reddy Fox was scared! Yes sir, Reddy was scared! He wished now that he hadn't waited to see the disappointment of Old Man Coyote when he discovered the empty pan in Farmer Brown's barnyard. Reddy had himself been so disappointed the night before when he had discovered the empty pan, and his nose told him that it had been emptied by Old Man Coyote, that he wanted to see Old Man Coyote equally disappointed. With all his cleverness he hadn't thought that Old Man Coyote might pick up his trail and try to catch him.

But this is just what Old Man Coyote had done, and now Reddy was running as only a badly scared Fox can run. A fight with Old Man Coyote was the last thing in the world that Reddy wanted.

"It is of no use for me to try to play tricks on that fellow the way I do on Bowser the Hound," thought Reddy. "He is altogether too smart to be fooled by tricks. I've got to trust to my legs to get me to my home before he can catch me."

So Reddy made straight for his home by the shortest way. He was none too soon getting there. Hardly was he inside when Old Man Coyote came panting up to the entrance. He was in a great rage. He accused Reddy of having stolen his dinner. He told Reddy of the dreadful things he would do to him the first chance he got. Finally he went away, grumbling an growling and still making dreadful threats.

All that day Reddy remained in his house. He slept a good part of the day. When he wasn't sleeping he was making plans to visit Farmer Brown's barnyard again, in the hope of finding another good meal there. "Old Man Coyote will come early tonight," said Reddy to himself. "I'll have to get there earlier than he does. He is so suspicious that I don't believe he will dare go up to Farmer Brown's until it is too dark for him to run any risk of being seen. I'll be there in time to grab that food as soon as it is put out." You see, Reddy felt very sure there would be food put out.

So the first of the Black Shadows found Reddy in his old hiding place behind Farmer Brown's barn. Patiently he waited, but all the time he was waiting he nervously watched for Old Man Coyote. The same thing happened that had happened the night before. Just before the last light in Farmer Brown's house went out Farmer Brown's Boy brought out a pan of food. Reddy waited only long enough for Farmer Brown's Boy to get back to the house. Then he ran swiftly to that pan and began to gobble that food just as fast as he could. But all the time he was gobbling it he was watching for Old Man Coyote.

Reddy had eaten just about half that dinner when he saw a dark form coming swiftly from behind the barn. He didn't wait to get another mouthful. He darted away without even looking behind him. Of course, Old Man Coyote saw him. But Old Man Coyote also saw that there was still food in that pan. He merely growled in Reddy's direction and kept on straight to that pan. He gobbled up his half of the dinner even faster than Reddy had eaten his. He stopped to polish the pan with his tongue. By the time he was through Reddy was half way home. So Reddy and Old Man Coyote divided a dinner. Neither had enough, but half a dinner was better than none.

THE HEALTHFUL LIFE

By Dr. JOHN B. HUBER

SMOKING.

Kindly give me your opinion about smoking. What good does smoking do to a man?

Answer.—I will answer your last question first. I doubt if smoking is salutary for anybody; certainly not for boys and women.

The most poisonous effects of nicotine and the other principles in tobacco are on the nervous system, as shown by vertigo, tremors, giddiness; leg-weariness; pains in various centres; words and memory blindness; all sorts of mental abberations, by reason of spinal or brain irritation, and especially such paralysis of the sympathetic system of nerves as produces cold and perspiring extremities and a clammy pallor. The powers of concentration and of sustained application are impaired. Nicotine at first powerfully increases the blood pressure and thus slows the heart; soon this slowing is followed by a rapid pulse because of the paralysis of the heart's nerve ganglia. So come palpitation; irregular and intermittent pulse; pain around the heart, oftentimes sharp and severe. This latter is called "smoker's angina." This vice of youth also tends to myocarditis, inflammation of the heart muscle. Digestion is often impaired. Much saliva is perhaps unconsciously swallowed by smokers who do not spit, and by tobacco chewers; all this causes the boy nausea, vomiting, flatulence, heartburn. The gastric secretions are diminished whilst the stomach's muscular tone is impaired.

Tobacco induces catarrh of the nose and throat, certainly in the adolescent. And no catarrh is curable in a smoker. Asthma is not rare in youthful smokers, who become markedly short winded. The weed produces by irritation, reddened, even "pink eye"—a contagious affection; or the nicotine—slowly and continuously absorbed by the mucous membranes may induce—has indeed often induced—acute or permanent blindness (amblyopia). Indeed amblyopia has come even from tobacco being applied to a hollow tooth and in a patient who took snuff for 10 days to cure a cold.

The sexual function is impaired in the tobacco-poisoned, and the sufferers are notably weak-blooded—anaemic. The most injurious way of using tobacco is the cigarette, largely because the fumes are inhaled and also because of the temptation to smoke many and incessantly.

(The treatment will follow tomorrow.)

SNEEZING.

When my husband sits in a warm room, or takes a slight cold he has violent fits of sneezing which rack him terribly.

Answer.—Sneezing is due to direct, rarely to reflex irritation of the sensory nerves of the nose. It is an early symptom of coryza, measles, whooping cough, asthma and hay fever. Doses of iodide of potash will induce it; also inhaling such vapors or irritants such as pepper, snuff powdered ipicac, solutions of zinc chloride and of other drugs. It has been attributed to gout, hysteria and other ailments. Manipulation of the external ear will sometimes provoke a sneeze. Possibly you can find in these observations the cause of your husband's affliction.

Questions of general interest will be answered in this column, space permitting; all others by mail if a properly stamped self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Dr. John B. Huber, care of this newspaper.

FAVORITE POEMS

"BILL'S SOLILOQUY."

(Requested by F. A. B.)

Sometimes, old pal, in the morning,
When the dawn is cold and gray,
And I lie in the perfume of feathers,
Thinking thoughts I dare not say;
When I think of the streets of the night before,
I smile a feeble smile,
And ask myself for the hundredth time,
Is it really worth the while?

Then I pick up the morning paper,
And read the death of some saintly man
Who never was soused in his life;
Who never said hell or damn;
Who never stayed out till the wee small hours,
Nor jollied a gay soubrette,
But preached of the evil of dancing,
Cards and cigarettes.

"Cut off in the prime of a useful life,"
The headlines glibly say;
Or "snatched by the grim old reaper
He has crossed the Great Highway."
They bury him deep, while a few friends weep,
But the world moves on with a sigh,
And the godly man is forgotten soon,
Even as you or I;

Then I say to myself: "Well, Bill, old Scout,
When you're called to take the jump,
And you've reached the place where the best is worst,
And you must bump the eternal bump,
You can smile to yourself and chuckle,
Though the path be exceedingly hot,
For while you lived you were moving some,"
Is that not an unholy thought?

When I rise and attach a cracked ice band,
To the rim of my tattered hat,
And saunter forth for a cold gin fizz
She's a great old world at that.
And so on my way rejoicing,
What's the use to complain or sigh,
Go the route, old scout, and be merry,
For tomorrow you may die.

(From Mr. B. C.)

LADY CURLERS IN CALEDONIAN CUP TOURNEY TODAY

Mrs. Riepert, Bonspiel Winner, Won Again, Also Mrs. Murdoch

THREE RIVERS WON

Quebec Rink Also—All Visiting Rinks Advancing to Big Round

With twenty-two local and outside rinks entered, the preliminary round in the Royal Caledonian Curling Trophy was played off today and right at the start very notable rinks of lady curlers were brought together. Mrs. D. J. H. Murdoch, who was runner-up in the big bonspiel last week, was seen on Montreal ice playing against Mrs. R. F. Dettmers, of Outremont. The line-up on both rinks was considerably stronger than the representation made in the bonspiel.

Mrs. Murdoch's rink was notable in this respect, Mrs. E. A. Riepert, who skipped last week, coming in at third with Mrs. C. J. Dresser, a good third, playing at second and Mrs. H. C. Clemens at lead. Mrs. Dettmers, on the other hand, had Mrs. G. K. White, president of the Ladies' Curling Association, playing third, and although the scoring was lopsided, the play was very far from being so.

Every end, practically, saw the Outremont irons smartly laid round the button and it took all the skill Mrs. Murdoch possesses to offset this fine Outremont support. She played some wonderful over-tee shots, however, and was really in the top of her form. Mrs. Dettmers had very hard luck in the 7th forcing her rear counter at the back of the two foot to leave St. Lawrence 4 instead of 1. It was a present. But Mrs. Murdoch in trying to make it 5 forced up an Outremont iron and counted only 2.

In the 10th end both Mrs. Dettmers and Mrs. White found the button, but Mrs. Murdoch followed with an iron that was exactly tee length and half locked the winning shot. It seemed impossible for Mrs. Dettmers to play up to this but she did, only to glance off a matter of inches and lie second just behind the button. She deserved to win that end. The battle progressed in this manner throughout the game which was one of the finest to watch. A big gallery of lady spectators looked on.

STRONGER RINKS.

On the other Montreal ice Mrs. J. F. Riepert of St. Andrews, who beat Mrs. Murdoch so sensationally for the big bonspiel prize, was drawn against Montreal West. Mrs. Riepert's rink was also a remodelled one, being strengthened by the placing of Mrs. Walter Smythe at third, Mrs. R. A. Eaton at second and Mrs. Millar at lead. This combination seemed to be a little too strong for Mrs. Rubenstein whose Montreal West rink put up a spirited response and always looked like scoring. The first half of this game was comparatively even in the scoring but the St. Andrews ladies were getting their irons in and covered before Montreal West could remove the guards. Mrs. Walter Smythe in the key position at third was good in this respect.

Owing to sickness in the team, Howick had to default this morning to Mrs. Bourgeois, of Three Rivers, who passes into the next round, while the Aberdeen ladies, an offshoot of the Three Rivers Club, also qualified on St. Andrew's ice by defeating Mrs. MacLean, of Lachine, by 16-11. The Aberdeen team assumed an early lead and were in front the whole way. Visitors also scored on St. Andrew's ice when Miss Sewell, of Quebec, defeated Miss Tyre, of Montreal, by 13-9, a much closer game.

The draw, this season, favors the visiting rinks, if anything, local strength being pitted against local strength today on Montreal ice, to the weakening of the city's representation in the first round, which is scheduled for tomorrow. Mrs. R. F. Dettmers, who has had none of the breaks, was put out by Mrs. Murdoch, and Mrs. Rubenstein, another strong local team, was eliminated by Mrs. J. F. Riepert, the bonspiel champion.

BIG GAMES TOMORROW.

Tomorrow Mrs. Riepert will meet Mrs. Murdoch, a chance for paying off old scores. Mrs. Bourgeois will meet Miss Sewell, and Mrs. McGill, of Huntingdon, will meet Mrs. Whitehead.

The rest of the first round is, Mrs. Stackhouse vs. Mrs. Powter, of Ste. Annes, on St. Lawrence ice; Mrs. W. J. Patterson, of Montreal West, vs. Miss Fraser, of Lachute, on Montreal ice; Miss Metcalf, of St. Lawrence, vs. Mrs. H. Drysdale, on St. Andrew's ice, Mrs. McGillivray, of Outremont, vs. Mrs. Cooper, of Lachine, on Montreal ice, and Mrs. Baptist, of Three Rivers, vs. Mrs. Pieler, of Montreal, on St. Lawrence ice.

Today's scores were:

E.C.A.H.L. HAS NEW SCHEDULE FOR GAMES

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press.)—The passing of a number of resolutions that will assure harmony between officials and clubs in the Eastern Canada Hockey League, and the adoption of a new schedule for the games remaining to be played, were the most important items of business transacted at the meeting of the League held Saturday at the Chateau Frontenac.

At the opening of the assembly a vote of confidence was tendered President Gendron on motion of C. Flanagan of Victorias, seconded by X. Marbonne of Nationals. Treasurer Lalanne furnished a verbal statement of the League's finances and will have a written report ready in a few days. Lalanne resigned as treasurer and the president was authorized to select an individual to replace him. It is very probable that Secretary Emile Dion will also act as treasurer.

The misunderstanding which appears to exist between ex-President McSweeney and the league since the reorganization of the circuit, was also discussed and it was decided to enter into communication with the former official with a view of straightening out matters.

Following is the new schedule:
Feb. 18—Sons vs. Nationals.
Feb. 18—Victorias vs. Three Rivers.
Feb. 21—Three Rivers vs. Nationals.
Feb. 23—Victorias vs. Three Rivers.
Feb. 26—Three Rivers vs. Sons.

GREYS LOSE FIRST IN MT. ROYAL LEAGUE

It was Greys' first defeat of the season. Antonians surprised their supporters by holding the strong St. Francois Xavier squad to a three goal tie. Billy Coutu handled the whistle.

GOLFING NOTES FROM NEAR AND FAR

By REDVERS MacKENZIE

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, February 18.—Joe Kirkwood, Rockwood Hall (N.Y.) professional, won the Texas open golf championship here on Saturday with a score of 279 for the 72 holes, seven strokes ahead of James Ockenden, French open champion, and George Kerrigan, of Long Beach, Cal., who were tied for second place.

Kirkwood, in finishing ahead of one of the fastest fields ever assembled in a golf tournament, played par golf and better throughout. During the four rounds of medal play he had a par 72, a 71 and 68 twice.

Ockenden, who was leading Kirkwood by two strokes at the beginning of the final thirty-six holes today, fell down in his putting and finished with a 286, as did Kerrigan. Joe Turness, youthful Elmsford (N. Y.) professional, played a consistent game today, but was unable to move above fourth place.

Bill Mehlhorn, who tied with Hagen last year and lost the title after a thrilling 18-hole play-off, finished fifth with 288. Tom Lally led the local golfers in the even with a total of 292. His round of 69 this afternoon placed him in the running. Arthur Havers, British open champion, was in a tie with Tom Lally, of San Antonio, with 292, but they were well down in the list.

Ed. Note.—Kirkwood, as winner, pockets a pure of $1,500; one of the biggest prizes in the golf world.

Plimpton, of New York, after one of the closest matches of the tournament, defeated Mrs. E. Arkwright, of Bermuda, by 2 and 1.

MONTREAL ISLAND OVERRUN WITH FOXES

The farmers around St. Laurent are bitterly complaining about the ravages made by foxes and have organized themselves into a band, under the command of that lifetime farmer and shooter Andrew Boa. Last week they shot nine foxes and obtained for their pelts $25.50 each. The curious part is that last year there was not a single fox seen in that locality, but they have to kill many more yet before they can say they have cleaned them out.

THAT ATHLETIC BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

A PARALYSIS THAT IS NOT REALLY SERIOUS.

You may suddenly discover some day that only one side of your face is working. One side has its wrinkles and is smooth and expressionless.

The eyelid droops, and the eye remains only partly closed on the affected side.

You can eat, drink and talk, but not as well as usual. When you laugh you look something like the reflection you've seen when you looked into the "trick" mirror at the summer resort or elsewhere.

Now, this isn't a pleasant thing to contemplate, because the word paralysis is naturally associated in your mind with serious conditions of the body.

It is not an uncommon condition, and is often found in men of early or middle age.

And the cause?

In the majority of cases it is due to cold or exposure, although injuries may cause it sometimes.

It varies in its intensity, and in the length of time it lasts, according to the part of the nerve affected—the seventh. The trouble is an actual inflammation of the nerve itself. Is it serious?

No! In a few weeks you are completely better and no sign left of the embarrasing condition.

And the treatment?

Your physician will start off as usual with a good cleansing of the intestine, very frequently using the old reliable calomel, followed with Epsom salts.

Heat in various forms is applied to the face, even an old fashioned mustard plaster being sometimes used. To stimulate the muscles of the face to work an electric current—faradism—is used. Later massage of the face is given daily. Exercising the muscles of the face by imitating the movements of crying, laughing and other emotions is also of help. Remember it is due to cold. Care should be taken to remain indoors for a few days to ensure an early recovery.

The match besides having the club championship at stake was also for the A. H. Grier Cup, a handsome trophy for annual competition in this event. Brown won with comparative ease from his veteran opponent.

Thirty-two rinks have been entered for the event, and the original draws stands, with but one exception, Ottawa being entered for Thetford. The Ottawa Club has entered two rinks in every competition, and as the Curlers from the Capital are among the keenest in the land, everything points to them putting up a strong fight in all matches.

Everything is ready for the opening of the bonspiel, the clubs are all decorated for the event, and the majority of the players who are going to take part in the event from out-of-town clubs are already here, members of the Ottawa, Sherbrooke, Ormstown and various Montreal clubs arriving in town yesterday, while the remainder of the outsiders are expected in this morning.

The Chateau competition starts this morning, and will be concluded tomorrow, when the Centenary will get under way. These two competitions complete the irons part of the schedule, and will be cleared up by Wednesday evening, as will the consolation competitions in both these events.

Wednesday evening will be given over for the curlers' banquet at the Chateau Frontenac, and then on Thursday morning the first of the Granites events get under way.

DEFEAT ST. LAWRENCE.

By defeating two St. Lawrence rinks on Saturday evening by a margin of twenty-two shots, the Quebec curling club captured the district medal by seventeen holes, having been five shots down when the first half of the match was played in Montreal a couple of weeks ago.

The Quebec rink skipped by E. St. Amand secured an eighteen point margin over that captained by S. W. Tench, the local rink taking eleven ends for a total of twenty-seven shots, incidentally the largest score made on Quebec ice this season against five ends for Tench with nine shots, while Thomson's Quebec rink also came out on the long end of the score in their match with the other St. Lawrence rink, skipped by W. H. Griffin, the score being 17-13 in Thomson's favor, he taking nine ends to seven for the Montrealers.

The rinks and scores were as follows:

Quebec.	St. Lawrence.
S. G. Newton	C. C. Lawson
J. J. Marnell	J. R. McGregor
E. E. Brattray	D. C. Dryadale
E. St. Amand (Skip)—27	S. W. Tench (Skip)— 9
J. R. Parr	J. E. Desacotte
H. Slater	W. J. Aikan
C. H. Handley	A. S. Findlay
J. Thomson (Skip)—17	W. H. Griffin (Skip)—13

Quebec wins round by 17.

Grand Trunk-Riverside Gun Club

Sixteen competitors shot through the three scheduled events on Saturday afternoon, in bright sunshine and a cold N.N.W. wind blowing. The glint of the sun on the barrels of the guns made the birds a bit hard to hit, but on the whole the scores were very fair, being a slight margin below last week. The percentage for Pros. was 82 per cent and for Amateurs 69.2 per cent. M. Constantineau was high gun for the afternoon, with a score of 44 out of 50 birds. F. Henrichon being second with one bird behind. Of the 16 competitors 4 were in the A class, 9 in the 30 class and 3 in the 20 class. No possibles were made during the afternoon. The winners in the class shooting were:

Class A—M. Constantineau ——44
Class B—F. Floyd 40
Amongst the visitors present were: Messrs. Van Vleet (Montreal), J. A. Claffie (Boston), and Clen. Forrestor (St. Louis, Missouri).

CHAMPIONS AND CHANCE

The Story of the World's Greatest Fight Promoter

RICKARD TELLS SUCCESS SECRET

By TEX RICKARD.

Tex Rickard.

On the morning of the great Carpentier - Dempsey fight my emotions varied like a prominent Stock pounded one minute by the bears and then by the bulls. I was never what might be called an emotional person. Believe me, though, I might have qualified that eventful morning with the weather changing every few minutes, and me with nearly a million dollars at stake.

The weather bureau of New York has no more accurate record of the occasion than my memory has to this day. Early in the morning, up to 10 o'clock, it was cloudy and breezeless. At 11 o'clock I got a big thrill. The sun peeked through. The heat was strong enough to wilt collars. Then down went the market of thrills. At noon it started to rain; not much, but enough to—well, imagine yourself in the same situation.

All this time, mind you, the crowd was trickling into Boyle's Thirty Acres. By 11 o'clock we knew it would be a sell out. At that hour the arena was nearly half filled. I began to worry about what might happen if we had a big downpour of rain. It was too late to call the fight off.

The rain lasted by a few minutes. When the place was about filled the sun came out again, went away and stayed away for good. A breeze sprang up out of the west. For me that was a million dollar breeze.

When the first preliminary went on shortly after 12:30 o'clock the weather was steady enough to bet on—but no clinch, at that.

Very few people in the United States who were not present at the battle of the century have ever seen 91,000 people in one gathering. I doubt if they ever will again for many years to come. Most of them need only to recall the population of your city and you will get an idea of what 91,000 people means. Anyway, we had that number in the huge bowl at Boyle's Thirty Acres.

FIGHT DRAWS ON WHOLE WORLD.

All of my predictions and calculations had come true.

There were men in that arena from China, Japan, South Africa, Australia, Europe and the farthermost points of South America. Just to give that 13 minutes of thrill these men had travelled thousands of miles and had spent thousands of dollars. I have yet to find a person who expressed dissatisfaction. To be in that crowd was worth it, to say nothing of the fight itself.

It was not a fight crowd, in the technical meaning of the term. They were there to witness a spectacle. I venture to say that a majority of those people never saw a big fight before. A big percentage of them had never even seen men box. There were 7,000 women in the crowd. Senators, bankers, governors and statesmen were too numerous to be pointed out. It was an odd picture, difficult to visualize by one not present.

Just try and imagine that huge bowl, or deep saucer, with turned-up edges. This nestled in the heart of a factory district. In the bottom of the bowl was a squared ring. Looking around and upward from there the huge bowl appeared marked with narrow black lines starting at the top and converging at the ring. These were the aisles and entrances. Now if you have that picture in your mind, place wooden chairs in the centre and up the sides; fill these with people and you can imagine what it looked like. A man walking around the upper edge appeared from the bottom like a fly crawling around the edge of a mill bowl. A haze of tobacco smoke, continually wafted one way and the other, seemed to blend all the faces and forms together. It actually looked like a sea—a great, restless sea.

CROW CHEERS CONTENDER.

The big moment came when Referee Ertle called Dempsey and Carpentier to the centre of the ring for final instructions. I will not bore you with the preliminaries.

Carpentier was given a tremendous ovation, even greater than that of Dempsey, the American champion. This did not ruffle Dempsey at all. He scowled and calmly set about his business.

As the gong sounded Carpentier walked straight into the champion and shot a left into his body, then went into a clinch. There was a quick flurry of fighting, neither being able to land hard. They went into a clinch again.

Suddenly there was a great roar for the Frenchman. He uppercut to Dempsey's chin with his left and jabbed a straight left to the same place. Carpentier was doing the leading. He feinted Dempsey into another clinch.

"Stop that rabbit punch!" came in a yell from the crowd.

Dempsey was socking Carpentier on the back of the neck, much in the same way he had knocked out Bill Brennan. But Referee Ertle paid no attention. Dempsey was clearly within his rights.

Finally Dempsey opened up and staggered Carpentier with a right to the head. A second punch cut the Frenchman's nose. Carpentier retaliated with a terrific smash under Dempsey's eye.

Carpentier, at the end of the round, staggered Dempsey with a right.

The first round though was Dempsey's.

It was in the second round that Carpentier made his one big spurt. Coming out of a clinch he hooked to the head, and then rocked Dempsey with a left uppercut. The Frenchman then sprang like a tiger, rushing into the champion, landing rights and lefts to the head. The great crowd was in an uproar. Little Descamps pounded the floor and jumped up and down in his excitement.

HOPE BEATEN FROM CARPENTIER.

Dempsey, proving himself a real champion, weathered this storm and from then on the fight was his. Carpentier had evidently shot his bolt.

In the next round Carpentier, though leading brilliantly, plainly got the worst of the infighting and went to his corner stooped over and obviously without hope.

During all this neither of the fighters said a word to each other. They realized that neither could understand the other. French kidding or roasting would have been lost on Dempsey, and American razzing would have been a waste on Carpentier. They kept silent. Dempsey continually scowled and kept boring in.

To begin the fourth round Carpentier lifted himself his stool with effort. Descamps stood with a towel in his hand. Some thought he was about to toss it in the ring. Carpentier, however, pulled himself together and sailed in.

Dempsey, studying his ground carefully, glided in.

"Now, go to him!" they shouted at Jack Dempsey. "You've got him!"

Dempsey, trying to get Carpentier's guard down, shot a wicked right to his heart. In a flash his left caught Carpentier on the jaw and rocked him. The Frenchman leaped in, trying his famous flying right. It was impotent. His strength had ebbed.

PROMOTERS SHARE $400,000.

"Bang!" Dempsey caught the Frenchman with a fierce right to the jaw. Down he went. Carpentier lay flat on his stomach for the count of nine. The challenger arose like a flash, but Dempsey tore after him. Before Carpentier was fairly set Dempsey chopped him on the jaw with another right and he dropped to his hands and knees. From that position the Frenchman rolled over on the floor and stretched out. As Ertle counted he struggled to arise, but his strength had gone. Carpentier was knocked out.

The battle of the century had lasted thirteen minutes. For those minutes of work Dempsey got $300,000 and Carpentier $200,000.

The gross receipts were $1,626,580. In taxes I paid $292,978.66.

A LOOKER-ON IN WASHINGTON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18. — Let us in these agitating times keep our heads cool, do our thinking straight and keep our objective steadily in sight.

Let us not be distracted by side issues. We are going to hear much about the Constitution in the next few weeks and months. There is going to be much fine splitting of hairs. It will be a time of great joy for the lawyers, and under the avalanche of words and the torrents of argument the public will forget what all the noise is about.

To prove by reason . . . That right is wrong, and wrong is right. And white is black, and black is white—is what politicians often do when it is advisable to turn the attention of the public in another direction.

Mr. Coolidge is under obligations to the Democrats of the Senate. They have helped him more than all the Senators on his side of the chamber. Let us see how this very curious situation has been brought about and how it happens that the people, talking about one thing, believe they are talking about something quite different.

The Senate adopted a resolution requesting the President to dismiss Secretary Denby because in the opinion of the Senate he was not competent. It was a foolish thing to do because the Senate was going outside of its province and trespassing upon that of the President. The Senate, however, did not direct or order or attempt to command the President; all that it did was to express its opinion about Mr. Denby; in the exact words of the resolution: "It is the sense of the United States Senate that the President of the United States immediately request the resignation of Edwin Denby as Secretary of the Navy." The Senate has a right to express an opinion; but it is on dangerous ground when it invades the executive domain.

That the Senate ought to know! Senate after Senate has played the role of the small boy who pulls the neighbor's bell on a dark night, leaves an insulting message on the doorstep and runs away; and President after President has played the part of the angry householder, colared the urchin and brought down he heavy hand where it would do ast good. The archives are full of solutions from the Senate to the hite House and of messages from he White House admonishing the nate in polite but pointed language o mind its own business. It began ith George Washington, these enounters between Senate and Presint, and it has continued ever since. Mr. Coolidge remembers his history. And he quotes Grover Cleveland.

If we are going into history let us get our history straight. It was in Cleveland's first Administration; a Democrat in the White House and a Republican majority in the Senate. The President can nominate, they said, but the Senate can confirm—or reject, and it will. So when Mr. Cleveland began to send in nominations in place of men whose commission had expired or who had been removed for gross and offensive partisanship, the Senate said: "Unless you tell us the reasons why you have removed these men and created a vacancy we will not confirm your nominees."

They attempted to make their threat good. "They sought," so the late President tells us in his history, "to revive against him the principles of the Tenure of Office Act, which had been passed to thwart Mr. Johnson but suffered to lie forgotten so long as Republicans were in the Presidency. Mr. Cleveland brought the question to an issue. In his message of March 1, 1886, one of the most memorable of his state papers and famous for the phrase "innocuous desuetude," he told the Senate: "I am also led unequivocally to dispute the right of the Senate by the aid of any documents whatever, or in any way, save through the judicial process of trial on impeachment, to review or reverse the acts of the Executive in the suspension, during the recess of the Senate, of Federal officials. I believe the power to remove or suspend such officials is vested in the President alone by the Constitution."

Now this, it will be seen, is very different from Senate expressing its opinion as to the fitness of a man to be a member of the Cabinet. Mr. Cleveland called the attention of the Senate to the fact that the Constitution "in express terms provides that 'the executive power shall be vested in a President of the United States of America,'" who has the sole power of appointment; but the Senate, by refusing to confirm nomination, in effect usurped the appointive power of the Executive by maintaining in place men who held office until their successors qualified. And to a partisan Senate animated solely by partisan motives, which had its Lodges and Johnsons then as it has to-day, Grover Cleveland administered this stinging rebuke:

"The pledges I have made were made to the people and to them I am responsible for the manner in which they have been redeemed. I am not responsible to the Senate and I am unwilling to submit my actions and official conduct to them for judgment."

The effort will be made to convince the public that Mr. Coolidge is standing up in defence of the Constitution against the encroachments of the Senate and that "a vital principle of our Government," to quote Mr. Coolidge's message, is at stake. It is quite proper that Mr. Coolidge should defend the Executive against invasion by the Legislature, but that should not cause the public to become so engrossed and "cavil on the ninth part of a hair" in learned disquisition over the subtleties of the Constitution, and thereby forget a greater question and a principle that is really vital.

"That's good," remarked a cynical Republican Senator after he had read the President's statement, "now they'll be disputing about the Constitution and forget oil." A not unlikely result. The public is never able to get really excited over more than one subject at a time. The Senate, as we know, is not an over-popular body, no matter how much individual members may be esteemed, and if the impression can be created that the President has put the Senate in its place and is standing up for the rights of the people against the Senate, it is easily to be seen in which direction sympathy will flow. The Denby resolution, whether justified or improper, has no bearing upon the leases made by Mr. Fall and the circumstances under which they were made. That is the really vital thing.

As we remarked once before, this is a day when red herrings are drawn across the trail.

ASK FOR HIGHEST U.S. GRAIN TARIFF

Final Arguments on—Report in Two Weeks

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press).—The tariff commission is hearing final arguments today with respect to the application for higher duties on wheat. As the commission's investigation into production costs has been completed, the concensus of opinion here last night was that a report to the President may be expected within two weeks.

The commission's figures generally have been interpreted as indicating that a rate higher than the present 30 cents a bushel would be justified in its findings but, following custom, the report to the President will carry no recommendations. Under the flexible provisions of the tariff Act he may increase or decrease the rate 50 per cent from that fixed by law. The application before the commission filed by the wheat council of the United States is for an increase of the maximum allowed.

MOTHERS' GRANT TO HUSBANDS ALSO

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 18.—(Canadian Press).—Members of the Women's Educational Federation of Ontario at the quarterly meeting here Saturday went on record as favoring an amendment to the Mother's Allowance Act, whereby an incapacitated husband would be entitled to assistance, and also adopted a resolution favoring the provision of food to undernourished children in the schools, particularly pupils of the unemployed. It was also recommended the Federal Government place strict supervision over all Barnardo children brought into this country and that the co-operation of the Provincial Government in this respect be secured.

So far Mr. Armour has not made his report to Attorney General Nickle, nor has there been any official communication on the subject with Queen's Park.

THRILLING RESCUE OF GIRL MILE HIGH

Parachute Caught Below 'Plane—Pilot Steps from Second Machine

HOUSTON, Texas, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press) — Rosalie Gordon, Houston chorus girl, was saved from death yesterday when an attempted parachute leap from an airplane failed. The drop was to have been one of a series of aerial acrobatics staged before 5,000 spectators at Ellington flying field. In jumping, Miss Gordon's parachute became entangled in the plane and held her suspended some 20 feet below it, more than a mile from the earth. Diavalo, acrobatic airman, who was in the plane, let himself down to the landing gear but was unable to pull her up.

Stepping from a second plane to the one from which Miss Gordon was suspended, Freddie Loon, Houston aviator, relieved the pilot of the Gordon plane, who then assisted Diavalo in pulling Miss Gordon back to the landing gear. The plane landed safely.

Miss Gordon was formerly an aerial stunt performer.

"It looks like a storm; you had better stay with us for dinner."

"Oh, thanks, but I don't think it's bad enough for that."

The Joy of Life

Every hour you are not fit and well is a wasted hour.

Why waste the hours?

Why not feel the sheer joy of living every day — and every hour?

True—you cannot feel this way if you suffer from depression, headaches, constipation, or disordered liver; any of which may arise from excess of uric acid, which is the cause of more trouble than many people suspect, but uric acid has a master—Kruschen Salts. Take Kruschen Salts and there will be more hours of good health.

Besides cleansing the body of impurities gently, surely, and painlessly, they possess a wonderful power of giving new life and vitality to the whole system.

In weather when it is difficult to get enough exercise and fresh air without the risk of taking a chill, you need greater vital force and energy to throw off the sluggishness and indisposition that a sedentary life causes.

Take a pinch of Kruschen Salts in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea for a few mornings. Taken this way Kruschen Salts are tasteless. But note the difference. Worries disappear, indifference vanishes, and depression gives way to a feeling of confident optimism. Health's everything!

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The dose to cover a 10 cent piece every morning is found in practice just the right amount for a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains or rheumatism and gout, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is that given on the label of the bottle, viz., half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast.

ECONOMY. — A 75c bottle of Kruschen Salts lasts nearly six months. Health and good spirits for half a cent a day. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start to-morrow.

Gorman's Great Feat—Canadiens' Chances—First Radiograms of Local Bouts

ODIE CLEGHORN SAVED CANADIENS FROM SURE DEFEAT

CANADIENS 2
HAMILTON 1

As an example of woeful waste of energy, of fast reckless long-distance skating, of playing for the man instead of the puck, and trying impossible long-distance shots and lifts, last Saturday's match between the Hamilton Tigers and the Canadiens, at the Mount Royal Arena, was a pippin.

Also it showed what two excellent defences could do, in the way of keeping forwards out of scoring distance, and keeping out freak shots, by lightning quick movements, and freak contortions.

As a skating circus the event was a huge success. How the skaters managed to keep up the pace till the very end is a conundrum.

True it slackened after the two goals had been scored in the second period, but in the third they were at it just as fast as ever, and the black and gold of the Tigers was still getting mixed up in kaleidoscopic confusion with the red and blue of the Canadiens, when Odie Cleghorn, brushing the Flying Frenchmen and leaping Jungle Terrors calmly out of his path, brought the puck up within shooting distance of Forbes for Boucher, who had sensed his intention and kept a little ahead of him near the boards to shoot it in.

TOO LITTLE HEAD WORK.

It was good head work, too little of which has been displayed of late by the Canadien youngsters.

There were few of the Canadien supporters when the sides changed for the first over-time period, who did not fear that the fat was in the fire as far as the home team was concerned.

But when Oddie Cleghorn appeared they took a fresh grip upon themselves.

They have come to look upon him as a pinch-shooter, a man to come to the rescue when the youngsters have tangled things up so that they have lost head and tail of the game. His more or less deliberate stick-handling puzzles the opposition and gives his young fellow-players a chance to adjust themselves and start afresh. There is no doubt that the Canadien players have the necessary hockey brain, but they do not use it. In that respect the Tigers were far better on Saturday.

The perverse spirit of individual effort possessed Canadiens again, and mingled with it seemed to be a spirit of making it as uncomfortable as possible for the visitors, as if they were trying to even up certain discomforts to which they had been subjected while in Mr. Thompson's rink in the Ambitious City the Wednesday before.

NOT ONE RULED OFF.

There wasn't a man ruled off during the long seventy-three minutes the match lasted, and it speaks well for the influence Art Ross as referee has obtained, that the horse-play in which both teams indulged did not degenerate into anything serious. As it was he could be seen handing out a warning here and there apparently where it would do the most good.

Joliatt and Morenz were the worst offenders on the Canadien side, and kept balting the Tigers constantly.

Boucher did a little of it, and as the result was once hit in the head with a stick, but not hard enough to prevent him from playing. Once "Red" Green threw him completely over his shoulder, when the two happened to come together.

The Tigers naturally returned the various sly digs with stick-ends, and other pleasantries, and while, as intimated, no serious damage was done, the play suffered from their antics, and the forwards did not seem to care where they shot. Morenz gave a particularly glaring example of this state of mind when he made a pass in the first overtime period to a Tiger player that might have cost Canadiens the match.

When it really became so bad that Leo Dandurand himself feared they were throwing away the opportunity of a lifetime, he sent in Odie Cleghorn with the old-time war order to "mop her up," and with the assistance of Boucher, who seemed to be one of the few that had a glimmer of hockey intelligence left, he did so, and put an end to a mighty anxious thirteen minutes for Canadien supporters.

The goal-keepers, Forbes and Vezina, both were magnificent, and if the latter displays as good form as he did Saturday on Wednesday next, it ought to come close to spoiling Ottawa's chances of having some other team than Canadiens as opponents for the play-off.

This, with a little combination, for they should remember that it was combination that scored the two goals, one for each side, inside of two minutes in the second period Saturday, should go far to ensure victory.

DETAILS OF THE PLAY

(By Redvers Mackenzie).

S. Cleghorn rushed. Prodgers returned to the other end. Red Green made a nice attempt. Morens tested Forbes on Joliat's pass. Red Green dazzled the crowd with his nifty stick handling. The pace was terrific. Prodgers hit the post on a hard drive. Canadiens had plenty of speed, Forbes saving shots from Joliat and W. Boucher. Burch went off, there was something wrong with his skate. Denneny replaced him. Red Green charged again but the Canadien defence was impregnable. Prodgers stopped S. Cleghorn's rush and a minute later Forbes skated out ten feet to break up another rush by the Canadien captain. Red Green gave Denneny a nice pass after a fine rush but Corbett shot wide. Forbes, greatly excited, broke up a scrimmage in front of his stringy domain. Denneny got through the defence but he missed an open net when he partially lost his balance. Roach and Burch replaced Red Green and Denneny. Forbes almost stopped W. Boucher's shot with his face as he leaped in the air, the rubber hit him on the shoulder. Burch drove three shots at Vezina. Roach rushed but was halted by Vezina. Forbes took a hot one from Morenz. Denneny and Red Green came on for Roach and Shorty Green. S. Cleghorn broke away on a mad dash but the Hamilton defence stopped him. Denney laid several long shots on Vezina's pads. Red Green shot when he should have passed to Burch, who was clear. Denneny's shot crashed against the boards after a fast dash down the wing. Forbes saved Joliat's shot and just cleared in time as Morens flashed in, fell over Prodgers' foot and slid into the net.

SECOND PERIOD.

Joliat got the first shot. S. Green laid a hard one on Vezina's pads and his brother just missed the rebound. Burch skated around the defence but Vezina stayed to make a beautiful save. S. Cleghorn, Morens and Joliat broke away, the latter carried the puck through the defence, Forbes stopped the shot but Morens whipped the rebound into the strings and Canadiens were ahead. It lasted only twenty seconds, for Burch secured from the faceoff, faked a pass and shot right in to beat Forbes with a high shot into the corner. The pace grew hotter and for a few minutes Burch gave one of the prettiest exhibitions we have ever seen, his hook check broke up Canadien rushes and he gave Vezina some anxious moments. Joliat and Randall were warned for tearing into each other a little too strenuously. Shorty Green drove two hot ones at Vezina, the latter made a sensational stop when Red got the rebound from the second shot. Spring replaced Prodgers and Denneny came on for Burch. Denneny tested Vezina. Forbes stopped two from Joliat and Morenz. Morenz's shot dropped through Forbes' legs but didn't quite cross the line, the little fellow cleared in the resultant scrimmage after a lot of scrambling around on his hands and knees. Roach for Denneny. Roach almost scored when the puck caromed from Vezina's foot and just missed going in the corner. Forbes made a clever stop of Joliat's shot. Prodgers and Burch replaced the Green brothers. O. Cleghorn for Morenz. Prodgers' shot ended with Vezina.

THIRD PERIOD.

Morenz intercepted Shorty Green's pass and gave Forbes an anxious moment. Coutu rushed well. W. Boucher was accidentally hooked in the eye by S. Green; he was able to continue. Coutu almost beat Forbes on Joliat's pass in front. Red Green's brilliant rush ended when he collided with S. Cleghorn. Morenz missed the net on Coutu's pass. Red Green put on another pretty rush. S. Cleghorn dashed down and the puck bounced high in the air as he was checked; Forbes skated out twenty feet and batted the rubber down the ice while it was in the air. Morenz fell into the net after three unsuccessful attempts to beat Forbes. Randall was in close but Coutu saved the situation. Prodgers and Denneny for S. Green and Burch; Bell replaced Joliat. Roach came on for Red Green. Denneny missed the net by an inch on Prodgers' neat pass. The players stepped into each other and were getting pretty tired from the relentless pace they were cutting out. Morenz had a drink while the crowd yelled. Forbes made a good stop and fast clear of W. Boucher's shot. The Green brothers and Burch replaced Denneny Roach and Prodgers. Joliat took Bell's place just before the 60 minute gong rang.

OVERTIME.

S. Green tested Vezina, Joliat returned and was blocked at the defence. Forbes saved a long drive from W. Boucher's stick. The teams laid back for a breathing spell. Forbes made a wonderful save when S. Cleghorn and W. Boucher were in on top of him. Burch gave Vezina a hot one to handle. The players again started a little bumping match, and they did it with considerable vigor, in spite of their weary condition. Prodgers came on for S. Green and O. Cleghorn replaced Joliat. Vezina skated out to save a sure goal after Burch was through the local defence. Denneny replaced Burch. M. Forbes saved from Morenz as the teams changed over for the second overtime period.

The players were worn out, and things moved slowly for a moment or two. Morenz broke away, but Forbes stopped his shot. O. Cleghorn secured at centre, he wormed his way through, and pushed the puck between Randall's feet as Forbes came out, the rubber bounced from Forbes' stick into the air, and hit Billy Boucher on the chest as he followed in, the disc dropped at Billy's feet, and he poked it into the cage, and the game was over amid a tremendous cheer from the customers.

NOTES OF THE GAME.

Art Ross appeared in a spotless white sweater, and he looked cute. It did not mar his work any.

* * *

Senator Wilson, Australian delegate to the Imperial Conference, attended the match, and visited the Canadien dressing room to congratulate the boys on their skill.

* * *

No penalties during 73 minutes of strenuous play. Chalk up a new record for the N.H.L.

* * *

That Tiger outfit deserves to be a little better than last in the League standing, and from present indications they will be the ones to beat next season. Forbes gave a great display. Their defence was tight. Red Green and Burch were fine on the line, and were ably assisted by Roach, Prodgers, Shorty Green and Denneny.

* * *

The local's original sextette was intact for the first time on local ice since January 7th. It was their second local overtime victory of the season, they having beaten Ottawa in an extra period game on January 16th.

* * *

Probably the feature of the game was Burch's goal, scored just twenty seconds after Morenz had batted in the first one for Canadiens. Burch is the most improved man in the league over last season.

* * *

There were no serious casualties, though Billy Boucher was accidentally cut on the eye by Shorty Green, Sprague Cleghorn was cut across the nose by Prodgers' skate and Billy Coutu was hit by th puck on the very spot where his wrist was broken. His protector saved him from another long lay off, though there was a black and blue mark as a souvenir.

Broadcast Of Johnson Bout Friday Night

For the first time in Montreal a prize fight will be broadcast by radio next Friday night.

The Jack Johnson-Homer Smith encounter, set for the St. Denis Theatre Friday evening next, is the first battle since the radio became a medium for such work that has been considered of sufficient importance to broadcast. But as there is such interest in the affair both all over Canada and the United States, the Marconi Co. has agreed to send the detailed account of the night's feature, with the results of other bouts through the air. Arrangement has been made with Promoter Tom Duggan in this regard.

COMPLETE CARD

Announcement was made today of the complete card of bouts arranged for that night. There will be thirty-eight rounds of boxing, two ten-round battles and three sixes. Solly Green, local lightweight, will meet Kid Dube, of Lewiston, Me., in the semi wind-up, while in the other three bouts card, Silas Green, colored heavyweight, will meet Elzear Rioux, French-Canadian giant; Jack Williams will clash with George Gibbons, while Johnny Morris and Young Brady will mix things as well.

There have been several changes in the bill to date, but it has finally been sanctioned and now everything is in readiness for the evening's entertainment.

Promoter Duggan wants it understood that the top price for seats allowed by the Boxing Commission is only for those on the stage. The remainder of the house will be in more or less the same ratio as on ordinary occasions.

BIG CROWD ATTENDS C.P.R. HOCKEY GAMES

Before the largest crowd of the season the C.P.R. league staged four games on Saturday night at the Victoria rink.

Purchasing-Dining Car continued their winning streak when they defeated the Accounting sextette in the opening game. The first period was fast and scoreless. It was in the second period that all the scoring was done. Purchasing got the first two, but Accounting came back strong and tied it up, it looked as if it would be a drawn game, both teams set a fast pace, first one and then the other having the edge in play. Latour scored the winning goal on an individual rush.

Terminals trounced Traffic in the second event. The poor showing of the latter was due to the loss of three men.

In the third game Operating defeated Dominion Express 2 to 1. The winners took to be the team to beat for the second half. Shortly after the start of the second period a small fight took place between Hogan and Colquhoun, both were banished for the remainder of the game.

The C.P.R. team of Quebec gave a most finished performance in the final event, when they defeated the Montreal team 5 to 1. The local boys held their own in the first session, but the pace told on them, and in the second period Quebec scored four. Next week-end Montreal will play Quebec in the latter city, and hope to give a better account of themselves.

LONDON, Feb. 18.—D. M. Johnson, quarter-mile intercollegiate champion of Canada, who is now attending Oxford University as a Rhodes Scholar from McGill University, Montreal, Saturday won the quarter-mile sprint in the intercollegiate sports between Oxford and Cambridge universities, in 50 3-5 seconds. This is one-fifth second under Johnson's previous record.

Olympic Rule Re Weights at Que. Tourney

Boxers who compete in the Province of Quebec Amateur Boxing championships, which will be held at the Monument National next Monday and Thursday evenings, February 25 and 28, will have to make the weight for their bouts in the different classes on both nights. This is stipulated in the conditions announced on the entry blanks which have been sent out to the amateur athletic organizations in the province.

The reason for this rule being made this year is that Quebec amateurs have a chance to get through the Olympic trials and make the team which will go to Paris for the games there this summer. If they do this they will have to, according to the Olympic rules, make the weight before every day's events, and this will give them a chance to get used to the procedure.

On account of the added importance of this year's provincial tournament, as it means that the winners will fight in the Olympic trials, to be held in Toronto in May, a huge entry list is expected, and preparations are being made on a large scale by the officers of the Quebec branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, under whose auspices the tournament is being run.

Secretary E. H. Bourdon of the Quebec branch, wants it understood that any unattached boxer who intends entering must first of all apply to the A.A.U. through him for an amateur card.

Club secretaries will receive all other entries in their different organizations after they have made sure that amateur's cards are obtained by all.

CANADIENS MUST BEAT OTTAWA HERE WEDNESDAY NIGHT

What are Canadiens' chances for the play-off in the National Hockey League?

This is the question followers of professional hockey are asking themselves today. The answer can be given in a few words.

There are five more league games for all teams. Three of these, the Canadiens have at home. If they win these three games they cannot do worse than tie with St. Patricks of Toronto, who are tied with them in second place at the present time. Two of the five games are with Ottawa. These will be the most difficult to grab off. Canadiens, however, believe they can beat the Senators here Wednesday. On Saturday they will be up against it, meeting Ottawa at the Capital. The next two games Canadiens play with Toronto, at home and abroad. They are confident they can take both of these, and so they should.

HAMILTON MAY HELP

As a matter of fact, while Canadiens are playing with Ottawa, Hamilton ought to be taking the measure of the Irish, on their present form. The Tigers may help the Canucks get into second place, as if they beat St. Pats twice while Canadiens divide with Ottawa, the locals will have second place to themselves to start the easiest part of their last lap. The last game the Canadiens participate in this season will be against Hamilton here on March 5. This game is the one transferred from the start of the season.

Today the Montreal team was practising at the Mount Royal Arena for the important struggle with the Senators on Wednesday night here.

THE "CLOSE-UP"

WOULDN'T THEY BE SORRY

You can never tell in this sport game.

Less than a year ago, Gorman, the Canadian, who won the United States Amateur Championship, found it difficult to get work in his home town and they came near losing him across the line, by which the United States would this year have retained the National Championship within its borders.

COULD HAVE GONE FASTER

In discussing Gorman's capture of the United States amateur skating title, Alderman Louis Rubenstein who, as president of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, saw the races at Saranac Lake, says that if he had been pushed Gorman, the Canadian, no doubt could have made better time.

He would probably have won the three mile race also if he had not fallen.

It was a fine meet Mr. Rubenstein said and Canada might well be proud of its outcome.

James A. Taylor, former president of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, and W. S. Waldon, Collector of the Port of Montreal, both also among the all-round Canadian sportsmen, best known in the United States, acted as officials.

TO BROADCAST ENTHUSIAST'S BOUTS

It seems but fit that the first Montreal boxing bouts to be broadcast by radio should be some promoted by Tom Duggan, president of the Mount Royal Race Track, managing director of the Mount Royal Arena, boxing impressario and originator of the embryo International Professional Hockey League.

Mr. Duggan is a dyed-in-the-wool radio fan; a pioneer in Montreal of receiving and broadcasting radio messages by voice and music, and has spent a small fortune in apparatus.

He, it was who first got Jack Dempsey to broadcast a message from Montreal when the latter appeared at the Mount Royal Arena in the summer of 1922.

HARD ON THE SOCCER PEOPLE

The decision of the McGill authorities to have the McGill Stadium re-sodded this summer, will come as a particularly hard and unexpected blow to the soccer people, who have been able in the past to play their games there.

SARANAC LAKE, N.Y., Feb. 18.—Skating his way to victory in the quarter-mile event in which he bettered his own world's record and finishing in second place in a whirlwind three-mile contest, Charles Gorman of St. John, N.B., Canadian Olympic representative, was crowned national amateur outdoor speed skating champion at the Pontiac Rink here. Gorman replaces Harry Kaskey, last year's champion, who finished in fourth place.

In the three days of racing Gorman piled up a total of 90 points. Tied for second place were Paul Forsman of the Iceland Rink of New York, leader until Saturday, and Francis Allen, a new flash on the skating horizon from Chicago, with 60 points each.

Kaskey totalled 40 points for the three days. Next came Roy McWhirter and Eddie Murphy of Chicago and Allen Nuhfer of Saratoga, each of whom scored 30 points, and Duke Donovan of Saranac Lake and Eddie Reed of Chicago, each with 10 markers.

An indication of a new world's mark was given in the first heat of the 440-yard event when Harry Kaskey came within one-fifth of a second of Gorman's old mark in winning the contest. Kaskey skated the distance in 37 3-5 seconds, followed across the line by Paul Forsman and Roy McWhirter.

GORMAN EQUALS MARK IN HEAT.

Immediately after, Gorman turned in a performance equalling the old mark in winning the second heat in 37 2-5 seconds. In this race he defeated Allen and Joe Moore.

As soon as the bell sounded for the final lap in the deciding test, Gorman stepped out and, setting a stiff pace, held his advantage to the end, crossing the finish line five yards in the van of the field. Kaskey and Forsman followed him. When his time of 36 3-5 seconds was announced the Canadian flash was accorded a great ovation.

The three-mile event was a race of thrills. Thirty-one men faced the starter's pistol, the field stringing out for a quarter of a lap. A fast pace was set, the first mile being covered in 2 minutes 52 2-5 seconds. At the end of the second mile the field started to close up, with the time at this distance being 5 minutes 50 2-5 seconds.

With three laps to go the real sprinting started. At the completion of the sixteenth circuit of the track Paul Forsman sped into the lead, placing all chance of his winning the title in his sprint. At the bell for the final turn he still held a two-yard advantage over Gorman and Murphy, with Allen trailing them.

Two hundred yards from the finish Allen made his bid, and with Gorman and Murphy passing the leader. They sped into the stretch in this order. Five yards from the finish line both Gorman and Murphy fell, sliding across in second and third positions, with Allen a winner. Forsman was a close fourth. The time was 8 minutes 46 3-5 seconds.

Important Decisions of Tennis Body

Not only will Canada again challenge for the Davis Cup, but as she will be playing in the American zone, the officers of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association will once more make an attempt to have the first round match played in the Dominion.

This was the message John M. Miller, president of the Province of Quebec Lawn Tennis Association, brought back with him today from Toronto, where he attended the annual meeting of the C.L.T.A. on Saturday.

He said that when it had been decided to challenge again, there was discussion concerning the playing site, and it was felt that as the U. S. will got her matches on her own ground, it would be only right for Canadian players and for the tennis enthusiasts to have our own games on home soil also. A strong effort will be made to bring this about.

Mr. Miller went to Toronto determined to have the uniform age limit for boys put through and this was done. All junior players must be eighteen years of age on January first of each year, while boys must be fifteen on the same date. This makes the Canadian rule the same as that of the United States. Quebec province always formerly followed the U. S. in this respect.

A. S. Cassels was elected provincial councillor from Quebec, when J. M. Miller refused to stand for re-election. J. W. Brown and R. N. Watt are councillors at large. G. H. Meldrum, of Toronto, was again elected to the presidency and other officers for the season are: Honorary president, W. A. Boys, K.C., M.P., Barrie; western vice-president, G. B. Brown, Victoria, B.C.; eastern vice-president, J. F. McKinley, Ottawa.

Provincial councillors: Nova Scotia, L. A. Gastonguay, Halifax; New Brunswick, Cyrus Inches.

Some time ago The Star announced exclusively that the United States Association would make a ruling regarding exhibition matches or as a matter of fact dealing with "tourist players." That this rule was actually passed is shown when at the meeting of the Canadian body Saturday, special attention was drawn to the fact that in future if Canadian clubs wish to have U. S. players or teams visit them they will have to make application to the U. S. L. T. A. through the Dominion Association.

New rules of the International Federation although adopted last year will only come into force this year.

Torontonians, although they will get the Canadian championships this season, will not have a corner on this tourney from 1925 on. It was decided that the venue would be changed in that year and each year thereafter.

Another important matter which was fixed was in connection with the last date on which clubs could send in their applications to hold open meetings during the season, that is, meetings in which outsiders are permitted to compete. It was finally decided that these had to be in the hands of the Canadian Association by March 31 of each year.

Englishman Won Rackets Title Meet

HAMILTON, Feb. 18.—(Star Special by Capt. R. Innes-Taylor).—Captain Robarts, of England, won the Canadian Squash Racket Championship title this year, after a series of sensational matches in which he showed himself to be a wonderful match player with a bagfull of scoring strokes.

On Saturday morning only two Canadians were in the contest. Jack Chipman of Toronto, who plays a most impressive game was beaten by the youngest of the English players, W. I. McPherson by 3 games to one. Chipman won the first game and fought gamely in the other three against an opponent who in this match and his next one in which he defeated T. M. Bourke, of Detroit, in 3 straight games, so impressed those who saw these games that he at once became favorite for the title. McPherson flattened his backers as in the semi-final as he disposed of P. I. Callahan, Boston by 3 games to one and as Callahan had beaten Robert Bray, one of the best Americans in the tournament. McPherson's stock went up considerably in the upper half of the draw. Captain Roberts had won a very fine match from the hard-hitting Philadelphian, H. Huhn by 3 games to 2 and Argus Martin, of Hamilton, had patted of the big surprise of the tournament when he beat Dr. Drysdale, of England, in three straight games.

The Canadian played a wonderfully fine game and showed splendid control. The semi-final between Roberts and Martin was one of the feature matches of the tournament. The Hamilton player forced the star Englishman to the limit. Martin's middle court game was deadly at critical points. However, it was Robarts with his all round skill in forcing Martin to play at the back of the court by putting tremendous speed into his return that won the match for him. The final match between the young Englishman, McPherson, and the veteran, Captain Robarts, was as fine an exhibition of squash rackets as one could wish to see.

McPHERSON'S GOOD START.

McPherson started off like a Rolls-Royce going down hill on full speed. He had everything and took the first game easily 15—5. The second game was the closest of the four, but for a time it looked as if McPherson would win it as he was leading, but Robarts always had something up his sleeve when a tight place he was deadly accurate, hitting the ball within an inch of the telltale and making gets that had the audience at times gasping with excitement. The game went to 14 all and was fiercely fought until Robarts won it 18—16. In the third game Robarts gave all he had and pulled off shots he had not shown before, McPherson fought him every inch of the way. Robarts always having however, the needed punch to earn the most important points. In the fourth game both men were all out, Robarts evidently realizing that he could not keep up the pace for another game.

Quain defeated last year's champion, Dr. J. O. Lebreque, of Quebec, in a desperately fought 5 game match. Church defeated the Englishman, Captain Logue after losing the first two games in perhaps the closest contested of all, as the last two games were 18—16. The actual score in points was 74 points all; Church also beat L. Bass, of Buffalo, and as he plays a very sporting type of game his win was very popular.

The English Squash Racket team play in Toronto, Monday and then go to Montreal for two days, then to Boston for the American championship which event ends their visit.

Hard Fought Battle Also In Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 18.—Toronto St. Pats stayed in the fight for National Hockey League honors, by reason of their 2 to 1 victory over Ottawa here.

The teams were battling along with one goal each, and only forty-five seconds remained of the last period. The crowd had settled down for an overtime game, when Adams returned the puck from Cleary's rush. He was driven into the corner by Hitchman, but whipped the disc out to the right wing, where Dye tore in to secure it. It was a race between the Irish team shooter and Darragh, and the former won. Not having time to handle the disc, Dye snapped it at the cage. Benedict went down to block it, but it hopped into the net, and the red light flickered a win for the visitors.

This was Dye's second goal, he having previously beaten the Ottawa net guardian with a blazing drive from the red line, just after the second period opened. Cy Denneny secured the only local tally when he banged Hitchman's rebound over Roach's prostrate form, one minute and forty-five seconds after Dye had given St. Pat's the lead.

The game was not brilliant. Play was fast throughout, but there was little to enthuse over, except the sensational speed of Frank Clancy and the steady, unbeatable goal tending of Roach.

Defensively St. Pats were away off color, and Roach kept them in the fight. Corbeau and Stuart both tried hard, but got nowhere. It was on the line that the balance hung. Noble was slow to start, and for almost the entire first period, showed little, but as the game went on he improved and gradually swung in with Adams and Dye to make every St. Patrick attack a dangerous one. The latter two played great hockey throughout. Dye turned in his best game of the year on Ottawa ice and his two goals were splendid efforts, the winning tally being a smart piece of headwork, as a second's delay would have prevented a score.

George Boucher, who has been out of the game for two weeks with an injured knee, was back in the game for a few minutes in the second period, but otherwise the defence duty for Ottawa was done by Clancy and Hitchman. The former shone throughout, with Hitchman playing a steady game. On the line Denneny, Broadbent and Nighbor all went well, though Denneny was skating too fast for the play throughout the first period and missed a number of passes to his wing. Darragh was used to relieve Denneny in the last three or four minutes. Nighbor was a strong spot on the defence, but had poor luck with his attacks. Once he was clear through only to have Roach block his shot, and again, he lost control of the puck after beating the defence. Denneny also has Roach to thank for keeping his scoring average down.

Mike Rodden, of Toronto, gave an excellent account of himself as referee. He used fine judgment in his rulings and while it was an easy game to handle, strict warnings served just as well as penalties on a few occasions, and kept the game fast.

STANDS SCOTLAND WHERE IT DID IN SOCCER INTERNATIONAL GAMES

As Dominie Samson would say, the Old Country soccer results on Saturday were "prodeegious." In the First Division of the English League there were no fewer than five drawn games, and it would be difficult to apportion the proper value of each individual performance, but perhaps the best was West Ham's meritorious draw with Huddersfield. To share the points with Yorkshiremen on their own ground is no easy job, and on that count alone it would only be bare justice to award them the honors of the day. Arsenal are slipping down the ladder alarmingly, and they find themselves hob-nobbing with Chelsea, who are in a well-nigh desperate position.

The Pensioners, by the way, have placed quite a number of their players on the open transfer list, and, as illustrating how much they love their neighbors, they communicated with clubs in the provinces, and did not send a single notification to a metropolitan organization. It is very evident that there is not complete harmony in the Stamford Bridge camp, and unless there is that they can reckon upon disaster after disaster. Never a goal could they get against Everton, and when you reckon that during the whole season the forwards have only scored sixteen goals, it becomes painfully evident that there must really be "something rotten in the State of Denmark."

* * *

Indicative of what enthusiasm in a camp will do, there is the splendid illustration of Preston's ascendancy. Just when things looked blackest they pulled themselves together, and now they find things coming easy to them. To go to West Bromwich and come away with the brace of points in their locker is a performance which must have plunged their supporters into an ecstacy of enthusiasm.

Middlesbro's position seems to be hopeless. There is no news to hand yet, but it is odds on that they will now secure Halliday from Dundee, seeing that the Tayside club have been dismissed from the ties by Raith Rovers, and they have no particular interest in the League championship. That's how they do things at Den's Park, and I am not saying more than what is generally known in Juteopolis that there is not complete harmony in the encampment. Halliday is premier goal-scorer in Scotland meantime, but I do not envy him his change of quarters should he decide to go to Middlesbro', who always were a snarling crew, due in large measure to the depressing influence of the board of directors. The Yorkshiremen would dearly love to avail themselves of the services of John White of the Hearts, but with the Edinburgh club still in the Cup ties there is not likely to be a deal.

* * *

Cardiff City are still holding on strenuously to their lead, and they have but to maintain their form to annex the championship. In the Second Division, Stoke are still on top, but they should have been able to do better than draw with Oldham. Things are not looking any too bright for Nelson. That they should be walloped by 5-0 on their own ground by Bury is not a happy portent for the future. Bristol City are well in the soup, and if Port Vale can but maintain their improved form, then it would almost seem a certainty that Nelson and Bristol City will go down to the Third Division.

* * *

In the Scottish League there were not what one could really call surprises. Dundee would have been tired out, and proved easy pie for the Hibs., who have struck their form at the right time, and will give Rangers all they want when they meet next Saturday in the Cup ties. The defeat of Aberdeen was rather unexpected, because Raith could not have been up to concert pitch after their mid-week battle. Hutton, it is said, has gone right back in form, and this will explain why Jock Marshall, of Llanelly, was chosen for the right back position against Wales when Scotland had to eat the leek at Cardiff. You know, of course, that Jock contemplates taking up his residence in Brooklyn next season, and should be a great drawing card.

The defeat of Scotland by Wales was surprising. The team looked strong fore and aft, but it did appear a mistake to partner Cunningham with Alan Martin. The latter, it would seem, has been off form for a bit, and yet apparently he is the best available. The Ayrshireman ought to have been partner to his clubmate, and Joe Cassidy would have kept Morton on the move. And why, we wonder, was Halliday not given his chance?

The result at Cardiff of 2-0 in favor of Wales makes one wonder really if Scotland stands where it did in soccer. Wales were invariably accounted easy stuff for a representative Scottish team to snaffle. They have 29 victories to their credit, and Wales but half a dozen. Scotland with 134 goals and Wales only 44. The defeat of the Scots would not have gone down well, and there will be much scurrying around to look for talent for the big game, a search which is about the greatest farce imaginable. The selectors simply go picknicking, and generally have a very good time. Why award a player the international cap judged on one game alone? It is absurd. Don't know why the people stand for it.

HOCKEY FANS MUST PAY FOR RESERVATIONS BY 7 P.M. TOMORROW

Here is an item to be remembered in connection with the Ottawa-Canadien Hockey match on Wednesday evening at the Mount Royal Arena. In the past Manager Benoit has always permitted those who reserved seats to claim them up to 1 P.M. on the day of the game, which in this case would be Wednesday.

On account of the overwhelming demand for tickets however he is compelled to ask those who have made reservations for Wednesday to come and pay for them not later than 7 P.M. tomorrow, Tuesday evening.

Don. Smith to Handle Sons-Nat'ls Game

A local referee will once more take the ice in an Eastern Canada League hockey fixture here this evening, when Nationals and Sons of Ireland meet at the Mount Royal Arena.

President Gendron has appointed Donald Smith for the game in Montreal between these two teams. At the same time "Art" Ross has a game on his hands also tonight, when he goes to Three Rivers with the Victorias, and handles affairs on the ice there. Ross will also referee the games here on Feb. 21 and 23.

The games tonight mean a great deal to the league leaders. Should Sons win here and Victorias lose at Three Rivers, the two will be on even terms once more. Should both leaders win there will be, of course, no change. Both are out to win, and will be fighting hard all the way.

The game here this evening should be an interesting one.

CALEDONIA CURLERS WIN CENTENARY CUP FROM HEATHER MEN

Caledonia curlers won their second major trophy of the season on Saturday evening when three rinks completed the 6 rink battle against Heather Curling Club and held the Westmounters in check sufficiently to win out by a 9 point margin for the two evenings' play. The battles waged on Montreal ice were not the outstanding duels that the series produced the evening before or in the games against Montreal and Thistle. The match interest was there, however, and it was not until well past the half way mark that it was surmised that Heather would not rally sufficiently to wipe out the 16 point deficit of Friday night.

Caledonia curlers were in the fray right from the start and it became early apparent that the battle of the evening would be on middle ice with Peter Lyall exchanging courtesies with Art Smith and having slightly the better of it. The quality of curling in this game was much ahead of that on the other two sheets. Peter Lyall himself was in trophy form, a most fortunate thing for Caledonia.

Lyall too had the priceless assistance of Teskey at lead and W. P. Simpson at second. These two players hardly lost an iron throughout the long 16 end engagement and in the pinches Simpson did far more than the work of a second. He was really brilliant, especially when the end threatened to assume a Heather complexion. Moon had difficulty in his length, but showed a fighting spirit that kept the interest at fever pitch. It was really Lyall's game and if his last iron had been swept as it ought to have been, he would have been 1 up instead of 1 down.

In the matter of length, there were other curlers on Saturday evening who found the ice an insoluble problem and as a result some of the ends were a bit ragged. Dave Wilson had a hard battle on his hands and on the whole his rink was being outcurled. On more than one occasion it required his own over-tee play to offset the Heather counters. Art Wood had an uncanny way of getting the length of the tee and when he counted, nearly always improved with his last iron. Caledonia's victory was that a negative one because Wood and M. A. Robertson were expected to run up big majorities. Wood nearly fulfilled his part of the bargain, but the cup went bloocy when Robertson failed to run away with his game against Dr. Ernie Hutchison.

DR. HUTCHISON WON.

Robertson, try as he would, could not get the ice to work for him and was just missing them time after time. His length and borrow were alternately wrong and sometimes both together. This put the Heather skip off his game all round for a while. Dr. Hutchison, with his usual smile, gathered in points that came with comparative ease and appeared to be having a very nice time of it. There was a certain 5 in the 7th end for Robertson if he only took out a counter at the rear of the four foot and well in the way of the regular borrow. Norman McLeod gave him the ice for this, Heather lying 4. The iron was narrow and too heavy as well. It cleared out 2 Heather counters and went out of the rings itself Heather counting 2 instead of 5.

The Robertson-McLeod combination was severely strained by this catastrophe and the impression did not make for the team play essential to victory over such rinks as Caledonia's. It was really on this ice that Heather lost the trophy.

At the conclusion of the games, Dr. C. F. Morison, president of the Montreal Curling Club, donors of this, the handsomest trophy in the curling universe, invited the players to the festive board of the senior club and later, because Caledonia must celebrate, all adjourned to the Burnside street club rooms, where many speeches were made and congratulations renewed. With the M.A.A.A. Hughes Memorial Trophy on the club shelves, and the Centenary Cup added to it, Caledonia curlers have done fairly well in the 1924 season.

Montreal entertained at luncheon on Saturday with over a hundred members present to hear Grant Hall, vice-president of the C.P.R. discourse on the Panama and the company's tourist services by ocean. Hon. Walter Mitchell, M.P., also spoke. Thistle, St. Andrew's, Caledonia and Heather also had luncheons. Rinks and scores:

NELSEN WON QUEBEC SKI JUMP EVENT; SKI RACE WON BY MONSEN

Ivind Nelsen, brother of Nels Nelsen, holder of the world's record for the long distance jump, 235 feet, earned double honors at the Province of Quebec Ski Championships on Saturday afternoon at the Montreal Ski Club's Cote des Neiges Hill. Ivan Nelsen was awarded first place for style and length of jump. He also captured the long distance standing jump event of the afternoon, when he cleared 128 feet, just two feet behind the hills' record. Rolf Monsen, a former Montreal man, now representing the Battleboro Club, was second, while Norman Berger, this year's champion of the Montreal Ski club was third.

The judges were called upon to judge one of the closest events in the history of the hill for there was only .76 points separating the first five men, while Frank McKinnon, the sixth man, was only 1.21 points behind the winner. Forty-three competitors took part in the jumps, and as there were three jumps for each man no less than 129 jumps were witnessed by those who braved the cold long enough!

Considerable disappointment was expressed in the fact that the hill record was not shattered but the snow conditions were a little tricky. The result was that certain kinds of wax that were used were absolutely useless on the hill, a good example of this was the jumps made by Leonard Lehan. Lehan had kept things pretty dark as to the distances he had made during the week, and had full intentions of going up to the hill on Saturday and smashing the record. He applied a certain brand of wax on Friday to his skies, and then went up and cleared 132 feet, 2 feet more than the hill record. Saturday he used the same stuff but was only able to get jumps of 110, 112 and 113. Several of the other jumpers complained of the same fault.

Fully two thousand filled the enclosure around the jump, while there were just as many if not more on the outside trying to get a view.

When Nels Nelsen, the world's champion jumper, was announced, a thrill ran over the crowd for they expected to see something wonderful, but they received a big surprise, for Nelsen was two feet behind Berger's first jump. Nelsen's jumps were very good as to distance, but where he fell down was in his style. Our west where he competes so much, distance is considered more important than style, for they give nine points for distance and one for style. Here the Norwegian system is employed which gives 50 per cent. for style and 50 per cent. for distance. In this way all round ski jumpers are given a chance to show their stuff.

One of the most notable features of the afternoon was the fact that there were very few falls made by the jumpers. Only two falls were made during the entire afternoon. One was made by the first jumper over and the other came near the afternoon when the landing became a little rough.

The style shown by Norman Berger, Ivind Nelsen, Leonard Lehan, "Bing" Anderson Frank McKinnon and Alec Olsen was almost faultless. These men as they soared through the air each with their different style of propelling themselves, were a treat to watch.

Ivind Nelsen, the winner of the event, showed distance and real class in his style, Monsen, although short in his jumps on Berger, was awarded the decision over Berger for his perfect style. Berger had distance but on one of his jumps his style was off color and he was given third place by that jump.

The one jump to show more class and distance within a year's time is Gordon Stroud. Stroud was considered as only a mediocre jumper until recently, but his exhibition on Saturday was excellent.

The distances and points are as follows:

Rolf Monsen showed that he was an all-round skier yesterday afternoon when he ran away with the nine mile cross country race of the Province of Quebec which was held at Shawbridge. The majority of the jumpers who competed in the ski jumps on Saturday afternoon took part in the event. The entry list included 17 names.

The going was exceptionally fast and gave the entrant plenty of thrills. Monsen's time is considered the best over the route for some time. He was clocked at the finish of the nine miles as 1 hr. 2 min. and 50 seconds. N. Putnam was second, while Reid winner of the national ski race at Battleboro on Friday last was third. Reid was only one second behind Putnam. Mac'Kinnon was fourth.

The results are as follows:

BELD BANQUET.

On Saturday evening the entire competitors in the ski jumping event were entertained to a banquet in the Venetian Gardens. A. C. Harlow, president of the Montreal Ski Club occupied the chair. The banquet was a most informal one, no speeches being made whatever. The management of the Venetian arranged their program so that their entertainers furnished amusement for the skiers during the banquet. Harold, the cigarette boy at the Venetian, furnished the most enjoyable event of the entertainment with a clog dance on miniature skis. He was announced as the champion skier of South America.

At the completion of the banquet the club's annual dance was held.

VARSITY DEPRIVED McGILL OF BOXING HONORS WON LAST YEAR

Before a packed hall the University of Toronto representatives in the Intercollegiate Assault-at-Arms, the finals of which were held in the McGill Union on Saturday evening, tucked the honors away, having wrested the championship from McGill, retained at the latters institution due to their showing at the meet of the same nature last year. The blue and white entrants gained twelve points to McGill's five. Queens, the other competitor, was unfortunate, having failed to win one bout during the two evening's of boxing, wrestling and fencing. The form shown by the Toronto athletes, was surprising, in particular that of their wrestlers.

The boxers had received full credit in the Toronto press, but the grapplers came here more or less an unknown quantity and left undisputed masters of those with whom they contested, having made a clean sweep of the wrestling events from the one hundred and twelve pounds class to the one hundred and sixty pounds division. McGill winning the last two classes on falls. Incidentally, it was only in these two classes and the hundred and twelve pounds that there were any falls registered the other bouts having been awarded some of them after overtime on the judges' decision. Freedman of McGill annexed the first fall in the hundred and sixty pounds class just as the bell rang for the conclusion of his tussle with Kelly of Queens, and Rumple won by two straight falls in the last wrestling match of the evening when he twice put the shoulders of Trailer, the Varsity man to the mat following several minutes of dilatious tactics. Probably the most engrossing bout of the evening went to McGill in the boxing when Merrit was awarded the verdict over Cates, also of Toronto, in the hundred and forty-seven pound class, after one of the most gruelling scraps witnessed in the college ring for many years. Schleiffer was the other local boxer to score a win, this time in the hundred and twelve pound class. The fifth McGill point is to be credited to the fencers, Silverstone, a McGill fencer, being declared the individual champion of the fencing meet on his exhibitions in the afternoon, when most of the fencing bouts were fought, while Crestohl won the only foil contest of the evening for the red and white when he bettered Maybee of Queens by five points to two. On the whole the wrestling was of a higher character than the boxing.

EVERY NOOK CROWDED.

The attendance that gathered to watch the struggle for inter-university supremacy cause early and when the first match was called there was scarcely a nook of the ball-room of the Union which did not have its enthusiastic occupant. Among the spectators were those who on the preceding evening had been admitted the "boys de grace," and rivalling them for a thorough understanding of the trials of those in the squared circle, could be discerned the strained face and eager countenance of the trainer peering over the edge of the ring as he battled tooth and nail with his proteges. It would not be fair, nor yet possible, to attempt to single from out the program any one feature which exemplified the gameness and earnestness of the competitors. Every bout was noteworthy in this respect. There was not, to be truthfully be said, a listless moment while the men were in the ring, and a greater tribute than this to the quality of the entertainment would be difficult to discover. In fact so intent did the crowd become upon the chances and the performances of their especial favorite that at times they were led to question, if not to doubt, the judgment of the third man in the ropes, both referee Roberts of the wrestling and referee Long of the boxing having boosts of opinion at times to confend with. However, it was only occasionally that the mass lost its head and one of these was during the Merrit-Cates affair when the whole hall resounded with the encouragements of the stands, shouted to the rescuing of the gallant and dazed boxers.

The fencing opened the card for the evening, and after Crestohl of McGill had successfully disposed of his opponent Maybee of Queens, by the easy margin of five "touches" in his favor to the two against him, Webster of Toronto and Checkley of Queens both of one hundred and twelve pounds came on the mat, the former winning handily when he twice threw his adversary in about five minutes. Toronto again triumphed over Queens when Kryfetz beat Inman in the hundred and eighteen pounds class. The winner did not secure a fall, but was surely given the decision because of his aggressive scoring, he having forced the pace throughout.

VICTORY FOR McGILL.

The first appearance of the boxers marked a victory for McGill, when Schleiffer, of one hundred and twelve pounds, was accorded the award over Putnam of Toronto, an equally diminutive fighter, following an extra round. The bout was full of science and quick hitting. Of the hundred and eighteen pound class which succeeded it between Hubbard of Varsity and Hannah of Queens was more active, and took on an extremely gory aspect due to a cut suffered by the latter boxer. Hubbard was given the verdict; that he had sufficient advantage to be the recipient of such, without at least the ordering of another round, was rather hard to conceive. In the hundred and seventy-six pound wrestling which followed, Varsity won from McGill when Lucas defeated McEvoy. The McGill man was tricky on the defensive, but he made no effort to force the fight. Howes, also of McGill, went down before the aggressive conduct of Adam of Varsity in the hundred and thirty-five pounds class. His loss was a shock to his supporters, for they confidently anticipated a win, but on the exhibition his opponent only received his due. In the hundred and twenty-five pound boxing, Grey of Toronto evidenced his superiority over Holmes of Queens in a fight that during its duration of two rounds was a bitter struggle, the tri-color man putting up a game fight against his experienced antagonist. Grey, however, waited and knocked him out, his second victory by this method in two nights. Varsity again won unexpectedly in the hundred and thirty-five pounds boxing when Robertson won from Snow of McGill. The winner was a tall, lanky individual, but Snow was unable to solve his style or to adopt the in-fighting which would have been most suited to bring about his opponents undoing, and so lost, although he performed in a plucky manner. In the hundred and fifty-seven pounds wrestling, McNaughton, the McGill entrant seemingly earned the right to an extra round, but the judges ceded the decision to the Toronto wrestler, Stewart. The two appeared to be evenly matched, and McNaughton's cleverness and strength a compensation for the fact that his opponent was on top for most of the time.

STRONG DEFENSIVE.

In the hundred and sixty pounds affair Wall of Queens lost to Jeckell of Toronto, The loser was a strong defensive man, but the circumstance that he seldom, if ever, had his opponent at a disadvantage went against his chances for the battle. The hundred and forty-seven pounds boxing went to McGill, after Merrit, gained the decision over Cates of Varsity in the most spectacular bout of the evening. It was a rugged, slashing contest from beginning to end and the crowd was on its feet at the conclusion. Merrit won because of the greater force of his blows. Black, in what was thought would prove certain victory for Toronto, had difficulty in disposing of Hughes, the McGill representative, and during the first two rounds of the match obtained no definite advantage. However, in the third round he cut loose and kept the McGill man on the ropes for the greater part of the time. Hughes was fast and it was this speed and his long left that saved him from the knock-out blows which are said to be the nit of Black, Canadian champion in his weight. Hughes put up a good fight.

With the hundred and seventy-five pounds wrestling came McGill's first win on the mat for the evening, when Freedman pinned the "Young de grace," Kelly of Queens, to the canvas, in the last few seconds of the contest. Kelly looked thin beside his burly competitor, but gave a worthy battle for the honors. Rumple, last year's champion in his weight, had trouble in gaining the upper hand of Trailer of Varsity in the heavy-weight division, but ultimately succeeded when he got two straight falls in the last half of the match, this giving McGill its last victory of the night. Abinovitch for McGill, stood up well to Shute of Varsity in the hundred and seventy pounds class but the latter earned the decision by the knock-out route in the third round. Shute and Abinovitch fought last year in the meet at Kingston in which the Toronto man also won, but then only on points and after an extra round had been called. In the heavyweight boxing McGill fared no better when McLean, the big man of the local college, went down for the count in his bout with Mahon of Varsity. Mahon delivered the final blow in the last round, and it was some five minutes before McLean was able to leave the ring.

Thus did Toronto Varsity retrieve their defeat of last year at the hands of McGill. Twelve points to five being the final score.

CITY INTERMEDIATE HOCKEY LEAGUE

Three good games are carded for the above league at Loyola Rink on Tuesday, February 19th. The opening game is between M.A.A.A. and Victorias and should prove to be a good exhibition, as Victorias are anxious to hold their present standing in the league, M.A.A.A. are rapidly rounding into shape and should give Victorias a busy time. The second game will find Lachine and U. of M. opposing each other, these two teams played a three goal draw at their last meeting. Since that time Lachine have greatly improved and to stay in the running must score a win while a win for U. of M. would help them from their cellar position.

The closing game is between the fast Westmount team and McGill, these two teams can always be depended on to put up a good fight and the McGill boys will try their best to notch another win.

THE PASSING HOUR

Simpson (to fellow club member — "Hello, Dkye, old man! You look worried. What's the trouble?"

Dke—"Oh, I'm fed up."

"Why, how's that?"

"The wife and I had a 'tiff' this morning, so I've had 'tongue' for breakfast, 'roast' for dinner, 'sauce' for tea, expect 'cold shoulder' for supper, and don't feel a bit hungry."

The doctor's little girl had sung for her mother's guests.

"How well you sing," said one. "I suppose you'll be a saprano when you grow up?"

"No," said the little girl. "I'm going to be a great big bella donna."

"Walter, I would so love that bracelet."

"I can't afford to buy it for you, dear."

"If you could you would, wouldn't you, darling?"

"No, sweetheart."

"Oh, why?"

"It isn't good enough for you dearest."

"Oh, you darling!"

"I suppose, Henry," said the old gentleman to his new son-in-law, "that you are aware the check for $50,000 I put among your wedding presents was merely for effect."

"Oh, yes, sir," reponded the cheerful Henry "And the effect was excellent. The bank cashed it this morning without a word."—Vanity Fair.

Further Unsettlement in Stock Markets—French Francs at New Low Level

DETROIT WEAK; SPANISH REACT IN QUIET LIST

Spanish River issues and Brazilian were the active features of a quiet market this morning on the Montreal Stock Exchange. After Saturday's rally from the break of the day before, prices again moved back this morning, but the declines were, with one exception, not extreme. The exception was Detroit Railway. Following the publication on Saturday that the company seeks power to reduce its fares in the suburbs of Detroit in an effort to cope with the competition of bus lines, the stock broke 5 points at the opening this morning, and on small offerings moved down 2 more. In the later trading a rally of 1½ points brought the price up to 62½, for a net decline of 5½ points.

Spanish River was stronger at the opening, being up ⅝ at 108½, and it moved up another ½ to 109⅜. A reaction set in from this point, which brought the price back to 107, for a net decline of ⅝. The preferred moved up to 114¾, but later reacted to 112, off 1½. Other issues in the paper group were not very active. Abitibi was off 1 at 63, Brompton ⅛ at 41¾, while Laurentide and St. Maurice appeared in small lots only. Howard Smith was off 1 at 67.

Brazilian was the second most active issue and one of the firm spots. In spite of the softness in the balance of the list, it held up well around 48 to ⅝, closing at 48¼, up ¼. Montreal Power, which rallied 2¼ points on Saturday, was softer, and eased 1¼ points to 153⅝, after opening at 154¼. Smelters firmed ⅜ to 36, while Steel of Canada was off ⅛ at 76, and Empire Steel second preferred rallied ⅛ to 15.

Other price changes included: Cuban Canadian Sugar preferred, off ½ at 49; St. Lawrence Flour, off 1 at 70; Canadian Cottons, off 1½ at 100½; Bank of Commerce, up ½ at 182, and Bank of Hochelaga, off ½ at 149½. Government bonds were dull and slightly firmer.

Total number of listed shares traded in was 6,074, as compared with 8,415 on Friday morning, and 10,919 in Saturday's two-hour session.

Surprising Richness Of B.C. Mineral Area

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 18. — Reports reached here Saturday that prospectors at the Dunwell Mine, Portland Canal district, were now working in ore, wired with solid gold and slabbed with native silver.

"Nothing like it ever seen in this district," wired R. W. Stewart, who is supervising the operations at the mine.

This property is only a few miles removed from such well-known properties as the Premier, Indian and Big Missouri and the discovery is viewed in mining circles as indicating the possibilities of big surprises in the Portland Canal district, Premier having been a notable case in point.

Foreign Exchange

The French franc was very weak today, declining to a new record low. Around 1.30 it was quoted in New York at 4.17⅛ cents for demand. Belgian francs were also softer, declining to 3.60⅛ in New York. Paris dispatch states that selling today was due in part to opposition to the Government program for strengthening the francs. In London the French franc slumped to a record of 100 francs 25 centimes to the pound, carrying with it the Belgian franc to 116 francs 75 centimes.

New York funds opened in Montreal this morning at 3 3-64 per cent. premium. Around 1.30 they were unchanged. Other exchange rates ruled as follows:

AFTER STRONG START N.Y. LIST WEAKENS AGAIN

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(Special to The Star from Our Own Wall Street Correspondent)—The new week in the stock market opened with moderate activity, and prices were firmer. A large number of early transactions consisted of oil shares which displayed a good tone with most prices showing fractional gains over the closing levels last Saturday.

The motors, too, showed early activity and generally were at better levels than prevailed at the previous close. The steels and coppers were unchanged to fractionally higher.

The general tone of the market reflected that a more sane attitude was being adopted toward the oil lease investigation which for the time being at least lost not a little of its influence when extravagant rumors on the subject were administered a severe reverse by the testimony last week. Investors now can give more attention to the facts in general industry, which continue uncommonly good.

The first hour's activity was largely a trading affair with the general list fluctuating as much as a point from the opening levels. By 11 a.m. most stocks were lower than at the opening with trading on a fairly active scale, although not anything like the volume of activity on Friday and Saturday last.

Street sentiment was mixed, the general opinion looking for a trading market for the present with some selling reported by traders who had bought during the weak market list Friday.

The coppers, showed a disposition to advance, and made some improvement over Saturday's close. However, these fractional gains disappeared when the rest of the list turned reactionary. The copper trade has finally become bullish on the outlook, this attitude being based on a number of fundamental conditions.

Under the stimulus of a sharp rally at Liverpool, the cotton list opened firm, up 43 to 60 points. Rumors were current on the floor which lacked confirmation that the English dock strike had been settled. Business was heavy with buying orders coming from Liverpool, commission houses, Wall Street and trade. Selling came from the South, locals, the West and New Orleans. Later a portion of the initial gains were wiped out as renewed selling from scattered sources came into the ring.

The decline in the franc in the Paris market was due to heavy selling resulting from speeches made by Socialists in Paris yesterday against the 20 per cent tax and other constructive financial readjustment steps proposed by the French Government for supporting the French franc.

Diamond Match will report for 1923. It is understood, net profits equal to $10.50 a share on the outstanding stock against $10.02 for 1922, less than was expected. However, officials of the company say that the disappointment is due not to a decrease in gross or higher operating expenses, but to larger appropriations from earnings than were generally expected to be placed to reserves.

United Drug, which has had a stormy stock market career in the last few years, reports for 1923 gross sales of $87,244,000, against $61,186,000 for 1922, with a surplus for dividends of $4,161,000 or $5.46 a share for the stock against $3,231,000 or $3.77 for the previous year.

Stocks gave ground for the most part of the second hour, with Steel touching 104⅛, about a point below the price reached shortly after the opening. American Can reacted measurably when it sold to 113⅜ against a high of 115⅞ earlier in the session. Baldwin got down to 121⅛ against an opening of 123¼.

Such action by the leaders was a deterrent on other issues which gave ground in similar fashion. But the most noticeable feature of the second hour's trading was the orderly manner in which prices gave ground. There was no real pressure. The difference between this and Friday's session was the undoubted pressure of real bids for stocks. The oil list moved irregular with prices at noon a point or so below the opening.

Specialties and other ordinarily inactive issues showed the widest fluctuations in the early trading, gains of a point or more being recorded by American General Tank Car, American Chicle, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Pullman, Pacific Gas and Electric, Owens Bottle and United Alloy Steel. Moderate strength was shown by a number of the oils and independent steels, gains of a point or so being recorded by the Pan-American issues, Marland Oil, Gulf States and Sloss-Sheffield Steels. Cuba Cane pfd. and International Telephone each dropped a point and "Big Four" broke nearly two points.

When trading quieted down after the early buying orders had been disposed of operators on the short side renewed their attacks on the general list and succeeded in making material inroads into the quoted values of a number of popular shares, including Baldwin, American Can, Chandler Motors, Davison Chemical, DuPont, U. S. Industrial Alcohol and Gulf States Steel, all of which dropped 1 to 2 points.

The wave of selling also engulfed the railroad group, Northern Pacific dropping 1⅜ and Union Pacific and St. Louis and Southern Western dropped a point each. American Water Works dropped 2¼ points to 40, a new low record. Independent strength was shown, however, by a number of issues, including Tidewater Oil, Mexican Seaboard, Colorado Fuel, General Mining and Smelting, Congoleum, Foundation Company, New York Air Brake and National Biscuit, the gains running as 2¼ points. Call money opened at 4¼ per cent.

Prices went into new lows for the day in the early afternoon. C. P. R. was firmer at 147. Features up to 1.30 included: C. P. R., 147; Davison Chem., 50½ to ⅝ to 47⅝ to 48¼; Cal. Pet., 25⅝ to 24¼ to ¼; Am. Can, 114⅞ to 115¼ to 112; Loco., 72⅝ to 72; Anaconda, 40⅝ to 39½ to 40; Baldwin, 123⅛ to ⅛ to 120 to ⅛; Beth. Steel "B," 58⅝ to 56⅝; Cosden, 34⅝ to 35¼ to 33⅜; Chandler, 60 to 58⅝ to 59¼; Crucible, 64½ to 65¼; to 62; Cuban Am. Sugar, 38⅝ to 35⅝; Dupont, 129½ to 130½ to 127¾ to ⅝; Gen. Electric, 212 to 208; Gulf State Steel, 52½ to 53¼ to 50.

Alcohol, 76⅝ to 77 to 73¼; Mack Truck, 86⅝ to 87½; Marland Oil, 38⅝ to 37; Nat. Lead, 142¾ to ⅝ to 143 to 140⅝ to 141; Pacific Oil, 51 to ⅛ to 50¾ to ⅝; Pan-American, 46⅝ to 47⅛ to 45¾; Pan-American B, 44 to 45¼ to 43⅝; Punta Sugar, 62 to ⅝ to 59⅝; Studebaker, 101¼ to ⅝ to 99⅝; Steel com., 105 to ⅛ to 103⅝ to ⅝.

Detroit Railway Will Again Reduce Tariff

LANSING, Mich., Feb. 18.—The State Public Utilities Commission has received notice from the Detroit United Railway that a new schedule of rates will be filed a few days, providing for sharp reductions in the vicinity of Detroit. It is expected that the proposed reductions will receive no opposition from the Utilities Commission.

It is believed that the action of the D. U. R. is the continuation of a determined effort to cope with the competition of motor bus lines. The reduced tariff's will cut fares from Pontiac and surrounding suburbs to Detroit industrial centres to below those charged by motor busses in some cases. The company reduced fares on some of its lines less than two months ago.

QUEBEC INCORPORATIONS

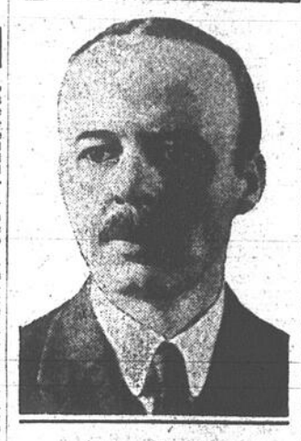

QUEBEC, Feb. 18.—Thirteen incorporations are contained in the current issue of the Official Gazette, the largest being that of the Rouyn Gold Mines, Limited, (no personal liability) of Montreal, with a total capital stock of three million dollars, distributed into three million shares of one dollar each. Next in line comes the Lepine Gold Mines Company, Limited, also of Montreal, with a capital of two million dollars.

In addition to the gold, approved securities were on deposit on January 31st to the extent of $90,690,500, as against $97,420,000 at the end of December.

Topics of the Street

In the initial dealings in the local stock market today the tendency of the leaders was to further strengthen their position, following up the advantage secured on Saturday following Friday's sharp break, but in the subsequent trading this was not retained and some prices sagged back in the second hour below Saturday's closing.

From the smaller volume of business transacted it was evident that the market is disposed to pause and take stock of the situation and at the same time wait to see what the leaders in New York do.

In this respect that market may be described as running true to form as it has been frequently noted that the rebound following a sharp break is seldom held in its entirety and that the market enters upon a term of minor uncertainty waiting for definite leadership.

While Spanish Rivers and Brazilian attracted the bulk of trading the action of Detroit United provided special interest. This stock broke five points over night from 68 at the close on Saturday to 63 today and later fell two additional points to 61, making a total loss of seven points.

The only news to account for this break was the announcement that the company has requested permission from the Michigan Public Utilities Commission to be allowed to reduce interurban passenger fares in some districts where autobus competition has been disturbing to the company, the obvious idea being to make it impossible for the buses to compete with the traction service.

The auto competition has given the Detroit Company some concern for the past couple of years and was at one time thought to have been regulated through rulings of the Commission. The company has at last many have the effect of bringing this matter to a head so that the drawbacks created for the traction lines may be reduced to a minimum.

The market, however, evidently overemphasized the importance of the step, presumably interpreting the action as likely to be seriously detrimental to the revenue of the company. This might be the case if it came to a rate war but this seems improbable owing to the strong influence the State Commission in adjusting such matters.

In any event it is obvious that the break in Detroit United shares was out of all proportion to the importance of the incident and is a good deal of a reflection on the technical position of the stock in this market. As a matter of fact the buying power has indicated marked shallowness for the past year or so and a repetition of such breaks has a tendency to create distrust in the position of the company as well as the market for its shares.

This has to a large extent been responsible for the poor support which marks the trading when anything has arisen to bring stock into the market for sale.

The recent general break in prices would naturally have a disquieting effect on the public and the inference would naturally arise in many quarters that the reaction last week marked the culmination of the forward movement which has been a feature of marked interest for the past few months.

There is nothing in the situation to support this theory, but the recovery of buying with confidence in stronger prices may be expected to be slow for a time. Stocks which have been prominent in the rising owing to their exceptionally attractive financial positions and have not altered their course, will come into trading favor in due course and there is little doubt that the market will witness a resumption of trading on broader lines again shortly.

In the meantime some backing and filling may be expected before it gets its stride again. The action of New York will have considerable influence and naturally that market will be keenly watched for signs of further constructive leadership.

The keynote of the situation there is that fundamental conditions are unchanged, but that the technical position of the market had become vulnerable and required a readjustment. The resumption of the oil investigation at Washington later in the month may be expected to operate as an element which may provide for some surprises and this may make for hesitation for a time.

Spanish Rivers issues continued the most active but the amount of Detroit United offered was trifling and out of proportion to the seven point break. Spanish common opened at 108½ to ⅝ but eventually reacted to 107½ compared with 108 to 108 to 107⅝ on Saturday. The preferred after opening stronger at 114 to ¾ reacted to 112½. This compares with 110 to 113¼ on Saturday.

Power receded a point from Saturday's close at 155 to 154 after opening today at 154¼.

Brazilian Traction was fairly active but moved within a narrower range with 48⅝ the high and 48 the low. The balance of the list was on the narrow side and lacking in interest.

KIRKLAND LAKE PROPERTY MADE ANOTHER RECORD

KIRKLAND LAKE, Feb. 18.—(Star Special.)—The annual statement of the Wright-Hargreaves Mines, Ltd., marks another record achievement in the Kirkland Lake district.

While output exceeded three-quarters of a million dollars, and while the mill handled an average of 217 tons of ore daily, it is most significant to find the cost sheet for the year showing total costs amounting only $5.93 per ton milled, including the year's expenditure for exploration and development. This is the best record to date in the Kirkland Lake district, and compares favorably with the cost sheet of the larger producers of the Porcupine district.

In his statement to the shareholders, Oliver Cabana, Jr., president of the Wright-Hargreaves, says in part:

"Your attention is called to the fact that during the year the mill treated 79,242 tons of ore, from which $754,978.81 was taken in bullion, the amount of gold produced was practically the same as for the year 1922, while the tonnage treated was approximately 15,000 tons more, or an average of 20 tons per day increase, it will be observed from the report that the total costs for the entire year were approximately 40 cents per ton less than for the previous year, this combined with the increased tonnage treated during the year, clearly showing a marked increase in our general efficiency.

"It will be noted that the bullion taken from the ore treated averages $9.52 per ton for the year, whereas the average for 1923 was somewhat higher. As explained in the general manager's report, this is due to the fact that considerably more development work was done during the year than heretofore and that all ore from this development work, including some quite low grade went to the mill for treatment, thus reducing the mill heads for the year.

"Attention is called to the fact that it is now practically two years and a half since your company began operations and in that time we have succeeded in paying dividends to the extent of $618,750; reducing our costs to a figure considerably under $6 per ton, acquiring a substantial reserve, and at the same time, building up broken ore reserves of nearly 80,000 tons. In the past year we have also made considerable progress towards the increase of our milling capacity and already a big part of the preliminary work has been done."

GENERAL MANAGER'S REPORT.

Albert Wende, general manager of the Wright-Hargreaves, states:

"The broken ore on hand, Dec. 31, 1923, amounted to 75,815 tons an increase to reserve over a year ago of 45,240 tons. The mill operated 94.82 p.c. of the possible running time."

Analysis of costs are presented in excellent detail by Mr. Wende. These details show mining, exploration and development charges to have amounted to $3.05 per ton, while milling charges amounted to $1.55, making a total cost of only $4.60 per ton before allowing for depreciation, taxes, administration, and so on.

The total cost of $5.93 included development and exploration, stoping, transporting ore, milling charges, marketing bullion, roads and general surface work, storehouse, maintenance miscellaneous, mine buildings, administration and management, property taxes, insurance, interest on exchange, legal expenses and miscellaneous, as well as $41,424.68 written off for depreciation of plant and equipment.

Concerning development, Mr. Wende says:

"Sinking of No. 3 shaft was continued from 865-ft. to 1021-ft., with station at the 1,000-ft. level. The drifting done during the latter part of the year on the 800-ft. level consisted of about 500 feet all in very good grade of ore, and the stoping and drifting operations on the 700-ft. level have shown up a consistently better grade of ore than on the upper levels. No lateral work was attempted at the 1,000-ft. level until recently and the results have been the development of a grade of ore equally as good as encountered at the 700 and 800-ft. levels. On the whole, development work generally was mainly confined to the upper levels.

"A diamond drill hole was run north from the 1,000-ft. level to intersect No. 1 vein at that depth, which was cut, and the core proved to contain a very good grade of milling ore. A diamond drill hole was run north from the 400-ft. level to intersect No. 1 vein at depth, and again very good milling ore was encountered."

The balance sheet shows the Wright-Hargreaves having carried $304,904.86 to surplus as a result of operations during 1923. From the net surplus including $6,423.32 with which the company commenced the year, is deducted 1923 dividends, taxes, etc., as well as $94,554.66 for preliminary development (charged of 1923) thereby leaving a free surplus balance of $55,033.56.

Trade With British South Africa and Newfoundland

NEWFOUNDLAND A GOOD CUSTOMER.

Large exports of Canadian merchandise, chiefly agricultural produce, were made to Newfoundland in the last three months of the year. The value for December was $1,287,737, and for the twelve months $10,603,238, which is two million dollars more than in 1922. Imports remained steady and were $188,915 in December. British South Africa had $665,264 of Canadian Exports in December, and $7,687,712 in the year, $2,700,000 more than in the previous year. Imports from South Africa were insignificant,—$696 for the month, and $67,724 for the year.

Naval Expert Drops Bombs Into Disarmament Conference

ROME, Feb. 18. — (Special Star-Tribune Cable. Copyright.) — Just as M. Tchitcherin, almost daily, threw sensational bombs into the Genoa conference, making Russia the most important country present, so the Russian naval envoy has begun throwing bombs into the League of Nations' disarmament conference here.

Two of the most sensational developments, it is learned are Russia's demand that the Black Sea and the Baltic Sea be declared closed zones, with Russia having the right to fortify itself to the limit within both seas, and that Russia be allowed a tonnage equal to Great Britain's under the Washington conference terms.

The present League of Nations meeting is one of experts only. These experts are formulating reports to their respective countries after their secret sessions, from which the press is excluded. On the basis of these reports each nation will inform the League whether real disarmament can possibly be arranged, whereupon the League would call a conference similar to former President Harding's conference.

But the Russian demands foreshadow disaster, the Russian envoy himself feeling that a conference probably would fail on account of Russia's demands, which he is presenting, but he declares that if Russia had been invited to the Washington conference and become a signatory of the Pacific pact and if Russia were recognized by other nations its position might alter. At present he must insist on his demands, ordered from Moscow.

MOUNT ROYAL HOTEL HELD ANNUAL MEETING

At the annual meeting of the Mount Royal Hotel Company today, at which W. M. Birks presided, a new director was added to the board in the person of A. E. Swee., of the firm of Sweet, Richards & Company, Rochester, N. Y. He replaces C. MacNeil, M.C., resigned.

Frank A. Dudley, president of United Hotels Company of America, read his address to shareholders, in which he pointed to the success of the hotel during its first year of activity. He stressed the fact that the cost of management of the Mount Royal was considerably less than that of many other large hotels, and figures were presented bearing out this statement. Mr. Dudley pointed out that the dividend on the preferred stock would not be paid at the present time in view of the fact that the directors considered it to be in the best interest of the company to conserve cash resources as much as possible for the present.

Expectations for the current year were good and the outlook was for a further increase in business over last year, which proved a most successful one for the first year of the hotel. As a barometer of the business of the Mount Royal it was pointed out that the average of room occupancy was in excess of 50 per cent, while the figure for January indicated a gain of 11 per cent over a year ago.

Shareholders also listened to remarks made by Geo. H. O'Neill, general manager of United Hotels Company in Canada, and Vernon G. Cardy, assistant manager of the hotel. Both of these addresses dealt with the operating problems which had been met during the year and the success with which these had been despatched. Figures were compared as between the Mount Royal Hotel and the Drake Hotel, of Chicago, which showed that the Mount Royal with 1,000 rooms was able to operate very much more economically than did the Drake with 750 rooms. Operating costs for the Mount Royal were some $200,000 less than those of the Drake.

The complaint was laid by M. Seferovitch, Serbian Consul General, acting on instructions received from Serbia to prosecute the ticket agent.

It is said by the Serbian Consul General that an agent of the Federal Government at Ottawa is at present in the city to represent the Dominion in the prosecution of the ticket agent, following complaints to Canada from Great Britain.

DEFENDANT SLAYS JUDGE IN COURT

Murderer Also Shoots at Wife's Lawyer and Kills Self

LINCOLN, Neb., Feb. 18.—(United Press.)—District Judge W. H. Morning was shot and killed in court today by Wallace G. Wallick, who a moment later killed himself with the same revolver.

Wallick also shot at Clifford F. Rein, lawyer for Mrs. Wallick, whose suit for non-support was being heard, but missed him.

When court convened for the day, Wallick appeared without advisers.

"I don't want a lawyer; I'm ready," Wallick said when Judge Morning questioned him. As he spoke the last words he jerked a revolver from his pocket and fired at the judge. The bullet struck him in the body, and he fell forward on his high desk.

As court attendants sprang to seize him, Wallick calmly turned his fire on Rein, but the shot went wide. Wheeling about and facing the chairs where his wife and her friends were seated, Wallick turned the revolver on himself and fired. He died within a few moments.

Physicians were called to aid Judge Morning, but he died ten minutes after the shooting.

Judge Morning had been on the District Court Bench for six years, and had recently filed for re-nomination.

SUPPORTS CHARGE AGAINST DANCING

Anglican Clergyman Declares Catholic Campaign is Courageous

An Anglican Minister supported the views of the Roman Catholic clergy of this archdiocese and of Quebec when Rev. W. H. Davison, rector of the Church of St. John the Evangelist yesterday paid tribute to the outspokenness of the recent Roman Catholic pastoral letter on dancing and public amusement and declared that the pastoral letter would commend itself to all who desire that public amusement should be kept clean and healthy.

In the course of his sermon at the morning service, the rector made reference to the recent pastoral utterances. He said that he felt that they were courageous and outspoken and that one of the greatest needs of the present time was clear and definite speaking on the moral questions of the day.

The rector regarded the recent utterances as a sort of manifesto on behalf of "clean fun," and felt that they would commend themselves to all who were desirous that public amusement should be kept clean and healthy.

BRIEFS AND JOTTINGS FROM OUR LONDON CORRESPON

KEEP CANADIANS IN OWN COUNTRY

Should Stop Emigration Before Furthering Immigration, Moore Asserts

UNDERSTAND LABOR

Says Development of Natural Resources is at a Standstill

Deeper and more thorough understanding of the laboring classes of Canada is necessary, Thomas Moore, President of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, declared before the People's Forum, in the Church of the Messiah, last night.

A great part of the present misunderstanding, and conflict between labor and other classes of people, the speaker claimed, was due to faulty knowledge of the conditions which force workers to raise their voices in protest.

The cause of labor and its fight for better conditions was just, he continued, but was held to be wrong by many people who form opinions after merely a cursory investigation into surrounding circumstances.

If the various sections of the Canadian people understood each other's needs and aims better, national problems would be solved with greater ease, Mr. Moore asserted.

One of the roots of all Canada's trouble, he said, was decentralization of thought and sympathy. In such a large country, where the population was spread over so wide an area, it was naturally hard for people to arrive at a proper understanding of all local conditions that exist.

In spite of the difficulty, however, some attempt at such understanding should be made, as it is essential to the progress of the country.

In reference to the unemployment question now puzzling government authorities, the speaker stated that conditions should be studied more carefully before any attempt is made to attract immigrants to Canada. Although the future of Canada with her natural resources, is almost unlimited, and although these resources cannot be developed without immigrants, it is nothing less than foolhardiness, he said, to urge people to come here as long as the resources are not being properly developed.

As a bait to attract settlers from the Old Country, Canada's vast resources are widely advertised. Nothing is said, however, about the standstill that has come in their development.

"The large industries," he said, "exercise more power in this country than any Government can ever begin to think of. What is the good of unlimited natural resources if the workers are not allowed to develop them? he demanded. Mr. Moore asked for a little Christian charity in dealing with men during an unemployment crisis.

AGAINST OPEN DOOR.

Labor, Mr. Moore emphasized, was against the open door policy of immigration until such time as employment was certain for the new comers. The workers of Canada should not suffer the injustice of being replaced by Russian and Czecho-Slovak competition. The demand of labor was for an opportunity to work and he blamed the Government for its lack of vision in the distribution of work.

"Is it unreasonable," asked Mr. Moore, "to say that the Government should defer their invitations to workers from other countries until employment has been secured for them? Nobody is more interested in the future and the welfare of Canada than labor."

Mr. Moore was firmly of the opinion that the money spent for immigration propaganda could have been much better employed in Canada, for the good of people in difficult circumstances and to hold the people in the country. Thousands of Canadian people would gladly return to the land if opportunities were opened for them.

Settlers could be held near the railways even if it was necessary to expropriate the lands held by speculators, he suggested.

KEEP PEOPLE HERE.

While many people came from the Old Country to Canada last year, the country gained only an exceedingly small number in population because nearly as many native born Canadians left the country during the period.

Mr. Moore closed his remarks on unemployment with defence of the worker. Regardless of all that has been said to the contrary, he asserted, workers in general recognized that it was necessary to labor to live. They were willing to work, but demanded better conditions in many directions.

The charge that labor did not display signs of patriotism, and did not have at heart the good of the country, he characterized as false. He was doubtful, he said, if any part of Canada had sent more men overseas during the late war, than Sydney, Nova Scotia, where the population is made up almost entirely of mine workers.

CHOOSE FOURTH "QUEEN" TONIGHT

Also Announce Name of "Queen of Carnival" This Evening

The snowshoeing "Queen" will be selected this evening on Cartier Park, St. Henri, by the judges appointed by the Winter Sports Committee. The representative snowshoe clubs affiliated with the East and West Unions will be out in full costume, and enthusiasm is running high as it is expected there will be a large number of contestants. This will be the fourth "Queen" to be appointed, and from these four one will be selected upon which the title of "Queen of the Carnival" will be conferred.

J. T. Fitzgerald, the manager, announced definitely this morning that after the selection of the snowshoe queen the judges would announce the "Queen of the Carnival."

The judges who will officiate will be the same as in the three previous contests: Messrs. Henri Hebert, sculptor; C. F. Notman, photographer; Hal Ross Perrigard, artist; and W. Cormier, architect.

Friday night, the closing of the festivities, promises to be a real gala night, and the arrangements are going rapidly forward under the direction of Jimmie Rice. The Canadian National Railway have signified their intention of entering a decorated float and several other promises have also been received, while numerous athletic clubs in the city will take part.

A special letter of appeal has been sent to thousands of the citizens of Montreal for a get-together, including hundreds of business men and all social organizations, by Mr. Rice, and there is every reason to believe that the affair will meet with as great a success as the opening night on the mountain.

There will be decorated floats, the "Queen of the Carnival," accompanied by her maids of honor, hundreds of snowshoers, skiers and tobogganers in fancy dress and winter sports costumes, a great parade, fireworks and bonfires, and a grand finale on Dominion square.

Fifteen prizes will be given—five for snowshoers, five for skiers, and five for fancy dress.

FLAT IS BURNED

Two sets of flats on Lafayette street, Montreal South, narrowly escaped total destruction on Saturday night, by a fire of undetermined origin which broke out at 10.30 o'clock in the kitchen of Alfred Janson, 23 Lafayette street. Firemen from Longueuil and St. Lambert answered the call and had a stiff fight for over an hour to confine the flames to the Janson flat. Damage was estimated at $2,000.

SKATING CARNIVAL.

St. Paul enjoyed an excellent carnival Friday night on the Parks and Playgrounds rink on Church avenue. The carnival was organized and carried out by the recreation committee of St. Paul Y. M. C. A. Music was supplied by the Ville Emard band, under the leadership of R. Piche. Over one thousand spectators enjoyed the music and the costumes. About five hundred others were skating.

VISIT TECHNICAL CLASSES.

Arrangements have been made for the Governors of the Montreal Technical Institute and their friends to visit the evening technical classes in the Commercial High School, 53 Sherbrooke street west, between 7:30 and 9:30 o'clock this evening.

All Ports Except London Paralyzed By Men's Walkout

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Associated Press.)—The dock strike which was declared Saturday noon, affecting 120,000 men in the ports of the United Kingdom, was expected to reach full effectiveness today, according to officials of the Transport and General Workers' Union. The country is threatened with a blockade from within as complete as that which the German U-boats vainly tried to achieve during the war.

As regards London, no hope is based on the action of the "blue ticket union," a new and hitherto unrecognized rival of the Transport Workers' Union, the executive of which has raised a "stay-in strike" cry under which the men would continue on duty but go slow on piece work and refuse to do overtime.

This action is viewed at injuring the transport union and "enforcing recognition of the blue tickets" by the employers, who have hitherto ignored the existence of the organization. There is a demand in some quarters that this attitude should be met by the employers immediately locking out the blues.

The papers express sympathy in the first place with the public at being made the victims of a quarrel between two comparatively small sections of the community but the dockers' position in the dispute is regarded by some of the commentators as worthier of defence than that of the employers. The latter are accused of showing indifference at the outset, followed by high-handed brusqueness in the later stages of the negotiations.

At the same time the workers are held in many quarters to have weakened their cause by angry impatience and their refusal of arbitration on the demand for a shilling more increase than the employers are willing to concede receives considerable condemnation as showing what the commentators term selfish indifference to the welfare of the general public.

MAILS ALL TIED UP.

The immediate effect of the strike, so far as London is concerned, is a lack of mails from Canada and the United States. In the city offices much grumbling was heard at the considerable inconvenience caused by the non-delivery of the mails, held up at Plymouth.

The Smithfield market was almost bare of supplies this morning because the meat porters refused to handle meat taken from storage, and retail merchants from the suburbs who assembled early had great difficulty in getting enough for their immediate needs.

The dockers lined up in full force outside the dock gates in the early hours but only as spectators. A large force of police was on hand to care for possible trouble when the rival union stevedores commenced work, but quiet prevailed.

Inside the docks the scene was one of desolation. Several steamers had arrived during the night with full cargoes but the only work going on was that performed by the regular employes of the Port of London Authority.

Mails to and from America are likely to be tied up at the docks on this side for the duration of the strike unless some emergency arrangement for handling them is made. Postal officials said there existed a stipulation providing that post office employes must not load or unload mail bags on ships or tenders, these operations being left to the dock workers.

The White Star liner Olympic, sailing on Wednesday, would in the ordinary course of events carry a large amount of mail, but the postal officials said the present prospects were that none would be taken aboard. Five thousand bags of mail are stacked in tender at Plymouth but a few yards from the railway tracks leading to London.

AGED WOMAN IS HOLD-UP VICTIM

Savings of $50 Taken from Stocking by Two Thieves

Holding up Mrs. Florida Gosselin, 70-year-old widow, in her little grocery store at 1285 Berri street, shortly after 11 o'clock on Saturday night, two armed men stole $50, the old lady's savings, from the stocking where she had concealed it.

The case has caused considerable indignation in the district where it occurred, and the police are receiving many offers from citizens to help in the search for the hold-up men.

Mrs. Gosselin told the police and Sergeant-Detectives Martin and Gorman that she was about to close up for the night. She lives in two rooms behind her store.

Two men entered the store and one of them asked for cigarettes. As she bent down behind the counter to get them the men drew revolvers and covered her. "If you shout we will kill you," they told her, the woman said.

They then demanded money, and when told that the old lady had none, one of the men said, "We know where it is," and pulled a roll of bills from the aged widow's stocking. They then ran away.

"It was not much money, but it was all I had, and I had been saving for it a long time. It was for a rainy day," the victim of the hold-up, unnerved by her experience, told neighbors who came in response to her calls for help.

LAMENT DEATH OF FATHER BROPHY

The following resolution of sympathy was sent to Miss Brophy and members of the family on the death of her brother, the late Rev. J. C. Brophy, D.D., by the Professors of the Loyola School of Sociology and Social Service. Father Brophy was a founder of the school and remained a professor in it until his death.

"That the Professors of the Loyola School of Sociology and Social Service have learned with profound sorrow of the death of their beloved and distinguished confrere, Reverend John C. Brophy, D.D., whose scholarly attainments, loveable personality, personal holiness, and unquenchable zeal in the cause of education had made him pre-eminent as a leader and teacher in Montreal.

"That they desire to record their deep gratitude for his invaluable services in organizing, encouraging and carrying on the Loyola School of Sociology and Social Service, more especially for the sacrifices made by him in adding to his heavy parochial responsibilities the labor of his inspiring lecture courses in Apologetics and Ethics.

"That the Professors desire to unite in offering heartfelt sympathy to Miss Brophy and other members of the family whose grief in this irreparable loss they so keenly share."

BUYS ART WORKS

Province Gets Works by Emmanuel Fougerat

Hon. Athanase David, Provincial Secretary, acting in the name of the Provincial Government, purchased three more pictures to be added to the growing collection of the Government. This purchase was made in the course of a visit to the exhibition of pictures, portraits and drawings by Emmanuel Fougerat, director of L'Ecole des Beaux-Arts of Montreal, held in the galleries of Sidney Carter, 340 Dorchester street west.

The purchases made by Hon. Mr. David for the Government comprise one oil and two drawings. The painting entitled "L'inspiration," which was exhibited at the Paris Salon in 1913, shows a young woman in a striped dress sitting before an easel pondering and awaiting the whisper which will set her painting. The picture, which is a good example of Mr. Fougerat's work, is marked by fluent brushwork and quiet color. The two drawings, which are done with a crisp, decisive line, are "Chanoine Breton" and "Vieux Paysan."

TEMPLE TWICE AS OLD AS TUT'S TOMB

Oldest Building in World Above Ground in Babylon

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press) — The oldest building in the world still standing above ground has been found by the joint expedition of the British Museum, and the University Museum, Philadelphia, at Tell el Obeid, Babylonia, four miles from Ur of the Chaldees of Biblical fame.

This was announced last night by Dr. George B. Gordon, director of the University Museum in making public a report from Dr. C. Leonard Woolley, head of the joint expedition on the banks of the Euphrates.

The excavation of this building, a temple, has brought to light marvelous carvings of animals and men and moved the already ancient history of Babylonia back another 1,000 years. The building is more than 6,000 years old and its history is placed at a period as far removed from King Tutankhamen in the past as the present generation is removed from him in known history.

HEBRIDES NATIVES IN DIRE DISTRESS

Fund Started to Help Crofters of Lewis

LONDON, Feb. 18. — (Canadian Press.). — The Lord Mayor of London has issued an appeal on behalf of the population of the Highlands and Islands of Scotland who have been reduced to destitution by the failure of the harvest.

"The population of the Hebrides," the appeal states, "have been suffering for some time a distress unparalleled for severity in the memory of the present generation, and are now approaching the climax of their ordeal. It is generally recognized that the next two or three months will be the most trying time of their cruel experience. Their supply of home produced foodstuffs will be completely exhausted in many households, especially in Lewis, the Western Isles, and parts of the mainland, in the course of a few weeks, and they will be driven to depend in deepening degree upon the charitable funds which are being raised for their relief.

"Their plight is already very acute and threatens to become desperate. Families are having to subsist today almost entirely on bare meal scones and tea or cocoa, and so economical have they to be in the use of that limited fare that children are obviously suffering from inadequate nourishment."

It is estimated that at least £25,000 will be required for Lewis alone in aid, apart from the relief afforded by the promotion of road making work by the Government departments, in order to tide the Lewis community over the period of distress.

Contributions towards the distress fund are being received at the Mansion House, and will be forwarded to the recognized quarters for allocation.

Crown Takes Action To Recover Monies From Excise Officer

WINNIPEG, Feb. 18 — (Canadian Press) — The King is plaintiff in an action entered in the Manitoba courts against Charles Hill and his wife claiming $10,593 which, it is alleged, Hill collected while an excise officer on the Department of Customs and neglected to turn over to the department. The statement of claim asserts that Hill was a customs employe between 1916 and 1923. His whereabouts are unknown, and for some time a warrant has been in the hands of the Winnipeg police for his arrest on a charge of theft.

DICTATORS QUIT POST IN BAVARIA

Von Kahr and Lossow Let Go the Reins of Power

BERLIN, Feb. 18. — (United Press.) — Dictator von Kahr and General Lossow, heads of the Bavarian Government, resigned today.

The dictatorship powers held by the former were returned to the Bavarian State Cabinet.

Retirement of von Kahr lightens the Marx Government's ever-recurrent problems of adjusting controversies with Bavaria.

Von Kahr and General Lossow were known as "putschists." They had become extremely unpopular because of a story that the former broke his word of honor in connection with the recently frustrated "beer cellar putsch," a thing unbearable from an officer or Government head.

TWO SPLENDID STATIONS SERVED

The selection of a train route between two cities necessarily entails consideration not only of the comfort to be obtained, and the convenience and quickness of train service, but the convenience of stations at each end. Windsor Station at Montreal and the Central on Chicago's famous Michigan Avenue are the most commodious and convenient in the two cities and have the advantage of being served by the Canadian Pacific Railway which offers a frequent service. Through fast trains leave Windsor Station 9.15 A.M. and 11.00 P.M. daily, arriving Chicago, Central Station, 8.00 A.M. and 9.05 P.M. and 8.47 A.M. daily, arriving Montreal, Windsor Station, 5.40 P.M. and 8.00 A.M. respectively, the following day.

MONTREAL MERCHANT DIED AGED 77 YEARS

Charles Langlois Was Prominent in Produce Business

The death occurred on Saturday of Charles Langlois, president of Gunn, Langlois and Co., Ltd., one of the most prominent and successful produce merchants in Canada, after a short illness. He was in his 77th year.

He was born on January 5, 1848, the son of Joseph L. Langlois and Zoe Fortier, at Ste. Scholastique, Que., and began his career as a clerk in a general store when only fourteen years old. When seventeen years old he became a baker, and operated a bakery from 1865 to 1874. He was in the grocery business at West Meriden, Conn., but returned to Montreal and remained in the same business for seven years.

He began as a wholesale provision merchant in 1881, and successfully increased his commercial undertakings.

Mr. Langlois was a philanthropist, and gave considerable sums to charity, particularly within his own parish of St. James. He invariably remained anonymous, and this trait in his character was referred to at some length by Father Gauthier, of St. James Church, during the sermon yesterday.

He was a constant advocate of the "back to the land" idea, and was active in colonization. He owned several big farms, including a poultry farm at St. Jerome, and a duck farm near Brome Lake.

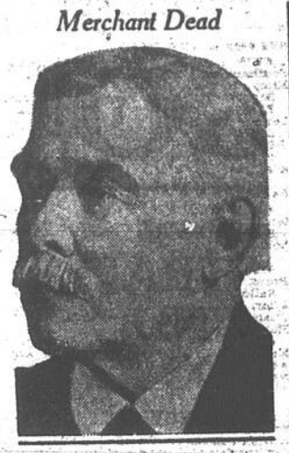

Mr. Langlois married three times. His first wife was Miss Philomene Fortier, whom he married in 1868. In 1881 he married Miss Marie Chapleau, and in 1922 Miss Marie Matte, who survives. There are nine children living, namely, Charles L., Achille, Rodrigue, Philippe, Dr. Charles A., Marcel, Mrs. Horace Tessier, Mrs. Tancrede Marsan and Miss Francois Langlois. Two brothers and two sisters also survive. They are: Rev. Pierre Langlois, cure of Tecumseh, Ont., and Joseph E. Langlois, of Ottawa, and Mrs. J. H. Leroux and Mrs. Etienne Boudet, of Montreal.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 8:30 o'clock, when a service will be celebrated in St. James Church, St. Denis and St. Catherine streets. The mourners and friends will meet at the residence, 886 St. Hubert street.

CHALMERS CHURCH.

The annual meeting of Chalmers Church, Verdun, was held Wednesday evening. The pastor, Rev. S. S. Burns, B.D., occupied the chair. Very encouraging reports were given from all departments of the work. All liabilities were met. Total contributions for the work amounted to $14,548, of which $1,545 was given to missions; 112 members were added to the membership of the church, which is now 767.

BOSTON DENTAL COMPANY

"Like Water Runs Off a Duck's Back"

Have all my suggestions during the past year made very little impression upon you?
Each week during this period I have brought out some particular point about my material and services. I have also tried very hard to impress upon you the importance of dental work.
I have also used out of the ordinary sentences to obtain your attention, knowing that most of the people don't look for dental advertisements, and many avoid them, as they bring about remembrances of the fact that their teeth are not what they should be.
It's wasted energy to many, while to others it's of the 100% effectiveness. On the whole there's a good percentage who respond to my appeals.
I feel that my frankness will eventually become more effective from time to time, and that the result will be better for all concerned.
Of late the percentage is greater in my favor than it ever was, and all I want is encouragement to make me keep up my enthusiasm, add to the percentage of readers that are responsive to and influenced by my appeals by coming here for dental work before the week is out.
Yours for Persistency,
DR. NOEL DECARIE.

Crowning Teeth

With Gold or Porcelain $5

Placing a crown on a tooth is the only way to get service from healthy roots of your teeth. The old way of pulling out roots has been abandoned by Dr. Decarie's Dentists, except in rare cases. Some of the most serviceable teeth are those that have been crowned. For instance, a gold crowned tooth will do better service than a healthy tooth. A porcelain tooth will look like your own teeth, and it also fits over a badly decayed tooth which is healthy at the root.

The gold in our crowns is genuine 22 karat, the porcelain positively the best at any price. All gold crowns are reinforced where the wear comes. These crowns put on with no discomfort to you in a few minutes.

Bridge-work, Gold or Porcelain is the best way of replacing teeth or decayed ones that are beyond the state of crowning or filling.

Fillings — Gold, Porcelain and Alloy, $1 up

Silver and Cement Fillings, 50c up. Placing a filling in a tooth is not all there is to the work of filling a tooth. It must always needs cleaning out thoroughly. It took nature, in many cases, months to make the decayed part, and it is not to be expected that human hands can rectify this condition in a day. It's better to clean out the tooth and sometimes to destroy the nerve. This is done by treatment and it is the best method to employ. Filling the tooth is the last thing to do aside from making it even, thereby leaving no rough edges. After they do this work they guarantee the filling to stay in the tooth.

TEETH CLEANED BY EXPERTS

Do you want your mouth to look and feel good? Have your teeth cleaned by us. The cost is very little and it requires only a few minutes.

The most Hygienic Dental Office in the world.

Every instrument used is sterilized whenever used. Every modern convenience and every new equipment that is successful has been added to this suite of offices.

X-RAY

Are you suffering from an ailment that won't yield to medical treatment? If you are, you should have your teeth X-rayed. We now know that many bodily ailments are attributable to disease of the teeth, and physicians send us patients daily for examination. Our X-ray Department is equipped with the latest scientific apparatus for correct diagnosis and for searching those spots that lurk at the bottom of apparently sound teeth. Only $2.00.

Because you have one tooth or three teeth out, there is no necessity for having plates made. Our Bridgework Specialists, by making an attachment to the healthy and adjoining teeth, can replace the missing teeth without requiring you to wear a plate. It will be of Gold or Porcelain. Our Gold backed Bridges will give you service for many years.

YOUR PLATE REPAIRED WHILE YOU WAIT.

Come in and see how we do it.

Out of town people can send their plates by mail to have them repaired. Prompt attention, first class work and moderate price, $1.00 up. Try it once, we guarantee satisfaction.

WORLD FAMOUS LIBRARY HANDED OVER TO PUBLIC

J. Pierpont Morgan Creates Memorial to His Father

MANY TREASURES

Magnificent Building in New York Included in Gift

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—(Star Special Cable.) — The Pierpont Morgan library containing priceless books and manuscripts, collected by the late J. Pierpont Morgan and added to by his son, the present head of the house, is to be permanently opened to the public, only as a reference library for scholars.

The announcement was made Saturday by J. Pierpont Morgan, who said:

"As a memorial to my father, the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and for the use of scholars, I have conveyed the library created by him, its contents and the land upon which it stands, to a board of trustees, together with an endowment sufficient for its permanent existence. It has been designated as the Pierpont Morgan library, and its character and purpose are set forth by my letter to the trustees and by extracts from the deed of conveyance."

The endowment fund referred to is $1,500,000. The 19,000 books, prints, manuscripts and other literary treasures contained in the library at the time of the elder Mr. Morgan's death, March 31, 1913, were appraised at that time at $4,096,666. Since then the present Mr. Morgan has added 6,000 other items to the collection, roughly estimated to have cost $1,000,000. The building, which now houses the collection, is valued at $1,500,000, the land upon which it stands at $1,000,000, so the total value of the memorial as it now stands may be estimated at $8,500,000.

This, however, is probably an extremely conservative estimate. Of the 25,000 items in the collection, 10,000 are said by experts to be such rare literary treasures that if they were disposed of by auction they alone might bring the $5,000,000 which the entire collection cost.

HOUSED IN MANSION.

The collections have been housed since 1906 in the white marble building designed by Charles F. McKim, which stands on the north side of East Thirty-Sixth Street, between Madison and Park Avenues, and which has been classed as a masterpiece of modern architecture. The land has a frontage of 136 feet, and is 99 feet deep, with a ten-foot roadway running through to Thirty-Seventh St.

No change from this locality is at present contemplated, but the trustees are given full power to select another location, anywhere within the State of New York, if and when they desire to do so. They are also authorized to enlarge or alter the present building. The deed only stipulates that the Pierpont Morgan library shall not be absorbed by or merged or consolidated with any other institution, nor shall any steps be taken whereby it may in any degree lose its identity, prior to the expiration of one hundred years, from March 31, 1913, the date of the death of J. Pierpont Morgan, father of the founder.

The beautiful white marble building, its furnishings and its priceless literary treasures have been ranked as the greatest private library the world has ever known, and described by one writer as "the perfect library, the vision that has seemed impossible of realization, the Soria-Moria castle where all the dreams of the Bibliophile come true—the most carefully guarded treasure-house in the world."

PRICELESS TREASURES.

Some of the principal collections within its walls are 520 volumes of illuminated manuscripts dating from the sixth to the sixteenth century; Creek and Egyptian papyris, dating from the third century before Christ; the first printed Bibles, and numberless volumes dating from the very inception of printing in the fifteenth century; first editions of Shakespeare's plays, beyond price; books illumined by hand and bound with covers studded with amethysts, garnets, crystals and other jewels; books which belonged to kings and princesses of centuries ago; the original manuscripts of masterpieces of literature; and litterally thousands of letters and documents written by famous people of all lands and all ages.

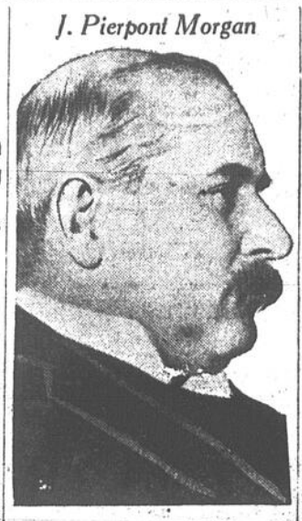

There are, for example—the list is so bewilderingly long that it cannot be reproduced in a thousandth part—the autographed letters written by Queen Marie Antoinette during the last years of her life; the manuscript of Victor Hugo's "Diary of an Exile"; many manuscripts, poems and letters by John Keats; the manuscripts of Dickens' "The Cricket on the Hearth" and many other stories; manuscripts of George Meredith's novels; the original manuscripts of poems and letters of Walt Whitman; the original manuscript of Edgar Allan Poe's "Annabel Lee."

FAMOUS LETTERS.

There are volumes containing George Washington's correspondence with Jefferson, Madison and other revolutionary leaders; his letters to the King of Prussia and to the Emperor of Germany, asking for the release of Lafayette; letters and documents written by Washington, Lord Cornwallis, Lafayette and others during the campaign around Yorktown; letters, by Abroham Lincoln, Grover Cleveland, Theodore Roosevelt and other American statesmen; yellowed pages which took words straight from the hands of scores of famous Americans.

Some of these books and manuscripts are actually so valuable that they are contained in a room specially constructed within the building, with walls of steel and a thick steel door. It holds among other treasures the volume known as the "Golden Gospels," engrossed on vellum pages colored by a lost process, illuminated by an Anglo-Saxon scribe nearly thirteen centuries ago and presented to King Henry VIII. by Pope-Leo X.

J. Pierpont Morgan

Who transfers to the American public his mansion and library in New York as a memorial to his father. The value of the gift is estimated by Mr. Morgan at $8,500,000.

BAVARIA REFUSES MACDONALD'S PLEA

Inter-Allied Provisional Gov't Takes Reins in Palatinate

BERLIN, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press) — Acting on Premier MacDonald's instructions, Robert Clive, the British consul at Munich, has urged the Bavarian premier, Dr. von Knilling, to use his Government's influence with the nationalist organizations in the Palatinate to prevent acts of violence calculated to delay the restoration of German administration there.

The Bavarian Government after careful examination has replied that it will be unable to take the suggested action, because the events at Pilmasens were not artifically created, but were a natural outbreak among the terrorized populace, for which the nationalist organizations were in no way responsible. Moreover, he added, the Bavarian Government had no authority in the palatinate.

AUTONOMY OVER.

SPEYER, Bavaria, Feb. 18 — (Associated Press) — The autonomous government pulled down its green, white and red flag at 8 o'clock yesterday morning and the public buildings were turned over to control throughout the district of the provisional government established by the inter-Allied investigating committee which is pledged to maintain order and to make no changes in the administrative organization.

Dr. Bayers Dorg, a Neustadt lawyer, yesterday proclaimed his assumption of power, simultaneously with the inter-Allied commission's announcement that the population would be disarmed, reprisals would be rigorously punished and illegal organizations suppressed.

OBREGON PLANS ATTACK ON REBELS

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press).—President Obregon and Minister of War Derrano arrived in Mexico City Saturday from Guadalajara. Obregon declared a definite advance against the rebels in Morelia, capital of the state of Nichoacan, already had been started. Generals Juan Jose Rios and Epifanio Rodriguez are marching along the Acambaro railway, while General Gonzalo Escobar and Vicente Gonzales are marching from Jalisco to co-operate in the attack on the city.

CRUDE COUNTERFIET PLOT.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 18.—(Associated Press).—Although they place little credence in the story, secret service officials are investigating statements made by A. C. Habbicht, arrested in the recent counterfeiting round-up that Reserve Bank officials and other prominent men were parties to a gigantic counterfeiting ring.

Habbicht was arrested in New York Friday and is held with three others in what secret service officials describe as a crude effort to put out counterfeit federal reserve notes.

BE YOUR OWN EXECUTOR

Has it ever occurred to you that soon after your death your estate, however large, may dwindle away owing to the inexperience of your heirs in business matters?

You need have no apprehension that your dependents will thus come to want if you make adequate provision for them by means of an Imperial Life policy.

Because every such policy contains a provision under which you may specify that the proceeds shall be paid in monthly, quarter-yearly, half-yearly or yearly instalments for 5, 10, 15, 20, 25 or 30 years, instead of in one sum.

While in the calculation of the instalments a definite rate of interest is guaranteed, such payments in the case of participating policies will be increased by sharing in the interest which the Company earns in excess of this guaranteed rate.

The O'ROSSEN TAILLEUR
Sets the Mode for Spring

This newest note in tailored suits, a charming affair on boyish lines, is variously interpreted but in all phases reveals the feminine love for the tailored suit, smartly severe in cut.

It is here, in the variations sponsored by Paris. The Roundabout with corners cut away, the Luncheon, link buttons and faille bound lapels, the Square Cut, most mannish of all—and others in Poiret and Lorraine twills, twill cords, English pin stripe worsteds, wool tweeds and plaids.

A gardenia in the lapel, a gay hankie and vest piping, a vestee, a fob dangling from the breast pocket—all trifling touches but the trifles that make the O'Rossen Tailleur perfection.

The Prices—44.75, 49.75, 54.75, 59.75 and 64.75.

The TAILORED FROCK
Is Often Colorful

Reproductions of the smartest of the French frocks have arrived. A coat type model, developed in Bluette Repp, has a gown of soft white silk with a double ruffle from neck to hem; over this for street wear goes along, straight line coat of the blue, which reveals the ruffled underdress.

A French military frock is fascinating — navy blue in color, with military red facings and a touch of silver braid, it reverses all your ideas by being caped in front, the long ties hanging down the back.

One large revere of white cloth, heavily embroidered with gold thread, gives an otherwise plain frock of navy twill a very smart air. The flaring cuffs reproduce the revere.

So the story goes—severity—brilliancy of color—tailoring that gives wonderful lines —the art of all nations brought into play —all for miladi's Spring attire and pleasure.

In Crepellas and Repps we are showing hand-drawn models, straight in line, or with set-in pleated panels. Collars, cuffs and handkerchiefs of net, lawn and lace are a new touch. 24.75 to 69.75.

GORGEOUS DEAUVILLE SHAWLS
Just in From Paris

Shawls and handkerchiefs, brilliantly patterned crepe, which are thrown over the shoulders by the girl who dances, much as grandmother used to wear her shawl, or tucked under the girdle of a plain frock to add a note of color—many are the ways in which they may be worn. To be up to the minute, one must simply have at least one of these fascinating shawls. Prices $8 to $15.
