Huntingdon Fair To Be Officially Opened Thursday Evening

Huntingdon Fair will open on Thursday evening, August 30th, with a monster parade of floats through the town to the Fair Grounds. If it should be raining, the parade will be held the next evening, but the opening will go forward as planned.

Already a large number of entries for the Parade have been received and it is expected that this part of the Fair will be well up to former years.

The main features of opening night will be the Horse Show, Tug-o-War and Potato Race. Of course the midway will be in full swing and this year it is bigger than ever before, so there should be plenty for everyone to do.

Be sure and get your entries into proper position early on Thusday.

On Friday, the judging will be in full swing and it will be known as Black and White Day as the Holsteins will hold sway along with other breeds of Dairy cattle. In the evening there will be the Horse Show, Cattle Parade and Grange Comedy Act.

On Saturday, judging will continue and there will be horse racing in the afternoon as well as the 4H Calf Club competitions. In the evening there will be Tap and Step dancing, Square Dance Competition and the annual Fair Dance to wind up.

Some additional specials have been received by Secretary Beaudin and he announces that the Elmhurst Dairy is supplying the 4H Calf Club with 200 drinks of chocolate milk. Any surplus will be sold for the benefit of the club.

Roy Calder of Two Mountains Sand Co. and Davies Bros. have both made generous contributions for the Horse Classes.

Allan Talon and Gordon Tannahill, who sponsor a pony class for children 8 years old and under are giving as follows: 1st prize a trophy and $3; 2nd, $3; 3rd, $2.50; 4th, $2.00; 5th, $1.50 and 6th, $1.

G. W. Tolhurst from Dewittville offers a special of $2.50 Prize Money for the Newest Exhibitor who wins the most Prize Money in cut flowers; also $2.50 Prize Money for the winner of the most Prize Money on House Plants.

As of Monday, there were 133 exhibitors who made entries. The secretary urges everyone to get their entries in.

It looks like a full bill for the three days and the committee in charge is hoping that everyone will support the fair by attending in large numbers.

Local Horses Do Well At Malone Fair

Several horses were entered in Malone Fair last week and made a very commendable showing.

'Miss Bridgie' shown by Beverly Robidoux, Huntingdon, placed 3rd in the Ladies saddle class; 3rd in the English 3 gaited; 3rd in the Pairs class; 1st in the Combination Class and 1st in the Fine Harness class. 'Miss Bridgie', because she won the most total points in these classes became the Champion in the English Horse Division.

'Loving Lady' shown by Lois Dunn of Huntingdon placed 2nd in the Ladies Saddle class; 1st in the English 3 gaited class and 3rd in the Pairs Saddle class.

Suzanne Robidoux showing her pony 'Blackie' came 3rd in the Model class; 4th in the Pony Parade class; 4th in the driving class and 6th in the Pony Saddle class.

'Blue Tempest' driven by C. J. Kyle of Huntingdon placed second in the Fine Harness class.

'Pickelo Pete' owned by Mr. Allan Tallon of Huntingdon and shown by his son Brian, was the champion pony of the Fair gaining six firsts and one second.

'Buckshot' shown by Donald Myatt, of Athelstan was awarded the Reserve Champion Ribbon.

Mrs. Russell Myatt and Mrs. Rolland Riel of Athelstan showed 'Nancy' and 'Amigo' and won several ribbons.

At the Plattsburg, N.Y. Fair held during the fist week of August 'Pickelo Pete' shown by Brian Tallon of Huntingdon was again the Champion pony gaining seven first prizes.

Mrs. Russell Myatt and Mrs. Rolland Riel gained three championship ribbons and two reserve championship ribbons showing their horses at this same fair.

Ormstown Dance Team Wins Trophy At Sherbrooke Fair

The Ormstown 'Jolly Dancers' once again brought home the trophy from the CHLT square dance competition held at Sherbrooke Fair, on Saturday, August 25. This is the second time this group has won the award. They first competed and won in 1960. They were not permitted to compete in 1961 having won the previous year, however that year they placed first at Ormstown Fair.

Earlier this year they entered a competition on Channel CJSS Cornwall and danced against teams from Eastern Ontario and Western Quebec, and in April emerged victorious.

On Saturday, there were 20 teams dancing from many parts of the Province and these local dancers deserve great credit in having brought home the cup.

Since the group was first formed under the very able coaching of Mr. Florian Guerin, several of the dancers have changed but it appears the ability of these new dancers is still tops.

The dancers on Saturday were: Mrs. Florian Guerin, Florian Guerin, Marie Ange Dumas, Jean Page, Diane Page, Michael Belanger, Francoise Crete, Gilles Belanger.

Bill Hooker has accompanied this group as caller in all the competitions. The Group will appear on Channel 7 this Saturday night at 7 P.M.

Congratulations To You All.

DEWITTVILLE CHILDREN'S FAIR BENEFIT

Storm Damage On Robson Street

HEMMINGFORD — The very bad electrical storm experienced here on Monday evening, August 27th, has damaged, beyond repair, one of the finest trees on Robson Street. The tall Pine, 80 feet or more high standing on the front lawn of Mr. Walter Barr's home was struck by lighting with a deafening crack, during the height of the storm. The tree was split exactly down the centre from the top to within about three feet of the ground, the split is about eight to ten inches wide. There is no alternative but to cut it down completely. Losing this elegant old friend will be a sad thing. Mr. Barr remembers his uncle telling him, when he was a boy, that it was planted in 1841.

LEAVES FOR ENGLAND

FRANCOIS CLEYN JR.

Above is a popular Huntingdon teenager who sailed aboard 'The S.S. Homeric" on Wednesday of the past week, bound for England, where he will study at the Huddersfield Textile School.

Eighteen-year-old "Frank", as he is known to his friends, expects to live in England from one to three years. A lad who was seriously ill for some time prior to undergoing major surgery in Montreal last winter, he is now hale and hearty. Several friends in Huntingdon and Port Lewis gave farewell parties in honor of Frank during the weeks previous to his sailing. Before leaving, he said he hopes to be home for Christmas and for a few weeks next summer.

Dewittville Children's Fair Proves Success

The garden of Mr. and Mrs. George Tolhurst was the scene on Wednesday, August, 22nd of the "Dewittville Children's Fair". This event was organized and operated by Henney and Douwe Rozema and George Tolhurst Jr. The amount of money raised was $12.50, and since none of the attractions cost more than 3c, this represents a good deal of enterprise and hard work on the part of these youngsters. Needless to say the Fair was well patronized by the 'Younger Crowd' of Dewittville who willingly parted with their pennies for such treats as taffy apples, "Hot Rod" rides, Darts, lemonade, a checker competition and other attractions. Without their whole-hearted support and the donations of several citizens of Dewittville, the event would not have been such a success.

The proceeds have been turned over to the Dewittville W. I. for their very worthy project of a swimming pool for this community. The swimming lessons organized other summers by the W. I. for the children of the area have been so successful that the ladies now feel that a great deal more could be accomplished with a pool. Enough money is on hand to proceed with the actual building of a pool but the problem now is to obtain a suitable piece of land. The price of land would have to be within the budget of the ladies or perhaps some philanthropic citizen will come forward with a suitable donation of real estate. All donations will be gratefully received.

The W. I. will be happy to see all their friends at their "Little Gypsy Tea Room" at the Huntingdon Fair this week. Naturally the proceeds once again will go towards the Swimming Pool.

Covey Hill

Mr. Lloyd Waddell is making alterations and improvements on his property at the Corners.

Mr. and Mrs. Colvin Watt and two little daughters motored to Norquay, Sask., where they will attend the wedding of Mrs. Watt's twin sister.

Mr. Donald Greenway attended the celebration of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Oliver in the Queen's Hotel, Montreal, on Aug. 18th., also visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Mathers.

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Pilon, Barbara Anne and Karen of Ormstown were Saturday guests at the home of Mrs. Hollis Lowden.

Mrs. A. Boyd of Saskatoon and her niece Mrs. Clarence Blair visited Mrs. W. R. Perry, who also received calls from Mrs. Milton Hooker and Matthew of N.D.G. and Barry and Janice Kilgour of Harvey Station, N. B.

Rotarians Bid Farewell To Maurice Melnyk

ERLE C. MARTIN

Huntingdon Rotary Club met at the Chateau Huntingdon, on Monday, for their weekly luncheon meeting. There will be no meeting next Monday Labour Day. Rotarian Francois Cleyn bade farewell on behalf of the Club to Rotarian Maurice Melnyk who left Huntingdon with his family on Tuesday to take up residence at Noranda.

A guest speaker from Montreal had been expected, but due to circumstances beyond his control he was unable to attend. Rotarian Earle C. Martin, practically at the last minute, prepared a speech on "Huntingdon Thirty or Forty Years Ago" that was both interesting and humorous. Mr. Martin said at the start that he stands to be corrected in parts and The Gleaner would be pleased if readers would care to write us carrying this story back a few more decades and as Mr. Martin said, correcting any of what he said. This type of story is interesting to newcomers in the community and is also really enjoyed by oldsters. The Gleaner would also like to have stories of Ormstown, Howick, Athelstan, Hemmingford, etc., so why not pick up your pen, choose an era of 25 or more years past, and let's all enjoy reading of yesteryears? Address letters to The Editor, The Gleaner, Huntingdon. If pictures will help to illustrate the story, this can be arranged.

TOWN OF HUNTINGDON CIRCA 1930

This talk is directed to about 90% of the members of the Club who were not residents of the Town around the thirties and those whose memory, like my own, is rather hazy. With the three or four who remember the history of Huntingdon better than I do, I shall be provocative in that I shall give them some wrong information in order that they may complete the picture for you or continue on from where I left off.

Henderson Street. This street was for the most part built up in 1926 when I came to Huntingdon. Most of the houses were built previously by the Hunter Bros., Art., George and Frank who, at that time, owned the saw mill and grist mill now owned by Builders' Supply and Feeds Ltd. Art - store.

Lorne Ave. This street has changed very little over the past thirty years. The building known as the Dunn building near the bridge was empty. About 1930 Hiram Leach came to Huntingdon with his deputy, David Clark. A company, Hiram Leach and Son Canada Limited was incorporated which took over some machinery, which I presumed was owned by Hiram Leach. They made a deal with Gordon Dunn to rent the building with the stipulation that Dunn was to make a considerable amount of repairs. As usual, Gordon was a little slow in moving, so the company put him in default to make the repairs, engaged a Montreal contracting firm, and sent the bill to Gordon. To the best of my knowledge he paid up, although it cost him considerably more than if he had done it himself. It might be of interest to the textile members that the machinery consisted of

34 Hattersley's Dobby Looms complete
20 Hattersley's Tappet Looms complete
6 Hattersley Pick and Pick Drop Box Looms
1 Lesson Winder
3 Warping and Beaming Machines
1 Emery Grinder
1 Folding Machine
1 Gimpsin Machine, etc.

all sold to the company for approximately $95,000.00 in shares of the company.

Chateauguay Street

My first recollection of the Racine Restaurant was a private house owned by Edmond Boulanger. The Miss Fortunes at that time were elderly and made a very poor deal with Edmond Boulanger, whereby they would turn over all their property to him on the condition that he would look after them during their lifetime. They had already neared the parting of the ways so it was not long before Edmond was in undisputed control.

I may be wrong but I believe that the old Moir Hall was still in existence about which Watson Sellar gave some interesting reading a few weeks ago in the Gleaner. I think that Herbert Cunningham or some car dealer occupied the west end of th building and there was a garage at the east end occupied by a brother-in-law of the Rankins.

The house of James McCoy became a restaurant for a short time in the thirties. It attempted to serve good meals in a good atmosphere but it was not a success.

The Marchand building was occupied by the Oney Furniture Store, operated by Chet's father. During the winter, especially, the business was operated by remote control from the Curling Rink. The .05 to $1.00 Store was a barn of a building owned and occupied by Stanislas Caza, who, among other interests, was a car salesman or agent for Buick cars. His cars and other cars were a fancy price in those days and several farmers' equity was reduced to nil during the dirty thirties as a result of car purchases.

I have recollections of a long building standing along the street at the site of the Moore vacant lot. This building looked like the old gray mare with the sagging back. The tenants were Napoleon Dupuis and Fred Lasalle, who was buried very recently. Fred was a harness maker and Dupuis had a small wood working shop. Practically every major problem of the country and politics was discussed in one of these shops, in which there was a morning and afternoon session. The arguments were so vehement, especially around election time, that it would be weeks before some of the members would say hello to each other. The only time that the club was not in session was at flood time.

Next was the blacksmith shop of Jack Ross. This was the locale of many stories involving Jack and his son Dave. They had their own particular language in asking the horses to behave while they were being shod and many of the young lads of the town acquired a fluency that was not appreciated by the parents at home.

The Kyle Garage was, at my first recollection, the shop of Sam Davis, the father of Mrs. Dorothy Currie. At one time he was a livery man and I think later he was an agent of sorts. He was a character — full of fun and deviltry. I had seen one car previously, that of C. A.

New Give - Aways For Shoppers At Huntingdon Plaza Fall Competition

After holding a series of meetings, a number of Huntingdon's businessmen have come up with a new plan for Huntingdon Shopping Plaza which will start operations again on September 4th.

You all remember the Plaza in the Spring Months and many a person was a prize winner. The proposed plan for this new series is entirely different and should prove to be more exciting. The Grand prize will be a new car and will be awarded at the end of the year. This car will soon be placed on display on the lawn near Fortune's Drug Store, on Chateauguay Street and at night it will be lighted by spotlights.

The same plan will be in operation that for every purchase of one dollar at the store you will be a member of the plan, a ticket will be given and this will be placed in containers and later a drawing will be held for prizes. In addition to the car hundreds of dollars of other prizes will be awarded and as the campaign goes on more will be said of these and what they are. The big drawing will be made in a gala way at the end of the year and then the lucky winners will be known. It costs nothing to enter, your purchases are all that is required to obtain the tickets needed. No extras to buy, you do not have anything you do not want or cannot use — in other words there are no gimmicks in this competition. It is not confined to Huntingdon residents only, anyone can participate.

Next week the committee in charge will have an advertisement in this newspaper giving full particulars of how you can be the winner of the grand prize of a new car and hundreds of other prizes.

Please watch for this announcement. Meanwhile get on the bandwagon and shop Huntingdon Plaza during the next few months.

Notes From The Police Blotter

Accidents

An accident occurred on the Ridge Road on Sunday at about 7 p.m. when a collision occurred between two cars. Mr. Joseph Cer of Montreal was driving on the Ridge Road, while Mr. Derwin Legault also of Montreal was backing out of a driveway. He just started onto the highway when the Cer car struck his car in the rear. Damage to the Legault car amounted to about $350 and to the Cer car about $400.

Fleurent Charlebois, of Montreal, was driving his truck on Range 4, Howick, about noon on Monday, when he noticed fire in the instrument panel in the cab. He stopped the truck and called the volunteer fire dept. at Howick. However, before they arrived and put out the fire damage to the extent of $1,000 had been done. The truck was carrying a load of stone.

Blood Donor Clinic September 4th

Mrs. Edouard Laberge announced that final plans have been drawn up for the Blood Donor Clinic to be held at MacDougall Hall, Ormstown, Sept. 4th, from 3 to 5.30 and 7 to 9.30.

Donor procurement is in charge of Mrs. A. Parent and Miss Mildred Hay, who have committees organized to visit or telephone every family in the Ormstown area. It is hoped that donors from St. Antoine, St. Louis, Franklin and Howick will also find it possible to attend the clinic. Cars will be available for anyone needing transportation kindly provided through courtesy of friends and the Lions Club of Ormstown.

Men can safely give blood every 3 months and women every 4 months.

Chateauguay Valley Historical Society Will Have Float In Fair Parade

The August meeting of the Historical Society was held on Friday evening at the home of Mrs. A. S. W. White, on the Chateauguay River near North Georgetown. This early French-Canadian style stone house, built in 1790, formed an ideal setting for a meeting of an historical group, not only for its style of architecture but from the fact that it is filled with a rare collection of antiques belonging to more than a century ago.

After the reading and approval of the minutes, the Secretary reported that preparations had been practically completed for an entry in the opening parade of Huntingdon Fair on August 30th, which will serve to draw the attention of the public to the fact that an Historical Society exists.

Matters that were discussed consisted of plans for the formation of regional chapters, which had been approved at the last meeting; various suggestions for the proper observance of the 150th. anniversary of the Battle of the Chateauguay in October, 1963; and the idea of preserving the old Wattle house in Elgin. These matters gave rise to the consideration of ways and means for raising money, without which not much could be accomplished. One means would be a dance and a committee was appointed to investigate the feasibility of such an undertaking, preferably to be held in Huntingdon in October, probably on the 26th, the date of the Battle of Chateauguay.

It was suggested that the next meeting should be held in the MacFarlane house in Chateauguay on September 21st, and the President was authorized to secure an outstanding speaker. After a vote of thanks had been tendered to Mrs. White for her hospitality the meeting was adjourned.

Huntingdon Firm Develops "Do It Yourself" School Photo Program

Schools from coast to coast in Canada are now enjoying considerable savings in school pictures by taking the pictures themselves. Almost unbelievable savings are possible with this delightful new approach to school photography.

In one school in Ontario over 700 students were photographed individually by two grade nine students. The results were outstanding and the savings were passed on to the students.

Individual student portraits having a studio value of over $10.00 can be purchased by students for as low as 95c. The excellent results and low prices are the end result of camera and finishing plant automation methods pioneered by the completely Canadian owned and operated firm of Huntingdon Photo Suppliers Limited, 173 Chateauguay Street, Huntingdon, Quebec.

An automatic portable camera unit complete with lights, background etc. which designed and built by the Huntingdon firm is loaned to schools without charge. The camera is pre-loaded with bulk film at the plant and is ready to go when it arrives at the school.

Each student receives a package of 17 individual portraits including mounted enlargements and miniature photos which they can take home for their parents' approval. Part or all can be purchased or the complete package can be returned at no cost to the parents or students.

Taking the photos themselves makes the program educational for students while parents enjoy the savings. In the same way that students may purchase products of manual training in many schools, they may now purchase portraits at considerable savings.

The whole program is self-supporting and requires no additional budgeting or financial assistance from school funds. The firm is so confident that students can operate the equipment that it absorbs all risks on the speculative sales of photos to students.

"This is our answer to the austerity program" explains Mr. Thomas Bell, President of the firm. With or without an austerity program there is no doubt that this new self-supporting, photography program will fill a long felt need for a photographic educational program in our schools.

THE "LATEST" IN CATTLE TRANSPORTATION

In this case it is the trailer truck which is outstanding and it is doubtful if any such has been in Huntingdon before. There are four floors in the truck and it is about forty feet long and will carry 37 head of cattle. The moving of the floors for loading is all done automatically by pressing buttons. The upper floors are loaded first by the floor being lowered and ramp coming into position in the front end of the vehicle first. The floor is then raised and the lower one is loaded. Gates are closed across the floors and then the rear floors are loaded. It makes loading very simple and the large number of cattle can be carried quite safely. The trailer is a double decker as will be seen by the mention of upper floors.

Athelstan

ATHELSTAN — Mrs. Stanley Hamilton entertained the W.M.S. at her home on Thursday evening, August 23rd. A large attendance of members and invited guests were present.

The devotions were taken by Mrs. Jamieson reading Romans 12, and Mrs. McIntyre led in prayer. The minutes of the July meeting were read and approved.

A few plans were made in regard to the Sectional meeting to be held in our church the end of September, but it was thought best to wait till we received our program before making final preparations. The Treasurer's report was given and it was decided to send $40.00 to the Gen. Treas.

Mrs. Green, for the lesson read an article "Asking Why" from the Glad Tidings, it was written by Katherine Duncanson, and dealt with the difference in customs, social life, etc. in British Guiana as compared to Canada.

A hymn and the Auxiliary prayer in unison closed the meeting. Delicious refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Jamieson and Margaret Wilson.

STE. AGNES — Mrs. J. B. Quenneville suffered a painful accident about ten days ago, when she caught her right hand in the wringer of her electric washing machine. Celebrates Birthday

On Thursday, August 23rd, Mrs. Edna Arnold and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Arnold motored to Montreal, where they attended a birthday party in one of the wards of the Montreal General Hospital, in honour of Mr. Robbie Arnold's 70th birthday. The nurses, doctors and internes on that floor came in and wished Robbie a happy birthday" and presented him with a gay looking birthday cake complete with candles. Robbie was able to cut the cake himself by using his left hand, and by all reports did a pretty fair job of it. He was most appreciative to the staff in being honoured in this manner, and also in being able to have his family and Mr. and Mrs. Jim McPherson present for the occasion. Robbie has been a patient in the M.G.H. since June 15, when he suffered a stroke following surgery. His condition has improved considerably of late, however, and it is expected that soon he may be able to return to the familiar surroundings of his home.

Hi-C Activities

The group of young people who are members of the Hi-C group are one of the 'doingest' crowd of teenagers I have ever had the pleasure of knowing. No sooner is a sigh of relief heard that one activity has been successfully completed than plans are being drawn up for "what we're going to do next week-end." Mr. Rutledge, Student Minister and chief advisor of the group says it certainly will be good experience to carry along with him when he goes to a charge of his own. When you are part of a group such as this it certainly keeps the spirit of youth aflame.

-o-

On Tuesday night there was choir practice at the Elder home with games and dancing afterwards. Friday night brought the hayride with the hay and wagon being furnished by Clarence Platt, the tractor by Lester Fraser and up front driving was Mr. Rutledge.

After the corn, the young people toasted marshmallows around the fire and so ended another very successful do'.

"HAPPY HUNTING KENNELS GAME PRESERVE" NEAR HERE IS POPULAR WITH SPORTSMEN

Herbie Kugler and Ricky Longtin are two young men who are operating a successful game preserve in this community that is attracting sportsmen and hunters from Montreal, Valleyfield, Cornwall, Ottawa and points in the United States but which as yet does not seem to be too well known locally.

Five years ago Herbie started boarding, breeding and training the popular little rabbit hounds which everybody knows as Beagles. Three years ago he started raising pheasants with which to train his own favorite Pointer "Ida of Two Mountains". In hunting circles, where Herbie is well known, he was often asked by friends if they could come to his farm to shoot some of the pheasants. This was the start of what is today "Happy Hunting Kennels Game Preserve" where there are at present eleven Pointers and approximately 30 Beagles. There are also more than a thousand pheasants and every month freshly imported Bob White quail which are brought here from South Carolina. Also on the Game Preserve are a number of dogs of different species that are being trained for their hunter-owners as well as pets that are being boarded while their owners are on vacation.

Two years ago Ricky Longtin of Verdun came to Happy Hunting Kennels Game Preserve for a two-week vacation, which ended up in a partnership. Today these two young men have added a very well run trap layout which is attracting many local nimrods as well as city people.

Trap and quail shooting is allowed any time and pheasant hunting starts on September 15. Shells, guides and dogs are available at all times. Owing to the large number of guests, appointments should be made to avoid disappointment. For reservations and further information please phone Herbie or Ricky, two enterprising young men who have brought a new sport to this community.

Blue Chips At Crossroads, Moira

"The famous Blue Chips (Roulette Recording Stars) who soared high in the entertainment world under John Romano, their manager, have decided to go their separate ways. Their first engagement since the split is at a smart upper New York State Restaurant called the Crossroads at Moira. These boys are crowd pleasers, however, we wonder how far they'll go without the guidance of Romano."

The Blue Chips appear nitely at the Crossroads, Moira, from 8 and are set for a 2 weeks stay.

Don't miss these recording stars... and come early to enjoy a dinner by the celebrated Maurice Jobin, former personal chef to the Duke of Windsor and Sir Winston Churchill.

Crossroads is only 29 miles from Huntingdon and many from this area can be seen nitely at this fabulous dinner and after dinner spot.

Holiday in Ottawa

Mr. Archie Hayter spent last week at the home of his son Ralph and family in Ottawa. While there he along with 101,000 other people attended the opening of the Ottawa Exhibition. The parade of floats, bands and majorettes were very colourful. The flower display in the Horticultural Building was beautiful. The roses, gladioli and chrysanthemums were especially attractive. The Ontario Department of Agriculture had an impressive display of vegetables and fruit covering one section of the building.

On Sunday Mr. Hayter along with his hosts went to see the colourful and impressive 'Changing of the Guards' on the lawn of Parliament Hill.

Monday, the party visited the Central Experimental Farm, Rideau Falls and City Hall. This imposing building was constructed in 1958 and was opened the same year by Her Royal Highness, Princess Margaret. The building is made of steel and cement and clad in limestone. Inside the walls are panelled in walnut; the cement stairs are surfaced with white marble and the floors with black marble from Italy. The balcony commands a lovely view of the Gatineau Hills and the Ottawa River. Next the flower gardens and scenic park at Rideau Hall, the home of Canada's Governor General were visited. At Laurier House much antique furniture was seen, also Sir Wilfred Laurier's bedroom and the bed the Right Honorable MacKenzie King slept on. The stand at his bedside with his Bible and lamp on it has been kept as he left it. Lady Laurier bequeathed this house to the Canadian Government and the nation. The National Capital Commission is developing plans for a multi-million dollar project for the capital area.

The climax of Mr. Hayter's visit come the evening before he left for home. Ralph along with his wife, Betty held a 'corn boil' for sixteen invited guests. The corn fresh from the garden was enjoyed by all. Thus Mr. Hayter ended a very happy and enjoyable holiday.

KENNEDY-WILLIAMS WEDDING AT HEMMINGFORD

KENNEDY-WILLIAMS

The wedding of Beverly, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Williams of Hemmingford, to Mr. O. Wayne Kennedy, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Orville Kennedy of Cheyenne, Wyoming, took place on Saturday, July 14th, 1962, at St. Andrew's United Church, Hemmingford. The Reverend Gordon Ficko and Reverend C. Belbin officiated at the ceremony. Mrs. Halton Kennedy played the wedding music and Mr. Tom Miles sang 'The Lord's Prayer' and, during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk With God".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, looked radiant in a gown of imported, white silk organza and chantilly lace, an original design by Alfred Angelo. The fitted, empire jacket-style bodice of lace over organza, with long sleeves and sabrina neckline, was skirted with a wide flounce of silk organza, caught up here and there with dainty self roses; under this, the very full skirt of tiers of chantilly lace flowed gracefully into a chapel train. Her three-tiered veil of imported french silk illusion was held by a crown of Aurora-Borealis rhinestones, iridescent sequins and seed pearls and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and stephanotis.

Mrs. Marina Kreuzer, a close friend of the bride, as Matron of Honour, and the three bridesmaids, Louise Landry, Lois Kazulak and Ann Milroy, wore identical waitz-length gowns of cotillion blue silk organza with jackets of lace and tiny hats of flowers with a face veil, all in the same delicate shade of blue. They carried bouquets of pink and white carnations. The little flower-girl, Lynn Desilets, was a tiny replica of the bridesmaids in her dainty dress of blue, carrying a basket of pink, white and blue carnations. Little Daniel Henshaw proudly carried the rings on a white satin cushion bordered with bud roses.

Mr. Clifford Williams brother of the bride, was best man and the ushers were Max Prieve, Wayne Potvin and Peter Evenson.

The bride's mother, Mrs. Russell Williams, wore a gown of rose silk chiffon and lace with a white lace straw hat and accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

The groom's mother was unfortunately, unable to attend owing to illness, his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. T. V. Little of Williamsport, Penn., were present.

Following the ceremony, a reception for the 135 guests was held at the Frontier Inn. Mr. Jimmy Akester performed the duties of Master of Ceremonies and Mr. Arnold McNaughton played appropriate music.

Later the happy couple motored to the groom's home in Cheyenne to meet parents and relatives and while there, attended the 'Frontier Days' Rodeo and Parade.

For travelling the bride wore a pink linen sheath with matching lace jacket styled with a hood collar, and white accessories.

The bride was formerly in the Customs and Excise Department at Blackpool, while the groom is an Electrical Technician at the Missile Base at Ellenburg. Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy will reside in Plattsburg for the present.

Out of two guests came from Worcester, Mass., Rutland, Vt., New York, Rouses Point, Pennsylvania, Plattsburg, Montreal and Huntingdon.

Howick

bride's gifts to the bridesmaids were pearl necklaces.

The groom was attended by his brother, Chrisanto Ardanaz.

The bride's mother wore a champagne ensemble, wth black accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's mother wore a blue ensemble with a corsage of pink carnations.

The bridal party and some of the guests went to Montreal following the marriage ceremony where a religious service was held at Kingdom Hall. The officiating minister was Mr. J. Rhymer, assisted by Mrs. D. Feffer as interpreter.

A reception was held at Riverfield Curling Club which was attended by over 100 guests. Rev. Wm. Brown sang, "I'll Walk Beside You" accompanied by Mrs. T. Kerr.

The couple left on a wedding trip to Hampton Beach, the bride wearing a blue wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations. They will reside in Montreal.

Guests attending from a distance were from Chicoutimi, Ottawa, Buckingham, Staten Is., Coteau Station and Montreal.

At last good warm weather has arrived and the farmers are taking advantage of it. They are rushing through the harvesting operations. Unfortunately many fields still have much water lying on them, and the condition hampers operations in some places.

Rotarians Bid Farewell . . . .

McNee, but the first car that I came close to or touched was that of Sam Davis. That was a long time ago. His shop was also a meeting place of the clan in its day and many an argument arose. Later Daniel Walker had a feed shop where Primeau's Shop is today and established a good business among the neighbouring farmers.

About my first recollection of the Charlie Kyle Garage was that it was a garage and Ford Agency operated by B. W. Allen and later by Jack McCracken. The site of the B. A. Garage was the ruins of a building which had been burnt down some time previously. I may be in error, but I believe it was occupied by the Pringle & Stark Store and that there was a lodge room upstairs.

Many will remember the large Cooper house next to Mrs. Peters' The land was taken over by the Department of Roads and the house sold to Ernie Lefebvre's father. It was subsequently moved along and across the street and now owned by the Estate Clifford Booth.

About the time in question the Huntingdon Chateau was in process of being built, and the old Moir Hotel was standing. I have a vague recollection that when a license was obtained in the twenties a long shed or building was built at the back to house the drinkers many of whom came from New York State. The business was a bonanza at that time as New York State was dry. Eventually the drinking shed was sold to Joseph Langevin who established it at or near the corner of Cemetery and Chateauguay Streets as a garage.

The Beaulieu shop was a private house turned into a ladies' and men's wear operated by now a well known Lawyer in Montreal — Myer Gameroff, Q.C.

The O'Connor Hall was in operation when I came to Huntingdon and I can remember going to dances in the early twenties and dancing to "Bye, Bye Blackbird" by the Moonlight Serenaders. The orchestra composed of the Dixon Bros., Moore Kelly, Brady, Lloyd Kelly and Fleury was known for miles around as the outstanding dance orchestra.

The Fortune Drug Store was the private house of James Fortune, grandfather of Chick and Doug. Each night in the summer the ladies of the Gossip Club would meet on the gallery and ensconced in rocking chairs would recount all the latest town news.

I believe that there was a brick house back of the building owned by W. E. Lefebvre and his sons and in very early days Adelard Senecal operated a barber shop. This house I believe was incorporated in the present building.

In early days the Romeo Rabidoux building was the locale of the Tedstone Bake Shop and later by the bake shop operated by Z. Rousselle.

A book could be written about the owner of the Rolfe store, Mrs. Louisa McMillan. She had about three husbands before she finally faced her Maker and it was said that she drove them to their graves by constant bickering. She was a little deaf and it was delightful to hear one of them tell her off in no uncertain language. In the twenties it was occupied by Dixon Bros. as a general store W. E. Lefebvre, Paul's father, and later by Harry Zabitsky — Dave's father.

Further up the street, on the site of the Munro building, there was a small butcher shop operated by William Munro and later by Jack Gardgner.

One of the most interesting places on Chateauguay Street was the Blackman Hotel now the Riverside Apartments. In the early thirties one could get the odd drink from Blackie although it was against the law. I do not know where Blackie got his hootch but it sent you home talking to yourself.

Hunter Street, Prince Street and Wellington Street were much the same as now.

For many years the Charlie Lamb store was the only place in Huntingdon where one could buy fresh fruit and vegetables in the winter. Charlie had display counters for the fruit with a constant stream of water spraying over the produce. In those days most people bought their daily papers by the day as there were no carrier boys then and in the evenings Charlie's store was a busy place. In one of the back rooms a pinnochle game was in progress most of the time.

On York Street there were very few houses between Bouchette Street and the R. C. Church. Practically all of the street has been filled in with houses since that time. Houses of interest were those of William Laprade on the north side and Moise Derepentigny next to the Riel Garage. This was a meeting place for some of the boys during prohibition and many were the stories by Denis O'Connor, Jack Leahy, John Patterson, Neil O'Hare, etc., about happenings in that and other dispensaries.

The area occupied by Chalmers Street was a part of several acres of land owned by Tom Furey who lived at the corner of York and Cemetery Streets. Paul's father bought a strip of land from Dalhousie Street east and started to build houses. He supplied the cement while the town built the sidewalks and made the streets with the help of the Department of Roads. Later the balance of the street was opened to Cemetery Street which was soon built up.

Somerville Sreet and part of York Street West at that time was known as Smoke Pipe town, and occupied by Lefebvres', Varins', Galipeaus' and Ricards'. Most of the houses were shacks with a stove pipe as a chimney and it is interesting to see how they have gradually improved their social position and their living conditions.

To the west of Lake Street there were but a few houss along the west side of the street and the rest of the land was the David A. Macfarlane farm. It was in 1930 that steps were first taken to prolong Hunter Street to the Clyde line and it was several years afterwards before the lands between Hunter and Wellington Streets were subdivided. It was after the streets were laid out that several of us committed ourselves to purchase some seven or more prefabricated houses which were installed on Roosevelt and Churchill Streets. I was afraid that we were going to be stuck with them but eventually they were sold. Most of them have since that time been converted into more, respectable dwellings.

The fire station had just been completed when I took office in 1928. It was constructed by Arthur Elliott and James R. Tully at a cost of $10,560. and financed without the issue of bonds. The council members signed notes for several years, a procedure which was quite illegal, but eventually they made it with the help of a provincial grant. At that time the council was composed of D. J. O'Connor, Mayor, Aldermen John A. Hunter, Walter Brown, James Bicknell, Bill Derochie, Tom O'Hare and Dan Faubert.

John Macrow looked after the Town of Huntingdon and also acted as policeman for $2.55 per day in the winter and $2.75 per day in the summer. John did everything from digging drains, reparing sewers, making water connections, acting as police chief and fire chief. He did all the work now done by six town men, three policemen and one general utility man.

About 1930 a petition was received by the town to purchase the property of Zenophile Faille in front of the United Church. The town did not take the matter up but later the United Church bought the property and converted it into a park. The Provincial Government acquired the Findlay house in front of the Riverside apartments and the Cooper house so that all buildings were cleared from the river frontage from the Upper Bridge west to the Peters' property.

The member of the Provincial Parliament was the late Andrew Philps, who died in 1929. Christmas Trees were installed at the fountain each Christmas as far back as 1929, and in 1930 initial steps were taken to form the Chateauguay-Huntingdon Health Unit whose office is at Ste. Martine.

Light was furnished by the Beauharnois Electric Co., which was promoted by a man named Bowker. It was taken over about 1934 by the Shawinigan Water & Power Co.

The Baumert Milk Co., owned and operated the Huntingdon Woollen Mills building. They closed down shortly thereafter and a deal was made with Windsor Silk Mills Ltd. to operate in the building. This company carried on for a while but left us with bonds which we turned in for a small part of their face value. I think they went into bankruptcy. The coming of Huntingdon Woollen Mills Ltd. in the late thirties relieved the situation insofar as Board of Trade members and localities were concerned.

In 1931 the Post Office was built by a contractor named Daris. There were movies operated by Eric Shorey and the town dump was on the property owned by Clarkin at the west end of the town.

In 1932 the council made application for a grant of $6,150. to relieve the unemployment of the dirty thirties. A census showed 65 married men and 57 single men unemployed. Eventually a grant of $4,000, was received from the Government which was used for sewer works on Chateauguay Street. In 1934 a grant of $600.00 was received, one-third by each government and a further grant of $300.00 in 1934 in direct relief. In 1932 so many took out phones that Co. asked to approve a 30% reduction in rates.

The Registrar was J. C. Bruce who lived in the house next to the Chateau and the Secretary of Godmanchester and County Secretary was Thomas Furey.

"Going Away" party for Mr. and Mrs. Findlay

On Tuesday evening, August 21st, members of Candiac United Church and friends, numbering forty-one, met in the Community Hall to participate in a "Going Away" party for Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Findlay who will soon be leaving the town to take up residence in Toronto. Parties are usually happy occasions, but I am sure that an air of sadness prevailed at this party and friends were reluctant to bid good-bye to Bruce and Joyce who have been staunch supporters and capable leaders in the Church and the Community. The parting gift from the congregation was a lovely serving tray made of wood, brass and enamel, in Scandinavian design, and was presented to Mr. and Mrs. Findlay by the chairman of the board of Stewards, Mr. Dennis Thacker. Mr. Findlay suitably replied, giving a regime of his stay in Candiac and history of the church and its inauguration.

Mr. Findlay, an Elder of the Church, was first to promote the church group and was instrumental in organizing the United Church in Candiac which was dedicated last Spring.

Successful Blood Donor Clinic in Delson

A very successful Blood Donor Clinic was held in St. George's School in Delson, last Monday, August 20th. Donors from Delson, St. Constant and Laprairie gave one hundred and forty-five pints of blood. Sincere thanks is extended for the wonderful cooperation given by those who donated the precious gift of blood. Because of your generosity someone will live. Also, grateful thanks goes to the volunteer workers for their effort and time given so willingly, towards this good cause.

Robin Courchesne and his cousin, David Ball, were also anxious to help the Red Cross, and thought of a fund-raising plan which they talked over with Robin's mother, who approved, and consented to the boys using the play-room in which to show movie cartoons and to invite their friends to come along to the show, admission to be 10c. Robin and David, and David's sister, Gladys then worked on the invitations and preparation was made for the "Big Show" to take place from 8.00 p.m. until 9.30 p.m. Thursday evening, Aug. 23. Thirty-three children came along and each contributed a dime for the Red Cross. Robin told us, "We had two intermissions and served cool-ade and cookies, a different flavour each time." David and Robin proudly brought $5.00 to the campaign chairman on Friday morning.

A big "Thank You" to the children who thoughtfully planned, and to each and everyone who helped them by attending the show, and to Mummie for the cool-ade and cookies.

This corn roast is open to all members of the association over 16 years of age. This event is for adults only. Thought For Today

The more you say, the less people remember. The fewer words, the deeper the impression.

These are the days when the summer activies are coming to a close, and every youngster is having a real fling, before the opening of school, with parties galore. The days just don't seem to be long enough for them.

Master Kevin Crawford of Woodland's, entertained about twenty-five young guests, at a corn roast last Friday evening.

Also last week Master Ross Munro entertained at a corn roast which everyone enjoyed

Robin Burns, celebrated a birthday on Monday, many happy returns, Robin.

Also Johnny Moynahan celebrated a birthday on Monday. Best wishes to you.

W.R.A. News

The Ladies Meeting, which was held at the Club last Tuesday evening, August 21st, was well attended. Many things were discussed for the coming season. Mrs. Charlton, President announced that a bazaar will be held at the Club, November 14th. Any member wishing to donate to this affair, is asked to get in touch with her.

Wednesday, August 22nd, the Closing Tea was held at the Club. The drawing on the "Pay what you pull tickets" was held and the lucky winners were, 1st. Prize, Mr. Louis Mongeau; 2nd, Prize, Miss Carol Stark and 3rd, Prize, Mrs. C. Butler. Thanks go to Mrs. Betty Donohue and Mrs. Eileen Burns who served tea.

The Teenage Group held their last Splash Party on Friday evening. This was enjoyed by all. The Teens will be holding their Annual Dance at the Club, Friday evening, August 31st. The Club will be decorated with a Mexican theme in mind. Do hope all the boys and girls with their parents turn out for the last dance before going back to their studies.

This is the last Mother Goose Rhyme with its definition. Little Jack Horner, sat in a corner, eating a Christmas pie. He put in his thumb and pulled out a plum and said, 'What a good boy am I". Definition: — Henry VIII of England, father of Queen Mary 1st, caused the dissolution of the Monasteries, either utterly destroying same, or giving them away to his devfous friends. An Abbot of one of the Monasteries, to try and save some of these properties, had a huge pie baked and after it was cooked, placed the deeds of several Monasteries in it to hide them, and entrusted the pie to Jack Horner. This fellow had his suspicious, opened it and abstracted the deeds of Mell. The family to whom the deeds were given, hold the place, to this day. Once more I do wish to thank Mrs. Kathleen Harris, of Huntingdon for her notes on the Mother Goose Nursery Rhyms.

Congratulations, this week go to Mrs. Johnson Sr., of Bellevue, who landed a 9½ lb. Muskie while out trolling on Lake St. Louis, with her son Daniel. Mrs. Johnson and family are long time residents of Bellevue. The late Mr. Johnson was quite a fisherman and duck hunter over the years. It's nice to hear that Mrs. Johnson is still pretty good with line and reel in landing the big ones. Congratulations.

The Teenage Group were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodfellow last Saturday afternoon and evening at Outarde River Club, on the Ridge. They were transported by chartered bus. Swimming was the order of the day. Juicy hamburgers, corn on the cob and ice cream were enjoyed by the hungry teens. Many thanks to Mr. and Mrs. C. Goodfellow, Mr. and Mrs. F. Charlton, and Mr. Geo. Wegg for a wonderful day.

Mrs. Raymond, Chairman for the Ville de Lery Red Cross Blood Drive, which was held August 20th., wishes to thank the donors, the ladies who gave so freely of their time, the boys who helped to load and unload the equipment, and Mayor Turcot and Mrs. Turcot for their assistance in this very worthy cause. May I correct a mistake in last week's column. It was ninety donors instead of eighty-seven, the objective being 100. Do hope next time, the objective will be reached in our fair town.

Town Meeting

With Labor Day week-end coming up, the General Town meeting will be held on Friday, September 7th. In the months following, it will be held on the first Monday in the month. Do hope many will attend these meetings through the fall and winter months.

Looking Back into the Past

"Kay Tremblay and Margot Cronk, invite you to visit "Les Galets". In this delightful old house built in 1785. You find French Canadian old pine, glass, china, wrought iron and inexpensive gift items." I drove up the Bellevue Station Road toward the Chateauguay River, and decided to accept the invitation. Little did I realize as I turned in the gate, that I was entering another era, that of the Pioneer. I was greeted at the door by Mrs. Margot Cronk, a delightful unassuming person, and Michelle, her grey poodle. As I was there to obtain information I started by asking my hostess if she was Canadian. I learned that she and her partner in this "Antique Shop" were both from Blackpool, England and married Canadian Officers during the Second World War, and came thence to this country. Mrs. Kay Tremblay, an accomplished actress, was associated in England with the A.R.A.D.A. and in Montreal with M.R.T., Mountain Playhouse, T.V. and Radio, and can presently be seen at 'La Poudrier" on St. Helen's Island. I was delighted with the Shop, and its antiques, which are mostly Canadian and artistically arranged. I was fascinated by the dramatic lighting effects which displayed the glassware, amidst the churns, maple sugar molds, flat irons and stone jugs. I seemed to smell the scent of sandalwood — all of which added to this century old atmosphere.

I was asked if I would care to see through this early French Canadian stone house, built almost 200 years ago, by two brothers by the name of Primeau and still in its original state. I eagerly accepted and we climed the cellar steps. The living room was charming. As my eyes swept the room, I saw floors of handmade pine planks, casement windows set in a 2½ foot stone wall, some of the panes being the original hand blown glass, cedar beams, and forged rat tail hingers, rearely seen nowadays, as this method was replaced by a more modern one in 1830. A stone fireplace and on the mantel stood a clock of Marie Antoinettes Court and a hand carved Florentine Mirror that seemed to reflect some of the past of this beautiful old house. I could almost imagine a Loyalist family sitting down to dinner at that old pine table, and eating game from that traditional set of blue dinnerware of E. Woods Scenery, which now rested on the shelves in the corner. Close by stood a lamp that had been in their family for a number of years. The shade was a "Will" that had been obtained from a Barrister written on parchment in a manner typical of an age of quilled pens, and great family seals. The lining of a cupboard took my eye. Someones ingenuity had livened up the wall with menus from the first Saguenay Cruise, using them as wallpaper, with pictures of Radisson, Wolfe, and Montcalm. The kitchen was efficient, but quaint with an open brick hearth, decorated with carved pine utensils, and the ever present spinning wheel. I was curious to know about the two articles which stood next to the old Quebec mantle clock. My hostess informed me they were a jug and salt dish of unpolished pewter, made about Cromwell's time, which she brought from England. Upstairs I noticed how low the ceilings were. Just one more thing which added to the authenticity of the age of this house. Most of the furniture was pine, spindle beds, wash stands, towel holders, bric-a-brac and hooked rugs. I asked about the name of the house "Les Galets". Mrs. Cronk bade me come outside. She took me through the garden, which seemed so peaceful and quiet except for a noise which I was trying to distinguish. As we approached its source, I saw the Chateauguay River, and a small waterfall. She said to me, "Do you see those pebbles that form the falls? That's "Les Galets", we turned and walked slowly back to the house, and I just bathed in the wonder of this historic place. I was told the reason the house faced the river, was that this was their only means of transportation, when it was first built, as there were no roads.

By now, I was almost living in the past and I dared not look back at the river, for I might have imagined a Voyageur and his canoe passing by. There I was saying good-bye, and passing through these gates, which would take me back into the 20th century again, with an open invitation to return anytime.

The great moment arrived at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Aug. 25th, when all our not so patient youngsters had their first opportunity to test the new pool. Everyone seems to agree it is 'A 1 excellent' and already plans are being made to commence swimming lessons. Weather permitting the pool will be open from 3 p.m. onwards during the month of September.

The Chateauguay Centre United Church was very pleased to welcome Miss McCullargh, deaconess of St. James United Church and director of Christian education there. Miss McCullargh, who gave a most thought provoking sermon, was assisted by three members of the youth group in leading the service. After serving our church the group went to Caughnawaga to conduct the service there. Next Sunday, Sept 2nd, we will be welcoming Rev. Ken Purdon and his family home.

As most of you know Rev. John Buck and his wife returned home after a three-week stay in England. After speaking to Mrs. Buck and hearing about their holiday I think I could safely say few people could pack as much into a short holiday as they did. Briefly here are some of the places they visited. The trip commenced with a two-day stay in Oxford where their guide (a frien of the family) who was both educated and now "educates" in this fair city gave them a fully conducted tour of the most interesting places. The age of all the buildings and the very narrow side streets proved to be most impressive. Following this came two days in Coventry where our friends were greatly impressed with the beauty of the new Cathedral which is actually joined to the shell and spire of the old one. Then came a three- day stay at Cheltenham, Gloucestershire, famous for its mineral waters. Here Rev. Buck was asked to preach at the evening service. Next came a one week stay in Cornwall and then the last week was spent in London. Here, among many other things, they fed the pigeons in Trafalgar Square, attended services in Westminster Abbey, St. Martins and St. Pauls, where they whispered in the whispering gallery and climbed the tiny twisting staircase to the very top to see the wonderful view of London, which rather compares with climbing to the top of St. Joseph's Oratory, only there is no escalator in St. Pauls. A trip down the Thames was squeezed into this fairly busy holiday also a concert at the Royal Albert Hall, a ballet in the Festival Hall and a Broadway Show which has been running in London for two years. The highlight of this trip (as one may guess) was the half day spent in Canterbury Cathedral which is situated in the 'country known as 'The Garden of England' — namely Kent.

Mrs. Buck was most impressed with all the lovely walks and the many footpaths in the country. In fact she was so impressed she literally wore out a pair of shoes while there, with so much walking.

A gay week-end was spent in New York by Mrs. Ryner, Mrs. Williams and their girl friend. They planned to trip of sightseeing the less well-known places. As Mrs. Williams had a friend to look after her young ones on Monday, and I had Perry and Rony Ryner, the girls were able to make it a three day trip.

We join together in wishing Mr. Frank Shtyka, of Vimy, a speedy recovery, everyone was very sorry to hear you have been ill Frank.

A Thought for your Week

Never consider any good thought to have been wasted, for a seed must have been on the spot where a flower blooms.

OIL-SCENTED DRAWERS

For sweet-scented lingeries and linens, rub the insides of chests and drawers with cotton batting soaked in oil lavender, pine or lemon. To be effective, the rubbed surface must be unfinished sanded wood. Repeat the treatment each fall.

Nitro News

(Mrs. E. St. Onge)

All of Nitro was shocked last week when the news of the "cave-in" in Valleyfield reached us and we learned that one of the men killed was the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Felix Bergeron as the Bergeron family have lived here for many years. Our sincere sympathy to his wife, Mrs. Omer Bergeron and his parents and the rest of the family.

Our congratulations to Mr. Jean-Claude Benjemin, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Benjemin, whose marriage to Miss Rollande Lemieux, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Lemieux of Valleyfield, took place at Valleyfied Cathedral last Saturday morning.

Friday evening, the Misses Judy and Debbie Champ were joint hostesses to a number of their young friends who were invited to a house party. By all accounts they all enjoyed themselves.

Saturday evening the French Teenagers were wending their way to the home of Norman Gauthier where they too no doubt had a good time.

Haven't been talking to Mrs. Jim Halliday — I expect she has found too many things to do, now she can bend again — but I was so glad to hear from Linda that the six weeks were up last Friday, and the body cast was off. Do hope in due time she will be well and strong again.

For some years now, the month of August has been a busy one for the Noel Savole family but this year things were just a bit more in a turmoil! To begin with, Johnny has a birthday on the fourth. This year a new baby brother arrived as a birthday present! His Mother had a cake all in readiness for him but a neighbour just around the corner didn't know that. She had to make a cake for her own boy that day so made an extra one for Johnny. Some boys don't even get one cake, thanks to Mrs. Young Johnny had two this year! Then on the twelvth, little Claire also had a birthday. This is not the last of the birthdays tho! Peter was celebrating on the twentieth and his party was a big one as his little brother was also baptized that day. Canon Tessier officiating and the baby was given the name Jacques. His godparents were old friends of the Savole family from Quebec City who haven't had a visit for over a year, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Cauchy. The Bearer was another old friend, from Valleyfield, Mrs. Antonio Leduc.

Last Tuesday evening Mrs. Elson had quite a time getting her daughter over for a cup of tea! Mrs. Furlong and daughter, Ann — Mrs. B. Campbell — had planned a surprise "Baby Shower" for Beryl — Mrs. George MacDonald — but her husband had gone out and as she didn't want to leave little Penny alone, she took her time going over to her Mother's not knowing that a group of her friends were waiting for her! When she finally did arrive she was very surprised to find more than a cup of tea waiting for her. She received many lovely gifts for the wee one — who by the way is taking its own time to arrive.

And talking about Surprise parties — It's going some when you get wind of a party for a good friend who is leaving and you are all in readiness to do your share and then just a couple of days before she leaves, this time SHE being Blanche Latour, you say to her thay it's darned funny with all the surprise parties she has helped with, that she didn't have one. I usually know when parties are on the way with having all the cards, paper, ribbon, etc. but didn't see any so I knew there had been none of the usual going away party. Well I found out she did have a party — thank goodness for, that — but another time when a private party is being planned for goodness sakes I hope someone will let the cat out of the bag soon enough so that the rest of us can go ahead and have a party also. I'm not the only one who found out too late!

School Bus Transportation

Arrangements have been completed to provide school bus transportation for those pupils whose parents have elected to have this service. The period to permit additional parents to elect to have this service for their children is re-opened and extended to September 10th.

For property owners, charges for school bus transportation for their children will be levied by a special assessment on their regular school tax bills. For tenants, these assessments must be paid directly to the office of the Secretary-Treasurer. Rates are $20.00 per annum for one child, $30.00 per annum if there is more than one child in a family being transported. Except for children displaced due to overcrowded conditions in one elementary school and transferred, therefore, to another, there will be no exemption from paying the transportation charge.

Until such time as the distribution of pupils in the various areas of transportation is accurately known, a permanent schedule can not be made. But bus passes will be issued and go into effect on Sept. 10th. In the interim period bus pick ups will be made as follows:

Louis Beauvais Wins I.A.C. Golf Trophy

The weatherman didn't hurt the quality or the quantity at the 27th annual tournament of the Montreal Automotive Trade Association golf tournament at the Lachute layout on August 21st.

Providing the class of the event was Louis Beauvais, a long-hitting performer, who captured the Industrial Acceptance Corporation Trophy honor with a two-under-par 70. Beauvais, who is with Chateauguay Motors, found everything to his liking. He was hitting straight and true on the rain-soaked course and didn't have a bad hole all the way. He is a regular member of Belleview GC at Chateauguay.

As for the quantity, the members came out in record numbers. "We had a turnout of 221," said J. R. Wilhelmy, president of Wilhelmy Automobile and president of the Association. "This is the largest field in the long history of the tournament and we had another 50 more attend the dinner," he added.

Bert Barnabe, one of the district's better amateur golfers and head of Barnabe Motors, finished as third best of the day to cop the General Motors Trophy.

The Children's Corner

Fur, Fun and Feathers

Hello boys and girls. Here I am back again to start another season of little stories just for you. I do hope you all had a wonderful summer. This season I thought you would like to read about the habits of the North American Animals, where they live and what they do. I do hope you will get pleasure from them. Our first story will be about the Grizzly Bear. He is called the "Lord of the Woods". Now how can a traveller in the woods distinguish between a black bear and a grizzly?

The lumberjacks recommend irritating the beast and make it climb a tree. If the animal settles down for a wait at the trunk, it's a grizzly. If it climbs the tree with squirrel-like swiftness, it's a black bear. Besides, the grizzly has a sprinkling of silver-tipped hairs on its coat, and is usually larger. In fact, it is the biggest carnivore on earth and fears nothing, except another grizzly and man. When, on the old Spanish ranches in California, a particularly fierce bull was bred, the caballeros trapped a grizzly and at the fiesta arranged for an arena fight between the bull and the bear. More than once a bull's neck was cracked with the very first blow of the grizzly's paw. It will carry a two hundred pound deer under its arm, but will not attack man unless it is cornered. In that case it will maul and kill the hunter, but it does not eat him. Its diet is similar to that of the black bear, but some old grizzlies acquire a taste for moose and cattle. There have been bounties of $1,000 on the head of certain vicious individual marauders. They inhabit the remote mountain wilderness from Alaska to Utah. They are very rare in the U.S. but a little more numerous in Canada. During hibernation one to four small cubs are born.

Mrs. Jane Bond of Oliver Avenue is motoring to Quebec City on Sunday accompanied by her son in order to attend the wedding of her grandson, Patrick Labrecque. The marriage will take place on Monday at 9.30 a.m. Patrick is the son of Mrs. Bond's son-in-law the late Dr. Honorias Labrecque and her daughter Mrs. Labrecque, formerly of St. Isidore, Dorchester County, now of Quebec City.

Banquet For Pre-Opening Of Rustik's New "Bistro"

(By C. A. Brunette)

On Thursday night, August 23rd, Mr. Gerard Bourdon, the owner of the Rustik restaurant in Chateauguay gave a banquet for the pre-opening of his new Lounge "The Bistro".

Present were members of the Press and representatives of several Radio Stations. The "Bistro" is a French Lounge, decorated to Mr. Bourdon's specifications drawn from an exact plan obtained in Paris, France, while on his trips there.

This beautiful Salon has been built so well, that you can't help but feel a warm French atmosphere in entering it. The inside is of an immaculate white with intermittent gold stripes.

The furniture is of a French Colonial style, with white and gold designs. The bar is actually a French Colonial window with dark mahogany shutters very smartly located in a white brick wall.

Well so far for designs and styles, now let's talk about the excellent "French cuisine" that was prepared by the Rustik's famous Chef Paul Saccaggi. There was his "Coq a la Bourgogne" with some "Cognac Flambe" and delicious "macco wine" and for dessert a "Parfait a la Menthe" was served. There were also other fine "French foods."

All in all the Rustik's Bistro is the finest and the only French Lounge on the South Shore.

The supper over Mr. Bourdon was asked to comment on his new establishment. This fine answer was what he gave us and I quote "The reason I am opening this new addition to the Rustik is to be able to give the public and my fine clients a greater choice of delicious foods and something different in Quebec "La belle Provivince."

DANCE AND CORN ROAST.

Saturday nights Dance and Corn Roast, put on by the Parkview Women's Club, was a tremendous success. There was a jam packed crowd of nearly 300. Everyone there really enjoyed themselves. The corn and coffee served by the women was more than delicious, it was lovely. After quite a bit of dancing a sing-song developed.

The party started with the 'Hokey Pokey' and some of the top song hits included the ever popular 'Where have you been Chairlie Boy' and 'How are you feeling, Tom'.

Much of the success of this dance belongs to the Dance Committee led by Gladys Lee, Audrey Scott, Jeannie Bushe, Bella Powell, Babs Quenneville, Jean Roberts, and Vera Miller.

Jan Haynes was Master of Ceremonies and John Roberts was in charge of the Dance Music.

The winner of the "40 Raffle" was Mrs. Marcel Gagnon of Ste Philomene. Parkview Women's Club wishes to Thank everyone for making this dance such a tremendous success. We are sorry that the seating arrangement was not adequate as we had twice as many people as expected, however we promise, next time, we will be prepared. Thank You.

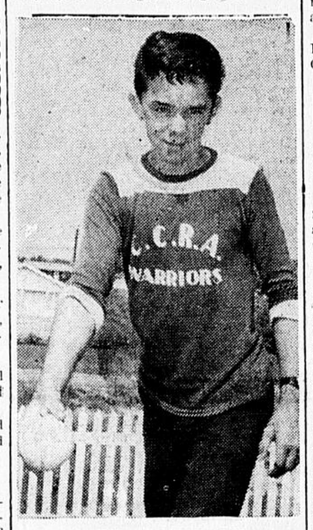
CHATEAUGUAY SPORTS ROUND UP

(by JOHN McDONALD)

The highlights of the semi-final playoffs in Minor Softball this past week came to fore in the Bantam Series (A) between West End and the C.C.R.A. The first game saw the C.C.R.A. lads go down to their first defeat of the season in dropping a 7 to 5 decision to the West End lads; but the real drama in this series was yet to come. In the second game young Michel Bedard took to the mound for the C.C.R.A. crew, faced with elimination if he did not produce, and produce he did by pitching a no run no hit near perfect game for a convincing 4 to 0 victory. Fourteen year old Michel who has just enrolled as a 9th Grade Science student at the St. Clement College in Beauharnois allowed only 2 men to reach first base, one a walk, the other on an error; the young lad who reached first on the error was quickly eliminated when picked off trying to steal second facing only 22 boys while striking out 10 and allowing only one walk showed the remarkable control this young lad displayed through the game.



MICHAEL BEDARD
Pitched 2 games on week-end, one no hitter and one single.
(Photo By Larry Cowper)

All the drama in this series was not yet over, in the third and deciding game, played a little over 4 hours later, young Michel Bedard was again on the mound for C.C.R.A. and again young Michel came through admirably by pitching and hitting his team to a 5 to 2 victory and the series. In this game the extreme heat and the pressure of the previous game showed a little on Michel, but he paced himself brilliantly and bore down only when the situation warranted it. Twice in this game young Michel loaded the bases on walks only to bear down and retire the side. West End's first run came on two walks and two errors, their second on a walk and a clear cut double to centerfield, the only hit and the only ball to be hit out of the infield by the West End lads of Michel's pitching in two consecutive games. Besides his phenomenal pitching performance in these two games young Michael collected a pair of singles in the first game and a single and a towering home run in the second game, this reporter offers the heartiest congratulations to Michel Bedard for his remarkable pitching performance this past Saturday, to the other members of the C.C.R.A. for the fine brand of ball they displayed and to the young lads of West End who went down fighting as true sportsmen.

One of the finest and emotional speeches this reporter has ever heard a coach make to his team after a game was the one coach Ray Leduc made to his boys after Saturday morning's win over West End, first he congratulated the boys for the fine game they played, then he mentioned that the new swimming pool at the Chateauguay Park was to be opened that afternoon and asked the boys as a favour to him would they please refrain from going swimming and stay home and rest up for the game this afternoon and summing up said and I quote "Im real proud of you, real, real proud of you". Those that were close enough to hear and see Ray speak to his lads will bear me out when I say that these were words packed with emotion and came from the heart of a coach and father who has sacrificed a great deal of his spare time in teaching the lads on his team to be not only fine ball players but real fine little gentlemen, seldom if ever will you see Ray complain over an umpire's decision during a ball game and this fine sportsmanship manner has paid off handsomely by rubbing off on the young members of his team.

The other semi finals went as follows:

West End took the series in the Mosquito A section two games to 0 defeating C.R.V.C. 9 to 8 and 31 to 25. In series B the Gardens took their series 2 games to 0 defeating the Terrace 10 to 5 and 14 to 7.

In the Pee Wee section series A, C.C.R.A. took the series 2 games to 0 11 to 10 ad 17 to 15. In series B, C.R.V.C. defeated Imperial Gardens 19 to 18 and 28 to 27 after loosing the opener 23 to 11.

Bantam series B, C.R.V.C. versus 4 H Club as yet incompleted due to second game protest to the League First game 4H Club 15 C.R.V.C. 5.

Midget series A, Terrace took series 2 games to 0 defeating C.R.V.C. 5 to 1 and 20 to 7. In series B. St. Joachim took the series 2 games to 0 defeating West End 18 to 2 and 19 to 5.

Midget Girls Series A, Chateauguay Park too tht series 2 games to 0 defeating C.R.V.C. 24 to 4 in the first game and winning the second game 1 to 0, when the C. R.V.C. team refused to play after the first inning. In series B. C.C R.A took the series 2 games to 0 defeating West End 18 to 12 and 28 to 9.

Next week will see the finals completed and Champions crowned. In the Mosquito division West End will tee off against the Gardens, while in the Pee Wee division C. C.R.A. will square off against C. R.V.C. The CCRA Bantam will have to tight and wait for the outcome of the protested game beween C.R.V.C. and the 4H Club. St. Joachim and the Terrace will be squaring off in the midget section, The Midget Girls will see Chateauguay Park scoring off against C.C.R.A.

C.H.O.A. Executive Holds Meeting Discuss Many Projects

(By Mrs. Elvi Vetland)

The first meeting of the season was held by the executive board of the Chateauguay Home Owners Association, at the home of the President, Mr. Roy Vetland. Mr. Earl Murphy acted as Secretary in the absence of the vacationing Mrs. Yvonne Rockwell. After a brief discussion of the minutes of the last meeting, held in May, the gentlemen got down to the business of making plans for the coming year.

The Sports Committee have been very pleased with the summer activities and are looking forward to another successful season of winter sports. Improvements on rink facilities are being planned and here it must be noted that this year, rules regarding hockey and pleasure skating will be strictly enforced.

There was also a discussion on a new form of touch football. This will be investigated by our Sports Chairman, Mr. Pat D'Arcy and it is hoped that by autumn 1963, the game will be played here. It is well known that doctors have advocated that the present form of football is far too rough (many parents agree with his too!) and this new game eliminates the possibility of injuries because there is no tackling. As time, goes on, more news on this will be made available.

The softball playoffs will end by Labor Day week-end and the C.H.O.A. urge all members, particularly families of participating players, to go to the games and support our teams.

It was also decided that the C.H.O.A. will donate a trophy to the Chateauguay Minor Sports Association.

The shack on the rink site on Langlois Street is in need of repairs and the Rink Committee will be calling on volunteers for Assistance in a clean-up campaign.

The Entertainment Committee is planning to hold several dances this year; the first one to be held within a few weeks time. Further details will be forth-coming as they are made available.

The Civic Action League will request a meeting with Mayor Joe Laberge and District Aldermen, Mr. W. Sottioux and Mr. Bert Oliver to talk over the possibility of the Town providing swings, benches, etc., for our new park site. It has long been the dream of C.H.O.A. to provide complete playground facilities and it is hoped the Town can cooperate to make this dream a reality.

The matter of proper First-Aid training for our Police Force will also be taken up with the Town.

The gentlemen of the executive board expressed the hope that all members of the C.H.O.A. will continue their support of the Association and all are looking forward to a very successful year.

The meeting adjourned at 10:30 P.M.

Keep The Labor Day Weekend Safe For Everyone

Labor Day week-end accounts for more accidental deaths than any other long week-end, warns the All Canada Insurance Federation.

Officials of the Federation, which represents 220 fire, automobile and casualty insurance companies said the accidental death toll could reach the 100 mark and urged Canadians to take particular care over the forthcoming holiday.

Larger than usual numbers of tourists and families returning home for the beginning of the school year make highway driving more hazardous than at any other time. The week-end also is marred by increased numbers of drownings and other water accidents as people enjoy the last few days of summer relaxation.

Federation officials recommended the following trips for accident prevention over the holiday:

1) Boat operators and swimmers should take special precautions; lakes will be crowded and accident possibilities high.
2) Never swim alone, or in weedy regions or rapid streams.
3) When using any boat, or punt make certain all occupants are wearing effective life preservers, properly tied.
4) For the trip home, split the journey into easy stages and take frequent rest stops.
5) Make certain that any equipment carried on the car top is securely tied down.
6) On the open highway, don't fall behind the flow of traffic or attempt to pass it; keep up with it.
7) Reduce speed at night to compensate for poor visability.
8) Choose a route you know in preference to one you've never travelled.
9) Watch out for other drivers who may be in too much of a hurry.
10) Plan your trip to allow time for traffic congestion and maintenance of a safe driving speed.

Chateauguay Aquatic Club Corn Boil

Now that the paddling season is over preparations for next year are beginning. The first step taken was the formation of a junior committee which is comprised of seven boys and three girls. Their objective is to raise enough money during the fall and winter to buy new canoes and paddles since our present canoes are out-moded. This is going to be quite an undertaking, for these canoes are very expensive, for instance the war canoe, which we are in great need of costs $1,400 plus shipping costs. We also need four boats, tandems and singles which range between $300, and $600. They would also like to alter the present club-house or otherwse build a new one

At the second meeting of the committee it was decided that a CORN BOIL will be held at the Chateauguay Aquatic Club, on Saturday, Sept. 1st and there will also be dancing.

TAXPAYER SUFFERS

Unfortunately, municipal taxes will rise in future years. There is no magic source of income and many voters fail to heed the implication that they and their fellow residents are going to pay the piper. Pity the poor taxpayer. — Fort Frances (Ont.) Times.

HUNTINGDON

In 1820 the sole indications of life on the site of the future village, were the sawmill of the Percy brothers at the upper bridge and the house of Palmer at the head of the rapids. These were the only openings in the forest, and beneath its shade the Chateauguay flowed in silence, unfretted save, at long intervals, by the ripple of the canoe of some lonely dweller on its banks as he journeyed to visit a neighbor equally isolated, or broken by a raft that glided, ghostlike, with its current to the St Lawrence. The end of the days of desolation were at hand; the dark curtain of the woods was to be rolled aside and life and activity break the silence and stagnation of ages. The Chateauguay, where it sparkled over limestone-ledges for nearly a half-mile, marked out the site of a village as a distributing-centre for the settlements that immigration now assured would spring into being, and it so happened that ti preceded them. Huntingdon was an outgrowth from Dalhousie settlement, one of its visitors, John Hunter, becoming its founder. His eldest son, John, told me thus how it came to pass:

In January, 1821, I accompanied my father from Montreal to Dalhousie settlement, the purpose of our journey being to select a lot. We put up at David Brown's house, where I stayed, my father and James Brown, who professed to act for the government, going across the country to the Chateauguay to see the land there, and where he selected lot 17 (Major Whyte's), and returned to the city. I stayed with the Browns until March, when my father came back with two train loads, comprising the outfit and provisions needed for settlement. Along with him, was a French Canadian, Joe, whom he had hired to help in clearing the land. Starting through the bush, we reached the Chateauguay, and the 5 of us, (for the teamsters helped, and we all had exes) set to work at once in felling trees. It was near 3 o'clock in the afternoon when we began, and soon after dark we had the frame of a shanty up, 12 x 14 feet, and piling into it hemlock boughs for beds, slept sound all night, warmed by a fire, which had a big back-log to prevent its setting fire to the wall. Next morning my father went up to the sawmill owned by the Percy brothers (James, Robert, and David) and bought a load of boards, so that when we completed the walls of the shanty, we closed it in and made it comfortable. The following day, father left with the two traineaux for Montreal, and Joe and I had to shift for ourselves. Our only neighbors, beside the Percys, were Palmer and Pollica. Three weeks after, William Allan came up from Montreal, by way of Dalhousie settlement, and finding his way out to us by the Teafield, he stayed all that summer. He was a hearty man and a good singer of Scotch songs, and we enjoyed ourselves very much, the novelty of our situation not having worn away. Mrs. Pollica baked our bread, and we managed the rest of the cooking. Louis Pollica came the same spring as we did, and with an old man, Dumourier, lived in a shanty beside the mouth of Cowan creek. They were poor and lived by day's work. After a while, when immigrants came thick, Pollica kept a sort of a tavern, though whisky was all he could give them. Late in April father paid us a visit, walking along the Chateaugay from the Basin, and by which time Joe and I had a piece chopped. Father was a great walker, and thought nothing of going to the city in a day, his only rest that while crossing the St. Lawrence. After remaining a week, he went back to Montreal, taking Joe with him who was to return, but he did not, so Mr. Allan and I passed the summer alone. We missed Joe, who was a good fellow and spoke fair English. While high water lasted, the river was full of rafts, and during that time we had no lack of of company. In May father started from Montreal to Lachine with 20 bushels of potatoes and 2 of wheat, which he placed on a bateau for Laguerre, where he hired an old Yankee, Hosea Shaw, to draw them to our shanty, which he did on a sled, dragged over mere tracks that wound through the forest, by a yoke of oxen. The potatoes and wheat we put in the ground we had cleared. Father had brought with him the plan of a house, and from looking at it had no idea of what it would be, or he never would have used it. He gave out the job to Bob Barter, and saw his mistake when the frame was ready to be raised. There not being men enough at hand to raise it, a messenger was sent up Trout river, and two or three came from even across the Lines. When the frame was up, the men all got dead drunk. The house was 30 x 40 feet, and two and a half stories high. My father called it "Hunter's Folly," and the name stuck to it. To complete it, lime had to be burned and a kiln of bricks for the chimneys. Its cost was not the worst part, for it proved to be so cold that it was uninhabitable, and we had to partition off a part for living in during the winter. When we came, there was no house between Dewittville and Huntingdon, except the shanty of a German, Jacob Suttle, on the point of lot 10. He was seldom at home, however, for he and his son Henry were generally in the woods, either hunting or making potash. At Dewittville John Todd had a sawmill, and when the emigrants began to come in thick kept a house of entertainment, such as it was. Macaulay of Glengarry was lumbering on a large scale, getting most of his pine on Trout river from Ford's rapids to Barlow's. Much was also taken from the ridge that extends from Biggar's to New Ireland. Oak was getting scarce, and what there was, was manufactured into staves for the West Indian market, and were worth from $36 to $40 a thousand. Much white ash was split for ship's oars. There were a number besides Macaculay, who lumbered, of whom two, Thomas Fingland and Kent Wright, had good large shanties. Judge Brown, an American, contracted with the British government to get out masts, and I have seen them taken out 90 feet long. Opposite Dr. Shirriff's place, where the bank is cut down, (cadastral No. 235) there was a small clearance made by lumbermen to form their rafts. It was hard work, for the men had often to work up to the waist in icecold water, but they liked it, on account of the excitement and high wages. The custom was to have a bucket of whisky, on the bank, to which a raftsman, when inclined, would go, dip up a tinful, and return to his work.

Les Fermieres

Les Fermieres de St. Joachim held their annual exhibition in the Parish Hall last week-end. From among 50 members, 25 exhibited work that had been done during the year. It is surprising how much work 25 ladies can turn out. There were braided rugs, needlepoint pictures, paintings by number, knitting, sewing and many items too numerous to mention. There was also an exhibit of home cooking, garden produce, and flower arrangements. Sunday night the food was auctioned off much to our surprise and delight. We are already looking forward to next year's display.

Sports

We note a new sports interest lately-namely soccer. The children are getting a big "kick" out of it. Must get down next week to watch a practice. These are being held at the foot of St. Maurice St., where a new back stop has been erected. Several fathers are giving up their time to this. Messrs. Trottier, Bache, Brown, Muir, Leroux and Mr. Sylvestre have been giving up a good deal of time for these youngsters, but I feel sure their reward is in the enthusiasm they get from these young boys.

Softball News

Last Sunday the Ladies beat the men for the Championship 10-9 on a last inning rally that had the men befuddled. The ladies trotted out on the field resplendent in their new uniforms and their play matching their outfits, in a word 'Sharp'. The men played well the first part of the game but couldn't stand the heat and the relentless pressure the women applied in the latter stages of the game. The men were without the services of ace pitcher Frank Smith who had a bad case of pleds froids and his place on the mound was taken by Bert Taylor who ccouuldn't quite cope with the situation plus the fact that his mates behind him gave him as much support as an old girdle. Vi Barclay and Tony Bedard shired mound duties for the ladies and pitched exceptionally well and they received good suport from the infielders especially at short stop. Tony Bedard hit a tremendows home run in the direction of the shopping plaza that kept the big rally going in the last inning so all in all Tony was the big star of the day offensively and defensively. Members of the winning team were. T. Bedard, V. Barclay, H. Young, L. Dooley, H. Deacon, M. Hill, V. Fairbrother, A. Taylor, Pat Shaw. We hope to have a picture of the champs in next week's issue of your favorite weekly. Fans can also get a copy of this picture by sending ten large dandelion roots and chick-weed to match to Jim Barclay. We wish to congratulate the winners and also thank our many fans for their fine atendance and cooperation. Also many thanks to Jack Petrille, our local landscaper for umpiring a very unbiased game. Jack is also general manager and coach of the ladies team.

Hi Neighbours!

We are slightly reminiscent of when many of us moved in over four years ago when we watch progress in the Crown Home Development. No street lights; when it rains nothing but mud; quite a lonely feeling at night. Well, we made a trip up that way last Thursday afternon when we realized that two homes are now occupied. We would like to welcome into our midst, Mr. and Mrs. R. Willard and their 17 month-old little girl. Also welcome to Mr. and Mrs. R. Mirrette and their two little girls. We hope they will be able to join in on some winter activities and soon forget that they pent a few weeks quite on their own up the hill. We intend to make another trip next week to see if there are any more newcomers.

Catholic School Information

The parents of children entering first grade in both Marguerite Bourgeois and St. Jude Schools received papers consisting at Registration Form. Detailed list of school supplies immediately needed, and a Calendar of the days the child will be attending school. It is quite evident that the Principal, Mrs. M. d'Anjou, in a very difficult and trying situation is certainly doing her utmost to ease the burden for the parents and is attempting to have a smooth running year ahead.

Les Loisirs

Elsewhere in this newspaper you will see a detailed list of forthcoming activites to be conducted by Les Loisirs de St. Joachim de Chateauguay. Show your interest early by giving the Representatives a call in which ever sport you might be interested. They will give you more information. This is our recreation centre, let's make it a successful one as it affects the youngsters who will eventually be our citizens. We should set them an example of healthy, active living.

Birthday

Little Joanne Boudreault of St. Jude St., was six years old Monday, August 27th, and celebrated on Sunday with some of her friends. Red Cross Campaign

The recent campaign was organized for Imperial Gardens Development by Mrs. Boudreault and Mr. Desrosiers. The helping hands were Mesdames Nielson, H. Laberge, Graham, Wilkes, Richey, Brunet, Jerome, Campbell, Lamarche, M. Pitre, Martin and P. Roy. An amount of approximately $128.00 was realized just for this area. In keeping with the Red Cross Campaign some young boys in the area sold Kool-Aid last Thursday and raised an additional $1.20. Good work everyone! The ambitious boys were, Mitchel Lamanque, David Brown, Barry and Wayne Skelhorne, David Ellis, Mark and John Stafford and Matthew Brown.

Textile Production Shows Increase

Canadian textile mills shipped more fabrics of man-made fibre during June than in the previous month or the corresponding month of last year.

Figures released today by the Man-Made Textiles Association show that domestic mills shipped 16,420,000 square yards of fabric in June, compared with 14,010,000 in May. Shipments in June of 1961 totalled 14,481,000 square yards. During the first six months of 1962, shipments have totalled 77,417,000 square yards, an increase over the total of 71,474,000 for the comparable period last year.

Well here I am again folks and this week I have a bit of news.

Dances

Well there have been several dances since I last reported, and the dances at Seigniory Park have been getting steadily better and the Wanderers are doing a fine job of supplying the music.

The Twist Contest which has been going on for the past several weeks at Seigniory Park came to an end this Friday with Donna Bertwhistle and Micheal Trickey winning the Twist Contest. Mr. Bell presented Donna and Micheal with two beautiful trophies to show their championship.

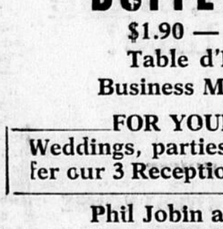
In the near future there will be another contest but as yet no specific contest has been named. Anyone with any suggestions drop them in the suggestion box outside Seignior Park.

The dance at the Chateauguay Heights Recreation Club, on Saturday night, was a success and the Wanderers did a swell job of supplying the music.

Two dances are being held this week-end and they will be, Seigniory Park on Friday night and the Chateauguay Heights Recreation Club. The Wanderers will supply the music at both these dances so come along, bring your friends and have a ball.

Birthdays

Several people have celebrated their birthdays during the past couple of weeks and they are Brenda Viancourt, who celebrated her fifteenth birthday, on August 13th, Sheila Bonnallie, fifteen on August 19, Claire Ceenan fifteen, on August 22, Louise Duff will celebrate her sixteenth birthday on August 23. Happy birthday girls.



LETTER FROM SEIGNIORY PARK

(by FERGUS HORSBURGH)

Bus commuters understandably find it difficult to take their eyes off the driver and the road ahead, in the constant anxiety of wondering what the one is going to do to the other. But if they can make the effort to look sideways, they see a gleaming new aluminum paint job progressing on the second span of Mercier Bridge — an encouraging sign of progress. We also noticed that two gas stations and one apartment block have recently been demolished, presumably in preparation for the eventual new approaches.

-o-

The first organised assault on our Park's rat population took place the week-end of August 18th. Messrs. Rutter, Fletcher, Strike, McInnis, Keleher, Perry, Chart and Blahuta burned out a number of potential nesting-places, and also did a good turn to the brewing industry.. Quantities of ale were consumed, and I gather an enjoyable time was had by all. Volunteers are solicited for the next assault at 2 p.m. Saturday, September 1st., and should assemble at Larry McInnis's house on Frontenac.

-o-

On Monday, August 20th, about 25 members of Seigniory Park Householders Association met Alderman Oliver at the Club, by prior arrangement. Mr. Oliver delighted everyone by bringing with him an unexpected but very welcome special guest, Mayor Laberge himself. An informative meeting followed, when Mr. Laberge showed his skill as a practiced politician in fielding the many questions shot at him. No, Mr. Laberge does not favour the merging of the three Chateauguay municipalities into a City — not at the present time. Yes, our Park will be cleared, along with all parks in Chateauguay, next spring. Yes, we will have traffic lights at our entrance on Routes 3 and 4, but it is a responsibility shared with the Provincial Government and progress, even to obtaining promises of action, has been slow. The Mayor also announced that he planned to attend, on September 7th, a Province-organized meeting of Mayors of Municipalities bordering Lake St. Louis, to discuss water-pollution problems. Solution of these problems should give us better sewage-disposal and eventually, bigger and better water filtration plants. Oliver undertook to look into the old problem of street signs.

-o-

We are indebted to Larry McInnis for acquiring details from Town Hall of the lighting programme soon to be started in Seigniory Park. There will be five lights of 2500 lumens each on Seigniory Drive, four on Woodbine, three on Frontenac and two on Montmorency of the same size. St. Francis Blvd. will have four lights of 4000 lumens each.

-o-

On Saturday, September 1st, CJAD's Hi-Fi Club with Mike Stephens, will be broadcast from our Club.

-o-

Heart Fund Day will be held at the Club on Monday, September 3rd. Fun for all is promised, with try-your-luck booths and games. Various gifts from local companies and Club members will be raffled, and all proceeds go to the Heart Fund.

-o-

Most of us are thoroughly disgusted with the plentiful supply of rain these past few weeks, which prompts me to give Chateauguay residents a word of encouragement. Other places have it far worse. Two English friends have just been visiting Oban in the West Highlands of Scotland. "What a pity", they write, "that we couldn't have seen Oban in the sunshine". These people certainly aim high don't they? The sun only shines once every two years in Oban, so how could they hope to catch it in one day?

Welcome to Mr. Claude Bissonette and three small daughters who have just moved into 382 Montcalm. Mr. Bissonette is a good person to have around here, what with rumours of prowlers and peeping-Toms, as he is with the Montreal police.

-o-

And welcome also to Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Pierre Wallot, who are now in 385 St. Francis Blvd. I believe Mr. Wallott is our first real live Professor, from the University of Montreal.

-o-

The week-end of Labour Day will see Montmorency Street's population explode. At least three families are scheduled to move in on September 1st.

-o-

Cam Grout took a team of four youngsters as invited guests to a Swimming Meet at Rosemere Citizens Association Swimming Pool on Saturday, August 25th. Ian Macneil, Dan Rubin and Norman Leroux all placed in their races, and Michael Leroux won the breast stroke for 12 years and under. Cam says Michael will be an outstanding swimmer one day. Congratulations, Michael.

Corn Boil

Well another corn boil, bonfire and get together took place on Saturday evening, Aug. 25th starting about 7 p.m. Forty dozen corn and 38 gallons of coolaid disappeared as everyone lined up and were served as fast as the ladies committee could brush the butter on the corn and pour out the drinks. Sincere thanks to Mesdames Lowe, Penny, Simmons, Smeall, Fuller, Gourley, Poupart and Runkin who buttered corn and poured drinks, Syd Mitchell for wood and J. Fuller, H. Lowe and D. Moore who made the bonfire, J. Simmons and G. Gourley who cooked corn in the park and dished it out to the ladies on trays, and G. Gourley who always gets the best corn grown, and to Peter Cuerrier who connected his garden hose up so the bonfire could be properly douced. Thanks to our president, Mr. Hulshoff who donated a box of cookies for the children. Everyone enjoyed themselves and are awaiting the next item on the very busy schedule of West End "The Country Fair", Sept. 8th.

Hub Hardware Sponsors

Mr. Bob Poirier called to say the Hub Hardware is sponsoring the mosquito Football team (7-10 yrs.) for Chateauguay. 80% of this team are West End boys. Any boys wishing to play on the Pee Wee team (10 - 12 yrs.) or Bantam team (12 - 15 yrs) please contact Mr. Poirier at 692-2332. Mosquito and Pee Wee teams are to be entered in a league in Lachine. Bantams will be playing scheduled exhibition games in this same league. More boys are needed for all teams so give Mr. Poirier a call, as there is a lot of work and organization behind this and always more to be done. Bob is a tireless worker, as we all know.

Hospitalized

Little Mark Reynolds, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Reynolds, 101, Laporte St. was taken to hospital last week. So far they have no definite report as he is still undergoing tests. We all pray it is not serious and that Mark will be home soon and feeling well.

Home again

Gail Reynolds is home. Poor wee girl has her leg in a cast from a fall off their gallery. Her Daddy brought her home the same day Mark was taken to hospital.

On the mend

Johanne Metcalfe has made wonderful progress. Its so good to see her around again, playing with her friends and helping mummy by taking her baby brother for a ride. We are all very happy for you Micheline and Bert.

New Arrival

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Powis of Manor Drive are the proud parents of another baby boy, 7 lbs 12 oz, born Aug. 25th. A brother for Stevie. Grandpa Powis is housekeeping and babysitting and according to my information he is really enjoying it.

Birthday Party and Barbecue

On Saturday, Aug. 25th, Patti O'Rielly was hostess at her 5th birthday party. Fifteen cousins and friends attended. Sandwiches, Birthday Cake, Ice Cream, Soft Drinks, Candy and balloons were served and enjoyed. Pictures were taken and everyone had a good time. Mummy, Daddy, brother Kevin, Nanny and Granddad Jones celebrated Patti's real birthday on Sunday, Aug. 26th, with a barbecue dinner. Many more happy birthdays Patti.

U. S. Holidays

Mr. and Mrs. John Guy Cherrier have returned from a week's holiday in New York City. While there, in the company of two friends from Montreal who travelled with them, they visited Radio City and saw "A Touch of Mink." Visited Jones Beach and the Statue of Liberty, also many more interesting places and generally had a very nice time.

Mr. and Mrs. René Emard have returned from a holiday in Hollywood, Florida. They attended the dog races and found them most enjoyable and exciting. Real visited a Dude Ranch and a Seminole Indian reservation in the company of the Motel Counsellor. This is a very fine service for children and certainly aids the parents in enjoying their holiday with no worry.

UMBRELLA CARE

Don't count on showers to wash away the dust that collects along umbrella folds and will, in time, rot the fabric. Sponge the open umbrella with warm water and mild detergent, rinse, then dry the metal spokes with a soft cloth to prevent rusting. Leave open to dry.

LAVENDER SACHETS

Make lavender sachets-without-sewing by putting two or three tablespoons of the dried flowers in the centre of a dainty handkerchief, pull up the corners and tie in a ball with ribbon, finishing with a hook for hanging. Never put loose lavender with wool blankets or sweaters. The flowers will eat into the wool and leave small holes.

GRAMMY REALLY WORKED

Grandmother, on a winter's day, milked the cows and fed them hay, slopped the hogs, saddled the mule, and got the children off to school; did the washing, mopped the floors, washed the windows and did some chores; cooked a dish of home-dried fruit, pressed Grandfather's Sunday suit. Swept the parlor, made the beds, baked a dozen loaves of bread, split some firewood, and lugged in enough to fill the kitchen bin; cleaned the lamps and put in oil, stewed some apples she thought would spoil; churned the butter, baked a cake, then exclaimed, "For goodness sake, the calves have got out of the pen" — went out and chased them in again. Gathered the eggs and locked the stable, back to the house and set the table, cooked a supper that was delicious, and afterwards washed up all the dishes; fed the cat and sprinkled the clothes, mended a basketful of hose; then opened the organ and began to play, "When you come to the end of a perfect day." I'm sure there are some of our readers from the country towns who will recall working just as this article describes. One thing is sure, the Grandmothers of those days never had time to be bored. As a housewife her day was certainly full. This is taken from the Scrapbook of Brigadier W. Crozier, Toronto, Salvation Army War Cry.

The Last Call For Huntingdon Fair

ON Thursday, Huntingdon Fair will officially be opened and will continue until Saturday evening. Much has been done at the grounds this year which we believe will show improvement to all patrons.

Entering the grounds one day last week, we were struck by the clear view to be had. We mentioned this to Mr. Carl Wheeler, President, who informed us that a quantity of brush that had previously been on the grounds had been bulldozed out and the ground levelled in a number of spots. The buildings having been freshly spray painted stood out against the green sward and gave the whole a very neat appearance.

This same view will not be available to patrons of the Fair this week as the greater part of the grounds will be occupied in various ways. For instance, the midway will be located on the area just inside the main gates and we are told it will be a large one. The area next to that where the ball diamond was located, will be used for parking the cars that will be brought to the Fair. Beyond that will be the judging ring for the cattle. This together with the many other things that will be on the grounds at Fair time will give the whole a very full appearance. More and more the comfort of the patrons and the exhibitors has been attended to and the Fair promises to be one of the best yet. Secretary Leon Beaudin has been busy the past few weeks with the final details of the Fair and will be in attendance all this week for the benefit of exhibitors at the Fair Grounds.

It is quite possible that last minute entries will still be accepted, but all exhibits must be in place on Thursday. The Fair will open at night with a big parade.

It's Back To School Next Week

THE long summer vacation for schools in the area is rapidly coming to an end. Next Wednesday, September 5th, all children will return to their scholastic studies for another year. Some will be promoted to higher grades, others may be retained in their previous grade, still others will have graduated and gone on to other phases of learning or have taken up some kind of employment. Those who are taking courses at the various colleges and universities, will not be doing this until a little later in the month.

We would like to impress upon all who are attending places of education, that they should go with the intention of doing their very best. Only a good education will get you what you want in this world today. Gone are the days when just the bare essentials of learning were sufficient to get along with. Today only the well educated can obtain employment and progress along the road to advancement. Those whose education is only poor, will be left behind. There is very little place for the unskilled, nearly all requirements are for trained people.

It does not matter whether you are entering the lower grades or the upper grades, the need is the same. It means paying attention to the teachers and learning all you possibly can in the next step of your educational program. Those going to the colleges and universities will find a great difference to attending the High School. The learning is much more concentrated and requires much more attention than before. Being more adult, you will be expected to act as such. Your failures will be attributed to yourself, for you are expected to realize that it is to your benefit to take advantage of all that is provided. Any lack of studying will reflect on you and you alone.

In the past few years there has been an appalling number of drop outs in the elementary grades prior to entering High School and a large number have failed to complete their High School education. This is a state that should not be. Every boy or girl today should strive to complete their high school education. In order to do this it means making good progress during the elementary school year. As each grade is passed the next on presents a greater challenge and of course is just a little bit harder. When High School is reached it becomes harder still and requires more out-of-school study in order to keep up.

You will please yourselves if you progress through school and you will please your parents, your teachers, the school board and all others interested in your school welfare. Besides this, you will be better equipped to cope with what the road of life may bring. Let's not just go back to school, but be determined to learn to the best of our ability.

Reminding You of Havelock Fair

A WEEK from Saturday, the friendliest of Fairs will be held at Havelock Fair Grounds on Route 52. This date is September 8th and for the past few years this Fair has been on Saturday and more and more people attend each year. It is a one-day Fair but much is crammed into that day and everyone has an enjoyable time.

We have attended this Fair for a good many years now and we have yet to hear anyone who says that they were sorry they came.

Just last year, we met many people we know from surrounding towns in the area. One person we recall said that it was the first time he had attended in many years. He said he had read about the Fair in The Gleaner and had decided that he would pay another visit. He was quite surprised at the changes which had taken place and the improvements that had been made. He was surprised at the large number of people there and all the cars on the grounds. He said he had met many people he knew, but there were many more he did not know, but all seemed to be having a very good time.

We could tell many similar stories to this and each year we meet several people who are attending Havelock Fair for the first time after many years of lapse. Oh yes, there are new faces too and some from afar off.

In the list of improvements at Havelock Fair this year — electric power has been installed and a small fee will be charged to those who want to make use of it. This should be very useful to demonstrators and for hooking up a public address system. The roofs on the various buildings have received a coat of paint and the dining hall has received some attention. Speaking of the Dining Hall, this is where that famous dinner is served to patrons for a nominal price and the funds from which go to help two local churches. Havelock Fair has been noted for this fine dinner and most patrons like to be in time to partake of it.

Plan to be at Havelock Fair, Saturday, September 8th.

Provincial Capital Report

QUEBEC (CP) To nationalize or not to nationalize.

The Capital buzzed this week with reports that the Cabinet of Premier Jean Lesage has set a date for a special meeting at which a decision would be taken one way or another on nationalization of power in the province.

Government sources said early September was the time chosen for the meeting and that three days have been set aside for it.

One source, disclosing that Rene Levesque, the Natural Resources Minister, had put off a planned trip to Fort Chino, said the meeting probably will have been held by Sept. 10, the new date for his departure.

Mr. Levesque was to have left Aug. 27, but the source said he had decided to remain in the capital to spend the week preparing his case for his cabinet colleagues, some of whom are reported hesitant at taking the step, which will cost millions.

The pressure, meanwhile built up on the Government and on Premier Lesage. From Separatists to Chambers of Commerce have come demands for nationalization. Most of the opposition comes from the private power companies that would be brought out and which are stepping up their campaign to put across their side of the story.

They received support from one Chambre de Commerce, too. The Saguenay Region Board of Trade expressed its opposition and said it would be a disaster for the development of the economy.

Those who had spoken on behalf of nationalization represent only a small number of organizers directors who are turning it into a political question.

Nevertheless, public opinion seemed strongly in favor of nationalization following nearly two years of talking by Mr. Levesque on the subject.

Government sources say Mr. Levesque's campaign had the tacit approval of Premier Lesage, who has never publicity committed himself They say Mr. Lesage never told his fiery, blunt spoken Resources Minister to stop his campaign.

It was thought Mr. Lesage wanted to see what public reaction would be. Once a trend was established, The Government could act accordingly.

Mr. Lesage, one informant said, favored nationalization "given the right conditions and circumstances."

But, as one observer put it, "a nationalization wave" was rolling. To many it appeared Mr. Lesage could no longer pick his time. He would have to act quickly.

The biggest stumbling block seemed to be money.

Mr. Lesage himself mentioned it during a televised press conference when asked about the possible takeover. He said it was a complex matter "think of the financial aspects of the affair, alone," he said.

The National Resources Department, it is understood, figures the takeover would cost some $400,000,000. The money would either be borrowed by Hydro-Quebec, which would take over the companies, or by the Government which already plans to borrow an unprecedented $225,000,000 this year.

At the end of its 1961 fiscal year, Hydro had a long-term debt of $772,582,525 guaranteed by the province.

There was no comment during the week from the Union Nationale Party. Daniel Johnson, its leader, was not in Quebec City.

Tht Party has never expressed itself squarely against the step. To observers the Party had never been forced to take a side because the Government had not.

The Scots' Contribution To The Canadian North

By R. J. Fraser

In all of Canada there is probably no comparable large region whose exploration, discoveries, and pioneering have been more often told by historians and chroniclers of authority and note, than that of our Northland. Books and histories of the North are numerous; the characters portrayed in them are legion. Because of our tradition and race and numerical status, we would mention a few of those of Scottish origin who helped make history in that region.

The credit for discoveries in the first half of the 17th century goes to early French adventurers who blazed the primary routes from the St. Lawrence valley to the vast hinterland wilderness. But their explorations were confined chiefly to southern Canada and the American south and west, when these regions both geographically and politically, were as yet not clearly defined. In what was northern and western Canada, it was Scotsmen who were the most prominent in seeking out the far reaches to the mountains and the Arctic Sea. And because they did, the Gaelic stock left ineradicable imprints on those territories, through blood mixtures and in the place-names of principal features on the map of Canada, and in the establishment of the first little centres of European habitation that commenced as trading posts, many of which have developed into our flourishing cities and towns. In one period, between 1780 and 1812, some of the most conspicuous leaders who, because of birth or residence, or other association, were men of Upper Canada, and particularly its most Scottish counties, were Alexander Mackenzie, Simon Fraser, theMcGillivrays, and David Thompson, who discovered rivers and mountains, prairie and seacoast, and bequeathed to these their names.

Sons of Huntingdon Scottish pioneers and others of the Richelieu valley made their lasting contributions. But earlier than these, Scotch names less familiar in these counties have been perpetuated in the old regions of northern British Columbia, early known as New Caledonia, and in the Yukon and Mackenzie River districts. In recent years an exploring geographer whose forebears helped clear the first farmlands in the concession of Dundee, encountered north of the Arctic Circle descendants of Scots and Orkneymen bearing such names as Flett, Inkster, Foubisher, Linklater, Mowat, Omand and Ritch. His native Eskimo assistant answered to the name of Malcolm Firth.

Select a year in the latter half of the 19th century, as 1887, and among the commissioned officers of the Hudson's Bay Company we find a McDougall, McKay, McTavish, McDonald, Munro, Campbell, Alexander, Anderson, MacFarlane, McLean, Gairdner, Matheson. Need one go further into the long succession of other years, past or present, adding page after page of the history of the Canadian Northland, to study their nominal rolls?

The Scots we write about — and those of their like for which space cannot be provided — whose lives continue with us in the places named after them, in their faithful accounts, or in the enterprises which they founded, were not only explorers, historians or chroniclers. They were promoters and developers of resources, and good businessmen, or, to quote one writer, they were "substantial men for whom life was a serious, and seldom a frivolous affair."

It should be said, in the interest of accuracy and fairness, that the northern explorers were not all scotsmen. In the search for the fabulous North West Passage to the Indies, and the expeditions involved there were English, French, Irish Scandinavian, and American commanders, sailing separately or else in company with the Scots. From 1576 to 1615, English captains commissioned by the Admiralty including Frobisher, Davis, Weymouth, Knight, Button, Baffin and Bylot, penetrated the eastern Arctic. Jens Munck, a Dane, wintered at Churchill in 1619-20. Captain Thomas James, first to explore James Bay, came from Bristol, and Captain Luke Fox, who sailed through Hudson Strait in 1631, also was English. The Frenchmen, Radisson and des Groseilliers, reached the Bay in 1659, and ten years later a New England captain, Zachariah Gillam, voyaged to the Rupert River. 'Tis true, however, that the objectives of these explorers, and of the French military commanders like d'Iberville, between 1690 and 1713, in the struggle for supremacy of Rupert's Land, were limited in territorial aims, confined mainly to the Hudson Bay region. None of them penetrated the country westward, nor planted any permanent racial roots. The influx from Scotland had not yet really begun.

This came with the 19th century, when the search for a North West Passage was resumed, and a Scotch sea captain, John Ross, in 1817 led the way. It was another Scotsman Thomas Simpson, a cousin of Sir George Simpson of the HBC, who made the actual discovery of the North West Passage, in 1837-39, though, a century later, in 1905, the Swedish explorer Amundsen, with the "Fram" accomplished the triumphant voyage.

Following the tragic loss in 1848 of Sir John Franklin with his ships and entire party on King William Island, over thirty expeditions, by land or sea, went in search of survivors between the years 1847 and 1859. At least one-half were led by Scotsmen. Dr. John Rae from Stromness in the Orkneys, said to have been the greatest of Arctic travellers, explored nearly 2,000 miles of the coastline. In his trips from 1846 to 1854 he demonstrated how one could live off the country, and earned undying fame for his techniques, travel, and basic discoveries. Another Scot, Sir John Richardson from Dumfries, was associated with Rae in 1848 in the early mapping of the territory north of the Arctic circle. The name o. David Buchan appears in the list of Scottish North West Passage Explorers of that time.

In recent years an Ottawa geographer, a Canadian Scot whose forebears were early settlers of Loch Garry, in Kenyon township, recovered an ice anchor from the shore of Boothia Peninsula where it had lain for a century and a quarter when Captain John Ross' ship, "Victory", was abandoned in 1833.

Because it was said that white men first came to the Arctic either to seek the fabled sea passage to the riches of the Orient, or to hunt whaling ships from Scottish ports with this latter enterprise because the Scots were in the thick of it. Little thick-hulled, low-powered whaling ships from Scotish ports wintered in the eastern Arctic as early as 1840. Whole families of natives lived on board them for months at a time, and Scotch blood flows in many an Eskimo vein. The whalers came from Aberdeen, Dundee, Kirkcaldy, Fraserburg, and Peterhead. There was competition from Americans, but in one year the coves of Baffinland and Hudson Strait witnessed the arrival of twenty-nine Scotch whaling ships, fourteen of them from Dundee. The whale fishery was at its peak by 1870, and as it diminished the entire fleet was from Scotch ports only. By 1910 it had practically ended, and though but few Scottish seamen remained in the North, those who returned had added to geographical knowledge, implanted some seeds of European culture amongst the natives, and left indelibly inscribed the names of their little ships, as Diana Bay, Eclipse Sound, Arctic Bay, Active, and Alert.

Forty-eight years later, the writer uncovered the evidence of one of the abandoned whaling stations — for which he has been everlastingly grateful. The contents of a cask of rancid whale oil which he had appropriated, when poured on the tumultuous waves of Hudson Strait on a stormy homeward bound voyage, helped save his vessel from floundering.

We come to a time in the history of the part played by Scots in the exploration and exploitation of the wilderness resources, years in which autocratic "Fur Lords" controlled the trade and progressive development of an extraordinarily vast domain. The most important land and water areas, streams and mountains and coastline, were first etched upon our maps by such men as Radisson and La Verendrye, Hearne, Mackenzie, Thompson, Franklin, Fraser, Deane and Simpson, and half a hundred others. Most of them were Scots. Whilst it was the French brothers-in-law, Pierre Radisson and Sieur des Groseilliers, who sold Prince Rupert of England and his associates on the potential wealth of the Hudson Bay region, and King Charles' nephew became the formal head of the "Company of Gentlemen Adventurers Trading into Hudson's Bay", before long the world's oldest corporation, had come under the direction and rule, and its farflung empire was being manned by Scots and Orkneymen, Hebrideans and Shetlanders. Though at London headquarters the stockholders were chiefly the gentry of Britain, those who carried the flag and the trade into Prince Rupert's Land were the hardy adventurous questing sons of Scotland.

When rival fur traders formed the North West Company in 1795 in Montreal, the partners in it were mostly from the same stock in the Highlands or the Scottish Isles. Alexander Mackenzie, who in 1793 discovered the river of his name, was a Lewis Island man from Stornoway. Simon Fraser, a "Nor'-Wester", traced the Fraser River of British Columbia in 1808; David Thompson, discoverer of the Columbia River in 1811, though born in a Westminster parish, was of Scottish stock. His maps contained the basic data for all subsequent ones of great portions of the Northwest. These names are highlighted in every Canadian atlas and history book, along with many less celebrated Scotsmen of their kind.

They ranked high not only in the annals of the new land which they were adding to the Empire, but also in those of the great fur trading company which had brought them to its shores. John Rae, besides being the valuable geographer and mapper of northern coastlines, was the first to find traces of the Franklin expedition. John McLean traversed the unknown country of Ungava. He was from the Isle of Mull. Thomas Simpson, descendant of Thomas Forbes of Culloden, helped map part of the Arctic coast, and Robert Campbell from Perthshire, who explored Yukon rivers and mountain trails and established Fort Selkirk, earned a special place in history, whilst Andrew Hunter Murray of Argyllshire carried the shield of Scotland to the Company's most northwestern post, Fort Yukon, in what is now Alaska. One of the first of any race to penetrate the wilds of what is now northern British Columbia, then known as New Caledonia, was John Stuart (Stwart) of Strathspey. In the long honour roll of the Company it is almost traditional to find families, and generations, carrying the proud banners of the Finlaysons, McTavishes, Sinclairs, MacFarlanes, Hardistys, McKays, and Fletts, whose influence, both in the fur trade and beyond, is still noticeable today.

With regard to missions to the natives of the far North, the Scotch Presbyterian church seems to have done remarkably little; it was left, and continues to be the case today, to the Church of England missionaries and the Oblate fathers from France, as though by gentlemen's agreement, to carry the gospel into that region. At least one exception was that of the first Presbyterian minister to the Yukon, Andrew Shaw Grant, M.D., D.D., born at Laguerre in 1859, a son of Thomas Grant and Mary Fraser of Dundee. He was first cousin to William D. Fraser of the "Sunnyside" acres, father of community-minded Kenneth Fraser of Huntingdon political note. Also steeped in the rich Calvinistic faith, were Scotch fur traders having a certain concern for the spiritual needs of the native and halfbreed trappers and retainers, for in one instance an Aberdeenshire factor, James Leith, bequeathed half his estate for the propogation of the Protestant faith among the Indians.

The partners of the North West Company of fur traders were nearly all of Scottish origin, their founder being a Simon McTavish born in 1750 in the Highlands. He gathered together a number of independent traders who had begun to carry Scotland's traditions and influence into the Northwest. Amongst them we find members of various clans, as William McGillivray, Roderick Mackenzie, John Gregory, Angus Shaw, Alexander McLeod, Cuthbert Grant, and by 1804 their activities extended throughout the older trading company's territory, in Saskatchewan, the Peace River country, Hudson Bay, and the lower St. Lawrence. In 1821, after much bloody feuding, the rival trading parties amalgamated and the HBC became sole controlling lords of northern Canada. The two competing groups of exploiters had had their common origin in the St. Lawrence valley; likewise, each had recruited their personnel chiefly from the glens and isles of their native land. In the next fifty years, 1821 to 1871, they had more than 270 commissioned officers in America, over 170 of them being Scots. We should ever have greatefully in mind, that it was their founding, struggles and competition, their vision and determination, that assured for us a great part of the Canadian heritage we enjoy.

As we have said, these men were not only blazers of new trails and barterers with the natives. They were virtual rulers of the land. From the ranks of apprentice clerks rose those who became controllers of the lives and destinies of both natives and employees, hard-fisted Scots ruling with an iron hand, until the Company surrendered its two-century-old charter to the Canadian government in 1870.

In time, men who had come from the Orkneys or the Highlands as raw Scotch youths were elevated to the position of Governor, not always only of the Company, but of what were virtually first British colonies in the new land. Perhaps the most noted of these was Governor, later Sir George Simpson, from the West Highlands, outstanding figure in HBC history, policy-maker who created an efficient institution for the conduct of the fur trade. To effect this, he placed greater emphasis on recruiting men from Scotland. By reason of his autocratic demeanor he also earned for himself the title of the "Little Emperor", and for forty years he administered the Company's affairs in North America, with remarkable vitality. On his ceremonious journeys across Canada, in 1828, he was accompanied by his personal piper, an Inverness-shire Highlander named Colin Fraser.

Besides Sir George Simpson, the 19th Century included Sir James Douglas, Governor of Vancouver Island and of the Fraser River colonies, Donald A. Smith (Lord Strathcona) rose from fur trade apprentice to Governor of the Company, as well as politician and financier; while Governor Robert Semple ruled the Highlanders of the Red River settlements, until he lost his life in the engagement with the rival feuding Nor'Westers at Seven Oaks.

Thomas Douglas, Earl of Selkirk, was the first systematic colonizer of the Northwest. With a passion to settle Highlanders on less crowded and more fertile land, he gained power in 1811 from the HBC to obtain no less than 45 million acres in the Red River valley, an area the size of Upper Canada, 30 times that of the Huntingdon-Chateauguay triangle. William Stewart Wallace, the historian, wrote that Selkirk's Highlanders were "the colonists who formed the nucleus of the first genuine settlement in the Canadian West". One of the first Governors of Red River settlement was Captain Miles Macdonell, whose clansmen have been found so widely throughout Canada in high positions of judgement and of rule. With considerable fellow feeling I read of the hardships endured by Selkirk's emigrating groups, women and children among them, obliged to travel overland from Hudson Bay nearly one thousand miles to the Red River settlement. For, a century later, with five other white men I tramped for four February weeks, in unimaginable temperatures, sleeping under the stars, with insufficient food and improper clothing, over the same torture-ridden trails, to reach the end of steel near Winnipeg. The only assistance, that made survival possible, came from Scots, early or lately established in this wilderness, like Leslie Laing at York Factory, the Mowats, Chief Factor McTavish of the old Keewatin district, and especially the Sinclairs, man and wife, whose family served the Company for 170 years. They met us as we stumbled across their hospitable threshold at Norway House, fed and nursed us, then cheered us on our way down the Lake Winnipeg shore.

One of Selkirk's assistants in his Red River settlement projects was Orkneyman John Halkett. Another of the Halkett family, Peter, who had been a lieutenant in the Royal Navy, invented the first life raft, or "india rubber boat", an inflatable affair, for the Franklin expeditions. It is preserved in the Orkney museum at Stromness.

We list here but a few of those other Scottish explorer-traders of that area whose special accomplishments in the early historical progress of the North may not have been given such prominent recognition. Andrew Colville determined basic commercial policy of the HBC; Edward Ellice, son of a Scottish fur trader, provided wise advice on critical problems and effective liaison with the government. He was probably the guiding hand in the HBC and North West Company amalgamation.

Typical of the men who by reason of personality or deed left a lasting effect upon the economy or culture, or perhaps only the geography of northern Canada, were these, selected at random from their contemporary settings, having in common their racial origin, like John McDougall who opened the passes and pioneered the future highways into the goldfields of the Yukon; John Lee Lewes of "Glenlyon House"; Murdoch McPherson and Dawson and Anderson, Duncan Finlayson and McLeod. Or Roderick MacFarlane from Stornoway, forty-two years with the HBC, whose acievement of excellence was in his outstanding collection of botanical specimens. A remarkable associate in the Peace River country with other Scotch traders, Cuthbert Grant, Peter Ogden, David Douglas, Alexander Fisher, Governor George Simpson, was Samuel Black. Of a controversial nature, he antagonized both his fellow Scots and the Indians with whom he traded. The former alternately stigmatized, and lauded him; the Indians murdered him. Yet his notes and journals contain invaluable information on travel and the many diverse characteristics of the country that interested him, and are preserved and studied one hundred years after he was gone. Sir George Simpson pronounced him, "The strangest man I ever knew"; a modern geographer writes about him: "More than a century has passed but Black's observations still form the basis of knowledge of the country (his Rocky mountain expeditions) he explored." And mention we must, another name of a later time, that of John Firth, who lived for 67 years at Fort McPherson, and died in 1939. He had an Indian wife. Writers of the Mackenzie river story have given him the distinguishing title, "Patriarch of the Canadian Arctic."

Englishman Phillip H. Godsell, a one-time Company apprentice became a writer of northern history, says in his book, Arctic Trader, "It was to the Firths, Beattons, Camsells, Sindairs, McTavishes, and others like them, to whom the Company owes its splendid tradition of service. These men, most of whom came out as lads from Scotland, and spent their entire lives in the service, knew one interest only and that was "The Company'." He tells that Donald McTavish, one of the most stern, undeviating Chief Factors of his time, would write the Fur Commissioners in London to send nought but young Scots. "They must be from Scotland!" he thundered. "No more Englishmen for me!"

Fortunately for the McTavish and the like, these blunt demands were supported at home by uncontrollable circumstances. The Company's ships were laden at London, and when war in Europe drew upon the available man-power the men engaged for Hudson Bay were trapped by press gangs on arrival of their ships in the Thames. So they turned to Scotland for recruits and then, to avoid the French warships in the Channel they sailed north by the Orkney's. In this way, after 1690, these islands became the favourite recruiting grounds, and in one year, 1712, no fewer than forty Orkneymen were engaged there. The Hebrides and the Shetlands provided others, fewer in number, though amongst the Hebrideans was Sir Alexander Mackenzie.

In 1795 the minister of the united parishes of Sandwick and Stromness wrote of the HBC: "They have about 400 or 500 men in the settlement, of whom three-fourths are Orcadians; they find them more sober and tractable than the English or the Irish." When their service term expired, many of them returned to the Scottish Isles with sufficient savings to settle down as independent crofters and fishermen. A number of former fur traders from the Island of Harray formed a colony known as the "Peerie lairds O'Harray."

As green apprentice clerks the young Orkney and Aberdeenshire lads were given passage and a minimum wage. This latter seemed a mere pittance; even by 1966 it amounted to only $100 per year, and increasing after a five-year term to $250. Yet, says L. A. Learmonth, now of Georgetown, Ontario, an Orkneyman, retired District Manager of the Company after 47 years service throughout the Northland, "As young apprentices travelling westward, America-bound, though we might not have much change in our pockets, we had that conceit and morale that went with feeling we were part of a great united Empire, headed west to the wonderful, free, enormous — almost limitless — Canada, to share in our heritage."

The men of Stromness and Kirkwall, Lerwick and Stornoway, speak pridefully of themselves as Orkneymen, or Orcadians, more often than as Scots. However, in spite of their insular native background, and racial mixture of ancient Picts and Celts and Norsemen, as long ago as 1470 these island groups were ceded to the Scottish Crown, and ruled by the "Lord of The Isles"; and in time the integration with the mainland clans resulted in a mixture as Gaelic as the tartan and the pipes, as Scottish as the Clan Macleod and the Morrisons.

Many a Scotch trader chose his wife from among the Indians. In early years the contract could be what was called a "country marriage", and when retired to Scotland they left a small pension for the native wife remaining in Canada. Sons would be apprenticed to the Company; daughters married off to Company servants. Thus the Gaelic bloodstrain spread throughout the North. One officer endowed a school in the Orkneys for the Canadian-born children of his fellow traders, and Orkneymen's sons of mixed Indian blood were sent home for their education.

We come to a period in the long history of Scottish domination of the Northland, the turn of the present century. In that time, from 1919 to 1940, a team of North of Scotland and Orkney men settled the shores of the lower Northwest Passage from the Mackenzie to Baffinland, establishing outposts which are now, many of them, radar station communities on the DEW line. Says L. A. Learmonth, one of the group, "The proudest achievement was the complete and effective conquest of the Northwest Passage...traversing the whole extent of the lower Passage, including the area of the Franklin tragedy." This was done in three steps, in small schooners and other vessels. The men of Learmonth's group had four still living when Norwegian born Supt. Henry Asbjorn Larsen of the RCMP, first recipient of the Massey Medal, navigated the complete passage in a single vessel, the "St. Roch", in 1942.

A contributing custom of the Old Land that helped stamp on the map of Canada the imprint of the Scottish race was the clannish intermarrying and the fraternal spirit amongst all classes of Scots in Canada. In the top echelon this fraternal spirit was maintained in part by those gay yet serious-mind d influential members of the old Beaver Club of Montreal, founded in 1785 as an exclusive dining and wining fraternity. Six of the original founding members, all hard-living adventurers who had qualified by having spent at least one winter in the Canadian northern wilderness, were Scots. Though, unquestionably from all accounts, the Beaver Club was a drinking fraternity, that, according to one historian mixed "serious drinking" with conviviality, the latter being "in right earnest and in true Highland style", (they had no clubhouse, and met in the old Montreal Hotel and in various taverns), yet these were the men whom the late chronicler of the HBC, Clifford Wilson, described as ones who "will go down in history as the men who blazed the trails of civilization into the far North and West." At the club's last recorded meeting, in 1827, nine full-fledged members were present. Eight of them bore the family names, Finlay, Fisher, Simpson, McKenzie, Grant, Keith, Hughes, and Forsyth. The ninth was a French-Canadian.

That vast region of northern Canada, north of the 60th parallel, extending from the Yukon to Baffin Land and northward to Ellesmere Island and the pole, was established as the North West Territories over half a century ago. It was subdivided into districts named Mackenzie, Keewatin and Franklin. It is now reorganized into two province-like territories, with franchise and separate administrative rights. To those of Scotch blood it is significant — and accepted as a tribute — that, though both the English and the Indian names, Franklin and Keewatin, are discontinued, this historic Scotch name Mackenzie is retained to designate the western district, whilst the other more Arctic one bears an Eskimo name.

Report From Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Developments came fast on the political scene last week as leaders of the opposition parties argued among themselves and Prime Minister Diefenbaker put finishing touches on the goverment's lineup for the new Parliament opening Sept. 27.

The verbal battles between Liberal party leader Lester Pearson, Social Credit party leader Robert Thompson and T. C. Douglas, the leader of the New Democratic party, perhaps gladdened the heart of the prime minister.

If the inter-Opposition squabbles are parried over into the Commons it might mean a longer life for the Conservative government, now outnumbered in Parliament by 149 to 116.

Mr. Diefenbaker virtually completed his lineup for the session by announcing he will nominate Marcel Lambert, 43, member for Edmonton West, as Speaker of the Commons, and designating Senator Alfred J. Brooks, 72, as government leader in the Senate.

Mr. Lambert, a Rhodes scholar, lawyer and Dieppe war veteran, is

The Late Mrs. George Kenney

Funeral services for Mrs. George Kenney were conducted by Rev. D. Rogers in St. Luke's Anglican Church, Hemmingford, on Monday, August 13th.

Porter) of Montreal, and Irene (Mrs. R. McCabe) of Scarborough, Ont., and two grandchildren, Kenney and Kathleen McCabe. Mrs. Harry Richard (nee Betty Wilson) is a niece.

Maple Leaf Grange

The regular meeting of Maple Leaf Grange No 11 was held on Tuesday evening, August 21st., with Worthy Master Peter Tully presiding.

Under Committee reports, Sis. Cosgrove, Community Service reported she had obtained a small plaque to be placed on the picnic table the Grange is putting in Sommerville Park. She also had on display the trophy the Grange is giving for best showmanship between the ages 10 - 21 at Huntingdon Fair. Sis Anita Smith reporting for S. and H. read a letter from Sis. Mary Rockhill, Chairman Franklin Co. Pomona, asking for a money donation toward a gift for a retiring State officer. The Ex-Com. reported the Hall had been loaned to the Kensington U.C.W. for a meeting.

Sis. Margaret Wilson reported for Sick Com. Two cards were signed to be sent to sick members. The members are sorry to learn that Sis. May Goodfellow, Ottawa, is confined to the Hospital. Keep on getting well, May, your Grange friends are wishing you the best.

Bro. Cecil O'Connor, Youth Com. Chairman reported that he felt sure there would be two square dance teams in the Fair Contest also the Grange were entering a float and he asked for voluntary help to get the float ready on Tuesday and Wednesday night, Aug. 28 and 29.

As a special com. Bro. Allan Hunter, as Chairman of the Fair Booth spoke briefly of the plans he had under way.

Worthy Master Tully read a letter from Aurora B. Campbell, Pomona Master, Lowell, Mass. telling us he would like to visit the Canadian Granges. The program in charge of Sis. Madeline Curran, was playing Bingo with prizes for same.

And now in bringing this news to an end — By the time you get your Gleaner you will all have your list with the hours you are expected" to work in the Refreshment Booth at the Fair. If you find the hours given you are not suitable, please exchange with some one for you know this is one time in the Grange year we need all our members" help. If you can not find a member to exchange with, you might find a "friend" who would give two hours of his or her time to a worth while Community Project.

Hemmingford Ladies Enjoy Tour of Upper Canada Village

The trip to Upper Canada Village taken by members and friends of Cercle des Fermiere and W.I. of Hemmingford was a fascinating experience. On the morning of August 23rd, which dawned bright and warm, about forty members boarded a special bus at Hemmingford and travelled via Valleyfield where a stopover was made to tour the Cathedral. This beautiful building was well worth seeing with its unusual colourful ceiling, the lovely paintings at each station along the walls and its heavy doors with stained glass at top and lined with copper engravings of Biblical character. We journeyed on via Cornwall and witnessed many changes in both roads and waterways created by the development of the St. Lawrence Seaway. Around noon we reached our destination, had a picnic lunch and started our tour of The Village.

One could fill a book with description of the various buildings and contents of this fantastic place, but as both time and space is at a minimum only a few of the writer's impressions are written here. A great deal of thought work and care has been put into the furnishings and restoration of buildings. The wall papers are bold in design with colourful dado near the ceiling, the French-Robertson House having original 1819 pattern. One sees a variety of canopied beds and wooden cradles of various designs in most of the houses. Old clocks are greatly in evidence, one worthy of mention is the Dutchhood clock in the Pastor's House. This clock fashioned from metal with its long brass pendulum and chains was made in Germany in the 17th century. In the same room stands a sturdy butternut cabinet with spool work and carving containing lovely old china. The atmosphere in each house is as though the occupants still lived there, knitting is lying casually on a chair, a half-finished dress on a dressmaker's form. Other familiar articles of those days are the strings of dried apple slices hung by the fireplace, a white goose wing to dust off the stove, tapers to light the stove, and bellows to fan the flames. Old stoves can be seen in all shapes and sizes. They even have an old-fashioned mouse-trap under the kitchen table. The flower gardens are a sight to behold and vegetable gardens are flourishing. The schoolmaster's House is interesting. Upstairs he had room for two or three boarders, and with the money he received from that source he bought books and school supplies, but had to work at other jobs to make a living.

The cabinet maker's shop was an interesting place. Here the restoring of old furniture is done by tools handed down from great grandfather through a generation. The General Store contains many old items "something of everything" China tea, English muslins, apothecary jars of barley-sugar, horehound. Hardware elixirs, rum and whisky could be bought in the same store. Our forefathers were not to be envied when it came to bathing and laundry facilities. In the Asselstine Factory one can see how woollen blankets are made, starting from the raw wool which has to be processed to the point where it can be used in the looms which are worked by water-power. Colourful patchwork quilts are being made by women dressed in the calico dresses and dainty head caps of those days. Flax is gown, allowed to dry then thrashed and beaten by hand and boiled in preparation for weaving linen. From the bakehouse one can smell that appetizing aroma of home-made bread. Butter is made on the premises and those desiring it can have a sample of buttermilk. Female vistors pause to admire the mannequins wearing the beautiful beaded and bustled dresses and flowered hots worn by our pioneer women. And what hours of labour must have been spent in keeping children's ruffled clothes and frilled baby's bonnets fresh and clean! What a tremendous amount of courage and sheer hard work was necessary to live in those days!

As we entered the bus to continue the trip, everyone felt they had spent most interesting and educational few hours, and left this oldhistoric place with a deep appreciation of their Canadian heritage.

The next stop of interest was the Eisenhower lock near Massena, N.Y. There a freight boat was just about to enter the lock. We watched speelbound while the boat edged its way into the lock, and rose with the water rushed in by the opening of the gates. From there we journey to Malone, had supper and wended our way back home feeling a satisfied weariness from a full and interesting day.

Hemmingford W.I. News.

An Executive Meeting of the Hemmingford W.I. was held on August 15th at the summer home, Richelieu, of Mrs. Lyle Simpson. Executive members present were Mrs. H. McAdam, Mrs. F. Greer, Mrs. F. Merlin and Mrs. J. Robertson. Other members attending were Mrs. Chas. Petch, Mrs. G.M. Brown and Mrs. Rogers. After partaking of a delicious cold salad lunch a short business meeting was held. Business arising from the minutes was the trip to Upper Canada Village, which took place on August 23rd.

A letter of acceptance to attend our September meeting has been received from the Aubrey-Riverfield branch.

Mrs. Greer suggested the Avon trip could take place in September or October, not necessarily on regular meeting night.

The Treasurer reported a good balance. Mrs. Greer reported on the catering of the recent wedding reception which realized $88.00 approx. She suggested that for future reference, some alterations be made in menu quantities, as some salads were left over.

An announcement was read with reference to the television programme which is taking place on Sunday, September 2nd at 4 P.M. EDT on Ontario and Quebec stations C.B.C.'s "Country Calendar" will examine the historic beginning and growth of the Women's Institute. Guests appearing on the programme will include Mrs. James Haggerty of Napanee, Ont., National President of the Federated Women's Institutes of Canada, and Mrs. L.G. Lymburner of Port Colbourne, Ontario, President of the Federated Women's Institutes of Ontario. This should be a very interesting event well worth watching.

The afternoon concluded with some members having a boat ride while others relaxed in the sun. Mrs. Petch thanked the hostess for a delightful day.

Report From Ottawa

bilingual. Senator Brooks, soft-spoken New Brunswicker, is a former minister of veterans affairs.

Major Changes

Earlier, Mr. Diefenbaker had made major revisions in the cabinet, shifting six veteran ministers into new portfolios and bringing in three new ministers. He followed this up by appointing 16 MPs as parliamentary secretaries to cabinet ministers.

The only major post remaining to be filled is that of Speaker of the Senate, a government appointment.

The prime minister also announced he may go to the United Nations General Assembly session in New York next month to sponsor a resolution calling for free elections in Soviet satellite countries.

He told reporters he would consider doing so if Premier Khrushchev attends the meeting.

The prime minister is to leave Ottawa September 6 or 7 for the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London, which opens Sept. 10. The General Assembly session opens September 18, the day before the expected close of the London talks.

Divided Views

From the other political camps came sounds of sweet music for Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

The opposition leaders showed difference of opinion over just how long the next Parliament will last — squabbling through statements and press conference on the issue of whether an election should be called immediately.

Liberal Leader Pearson appeared to be aiming at an early election. He said in an interview that "the earlier an election is held the better it will be for the country."

He wouldn't say flatly the Liberals were anxious for a fall or winter campaign but he did say they "won't run away from one."

Mr. Thompson's position on an election appeared to be that Social Credit will not vote non-confidence in the government merely to unseat the Conservatives. Social Credit would wait to see whether the government proposed a program to combat unemployment and stimulate the economy.

Mr. Douglas, arriving to take up residence in the capital a few days later, said the public would resent an early election. The government should be given a chance to show whether it will cope with the winter's economic crisis, he believed.

Liberals Scornful

Mr. Pearson jumped on both leaders with a statement:

"In recent weeks, both the NDP and Social Credit parties have joined us in condemning the Conservative government for its bungling of the nation's business. They now seem to be looking for ways of keeping the government in office."

Mr. Douglas snapped back — "For any public man or any political party to say in advance that they will vote against the government and will vote against the speech from the throne without even waiting to see what it is in it seems to be the very essence of irresponsibility and to be replacing statemanship with political partisanship."

Caouette Article

While Mr. Diefenbaker had cause to be pleased by his political squabbling among the opposition, he also may have chuckled at Mr. Thompson's discomfort at the choice of his deputy leader's heroes — Hitler and Mussolini.

Real Caouette was quoted by the magazine article as making the choice in Le Magazin Maclean. Mr. Caouette said the quotation in the magazine was incomplete.

He said he abhorred Mussolini's Fascism though he admired his political leadership. Hitler had brought his people out of misery in the 1930s but employed war instead of peace to do it.

Mr. Thompson said Mr. Caouette spoke entirely for himself. "It's unfortunate that such reports reach the public. They don't do anyone any good."

Mr. Pearson said Mr. Caouette's view would outrage every decent Canadian. Mr. Douglas said nobody should be surprised. Social Credit was doing in Canada what Hitler did in the 1930s—getting votes from the poor and money from the rich by promising to protect them from each other.

What Last Week's Storm Did South Of Border

Savage electrical storms, accompanied by torrential rain and heavy winds, ripped a path of destruction across the North Country in the afternoon and evening of Aug. 20th.

Left in the wake were three burned barns, a house, fallen trees, flattened crops, a minor landslide and disrupted telephone and electric service.

The first storm swept into the area shortly after 4 p.m., hitting the Hogansburg - Bombay area with such intensity that telephone and electric service in and around those communities was almost completely knocked out as falling trees and limbs snapped power lines.

The boiling black clouds moved directly towards Malone, but after a brief downpour with only a light display of lightning, the storm veered away and rolled in the Burke-Chateaugay area.

In those two towns the full power of the storm was unleashed.

Lightning struck a large barn on the Clarence Legacy farm on the Finney Road in the town of Burke. Almost at the some time another bolt hit the main dairy barn at Jerome Green's farm on the Burke County Road in the town of Chateaugay.

As firemen from Burke, Chateaugay and the Malone Call-firemen sped to these places, another streak of lightning ignited an unoccupied two-story frame house on the Bill Jones farm located on the Rankin Road in Chateaugay.

The full forces of the Franklin County Mutual Aid System went into action and from the Fire Control Center in Pearl St. men, equipment from various departments were pressed into service.

Constable was sent to battle the house fire on the Jones farm. Ellenburg, a member of the Clinton County fire system, was put on standby to cover for Chateaugay. Bangor was rushed to the Burke station the cover there. Brushton was alerted to have men ready to move into Bangor if the need arose.

The volunteer fire fighters successfully concentrated their efforts at all three blazes on saving property near the burning buildings. As they battled the fires, another fierce storm struck with blinding rain, heavy wind and lightning.

At the Green farm in Chateaugay, where 14 head of livestock perished in the flames, lightning bolts crashed into the burning barn and the nearby house while firemen were at the scene. No injuries were reported and the bolt that hit the house caused no serious damage.

By 7 p.m. all three fires were apparently under control and firemen from Malone, Constable and Bangor prepared to return to stations. The Malone Callfiremen had completed their trip to Malone and were approaching their Brewster St. headquaters when a third storm hit.

Lightning this time hit a barn on the Alton Tucker farm located in Burke on Rt. 11. Moments after the building was struck, it was engulfed in flames, threatening the nearby farm home and another barn.

The Malone Callfiremen turned around rushed back to Burke where they joined Burke, Bangor and Constable firemen in fighting the flames.

Preliminary reports from the owners of the properties involved show a bitter loss for the farmers who have already been hard hit by drought conditions earlier in the summer.

At the Green farm between 4,500 and 5,000 bales of hay, a silo filled with oats, a considerable amount of small farm tools and the 14 head of livestock were lost. Legacy reported a loss of between 9,000 and 10,000 bales of new hay. At the Tucker blaze between 800 and 900 bales of last year's hay were destroyed.

None of the owners were able to offer estimates of the losses.

Bill Tucker, who operates his father's farm, said the 800 to 900 bales of hay he lost were "like gold" to him. He had just returned from fighting the fire at Legacy's and was in his dairy barn milking when the lightning struck his hay barn farther up the highway.

Along Rt. 11 and the Burke County Road in both Burke and Chateaugay, ditches were filled to overflowing in some spots. Little streams were transformed into torrents of muddy water. Crops were flattenend and water was seen in the fields throughout the area.

Roads were littered with branches of trees and in many places covered with mud washed onto the highways from the embankments.

At the east end of the bridge leading into Chateaugay from Malone the driving rain loosened a large section of the bank on the south side of the highway, sending it crashing down onto Rt. 11, completely blocking traffic on one side.

Members of the Chateaugay Fire Department took turns directing traffic around the hazardous spot until State Police arrived. A crew of workers from the State Highway Department was rushed to the scene to clear the road.

In Ft. Covington a road accident resulted when a large tree was toppled by the storm, blocking traffic on Rt. 37 at a point about 600 feet east of the road's intersection with the Bombay-Moira Road.

A panel truck, owned by Onondaga Winery Inc., of Syracuse, operated by 23-year-old Gary F. LaPlante of Syracuse, was traveling west during the blinding storm and came upon the tree across the highway.

LaPlante told police he slammed on his brakes to avoid hitting the tree but his truck skidded on the drenched pavement, went off the highway and overturned.

The driver sustained a bruised forehead and a slight abrasion to the nose. The Ft. Covington Rescue Company administered first aid and LaPlante was removed to the Alice Hyde Hospital for further treatment and examination.

Two More Rabid Foxes Shot Across Border

Two more rabid foxes have been shot in the area, Dr. George Gingras, veterinarian and coordinator of the county's antirabies program, reported.

One of the foxes were shot in the town of Burke and other in the town of Malone.

Both animals were rabid, the State Department of Health confirmed yesterday.

One fox was shot by Erwin Wood, a dairy farmer on the Burke Constable Rd.

Wood said today, "I found the fox hanging around my heifers. As far as I know the cows were not bitten."

Wood handed over the fox to Dr. Sidney Martin, veterinarian, who sent it to the Health Department.

The other fox was turned in to the department by Dr. P. O. Dragoo. Dr. Gingras said the fox was also shot.

Dr. Gingras said that the two new cases did not indicate that there was a fresh outbreak of rabies.

He added, "Wildlife still has the disease and I hope that those who have not had their dogs vaccinated, do so now!

Mr. and Mrs. J. Brabant and daughters Joanne and Sheri returned home after spending their holidays at Selkirk Shore State Park also visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Merritt of Pulaski. They also spent some time at Coles Creek State Park and vsiited Mr. and Mrs. Mack Maither of Weddington, N.Y.

The "Gremlins" did some fast travelling last week and got into both my columns. When writing Thelma Baskins sister's surname "Stong" I was thinking of so many of the wee ones who when learning to talk can't say "St Onge" so call us "Stong", but in both papers the name had an "R" in and so made the name Strong!

What Has Happened To The Province Of Quebec?

For many years this Province and it's people enjoyed the greatest esteem and respect from all over the world, then all of a sudden, or during the past couple of years, a sad catastrophe has clouded the Province and it's people, so much so that unfavorable editorials are appearing in hundreds of newspapers in many parts of the world on the question of Nationalization — Separatism — and Government probes. As a result large investors very much hesitate coming into the Province of Quebec — even the tourist trade which was once one of the main industries of the Province is now at a very low level. Recently an editorial appeared in the Montreal Star (July 16th), by the Montreal LaPresse strongly recommending that the Quebec Government stop their Nationalization theme song and Inquiries and get down to business — by this it meant but one thing, concentrate on bringing more industries into the Province and thus eliminate or at least reduce the thousands of our people who are presently unemployed, chiefly in the rural parts of the Province, thereby re-establishing the high reputation Quebec Province has enjoyed for so many years. Even the presently existing large industrial corporations of the Province very much hesitate expanding chiefly because of this Nationalization and Separatism theme song that has been going on for more than a year, and the continuous increase in personal and all-round other taxes. Most Provinces in Canada to-day are enjoying at least some prosperity but the Province of Quebec in the past two years has sadly gone down in almost every respect, and we must not forget that Quebec and its population a few years ago enjoyed the highest esteem all over the world. Also, we must not forget, that the debt increase of the Province during the past couple of years amounting to the astounding figure of close on to five hundred million dollars has caused great hesitation on the part of the large industrial investor as to the advisability of establishing in the Province. The situation is so serious, and noticeably getting worse, that the population of Quebec should give immediate thought as to what is going on and not continue to believe in charm promises, and costly investigations, carried out purely for political gain without accomplishing anything but destroying the reputation of the provinct not only in Canada but all over the world. The truth is the whole matter is that too much time and money have been sepnt on useless inquiries and too little on the welfare of the Province and it's people. More Public Work-Roads and less Grandeur will help this sad situation.

Miscellaneous Shower.

On Saturday evening, August 25th, 1962, Mrs. Allan Hunter was hostess at a Miscellaneous Shower for Miss Shirley Greer whose marriage to Mr. Walter Baskin takes place on September 8th. About thirty-eight guests gathered for the happy event, and Shirley was completely taken by surprise. Little Jo-Anne Hunter wheeled in two wagon loads of lovely gifts, and Shirley was very pleased, and thanked everyone for their kindness.

Later games were played, and then delicious refreshments were served by the hostess, ably assisted by Mrs. Leslie Sherry, Mrs. Pearl Milne and Miss Alice Moody.

The bride's to be table was prettily arranged with autumn flowers and a miniature bridal party.

Water Safety On Labor Day

Favorite Labor Day outings are picnics, fishing trips, boating and swimming. Unfortunately, these activities also have fatal consequences each year. Drownings lead the list.

About two-thirds of the drownings each year are not of swimmers, but of persons who fall into the water from boats, piers, bridges, etc., fully clothed. Swimmers and waders take an unnecessary risk when they go into unguarded or unpatrolled areas of lakes and rivers.

The National Safety League of Canada asks everyone to follow these tips on water safety:

Supervise children playing in or near water.
Swim and boat only with companions, never alone.
Provide each person in the boat with an approved life preserver.
Should the boat swamp or overturn, stay with it. Wait for help or push and paddle it towards shore.

The League reminds those who plan to spend the week-end at home not to leave their safe practices at work Friday. The safe way of doing anything is the right way — anywhere.
