"A monument or a city hall?"

Both. Sherbrooke Mayor Armand Nadeau's grand design for a proud and beautiful city hall came into conflict with the "practical concept" as held by Aldermen Everett Nicol and Marcel Savard at last night's council meeting.

Both aldermen expressed a little doubt as to the practicality of the plans for a ten-storey 100 foot by 100 foot tower proposed by the architect who were called to the meeting to present a progress report.

Architects Philippe Demers, Jean Claude Tardif, Denis Tremblay, and Louis Faucher denied that their proposed complex was in any way impractical and pointed out that it was still in very preliminary stages.

$5 MILLION

The building which will eventually cost the city $5,000,000 and when it is finally built, will actually be a complex including three buildings standing on a huge base 370 feet by 365 feet.

The dominating building will be the 10 storey tower, joined to the smallest building, a modernistically shaped cupola or "pod" housing the council chambers. The third building will be the Police headquarters.

The whole will form what the mayor hopes to be something functional but beautiful, an identifying landmark "which will capture the spirit of Sherbrooke."

More practically, the mayor added: "We sure need a new city hall."

Ald. Savard was the first to throw cold water on the great scheme by proposing that perhaps the building should be shorter and more squat so as to be able to house even the city's largest department on one floor.

"Maybe from an aesthetic point of view," he said, "it isn't such a good idea."

"Aesthetic," chimed in Ald. Nicol, "I like beauty too, and I like a dollar."

Mr. Faucher was quick to point out that the vertical idea was in reality far cheaper than the horizontal concept.

Ald. Savard picked at the question of parking facilities. "How many spaces are there?" he asked.

"Two hundred and ten, all under the base," Mr. Faucher said.

Adding up the employees, the police cars, and the city's fleet, Mr. Savard said that was CHICAGO — (AP) — Traffic accidents killed 678 persons in the United States during the four-day Independence Day holiday weekend and total accidental deaths reached 900. There were 176 drowning deaths and 46 killed in boating mishaps.

The traffic toll was a record for a July 4 holiday weekend. The old mark of 376 was set during a three-day weekend last year.

Defeat campaign

UNITED NATIONS — (CP) — The Soviet Union's diplomatic campaign against Israel went down to defeat in the UN General Assembly Tuesday night.

Its efforts to condemn Israel as an aggressor against Arab countries were beaten by a large margin. Its demands for unconditional withdrawal of Israel forces from occupied territory fell far short of the two-thirds majority needed for approval in the 122-country assembly.

Man and monkeys

MONTREAL — (CP) — Two freedom-loving monkeys kept a score of people on the run and a $4,200,000 pavilion closed all day Tuesday at Expo 67.

Muldoon and Sreky, two three-year-old male monkeys measuring 18 inches high and weighing 20 pounds each, were spotted hanging from the steel rafters of the Man and Life theme pavilion on Notre Dame Island at about 5:30 a.m.

Canada three days old when centenarian born

The country was only three days old when Dorothy Booth was born on a farm in Waterloo.

She was one of seven children. Her parents, John and Elizabeth Booth came to this country from Ireland seeking new vistas and a better way of life for their children.

Dorothy Booth spent nearly all of her life on a farm and most of it in Waterloo, with the exception of 10 years when she lived in Vermont with her widowed father.

She married Robert Maguire in 1903. She then devoted about half a century towards earning the title of being "one of the best cooks" in that area.

Yesterday, Mrs. Dorothy

By MARGUERITE SMITH
(Record Staff Reporter)

Maguire quietly celebrated her 100th birthday with friends and a few relatives at the Grace Christian Home, in Huntingville.

A fragile doll-like little woman with softly wavy immaculate white hair, Mrs. Maguire sat quietly in her wheelchair absorbed in her own thoughts, a contrast to the excited humming crowd around her.

When Mrs. Maguire was a young married woman in Waterloo, she became keenly interested in church work and alternately was active with women's organizations in both the United and Anglican churches.

Her quilts and rugs were a familiar sight at church bazaars, and until four years ago, Mrs. Maguire still enjoyed her knitting.

Sunday evenings were special in the Maguire household. Friends and members of the family would gather around the organ when Mrs. Maguire's slim fingers moved deftly over the keyboard producing those hauntingly beautiful old hymns.

"I remember those Sunday evenings," said Mrs. Maguire's niece, Mrs. Franklin Kerr of Island Brook. "The dishes waited in the sink on Sunday night."

Mrs. Maguire did not have any children, but she has nieces and nephews in various parts of Canada and the U.S.

Two other nieces, Mrs. Mabel Wallace of Waterloo and Mrs. William Greer of Stansfeld were at the home to help celebrate Mrs. Maguire's centennial.

The late J. R. Booth, Ottawa lumber king was Mrs. Maguire's first cousin, according to family history.

Among her cards and letters, the 100-year-old received best wishes from the Queen and Lester Pearson.

North Vietnam poised for all-out offensive

SAIGON (Reuters) — North Vietnam appeared poised for an all-out offensive against U.S. troops near the so-called demilitarized zone dividing North and South, American military sources said today.

The sources based their assessment on two major battles in the bomb-scarred scrubland south of the zone since Sunday which left at least 73 marine dead and 220 wounded.

North Vietnamese forces hurled more than 300 shells at marine positions in eight attacks spread over 24 hours ending early today.

A U.S. military spokesman said both the vulnerable American Con Thien base overlooking the buffer zone and the forward base at Dong Ha suffered direct hits.

The toll taken by the North Vietnamese gunners raised U.S. casualties reported in the area since Sunday to 431—83 killed, 321 wounded and 27 missing. The marines have reported at least 168 North Vietnamese killed.

A temporary lull fell over the area following a major sweep by Americans and South Vietnamese troops six weeks ago.

But military sources said today the North Vietnamese now appeared to be moving back into the zone in large numbers, bringing the full weight of their armor and infantry to bear on forward U.S. positions.

In Hong Kong, monitored North Vietnamese news agency reports claimed Viet Cong forces have killed or wounded 1,243 enemy troops and captured the bombings.

U.S. Navy planes bombed North Vietnam's MiG base at Kep for the ninth time and ignited two surface-to-air missiles in an attack on a SAM site 31 miles southeast of Hanoi.

U.S. Air Force bombers struck again at North Vietnamese rail facilities and pilots claimed knocking out 26 to 32 boxcars north and northeast of Hanoi.

MPs urge self-rule for Canada's Indian

OTTAWA (CP) — Self-rule for Canada's 220,000 Indians was advocated by members of all parties in the Commons Tuesday.

MP after MP denounced white paternalism and prejudice and urged the government to let the Indians manage their own affairs their own way.

They specifically proposed that Indians be given full control over their reserves, their welfare services and their police protection. This would reduce cultural conflicts and restore Indian self-confidence.

The House passed the Indian Affairs Department's $228,583,720 budget for 1967-68 after a day-long discussion of problems on reserves and in national parks.

Today, the Commons studies the health department spending estimates in an abbreviated sitting from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. EDT. The early adjournment was requested by MPs wishing to watch Queen Elizabeth as she presents colors to various military units on Parliament Hill.

PLEAS INDIAN CASE

The Indians' case was pleaded eloquently by Jack Bigg (PC—Athabasca), a lawyer and former Mountie who has several reserves in his Alberta riding. "The Indians are taught from the cradle to hate us," he said, "because the white man rams his way of life down their throats and ignores their historic treaty rights involving

Full day's activities for Queen before visit ends

OTTAWA (CP)—A day of public exposure lies ahead for the Queen and Prince Philip today leading to their departure tonight for London and the end of a stirring seven-day centennial visit to Canada.

After spending all of Tuesday amid the familiar surroundings of the royal yacht Britannia, they are to make a 55-min. tour of Kingston, then fly to Ottawa for an afternoon military ceremony on Parliament Hill and a visit to a new arts centre.

There will also be a private ceremony at which provincial Fort Henry which overlooks the river and Lake Ontario. A short time later the Britannia's barges went ashore to pick up 43 teenage boys and girls who Prince Philip presented with the up the St. Lawrence River and Duke of Edinburgh Gold Award.

The late J. R. Booth, Ottawa lumber king was Mrs. Maguire's first cousin, according to family history.

Among her cards and letters, the 100-year-old received best wishes from the Queen and Lester Pearson.

Strachan vs special status

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party Tuesday reaffirmed its belief in a special constitutional status for Quebec over the objections of Robert Strachan, the party's British Columbia leader.

Mr. Strachan told the socialist party's fourth national convention that special status would lead to the balkanization of the country.

With the bulk of the 778 delegates leaning the other way, Mr. Strachan's remarks were greeted with a general silence broken by a few subdued boos.

The delegates overwhelmingly approved the resolution, which said that Quebec should have both the right and the fiscal resources to replace certain federal programs with those of its own design.

Specifically included in Quebec jurisdiction would be fields touching the community's way of life — social security, town planning, education, community development, the resolution said.

Quebec people have failed to realize their problem arises from the economic feudalism of the province, said Mr. Strachan. They should seek a higher standard of living through their own organizations, not through special status.

Mr. Strachan, drawing rounds of vigorous applause, said the delegate was later moved to rise and say the LaPierre speech was the convention high point.

It was the first look for most of the NDP rank-and-file at the ambitious university professor, a late-comer to NDP ranks. He's expected to run for the party's ruling federal council in today's elections.

Mr. LaPierre got off to a good start when he got a standing ovation, a tribute generally reserved for the party leader or other high-rankers.

Mr. LaPierre called for a collective will in Quebec, not to be a parasite on Canada.

Child Of Political Expediency

(Fourth Of A Series)
By WALT McDAYTER

Canada was born of many needs, but was spawned by political expediency.

From the very beginning the politicians of Canada East and Canada West — today's Quebec and Ontario — showed more enthusiasm towards Confederation than those from the other British North American colonies.

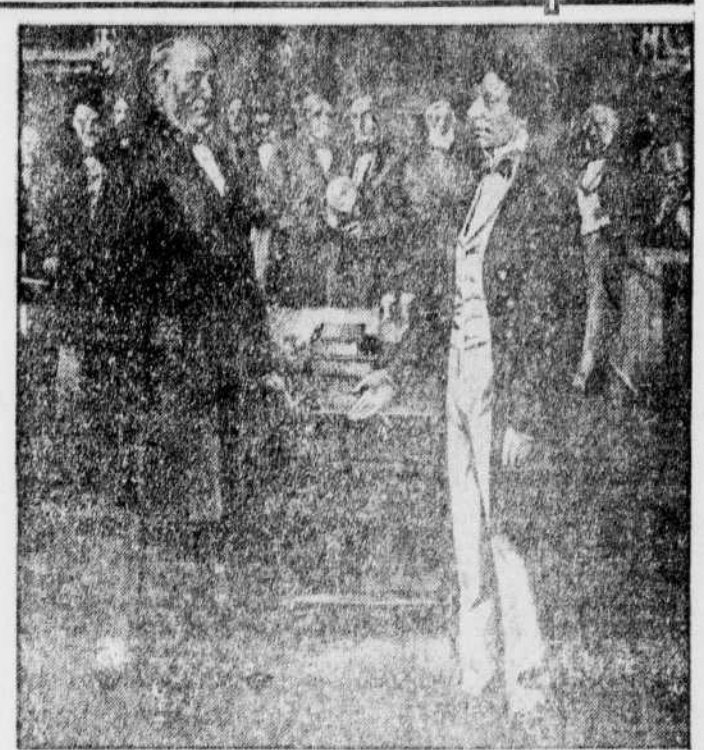

They took the initiative in trying to create a new nation because they knew union offered them the only possible avenue of escape from a deadlock that had been plaguing their politics for four years.

Between 1861 and 1864, there had been no less than four changes of ministries in the two Canadas, and the politicians were becoming exhausted from playing this Parliamentary musical chairs. They felt that the only hope of any party gaining a majority of support in the government was through the creation of a national political structure.

This would change the makeup of voters and representatives, and one party might then be able to command enough seats to govern efficiently.

With this in view, in 1864 the Liberal-Conservative Party, led by John A. Macdonald, and the Liberals, headed by George Brown, agreed to form a coalition government. This coalition's ultimate objective was to create a union of all British North America.

Brown approached this coalition with great misgivings, and these soon proved all too justified! In the negotiations prior to Confederation, in Charlottetown, Quebec, and London, Arch-enemies John A. Macdonald, right, and George Brown agree to form a coalition government in the two Canadas, 1864.

Macdonald assumed leadership, and Brown was more and more pushed into the shadows of obscurity.

It took the politicians of Canada East and West three years to convince two other colonies of the advantages of nationhood, and to weld the idea of federation into a reality. On March 29, 1867, the British Parliament passed the British North America Act, which united four provinces — Ontario, Quebec, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia — into the Dominion of Canada.

Canada officially became a nation on July 1, but the first national election was not held until August. And as the election results were slowly gathered, politicians from Ontario and Quebec wondered: would one of the parties gain the majority of seats needed to conduct the new nation's government?

On November 7, 1867, Canada's first federal Parliament met at Ottawa. Macdonald's coalition party had won a decisive victory, although anti-Confederates in Nova Scotia, led by Joseph Howe, had almost completely captured that province.

George Brown, who had in 1864 agreed to coalition with Macdonald for the good of the country, was defeated in the first election held in the nation he had helped create. He would never run for office again.

One of the main motivations for Confederation was to establish a stable government. Under Macdonald this was achieved. He remained prime minister throughout Canada's formative years, ousted only once, in 1873, because of the Pacific Scandal. However, in the very next election, 1878, his hands once more held the reins of power, and he never again loosened his grip until he died, in 1891.

CANADA'S BIRTHDAY

Happy birthday Canada! How proud we are to be a part of your Centennial. There honest men walk free: Grant that peace and friendship Shall always here remain. Like the maple your true emblem Changes colors in the fall, Let the colors of all nations As you greet them one and all, Cast the dye of understanding, That the nations of tomorrow Can look back on this great day Let your welcome mat be ready And your handshake warm and true, Let them know why we in Canada Are so very proud of you; Let the golden chain of friendship, As it reaches round the world, Rid the iron curtain of hatred As the flags are all unfurled.

'BOOK PLAYS' FOR EVERYONE

The name "book" play has been given to the large number of standard plays that come up again and again. In the old days only a few experts knew the book plays. Today, it seems, almost everybody has learned most of them. Of course, all book plays haven't appeared in books. Some have appeared only in bridge columns.

South knew all the book plays. He looked over dummy and saw that he might lose two diamonds, one spade and one heart. He also noted that overtrick by rising with his ace and finessing against West's queen but South could not see that queen. He thought awhile, then he thought some more. Finally he let the heart ride around to dummy on the theory that East had led the jack from queen-jack. It was a good theory but a losing one for South's overtrick.

Q—The bidding has been:

West North East South
1♠ Pass 1♠ Pass
2♥ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 3♥ Pass
4♥ Q 10 6 ♦ K 10 5 ♠ A Q J 4

What do you do now?

A—Bid four hearts. Your partner may not make this but the chances are that he will. You don't get anywhere sitting around, waiting for sure things.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding one spade West passes. Your partner bids one spade. What do you do now?

Family marks Father's Day at Hatley home

HATLEY — The home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright on the North Road was the scene of a family gathering on Father's Day.

Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Middleton, Sr., Rock Island, were presented with a bon voyage cake, made in the shape of an airplane frosted in blue and white and surrounded by several smaller planes, as they left on June 20 for Vancouver, B.C., going on to Portland, Ore., for two months. Mr. Middleton received gifts and cards also in observance of Father's Day.

Miss Carolyn Wright was surprised when she was presented with a birthday cake in the form of a basket filled with candies, plus several other gifts, in honor of her 9th birthday on June 21.

Among those attending the gathering were Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Middleton and daughters, Richard Middleton, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Middleton, Sr., Mr. Thomas Middleton, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roy and sons, all of Stanstead; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Middleton and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Alger and Claire, Rock Island, and Mr. and Mrs. Elgin Haskell, Marlington.

ULVERTON —

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Urban Massey and Mrs. Vera Lowen were Mrs. Ralph Baker, Cote Vertu; Mr. and Mrs. L. Booth and family, Chomedey; Mr. and Mrs. H. Massey and family, Chamby; Mr. and Mrs. E. Carson and family, Greenfield Park.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Dunn accompanied Mr. and Mrs. J. Bell and Martin to Montreal when they visited Mrs. Wm. Dunn, who is a patient in a nursing home. On their return home they called on Mrs. Charles Hardy, a patient in St. Croix Hospital, Drummondville.

Mr. Charles Hardy is presently the guest of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ramsey in St. John.

NEW YORK (AP) — "The motion picture industry has become enmeshed with tradition during its 60-year history. When you question why certain things are done, you get the answer, 'I've always done it that way.' Well, it's time we started doing things differently."

These are the words of Theodore J. Flicker, a member of the new breed of film maker that gives promise of producing an American New Wave. The promise has not yet been realized, since Flicker's product thus far has been a semi-underground movie, The Trouble Maker, and a few segments of the Dick Van Dyke, Andy Griffith and Man from U.N.C.L.E. shows.

"I first met Jim in Paris while I was on vacation and he was making Charade," Flicker explained. "Then last Christmas we met at a party at George Peppard's house, and Jim remarked that he was free of commitments until August. I told him about my script. He read it, thought it was groovy, and we went to Paramount and made a deal."

LOOKS AT PRES'DENT

The plot typifies Flicker's off-beat view of things: A psychiatrist is hired by the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency to analyze a mentally disturbed president of the United States.

Although the script won the approval of the Paramount brass, Flicker claims it has been deprecated by the FBI. That may be due to the fact that he portrays the head of the Federal Bureau of Investigation and his underlings as men the stature of Mickey Rooney.

"A couple of FBI men came to the studio and tried to persuade Paramount not to make the picture," Flicker declared. "They said the director had read the script and disapproved — how he got his hands on it, I don't know. I'm happy to say the request was denied."

Flicker, 37, has the appearance of a man who is willing to pique the Establishment. He sports unruly black hair and a Trotsky-like beard. Yet he is the son of a well-to-do New York family and has attended the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art and the University of London. When he was 25, Theodore was told by his father it was time to start supporting himself.

The young man embarked into the show world with ambitions of becoming "the total entertainment czar." It didn't work out quite that way, but after a few lean years he found success with The Premise, a satirical, improvised revue. Four years ago he went to Hollywood to learn film-making.

But Flicker now faces his big challenge with TPA which he has been filming here and in Washington, D.C., following initial scenes at the Paramount Studios in Hollywood. The initials stand for The President's Analyst, who is played by James Coburn.

The May-June edition of the Canadian Ingersoll-Rand house organ Circular reports that Sherbrooke has been chosen as the manufacturing plant to supply two types of compressors to the United Kingdom. One thing about wearing shorts, the Unofficial Wellington Street Girl Watchers' Society observes in its occasional bulletin, some people shouldn't... Schools in the Sherbrooke area handed out the Centennial medals to their students during the last week of the school year.

The provincial M.L.A. for Sherbrooke, Raynald Fréchette, last month sent out to English-speaking Sherbrooke area students the following: "On the occasion of the Centennial of Confederation, I thought it would please you to wear the (Centennial) symbol which I have enclosed... I always believed and still do believe that English speaking and French-speaking Canadians can live in perfect harmony in this magnificent country of Canada"... Le Dating Bar, Sherbrooke's new discotheque club, counts as one of its most serious "problems" an overabundance of girls... seems that for the club's first three Sundays of operation in the Hotel New Sherbrooke's Carrousel Room there have been just too many wall flowers... the ratio runs at about 60 to 40, and the club is looking for men... Sherbrooke's council, long traffic-light-happy, might well be considered even sappy when it comes to Caen Street in the East Ward... at one end where the street joins Bowen Street, there is a traffic light to snarl moderate traffic... at the other end of the street is a school... there are no sidewalks in between... A young Sherbrooke man, identified as Claude Casavant, heard his number called out Sunday night in the "Half and Half" drawing at the local ball park during an Alouettes game... the lucky winner rushed to the booth waving his ticket, smiling in anticipation of the grand prize... the $5.75 he won hardly seemed worth the months of waiting...

Executive committee, en bloc vote August 7

The public will get a chance August 7 to vote on an executive committee and "en bloc" elections for city council.

The proposal, coming from Mayor Armand Nadeau was passed only after heavy argument from Alderman Amedee Roy who claimed that the council was not clear enough on the implication and duties of such a committee.

Ald. Roy was joined in his protest by Ald. Romeo Quintal. Ald. Roy said that he wanted to know exactly what these changes would imply and how they would affect the administration of the city before putting before the public in an open referendum.

"This thing has been argued for two years now," the mayor said. Alderman Roy hotly asserted that it had never been fully discussed with the council.

"We have never really found out how it would affect the city," he said. "You have a month to find out now," an alderman retorted.

"That's not nearly enough," Ald. Quintal said. "I want the opinion of the population," Mayor Nadeau said.

At present, Quebec is passing a law which will forbid the establishment of an executive committee without a city manager, something that the city does not want.

However, Mayor Nadeau pointed out that the law has not yet passed.

"If we get consent from the public population," he said, "we can go to Quebec and present our problem and show them our support.

He pointed out that Montreal has an executive committee without a city manager and that there was no reason why Sherbrooke couldn't have the same thing.

"Sherbrooke is a major city," he said.

If Sherbrooke endorses the idea of en bloc elections rather than the present rotating elections, the mayor added, it will mean automatic redistribution of the city council seats according to population and assessment.

"Does this mean you want more aldermen?" Ald. Everett Nicol asked.

"Not necessarily," the mayor answered.

The council voted to put the questions before the population in a referendum and to back whatever the majority endorsed even if it were only a slight majority.

"We can't sit on the fence with this thing," Ald. Nicol said.

Ald. Roy's last ditch attempt to insert an amendment to the resolution that at least 50 percent of those eligible must vote before the council accepts the verdict, was not even seconded.

Magog youth fined

A Magog youth was fined a total of $100 for causing a disturbance and resisting arrest.

Twenty-year-old Luc Rosa pleaded guilty to the two charges in the Sherbrooke Court of Sessions yesterday morning.

Yvan Tellier of Sherbrooke pleaded guilty with explanation to a charge of auto theft in Sherbrooke Court yesterday.

The youth told the court that he had had no intention of stealing the car, belonging to Clement Bachand. He said that he thought it belonged to one of his friends and he had just intended to take it for a short ride.

When he realized it was stolen, he said, he had been scared and left Sherbrooke where he drove the car off the road causing $25 damage. Judge Benoit Turmel postponed sentencing until July 13.

Another youth who pleaded guilty to car theft was given a suspended sentence and required to post a $500 peace bond. Claude Thibault, 18, of Sherbrooke pleaded guilty to the charge.

Prosecutor Andre Langlais told the court that Thibault had not used the car keys nor had he actually started the engine. He had only put it in gear, coasted to the bottom of a hill and then got out.

Raphael Paquette, of Sherbrooke, was fined $50 and costs and had his licence suspended for six months after he pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of hit and run.

Paquette admitted that he had left the scene of the accident on July 3 after he collided with a car driven by Audias Garneau.

Real Couture of Coaticook pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of impaired driving. He was fined $100 and had his licence suspended for six months.

Dorilas Mathieu received the same sentence after he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Defence Lawyer Dewey Zaor pointed out that the accused had had no accident and that this was his first offence.

THOUGHTS—Some thoughts on Canada's 100th Birthday were given to Sherbrooke Rotarians yesterday, as they were addressed by Prof.

newly-elected president of the Sherbrooke Rotary Club, and Lyman Tomkins, who introduced the speaker. (Record photo: Gerry Lemay)

Today's challenge is persuading youth of Confederation's value

The adults of today have brought into the world "the most free-thinking and free-doling generation in history" and if Confederation is to remain a tangible reality, communication with these leaders of tomorrow must be established, Sherbrooke Rotarians were told yesterday.

Prof. James Gray of Bishop's University outlined the task that has been set before parents and educators, a duty in fact, to the Confederation ideal, try's accomplishments." However, he continued "it seems that U.S. patriotism is more irrational than its Canadian counterpart."

Canada was not founded on this concept of irrationality, rather it was founded on one of determination and single-mindedness. These dual qualities were engendered in the "architect of Confederation, Sir John A. Macdonald." He anticipated the great and continuing dilemma of Modern Canada, the French-English question.

The impact of the Confederation of the four original provinces in the Eastern Townships was hard to gauge, but, pointed out Mr. Gray, Alexander Galt, speaking at a Bishop's convocation four days before the historic event spoke of "the silent and the noisy," the said that to see a realization of the family must return Confederation of the provinces to the fore. In addition, certain "traditional values" that have at times been discarded must be retrieved. On this note, Mr. Gray went to a comparison and contrast between the July 1 and July 4 celebrations, both days of rejoicing, in Canada and the U.S. respectively, and days "of patriotic rejoicing," which engender and foster a great deal of pride in our respective countries' accomplishments."

This is a touchy question he said, and he stressed that recently and widely published separatist views are not representative of the French-Canadians.

Nor is there any large-scale desire for succession of Quebec, or for the setting up of an independent foreign policy, and "as for an immigration policy that would favor the entry into this province of new citizens from one radical group in preference to another, this seems to be both unrealistic and unsound."

"One of the great strengths of this province lies in the very multiplicity of its backgrounds," he said.

The city's business

Bid made for city's gas service

Mayor Armand Nadeau announced at last night's council meeting that a prospective buyer had made a bid for the city's gas service.

He refused to release the amount of the offer to the press but he did say that it was reasonable and that it could present a solution to the problem. The matter is to be discussed by the council "in camera" before any details are announced.

In a written report to the council city engineer Jean Paul Lajoie stated that there was an overflow in the sewer leading to the Magog River and that the King Street West sewer was continually becoming plugged with sand and gravel.

The report went on to state that the sewer connections to the building had not yet been made as the domestic sewer was blocked and it would be better to wait until it was in a good state of repair.

He suggested that the swampy land south of the railroad tracks be filled and that 54-inch additional pipe be laid to the river at a cost of about $30,000.

The $30,000 raised discussion and Mr. Lajoie was brought up from his downstairs office to explain the situation.

He told the council that the $60,000 spent last year had been used to lay sewer pipes in the area and that it had greatly improved.

He went on to say that several such trouble spots existed throughout the city.

The council finally approved the suggestions.

Last Monday it was the Lacrosse team and this week it was the baseball team who appeared before the council to ask help in meeting their budget. So far the Alouettes have run

Nurse is attacked and slashed

A 23-year-old Sherbrooke Hospital nurse was attacked by a man Saturday morning at 6:30 as she was walking to work from behind the Argyle Street hospital.

According to Donald

Fish, executive director of the hospital, the married nurse was slashed in the right lower leg with a four-inch surface cut.

She was treated at the hospital, and then released. Mr. Fish said that it is the first time that a member of the staff has been bodily attacked in the vicinity of the hospital.

Police have been informed of the incident, but the attacker is still at large.

Lennoxville seeks official rail crossing at Depot St.

The Lennoxville Town Council decided last night to ask the Board of Transport to look into the matter of asking the railways to make the Depot Street crossing an official crossing.

This would imply the installation of warning lights and signs. It has been a private railway crossing, but public use of it has been tolerated. Several aldermen describe it as "a blind crossing" and a "menace."

A series of lots belonging to A. E. Bailey of Lennoxville will be newly subdivided on the recommendation of the town's engineers and Mr. Bailey's engineer. This will still allow for the construction of streets in the area, and for maximum access in the area.

Wonder Bakeries Inc. has asked that the business tax no longer be levied against it, since it has gone wholesale recently in Lennoxville. It stated in a letter that it had recently gone wholesale from retail and that consequently it was no longer subject to the town's business tax. The tax will, accordingly, not be charged.

The OTJ pool in Lennoxville and related facilities were turned over to the OTJ again after the town had completely renovated them during the past year, reported Mayor Dougherty.

Marathon Realty Company, agents for the CPR and QCR, sent a letter to the town council requesting a tax refund. The company maintained that the Quebec Central Railway owned the Lennoxville station and that the Canadian Pacific Railway simply did business with the former. If such is the case, stated Marathon, CPR is not required to pay business taxes also.

Mayor Dougherty said that Henri Ruel had complained that the sewage catch basin on his property was causing trouble. Accordingly, the

By DAVID ALLENUTT (Record Staff Reporter)

However, council, after debating the issue, decided that CPR not only did business at the station, but was also a property owner, thus subject to tax. The Marathon Company will be informed of the council's decision.

Upon a suggestion of Alderman Taylor, council decided to study the method of collecting business taxes in the town. Mr. Taylor stated that there was no absolute basis used in determining the tax assessments.

The mayor said that the Quebec Municipal Commission would be helpful in carrying out this review.

Secretary K. G. Herring announced that though half the fiscal year was completed, over half the budget appropriated for the year was still remaining.

Alderman Richardson reported that patching of the streets in town was underway, and that the town was using its own men for the work. He said that this innovation would mean savings and would be more beneficial to the town.

Mayor Dougherty said that Henri Ruel had complained that the sewage catch basin on his property was causing trouble. Accordingly, the mayor said that he had requested Mr. Ruel to furnish the town with a servitude allowing them on his property to correct the situation.

The mayor said that he had offered Mr. Ruel another alternative. It would mean that the town would move its drawn pipe out about eight feet further so it would not be on Mr. Ruel's property. However, if this happened Mr. Ruel and a neighbor, Aime Cote would have to put in new pipes to connect with the new town pipe.

While the mayor implied that this suggestion would be more beneficial to all, he said that Mr. Ruel had agreed to study the idea of a servitude.

A sour note in our Centennial song

If Premier Johnson was embarrassed by Royal Impatience at the restrictions put on the Queen's Expo visit by security, he shouldn't have been surprised.

Our Queen is the daughter of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth who refused to leave London at the time of the German blitz bombing. As such, she is unlikely to allow the noise of a quiet revolution to deter her from her duties as she sees them.

On the other hand, the authorities responsible for the safety of our royal visitors were quite correct in taking the precautions they did.

Yet, the whole affair ended with a sad and slightly shameful smell. Why?

It would be easy to blame the loud-mouths, the irresponsible schoolboy separatists, and their silly threats.

But, we must remember, that, quiet or otherwise, there is a revolution going on in Quebec. Revolutionists, by the nature of the beast, are inclined to be intemperate. They are also optimistic, hoping to improve their world.

Perhaps Monday's sour note in our Centennial song would best be considered one of the pangs of creation. Instead of trying to establish blame, it might be better to plan for a future in which injustices, real or imagined, are eliminated and where the revolutionary spirits among us can be turned to truly constructive pursuits.

Bigots are so thickheaded they can't see how narrow-minded they are.

So, valiantly, research carries on

It's heartening to know that in the face of all their problems, humans are doggedly pressing forward in the unquenchable quest for knowledge.

In recent weeks the world press has presented some startling examples of the achievements of researchers in different fields.

For instance, a psychologist announces that his experiments have shown that rats are more trustworthy than humans.

And a science magazine explains that a pig is no hog, because a pelican can outeat a pig six to one and it declares the pig is being bumrumped merely because it has no table manners.

Another psychologist who spent several weeks watching cats watch television has concluded that their taste in programs is no better than people's.

A team of pediatricians has delved into the problem of child-beating and solemnly reports that children are not always easy to deal with—a statement the average parent may be expected to challenge.

A British career lady suggests that the titles "Mrs." and "Miss" be abolished, since all they really reflect is a gal's success in landing a husband. She didn't suggest what else to call them.

And a survey in England has revealed that of three general categories of candy eaters — crunchers, chewers and suckers — the most calm, relaxed, thoughtful, loyal, reliable and well-integrated are — suckers.

How about THAT suckers?

South Vietnam fights inflation

SAIGON (AP) — It's one year since South Vietnam's piaster was devalued in an effort to stop spiralling inflation. Since then, prices have increased 50 percent over all and explosive inflation remains a possibility in the country's war-ravaged economy.

Devaluation was only one of the steps taken to prevent the effects of the stepped-up war from pushing the economy out of control.

The economic influence of 400,000 free-spending American servicemen and the payroll from a $2,000,000,000 U.S. military building program were offset largely by a $300,000,000 commodity and rice import program financed by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The program is designed to soak up the extra piasters Vietnamese are getting, with such imports as motor scooters, transistor radios and appliances of all sorts. Without these imports, the extra piasters burning a hole in Vietnamese pockets soon would cause everyday prices to skyrocket. Surprisingly, with the Vietnamese continuing generally to enjoy increased wages — estimated to be up more than 30 percent in a year — and with the demand still high for motor scooters and the like, imports have been falling.

LOSE ON DUTIES

Economists are at a loss to explain why imports are not importing more to meet the need.

Since a major part of the South Vietnamese government's piaster income comes from duties on imports, a fall-off in imports would increase the government's deficit.

U.S. AID economists now forecast a deficit of up to 15,000,000 piasters for fiscal 1967—an increase of 15,000,000 piasters over last year when U.S. counterparty funds made up all the deficit.

But this year, government expenses are expected to reach 85,000,000,000 piasters, while revenues from taxes, imports and other sources will total only 40,000,000,000 piasters. There are 30,000,000,000 piasters of US counterparty funds available, so an estimated gap of 15,000,000,000 piasters exists. The gap will put great inflationary pressures on the economy.

A large increase in U.S. troop strength — say to 600,000 as Prime Minister Nguyen Cao Ky suggests is necessary — would really hurt. Some way would have to be found to limit severely spending by American soldiers.

A good sign in the economy is that although prices have risen 50 per cent in the last year, they have shown stability in the last few months.

The labor market remains tight, with more jobs than workers. The income of laborers is up, farmers are getting more money for their crops, and government workers, including the military, have been given a series of wage boosts and "rice bonuses."

One of the fittest

Runs himself out for science

TORONTO (CP)—One of the fittest men in the world runs himself into the ground for science every day.

He is 21-year-old Theo Van Ryn, a student at the University of Toronto and a volunteer in the "international biological program for standardization of methods of measuring working capacity."

For five weeks an international party of scientists has been doing the basic work on a physical test of fitness and working capacity equally applicable to anyone in the world.

Before coming to the University of Toronto for the summer program, Dr. Peter E. diPrampo of Milan went to Kenya to test natives on Masai tribal reserves and Dr. C. T. M. Davies of London took a treadmill and an electric motor into the Kalahari Desert of South Africa to test the bushmen.

MEASURE BREATHING

They measure air intake and exhalation and take electrocardiographic recordings of the heartbeat before, during and after three types of exertion: pedalling on a stationary bicycle, walking the treadmill—really an inclined ramp—and climbing up and down steps.

Van Ryn, for example, can inhale six litres of air and weighs 208 pounds. In action he breathes 68 millilitres of oxygen per kilo of body weight per minute—a figure exceeded only a handful of times before in earlier measurements anywhere in the world.

The average Canadian of his age averages 42 millilitres per kilo and a 60-year-old man's intake would be about 28 milli-litres. This is a good basic index of an individual's working capacity and one of the functions of the experiment is to relate this to other measurements of fitness and working capacity such as S.B.X. exercises.

Preliminary work on measurements has never been done before and is being undertaken now as part of an international scientific effort.

CANADA PAYS $25,000

In Toronto to take the measurements, first with 25 men aged 20 to 40 and later with 80 schoolchildren, are 11 young scientists from Norway, Sweden, England, Italy, South Africa, Czechoslovakia, Japan, France, Belgium and the United States. Canadian sources are paying about $25,000, the costs of the work under Prof. R. J. Shephard of the University of Toronto's school of hygiene, and each researcher's own country pays his way to Canada and back.

Preliminary results seem to indicate little difference in physical capacity between people of widely varying backgrounds, for example urban Italians and Kenyan tribesmen. Motivation has been the biggest problem—finding people willing to strain themselves to exhaustion for an hour every day for a month in the interests of science.

Giant adapts for survival

The beaver, symbol of Canada, is also country's true founder

By RONALD LAWRENCE

During the fogs of Canada's prehistoric times, a giant creature roamed through the vastness of this land eating enormous trees and continuing to grow in size until death came to stop its development.

No other creature is more symbolic of Canada than that early beaver, which grew to the size of one of today's black bears and is estimated to have tipped the scales at 600 pounds.

During the centuries that have passed since this enormous rodent built its dams throughout the land mass of Canada, nature has refined the beaver, has reduced its size, and Canada has built its stature as a nation with the paws of this fascinating, priceless creature of our wilderness.

No other animal has ever influenced the growth of a nation as much as the beaver has influenced the exploration and maturity of this land of ours.

As far back as 1613 Samuel de Champlain pushed westward in search of the Castor (its latin name, and the name most commonly used to describe it in those early days).

This famous explorer was followed by two men, perhaps Canada's most colorful trail blazers: Jean Esprit Radisson and Medard Chouart Des Grosseillers who, between 1659 and 1661, pushed their way to Lake Superior and to James Bay seeking the fur of the beaver.

In 1670 the Hudson's Bay Company (or, The Governor and Company of Adventurers of England trading into Hudson's Bay) became established and employed these two explorers, who continued searching and finding beaver.

Thus this nation was opened, for following the footsteps of Champlain, Radisson and Grosseillers, came other fur traders seeking the hide of what was then one of the most valuable furs in the world.

And following the fur traders and trappers came the settlers; the farmers, the loggers, who were in turn followed by the merchants and, gradually, as the years ripened, by the primitive industries which combined to weld together a nation.

So let us now look at this beaver, the founder of Canada and the symbol today of all that this nation stands for. The only links between Castor canadensis and its remote ancestors of prehistory are the general appearance of the animal and the modern beaver's persistent attempts to emulate its ancestor by continuing to grow until death effectively puts an end to its existence.

Little is known of the original giant beaver except that it existed, that it behaved similarly to its modern ancestor and that it was too big for its own good.

But unlike many other prehistoric giants that died in the face of competition because of their unwieldy size, the early beaver, through natural evolution, defied extinction and refined its size and its intelligence in order to continue to survive.

Today the 40 - to - 100 - pound beaver can be found throughout the forested areas of Canada. Its dams, its lodges and its shape are familiar throughout the world.

But many of its characteristics are unfamiliar because of the animal's secretive habits and because of the fact that it spends almost half of its life under water, or, at least, stays within the confines of its darkened lodge.

Even here in Canada there are many people who have never seen a wild beaver in its natural state and many more who are unaware of the amazing capabilities of this sturdy forest dweller who is born in a damp lodge chamber during April, May or June (depending on the area and prevailing weather conditions) and weighs just under one pound at that time.

From one to six babies are born to the female and these measure about 15 inches in length at birth including some three inches of flattened tail.

The young are born with their eyes open and their bodies are covered with a soft, very fine fur.

Because it spends so much time in the water, nature has endowed the beaver with certain peculiarities which no other animals possess.

It has twin valves in its nose and in its ears which automatically close when the beaver goes under water and as automatically open when it rises above the surface. The reason for this is obvious. It makes the animal watertight.

Its eyes, which are small, are equipped with tightly-fitting lids and though they are kept above water they are better able to see in the murky depths through which the animal travels.

The beaver's lips are loose and can be drawn tightly behind the cutting teeth so that even when working on tree bark under water the animal is in no danger of accidentally swallowing large quantities of liquid.

How the beaver learned to master the complexities of engineering required to construct solid dams in the face of rushing water nobody will ever know.

Instinctively the animal selects the likeliest narrows in which to build his dams, but despite the force of water (which would compel man to use huge machines and intricate engineering calculations) the humble rodent patiently scoops up from the bottom mud, stones, and plants and slowly builds a surface into which he wedges a network of peeled tree branches.

Often his building materials are swept away by the current, frequently a half-built dam that has taken endless hours to build is washed away but in the end the beaver wins and finishes a wall that is strong enough to support a tractor or a team of horses and that can withstand even the heaviest floods.

All this in the face of constant danger from its enemies: the wolf, the coyote, the cougar and lynx and bobcat, the great horned owl — and man!

Many people (and not a few farmers) still believe that the

Bygone days

TEN YEARS AGO

At a joint meeting of the Sherbrooke Lions' Club and the C.N.I.B. representatives held in the local office of the institute, 365 William Street, yesterday afternoon, Neil Tracy, field secretary for the C.N.I.B. for the Sherbrooke area, gave a report on the progress to date in the arrangements for the blind club camp held annually under the sponsorship of the Sherbrooke Lions Club with the cooperation of the St. Pat's Old Boys' Association.

He stated that the usual site at Stoke Lake had been secured from August 19 - 30, through Henry Crochere of the Association. Mrs. Fred Drew will again be the cook, and Mrs. Rouillard will serve again as supervisor. Miss Helen Slattery has promised the attendance of her Cadets as guides and assistants.

Plans for the transportation, provisions and recreation against them if they are imported, now that Canada's concessions under the Kennedy Round have been announced.

But Canada is a long way from the milk - and honey paradise of the huge U.S. market where we will still longingly look at cheaper cars, houses, refrigerators, cameras and TV sets.

So, Canada is still one of the most expensive places to live in for you and me, even though Messrs. Sharp and Winters our Finance and Trade and Commerce Ministers are chortling over their huge success at giving us wider export markets for our manufacturers and corporations.

The simple fact is that Ottawa has given quite a bit of ground in reducing the tariff against the increasing number of imported goods we Canadians rush to buy, but not enough to hurt many of our domestic industries, whose goods we don't buy so much.

The winners in this ultra-complex game of lowering tariffs and increasing world trade are companies and exporters of our natural resources and manufactured goods.

Ottawa has won for them really large tariff reductions abroad.

But some countries which have high cost industries at home, much larger ones than ours, are going to cut their tariffs as much as 35 to 50 percent, chiefly the U.S. and Western Europe.

These kinds of cuts in Canada would most certainly knock $200 off the imported TV, big amounts of imported foreign cars or expensive cameras, all of which we Canadians clamor to buy. But we just can't afford them.

Our domestic firms which employ many of us, just couldn't compete.

Plenty of imported consumer items will have tariff cuts mind you.

Needs are down 5 per-

For the consumer

What we get out of GATT

By JOHN D. HARBOR

Alas for the hard-pressed Canadian consumer in this otherwise joyous Centennial year. If he had heard the phrase Kennedy Round at all it meant two things to him, a code word for money economisers and the key to cheaper prices for many consumer goods.

Take that high-cost color TV set in the store window. If the mysterious Kennedy Round had worked out the right way, he might have bought it for $200 less.

Well, you may now get the color TV for a little bit less, but not for much. You could lose a good part of the 5 percent tariff reduction on imported radio, TV and phonograph sets from 20 percent to 15 percent if the province you live in boosts the sales tax again, or if the shipper ups the freight rate to your part of Canada.

Plenty of the important things we buy every day are going to have lower tariffs against them if they are imported, now that Canada's concessions under the Kennedy Round have been announced.

But Canada is a long way from the milk - and honey paradise of the huge U.S. market where we will still longingly look at cheaper cars, houses, refrigerators, cameras and TV sets.

So, Canada is still one of the most expensive places to live in for you and me, even though Messrs. Sharp and Winters our Finance and Trade and Commerce Ministers are chortling over their huge success at giving us wider export markets for our manufacturers and corporations.

The simple fact is that Ottawa has given quite a bit of ground in reducing the tariff against the increasing number of imported goods we Canadians rush to buy, but not enough to hurt many of our domestic industries, whose goods we don't buy so much.

The winners in this ultra-complex game of lowering tariffs and increasing world trade are companies and exporters of our natural resources and manufactured goods.

Ottawa has won for them really large tariff reductions abroad.

But some countries which have high cost industries at home, much larger ones than ours, are going to cut their tariffs as much as 35 to 50 percent, chiefly the U.S. and Western Europe.

These kinds of cuts in Canada would most certainly knock $200 off the imported TV, big amounts of imported foreign cars or expensive cameras, all of which we Canadians clamor to buy. But we just can't afford them.

Our domestic firms which employ many of us, just couldn't compete.

Plenty of imported consumer items will have tariff cuts mind you.

Needs are down 5 percent, domestic water pumps for the summer cottage also 5 percent, food products like candied and glace fruits, preserved cherries as much as 10 percent, washing machines 2 1/2 percent. But will inflation, new taxes, eat up the difference?

It looks like it. Take income tax. The same Finance Minister who has won the big concessions abroad, and limited tariff cuts at home, said a few months ago that the next budget would probably see, "a modest 2 to 3 percent increase" in income taxes.

Finance Ministers are very tricky this way.

Any increase they make in a country super-sensitive to more cost is "modest." Have you had any teachers' strikes recently? If you have, guess who will pay for the negotiated salary increases? You the consumer.

How about the provincial sales tax, once called hidden and once at no more than two per cent?

In Quebec it hasn't been hidden for years and it's up to 8 per cent.

Between higher city taxes, higher income taxes, chronic inflation which those shift economists now call "normal," the sneaky provincial sales tax, Canada is still one of the most expensive countries to live in. And getting more expensive every year.

Thousands of Canadians are now paying an annual property tax (between $700 and $1,200) amounts which once represented a home down payment. Remember you could buy a home for this right after the war.

And Mr. Carter came along last spring and recommended a revolutionary new tax system for Canada which, even would tax your social security benefits but guarantee you "something left over" for investment.

In the meantime, have a happy Centennial. (TNS)

The PRAYER FOR TODAY FROM The Upper Room

Live as free men, yet without using your freedom as a pretext for evil; but live as servants of God. (1 Peter 2:15, RSV).

PRAYER: O Lord, I praise Thee for my freedom in Christ. Help me to live my gratitude by using that freedom to Thy glory. Teach me to dedicate to Thee Thy gift of liberty that I may experience Thy perfect joy. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

TODAY IN HISTORY

British and Canadian forces were defeated by invading American troops at Chippawa on the west bank of the Niagara River during the War of 1812. 153 years ago today—in 1814. Some 4,000 Americans under Gen. Jacob Brown and Gen. Winfield Scott were rashly attacked by Gen. Phineas Riall with some 2,000 regulars and militia. Riall relied on past experience that showed the wisdom of offence against the raw American levies, but the men under Brown and Scott were well-trained. British and Canadian losses totalled 500 while the Americans lost 400 men.

1764—Ivan VI of Russia murdered after 22 years in prison.

1954—The United States expelled three Russian attaches for alleged spying.

First World War
Fifty years ago today—in 1917—a German destroyer was torpedoed in the North Sea. British lines near Ypres, Canada, southwest of Holbeke, Belgium, advanced on a front of 600 yards.

Second World War
Twenty-five years ago today—in 1942—British attacks supported by great concentrations of aircraft forced Axis forces back at El Alamein; Japanese aircraft made two raids on Port Moresby area of New Guinea; U.S. submarine sank a Japanese destroyer off the Aleutian Islands.

Voodoo priest consulted by Haiti's Doc Duvalier

PORT AU PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Papa Doc's chauffeur says Antoine, tapping at his temple in admiration as he talks of Papa Doc. "He knows it all." He tells this to a visitor to his farm and its outdoor voodoo altar piled with empty cognac and rum bottles, a crucifix, pictures of saints and a turtle shell.

Like a doctor on a house call, Antoine packs what he will need for the president: a golden spirit - summoning bell bright with filigree, a whisky carton where he stores little open-necked bottles supposed to house the essence of lost souls, and a deck of cards tucked into the shirt pocket on which his wife has stitched "President D. for life."

Haiti's ruler, Francois (Papa Doc) Duvalier, has called Antoine to his home again and has sent a chauffeur and a sub-machine-gunner — standard equipment with any government car — to pick him up at his farm near Croix des Bouquets.

Then it is back along wash-board roads that shake new cars into jalopies in months, past the control points where the Ton Ton Macoute guards shoulder automatic rifles, and finally down the streets of Port au Prince's Pig Hole district to the palace where a neon sign blinks through the night: "I am the Haitian revolution — Dr. Francois Duvalier."

TALK IN BASEMENT

Antoine says he and the president squat side by side in the palace's dirt-floored basement and talk of Damballah, the god who looks like a snake and lives in a tree.

"I only help, he's No. 1 here," said a Haitian accountant who really do talk to snakes in priests. "When Papa Doc asks about brush confesses to him. If there are guilty consciences, he knows enough to the ground to tell about it."

Anesthetist cures patients' hiccups by 'short circuiting' spasms

CHICAGO (CP)—Mother was right when she prescribed a glass of cold water or a shock for curing hiccups. Dr. Mohamed R. Salem, University of Chicago anesthetist, has cured 84 of 85 hiccuping patients by "short-circuiting" the spasms. He inserts a thin, pliable probe through the nose or mouth and jiggles it in the pharynx—the top of the throat. He first tried the method to stop anesthetized patients hiccuping on the operating table and it works faster on them than on conscious patients because the catheter can be inserted through the nose instead of the mouth. Ten of his unconscious patients started hiccuping again but a second jiggle stopped them. In 14 cases, other hiccup treatment methods, including drug injections and hyperventilation, had failed before and the catheter brought dramatic relief. Hiccups occurred in eight of the 10 conscious patients but they were able to use the probe again to get undisturbed sleep.

"Old standby methods of curing hiccups really did the same thing," Dr. Salem told the Illinois State Medical Society, "but no one knew exactly what was happening when a patient quickly drank a glass of water or swallowed hard bread or crushed ice. All these methods may actually depend on the same pharyngeal stimulation."

What to buy in Europe sometimes a problem; here's a helpful guide

What to buy as gifts in Europe and around the Mediterranean for friends and relatives back home, or when looking for bargains for yourself, can very frequently be a problem. Often items can be purchased more cheaply in Canada than similar items abroad. REV. AND MRS. PETER GEORGE ASBIL

Asbil-Birch vows exchanged

EAST HATLEY — The marriage of Doreen May, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Birch, Coaticook, Que. to Rev. Peter George Asbil, of Clarenceville, Que., son of Mrs. Gladys Asbil, Rawdon, Que., took place at 2:30 p.m., June 3, in St. James' Anglican Church, East Hatley, Que. Rev. H. W. Blase officiated at the ceremony and the wedding music was played by Mrs. Clifford Curtis. The soloist was Mr. David Heath. Garden flowers were used in decorating the church.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an empire style gown of white peau de soie, the A-line skirt falling into a train of the same material, which had appliques of lace leaves. The lace covered bodice was fashioned with a scalloped neckline and lace also covered the bell-shaped sleeves. Her elbow length veil was held by a headpiece of white peau de soie roses and she carried a cascade bouquet of pink Delight roses with Boston fern.

Miss Jeanie Birch, sister of the bride, as maid of honor, was in a dress of blue peau de soie, styled as that of the bride's with white lace covering the bodice and sleeves. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and Catter fern.

Mr. Marcel Bourgeois acted as best man and the ushers were Mr. Roy Hansford and Mr. Angus Asbil.

Mrs. Birch, mother of the bride, chose a short sleeve sheath dress of flowered organza over taffeta with white accessories. Her corsage was of pink Sweetheart roses.

The groom's mother, Mrs. Asbil, wore a dress of blue and green figured jersey with three quarter length sleeves, blue and white accessories and a corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

A reception was held, following the ceremony, at St. George's Anglican Church Hall, Ayer's Cliff.

The couple spent a honeymoon at Ripplecove Inn, Ayer's Cliff, the bride travelling in a

Fashion Tips

Matched for Summer

Because it leads such a versatile life, the costume makes many plans for a busy summer when done beautifully in cotton with important surface interest like a jacquard or dotted effect. Sleeveless dresses come with matching jackets or full-length coats — take your choice. For dress-up occasions, what better choice than a crepe dress peeking through its own lace coat?

In India

Abortions legalized this year for 1st time

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Indian women will be able to have legal abortions for the first time this year, but they will have to be sterilized at the same time. A senior official of the ministry of health and family planning, which sponsored the move to liberalize abortion laws, explained the condition this way: "Our main concern is that a woman who undergoes an abortion is far more prone to have another pregnancy immediately. Imagine the ridiculous situation which would arise, with the same woman returning every few months to have her current pregnancy terminated. From a social, moral and medical point of view this could not be tolerated."

"We are therefore insisting that abortion be linked with sterilization as a pre-requisite." The Indian government considered that legal abortions were a stop-gap, to be linked with an intensified family planning campaign.

When every Indian couple in the reproductive age group, and there now are estimated to be 90,000,000 couples in India's population of 471,624,000, use one form or another of birth control available, abortion will become obsolete.

CHANGE JUSTIFIED Dr. Sripati Chandrasekhar, minister for health and family planning, justified the change in the abortion laws by pointing to the thousands of deaths which resulted each year from illegal abortions.

The current century-old abortion law permits the termination of pregnancy only where a mother's life is endangered, or in the case of rape. No accurate figure has ever been produced of the number of illegal abortions carried out each year in India, but they are believed to go into tens of thousands. One recent estimate put the number of unregistered and untrained medical practitioners operating in New Delhi alone at more than 1,000. Many of these conduct booming abortion businesses from primitive backyard clinics.

Separatists say street agitation

MONTREAL (CP)—Some of the 100 separatists who attended a peaceful demonstration Monday night have identified themselves as members of les Jeunes Independentistes Quebecois—Independent Quebec youth.

Joseph Dagenais, president, said the youth group was born two weeks ago.

Mr. Dagenais said the group intends "to work to create in Quebec a revolutionary situation." Organizers said its membership is made up of 103 persons in Montreal, 32 at Quebec and 26 elsewhere.

Dagenais said the group will agitate "in the street," especially where it is necessary to defend the interests of the French-Canadian people "with out the permission of the police."

One girl in the group identified herself as Andrée Caouette, 17, and said she is the daughter of Creditiste Leader Real Caouette. Reached by telephone at his Rouyn, Que., home, Mr. Caouette said she was an adopted daughter who had left his home for personal reasons.

More Separatists

MONTREAL (CP)—About 100 separatists and spectators were on hand Monday night as the Rassemblement pour l'Indépendance Nationale held a peaceful demonstration marking the 130th anniversary of the revolution of 1837.

Laurent Bourdon, president of the RIN's Montreal branch, placed a wreath at a monument "to the patriots of 1837."

The two resolutions were proposed in a report by the association's traffic committee and endorsed at the association's annual conference here, attended by 250 delegates.

Two injured in collision

Two persons were injured early this morning in a two-car collision which also involved a pedestrian at the intersection of Denault and Rose Streets.

According to police, one car driven by Mrs. T. Lemay, 1589 Gauvin Street, was heading south on Rose and hit the car of Norman Raymond, 1264 Forbes Street, heading west on Denault at the intersection, and accordingly, the former's car swerved and hit a pedestrian waiting for a bus. The pedestrian's name was released as Miss Fabiola Bilodeau, 56, of 1350 St. Andre Street. The cars were heavily damaged, and both Miss Bilodeau and Mrs. Lemay were taken to Hotel Dieu Hospital.

Financial report

With U. S. markets closed, most Canadian industrial stocks yesterday remained within fractional range of last Friday's closing prices. A few selected issues scored gains of a point or so.

Dominion Textile advanced 1/2 to 21 1/2, Massey - Ferguson 1/2 to 22, and Asbestos Corp. 1/2 to 23. Alcan Aluminum at 29 1/2 and Canada Cement at 39 were unchanged.

Westcoast Transmission moved ahead 1/2 to 25 1/2, and 1/4 point gains were registered by Imperial Oil at 63 and Interprovincial Pipe Line at 23 1/2.

No particular features were noted in a very quiet Canada Bond list.

Provincials were off in point in dull trading. Corporates were featureless.

A marked improvement in activity was experienced by Canada's manufacturing and processing industries in May, according to the latest survey of the Canadian Association of Purchasing Agents.

New orders and production were strong, and inventories and employment were also high.

Prices were reported as strengthening but the increases appeared mainly in food and expense materials rather than in production materials.

$192.17 into the hole, mostly because of the weather, president Len Cote told the council last night.

Mr. Cote headed up a delegation which included the team's board of directors. He said that the chief concern was paying the players on Friday night and he added that the team predicts a total loss this year of $8,000.

In appealing for city help, Mr. Cote said that the team was a benevolent organization and that none of the directors received any payment for their work. As a matter of fact, he went on, they find themselves spending.

Last year, the directors each pitched in $200 to meet the team's deficit.

The city promised that they would pay three quarters of any deficit the team had at the end of the season.

The Dominion Day float which won first prize in festivities on the Canadian side of the border last weekend, yesterday took top honors in American July 4 celebrations here.

The float, entered by the Stansfeld North Women's Institute, depicted the Mansur red brick school house.

During the same U.S. celebrations, Dominion Day Queen Penny Miller, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Miller of Rock Island was one of the five finalists out of a group of 21 competing for the July 4 Queen title.

The mayor vetoed the idea. A vote will have to be taken eventually, he said, before the council can raise the money to pay for the project but the public can vote after the architects have made their plans and the council has a definite project to present.

Firemen put out fire at Morgan

DERBY LINE — Rustin B. Lamb, of Montreal and Morgan, Vt., a former Stanstead boy, feels thankful for being at his home in Morgan over the weekend, for good neighbours and for a good fire department in Derby Line. Mr. Lamb, noticing smoke coming out of the house vent, immediately phoned his neighbour, Clayton Dumas. His son, Michael Dumas, answered the phone and Mr. Lamb asked him to phone the fire department in Derby Line, then come and help him and Michael did just as he was asked.

He, and another neighbour youth, Donald Hayward, ran to the Lamb home where the two boys and Mr. Lamb removed boards where the fire was located.

The fire department took exactly 12 minutes to cover the ten to twelve miles and upon arrival, they were able quickly to extinguish the blaze.

Ben Blais, the chief, says the damage was approximately $300 and was definitely caused by electric wiring.

No amount of insurance could have covered the loss of the beautiful home, built some 150 years ago. The Lambs purchased it about four years ago, and although they have spent considerable money renovating it, they have, as their predecessors before them, preserved its originality. The Lamb family have made some additions and it is furnished with antiques.

While Sister Litchfield was here the new High School was built and many other projects accomplished.

About 175 guests attended the banquet. Included were the clergy of both Richmond and Melbourn, the principal of St. Francis High School, the teachers and many citizens as well as others associated with the schools.

During the evening Mr. Leo Delaney, on behalf of the P.T.A., presented the guest of honor with a portable typewriter and spoke of the many friends she had made and the work done while here, to which Sister Litchfield responded.

Sister Litchfield was a vice-president of the Regional Board in which she showed a great interest. Sister Mary Alice Donaher, better known as Mother St. John, will be principal at Notre Dame High School in the coming season.
