Retirement of Major-General Charles Basil Price, CB, DSO, DCM, VD, CD, 68, as honorary-colonel of the Royal Montreal Regiment, announced by Army Headquarters, has opened the way for Brigadier George Victor Whitehead, VD, CD, 62.

Major-General Price, who retired from the Canadian Army after the war, held the appointment since 1943. He retains the appointment of honorary-colonel Commandant of the Royal Canadian Infantry Corps, which he has held for the past year.

Brigadier Whitehead, an insurance broker in civilian life, has been connected with the army since before the First World War. He has been Honorary Lieutenant-Colonel of the Regiment since November 1952.

ENLISTED IN 1905

Major General Price was Commander of the 3rd Canadian Infantry Division overseas during the Second World War. He enlisted as a private soldier in the Victoria Rifles of Canada in 1905.

Commissioned in the same unit in 1914, he reverted to the rank of company sergeant major on the outbreak of war and, in France as a CSM, won the Distinguished Conduct Medal for gallantry in action during the Second Battle of Ypres.

Commissioned in the field, he was wounded three times, mentioned-in-despatches and promoted to the rank of major.

Reverting to Militia status after the 1914-18 war, he became the first commanding officer of the Royal Montreal Regiment.

He subsequently commanded the 12th Canadian Infantry Brigade and at the outbreak of the Second World War was com- (Continued on page 2)

Police still hunt man who attacked taxi-driver here

Good fare turned sour Friday night when Alphonse Girard, of 10360 Rancourt St., Ahuntsic, stopped his cab to pick up a passenger at the corner of Closse and St. Catherine.

At 5:38 p.m., Girard was hailed by a man described as "about 28 years old, 6 ft. tall, weighing 200 lbs and French speaking.

The passenger, clothed in a blue cap and black overcoat, ordered Girard to drive to a spot behind St. Joseph's Oratory.

On their arrival, the man informed Girard that he was to be robbed and brandished what looked like a revolver.

The assailant, however, was soon dismayed to find that his victim was not to be so easily intimidated. Grasping an iron bar from beside his seat, Girard flailed the would-be heist artist about the legs and knees. Unable to give as good as he was receiving, the thief took flight.

Girard was later treated for slight head injuries at St. Mary's Hospital. Westmount police are continuing their search for his assailant.

Matrons are miffed, spinsters swoon at date bureau advert

Residents of Westmount — this somewhat staid, somewhat conservative (small c) municipality — were somewhat startled to find stuffed through their letter-boxes this week a four-page pamphlet suggesting, of all things, that they allow themselves to be introduced (horrid thought) to someone they didn't know — and (horrid thought) by means of a commercial introduction agency.

Rumor has it that many matrons were miffed — more than somewhat; and even the odd spinster went into a swoon.

However we did run across a local rake who admits (privately of course) that he (Continued on page 5)

Metro story is told by Mayor John Pratt

"It should be obvious that Metropolitan Government for the city and district of Montreal is long overdue . . .", R. John Pratt, Mayor of Dorval and Member of Parliament for Jacques Cartier-LaSalle told Westmount Rotary Club Wednesday.

Mr. Pratt pointed out, however, the distrust and misunderstanding which stand in the way of an agreement on such a form of government. Some suspect the City of Montreal of initiating the scheme in an effort to absorb the surrounding municipalities, he said.

The presentation of the plan is often ill conceived. For instance, there has been much talk of the fact that Montreal is presently bearing the burden for services which are enjoyed by outlying communities, he added.

"Although there are cases where this is true," said Mr. Pratt, "such discussion serves only to becloud the basic reasons for central government and arouses the suspicions of suburban councils. It is not only a question of some people paying more or less than their fair share of the cost of services which benefit all, but of all the people paying more, both in money and inconvenience, for poor services when they could enjoy the greater benefits of more efficient services for less under a better co-ordinated system of central planning and control," said Mayor Pratt.

Though the broad idea of the Metropolis of Montreal envisages a large industrial complex "extending from Sorel, on the East, to Valleyfield, on the West, and from St. John, on the South, to St. Jerome, on the North . . . the immediate problem is pretty well conceded to include only those towns on the Island itself which are adjacent to the City," he added.

35 blind persons visit flower show

A special flower show for over 35 blind persons at the civic conservatory was so successful last week that George Cooper, superintendent of the Westmount Parks Department, suggested that the exhibition be held again later in the year.

Braille signs enabling the blind to read names of plants and flowers were erected in the conservatory which was reserved for the day. With the aid of guides, the guests were allowed to feel plants and flowers so that they might have an idea of how they look. The event was sponsored by the City of Westmount and the National Association for the Blind.

Local consular officials feted by Board of Trade

Consuls General and Trade Representatives from over 40 countries, including three Iron Curtain countries, were feted Wednesday noon at the annual Montreal Board of Trade reception for representatives of Empire and foreign governments, in the Montreal Board of Trade Exchange Hall.

Claude P. Beaubien, president of the Montreal Board of Trade, welcomed the representatives, and each was presented with a complimentary membership in accordance with this annual custom.

Mr. Beaubien noted that this affair dates back to 1941 and is now a well-established tradition. "While we have been in these premises for only 55 years, the Montreal Board of Trade is now in its 135th year, and this hall savours of trade back through as many years of history and tradition," he said.

He said that the Board is very much aware of Canada's position as one of the great trading countries of the world, and he termed Montreal as "Canada's commercial front door".

Dr. Frederick J. Keastli, Dean of the Consular Corps of Montreal and Consul General of Switzerland, replied to the welcoming address of the president. He extended to the Board the desire of all the consular and trade representatives of the 43 (Continued on page 5)

REGULAR ACTIVITIES RESUME

Now that the excitement of the Christmas Holidays are over and the boys and girls have returned to School, regular club activities and regular club hours have been resumed.

FULFILMENT

The Unity Boys' Club of Westmount, sponsored by the Rotary Club of Westmount and affiliated with the Montreal Boys' Association, a Red Feather Service, fills a need wherever there are boys and girls who lack opportunities for wholesome recreation, and for the constructive use of leisure time. Without recreation facilities, a youngster's life cannot be considered a whole . . . there would be something lacking.

The Unity Boys' Club is rendering service to 1000 children from the districts of Westmount and St. Henry. It attracts the boys and girls who most need its opportunities and benefits. There are no membership limitations other than the capacity of the clubhouse, and the fees are at purely nominal level—easily within the means of any family. Its doors are always open in the afternoon and evening hours.

The Club creates an environment where character develops under natural and favorable circumstances. It is a boys' and girls' world in which the guidance of its leaders functions informally and continuously. It provides for the wholesome use of leisure time, for the building of health, for the development of recreational and vocational skills, and for the leadership and guidance which produces men and women better fitted for the responsibility of citizenship.

A number of years ago, one of the greatest problems faced by Youth Organizations was to interest parents in what their children were doing. Too often mothers and fathers were so busy with their own interests that very little attention was paid to what their sons and daughters might be doing or where they were spending their leisure time. Today, parental neglect is on the decline. Every effort has been made by Club

Officials to acquaint the parents with the activities in and around the Boy's Club. Unity's Ladies Auxiliary is one example of the interest shown by parents—this group is on call and provides many services to the Club—at the recent annual father and son and mother and daughter banquets, over 100 fathers and mothers were in attendance. Parents also attend the Saturday morning Call Me Uncle Radio Show. In addition, there are 14 mothers or fathers who are giving their time as volunteer workers in the Club. Parents also communicate with the Club by phone—this as a means of keeping track of their children and knowing exactly where they are.

that "it is a distinct possibility that the Metropolitan may eventually dominate the Provincial."

"We must not forget," he continued, "that a Province is intrinsically a division of land, but a Metropolis is a grouping of people . . . the real wealth of a nation is in its people first, rather than in its land."

Mayor Pratt remarked that

John B. Mickles dies in the U.S.A.

The death of John Butler Mickles, one time former resident of the West End, occurred suddenly Friday at his late residence in Weston, Mass. He was 53.

A lawyer and sportsman, Mr. Mickles was well known in this community for his many activities, especially in golf, hockey and football circles. He had practiced law in Boston since the early 1930's.

Born in Montreal, the son of Lovell G. Mickles and the late Alice B. Mickles, he attended Lower Canada College, McGill University, and Harvard Law School.

Mr. Mickles is survived by his wife, the former Edytha Macy, and three sons, Lindsay Macy, John Everett and Josiah Lovell; a sister, Mrs. J. H. Maudsley of Toronto; and two brothers, Lovell Jr. of Montreal, and Robert M. of Port Credit, Ontario.

This day of automation has made it easier for the worker to move to suburbs and that industry is showing a tendency to follow. The ultimate result may well establish a continuous line of "lower density cities", rather than the presently overpopulated industrial and commercial centres.

"A very advanced example," he said, "is the development between Hamilton and Toronto."

Mayor Pratt warned that "all sorts of outside influences are at work on the shaping of our own small microcosm and if we refuse to realize this obvious fact, then we cannot hope to plan our civic patterns intelligently."

Liberals give green light to younger members

By POWELL SMILY
 (Special to The Examiner)

OTTAWA — The Liberal Party is giving the green light to the younger members in its ranks.

"Out of the 2,500 delegates and alternates to the Liberal National Convention next week, more than 90 percent will be attending their first political convention," said George Marler, chairman of the Resolutions Committee.

Mr. Marler said that "beyond any question" a fighting spirit is permeating the Liberals.

"So far, I have received approximately 125 resolutions from constituency organizations all over the country," he said. "They demonstrate clearly that Liberals from coast to coast are giving earnest consideration to the problems which face the country."

One of the outstanding features of the Resolutions Committee is that when it begins operations on January 14, the first day of the three-day convention, it will be truly representative of all segments of the Liberal Party.

"We'll have representatives from the women's organizations, from the Young Liberals groups and from the University Liberal associations," said Mr. Marler. "Since every resolution will be thoroughly debated in committee, all these representatives will have the chance to express themselves frankly—and I have no doubt they will do just that."

Local Liberal MP George C. Marler tackles convention task.

Police were busy during black-out

A night of total darkness may be fine for young lovers but it provides hectic moments for weary firemen.

This, at least, is the report of Chief E. C. Harper of the Westmount Fire Department.

Monday's blackout in Westmount was the shortest of any on the island but the headaches which it occasioned were by no means proportionately lessened.

Calls from anxious residents flooded into No. 1 station.

The main problem seemed to be leakage of gas from water heaters and furnaces, some of which were not automatically relit when the power was restored. Frightened occupants turned in droves to the fire department. None seemed to have the slightest knowledge of how to operate their heating apparatus.

Chief Harper remarked that it was fortunate many of these people were not isolated in the northland with this heating problem, for they would surely freeze to death.

Many callers were instructed by phone. Some appeals, however were answered in person by members of the department. 13 of these are recorded but firemen reported that, while in the streets, they were met by residents who had come out to seek them and actually made many more calls than this. Chief Harper is unable to give an accurate estimate of the total.

The worry was mainly for nought. During the hour of darkness, no injuries were received nor were any damaging after-effects reported. Westmount returned to normal — some suppers late, but some residents wiser.

WE SAYNew councillors' big responsibility

WESTMOUNT, in accordance with its by-laws and the terms of the Cities and Towns Act of the Province of Quebec, has announced nominations, and, if necessary, an election day.

We don't believe the election will be necessary.

We can hardly imagine a candidate setting himself up against the nominees of the Municipal Association.

This, in itself, is not a good thing. In this day of democracy, we like to feel that any citizen not only has the right to run for council, but also the encouragement of his fellow citizens so to do.

This is not the case in Westmount. Technically, everyone has a right — under certain simple circumstances of residence and other qualifications — to oppose the Municipal Association nominees.

But anyone who did would get the cold shoulder from the electorate — such of them as bothered to go out and vote.

Since the nominees will in all likelihood go in by acclamation, their responsibility is just that much greater. If a man is elected by a percentage of the electors, he is bound by the rules of the game to mete out decisions fairly to all electors. Yet it is understandable, human nature being what it is, that he would be more active in certain causes for which his electors stood, and less active, perhaps, in causes propounded by those who supported his opponents.

Going into office by acclamation, the nominees of the Municipal Association — let's avoid the word slate — should lean over backwards to be all things to all men.

This is not to suggest that there is anything wrong in any way with the men who have been nominated — far from it. It is merely to impress upon them their great responsibilities, now that they are to don the mantles without opposition.

An Examiner Profile:Musician pursues 3-pronged career

By CYNTHIA JONES

Alexander Brott, one of Canada's outstanding musicians, who pursues exhaustively a three-pronged career as violinist, conductor and composer, heads a very gifted N.D.G. family.

His charming, deep-eyed wife, Lotta, plays the cello to her husband's first violin, performing in many concerts with him in halls and on TV and radio. Their 13 year-old son, Boris, a dark, curly-headed, talented boy took his first violin lessons at two, performed as an orchestra soloist at five. Their younger son, Denis, seven, plays the piano and recently turned to the cello, his mother's instrument, for self expression.

A glimpse into the living room of the Brott's comfortable home at 5459 Earncliffe leaves no doubt whatsoever as to the familial pre-occupation. Instruments, some in cases; others free of them, ready for instant use, are scattered about, just as books, opened and unopened are, in other people's homes.

Our recent visit to the Brott home was on the eve of their departure for their country home near St. Sauveur. Were the family taking skis? "Oh, no," said Mr. Brott. "We'll each take an instrument. I for one must do some practising."

Composer

That very evening Mr. Brott, in his role as composer, had put the finishing touches to a work which will be recorded by an augmented McGill Chamber Ensemble (which he founded in 1939) on February 1. As musical director and permanent conductor of the Ensemble, he will conduct his own work. His wife will play and soloist will be Zara Nelson, the noted cellist from Winnipeg.

"The title of the work is Rhapsody for Cello and Chamber Orchestra," said Mr. Brott. "I wrote the piano version in two weeks and it took me another week to orchestrate it."

His boys plan to attend the rehearsal of their father's latest composition as is their custom.

The 42-year old musician

ALEXANDER BROTT

Brott has slightly protruding, widely-spaced blue eyes, rather bushy, wavy brown hair. He is 5 foot 10 and weighs about 170 pounds. His face is very mobile, expressive. He is friendly and articulate. He lives such a hectic existence that he finds it difficult to keep track of his activities. "Recordings, TV and radio engagements, rehearsals, concerts keep us flying about," he said.

recordings (Concordia and Cradle Song) by Brott.

These compositions are internationally acclaimed and have been performed by such eminent conductors as Otto Klemperer, Leopold Stokowski, Pierre Monteux, Vladimir Golscham, Desire Defauw, Sir Ernest MacMillan and Jean Beaudet.

Brott's works have been chosen to represent Canada at the Olympics, both in London in 1950, and in Helsinki, in 1954.

Conductor

Being active as violinist, conductor and composer, he occupies important positions in all three fields. He is concert master and assistant conductor of the Montreal Symphony Orchestra, chairman of the Instrumental Department of McGill Conservatory of Music, musical director and permanent conductor of the McGill Chamber Ensemble and conductor for CBC radio and TV.

As a composer, Alexander Brott has won many prizes and awards. He was twice awarded the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Prize for chamber music composition. He has won four awards for serious composition by the Composers, Authors and Publishers Association of Canada. He was twice awarded the Loeb Memorial Prize for chamber music performance. He did not accept in 1939, because of the war, the Lord Strathcona Scholarship in Composition to the Royal College of Music.

Mr. Brott was one of the five Canadian composers selected to represent Canada at the Prague Festival in 1946. His symphonic poem for orchestra called Concordia Salus, the motto of Montreal's coat of arms, was chosen and played there.

Another work "From Sea to Sea", a symphonic suite in five movements, depicting the nature of each part of the country, was commissioned by the CBC International Service and has been conducted by Sir Thomas Beecham on tour with the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Catalogue of Canadian Composers published by the CBC (not quite up to date) lists 16 compositions and two

Traveller

Since 1948 he and his wife have been going abroad each summer, with the exception of last summer when they went to Mexico for six weeks. Mr. Brott competed for the Pan-American conductor's prize there against representatives from 50 other countries. He copped the prize and returned with a great feeling for Mexican art and culture. (He is sending his Mexican friends gifts of Eskimo sculpture.)

During his European tours, Mr. Brott has conducted foremost orchestras in the capitals, being the first Canadian conductor to present Canadian music in Holland, Sweden, Norway, Luxembourg and Switzerland. He conducted compositions by Canadians Roger Matton, Ernest MacMillan, Claude Champagne, Francois Morel, John Weinzwieg and John Coulthard Adams.

"I was surprised that the Europeans found what they called a common Canadian characteristic in the music — an 'open-air-quality' — which they tried to associate with geography", he said. "I rather think this is wishful thinking. It takes a good time for people of various origins to evolve a form of expression. The Americans have given the world a new departure to music in jazz but Canadians have not been able to identify themselves in a limited way."

A highlight of Mr. Brott's conductor-composer career was two years ago when he conducted the BEC orchestra in the Royal Albert Hall in London playing his own CBC commissioned work in honor of the Coronation of Queen

Elizabeth II. "That was very thrilling," said Mr. Brott. "Lotta and Boris were in the audience."

Born in Montreal in 1915, the son of Annie and Samuel Brott, (who both love music but have had no formal musical education) Alexander attended Devonshire public school and the Baron Byng High School.

"From the very beginning it seemed that music was the avenue for self expression," said Mr. Brott. "I began seriously at the age of nine." His first teacher was a German named Schneider. Mr. Brott remembers some years later watching his teacher die, slumping over his instrument while Bruno Walter conducted the Montreal Symphony in the Brahms overture. Apparently Conductor Walter had been the teacher Schneider's idol and the emotional strain of the concert had proved too much for him.

By the age of 13, Alexander Brott had already won scholarships at the McGill Conservatory of Music, Julliard School of Music and received his post graduate diplomas in composition and violin.

"In 1931 when I was 16 I took part in the very first local symphony orchestra," said Mr. Brott. "Douglas Clark formed the orchestra and a large body of men—70 or 75 players — gave a concert at the Orpheum on a co-operative basis. We each netted $2.85 for five rehearsals and the concert."

Mr. Brott said the recent origin of serious symphonic music in Montreal was a reflection on public taste. He said it was only within the past 15 years that composition of serious music had been encouraged.

Lotta Goetzel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Goetzel, met Brott two years before they were married in 1943. She was 19 at the time, auditioning as a cellist for the string quartet in which Brott played. "She did rather well," he said, with a twinkle.

Cellist

Lotta had come here from Switzerland in 1939, two months before the outbreak of war. Born in Germany, she had spent her young life in Switzerland. Her father played the piano; her mother, the violin. They needed a cellist to make up a trio. Lotta obliged.

Mr. Brott is proud of his collection of violins and bows. He has 10 beautiful Italian master instruments. The one he uses most is dated 1690. Others bear the dates 1729, 1743. He also owns an exquisite bow, one of four commissioned by the Queen of Spain in 1732. It formerly belonged to the concert master of the Berlin Symphony Orchestra. It bore his signature in gold filigree. It has now been replaced by that of Alexander Brott.

Mr. Brott, in his capacity as professor of the McGill Conservatory, conducts the student orchestra of 30 players. He finds that fun.

"I enjoy every field I have touched in music," said Mr. Brott. "I always find music exciting and rewarding."

The pamphlet, he says, had the audacity to address him as 'dear friend' although he is certain he knows no one who would have the lack of good taste to be connected with such an enterprise.

The dodger, he adds, offered to introduce clients to persons of the opposite sex — although it was admitted that some of the 'ladies' prefer to have gentlemen phone them directly.

Depending on your individual requirements (sic) the number of people one may meet is unlimited, the literature stated.

While the primary purpose of the pamphlet is to promote real friendships, it says (according to our informant) "a great number have developed seriously".

Our informant isn't "lonely". He doesn't seek the "companionship of someone" with whom he is "completely compatible".

Or so he says.

Nevertheless — we noted that he had scribbled down the address and phone number of the introduction agency.

Must be a collector of that sort of thing.

'Personal gain' prayer sterile

Baptists told by United divine

One of the "systems of sterility" in religion today is the type of prayer that asks for a personal gain of health, wealth or happiness, Rev. J. A. Boorman said at a Week of Prayer service Wednesday evening in Westmount Baptist Church.

Alberta, he has preached in New York City, Wembley in the Peace River Country and in Edmonton.

Concerned with the pursuit of material progress, some modern Christians are insensitive to the misery of others who are less fortunate and seek gain for only themselves in their prayers, Dr. Boorman said.

Modern prayers sometimes tend to pervert even the Lord's Prayer, Dr. Boorman stated. Paraphrasing the psalm, he said a modern version of the Lord's Prayer might ask that "the kingdom of science come with higher salaries for scientists," that "we think positively and live successfully," that "we be led into temptation for greed and desire so that we may blow ourselves up forever and ever."

Dr. Boorman advocated that modern man try to make his prayers more humble, and try to listen through prayer.

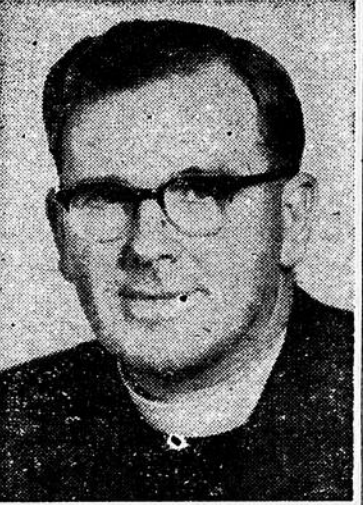

"God, whose word is our only hope for today, is still speaking, even as he spoke to his son," Dr. Boorman said. "If we are to understand God's role for us, we must stop talking and pray right," he added.

The service was sponsored by the Westmount Ministerial Association.

Westmount Baptist Church

In a world that has so much crime and disaster, many are inclined to challenge the goodness of God and to feel there is no good to be found anywhere. Taking as the morning subject "The Goodness of God" the Rev. E. J. Bailey will outline the many good things in society, including the gift of Jesus Christ. At the evening service the sermon will be on "Religion Without Excess", when too much religion becomes in reality too little Christianity.

The Baptists of Montreal announce that they will combine in services of evangelism under "The Man from Wales", the Rev. Ivor Powell, February 2-16 inclusive at Westmount Baptist Church.

REV. IVOR POWELL

"Visitation Evangelism" is being carried out by the Montreal member churches of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec during the month of January.

The Rev. Ivor Powell a Welsh Evangelist, is one of the best known Baptist Evangelists in the world today.

Nearly New Shop requests used skis

The Nearly New Shop reopened on January 7 after the Christmas holidays. There are many interesting pieces of china, glassware and furniture to be had at a small fraction of their original cost. All merchandise at the store is donated. They would like to ask all those who Santa Claus left new skis and skates for, if they would remember the Nearly New Shop with their old equipment. The store has many calls for them from New Canadians who wish to try out their new national sports, and from youngsters whose allowances don't run to new skis or skates.

The Nearly New Shop is located at 1212 University street and staffed and operated by Volunteers of the Women's Auxiliaries of the Royal Victoria Hospital and the Montreal Children's Hospital, and all monies go to the Social Services of them both.

'Amelia Earhart Night' to be held by Zonta Club on Jan. 14

The Zonta Club of Montreal will hold a dinner on Tuesday night, January 14, at 6:30 p.m. in the Green Room of the Ritz-Carlton Hotel to commemorate the memory of Amelia Earhart, who was a pioneer in the world of flying for women. The guest speaker will be Mr. George Thomas McLean, engineering test pilot for Canadair. Mr. McLean was a pilot with the RCAF from 1940 to 1945 and has travelled a great deal, visiting England, Holland, South Africa, Mexico, South America and the United States of America.

The "Amelia Earhart Night" is one night set aside in January of each year in which the Zonta Club in thirteen countries pay homage to one of their departed members.

The late Amelia Earhart was the first woman to fly solo across the Atlantic (1932) and the Pacific (1935) and the first woman to receive the Distinguished Flying Cross. She disappeared while flying the Pacific Ocean in 1935 in an attempt to a hitherto untried air path. She was a member of the Zonta Club of New York City, the only non-professional organization to which she belonged.

The Zonta International service project in which all Clubs participate, is the Amelia Earhart Scholarship, an annual grant of $1,200 which has helped to further the careers of young women engineers by helping them to obtain graduate degrees in aeronautics.

Westmount stars take lead over St. Laurent

Westmount Stars took over sole possession of first place by virtue of their 5-1 win over Saint Laurent TP's in the Saint Laurent Intermediate Hockey League.

TP's Jim Cairns scored at 1:18 of the first period on a combined effort with Don Malone and Roy Cherrier. TP's then played a defensive type of game in an effort to protect this lead but learned the hard way that a good offense is always the best defense. Stu McCowan broke away at 9:56 of the second period, to beat Jim Kerr. Less than five minutes later Bobby Brown took a pass from Pete Mitchell and Brian Heaney to put West-mount ahead 2-1 and they were never headed.

The third period saw two more breakaways that turned into goals as Bob Painchaud scored at 1:19 and Ross Murray at 11:32. Wally David combined with Pat Craig to notch the fourth goal at 3:12.

Westmount: Goal, D. Brambell; defense: R. Murray and B. Painchaud; forwards: J. Heaney, S. McCowan, B. Brown; subs: W. David, P. Mitchell, A. Turner, J. Dell Elce, J. Beasant, P. Cooney, J. Dunbar and P. Craig.
