FIRE DEPARTMENT.
During the past 16 years the Fire business of this Branch of the Company has steadily increased, until it now stands in the front rank of Insurance Companies. The Company is represented in all the cities, towns and villages throughout the land, by active business men, whose efforts have secured for it a large share of first-class custom in their several localities. In the administration of this business and in the settlement of claims, the Directors have endeavoured to act with liberality and promptitude, and in all doubtful questions (excluding fraudulent ones) to give the benefit of the doubt to the assured, so that no delay might occur in arriving at the amount of a loss or in settling it when ascertained.

LIFE DEPARTMENT.
The Directors would call attention to the moderate rates at which they are prepared to grant Life Policies and Annuities, and respectfully solicit a comparison of their terms with other first-class English Companies.
Persons assuring under Table No. 2, with Guaranteed Bonus, (a form of assurance peculiar to this Company), should they reach a certain specified age, may leave to their heirs, in addition to the original sum assured, all Premiums paid during their lifetime, (including a certain amount of interest), the whole not exceeding an amount double the sum originally assured.
No extra charge for military service in defence of the Country.
All Claims are payable thirty days after admission of same.
The Campany's Life Tables and Prospectus, will be gladly furnished by the Company's Agents throughout Canada, and also by
G. F. C. SMITH,
Resident Secretary, Canada Branch.

MOODIE'S NEW TAP,
PATENTED MARCH 28, 1866.
THE superiority of this over every other Tap consists in its great simplicity. When once fitted up, a Plumber will not afterwards be required, consequently saving a considerable expense and annoyance. Should it at any time leak, turn off the water, unscrew the tap, lift out the cap and insert a new washer, which any one may do. It will, though it may have been twenty years in use, be as good as new. The Taps are peculiarly adapted wherever there is a high pressure, such as in Montreal.
Orders left at Messrs. Benning & Barsalou's will be attended to.
N.B.—Mr. MOODIE is willing to sell the Patent Right for Canada, or treat with any responsible house to introduce it to the public.

SPECIAL TELEGRAMS.

(Reported Specially for the Montreal Herald.)

THE FENIAN TRIALS AT TORONTO.

TORONTO, Nov. 13.

The Court met this morning.

Thomas School was first placed in the dock.

The prisoner's counsel put in an affidavit certifying that two witnesses were absent, who would swear that the prisoner was carried into Canada in a state of intoxication, against his will, and another witness who would swear that the moment the Fenians left he threw down the arms which they had forced him to take up.

The Crown allowed the affidavit, and the case was postponed.

Daniel Whelan was next placed in the dock; when questioned he stated he was not ready for his trial.

Mr. K. McKenzie—It is my intention my Lord, to advise the prisoner to challenge array, but I am not prepared to go on with the case.

Hon. J. H. Cameron—The trial was fixed for this day and must go on in the absence of any proper reasons for putting it off.

Mr. MsKenz'e—I am going to challenge the array on the grounds that they are not selected according to the provisions of the statute for selecting jurors and juries. The objections were very long and in substance are as follows:—

1st. Because the said panel was made from as illegal and insufficient jury list.

2nd. Not selected from the roll in 1866 in open court.

3rd. Not selected at any sitting or an adjourned sitting in the presence of the court.

4th. Not selected by three or more selectors, but by a less number than three.

5th. Full Jury list not called.

6th. That five hundred names are qualified.

7th. That the Chairman of Quarter Sessions and the clerk of the peace have not certified that the list was duly selected.

8th. That names and addition of persons were not openly and audibly called by the clerk of the peace, and questions not put as to selections.

9th. That names were not transferred in accordance with the 53rd section of the Jury Act.

Hon J. H. Cameron—I submit my Lord that under the law at present in force in this country my learned friend has no right to challenge the Jury upon grounds stated in the objection.

A long argument here ensued between the counsel for the Crown and Mr. McKenzie, who insisted that the only course open to the Crown was to demur or traverse, whilst Mr. Cameron stated that they would do neither the one nor the other.

His Lordship - I believe my learned brother, Chief Justice Draper is at present in town, I should like to consult with him before I give judgment. My present impression is against the challenge.

At 12 o'clock his Lordship adjourned the Court till two.

The Court resumed its sitting at 2 o'clock.

Mr. R A. Harrison moved that his Lordship should overrule the challenge, on the ground that the case was not of that class wherein a jury can be challenged, according to the statutes of this country.

Mr. K. McKenzie—I am prepared to shew cause why your Lordship should not rule so.

His Lordship—I am prepared to hear you if you think it necessary.

[illegible], my Lord, of course. After I have argued the case, if you are still against me, then I shall be prepared to take the course which I and my learned friends have agreed to.

Mr. R. A. Harrison—Take a bill of exceptions I suppose.

Mr. McKenzie—Certainly.

Mr. McKenzie argued his objections at great length, his speech occupied several hours.

His Lordship refused to admit of the challenge, and the court adjourned at 6 o'clock.

Mr. McKenzie will to-morrow move to quash the panel. He intends to take the same course in each future trial, his object is understood to be to gain time, or have as many trials as possible postponed until the next Assizes.

GENERAL PRESS DESPATCHES.

(BY ATLANTIC CABLE.)

PARIS, Nov. 13.—The rumour that by a secret treaty the army of Belgium is placed at the disposal of the French Emperor in the event of a war, is discredited.

LIVERPOOL, Evening, Nov. 12.—Cotton sales to-day are 8,000 bales, Middling Uplands closed at 14⅞ to 14¾. Breadstuffs firm. Corn has advanced to 37s for mixed Western.

LONDON, Monday Evening, Nov 12.—Money firm Consols closed 89⅜; Erie shares 51⅜; Ill. C 78; U S 5-20's 69¼.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The official vote of Delaware for Governor gives Saulsbury (Dem.) 1,212 majority.

The Herald's Washington telegram says, the best posted parties in Washington are of opinion that the present negotiations will terminate in U. S. establishing a protectorate over the Mexican territory.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—Mr. Rose, of Montreal, who is the coadjutor of Judge Johnson, of Albany, on the commission to arrange indemnities arising under the settlement of the north-western boundary between the United States and Great Britain, arrived here this evening.

The King of Italy was suggested as umpire of the commission, but the British Government waived any right in that relation, and Judge B. R. Curtis, of Mass, was selected. The interests of the Hudson Bay Company are involved in the decision of the commission.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Herald's city of Mexico correspondence says: Maximilian's abdication was unknown until he was almost ready to start on the road. He met General Castelnau, but only made a passing salute, and would not admit of a conference. Later it was thought he would return to the capital; but, in that case, Marshal Bazaine had intended to send him under guard to Vera Cruz. Castelnau was being treated very cavalierly by Bazaine, who is busy making new contracts for army supplies, and for a length of time which does not look to a speedy departure of the troops. As soon as Maximilian is known to have left the country, Bazaine will declare himself dictator.

The Herald's Havana correspondent of Nov. 6, says:—The customary reception was given to Manzano, the new Captain-General, on his arrival. His first proclamation evinces a settled determination to suppress the slave-trade.

The Tribune's New Orleans telegram says:—Half-a-dozen murders of late Union soldiers have recently been committed in the parish of St Laundry. The facts were officially brought to the notice of Gen. Sheridan by Governor Fells, but, in consequence of the revoking of the orders, nothing can be done. There is no longer any protection for Union men in the South, and the show of continuing martial law is simply a farce. Col. McIvor, late of the rebel army, who has been held under military arrest, has been released.

The Tribune's Leavenworth telegram says, five women and children taken captive by the Kiowa Indians, were delivered to Col. Leavenworth at Fort Larue last Monday.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Post's money article says loans are easy at 4 per cent. Stock market feverish, unsettled and dull. Governments steady. Railroad shares dull and depressed. After the regular board N Y C was 114¼; Erie 81¼; Hudson 124; Reading 115⅝; M C 112; M S 88¼; Pitts 90¼; N W 51¼; do pfd 77; Tol 117; R I 107⅞; F & W 108⅞.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The following despatch was received this noon at the office of Reuter's Telegram Co., in this city:—

LONDON, Nov. 13.—The Pope has consented to reside in Malta if forced to quit Rome.

Election riots have occurred in Genoa, but order was restored by the troops.

The Danish Diet has assembled.

The N.Y. World's Boston special says: Letters from provision houses in Liverpool bring intelligence of the shipment back to the United States, within the past six days, of between 5000 and 6000 boxes of American bacon, the sale of which on the other side at rates current would have involved too heavy a loss to the owners.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 13.—Judge Barton has just rendered his decision in the Habeas Corpus Act. He sustains the power of Gov. Swan to remove the Commissioners of Police. There was great cheering in Court on the announcement of his decision.

(BY TELEGRAPH.)

MIDNIGHT DESPATCHES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The Mississippi delegation has been informed that Jeff. Davis cannot be released at present, but that he will be furnished with every comfort compatible with his security.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13.—The Navy Department received a despatch from Admiral Bell, dated Yeddo Bay, Aug. 31st, accompained by the Wyoming. He in July proceeded to Osaca, a treaty port, which it was stipulated should be opened on 1st Jan., 1868. As the Tycoon was believed to be opposed to the opening, the Admiral anchored there for the purpose of showing his vessels, but had no intercourse with the shore. He subsequently found at Yokohama English, French and Italian men-of-war. The number of armed ships of various nationalities was thirteen.

Gen. Vanhasen, the American Minister, had reached Yeddo with a guard of honor consisting of all the marines of the squadron. The English Minister is accompanied, whenever he appears in public at Yeddo, by a guard of 30 English soldiers, and the French Minister by 100 French marines.

ERIE, PA., Nov. 13.—The day Express west on the Buffalo and Erie Railroad, was thrown off the track near Weslyville, four miles east of here, at four this p.m. Some forty persons were injured and five killed. The killed are Dr. Wheeler of Milwaukee, his daughter-in-law and her child; a man named Hunt, Dunville, N. Y.; another named Harlein, residence not known. The dead and wounded have been brought to Erie. Every comfort is afforded the wounded. The dead will be forwarded to their friends by the Railway Company. The accident was occasioned by the negligence of the workmen engaged in repairing the track.

THE SCHOOL LAWS.

"One thing is quite evident, and of that we are not ignorant—that the Minerve has given a flat contradiction to the Gazette's assertion as to what is to be done with the school law; and therefore, except by the process of setting logic at defiance, it is impossible to believe that both can be right."—Montreal Herald of yesterday.

Here is a simple issue; and the editor of the Herald states that he is "not ignorant" of the thing he alleges. We answer in one word: He is guilty of falsification. There has never been, in point of fact, a contradiction between us and La Minerve. Alluding to some absurd falsifications which have been "going the rounds," La Minerve stated in its impression of yesterday: "We have never said (referring to "the Confederate constitution) that there "would not be 'any clause relative to the rights "'of the minorities in Upper and Lower Cana-"'da.' All that we stated was that the Impe-"rial Parliament would not be called upon to "legislate on our school question. But we "have never denied the intention of our Gov-"ernment to add to the Quebec project some "clause for the protection of the rights of min-"orities. This declaration ought equally to "suffice for those who seek to place us in con-"tradiction with our contemporary the Mon-"treal Gazette."—Gazette.

It is unfortunate that this explanation, by which the Minerve seeks to show that it was not in contradiction with the Gazette, merely proves that it is in contradiction with itself. It attempts to set right the Richmond Guardian, which understood it as everybody else did; but how? It formerly sought to repel the statement believed by some persons on the authority of the Gazette, that the interests of the Protestant minority, in school matters, would be protected by something that was to be done in England, of course by a clause in the constitution hitherto declared to be unalterable. Accordingly it made a denial which was intended to convey, and did convey, the meaning, that the position of all parties, as to schools, was to be left as it is made by the Quebec Constitution, which Mr. Cartier has pledged himself not to change. But then this gave the lie to the statements made by, or on behalf of, Mr. Galt; so the Minerve had to try back, and now it says, not only that the position of the minority on one question will be changed, but that its position on an indefinite number of questions will be changed. It first denied that the minority was to have a particular protection—now it asserts that it is to have a general protection which includes the particular. It may be now in agreement with the Gazette—we believe it is; but that [illegible] directly in contradiction to it. But what concerns the public a great deal more than these backings and fillings, conducted on the same principle and for the same object as the manœuvres of the old man with the donkey, is, that it should know what really is to be done. The Gazette and the Minerve profess to be newspapers, and the Government under which we live professes to be a popular one. It has even gone through the sham of getting the assent of Parliament to the Quebec Constitution; and yet we are now told that it is about to have that Constitution altered, at its own mere will though our mysterious newsmonger would have us believe that the important secret of how this is to be done has been confided to their keeping for a purpose very inconsistent with the business of public information, which they pretend to carry on. As to our comprehension of the Minerve's first assertion it is not only that of the Richmond Guardian; but also of the Leader at Toronto, and of all the Upper Canadian Ministerialist journals which have quoted it to contradict the Gazette, and so allay the fears which the statements of that journal made for the Eastern market, had excited in the West.

MR. BRIGHT IN IRELAND.—For good or for evil, a great step has been made by Mr. Bright in carrying his agitation for reform into the sister island. One of the great misfortunes of the latter country has, in our judgment, been its isolation from the feeling and political action of Great Britain. With a legal union, the movements of opinion in the two countries have never coalesced in one great tide; but, even when they have most sympathised with each other, have at best run in the same direction, without mingling together. Politicians have formed alliances in Parliament; but the peoples in the two countries have not been conscious of any common tendency or object. We believe that this fact largely accounts for the popular desire of many Irishmen—patriotic, though as we believe mistaken Irishmen—to serve their country by separating it from England, rather than by securing such a closer incorporation as would make the smaller island a full participant in the prosperity of the larger one, and the inhabitants of Ireland, by a natural consequence, zealous for the glory and good of a country of which they had ceased to be a dependent, and had become really a part. O'Connell, to some extent, did unite the sentiments of the liberal party in the two countries, for, on particular subjects, he thought with the liberals of England, and frequently addressed public meetings in that country. But he was alienated from all English audiences on the topic which was with him the master topic. He conceived that there was no good for Ireland except in separation from England, and this was a subject on which he could never have obtained a favorable hearing from any English audience. Since his time there has been no eminent man from either side of the channel who has crossed to the other to talk with the people on common objects, and show that there was an identity of interest and feeling between the two populations. Any Irishman who should have attempted such a rapprochement must have done so under the same discouragement as Mr. O'Connell; for to this day, however little we hear of "repeal" from some of those classes of his countrymen, who followed the lead of O'Connell, there is no reason to suppose that these classes have become heartily reconciled to the position of Ireland in the Empire. A member, therefore, of the popular party in Ireland could not seek to obtain the support of the people of England by visiting and talking with them in public meetings, except he faithlessly abandoned, or hypocritically professed to abandon, the cause which is still dear to the secret hearts of his own people; and in either case, in endeavouring to curry favour with comparative strangers, he would lose the hearty support of his friends. Mr. Bright is trammelled by no such difficulty of conciliating opposite views. He is not, and certainly will not pretend to be, a revolutionist in the sense of the old repealers, or still less of the modern Fenians; but he goes to Ireland seeking to show the people there how by a sincere union with the reform party in England they may gain all the practical benefits which they seek, without resorting to revolution at all. How indeed they may do this with an enhancement of advantages from their connection with a country which is rich, and which asks nothing better than to learn how it can be liberal in such a manner as to promote the lasting good of the sister island. Mr. Bright may fail in the endeavour to convince Irish audiences that there is a better way than the one which has so long had their patronage with so little of good result; but they cannot be unwilling to listen and consider propositions which are intended to promote the ends to which they themselves aspire. Mr. Bright's trip through Ireland may and probably will have a great effect upon the movement for Parliamentary reform, which he is seeking to render effective; and it was, doubtless, in considering by what means he could best strengthen his own hands, that he hit upon the expedient of treating Ireland as if she were really, what she is technically, a part of the same political body, within which he is endeavoring to effect Parliamentary reform. But the step he has taken looks as if it might be the beginning of a new and better political life for the two countries, in which, both populations acting together instead of separately, as heretofore, shall feel that they are hereafter bound up together for good or for evil. If this shall happen, we shall see an end not only to the miserable waste of energy involved in Fenianism and kindred delusions; but to that wretched personal tergiversation, which consists in a man first making a popular character for himself by the most violent denunciations of England to Irish ears, and then taking office from England to tickle English ears by abuse of old associates and old opinions. Of course there are people who regard the objects which Mr. Bright seeks to promote on both sides of the channel, just as they and their political congeners have regarded all other wise measures, from Catholic emancipation down to the repeal of the navigation laws—with suspicion, dread, and abhorrence, until experience so established the value of all these changes as to convert the curses even of their enemies into blessings. Such persons will only the more fear and detest the measures of present reformers, as they shall see them pursuing their objects with more zeal, skill, and hopes of success, and extending their plans over a larger area. For those on the other hand, who do not believe that the end of all improvement has been reached, and who see nothing but danger alike in the disruption of the Empire, sought by such men as Stephens, and in the continued absence of all exertion, as if all men despaired of effecting any good, the endeavour to weld Irish and English opinion into one, for common political objects will seem to be a hopeful experiment.

THE LATE MR. DORION.—We learn with pleasure that a movement is on foot for purchasing by public subscription the property of the late Mr. Dorion in the village of l'Avenir. We believe that the idea is not to make this a political demonstration, and we are informed that a gentleman well known in the Township and influential in the party to which Mr. Dorion was so steadily opposed, has promised his co-operation. Independently of politics Mr. Dorion was one of the most public spirited men in the country. The village of l'Avenir owes its existence [illegible] his efforts for colonization in other directions [illegible] incessant. It is, therefore, thought that it would be no more than a fitting testimony of respect and gratitude if the public should secure his property made out of the wilderness for the occupation of his family.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE MR. J. B. DORION.

As we have previously stated, Mr. Eric Dorion died on the 1st inst., about 5 p.m. He had on that day shown himself gay and affable as usual. He attended at Mass, and after divine service addressed a few words to those whom he had so often assembled round him to give them those practical lessons which none other knew so well how to bestow. It was not, however, a discourse on politics which he delivered; but he availed himself of his influence with his fellow parishioners to make a warm appeal in favour of the unfortunate victims of the fire at Quebec. This man, who had ruined himself to do good, struggled once more to do an act of devotion and charity. He addressed people, the most of whom have no more than the strict necessaries of life, and demanded from them a new sacrifice for the succour of the unfortunates who were without bread. That voice which was never heard without producing its effects upon the inhabitants of l'Avenir, will, we have no doubt, be listened to; for the tomb which has just closed has not smothered the last echoes of the generous appeal. The accents of gratitude of the unfortunates whom he will have consoled will be the finest funeral oration over him whom they have lost. On the same day Mr. Dorion left for Richmond at about 2 p.m. He had not gone more than a few miles, however, from home, when he felt himself indisposed; stopped at the house of a friend; and becoming still more sick, asked to be taken home. He had still strength enough to get down and enter his house without assistance; but this was all he could do, and on getting inside he threw himself on a sofa. In spite of all the care of Dr. Gladu, the sick man felt himself constantly growing weaker, and he then sent for the priest, who gave him the consolations of religion in his last moments. Every one knows the sorrow with which the news of his death was received throughout the country. His funeral was announced to take place on Monday—a day which circumstances beyond their control had forced the friends of the deceased to select. A large number of friends in town intended to show their regret by their presence at the ceremony; but as it would have been necessary to leave two days in advance, there were but five or six who could undertake the journey. From 8 o'clock in the morning the village of l'Avenir was filled by a population all dressed in mourning, who crowded round the door of the deceased's residence and desired to see him once more, for the last time. We remarked people from all parts of the Counties of Drummond and Arthabaska, some of them coming from a distance of fifteen leagues. Some persons from neighbouring counties, as M. Beique, merchant of Danville, and Mr. Jones, editor of the Richmond Guardian, were also present. At 10 o'clock, the clergy came to the house. The pall bearers had been chosen from among the constituents of Mr. Dorion, and were as follows:—Messrs. H. S. Griffin, Leon Dessert, V. Cook, Jos. Paradis, Richard Picken, L. Trigane, P. Demarche, E. Gagnon, E. Bourassa, E. Connolly, and F. Jutras. Messires Dorion, of Yamascouche, the brother of the deceased, sang the service, and there were also present Messires Gouin, Marchand and Ouelletteo. We have often been present at great funeral ceremonies in Notre Dame, have seen immense crowds press forward under its roof, and mourning drapery prodigally displayed, while touching music was sung. But we have never been so impressed as by this funeral—so sublime from its simplicity. The Church of l'Avenir had hardly any mourning decorations; but the sadness and the pain of those who were present was worth more than all that. When the body was lowered into the grave the tears which were shed, the words of esteem and sorrow which were murmured, were the only eulogium pronounced over the body of the defunct. The remains of Mr. Dorion rest in the cemetery of l'Avenir. The land where his grave is dug was given by him, as well as that on which the Church is built. The Church itself had been constructed in great part by him, at the sacrifice of nearly all his fortune. He is at home. The remembrance of him will never be lost from among his fellow citizens, and his name will pass into history as that of one of the most sincere and devoted friends of his country.—Pays.

DION'S FIRE ALARM.

We have on previous occasions referred to Mr. Dion's valuable invention for the immediate discovery of fire in any building. At the tests to which it was subjected some time since in the presence of the managers of several Insurance Companies and others, it afforded general satisfaction, and it was admitted that a building with one of these alarms in it would be a much safer risk than one without. The invention may now be found in a great many private residences, as well as buildings devoted to public purposes, and those who have thus had an opportunity of observing its operation have furnished Mr. Dion with very flattering certificates of its usefulness. The alarm has been put up in the Catholic Bishop's Palace and in the chapel, and has given perfect satisfaction, and the Vicar General and others testify to it as an infallible indicator of the first appearance of fire. The experiments, indeed, which the writer has witnessed were sufficient to convince him that the inmates of a house must be warned of the very beginning of a fire in any part of a house, or in any room. A few cups-full of water may, when the fire is discovered thus early, prove sufficient to extinguish a flame which, if allowed to proceed, might destroy an entire building. The alarm is also a capital means of regulating the temperature of a private house or public hall, as it may be arranged to strike when the heat reaches any particular point. Besides the other certificates which Mr. Dion has received, he has one from eight or ten of the largest Insurance Companies of New York, testifying that "after having examined and practically tested the apparatus, we pronounce it simple in its construction and practical in its operation, and we moreover believe that the result of its adoption would tend to the prevention of losses of life and property resulting from fires by providing the means of a timely alarm being given in case of such a calamity."

A CLERICAL PICKPOCKET CASE.—A clergyman of the Episcopal Church in the States, named George T. Williams, is now undergoing examination on a charge of picking the pocket of a lady on Fifth Avenue, New York.

The Montreal Telegraph Company have opened an office at Dunham Flats. They have now offices at Granby, Farnham, Waterloo, Magog, Georgeville, Knowlton. Mansville, Abercorn, Sweetsburg, and Frelighsburgh, in the Eastern Townships.

ANOTHER NOBLE CONTRIBUTION FROM ENGLAND.—The following telegram has been received by the Mayor of Quebec; it will be seen that Her Majesty the Queen has come forward with her usual liberality:

"November 10th, 1866.

"To the Mayor of Quebec,—

"The Mayor of Manchester authorizes you to draw on Heywood, Manchester, for another £1,000 sterling; and the London Committee authorizes you to draw on Glyn, Mills & Co, for £4,000 more; making in all to date £10,000 on London and £2,000 on Manchester. The Queen has written a letter to Mr. Watkins, M.P., Chairman of the Committee, sending £300 in aid of the sufferers, with whom she deeply sympathizes.

"Secretary Fire Relief Fund, London."

CITY ITEMS.

ENGLISH OPERA.—Mr. Henry Draper, whose opera troupe have been so well received elsewhere, intends paying a visit to Montreal next week. From the very favourable notices that have appeared we augur well of the reception he will meet with here. The "Doctor of Alcantara," an opera buffo, which will be presented on Monday evening, has, as usual with these productions, a slight and by no means intricate plot, which is, however, made the vehicle for some very charming music, embracing concerted scenes and choruses as well as soloes and duets.

DUPREZ AND BENEDICT'S MINSTRELS.—The talented Company under the management of Messrs. Duprez and Benedict gave another entertainment last night. The roars of laughter and applause which greeted the performances afforded ample evidence of the appreciation of the audience, and the overflowing house showed how popular they are. There will be another change of programme to-night, and there is little doubt with a like financial result for the managers.

RECORDER'S COURT.—Joseph Navion, whose house has long been complained of as a nuisance, was brought before this Court yesterday, along with a number of the inmates. Fines were inflicted ranging from $5 to $50, the case of Navion himself being postponed till to-day. Several vagrants were fined $5 each, with the alternative of a month's imprisonment. There were 41 cases in all.

FENIAN ITEMS.

John Mitchell is about to return from Paris to New York. O'Mahoney's remittances, it is believed, being exhausted.

Canadian residents in the States are being served with notices, to quit on or before the 5th Dec, by order of the Fenian Brotherhood, on pain of death.

An alarming rumour for the Fenian leaders comes from Boston. It is said that the bonds of the Irish Republic that were issued in Massachusetts are being collected by a law firm in that city, and that the parties who issued them will be held responsible for so doing before the courts of the State.

The New York Times remarks:—

"There has been but little excitement among us in regard to the Fenian convicts, since Tuesday last: in the early part of that day they were the subject of anxious inquiry around nearly all the ticket booths, especially in the Fourth Congressional District. Before night, however, the anxiety had entirely disappeared. It did not make itself visible again either on Wednesday morning or yesterday. So that it may be safe to conclude that the radical mind, at least, is pretty thoroughly relieved; that the fate of Col. Lynch and his unfortunate companions is, at all events, not weighing quite so heavily on their honest hearts as it was three days ago, and that subscriptions for the relief of the sufferers need not be expected to pour in, just so fast as they did while the great issues of the election were as yet unsolved."

The belief prevails in England that the great fire in Quebec a month ago, and the fire which occurred in Ottawa at the same time, were the result of the desperation of Fenian leaders. Of course this impression is erroneous.

SUICIDE.—About 9 o'clock on Sunday morning, a tragedy took place in rear of a house on Duchess street, Toronto. A man named James Connell, threw himself into a well adjoining his own house. He had been suffering under an attack of delirium tremens, and strayed from the house without the knowledge of his family.

MILITIA GENERAL ORDERS.—4th Battalion "Chasseurs Canadiens" Montreal: To be Chaplain: Rev. Basil Dedebant, vice Perrault, deceased. To be Pay-Master (temporary): C. C. Spenard, vice Barsalou, resigned.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.—About 12,000 Chinamen are at work on the road-bed in California, and an additional 10,000 have been contracted for, to be put upon the line next spring, when the contractors will be grading on this slope of the Sierras and beginning to stretch their labour out on to the plains and into the valleys of Nevada. At Cisco which the completed road has now reached the locomotive screams on a spot as high as Mount Washington.

Some of the structures of the work on the last section are grandly massive. The forests of towering pines, the mountain peaks and yawning rifts and chasms, traversed by the railroad between Alta and Cisco, present a sublime panorama, which is destined to be a favourite study for the art-loving tourist.

BONNETS.—The Empress Eugenie is desirous of introducing a novelty in bonnets this winter, to be called the chapeau mantille. It is a catalane (the square headdress of Spain), and it has a long veil attached to it. The veil may be made either of plain or figured net, and it falls over the shoulders, being fastened in front with an agaffe either of flowers or precious stones. I doubt that it will ever become general, except for theatres and concerts, as it is more a full-dress head-dress than a bonnet. At any rate, it would not be suitable to the short skirts which are now almost universally adopted, and which give rather a boyish appearance to a lady's figure. Hats are much more likely to be adopted than the chapeau mantille, for the reason that they are more in character with the present style of out-door costume.—The Queen.

A sensation has been excited in Paris by an announcement that Mr. Aspic, of Cincinnatti, has just invented a mechanical horse, that is likely completely to set aside the employment of its living predecessors. Mr. Aspic's horse is of the size of nature, and acts by a series of springs, enabling the rider to walk, trot, amble or gallop at will. The "dumb animal," it is said, can twist itself about, move its eyes, prick up its ears, and even neigh if winked at. The only obstacle to the acquisition of such a steed, that will require neither hay, nor corn, nor groom, is its high price — upwards of $10,000.

GREAT OIL STORY.—Some weeks ago a man named Alvin C. Temple, citizen of New York mysteriously disappeared at Burning Springs. Within the last few days suspicion fastened on a person named Robert S. Steinway as his murderer, and accordingly he was arrested. Since his arrest he has written and published an extraordinary story to the effect that while he and Temple were prospecting they penetrated a cavern near Burning Spring, in which they discovered a lake of petroleum 60 feet long by 20 feet wide. Temple fell into the lake and was drowned in oil. Steinway ran away but kept quiet about the matter until he had obtained a lease of the territory covering the cavern in Temple's name. He declares his innocence of any crime.

MR. FERGUSON'S LOYALTY.

We find the following in the New Market Era:—

"WHAT ABOUT IT.—Over two months ago a Court Martial was held in Cookstown to enquire into the charges of cowardice, &c., last June, preferred against Lieut.-Col. Ferguson, M. P. P., for South Simcoe; but up to the present time, we have not heard the result. It is claimed on the part of those making the complaint that the charge was amply sustained; but, so far as we can learn, no action has yet been taken by our military authorities. Why has the evidence been withheld from the public? In the case of Booker it was given to the press shortly after; why deal differently in this instance? No doubt it will be moved for when Parliament assembles. If Mr. Ferguson be guilty he ought to bear the onus; if not, let him be honourably acquitted. Knowing Mr. F.'s jealousy of popularity and his ability to take advantage of anything calculated to redound to his credit, his silence can fairly be construed into defeat."

Without for a moment insinuating that the gallant Tom Ferguson is not the bravest man in the world, we would like to see the evidence and report in that famous case of his. We know that Tom always talks very bravely and very loyally, and we want to see whether he was equally brave and loyal in the time of danger. Can it be that the evidence and report are so flattering to Mr Ferguson that his well-known modesty has induced him to beg for their suppression? Whatever may be the cause of Tom's scruples, the Militia Department should disregard them, and publish the report. It is due to Mr. Ferguson, to his accusers, to the men who are under his command and to his constituents, that the proceedings of the court should be made known without further delay.—Globe.

THE GULF FISHERIES.

The government schooner La Canadienne, Commander Fortin, has returned to Quebec after her usual summer cruise among the fishermen in the gulf.

The catch of mackerel has been only midding, each boat averaging from 300 to 350 barrels. The total proceeds of the fishery is estimated to be worth about five millions of dollars. The cod fishery has been also poor, owing to the boisterous weather which prevailed during the summer, and the great scarcity of bait, especially in the fall. There is great distress among the fishermen in consequence. The spring herring fishery has been very good, all along the coast. The whaling carried on from Gaspe has been partially a failure in consequence of the weather; and during a part of the season the whales, especially the humpbacked variety, were very scarce. The same causes that operated against the other fisheries, coupled with the cold in the spring, prevented the sealers from doing as much as usual, though the vessels were unusually numerous and well equipped. The salmon fishing on the north shores was but ordinary, but on the south shore it has been very successful, and all the rivers are full of salmon and grilse. In Magpie Bay and Magpie and St. John's rivers the herring nets had to be taken up, owing to the unusual quantity of grilse which became entangled in them. An interesting experiment was made on the return voyage, a number of barrels of oysters, procured from Caraquet and in splendid condition, were planted at Bic with a view to creating an artificial oyster bed.—Chronicle.

SENTENCE OF THE FENIAN HAYDEN.

Judge Wilson, sentencing Hayden on Saturday last, said:—The evidence in your case admits of no doubt whatever that you were one of those people who came to invade this Province for the purpose which you very truly declared. Whether you meant your demand as a threat is really not material. They may have mistaken the way in which you demanded it, but this is not the offence, but that you came to do what you declared you would do. You are old enough and understand enough to know that we were living as we had a desire to live, trusting to the protection of the law. The people of this country do not think the law a species of tyranny as in some countries, because they know that the law is administered, not to enforce tyranny, but solely for the protection of society, and the Crown, or the Queen, has no object in tyrannizing over us. We make our own laws as we please, and administer them by our courts. These courts have the entire confidence of the country. Your offence has been for over 20 years punished with death. Truly, if I could discriminate between all your cases there is room for its exercise, but I have no such power. I am placed here for no object of mine, but to vindicate the majesty of the law. The statute requires that you should be sentenced to death. Whether His Excellency exercises his prerogative, [illegible] [illegible] [wo]uld have averted it, I certainly should, because the duty is most painful more so than I can tell you, or any one here. You certainly did no more than was expected of any one of your party. You were performing a duty which rested with some one of your party, for you brought no provisions over and they had to be found. You evidently meant to live on the country, and the first act was to insist upon that subsistence, without which you could not have maintained yourselves. Sentence of death was then pronounced.

ANOTHER ALPINE ACCIDENT—A THRILLING SCENE.

Another sad accident has occurred on Mont Blanc. Cap Arkwright and his sister, Simond Michel (guide), and two porters, left Chamounix for the Grand Mulets, at which place they arrived in the evening at six o'clock.—At that time the shades of night had already fallen, and fires were lighted at the Grands Mulets, also at the Pierre Pointue to signal their friends at Chamounix of their safe arrival, whereupon the cannon at the Hotel Royal echoed forth their peals of thunder in response. Cap. Arkwright and his sister intended to return to Chamounix the following morning. The season now drawing to a close, few visitors are in Chamounix. The cook and one of the coachmen from the Hotel Royal, taking French leave hastened after the foregoing party to accompany them to the Grand Mulets. The service of the former would, no doubt be invaluable at the Grands Mulets. The following morning (Saturday) the two parties left the Mulets at 5:30, Cap. Arkwright. Simond Michel, and the two porters roped together, Silven Couttet and the coachman roped by themselves, leaving Miss Arkwright and the cook at the Grands Mulets to await their return. The grand plateau was reached in safty, and the party were passing what is termed the Ancient Passage, when a terrible sound was heard by all. Couttet knew whence it came and shouted to the others to save themselves. Couttet, being a little in advance of the other party at the time, dragged the astonished coachman down a snow slope, and by so doing no doubt saved their lives, the other party scrambled in quite the opposite direction. The avalanche passed, hurrying with it in its frightful course poor Capt. Arkwright and his three guides. Couttet and the coachman with no small amount of exertion, managed to extricate themselves from the mass of small ice they were buried in, and with the exception of Couttet receiving a rather severe bruise on the nose from a piece of ice, they escaped unhurt, and went to look again for their missing party; but alas, no sign of life met their view. All was quiet, and they returned sorrowfully to the Grands Mulets. This accident happened in precisely the same spot where three guides lost their lives in decending with Humboldt in 1820.

THE EMPRESS OF MEXICO.

A correspondence from Vienna which pretends to be based on the statements of Dr. Ilek, who has been in attendance on the Empress of Mexico at Miramar, states that there is but a slender chance of recovery, because bodily health seems to be completely restored, while there is no trace of the mind perceiving the aberration that is clouding it, nor of any mental resistance. The monomania—the fear of being poisoned—still possesses her mind to that extent that she absolutely refused to drink, and would only eat when Dr. Ilek had tasted each morsel before it was given to her.

Twice she attempted to run away from her attendants—once in Rome and once in Miramar; at the latter place she had got hold of all the keys, and when they were taken away from her she attempted to jump out of the window, so that she had to be closely watched, and to be removed to the ground floor. But, as there was not suitable accommodation there, she was removed to the lodge in the Park. Since then the poor lady has been more quiet—the violent crises seem to be past; but it is supposed to be a bad sign as regards the recovery of her mental equilibrium that during those very crises, she has regained bodily strength while the monomania has remained unabated.

The mind of the poor lady first gave way at the Tuileries, and not at the Vatican. It is very possible that the second attack took place at the Vatican, when the Holy Father reproached the Empress with the breach of the concordat with Mexico. But the original place of the catastrophe was at the Tuileries; thence the Empress Charlotte carried mental death in her heart; and it is reported that the appearance of that heroic lady of only six and twenty summers, who had become the victim to his policy, shook the nerves of Louis Napoleon to that extent that his own sufferings were greatly increased in consequence.

Nobody knows exactly what took place at the interview, for which the Empress had waited many days, and which lasted for an hour. It will probably never be known. But coming out of the cabinet, Napoleon is said to have politely called the attention of the Empress to a beautiful statue in the ante-chamber, to which she indignantly replied: "Sire, how can you speak to me about such a miserable thing at a moment when I treat with you about my existence?" Upon which she pressed her hand on her heart, and fell down into a chair, calling for water. The Emperor immediately handed it to her himself, but she thrust it back with the exclamation, 'You want to poison me!' It is not by her Mexican attendants, as it has been reported, that she fears to be poisoned, but her monomania is that the Emperor Napoleon wants to do so." La Patrie states that the Austrian corvette Elisabetta, which it had been asserted was soon to fetch the Emperor Maximilian home, is only going to carry his unfortunate Empress back to Mexico, as in the opinion of her doctors such a voyage, and the return to her husband, would conduce to calm her spirit and promote her recovery.

CHINA.

At this moment there is a greater movement going on among the Chinese nation that at any former period. Their pride and fancied superiority have been thoroughly broken down by the manifest superiority of Christian nations in arms. They have lost the faith, which since the days of Confucius has been theirs, that their institutions and civilization were superior to those of the rest of the world. For many centuries this was true. Down to the times of the Reformation, China was, seemingly, centuries before Europe in civilization. But the philosophy of Bacon, and the spirit of free enquiry and political freedom have caused Europe to grow while China has only grown old. The fleets of England, France, and America have utterly destroyed the faith of the masses of the people in the wisdom and superiority of their government and religion, and rebellion is chronic and universal in China. An educated Chinese, named Lin-Le, has just got published in London, the "History of the Ti-ping Rebellion," by desire of the Chinese rebels, who wish thus to present their side of the case to the British people, and induce them no more to interfere in favour of the Emperor and against them. He asserts that the rebel movement commenced in the Ti-ping leader becoming a Christian, and that this is from the first a great Christian impulse, spreading through Asia. It is a very important work in this respect, that it shows a movement going on all over the flowery land of immense importance, and that an exchange of ideas has commenced which will be of the greatest importance to the whole civilized world. No doubt many of the poor Chinese who come over to seek gold in California are a bad and vicious set. But if friendship, instead of injustice and abuse, met them, or even if a few missionaries were to study their books, history and ideas, and devote themselves to teaching a few of them how to teach the rest the usefulness of honesty, truth and good morals here, and not to cut off each other's head in China quite so freely, we should soon find that we have all much to learn, in our turn, from their literary men, of the history and development of their most ancient civilization from principles of sound moral reasoning. Probably we should all find that it is not so much from want of knowledge, as from not keeping that knowledge alive by nurturing it with the daily practice of the virtues admitted, which causes nations to crumble into decay and lose their power and pre-eminence.

THE NEW PROFESSOR OF MORAL PHILOSOPHY AT CAMBRIDGE.

One event, however, has happened in the extra political world of considerable meaning and importance, and that is the election of the Rev. Frederick D. Maurice to the chair of Moral Philosophy at Cambridge, in the place of Mr. Grote, the brother of the historian lately deceased.

This election has been received with wonder and enthusiasm by the people and the unbeneficial but rapidly growing liberal section of the Church of England. The electors are the other professors, of whom, to their high honor, more than a clear half voted for Mr. Maurice, although there were ten candidates, several of them first rate men, and all of them graduates of Cambridge, he being the only graduate of Oxford on the list. Mr Maurice, besides being beyond all question, the greatest living English theologian and metaphysician, has taken a leading part in all the religious and social movements of the last thirty years; a student above all things, but never separating himself for a moment from the struggles of the street and the market place or turning a deaf ear to the cry of the weak and oppressed. He might have been the leader of a party in the Church as numerous and powerful as that which is called after Dr. Pusey; but has always resolutely set his face against divisions in Christ's family. Nevertheless, he has been the teacher and master of all our popular writers of the broad church school, of Robertson, of Brighton, of Kingsley, of Davies, and of Colenso, though the bishop's teaching of late years has wandered on the historical side far away from that of his early friends. Dean Stanley is among his warmest admirers and fellow-workers, as in an elder generation were Julius Hase and his brother, and the bishop of St. David's. Twelve years ago, Mr. Maurice was deprived of his Professorship at King's College, [illegible] party, headed by Dr. Jelf, the Principal of the College, for his teaching on the subject of eternal punishment, and his resolute antagonism to the extreme Calvinistic views to which that party clings with such frightful tenacity. It was he who stood forward with Mr. Mansell, the celebrated Oxford logician, when that learned Doctor reviewed in his Bampton lectures the old dogmas as to the impossibility of knowing "the Infinite," endeavouring to build one more altar in the 19th century "to the Unknown God." Outside church and theological questions, strictly so called, Mr. Maurice has been equally active. He was the President of a Society for Promoting Workingmen's Associations—that organization by which a knot of clever young enthusiasts, known as the "Christian Socialists," thought to bring in the Millenium some 16 years ago, and succeeded in setting on its feet that great industrial movement which is just beginning to bear such remarkable fruits as the Partnerships of Industry, in Yorkshire and Lancashire. Mr. Maurice found the best part of the brains and ballast for that boat. Again, 12 years ago he established the Workingmen's College in London, where alone in England the problem has been solved of bringing the highest education within the reach of the earners of weekly wages. And, lastly, he was the most active and earnest among the founders of Queen's College, the establishment in which thorough scientific training was first offered to English women. The man who can show such a record as this might well be excused for holding his head high, but Mr. Maurice is probably the humblest man in England. Even his most fierce enemies, who would gladly burn him did not the tolerant notions of this secular country stand in the way, have been always forced grudgingly to acknowledge the Apostolic simplicity and purity of his life. Such a man of course has come in for the minutest share of the loaves and fishes of the clerical profession, and is at this moment incumbent of the small Government chapel of St. Peter's Vere st., to which he was appointed, by Mr. Wm. Cowper, when two-thirds of our bench of bishops are not worthy to wait behind his chair. You may imagine then the exultation with which we see him placed in the position of all others in which his influence will be most felt and which he would probably have chosen for himself had he had the pick of all possible preferment. I have found the most cultivated Americans very slightly acquainted with Mr. Maurice's works, and have therefore dwelt on this promotion in the hope of making the man better known on your side, for depend on it those of you who wish to understand what is going on here cannot omit such a figure from their studies. I do not know if any of his works have been reprinted in America. If not, some enterprising publisher would do well to bring out his History of Moral Philosophy ancient and modern, his Religions of the World, and Lectures on the Gospels and Acts of the Apostles.

The October Elections—The Effect Produced in Kentucky by the Result.

CONFEDRIT X ROADS,
(wich is in the Stait, of Kentucky,
October 14, 1866.

There is mournin in Kentucky. The results of the elections in Ohio, Injeany, Pennsylvany and Iowa reached me yesterday through a Looisville paper wich wuz dropped off the cars at Secessionviile, wich is the nearest station to us, and wich I hapnin to be there, I picked up.

Ohio—40,000 Ablishin!
Injeany—20,000 Ablishin!
Pennsylvany—20,000 Ablishin!
Iowa—30,000 Ablishin!

Ablishin! Wat a dreary waste uv Ablishin! Not a single oasis uv Dimocrisy anywhere—nary Aryrat on wich our ark kin rest in safety, but all around us the mad waves of Ablishnism rearing their crestid heads muchly.

I felt it my dooty to make this fact known to my neighbors, for, sposing that His Serene Highness' trip wood secure us enuff deestricts to make the next Congress safe, and consekently make us certain uv admission, they hed been makin arrangements for restoring things to their normal condishun, ez they were before the war.

In fact two weeks before, in view of the expected success uv the Democracy, a meetin hed bin held on the subject. Some wuz for at once seezin the niggers wherever they cood be found and puttin em at work, but the conservatives overruled this. They held that slavery hed bin abolished and that it ought not to be restored, in fact, that to act in good faith, it cood not be re-established. Deekin Pogram announced a plan. The town authorities shood pass a ordinance for the proper government of the niggers. Their good and ourn demanded it. For instance, they shood not be permitted to be out till after 7 o'clock P.M., in the evenin; they shoodent leave the plantashen onto wich they wuz employed; they shood work every day till 7, and to do away with the pernicious work uv the Freedmen's Bureau, no man and wife wich hed bin married by a chaplin uv the Bureau or by any one else, shood be employed on the same plantashen, and also no father or mother and child. Sich ez vialated these ordinances shood be arrested by anybody and fined, and in default uv payment uv the fine and costs shood be sold to the person who wood take his or her labor for the shortest number uv year and pay the fine and costs aforesaid. "Ez a conservative," sed the Deekin, "I report to you this plan."

"Do yoo want tu know my definition uv the word conservative?" sed Joe Bigler, a returned confederate soljer, who I bleeve hez seen enough uv war, "it's a man who goes a round-about way to a devilish mean thing. Deekin, why can't yoo go to the devil by a straight road ez I do?"

The interupshen uv the demoralized wretch wuzn't notist, and ez the trustees uv the township wuz all present, the ordinance wuz passed, and that night two-thirds uv the niggers within five miles uv the Corners wuz arrested and sold, and within two weeks every one hed bin capcherd.

I hied me to the Corners, and the first man I saw wuz Bascon, the grocery keeper, engaged in the congenial bizness uv tappin a barrel uv contentment, wich he had just received. I wuz a goin to tell him the dread intelligence, when he caught site uv me. "Taste that, Parson,' sed he, holdin out a tin dipper full. I drank it off, and one look at him onmand me. "Kin I o'ercloud that smilin cheek," thot I, ez in a fit uv abcent mindednis, wich I hev every now and then, I held out the empty dipper to be filled agin, wich it wuz—"no! for a time he shel be spared," and I borrered his mule and rode away pensively.

I wuz goin fust to Deekin Pogram's, for he wuz the most interested uv eny in the settlement. After the meetin mentioned above, the Deekin hed caused the arrest uv sich niggers ez he cood ketch, and had had em fined in sums uv $275 and upwards, wich bein unable, ez a rool, to pay the fine, he hed kindly bid em in.

He hed picked up here and there all uv his old servants, ceptin those wich hed bin killed in the army and the few misguided ones wich hed made there way North, and that mornin the plantashen wuz to be reconstructed upon the old patriarkle system. Mrs. Deekin Pogram wuz marshelling four uv the likeliest wenches I ever saw in the kitchen; his son Tom was chuckin a yaller girl under the chin, wich hed bin born on the place about eighteen years before. The two girls hed each their waiting maids and wuz a puttin em through their paces. There hed bin some trouble in gettin em reconstructed, it bein deemed nessary to take the conseet out uv em, wich they wuz all a doin. Ez I rode up, the old lady hed jest knocked one uv em down with a fire shovel and wuz dancin a Highland fling onto her prostrate body. Almira, the oldest gal, hed her fingers in the wool uv her gal, and tother one wuz a thumping hern to reduse her to her proper level, and the Deekin hisself wuz deelin with one ongrateful wretch, who objected to bein put to work on them terms, not realizin that the Bureau was gone. Ez the Deekin hed a revolver he yielded the pint, and submitted to be flogged, wich the Deekin wuz doin as neatly ez I ever saw, considerin he hed bin out uv practis for four years. He hed him tied up to a tree and wuz a woilopin uv him gorjus. While he wuz a convinsin uv him with his whip that there wuz trooth in the skripter, and that Ham wuz reely a servant onto his bretherin, I exclaimed "stop!" and immejitly whispered the appallin news in his left ear (tother one hed bin chawed off in a misunderstandin at Bascom's, the previous Sunday nite after servis.) Never shel I forgit the look uv woe on that eminent Christian's face. The whip fell from his nerveless hand, and with teers streamin down his cheeks, washin up little streaks uv dirt in the most heartrendin manner, he gasped in a husky voice to the wife uv his buzzum. "Cut him down, Mirandy, the North's gone Ablishin and the d—d niggers will be free anyhow," and the old patriarch swooned away at my feet.

And sich an expression of anguish ez desterted the face of the Deekin's wife I hope never to see agin. Droppin the shovel, she stood ez one petrified, with her foot elevated in mid air, ez in the act uv stompin, and utterin a shreek, wich me thinks I hear ringin in my ears yet, she fell precisely ez she stood, with her leg crooked, ez ef twuz froze there. Tom released the gal he wuz subdooin, and mountin his horse, rode off to the Corners without sayin a word; and, unable to witness the distress of that striken family, I made haste to mount my mule and go too, while the niggers, feelin that they were wunst more their own men, and women, scattered in every direction.

"Sich is the froots uv Radikelism," murmured I. "Sich is the bitter cup fanaticism hez put to our lips," and castin one lingrin look at the prostrate forms uv the Deekin, his wife with her foot insensibly raised, and their two gushin daughters, I spurred the mule and departed.

Wood that every Ablishnist in the North had seen that site, and wuz possesseed uv a soul to appresihate it. Then would they vote differently.

HEALTH IS STRENGTH.—To prevent or conquer disease is one of the grandest attainments ever aimed at by man; and Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers will as sure cure coughs, colds, tickling in the throat and pulmonary complaints, as war and pestilence will destroy. Severe colds if not attended to sooner or later lead to incurable consumption, and the strength of the strongest soon fails if neglected. The readiest and best means known for the cure of these complaints is "Bryan's Pulmonic Wafers," which have been thoroughly tried for the last twenty years, and have never been known to fail. Singers and public speakers will also derive great benefit from the use of them. Sold by all medicine dealers, at 25 cents per box. m tts 271

DIED,

On the 13th instant, after a long and painful illness, Dinah Carshore, aged 52 years, wife of John Coristine, Builder.

The funeral will leave her late residence, 55 St. Antoine Street, on Thursday, 15th instant, at 2 P.M., for the Baptist Church, and thence to Mount Royal Cemetery. Friends and acquaintances are invited to attend without further notice.

At New Orleans, on the 23rd October, Auguste N. Denouvion, merchant, at the age of 27 years. M. Denouvion went through his course of studies at the College Ste. Marie in this city, where he distinguished himself by his fine character and great intelligence. On leaving College he determined to establish himself in the United States. Success accompanied him wherever he went. Endowed with great energy and with the perspicacity which is essential to a merchant, especially in the United States, he carved out for himself a career at once brilliant and rapid. The American war opened a new era to his ambition. He went through a thousand dangers, and it was doubtless in one of these hazardous expeditions, which he constantly repeated, that he sowed the seeds of the disorder which at last carried him off. At the time of his death, M. Denouvion enjoyed a handsome fortune, and valuable commercial relations. He succumbed to a violent attack of yellow fever, which at certain periods in every year makes frightful ravages in New Orleans. He leaves in Canada a father who was tenderly attached to him, and of whom he was the only son, besides a large number of friends who will always regret him. An affectionate wife and a beloved son survive him at New Orleans. What expression can interpret the sorrow of all?
