YACHT RACE TURNS TO SURVIVAL ORDEAL

PLYMOUTH, England (CP) — Storm-crippled yachts limped or were towed into port in Ireland and southwestern England early today as the death toll mounted in the biggest yacht racing disaster in history.

At least 10 yachtsmen were reported dead, seven were missing and hundreds more were unaccounted for as ships, lifeboats and helicopters searched the Atlantic through the night for victims of 120-kilometre-an-hour gales which turned the classic Fastnet ocean race into a desperate fight for survival.

The Royal Ocean Racing Club, sponsors of the race, said most of those not heard from were expected to be out of danger as winds subsided.

The club said about 30 yachts were sunk or abandoned, 114 persons were rescued and about another 100 boats were safe.

Two of the three official Canadian challengers in the 970-kilometre (605-mile) classic climax to the Admiral's Cup series were among the craft reported to have reached safety.

The RORC said that Pachena, skippered by John Newton of the Vancouver Yacht Club, sought shelter in Cork, Ireland, and Evergreen, skippered by Don Green of the Royal Hamilton Yacht Club, retired from the race and put into Plymouth.

There was no official word on the third yacht, Magistri, skippered by Charles Bentley of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, although unconfirmed reports said the craft had been spotted and identified by search aircraft and appeared to be continuing the race.

A fourth Canadian yacht, Manitou, skippered by Ken Merrow, formerly of Oakville, Ont., also started the race but pulled out early with a damaged mast.

PHILIPPE GALARNEAU: It's not so long ago we didn't see a fresh egg between Christmas and Easter, hence the origin of the Easter egg.

JUDGING FOWL: HE'S AT THE TOP

By CLAUDIA BOWERS

SHERBROOKE — How many people can boast of being one of the best domesticated land and water fowl judges in Canada and the United States?

Meet Philippe Galarneau, a tall, 71 years old, who has spent his entire life becoming an expert on poultry and all things related, and is this year's poultry judge at Sherbrooke Expo.

"I judged my first show on December 8, 1932 in Three Rivers and I haven't looked back since," says Galarneau.

Surrounded by other old-time poultry showmen, we sat in the doorway of the poultry house at the Sherbrooke Fair last evening, reminiscing about the good old days of showing hens, roosters and assorted young at exhibitions where the standards were perhaps a little less strict than today's.

"I remember," Galarneau remarked, "one time in Quebec, when the reputed Lagace family were into fancy white Leghorns. Apparently someone, who knew and resented their reputation as expert breeders and exhibitors decided to finish their chances at that particular show."

"At any rate, Mr. Lagace went to bed on a makeshift cot near his pets in order to better protect them. You can imagine Lagace's surprise and chagrin when, at first light, the noted gentleman, with pail of water in hand, approached the leghorns' cages to discover someone had pulled out every tailfeather on every bird during the night.

"Needless to say, the poultry house was closed immediately and our domestic fowl show was 'fouled up,'" Galarneau recounted.

Having been a judge of domestic poultry for so many years, this honorable gentleman commented on the much improved quality of bird we find today, both on our table and in the laying house. Today's broiler chick grows from the egg to market weight in under ten weeks and the laying hen barely has time to catch her breath before she is ready to lay another egg, giving over three hundred eggs per year.

"It's not so long ago we didn't see a fresh egg between Christmas and Easter, hence the origin of the Easter egg hunt. Today, we have eggs and chicken on the table all through the year and think nothing of it."

Philippe Galarneau was born in l'Assomption, Quebec, the son of a gentleman farmer. One brother eventually became a veterinarian, but, as he put it, "I graduated from the Agriculture School at Oka in 1932, and as I was already started in the poultry department under Brother Wilfrid, the inventor of the Chanteclerc breed of chicken, I stuck with the birds and have been with them ever since."

This year's expo entries are up, according to Mr. Galarneau's little black book. He has recorded the number of entries at every fair he has ever judged as well as outstanding winners.

"This year, we have 854 entries compared to 784 last year. For those who remember entries numbering over one thousand, you must note that we no longer accept ducks and geese, only domestic fowl, standard and bantam, pigeons and rabbits as well as some types of game birds."

According to Galarneau, many of Canada's finest leather fanciers have come from Sherbrooke and all parts of the Eastern Townships.

"I like to judge here. These exhibitors are my friends and after all, I have been living in Sherbrooke for the past 26 years."

Cyanide spill poisons river

By NELSON WYATT

LYSTER — Area residents both here and in nearby Plessisville have been warned to beware of their drinking water after a spill of highly toxic chemicals into the Becancour River was discovered late Sunday.

Plessisville residents first noticed the effects of the spill Sunday when hundreds of dead fish floated to the surface of the shallow river. Two representatives of the province's fish and game department soon were able to link the dead fish with the leakage of about 250 gallons of a cyanide-laced chemical from the Lyster Dye Casting Company.

The spillage of the brass plating liquid occurred at about 11 a.m. when employees of the Lyster firm transferred it from a tank to a storage reservoir which was, unknown to them, leaking. A company spokesman said that this was the first time such an accident at the plant has occurred. The accident had not been reported to the Quebec Environmental Protection Service at that time and they were only advised after fish and game department representatives investigated the spill.

At the present time, an antidote for the poison is being flown in to Plessisville via Quebec City from Toronto, a precaution should anyone be reported to be suffering from its effects. Cyanide is described as a liquid poison, somewhat like acid.

Numerous repercussions have been felt in the wake of the spill into the river, with residents of Plessisville and Daveluyville ordered to stop drinking their water while government chemists conduct tests. Water has been brought into the town Notre-Dame-de-Lourdes-de-Ham was originally advised after fish and game department representatives investigated the spill.

Work, fun ahead for premiers

QUEBEC (CP) — Provincial premiers begin their annual stint of shop talk and socializing tonight in the relaxed resort setting of Pointe au Pic.

The program for this 20th annual get-together includes a reception tonight, three working sessions Thursday and Friday, a rock show by Quebec singer Diane Dufresne and a riverboat cruise back up the St. Lawrence River to Quebec City Saturday.

It appears that energy and the economy will be main topics at the closed-door working sessions.

"This is not like a federal-provincial conference," said Claude Morin, Quebec's intergovernmental affairs minister. The idea is mainly to give the premiers "an occasion to make contact in a relaxed atmosphere."

Manitoba Premier Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan, who said during a visit Monday: "The premiers' conference is not a decision-making conference."

Nevertheless, as Manitoba Premier Sterling Lyon noted last week, the informality of the talks allows the 10 provincial leaders to "bat back and forth" regional and national topics.

Nova Scotia's John Buchanan will lead off discussion on energy and industrial development, while Ontario's William Davis will open the talk on jobs and inflation.

For Premier Richard Hatfield of New Brunswick, "energy is the issue of most concern to governments and people."

"The cost is going up, and we have to look at the impact rising energy costs will have on our economy and that of the United States."

On the subject of energy, Premier Bill Bennett of British Columbia plans to encourage his colleagues to push for a return of Petro-Canada, the federal Crown corporation, to the private sector.

Cloudy and cool

Atmospheric disturbances in the lower St. Lawrence and Newfoundland area will be contributing to another dog day. A cloudy system will be moving through all areas with a number of sudden showers expected. Cloudy periods are expected with breaks, with winds from the west at 25 kmph and a 70 per cent chance of rain. Temperatures for the next two days will be between 16 and 18.

SRC probe politically motivated?

By JAMES DUFF

HIGHWATER — Was Guntram Hospes one of a handful of employees of Space Research Corporation working with South African defence officials on the Smits Drift Range in the fall of 1977?

The Stanstead electronics engineer won't answer that question. Instead, he asks whether there's any law against consultants representing a company's interests overseas.

"If I was in South Africa, I was there as a consultant for SRC, but I was not on the company's payroll," Hospes said in a recent interview.

A key part of the American and Canadian cases against the Highwater armaments complex will be to prove SRC employees were sent to the South African test range to develop and test a 155-mm artillery system designed by SRC. If would be all the proof either government needs to demonstrate the firm was aware of the ultimate destination of test weaponry shipped to Europe and the Caribbean, in violation of various export control laws.

Hospes, who left Canada for Europe several days after the interview, says both governments are using highly unethical means to try to prove that involvement, and the result is that SRC Quebec will be shut down gradually as contracts are fulfilled. The Austrian native who came to Canada to work for SRC 10 years ago says the inevitable result is the gradual laying-off of the 350 workers still on the Canadian side of the 8,000-acre complex straddling the Quebec-Vermont border.

The former SRC designer, electronics engineer and high-speed photography expert said he and others, either employees of, or formerly associated with SRC were being subjected to intense pressure from law-enforcement agencies on both sides of the border.

"At the beginning of July, my wife was visited by RCMP agents and asked if I was in South Africa or if I had ever been there," Hospes said. "Two others who used to work on my team were questioned in Mansonville more than once." Although he enjoyed his work at SRC, the designer says he quit because of the investigation.

Search parties continue India dam mop-up

NEW DELHI (AP) — Search parties have recovered the bodies of 500 persons drowned in the weekend collapse of an earthen and masonry dam near Morvi, on India's western coast. But India's newspapers said Tuesday the death toll might reach 25,000.

The Gujarat state government reacted to sharp criticism of its rescue operations by ordering a judicial inquiry into the disaster, believed the costliest in human lives since India's independence 32 years ago, the United News of India reported.

Officials in Morvi, once a scenic royal capital built by a maharajah, said at least 1,000 persons were killed in the disaster. But unofficial estimates ranged between 5,000 and 25,000 dead.

Reports Tuesday described Morvi as a ghost town littered with the dead and covered in mud. The stench of decomposing bodies hung in the moist monsoon air and swarms of vultures invaded the town.

A source in Ahmadabad, the state capital, said there would be no firm total on the number killed until the town and neighboring villages were cleared of mud, which was six metres deep in places.

Morvi, located about 495 kilometres (310 miles) northwest of Bombay, has been almost inaccessible since the flood. By Tuesday, about 17,000 survivors were reported evacuated from the city of 60,000.

The army has been called in to help strengthen what state leaders admitted is a poorly-organized relief effort.

The disaster was quickly transformed into a political issue, as even members of the state's governing Janata party attacked the government of Chief Minister Babubhai Patel, who was quoted as saying he regretted the lack of relief coordination.

DEMANDS INQUIRY

A predecessor, Madhavsinh Solanki, called Patel's admission "shocking and sad." Demanding an inquiry, Solanki said that the dam's construction was faulty and that residents had not been given adequate warning.

The Machhu Dam No. 2, completed between 1974-78 at a cost of $2 million, was about 16 metres high and three kilometres long.

Artillery shells produced in Highwater are neither filled with explosives nor fused before shipping.

Ex-employee denounces probe

I can either drive 25 miles through the States to SRC's North Troy gate or I have to drive 75 miles around Lake Memphremagog to Mansonville and Highwater. The last time I crossed the border into the States, I was threatened with a subpoena from the Vermont Grand Jury investigating SRC's operations."

According to Hospes, U.S. Customs and Immigration agents Curtis and Kleinfelder and RCMP Sergeant Edouard Noel are pooling efforts to intimidate people into testifying before the Grand Jury. Rather than risk being nabbed to testify on SRC's activities in South Africa, Hospes says he commuted the 150-mile round trip between Highwater and Stanstead via Magog for a short time before quitting in disgust.

Hospes blames law-enforcement agencies on both sides of the border for creating what he describes as gestapo tactics aimed at encouraging disgruntled laid-off employees to talk against the company.

"I love the company. I've devoted more than 10 years of my life to working there and I've always been well-treated.

"SRC has struggled for years against overwhelming problems to establish the most unique facilities, talents and worldwide reputation. The name is recognized worldwide outside of Canada and the mere fact of having worked there is a ticket to foreign job offers. The loyalty of the staff is unbelievable, but I fear many others will follow me soon."

What angers Hospes most is the attitude of the Canadian government to what SRC is trying to do to create a home-grown avionics and fire-control technology based on a southern Township — Northeast Kingdom workforce.

The obvious way to enter any market is to fill a need, he says, and the need for a mobile 155-mm gun is universal.

"Until the Vietnam war, American artillery was outshot and outranged by the Soviets. We changed that. By changing the shape of the projectile and the calibre of the rifling, we achieved far greater range and accuracy than any one ever had."

Once the basic design was produced, SRC had all the business it could handle, both in the production of new weaponry and in the updating of obsolescent guns.

"This is unsophisticated weaponry," Hospes said. "Rockets need launching systems; even the smallest hand-held jobs need an electronics expert and a launch control team. And rockets are expensive. On the other hand, the 155 is still one of the most-used guns in the western world. NATO uses a 155-mm gun, the result of a four-nation development which has produced a simple, versatile weapon with much-improved range. Small countries like Thailand and Malaysia have no expertise, but they have plenty of manpower to haul and mount the guns."

The result of SRC's gradually accumulating expertise in 155-mm technology led to contracts with the U.S. and Canadian armed forces, with European weapons producers and with other nations, like Thailand, which was ready to buy 24 guns at half a million dollars apiece — until the Canadian government halted the deal.

It also led to SRC's involvement in South Africa.

The South African defence department was looking for a new long-range weapons delivery system which would give them similar to the 155-mm Israeli guns which, safely parked behind Israeli lines, could pound Damascus 40 miles away. Tests were conducted on the Smits Drift Range in September and October of 1977, and several arms producers were asked to participate.

SRC International, based in Brussels, is supposed to have sent technical crews and for the duration, SRC Quebec employees allegedly were given leaves of absence to join the test crews in South Africa. Thus they were technically out of SRC Quebec's employ when they worked with the test crews, which according to Hospes, violated neither Canadian nor American laws.

The gun eventually chosen by South Africa bears little resemblance to the SRC weapon, Hospes said. "In fact it's closer to the NATO model." As for the test components and shell casings shipped from Saint John, New Brunwick to Spain, Hospes said nothing shipped from Highwater was finished.

"The shell forgings were neither filled nor fused," he added. "The RCMP knew all about them, they opened every one of the containers and inspected everything. There were no secrets."

Why would the authorities in both the United States and Canada be out to nail SRC for breaking a relatively insignificant law that other arms producers scoff at?

Hospes thinks it goes back to the beginnings of SRC. Space Research Corp. was the private company formed under Dr. Gerald Bull after the federal government withdrew its funding for the Martlet project in the early 60's. Ironically, the McGill University program, located on the Bull family's private estate south of Highwater and on test facilities in Barbados, was an essentially pacific project which aimed to get Vanadina into space on the cheap.

Bull and his associates pioneered in the use of retired 16-inch naval guns to blast instrument-bearing test vehicles into orbit for the fraction of the cost of the U.S. space program. While it wouldn't do for manned flights and more sensitive instrument packages, the Martlet program scored considerable success. It also gave SRC a tremendous boost in projectile and propellant technology, and when the company was formed in the late 60's, there wasn't another armaments firm in the world with SRC's expertise.

According to Hospes, the most probable reason for the harassment of SRC is Dr. Gerald Bull.

"The Canadians seem to want Dr. Bull at any price, possibly as a continuation of an old feud with civil servants and because of his classic and oft-quoted comment about certain senior government officials and 'cocktail scientists'."

"They probably resent his international reputation, which is far better in some countries than that of certain Canadian government departments. The fact that the company built up a good business using European partners without their help really bugs them."

Obituary

MRS. THOMAS McCOURT
of Lower Windsor

Frances Maud McCourt passed away at the Sherbrooke Hospital on Thursday, July 12, 1979, in her 92nd year.

Born at Hardwood Hill on March 21, 1888, the deceased was the daughter of the late George Wilkie and his wife, the late Mary Ross. Her only sister, Alice (Mrs. Archie Paterson) predeceased her in November, 1973.

On June 12, 1912, she was married to Thomas Henry McCourt, who predeceased her in May, 1965. Of this union four children were born, Douglas, Ross, Iola and Mildred. Two other babies died at birth.

The couple resided on a farm in Lower Windsor where many remember well the hospitality and good times at dances and social evenings held at the McCourt home.

For the past ten years the deceased had been confined to a wheelchair, having had both legs amputated following several operations. She had been tenderly cared for by her son, Ross and daughter, Iola, who resided with her on the home farm. She bore her incapacities with remarkable courage, learning to manage in her home with little difficulty, and never complaining of her lot.

The many floral arrangements were silent tributes to a respected friend and neighbour.

The remains rested at the Boisvert Funeral Home, 64 3rd Ave., Windsor, where the funeral service was held on Sunday, July 15, conducted by Rev. A. Cameron.

Interment was in the Windsor Cemetery beside her late husband.

Bearers were six grand-nephews, Robert Paterson, William McCourt, Randy McCourt, Danny McCourt, Gordon Watson and Brian McCourt.

She is survived by her family, Douglas and his wife Hazel, Ross, Iola, all of Windsor; and Mildred and her husband Howard Bowering of Danville; six grandchildren, thirteen great-grandchildren, two nieces, a nephew and several cousins, as well as many relatives by marriage. Also survived by her step-mother and friend, Mrs. Myrtle Wilkie Liljegrén of Richmond. One grandson and one great-grandson predeceased her.

Attending the funeral from a distance were relatives from Danville, Aylmer, Toronto and North Lancaster, Ont., Westbank, B.C., Richmond and Melbourne.

Quebec won't appeal

QUEBEC (CP) — Justice Minister Marc-Andre Bedard has formally announced that Quebec will not appeal the sentence of two years less a day imposed on FLQ kidnapers Jacques and Louise Cossette-Trudel last week.

"It was a well-considered judgment which was balanced and well-supported and in which there appear no errors which would justify an appeal to change it," a spokesman for Bedard said Tuesday.

QLB clerks reach agreement

MONTREAL (CP) — Striking liquor store clerks have reached agreement with the Quebec Liquor Corp. on the contentious issue of working hours, but wages remain to be settled, union president Renald Asselin said Tuesday.

The question of Saturday shifts had been a stumbling block to a new contract, but Asselin declined to give details of the agreement. He did not say when the two sides would meet again with Quebec government conciliators to discuss wages.

Robbed at snake-point

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Faced with a robber brandishing a 20-centimetre knife and a two-metre-long rattlesnake, a Hollywood man surrendered the keys to his new car, a $400 ring and $350 in cash.

Police said 25-year-old Michael Thompson had just arrived home Monday when someone knocked at the door and said he was delivering a package.

When Thompson opened the door, he was confronted by a man carrying a knife in one hand and a box with the large rattlesnake in the other.

"Just get back. I won't hurt you," Thompson said the man told him. "I just want the money and the keys (to Thompson's car)."

Conference date set

LONDON (Reuter) — Britain has set Sept. 10 as the date for a Zimbabwe Rhodesian constitutional conference and invited both the Salisbury government and guerrilla leaders to attend.

The invitation was extended to Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa, leader of Zimbabwe Rhodesia's black-white coalition government and the leaders of the Patriotic Front black nationalist guerrilla alliance — Joshua Nkomo and Robert Mugabe.

Seventh Legion virus case confirmed

TORONTO (CP) — The seventh case of legionnaire's disease has been confirmed since the disease broke out in Metropolitan Toronto last month.

A spokesman for the Ontario ministry of health said the new case, a 51-year-old male patient in stable condition, was confirmed Tuesday after Humber Memorial Hospital received results of blood tests.

The spokesman said three patients at the hospital are suffering from the disease. Two other patients, a 72-year-old woman and another 51-year-old man, are in fair condition. A fourth man who had the disease checked himself out of the hospital and has recovered.

Restoration proposed

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — A proposed $400-million restoration project for Three Mile Island includes the release of some radioactive gases and the decontamination of 280,000 gallons of water.

Plans for cleaning up and rebuilding the nuclear plant were outlined this week by federal and company officials.

Mobs clash

BELFAST (AP) — Protestant mobs clashed with police in two towns Tuesday after a tension-filled day marking the 10th anniversary of the intervention of the British army in Northern Ireland's Catholic-Protestant conflict.

Police said in the County Antrim port of Larne, about 60 persons protesting a Roman Catholic rally hurled rocks and bottles at police, attacked motorists and broke shop windows.

Art thief framed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — The sister of a man charged with stealing an A.Y. Jackson painting testified Tuesday her brother told her he had been framed.

Alan F. Morris, 49, a P.E.I. resident formerly of Windsor, is charged with breaking and entering and with possession of stolen goods valued at more than $200.

NO GEAR COULD HAVE STOOD STORM

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Sailors who set out in ocean races have the best equipment money can buy, yachting experts say, but when storms whip up 120-kilometre-an-hour winds and 10-metre waves, all the equipment in the world can't guarantee survival.

At least 10 sailors were known dead and scores unaccounted for when winds at near hurricane force slashed through yachts racing in the Admiral's Cup off the southwest coast of England on Tuesday.

"These boats are the cream of the crop," said Thomas Ehman, staff director of the U.S. Yacht Racing Union in Newport.

"But if you drop a boat off a 20- or 30-foot wave over and over again, nothing's going to hold up."

"They are all built to take bad weather. This is the worst kind of encounter we've had."

The boats in the race ranged in size from 15 to 25 metres. They are made of wood, reinforced plastic or aluminum and many are custom designed for racing. Their crews number five to a dozen or more.

The more exotic yachts, such as Ted Turner's entry, the ocean racer Tenacious, cost as much as $500,000. Extra custom-tailored sails, on-board navigational computers and sophisticated radar equipment can add hundreds of thousands of dollars more.

On-shore support systems — electronic weather monitoring stations, satellite relays for navigation and communication equipment — can drive the cost of participating into the millions. That doesn't account for training, transporting and feeding an expert crew.

Gordon VanNes, a sailor from Chester, Conn., who has made several ocean crossings, said experience is important in races but in a bad storm it takes luck to get you through.

"Your survival is about 80 or 90 per cent luck and equipment and 10 or 20 per cent seamanship," he said.

Most of the skippers, seasoned experts to a man, probably never had seen weather like that which whipped through the Admiral's Cup races — let alone raced in it.

"The seas were the worst I've ever been in," said David Bootham, a survivor from the British yacht Magic. "We were floating for 10 hours until we were rescued."

and returned to Cowes, on the Isle of Wight.

Mayor Bill Vogel of the Vancouver suburb of Surrey was reported aboard the British yacht Jaujaime, owned by construction magnate Sir Maurice Laing. The yacht was not among those listed as being in distress.

Also among craft unaccounted for were the three official U.S. entries — Imp, Aries and Williwaw — and a training vessel from the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., with 14 crew aboard.

The Tenacious, skippered by Ted Turner, owner of the Atlanta Braves baseball team, was safe, the RORC reported.

The yachts were caught by the gale as they rounded Fastnet Rock off southern Ireland and headed back toward the English Channel. Ships in the area reported receiving numerous emergency Mayday radio calls.

"We sent out the Mayday signal, but the radio was very weak and we didn't know if anyone was hearing us," said David Bootham, a survivor from the British boat, Magic. "The seas were the worst I have ever been in. We were floating for 10 hours until we were rescued."

Fair attendance shortfall blamed on weather

SHERBROOKE (CB) — Attendance at the Sherbrooke Fair so far this year, (10,589 on Monday) has not met expectations, but officials are blaming the weather, which has remained cloudy and threatening for both days.

Entries are up over last year and the quality of livestock on display is excellent. Quite a few more rabbits and pigeons in the poultry house are on display.

Tonight, in front of the grandstand, well-known singer Jean-Pierre Ferland, will be appearing in a special representation Burito the Flying Frizbee Team and a fashion show will put on three performances today. Judging of Ayrshires, swine and Jerseys is also scheduled for Wednesday, finishing the competitions in the dairy breeds. Beef breeds and horses will be coming on to the grounds starting late tonight in preparation for judging, which gets underway in the Horse sections, both heavy and light, on Thursday.

Highlighted Tuesday was the drawing of a color television won by Mrs. Carmel Airoldi, R.R. 3, Richmond, and the awarding of the Grand Champion Female Holstein category to John Beerwort, Brome. Reserve Champion was won by Butch Crack of Crackholm Farm, Richmond who was also winner in the Junior Champion Holstein Female and runner-up for the Premier Breeder Award. The Grand Champion Holstein bull is the property of Ross Carson of South Durham and in the 4H and Young Farmers Dairy Breeds competition, Kenda MacGillivray, 19, of Brome captured the honors, winning with her Ayrshire heifer over all winners in the dairy breeds competitions held yesterday.

Hydro lays down rules

SHERBROOKE (NW) — Municipalities that operate their own electric companies and have the services of Hydro-Quebec will have two main criteria to consider in the future in the sale of their resources: Human resources and the physical evaluation of their equipment.

This view came out of recent discussions between the Quebec Ministry of Energy and the 20 municipalities in Quebec that have their own hydro companies. The discussions arose out of a report on city-owned hydro companies and the sale of their resources submitted recently to the cities and the government by Judge Rosaire Lajoie, who presided over a committee studying the matter.

Cowansville publisher fined

GRANBY (JM) — Cowansville publisher J. Noel Parenteau was fined $2,400 in sessions court here last week following his plea of guilt on charges of fraud and having utilized forged documents. He pleaded guilty to two counts of fraud and 14 of 24 counts of utilization of forged documents. The crown then withdrew 10 charges of having uttered forged documents.

The charges were laid by the RCMP on Feb. 16, 1978 and stemmed from Publisher's sworn statements of circulation, made in the name of seven weekly and bi-weekly publications. They included Le Journal de Shefford, Le Journal de Wolfe, Le Journal de Compton, Le Missisquoi, Le Shefford, Le Yamaska, and L'Etoile de Cornwall Star. The frauds, which totalled approximately $2,000, victimized the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce and McKim Advertising Ltd.

Crown attorney Claude Noiseux called for fines of $100 on each of the utilization charges and $500 on each of the fraud counts if they were accompanied with a probation order. Defence lawyer Louis Grignon said he was satisfied with the demand of the crown but asked the bench to grant his client a delay to pay the fine.

Judge Bernard Legare imposed the fines suggested by the crown and bound Parenteau over to keep the public peace for 18 months. He was allowed 90 days to acquit the fines and costs.

Coq delivery car stolen

COATICOOK (NW) — The QPF detachment here is looking for a car stolen in Waterville last night. The car, a white 1978 Honda Civic belonging to the Le Roi du Coq Roti outlet in Sherbrooke was taken when its driver was called to make a delivery at 1:45 a.m. to an apartment on Gosselin Boulevard. The driver left the motor of the car running while he made the delivery, which turned out to be a false call. The car has not been recovered. QPF Agent Marcel Sevigny is investigating.

Youth killed under bus wheels

SHERBROOKE (NW) — A 13-year-old local youth was killed at about seven o'clock last night when he was crushed beneath the rear wheels of a city bus.

Marcel Roy, of 12th Avenue North, was riding his newly-purchased 10-speed bike when he apparently missed a stop sign and went under the bus at the corner of 11th Avenue and Rondeau Streets. Roy was killed instantly, said a city police spokesman. The driver of the bus, Andre Desmarais, 28, had four years service as a bus driver and over 10 years driving experience.

Constable Michel Blais initially investigated the mishap. The investigation is now in the hands of Detectives Pierre Cabana and Normand Lambert of the Sherbrooke Police Criminal Investigation Bureau.

Calf Club conquers red tape

The dairy booth operated by the Lennoxville Calf Club at the Sherbrooke Fair has been given quite a hassle by the Department of Health, starting Monday morning and finally shutting them down Monday afternoon.

According to calf club spokesmen, the department's complaints included lack of a permit, no flooring in the booth, no covering on new wood, meaning paint or colored paper and no running water in the booth. A department representative even went so far as to say that the Lennoxville Calf Club Booth was by far the worst-looking one on the grounds.

The kids went to work, built a floor Monday night, papered the offending bare wood, and rigged up a hose pipe and pad so as to have water at least running into the booth.

Yesterday, officials complained about the lack of an outlet for the water to drain away, but so far they have not shut the booth down again.

This booth has been operated by the club at Sherbrooke Fair for over 25 years, and this is the first time any complaint has been made.

"We only serve dairy products, milk, ice cream and the like, and all the showmen support us as they have for so many years past," said a spokesman for the club.

"We are a youth club, not a commercial enterprise and have never been obliged to get a permit before. The money we make goes into club activities, not our pockets, and we don't understand why all the hassle."

ally thought to have contaminated drinking water but it was found that it, like Lyster, gets the bulk of its drinking water from artesian wells. Lyster is also supplied by a reservoir located a few miles upstream.

In Granby, the dairy cooperative has also suspended production of butter and yogurt since the spill.

Lyster Mayor Elphege Boissoneault told the press that the firm responsible for the spill had already been holding up a plan to clean up the polluted river. He said that the company had delayed matters by being tardy in the completion of a report detailing how it intends to pre-treat its waste.

The Becancour River flows from Thetford Mines, through Lyster, Notre-Dame-de-Lourdes, Plessisville, St. Louis de Blandford and Daveluyville before spilling into the St. Lawrence at Becancour.

So far there have been no reports of human poisoning.

The last chemical spill in the province occurred when about 3,000 gallons of a latex based chemical was accidentally poured into the Yamaska River branch in Farnham from the Coronet Carpet factory.

It's all in the arms...

By NELSON WYATT
Superman may be the man of steel but Valti Brignon is without a doubt the man of coils.

We were passing through the Domaine du Parc shopping centre late last week when we noticed a placard seeking "one strong man", but we didn't realize the implications of the message until a few moments later when we met Brignon, the man of coils.

A paraplegic for the past seven years, Brignon has been touring shopping centres around Canada putting on displays of strength for the customers. He gets his stage name of the man of coils from the fact that he can take a car's coil spring, which he estimates is wound with 4,000 pounds pressure, and straighten it.

Mouth agape? Hang on, there's more. While we were at the Domaine du Parc, Brignon coolly entered the area fronting the Greenberg's store, had three other gents climb aboard his wheelchair and was hooked up to three Renault Le Cars and one Renault 12 station wagon supplied by Brome Auto, and then pulled the whole lot for a few feet. Estimated weight of the haul is in the area of four tons!

Brignon told us that the Cowansville pull was not his most strenuous. He said that he's hauled eight General Motors cars and on another occasion, two 70,000-pound dump trucks. His next goal is three Winnebago motor homes, to be pulled at a shopping centre in Trois-Rivieres.

A lean gent, Brignon is a 32-year-old native of the Magdalen Islands, where he was carrying on a family tradition in the fishing industry until he was crippled in a boating accident in 1972. He's been doing his feats of strength for the past six years and is looking forward to a trip to Sherbrooke in the fall where he'll be appearing at the Quatre Saisons shopping centre on 13th Avenue.

Ronald Lawrence is at it again. Eager to raise funds for his favorite charity, the Montreal Children's Hospital, Lawrence does not go the usual route of most fund solicitors, requesting donations at home or office. Instead, for the past two years, Lawrence and his family have been organizing innovative projects to raise money for research and other worthy areas at the hospital. Last year, they held a successful disco dance and the year before that kicked off the first of their annual events with a sandlot fair. This year, however, they'll be taking a different track and will be holding a benefit auction at their home on Draper Road (R.R. 4) in Sutton on August 18. Alfred Derby will be the auctioneer and tables full of baked goods will supplement the antiques, paintings and arts and crafts that will be offered for sale. Anyone with goods for sale or who want information on the auction are advised to call Ronald Lawrence at 538-3201, the Auberge de Sutton at 538-2324 or Susan Royea at 243-6219.

In case of rain, the auction will be held on August 25.

While you're in Sutton visiting the Lawrence's auction, you might wander by the Sutton Elementary School on Highland Street to see the preview exhibition for Sunday's art auction on August 19. The preview will be held August 18 between 10 a.m. and 8:30 p.m. and the auction will be held the next day open from 11 a.m. with the auction at one p.m.

Among the artists who will be exhibiting will be Mary Martin of Dunham and D. Dyer of Sutton.

Both days are under the auspices of the Sutton Valley Council.

Finally, over 300 people turned out for the fourth annual United Church flower show in Cowansville

Gosselin: Concessions to commercialese won't sap Bill 101

MONTREAL (CP) — Recent changes allowing more commercial use of English — particularly in the promotion of English-language publications and records — have not weakened Quebec's Charter of the French language, says the president of the Office de la Langue Française.

"We haven't diluted the law, but we have made it more precise and removed some of the difficulties of application," Raymond Gosselin told a news conference Wednesday.

The changes, published without fanfare in the Quebec Official Gazette

July 25, allow for publicity flyers for educational and cultural products to be in the language of the product.

Gosselin said the new ruling will eliminate confusion sometimes felt by persons who receive advertising in French for cultural products, only to find the products were in another language.

Another change permits English and other languages to be used, along with French, in point-of-sale advertising of articles such as books, records and films.

But even in its modified state, the law could cause problems for the operators of Montreal's English-language movie houses.

Gosselin admitted that few, if any, display Hollywood movie posters that contain any French and noted reluctantly that "every good citizen of Quebec must respect the law."

WOULD ACT

"If we receive any written complaints from the public, we will have no choice but to act on them."

He suggested cinema owners might get around the problem by placing a French poster next to the English one.

Gosselin detailed other changes, such as rewording regulations to make it clear that conventions can be held in any language in Quebec.

"In our view and in that of the legislator, a convention that brings together specialists and is closed to the public cannot be considered a public place and therefore does not come under the language charter."

Tires sold in Quebec will not have to bear any French markings. Gosselin said the exemption was given because of the expense of tire molds, which are passed from one factory to another.

"There are two tire manufacturers in Quebec and we didn't want to put them at a disadvantage by making them have special molds."

AIM NOT NEGOTIABLE

Gosselin said that, in his view, the provisions of the charter concerning francization of business need not undergo any other major changes.

"Our attitude is that the objectives of the charter are not negotiable, whereas the time frame and the means used are," he said.

The office's statistics show that, of 294 businesses employing more than 500 workers that are subject to the language charter, 265 have received a temporary certificate of francization, while 29 have already been granted a permanent certificate.

Gosselin said there has been no settlement of the problem posed by the Montreal newspaper La Presse, whose publisher, noted federalist Roger Lemelin, flatly refused to apply for a francization certificate.

But he noted that Le Soleil, of Quebec City, got its certificate months ago.

Zip codes zap Amoco credit ratings

Now or never

On Friday, Minister of State for Social Programs Heward Grafftey will be announcing a fat DREE grant for Magog Foundries, reopening after its former owners shut the modern facility down for lack of business last year.

It doesn't seem to faze anyone in Ottawa that the foundry is owned by foreign interests, nor does it make any difference that there are enough foundries in the Townships alone to build several ocean liners each year. We're glad for Magog Foundry's employees and new owners and hope they keep it going longer than did their predecessors.

But what burns us is the shabby treatment accorded by Mr. Grafftey to one of the biggest employers in his riding, Space Research Corporation. We're not debating whether SRC traded with the South Africans; if evidence proves they did they should be given the same slap on the wrist everyone else who trades with unauthorized nations ends up getting.

But we object to the lily-livered way the Canadian government has treated and is continuing to treat this firm. Time and again during Pierre Trudeau's regime, we heard how it was shameful indeed for anyone to be in the arms business, how it was dirty trade — and the Canadian Armed Forces continued to be SRC's biggest customer.

We don't dwell on the shallow hypocrisy of Mr. Trudeau or Supply and Services Minister Pierre De Bane. We hope their star has waned. But why must the Tories emulate the two-faced attitude which the Liberals showed to domestic arms industries?

What this sort of attitude says in effect is it's okay for Canada's armed forces to be supplied by those nasty munitions outside our borders, but Canada is too decent to harbor its own armaments industry. If that's not the barest hypocrisy, we don't know what it is. Either Joe Clark's Tories cancel the Lockheed contract and plans to buy more U.S. fighters and all further foreign armaments contracts, or they better come first to the aid of a longtime local industry which until now has never asked anyone for anything.

Come on, Heward. Give SRC a fair shake. There are several thousand electors from Cowansville to Mansonville who will remember if you don't. But remember folks — it was the Diefenbaker Tories who killed the Avro Arrow — and Canada's domestic fighter industry.

WASHINGTON — The computerized letter from Amoco Oil Company was brief and to the point: Claire Cherry of Atlanta, Ga. had been rejected for a credit card because of income level, type of bank references and the company's credit experience "in your geographical area."

It wasn't the Deep South, or Georgia, or even Atlanta that Amoco disapproved of; it was Cherry's neighborhood, as disclosed by her postal zip code. She is a white divorcee who makes about $14,000 a year, which should be ample to pay her gas bills. But she lives in a zip that has been zapped by Amoco's credit analysts as a neighborhood of poor credit risks. So, no credit card.

The geographic gimmick Amoco uses in its "credit scoring system" is the subject of an investigation by the Federal Trade Commission. The FTC's concern is that the use of zip codes, particularly in urban areas that are still largely segregated, is just a sneaky way of discriminating against minorities.

Amoco insists that an applicant's location alone is never the main reason for refusing a credit card. The zip code is only one of 14 criteria on which applications are judged. On the other hand, Amoco told our associate Tony Capaccio that their system works — that zip codes can indeed be used to predict high credit risks.

Few creditors use the zip code in their scoring system, and Amoco is apparently the only major oil company that does. Under the Amoco system, the nation's 39,462 zip codes are classified on a scale of 1 through 5, applicants in Class 4 or 5 have the best chance of approval, those in Class 1 or 2, the worst.

Amoco puts only 855 zip code areas in Class 1 or 2 in the entire country, but the effect can be significant on a credit card applicant's rating. In most states where Amoco does business, a minimum score of 55 points is needed for approval. An applicant who lives in a Class 1 zip area is automatically penalized 17 points, no matter what his or her credit history may be; for a Class 2 neighborhood, the penalty is eight points.

The FTC's investigators have found a nationwide pattern in the zip code users. As a general rule, the greater the percentage of minorities in a given zip code area, the greater the likelihood that it will get a low classification.

In Atlanta, for example, a Georgia State University sociologist analyzed city zip codes that Amoco had relegated to Class 1 or 2. He found that 73 percent of Atlanta's non-white population was concentrated in the zones and only 23 percent of the city's whites.

"It was found that as the percentage of non-whites in each zip code was increased, the percentage of credit applications approved decreased," the analysis showed.

"The above data indicates that the denial of credit is strongly and significantly related to the non-white racial composition" of the zip code zones.

In Massachusetts, the state attorney general's investigators found a similar pattern in the zip code neighborhoods that Amoco had in effect blacklisted. The findings particularly incensed Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., who feels the Amoco system of "neighborhood slight" strongly discourages restoration of rundown urban areas.

The FTC is quietly working on a consent agreement for Amoco's consideration; the company would agree to stop using zip codes in its credit scoring system, without admitting any wrongdoing in the past. Massachusetts has filed suit against the oil company, charging that blacks are twice as likely as whites to be rejected for credit cards under the Amoco system.

For its part, Amoco claims that if it is forced to abandon the use of zip codes, it would have to turn down about 28,000 more credit applications a year than it does now.

Incredulous Khrushchev: Nikita Khrushchev, the late Communist Party boss of the Soviet Union, was an early believer in a "conspiracy theory" concerning President John F. Kennedy's assassination. In 1964, when the late Drew Pearson had a conversation with Khrushchev, the Soviet leader asked him, "What really happened?" Pearson told him, in effect, that it was just the way it had been reported by the newspapers — and presumably by the Soviet ambassador. Khrushchev was "utterly incredulous," according to a confidential CIA memo.

"When Pearson said it was understandable that foreigners had difficulty comprehending this fantastic episode, but in fact (Lee Harvey) Oswald was mad and had acted on his own, Chairman Khrushchev said flatly he did not believe this," the CIA memo stated. "He said he did not believe that the American security services were this inept." Commented Pearson: "I couldn't make a nickel with Khrushchev on this one."

Khrushchev, of course, professed to believe the assassination was a plot by American right-wingers.

Washington Whirl: Among those who are NOT invited to Camp David to give Jimmy Carter advice was a little-known expert who could have given the president an earful on a long-ignored way to help the country out of its energy crisis. He is Dr. Paul Bente, a softspoken chemist who spent 27 years with Dupont and now heads the Bio-Energy Council, a non-profit organization that keeps track of research in the conversion of organic material into fuel that can heat homes, power generators and run automobiles.

This "biomass energy" already provides 2.5 percent of the nation's energy. But Bente believes that with a concerted effort this amount could be increased five to 10 times in a few years — and without polluting the land or atmosphere. It's not too late to consult Dr. Bente. His office is at 1625 I St., N.W., Washington, D.C. 20006 — two blocks from the White House.

China's newest struggle puts modernization first

PEKING (Reuters) — Class struggle has been a constant theme of Chinese politics since the communist victory in a civil war in 1949 but now the struggle is being played down to unite the country for the major task of modernization.

The late Communist party Chairman Mao Tse-tung continually emphasized class struggle and saw the battle between the workers and the bourgeoisie, the peasants and the landlords, as a matter of life and death for the revolution.

The landlords lost their land to farm collectives in the mid-1950s and the capitalists lost their final power and privileges during the cultural revolution of the late 1960s. For a decade after that, discrimination against anyone who was from a non-proletarian background was common.

For many thousands of people around China, the class struggle was not just a theoretical political discussion, but was the cause of endless trouble, persecution, and in some cases, death.

During the stormy cultural revolution, thousands suffered following accusations that they were bourgeois, landlords or just rich peasants.

Even their children were not immune to discrimination because of the former social position of their parents.

In the last year, a large number of these cases have been reconsidered. The official Chinese news agency Xinhua (Hsinhua) said recently that at least 164,000 people who had been disgraced or purged during the cultural purge had been rehabilitated by the end of May.

Earlier this year, the former capitalists were given back their savings, illegally confiscated during the purge, and were given interest on the money as well.

The move is part of measures taken to restore the confidence of the former capitalists and managers and to induce them to once more take part in building China's economy.

Letters

Nobody knows what SRC's dumping

Editor: Spokesman Pierre Chalifour of Highwater's Space Research Corporation may take all the exception he wants, but despite his denial in your letters column of August 8, his firm remains particularly suspect of polluting the Missisquoi River, as I first stated on July 26.

I wrote then, "What Space Research puts into the water, nobody knows for sure." This remains the case. We might know for sure if Chalifour either provided information instead of innuendoes, or permitted independent investigation, but he does neither. We do know that Missisquoi basin residents both in Quebec and Vermont point to Space Research with considerable suspicion — and, I might add, considerable fear of reprisals should their names be used. We know that according to the geographical survey maps published by the Ministry for Energy, Mines, and Resources, two fast-falling mountain streams originate near the Space Research plant, flowing into the Missisquoi.

Chalifour says this could be so, "only if the water in these tributaries flows uphill over the mountain!", a clear indication that he does not know up from down. We know that the Missisquoi contains relatively high levels of sulphur between Highwater and Glen Sutton, and that sulphur is a common ingredient of explosives, as well as a natural mineral. We know that Space Research manufactures munitions, rather euphemistically labelling tank shells "steel forgings"; while it may not manufacture their explosive propellants on-site, at least some of these shells are definitely armed on-site (and sometimes test-fired there, a source of sulphur emissions into the atmosphere.) What chemicals other than sulphur may be involved in making Space Research shells, we do not know and SRC isn't telling.

"We believe it a fair statement," Chalifour says, "that Environment Quebec has verified to its satisfaction that we are not polluting the Missisquoi or anything else." The entire point of my Yamaska and Missisquoi rivers series is that Environment Quebec's satisfaction has little or nothing to do with environmental quality: that their testing program is inadequate and incompetent, their enforcement ineffective, and their leadership, under Marcel Leger, a hypocritical joke.

Environment Quebec has in the recent past also been satisfied that Montreal is not seriously polluting the St. Lawrence, to cite one glaring example. And, significantly, the major media attention finally pushing Environment Quebec to crack down on Yamaska polluters has followed the first parts of my series.

In the very near future I shall be investigating pollution of other local rivers. Having obtained more comprehensive testing equipment, I shall also revisit the Missisquoi and Yamaska as the year wears on, doing follow-up work. I shall not be intimidated by SRC or anyone else — but I hope a great many industrial polluters shall become sufficiently afraid of my pen and test-tubes to indeed make what Chalifour terms, "a responsible effort not to be a source of pollution."

Putting the matter straight

Editor: Scripture says if we repent of our sins God is ready to forgive us and I am in full agreement. Scripture also reads there will be more rejoicing in Heaven for one sinner who repents than for ninety-nine just men.

I think it reads while the lamp holds out, the greatest sinner may return. So if the devil got on his knees before God in deep sorrow for his sins and begged God to forgive him, and also pleaded for those he had tried to lead astray, I presume God would forgive him according to the Scripture.

But if Satan is forgiven he can't be boss down below, so who would be overseer in hell? Or would they close shop for good? Has anyone got the answer? I was just wondering; I have heard it said that the devil was once an Angel in Heaven, but I haven't been able to find that in the good book.

I have also heard it said that St. Paul was knocked from his horse on the way to Damascus to prosecute the Christians, and lay speechless for days. No where have I found a horse mentioned in that quotation of Scripture. I hope someone will put me straight on those issues.

Square dancing a treat for young and old

Square dancing has made a long journey from glittering ballrooms in France and Irish country villages to take up residence in the Townships, much to the enjoyment of the Tartan Twirlers.

By LAWRENCE PURDY
Square dancing has returned to the Townships. Our ancestors brought quadrilles and square dancing to this country from the glittering ballrooms of royalty in France, from Irish villages and England's countryside. In the new and lonely land, the only social events were often the neighborhood parties and square dancing. Grandparents, babies in arms and everyone in between attended, babies and coats were laid out on the host's bed. The people whose beds were so used, greatly appreciated a dry night. Tunes for dancing were The Irish Washerwoman, My Darling Nellie Grey, etc. Music was a local fiddler installed in a corner and/or on the kitchen table, he thumped his feet and when too tired, or short of liquor, broke a fiddle string and so ended a good party.

or school gym. The calls (terms) have been standardized to permit international association and much visiting between clubs over large areas. People traveling may visit clubs, dance, and make friends in the locations they visit. Township square dancers could conceivably meet and dance with other couples from California or Tennessee, while attending a dance at Edmonton or Nova Scotia. All would understand the calls, be able to do the movements, and have fun as at home.

Unchanged is the easy informality of the neighborhood party — old, young, fat and thin, all participate in square dancing. Booze on these occasions is practically non-existent for the practical reason that each dancer requires all of his/her mental capabilities. (A really befuddled square dancer would be about on a par with a skunk at a garden party — disruptive, but entertaining.) Everyone must concentrate to avoid errors, and it is common to even the most alert and experienced dancers that mistakes are made. On such occasion, there is a sympathetic chuckle at the expense of the person who forgot his left hand from his right, the error is corrected with the attitude of, "Let's get on with the fun, it will be my turn next time."

It is difficult to explain the mysterious fun of square dancing, it will be easiest to mention that it has been enjoyed for, more or less, a thousand years — you must try it and see for yourself.

Square dancing instruction may be had in the Townships with a group known as the Brome Squares, Knowlton or with the Tartan Twirlers of Lennoxville. Classes are one evening a week, September to May, there is a prompt start at 8 p.m. and finish is prompt at 10 p.m. Everyone is home well before the 11 o'clock news with two or three exceptions to this rule, when on special occasion parties are held, during the term of instruction.

Charges are moderate and instruction starts with simple easy to perform movements that are basic to square dancing. As the class progresses more complex movements are demonstrated, practiced and added to the class repertoire. Each evening is really a social occasion of dancing with movements and demands geared to the class level of instruction.

The learning of the new group to square dancing, is much assisted by 2nd year students dropping in to mingle and dance with 1st year pupils. This is free and fun for the 2nd year group, who schedule their weekly instruction so as not to conflict with the novices night. Two seasons of instruction qualifies the student to what is known as "Main Stream" this is a level of proficiency in square dancing. Most jamborees and square dance social events are held at this level and there is general open invitation for couples or clubs to participate. Instruction does not necessarily end here.

the serious student may progress to even more complicated movements and/or become a square dance caller and instructor.

It is interesting to note that the recent 27th convention of the American Square Dance Association drew 23,800 square dancers to Oklahoma city. They were from nine countries including Canada, England, Japan and Germany. English is the common language for calling square dances.

SO — Meet the neighbors, get out and square dance. You are only as old or as busy as you think you are.

40th Wedding Anniversary

BIRCHTON (MM) — On August 5, 1979, Mr. and Mrs. George Latewood were honoured by family and friends at a 40th Anniversary Party. George and Lorena were married in Birchton, on April 8, 1939, and have spent most of their married life here, where they raised their two children, Robert of Port Credit, Ont., and Lois of Thompson, Manitoba.

George and Rena had been planning a family gathering and were surprised when their children announced they were all going to the Birchton Hall, and were even more surprised when they arrived at the Hall and found a large number of family and friends awaiting them. Lorena was presented with a red and white carnation corsage, and George with a red boutonniere. Rev. G. Simons asked the blessing, and the Birchton U.C.W. served a lovely buffet lunch.

A toast to the honoured couple was proposed by son Robert, after which he read a scroll he and his wife Margaret had brought from Ireland, the scroll having been signed by family and friends there. George responded and thanked all present for the delightful gathering.

Following the cutting and serving of the cake and the opening of the numerous cards and gifts, the honoured couple joined again in thanking each and everyone for the making of more pleasant memories.

Out-of-town guests included son Robert and his wife Margaret, and their two girls from Port Credit, Ont.; daughter Lois, her husband Wendell Taylor and three children, from Thompson, Man.; Mrs. Helen Demars, Mrs. Joe Byolie and daughter Lisa; Mr. and Mrs. David Demars, all of St. Johnsbury, Vt.; Mr. and Mrs. Howard Nichol and son Steven, East Concord, Vt.; Miss Kathy Latimer, Toronto, Ont.; Mr. and Mrs. K. Lindsay LaSalle, Que.; Mrs. Les Humphries and daughter Ruth, and Mrs. Betty Spalding, Sherbrooke; Rev. Simons, Sawyerville, Mrs. G. Lajoie, Mr. and Mrs. D. Rothney and son Lynn, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Ross, all of Cookshire, and friends and neighbours from Birchton.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Labyrinthitis

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is there a distinction between labyrinthitis and Meniere's disease? I'm being treated for labyrinthitis and many have asked me if that is Meniere's disease.

What is the difference? Would frequent head colds be a cause of labyrinthitis? What are the best preventive measures? My doctor says stress will trigger it.

I am taking medications for high blood pressure. In my childhood I had many ear infections and had a mastoid operation.

DEAR READER — You have three little balance canals for each ear. These semi-circular canals are positioned perpendicular to each other. They contain fluid that moves when you move your head, somewhat like a carpenter's level.

As the fluid shifts, it sends signals to your brain that enable the brain to sense your head position. These little balance canals are called the labyrinth. If they're inflamed, the condition is called labyrinthitis. Remember "itis" always means inflammation.

Labyrinthitis can be caused by many things. It can follow in the wake of a respiratory infection.

Meniere's disease is really a set of symptoms. One of these is vertigo, or an illusion of motion. You can get this same symptom from labyrinthitis and that's where the confusion begins. In addition, a person with Meniere's disease has hearing loss and ear noises.

The cause of Meniere's disease is not clearly defined. It may be associated with an increased amount of fluid within the tiny balance canals.

The treatment depends a lot upon what's causing the problem. If you just have vertigo (illusion of motion), some of the anti-motion sickness medicines can be used. They are also helpful for people with Meniere's disease, but they may not be enough.

Ann Landers says

Let bigots stay home

Dear Ann Landers: Our son, Bill, is getting married in a few months. We plan to entertain him and his bride in our home when they return from their honeymoon.

Problem: Bill wants to invite his entire office staff. Among them are four blacks. We live in a small Southern town and some of our friends would not be comfortable in the presence of people of African descent. I'm sorry, I can't change the way they feel, nor would

I try. Bill stubbornly refuses to exclude the black members of his staff. He says those who don't like the idea can stay away. I know for a fact his grandparents would refuse to accept any invitation if they knew in advance blacks would be present.

I feel it would be rude and insulting to invite the hometown folks knowing how they feel about mixing socially with black people. Even though they are bigoted, they are relatives, friends and good neighbors. We love them and wouldn't offend them for the world.

What do you say, Ann? We are caught in the middle.

H.L.J.

Dear H.L.J.: I say, if you are having a party for your son and he wants to include his black co-workers, you should invite them.

If those bigoted friends and relatives of yours don't want to come, let them stay home. The loss will be theirs.

WI meetings around the Eastern Townships

WATERLOO — On Aug. 1st a regular meeting of the Waterloo-Warden W.I. was held at the home of Mrs. L. Maynes with Mrs. Marcotte and Mrs. Hogan as co-hostess.

Motto for August: "When we stop listening, we stop learning". Mrs. Marcotte opened the meeting by welcoming the twelve members and three visitors, followed by the Club Creed and the Ode.

Roll call was answered by each stating which school subject has been the most useful through life.

Minutes of the July meeting were read by Sec. Mrs. Thompson, as was correspondence. A satisfactory financial statement was given by Treas. Mrs. Sicard.

Three sweaters and other knitted articles for CanSave, were handed in by Mrs. Plunkett.

Pennies for Friendship were collected and the Care package, given by Mrs. Hilliker, was won by Mrs. Thompson.

Four convenors present, each read short articles. Mrs. George, concerning Fort Chambly, Mrs. Smith, from Consumers Magazine, was an article on different brands of paper towels, Miss A. Ashton, an article entitled "There's no spanking in Sweden" and Mrs. Hilliker read one under the heading of "Home Care for Children Makes a difference."

Two articles were donated to go towards the autumn drawing.

As the routine business was finished, Mrs. George introduced her two guests, one being her niece, Mrs. Kerr of Sherbrooke while the guest speaker was Mrs. Sterling Parker, 1st Provincial Vice-Pres., also being a Lennoxville Branch member.

Mrs. Parker gave a most interesting account of the F.W.I.C. Conference held in Saskatoon in late June, which she, along with nineteen other members from Quebec had attended. She also displayed several souvenirs brought from there. All were very pleased to get this first-hand report. She was thanked by Mrs. Marcotte and presented with a gift.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Hilliker when plans will be made for the semi-annual County meeting and part of the September 5th meeting will be a silent auction of various articles, Publicity Convener in charge.

All enjoyed delicious refreshments, in spite of the very warm afternoon.

SPOONER POND — The Spooner Pond Branch of the Q.W.I. held their July meeting in the hall of St. Andrew's Church, Upper Melbourne. Fifteen members answered roll call by bringing a half dozen doughnuts to be judged or by paying a fine of 25 cents for not having done so. This money was turned in for Pennies for Friendship.

The President, Vera Hughes, opened the meeting in the usual way and welcomed members and three guests. Minutes of the last meeting were read, and after a slight correction, were approved. The Treasurer's report was given by Grace Taylor, in the absence of Stella Parkes. A bill for sending a box of knitted articles to CanSave was paid to Margaret Morrow.

Correspondence was read by Laurie Walker, in the absence of Dorothy Oakley. This consisted of a thank-you note from the St. Francis Elementary School International Year of the Child Committee, for the donation to the swimming project, which has proved to be very successful, and an appeal from the Richmond Young Farmers' Association for help towards the banquet to entertain their exchange group from Saskatchewan. A donation was voted for this purpose.

Convenors' reports were called for.

Agriculture, Violet Davidson, read an article on butter. Home Ec., Fran Pope, asked members to bring in Canada Packers labels. Education, Laurie Walker, commented on the nice display of books and hoped that members would avail themselves of the opportunity of getting summer reading material.

Citizens Margaret Morrow, read an article on UNICEF. At this point, Florence Blanchard, on behalf of the Branch, presented Margaret with a gift of a cup and saucer, with the best wishes of all for happiness in her new home in Ontario. Margaret thanked her fellow members and hoped that they might have the opportunity to visit her. She invited everyone to have tea with her, before she left. Gladys Biggs agreed to fill the remainder of Margaret's term of office as Citizenship convenor.

Sunshine convenor, Beatrice Rodgers, had sent a Sunshine box and two cards since the last meeting. Mildred Winkle of the Ways and Means Committee reported that the Food Sale held recently had been very successful, and she thanked all who had helped with their generous donations of food or money.

Pennies for Friendship and Birthday money were collected and the Hymn of All Nations was sung.

Eight members planned to go on the trip to Beauvoir on July 9. Vera Hughes and Marjorie Armstrong offered to take their cars and other members would be contacted to see if they wished to go.

Two quilted cushions for Inter-branch competition were entered and were judged by Mildred Winkle and Fran Pope. First prize went to Gladys Biggs, and second to Dorothy Oakley.

Stella Parkes had left word that we were welcome to hold the August picnic at her place, and this offer was accepted with pleasure. Picnic to be held the 2nd of August, with Joyce Lancaster to organize the games and Jeanette Goodfellow and Fran Pope to help with lunch.

A guest, Mrs. Abercrombie, helped Marjorie Armstrong to judge the doughnuts, and they named Laurie Walker as winner. The doughnuts were served with the tea, and those left over were sold. Tea fees were collected and the regular drawing was won by Violet Davidson.

A contest on making the largest number of words from the word "Citizenship", was won by Marjorie Armstrong.

Hostesses for this meeting were Gladys Biggs and Beattie Lyster.

W.I. PICNIC

The annual picnic for families of Spooner Pond Branch was held on August 2nd, at the home of Stella Parkes, where again, her lovely grounds and the use of her kitchen were gladly accepted and enjoyed. There was a good attendance of members and a nice crowd of little ones, who enjoyed the races and guessing contests and the opportunity to meet and play together. Prizes were given to winners and balloons were blown up (and often as quickly broken!).

A brief meeting of the members was held, when a new Ways and Means Committee was named — Florence Blanchard, Grace Taylor and Laurie Walker — for September, October and November. It was decided to invite another branch to the October meeting.

Members enjoyed this social time together and the lunch of sandwiches, squares, fancy breads, ice cream, tea and Kool-aid was appreciated. The weather was very warm but the rain fortunately held off until after everyone was safely home.

The September meeting will be held at the home of Florence Ignatieff.

Ray Julien demonstrates one of the machines used in the manufacture of hockey sticks.

Sticks, equipment to be produced

Northland opens Plant in Beebe

By IVY HATCH
BEEBE — Millions of hockey sticks and thousands of helmets will be turned out at the new Northland Sports Industries Limited plant that opened here recently.

About 100 guests gathered to hear company President David Diederich give a brief address on the history of the Northland operation in Minneapolis and their subsidiary plant in Richford. He also told of the negotiations which led to the establishment of the Beebe plant. Following this, a plant tour was conducted, led by Diederich and local plant manager Rheume Julien.

The decision to locate in Beebe was taken after initial sites were considered in Sutton, a location close to the Richmond facility. However, when no suitable buildings to house the operation could be found, plant management decided to locate the operation in the former Rediker elementary school in Beebe, which had gone unused since its student population was transferred to Alexander Galt Regional High School.

Currently the staff of the operation consists of 12 persons but this is being increased by two to three persons a week, with a goal of between 35 and 50 people. A summer employment plan is being considered and Julien told The Record that he is very pleased with the quality of the local work force.

Extensive renovations were made to the former school house so that the building could accommodate the equipment used in the hockey stick construction. Two types of sticks are being made by the company at the present time, the regular all-ash variety with a laminated fiberglass blade and a super-lightweight stick with a popular shaft reinforced with a special plastic and an ash blade laminated with fiberglass. The process involved in making the sticks involves a number of special machines that ranges from sanders to automatic bonding machines for the fiberglass treatment. Hockey helmets that must pass rigid standards are also part of the new Northland plant's production schedule.

A number of local dignitaries were present, and included representatives of the federal and provincial departments of Industry, Trade and Commerce and the Beebe town council.

During the opening ceremonies, company president Diederich was presented with a coffee table by Lawrence Goodsell, general manager of Rediker Transport. The table, the work of Ivan Whelan of Beebe, was made from hockey sticks, and had a centre of polished grey granite and black lettering

Each step of the hockey-stick manufacturing process was demonstrated during the day, much to the interest of those attending.

TORONTO (CP) — An untuned car could put its owner in court under a new Ontario regulation that tightens provincial controls over exhaust emissions. The charges may be laid under a regulation that came into effect July 27.

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — About 15 anti-nuclear groups plan to hold a national protest on Parliament Hill Oct. 13, a spokesman for one of the groups said Monday. Catherine Beck, spokesman for the Ontario Public Interest Research Group and a member of the Guelph chapter of a nuclear action committee, said the protest will seek a halt to exports of uranium and the sales of the Candu reactor.

Wardair blames Ottawa for losses

CALGARY (CP) — Government regulations are responsible for doubling Wardair International Ltd.'s losses during the first six months of this year, Wardair president Max Ward said Monday.

He said the airline suffered a $5.35-million loss during the period and the loss may not be recovered in the second half of 1979.

Wardair lost $2.47 million during the first half of 1978 but recovered sufficiently in the second half to report a profit by the end of the year.

CP reports profits up

MONTREAL (CP) — Profits for Canadian Pacific Ltd. for the first half of 1979 were $226.7 million, or $3.14 cents a share, compared with $158.501 million, or $2.19 a share, for the same period last year.

In a statement issued Monday, the corporation attributed the increases to higher profits among three of its subsidiaries, CP Investments, CP Rail and the CP (Bermuda) Ltd. division of CP Ships.

The April 1 takeover of CP Rail's inter-city passenger trains by the federally-owned Via Rail Canada Ltd. eliminated company losses in that service. The railway also benefitted from higher rates and volumes on freight traffic.

High oil prices affect predictions

TORONTO (CP) — Higher oil prices are increasing the profits and stock prices of the major oil companies, leading analysts to revise their profit predictions for the next two years.

In the first six months of the year, profits of Canada's six largest integrated oil companies were up 38 per cent over the same period last year. Integrated companies refine and sell oil products as well as produce crude oil and natural gas.

Shell Canada Ltd. reported a gain of 43 per cent, Imperial Oil Ltd. 35 per cent, Gulf Canada Ltd. 18 per cent and Texaco Canada Ltd. 31 per cent.

Carter hounds food industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter's chief inflation adviser says he hopes the food industry will look again to make sure it is giving consumers a fair shake on food prices now that it knows the U.S. government is looking over its shoulders.

Alfred Kahn made the statement after Carter summoned 16 food-industry representatives, including top executives of major supermarket chains, to the White House on Monday to demonstrate his concern over rising retail prices.

Carter told the group he is disturbed that supermarket prices have been increasing while farm prices have been coming down.

Exec assures conservationists

CALGARY (CP) — The Dempster Highway natural gas pipeline will not destroy the Porcupine caribou herd, Robert Pierce, president of Foothills Pipeline (Yukon) Ltd., said Monday.

Pierce, responding to an Alaska Highway Pipeline Panel study critical of the project, said the Dempster Highway, which opened on Saturday, will have a much greater impact on the caribou than the proposed pipeline.

The independent panel, formed in 1976 and partially funded by Foothills, completed its three-year study last week and called for a delay in approving the Dempster Highway pipeline until alternatives were considered.

Ottawa overspent $11.7 billion

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government spent $11.72 billion more than it received in revenue last year, preliminary statistics show.

The finance department said Monday that expenditures for the 1978-79 fiscal year ended March 31 reached a total of $46.93 billion and total revenue was $35.21 billion.

Major revenue sources were $14 billion in personal income tax, up from $13.4 billion in the previous fiscal year, and corporation tax of $6.7 billion, up from $5.8 billion in the 1977-78 fiscal year.

SWIMMERS-OF-THE-MONTH

Cowansville Swim Club named its July Swimmers-of-the-month recently. They are, left to right: Lousi Meunier (Blue Group - 11-12 years), Melanie Blais (Red Group - eight-and-under and Greg Cain (intermediate). Meunier and Cain represented the Richelieu-Yamaska region at the Jeux du Quebec last weekend.

Sound similar to Expos?

Sarcasm aside, Astros are for real

HOUSTON (AP) — Sarcasm still was a part of Houston Astros fandom in early May despite a fast start that had the Astros in first place in the National League's West Division.

One yarn supposedly went like this: "Dad, have the Astros ever been in first place before?" a child asked his father as they watched a game.

"Sure son," the father replied patronizingly, "but never this late in the season."

Well, look again, Dad. Even the most confirmed baseball cynic is finding it difficult to ignore the surprising Astros, who still are perched atop the standings in the final days of June.

Baseball experts who predicted a typical second-division finish for the Astros this season are putting this strange phenomenon up for laboratory analysis.

It might begin with saliva tests for the Astros pitching staff, which has survived on few runs and key hits and produced a team earned-run average that likely would be leading the league except for a pair of blowouts.

MAKE JOB EASIER

"Any discussion of our success has to start with the pitching staff," Astros manager Bill Virdon said. "We've had some injuries but we've been able to overcome them and still get the job done."

Ken Forsch got the pitching staff off to a rolling start with a no-hitter in the second game of the season. Forsch later became one of four Astro pitchers to spend time on the 21-day disabled list along with starters Vern Ruhle and Frank Riccielli and reliever Tom Dixon.

Randy Niemann and Rick Williams were summoned from the minor leagues to fill the injury gaps and air-tight relief by Joe Sambito has kept the Astros aloft despite lack of hitting.

Niemann has a 2-0 record and 2.18 ERA while Williams is 2-3 with a 2.53 ERA and both victories by shutouts. Sambito yielded a grand slam home run to Roger Freed of St. Louis Cardinals on May 1. He has since appeared in 17 games and pitched 28 2-3 innings without allowing an earned run.

NIKKRO SETS PACE

Knuckleball pitcher Joe Niekro became the first hurler in the major leagues to win 11 games this season during a string that included a team record nine victories in a row.

The Astros are getting freed hits than a year ago and rank near the bottom of the league in team hitting. But the hits have been timely.

Despite their success, Virdon and the Astros have remained cautious. Virdon says he'll get excited if the Astros still are leading the league in September.

The Astros have never been in first place in September either.

It's no joke as Adujar leads

Astros to win

HOUSTON (AP) — During some friendly pre-game banter, Houston Astros pitcher Joaquin Andujar told Montreal Expos hurler Bill Lee not to throw him a fastball or he would hit it out of the Astrodome.

Lee fed a fastball to Andujar in his first time at bat and the Houston right-hander blasted a two-run, inside-the-park homer off the wall in centre field.

That was all the scoring the Dominican pitcher needed as he held the Expos to four hits in their National League baseball game Tuesday night, beating them 2-1 to take a career-high 12th victory against eight losses.

The blow came in the second inning with two outs and Art Howe on first following a single. Andujar lifted a towering fly that hit just below the home-run line, then bounded back into the field past the startled Montreal fielders.

DOUBLED TO CENTRE Montreal's lone run came in the third inning when Larry Parrish doubled to centre, moved to third on a grounder to second by Chris Speier and scored on another grounder to second by Lee.

But only one other Expo reached second the rest of the game and he got there on a throwing error as Andujar, who had lost three straight times prior to this game, stretched his lifetime record against Montreal to 6-0.

JOAQUIN ANDUJAR ...inside park homer

The third-inning run was only the fourth Andujar has given up to Montreal in 52 innings, lowering his ERA to 0.69 against the Expos.

The win kept Houston 4½ games ahead of second-place Cincinnati Reds in the West Division as the Reds took a 2-1 win from Philadelphia Phillies in extra innings Tuesday.

The victory was the Astros' 35th one-run win of the year, tying a club record. They have lost just 16 of the narrow decisions.

Montreal dropped 3½ games off the pace of front-running Pittsburgh Pirates in the East. The Pirates dumped San Diego Padres 7-1.

Canadian sport 80 per cent metricized, consultant says

OTTAWA (CP) — When Bob Mellor took over the job of converting Canadian sports to the metric system, he was pleased to find that part of the work already had been done.

"To my considerable surprise, after surveying 44 national sports organizations, I concluded that Canadian sport was already 80 per cent converted to the metric system," he says.

The former journalist, now sports consultant to the Metric Commission, notes that 29 sports were completely converted, primarily because of their affiliation with international sports bodies.

Among these were such Olympic sports as swimming, track and field, weight lifting and speed skating.

In many other sports, conversion to the metric system just means rulebook changes from the imperial system. This is generally the case in sports not considered "measurement sensitive" — in the phraseology of the Metric Commission — such as softball and lacrosse, both scheduled to become metric in 1980.

"We must realize people won't rebuild every lacrosse box in the country," he said in a recent interview. "But we hope that when new ones are built, they will be made to metric specifications."

In most instances, this would mean minor changes in dimensions.

Major conversion problems occur when measurement-sensitive sports such as horse racing and football are involved.

Since football poses a special problem, Mellor has focused most of his energy on convincing football associations throughout Canada to try the metric game.

There has been significant opposition, much of it originating from the Canadian Football League with commissioner Jake Gaudaur fearing metric would detract from the unique nature of Canadian football.

Mellor says Gaudaur is suggesting the CFL would need four downs, instead of the present three, to make 10 metres, the metric equivalent of a first down.

Mellor argues this would be unnecessary since the difference between a first down on the two fields "is only a stride."

He credits two men, Greg Fulton of the CFL and Al Lenard of Queen's University, working independently, for conceiving virtually identical models of a metric football field.

LITTLE DIFFERENCE

Currently the Canadian field is 110 yards long, 65 yards wide and has 25-yard end zones. The metric field is 100 metres long, 60 metres wide, has 20-metre end zones and the 50-metre line replaces the 55-yard line.

THOUGH PARALYZED FROM just below the arms in an accident four years ago, Marian Schooling continues to enjoy an active life that even includes tennis. "I was always athletic," she explains. "I didn't see any reason not to be involved just because I was in a wheelchair."

Wheelchair athlete: See me as person

HUNTINGTON PARK, Calif. (NEA) — Like many 23-year-olds, Marian Schooling enjoys tennis, water skiing and a good jog once in a while.

Also like most young people her age, she is busy preparing for the career she will launch after her graduation from college this spring. She intends to become a health educator.

But Miss Schooling is paralyzed from just below the necks due to injuries from an automobile accident four years ago.

She achieves her athletic feats with slight alterations of her sports.

For tennis, the court is shortened and the ball is permitted to bounce instead of one. (There are no arms on her wheelchair to get in the way of the racket.)

Miss Schooling, who played tennis competitively before her accident, recently won a trophy in a wheelchair tournament.

For water skiing, she sits on a knee board. And her version of jogging is wheeling her chair a mile or more around the park.

Why all this activity despite the difficulties involved for her?

"I was always athletic," she explains. "I didn't see any reason not to be involved just because I was in a wheelchair. I wasn't going to stop doing the things I enjoyed."

Despite her traumatic experience in an automobile, she knew driving was the ticket to getting out into the world without having to depend on others. She has a car equipped with hand controls and a hand brake.

"The only thing that hinders me is having steps someplace," she says.

A major problem was getting to the car from the two-story house where she lives with her parents and two sisters. Her solution was to install an elevator.

She wheels out to a porch, rides the elevator down to the car, wheels over and slides onto the seat. She then collapses her wheelchair and neatly pulls it into the back seat. It's no simple task.

Her one concern about the outside elevator was the noise it created. She didn't like coming home late at night because she feared the sound of the elevator might disturb the neighbors.

She discovered that the reverse was true. She installed a new, quieter model, but found her neighbors worried about her until they heard the elevator and knew she was home safely.

When Miss Schooling received an internship in health education with the Red Cross in Washington, D.C., last summer, she decided she wanted to take her car. No one was available to drive her, so she made the cross-country journey by herself.

She had some car trouble on the trip, but found people more than willing to give her a hand.

Miss Schooling does a lot of public speaking and is active in a number of organizations, including the Los Angeles County Commission on Youth and the student government at California State University at Long Beach.

"A lot of people see the wheelchair and don't see me as a person. This is one of the biggest things I try to impart," she says of her speaking engagements.

"The main thing," she adds, "is that people who are handicapped or impaired have the same desires and drives as anyone."

Miss Schooling uses what she has learned about dealing with the world from a wheelchair to help others with the same problem.

As a volunteer at a nearby hospital, she works mainly with women, providing moral support and instruction in such basics as how to make a bed or put on a pillow case. She also advises them on leisure skills — social adjustment, dating, even such valuable hints as calling ahead to a theater to see if it can accommodate wheelchairs.

"I talk about how I felt," she explains. "Knowing you're not the first one going through it helps."

"I had so much emotional support from my family and friends. Knowing you're not alone, knowing there are others like you makes it 100 times easier."

Soviets conscious of exposure Moscow Olympic Games just one year away

MOSCOW (AP) — The opening of the 1980 Moscow Olympics is just one year away, and authorities expect the biggest influx of foreigners into the Soviet Union since the Germans invaded during the Second World War.

Between July 19 and Aug. 3, 1980, about 300,000 foreign spectators, 12,000 athletes, 3,000 officials and special guests, 3,500 referees and 7,400 journalists will pour into Moscow.

Another 300,000 Soviet tourists are expected to besiege the city as well, as the Olympic torch arrives from Athens via Bulgaria and Romania.

The Soviet Union is extremely conscious that it will be on the world's centre stage for a spectacular that officials say is "more than just sports: a forum of peace, intellectual and physical fitness, of harmony and humanism."

In what is planned as a sort of rehearsal of the new facilities, the seventh Spartakiad begins on Saturday with athletes from more than 80 countries participating.

DIVERTED RESOURCES

The biggest project is construction, and ever since 1974, when Moscow was designated to play host to the Games, an increasing share of resources has been diverted into Olympic building.

The Soviet press reports that almost 30,000 Komsomol (Young Communist League) members have been mobilized to help in case of delays, in addition to demobilized servicemen, workers from industrial plants and students.

Seaports, railway stations, airports and frontier crossing points are being refurbished. New roads are being built and the old ones repaved. New hotels are going up and more restaurant facilities provided.

A major difficulty is the training of some 100,000 staff to take care of the guests. Officials have indicated that one concern will be protecting the workers from alien ideological influences.

Olympic officials report they will lay out about $345 million for construction of sports facilities. Funds are being collected by various means, including a lottery, the sale of Olympic coins and stamps, commercial leasing of the Olympic emblem, the sale of television rights and the encouragement of private donations.

Boutin leads A's to first QMJHL title

By MARK GAUDET
SHERBROOKE — Sherbrooke Athletics won their first championship in their six-year history yesterday, shutting out Drummondville Royals 6-0 at Amedee Roy Stadium. Starting pitcher Bernard Boutin pitched a four-hitter, striking out nine Royals in the process. Boutin aided his cause at the plate with a double and a single.

and Denis Mongeau added singles. Drummondville pitchers Jacques Ricard and Luc Lapointe allowed eight hits, five earned runs out of six, two walks and struck out one. Jocelyn Gauthier led the Royals' hitting with a double and a single. Other hits came from the bats of Luc Lapointe and Richard Jutras. "It's just fantastic to see these guys," rookie A's manager Steve Oleschuk said. "they didn't know me at the start of the season but we fought for this championship. It's the first greatest honor as a manager of the team I coached." Don't miss the playoff opener Thursday at 8 p.m. The Athletics play the same Royals.

Riders regain respectability

PETER STENERSON...game-winning TD

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter Stenerson's 39-yard touch down catch with 57 seconds to play lifted Ottawa Rough Riders to a 24-24 tie with Edmonton Eskimos in an action-packed Canadian Football League game Tuesday night. That pass from ailing Ottawa quarterback Con-dredge Holloway followed by one minute an Edmonton touch down by Brian Kelly who caught a 65-yard scoring pass from back-up Ed-monton quarterback Warren Moon. Ottawa had control of play in the first half of the game but managed only 10 points. Edmonton was much stronger in the second half but also had trouble getting points. Receiver Ross Clarkson, on a four-yard pass from Holloway, and fullback Mike Murphy, on a three-yard run, scored the other Ottawa touch downs. Kicker Gerry Organ converted all three Ottawa scores and booted a 42-yard field goal but he missed on at least one other seemingly easy field goal attempt. Halfback Angelo Santucci on a 47-yard pass-and-run play from quarterback Tom

Wilkinson and wide receiver John Koniowski on a 12-yard pass from Moon scored the other major Edmonton scores. Dave Cutler converted all three and booted a 44-yard field goal. The tie leaves the Eskimos with a record of three wins and two ties while the Riders have three wins and two defeats. GAME ROLLS ALONG The game got rolling early in the third quarter when Santucci found an open spot in the Ottawa secondary, caught a Wilkinson pass and scampered untouched for 30 yards into the Ottawa end zone. However, Ian Mofferd returned the ensuing kick-off 110 yards but his touch down was called back to the Edmonton 30 yard line because of a clipping infraction. Several plays later, Clarkson caught his touch-down pass from Holloway, atoning for dropping another touch down throw from Holloway in the second quarter. Wilkinson marched Edmonton down the field but receiver Waddell Smith dropped a long Wilky pass on the Ottawa five yard line after eluding defender Wonderful Mons. Receiver Stu Lang was open in the next play but slipped as he was about to catch the ball and Edmonton had to settle for the Cutler field goal. Late in the third quarter Wilkinson was replaced by Moon after a jolting tackle by Ottawa linebacker Brad Carr. After a couple of false starts Moon moved the Edmonton team sharply with a short passing attack that produced the Koniowski touch down. It was set up in part by an interference called against Ottawa defensive back Steve Demis. TAKES LEAD With just over two minutes to go Moon hit Kelly on the 65-yard pass-and-run play and Edmonton took the lead for the first time in the game. Holloway rallied the Riders even though a painful rib injury was noticeably aggravated by the night of brutal tackles by the Edmonton defence. Short passes to receiver Bruce Walker and Jeff Avery set up his 39-yard pass to Stenerson who had broken away from the Edmonton defenders. Ottawa had the advantage on the statistical sheet with 19 first downs to 14 for Edmonton. Ottawa gained 251 yards passing and 90 yards rushing while Ed-monton managed 229 yards passing and 34 yards running. Holloway was good on 18 of 36 passes while Wilkinson hit on nine of 18 and Moon completed six of his 12 throws. Murphy was the top rusher of the night, gaining 56 yards on 13 carries while Jim Germany gained only nine yards on 11 carries for the Eskimos. Kelly picked up 86 yards on three pass completions for Edmonton and Santucci got 64 yards on three catches. Avery was the top Ottawa pass catcher with 82 yards on six receptions and Tony Gabriel picked up 45 yards on four catches.

TOURNEY: B.C. STREAK UNCHECKED

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — Victoria Drive of Vancouver defeated Lethbridge Norcrest 6-3 to win its third consecutive game at the Canadian little league baseball championships Tuesday. In the only other game Tuesday, the Maritimes based Ontario by the same score. The B.C. team scored all of its runs in the sixth inning with the help of three walks and three base hits, including a two-run single by Jeff Schwab. Peeyush Varshney was the winning pitcher, while Bruce Harvie took the loss for Norcrest. Dave McNeil scored three runs for Saint John, N.B., as the Maritime champions posted their second straight win. The Maritimes scored two runs in the first inning and held a 6-0 advantage after four innings of play. Pat Barry went the distance to pick up the victory, while Ontario starter Rene Gagne was charged with the loss. Ontario is represented by Fort William Nationals of Thunder Bay. B.C. leads the six-team tournament with a 3-1 record. The championship game will be played Saturday, with the winner advancing to the little league world series in Williamsport, Pa.

Manson fails in bid to beat Borg again

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Manson was confident: He had a game plan for his first-round match at the Canadian Open tennis championships Tuesday. The only problem was that he had to face Bjorn Borg. Manson, who lost 6-2, 6-4 to the top-seeded Swede on Tuesday, is the only player this year to have beaten Borg in the first round of any tournament. Manson defeated Borg at a winter event in Palm Springs, Calif. "I was confident I could beat him again. I went out and tried to play steady and force him to make mistakes. He didn't."

of the day. "You couldn't slice because you didn't know where the ball was going to go." Second-seeded John McEnroe of the U.S., who easily defeated Jiri Hrebec of Czechoslovakia 6-3, 6-2, added: "You can't really expect anyone to play their best tennis in weather like this. This really makes a point for the rescheduling of a lot of tennis tournaments."

In other first-round men's singles matches, unseeded Phil Dent of Australia upset third-seeded Roscoe Tanner of the U.S., 6-7, 7-6, 6-3; fifth-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina downed John Austin of the U.S., 6-1, 6-4; Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia beat Martin Wostenholme of Ottawa 6-3, 6-3 and Gene Mayer of Australia had an easy time beating Dale Power, the Ottawa resident 6-1, 6-1. Borg's match was his first in competition since winning a record fourth Wimbledon championship three weeks ago. "It feels good after being off," Borg said. "I've been playing four or five hours a day for the last five days." Nina Bland of Victoria, the only Canadian left in either the men's or women's singles competition, plays her second-round match today against Mary Carillo of the U.S. Bland defeated second-seeded Renata Tomanova of Czechoslovakia 6-1, 6-4 in a first-round match Monday.

Manson may have meant steady as in consistent, but he could also have been referring to steady as in standing upright. High winds and rain at the York University tennis centre made some of the matches boring because most of the players were happy to just get the ball over the net. "Outdoor tennis is the pits," said Vitas Gerulaitis, the fourth seed who defeated Mark Cox of Britain 6-4, 6-3. "I really prefer to play indoors. We both could have played about 95-per-cent better."

Golfers compete despite weather

DUFFERIN HEIGHTS (IH) — Cool weather didn't hamper the turnout at the annual Dufferin Heights Golf Club Field Day last weekend. One hundred and seventy-seven golfers turned up from many Townships clubs as well as from Vermont, and New Hampshire. Sherbrooke's J.P. Perron field gross of 67 was good enough for first place, Dufferin's Mike Mather won top field net honors with a 58. Winners in each category were: First Gross - M. Couture, Milby; T. Bronson, Dufferin; R. Leonard, Dufferin; R. Vachon and F. Salabrini (both Dufferin). Second Gross - B. Cotterell, Newport; J. Denoncourt, Sherbrooke; G. Boland, Milby; J. Sage, Coaticook; K. Harrison, Dufferin.

Student track squad named

TORONTO (CP) — A team of about 155 athletes has been selected to compete in the World Student Games in Mexico City Sept. 2-13, the Canadian Interuniversity Athletic Union announced Tuesday. The team includes a number of athletes who competed at the Pan-American Games in Puerto Rico last month, such as hammer thrower Scott Neilson of New Westminster, B.C., who won a gold medal in San Juan. Besides track and field, the Canadians are entered in basketball, swimming, diving, water polo, fencing, gymnastics, soccer, tennis and volleyball. One of the apparently weak areas on the Canadian team is the swimming squad. Most of Canada's top international swimmers are heading for the Soviet Union for a dual meet later this month and then the World Cup in Tokyo in early September. The team going to Mexico has 16 men swimmers and only six women. Men's team coach Byron MacDonald of Toronto said many of the top women swimmers seem to be quitting the sport. Among Canada's top medal prospects at Mexico City will be the national men's and women's basketball teams. The women's team won a bronze medal at the Pan-Am Games while the men's team finished fourth.

Quebec City girl advances in jr. play

MONTREAL (CP) — Diane Blondeau of Quebec City defeated Vancouver's Suzie Hunter 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 Tuesday in a first-round match in girls' under-16 play at the Canadian junior tennis championships. Blondeau, 15, suffered from mononucleosis during the Quebec Open junior event last week, where she was second-seeded but lost a quarter-final match to No. 5 seed Lynn Salo of Toronto, the eventual winner. Blondeau now has recovered and is seeking to re-establish herself as Quebec's top under-16 player. "I have no more excuses for not doing my best," she noted. "We were in Europe for 10 days and I had to come home — I had mono," she said of a July tour as part of the national junior team. "After that I didn't play for three weeks. I had to rest and do nothing."

Spaniards win opening Snipe race

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Felix Gancedo of Spain and his crewman Carlos Llanas, twice world snipe sailing champions, won the first race in the world snipe sailing championships at the Northern Yacht Club on Tuesday. Twenty-nine of 30 participants lined up for the first race but only 28 completed the competition. Winds gusting to 48 kilometres per hour forced cancellation of the second race of the day. Boris Ostergren and Ernesto Nevebauer of Brazil, the defending world champions, came second with three penalty points. Mark Reynolds and Deann Wright, the Pan-American Games winners, were third with 5.7 points; Margo Paradedo and Luis Pejnovic of Brazil received eight penalty points and fourth place and Dave Chapin and Tim Dixon of the U.S. were fifth with 10 points. Two races will be held each day of the competition. The race which was cancelled Tuesday will be run on Friday. Finland lodged a protest against Brazil during the first day of competition and officials will make a ruling today. Details of the protest were unavailable.

Montreal cyclist 33rd out of 96

CHUR, Switzerland (CP) — Pierre Harvey of Montreal placed 33rd in a field of 96 cyclists in the second stage Tuesday of the 16-country William Tell Grand Prix invitation seven-day road race. Harvey finished the 133.5-kilometre stage from Burglen to Chur in three hours, 40 minutes 46 seconds, 10:35 behind the winner, world champion Richard Trinkler of Switzerland. Included in the second of eight stages was an individual time-trial hill climb requiring an ascent of 600 metres over six kilometres. Harvey placed 34th, just 2:50 behind Trinkler who was first. Over all, Harvey stands 35th of the more than 90 competitors remaining in the event.

McGee captures delayed tourney

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) — Jerry McGee birdied the 17th hole and captured a one-stroke victory over Jack Renner in the $300,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford open golf tournament Tuesday. McGee, who began the day tied for second, shot a six-under-par 65 to give him a 72-hole total of 267, 17-under-par. It is his second victory on the Professional Golfers Association tour this year. The first victory came at the Kemper Open in June. Renner, who fired a four-under-par 67 for a four-round total of 16-under-par 268, led briefly by posting birdies on the 15th and 16th holes. But McGee birdied those two holes and added another on the 17th to take command. Third-round co-leader George Cadie was third at 15-under-par 269 by scoring a 68. McGee's first prize of $54,000 raises his year's earnings to $152,400, 11th on the PGA money list. The tourney has been plagued by rain. The second round was delayed from Friday afternoon to Saturday afternoon and Sunday's play was washed out. The decision to play the final round on Tuesday marked the first time a PGA event had been extended that long since 1967. The tournament began last Thursday.

Calgary marksman wins match

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter Papisideris of Calgary won the City of Ottawa Match with a perfect score of 100 on the 300 and 800-metre ranges at the 97th annual Dominion of Canada Rifle Association meet Tuesday. Papisideris achieved that score despite strong winds during the afternoon rounds at Ottawa's Connaught Ranges and now leads with an aggregate score of 385 points out of 400. He received a gold medal from the association and a gold watch from the city of Ottawa.

GOOLAGONG WINS

"It made things very difficult," said Evonne Goolagong of Australia. Goolagong, the top woman seed, defeated Brenda Perry of New Zealand 6-1, 6-2 in the only women's singles match

Communications problem plagues Jeux officials

VILLE ST-GEORGES (NW) — The Quebec Swimming Federation is attempting to cope with decisions on re-results compiled at the eighth Quebec Games here. After having decided not to award points to swimmers eliminated in certain swimming trials, the Quebec Federation prevailed on the Societe des Jeux du Quebec not to allow participation points as in the case of disqualification. This move made the scorers revise their method of compiling the scores and obliged them to give participation points to swimmers who were eliminated in the competition as well as those disqualified. As well, problems in the transmission of results from the canoe-kayak events resulted in some difficulties at the location where the events are compiled. Townshippers did fare well in some events though. They gained a gold medal in soccer but placed seventh in the lacrosse division due to their defeat in a match against Laval. Five medals were won in the swimming events, with Diane Felteau winning the gold in the 100 metre butterfly; Christine Bergeron taking the top medal in the 200 metre swim and Stephanie Blouin doing the same in the male category. Felteau also won the silver in the 200 metre swim and the 200 metre freestyle. Roger Vezina also won three gold medals in the K-1, K-4 and C-1 canoe-kayak events. In the longboat events, the teams of Lucie Emond-Marie Trottier and Denis Boucher-Lucie Emond won gold medals.

...soccer mentor happy

Brock leads Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP) — Winnipeg Blue Bombers proved they are only the third worst team in the Canadian Football League Tuesday night, defeating Hamilton Tiger-Cats 27-21. It was the first win of the season for the Bombers, who dropped their previous four games. The Tiger-Cats are 1-5, while Saskatchewan Roughriders are winless.

DIETER BROCK...three TD losses

The Bombers almost convinced the crowd of 24,660 that they wanted to lose the game late in the fourth quarter, after Hamilton scored a touchdown to narrow the gap. On the next play, Gary Rosolowich, Winnipeg's lone deep receiver, let Neil Lumsden's kickoff bounce into the end zone for a single point, with more than two minutes remaining. Another Hamilton converted touchdown would have given the Tiger-Cats a win, but they never got their hands on the ball, as Gord Paterson made a clutch second-down pass reception to move the ball out of danger for the Bombers. BROCK CONNECTS Winnipeg quarterback Dieter Brock threw three touchdown passes in the first half, two to running back Jim Washington and one to wide receiver Mike Holmes. Kicker Bernie Ruoff converted all three Winnipeg majors and also booted two field goals in the second half. Brock Aynsley scored both Hamilton touchdowns, on passes in the second quarter from starting quarterback Charlie Weatherbie and in the fourth quarter from Ed Smith. Lumsden kicked two field goals, one in each half, in addition to two converts and the single point.

dropped several passes when he was in the clear, although one of them was under-thrown by Brock. But the veteran wide receiver atoned for his mistakes with the crucial catch late in the game. Weatherbie had a rocky start in his first regular-season CFL game, throwing the ball away several times and reacting poorly to pressure from the Winnipeg defence. Smith replaced him part-way through the third quarter after Weatherbie threw the ball into the hands of Winnipeg's Bob Toogood for the game's only interception. Smith managed to put together the only long drive of the game, moving the Tiger-Cats 94 yards on nine plays, including the second touchdown pass to Aynsley. Hamilton held the statistical edge in net offence with 391 yards compared with Winnipeg's 367 yards. The top individual gainers were Jim Washington with 86 yards gained on 14 carries and 95 yards gained on five pass receptions.

The game was marked by numerous errors by both teams, including poor passing and receiving, missed assignments and needless penalties. Paterson could easily have been the goat, because he

WEATHER HAMPERS WOMEN'S GOLF PLAY

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — Legend has it that the name of the Blomidon Golf Club, scene of the Canadian junior women's and interprovincial championships, was taken from sailors' tales about strong winds that swirl around a distant mountain range. That legend roared to life Tuesday during the practice round as rain, whipped by winds gusting to 112 kilometres an hour, turned the short, tricky course on Newfoundland's west coast into an obstacle course. Temperatures fell as low as 12 degrees as golfers from across Canada tried to get acquainted with the 5,600-yard, par 71 course prior to today's opening round. Organizers said only thunder and lightning would cause a delay in the 54-hole event. Club professional Gary Oke said water-logged greens, slow fairways and icy winds would force golfers to adapt to unusual conditions. He said the narrow approaches to small greens would force golfers to concentrate on accuracy rather than power. Seventy-one golfers are entered in the tournament with Ontario and Quebec sending the largest contingents of 14 each.

Dr. John Kalfi, director of the McGill research group.

Nella Cattaneo, student researcher for the Limnology study group, monitors the growth of periphyton, or small, microscopic plants, and how they are affected by the grazing of small aquatic worms and snails, which are the food of the larger lake fish populations.

Memphremagog unique subject for biologists

GEORGEVILLE (ME-NW) — McGill University's Limnology Research team has returned for its seventh year to ply the depths of Lake Memphremagog in an attempt to obtain a better understanding of the changes in the lake's phosphate levels and its effects on algae production and biomass, on the invertebrates and the fish. The unique combination of physical and biological characteristics of the lake first piqued the group's curiosity in 1972 and the Memphremagog project is one of two large scale investigations going on in the province. The second, being carried out in Schefferville, has been underway since 1976.

The research team, which is co-directed by Doctors J. Kalfi and William Leggett of the McGill Biology department, is composed of six professors, two post-doctoral fellows, 16 graduate students, two technicians and four summer students drawn from McGill, the University of Quebec at Montreal and Concordia. The project's annual budget of about $90,000 is provided through various grants from such places as the Quebec Ministry of Education, Environment Canada, the Quebec Ministry of Tourism and the Canadian National Sportsman's Fund.

The group has its field headquarters in five mobile trailer laboratories in Georgeville on land made available to the project by Mrs. Jean Rutledge.

It was the presence of excessive algae, that produced the unsightly algal blooms which occurred in Lake Memphremagog in the late 1960's. This deterioration of the lake's quality led to the formation of Memphremagog Conservation whose members have been working to restore and maintain the lake's water quality and beauty. Members of McGill's team have served as technical advisors to MCI since 1972.

It is now known that the main factor regulating the abundance of algae in Lake Memphremagog is phosphate. This element, which is available in minute quantities in most lakes, regulates algal production much as nitrogen and phosphorus, applied as fertilizer, regulate the growth of agricultural crops. Algae are important food for insects and fish. It has been discovered that the abundance of both insects and fish is also greatest in the south and declines toward the north. It is towards a better understanding of the nature of these changes in phosphate levels in the lake and their effects on algal production and biomass, on the invertebrates and on the fish that the team's efforts are directed. Lake Memphremagog thus serves as a 'natural experiment'.

Boaters, on Lake Memphremagog may occasionally encounter floats marking the position of lake monitoring equipment used by the researchers. They are urged not to disturb the floats since damage could occur.

THE LAKE'S ALGAE

When lakes are very clear - so clear you can see the bottom 25 or 30 feet down, the water is fine for swimming and likely good for drinking, but not good for fishing. They are fished out quickly because growth is so slow that the few large fish caught are not quickly replaced. The principal reason for this is that the lakes contain too few algae to provide the needed food for the minnows and other small animals that, in turn, are eaten by game fish.

During the summer the amount of algae in Memphremagog is determined by the amount of nutrients in the water. Lakes that receive a lot of nutrients from sewage or agricultural runoff in their watershed are normally very turbid with algae. Although we cannot consider Memphremagog to be very turbid with algae, the water, near Newport has about twice the amount of algae found near Georgeville and Magog. The reason for this, is that, of the nutrients most needed for algal growth that enter the lake, more than three-quarters enter at Newport. Most of the watershed, with its agriculture and people, is in Vermont - Vermonters are not greater polluters.

The nutrient in shortest supply to the algae is phosphorus and the amount of algal growth in the lake is therefore directly related to the amount of this element available. Although there is more phosphorus towards Newport, the element is still in short supply and large summer blooms are not normal. The blooms of the late Sixties, before McGill started their research, have not reappeared in this decade. Does this mean that the lake is now receiving less phosphorus from fertilizers and sewage? There is not, as yet, no definite known reason for this, but there are indications that the amount of summertime algae has been very slowly declining since 1975.

One of the more common types of algae in the lake differs from all others in that they tend to float to the surface during calm and sunny weather. When they do so, they give the impression that there are large amounts of algae in the lake when, in fact, there may be no more algae than before. They are mostly concentrated at the surface.

Whether the big blooms in the south basin in the Sixties indicated a lot more phosphorus and algae then, or whether they were simply the result of algae concentrated near the surface, is not known.

The algae of the lake are the base of the whole food chain. The abundance of game fish is dependent on the abundance of minnows and small animals that they eat. These creatures, in turn, eat the algae. Much of this feeding goes on in the upper 10 m zone where the algae grow. However, many of the algae will slowly sink to the bottom. Here the insect larvae, and many other creatures who depend on this rain of algae, live. With about twice as many algae towards Newport, there are also about two to three times as many insects to serve as food and research shows, two to three times the number of perch and minnows as the Magog end.

Summertime algae has been slowly declining since 1975

Comparing the number of ice-fishing huts near Newport to the number on the Quebec side shows this as well. Too few algae will result in poor fishing.

PHOSPHATE LEVELS

The shape of Lake Memphremagog, the location of its major tributaries, rivers and the patterns of human settlement around the lake have combined to produce a unique 'natural experiment'. These factors cause a decrease in the amount of plant nutrient with distance as water flows north from Newport to Magog. This has allowed scientists to examine the effects of different levels of plant nutrient on aquatic organisms without the confounding effects of changes in geology, geography and climate which are always introduced in comparisons among different lakes.

Although rain may be the most important source of phosphate for many small lakes in Canada, larger lakes receiving a large portion of their water from rivers usually get most of their phosphate from rivers. This supply is increased by agriculture and human settlement in the river valleys. For example, Lake Memphremagog receives 85 per cent of its phosphate from the Black, Barton and Clyde Rivers which enter the lake at Newport. These same rivers also provide the lake with 65 per cent of its water.

The higher value for phosphate reflects the higher concentration of human activity around the lake. Magog has little effect on the lake because it discharges its waste into the Magog River which drains away from Rita Renaud Hudson, of Montreal, pleaded guilty to a charge of having been drunk and disorderly in a public place in Bromont on June 10. She explained she screamed when she fell and fractured her knee.

"The others who attended the same party were fined $25 for the same infraction," Crown attorney Claude Noiseux said.

Judge Bernard Legare fined Mrs. Hudson $25 and costs, in default three days, and allowed her 15 days to pay the fine and costs.

Bertrand Paquette, of Notre Dame de Stanbridge, pleaded guilty to a charge of having induced the police in error in Freilighsburg on July 1. Crown attorney Noiseux explained he told the police his vehicle had been involved in an accident when, in fact, it had been involved in a hit and run and suggested a fine between $100 and $200. Judge Legare fined the accused $150 and costs, in default 30 days.

Patrick Hebert, of Stanbridge East, pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of a boat valued at less than $200, the property of Oscar Gagne, in Philipsburg on April 13. Crown attorney Noiseux said he would be satisfied with a fine of $100 then withdrew a charge of possession of stolen goods stating the boat had been recovered.

Judge Legare fined Hebert $100 and costs, in default 30 days, and bound him over to keep the public peace for six months.

Robert St. Jean, of Sutton, pleaded guilty to a charge of having operated a motor vehicle when he had consumed 130 mgs. of alcohol. He was fined $130 and costs, in default 30 days.

Mario Beaugard, of Cowansville, renounced his right to jury trial, chose trial by magistrate alone, and pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of simple possession of 12 grams of hashish.

Crown attorney Noiseux called for a fine of $200 and a probation order prohibiting the accused from entering any pool rooms or places where games of chance are played.

Claude Hamann said the fine requested by the crown was excessive as his client had been incarcerated for six days.

him $100 and costs, in default 30 days. He then bound Beaugard over to keep the public peace for one year with the conditions demanded by the crown.

Lynn Grenier pleaded guilty, in absentia, to a charge of having consumed alcoholic beverages in a moving vehicle. He was fined the minimum $25 and costs, in default five days.

Judge Bernard Legare issued an order to have Ghislain Gauthier examined prior to continuing his arraignment on a charge of attempted armed robbery to Aug. 2, in Granby court. Pierre Lestage entered a plea of not guilty when Gauthier was charged with having attempted to rob a branch of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Granby on July 27 when he was armed with a firearm or a simulation thereof, and chose jury trial.

Gauthier then demanded the right to defend himself and said he needed psychiatric help. He denied all knowledge of the crime and said he had been held in the 'hole' for three days.

"I'm not crazy enough to try and rob a bank with a water pistol," he said.

Gauthier was remanded pending the examination by the prison physician and his bail hearing was continued, for the form, to Aug. 2 in Granby.

Johnny Surprenant, 21, of Farnham, and Jean Pierre Algier, 18, of Ste. Sabine, were cited to the next term of the assizes following preliminary hearings on charges of breaking and entering and theft of cash from the Nannette Restaurant in Farnham on July 24.

Farnham Const. Jacques

Lusignan told how the duo were caught in the act as they attempted to flee the premises through the rear door. The co-accused, testifying with the protection of the court, told of their involvement in the crime. They stood mute at voluntary statement.

Their lawyer, Robert Brisebois, then re-opted for trial before a magistrate alone with the consent of the crown. Their cases will be heard on Sept. 27. Surprenant, who had been remanded without bail pending the hearing, was allowed his provisional freedom on a $900 property bond.

The diagrammed hand would be too difficult for a beginner but it could be included in any book for intermediate players.

After the spade lead won by East's ace, and the spade continuation, South's problem is to win four club tricks. The routine play of cashing the ace first is not right under these circumstances. Steinberg realized he had to guard against the one holding that could defeat him — a 4-1 club break with the four clubs headed by queen-10 in the East hand.

Accordingly, Steinberg, at trick three, led the deuce of clubs to dummy's king and then led a small club from dummy. When East played low, Steinberg played his nine which won the trick. It was then an easy matter for declarer to cash his ace of clubs, play a diamond to dummy's ace and concede a club to East's queen, knowing he would later be able to cash the final club.

Even if the nine of clubs had lost to the 10 or queen in West's hand, four club tricks would still have been guaranteed. To ensure the contract, declarer conceded one club trick to guarantee four others.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

This hand was played in a rubber bridge game. Had it occurred in duplicate play, the right move would have been overlooked. Indeed, it probably would not even have been considered because of the importance of overtricks.

South was a fine player from New York City. Peter Steinberg, who has written an excellent bridge book for beginners, 'Play Bridge in Four Hours'.

LONELY ME

Here I am darling writing one more time,
For I can't seem to get you off my mind,
I've been lonely since the last time I saw you,
And the days pass so slowly I find.

How are you? have you been happy,
Are your days filled with longing for me,
Yes, I have been thinking about you,
Just the way you knew that I'd do.

I don't want to think of the future,
And I don't want to live in the past,
So let us both think of the present,
And hope that these good times will last.

For without you my life would be nothing,
And with you I feel so content,
I just can't wait until I see you again,
So you see darling, how my days are spent.

SWEET DREAMS

A wedding band may be a tie that binds,
But there's no way to stop a heart from being free,
This wedding band that's placed here on my finger,
Will never stop a love that wants to be free.

My body may belong to another,
But in my mind my love for you is strong,
And as I sit here watching out the window
I wonder if this love for you is wrong.

For every night in dreams I break loose,
And leave my cares and worries all behind,
And go to you and all your sweet loving,
Because I know, for now, you are mine.

And when the morning comes, I'm back home,
Happy with the man I'm married too,
Because tonight I know when sleep takes over
Darling, I'll be back again with you.

ODE TO THE SHERBROOKE RECORD

I have read the Sherbrooke Record,
I have read it o'er and o'er,
And every time I read it,
It seems I like it more.

It brings us all the national news,
It brings the local too,
It brings good editorials,
And some lovely poems too.

There's write up of the weddings,
And birth announcements too,
Then there's the obituaries
And death notices too.

So here's to the Sherbrooke Record,
Long may it stand the test,
Because in my opinion,
I'm sure it is the best.

And here's to all who work there,
To send this paper to us
Let's hope they never go on strike
We need them all too much.

ASTRO-GRAPH

Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

August 16, 1979

It will behoove you this coming year to become involved in club, political or organizational activities. Special benefits will come through these areas.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Select activities today that are enjoyable — those that are either free or inexpensive. Pleasure with high price tags will disappoint you. Find out more of what lies ahead for you in the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter Mail $1 for each to Astro-Graph Box 489, Radio City Station 12 Y 10019. Be sure to specify birth date.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This should be a successful day, but the efforts of others, rather than yours, will make it so. Keep out of your own way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) When you size things up today you will fortunately be able to judge both their good and bad aspects. Focus on the positive ones for success.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You may experience minor setbacks on your road toward achievement today, but don't let them discourage you. Victory will be gained through persistence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't be intimidated by difficult decisions today. Your judgment and perceptions are very keen. You'll come up with the right answer.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) There is opportunity about you today where your work or career is concerned, but it may not be perceived at first glance. Keep looking. You'll find it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you're presently involved in a tricky business or financial situation, seek expert counsel. Two heads are better than one.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let a matter drag that should be finalized today. You'll do better to apply yourself, and you'll get what you want.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try not to juggle too many projects at one time today. Single out your priorities. Temporarily shelve the ones that can wait.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your financial prospects are encouraging today, provided you don't gamble or cater to extravagant whims. Be prudent in money matters.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Even if you see something in another world of criticism, bite your tongue today rather than voice it. You'll be glad you did.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Bide your time. A situation you have been viewing negatively could turn out better than you expect. Let events run their course.

Chase Home News

By Mrs. Maude M. Laycock
BEDFORD — On Saturday, July 21st, Mrs. Shirley Chase, wishing her near helplessness, and helpless patients to get out in the fresh air and shade, dressed the four of them, helped, and carried the incapable ones to the car in which she had packed a picnic lunch, their chairs, also a wheelchair. Last, but not least, straw hats for each one, and took off for the Ideal Camping Ground at St. Ignace.

Among those going were Mrs. Alexina Tait, Mrs. Josephine Soles, Mrs. Margaret Shanahan and Miss Lyla Burrage. All enjoyed the afternoon very much in her own way, Lyla, taking a nap or two in the shade. Mrs. Soles just wanting someone to help her around that she might explore the grounds. Mrs. Tait loved watching the children playing in the water. Mrs. Shanahan taking it all in, saying nothing but pulling handfuls of grass.

They all enjoyed the afternoon very much and the lunch was a treat. Mrs. Chase enjoying it, too, just watching their enjoyment.

On their return they were put to bed, tired, except Mrs. Tait, who wished to go back. The next day some had forgotten all about it. But Mrs. Chase was happy that they had enjoyed it so much.

On this same day, July 21st, Mrs. Maude Laycock received word that her niece Mrs. Joyce Blakeslee was taken very ill and was rushed to the R.V. Hospital the following morning. A hasty recovery is wished for Mrs. Blakeslee by her many friends.

On August 1st, Neil Baker and Miss Winnie Douglas visited the Home calling on Mrs. Maude Laycock. It being such a warm day, Neil proposed a ride. We started out, not caring which way to go, only to avoid the heat and came to Lake Champlain, stopping for an extended time in the cool shade to watch the sail boats, a houseboat and people just getting cool in the water. It was interesting - the water being in just little ripples. On our return we stopped for a treat of Creamies, which were just the exact treat for such a day. Mrs. Laycock expressed her grateful thanks to them both for such a delightful day. As in a Home, it is a pleasure when friends drop in and an outing is a wonderful treat.

Guests of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Chase, on Wednesday, July 25, were Mr.

Chase's brother, Walter Crandall and friend, Miss Vicki May of Ontario, her mother, Mrs. Belle Crandall and brother, Earl Crandall of Farnham, and a nephew, Stanley Crandall of Bedford. Walter Crandall and friend Vicki May remained as dinner and evening guests.

Jack Soles called at the Home to visit his mother, Mrs. Josephine Soles on Wednesday, August 1st.

On Friday evening, July 28, as is his weekly custom, Wayne Sornberger of Burlington visited his father, Homer Sornberger. Neil Baker also called on him on Aug. 1st, as did Jack Patenden on Aug. 3rd.

Mr. and Mrs. Fields of Philipsburg were calling on Miss Lyla Burrage on July 28. Mr. Fields also had a visit with Homer Sornberger.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Tait were recent callers on Mr. Tait's mother, Mrs. Alexina Tait, as was Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Tait and Norman Tait again on Saturday, August 4.

Mr. and Mrs. Skinner visited Mrs. Skinner's mother, Mrs. Shanahan one day recently. Mrs. Shanahan was a school teacher, teaching English, as well as French.

A grateful thank-you is extended to the Bedford Fair group, which as a rule brings rain each year, for doing just that this year, ending over three weeks of dry, hot, humid weather. A thunderstorm came on the first night of their arrival, and showers all the next day, making the lawns look alive again.

W.I. entertains other branches

BROOKBURY — The Brookbury Women's Institute entertained four other branches at a social afternoon on Friday afternoon, August 3rd, at their Hall in Brookbury.

Fellow W.I. members were invited from the Milby, Sawyerville, East Angus and East Clifton Branches, and, although it was a very warm afternoon, thirty-four visiting ladies enjoyed a pleasant afternoon with the Brookbury members.

Mrs. Flora McIntyre, who was in charge of the program, had invited Mrs. J. Waldron of Sherbrooke, who has spent the past two years with her husband in Saudi Arabia, to tell about their work there and the customs in that country. Mrs. Waldron brought two young lads with her and they dressed in the costumes worn by the women and men in Saudi Arabia. Those who participated were Robert Decarie, dressed as a man, and Jerry Waldron as a lady.

Mrs. Waldron showed some fine slides of the people and country which proved to be very interesting and informative to everyone present. Several questions asked were answered by the guest speaker, following her talk, and she was given a hearty applause by everyone. Mrs. Donald Clark, president of the Brookbury W.I., thanked Mrs. Waldron and presented her with a gift of appreciation.

Mrs. Lavallee, Mrs. Waldron's mother, and some other friends from Sherbrooke were also guests that afternoon.

Mrs. Sterling Batley presented gifts to the three Compton County officers, Mrs. M. MacKay, Pres., Mrs. O. Twyman, Secretary and Mrs. D. Loveland, Treasurer.

A delicious salad and turkey supper was served to all, by the Brookbury W.I. members, following the program.

Thanks were expressed by members of the different branches for the pleasant afternoon, following the meal, and all departed for home at a good hour.

Saturday Market features dolls

SUTTON (KT) — Sutton Saturday Market on August 4, featured a variety of dolls by Eve LaRoche of Glen Sutton. These included charming apple dolls and others made of yarns or wool, also some of paper-mache.

In the Painters Corner, Noella Mignault was the solo exhibitor.

group of guitars and gospel singers had to cancel his expected appearance on August 11 but will be at the Market this coming Saturday, August 18.

There are only two remaining Saturday Markets, August 18 and the last one on August 25.

As in past years, the various artists will share two booths at Brome Fair.

Club meets

BEEBE — The August 7th gathering of the old fashion birthday club was held at the home of Mrs. Mildred Tyler in Derby, Vt. with her sister, Miss Verda Stratton as hostess. One guest, Mrs. Mildred Woodard, was welcomed.

The evening was spent playing several games, with Mrs. Edna Bean taking the special prize.

The birthday celebrant was Mrs. Hazel Brown. Sandwiches were supplied by Mrs. Edna Bean and the special cake was made by Mrs. Marion King.

Refreshments were served to terminate a very pleasant evening.

The September get-together will be a supper-out meeting, returning to the home of Mrs. Pauline Hyndman for the evening's activities.

Friends Of Potton Library Committee

MANSONVILLE (BN) — People who are interested in Mansonville's Potton Library and who would like to become an active volunteer may read the facts as stated by Bruce Nichols (volunteer poet!):

There is a library in our town
 That's grown by leaps and bounds --
 And Mrs. Oliver's time has grown
 Too short, for all the work she's found;
 So knowing Mansonville's pride and joy
 Is needing room to grow;
 She's asking help from girl and boy
 And every adult's knowledge - show
 Their interest, and help invite --
 By way of work or moneyed gift;
 To volunteer each hand to "light"
 The load - that's needed - Swift!

So let's join The Friends Of Potton Library Committee and pitch in and help.

Since becoming affiliated with the Bibliotheque Centrale de L'Estrie, Sherbrooke, Mrs. Oliver will be receiving new books on a regular lending basis. Therefore, many hands would make the work of arranging (and unpacking) much easier. Also, as new books become available on the market, it would be a credit to the library if we could purchase them for our permanent use.

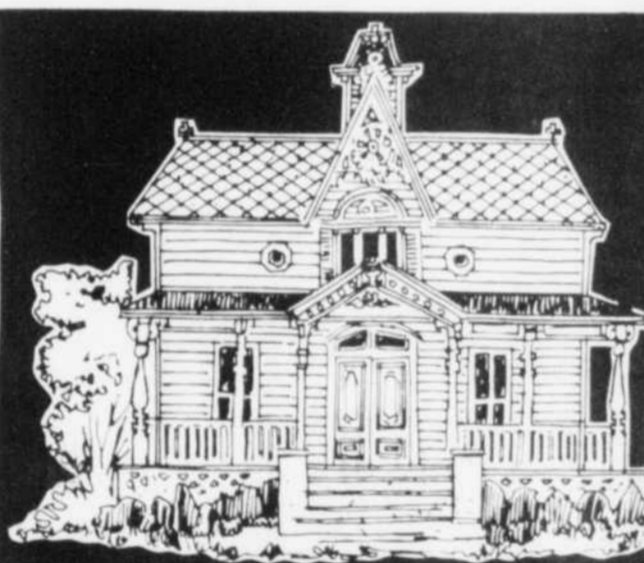

To join The Friends Of Potton Library Committee just contact Mrs. Louise Oliver at 292-3436, or better yet, visit her at the library in the Royal Canadian Legion building on Main Street, Mansonville.

The library is open on the following dates: - Wednesdays, 2:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m.; Fridays 2:00 p.m. - 5:00 p.m. and 7:00 p.m. - 9:00 p.m.; and Saturdays 10:00 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. Have your name on a list for future volunteer service.

Sweetsburg Ward by John McCaghey

SWEETSBURG WARD (JM) — Judge Bernard Legare ruled there was sufficient proof to find Leo Dupuis, of Actonville, guilty on a charge of theft of construction materials, the property of Rene Allard, in St. Valerien on Sept. 20, 1976 in a lengthy written judgement last week. He noted the crown, with the consent of the defence, had proceeded on charges of theft and receiving stolen goods. The judge dismissed the second charge.

Judge Legare then approved a motion by defence lawyer Yvon Robichaud that representations for sentencing be continued to a later date. Following negotiations with Crown attorney Claude Noiseux they agreed on Sept. 7.

would be better off if he lived with more savory companions.

"That's an excellent suggestion," Judge Legare said prior to handing down the discontinued term which was set to allow Demers to retain his employment.

Claude Michaud, of Montreal was found guilty in absentia, of a charge of having failed to meet a financial obligation, thereby breaching a probation order. The crown produced two witnesses who testified the accused had been ordered to reimburse $100 to Christian Fiard, of Venise, within six months following Oct. 2, 1978. Fiard testified he had never been paid. Judge Legare imposed the 15-day jail term suggested by the crown.

Pierrette Robert, of St. Jean, pleaded guilty to a charge of impaired driving when she had consumed 170 mgs. of alcohol. She was fined $170 and costs, in default 30 days.

Gilles Corbeil, of Freighsburg, and Calvin Derrick, of Bedford, pleaded guilty to similar charges when they had consumed 160 mgs. of alcohol. They were each fined $160 and costs, in default 30 days.

Phillipe Drapeau pleaded guilty, in absentia, to a charge of having removed the seat belts from his motor vehicle. He was fined the minimum $50 and costs, in default eight days.

Andre Delorme, of Granby, entered no plea at his arraignment on a charge of having trafficked in 381 capsules of 'speed' in Granby on Sept. 26, 1977. Claude Hamann chose jury trial and preliminary hearing was fixed, for the form, to Aug. 2, in Granby. Delorme was remanded in custody pending the hearing.

Stanley Magerowicz, of Montreal, changed his option and pleaded guilty to a charge of breaking and entering and theft at the Cowansville Medical Centre during February 1977. Magerowicz was remanded in custody pending sentencing which was continued to Sept. 7.

Marcel Demers, of Farnham, who earlier pleaded guilty to three counts of having been illegally at large from the Sweetsburg Jail, was sentenced to 14 days to be served on seven consecutive Mondays and Wednesdays.

Pierre Gibeau told the court his client had missed the three first weekends. "He was involved in a car accident but was not so severely injured he could not have appeared," Gibeau said. "He has since filled out his commitment without missing a day and I feel the interests of justice would be well served with a week consecutive to the missing six days."

Crown attorney Noiseux only commented Demers

Past Noble Grands meet

KNOWLTON (KT) — On Wednesday evening, August 8, a meeting of the Past Noble Grand Club was held at the Rebekah Lodge Hall, Knowlton, with eight Past Noble Grands and two visitors attending.

The meeting was called to order by Sister Rachel Norton and the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary-treasurer, Sister Betty Ann Kirby.

It was reported that several 30-year Jewels have been ordered.

Since the last meeting, an Honour List recording all Past Noble Grands has been placed in the lodge hall. The names of all previous Noble Grands since 1914 are on small metal plaques mounted on a wooden background.

It was moved by Sister Beulah Whitcher and seconded by Sister Pearl Windle that a Military Whist card party, as a fund-raising project, should be held on September 12 to replace the regular meeting.

The meeting was closed by Sister Gladys Thompson, after which two tables of 500 were played. First prize won by Betty Ann Kirby and the consolation prize went to a visitor, Mrs. Vaux.

A delicious lunch was served by Doris Bockus and Virginia Clifford. The drawing was won by Marjorie Falle.

OES Pinnacle Chapter 11

SUTTON — The August meeting of Pinnacle Chapter No. 11, Order of the Eastern Star, was held in the Memorial Fraternal Hall on Wednesday evening, August 8.

In the absence of the Worthy Matron, the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Heather Larocque, Associate Matron. After the ritual opening and presentation of the flag, Mrs. Helen Ramsay, General Grand Chapter Committee Member, and Mrs. Myrtle Vincent, Past Grand Matron, were presented separately, introduced, welcomed, escorted to the East, and given Grand Honours.

Mrs. Larocque welcomed all members and visitors, with a special welcome to Mrs. Annie Dryden, a member of Cowansville Chapter, who is visiting friends and relatives in the area.

Letters were read from Mrs. Harriet Sturtees, a member of St. Albans Chapter, and from Mrs. Hilda Shufelt, a member of Pinnacle Chapter, who now lives in Vancouver, B.C. Donations were received for the Cancer Cupboard, the Penny Fair, and the General Fund.

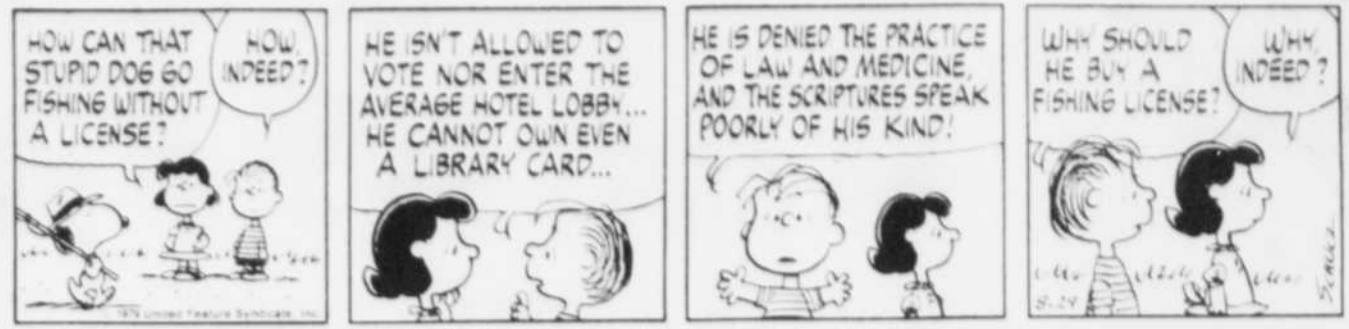

Mrs. Larocque reported that a message of sympathy had been sent to Miss Norma Owens, whose mother passed away on the morning of the day of the meeting.

Mr. Norman Watson spoke of the McClay family, who were in the path of the tornado which swept through Southern Ontario a few days before. All were happy to learn that none of the McClays were injured.

The meeting closed in ritual form, a delicious lunch was served in the dining room, and gifts from the Penny Fair were distributed, under the guidance of Mrs. Edith Watson.

Visitors were present from Maple Leaf Chapter No. 2, Stanbridge East, Beaver Chapter No. 7, Waterloo, and Cowansville Chapter No. 17, Cowansville.

William Stevens' piano recital

SUTTON (KT) — A rare musical treat was afforded those attending the piano concert given by William Stevens at Sutton Elementary School on Saturday evening, August 4 in support of Sutton Valley Council.

Despite the intense heat, there was a splendid attendance of approximately 230.

The delightful programme which included Chopin's Fantasia in F. Minor, Mozart and many other beautiful numbers was highly enjoyed and appreciated by all. At least three or more encores were graciously given.

William Stevens made his professional debut in 1950, having graduated from the Conservatoire de Musique de la Province de Quebec and the McGill Conservatory in Montreal. Piano studies were pursued with Germaine Malepart and the celebrated Yvonne Hubert. His American debut followed in New York in 1952. In quick succession came his Town Hall debut in New York, six American tours, appearances on numerous radio broadcasts and his Carnegie Hall debut, the awarding of the Harriet Cohen Prize and the British Commonwealth Medal. He has made many recordings, the most recent being for the Canadian Talent Library. He has set something of a record as host and performer for thirteen years of the highly successful television programme, "Let's talk Music."

Each season William Stevens gives over sixty performances for schools and colleges in Canada. He is a Master Piano Teacher at the Ecole de Musique Vincent d'Indy in Montreal and also teaches at the University of Montreal.

Of particular note is his appearance as Guest Artist with the Toronto Symphony in Ontario Place in the summer of 1977, followed in the fall of that year as Guest Artist in the CBC-TV Series "Musicamera". In 1978 he gave a Solo Recital in Toronto that fall. He is widely known as Festival Adjudicator.

He won acclaim at Carnegie Hall when the New York Times reported "his technical endowments proved to be such that even the formidable work of Liszt's B. Minor Sonata ripples forth smoothly and effortlessly from under his fingers... his concert was constantly fascinating." "The Christian Science Monitor of Boston speaks of him as one of the few young players of to-day who attains "the grand manner - that eloquent, rhapsodic and entrancing style of pianist fast fading away. His ability to communicate poetry is remarkable."

He is described by the Toronto Star as "an exciting pianist with dazzling technique, the possessor of a shimmering variety of total colours" while the New York Tribune speaks of him as "a marvel of speed and precision." The opportunity to hear this consummate artist at the piano was a privilege rarely possible in this area.
