GREAT FAIR AREA — There is no other section of Canada that has as great an interest in regional fairs as there is expressed in Quebec's Eastern Townships. From week to week, all through the summer and early fall, it is old time countrytime wherever you go. It is not only displays, and animals and the midway — but the great volunteer groups who perform. Like the Eastern Townships Highland Band which played and gave a demonstration at Ayer's Cliff Fair. For more on that one see page 15.

No real economy growth

OTTAWA (CP) — Statistics Canada said Thursday there was no real growth in the economy during the second quarter and warned that Canada may be headed for the type of experience that has hit other countries.

The report also showed that first-quarter performance was worse than estimated in a preliminary report in June.

Gross national product (GNP) grew by 3.6 per cent to an annual rate of $137.6 billion during the second quarter but the entire increase was due to higher prices.

Revised first-quarter figures showed that price increases were greater and real growth less than previously estimated. The revised figures were 1.5 per cent for growth and four per cent for inflation compared with the June estimate of 1.7 per cent for growth and 3.2 per cent for price increases.

Real growth in 1973 was 6.8 per cent.

Preliminary estimates of second-quarter performance "indicate that the Canadian economy may have entered a period of weakness common to industrialized nations of the world," the Statistics Canada report said.

The United States had declines in GNP during the first and second quarters.

Little light so far on constable's role

MONTREAL (CP) — The former girl-friend of RCMP Constable Robert Samson told a fire commissioner's inquiry Thursday that she and the constable had social contacts earlier this year with a business associate of William Obront, described in Quebec Police Commission testimony as a leading underworld figure.

Ginette Bechard told the inquiry into a July 26 bomb explosion that she and Const. Samson met Camille Gervais, his wife and children during a trip to Morocco last spring.

She said the RCMP officer lent Mr. Gervais money to buy a bottle of liquor during a stay in Paris on the way home and "after we returned we went for dinner with them several times."

When asked if her former boyfriend had "underworld" connections, she said:

"He never told me about his work. I knew that his job required that he not mention anything about it."

In earlier testimony, Leo Robidoux, chauffeur for Mr. Obront, a meat wholesaler described as an underworld leader in testimony before the Quebec Police Commission inquiry into organized crime, said he met Const. Samson two years ago through a neighbor. He said the RCMP officer once asked him about Mr. Gervais, who bought meat from Salaison Alouette Inc., operated by Mr. Obront.

IMPRESSED BY SPENDING
Mr. Robidoux said Const. Samson was impressed with Mr. Gervais's apparent easy spending.

"He said it would be nice to have money like that to spend and he asked me what kind of guy Gervais was. I told him to keep his distance from Gervais and he would have no trouble."

Sgt.-Det. Andre Bolduc of Montreal Urban Community police testified he found a pistol in the RCMP officer's safety deposit box at a Bank Canadian National Branch in suburban Verdun.

"We checked the pistol for registration and we found it was stolen from a west-end hardware store. Two persons pleaded guilty to stealing the pistol after a break-in and one of the accused told the court the pistol was sold to an unidentified individual at a west-end tavern," Sgt.-Det. Bolduc said.

The RCMP has said Const. Samson is being detained at force headquarters for the duration of the inquiry following his testimony Wednesday.

His lawyer, Frank Shoofey, said Thursday that Const. Samson can be detained only for eight days, for conduct unbecoming an RCMP officer.

THERE'S ALTERNATIVE
At the end of the eight-day period, Samson could either be suspended or permitted to remain a member of the force, Mr. Shoofey said.

Const. Samson testified he went to the scene of the early-morning blast outside the home of Melvyn Dobrin, a Steinbergs Ltd. supermarket executive, after receiving an anonymous telephone call that he would find "something interesting" there.

He said such calls were not unusual in his work with the anti-terrorist squad and that "these people sometimes become good informers and help me with my work."

Sgt.-Det. Howard L'Anglais testified Wednesday that Const. Samson told him at Montreal General Hospital within hours of the explosion in which he suffered injuries to his left hand, an eye, face and chest, that the RCMP officer was to be paid $1,000 for planting the bomb.

Sgt.-Det. L'Anglais said Samson told him he had already received half the money after several meetings in a bar with a man known as Louie.

The RCMP officer was released from hospital this week after treatment for his injuries.

Need millions to check on oil spillage

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and the United States are considering multi-million-dollar radar surveillance and electronic navigation systems in an attempt to reduce hazards to oil tanker traffic on the West Coast, it was disclosed Thursday.

The external affairs department, in a communique released after a one-day meeting of representatives from both countries, said the measures could ease the threat of "serious pollution of a valuable recreational and fisheries area."

Exact cost figures were unavailable, but a departmental spokesman said the radar system and LORAN-C navigation network would be paid for by the U.S., which also is considering a vessel traffic management program that will be in effect before Trans-Alaska Pipeline System (TAPS) tankers begin moving between Valdez, Alaska, and refineries on the American West Coast, notably at Cherry Point, just south of Vancouver in Washington state.

Although details of the closed meeting were sketchy, it is understood that Canada reiterated its concern that increased tanker traffic in Juan de Fuca and Rosario straits, between Vancouver Island and the mainland, posed a serious environmental threat.

SHARED CONCERN
The U.S. said it shared Canada's concern and insisted that tanker traffic would be carried out in the "most environmentally responsible fashion."

They agreed to meet again in Washington early in November for further talks.

The unheralded meeting here was the latest round in an ongoing series of exchanges between Canada and the U.S. over West Coast tanker traffic.

Last June, the U.S. agreed to try to ease Canadian fears about pollution of the British Columbia coastline. This agreement was in a diplomatic note from the state department in reply to a Canadian government request March 26 that the two countries work towards joint regulation of tanker traffic.

The U.S. is believed to have said that if such a system goes into effect on the West Coast, then Canada should be prepared to discuss American anxiety about oil destined for the Atlantic provinces and Montreal refineries. A series of new deep-water ports and on-shore refineries in the Atlantic provinces promises increased tanker traffic along the East Coast of North America.

The U.S. also is reported to be chafing at the substantial volume of oil delivered in bond at Portland, Me., for trans-shipment by pipeline from Venezuela and Arab tankers to Montreal. That pipeline was the main source of supply for the Montreal area during last winter's energy shortage.

Township leaders salute Labor Day

BY JEAN PAUL PEPIN
SHERBROOKE MNA

SHERBROOKE — On the occasion of this Labor Day I sincerely hope that the labor movement will work for a better peace in the work sector. Together with the government the unions should toil for better working conditions and salaries for the workers of the region, the city and the province.

It is also the duty of the union leaders to begin thinking about the means to resolve the problems which face the workers. The government must do the same.

During the past few years the union leaders have used their power to attain political goals but I think the time has now come for the leaders to seek answers to the problems of the workers. When that goal is achieved it will bring peace to all classes of society.

My best wishes are extended to all workers.

BY GERARD DEZIEL
ST. FRANCOIS MNA

SHERBROOKE — Labor Day is a time of rest but it is also a time to analyse the past and prepare for the future. St. Francois riding has been the scene of much progress during the past year. But much remains to be done.

It is only with everyone working together that we will be able to build a better living for the workers and their families in the riding. I am very proud of the quality and the enthusiasm of the workers in the riding.

On this Labor Day I thank them for the contributions they have made to bettering the living standard.

Now our government must help. The time has come to stop extremism in the labor movements. It is only hurting us but changes in the Labor Code must come from a concerted action by both the federal and provincial governments.

For in the end we all have the same goals, a better life for ourselves, our families, our friends and for all fellowmen.

Keep up the good work and may everyone who has toiled throughout the last year enjoy the Labor Day holiday.

BY MARC BUREAU
SHERBROOKE MAYOR

SHERBROOKE — In the name of the members of the Sherbrooke municipal council I offer my best wishes to all workers in the city on the occasion of their annual holiday.

I desire to render public my appreciation to all workers in every sector, of all ages and in every trade because in their own way they contribute not only in the feeding of their family and the building of their home but also to the building of our city.

To the workers living in Sherbrooke I pay homage.

Postal workers hope for hefty increases

OTTAWA (CP) — Inside postal workers will be looking for hefty wage increases in their next contract talks, with estimates of their pay raise demands over two years ranging up to 50 per cent.

Representatives from the 21,000-member Canadian Union of Postal Workers have been meeting this week to formulate their contract proposals. Wages and job security are emerging as prime issues in talks that begin soon with government negotiators.

The current contract, which also embraces 17,000 letter carriers, ends Dec. 31. After the April national postal strike, mediator Eric Taylor proposed the parties get together in September to open negotiations.

Joe Davidson, national president of the postal workers, said at a news conference Thursday that while union wage proposals have not been finally settled, the demands will be "substantial."

Mr. Davidson said since ratification of the existing agreement in February, 1973, purchasing power of the employees' wages has declined 20 per cent.

The union also said its negotiators will look for "a substantial wage increase that would put the workers' buying power ahead of past and future cost-of-living increases."

At the current inflation rate of 11.3 per cent over 12 months, that would mean the union would ask for another 22.5 per cent for the next two years on top of the decline in purchasing power.

BONUS GIVEN
Since February, 1973, the government has given the postal workers a $500 cost-of-living bonus, which is tacked on to hourly wages, but union officials have said it is not enough.

Present maximum hourly wage for most postal clerks is $4.59. Letter carriers receive $4.44 an hour.

Mr. Davidson said the negotiators have not yet decided whether to ask for a cost-of-living adjustment in their contract. If they do, that would probably reduce their straight-increase demands.

The union is also not in favor of any contract longer than two years, said Mr. Davidson, but beyond that has not yet decided on length of agreements.

Technological change is also regarded as a major issue in negotiations as the post office introduces a $90-million automation program.

"This demand is of paramount importance at this time as the employer is introducing new classifications in his automation program," a union release says.

Dief urges special department for aged

TORONTO (CP) — A federal department of geriatrics should be established for the growing population of old people, former prime minister John Diefenbaker said today.

Mr. Diefenbaker, who will be 79 Sept. 18, told an audience at the Canadian National Exhibition that Ottawa should develop a national policy on aging "so that the later years of life can be lived in dignity and self-respect."

He said he was generally against increasing the size of the cabinet but felt an exception should be made for a new department of geriatrics.

The aged now represent about nine per cent of Canadians and will be the fastest growing segment of the population over the next decade, Mr. Diefenbaker said. They deserve their own cabinet representative because "too much ability is being lost ... by the automatic goliath at age 65."

Mr. Diefenbaker spoke at the CNE directors' luncheon on Salute to Seniors Day at the exhibition. Representatives of senior citizens' groups from the Toronto area attended.

He said such a department could encourage part-time employment of the elderly who want to work. There should be more senior citizen's housing and greater opportunities for the aged to continue their educations, he added.

"Men and women over 65 years are a natural resource that we squander," he said. "In the sunset of life there should be opportunities for them to live in creative leisure."

Mr. Diefenbaker said he did not accept the myth that "everyone is washed up" at 65. He said he continues to participate actively in public life "because I do not want to occupy a comfortable front seat as a spectator watching the parade go by."

He said he has no intention of retiring "as long as I can carry on, my health being what it is."

"The fact that there is snow on the roof does not mean that the fire has gone out in the furnace."

By IRENE PELLETIER
SHERBROOKE MP

SHERBROOKE — On the occasion of Labor Day I want to render homage to the citizens of Sherbrooke county who have worked towards the cultural, social and economic development of our city and our region.

During the past year the economic rejuvenation of Sherbrooke continued and brought with it many new industries. That is an encouraging sign, but, you all understand, there remains much more to do. Too much effort on the part of organizations of a social or economic character often becomes inefficient because there is not sufficient co-ordination in the pursuit of our development objectives.

There are still too many unemployed persons here and supplementary efforts must be made to alleviate the burden of those persons without jobs. There are also families and individuals found in social and economic situations which are inadmissible in a region such as ours.

I invite businessmen, professionals and all the population to once again work to solve the major problems which should interest us all no matter who we are.

Two problems stand out. First of all there is poverty in too large numbers and secondly pollution.

To all of those for whom Labor Day means the return to their studies I wish you a very successful academic year.

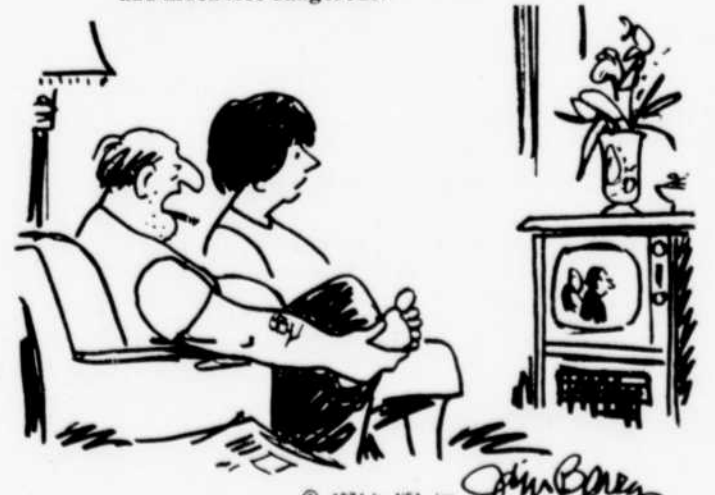

To each and everyone of you a very happy Labor Day.

Loansharking and narcotics—big crime problems

WINNIPEG (CP) — The two big activities of organized crime in Canada are narcotics and loan-sharking, the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police annual conference was told Wednesday.

Delegates at a closed meeting heard a report of the association's nine-member organized crime committee say that drug trafficking is more widespread and increasing more rapidly than any other organized crime control problem.

"Whereas such activities as loan-sharking and bookmaking are generally restricted to the more populous urban areas, the drug problem reaches into every community," the report said. "In the recent past, seizures of drugs were usually in small quantities. Today, seizures in million-dollar quantities are becoming commonplace."

The report also said organized crime is not the only principal in the illicit drug trade.

"Erstwhile legitimate members of the community are enticed into criminal activity by the potentially-immense profits."

Organized crime in the country is naturally most active in the more populous provinces—Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia, said Metro Toronto Police Chief Harold Adamson in an interview. It is mainly a home-grown network with little international involvement except in the areas of betting and the importing and distributing of heroin and cocaine as well as some hallucinogenic drugs.

"There are no U.S. syndicate families involved in organized crime in Canada," NOT BUSINESSMEN

Loan sharks are "not businessmen as you and I know them" the police chief said, but some have another business as a front for their lending activities.

Most are well-known to police "but what do you do with them—that's the thing." Charging exorbitant interest in a private loan transaction is not illegal. Loan-sharking activities by organized crime in Canada are aimed at poor-risk borrowers and are used to finance criminal activities, the money from which may be then invested in legitimate business, said the report.

The Toronto chief also said the end result of some loanshark operations has been assault and even murder of the client who could not pay off.

Chief Adamson said the police chiefs association is recommending the federal justice department amend the Small Loans Act to make such interest rates illegal.

There is no question that organized crime in Canada "launders" illegally-gained money but this is difficult for police to prove.

Amendments to the federal Privacy Act, said Chief Adamson, would have made electronic eavesdropping by law enforcement agencies much more difficult and organizations such as the police chiefs association protested forcefully. The bill was not passed before Parliament was dissolved.

The committee report also said there is no clear-cut description of organized crime in Canada.

"But whether or not the authors characterize it as the Mob, the Syndicate, etc., we are inclined to support the theory that there exists a confederacy of a group of persons with a common purpose for extending their criminal activity whenever and wherever possible in a continuing conspiracy... their primary criminal activities still being the traffic of narcotics, pornography, stolen goods, loansharking, gambling and frauds of all types."

The committee report urged all law enforcement agencies to participate jointly in gathering intelligence on criminal activity leading to joint action in foiling organized crime.

Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) - Prices dropped sharply in heavy trading on the Montreal Stock Exchange Thursday.

Volume was 1,984,000 shares compared with 634,800 shares at Wednesday's close. All sectors dropped to new 1974 lows during afternoon trading. Banks fell 2.91 to 209.97, industrials 2.59 to 177.41, the composite 2.51 to 169.66, utilities 1.96 to 119.89 and papers .41 to 106.63.

Toronto

TORONTO (CP) - The Toronto stock market's western oil index fell for the 12th consecutive session Thursday and hit its lowest level since July 24, 1970. Trading in all sectors was light.

The oil index fell 1.21 to 147.64 while industrials, widely-based indicator of market trend, lost 2.24 to 165.20, a low since Nov. 26, 1971, and base metals 1.24 to 68.50, its lowest level since Nov. 2, 1971. Golds rose 24.5 to 462.37. All sixteen sub-components of the industrial index declined with industrial mining, banks and utilities the greatest losers.

Observers attribute the decline to the influence of a depressed New York market where there was a sharp drop for the third consecutive day.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell to its lowest level since May 26, 1970.

At Toronto, declines outnumbered advances by a wide margin.

New York

NEW YORK (AP) - Stock prices declined again Thursday as the darkest days of a 20-month-old bear market continued on Wall Street.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 9.77 to 656.84. The widely-followed indicator now has fallen 140 points, or more than 17 per cent, in the last 16 sessions.

Only twice since 1962 has the Dow closed lower—on May 25, 1970, when it finished at 641.36, and on the day after that, when it hit a closing low of 631.16 for the 1969-70 slide.

The New York Stock Exchange's composite index of all listed common stocks, already at a record low since its inception in 1955, sank another .44 to 36.62.

Losers outnumbered gainers 1,151 to 290 among the 1,778 issues traded on the NYSE in turnover that totaled 13.69-billion shares.

Analysts said it was not a "news" market, reacting to any specific spot developments. Rather, they pointed to wide-spread frustration over unchecked inflation and to fears that the months ahead might hold difficult times for the economy.

Most investors Thursday turned their hopes for at least some relief from the sell-off to next week, after the three-day Labor Day weekend.

Pan American World Airways, the NYSE volume leader for the second straight day, recovered 1/4 to $2 after some sharp declines earlier in the week.

Late last week the troubled international carrier said it would need a federal subsidy to avert a financial crisis.

First Charter Financial, second on the active list, lost 3/4 to $5 1/4. A 241,300-share block changed hands at $5.

Golds, which had been in a down-trend recently, bounced back with some sharp gains. ASA Ltd. was up 4 1/2 to $90 1/2, Homestake 3 1/4 to $55 1/4, Dome Mines 4 1/4 to $56 1/4 and Dome's partially-owned Campbell Red Lake Mines, 2 1/4 to $39.

Hecla Mining, a silver producer, was up 1 1/4 to $19.

FIRST IN YEARS
Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel gained 1/4-point to $18 1/4 after announcing Wednesday its first dividend in years.

Other steels were mostly lower, as were many airline, chemical, and oil issues.

Glamors were mixed. Texas Instruments rose 1 1/4 to $79, while IBM declined 2 1/2 to $188 1/4.

Marinidque Mining B, the most-active American Stock Exchange issue, rose 1/4 to $2 1/4. The Amex market-value index dropped .87 to 69.03.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, Dome Mines rose 4 1/4 to $56 1/4 while McIntyre remained unchanged at $27 1/2.

Seagrams was down 1/4 to $28 1/4, Canadian Pacific 1/4 to $12 1/4, Massey Ferguson 1/2 to $12 1/4 and Hiram Walker 1/4 to $35 1/4.

Business capital best

Shares of two companies with fortunes geared toward business capital spending are recommended as buys by Canadian Business Service of Toronto. The investment counselling service says this sector should remain strong for the next several years.

On the other hand, it suggests deferral of purchases in another company which is oriented toward consumer spending—an area it sees as likely to weaken in the near term.

Canadian Business Service suggests purchase of CAE Industries Ltd., a holding and management company, and Hugh Russell Ltd., a marketing and distribution organization for industrial products. Neonex International Ltd., it says, appears to be having difficulty in a number of operating areas and purchases should be deferred until these are resolved.

NINE SUBSIDIARIES
CAE has nine subsidiaries in Canada and one in West

Germany involved in electronics, aerospace and metal products.

In the year to March 31, the company reported revenues of $62.8 million—virtually the same as for the previous year. But at the year-end, backlog of orders stood at $93 million.

The service says CAE is benefiting from both the energy problem and the current surge in capital spending by business. CAE, the service says, is a buy for long-term capital appreciation and some current income.

Hugh Russell's Russellsteel division incorporates a chain of steel service centres and another arm markets such items as plumbing and heating supplies.

In the first six months of 1974, per share earnings rose to $3.58 and the service says full year earnings should be about $7.

INCREASED DEMAND
The investment firm attributes the growth by Hugh Russel to increased demand and rising steel prices. While sales are expanding, the company is also making inventory profits.

Neonex International Ltd. is involved in a variety of consumer-oriented businesses in the United States and Canada. In 1968 it acquired interests in food retailing, consumer goods, communications, shelter and leisure.

In 1973, revenues rose 31 per cent to $208.7 million. In the three months ended March 31, revenues rose only eight per cent while net income fell 77 per cent.

But the company now appears to be having difficulty. Several of the recreational vehicle plants in the U.S. and Canada were closed for seven weeks in order to reduce inventories and two motor home plants were sold.

The service tentatively estimates 1974 earnings at 40 cents a share, down six cents from the corresponding period in 1973.

From two man operation to million dollar volume

VANCOUVER (CP) - Fritz Leueg started his kitchen cabinet business as a two-man operation in 1963 and expects to have a sales volume of $1.2 million this year.

"I didn't want to work for someone else all my life," Mr. Leueg said in explaining the founding of International Cabinets and Fixtures Ltd., based in nearby Richmond.

The company and its two employees stayed for four months in its original Vancouver location. When it moved to another city site, business was so good seven employees had to be hired.

After one year, the business grew to a sales volume of $110,000.

"The cabinets we were building were mostly for high-rise buildings and we did a lot of work for major construction firms throughout the greater Vancouver area," said Mr. Leueg.

In 1967 the company moved to a 10,000-square-foot new plant in Richmond which has since been expanded to 36,000 square feet.

Last year, however, the company showed a small loss because of large material cost increases.

MATERIAL COST SOARS
"We had a 102-per-cent increase for one of our raw materials—the composition board," said Mr. Leueg.

The company now is adopting a new marketing strategy by phasing out apartment cabinets and concentrating on the building of single-family home cabinets selling from $325 to $5,000 each.

Selling to apartment towers ties up a lot of capital for long periods and if the construction industry is on strike, real problems arise because additional cabinets for other customers can't be produced, said Mr.

Leueg. The company employs 25 people, about 42 during busy periods.

Last year International imported $120,000 worth of new machinery from Germany which enables the company to create what Mr. Leueg calls "the European influence."

The cabinets are made of wood but they are coated with a colored material which Mr. Leueg said does not scratch and is relatively maintenance-free.

"People especially like the fact that they no longer have to contend with the traditional wood grains but now they can add zest to their kitchen cabinets by having them in color."

Teamwork brought UN Johnson riding

An analysis
By CROSBIE COTTON
Record Reporter
ACTON VALE — The by-election in Johnson riding which saw Maurice Bellemare oust Liberal incumbent Jean-Claude Boutin could have a stunning impact on the future of provincial politics.

The fact that the 62-year-old interim leader of the Union Nationale party captured the seat is newsworthy but only if taken in the context that it was a joint effort with the Creditiste party.

Neither the Creditiste nor the Party Presidential, the newly formed party led by Yvon Dupuis, fielded official candidates in the election. They left the road open for Mr. Bellemare and openly showered their support upon him.

In the October 29, 1973 provincial election both the Creditistes and the Union Nationale were sent to stunning defeats by the Liberal party. That was the case in the Eastern Townships as well as throughout Quebec.

The once powerful Union Nationale failed to elect a single candidate and the creditistes, usually the power house in the Eastern Townships, lost all 10 ridings here and elected only two MNAs in the province.

Judging from the results of the by-election in Johnson riding it would seem the time is ripe for the amalgamation of the Union Nationale and the Creditiste parties. Both groups seem to realize this judging from the commentary following the election.

Together, with a single candidate, they could provide stiff opposition in many Liberal ridings. It appears that although the Parti Quebecois vote continues to slightly increase, the majority of the working class population, especially in the Eastern Townships, are not in favour of opting for separatism.

One would be foolhardy if he or she believed that the election of a single candidate means the resurrection of the Union Nationale party.

Mr. Bellemare is not an ordinary candidate and there were many factors working in his favor in the by-election. He is a forceful speaker filled with the old-time political charisma that so often used to mark the Quebec scene in the past.

The 62-year-old former cabinet minister had never lost an election and almost singlehandedly ran his campaign 18 hours a day.

His closest contender, Jean-Claude Boutin, was marred by scandal. Whether or not Mr. Boutin was guilty of the accusation against him is not important. At no time in his campaign did he bring out documented proof that he was not guilty of having acted as a Crown prosecutor after being elected to the National Assembly.

One factor seems to have been the vote of the English-speaking people. Although one can not be absolutely certain that it was that element which gave Mr. Bellemare his more than 1,000 vote majority there are certain trends that show that to be the case.

In the polls located in mainly

English-speaking centres, the returns showed overwhelming majorities for Mr. Bellemare. The lead article in a French-language Montreal newspaper yesterday was based on the conclusion that it was the English-language vote that swayed the election in Mr. Bellemare's favour.

During interviews in the Johnson riding sector of Windsor it was easy to conclude that many of the English-speaking population was disenchanted with the Liberal party.

They are angered by the passing of Bill 22, which made French the only official language in the province and often said they were going to vote against the Liberal candidate in protest of Bill 22 and what they considered Premier Bourassa's treatment of the English-speaking minority.

To the English-speaking population Mr. Bellemare represented a viable alternative. The anglophones were able to voice their disapproval without having to vote for a Parti Quebecois candidate and the party's separatist philosophies which went against the grain of the federal oriented English speaking population.

What happens next? Most observers agree that Mr. Bellemare will make an excellent representative for the riding.

But Union Nationale leaders are thinking about some form of agreement with the Creditistes. Marcel Cote, UN economic critic, and defeated candidate in Sherbrooke in the last provincial election said Thursday: "There is a good chance that we might be able to work out some form of pact with the Creditistes."

"If it worked once than it may work again," he added. "For the moment we have begun to rebuild."

The party which felt the greatest defeat must have been the PQ. They undertook an extremely aggressive campaign.

They hoped the fact that it was the PQ which exposed Mr. Boutin's alleged wrongdoings would help sway the public vote in their favour. It did not. Candidate Jean-Denis Bachand trailed the two leaders by a sizeable margin.

Library hours are extended

SHERBROOKE (CC) — Starting next Monday users of the Sherbrooke Library will be able to enjoy extended opening hours at the Bank street building.

Allen Dufour, director of the Library which serve both the city's English and French speaking population, noted Thursday that the library will offer seven more hours of service weekly.

The adult section will now be open to the public 45.5 hours per week compared to 40 hours as had been the case in the past. The youth section will now be open 35.5 hours per week compared to 34 hours.

Mr. Dufour claimed the move was designed to better serve the public by allowing people to come to the library now when they could not do so before. The public is encouraged to use the services of the library which are free. Mr Dufour adds that more and more people are using their right to borrow books.

During the past summer more books were borrowed than ever before in the history of the library and authorities are optimistic that the number of users will continue to increase.

The adult section will now be open from 10 a.m., until noon and from 1 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays. It will be open Monday, Thursday and Friday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 10:00 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The youth section will be open 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 10:00 to 5 p.m. on Saturday. It will also offer services on Monday, Thursday and Friday evenings from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m.

Sweetsburg Court

SWETSBURG WARD (JD) — Judge Bernard Legare reserved sentence in the case of Gerard Aubut to January 13, 1975. Aubut, of Farnham, pleaded guilty to five counts of theft of under $200., in Farnham this summer.

Aubut admitted he disposed of two stolen bicycles by throwing them in the Yamaska River. He was ordered to make restitution for the bikes prior to being sentenced.

Regent Larouche, of Toronto, pleaded not guilty to a count of dangerous driving near Notre Dame de Stanbridge, August 23. His trial was fixed August 29, and he was granted his freedom on personal parole.

Crown attorney Claude Noisieux originally asked for cash bail of $500, however relented when Larouche pointed out his car was a total loss, and he had a sister residing in Granby. Judge Legare forbade Larouche to operate a motor vehicle pending his trial.

Burton Macey, Sutton, opted for trial before a judge alone. Macey had been ordered to the upcoming assizes on charges of criminal negligence in the operation of a motor vehicle, and hit and run. The charges stemmed from an accident in Sutton, July 14, 1973.

Trial was set for December 30. Mr. Macey is represented by Jacques Meunier.

Roland Algier, Farnham, pleaded guilty to receiving stolen goods valued at under $200., in Farnham, July 30. Algier, who is on a one year bond to keep the peace, was fined $25 and costs, in default eight days, and was granted two weeks to pay the fine. His bond was imposed after he had been found guilty of assault, June 20, 1974.

Gerard Leveille, Granby, pleaded guilty to one count of loitering on private property with the intent to commit a crime, in Granby. He was fined $100 and costs, in default 30 days. He will be sentenced September 16 on a charge of theft of construction material valued at less than $200. He was represented by Andre Bachand.

Jack Ross, Granby, pleaded not guilty to a charge of hit and run near Bromont, August 3. His case will be heard September 9.

Leo Cormier, Ste. Cecile de Milton, pleaded not guilty to a count of simple assault on the person of Ms. Reine Gendron, August 9. His trial was fixed for September 9.

William B. Carrier, Ste. Sabine, and Claude Laliberte, Iberville, pleaded not guilty to a charge of possession of jewelry valued at $2,800., which they knew had been obtained through a criminal act.

Both chose trial by judge and jury. Preliminary hearing was set for October 21.

Pierre Raymond, Granby, pleaded guilty to counts of public mischief and property damage at the Windsor Hotel, Granby, on July 16 and 18. He was fined $25 and costs on the first count, $50 and costs on the second, in default 15 days, and placed on probation for six months.

Youngsters enjoy swim school

BOUNDARY (IH) — The eight weeks of the Three Villages and Derby Swim school are now finished. Tests were given at the Salem Lake beach, Derby, where 192 students turned up for them. Tests were given by three of the Canadian Red Cross examiners.

The week preceding the closing, under direction of Head Mistress, Mitsy Beach, semi-olympics were held in the water. The two days took in several water events and gave demonstrations of the skills taught, to those interested people on the beach.

The students were divided into four color groups, Red, green, blue and yellow accentuated with banners and the ribbons that were won by individuals in the several classes.

Yellow won the perpetual trophy which was the creative art of Miss Nicole Beaulac. The instructors were Captains. The competition included, "greased watermelon polo," apple dunking, an obstacle race, and swimming various strokes in distance according to their advancements.

Although some parents were disappointed that their child did not pass his or her test, it must be considered the examiners are very strict and demand perfection. Those who have seen the children in the lakes, will know that everyone that attended the school this summer has achieved a great deal. Everyone can handle themselves in the water.

For those who passed, the cards will be given them after they are received by the committee this autumn.

The successful rock-a-thon proceeds totaled approximately $2,000. This includes a cheque for $50.00 from Stanstead South United church Canusa Unit, and there is something like $55.00 yet to be collected.

This amount pays off the 1973 deficit and leaves a small balance for starting the 1975 summer school. If anyone has any questions concerning costs and finances, the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Armand Vachon will gladly give the information. Costs this summer are approximately $4,000. for salaries, bus, bus operator, insurance, gas and oil for the bus, plus incidentals as necessary.

The support of the general public, associations, Municipalities and towns is most encouraging to the committee who deeply appreciate the interest shown.

SPECIAL DAY — A semi-Olympics was held at Lake Salem to mark the conclusion of eight weeks of swim and water safety instruction by students of the Three Villages and Derby swim school. "Yellow" won the four way olympic competition with 96 points. Captains were Jacques Vachon and Robin Smith who were presented the plaque trophy by head instructor Ms. Beach. The photo is part of the team watermelon polo contest.

Salvation Army hopes to get used furniture

SHERBROOKE (CC) — The local branch of the Salvation Army issued an urgent plea for any kind of used furniture yesterday. A spokesman for the branch said all kinds of furniture are needed.

Much of it will be used to provide furnishing for students coming to Sherbrooke during the coming years. Beds and tables are among the most needed items.

Anyone willing to donate furniture should call the Salvation Army at 562-0844. The group, which helps needy people, will arrange to have the furniture picked up.

To Grow or Not

Two items on the front page of this newspaper last Tuesday, on the same general subject, must have aroused varying emotions in readers interested in the question of population growth.

One story, from the United Nations world population conference in Bucharest, quoted UN Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim as calling on the governments of the world to seek ways to resolve what he called the population crisis. He termed it "an overwhelming new factor in human affairs" and said it constituted a threat to world resources in food, energy and raw materials. As well, he linked the recent drastic increase in world population to the "vicious circle of poverty in the underdeveloped world."

The second story quoted Manitoba Industry Minister Leonard Evans as saying that Manitoba's population increased by 1.2 per cent last year to an estimated 1,008,000—a growth rate more than double what it has been in the past ten years. The city of Winnipeg's population had jumped to 570,000, making it the country's fourth-fastest-growing city. Winnipeg's increase, according to the minister, did not merely come from a shift from rural to urban areas but was part of general growth.

Should one be proud that the area in which one lives is increasing rapidly in population? Or should one be worrying along the lines laid down by Mr. Waldheim? This century has been one of growth and development for Canada and it has been as natural as breathing to most people to take satisfaction in living in a growing, developing—and therefore prosperous—city or province. Only in recent years have more and more people been questioning the price paid for industrial growth—in pollution, in the increasing use of what are called non-renewable resources, in urban sprawl, in escalating crime rates.

On the other hand, this is not a question that has greatly bothered the peoples of underdeveloped countries. For them, pollution, the using up of resources and so on are secondary to the need for economic development in order to bring their living standards closer to those of the people of more industrialized nations. It is comparatively easy to sell the idea of the dangers of pollution from a large factory (which may employ thousands of people) to the population of a smog-ridden city. It would not be so easy to sell it to the people of an underdeveloped country who would see through the pollution to the jobs such a factory would provide. Nor is it easy to convince parents in a country where much manual labor is employed of the virtue of having only one or two children.

The question of to grow or not to grow is one that mankind will have to make up its collective mind on fairly soon. And in making the decision, it is not helped by the plethora of experts who range in their views from the deepest pessimism of the Club of Rome to the most cheerful optimism of people like Professor Roger Revelle, a Harvard University population expert, who talked to the world congress of sociology in Toronto this week. According to the professor, all resources are renewable (a point that certainly is debatable), the sun is an inexhaustible source of energy, the main problem is food production, but this could be overcome to the point where a world population of 38 to 40 billion people (ten to 13 times the size of the present population) could be sustained.

Problems drive small farmers out

FOUR FALLS, N.B. (CP) — Darrell McLaughlin spends roughly 14 hours a day in his family's gently-rolling potato and grain fields but still finds time to talk about the problems driving small farms out of business in New Brunswick.

The 24-year-old graduate of Nova Scotia Agricultural College is chairman of a farmer-sponsored inquiry which plans to look closely at those problems in the next two years. "What we have to do is muster up a counterforce in society," he said. "The consumers and the farmers have to get together. I hope through this inquiry one can benefit the other and put pressure on the government to correct the injustices that are taking place."

He listed among these injustices a government tendency to help corporate farms and processors more than small farm operators, skyrocketing prices for agricultural land and the stiff markup on food before it reaches the consumer.

PLANS IMPROVEMENTS

Agriculture Minister George Horton said his department plans to improve communication between the department and farmers.

He also said consumers should back the farmers if they want them to supply a larger share of local markets.

High costs, low returns and long hours are driving farmers off the land in New Brunswick, a province where forests predominate and only a small percentage of the land has ever been successfully cultivated.

The number of farms in the province decreased 37 per cent between 1966 and 1971, dropping to 5,485.

Land under cultivation fell to 1.3 million acres from 1.8 million, a 26-per-cent decrease which indicates some of the land is being incorporated into larger farm operations.

The provincial government is concentrating on the search for lucrative, secondary industry. But there still are some, Darrell McLaughlin among them, who want to stick with the land.

PROBLEMS NOT NEW

"If I was to go to any other industry," he explained, "I would have to tell my son to do as I say and not what I do. But here on the farm I can pretty well say, 'do as I do.'"

An 85-year-old farmer who attended the commission's first public hearing at Fredericton this spring told the organizers, including members of both the National Farmers Union and the New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture, they were doing "a great job" but were more than 50 years too late.

The young commission chairman agreed the problems of high costs and low net returns have been around for years.

"But what frightened us was that two or three years ago in Canada, we were dumping wheat, we were dumping potatoes, we were dumping milk. At the same time, people in underdeveloped countries were starving."

"Farmers were offering to give their crops away. Out west, they offered their wheat to ship to an underdeveloped country but the mills wouldn't process it."

"We feel it is our God-given right to produce as much food as possible, especially since people are starving to death."

"In the last two years, we haven't been in a surplus position and farmers have been going out maybe a little bit faster. This has caused us great concern because as farmers go out, there is a corporate structure developing."

Don Oakley

U.S. Mint pleads for common 'cents'

By Don Oakley

In the past 15 years, the U.S. Bureau of the Mint has stamped out some 62 billion Lincoln cents. It is currently producing 35 million each day, almost twice as many as last year.

Fully half this tremendous output, however — something over 30 billion cents, the Mint estimates — is not in actual circulation. Thus the penny shortage which is a severe problem or inconvenience all over the country.

Where are all these pennies hiding? According to Mint director Mary Brooks, billions of them are in dresser drawers, shoe boxes, pickle jars — almost any place you can think of. An unknown number of others are believed to be in the hands of speculators.

The reason for the latter is that in December, 1973, the Treasury announced that it would request legislation changing the penny from 95 per cent copper and 5 per cent zinc to an aluminum alloy. It was apparent that the steadily rising price of copper would eventually make the amount of metal in the penny worth more than the face value of the coin.

Although there are stiff penalties for melting down pennies, they began vanishing by the tens of millions, just as silver coins vanished in the middle 1960s, even though the number of pennies that would have to be consumed to make any copper conversion operations worthwhile is staggering. For example, the market price of copper would have to go over $1.50 a pound (it is still well below that) to exceed the face value of a penny. At $1.50 a pound, 250,000 pennies, weighing 1,714 pounds and with a face value of $2,500, would be worth $2,571 as raw copper. The $71 profit would hardly pay for the energy needed to melt them down.

But whatever the explanation, the penny shortage continues and the Treasury Department is appealing for the help of patriotic Americans.

It points out that just one billion pennies returned to circulation would save taxpayers $10 million. If 15 billion pennies were returned, the Mint would not have to make any more for almost two years and would save $150 million.

To stimulate citizen participation, the Treasury is awarding Certificates of Special Citation to anyone who deposits cashes $25 worth of pennies at a commercial bank. Banks should forward the names of persons or groups qualifying for the citation to: Mrs. Mary Brooks, Director of the Mint, 55 Mint Street, San Francisco, CA 94175.

The memory wallows on

It may all be water over the gate to most weary Americans, but historians, and certainly future Americans, are going to be "wallowing" in the subject for generations to come. The way things are going, they will have whole libraries devoted to it.

The first issue of "Bookletter", a new review published by Harper's Magazine Co., lists a partial Watergate bibliography of 46 titles. Those swelling the "W" card catalogue file include:

"Watergate by the Numbers," "Watergate: Chronology of a Crisis," "Watergate and the White House," "Watergate: Crime in the Suites," "Watergate Hearings," "Watergate Portraits," "Watergate, the View from the Left," "Watergate and the Myth of American Democracy" and simply "Watergate."

Interested researchers will also find such intriguing titles as "Freside Watergate," "Watergate Cookbook," "Watergate Follies" and something called "Watergate Girls."

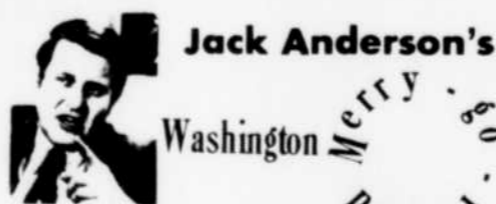

That's just the W's. Other titles include biographies of Richard Nixon, Sen. Sam Ervin and other Watergate personalities, examinations of the impeachment process and the doctrine of executive privilege, the Agnew scandal and the constitutional and historical implications of Watergate in general.

This is not even to mention all the memoirs that are expected to come nor the thousands upon thousands of pages of government documents, such as the White House tape transcripts and Judiciary Committee hearings.

Natural gas price hike despite new discoveries

Jack Anderson's

Washington Merry-go-round

WASHINGTON — The cost of heating homes and buildings with natural gas will skyrocket next winter, because the giant oil companies allegedly have withheld news of major discoveries in order to drive up prices.

In a secret report to Chairman Warren Magnuson, D-Wash., the Senate Commerce Committee staff has suggested that the oil companies are "simply lying" about the available gas.

"Having succeeded in tripling prices for oil in little over a year," charges the report, "the oil industry is evidently determined to match its achievement on the natural gas side of its business."

Not only have the oil companies indulged in "false reporting of the success of offshore drilling" in order to boost rates, suggests the report, but the Federal Power Commission has "done its best to appease the producers" at the expense of the consumers.

The FPC, which fixes the rates consumers pay for natural gas, is supposed to protect them from profiteering. But President Nixon installed as chairman a reluctant regulator named John Nassikas, who has helped the oil companies increase their gas profits. We proved this in 1971 from documents that he had kept under lock and key.

Meanwhile, here's what has been going on in Louisiana's fabulously rich offshore gas fields:

From 1969 through 1971, the oil companies found gas from 7.9 to 9.4 per cent of the time when they made exploratory drillings. Then in 1972, just as the FPC began preparing its findings in a rate case, the success rate dropped dramatically to 2.4 per cent.

In 1973, it plummeted all the way down to one per cent, even though offshore drilling was producing as high as 24.2 per cent success in other parts of the country.

"Either the oil industry has entirely lost the ability to locate new deposits of...gas in the most promising territory," states the secret report with brutal simplicity, "or it is simply lying about what it has found. The first explanation seems extremely unlikely."

"The less success the industry shows in its exploration, the higher the price it can demand for its gas," the report points out. Once the price is set, new developmental wells may produce "prolific quantities" in the same areas where exploratory wells "reportedly found nothing."

Even the FPC's natural gas planning chief, Gordon Zareski, conceded to us that he has "never seen such a gross aberration" as the figures submitted by the oil companies on their Louisiana drillings.

The day after we inquired at the FPC why they had accepted the oil industry's figures without any question, the FPC suddenly dispatched a letter of explanation to Magnuson.

The American Petroleum Institute, which furnished the FPC with the dubious figures, defended them. A spokesman told us: "Some years you hit it and some years you don't. Nobody would like to find gas more than we would. It has been very disappointing."

Footnote: Like the FPC, the Federal Energy Administration relies on the oil industry like a blind man relies on his seeing eye dog.

The FEA is preparing, for example, to stop allocating residual fuels for 90 days. This will benefit Exxon, which now controls the lion's share of the home heating market in the Northeast. With the dropping of the allocation program, Exxon won't have to supply small, independent competitors.

The manager of the FEA's residual fuels section, who helped draft the decision to end the allocation program, is John Vernon. He came to FEA from Exxon.

Vernon insisted to us, nevertheless, that he had "no significant input" into the decision benefitting Exxon. He had severed "all ties" with Exxon and "absolutely did not have" a conflict of interest, he said. "I look at my job like I joined the Army," he said. "I'm sworn to defend my country."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: An investigation last year found that 28 states had misused $43 million in federal funds earmarked to help educate poor children. Now, a year later, only $50,000 has been repaid by four states. Instead of repaying the federal treasury, states have been given the option of using the misspent funds for new local programs to help disadvantaged students. But only two states have expressed interest in repaying the money for this purpose...A closed-door conclave has concluded that some 12 million of America's 72 million cats and dogs are destroyed annually in control centers. Another 15 million are estimated to be at large, some in wild dog packs, others carrying disease, but most of them merely suffering from exposure and starvation. The pet experts recommended increased spaying, castration and research on birth control measures...

The FBI has busted a Washington "spy shop" whose proprietor, Robert Dorsen, claims that G-men were among his steadiest customers. Under a 1968 privacy law, the agents seized some miniature microphones and telephone taping devices. An FBI spokesman said the bureau's records show no purchases from Dorsen's German Hi-Fi Center, although individual agents may have patronized the place...Our exposes of microwave damage to radar operators caused the Veterans Administration finally to give benefits to two ex-GI radar men. Now we are happy to report that the Labor Department has given a similar award to a Federal Aviation Administration specialist, Chris Speros of Atlanta, whose cataracts resulted from his federal radar work.

Ralph Novak

Who's in charge around here?

By Ralph Novak

"Uncle Ziggy! Uncle Ziggy! Where are you?" "Nyet! Nyet! You'll never take me alive. You can torture and bribe and threaten and ask politely, you'll never get any military secrets out of me, you dirty Communists."

"What nyet? What military secrets? What Communists? It's me, your nephew, come for a visit. Where are you?"

"Oh, it's you. Well, I'm in here under the bed. I thought you must be the Russians. You know how I've always told you they would take advantage of our weakness, what with Watergate and impeachment and resignations and all. I figured they were here now for sure."

"Come on out. I haven't seen a Russian all day."

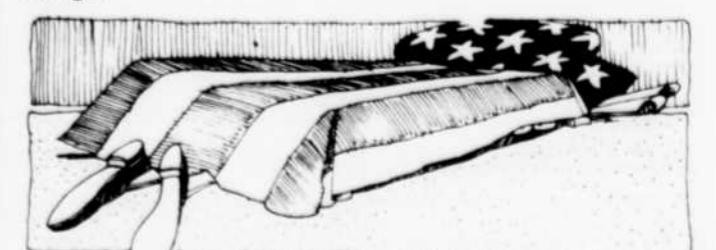

"Not even a Chinaman?"

"None of them, either. Come on out; it's almost time for 'Kojak.'"

"Aha! I knew it. Who is this 'Kojak', our new commissar or something? I told you they wouldn't waste a second."

"No, no, it's just a television show about a bald detective. Look, I told you everything was fine. The Constitution worked again, there's no crisis and all reruns of 'I Love Lucy' are proceeding according to schedule."

"Whew! It was a little cramped in there under the bed, with the canned goods and shotgun and all. I was sure they'd be here by this time. But just because they haven't come yet doesn't mean they won't, the devils. They've seen us attacking our leaders and they probably know there's nobody in charge."

"But there is somebody in charge, Uncle Ziggy."

"You mean they let him stay?"

"No, the law is in charge. The Constitution is in charge. The people are in charge, you and me."

"God help us. It's all over now and I haven't even finished paying off the mortgage."

"Not at all. Things are going along perfectly, or at least as perfectly as they were before. The system works pretty well after all, no matter how hard we try to mess it up."

"I don't know. You go around arguing with the boss, you're asking for trouble. I've always found. Who are we to question what our leaders tell us? I don't even know what the capital of South Dakota is."

"That doesn't matter. Just think of them as your employees, since you're paying their salaries and supplying the money they work with."

"Does that mean I could get Congress to pave the alley?"

"Not exactly but there are ways of going about it. You've just got to take an interest in what's going on and find out what the processes are. Just think, in two years, we'll have another presidential election and you can vote."

"Good grief, do I have to? It's always so hard to decide and all and I'm always too busy to read up on the candidates."

"It's up to you, Uncle Ziggy. You can always go back and hide under the bed again."

By Ann Landers

Who needs a weak-kneed grandma?

Dear Ann Landers: You really let a lot of us down. I refer to the advice you gave to the weeping widow who sold her lovely home and is miserable living with children who don't want her. "And now it's too late," she moaned. TOO LATE. HELL! It's NOT too late, and you should have told her so.

If a widow sells her lovely home she must have money in the bank, or somewhere. Some widows receive pensions or social security. So why didn't you urge the weak-kneed granny to move out if she feels like a housekeeper and maid and is afraid to open her mouth for fear of "interfering"?

I know it can be done because I did it. Here's how:

I have a $10,000 "rainy day" fund and live on $375 a month. I found an apartment complex with people my own age. (When you see an ad that says "no children," it's usually an ideal place for widows and widowers.)

There is no such thing as "too late." That miserable widow should move out, find new friends, get a hobby or a part-time job. To stay in a home with children who make her feel as if she is imposing is nuts, and please tell her I said so. Sign me — Alone and Happy

Dear Happy: I should tell her? After YOUR letter? Thanks for the gutsy, right-on approach. It takes courage to do what you did and I doff my bonnet to you, lady.

Dear Ann Landers: I was touched by the letter from the girl in the wheelchair. Although my husband is not in a wheelchair, he is, in a sense, a member of that group. His lower back is fused, his hips are locked. He must spend the rest of his life on crutches, or his "stepbrothers," as he calls them. But he is the sweetest, most gentle, loving and brightest man I have ever met.

We had a wonderful three-week honeymoon touring New England. He drove a hand-controlled car. If you didn't see the crutches lying across the back seat, you'd never know the driver was handicapped.

May I repeat what you said, Ann? Perhaps from a woman who is married to a man on crutches, it might have more impact. I just wish everyone could be as happy as we are. Most handicapped folks have a special need for love and an extraordinary capacity to give it! Usually they're thrilled to be alive because they have gone through a great deal more than the healthy person who takes his legs and arms for granted.

Please, Ann, tell them again to look in a wheelchair (or on a pair of crutches) for a sweetheart. That perfect mate could be the one you passed by because he (or she) was handicapped. — Lucky Me

Dear Lucky You: Thank you for a heart-warming letter. I hope your beautiful words will inspire others and that they will reap the same rewards.

Dear Ann Landers: Six years ago I moved into this nice apartment building. I have a pleasant relationship with many tenants who are widows (as am I) and we sometimes play cards together.

This past year I've had some financial reverses and cannot give to the worthy causes as I always have in the past. The request envelopes are left at my door by "Building's Captains" who are friends. Should I drop a note of explanation in the envelope so they won't think I'm cheap? — In The Red!

Dear Red: If you cannot give, ignore the request and say nothing. No explanation is necessary.

40th anniversary

EAST FARNHAM — Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Horner were pleasantly surprised on Saturday evening, Aug. 17, on arriving at the home of their nephew Harris and Carol Shuffelt to find about 35 relatives already gathered from near and far to help them celebrate their 40th wedding anniversary.

They were expecting to spend a quiet evening with the Shuffelts, the Horner sons, Allan, Roland, their wives and the grandchildren, along with aunt Edith.

Upon arrival they were ushered to a "love seat" under an arch of white and ruby red streamers centered with a wedding bell. Mrs. Horner was presented with a beautiful corsage of red and white rosebuds by her daughter-in-law, Marjorie Horner. Mr. Horner received a white carnation boutonniere from his other daughter-in-law, Susan Horner. Harris, on behalf of his wife Carol, expressed their pleasure at being a part in planning this happy event together with Allan and Susan, Roland and Marjorie and extended them a hearty welcome.

Mr. Charles Talbot proposed the "toast" to the celebrants which was ably responded to by Mr. Horner. The three grandchildren, Steven, Lisa and Kenneth Horner each brought a parcel wrapped in white tied with red ribbon, which, when opened, revealed a silver tray (matching their silver service) and a ruby crystal fruit bowl with matching candle holders.

The dining-table was centered with the anniversary cake made by Mrs. Norma Sherrer, iced in white with red rosebuds and silver accents, inscribed Happy Anniversary in red. Lunch was served buffet style and the serviettes were in keeping with the color scheme, accented with miniature rosebuds.

Relatives present were the bridesmaid Mrs. Edith Horner Shuffelt, the groomsmen, Mr. Stewart Thompson and Mrs. Thompson, Peterborough, Ont.; Mrs. Georgia Tedstone, Ottawa; Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Tedstone, Hudson; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Channell and daughter, Anne, Magog; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Talbot, Paul and Claire Talbot, Sutton; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Talbot, Mr. Douglas and Miss Evelyn Gilman, Warden; Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hall, Miss Louise Hall and Mrs. Adelaide Lanktree, Farnham; Mr. and Mrs. Allan Horner and Lisa, St. Lambert; Mr. and Mrs. Roland Horner and sons Steven and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Horner and Miss Marion Collins, locally.

Mr. Lawrence Horner and Miss Jessie Thompson were united in marriage August 18, 1934, and have resided in East Farnham on the Horner farm all their married life.

Contributions were received from relatives Mr. and Mrs. Robert Thompson and Miss Carol Thompson, R.N., of Peterborough, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. John Bryant, Spencerville, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Talbot, Georgetown, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Royce, Austin, and Miss Elizabeth Collins, who could not be with them for the happy occasion.

60th Anniversary

SCOTSTOWN — On the afternoon of August 24 Mr. and Mrs. Roy Waldron were guests of honor at a surprise 60th Wedding Anniversary at their home, given by their children. At the tea hour lunch was served to fifty guests.

Guests from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Newell Percy, Pocomasset, Mass., Mrs. Edwina Segley, Franklin, N.H., Mr. and Mrs. Gordon French, George and Carol, Mrs. Frances Bain and John of East Clifton, Mrs. Mildred Waldron and Mrs. Eva Ellis, Sawyerville, Mr. and Mrs. L. Bridal shower

COOKSHIRE — Mrs. Arthur Lebourveau and Mrs. Elaine Goyette entertained, in the latter's apartment, at a miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Kathy Chute, a prospective September bride.

Miss Chute was completely taken by surprise when she entered the livingroom, to see about 25 of her friends gathered together to honor her approaching marriage. She was led to a special chair of honor in front of a table covered with prettily-wrapped gifts and was assisted in opening them by her mother, Mrs. Curtis Chute and her prospective mother-in-law, Mrs. George Ord. The gifts were passed around for all to admire, and Miss Chute thanked all for their kindness and remembrances, and invited them to visit her in East Clifton, where she will make her home in future.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, which included a shower cake frosted in pink and made by Mrs. Frank Hurd.

Bridal Shower

SAWYERVILLE — On Tuesday evening Aug. 13, about 45 friends and relatives attended a miscellaneous shower at the Legion Hut in honour of Miss Janet Taylor, an August bride-to-be. Rose corsages were pinned on Janet, as well as her mother, Mrs. Clyde Taylor and Mrs. B. Crowell, acting proxy for her mother-in-law, Mrs. W. Spink.

Janet was seated at a table at the front of the Hall which was laden with gaily wrapped gifts. Her mother and Mrs. Crowell assisted her in unwrapping the gifts.

After the gifts were passed around for all to admire, Janet thanked everyone and invited them to visit her in her new home in Washington, D.C.

Then all went downstairs, which was decorated in yellow and white streamers and seasonal flowers.

Delicious refreshments, including a decorated shower cake, were served by several of the ladies.

25th Anniversary

MAGOG (CG) — A surprise 25th anniversary party was held for Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Ruck at their home.

Hostesses at the party were Mrs. Kathleen Ball and Mrs. Maxine Ruck, assisted by Mrs. Marilyn Dingman, Mrs. Iris Dingman and Mrs. Tiny Linde.

As they entered their home they were welcomed by some thirty guests and the music from one of their favorite songs "To Each His Own."

Kathleen Ball, daughter of the couple, seated them at a table where many gifts were opened and displayed. Cyril then thanked everyone for the gifts and for their attendance.

Lunch was served and everyone had an enjoyable evening.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): You may be saddened with extra responsibilities now, but you thrive on showing what you can do.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Your instinct will help you sift the truth from the stories that are going around just now.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Try not to step on sensitive toes. Steer clear of subject that as a rule winds up in an argument.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Stick with partner who supported you when you needed backing. Commitment should work both ways.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Handle emotional situation with discretion, but firmness. Don't lose your temper.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Avoid those who seek favors but never grant them when the shoe is on the other foot.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You would rather work than play and may turn down a social invitation to stay on your own territory.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Don't stray too far from home this weekend. You can find plenty of diversion in your own territory.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Sagittarians are gifted with foresight under current rays. Choices you make now will turn out fine.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 21 to Jan. 20): A pleasant day with favorite friends brightens an otherwise routine weekend of shopping, household chores.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You can judge from past experience what is likely to happen now. Proceed with confidence.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Shop for back-to-school clothing and other supplies. Keep travel to a minimum and drive carefully.

Dr. Lamb

Swing your partner to good health

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — This is probably a somewhat different letter or inquiry than you are accustomed to receiving. I'm now nearly 72 and have been married 53 years. I inherited a fine body and was blessed with parents who never became tired of advising me to breathe deeply, drink plenty of water, chew my food well and never make a glutton of myself. They also admonished me to "keep busy doing good and productive things." It all made good sense to me, so I followed their advice. I strayed, but never far — and it has paid off.

I have never required an aspirin nor a doctor's care except for a hernia operation when a young man. I seldom smoke, but drink beer or highballs on occasion to celebrate something. Both my wife and I have always been physically active all our lives. We have played baseball, soft ball, tennis and enjoy skating, swimming and dancing. We take no vitamins or special supplements, but eat simple, nourishing food. We both weigh about the same as when we were kids and have never had the need to diet.

About 22 years ago we switched from ballroom dancing to square and round dancing, which we have both taught and called for over 20 years. Many people we teach and call for enjoy much the same good physical and mental alertness and health. We believe this wholesome sport does help most people enormously.

My question is, why do so few doctors ever recommend this wonderful sport? Several doctors have told us that participation in this light exercise, both physical and mental, was probably largely responsible for our well being. Why don't they recommend it to others or participate in it themselves? Our company doctor, who checks me every year, usually greets me with "Hey, what are you doing here? I should be getting advice from you." But when I say, "Why don't you take up square dancing?" he changes the subject. Can you tell me why? My wife contends they are afraid they'll run out of patients. Could this be true?

DEAR READER — Dancing is wonderful exercise. It's great for those who enjoy it. I have often recommended it to people. It is a lot more fun than jogging. You can dance in accordance to your own level of physical fitness and health. A slow ballroom dance is fine for those who are not used to much activity. When you are in better shape you might want to do something more active. Of course, if you haven't been doing much physically for some time I would suggest taking it easy at first and gradually building up your tolerance as you would in any other sport.

I suspect that most doctors don't recommend it because they don't like to dance themselves because of lack of experience. What your doctor recommends often has a lot to do with his own habits. If he smokes he may be reluctant to tell you that you should stop. If he is on the fat side he may be too easy on you about your own diet problems.

Jackie Sorenson of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sports has been promoting "Aerobic Dancing" from one end of the country to the other. By vigorous dancing, as she demonstrates, you can get a tremendous amount of physical activity. And, this helps a lot in maintaining health and controlling weight. Anyway, I'm all for it and think it is good exercise for all people at all ages. Just choose the right level to start with and enjoy yourself on the way to better health.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on losing weight, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Losing Weight" booklet.

Book sheds light on Magruder's motives

For anyone who has paid reasonably close attention to the continuing story of Watergate, there is little new information to be gleaned from Jeb Stuart Magruder's account about the scandal itself. The value of the book, An American Life: One Man's Road to Watergate, is in the clues it offers to the motivations of the author and his fellow participants and the insight it gives of the Byzantine atmosphere that pervaded the Nixon White House.

As deputy director of the Committee to Re-elect the President, Magruder, 39, portrays himself as a reluctant party to the birth of the clandestine organization that broke into the Democratic party's national headquarters in search of political intelligence.

Once the culprits were caught, he was one of the chief architects of the cover-up. He is currently serving a sentence of 10 months to four years after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to obstruct justice.

CO-OPERATIVE WITNESS

A co-operative witness before the Senate Watergate committee, he impressed television viewers with his youthful good looks and his acknowledgment, in marked contrast with some senior colleagues, of the impropriety of the undercover operations in which he had been engaged.

Magruder's description of his early life and background makes it abundantly clear why he overcame his scruples and went along with the conspiracy.

He is the third Magruder in four generations to go to prison. His great-grandfather was jailed for smuggling boots and shoes to Confederate troops during the Civil War. His grandfather was convicted of misapplying $300,000 in bank funds as treasurer of a shipyard corporation.

The author's father was content to live quietly as the operator of a small printing firm but his mother spurred Jeb to greater ambitions.

Graduating from a small New England college after 21 months' service in Korea, he took a succession of sales executive jobs, developing an aptitude for the work but frequently differing with his superiors.

WORKED FOR GOLD-WATER

At the same time, he became involved in Republican party politics, working successfully to elect an Illinois congressman in 1962 and, despite private misgivings, as a district campaign chairman for Barry Goldwater's presidential campaign two years later.

Moving to yet another job in California, Magruder helped organize the state for Richard Nixon in the early stages of the 1968 campaign but eased himself out to avoid becoming embroiled in a dispute between state and national party officials.

In 1969 he was hired by H. R. Haldeman, the president's chief of staff, as a special assistant concerned with improving White House public relations. He saw it as a springboard to unlimited success.

"Jeb," I told myself, 'you're not going to screw this one up. You like this job and you're going to do what they tell you...'

He did so, faithfully serving Haldeman and later the taciturn, enigmatic John Mitchell who was his immediate superior on the re-election committee.

The author writes that he abandoned his loyalties when he sensed that his associates were attempting to saddle him with responsibility for the Watergate scandal and began to co-operate with the prosecutors.

Summing up, Magruder says he, like many members of his generation, "placed far too much emphasis on our personal ambitions, on achieving success as measured in materialistic terms, and far too little emphasis on moral and humanistic values."

"Instead of applying our private morality to public affairs, we accepted the president's standards of political behavior, and the results were tragic for him and for us."

Opening lead—K♣

By Oswald & James Jacoby

No bridge player is immune to the overbidding disease. Even the best get to impossible contracts, but then they make them on occasion.

Here we see Giorgio Bellandonna and Benito Garozzo of Italy, probably the best pair in the world, going to five spades instead of doubling five clubs for a sure profit.

Benito who did most of the overbidding wound up bringing the contract home with considerable help from the French expert who sat East.

A heart lead would have cooked his goose, but you can't blame West for playing the king of clubs. Benito won!

ruffed a club with dummy's nine of spades and led the four of spades. East could have defeated the hand right then by rising with the ace of spades and leading the king of hearts but East played the five.

Benito finessed the six spot; led the jack of diamonds and let it ride for a losing finesse.

Once more East could insure a set. He should have played ace and jack of spades. Benito would be able to discard either but not both of his losers on the long diamond. A careful count to 13 would have told East this but East was in a fog. He led his king of hearts.

Now Garozzo ran the diamonds to discard his losing heart, ruffed a heart, led his last club, ruffed with dummy's king and claimed his contract.

CARD Sense

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	3♥
Pass	3 N.T.	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♦ A Q 6 5 4 ♥ A Q 6 5 4 ♠ A K ♦ 2

What do you do now?

A—Bid four hearts. You may be in trouble in spite of your fine hand, but this is your best action.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding three notrump your partner has bid three spades over your three hearts. What do you do now?

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): You are at a loss to explain your feeling of animosity. At any rate, try not to let it show.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You are given a free hand, but may not have the self-confidence to proceed. Get going!

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Health is under negative rays. Do not neglect even the smallest symptoms at this time.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Although rewards may not be immediate, productivity will be recognized eventually.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): Routine bores you and you tend to get into mischief when you try to liven up the place.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Be sure move you are making is a practical one, especially speaking. Make a budget.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Monetary problems seem to be multiplying at a never ending pace. Keep searching for solutions.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Continue to turn down proposition that isn't worth the price you believe would be extracted later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Nothing of any consequence on the agenda today. A good period to give in to lazy impulses.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Now that you are aware of what has been holding you back, you can overcome the handicap.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Steer clear of critical friend. This is one of those cases where you "can't win for losing."

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Take it easy. Racing your motor won't accomplish a thing and only results in errors.

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): Take no chances no matter how rosy a picture someone paints about possible financial prospects.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): If you are tactful enough, you can find out what you want without seeming to be nosy.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Don't loaf around the house. Get the exercise you need and don't always have time to get.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Tension is alleviated by news you receive early in day. Go out and celebrate with family.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21): If your requests aren't granted today, they'll at least be favorably considered.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Magnifying either your problems or your dearth of them is a mistake. Be realistic.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): Come to an agreement without further ado. Situation could get completely out of hand if not settled.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): Enjoy an outing with friends. Contribute your share—financial or otherwise—to the gaiety.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Although you disagree, you are not in position to make an issue of the matter. Keep quiet.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Stick to the job until it is finished to your satisfaction. Otherwise, your conscience will suffer.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Your built-in "radar" system warns you now, and you'd be wise to heed it. Take action.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You may need official help of some kind to sort out your problem and help you work out a solution.

On Labor Day, A Message...

To the working men and women, we express our pride and our thanks. Their efforts, energy and initiative have done so much in building prosperity and progress, and on them we rely, as we look to the future.

We, too, are privileged to work for the good of our town, our friends and our neighbors.

Our job: To represent you to the best of our ability.

LABOR DAY

September 2ND
1974

"Work is love made visible." Today we pause to pay tribute to the workers of Canada...the men and the women whose love and labor have made our country great. Who brought it from a wilderness to a land of plenty with opportunity for all. This weekend we take time to reflect upon the dignity and the privilege of productive labor. Tuesday we'll go back to work, each to his own particular job; student., farmer, scientist, businessman, doctor, lawyer, laborer...with dedication and vigor anew.

★ LABOR DAY ★

September 2nd

"Blessed is he who has found his work; let him ask no other blessedness. His is the greatest of all."

—THOMAS CARLYLE

Labor, said a wise man, preserves us from three great evils... weariness, vice and want. It also serves as an excellent measure of strength and prosperity ... especially when a nation's people are independent and proud of earning a fair day's wage for a fair day's work. Today, we take time from our daily jobs to pay our grateful tribute to the Canadian ethic that dignifies honest labor and knows that work is love made visible.

New Zealand Kibbutz movement gets official OK

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — Nearly a year ago New Zealand's Labor government said it wanted to get into the commune business—or at least showed willingness to put up land for communal development.

Now the first such project has been approved. But in the meantime the name has been changed—and officialdom has clamped on a few provisos.

Prime Minister Norman E. Kirk originally presented the plan as an opportunity for young people who wanted a different life-style to contribute still to national development.

He said the plan was to bring near-wilderness, but potentially useful, land into production. There had to be a place in nation-building for young people.

Kirk preferred the term kibbutz to commune. He said there is a big difference between a kibbutz on the Israeli pattern and a commune. The Prime Minister said he did not think the foreign term kibbutz ideal, but knew of nothing else which conveyed the idea.

That sent scholars to a study of the Maori language—the language of New Zealand's native race whose early tribal organization was largely on a communal basis. Maoris said what Kirk had proposed was similar to Maori work-sharing operations.

So they came up with term ohu, which is defined in Maori dictionaries as "a company of volunteer workers."

SOME UNEASY

But whether commune, kibbutz or ohu, the idea aroused uneasiness in some circles. There are a number of communes in New Zealand and frequently they are at odds with local authorities or sections of local people, or both.

In response to urgings, the minister of lands, M. Rata, said counties would be consulted before sites were allocated for an ohu. The government would make it clear to groups that they would be subject to the same bylaws and controls as other New Zealanders, including health regulations and building laws.

Now Rata has announced that land has been approved for the first ohu in the Coromandel area—a peninsula on the east coast of the North Island.

Nearly 20 people had formed a group, he said, and would move on to the land. He intended to confer with the local authorities concerned and looked forward to their support.

Setting out the procedures for establishing an ohu, he said that 15 or more adults could apply to the government for land to establish an ohu.

If the application was accepted, they would be given a temporary 12-month licence to run an ohu. If progress was satisfactory, the licence would be replaced by a 10-year lease, with perpetual rights of renewal and rent reviews.

The land would be rented by the government at 4% per cent of its market value.

Whether people desiring a different life-style want it enough to comply with all the government red tape involved remains to be seen.

The Day Under Your Sign

- ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19): That little extra push that you make before the other fellow gets on the job makes the difference.
- TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): Back to the grind and you feel no enthusiasm for working. Routine should go OK.
- GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Keep plugging away familiar to Taurus) even though you are less than inspired at this time.
- CANCER (June 22 to July 21): Remain incommunicado if possible if someone reaches you, the news may be disagreeable.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Duty calls and you answer, although you have to convince yourself that you must do so.
- VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22): Romantic venture sets the happy tone of this day. Summer romance may continue unabated.
- LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22): You hit your stride early, but tend to poop out in a short time. Try pacing yourself.
- SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): People are not as friendly as you'd hoped they would be, and not inclined to accommodate you.
- SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Opportunity to bolster your financial position interests you, but you lack capital to invest.
- CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't neglect family responsibilities because of business. The two are mutually important.
- AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Duty calls and you answer, although you have to convince yourself that you must do so.
- PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): You may be too preoccupied to see what is going on around you and miss out on something vital.

Border concert series a success

BOUNDARY — The fourth and last concert of the summer series sponsored by the North Country Concert Association Inc., at the Haskell Opera House on the Border, was presented to an appreciative audience on Friday evening, August 23, by the Vermont Brass Quintet.

These were David Brubaker, trumpet; Ms. Priscilla Douglas, trumpet; Chapin Kaynor, horn; Forrest Newton, tuba; and Robert Wigness, trombone. They are all members of the Vermont State Symphony Orchestra and have performed with them and with various other chamber music groups throughout the State.

The musicians played Rondeau, by Mouret; Contrapunctus III, from the Art of Fugue, by Bach; Canzona Bergamasca, Scheidt; Music for Brass, Percy Young; and Symphony for Brass, arr. by Victor Ewald. After intermission, they presented Suite by Anthony Holborne;

WI members visit senior citizens Home

LENNOXVILLE — The Women's Institute paid its annual visit to Grace Christian Home in Huntingville, recently.

A short business meeting was held in the board room with the president, Miss Kathleen Atto in the chair.

The usual opening was carried out and the roll call was responded to by the members donating a gift of jams or jellies for the senior citizens. Four guests were welcomed.

Tentative plans for the handicraft booth at the Sherbrooke Fair, and the upcoming school fair to be held on September 14 in the Lennoxville Elementary School.

Mrs. Neil Tracy told of visiting a county meeting in Huntingdon, England and how she was made welcome as a Canadian while visiting there. Mrs. Tracy was most interested in the craft work done there.

Mrs. Dorothy Geddes gave some worth while tips on the prevention of food poisoning and rules for road safety.

Mrs. Wallace congratulated the winners in the J. & P. Coats embroidery competition.

"THE WHOLE WORD OF GOD FOR ALL THE PEOPLE OF GOD"

His main work after leaving the C.P.R. was his home, beautiful garden and flowers.

The funeral was held July 31, 1974 from Wilson & Son Funeral Parlour, Main Street, to Calvary United Church, where service took place at 11 a.m., with Rev. Burn Purdon officiating, speaking comforting words to the bereaved family. The funeral was largely attended by family, neighbours and friends.

Burial was in Fairmount Cemetery.

He leaves to mourn his loss, his wife Pearl, daughters Thelma at home (Greta) Mrs. R. Sylvester of Farnham, (Hazel) Mrs. A. LePitre of Ottawa, two sons-in-law R. Sylvester and A. LePitre, four grandchildren, Barbara Samson of Ottawa, Barry LePitre of Toronto, Gregory Sylvester of Kingston, Ont., and Karen Sylvester of Farnham, two great-grandchildren Steven and Robert Samson of Ottawa, one sister, Mrs. Margaret Graves of St. Johnsbury, Vt., several nieces and nephews who all have the deepest sympathy of this community.

The flowers were many and beautiful, showing the esteem held for Mr. Flanagan. The bearers were three nephews, Clader Wilson, Douglas Mudgett, Roderick Crandall, two grandsons Barry LePitre and Gregory Sylvester and Mr. Rufus Cromwell, a neighbour.

Relatives and friends present from a distance were from St. Johnsbury, Vt., Ottawa, Toronto and Kingston, Ont., Farnham, Verdun, Montreal, St. Johns, Knowlton, Foster, Warden, Brome, West Sutton and Cowansville.

The officers and trustees have been supported by a contribution of money from the Vermont Council on the Arts, Inc., Montpelier, Vt., which made possible the low cost of tickets. The season has proven a success.

MRS. C. GOODSSELL of Stanstead

Mrs. Clarence Goodsell of Stanstead, entered into peaceful rest at the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Sherbrooke, following a lengthy illness, on Saturday, August 10, 1974.

The former Alberta Jacques was born at St. Victor de Beauce, on April 18, 1918, the daughter of Ernest and Rose (St. Pierre) Jacques.

As a young girl, she came with the family to Stanstead and was educated at the Ursuline convent in Stanstead, August 17, 1939 she was united in marriage to Clarence Goodsell, they resided in Rock Island and Stanstead. He died suddenly 22 years ago.

Following his death, Mrs. Goodsell continued to operate the little grocery store they had established about 27 years ago, in Stanstead.

She was a former member of the Daughters of Isabelle, and was an active member of Stanstead Frontier Branch Auxiliary, Stanstead, No. 5 and of the Friendly Bingo Club. She lived a good christian life, was a wonderful wife, mother and friend who will be greatly missed in the community.

The funeral was held from Cass Funeral Home to Sacred Heart church, Stanstead, for the Requiem Mass at three o'clock on Wednesday afternoon, August 14.

Father Roland Mainguy was celebrant. Organ music was played to accompany the soloist, Gilles Grenier who sang for the Mass and hymns.

The bearers were Renel Demers, Raymond Goodsell, Eugene Roy, Ronald Goodsell,

Obituaries

JAMES F. FLANAGAN of Sutton

After only a few days illness Mr. James Frederick Flanagan passed away at the B.M.P. Hospital, Cowansville, July 29, 1974.

Although Mr. Flanagan had not been in good health for the past few years and had been outside visiting his neighbour the day of entering the hospital, his death came as a shock to his family and friends.

He was the son of the late James Flanagan and his wife Matilda Hay.

Born at East Hill, February 24, 1892, he received his education at the East Hill Country School and at the Knowlton High School.

He worked for several neighbours in this place until joining the C.P.R. in 1912 as a trainman, working up to become conductor.

In 1912 he was united in marriage to Miss Pearl Stetson of Sutton and they have always lived in Sutton.

Three daughters were born to this union. Mr. Flanagan retired from the railroad in 1957.

Jim, as he was better known, was a kind husband, father, neighbour and a friend to all. He was past president of the horticulture section of Brome Fair where he gave his greatest interest to all that could be done for the fair. At the time of his death he was chairman of the Cooking Department.

He was a member of Calvary United Church, also a trustee of the church, and on the committee of the Memorial Board. He was a member in both lodges of the Masonic Lodge.

His main work after leaving the C.P.R. was his home, beautiful garden and flowers.

The funeral was held July 31, 1974 from Wilson & Son Funeral Parlour, Main Street, to Calvary United Church, where service took place at 11 a.m., with Rev. Burn Purdon officiating, speaking comforting words to the bereaved family. The funeral was largely attended by family, neighbours and friends.

MRS. MARY YETTER of Massawippi

Mary Frances Yetter died in the Sherbrooke Hospital following a short illness, July 27, 1974.

She was united in marriage to Harold Arthur Yetter in 1914 and of this marriage nine children were born.

She lived in Massawippi most of her life, except the last few years she lived with her son Leonard in Lennoxville. In 1972, after falling and breaking her hip the second time, she went to live with her son Earl in Danville.

Funeral services were held on July 30 in the Massawippi United Church, Rev. G. Lokhorst from East Angus officiating. The hymn, The Old Rugged Cross, was played on leaving the church, by Mrs. Claire Shipway.

The bearers were her three grandsons, Roy and Edward Yetter, Robert Masson and a friend, Delbert McIntyre.

Mrs. Yetter leaves to mourn: four sons, Francis, Earl, Mervin and Leonard, also one daughter Irene, daughters-in-law and son-in-law, also many grandchildren. Interment took place in the Massawippi Cemetery.

Relatives and friends attended the funeral from Massawippi, Lennoxville, Danville, Ayer's Cliff, Newport, Vt., Ontario, Alberta, North Hatley and East Hatley.

GORDON LESLIE BAILEY of Magog

Gordon Leslie Bailey died suddenly at his home in Magog, Que., on July 25, 1974.

He was born April 5, 1904, in the town of Bedford, Que., son of the late George Bailey and Etta Buzzell.

Funeral service was held on Monday, July 29 at St. Paul's United Church. The bearers were all members of the Stewards of which he was a member for 16 years.

CHALES PLUMMER of Saskatoon, Sask. formerly of Richmond

The death of Mr. Charles Plummer at the age of 76 years occurred at his residence 101 31st St. West Saskatoon, Sask. on Sunday July 28, 1974.

The funeral service was held on Wednesday, July 31st at 2:30 p.m., at St. George's Anglican Church, conducted by Archdeacon H. Brandrick.

Interment took place in Soldiers Field Woodlawn Cemetery. Funeral arrangements were by Westwood Funeral Chapel.

Mr. Plummer was born in Richmond, Que., and lived the early part of his life there. He served overseas with the Canadian Army during the First World War.

After the war he settled in Moon Lake, Sask., district in 1919, where he lived until moving to Saskatoon ten years ago.

Mr. Plummer served with the Veterans Guard during the Second World War and was a long time member of the Saskatchewan Branch of the Canadian Legion. Legion rites were conducted by Mr. W. Jack Graham, Peter Delver, Harry Mouton, Russell Pritchard, Robert Tyland, and Tony Glow.

Mr. Plummer was predeceased by his wife Cora in 1964 and by a daughter Mrs. Dorothy Kinns in 1969, also by one sister and one brother.

Surviving are two sons Leonard and Kenneth, both of Saskatoon, ten grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, one sister and five brothers, as well as several nephews and nieces and cousins around Richmond, Que.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sherman of Lancaster, N.H., were calling on Mr. and Mrs. P.A. Sherman and other friends in town, then on to Lennoxville where they were overnight guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Pearson.

Miss Catherine Buchanan of Waterville, Ont., joined her parents Rev. and Mrs. Norman Buchanan on Friday at her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Buchanan. The Buchanans left for home on Sunday going to visit friends in the States before returning to Waterville.

Mr. Douglas Simpson of Toronto, Ont., is spending his vacation with his mother Mrs. John Simpson.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Berwick spent a day at Abercorn on business.

Supper guests at the Forgrave home were Mrs. Clifford Leavitt, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dow and Duane of Tilton, N.H. and Mrs. L. Lowd, Bulwer.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave and Lana and Mr. Bruce Ward visited Miss Cindy Forgrave in Georgeville and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Price.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Forgrave spent a few days in Abercorn, guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lahue.

Mr. Arthur Sanderson and Mrs. Gladys Knowles, of Unity, Maine, were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling Batley. While here Mrs. Batley accompanied them to the Wales Home, Richmond to visit their aunt, Mrs. Stella Coates. Mrs. Coates returned home with them to spend a week with her daughter, Mrs. S. Batley.

Mrs. Stella Coates was pleasantly surprised when a number of W.I. members and friends called to wish her much happiness on her birthday. The members brought sandwiches, Mrs. Rosemary Lowe brought a beautiful birthday cake and Mrs. Batley served tea and ice cream.

Dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. S. Batley were Mrs. W.K. Gordon, Scotstown; Mr. and Mrs. George Berwick, Sawyerville; and Mr. and Mrs. Freddie Berwick and children of Randboro.

Mr. and Mrs. Barry Murray of Hudson, N.H., were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. D.P. Murray. Mr. and Mrs. Brian Murray and Kim of Montreal were overnight guests also of their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom MacAulay of Sarasota, Fla., and their son and grandson, Gordon MacAulay and Ian of Ottawa, Ont., were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. P.A. Sherman. They also called on Mr. and Mrs. George MacDonald.

Mr. and Mrs. George Leavitt of Sherbrooke were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Matheson and were supper guests of Miss Margaret Matheson and Peter Matheson.

Mr. Allen MacAulay and son David of Montreal spent their vacation with Mrs. Murde MacAulay and Miss Heather MacAulay.

Mrs. Bernice Laurila of Nipigon, Ont., Mrs. Dave Nicholson of Milan, Mrs. Dale Farrell and Sean of Sherbrooke were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth MacDonald on Aug. 13.

FIDDLE-DEE-DEE — A good time was had by all at the Ayer's Cliff old-time fiddler's contest. Pictured here is 84-year-old Andrew Robinson sawing away on the violin.

Foot-stomping music at Ayer's Cliff

The third annual Old Time Fiddlers contest at Ayer's Cliff fair on Sunday evening, August 25, was another decided success. It was under the chairmanship of Edward Hyatt assisted by his wife, Hilda, of Stanstead, who put many hours of work into it to make it such.

Bruce Patton of Moe's River came as pianist and there were young folk with guitars. Sharon Patton played accordion selections.

Another special attraction was the soloist, Miss Johanne Duchesne, ten years old from Coaticook, who sang the song, "Jambalaya" and was accompanied by Mr. Patton.

There were 21 fiddlers, seven in the Senior Class and 14 in the open.

Their music was greatly enjoyed by the large audience on the grandstand. The judges chose as the winners, Senior Class, Eddy Custeau, Lionel Fecteau and Jess Galazzo as first, second and third place winners to be each presented a trophy and cash prizes. Andrew Robinson, of Huntingville, a grand person of 84 years played his three selections on his violin and was presented with a medal on a triple colored neck ribbon. He was the oldest musician to play.

In the open class the top three winners were Bruce Murchison, Tony Howell and Gail Spahn, who received trophies and cash prizes.

All the musicians were presented with $5.00 gifts in cash. The judges were Mrs. Harold Church, Jack Keeley and Gerry Haselton, who were presented gifts in appreciation of their work.

During the show, Mrs. Ethel Davis presided for the drawing of a very beautiful quilt that was made by Mrs. Elizabeth Miller of Beebe and donated the Women's committee of the fair board. The winner was Mrs. Doris Sutton of Ayer's Cliff.

Mr. Hyatt was M.C. for the show and the welcome was spoken by the Fair president, Jules Gagne.

The fourth annual Old Time Fiddlers contest will be held again in 1975 on the closing Sunday night of the fair.

The fiddlers came from both sides of Border, some as far as Maine in the States and Ontario in Canada. While the judges were making their decisions, all the musicians played their instruments and were joined by Mr. Patton on the piano while Sharon played her accordion. A couple of good dancers danced a jig and judging from the audience applause they enjoyed every minute of the entertainment.

Guardsmen says he loves his job

OTTAWA (CP) — Nineteen-year-old Jeff Ludlow of Markham, Ont., relaxed in a T-shirt on his dormitory bunkbed. Beside him was the scarlet tunic and fur hat that makes him one of the biggest tourist attractions in the national capital.

"Wow! I can't believe I'm really here," he remembered thinking the first day he marched to Parliament Hill, led by the Canadian Forces central band.

Dressed in black trousers, glistening boots, bushy bearskin and the handsome tunic of the Governor-General's Foot Guards, "it's great to be the centre of attention," Jeff said.

He is one of 120 post-secondary students hired for the summer by the armed forces to perform the colorful changing-of-the-guard ceremony beneath the Peace Tower every morning at 10 o'clock.

If there isn't much to guard during Parliament's quiet summer months, the show at least perpetuates a sense of British tradition with military precision.

And thrilling up to 6,000 tourists a day is only one on a list of duties performed by the summer soldiers.

MORNING STARTS EARLY
A busy morning, beginning at 6:30, includes polishing boots, grooming the uniform and passing inspection for the day's parade.

Sports occupy the afternoon for most, while others take turns manning sentry posts at the Governor-General's residence, Rideau Hall.

While only 75 march on parade at a time, extra men are dressed, ready to march in case of emergency.

Training begins the first week of May at Petawawa, Ont., a forces base 120 miles northwest of Ottawa.

"We learned everything you'd learn in the regular militia," said Bruce Lacroix, 20, of Ottawa. "The structure of the army, first aid, the chemistry and biology of nuclear warfare. There's not too much we didn't touch on."

Others to receive cash prizes for marks were Mary Brus, 171 points; Helene Gagne, 167; Pierrette Letourneau, 166; Ghislaine Leblond, 165; Jeanne Nadeau, 162; Martin Gagne, 160; Alain Pouliot, 158. Susan Cunningham of Massachusetts received the Hyatt cash prize for being the youngest girl to participate and Martin Roy of Ayer's Cliff, the boys.

The Royal Bank silver plate, given by the Rock Island and Ayer's Cliff Branches for best showmanship was presented to Claire Letourneau of Ayer's Cliff. The Magog trophy to Claire Letourneau and the Lesvesque trophy to Lorraine Letourneau. Douglas Stoddard trophy to the youngest exhibitor to Martin Therrien.

Mitch Miller, on behalf of the 4-H clubs thanked the leaders and all who make possible this event each year of the fair. Emile Laliberte spoke remarks of appreciation in French.

The day following, the Club aggregates were: Ayer's Cliff, 1; Barnston, 2; Coaticook, 3; Compton, 4; Hatley, 5; Lennoxville, 6; St. Hermenegilde, 7 and Waterville 8.

He remembers, too, the first time pretty girls gathered to watch him stand sentry, their eyes popping, tongues hanging.

"A lot of talk and no action," said 19-year-old Rob Notman of Montreal. "The girls flock around you, taking pictures. But they never come home on the bus with us."

VALUE INTIMACY
Yet everyone seems to value the unique camaraderie among themselves.

"Guys who'd never get along in civilian life become friends here," said Rudy Snel of Ottawa, the oldest guard at 29.

Though tensions are inevitable among men living 36 to a room, morale is high.

"Somebody's going to get mad if someone steps on another guy's freshly polished boots," admitted Capt. Steve MacNab, a senior officer, "but we have a very happy organization."

"They won't remember just the good times," he said. "They'll remember when the chips were down. Like when it was cold and rainy and the truck broke down and everyone pulled together."

"It's a good experience for all young men," the captain said.

Dropout becomes football champ

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — One Sunday back in 1903, cobbler Arthur Finnermore was approached to play football for University of New Brunswick.

"How can I play football with you fellows?" he asked. "I never even finished high school, let alone go to college."

He played anyway, and UNB won the Maritimes inter-collegiate title that year, probably the best year of many in an amazing range of sports activities for Finnermore.

"I must have been pretty good or they wouldn't have come looking for me."

He was a natural athlete whose cat-like reflexes and agility have not left him completely, despite his 92 years.

"I could run like a deer," he recalled with a twinkle in his lively blue eyes, bounding from a rocking chair to demonstrate the old form, then trotting back quickly when he knows he has to give some consideration to his age.

It took him a long time to slow down.

Finnermore played his first baseball game in his native Fredericton at the age of six and, 59 years later, he coached Black's Harbor Brunswicks to 28 straight wins and a provincial baseball final, pinch-hitting on occasion during the 1948 season as well.

That was his last active year in sports. The experiences he has had in athletic competitions seem endless.

In 1903, the year he played football for UNB, he also joined a Calais, Me., roller polo team—essentially, polo without the horses, dabbled in basketball and cricket, signed with the Trojan Hockey Club for the 1902-03 season, when the team won the city championship, and curled on natural ice, using wooden stones or a strapped-up piece of a tree trunk.

NAMED BEST
When the year was over, he was named one of the two outstanding athletes in the Maritime provinces.

Not long after that, he started competing in running events—the mile, quarter-mile and other distances. In 1906, he defeated Percy Ball in Cape Breton for the Maritime 220-yard dash championship.

He fought in the Boer War and the First World War, coaching an army baseball team to the European semi-finals while serving in the army.

An army tug-of-war team which he joined won a title in France.

In baseball, he played for teams in Edmonton, Winnipeg and several Quebec and Ontario centres, trying out in 1911 for a spot with Montreal Royals of the International League.

PRIZE-WINNING ACCORDIONIST — Miss Sharon Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Patton of Moe's River, playing her accordion. Sharon is to be congratulated on winning a silver and a bronze medal in an accordion competition at the Canadian national exposition in Toronto. Sharon, age 12 years, entered the intermediate contest and won the silver. She turned 13 while there thus becoming eligible for another contest, and entered the Junior to win the bronze. She played high classical selections. Sharon is well known throughout the Townships because she plays with her dad (he is a piano musician) at some of the special dances and gatherings. She extends her talents to entertain at various functions with no charge. Sharon is a student at the Canadian Conservatory of Music in Sherbrooke. A budding accordionist who shows great promise of becoming a star.

4-H BANQUET: Shown here are the members of the head table at the 4-H banquet held August 22.

4-H clubs play important role

The 4-H clubs always play an active part in Ayer's Cliff fair. Their program includes judging, presentation of animals, showmanship and so forth. Friday evening at the Fair each year, a banquet is held for the dairy section of 4-H Clubs. This year, it was held on August 22 in the Fair grounds dining hall. Mrs. A. Oakley served a turkey dinner.

Narcisse Dery, the Stanstead County Agronomer, who works with these young farmers introduced the head table guests. Claude Tessier, M.P. and Mayor of Megantic Town; Carroll Levesque, Magog Dairy manager; Germain Quirion, of Magog, J.P. Labelle, Agronome, Jules Gagne and J.P. Verpaest, President and Vice-president of the Fair Board, Paul LaPorte, Megantic, E. Hyatt and R. Conner, also Denis Brouillard, Agronome working with Mr. Dery.

Mr. Gagne welcomed the large group to the fair and the banquet.

Mr. Brouillard, in his remarks, expressed pleasure in working with them in their areas as agronomes.

Mr. Tessier, speaking, offered words of encouragement to the young people in their efforts and said he hopes they will make farming their profession and career concluding that there is a great promise in it. Mr. LaPorte also spoke in English for Mr. Tessier.

Mr. Dery, complimented the young 4-H farmers on the good work they are doing. He said "You were chosen from your Municipality to be representatives here at the fair". He noted that it is through the grant from the Federal Government this program can be carried on each year.

The following trophies were presented. Most aggregate points, 179 went to Gerard Trepanier of Lennoxville, who was presented the large trophy. However, because Gerard was unable to be present, his friend Bruce Kirby accepted it for him. Highest aggregate for girls went to Lorraine Letourneau, of Ayer's Cliff with 172 points.

Highest aggregate in second place for boys went to Michel Langevin of Coaticook with 171 points.

Lorraine was presented the Dale Miller leather halter for calf prize, and Michel the same from Reg. Conner. It was 50 years ago, that Mr. Conner himself participated and led his first calf in the 4-H parade.

His interests as he grew up continued and as an adult participated in the Promotion of 4-H work.

Others to receive cash prizes for marks were Mary Brus, 171 points; Helene Gagne, 167; Pierrette Letourneau, 166; Ghislaine Leblond, 165; Jeanne Nadeau, 162; Martin Gagne, 160; Alain Pouliot, 158. Susan Cunningham of Massachusetts received the Hyatt cash prize for being the youngest girl to participate and Martin Roy of Ayer's Cliff, the boys.

The Royal Bank silver plate, given by the Rock Island and Ayer's Cliff Branches for best showmanship was presented to Claire Letourneau of Ayer's Cliff. The Magog trophy to Claire Letourneau and the Lesvesque trophy to Lorraine Letourneau. Douglas Stoddard trophy to the youngest exhibitor to Martin Therrien.

Mitch Miller, on behalf of the 4-H clubs thanked the leaders and all who make possible this event each year of the fair. Emile Laliberte spoke remarks of appreciation in French.

The day following, the Club aggregates were: Ayer's Cliff, 1; Barnston, 2; Coaticook, 3; Compton, 4; Hatley, 5; Lennoxville, 6; St. Hermenegilde, 7 and Waterville 8.

Community college breaks new ground

EDMONTON (CP) — A community college here will break new ground in linguistic education this fall by offering what is believed to be the only credit program in the Cree language and culture in North America.

Not only will instructor Anne Anderson be the first college-level teacher of the ancient Indian tongue, she will also be creating a large portion of the language as she goes.

"The Cree language, like most native languages in North America, hasn't words for some things, like traffic jams, high rise, and women's liberation," said Mrs. Anderson.

"We can't just sit back and say that since we have no words for these things we won't talk about them. We'll just have to put words together which describe a traffic jam or a high rise."

Mrs. Anderson, a Metis, said she learned Cree from her mother—a woman who feared even then that the language of her people would begin to die out with the older generations.

TEACHER SIX YEARS
While this is the first year for the formal Cree program at Grant MacEwan Community College, it will be Mrs. Anderson's sixth as a Cree language and culture teacher.

Before the white man came to North America, the native languages were oral—there was no reason to write them, said Mrs. Anderson.

The first written versions of the Cree tongues—there are several, covering Cree from Quebec to Alberta and the Northwest Territories—were provided by Anglican missionaries.

Their translated versions of the scriptures were in "biblical Cree," said Mrs. Anderson.

"Right now I say it is up to the Indian to write his language, not the non-native," she said. "It is our language."

Most of the students in her language classes are, however, non-native. Mrs. Anderson said most are whites who work with native people—nurses, policemen, and government officers.

"I am criticized by some Indian people for teaching our language to the white man," she admits. "I tell them that if they (Indians) do not want to learn, I will teach it to the white man because at least he wants to learn and he will see that it is preserved."

OFFICIALS SURPRISED
The demand for Cree language instruction surprised college officials, said Dan Rafferty of the college's multilingual training department.

Cree has been offered in adult education night classes for three years, but when Mrs. Anderson and college administrators decided to offer it as a full-time, one-year certificate course, the response was unexpected.

Mr. Rafferty said 75 per cent of the class seats were taken by early July, and that the college expected all seats in the 200-hour program would be filled by September.

Mrs. Anderson said the problem of creating new words for modern problems is one which must be tackled, despite the difficulties involved.

"For traffic jam, I say it is 'stop—you're right there and can't move.' I try to put literal meanings because sometimes one English word is a whole long sentence in Cree, and sometimes a small word in Cree is a whole sentence in English."

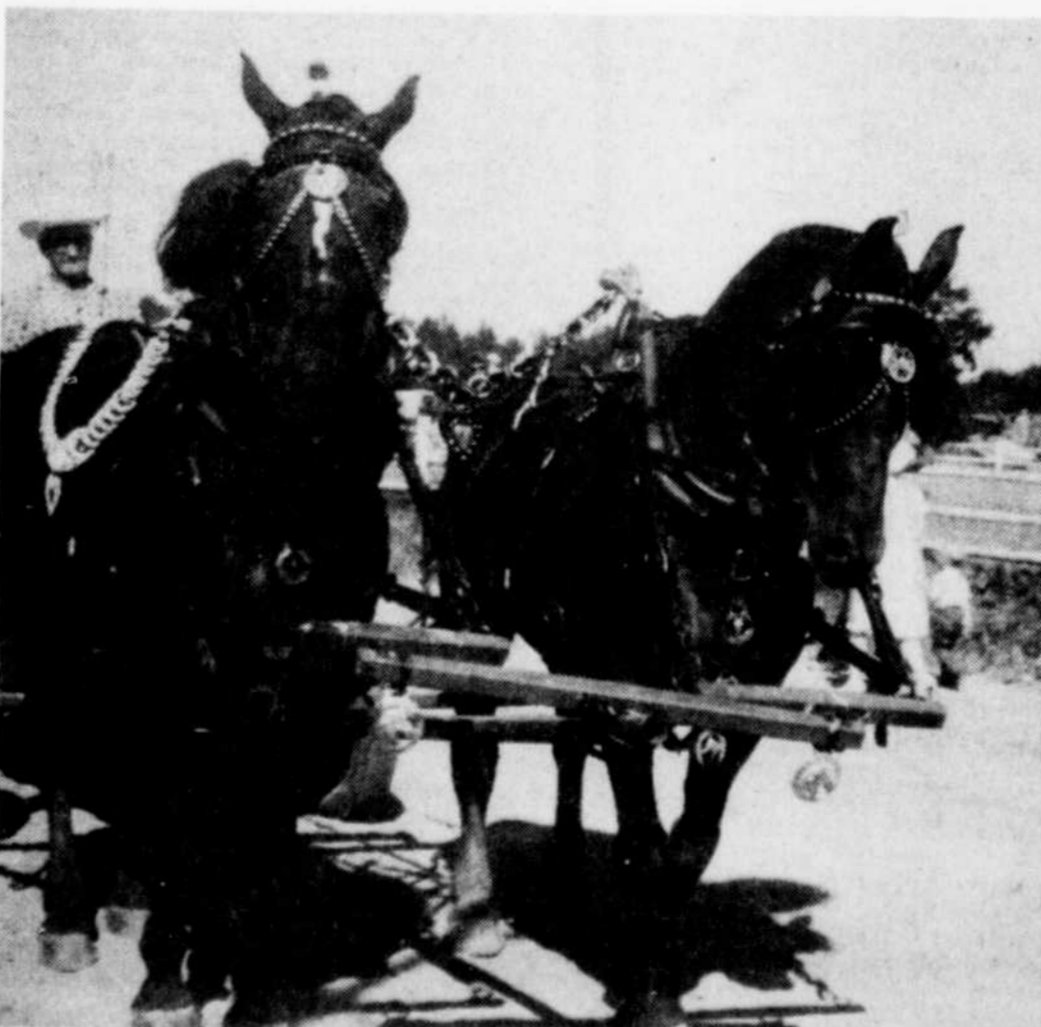

HAD NO TEXTS
Mrs. Anderson said that when she began teaching Cree, there were no textbooks—so she wrote her own. Since 1970, she has written 30 language, culture, and lifestyle textbooks.

One of the books is an Indian cookbook, which describes day-to-day Cree cooking, preparation of game, and even Cree delicacies.

Mrs. Anderson said what has surprised her is the extent of Cree migration across Canada.

"We are the Western Cree, because we have gone as far west as we can—to the mountains. The white man didn't push us off the land—the Cree were confused by the intrusion of the white man and went west and north to follow the game, their traditional source of life," said Mrs. Anderson.

"There are a lot of Cree in the Northwest Territories and some even in the Yukon. They went there because the game was there."

RACING INTEREST — Harness racing has been brought back to the smaller fairs in Quebec during the past few years through Loto-Perfecta, and the sport is showing a revival of interest everywhere. Not only does it assist the fairs but it gives experience to the two and three year old trotters and pacers. This year at Ayer's Cliff there were six races, four Loto-Perfecta and another two sponsored by the Ayer's Cliff Fair board. The purses were generous and the racing was keen. Above B. Gagne, driver of N.R. Adios, gets his first place blanket award from Robert Dupont, Loto-Perfecta organizer.

Long overlooked—some CFL players may get an award

MONTREAL (CP) — Offensive linemen and defensive backs, long overlooked in the post-season selection of Canadian Football League performers for the top annual awards, will have prizes of their own to work for this year.

D. W. McNaughton, president of Canadian Schenley Distilleries Ltd., announced Wednesday two major changes in the awards system the company has employed since 1953.

A new award has been established to honor the outstanding offensive lineman in the nine-team CFL as well as a change in format whereby the best defensive player in the league also will be honored.

The new award for the outstanding offensive lineman will carry a reward of $2,000. It brings to five the number of award categories now in force.

In addition, the over-all value of the awards has been raised to $13,500, an increase of $5,500 above last year's level.

MORE FOR THE BEST

The monetary award for the outstanding player, won last year by George McGowan of the Western Football Conference Edmonton Eskimos, has been increased to $3,000 from $2,000 this year.

The value of awards for the outstanding defensive player—replacing the former outstanding Canadian player award—and for the outstanding American player have both been raised to $2,000 from the $1,500 of other years.

The rookie-of-the-year prize will be worth $1,500 in 1974, compared with $1,000 in earlier years.

In addition, McNaughton said greater emphasis has been placed on the outstanding player award, with this year's runner-up to receive $1,000 instead of $500. Those second in voting for the other trophies will continue to receive $500.

The new awards for the outstanding offensive lineman and outstanding defensive player followed discussions between representatives of the distillery, its award board of trustees, CFL commissioner Jake Gaudaur and league general managers, as well as members of the CFL Players' Association.

STYLE HAS CHANGED

The group concluded that, because of constant changes in tactics and style in the CFL, revisions were necessary to make equal awards for offensive linemen and all defensive players.

The former lineman-of-the-year award had become almost the exclusive property of defensive linemen and linebackers, with offensive linemen drawing slim consideration in the voting.

This was shown in a review of the awards of the last 14 seasons. Roger Nelson, who played both ways at tackle for the Eskimos in 1959, was the last offensive lineman to win the trophy.

The new award for the outstanding offensive lineman will be limited to competition among tackles, guards and centres. All players on a defensive team will be eligible for the outstanding defensive player prize.

What hath sports—writing wrought?

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Whether or not sports is the opium of the people, as John R. Tunis says, sports undeniably has played an important part in the history of this country and in the lives of its citizens.

"Sports," Tunis says, "has become an addiction. It has made (people) forget more important things. Politics, for one thing. Look at how 47 million people voted for Nixon, but only 27 million for McGovern."

"Well, that's all you need to say. People should think more. People are more concerned with sports than politics and that's just the reverse of what it should be."

In the recently published book, "No Cheering in the Press Box," Chicago sportswriter Jerry Holtzman recorded and edited a sometime provocative, sometimes touching but always entertaining series of interviews with 18 veteran American sportswriters. John R. Tunis is one of those interviewed.

Several other sportswriters in this fine volume are aware of the impact, perhaps detrimentally, that sports has made on the society. And we have been more arrested with unreality and with dreams than with facts and truth.

"We had an overwhelming innocence in those days (the 1920s)," said Paul Gallico. "We were so naive. Not only we sportswriter but the whole country... You could let yourself go on sports... I contributed to this innocence, this naivete. Tremendously. I believed in it and was impressed by athletes and by what I was seeing."

One day in the 1930s, Gallico felt that what he was doing was dumb, and quit to write short stories.

A young man in St. Louis named Red Smith was beginning his outstanding career as a sportswriter.

"I won't deny that the heavy majority of sportswriters, myself included, have been and still are guilty of puffing up the people they write about. I remember one time when Stanley Woodward, my beloved leader, was on the point of sending me a wire during spring training, saying, 'Will you stop Godding up those ball players?'... If we've made heroes out of them, and we have, then we must also lay a whole set of false values at the doorsteps of historians and biographers. Not only has the athlete been blown up larger than life, but so have the politicians in all fields, including rock singers and movie stars."

"When you go through Westminster Abbey you'll find that excepting for that little Poets' Corner almost all of the statues and memorials are to killers. To generals and admirals who won battles, whose speciality was human slaughter. I don't think they're such glorious heroes."

Jimmy Cannon once covered Washington. "When I was young," he said, "they sent me there to cover the White House. I did it for awhile, but the town bored me and I left. I can't stand politicians. They lie more than football coaches. I had to be transferred out of there."

Tunis said that many of the sportswriters don't admit that some of the games and athletes are dull because "they're fearful of losing their jobs." But then reconsiders somewhat, "But I suppose the spectators, the fans, don't want to be told, either. They may not like it if you tell them sports is unimportant. I understand some sportswriters are trying to do this, that this is the new trend. Good. But it's taken a hell of a long time."

Few sportswriters today use such overblown phrases, as Abe Kemp in San Francisco did 50 years ago. He once wrote about a batter who "rammycackled the old tomato."

And rarely are the exploits of a team or a player so blatantly deified as in Grantland Rice's Biblically inspired lead about the Notre Dame backfield in 1924: "Outlined against a blue-gray October sky, the Four Horsemen rode again. In dramatic lore they are known as Famine, Pestilence, Destruction and Death. They are only aliases. Their real names are Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden."

There is still a great deal of puffery, of "Godding up" the athletes. It is a shame because there is a beautiful place for sports in society, taken in balance.

"I think," said Red Smith, "that sports constitute a valid part of our culture, our civilization, and keeping the public informed and, if possible, a little entertained about sports is not an entirely useless thing."

Deep gloom in Expo camp

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Lum cracked a solo home run in the second inning and Ralph Garr belted a three-run shot in the third to lead the Atlanta Braves to a 7-2 victory over the Montreal Expos in National League baseball play Thursday night.

Lum's homer, his ninth of the season, gave the Braves a 1-0 lead. The Expos tied the score in the bottom of the second against winner Phil Niekro, 1511, when Bob Bailey singled, advanced to third on two wild pitches and scored on Ron Fairly's double-play grounder.

Garr's 10th homer of the year came after Steve Rogers, 12-18, hit Vic Correll with a pitch and Larry Lintz dropped Rogers' throw at second on an attempted force play following Niekro's bounce to the mound.

The Braves chased Rogers with a pair of runs in the fourth. Lum and Dave Johnson singled, Craig Robinson sacrificed, Correll hit a sacrifice fly and Niekro singled.

Atlanta got its final run off relieved John Montague in the seventh when Darrell Evans beat out an infield hit and Dusty Baker doubled. Niekro needed relief help from Tom House after Ken Singleton hit his sixth homer leading off the eighth inning.

The win was the eighth for the Braves in 12 meetings with the Expos in 1974 and their third over Rogers this season. Rogers is 0-4 lifetime against Atlanta.

Maintains junior golf lead

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Ted Pease, using a borrowed graphite-shafted driver to improve his tee shots, fired his second consecutive even-par 72 Thursday to maintain the lead in the Canadian junior golf championships.

Pease, an 18-year-old from London, shot a 72 Wednesday in the first round of the four-day, 72-hole tournament, repeated Thursday to hold a one-stroke lead over Matt Poleschuk of Winnipeg, whose round of 68 was the day's best.

One stroke back of Poleschuk was Sandy Bilyard of Fonthill, Ont., whose even-par round Thursday followed a 74 Wednesday.

Five golfers share fifth spot with 148. They are Paul Kennedy of Toronto, Mark Slavin of Richmond, B.C., Yves Tremblay of Tracy, Que., Jeff Van Vliet of London, and Douglas Miller of Dundas, Ont.

Pease, who won the Canadian juvenile crown in 1972 and placed 11th in last year's junior event at Fredericton, said he had been "toying with the idea" of using a graphite shaft for some time.

He borrowed the driver Sunday from the pro shop at Sunningdale golf club, site of this year's tournament, and got in some practice.

Poleschuk's round Thursday included nines of 35 and 33. He had an eagle on the fourth hole after bogeying the third, then birdied the 13th, 14th and 15th.

Top juvenile golfer is Tremblay. He took the lead from Joseph Limoli of Vancouver who had shot a one-over-par 73 Wednesday.

With the completion of the second round Thursday, the field was cut to low 70 and ties for today's third round.

"I have a lot of respect for this golf course," Poleschuk said after his round.

Four teams alive in national softball

VICTORIA (CP) — British Columbia and Ontario, co-favorites Sunday when the tournament began, were winners Thursday as the Canadian men's softball championship went into its four-club final.

Oshawa Tonys, defending the championship won for Ontario last year by Richmond Hill Dynes, opened the double-knockout final with a 4-0 win over Nova Scotia.

Then Victoria Bate Construction, the only unbeaten team after the 12 teams had completed the round-robin preliminaries, ran its winning streak to six games by trouncing Saskatchewan 6-0.

Play continues today with Nova Scotia and Saskatchewan meeting in a game which will eliminate the loser. B.C. and Ontario will also meet, and the loser will play the winner of the Nova Scotia-Saskatchewan game.

Championship game will be played Saturday.

Tony left-hander Barry Timbers, who hasn't allowed an earned run in three complete tournament games, pitched his second successive shutout.

He gave up three hits, surrendered his first three bases on balls, and struck out seven to bring his strikeout total to 35 for the 20 innings he has pitched.

Bob Young led off for the Tonys with a triple. Phil Solomon then doubled and scored on two passed balls. A third first-inning run came in when Wayne Colley walked and got the last three bases.

Playoff needed to decide women's title

QUEBEC (CP) — Kay Helleur of Toronto defeated Pat Heisler of Calgary on the first hole of a playoff Thursday to win the Canadian women's senior golf championship at the par-75, 6,148-yard Royal Quebec Golf Club.

Both golfers had finished the regulation 36 holes tied with 13-over-par 163 scores.

But on the par-four first hole of the playoff, Helleur got down in a regulation four, while Heisler double-bogeyed the hole.

The competition for golfers 50 years of age and up also combined the two-day inter-provincial team matches.

British Columbia took the team title with a 5-0, with the three best scores of each provincial foursome counted.

The British Columbia foursome was made up of Joan Lawson and Margaret Todd of Victoria, Gertie Beaton of North Vancouver and Anna-May Taylor of Vancouver.

Heisler and Todd had been tied with low-score 80s following Wednesday's opening round, while Helleur was two strokes behind the leaders.

Other team standings:
Alberta—Pat Heisler, Maureen Busmin, Rene Ward, Kay McGarvey, all of Calgary—529.
Manitoba—Anne Tachan, Nettie Eddy, Marge Edey, Fern Crook, all of Winnipeg—545.
Nova Scotia—Anne Risley and Liv Connor, Halifax; Evelyn Curtis, Truro; Maida Ogletree, Kingston—557.
Saskatchewan—Bobbie Nicholson and Ella McKinnon, Saskatoon; Anne Kozak, Regina; Daisy Juno, Prince Albert—575.
Prince Edward Island—Nettie McLeod, Summerside; Connie MacMillan, Mary Porter and Amy Beer, Charlottetown—608.
New Brunswick—Jean Isherwood, Moncton; Lillian Coughney, St. Andrews; Doreen Blair, Fredericton; Doris Belliveau, Riverview—608.
Newfoundland—Flo Bond and

FINISHED THIRD

Todd finished third over-all putting an 84 on the board to go with her first-round 80. Dulcie Lyle of Montreal maintained the fourth spot she had held after the opening day with a 36-hole total of 167.

High school star gets huge contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Moses Malone and Utah Stars of the American Basketball Association ended their melodramatic saga Thursday with the 19-year-old high school sensation agreeing to terms on a contract estimated at more than $3 million.

The announcement, made at simultaneous news conferences in New York and Salt Lake City, ended days of speculation on whether the 6-foot-11 Malone would play for the Stars or attend the University of Maryland on a basketball scholarship.

Actually, Malone, one of the few players ever to jump directly from high school into the pros, signed with the Stars Wednesday night. The Stars, however, did not sign the contract until Thursday.

As late as Wednesday afternoon, the youngster had said it still was uncertain whether he would turn pro or become a collegian at Maryland, with whom he had signed a grant-in-aid in June after starring at Petersburg high school in Virginia.

"I'm not leaning either way," he had said, "and when I decide, I won't be influenced by any large amounts of money. I've got to live my life. I've got to do my own thinking. Nobody is gonna tell me what to do."

Despite Malone's contention, money had to be a major factor in his consideration to bypass a collegiate career. The Stars, of course, did not disclose any figures, but it is believed his contract could amount to $3.3 million, counting stock options, insurance policies and "contingency provisions."

Quebec defends junior golf title

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Quebec defended its Canadian junior interprovincial team golf championship Thursday with a three-stroke victory over Manitoba on the first hole of a sudden-death playoff.

Both Quebec and Manitoba finished the two-round, 36-hole tournament at 448, with the best three scores on the four-man teams being used each day to determine the team's total.

Quebec, which won the inter-provincial championship last year with a seven-stroke margin over British Columbia, was tied for second place with British Columbia after the first round of the tournament Wednesday.

After 18 holes, Ontario and Manitoba were tied for the lead. Yves Tremblay of Tracy led
