CSCS ups taxes 10 per cent

Sherbrooke Catholic School Commission ratepayers outside Sherbrooke proper are being asked to pay an extra five per cent in school taxes this year, as a result of the CSCS going out of the school tax collection business as of December 31 this year.

Catholic ratepayers living in Ascot Township, Ascot Corner, Brompton Township, Bromptonville, East Clifton, Compton County, Compton Station, Deauville, Eaton, Fleurimont, West Hatley, Hatley Township, Lennoxville, Martinville, North Hatley, Orford Township, Rock Forest, St. Denis, St-Elie d'Orford, St-Francois-Xavier, Stoke and Waterville municipalities will receive their school tax bills in the next few days, the CSCS announced this week.

Some 25,000 tax bills will be sent out to all Catholic ratepayers outside Sherbrooke, whose residences were billed in June.

School tax assessments, normally based on a $1-per-$100 evaluation on a period from July of the current year to the end of June of the year following, have been lowered to 30 cents per $100 evaluation, with a five-cent-per-$100 surcharge to defray inadmissible expenses for the 1979-1980 school year.

The lowered rate isn't cause for cheering, however -- it reflects the fact that beginning in January, school taxation powers have been transferred wholly to the municipalities, eliminating school-tax discrepancies from one system to the next, and municipalities will be held to the 50-cents-per-$100 valuation for the remainder of the 1979-1980 school year. The tax bills, dated Nov. 20, begin collecting interest Dec. 20 and contrary to past years, must be paid in a single instalment. Taxpayers may pay their bills at all chartered banks, caisses populaires or at the CSCS headquarters, 895 Bowen South.

Dief seat among two Tory losses

The former fiefdom of John Diefenbaker fell to the New Democratic Party Monday night as the Progressive Conservatives lost two federal bye-elections and reduced the already-shaky ability of their minority government to maintain the confidence of Parliament. The Saskatchewan riding of Prince Albert, synonymous for 26 years with the late Conservative prime minister, was won by New Democrat Stan Hovdebo in a close contest with the Conservatives. In the Newfoundland riding of Burin-St. George's, the hapless Conservatives placed third to Liberal candidate, Roger Simmons. The constituency has been Liberal property since Newfoundland entered Confederation in 1949 and was last represented by Don Jamieson, a former Liberal cabinet minister who jumped to provincial politics. The byelection results mean the Conservatives, aided by their five Social Credit allies, now can muster 141 votes to the 140 from the combined forces of the Liberals and New Democrats. Standing in the 282-seat Commons is Conservative 136, Liberal 114 (including non-voting Speaker James Jerome), New Democrat 27 and Social Credit 5. Because Jerome, a Liberal MP, only votes in case of a tie, the Conservative

Social Credit alliance has one more vote than a Liberal-NDP coalition. Meanwhile, Finance Minister John Crosbie dared Liberals and New Democrats Monday to force an election on the Tories' mortgage interest and property tax credit plan. "This is the time for the opposition to put up or shut up," he told the Commons as he introduced the scheme for debate. Crosbie later said that another election is possible if the minority government can't get the plan through Parliament before the Christmas recess. The threat of an election was heightened when the Conservatives failed to win either of two federal bye-elections held Monday. The party remains with 136 members in the 282-seat Commons and will have only a one-vote margin even with the support of the five-member Social Credit caucus.

Hospitals maintain essentials

These picketers outside the Youville Hospital are having a ball, but the attitude among striking hospital workers is that the provincial government is trying to save money by maintaining just essential services over an extended period.

BY CAROLE TREISER
SHERBROOKE — Essential services were maintained yesterday at the CHU, d'Youville, St. Vincent de Paul and Hotel Dieu Hospitals where support staff belonging to the Federation des Affaires Sociales staged their first day of a strike, outlawed by last week's passage of Bill 62. Support staff include all hospital personnel except doctors and nurses. "The day went well. The agreement to maintain essential services was respected. The union even let a technician leave the picket lines when he was needed in X-ray," Paul Andre Dorval, director at d'Youville Hospital said last night. Dorval said the only department to really feel the pinch in personnel was their physical rehabilitation program. Strike coordinator Claude Thivierge's only complaint was that three scab workers crossed the picket line at St. Vincent de Paul, 14 at Hotel Dieu and 25 administrative secretaries crossed the line at the CHU. "But those secretaries make out the pay checks for the time we put in. See WE'RE STRIKING, Page 3.

STRIKER: THEY'RE SAVING MONEY

BY CAROLE TREISER
"I don't care how much they cry. The truth is the government is benefiting from our strike. They're getting all the essential services at a fraction of the cost in salaries." That's how a striking hospital support staffer who didn't want to be identified summed up his view of the strike. "They already know how much they're going to pay us, but they want to fill their coffers and try to make us sweat. Parizeau even said the conflict wouldn't be settled until December. Then they'll fund our salary increases with the interest they've been making on our retroactive pay since our contract ended July 1," he said. The striker said his main concerns aren't monetary. What he objects to is the government plan to assign staff to different duties. "Part of the government's plan is to make us do odd jobs when someone is sick or takes a vacation. If someone is a maintenance worker, he can't be expected to take fill in as an orderly and take care of patients," the striker said. He had some words to say about the passing of Bill 62 that makes it illegal for public servants to strike, as well. What irks him the most is that the law was passed one week before they decided to strike. "Levesque reminds me of a policeman who tickets you while you're driving at 30 mph and says 'This is in case you decide to speed up to 100 mph.' He's taken away our rights." Levesque's move surprised him, because it came after a contract had been signed between the government and the union assuring essential services would be maintained during a strike. "Levesque is no different from Bourassa. But we only found that out once we gave him the power. I won't vote for him again."

Patients hostages, Tremblay charges

BY CAROLE TREISER
WINDSOR — Former provincial Industry, Trade and Commerce Minister Rodrigue Tremblay says the provincial government is "immoral" and "holding the weak hostage for a few extra pennies", in the current province-wide hospital support staff strike. Tremblay told a gathering of Windsor businessmen yesterday "the government is governing by crisis" and that patients are the victims of the government's failure to head off the strike. "The government is using private-sector negotiation tactics in the public sector. This is immoral. In a private sector strike, the public can turn to other suppliers for goods and services... but when the government abets a strike in the public sector they hold the public at bay," he said. Tremblay proposed alternate solutions to dealing with the common front. He suggested that public service salaries be automatically indexed to salaries in the private sector, that a tribunal of impartial judges direct negotiations and that union elections be held under the auspices of an impartial authority. "Instead of evolving policy and learning from Bourassa's mistakes, Levesque is following in his footsteps," said the ex-minister, who left the Parti RODRIGUE TREMBLAY... government's tactics immoral. Quebecois fold last month after a falling-out with the rest of the cabinet. Tremblay said the Parti Quebecois' losses in last week's by-elections will give the government "a good kick in the pants" and that the voters expect. See TREMBLAY, Page 2.

Jeanne Valence pleads guilty

MONTREAL (CP) — Jeanne Valence pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of extortion arising from the 82-day kidnapping of credit union official Charles Marion in 1977. Within several minutes of the surprise plea, which cut short a trial that was expected to last several months, Mrs. Valence was freed on the main charges of conspiracy, kidnapping and forcible detention. By pleading guilty to the single

The prosecution also received permission from Superior Court Justice Jean-Guy Boilard to drop a second extortion count. The judge scheduled a sentence hearing Wednesday. The move came as lawyers were about to start choosing the jury from a crowd of about 100 persons who packed the courtroom. Mrs. Valence, 43, was taken to jail to await sentencing.

charge, Mrs. Valence followed a trail blazed by her husband, Claude, during a three-month trial last year. Valence, 45, was acquitted of the main charges and convicted on the same extortion charge last January. The verdict in his case was considered an impressive victory, based on defence arguments that Marion was to some extent involved in his own kidnapping.

Ryan: French services nationwide are basic right

MONTREAL (CP) — Liberal leader Claude Ryan says his brand of "renewed federalism" would include constitutional guarantees giving francophones access to French-language education and hospital and social services across Canada. "It's not a question of blindly asserting arithmetic equality of the two official languages in all fields and in all sectors of collective life," Ryan says in an interview in the December issue of the magazine Informag. But "in certain key sectors of public administration, in certain key services, citizens belonging to one or the other of the founding communities, the two communities which are the cornerstone of the country, absolutely must have the guarantee their rights are recognized." Other areas would include transport, broadcasting, the courts and federal services. Ryan doesn't say how he will convince English-speaking Canada to agree to such guarantees when former prime minister Pierre Trudeau couldn't get an agreement on so-called linguistic rights and Premier Rene Levesque's proposals on minority-language education have been rejected by the other provinces. Ryan, who has been keeping the premiers posted on the development of his party's yet-to-be-released constitutional manifesto, said there will be more discussion when the position of the Quebec Liberal party is made public in the near future. In the magazine interview, Ryan says he believes linguistic rights should be part of constitutional changes guaranteeing for the first time "fundamental liberties" for all Canadians.

Ottawa to probe margarine brands

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department has started an investigation into the possible harmful effects of certain fatty acids found in some margarine brands.

Dr. Alex Morrison, head of the federal health protection branch, said Monday a committee of five independent medical experts was formed more than a month ago in answer to growing concern about the effects of so-called trans fatty acids.

These acids, more specifically the trans-dienes fatty acids, are unnaturally-occurring fatty acids formed during the production of hardened or hydrogenated margarines from vegetable oil liquids.

Some experts believe trans fatty acids tend to behave like saturated fats.

The controversy about trans fatty acids, however, involves a more complex dilemma that health experts have been grappling with and more recently the dairy and margarine industries have been arguing about — the link between saturated fats and heart disease.

Saturated or solid fats are found in butter, meat, cheese, whole milk, chocolate and some hydrogenated vegetable fats.

Many nutritionists, including those in the federal health department, say people should eat less animal fat but should not eliminate it.

Doctors also say large amounts of animal fat should be avoided by persons with heart disease.

Federal nutritionists recommend the so-called poly-unsaturated vegetable fats found in safflower, corn, soy and sunflower products since they contain an essential nutrient — linoleic acid — involved in blood clotting. Their aim is not to restrict either type of fat, but to encourage a balanced diet.

Morrison said the department experts became concerned following recent reports by Dr. Fred Kummerow of the University of Illinois whose work demonstrated that trans fatty acids had caused lesions in the arteries of swine, selected for testing because of the similarity of their arteries to humans.

Also, a preliminary study on margarines was commissioned last year by the Canadian Dairy Commission to determine the fatty acid composition of 95 margarine brands.

The study, released in August, found about half the brands contained high amounts of trans fatty acids.

Iran frees 10 more; 49 hostages remain

Ten more hostages freed after 16 days captivity in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran were flown to Europe today to join three others released Monday.

The U.S. government said two women remained among the 49 Americans still held in the embassy by students demanding that the United States hand over deposed Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's revolutionary regime for trial. Two black men also were believed among them.

The Carter administration renewed its demand for the release of all the hostages and said if Khomeini carries out his threat to put some of them on trial as spies, it would be a "further flagrant violation" of international law as well as a violation of "elementary human rights."

Iranian Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani Sadr in a CBS interview Monday said the remaining hostages cannot be released for two months — until after a new Iranian government is installed — unless the United States surrenders the ailing shah.

FLYING TO EUROPE Four women members of the embassy staff and six blacks were freed today in compliance with Khomeini's order last weekend to release female and black Americans found not guilty of spying. They were put aboard an Iranian airliner for Paris, and a U.S. Air Force plane was to take them from there to an air force hospital at Wiesbaden, West Germany, for medical examinations and questioning by U.S. officials.

Another woman and two black marine sergeants were freed Monday and flown to Wiesbaden. They were reported in good mental and physical condition.

The three released Monday reported there had been seven women and 10 blacks among the captives in the embassy, two women and two blacks more than were freed. The U.S. state department confirmed that two women were still held and identified them as Elizabeth Ann Swift, a political officer, and Katherine Koob. An unconfirmed report said the blacks were a marine and a member of the embassy staff.

NAMES GIVEN The state department said the four women freed today

were Elizabeth Montagne, Calumet City, Ill.; Terri Tedford, South San Francisco, Calif.; Joan Walsh, Ogden, Utah, and Lillian Johnson, Elmont, N.Y. It said the six blacks were David Walker, Waller, Tex.; Lloyd Rollins, Alexandria, Va.; Wesley Williams, Albany, N.Y.; Neal Robinson, Houston, Tex.; James Hughes, Langley Air Force Base, Va., and Joseph Vincent, New Orleans.

Like the trio freed Monday, they were put on display by their captors at a news conference at the embassy Monday night. Miss Johnson said they "were not harmed at all" but she underwent "a lot of interrogation, believe me — at rude hours of the evening."

"I guess they were just convinced that I wasn't a spy," she said.

In a move which undermined Iran's intention to step up the diplomatic and economic pressure on the United States, Iranian Foreign Minister Abolhassan Bani-Sadr called on oil-exporting countries to stop accepting U.S. dollars in payment for their oil.

At the same time, Commerce Minister Reza Sada said Iran intends to cut all economic ties with the United States and plans to stop using dollars to pay for its imports.

U.S. officials in Washington said that Tehran's proposal is unlikely to win acceptance of other members of the Organization of Oil Importing Countries.

Iran is the second-largest producer in OPEC, after Saudi Arabia.

News in brief

Sadat prays for peace

MOUNT SINAI, Egypt (AP) — President Anwar Sadat led a prayer for peace at this biblical landmark where 500 dignitaries gathered Monday to celebrate the second anniversary of the Egyptian leader's trip to Jerusalem.

Muslims, Christians and Jews as well as Zen Buddhists and Shintoists from Japan welcomed Sadat in the mountain-ringed plain of Raha, revered in tradition as the place where ancient Israelites waited for Moses to carry the Ten Commandments down from the mountain.

Tories try to unload Crown Corps.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Tory plan to reduce its majority ownership of the Canada Development Corp. will help it sell other Crown corporations to private interests, Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens said Monday.

He told a news conference it would be "a giant step ahead in getting Crown corporations owned by the government to the private sector."

While aiming at reducing its voting rights in the corporation to less than 50 per cent from the present 66 per cent, he said the government may use the corporation to buy other federal companies it wants to sell.

Postal rate hikes passed

OTTAWA (CP) — The Senate gave third and final reading to a bill giving retroactive approval to postal rate increases Monday night, the first bill to pass the full parliamentary process since Parliament met Oct. 9.

Caffeine linked to birth defects

OTTAWA (CP) — A senior health official said Monday the government has begun to take a closer look at country's most popular eye-opener — caffeine.

Dr. Alex Morrison, head of the federal health protection branch, was commenting on reports that a United States consumer group has warned that tests have linked caffeine with birth defects.

UIC overpayment upheld

HALIFAX (CP) — An umpire who heard an appeal from 36 Nova Scotians who received overpayments because of an Unemployment Insurance Commission error suggested last spring that the UIC consider one of its own regulations that allows it in certain cases to cancel such debts.

The umpire, Mr. Justice J. Louis Dubinsky, a deputy judge of the Federal Court of Canada, dismissed the appeal by the group against a UIC order to return the money wrongly paid them.

Worried mother takes hostages

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (CP) — An unemployed woman worried about feeding and clothing her seven children, and a man who said he wanted to see his girlfriend, held five persons as hostages at gunpoint for several hours Monday in separate incidents in Alabama and Kentucky, officials said.

Both the woman and the man later surrendered and no injuries were reported.

$30-a-barrel increase looms

CALGARY (CP) — Canadians could be paying almost $30 a barrel — plus inflation — for domestic oil seven years from now, Richard Hamilton, chief of energy strategy for the federal energy department, said Monday.

Assuming eight-per-cent inflation, Canadians would pay about $46 a barrel in 1986. The current price for domestic oil is $13.75.

Canadian nukes for U.S. use?

CALGARY (CP) — A former federal energy minister said Monday Canada should build a network of nuclear power plants to serve growing U.S. energy needs.

"While such a project would not create any serious environmental problems, it can be expected to meet political difficulties from the anti-nuclear lobby," said Donald Macdonald, 1972-75 energy minister in the former Trudeau government.

In Ottawa...

Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn said he has informed all oil companies that no foreign crude oil destined for Canada should be diverted to other countries except under international agreements.

Legislation was introduced in the Commons that would establish uniform safety standards for transport of dangerous goods such as poisonous chemicals.

Transport Minister Don Mazankowski told the Commons the government may establish an independent inquiry into the derailing of a freight train at Mississauga, Ont., and the subsequent release of poisonous chlorine gas from a wrecked car.

The government said it wants to sell off most of its majority holding in the Canada Development Corp.

Prime Minister Clark said in the Commons that he knows of no Canadians involved in the 1964 British spy scandal that surfaced recently but he's having an inquiry made to be sure.

Prime Minister Clark said guides used by the RCMP to raid the home of an Ottawa journalist during investigation of a leaked defence department document never had cabinet approval.

Portrayal of Dickens wins Emmy for Little

NEW YORK (CP) — Whether it's playing Scrooge or Robin Hood, Canadian comedian Rich Little has lots of plans after his spoof of the Charles Dickens Christmas classic won an international Emmy award.

Commonwealth Television Productions swept the four awards announced on Monday night by the International Council of the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences.

British television dominated with three winners. Rich Little's Christmas Carol, a CBC television special aired last December, was awarded an international Emmy in popular arts, one of two new categories.

Co-producers Norman and Gayle Sedawie, Canadians living in Los Angeles since 1965, recalled that they started out with Little at the CBC in 1954.

"Now, 25 years later, it's great — it's a silver anniversary," said Gayle Sedawie, who phoned Little in Ottawa with the good news.

"Rich is thrilled," she said in an interview. "We have a movie we're working on now with Rich and a number of specials we'll be doing with him."

"Rich said, 'OK, now it's time to work on Robin Hood,' doing all the characters. We have an album coming out now. Rich Little's Christmas Carols, the soundtrack album."

TAPED IN VANCOUVER Christmas Carol was taped in Vancouver in November, 1978, and completed in six days with crews working 14 hours a day.

"It was incredible," said Norman Sedawie. "Rich played 14 different roles in the hour-long show. The editing was probably the most complicated that I've ever seen."

The husband-and-wife team produced more than 1,000 programs in 25 years of television. Norman Sedawie is a native of Vancouver. His wife and their three children were born in Toronto. They have kept their Canadian citizenship.

British television won the international Emmys for drama, documentary and performing arts.

On Giants Shoulders, produced by Mark Shivas for the BBC, won the international Emmy for drama. The film is the story of a British couple, Leonard and Hazel Wiles, who adopted a thalidomide boy, Terry, born without arms and legs.

In the documentary field, Yorkshire Television Ltd. won with a filmed expose of alleged mistreatment and cruelty in a maximum-security British mental hospital.

pressed their frustration at a lack of leadership in Quebec City.

"Ever since Bertrand, our ship has not had a captain. It's no wonder that whenever the public is given the chance, they vote against the status quo. They didn't vote for Ryan, they voted against Levesque, just as they voted against Bourassa," he said.

Referring to the national unity crisis, Tremblay said his third option is the only viable option because it goes beyond merely reflecting a party line.

"Sovereignty-association is a 'pequiste' idea. My idea of autonomous provinces within Confederation can be embraced by all the parties."

Tremblay proposed giving the provincial governments all the powers that are not essential to the maintenance of a federal government.

"For example, the provinces could be autonomous in the areas of education and welfare, while the federal would still direct foreign affairs, foreign trade and defense. This new system of Confederation would be written into a Canadian constitution."

When asked who he thought would be the most likely candidate to replace Premier Levesque, Tremblay said, "Me. Who else is there? The Ayatollah Ryan?"

'We're striking against government, not the sick'

MARCEL DESCOTEAUX: Law violated our right to strike.

maintaining essential services. So we don't mind if they're working," Thivierge quipped.

The union will try to convince the scabs to join the picket lines, even though the strike is illegal. If the scabs refuse to back the union, they'll resort to their rights set out in the union constitution and suspend them. But if the union finds that management is inciting the scabs to cross the picket line, Thivierge said it would consider cutting down on an equal number of unionists who are maintaining essential services.

"But I doubt it will come to that," he said.

Thivierge said union members will continue to work a maximum of two days a week until their demands are met. They're asking for a 30 per cent increase over the next three years, from $181 to $265 per week along with a cost of living compensation. Their basic non-monetary demand is to get temporary replacements for sick or vacationing employees so that staff aren't left with added work.

If the strike lasts more than three weeks, the union will give between $25 and $40 to each member and between $45 and $60 if the strike runs past six weeks. "So far morale is good,"

Thivierge said.

Marcel Descoteaux, president of the local at d'Youville Hospital backs him up. "We'll picket 24 hours a day until our local and the federation are satisfied with the offer the government makes us," he said.

And he's not worried about the consequences of staging an illegal strike. "We've decided to break the law because we believe it is our right to strike," he said.

"Rest assured we're maintaining essential services. We're not striking against the sick, we're striking against the government," Luc Peladeau, vice-president of the local added.

Representatives from all the hospital locals will meet with government officials in Quebec City at 3 p.m. today.

The first charges have been brought against unions for violating an emergency law suspending the right to strike for about 275,000 public sector employees, a spokesman for Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard said Monday.

The charges — 15 of them — were placed following investigations by special Crown prosecutors assigned to look into breaches of the law throughout the province.

Other charges will follow as soon as the necessary proof has been gathered, the spokesman said.

The law received nearly unanimous approval by the assembly Nov. 12, shortly before the workers — most of them members of a common front of public sector employees — were set to go out on a legal strike.

In Montreal, Premier Rene Levesque said on a special province-wide radio and television broadcast his government will take a hard line in dealing with workers who strike illegally.

"I must emphasize to you that the government does not intend to back up an inch on this law," he said, calling the walkouts "useless and irresponsible."

Levesque noted that the strike had been originally called for Nov. 13, the day before three provincial byelections — a "cynically political" date, he said, because negotiations were progressing at the time.

Then, using a chalkboard in the manner that first made him famous as a television commentator more than 20 years ago, the premier listed all the things the government has offered.

"Some people already say our offers are excessive. Sometimes even I think they're excessive," he said, adding that any further concessions by the government might weigh heavily on taxpayers."

LUC PELADEAU: We're not striking against the sick.

Laplante murder trial opens with admissions

FERNAND LAPLANTE: On trial for Fecteau murder.

By JOHN McCAGHEY
SWEETSBURG WARD —

The trial of Fernand Laplante, charged with the first degree murder of Carole Fecteau, ground into high gear yesterday afternoon following the empaneling of a six-man, six-woman jury.

The trial was transferred to the district of Bedford following a demand for a change of venue by defence lawyer Jean-Pierre Rancourt. Rancourt's request was upheld by Justice Carrier Fortin in Sherbrooke on Sept. 13, when he agreed it would be impossible to find an impartial jury in the District of St. Francis due to the excessive publicity given the case during the coroner's inquest and the preliminary hearing.

Laplante entered a not-guilty plea on the charge of having illegally and with premeditation killed Miss Fecteau in East Hereford June 20, 1978. He entered the same plea when it was read to the jury.

Justice Jean-Louis Pelon ordered the press to refrain from mentioning the prior record of the accused, as well as any legal arguments in the absence of the jury during the trial, which is expected to last about 10 days.

A total of 72 jurors were turned aside, with Mr. Rancourt peremptorily exempting the maximum of 20, while Crown attorney Claude Melancon turned aside a like number. The scrutineers determined there were more than several partial jurors who would not be able to serve this particular case.

Both parties consented to a number of admissions in an effort to avoid redundant testimony. One was that Dr. Gilles Lessard confirmed the death of a young woman at the morgue of Sherbrooke's Hotel Dieu Hospital at approximately 2:45 p.m. on June 24, 1978, and the body of the victim was identified by her mother, Mrs. Madeleine Houle Fecteau later that evening. Mr. Rancourt later admitted the Miss Fecteau cited in the depositions was the person named in the bill of indictment.

The Crown opened with the testimony of Jacques Mouton, 37, of Magog, who told the court he, his brother and brother-in-law had gone fishing in a stream near East Hereford on June 24, 1978. He said he dropped his companions and went to the brook at about 10 a.m. when he discovered the nude body of a young woman.

When asked by Melancon how he knew she was dead, he replied, "She was white, not breathing and worms had appeared in her skin." He then said he alerted his friends who went to a nearby house, called the QPF and returned to the scene until they arrived.

"We made a declaration as to what we had seen and were released," he added. There were no defence questions.

Yesterday's activities concluded with statements by Lionel Lemieux, 64, of Coaticook, a provincial roads department employee who said he found Miss Fecteau's wallet about eight feet from the side of a gravel road running between St. Hermenegilde and East Hereford on June 26. He said he and two co-workers only learned the owner of the wallet when they tried to turn it in to the Coaticook detachment of the QPF. Because the post is manned only part-time, there was nobody there, so they turned the wallet over to the Coaticook Municipal Police.

In reply to a final question from the Crown, Lemieux said he blazed a tree with an axe to mark the location of where he had found the wallet.

Walsh said arson has become a malady in the area and noted that Lauzon had been sentenced before for safecracking.

During Lauzon's trial, a barman from Le Vieux Clocher testified he had seen Lauzon on the premises with two drum containers a few days before the fire. A bus driver testified he had pulled Lauzon's car from a ditch on the road to Kingsbury the day of the fire.

Lauzon maintained throughout his trial that he never frequented Kingsbury, that he did not know the owners of Le Vieux Clocher and that he was at home on the night of the fire.

Lennoxville council

Mississauga prompts CD change

By NELSON WYATT
LENOXVILLE — Town Council last night nominated a new head for the local Civil Defence unit and took note of transit fare increases to take effect on February 1, 1980.

Council nominated James Strickland as the new director of the Civil Defence unit in town, a move deemed wise by the aldermen in the wake of the recent disaster at Mississauga, Ontario, where a train derailment forced the evacuation of thousands of that city's residents.

They also took note of a letter from the Sherbrooke Municipal Transit Commission, which contracts bus service for the town. The letter advised them that as of February 1, 1980, bus fares would be raised to 25 cents for retired persons with a card, 35 cents for school children under 16 and 50 cents for adults.

Letters of thanks were also received from the Quebec Society for Crippled Children and the Royal Canadian Legion March of Dimes Campaign for the town's assistance in their fund-raising efforts.

Council also voted to make the final payment on repair work to certain sections of city streets and decided to allocate the remaining $20,000 of a $34,040 Ministry of Transport grant, to pay for paving on Charlotte Street and repair on Winder Street.

Parks Committee

chairman Duncan Bruce told Council that the local rink would be ready as soon as appropriate weather arrived and that 20 applications for the job of recreational director were being reviewed. Council also voted to rent a Hurst "Jaws of Life" tool from the Sherbrooke Fire Department for use in the case of serious accident, at a cost of $325 per hour and supported a request from the Town of Nicolet that is petitioning the Quebec government to raise the minimum population for a town to hire a police force. The present requirement states that a town of 5000 must have a police department. Nicolet wants that requirement hiked to a population of 10,000.

Council also noted a letter from Hydro-Quebec that requested that the town think of energy conservation when putting up their Christmas decorations this year.

Finance Committee Chairman Robert Nichol told council that the 1979 evaluation roll, which will be used for the purposes of tax collection in 1980, had been completed. The roll set the total taxable evaluation at $49,516,240 while non-taxable evaluation was set at $50,082,940. Non-taxable evaluation includes churches and educational institutions in the town. He said that the tax levy for next year has not been set yet.

Finally, council considered and approved a request by the Parents' Committee of Ecole St. Antoine to use the lawn of the Town Hall for a sale of Christmas trees on December 8 and 9 as part of a fund-raising campaign for school projects.

SHERBROOKE — Lise Payette, Quebec Minister for Women's Affairs will give a conference on "The Feminine Condition" on Friday, November 23rd, at 11:30 a.m. in the judicial centre of the Sherbrooke University law faculty. The invitation is open to the general public.

Bomb threat disrupts court activity

SHERBROOKE (JC) — A snowballing bomb threat finally reached municipal courthouse here yesterday afternoon and caused the adjournment of a horse theft trial as well as other cases before the courts.

Judges, lawyers, jurists, the accused, court personnel and striking public sector employees all left their posts inside and some stayed to watch as Sherbrooke QPF officers combed the building in search of explosives.

The bomb warning first came from a woman who told a man in a Richmond steel plant who told Richmond QPF, who told Sherbrooke QPF, who told courthouse officials about the bomb.

No bomb was found, no explosives, not even a suspicious brown paper bag. Police are at a loss as to the motive for the bomb scare.

BROMONT TAXES STAY PUT FOR '80

By NELSON WYATT
BROMONT — Ratepayers here can breathe a sigh of relief — taxes will not be going up next year. A city hall spokesman told The Record that thanks to new fiscal reform to be handed down by the provincial government in December, the town will be flush enough to avoid putting an added burden on taxpayers. The government reform will enable the municipalities instead of the government, to collect school taxes for local use.

addition of a new condominium project and a recent expansion of the IBM facility. "Things are getting better in Bromont," said the spokesman.

The last time there was a tax increase in Bromont was in 1977 and the rates remained stable until this year, when they dropped by nine cents. The current rate is $2.89 per $100 evaluation.

City fathers are also anxiously awaiting confirmation of news out of Quebec City that Bromont will be getting the go-ahead on its race track project. A city hall spokesman said that currently the commission that grants the licenses for such projects is short three of its five members and once that team is rounded out, the town should be receiving the approval.

Iran: Either way, Carter will have foreign policy problem

Students maintain an almost constant vigil outside the U.S. embassy in Tehran.

WASHINGTON (AP) — However the bizarre drama in Iran ends, President Carter will be left with a delicate foreign-policy and political problem that might be a pivotal point in his presidency.

On the one hand, Carter will be pressed to retaliate against Iran, to demonstrate to U.S. voters and the world that he is a strong leader who will not allow the United States to be flouted. Failure to do so would undoubtedly jeopardize his hopes for re-election.

But weighing against retaliation will be advisers telling him that whatever measures he chooses, they must not be so severe as to endanger the long-range chances of protecting Western interests in a critical part of the world. For, despite the rabid anti-Americanism of the Tehran students, experts in and out of government say it is still possible that Iran will remain a source of oil for the West and a barrier to the expansion of Soviet influence in the Middle East.

TURMOIL LIKELY

Once the crisis ends, Iran is likely to be in turmoil, say state department officials who are unwilling to be quoted directly while the hostages are still being held.

There are few organized and disciplined political power centres left in the country.

One is the Islamic clergy, headed by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. But the clergy has yet to demonstrate that it has the political skill necessary to govern the country.

Another is the Marxist left, which, although it is small, has the virtues of being armed and organized. Thus far, the Marxists have run into solid anti-Communist opposition from the Islamic revolutionaries.

Two other key groups are the military and the middle class. But they are in disarray, their leaders either gone or discredited, with no man or organization to rally around. The shah virtually destroyed responsible, democratic opposition.

'ANARCHY' POSSIBLE

Citing this vacuum, one state department official said his best estimate is that Iran will be in a state of "low-level anarchy," with the clergy nominally in control but unable to bring order to the country or pacify separatists like the Kurds.

How Carter balances reprisals with restraint might help determine what happens in Iran.

Some retaliatory measures appear inevitable. State department officials say there will be a break in diplomatic relations, although it is not clear whether it will be formally enunciated. The administration may simply choose to leave the embassy closed indefinitely.

In addition, there are a range of reprisals the administration can take. The Iranian military, for example, is heavily dependent on U.S. technicians and spare parts to keep its equipment running. That equipment, in turn, is vital to putting down separatists like the Kurds. The administration quickly closed the military pipeline when the embassy was seized and has yet to decide when to let the shipments resume.

The administration also might continue to refuse to buy Iranian oil, and might try to organize other consuming countries in a wider boycott.

A pity

Premier Rene Levesque has called for full speed ahead and damn the torpedoes in his frontal assault on the common-front picket lines, and while we admire his cabinet's guts, we'd say the move is a foolhardy one. One cannot throw union leaders in jail for indulging in what many Quebecers have come to see as a basic tenet of this society — civil disobedience to protect what they feel is a fundamental right.

Is the right to strike fundamental? We'd say yes — in the current context of the law which allows it. It has always appeared somewhat silly that the right to strike is never questioned until the lawmakers are forced to deal with the strike itself. It's the same paradox within which Robert Bourassa and his Liberals found themselves trapped in 1973, and it is basic to Quebec society. It's exactly the same situation as that which forced Parliament to pass legislation ordering the postal workers back to work last year, and we're still seeing and hearing the fallout from that one.

Premier Levesque calls the common front leaders irresponsible for their decision to defy the public and parapublic strike moratorium legislation. He and his cabinet apparently learned nothing from past lessons. A pity.

Tory dare?

Yesterday's combined NDP-Liberal victory in two federal byelections has placed Prime Minister Joe Clark and his Conservatives in an interesting position, literally daring the opposition to force an election.

We doubt very much whether Opposition Leader Pierre Trudeau wants that election. The various Liberal associations across Canada are more or less open in their questioning of Mr. Trudeau's leadership capabilities, which have taken a beating lately with his non-appearance at a B.C. Liberal convention in favor of New York disco dancing and his rambling soliloquies at this weekend's Ontario Grit function.

Sacred leader Fabien Roy doesn't want an election. His unrecognized rump party, demoralized by Tory raids and House indifference, is in no position financially to fight another campaign on the scale of the last one. Even the NDP, caught up as it is with the rift between itself and ever-growing segments of the labor movement, is by no means guaranteed as good a showing in another federal election.

It would appear a fortunate set of circumstances has placed the Tories in the position of the stud player with the worst face cards who gambles as if there's no tomorrow; bluff or no, he stands to lose less than the others. We suspect an early spring election would be fairly heavily Tory, considering the doubts many Liberals entertain with Mr. Trudeau's leadership.

On top of that, the mortgage-interest and property-tax deductibility scheme is a fairly popular piece of legislation, even if it doesn't help the average homeowner to any great extent or most Canadians at all. It has been recognized as the symbolic carrot that it is, and any opposition party which challenges the government's tabling of such a bill is bound to feel repercussions.

Our bet is Mr. Trudeau will bide his time. A one-seat majority for the Tories means he can challenge them just about at will. It will work wonders for party morale. But from yesterday's Grit attendance records in the Commons — 23 members present out of 113, we'd say the Liberals don't have what it takes to force a non-confidence motion with any hope of winning.

Persian Gulf oil blockade unlikely, experts say

The Islamic revolution in Iran, along with the current crisis involving the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, has brought renewed concern for security in the Persian Gulf. Here is a report by the chief of Middle East Services for The Associated Press who previously had assignments in Iran.

By OTTO DOELLING

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran, once regarded as the United States' policeman in the Persian Gulf but now as a foe of the U.S., is in a position to cut off the flow of 60 per cent of the world's oil — by blockading the narrow Strait of Hormuz, the outlet from Persian Gulf oil countries to the world's sea lanes.

But, despite the crisis provoked by the seizure of the U.S. embassy in Tehran, Western diplomatic sources in the Iranian capital rule out such drastic Iranian action. "Arab gulf states, particularly Iraq, would consider that a very aggressive act; so I don't think the Iranians would dare do it," commented one diplomatic source reached by telephone from Nicosia. He said that the United States probably would deploy its Middle East and carrier-led Indian Ocean naval forces to break any blockade.

Iran's heavy dependence on foreign food and other imports from the West also militates against a sea blockade.

FORMS GAP

At its narrowest, the Strait of Hormuz forms a 38-kilometre water gap between southwestern Iran and the pro-Western sultanate of Oman.

But the strait's shipping lane actually is only about three kilometres wide and snakes through dangerous shoals. Tankers pass through the strait at the rate of one every 12 minutes.

An AP correspondent who recently visited Oman reported that leaders there say they regard mining of the channel as the biggest potential threat. The strait is about 40 metres deep most of the way across and this should enable vessels to pass around any ship purposely sunk in an effort to block the channel.

Some Arab states would like to see some U.S. military presence in the area, but not necessarily in the gulf itself. Conservative Arab oil states much prefer to have U.S. naval forces "over the horizon" in the Indian Ocean as a deterrent to Soviet penetration. They fear a U.S. presence in the gulf would invite U.S.-Soviet friction in the area.

Although fear of Soviet expansionism has been shoved into the background by recent events in Iran, anti-Communist states in the area remain concerned that a worsening of Iran's internal political situation might strengthen the hand of well-organized leftist elements there and that this might have a domino effect on the Arab side of the Persian Gulf.

Letters Masonic report

Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my thanks and appreciation to Ivy Hatch for her extremely detailed and interesting account of the recent Masonic Trip to London, England.

She went into a great deal of research and many painstaking enquiries to produce such a detailed, accurate and interesting account of her journey through the Masonic Archives of London, England.

I was personally not able to make this journey, but through her column I really feel that I had partaken of this journey.

Ivy Hatch might be interested to know that the Masonic Temple on Great Queen Street was converted to an air raid shelter during World War II. I was at the time in the Metropolitan Police stationed at Bow Street, (just round the corner), being on duty one night during the blitz, on a particularly bad night I supervised and assisted at the birth of a baby boy in the Temple. I am sure the only recorded ever birth of a baby boy in the Temple!

I was unfortunately not able to follow up on the baby's future, this was in 1941, and maybe now this boy is a Mason who can say with truth, "I was born in the Masonic Temple". Brought into this life by a London policeman!!

Here's how U.S. lost influence in Iran

WASHINGTON — The loss of Iran may turn out to be the most grievous blow to the United States since the Vietnamese War. This has opened the crucial oil fields of the Persian Gulf to a possible takeover by hostile forces.

For two decades, the United States had built up Iran to be the protector of American interests in the Persian Gulf. Then overnight, the government fell into anti-American hands. Suddenly, America's overseas oil supply has become dangerously vulnerable.

From secret documents, here's the story of the U.S. failure in Iran. It goes back to the post-World War II period.

In 1950 Mohammed Mossadegh, age 70, the eccentric leader of a splinter party in the Iranian National Assembly, began to inflame the nation with his demands for nationalizing oil.

To Western eyes, Mossadegh was sick, ugly, hairless and banana-nosed — factors which, given the Iranians' superior esthetics in such matters, gave him an irresistible charisma. Three years of incredible theater, grisly murders, baroque impostures, fantastic chaos and incomparable demagoguery followed, as the pajama-clad "Mossy" roused the masses with impassioned spiels, weeps and blubbers.

Then he would collapse in a great heap and would be carried about, unconscious, through admiring hordes driven to run amuck by the sight of his inert body. The drama escalated magnificently, with the shah run out of the country. For three years, Iran whirled in intermittent bedlam.

The miserliness of the oil companies, the growing appetites of the Arabs for the oil money flowing away under their feet, and the penchant of the State Department for taking the path of least resistance opened the door to a fatal precedent.

The decision on what to do about Mossadegh's upheaval was resolved, not by seeking a new and just modus vivendi with awakening nationalism but by first destroying Iran's economy through a worldwide oil industry boycott of its exports and then by deposing Mossadegh through a CIA coup.

The CIA installed the young shah on the Peacock Throne and permitted the oil companies to resume their exploitation of Iran. But the ghost of Mossadegh was not completely exorcised from the land.

His ringing protests could not be stilled. And the spirit of Mossadegh remained as a growing undercurrent, bubbling beneath the surface, stirring the volatile Iranian people — an undercurrent that was bound to burst through the dams that the shah had created to wall it in, sweeping him out of power.

This undercurrent went undetected by our intelligence agencies. In August 1978, on the eve of the shah's overthrow, the CIA compiled a 23-page intelligence assessment entitled "Iran After the Shah." But despite its prophetic title, this gave no forewarning of what was about to happen. On the contrary, it stated: "Iran is not in a revolutionary, or even in a pre-revolutionary situation."

This caused President Carter to proclaim that "Iran, because of the great leadership of the shah, is an island of stability in one of the more troubled areas of the world."

Carter used the tremendous leverage of the United States, meanwhile, to persuade the shah to relax his grip on the country, to ease press censorship and to release political prisoners. The shah later complained, no doubt correctly, that these moves convinced his enemies that he was weakening.

He started to crack down, and the bloodbath lasted two days. This prompted a telephone appeal from Carter to the shah to stop the bloodshed. A cable from the Iranian embassy in Washington offered different advice, which was attributed to ex-Secretary of State Henry Kissinger. He was quoted as urging, "I believe that you have to get the prisoners you released and put them in jail again. Your work will be easier if you put them in jail." Kissinger told us that he had not been quoted accurately.

In any event, it was too late. The spirit of Mossadegh was about to burst loose. It was already shaking the Peacock Throne. The alarmed shah turned to the United States for support, he called upon American ambassador William Sullivan for advice.

The president rushed veteran foreign policy strategist George Ball to Iran. Ball concluded that the only way to prevent a total collapse of the government was to turn it over to civilian control, with the shah as no more than a figurehead.

Carter disregarded this advice. At the urging of his military chiefs, he ordered a small naval task force, led by the nuclear carrier, Constellation, into the Persian Gulf. Then he abruptly changed his mind and canceled the order. The task force wound up in Singapore.

Thus the president offered the shah no advice or support. "This is something in the hands of the people of Iran," he said blandly. So the people went on a rampage and trampled down the shah's government. They turned for leadership to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, an ancient but rigid Moslem, who embodied the spirit of Mossadegh. Khomeini was reckless in a timid age, bloody in a squeamish age, puritanical in a hedonistic age, intolerant in an ecumenical age — in short a fanatical man in a frivolous age.

He represents a fundamental challenge to the West not only because of his Draconian approach but his spiritual belief. He would sacrifice oil wealth, safety, convenience, pleasure, life itself to pursue his beliefs. In so doing he puts chips on the table which his Western adversaries have thus far been unwilling to call.

CLSC offers birth control information

By SONDRACORRY
What do you do if you are a 15-year-old girl in need of birth control information and, for any of a number of reasons, you don't want to ask your parents? What if you are 16 years old, pregnant, you would like to discuss the options, but you don't want to be told what to do? What if you are a 17-year-old high school student and you want to have sex with your boy friend, but you have no money for contraceptives?

You might make an appointment to see Dr. Gail Gibson at the Centre local de services communautaires at 105 Gordon Street in Sherbrooke (565-1330), or you might attend the open house for young people age 15 to 25 held every Wednesday evening from 6 to 9. Dr. Gibson or other members of the staff of the CLSC will be available for information or discussion. She does not promise easy answers, but she does promise confidentiality and information without judgment.

The problems facing women concerning sexuality and reproductive are hardly less complicated today than they have ever been. Inadequate methods of birth control, public and parental attitudes toward sexuality, media distortion of sexuality, limited access to abortions and the threat of unemployment for the unmarried mother present enormous problems for women, especially teen-age women.

The CLSC is the only complete clinic in Sherbrooke with professional staff to deal with these problems. The CLSC, however, specifically serves the centre, west and south wards of Sherbrooke, leaving the other wards, the surrounding towns and rural areas without integrated services. Gail Gibson assures that the staff will not refuse a woman in need of birth control information or an abortion referral. But she stresses the need for a complete clinic in the city with easy access to all people and which serves the entire population of the region.

The CLSC clinic focuses on three interdependent dimensions of family planning: contraception, fertility and an active sex life as a means of personal growth. Recognizing the pluralistic nature of society it seeks to dispense its resources without value judgments.

Within that framework, the staff addresses major problems related to sexuality in our society. Their first recognition is that sexuality exists in a context of dominant and dominated where the woman is the loser. Sexuality is exchanged for some other thing. The woman is responsible for contraception. They point out that while young CEGEP students and university students are leaning toward a more equal sexuality, the woman remains responsible for birth control.

Young people are encouraged to come to the clinic to discuss their questions about sex, without meeting reaction from traditionalists who advise young women not to have sex.

There is one fool proof method of contraception, they say: celibacy. But as Dr. Gibson points out, this is simply not dealing with the present reality, such moralizing doesn't work.

More sensitive to these attitudes which discourage young people from expressing not only their sexuality but their questions about sex, Dr. Gibson stresses that this is only one side of the problem. Teen-agers are pressured to have sex by their friends, who ridicule the inexperienced, and by the media. Television, films and both the disco and the rock cultures urge younger and younger girls to "do it." With the pressures from both sides, the young woman must deal, usually without help from either side, with prevention of pregnancy.

DR. GAIL GIBSON...must deal with reality

BIRTH CONTROL
Someone recently said to Gail Gibson that instead of judging young people who seek out birth control information, we should be praising them for taking such a responsibility on their own shoulders, praising and encouraging. Since the introduction of the pill in the 60s, the public attitude is often that the problem has been solved. Many women can not take the pill. Those who can usually do so for no more than five years, due to an absence of information about long-term effects. With teen-agers the pill is the most popular and practical method. Other methods are awkward or less effective. The IUD (intrauterine device) causes bleeding with a large number of childless women. The woman who starts using the pill at 16 or 18 will be in need of an alternative in her early 20s with still 20 to 25 years of reproductive life ahead of her. Some women begin with the pill, change to other methods during their late twenties and early thirties and after having all the babies they want, have a tubal ligation. Or their partner has a vasectomy, but this is still not a popular method among men. The large number of abortions sought by women of all ages indicates the inadequacy of all available methods. Dr. Gibson says there are few improvements in sight. There are experiments taking place with a nasal spray that affects the woman's hormones. In France, a vaginal insert is being developed which would not only prevent pregnancy but would prevent V.D.

SEX EDUCATION
Although the choices are still limited, the lack of accessible information regarding methods and services compounds the problem. A sex education course introduced at Alexander Galt a few years ago for students in level 4 and 5 has been discontinued. Other schools such as Le Phare still offer a course. There are problems in introducing sex education to children or young people who, through exposure to negative attitudes, are self-conscious when the subject is presented in the classroom. Nevertheless, high school students have so many questions, with sensitive teachers they could have many of them answered.

There are other sources of information in the community, such as school nurses, local doctors, and various clinics. Gail Gibson stresses, however, that it takes a good half hour to explain the various methods of birth control, what it does and how it works, to a young girl. That is, a half hour for the young woman who understands everything the first time. That amount of time is simply not available at every facility.

ABORTION
Poor means of birth control, inaccessible contraceptives, and the absence of sex education put a strain on abortion facilities, limited in Sherbrooke to begin with. Studies show that 20 per cent of 15-to-17 year olds in Sherbrooke have an active sex life, but only 10 per cent use contraceptives. While Sherbrooke has better abortion facilities than many Quebec cities, the demand is greater than the capacity to fill it. If a woman had tried to arrange an abortion at the CHU on November 1st, she would have had to wait until the middle of December. Women and the experts agree that the sooner an abortion is done, the better for the woman. If the woman had been eight weeks pregnant on November 1st, she would have been well past the 12-week mark by December 15th. She would probably have been referred to a Montreal hospital, instead of waiting. Had she called Montreal General on Monday, November 5th, she could have been scheduled for Friday of the same week.

Abortion facilities are still limited due to the federal law which permits hospitals to perform abortions only by recommendation of a therapeutic abortion committee. It is the decision of the hospital administration whether or not to have such a committee. Women's groups such as the Canadian Association for Repeal of the Abortion Law (CARAL) and the Quebec La Coordination nationale pour l'Avortement libre et gratuit have urged for the repeal of the 1969 law. In the CSF's new publication La Gazette des femmes, abortion is referred to as the battle that never ends. In Sherbrooke, two hospitals, Sherbrooke Hospital and the CHU (Centre Hospitalier Universitaire) have committees. Medicare covers the expense of an abortion done in these hospitals. There are no private clinics in Sherbrooke that do abortions, as there are in Montreal. A private clinic is not covered by medicare, the charge ranges from $100 to $500 depending on the length of the pregnancy.

Social workers find the backlog at the CHU unacceptable. There is too much strain on the woman who must wait several weeks for an abortion. They also feel it is difficult for a woman to have to travel to Montreal. While the staff of the CLSC praises the CHU for its response from clinics which seek services for their patients, they criticize the location of the hospital and the inadequate abortion facilities which are serious problems for many patients.

THE NEED
Are there any answers? The CLSC has evaluated its own services as well as other clinics in the area. Gail Gibson says that one of the principal needs in the region is a centrally-located clinic with complete services that serves the entire population. She also urges sex education programs to be offered in the schools starting in the lower grades. She would like to see the mass media used to educate. She suggests the use of late night television to teach parents to educate their children. A birth control van has been suggested for visiting rural areas.

If Gail were to be judged for her work with teen-agers, she would probably receive unanimous approval. She is open, enthusiastic, and energetic. Teen-agers would undoubtedly be attracted to her. The services of the CLSC would also receive a high rating. The staff urges communication with the population and a working relation with other organizations, a pooling of information. Nevertheless, there is one flaw worth mentioning. As this report emphasizes the concerns of teenage girls, it is worth noting that of the four doctors at the CLSC Gail is the only woman. For many services the clinic offers, this is not a problem. However for the young teen-ager, indeed for any woman, seeking contraceptive advice, it is preferable to see a woman doctor. Women agree almost unanimously that they can confide more easily in a woman. The attitude of the doctor is, of course, a factor, and if a male doctor is open and likes young people he will have a positive effect. Hopefully, however, Sherbrooke will succeed in attracting more doctors like Gail Gibson to work with young women.

'Green Adair' solved Mississauga disaster

MISSISSAUGA, Ont. (CP) — Stu Greenwood doesn't like to talk about his risky lifestyle but his friends have fashioned a nickname for him patterned after a famous oil well firefighter: Green Adair.

Greenwood heads the Dow Chemical Ltd. of Sarnia, Ont., chlorine emergency plan team, an industry-wide network of specialists trained to deal with chlorine accidents that has been on the scene of the CP Rail derailment since last Sunday.

Greenwood, head of the team for the last five years, gained the nickname because his fellow workers feel he is as much an expert in chlorine accidents as Red Adair is in putting out oil well fires.

But unlike the world-famous Adair, Greenwood shuns publicity. "He's a very low key guy," a Dow spokesman said. "And when he's at the scene of an emergency, all he's interested in is solving the problem."

Using blocks and tackles, chains, wedges, two wooden arches, sheets of steel, plywood, rubber, two air bags capable of exerting 30 tons of pressure and old-fashioned brute strength, Greenwood and his crew fastened a patch on a tanker car that lasted long enough to let them safely pump out 20 tons of deadly chlorine.

The team's main problem was sealing the leak and since every accident is different, they usually have to improvise solutions.

The hole in the tanker was about one metre square but it was situated on the curved top as well as the rounded end of the car, making patching difficult.

GLUE WON'T WORK
Also, because chlorine is explosive, Greenwood and his crew were unable to use power tools or a welder. The pressure of the escaping gas also made any sort of glue impossible.

The first patch was a sheet of steel backed with rubber gasket material. A long steel bar, called a strong bar, was placed inside the tanker, wedged against the inside of the hole to serve as the patch's anchor.

But when air was pumped inside to test the patch, the pressure popped it out.

The second try was a combination of rubber and steel but it leaked.

Greenwood and his 10-man crew worked 35 consecutive hours before catching a six-hour nap Wednesday afternoon. When they went back to work, they tried the third patch, a mix of inflated rubber air bags, wood and sheet metal.

It finally fit on Thursday morning. One of Greenwood's four children, Al, 20, said in a telephone interview his father will probably take a week off to rest once he returns home but won't talk much about the incident, at least to his family.

"What will happen is that when some of his friends from work show up, they'll sit around the kitchen table, drink some beer and hash it all out."

Incest is problem in Sherbrooke area

It is estimated that as many as 15 per cent of adolescent girls in the Sherbrooke area between the ages of 12 and 15 are victims of incest. Although the problem has been known for many years, the startling percentage is a recent discovery. Like rape, most cases of incest go unreported. Recently, the writings of women who have revealed their childhood experiences have brought to light, by the enormous response of women who suffered similar experiences, the scope of the problem. Studies show that one out of every four young girls will have suffered some form of sexual abuse before she is 18. One out of four of these will have taken place within the framework of the family. It is estimated that there may be a million young girls in the United States who are victims of sexual abuse in the home. Studies show that 95 per cent of the victims of incest are female, 99 per cent of the offenders male, a statistic worth keeping in mind in light of the recent release of Bertolucci's film, Luna. In the film the mother, played by Jill Clayburgh, instigates an incestuous relation with her teen-age son, a situation that is rare in real life, according to the finds of social workers. Women are rarely sexually aggressive toward their children. Usually the offender is the father or step-father, the mother's lover or an uncle, brother or grandfather. If the mother knows of the problem, she is often silent. Discovery often leads to the disintegration of the family. While cases have been discovered of sexual abuse committed on infants less than a year old, and many on small children, the typical case begins when the child is about 12 years old. Until recently, it was believed that incest was principally a problem in low-income families and in rural areas. This is now known to be a myth. It was simply that the problem was more easily detected by social workers who had access to families in the lower income brackets. Incest occurs in poor and middleclass families alike, often the offender is a respected member of the community. Officials in California assert that the sexual abuse of children is much more common than child battery but comes to light much less often.

Sexual abuse in the family, which ranges from indecent exposure to intercourse, is usually an ongoing crime, not an isolated incident. The child is powerless to avoid a sexual relation with a person upon whom she is dependent or who has authority over her. The relation puts guilt upon the victim who is too young to understand. Guilt is one of the factors which prevent her from reporting the situation. Nancy Gager and Cathleen Schurr in their work, Sexual Assault, write, "Those who have worked with child victims (social workers, public health nurses, psychological counselors and others) indicate that child victims suffer enormous blocks in terms of suppressed terror, fear, guilt, shame, and loss of self-esteem." And a report on incest published in Ms. two years ago explained that "Unlike the battered wife, the incest victim lacks even the protection or credibility of status as an adult." Young women subjected to incestuous relations are found to suffer irreversible damages in the development of the personality.

Quebec's Council on the Status of Women, in bringing the problem to the attention of the government, reported that public reaction to the problem of incest has been to caution children against this kind of abuse rather than to enforce the law, as though children could foresee and thus avoid the abuse if they possessed information. The council urges a massive education of the public through the Committee for the Protection of the Young.

NEW YORK (AP) — Surrounded by 300 guests and colleagues, producer Joseph Papp and actress Arlene Francis presented membership in the Theatre Hall of Fame to 51 of the greatest stars of Broadway.

It was the first awards ceremony since 1973 — an interval attributed to lack of funds — and it brought the total honor roll to 183. Eligibility for the award is based on five or more major Broadway credits spanning at least 25 years, but awards can be given in the case of early death after exceptional achievement.

Among those honored Sunday night were actors Ray Bolger, Henry Fonda, Katharine Hepburn, Sir Laurence Olivier and the late Zero Mostel, the late director Tyrone Guthrie, lyricist Alan Jay Lerner, composer Frederick Loewe and playwright Tennessee Williams.

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — Author James Baldwin says black Americans are as oppressed today as they were two decades ago, despite the civil-rights movement. "Unemployment is just as high as ever, there's a whole new generation in the streets," he said. "I felt it (the civil rights movement) could move. I don't think that it really has."

But the novelist and playwright said the United States remains the world's only hope for fighting discrimination. Baldwin, whose writing in 19 books and plays has focused on racial frustrations and hostility toward whites, is teaching two fall classes in black studies at Bowling Green State University.

Ann Landers

Mother was clean nut, daughter raises slob

Dear Ann Landers: You've printed letters about husbands who refuse to bathe, smell like goats, won't use a toothbrush and sleep in their underwear.

My mother's problem was just the opposite. She was crazy clean. Guests had to remove their shoes at the door if they didn't pass inspection. She used so much Lysol our home smelled like a hospital. She didn't wash the silverware, she sterilized it!

We have two daughters. I'm raising them to be neat, but I don't want them to be nuts. My husband says I am too lenient. He calls them sloppy. In my opinion they are normal 11-and-13-year-olds. I don't think they should wash their hair more than once a week. If a few garments aren't hung up - so what? Comment! - Greenwich

Dear G.: I suspect that because of your own mother's rigidity, you are going to the other extreme without realizing it.

If your husband is complaining, I'd bet there's something to complain about. Sloppy boys are bad enough, but girls who grow up to be slobbers are yucky. So, tighten up, Mother, for their sake.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a lawyer who specializes in domestic problems. I hear from plenty of divorced men, enraged because their in-laws intercepted child-support checks. I also get complaints against children who grab welfare and Social Security checks addressed to their elderly parents.

So please stop telling people there's a federal law against opening letters addressed to others. There may be a law, but I've never heard of a conviction, so - Tell It Like It Is Dear Tell It: OK. Here are the facts: Once a letter is in the mailbox, it's under federal jurisdiction. The problem is this: When the letter is taken out of the mailbox and brought into the house, it is no longer under the protection of the postal authorities.

Whites on squash courts

The days when squash players could get away with a pair of white drill shorts and a T-shirt are gone. Women active in sports dress for the game and squash is no exception.

Squash has become one of the fastest growing sports in North America. In Canada, women first entered the squash courts in 1965 and played with the original hard ball. Women switched to the soft (or international) ball in 1972.

Since then, there has been an incredible increase in the number of women playing squash. For example, five years ago, women represented 20 per cent of squash players. Today in Canada, 50 per cent of squash players are women - a total of over 100,000. Heather McKay of Toronto currently ranks as the world's undefeated women's squash champion.

Squash's popularity is attributed to several reasons - it provides an excellent workout in a short time, it's a relatively easy sport to pick up and therefore can be enjoyed by beginners, and, it's an ideal indoor sport during those long Canadian winters, not to mention the fact that it's a highly social game.

There's a squash club in practically every neighbourhood and several apartment complexes provide squash facilities.

"Women should know what to look for when buying squash sportswear", advises Penny Sparling, sports clothes designer and a former top ranking tournament tennis player. "Is there enough room through the shoulders, does the fabric 'give' and most important of all, is it comfortable, are points to consider before purchasing", she added.

The new squash clothing for 1980 is essentially white trimmed in bright colours, however, women can choose from shorts, tops, A-line skirts and dresses in a variety of fabrics. Most keen squash players prefer separates for mixing and matching. Remember, short sleeve tops are great to wear in cool squash courts.

Outfits made from polycotton jersey or cotton-backed polyester knits are most suitable for the rigorous sport. Read labels and tags for fabric content and cleaning instructions.

A squash wardrobe needn't be expensive. Before spending, shop around for an excellent fit and fashion at a reasonable price.

Baby boom marks population growth

OTTAWA (CP) - The millennium approaches and with it come increases in Canada's total population, its number of families and the size of its cities.

The only thing it won't bring is zero population growth. Statistics Canada estimates in a report released Thursday that the no-growth point will not be reached before 2040.

"This long delay in reaching zero growth may be attributed to the baby-boom generation, who will keep the child-bearing population large for years to come," the study says.

Since the beginning of this century Canada's population more than quadrupled to 22.9 million in 1976 from 5.3 million in 1901.

For the year 2000, the federal agency has projected a population of between 28 and 31 million.

"The high projection assumes an average family size of 2.1 children per woman and net migration of 100,000 persons per year," the report said. "The low projection is based on an average family size of only 1.7 children and net migration of 50,000 per year."

The average family of 1976 had 3.5 children, down from 3.7 in 1971. The most striking feature about family size is the difference between the eastern and western provinces, said an accompanying study.

The extremes are best represented by Newfoundland's four-child families and British Columbia's average of 3.3 children a family.

But, while the number of children born to each couple is decreasing, the number of families is on the rise.

Between the censuses of 1971 and 1976 families increased by 13.4 per cent from 5.05 million to 5.72 million. The largest increases were in Ontario, Quebec, B.C. and Alberta where there are now 2.1 million, 1.5 million, 628,445 and 448,768 families, respectively.

There are more marriages and at younger ages, as well. Almost two-thirds of the adult population in 1976 was married. Average groom was 25 years old as he waited nervously for his bride, whose average age was 22.

Statistics Canada says the decrease in age, from 27 years for men and 24 for women in 1941, may reflect "the fact that women are now more financially independent than ever before."

And what of the cities? More than 75 per cent of all Canadians live in an urban area. Toronto boasts the largest metropolitan population with 2,083 million, followed by Montreal with 2,802 million and Vancouver with 1,166 million.

Ottawa-Hull, Winnipeg, Edmonton, Quebec, Hamilton, Calgary and St. Catharines-Niagara, Ont., range in size from 693,288 down to 301,921.

In honor of their 60th wedding anniversary, their children - Roscoe and Stella, Margaret and Blane, Arthur and Diana, and their grandchildren, entertained some one hundred and forty relatives and friends who came to offer congratulations and best wishes.

The bride and groom of sixty years were presented with an orchid corsage and boutonniere by their daughter, Mrs. Blane McKee (Margaret) of Pointe Claire. Their granddaughter, Mrs. B. Wetheral (Marlane McKee) of Beaconfield, was in charge of the guest book.

During the day the guests of honor were the recipients of many telegrams and phone calls, including one from their granddaughter, Mrs. R. Helynek (Cheryl) of Leduc, Alta., and one from their grandson, Gregory McKee, of Prince Edward Island.

The dining room table was covered with a white hand-made lace cloth made by Mrs. Mizener's mother sixty years ago. The wedding cake, made by their daughter-in-law Diana, centered the table and was flanked by tall white tapers in antique glass candlesticks, which had belonged to Mr. Mizener's grandmother. A silver rosebowl with yellow sweetheart roses completed the decor. Punch, tea and delicious refreshments were served in the afternoon.

In the evening, a buffet dinner was enjoyed by the family and a few close friends. Nelson Mizener of St. Bruno proposed a toast to his grandparents - the bride and groom, and Roscoe presented his parents with gifts from the family. During the course of the evening much merriment and happy memories were enjoyed by all present, and Mr. and Mrs. Mizener thanked everyone for making their 60th Anniversary a truly special time to remember.

This esteemed couple have lived their entire married life on the family farm in West Bolton. They are still active and interested in the life of the community and are looking forward hopefully to many more years of continued good health and happiness.

St. Andrew's celebrates 115th anniversary

There was a real feeling of being transported to Bonnie Scotland recently as members, adherents and friends entered St. Andrew's Presbyterian Hall, with the sounds of Scottish music in the background, and tartan, clan maps and crests hung in the beautifully decorated hall, all contributing to this warm Scottish atmosphere.

The head table was especially festive, centred with a floral arrangement in yellow, mauve and white mums, with a touch of heather, and topped with miniature bagpipes. Flanked by mauve candles in crystal candlesticks, the color scheme complemented the beautiful hand-embroidered table coverings in Scottish motif. The other tables in the hall looked most attractive, and were decorated with mauve candles and gay tartans. Mrs. Louise Savage and Mrs. Lois Matheson were responsible for the very artistic decorations for the special occasion.

Complimentary remarks were heard from the many people who sat down to a delicious turkey dinner, prepared and served by the session and board of managers, assisted by young people of the congregation.

Seated at the head table were Rev. and Mrs. Blake Walker, special guests - Dr. and Mrs. Ed McKinlay, Mr. and Mrs. George Jobel and Mr. and Mrs. John Rose. The dinner marked the beginning of a weekend celebration of St. Andrew's 115th Anniversary.

Grace and opening prayer was given by the Rev. Ross Davidson of Melbourne, George Jobel, Clerk of Session, acted as Master of Ceremonies for the evening and expressed his appreciation to all who had worked to make it a success. A delightful musical program was also arranged. Bagpipe selections by Charles Gordon and Gordon Wade were most appropriate and enthusiastically appreciated by the audience. Another special highlight was in the assistance given by Mr. and Mrs. Ian Haggerty of Montreal who so capably led in a sing-song of favourite hymns and Scottish tunes Mrs. Haggerty, who is well known in Sherbrooke as a gifted soloist, delighted all with her renditions of "My Ain Folk", accompanied by the Rev. Ross Davidson at the piano and "Amazing Grace", accompanied by Gordon Wade on the bagpipes.

Rev. Blake Walker cordially welcomed all present after which he introduced the guest speaker for the weekend, Dr. Ed McKinlay, and his wife, Flora McKinlay. McKinlay, a native of Scotland, is a graduate in theology of Knox College in Toronto, and did post-graduate studies at Edinburgh University where he received his Ph.D. degree. Dr. McKinlay has served with distinction in numerous important positions throughout the church and at present is Pastor of Bridlewood Presbyterian Church in suburban Toronto, where he leads an extremely active and ever-expanding congregation.

In his address on Saturday evening, Dr. McKinlay spoke on "The Appeal of Robbie Burns" and from the onset it was evident that he was not only keenly interested but also well versed in his topic and his recitations from the poems and songs of the well known poet were most effectively presented. Dr. McKinlay commented on the way in which the influence of the works of this great poet had spread to many lands; as even to this day, "Robbie Burns Suppers" are frequently held and his books have been translated into many other languages, including English, French and German. Dr. McKinlay feels that it is unfortunate that a knowledge of the "Broad Scots Tongue" has been largely lost, even in Scotland, and this factor makes it more difficult for the reader to fully appreciate the poems of Robbie Burns written in this language or dialect.

"Robbie Burns was a genius and his 19th century works are universal and timeless, speaking to every age, and portraying Scottish traditions from the cradle to the grave; one poet in a short life, leaving a heritage of 350 songs, such as no other country has. All this was due to the inspiration and energy of one man who died a pauper," said Dr. McKinlay as he concluded a most absorbing and informative address on the works of Robbie Burns.

Hugh Rose expressed appreciation to Dr. McKinlay for his splendid and most interesting presentation, following which the Rev. James Jack, of Melbourne, closed the meeting with prayer, concluding a most inspiring evening of rich fellowship.

On Sunday, October 28th, there were special services of Thanksgiving to mark the 115th Anniversary occasion. A large congregation attended the 11 a.m. service where Dr. McKinlay spoke on the theme of "a never to be forgotten day" - based on Acts 2:37-47 - an account of the day of Pentecost when in one day some three thousand souls were added to the church. Dr. McKinlay preached a very challenging sermon on this subject reminding the congregation that the spiritual growth and blessing of God on any church demands that the Church expounds and proclaims the true gospel as its central function; that the Church exists to reach out and draw in those who are outside, that our task should not be "live and worship" but also "go and tell", and that the Church have the presence of the holy spirit to direct all things. Dr. McKinlay spoke of the example of the vital Korean Church where wonderful growth is evident due to the strong emphasis on biblical teaching, outreach and the power and presence of the holy spirit. "Let us all go out and grow for Christ" was the final commission to the congregation in this challenging sermon presented by Dr. McKinlay.

The congregation was also very privileged to have Mrs. Jeanette Haggerty as guest soloist at the morning service and her renditions - "There were ninety and nine" and "He Giveth More Grace" touched the hearts of all. She was accompanied by Tony Davidson, who presided at the organ for the service. Following the morning service, the congregation was invited to a coffee hour and time of fellowship in the church hall.

At 5 p.m., a supper meeting was held for the elders and their wives in the church hall - providing them with another opportunity to meet with the special guests, Dr. and Mrs. McKinlay. After a most enjoyable meal, the ladies had a short conference with Mrs. McKinlay while the elders had a "question and answer" discussion with Dr. McKinlay.

At 7 p.m., the congregation met for the evening service of Thanksgiving and rededication. The church looked very colorful as the red-coated snowshoe club choir filled into the choir loft. Directed by Irving Richards and with L. Jenne as organist they led in the singing for the service and provided splendid and much appreciated leadership in the service of song for the occasion. Dr. McKinlay preached a very poignant and touching sermon based on the 2nd chapter of Luke with his topic - "The Lost Christ". He mentioned that this was the only story in scripture which gives us details of an event in the early childhood of Jesus and that it has a special lesson for us in that it reveals to each one of us how easy it is for us - even as Christians, within the church - to lose the Christ. Dr. McKinlay threw out the challenge - "What is life without Jesus?" and urged the congregation to hold on to Christ, and if we should lose him to concentrate all our efforts to find him. The most likely place to find the Christ is in the house of God and in the company of believers. Dr. McKinlay developed his theme in a most forceful and inspiring manner, providing a most appropriate challenge to the church on this anniversary occasion.

Inspiring choral selections, presented by the Snowshoe Club Choir, at the evening service included "Sanctus", "The Lord's My Shepherd", "How Great Thou Art", and "When You Know Jesus Too". The choir led in a much enjoyed period of congregation singing, and the congregation of St. Andrew's expressed sincere appreciation for this splendid assistance. Rev. Blake Walker brought the inspiring evening service to a close with the Benediction, following which all proceeded to the church hall for a reception and time of fellowship. With refreshments provided by members of the Guild and W.M.S., this brought to a close the anniversary week-end, and special thanks and appreciation are extended to those who helped in any way in the preparations, providing food, accommodation to guests, beautiful floral arrangements for the hall and the sanctuary and in particular to the guest speaker and guest soloist and Snowshoe Club Choir who made the 115th anniversary of St. Andrew's such a memorable event.

Tartan theme is fun for young and old alike - as Craig Vaudry demonstrates.

THE LONG DISTANCE CONTEST

Here's how to play.

For every three long distance calls you make between September 29, 1979 and December 2, 1979, you get one entry. It doesn't matter how long the calls last. Nor does it matter where you call as long as it's long distance. And it's easy to enter. When you've made three long distance calls, you fill out one entry form and send it in. You can even submit a facsimile of the check outlining the discount periods as shown in the contest rules. And for every additional three long distance calls you make during the contest period, you can enter again.

Ten very grand prize packages.

You could win one of 10 economy-class trips for two to Air Canada's Caribbean or anywhere in the world Air Canada flies. Imagine yourself sun-bathing on one of the golden stretches of sand in the Caribbean, enjoying the warm, friendly atmosphere. Or perhaps there's a part of our country you've always wanted to see. Air Canada will fly you there. There may even be a favourite part of the Old or New World you'd like to explore. Air Canada flies to several destinations in Europe and the U.S.A. Air Canada will take you on a trip for two that will last a lifetime.

$2,000 in American Express Traveller's Cheques.

Included in each of the 10 grand prizes will be $2,000 in American Express Traveller's Cheques (Canadian funds). Yours to spend any way you wish. American Express is the world's most widely accepted traveller's cheque. Should they be lost or stolen they will be replaced, usually on the same business day. American Express Traveller's Cheques are the best holiday protection you can carry.

ACW Meeting

AYER'S CLIFF — On Thursday November 1st, the St. George's ACW held their regular meeting in the Parish Hall. The Rev. Owen Merriman opened the meeting by leading the ladies in the ACW prayers.

The minutes of the October meeting were adopted as read. In the absence of the treasurer, Mrs. Wally Browning read the financial report which showed a good return from the Workmen's Casserole lunch in October. Mrs. Browning also took roll call and accepted the dues for November and December.

Both the picture and address of Miriam Hernandez Barrera Christian Children's Fund, were passed around to each member. Mrs. Norman Wintle suggested that her picture be posted on the church bulletin board. Members were asked to make note of Miriam's address, as each month a member will write to her. To make it easier to remember, the same month that the member is hostess at ACW and has her turn caring for the altar will be the month to write to Miriam.

Mrs. Galen Vance reported that the sale of church calendars is going well.

Mrs. Joseph Shulver handed the Treasurer a goodly sum for the oven mitts and Christmas stockings she had made and sold. Collection of the Thank Offering was made by Mrs. Shulver.

Mr. Merriman announced the Border Ministerial Association had collected $2750.00 from the Walk-athon held several weeks ago. This money has been sent to the Hungry Children of the World Fund. Mr. Merriman also announced that there will be a corporate communion on Thursday, November 29, at 7 p.m., at St. George's.

Mrs. Ritchie Harrison said she had been contacted by the Legion, and it was decided to send the money for a cross. Mrs. Norman Wintle would lay it on Sunday, November 11th, during the ceremony of Remembrance.

It was decided to send the usual Christmas gifts, that the ACW dues and pledge be mailed, and that we support the Little Helpers when needed.

Mrs. Ritchie Harrison offered to supply a seven foot tree for the church. Mrs. Norman Wintle suggested that her daughters Patti, Diane and Susan would enjoy decorating it.

The ACW Christmas Salad Tea and Sale will be held in St. George's Parish Hall on Thursday, December 6 from 3 to 5.

While the meeting was drawing to a close, Mrs. Galen Vance served a delicious lunch, which was enjoyed by all.

PHASCOLARCTOS CINEREUS

A hundred years ago, millions of these marsupials (animals that carry their young in a pouch) existed in Australia, and it was a popular sport to shoot them out of the trees. They were easy targets, as the presence of people doesn't seem to disturb them & they are placid & friendly by nature.

In the early part of this century millions of these animals were slaughtered for their soft, durable, silver-grey fur, & were approaching the point of extinction when the Australian government passed protective legislation which may enable the Koala to make a "comeback."

Koalas feed exclusively on the leaves of eucalyptus trees & become so saturated with the essential oils of this plant that they smell just like cough drops.

The rate of reproduction is low, females giving birth to a single offspring every 2 years. A mature male Koala usually has a small harem of females which he guards jealously.

Remembrance Day Services held

COOKSHIRE — The weather being ideal, a large number of people attended the impressive Armistice Day service, held in the town park at 11:15 a.m. on Sunday, Nov. 11.

The veterans formed up at the parking grounds behind the Bank of Montreal, and marched to the cenotaph in the town park. They were led by Comrade Colin Standish and the Scottish Highland piper, Danny Morrison, of Sherbrooke. The master of ceremonies was Comrade Osborne Matthews.

The Canadian flag was presented to Comrade Tom Harbinson by Claude Tessier, Federal Member of Parliament for Megantic-Compton Counties.

O Canada was played by the bugler Jean-Paul Malenfant, the Rev. H. Vallis gave a prayer. Comrade Raymond Stevenson read the list of names of the war heroes. The reveille and the Last Post were played by the bugler, Jean-Paul Malenfant.

Mr. Tessier, Federal Member of Parliament, and Jacques Theberge, Mayor of Cookshire, both spoke a few words, the theme of their addresses was the debt of gratitude which everyone should feel for the devotion to our country by these war heroes, many of whom sacrificed their lives for our benefit, also for France and England. Both gentlemen advocated love for our fellowmen and duty to their country, Canada, and for peace and love between all ethnic groups.

Small Canadian flags on a pedestal were presented to the audience as a reminder of the country to which we belong, this being a kind gesture of the Honorable Mr. Tessier.

A small cross of poppies and several wreaths of poppies were placed at the foot of the cenotaph by individuals and representatives of various organizations.

After the service the veterans and their friends paraded to the Legion Hut where refreshments were served.

A number participated in the Scotstown celebrations, which were held later on in the afternoon.

BEEBE — On November 10th, a gathering of members of the Beebe W.I. with some veterans assembled at the Memorial Gate on North Main St. where Rev. T.W. Tyson conducted a short but impressive service.

Earlier in the day, wreaths were laid by Douglas Putney, president of the Canadian Legion branch No. 5 and Mrs. Frances Finlayson placed the wreath for the L.O.D.E.

During the service, Mrs. Annie Henderson placed a wreath for the W.I., while Mrs. Elizabeth Cass laid a wreath in memory of her sister, Miss Clara Partington of Georgeville and Miss Barbara (Barry) Clark of Beebe, as well as for all nursing sisters.

SCOTSTOWN — The Remembrance Day Service was held Sunday, Nov. 11 at 3 p.m. at the Cenotaph.

The Scotstown veterans were joined with veterans from Lennoxville and Cookshire and members of the Ladies' Legion, Scotstown and La Patrie Cadets marched from the Scotstown Hotel to the Cenotaph, led by a Piper, Drummer and Standard Bearers.

Tony Lortitch, who organized the service, welcomed all in French and George Riglar welcomed them in English.

Mr. Brian Weatherdon, student minister in St. Paul's Presbyterian Church, read the scripture and gave a prayer.

The regular Remembrance service was held. George Riglar read the names of the fallen of the two world wars and the wreaths were laid.

Mrs. Estelle Gobeil of La Patrie gave a short address in French. Mr. Riglar and Mr. Lortitch thanked all for coming and helping in any way. God Save the Queen was played.

Mr. Weatherdon closed in prayer and all were invited into the Cultural Center for refreshments, served by some of the Scotstown citizens.

Unity Fifty Plus Club

AYER'S CLIFF — The monthly meeting of the Fifty Plus Club, of Ayer's Cliff and area was held at the Canadian Legion Hall on Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 6, with over fifty members attending.

Several tables of cards were enjoyed - by those wishing to play, following which, a lunch of sandwiches, fancy breads, tea and coffee were served buffet style.

The afternoon was successful socially and financially, bringing to a close another pleasant afternoon together.

WI hold successful bazaar

LENNOXVILLE — The Women's Institute held a most successful Christmas Bazaar in St. George's Church Hall, Queen Street. The Hall was most inviting with greenery and Christmas decorations. The tea tables, with white linen covers were centered with a miniature decoration.

Those in charge of the well-patronized sales tables were: Home Baking and an assortment of jams, jellies, vegetables, etc. the latter being sold for the Nutrition and Education Fund. Here, Mrs. Archie Kinnear, Mrs. Lyman Rothney, Mrs. Gerald Knutson and Mrs. Fedora Beattie found ready sales for these items.

The fancy work, knitting, weaving, crochet and novelties, also violets and nearly new items, were readily disposed of by Mrs. Harold Worster, Mrs. Warren Ross and Mrs. Hugh Wallace, assisted by Miss Shelly Ross.

up with egg all over his chin. South explained to us that he was the most unlucky bridge player in the world and that only the singleton jack of hearts in the East hand could have led to his defeat.

South had been unlucky, but he had overlooked a perfect safety play that would have guaranteed his contract against any and all combinations of adverse cards. That safety play would have been to cash dummy's ace of hearts instead of leading the nine for a finesse. If neither honor dropped South would return to his hand, lead the nine of clubs and let it ride.

Suppose that it lost to the jack. The defenders would only have two hearts left. Two of dummy's hearts could be ruffed and eventually the fifth heart would set up.

You can check on all other combinations and will see that South is sure of that club discard once he has made this safety play.

If South can see the singleton jack of hearts in the East hand he will make seven.

Today's South won the diamond, drew trumps with one lead, led his nine of hearts and let it ride to East's jack. East returned a club. Now South led a second heart, rose with dummy's ace and wound Alouettes' explosive running back David Green (26) was among 12 members of his team to be named to the 1979 Eastern Football Conference all-star team. He's also been nominated for the CFL's outstanding player award, to be named later this week.

Green heads EFC all-stars

Running back David Green, the Canadian Football League's leading rusher this season with a total of 1,678 yards, leads a list of 11 Montreal Alouettes named to the Eastern Conference all-star team. Green was the only unanimous choice among the 26 players selected in balloting by members of the Football Reporters of Canada who regularly cover the EFC teams.

Left tackle Dan Yochum and left guard Ray Watrin, whose blocking helped Green to his conference record rushing yardage, are among five other Alouettes chosen for the EFC all-star offence. Wide receiver Bob Gaddis, centre Doug Smith and place kicker Don Sweet are the others.

Green, a 5-foot-10, 194-pound rusher, is the eastern nominee for outstanding player of the year in the CFL. He faces Edmonton Eskimos receiver Waddell Smith in the Schenley Awards, with the winners to be announced Thursday in Montreal.

Watrin, also a Schenley nominee for top offensive lineman of the year, says the key to blocking in front of Green this year has been to get off the line of scrimmage quickly.

DOESN'T NEED MUCH

"If you can get into the defensive player and tie him up for a split second, David will get through. He doesn't need much of a hole."

Green, a 26-year-old native of Jacksonville, N.C., who joined the Alouettes last season, scored 11 touchdowns during the 1979 season while setting his conference record of 1,678 yards rushing on 287 carries — an average of 5.9 yards.

The EFC defensive lineup sports an oddity in that Carl Crennel, traded to Edmonton Eskimos after 13 games with Montreal this season, was picked the all-star middle linebacker. Crennel will be in uniform for the Eskimos when they meet Montreal in the Grey Cup game in Montreal on Sunday.

Other Montreal defenders on the eastern all-star selection are tackle Glen Weir, end Junior Ah You, cornerback Dickie Harris and halfback Tony Proudfoot.

CLEMENTS RETURNS

Completing the Eastern offence are quarterback Tom Clements of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, running back Terry Metcalf of Toronto Argonauts, slotback Leif Petterson of Hamilton, wide receiver Martin Cox of Ottawa, guard Larry Butler of Hamilton, Toronto tackle Nick Bastaja, Ottawa tight end Tony Gabriel and punter Ian Sunter of Toronto.

Others on defence are Toronto end Jim Corrigan, Ottawa tackle Mike Raines, linebackers Ben Zambiasi of Hamilton and Ron Foxx of Ottawa, cornerback Mike Nelms of Ottawa, halfback Larry Brune of Ottawa and Toronto safety Billy Hardee.

Of the 26 players selected, 10 are returning from the 1978 Eastern all-star team. They are Butler, Yochum, Gabriel, Sweet, Corrigan, Weir, Crennel, Zambiasi, Harris and Brune.

It was the eighth consecutive selection for top quarterback again this year as he was last. This is Wilkinson's third all-star appearance.

The Eskimos took both wide receiver spots with both Smith and Brian Kelly making it. The all-star running backs are team-mate Jim Germany and Larry Key of the Lions.

NEW POSITION

Willie Armstead of Calgary, a former member of New England Patriots in the National Football League, who made the all-star team last year as a tight end, is the slotback.

Al Wilson, also on the all-star list last year, will be at centre with Eskimos' Bill Stevenson, another returnee, and Eric Upton at the guard spots.

Along with Mike Wilson at tackle is Calgary's Lloyd Fairbanks who was on last year's club.

Hank Hlesic, Edmonton's punter, who was the youngest player on last year's team at 18, is again the youngest this year at 19. The all-star place kicker is British Columbia's Lui Passaglia.

And on defence everything but the team he's representing, is familiar to John Helton. Helton who has been on the all-star team nine times with Calgary as a tackle, is Winnipeg's lone representative this season.

Helton will be teamed with Edmonton's Dave Fennell, a six-year member of the Eskimos who was an all-star in 1978.

Dan Kepley, in his fifth season in Edmonton, will be middle linebacker while teammate Tom Towns and Glen Jackson of B.C. will be at the outside linebacking spots. All three were with the all-stars last season.

The Stampeders took both cornerback jobs with Ray Odoms and Terry Irvin named while the defensive halfbacks, Gregg Butler and Ed Jones both are from Eskimos and both were on the team last year.

Al Burleson of Calgary is at safety.

SMITH: WE NEED OFFENCE

MONTREAL (CP) — Tight end Larry Smith says that Montreal Alouettes must produce offensively if they are to be a factor in next Sunday's Grey Cup game against Edmonton Eskimos.

"We need a good game on offence, if not we won't even be close," said Smith of the Alouettes' chances in the Canadian Football League's annual classic.

"You have to run against the Eskimos, but it's not easy to gain yardage on the ground against a defence like theirs," he added. "They have three players on the front line, but they also have four in the defensive secondary, not far behind, to control the run."

While the Alouettes were still uncertain who their Grey Cup opponent would be when they practised Sunday morning, head coach Joe Scannella worked with films of games involving Edmonton. His foresight proved to be accurate when the Eskimos disposed of Calgary Stampeders 19-7 in the Western Conference final later that day.

Scannella, along with the rest of the Alouettes, was a keen observer of the WFC battle, and he came away favorably impressed with the defensive work of the Eskimos.

"What struck me is that their defensive line can blitz consistently because the defensive backfield is extraordinary at covering man-to-man," Scannella said.

"I thought the game was comparable to our game against the Rough Riders, but I believe that the players were hitting more solidly during our game," he added.

Scannella was referring to the Alouettes' 16-7 triumph over Ottawa in the Eastern Conference final last Saturday.

Rams outlast Falcons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Rams, six-time division champions, are 6-6 and tied for the National Football Conference West lead with New Orleans Saints, but Rams' coach Ray Malavasi is still counting his blessings.

With all the injuries we've had, I just feel fortunate to be in the position we are in right now," Malavasi said after Monday night's 20-14 victory over NFC West foe Atlanta Falcons. "I feel we can win the division, just like I felt at the beginning of the season."

The loss dropped the Falcons to 4-8, putting them two games off the lead with just four contests remaining. However, in what is the NFL's weakest division this season, there are no foregone conclusions.

One of many Los Angeles reserves pressed into a starting role, quarterback Vince Ferragamo, guided the Rams to the important victory over the Falcons. Making his first NFL start, the third-year pro out of Nebraska passed for two first-half touchdowns and set up the clinching score — an 11-yard run by Cullen Bryant — in the final quarter.

"I hope to do better next week," said Ferragamo, the Rams' starter the rest of the season since Pat Haden is out with a broken finger.

BROKEN HAND

Ferragamo himself had been sidelined for the past month, recuperating from a broken hand suffered in a game against Dallas Cowboys.

Ferragamo, who completed nine of 22 passes for 171 yards, hit Preston Dennard with a 29-yard touchdown pass early in the first quarter, connected with Billy Waddy on a 40-yard scoring play in the waning moments of the first half, then set up Bryant's score with a 18-yard toss to tight end Terry Nelson midway through the final period.

As it turned out, the Rams needed all three scores. Atlanta quarterback June Jones III, starting in place of the injured Steve Bartkowski, put the Falcons back in the game with two second-half touchdowns.

Jones, hitting on just two of nine throws and suffering two interceptions in the opening half, found Wallace Francis with a 15-yard scoring pass late in the third period to cut the Rams' lead to 14-7. He connected with Francis again on a 33-yard touchdown play with 4:11 left in the contest to bring the Falcons within striking distance at 20-14.

But Jones, trying to pass in the closing moments of the game, fumbled away the Falcons' last chance. He finished with 11 completions in 24 attempts for 181 yards.

Latest antics cost Hollywood his job

DALLAS (AP) — Thomas Henderson finally got too "Hollywood" for his own good.

He mugged for the national television cameras once too often — on a day Dallas Cowboys were fighting for their lives.

His sideline antics coupled with a lack of enthusiasm on the field during Washington's 34-20 rout of the Cowboys on Sunday was too much for some teammates, and definitely irked the Dallas coaching staff.

Dallas coach Tom Landry called strongside linebacker Henderson into his office Monday and told him he was being placed on waivers. Henderson said he would just retire from professional football. Landry said clean out your locker.

"Thomas had no intensity... and his sideline escapades didn't help," said mild-mannered linebacker coach Jerry Tubbs, who was watching when Henderson held up a forefinger to say the Cowboys were No. 1 then pointed to a bandana tucked in his belt.

"I saw it on the television monitor and I mentioned it to him," said Tubbs. "He (Henderson) wasn't too happy about it."

Safety Cliff Harris was asked if Henderson's lack of concern bothered him. "Yeh, it made me mad."

On the field, Henderson made one tackle.

"He didn't hustle," said Tubbs. "I think it was the way he played that was the straw that broke his back as far as coach Landry was concerned. He wasn't performing... then he went on TV."

Henderson said he was ill with the flu and had a pulled hamstring.

Landry refused to give the details of what amounted to Henderson's firing.

However, Landry said he was aware of Henderson's mugging the camera. He also said Henderson had a bad game.

Henderson has three years left on a contract with Dallas but could play for another team if he wants.
