

When we have been able constitutionally to render the Legislative Council elective, abolish the Seigneurial Tenure, and secularize the Clergy Reserves, it would be a culpable impatience, of which my political party has never manifested any symptoms, to seek for remedies elsewhere than in the direction of these three constitutional political, religious and national dissensions, we shall be able to reckon with certainty that our progress will meet with no serious obstacle.—Taking this common ground; accepting all our fellow citizens of whatever origin or political creed they may be, as children of the same country, and destined to the same good or ill fortune, we shall impress on our institutions that character of grandeur and solidity which creates nations.

That is the object to which all my aspirations tend, and it is in the hope of contributing to that result, that I have written these few lines.

honorable requisition.
I have the honor to be,
Gentlemen,
Your obedient servant,
JOSEPH DOUTRE.
