World News In Brief

Geneva — (P) — More newspaper men converged on Geneva for the opening of the 19-country conference on Asian problems Monday than for any previous event in the city's history.

Geneva police chief Charles Knecht, who co-ordinated all security arrangements for the conference, said more than 1,000 news correspondents, photographers and radio and television men had already received credentials and new applications were "still coming in."

Bristol, England — (Reuters) — A radiologist suggests that fumes from diesel engines in vehicles are responsible for the steady increase in lung cancer.

This increase followed closely the curve of the change-over from gasoline engines to diesel engines in public transport, Dr. B. Hancock Howell of the Weston-Super-Mare Hospital told a service club Monday.

Diesel oil fumes, he said, are far more dangerous than gasoline fumes.

Buenos Aires — (Reuters) — The wreckage of a transport plane, which crashed and burst into flames Friday night with 25 persons on board was found in central Argentina Monday. It is not yet known if there are survivors.

The transport, a twin-engine DC-3, was on a routine 300-mile flight from Mendoza to Cordoba. It was diverted from its route by a storm and crashed on Vilgo ridge in the province of La Rioja.

The state agency Aerolineas Argentinas said the plane was carrying a crew of four and 21 passengers.

The plane, partly destroyed, was found by a search plane and an emergency team for a military school was parachuted to it.

New York — (P) — An NBC correspondent said Monday night Red China has sent three divisions of troops into the Indo-China fighting. He asserted 18,000 fresh troops marched into Indo-China from China last March 25 and were immediately integrated into the Vietnamese Army of the Communist rebels.

To Rehabilitate Older Prisoners

Toronto — (P) — Ontario is exploring the possibility of rehabilitating older prisoners by placing them in private homes. Reform Minister Foye said Monday night. He said the system had been tried in one United States city where 450 prisoners of this type had been successfully placed in private homes. Speaking over the CBC's provincial network on a free-time political broadcast, Mr. Foye said that "such placements have been found to have a stabilizing influence and are relatively more economical."

Prisoners 55 years and over make up 14 per cent of all over-aging sentences in the province's jails and institutions, the minister said.

"This older group is very difficult to rehabilitate. Only a few can be placed in employment and become self-supporting. Some have been placed in homes for the aged and others transferred to Ontario mental hospitals."

Surprise Witnesses Not Permitted Before Probe

By JACK BELL
Washington — (P) — Chairman Karl Mundt said today that any surprise "mystery" witnesses will be barred from testifying in the sub-committee inquiry into the controversy between Senator McCarthy and United States Army officials.

Army Secretary Robert T. Stevens was recalled for further cross-examination in his fourth day of nationally televised hearings into charges by Stevens and others that the Wisconsin Republican senator and his aides sought special military favors for a former aide, Pte. G. David Schine, and counter-charges that army officials sought to halt or divert McCarthy's search for subversives in the army.

McCarthy promised to produce "information from at least one and possibly three witnesses whom he refused to name in advance. Republican senator from South Dakota, said in an interview:

"There will be no surprise witnesses before this committee."

He added that McCarthy comes forward with any startling new evidence, the sub-committee's staff will have to go over it first.

Monday's session broke up shortly after an angry exchange between McCarthy and Senator John L. McClellan of Arkansas, senior Democrat on the investiga-

Churchill Declares Action Must Await Geneva Talk Result

Queen, Duke Leave Royal Liner Today

Aden — (P) — Colorfully turbaned Arabs, sultans and sheiks of Britain's Aden protectorate pledged their loyalty today before the Queen.

Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh arrived at this Indian ocean seaport colony early today aboard the royal liner Gothic on the homeward stretch of their world-circling tour which began last November.

The Queen, dressed in a lemon-yellow silk gown, held an umbrella as protection from the sun as she and the duke rode in an open car to a reviewing stand placed in front of a statue of Queen Victoria.

A camel corps and gaily uniformed Aden Bedouin troopers marched past to pay their respects.

"We remain ever loyal to Your Majesty and very sensible to the great honor we have received by your Majesty's presence among us today," ran the address of loyalty read by two senior sultans on behalf of nearly 20 rulers of the protectorate.

The Queen appeared much thinner than at the start of the tour, but despite the 90-degree heat she appeared cool as she climaxed the reception ceremony by conferring knighthoods on the RAF's Middle East commander-in-chief, Air Marshal Claude Pelly, and the chief of the man of the protectorate, Seyid Abubakar Bin Sheikh al Kaf.

Since Moslem holy men kneel only to God, Seyid Sir Abubakar rested on his knees on a short-legged chair as the Queen touched him on the shoulders with the ceremonial sword.

Monday night the Queen honored members of the Gothic's crew who served her during the 19,000-mile journey.

After spending tonight on board she and the duke will not see the Gothic again until they cruise up the English channel May 13 in the royal yacht Britannia. They will then pass the Gothic which will be on her way to Liverpool.

The Queen knighted the master, Capt. David Aitchison, and invested him with the insignia of knight commander of the Victorian Order. Six crew members received member of the Victorian Order (fourth class) citations and seven men received the Royal Victorian Medal.

Toronto — (P) — The Canadian Railway is suing the city of Toronto for $170,000 because a city water main broke in 1950 and caused damage to railway property.

The railway claims the main, at downtown King and John streets, was constructed contrary to the Public Utilities Act of 1913 and that the city was negligent in placing the main on the surface of the roadway. The city contends the main was installed before the act came into force.

McCarthy normally heads. He has stepped down as a member for this inquiry.

McClellan said Stevens had authority to overrule his subordinate and give Schine an army commission and thus grant McCarthy and his chief counsel, Roy M. Cohn, "what they were seeking."

Stevens said he had the authority, but never would issue such a commission to anyone.

McCarthy broke in to say he thought McClellan had implied that McCarthy "could be bought off." Any such implication, he shouted, was "completely improper and unfair."

Stevens, in a full day in the witness chair, also:

1. Acknowledged he once suggested that McCarthy suspend hearings on alleged subversion at Fort Monmouth, N.J., let the army take over, and then step back in if he was not satisfied. Stevens said he did not contemplate that McCarthy inquiry would be completely halted.

2. Denounced as an "unequivocal lie" statements by McCarthy and Cohn that he once suggested they shift their attention to the navy or the air force.
3. Said McCarthy never threatened him if favors for Schine were not forthcoming. Nor did Cohn ever voice threats to him personally, the secretary said.

London — (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today Britain will make no commitments on military action in Indo-China in advance of the results of the Geneva conference.

"We have not entered into any new military or political commitments," Churchill told the cheering House.

The announcement was made in reply to a request by Clement Attlee, Labor opposition leader, for a statement on the meeting of foreign ministers in Paris.

Asking members not to say anything that would render more difficult the "momentous discussions and vital contacts" in progress at Geneva, the Prime Minister said:

"The timing of the climax of this assault with the opening of the Geneva conference is not without significance."

"But it must not be allowed to prejudice the sense of world proportion which should inspire the conference and be a guide to those who are watching its progress."

Geneva — (P) — Russia's Foreign Minister Molotov conferred today with State Secretary Dulles of the United States and France's Foreign Minister Bidault amid conflicting reports of a British-backed French plan for an Indo-China cease-fire.

Eddy Gilmore of the Associated Press quoted a highly informed source that Britain had agreed to back up France in calling for a halt to the Indo-China fight, but shortly afterwards Reuters news agency quoted high British sources that the report was "ridiculous."

Gilmore's informant said Prime Minister Churchill had telephoned Foreign Secretary Eden from London at least twice Monday night in reaching the decision, but the British source told Reuters that Eden and Churchill had not been in conversation at all.

Molotov called on Bidault this morning at the French minister's request, but it was not known whether Bidault broached French hopes for a halt in the fighting. He was said to have talked about what countries will take part in the discussions on Indo-China.

A London report meanwhile said Churchill conferred today with Rene Massigli, the French ambassador, on the Indo-China crisis, and there were reports of an Anglo-American decision ruling out big-scale intervention in the war.

An American source said Molotov saw Dulles chiefly to discuss President Eisenhower's "atomic pool" proposal, but other matters might have been discussed.

Eden also conferred with Bidault this morning and later gave a luncheon for him and Dulles. Another meeting brought together the foreign ministers of Canada, Australia and New Zealand on the Korean situation.

After talking with Bidault for 40 minutes, Molotov broke off the discussions until Wednesday, saying he had important business with Dulles.

Bidault urged that the Far-East conference give early consideration to an Indo-China settlement because of the urgency of the military situation there. But both British and French sources said Britain and France would insist that a political settlement precede an armistice.

Authoritative French quarters told Reuters that they hope talks on settlement of the Indo-China war will open in the conference hall itself in about a week.

The Indo-China talks are as yet in the informal, small-group stage. The 19-country Far Eastern conference agreed at its opening session Monday to take up general debate on Korea first.

Bidault arranged to see the Soviet foreign minister after Molotov failed to show up Monday for an informal talk on Indo-China with the French minister, American State Secretary Dulles and Eden.

The Western Big Three reviewed the situation in France's Far Eastern colony and were reported to have agreed on the countries they want at the table when Indo-China comes up.

Diplomatic sources believed Molotov's failure to meet with the three Western ministers indicated a decision against any "big four" gatherings while Communist China is represented here.

This was regarded as part of the Communist attempt to put the Peking regime on a basis of equality in all big-power consultations here—something the Americans have said they will not countenance.

An anticipated East-West tangle on Red China's status was sidestepped at Monday's session but there was some indication that Molotov might be holding off only until the talks turned to Indo-China.

Child Given Injection Of Polio Serum

McLean, Va. — (P) — A sandy-haired boy of six, described as a "pioneer" in the country-wide test of the new polio vaccine, had only one worry Monday when he stepped up to get his shot—whether the needle would cause a rebooming of his poison ivy.

But Randall (Randy) Kerr of Falls Church, Va., was quickly assured that he had nothing to worry about on that score.

Randy blinked just a bit when the vaccine "shot"—containing 10,000,000 inactivated polio viruses—was injected into his left arm.

Then he raised his head, grinned, and said to Dr. Richard Mulvaney of McLean: "It didn't hurt. I could hardly feel it. It hurt less than a penicillin shot!"

Then he was given a lollipop.

Later, after he gets two additional shots, he, like all the other kids, will be given a "polio pioneer" button.

Randy was the first of an estimated 500,000 or more children who will eventually receive vaccine "shots" in some 170 communities of 45 states. An additional 400,000 will receive a non-vaccine solution which has no possible chance of preventing polio and is being used only for controlled comparison purposes.

Additional thousands of children will also be observed as comparison "controls" but they will receive neither the vaccine nor the non-vaccine solution.

The vaccine was developed by Dr. Jonas E. Salk of Pittsburgh. It is hoped it will prove capable of protecting youngsters against polio paralysis.

Gloucester, N.S. — (P) — A search plane today spotted three reserve mines residents missing since they left on a fishing trip Sunday.

The two men and a woman were spotted huddled around a camp fire in dense woodland.

The three were Hilary MacPhee, 39, and his wife, 37, and Neil MacPhee, 59, an uncle.

A ground party set out to trek to the spot.

Hanoi — (P) — The long-awaited big seasonal monsoon rains hit Dien Bien Phu and all of north Indo-China today as French and Communist Vietnamese artillery kept up their violent duels across the battered ramparts of the besieged fortress.

In its usual brief morning communique, the French high command described the situation at Dien Bien Phu as "unchanged" and said there had been no important land fighting in the last 24 hours.

Since the rebel artillery attack stepped up Sunday, the French have believed that a third all-out Vietnamese infantry assault on the shrunken fortress defenses might come at any time.

Many observers expect the monsoons to hamper or halt Vietnamese operations and seriously slow transport of the rebels' war supplies from Red China.

But the advent of the big rains, accompanied by violent lightning and thunderstorms, also retards French, slowing their tanks and armored vehicles.

Malenkov Is Endorsed As Soviet Head

Moscow. — (Reuters) — Premier Malenkov sat smiling today when the Supreme Soviet officially re-elected him government leader with a big ovation.

At a 25-minute session of Russia's legislative assembly, 1,347 deputies from all parts of the Soviet Union applauded a new list of ministers which the prime minister presented. They rose and clapped for three minutes when the new list was put to the vote.

Yacheshlav Molotov remains foreign minister in the new cabinet and Marshal Nikolai Bulganin defense minister.

Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, 73, was re-elected chairman of the presidium of the Supreme Soviet and automatically remains president of the Soviet state.

A joint session of the Supreme Soviet's two chambers re-elected Molotov, Bulganin and Lazar Kaganovich as first deputy premiers.

They also elected six deputy premiers—Anastas Mikoyan, who remains minister of domestic trade, Maxim Saburov, Mikhail Pervukhin, Ivan Tevosyan, Yacheshlav Malyshev and Alexei Kosygin.

Saburov remains chairman of the state planning commission. Pervukhin gives up the ministerial portfolio of power stations and electrical industries and Tevosyan gives up the ministry of metallurgical industries.

Malenkov changed a policy, adopted soon after he took power, of consolidating ministries and split up a number of big ones—the timber and paper ministry, the electrical ministry and the metallurgical ministry. He set up new ministries for the metallurgical industry, transport and shipbuilding.

A new committee of state security was formed under the chairmanship of Ival Alexandrovich Simeonov.

Malenkov was constitutionally bound to submit his government for reapproval following last month's elections to the Supreme Soviet. He took the opportunity of reshuffling his cabinet.

Coming Of Monsoons May Relieve French Garrison

The heavy clouds and sheets of rain today forced French planes to taper off their heavy attacks on the rebel legions tightly circling the northwest bastion, and the lines of trucks and coolies bringing them food and munitions.

Monday United States-supplied Corsair fighter-bombers swelled French-piloted air force for the first time in a record day of raids on the Vietnam.

Despite the weather, French transport planes kept up their drops of men, war material and food into the beleaguered fortress.

The Vietnam's heavy anti-aircraft guns again and again threw up curtains of fire at the low-flying transports, and one American civilian pilot—first U.S. casualty of the war—was wounded.

In the fortress, northwest sector, believed to be the avenue the rebels will use for their next drive on the French headquarters, the defenders and the Vietnam's blasted at each other with mortars, heavy machine-guns and automatic arms. There the opposing trenches were only 300 feet apart.

Stress Need For Mining Engineers

By JOE MACSWEEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal — (P) — The need for education of young engineers and the public generally in the potentialities of Canada's mining industry was stressed here Monday at an annual meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

Mines Minister George Prudham and Dean John J. O'Neill, vice-principal and retired dean of engineering at McGill University, led the call for renewed interest in basic resources. Other speakers in committee and open forum—echoed their ideas.

Mr. Prudham said that out of 1,245 graduating engineers this year, only 34 intend to enter the mining industry.

Dean O'Neill, while stressing the need for more mining engineers, also emphasized there is a need for general education of the public in the meaning of mining industries.

He said many students know little of mining, believing it to be a highly dangerous and unattractive job.

More than 1,000 engineers are attending the three-day convention, which ends formal sessions Wednesday.

A major topic of discussion is the sorely-beset coal industry, hit by falling markets in the East and competition from oil and natural gas in the West.

Dean O'Neill, a member of the institute for more than 40 years, said Monday it is only in times of stress or crisis that leaders of the mining industry realize how little "the average man really understands" the industry's importance to Canada.

"That lack of knowledge, and consequent indifference, is reflected in the attitude of the governments when approached by representatives of the industry to ask for what they believe to be simple justice," he said.

Urges Quebec Accept Tax Agreement With Ottawa

Ottawa — (P) — A Liberal backbencher from Quebec has suggested that the Quebec government give up its new 15-per-cent personal income tax in favor of a tax agreement with the federal government.

Bona Arseneault, Bonaventure, said in the Commons Monday that agreement might be reached on that basis, with Quebec retaining its right to levy corporation taxes and succession duties.

A federal tax agreement with Quebec, the only province without one, would allow the province to share fully in the country's economic growth, he said as the House resumed the budget debate after an 11-day Easter recess.

Leon Balcer (PC—Trois-Rivieres) took an opposite view. He said the government should allow a full deduction of the Quebec income tax from federal payments instead of the five-per-cent deduction allowed by federal tax laws.

Opposition Leader Drew asked that the 1950 federal-provincial conference on constitutional amendments be resumed and allowed to discuss all federal-provincial problems, including fiscal ones.

His motion was made as the Commons considered a government motion to bring in the estimates of several departments. It was ruled out of order and Mr. Drew withdrew it.

Mr. Drew said every province had asked for a conference on taxation and constitutional issues. He again urged Prime Minister

Traditional Weapons On Final Stage

By DAVE MCINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Regina — (P) — New approaches to strategy and weapons are receiving the increasing attention of Canada's defence planners.

According to present defence thinking in Canada, the age of push-button warfare is closer than most people believe and the age of conventional weapons at most at an end. The next conventional weapons will probably be the last of their type.

For instance, the RCAF plans successors to the F-86E Sabre jets and the long-range CF-100 all-weather jet interceptors. They both probably will be supersonic aircraft and the last in which air crews will play an important part.

The successor to the CF-100, already equipped with guided missiles, will be the CF-102, now on the drawing board. The successor to the Sabre probably will be a development of some other country within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

In the same fashion, the conventional field gun is believed at about the end of its development. Defence policy now is being geared to the "long pull" rather than to the sudden spurt taken in 1950. Defence planners count on Russia not starting a war in the immediate future.

Thus spending for aircraft has been mapped out until 1961. There is unlikely to be any change in the total number of squadrons. Last year, aircraft cost $430,000,000, around one-quarter of the defence budget. This year it will be about $470,000,000, next year about $460,000,000 and level out after that to about $450,000,000 annually.

Conventional ground forces, at least in Canada, will keep their same balance and make-up. The "Pinetree" chain of radar stations is considered much more effective than first believed possible. This network is expected to be completed this year and Canada and the United States are to build a second chain farther north.

The new fence will provide an extra two hours' warning of an air attack on this continent.

Four Opposition Leaders Detained

Buenos Aires — (P) — The Opposition Radical party said federal police Monday arrested four of its leaders, including its vice-presidential candidate in Sunday's Argentine election. Returns indicated an overwhelming victory for candidates backed by President Juan Peron.

There were unconfirmed reports of widespread arrests of radicals in other parts of the country but the spokesman said party headquarters had been informed of only four.

The election was for a vice-president and half the members of Congress. Election officials estimated more than 8,000,000 of the 9,300,000 registered voters cast ballots.

Preliminary results in the contests for 80 seats in the House of Deputies and 19 in the Senate indicated the Radicals would lose at least one and possibly two of the 14 they previously held in the Lower House. The Senate has been unanimously Peronist.

St. Laurent to summon such a conference. The prime minister did not reply.

Under the post-war tax agreements, provinces have "rented" to the federal government their right to collect personal and corporate income taxes and succession duties in return for annual federal payments. Ontario, the last to sign, retained its right to collect succession duties.

Mr. Arseneault, speaking in French, suggested that the arrangement allowed for Ontario be extended in Quebec's case to include corporation taxes, but still eliminating double-taxation of personal incomes.

He said, however, that Quebec's demand for full deduction of its new tax was tantamount to allowing the province to fix the amount it wanted to withdraw from the federal treasury.

Arguments that federal tax agreements threatened Quebec's religion, language and educational rights were just "scarescrows."

Mr. Balcer, also speaking in French, said that Quebec residents should be allowed full deduction of the provincial income tax from their federal payments. What the provinces would gain under that arrangement would be less than it would receive under a federal tax agreement.

The problem should be discussed at a federal-provincial conference which would consider the return of provincial taxing powers and allow Quebec to protect its rights.

Cookshire, April 27.—The Women's Missionary Society held its thank-offering meeting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Robinson, with eleven members and 10 guests present.

The topic for the meeting was "New Life Through Love." The president, Mrs. Goff, opened the meeting with a hymn and prayer. Mrs. J. A. Butler read the Scripture lesson and Miss C. E. Nelson read the meditation.

Mrs. Goff announced that the sheets and pillow cases for the year's allocation had been sent. Only one doll is ready; five more are needed, also eight small toys.

It is hoped that a delegate will be able to attend the Presbyterial meeting to be held in Quebec City on May 12th and 13th.

The program was in the hands of Mrs. J. W. Robinson, whose subject was Korea. Mrs. J. Vander Leden read a letter from Dr. Florence Murray, of Seoul. Mrs. J. A. Butler read an article on "Oriental People" and Miss C. E. Nelson gave a talk of "Korean Culture," and Mrs. E. C. James spoke on "Northern China."

Mrs. Robinson, assisted by Mrs. J. E. Drennan and Mrs. J. A. Butler, served refreshments.

ST. MARGARET'S GUILD AND W.A.
St. Margaret's Guild and W.A. met at the home of Miss Ethel Woolley, on April 14, when 12 were present.

The results of the food sale and tea held on April 9th, were very favourable. It was voted to donate $5 towards buying plates for the school kitchen.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John McDonald, when the annual sale will be packed.

Miss Woolley served refreshments, assisted by Mrs. H. Hodgman.

Prehistoric men were afflicted with dental trouble, the same as we are today. The idea that they had perfect teeth arose from the fact that early archeologists picked out the most perfect specimens.

Galt Street East Residents Demand Greater Protection For Youngsters

Demands that the City Council take some early, definite action to assure the safety of the children living in the War-time Housing settlement in the vicinity of Galt Street East have been lodged with the municipal authorities by a delegation which waited on Mayor Emile Levesque.

The latest request, one of a series of petitions addressed to City Council members, followed an accident to little Judy Fortier last week who was struck by a car while playing in front of her home. The girl is still in a critical condition in a Montreal hospital.

The spokesmen for the delegation Don Atto and Ibrey Nutbrown made two requests: That a sidewalk be put on Galt Street and that some measures be taken to cut down the speed of cars on the street.

Local Lions Are Given Address By Governor Chaput

Last night at the weekly meeting of the Sherbrooke Lion's Club, the guest speaker and special guest was District Governor Paul Chaput, of Quebec City. Speaking before fifteen members in the Piccadilly Room of the New Sherbrooke, he outlined the activities and achievements of other clubs of the district.

In Lionism it has always been customary for clubs to exchange visits, and for this reason the members were particularly interested in the reports. Leopold Chevalier introduced Mr. Chaput, while a former "Quebecer," Eddie Caron, thanked the speaker.

Tonight in Coaticook there will be a zone meeting for Lion Clubs of zone 19. The agenda for the evening includes brief reports on the activities of each club, club projects, remarks by District Governor Chaput, and the nomination of the new Deputy District Governor.

Among those seated at the head table last night were: President Jean-Louis Gauthier; second vice-president Roland Savoy; Wilfrid Routhier, Rene Robert, Leopold Chevalier, Mr. Chaput and Eddie Caron.

es but as yet no concrete action has been taken.

Last year a postman, Aime Thibault, circulated a petition which was signed by everyone on Galt Street and district. He then took the petition to the city hall and they promised him that appropriate action would be taken as soon as possible.

It has been estimated that there are at least 225 children in the area. They have no place to play and when they walk out the front door they are right on the street. Galt East is also the main highway to Quebec city and there is very heavy traffic which passes through every day. Trucks, buses and cars are said to use the street as a speedway with a common disregard for human life. The children are forced to use the road as there is not even a path on which they can walk. They use the road to go to school, to go to the store and for the other daily necessities. Obviously they need something on which to walk in safety.

This same delegation called at city hall previously and were told that they were just a week late as the city had just completed their budget and that it would have to go until next year. When the budget was made for the following year there still was no provision made for the sidewalk. At the last meeting the mayor promised them that the provision would be made in this year's budget. This means that there still will be no sidewalk until next spring.

It was also pointed out that sidewalks had been provided in several parts of the city where there were only two or three houses on the same street. Sidewalks had been laid at the request of one person and not a whole community as is the case now. Why so? the delegation asked.

On the second point, that of a stricter surveillance of the speed limits in the city, they were also promised that something would be done to cut down some of the speeds now being used in that area.

Last week's accident was the third that has occurred and unless something is done to protect the lives of the children there are going to be many more occurrences of the same type, and there lie the reasons for the worry that is being experienced by a few parents who have the safety of their children at heart.

Smuggling Case Is Again Before Sessions Court

The case against Wilfred D'Anjou of Beecher Falls which opened three weeks ago continued yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions of the Peace before Judge Redmond Hayes.

D'Anjou is accused of having smuggled 191,800 American cigarettes across the border on the night of August 6-7, 1953.

Evidence by R.C.M.P. Constables Lionel Blondeau and Raymond Lapointe at the earlier hearing said D'Anjou had been caught but got away from the police within a few seconds and ran into the woods.

Several alibi witnesses for the defence were produced to prove that the accused was with his father-in-law in Sherbrooke at the time of the supposed incident.

The case was taken "en delibere."

REV. SIDNEY G. GARLAND formerly in charge of the West End Presbyterian Church in Albany, New York, for the past five years will assume the pastorate of St. Andrew's Church the latter part of this month, succeeding Rev. Ross Adams, B.A.

Mr. Garland is a native of Newfoundland, a graduate of McGill University, with degrees of Bachelor and Master of Arts and Bachelor of Divinity and was awarded the Gold Medal for the highest average over the complete course.

Mr. Garland enlisted as chaplain of the Canadian Army, and after a service of four years overseas, he was released from active duty in 1946.

Mrs. Garland is a graduate of Macdonald College and at one time was attached to the teaching staff of the Montreal Board of Education. Mrs. Garland is prominent in musical circles.

Mr. Garland, wife and family of three children are expected to arrive in Sherbrooke, today. The induction service will be held on Thursday, April 29th, at 7:30 p.m. followed by a reception in the Church Hall.

Plans Underway For Blood Donor Clinic To Be Held In Sherbrooke During May

Preliminary plans for the initial 1954 blood donor campaign to be held through the week of May 17 to May 21 were drawn up at a meeting of the executive of the local branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society held in the Red Cross rooms, Dufferin Avenue, yesterday afternoon.

In the past many people have asked questions regarding blood donations. Questions as to whether or not it hurt or if it was dangerous for the health and many others. These questions are answered in an informative little pamphlet handed out to members of the press yesterday. The answers contained therein serve to reply to all who seek information on the subject and also to disprove many ancient superstitions and old wives' tales concerning blood donations.

The human body contains 12 to 13 pints of blood. One donation amounts to about 13 ounces. A healthy person can donate blood up to three times a year quite safely. The blood which is taken away from the donor is almost immediately compensated for by a slight alteration in the vast network of blood vessels throughout the body and within an hour normal circulation is restored.

There is no age limit for blood donors. Anyone from the age of 18 to 65 may volunteer and furthermore would not need to make any change in his or her routine of living to do so. No diet is required before a donation is made. In fact, one may partake of a regular meal even before giving blood. A doctor's certificate is necessary only in special cases of high blood pressure.

Children Enjoy Minstrel Show By Omega Alpha

The origin of the minstrel dates as far back as Mediaeval times, when travelling troubadours would go from town to town composing songs on the way, and singing for money or food.

The exact start of the minstrel show in America is not known. However it is believed to have begun shortly after the Civil War. Among its pioneers was Daniel Emmett, the little known composer of the rollicking "Dixie." Since the beginning the blackface musicals have been America's favourite form of entertainment, ranking second probably to the circus.

Today, although almost a century later, it is still extremely popular with young and old, but on a much smaller scale. The Omega Alpha Club of Sherbrooke is making plans for a minstrel show.

The following door prize numbers drawn at the Sangster Sports Show were not claimed: 539, 119, 606, 430. For information call—2-8603.

Shabbily-Dressed Bandits Rob Bank At Disraeli Of Ten Thousand Dollars

Disraeli. — Two shabbily-dressed, armed bandits, held up a branch of the Banque Provinciale du Canada yesterday in Disraeli and fled with more than $10,000. This town is on the Sherbrooke-Quebec highway, 45 miles north of Sherbrooke.

They made their escape in a car after locking two women employees, alone in the bank at the time, in a vault enclosing safety deposit boxes.

While one man asked for change for a two-dollar bill, the other looked the bank over. Seeing no one else there, he signalled his companion who pointed a revolver at Cashier Liliane Lavertu and ordered her and co-worker Marina Rodrigue into the vault.

Police say they looted the cash drawers of bills ranging from $1 to $20 for a total of $10,805 and made off in a battered, early model car.

Optimists Open Sessions At New Headquarters

The Optimists, who are a merry lot as a general rule, were even gayer than usual last evening when they met for the first time in their new home, the New Wellington Hotel, for their weekly dinner meeting.

Many, especially the older members, had pangs of regret at leaving the LaSalle Hotel where they have met ever since the Sherbrooke club was chartered, but all realized that the change was forced by the growth of the club which necessitated more room for the regular and social meetings.

President Paul Nadeau was the recipient of congratulations and jocular tributes on the addition to his family of a baby son who was born last Thursday. In keeping with the traditions of such occasions, the president said that all his well-wishers, which comprised the entire club and the visitors, were supplied with cigars which did much to add atmosphere to the meeting.

After Montreal Optimist Bill McCuaig had been introduced to the members of the club by his host, George Garard, the meeting got down to serious business.

Amedee Roy, reporting on the sale of baseball tickets, said the campaign had not been too successful to date, but he believed that if the members redoubled their efforts during the present week, the hoped-for favorable results could be achieved.

He also announced that arrangements had been made with the local S.P.C.A., whereby the club's traditional Peanut Day could be held the same week-end as the S.P.C.A. tag day—June 11 and 12.

Reporting on the Sports Guide project, Paul Allard stated that the sale of advertising had been very successful, netting the club in excess of $700.

The meeting closed with the showing of a movie on the 1953 World Series between the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees.

Seated at the head table with President Paul Nadeau were George Garard, Laval Tanguay, Bill McCuaig, Yvan Laramee, Gilles Dufour and Amedee Roy.

New Trees In The Townships

When it comes to recognizing the value of trees Canada is waking up — and the Eastern Townships and district are not lagging.

For many years Western Europe, with its timber resources known, at one time, to be facing imminent exhaustion, has pursued carefully-planned programs of reforestation. There were Canadians who realized clearly early in the century that the Dominion's reserves were not inexhaustible but nothing much was done about it until the twenties and only the last decade has seen substantial progress.

The Southern Canada Power Company planted two thousand trees near Drummondville as early as 1926. This was a modest beginning for a reforestation project which now sees 1,778,000 trees growing on the company's 5,300-acre holdings between Drummondville and Hemming's Falls. No less than 1,500 acres have been planted and some of the spruce are now ten inches in diameter.

This has been a costly enterprise and the Southern Canada Power Company, most people will agree, has more than earned the tree-farm certificate which will be presented by the Eastern Townships Forestry Association in June.

The company has bought several large farms with the object of putting non-agricultural land, which had been cleared, back into its natural crop and also with an eye to protecting its watershed.

The Town of Sutton, with its water supply fed by a gravity system, has planted a portion of its holdings of 600 acres, comprising part of the watershed. The municipality has put in sixty thousand small spruce in the last six years and was presented last October with a tree-farm certificate by the E. T. Forestry Association. Sutton, it is believed, is the first municipality in the country to receive such an honor.

Sutton's achievement has been made possible through the co-operation of the forestry association, the Quebec Department of Lands and Forests and the Southern Canada Power Company.

In the same period Darrah Brothers, Limited, have planted a hundred thousand spruce in almost the same locality, near Sutton.

Another reforestation project was fostered near Knowlton by the late Elwood Wilson, long prominent in the pulp and paper industry.

The Eastern Townships Forestry Association and M. Paul Emile Cliche, its energetic president, are to be congratulated upon the work done to encourage reforestation in the last few years. The Association works not only among adults. Its 4-H Clubs for young people have been responsible for an aroused interest among the coming generation and this interest augurs well for the future.

A Remarkable Mother

You wouldn't believe it if you hadn't seen her photograph. It is before us now.

It shows a smiling face rather on the long side and crowned with plentiful white hair. Her eyes, behind the spectacles, are unusually observant-looking, their keenness softened by a kindly gleam. There seems to be something of placid mockery in the expression. Here, you would say, is a person who laughs quietly at life.

The story, a Toronto Telegram special despatch, bears out the picture. The features are those of Mrs. Ezekiah Murray of Oshawa. Mrs. Murray celebrated her 100th birthday last week, a fact outstanding in itself, and in case you should wonder, not having seen the photo, she is keenly interested in the story.

"My Uncle Out In Texas"

Many persons were, doubtless, amazed when they read recently that a woman employed in a Montreal post office and acting as a mail clerk couldn't even read or write and that the fact was discovered only when she had to take a qualifying examination.

This employee must have sorted her addresses by the hieroglyphic-scanning system. The amount of memory-work and brow-crawling that went into the process could surely have placed her, if employed to this end, well upon the road to literacy.

Every once in a while surprising evidence bobs up that there are still a fair number of people like "my uncle out in Texas" who... signs his cheques with X's.

A suit was brought in Montreal a few years ago to unseat a suburban alderman on the ground that he was illiterate. A teacher testified that he had learned to read and write but the city father, when challenged by the opposing lawyer to read a few paragraphs from a newspaper, refused. It came out later that this reluctance was not due to any Balfourian superiority or fine discrimination of taste. The alderman had been bluffing successfully for years. Several times he had presided over the council in the absence of the mayor and, on each occasion, he had taken the minutes of the previous meeting home and had learned them by heart after a few sessions of reading by his wife.

There was the story of a prominent business man in an English city. He happened to be illiterate. One day a friend, a professional man, knowing this, remarked: "When I think of your success in building a fortune without being able to read or write I can't help wondering sometimes what you would have become if you had been blessed with an education."

The unlettered one's answer was not long in coming. "Don't give it another thought," he smiled. "I know. I would be a janitor today. It was only because I couldn't pass an exam. that I became a business man."

A little rationalizing, of course, could demolish the tale but, at first glance, it does make a good one.

Another example which comes to mind is that of a man who lived in a community not twenty miles from Sherbrooke. He built a good business and a sizable fortune without having had the benefit of schooling.

In many parts of the countryside, sometimes, in towns, too, there are found those who have not been given the opportunity to learn to read and write and who can sign their names only by drawing, if at all. Yet some of the shrewdest and sturdiest, mentally, have made fair successes in a worldly way.

These successes may have come, in part, from the fact that they could see the trees without being bothered by the thought of the forest. They weren't thinking about Europe or the world in general; they had the single-eye for their tasks.

The members of the British Association of Science decided after a lengthy meeting, not long ago, that the untutored shepherd in the hills was usually happier than the man of great intellectual attainments. And it might surprise many of us if we could know how many pioneers of this country were unschooled and how many family trees had, in early days, been hewn and shaped by those to whom letters were a mystery and learning was unknown.

Secrets

By FAYE McGOVERN

McClure Syndicate — WNU Features.

"Please," Chu Teh begged her old neighbor, "do not take the children away."

He looked at her imploring face in consternation. "But they might reveal to the enemy where their elder brother, San, is hidden. We had no time to burn his wrecked plane. Hardly was there time to secrete him here. Only after dark will it be safe to move him."

"No, No. They will not speak. And I have heard the enemy will not harm us so long as we remain peaceable."

Her neighbor sighed deeply. "Very well. I will go lest my presence make them suspicious."

Chu Teh turned quickly back to her baking. With her husband dead her children were her whole world. She could not bear to have them away from her — especially with the foe so near. She went to the rear door of her small cottage and called, "Chan! Lotus!"

A boy of eleven and a small girl appeared from behind a ramshackle stable. Both were incredibly dirty. The boy carried a length of hollow bamboo, and Chu Teh knew he had been playing his favorite guerrilla warfare game again with small Lotus. But there was no time for reprimands.

"Guests are coming," she said with feigned brightness, "and we are going to play 'secrets.' Remember — evasions, yes, but no lies. And the one who fails gets not one sweet cake. Now do all of you understand, my little ones?"

Covetously the children eyed the delicacies cooling on the table. Seldom were they allowed even a taste, for their mother sold them for a living. At the sound of approaching steps Chu Teh said quickly "The question is, 'Where is San?'"

Young Chan's eyes sought hers so swiftly she realized he appreciated the significance of the question, and felt a part of fear. In his intense desire to prove how clever he could be in outwitting the enemy he might easily blunder into revealing San's hiding place. She looked at him pointedly. "Even when we are asked, 'Where is San?' we will not tell, will we?"

"No, no," said small Lotus. Young Chan reached toward the table, then turned abruptly toward the rear of the house.

Chu Teh stiffened as five Japanese soldiers entered without knocking, their glances darting everywhere. "Where is the one called San?" demanded the leader, with typical Jap curtness.

But there was only a deathly silence.

"You — his mother," he shot at Chu Teh. "Where have you hidden him?"

"My son is with his ancestors," she said with gentle dignity, and put refreshments before them.

"Then where is the body?" the spokesman sneered. "You there, small girl. Tell us lest I cut off your ears."

He took hold of Lotus roughly. The child's frightened eyes sought hers, and quickly Chu Teh held up the largest cake. "Yes, small Lotus," she said brightly. "Where is San?" The little girl vaguely flung out a small hand. "They took him away."

Suddenly Chu Teh realized Chan was not there. If he had run to the ancient graveyard over the hill to warn San he would surely be seen, she thought.

"Enough! We will search the place!" Pitchfork tines prodded deep into the rice-straw rick. Seeing soon that the tiny house afforded no hiding place the soldiers headed for the rickety stable.

Behind the barn, thatched missing from its roof, a shallow pit told his mother that Chan had practiced breathing through the hollow bamboo while buried beneath straw and dirt.

The soldiers held a hasty consultation. Then Chu Teh was told they were satisfied and would leave. With horror she saw that they took the path toward the ancient cemetery. First they would make certain that she had told the truth. Why had she mentioned that San was with his ancestors? With only caved-in graves to hide in they would undoubtedly discover him, she thought in horror.

She waited for an agonizingly long time, then crept after them, and almost fainted at the sight of a freshly covered grave. They had found him and — Chu Teh moved nearer. But wasn't it odd for the enemy to make food offerings? There was one of her own sweets.

"This is where you lead us!" It was the sneering voice of the soldier behind her, and she realized they had deliberately left her alone in order to follow her.

She burst into tears and rocked back and forth. "Aye, and here my son is buried. You can see I did not lie."

The man looked at her huddled figure, then spat contemptuously, rasped an order, and the unwelcome visitors stamped off toward the town.

Chu Teh sat motionless for a while. Then very carefully she leaned over and whispered, "San, my son, are you all right?"

"Yes, Mother, thanks to my clever little brother," answered a muffled voice, from a barely perceptible protruding stick of hollow bamboo.

What Other Papers Say

ONE-RING CIRCUS

Toronto Globe and Mail. Millions of Americans watched on television screens a public spectacle described by a local headline-writer as the "McCarthy vs. Army Heavyweight Battle". What they saw was a United States Senate committee in session but the scene had indeed more prize-ring frenzy than judicial poise.

A forest of microphones carried every word over hotly competing radio networks. Newsreel cameras photographed the fracas for the TV audience. Klieg lights illuminated the arena for the TV technicians. The committee room was jam-packed with spectators. In short, McCarthyism has become the No. 1 American indoor entertainment.

WHAT THE ECONOMIST SAYS

St. Thomas Times-Journal. One of the most able as well as one of the oldest British weekly papers dealing with the live events of the day is The Economist. Its authority is recognized on both sides of the Atlantic. And here is a quotation from its editorial columns:

A large number of the British public think of America as a filibustering, rollicking race — filling their newspapers with whole columns of boasting falsehood — haunting tavern bars — swallowing continually mint julep and other spirituous compounds — sacrificing their best statesmen and even the judges to party predilections — and forming at once a noisy, restless, anarchical and aggressive community."

The Economist declared the picture was untrue, and continued: "They are more industrious than we are; they work longer hours; they are more continuously English; they are more away from the States because they find the work too much for them. The bulk of the people are sober, steady, methodical and energetic. They seem certain to become the greatest and most powerful nation that ever existed."

That is the sort of thing that is being said in many British circles today. But the above quotation is taken from The Economist, March 18, 1854 — just 100 years ago.

German Shock Workers Sink British Shafts

By ADRIAN BALL

Llanelli, Wales. — (Reuters) — High on the wind-swept moors near this Welsh town, 100 German "shock workers" are striving to give Britain a chilling lesson in industrial efficiency.

The Germans have been called in by Britain's national coal board to sink two steel-and-concrete shafts, each 2,000 feet deep, for a new coal mine.

British firms, which pioneered shaft sinking and sank many mines in Germany between the wars, were unable to handle the Cynheidre contract. Their equipment was already stretched to breaking point on other work.

Reluctantly, the board placed the order with a company established by the late Fritz Thyssen, the firm of Schachtbau Thyssen Gesellschaf. The British public did not take kindly to the word.

But the Germans have tackled their job in a manner which has won praise from all who have seen them on the job. They have a simple battle cry for work: "Mit tempo! tempo! Speed, speed!"

The German shaft-sinking team — about 100 men, soon to be doubled — works six days a week. Tea breaks — the cherished right of the British worker — are barred. There is only one rest a day — 20 or 30 minutes for eating.

The national coal board expected the job to take "several years" but the Germans are busting to complete it in 12 months.

The men live on the site, in huts around the shaft. Air lights are in position to let the work go on round the clock. The "shock workers" seek little outside life.

Cynheidre colliery is a rich prize. Anthracite — Britain's top dollar-earning coal — is waiting there in seams 10 feet thick. Exports consider there are 100,000,000 tons of it. Cynheidre is the first of four anthracite pits being sunk in west Wales.

Authors Dream To Create Immortal Play Characters

By HAL BOYLE

New York. — (AP) — The dream of thousands of authors is to develop a fictional character the public never loses interest in.

An example is Tarzan of the Apes, one of the great literary earners of all time. This jungle strong boy became more of an industry than a character. And he probably will still be making money long after Africa is paved.

How can an author tell when he's created one of these jackpot characters? He can't. He has to wait for the public to tell him.

It worked out that way with Frances and Dick Lockridge, whose latest and 30th book, "Death and the Gentle Bull," comes out next month. It is the 18th volume in their Mr. and Mrs. North mystery series.

Back in 1931 Frances told Dick, then a young drama critic on the New York Sun, an amusing adventure that had befallen her during the day. He wrote a short story about it — the first appearance of Mr. and Mrs. North in print — and sold it to the New Yorker magazine for $60.

"It is amazing to us how it has ballooned," Frances said. "At first the Mr. and Mrs. North stories were things that actually happened to us. Later they were about ordinary domestic things that could happen to any family. It grew from these simple stories of home life to — well, to what it is now."

In 1945, Dick gave up daily newspaper work. The Norths had become a fulltime career. Mr. and Mrs. North became a successful Broadway play, then they went into the movies. For 11 years they have been a radio series and now have gone into television. The Norths also are considering the comic strip field (after all, didn't Tarzan make that jump, too?).

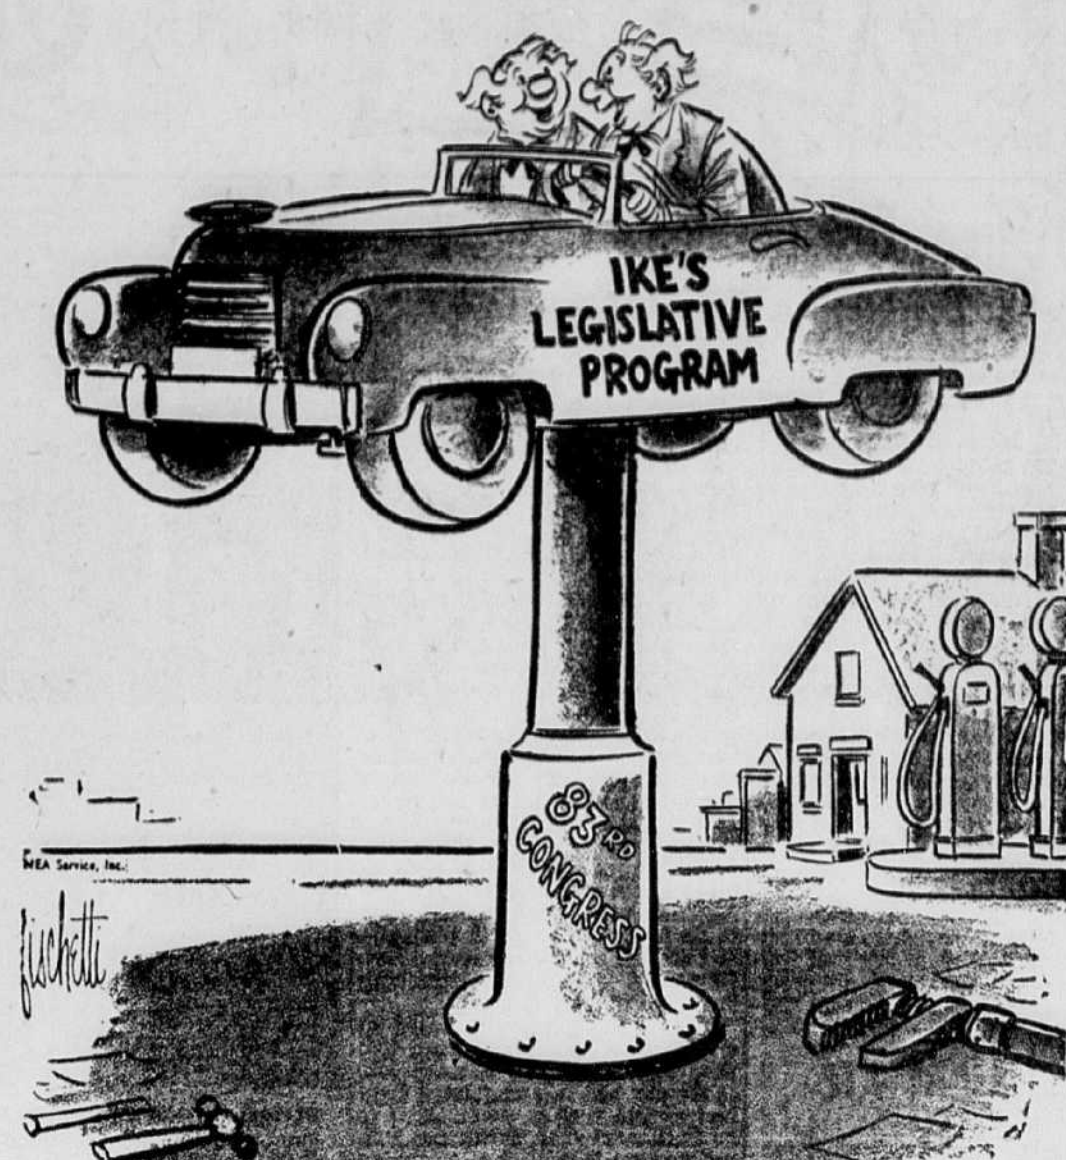

HUSBAND WIFE TEAM

The adventures of Pam and Jerry North now are plotted in a pleasant upper Westchester country place amid an atmosphere of home-cooked food, cats and literary violence.

Frances does the plots. They mull the plot over for a day or two. Then Dick goes into his study and does the writing.

"We think that a plain puzzle mystery is no good," said Frances. "You have to have characters that are interesting."

"Sure Rides Smooth!"

Jacoby On Bridge

By OSWALD JACOBY

OPENING LEAD OFF IS KEY TO GAME

When it is up to you to make the opening lead against a slam contract, you probably think very hard about the proper choice. You may decide to try a dangerous lead if there is good reason to believe that this will be more productive than a safe lead. You will not make a dangerous lead out of a clear blue sky, however, when a safe lead is available.

One important thing to remember in a bridge game is that your opponents are not very different from yourself. Your opponents also like safe leads and dislikes unsafe leads.

When West led the seven of hearts against South's slam contract in today's hand, South's first reaction was one of disappointment. It was very unlucky for him that West had decided to lead a heart.

With any other lead, South could easily win, draw trumps, cash the ace of spades, and get the dummy to lead the queen of spades and let it ride. South could afford to let the enemy make the king of spades, thus obtaining all the discards he needs for his losing hearts.

The opening heart lead forced declarer to make an immediate decision about the play of that suit. Should he finesse the queen or put up the ace of hearts?

After some thought, South decided that West was not likely to be making a dangerous lead away from the king of hearts when he had a safe club lead of some kind available to him. If West didn't have the king of hearts, there could be no advantage in finessing the queen.

Acting on this reasoning, declarer won the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts. He cashed the ace of diamonds and the ace of spades and returned to dummy with a trump. His next step was to lead the queen of spades through, discarding a heart when East played low.

West was able to win this trick with the king of spades, but couldn't lead another heart. He hopefully returned a club. But South won with the ace, ruffed a club in dummy, and then discarded his two remaining low hearts on dummy's top spades.

If South had finessed the queen of hearts at the first trick, he would have been defeated. East would have taken the king of hearts and returned the suit, giving West an immediate ruff.

CARD SENSE

Q.—With both sides vulnerable, the bidding has been:

North East South West

1 Dmd. 1 Spade 2 Clubs 2 Spades

2 N.T. Pass

You, South, hold: Spade 6, Hearts 9-8-4, Diamonds 9-3-2, Clubs A-K-Q-8-5-2. What do you do?

A.—Bid three no-trump. Your distribution is unbalanced, but you will probably furnish six tricks as soon as your partner gets the lead. This ought to be enough to assure the game at no-trump.

TODAY'S QUESTION

The bidding is the same as in the question just answered. You, South, hold: Spade 6, Hearts 9-3, Diamonds 9-3-2, Clubs A-K-Q-8-5-2. What do you do?

Rochester Down Havana 9-4

Rochester Red Wings are wasting no time in showing the newer members of the International Baseball League why they won the league pennant race and battling championship last year.

The Wings smashed out 14 hits off six pitchers Monday night in a 9-4 victory over the Cuban Sugar Kings at Havana that brought the league's top team mark of 233. That's only good for third place in the percentages right now, but in game won and lost Rochester is event with Buffalo 4-1 and actually half a game better off than second-place Syracuse 3-1.

All the other clubs were rained out Monday.

Al Clark, one of the club's leading hitters with a .328 average last year when the Wings boasted the league's top team mark of 233, once again set the pace for the Birds. He rapped out a run-scoring single during Rochester's three-run third inning. Later on he added a double.

Whitfield Needs More Races

New York. — (AP) — Mal Whitfield, the latest entrant in the four-minute-mile derby, admitted Monday he isn't ready for the big effort yet "but give me five or six more races at a mile and I'll be at my peak."

"Before I ran the mile in the Penn relays last Saturday," Whitfield said, "I never had run the distance before. It's true I've been taking about it for some time, but my only preparation for it was sprinting shorter distances to build up stamina."

How does the world's greatest half-mile feel about the mile? "Well," said the two-time Olympic winner, "I tell you this—I recuperated faster after running the mile than I do after my shorter races. I think this is because you spread your energy out in the mile while in the half it's concentrated."

Whitfield was beaten by young New Zealander Murray Halberg with a 4:10 effort in the Penn relays.

Penticton Defeat Winnipeg 3-1

Penticton, B.C. — (AP) — Penticton V's rammed in three goals in the third period here Monday night to defeat Winnipeg Maroons 3-1 and tie up the western Canada Allan Cup hockey final at two games apiece. Three games have ended in draws.

The eighth and deciding game of the best-of-seven series will be played Wednesday. The site will be announced today.

Once again it was the starry Warwick brothers who came through for V's when the chips were down. Bill Warwick and Dick Warwick blasted two goals within 15 seconds of each other half-way through the third period for the winning margin.

Jack McDougall added the insurance tally at 15:28.

Gary Alderson shot Maroons into a 1-0 lead in the first period.

Stockholm. — (AP) — Sweden's wildest dock strike—biggest in the country's history—apparently came to an end Monday. Longshoremen in most of the 16 strike-bound harbors went back to work, and union leaders threatened to expel those who failed to return to their jobs.

The strike by about 3,700 workers started at Göteborg last week because dockers objected to a new agreement union leaders had signed. One of the objections to the agreement was that it might entail night work.

Local Hospital Auxiliary Held Active Session

"We believe that the 20th century belongs to Canada but it is the vitality of individual Canadians and Canadian institutions and associations that will ensure our place in history," said Mrs. C. F. McLaughlin, president of the Province of Quebec Association of Hospital Auxiliaries, guest speaker at the monthly meeting of the Sherbrooke Hospital Ladies' Auxiliary held yesterday afternoon at the Sherbrooke Hospital under the presidency of Mrs. K. C. F. McLaughlin.

In her address entitled "The British Genius for Association," Mrs. McLaughlin expressed how happy she was to have accepted the invitation to be at the meeting. Congratulating the Auxiliary on past achievements and projects, Mrs. McLaughlin was particularly impressed with the auxiliary's efforts to create interest in nursing as a career for girls students. According to a report given by the secretary of the Association of Nurses for the Province of Quebec, Sherbrooke has so far provided twenty-nine scholarships for student nurses as against Montreal with scholarships for eight students.

Thanking the Auxiliary for the help given to start a provincial association, Mrs. McLaughlin told how in one year a provincial association has been established, outlined a charter and is already officially registered in Quebec. The association now has 27 affiliated auxiliaries and over fifteen thousand members. The objective of the association is to stimulate the spirit of voluntary service, which is most vital.

The National Council, formed in 1951 and in May 1953 received associate membership in the Canadian Hospital Association, was incorporated and given a charter in Ottawa this week. This Association now has over sixty-three thousand members.

Mrs. McLaughlin presented several ideas for a National project so that the organization may develop into a vital and effective instrument of service to hospitals and auxiliaries across Canada.

Bringing her address to a close, Mrs. McLaughlin stated that "The greatest challenge of this generation is the establishment of organizations, working co-operatively together, deeply concerned with national and international problems of health and welfare."

Mrs. McLaughlin was introduced by Mrs. Colin Campbell and thanked by Mrs. J. K. Edwards.

ing an effort to revive minstrel shows in town, and will present to the public its second annual show "The Mississippi Minstrels," on Wednesday, Thursday nights at the Mitchell School.

On stage last night, they gave their first dress rehearsal witnessed by some fifty school children. Supposedly taking place on the S.S. Mississippi, it is a refreshing bit of comedy which combined with wonderful choral background is sure to please the most difficult audiences.

It features some new songs and jokes, expertly put forward by six "end men" in gold and red coloured uniforms, while the sixteen members of the chorus interpret some old as well as new ballads.

Joan Wark, one of last year's songstresses steps into the spotlight with "O Johnny," while the chorus sings such favorites as, "All God's Children Got Shoes," "Shine On Harvest Moon," and "Swing Low Sweet Chariot." Emsey Elkas sings "Shortnin' Bread," in a repeat performance. Sam has taken part in several minstrels and plays, but he was first introduced to the spotlight at the age of six, when he was asked to sing this same song.

Another "end man," Bill Edwards sentimentally offers "Wonderful One," and Charles Kydd reverses the atmosphere with "Chick-Chick-Chicken." Other end men to sing solos will be Garth McElrea (Loving Sam), John Lougheed (I Believe), and Paul Chute. Don McKenzie, who was to be "Mr. Interlocutor," unfortunately fell ill last week and his doctor counselled him to give up all activities. Edward J. Shortt was rushed into the role.

Particular mention should be given to the chorus, for the blending voices of the eleven young ladies and the five young men, produces some stirring music. The undermentioned girls and boys form the chorus: Charlotte Pigeon, Suzanne Bailey, Joan Walters, Thomasine Mawhood, Joan Wark, Aline Cassar, Joan Leech, Louise Mills, Lise Letourneau, Andre Bureau, Lorna Ross, and Pete Fortier, Edgely Mills, Ivan Amery, Arthur Moore, and Bob Redeker.

Deplores Mistrust Of Medical Groups

Montreal. — A University of Michigan dental professor said here Monday night failure of the public to trust its medical agencies is a "worst problem than public health itself."

Dr. Phillip Jay said in an interview some groups still oppose the fluoridation of water supplies "after almost every known health agency had given the measure its approval."

Recent published reports of doctors claiming fluoridation was poisonous were misleading, he said, "since humans consume several other poisons in a normal day, but not in dangerous quantities."

Dr. Jay said tests in Grand Rapids, Mich., have shown that children exposed to fluoridation at any early age have developed fewer bad teeth than their older brothers and sisters.

Washington. — (AP) — The United States Navy said early today that a twin-engine privateer, missing since April 17 with nine aboard, has been sighted off Ellesmere Island, in Canada's northeast Arctic.

A navy spokesman said navy markings were visible on the wings and tail of the plane, and the navy is preparing to drop rescue personnel by parachute. He had no information as yet on whether there were any survivors.

Early History Of Boundary Church Reviewed At Anglican Guild Meeting

Rock Island, April 27 — Christ Church Guild held the regular meeting at the parish hall in Stanstead on Wednesday evening, April 14. The president, Mrs. William Denney, was in the chair and the session opened with prayer.

The roll call was answered by 19 members and the reports of the secretary and the treasurer were read. The receipts of the rummage sale held on April 10 were very satisfactory.

Mrs. Clarence Hill read a most interesting article on the early history of this Anglican church. The parish began in 1819, the first minister being Rev. Mr. Knags, who remained until 1821, when he retired. From then until 1845, not too much interest was taken about a church.

During 1845 Rev. Mr. Dolittle, Rev. Mr. Reid of Compton and Rev. Mr. Jackson of Hatley, became interested and services were held. In 1849 this mission gained the attention of the Bishop of Quebec, and Rev. J. Burrage succeeded Rev. Mr. Jackson at Hatley and continued with the mission work at Stanstead Plain.

In February 1849, the first service of worship was held in the upper room of the brick store, owned by Frances Judd, Esq., and was successfully carried on until 1851, when the church was organized. The public attendance was an average of from 50 to 60 persons, with between 15 and 18 communicants.

Rev. Mr. Burrage was succeeded in 1857 by Rev. W. L. Thompson, who was sent by the Colonial Church Society as a missionary to Stanstead Plain. It was during his incumbency that the present Anglican edifice was erected and much praise is due to Rev. Mr. Thompson for his untiring efforts in completing the enterprise.

In just another three years this church will observe its 100th anniversary. Continuing with the business of the Guild, a committee was formed to contact Mr. Werleman regarding cushions for the choir seats and a carpet for the altar.

Mrs. P. M. Poaps will entertain the next meeting at her home the evening of Wednesday, April 23.

LADIES AID

The Ladies Aid of Stanstead South church held its meeting at the church hall on Monday afternoon, instead of the usual Thursday. Mrs. Harry Smith, president, presided over the business and opened the session by reading from the "Upper room." The usual reports were read and accepted.

Mrs. Jessie Ellsworth and Mrs. Smith agreed to go on a committee with the Helping Circle and the 35 Club committees to meet in the immediate future at the home of Mrs. Stuart Taylor, Derby Line, and plan the Rotary dinner for May 10.

The next meeting will be held on May 6, place to be announced at a later date.

As the Presbytery ministerial was being held in the church, this group prepared and served supper to upwards of twenty two ministers and their wives, all of whom enjoyed the hot dishes, salads, and pies.

United States-Canada Goodwill Week Recalls 1818 Rush-Bagot Agreement

The signing of the Rush-Bagot Agreement, which has never been called a treaty, was one of the most important and suggestive events in American history.

In 1814, after the signing of the Treaty of Ghent, both England and the United States were sincerely desirous of maintaining peace and avoiding further hostilities, but on the Great Lakes at that time were vessels of war belonging to both countries and others were in process of being built. This situation gave promise of developing in a race in naval construction with attendant opportunities for clashes which again might involve England and the United States in war.

James Monroe, Secretary of State at that time, was asked to begin negotiations with England to check the wasteful and dangerous procedure of the building of these war vessels.

In 1818, Sir Charles Bagot, a British diplomat and administrator, or, was named Minister to the United States in Washington and it was while serving in this capacity in 1817 that the famous agreement was completed through further negotiations with Richard Rush, American lawyer and diplomat, and then Acting Secretary of State. A year later, April 28, 1818, to be exact, President Monroe through Proclamation confirmed the agreement now known as the Rush-Bagot Agreement.

One paragraph in the Agreement, included in the Proclamation, reads, "If either party should hereafter desirous of annulling this stipulation, and should give notice to that effect to the other party, it shall cease to be binding after the expiration of six months from date of such notice." In spite of subsequent times of stress between the two countries, the conditions of the agreement have never been revoked, but have been rigidly adhered to during these 135 years.

Boundary Exhibit Of Young Students Attracts Attention

Derby Line, April 27.—An exhibit of the work of the young painting students of Miss Florence Pike and Edwin Earle is on display at the Haskell Library, and will be there until the middle of May.

The artists whose works are on exhibition range from seven to twelve years of age, and are from the Boundary and Newport. Their work runs the gamut from "scribble, squiggle or scribble," to quote from the card about several of them, through imaginative figures and autobiographies, to attempts at realism.

You are warned not to try and find meaning in the first section of the exhibit, and it certainly would be difficult to make the attempt. The color work, however, is very good, and several of the paintings are cleverly done, meaning or no meaning.

In the realm of imaginative figures, autobiographies and realism, these young artists have done some very interesting work, paintings that are most certainly worth looking at.

Those who have paintings on exhibit are: Tim Hamblett, Jeff Hall, Danny Marsh, James McFadden, Brenda Stratton, James Holland, Charles Leavitt, Jana Leavitt, Sharon Myers, Lydia Earle, and Peter Earle. The Haskell Library is open Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, from 1 to 5 p.m.,

Magog Service Clubs Planning New Joint Fair

The Magog Lions and Kiwanis Clubs are planning to hold their second annual joint fair on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, July 8th, 9th and 10th. Jack Peters, past president of the Magog Kiwanis Club will be this year's chairman.

Three additional concessions will be added to this year's project—a ball rolling game, crown and anchor and jumbo dice.

Last year, after the immense initial expenses of running their fair had been paid, the two clubs still realized a handsome profit from their three-day fair. Proceeds were divided, and used to carry on the two clubs' benevolent work in Magog and surrounding district.

Kiwanis Objectives

The following are the objectives of Kiwanis International:

1. "To give primacy to the human and spiritual rather than to the material values of life."

2. "To encourage the daily living of the Golden Rule in all human relationships."

3. "To promote the adoption and the application of higher social, business and professional standards."

4. "To develop, by precept and example, a more intelligent, aggressive and serviceable citizenship."

5. "To provide, through Kiwanis clubs, a practical means to form enduring friendship, to render altruistic service, and to build better communities."

6. "To cooperate in creating and maintaining that sober public opinion and high idealism, which make possible the increase of righteousness, justice, patriotism and good will."

(As adapted at Denver Convention in June, 1924.) These objectives are the guiding principles of Kiwanis.

Gasoline Day Is Sponsored By Sherbrooke Club

Something new in the way of fund-raising activities is on the agenda of the Sherbrooke Kiwanis Club for the month of May—a Kiwanis Gasoline Day on Saturday, May 15.

Through the co-operation of the British American Oil Company, the Club is taking over a service station at the corner of King and Queen streets and for a single day the members of the club will handle the gasoline pumps and care for the needs of the customers. In return, they will receive all the profits accruing from this branch of the business for that day.

By this means, they hope to raise a substantial sum for crippled children's fund to be used for maintaining children nominated by the club at the Ayer's Cliff Camp operated by the School for Crippled Children, Montreal.

In addition to the sale of gasoline, the club has arranged for a number of stands where novelties and souvenirs are on sale—the profits again going to the club's welfare fund.

By saying "Fill 'er Up," you will be aiding a crippled child.

The Dog and the Bone

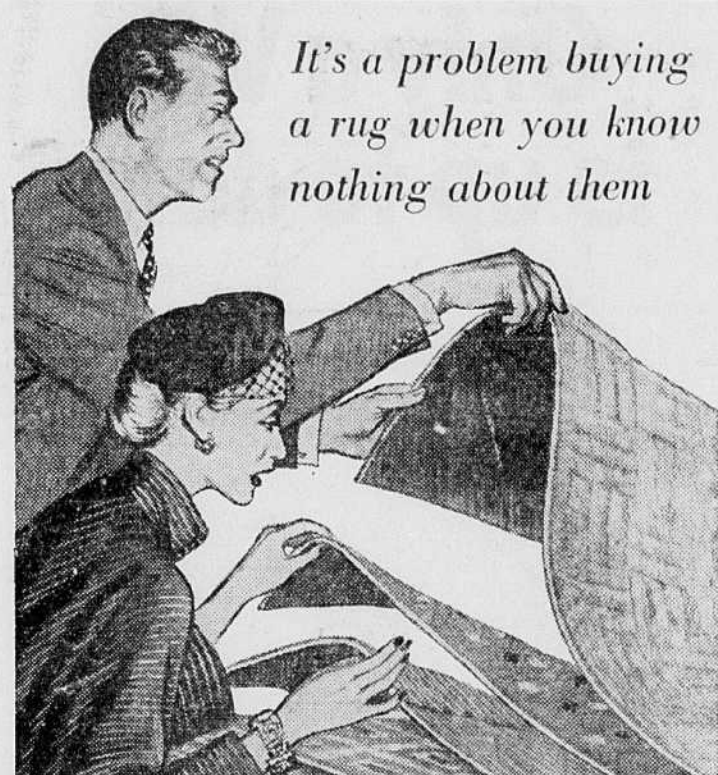

A DOG was crossing a plank bridge over a stream with a piece of meat in his mouth, when he happened to see his own reflection in the water. He thought it was another dog with a piece of meat twice as big; so he let go his own, and flew at the other dog to get the larger piece. But, of course, all that happened was that he got neither: for one was only a shadow, and the other was carried away by the current.

Indianville — Manager Mark Wylie and his Indians held their final workout here today and then proceeded to turn in their equipment before they pull out for Fort Lee, Va., where they will play a two-game fixture this week-end.

It was the first time in the last three days that a workout could be staged as Old Man Weather took over with showers holding the spotlight. The squad is anxious to get away and commence the season. The only doubtful starter is Bob Pratt, who has been sidelined with the mumps. Manager Wylie had granted him a few days leave to visit his parents before he joined the club in Fort Lee.

The team will journey by train as far as Fort Lee where General Manager Odie Fortier has sent the bus to pick them up for the balance of the trip to Sherbrooke. Bastock returned to the work-outs and hauled a few innings of batting practice and felt no ill effects from his operation. Bill Williams' leg is responding to treatments and Manager Wylie is hoping he will be able to take his place against Fort Lee in the exhibition games.

The only remaining team left in camp is the Fargo aggregation and they will head north Sunday evening to bring the training period to an end. Following their departure Tony Paniewski, Camp Director, will put the final touches and everything will be put in shape for next spring.

We had the pleasure of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Phil Robins one evening during a trip to the beach. They are staying over in Ormond Beach and we had a very enjoyable chat. Phil was going out for a round of golf and we understand that he will try to get in a few games before returning home. Just a little note to Gordon Armitage. Watch out.

While over at Ellinor Village we had the good fortune of meeting Mr. and Mrs. Stan Holland, of Derby Line. It seems funny to travel 1,600 miles and meet people from the Eastern Townships.

The Daytona Beach Chamber of Commerce has a pretty good idea and maybe the Sherbrooke Chamber could make use of it. A year ago they came up with the idea of inviting down members of the Congress for a visit and at the same time stage a baseball game between the Republicans and Democrats.

This year close to 80 members with their wives took in the annual jaunt and it was quite a thing. The Republicans won the so-called game 7-3. Several merchants came up with prizes for the event and the proceeds of the game were turned over to a charitable organization. How about it Sherbrooke? Looks good to us and should be a big publicity stunt for the City of Sherbrooke at the same time.

Quebec Hopes; Edge Ottawa 4-3

Buddy Boone Again Hero; Scores Second Overtime Goal Of Series To Give Quebec 4-3 Win In Ottawa

Ottawa — (P) — Ottawa Senators came within a goal of the Quebec Hockey League championship Monday night, but Quebec Aces held them off and finally won the seventh game of their best-of-nine final series 4-3 in overtime.

Ottawa, leading the series 4-3 in games, fought from behind three times to tie the score, the last time with only 10 seconds of regulation time remaining.

Buddy Boone, the Aces' spark-plug all through the series, grabbed a pass from defenceman Butch Houle at the Quebec blue-line, stickhanded in close and beat goalie Ray Frederick at 6:48 of the overtime.

Boone's goal, his second of the night, sent the teams to Quebec for the eighth game tonight. The ninth, if necessary to decide who takes on the winner of the Western Hockey League final between Calgary Stampede and Vancouver Canucks for the Duke of Edinburgh Trophy, will be played early Wednesday night.

Houle gave Quebec the lead early in the first period. He scored with a 20-foot shot that caught the corner of the net to finish off a relay from Ray Powell and Roy Kelly.

Jackie Giesebrecht tied things up just nine seconds after Quebec's Joe Crozier was sent off for interference at 8:32 of the same period. His short shot from the side of the net went in off Houle.

Boone scored his first goal at 13:16 of the second period while Ottawa's Gordie Hudson was off for high-sticking. His tally was the culmination of goal-mouth passes from Larry Regan and Ludger Tremblay.

Bill Johnson brought Ottawa abreast of the desperate Aces again in the third period. He shot the puck against the twine and it bounced. Quebec hotly claimed the puck never went in, but the goal stood. Giesebrecht and Al Kuntz assisted Johnson.

The see-saw battle lunged in Quebec's favor again five minutes later when Tremblay sank a long, hip-high shot.

Hudson sent the game into overtime at 19:05 after Frederick was replaced by an extra forward with a minute to go. He drove a 10-foot shot past goalie Jack Gelineau after taking a pass from Dusty Blair at the blue-line. The play was started by Johnson.

Frontenacs Swamp Teepees 5-2 Amid Brawls And Penalties; St. Catharines' Coach Pilous In Fracas With Police

Quebec — (P) — The eastern Canada Memorial Cup final between St. Catharines Teepees and Quebec Frontenacs switches to St. Catharines, Ont. Thursday night with promises of another slam-bang game.

A fired-up Quebec club Monday night turned back the heavy Teepees 5-2 in an action-packed encounter highlighted by a Pier Sixty brawl in the opening period.

Quebec's win squared the best-of-seven series at one game apiece. The players were the same, but Phil Watson's Frontenacs didn't look like the club which lost the first game here Saturday night.

Some 6,424 fans saw Quebec outclass the Teepees, grabbing a 3-0 lead in the first period which took one hour and 10 minutes to play.

Like Ratchford, Stan Parker, Gilles Thibault, Richard Bouchard and Guy Rousseau scored for Quebec. Chester Warchol and Hugh Barlow fired the Teepees' goals in the second period. The Frontenacs scored one in each of the last two periods.

None of the 18 penalties called by referees Stan Pratt and Ching McDonald, both of Ottawa, figured in the scoring.

The brawl started halfway through the first period when Quebec's Bob Mantha and Warchol tangled near the penalty bench. Other players joined in.

When police lent the officials a hand St. Catharines coach Rudy Pilous got angry. He lunged to the aid of his players, getting in a few solid punches before being pulled away. Pratt and McDonald finally stopped the battle. No action is expected to be taken.

The fracas resulted in a minor, major and 10-minute misconduct to Mantha and a major to Warchol. Majors also went to Henry Ciesla and Wilford Roberts of the Teepees and Quebec's Fernand Turcotte. Ian Cushman of St. Catharines got a misconduct.

Another incident involving police and Pilous occurred later in the period. Police suddenly grabbed Teepees sub-goalie Reg Truax, and ushered him out of the rink. Truax, although in street clothes, was eligible for the game and Pilous refused to permit his players to resume the game until Truax was returned.

When asked about the brawl, Pilous said he didn't like the way one of his boys was being handled by a police officer. He went to the aid of his charge and other police officers shoved him.

Bill Martin Has Opposition In Discharge Bid
Fort Ord, Calif. — (P) — Pte. Billy Martin, seeking a United States Army Hardship discharge to rejoin New York Yankees, is encountering opposition from his sports-loving commanding general.

Maj.-Gen. Robert McClure told a press conference Monday he is recommending that the star second-baseman's discharge request be denied, and that Martin's name, along with those of many other trainees, is being forwarded to Washington for reassignment—possibly overseas.

McClure, an avowed sports fan, indicated he doesn't feel Martin is a hardship case.

"The draft board investigated the situation," he said. "Besides, Martin came to camp driving a baby blue Cadillac. Anyone with a car like that can't be broke."

But Martin, who got out of the army after five months' service in 1952 on similar grounds, told a different story. The 1953 world series star said money earned in past years was "not so much, and it's all gone."

He said that in addition to supporting his mother, sister and stepfather he must pay $150 a month to his estranged wife for herself and their infant daughter.

Shore May Move Hockey Team
New York — (P) — Eddie Shore, owner of the Syracuse team in the American Hockey League, told the league's board of governors Monday night he may be forced to move his club unless he can settle a disagreement on home dates.

Shore said he had lost "four or five" choice Saturday night dates at the Syracuse War Memorial Auditorium for next season. He said he had been given alternate dates which have proven unacceptable to the league.

He added the league had told him that unless he can get as many Saturdays as in past seasons the league may be forced to find a new city.

Canadian Scores Fifth Ace
Toronto — (P) — Ted Davidson of Toronto believes he holds a Canadian golf record that will stand up for some time. He has just scored his fifth hole-in-one.

Ted posted his fifth ace Sunday on the 149-yard eighth hole at the suburban Weston Club in his first warm-up of the season.

Brooklyn — Jimmy Slade, 181½, New York, outpointed Tommy (Hurricane) Jackson 194½, New York, 10.

tors in each city the total value of all votes cast is equal in each city. The minimum number of selectors in each city is three—the number used in Chicago, Detroit and Toronto, while Boston and New York employed six selectors each and Montreal used 22.

All votes have been tabulated and reduced to a common denominator of 27. This consists of three first-place votes, at five points each, three second-place votes at three points apiece, and three third-place votes valued at one point each, for each city.

Eight other first-year players besides Henry, Reibel and Beliveau garnered points. They were Johnny Bower, Rangers, 32; Bill Dineen, Detroit, 32; Doug Mohns, Boston, 22; Frank Martin, Boston, 9; Bob Christal, Rangers, 4; Ray Griep, Boston, 3; Jacques Plante, Canadiens, 1; and Ike Hildebrand, Chicago, 1.

Sherbrooke Indians Lose Two Games To Fort Lee Travelers 16-2 And 2-1; Will Arrive Here Thursday Afternoon

Fort Lee, Va. — Fort Lee travelers extended their winning streak to sixteen games when they made a clean sweep of their two game series with the Sherbrooke Indians when they posted 16-2 and 2-1 verdicts over the Mark Wylie squad.

It was the first exhibition game for the Indians and they ran into tough opposition when they tackled the heavy hitting Travelers. The home club is composed of several former major league and in the first contest they made good use of their experience against the young Indians.

The first tilt Bobby Locke worked the first three and half innings while Del Bastock finished the game. Gerry Bartunek was the big gun for the Wylie Club when he collected three-for-three, including a double. Bill Williamson smashed out a round-tripped to account for the Indians' runs. The Travelers pounded out a total of 18 hits for their runs.

In the second game Mel Beatty went the full seven innings and gave up only seven hits. The Indians collected five safeties off of Herb Davis, Ace Hurler for the travelers. All the scoring was done in the fifth inning.

Tommy Vaughan, Indians third sacker, started off with a clean double to deep left centre field. Beatty poled out a long fly and he crossed the plate stading up for the first run of the game. In the lower half of the frame Bauld commenced with a single while Dudick walked and Davis laid down a perfect bunt to beat out the throw and load the sacks.

Jones drew another free pass and then Katchuk singled and two runs crossed the plate. The locals came up with a double play, their second of the game, to retire the side and kill the rally. In the lower half of the sixth the travelers loaded the sacks once again but Mel Beatty weathered the storm and kept the soldiers from scoring.

In the top half of the seventh Tommy Vaughan smashed out his second of the afternoon to lead off but his mates failed to deliver and he was left stranded. The Indians seemed to play better in their second game and came up with sound defensive playing. Beatty retired four at the plate and issued only three free passes to first.

The Indians will now move northward and should arrive in Sherbrooke Thursday afternoon. Five members of the team will join the club then as they went home enroute before coming to Sherbrooke.

Camille Henry, Lightest Player In NHL, Climaxes Terrific Season By Winning Calder Cup; Reibel Next

Montreal — Camille Henry, diminutive utility forward of the New York Rangers, is the Calder Memorial Trophy winner for 1953-54. He is the second year in a row that a member of the Rangers has captured this award.

Henry polled 99 points out of a possible 180 in annexing the trophy. Earl (Dutch) Reibel of Detroit Red Wings finished second with 77 points, while Jean Beliveau, highly-publicized centre of Montreal Canadiens, finished third in the voting with 44 points.

The voting was divided into two halves—games up to January 1, 1954, constituted the first half and games from January 1 to end of regular season made up the second half. A unanimous choice for each half would poll 90 points. Reibel, the clever Detroit centre, paced the rookies at the half-way mark with 61 points. Henry was second with 40 and Bill Dineen of Detroit was third with 31. Beliveau, who was injured for most of the first half of the season, polled only a single point.

It was Henry and Beliveau who gained most of the votes and the points during the second half of the balloting. Henry picked up 59 points out of 90 in the second half, while Beliveau earned 43 out of a perfect 90.

The 130-pound Henry, lightest player in the National Hockey League, played 66 games for the Rangers and scored 24 goals while assisting on 15 others for a total of 39 scoring points. He was the sixth highest goal scorer in the entire league and the second highest on the Rangers. He was also the fourth highest point-getter on the New Yorkers. This is indeed an outstanding record for a first-year player in the N.H.L.

What makes Henry's record so remarkable is the fact that he doesn't have so much ice time. He scored his 24 goals while playing an average of between eight and 10 minutes a game. He was used mainly when the Rangers had a one-man advantage and were employing their power play. He possessed the knack of being at the right place at the right time and was extremely deceptive and tricky around the opposition's net. He seldom made a mistake when in payoff territory.

The Rangers are especially pleased with Henry's play because he is the first French-Canadian boy from the Province of Quebec to make good in their farm system. Henry, himself, credits Frank Boucher, New York manager, with whatever success he has enjoyed to date.

"I'm so small most coaches wouldn't want to take a chance on me, Boucher gave me a break," the 21-year-old, 5' 9½" native of Quebec City stated.

In addition to winning the Calder Memorial Trophy which is awarded each season to "the player selected as the most proficient in his first year of competition in the National Hockey League," Henry is the recipient of $1,000 from the National Hockey League. Last year's top rookie was Lorne Worley, also of the Rangers. Henry is the sixth player to win the outstanding rookie award while performing for the New York Rangers.

Hockey writers and broadcasters from the six N.H.L. cities carried out the voting for this trophy. Regardless of the number of selec-

Blame It On What You Like But This Is Shaping Up To Be One Screwball Baseball Season; Especially In N. Y.

Blame it on the weather, the H-bomb or what you like, this is shaping up as one screwball baseball season.

New York Giants win three straight shutouts. Cleveland benches a .419-hitting first-baseman. New York Yankees bat a sour .220 while Chicago Cubs slug at .326. Rookies ride in the .400-plus stratosphere.

Now comes the showdown with the first interseasonal tests. Chicago White Sox come east in first place in the American League, having won seven of their last eight.

Paul Richards, who has contended all along that "the Yanks can be beaten" lists a former Yankee, Don Johnson, to open in Yankee Stadium today. With Nellie Fox and Johnny Groth among the top 10 hitters and Ferris Fain tops in runs batted in, the Sox look like formidable challengers.

The Yanks haven't been able to hit any kind of pitching, left or right. Although every manager saves up the southpaws for New York, the Yanks were shut out Saturday by a rookie righthander Bob Trice, in Philadelphia.

Detroit, a real surprise in the first two weeks, opens tonight in Philadelphia where the "new look" A's appear tougher than usual. Bill Tuttle, the Tigers' new centre-fielder, is off to a fine start with 400-plus, but it's too early to buy his as a "phenom."

The East will watch with interest Cleveland's switch of Al Rosen to first to make room for rookie Rudy Regalado at third—a move which sent heavy-hitting Bill Glynn to the bench. The Indians open in Boston today against the Red Sox, who have been hurt badly by Mel Parnell's injury, following Ted Williams' broken collar bone.

It seems odd to call Baltimore a "western" team, but the Orioles

The Uncensored Story

Red Army Tactical Program Show Many Major Advances Since Second World War

Bill Boss was a Canadian Press war correspondent in Italy and western Europe during the Second World War. For three years he was CP correspondent with the Canadian forces in Korea. Now, just back from five months in Moscow, he writes in this story—one of a series—of recent changes in the Red Army.

By BILL BOSS

Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Red Army has used the years since 1945 to bring its battle doctrine up to date.

During the Second World War, it was profligate in its waste of manpower. Massed Russian infantry, advancing under heavy artillery fire, overwhelmed German armored formations in bloody actions similar to the "human wave" battles of Korea and Indo-China.

Soviet Delegate Andrei Vishinsky once boasted at a United Nations session to Canada's Gen. A. G. L. MacNaughton: "More Russian blood flowed in the defeat of Germany than water flows in the St. Lawrence river."

Now competent observers in Moscow say:

"There is no reason to think that Russian battle tactics differ much from ours."

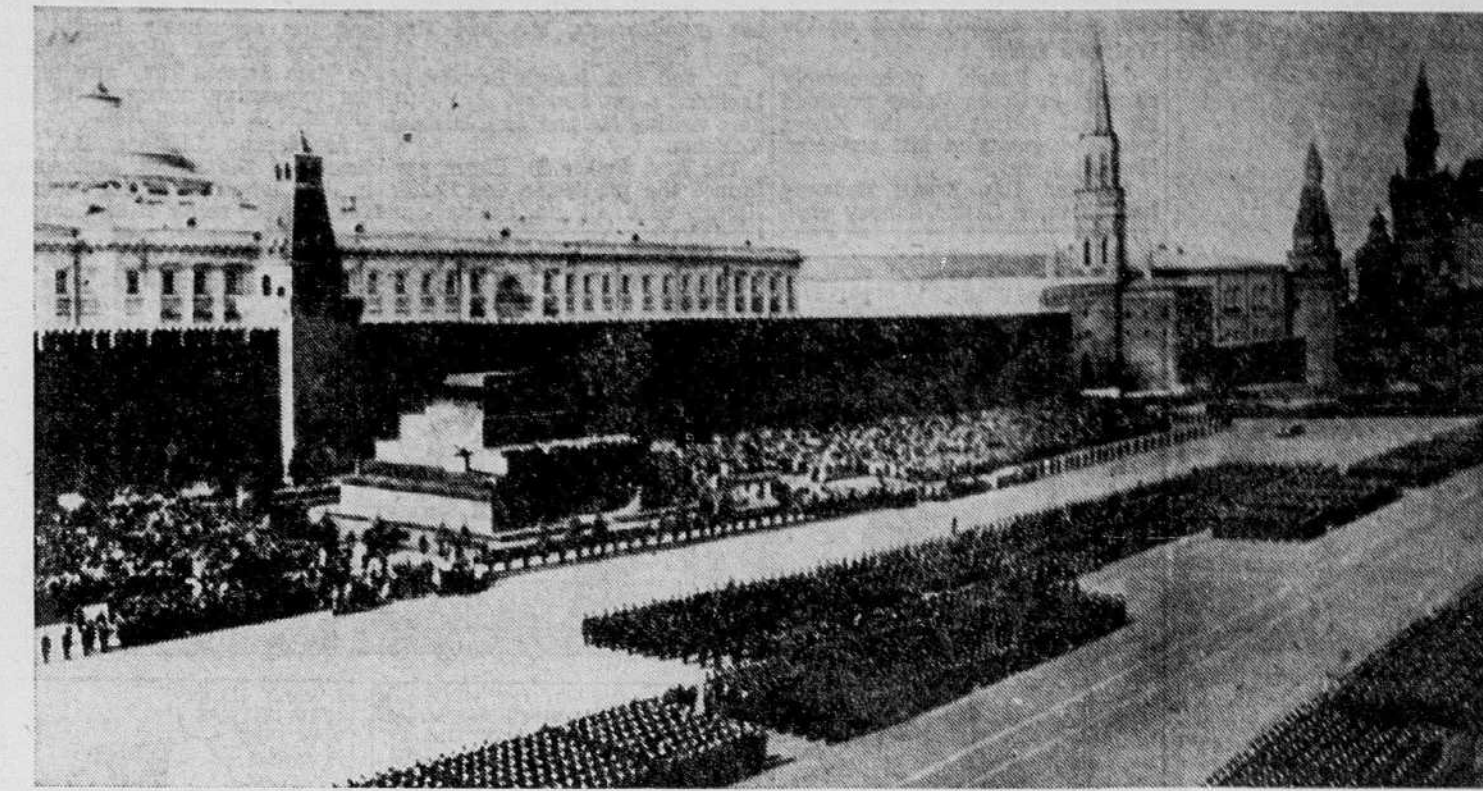

Only mechanization and armor in vast quantities could have made the change in Red Army tactics possible.

Soviet exercises in Germany and Austria afford clues to current Russian doctrine and it is on these that Allied information is based. If the exercises are a true indication, the Red Army also has reorganized its supply services and streamlined the administrative pipeline which, during the war, sometimes trickled out and starved the advancing Soviet war machine to a temporary halt.

But western military attaches in Moscow must rely on glimpses of the war machine in their shadowed travels, and tithes of information gleaned from official Russian publications. They say the real intelligence work on Russian armed strength is done not in the U.S.S.R. but by experts at home and in border countries outside the Iron Curtain.

Moscow embassies were rocked recently when the Red Army invited a British observer to visit an army college in Leningrad. His colleagues in the diplomatic corps have been biting their nails since, waiting for invitations. The postman hasn't knocked.

Numerical strength of the Russian forces is a close Soviet secret. In Moscow you see comparatively little of the services. There are many officers—including visiting Czechs and Poles—but no more than one would expect in a city of 6,000,000 capital of a country of 210,000,000 where not only the service headquarters but their staff and command colleges are located. Occasionally a detachment of soldiers marches through the streets, preceded and followed by men carrying red traffic flags; but impressive military demonstrations seem to have passed with the receding Stalin era.

RED ARMY CHANGES—Military observers in Moscow say the Red Army has changed its battle doctrine since 1945 and that its tactics now are closer to those used by armed forces in the West. Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer who spent five months in the Soviet Union, says the forces seem to be gaining strength politically. At least 60 serving army and navy officers were elected to the Supreme Soviet last March. This composite picture shows traditional May Day ceremonies in Moscow's Red Square, with military units lined up for review.

Foreign observers remarked last Nov. 7 on the greatly reduced fly-past by the Red Air Force and the shortness of the military parade.

Yet the question most frequently asked by foreigners in the U.S.S.R. is: "Where are the men?"

Women outnumber men on any sort of job the foreigner sees—building, roadwork and the like as well as in offices. It probably is the same in heavy industry, the factories and farms.

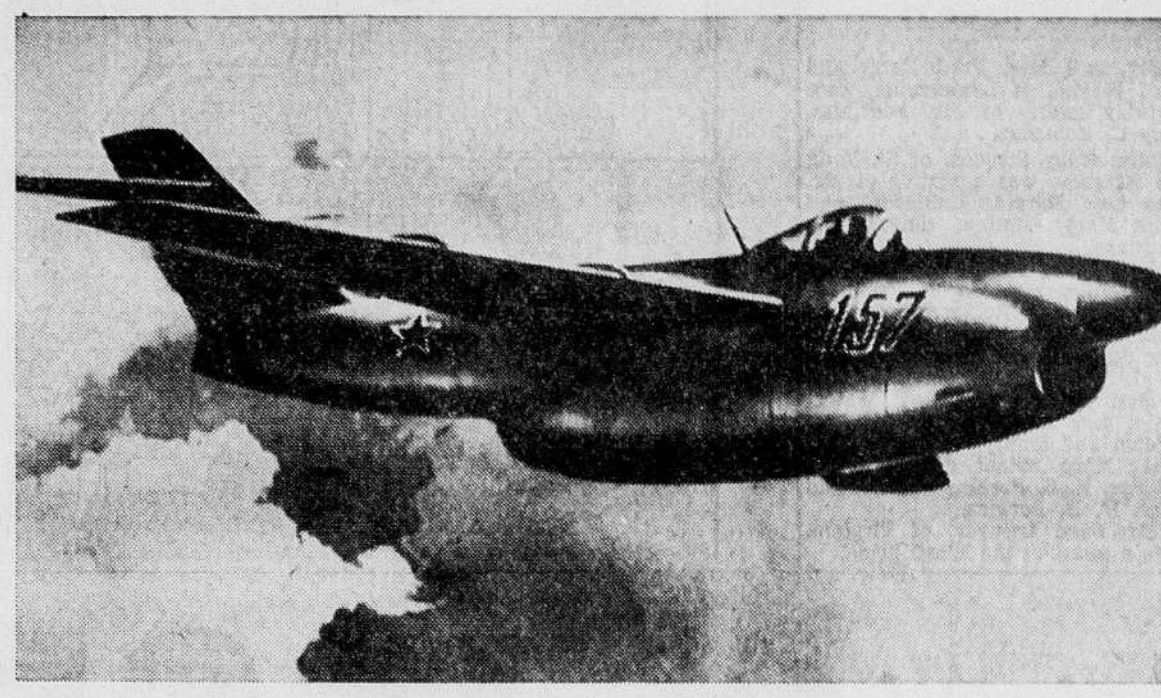

As far as civilian defence and air-raid precautions are concerned, there is no obvious set-up. There are no signs pointing to the nearest shelter; no instructions about what to do in an emergency. The Moscow subway is 300 feet underground and forms a natural shelter; but experts say it would take more than an overnight instruction from Pravda or Moscow radio to tell the people how to use it.

My 6,000-mile trip from Moscow to Tashkent, near the Chinese border, was by commercial plane and train. All I saw of military activity was at two service airports.

One was at Kirovabad in Azerbaijan alongside the railway line from Baku to Tiflis. It is used by twin-jet medium bombers and is just an expanse of dirt. The jets look like tanks cruising on a desert, whipping up great dust clouds as they taxi. In contrast, the Baku airport in the famous oilfield's forest of derricks is a well-equipped concrete slab groaning by canvas shroud, engines hooded by canvas.

Obviously, Allied "intelligence" compiled from such travellers' tithes would not yield many hard facts on Soviet strength.

One tip that Russia's armed services may be having more to say

RUSSIAN MIG FIGHTER—Strength of the Soviet armed forces is a close Soviet secret. In five months in Moscow, Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, saw many officers in Moscow, and occasional detachments of marching soldiers, but Western reporters in Russia are not permitted to visit any military establishment. On a trip through Soviet Central Asia, Boss saw from a train an airport with runways loaded with MiG fighter aircraft, like the one shown above. (CP from AP) about Soviet affairs may be this: Politically, the forces are gathering strength. No fewer than 60 serving army and navy officers were sent to the new Supreme Soviet in elections last March 14.

When the Communist party published an "open letter" in connection with the elections, Marshals Vasilevsky and Zhukov, army officers and deputy ministers of defence, were listed for the first time among top leaders of the country. Defence Minister Bulganin, although a marshal, is not a military man but he, too, is in the Russian hierarchy.

But foreign observers haven't decided whether the party controls the services through Bulganin who is a party man; or whether the services use Bulganin to influence party policy in their behalf.

How to KEEP FIT after 50

In the old days fifty seemed the signal to slow down—take things easy—watch your diet—get more rest. It's still good advice. But these days you can face fifty with many interesting and active years ahead—active, that is, if you can avoid backache and the "tired-out" feeling, due to kidney and bladder disorders, that often develop around that age. For more than 60 years Dadd's Kidney Pills have been helping men and women of all ages to keep kidneys and bladder in good order, helping them to feel better, to work better, and get more fun out of life. If you are approaching fifty, or past it, Dadd's Kidney Pills may help you, too. You can depend on Dadd's.
