

Dorea Children's Village Needs Your Financial Assistance

To many of the readers of this paper, Dorea Children's Village at Franklin Centre, is little known to them even though it is right in the centre of their region. It was founded in 1950 by Rev. Gabriel M. Lussier, Dominican and on January 31, 1952 was authorized by the Provincial Department of Youth and Welfare as a school for the protection of youth.

The idea of Dorea, originated in 1938 when a group of Dominican priests felt that there was an urgent need to provide the less fortunate youth of the Province of Quebec with a school town established on the model similar to institutions in the other parts of the world such as Father Flanagan's Boys Town, etc.

The institution's aim is to reintegrate the child in an atmosphere of dignity through a practical Christian conformation covered by a growth-promoting program including physical culture, sports and outdoor life.

Primary objective of the institution is to provide a home for homeless children through modern educational methods different from those which exist in traditional orphanages. The children who are admitted to Dorea have been abandoned by separated parents, etc. and as a rule are not delinquents. They are subjects who need to be guided and protected to prevent them from becoming delinquents.

An objective is to create an interest in agriculture, artisan crafts and rural trades through a program of education both technical and practical. However for those youths with special aspirations and talents, the pupils are encouraged to seek additional training for other professions.

The Village of Dorea consists of the principal building composed of a cafeteria, kitchen, laundry, sewing room, administrative offices and rooms for some of the personnel; a chapel with a capacity of seating 200 people and basement supplies, a recreation room and some classrooms; modern farm buildings; four cottages housing 15 children each and the general gymnasium which is yet to be completed. The personnel of the Village includes two priests, five nuns, one of whom is a nurse, one religious superior, three lay professors and five employees.

Dorea works in cooperation with a number of regional, provincial and Montreal welfare agencies, including the Social Service in Valleyfield, the Ministry of Youth and Welfare, the Juvenile Court, etc.

The pupils of Dorea live a very careful predetermined schedule in the school. During the school term, the day comprises periods of teaching, supervised studies, recreation and organized sports manual labour and personal leisure. School classes are held according to a program similar to that of a regular school.

New Feed Mill Erected In Howick

Howick's "Skyscraper", a modern feed mill just recently opened to operation, has arisen from the misty and hazy past. The new mill is a replacement for the old mill which was destroyed by fire last autumn. Mr. Braut has built his new mill beside his home, on the opposite side of the road from which it once stood. Tall and imposing, the new mill is equipped with fully-automatic machinery that cuts manpower requirements by two thirds. Next week the final machinery goes into operation that will turn out molasses and feed for cattle.

Unemployment Down This Area

Unemployment in the area served by the Valleyfield office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission has decreased as at the end of May by almost 400 persons. At the end of May the number of unemployed registered at the office was 2,328 — 1,540 men and 788 women, as compared to the beginning when the total was 2,700.

An extension of benefits has been granted and those who can receive these benefits are:

1. Those whose files were active on May 17th.
2. If a person has some seasonal credit left and is presently out of work.
3. If the claimant has 15 weekly contributions to his credit since March 31st, 1957.

Mr. Laurent Boyer, Manager of the Valleyfield office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission told the "Gleaner" last week that the extension of Seasonal unemployment Insurance benefits up to June 28th, will cost the Valleyfield office between $80,000 and $100,000 more in benefit payments.

During the first 4 months of 1958, the Valleyfield office paid out in Seasonal unemployment benefits $1,083,149.80 as compared to $618,082.45 a year earlier.

Shaving was originally a protective measure since long beards were easy for opponents in combat to seize.

Man Loses Life In River Near Dewittville

On Monday evening, a man lost his life in the Chateaugay River, near the dam at Dewittville, when he tried to retrieve a fishing pole lost there the day before.

Claude Saquet, age 30 years, of Isle Bizard, Que., was fishing in the river, near Dewittville, on Sunday, and in some way lost his fishing rod and it dropped into the river near the dam. He returned on Monday evening with a friend, Jerry Hollmann, to see if he could recover it. He tied a rope to his wrist and had his friend hold on to it while he waded out to find the rod. In some way he got beyond his depth and was carried by the current toward the dam. His friend was unable to do anything to stop him and he went down over the dam. His friend went in after him and tried to get his body at the bottom of the dam, but was unable to do so. He then went to the home of Hooker Pierce for more help and with his help, they recovered the body from some shallow water further on down the river.

The body was brought from the water and by this time, Det. F. Wilmot had arrived and he and Mr. Reid started giving artificial respiration, which they continued for over an hour. Dr. George Leber, who had also arrived and he pronounced the man dead. The time of the accident was approximately 7:20. Everything possible was done to save the man's life, but to no avail.

Commission Sales At Hillside Farm Drawing Good Attendance And Good Prices

An enterprise which can mean much to the farmers in this area has been started at Hillside Farm, on the Ridge Road in Huntingdon, which may provide a ready outlet for surplus farm animals. Messrs. J. M. Snellie, R. O. Wattle and H. Higgins are partners in a Commission Sales project which is held each Tuesday evening, at 8 o'clock.

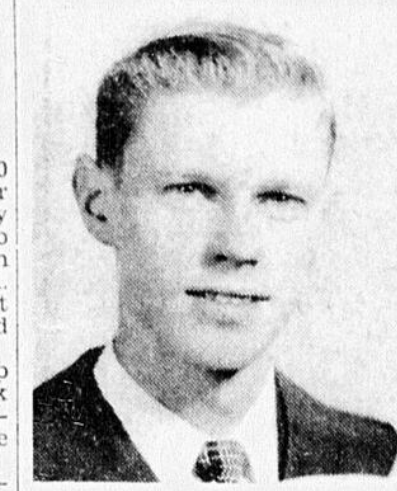

The first sale was held about two weeks ago and attracted a fair number of people and thirty-five head of cattle were sold including some pigs. On Tuesday, May 27th, the second sale, 75 head were sold and several lots of pigs and calves at a fair price. A new scale has been installed on which to weigh the animals. Calves under 100 lbs. are sold by the dollar, but over that weight they are sold by the pound. Young pigs have been selling from $13.00 to $21.50 each. Farmers may bring their animals for the sale on the day of the sale, or if they have no means of transportation for such animals, they will be collected. Cows and such are also bought by the enterprise and then sold at the auction.

A restaurant has been set up in what was formerly the milk house, and coffee is provided for the inner man.

There have been very good attendances at the sales to date and good prices have been obtained for the animals sold. Further improvements will be made from time to time to help toward more convenience and comfort at these sales. You are invited to attend these weekly sales, whether you are a consignee, a buyer, or just curious to know what goes on.

Tenders Selected For Addition To Huntingdon High School

A special meeting of the Huntingdon High School Commissioners was held on Wednesday evening at the school for the purpose of opening the tenders received for construction of the new addition to the school.

The notice calling the meeting was read and motion was passed to open the tenders. Mr. Blachford, the architect received the tenders and was present at the meeting to assist the Board in choosing the likely ones. There were three bids for the electrical work; five bids for the plumbing and seven bids for the general contracting. This meant that three tenders had to be selected. After reading the tenders, it was decided to select the following: Electrical—Lecompte, Valleyfield; Plumbing—Laberge & Lalonde, Huntingdon; and General Contracting—F. Wickendon Co. Ltd. of the River, Que. The tenders in that order were: $13,500; $50,918 and $162,570—for a total of $226,988, some deductions being allowed from some of the tenders, accounting for a slight difference in the overall total.

These tenders will now be submitted to the Department in Quebec for approval and with a request for a grant and to make a loan when this has been received regarding this and a legal delay has been allowed regarding the action, it is likely that the contracts will be awarded and the bonds will be offered for sale.

Mr. H. O. D. Somerville, M.P.P., was present for part of the meeting and he assured the Board that he would do all in his power to help in securing a grant and to assist in any way he could. The Board thanked Mr. Somerville for his offer.

Included in the tenders is the work of pulling down the old school to make way for the new addition. It is hoped to get the work started as early as possible, but this hinges on the reply that will be received from Quebec.

Big Turnover In Staff Ormstown High School For 1958-59

Ormstown High School has secured all persons to fill the large number of vacancies which it had on its staff as at the end of the present school year. Nine of the present school staff will be leaving to take other positions and this includes Mr. Eric King, Principal for about the past ten years. The School Board was indeed most fortunate under present day scarcity of teaching personnel, to obtain a large number of new staff with degrees. It is expected that the school will be well equipped with an excellent staff of teachers for the coming school year.

The Members of the school staff for the coming school year will be as follows:

Dedication Service For Students Of Graduation Class Well Attended And Successful

1958 Graduates of Huntingdon High School were greatly moved by the experience of the Dedication Service held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening, June 1st. This Service, sponsored by the Home and School Association, was designed to cap the year's activities and, short of the examinations, to mark the end of their high school life in as memorable a fashion as possible.

The Rev. Mr. Grant officiated at this Service, assisted in the scripture reading and prayers by the Rev. R. S. Beal and the Rev. W. S. Hatcher.

Dr. K. R. Willis, Principal, charged the graduates with Civic, Social and Moral responsibilities. Dr. Stanford Reid of McGill University spoke most directly and emphatically to the 16 young people concluding their school life.

From the position of a University Professor he emphasized the importance of courage, responsibility, loyalty and initiative as exemplified by David's mighty men.

The choir, consisting of pupils of Grades 7 through 10, accompanied by Mrs. W. S. Snellie and directed by Mr. E. A. Yates, rendered in three part harmony, the hymn "These things shall be a loftier race than e'er the world hath known shall rise".

The graduates led in the recessional and, along with platform guests, teachers, school board members, home and school executive and parents adjourned to the Annex where, under the direction of Miss Jean Pryde, delectable refreshments were served in an atmosphere of easy informality. Photographs were taken of the graduates.

Mr. Grant chaired a programme in which Mr. Hatcher, Mr. Anderson and Mr. Beal represented the clergy of the graduates, in which those men brought greetings and best wishes from the clergymen of the graduates.

Mr. Graham, Chairman of the School Board, expressed appreciation of the contribution Grade XI class had made during their years at Huntingdon, pointing out that only 7 of the 16 in the class had entered Huntingdon in Grade 1.

Mr. Dahms spoke for the parents and urged pupils to keep up their good work and pass the examinations in June.

Mr. Roland Greenbank, in speaking for the Home and School Executive, expressed regret that the pins which had been ordered for the graduates were not on hand to be presented at this time but assured them that they would be sent along as soon as received.

Dr. K. R. Willis, Principal of the School, expressed the best wishes of the staff and indicated that as such a time teachers felt that the pupils graduated, part of themselves went along with the graduates; just as when an artist creates a piece of work he puts part of himself into the creation. Dr. Willis also pointed out that different pupils responded and grew best under different circumstances and that often the pupils who did not show up well in the academic work proved themselves to be outstandingly capable in other important areas of life. In conclusion he extended the best wishes of the staff for every success.

Ronald McArthur, in speaking for the graduates, expressed sincere appreciation to all organizations and individuals who had contributed so successfully to the development and guidance of the graduates on their way through school.

In conclusion, Mr. Beal spoke as a citizen in appreciation of the efforts which the teachers had put forth in working with the pupils and made special mention of Dr. Willis in view of his moving from Huntingdon next year.

Ormstown High School Notes

The concluding Assembly for the year was held jointly by Grades two and three under the supervision of Miss Gray and Miss Stalker. George Barrington capably announced the devotional portion of the programme which included a Bible reading by Susan Nussey and Brenda Greig. Appropriate hymns were well led by the choir on the platform which comprised the members of the two grades. An Ed Sullivan Show followed which was announced with verve and flourish in the traditional Sullivan manner by Billy Carpenter. In fact this young man showed none of the tendencies of wandering in the syntactical labyrinths of his old counter-part. It was a really big "show" from the time Francis Tavernier made his appearance as a soloist until the sponsors signed off with the bouncing ball and the admonition to look for a really good used car. Heather Wallace, Gale Upton, and Fay Arthur "let the sunshine in" as they gave a really good imitation of the McGuire sisters. After Malcolm MacKay outlined the features of the new Meteor, Susan Bennett gave the commercial Meteor song with surprising fidelity. "Calypsos" Nuisy brought down the house with "Marianne" and "Teen-age Queen". Joy Green gave a rendition of Diane that would have done Paul Anka's heart good. As the programme was brought to a close with Bunny Dance and song we had reason to believe that the June Taylor dancers would have some really stiff competition in the near future. Much credit goes to Miss Stalker and Miss Gray for arranging such a diversified and interesting programme.

Kindergarten Graduation

Kindergarten Graduation exercises took place on Friday, May 23, when the young students were presented with certificates in the presence of their mothers who had attended the event. So much favourable comment has been heard concerning the wonderful work that has been done in the past weeks by Mrs. McClintock that it is hoped that this aspect of our educational programme at O.H.S. will receive the recognition and support which it merits. Kindergarten is not a new and debatable project. Its worth has been proved many times over, and Ormstown is singularly fortunate in having available the services of such a competent teacher as Mrs. McClintock.

Letters to the Editor

The Editor, The Huntingdon Gleaner, Huntingdon, Que. Dear Sir:

Thursday, May 22, was a very happy day at our home. Our little 7-year-old, Wendy, had made her First Communion in the morning and, later, had been confirmed at a beautiful ceremony at St. Joseph's Church.

In the afternoon, she and her little sister set out happily down the lane to the road to pick violets and their pup followed them, as usual. Just a few minutes later the two little girls came running back to the house in tears and highly agitated. The little dog had been hit by an automobile and was lying bleeding and apparently lifeless by the side of the road. The fine character driving the hit-and-run car did not trouble himself to stop and for all he was aware, one or both little girls might have been struck, instead of only a dog!

Fortunately, the pup has survived, but is limping badly and is still in considerable pain and the little girls, (as well as their brother and five sisters) are happy that they still have their pet with them.

As for the driver of a dark blue car who drove along Front Road past our farm about 1:00 P.M. Thursday, May 22, and hit our little dog, and did not have the common decency to stop and make sure it was an animal and not a child he had hurt — I sincerely hope for his sake that the same thing never happens to his family.

Dr. Theodor Heuss, 74-year-old president of the Federal Republic of Germany, visited Quebec City this week on the opening leg of his first Canadian visit ever made by a German head of State.

He arrived by air Wednesday and was greeted with pomp supplied by a Royal 22nd Regiment Band and Guard of Honor and a 21-Gun Salute.

Thursday he visited the Quebec Citadel, made a motor tour of the City, stopped off at St. Petronille on the Island or Orleans, saw Montmorency Falls and lunched at nearby Lac Beauport.

Laval University awarded him an honorary degree in a special convocation and in the evening Lieutenant-Governor Onesime Gagnon tendered a banquet at Bois De Coulogne.

The President and his party, which included Foreign Minister Heinrich Von Brentano and State Secretary Felix von Eckhardt, moved on to Montreal to continue their week-long visit.

A summit conference probably would mark the beginning rather than the end of world tension, Paul-Henri Spaak said this week during a one-day visit to Quebec.

The 59-year-old Secretary General of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was addressing a meeting of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

In the event of a summit conference, Mr. Spaak said it would be necessary above all that the western powers not accept the withdrawal of American, British and Canadian troops from Germany, or the neutralization of that country.

Following the CIA luncheon the former Belgian Premier visited Premier Duplessis at the Provincial Legislature building then was a guest of Lieutenant-Governor Gagnon at Bois de Coulogne.

Some 100 Indians in colorful tribal dress Sunday, paid tribute to the Mother of the Blessed Virgin at the nearby shrine of Ste. Anne de Beauport.

There were Hurons from Huron Village near Quebec City, Montserratians from the Lake St. John district and Micmac from Restigouche and Maniwaki.

Most Rev. Henri Belleau, Bishop of James Bay, sang Mass then spoke in French, English and Indian dialect. He reminded them that Indians of the district were among the first pilgrims to the shrine which this year is celebrating its 350th anniversary.

Editorial Notes

Just A Letter -- But It Makes You Think

ONCE in a while a letter to the Editor is received which causes us to think and one such is published in another part of this issue and we hope that it makes you think. It is not that everyone is alike to the theme of the letter, but it may help to see the other person's views and prevent a similar incidence.

This letter refers to a hit and run car driver, who ran over a child's pet dog (puppy). Let us stop right here for just a moment and think -- did you ever have a pet when you were a child, we bet you did. It might not have been a puppy, it could have been a cat, a rabbit, a chicken, or a number of other creatures. In any case, you must have become attached to this animal and would have done anything to save it from hurt. If it happened that anything did harm to it, then we will say you felt very badly about it, perhaps shed a tear or two. Perhaps it was lost for a day or two and then returned and you were overjoyed. Adults too, can feel this way about pets.

We were returning from Franklin, one night a couple of weeks ago and there on the highway was a cat that had just been run over. Another cat came over to look at it and then went, as if, sadly away. This cat was someone's pet in that area, it would not return home and perhaps those to whom it belonged would never know its fate. Some child may ask for it and wonder. But as this letter says, it could have been one of the children whom were with the dog that had been knocked down and injured, the driver of this car never stopped to find out. It would have been much better had the driver stopped and rendered what assistance he could, even if it was only a dog.

Perhaps these animals have no right on the road, but who is to decide. Many a time we have been travelling along a road or highway and an animal has run out into our path, we have slowed down to give it time to get out of the way, or even stopped the car until it did. On a very busy highway, this might be too dangerous to do, due to the denseness of traffic, but where possible, it can be done.

Yes, it makes us think, our thoughts run along many lines.

France Has Its Troubles

FOR many years now, France has been beset with internal difficulties as to the government of that country. This has been brought about mostly by the fact that there are two main political factions trying to gain power. For most of this time, none of the parties which have been elected to form a government, have had enough majority to keep and hold power. In almost every instance the formation of a government has ended in chaos and a return to the people in the form of another election. Some elected groups have only held power for a few months and there has been trouble in the government circles ending in the dissolution of the government. When an election has come there have been numerous parties and the vote has been so divided as to leave the same state of affairs as before. This trouble has gradually filtrated to the colonies of France in other parts of the world, in particular the Middle East, and here again problems have arisen for the French Government.

Today, France is suffering from internal and external troubles and there is grave danger of civil war in that country. Some factions of the people are asking for the return of General De Gaulle a war time leader who was defeated at a later election. It is said he is the only one who can prevent civil war from breaking out and is being asked to lead France once again. De Gaulle is asking for what may be termed dictatorial powers, if he is to take over. This has not yet been decided and the outcome is awaited.

Should De Gaulle take over under such conditions, there may be ramifications that could upset the NATO set-up and gain a decided victory for Russia. While Britain and France have stood steadfast for many years, a difference in leadership, such as a dictatorial leadership, could break down these friendly relations. As both these countries are vitally interested in the Middle East, as such have commitments there, any upset to either one could mean dire results. With Russia pushing for a footing in Middle East countries and continually trying to stir up trouble among the Arab nations, it could mean that Russia would succeed. Already she has gained some headway in her plan and this trouble in France could be the means of further headway being made. It is possible that Russia is back of all the trouble in any case. At this time also, Britain is having labor troubles which threaten to enlarge. Concern for her own internal troubles could easily take her attention away from the international situation and a coup could be pulled off. If a civil war did develop, it is highly possible that Britain might be drawn into the tangle too. It would be more in the form of a peacemaker than anything else, but it could have some surprising turns. Under present day setup, there is no other country which could intervene, except the United States. In a situation such as this would be, it is not likely that the United Nations could handle it as there would be no act of aggression. Whether an International Police Force specially set up could handle a civil war is something which has yet to be tried. Had such a force been an integral part of the United Nations' constitution, then it would be easy to dispatch such a force right to France at this time. The whole matter could then be threshed out and an administrative government be put in until a settlement be reached. It is almost certain that until the people of France decide to abolish a large number of the Political parties and to keep any other parties to a limited number, there will never be stable government in that country. A dictatorial regime might be a solution, but unless some restrictions can be placed on the length of time it would remain in force, it could get out of hand and end up as Germany, Italy and Russia did -- with all freedoms gone.

France is a democratic country and we do not believe it could rest with dictatorial power and regimentation of all souls. The people of France are a proud race and proud of their traditions -- they will not easily yield their rights.

An Appalling Waste In Every Sense

DESPITE the warnings that are given and the evidences that abound, the accident rate for automobiles continues at an alarming pace. Insurance companies claim they paid out last year, more in claims, than the premiums they took in to cover the risks. It does not take a person of any great brain power any time to realize that this cannot go on. If the premiums presently charged for car insurance are not enough to cover the claims, then it is certain there will be further increases in the rates. Already, the rates are quite high in comparison to a few years ago and many a person who should have coverage is unable to because they cannot afford it. It is getting such, that unless an automobile owner can afford insurance, he should not be owning a car. He may be very careful in his driving, but if ever in an accident of his own making, someone may suffer due to the fact that no restitution can be obtained. Actually this automobile accident situation calls for some very hard thinking and some changes in the law, more than has been in effect up to now. This week more special motor cycle police are being put on Quebec highways to check on those who flout the law while driving.

The past week or so, we have taken a look at a number of lots near, or behind various garages in the area and we made a study of some of the many wrecks which are to be found in these spots. In the first instance, we tried to appraise the probable value involved and concluded that each lot had many thousands of dollars worth of wrecked cars and if all these could be totalled we should be amazed at the amount that is at stake even in this small area. It is possible that in some cases some parts and tires, etc., can be used and sold to those seeking such and in this way some of the value could be returned. In most cases, however, there is little of value which can be regained. It means therefore that all these wrecks are good for scrap metal. We presume that in a number of cases, the insurance companies have paid out claims on these wrecks, while in some others, the owner or someone else has had to sustain the loss.

These losses do not remain at just the cost involved in the smashing of the vehicles. In almost every case, someone was either injured, or killed and claims would evolve from these circumstances also. In some incidences, these accidents have been covered by news stories in this newspaper, but in some others, a little imagination as to what happened, was called upon. It was noted that in a number of cases the escape of the driver from being killed was almost miraculous. In one particular car, the front end of the car had all but wrapped around the driver's area and if anyone had been seated next to the driver, they would have been cut in half at least. In others, it is hard to imagine how they could be so badly damaged and the people in them escape at all. In such accidents, it frequently occurs that a number of people are injured, for at least two cars are involved in most accidents and each car could be carrying several people. It might be well if people would occasionally take a look around these graveyards for cars. There is much food for thought in just this.

Maggie told him what she knew, he listening with impassive countenance. When she had done, he paused, as if reflecting, and then said curtly, "I will go with you". It was now fair daylight, and Maggie saw, to her dismay, that the mound upon which she had found Hemlock outstretched was a grave, and that at the head of it was a stake upon which hung several scalps, the topmost evidently cut from a recent victim. Glancing at the radiant eastward sky, the Indian was startled and ignoring the presence of his visitor, fell on his knees on the grave and turning his face so as to see the sun when it should shoot its first beam over the broad lake, he commenced with the dead. "I leave thee, Dawn of Day, for a while that I may meet those who did thee hurt and bring back another scalp to satisfy thy spirit. Thy father's arm is strong, but it is stronger when he thinks of thee. Tarry awhile before you cross the river and I will finish my task and join thee in your journey to the hunting-ground; the arm that oft bore you when a child, will carry you over the waters and rocks. Farewell. Oh, my child, my daughter, how could you leave me? Tread softly and slowly, for I will soon leave my lodge of sorrow and see you and clap you to my heart". There was a pause, a groan of unutterable sorrow escaped his lips, and he sank lifeless upon the grave. Agitated with deep sympathy, Maggie stepped forward and kneeling beside the Indian stroked his head and shoulders as if she had been soothing a child.

"Dimma take on so, Hemlock. Sair it is to mourn the loved and lost, but we manna do our duty here and try to live so as to meet them in the world ayont. He that let the stroke fall can heal the hurt. Gin yer daughter is deed, it is only for this life. Her voice will be the first to welcome you when you cross death's threshold".

"I saw her an hour ago. It is your creed that says the dead are not seen again in this life. I got the medicine from my father that melts the scales from our earthly eyes for a while. Last night I saw my child -- last night she was in these arms -- last night my cheek felt the warmth of her breath -- last night my ears joyed in the ripple of her laughter. Oh, my child, the joy, the life of my heart, why did you stray from me?" Then his mood changing, he sprang up with the words "Cursed be the wolves that hunted you, cursed be the catamount that crept near that he might rend you! I will seek them out, I will track them day by day, until I fill my belt with their scalps". Here he ground his teeth and remained absorbed for a minute, then turning sharply, with a wave of the hand, he beckoned Maggie to follow, and led to the verge of the cliff overhanging the Ottawa. "Stay here until I come back", he whispered, and disappeared over the declivity.

The glorious landscape outstretched at her feet soothed as naught else could, the agitation of Maggie's mind, for Nature's touch is ever gentle and healing. The expanse of water here narrowed into a broad river, beyond swelling into a noble lake was smooth as a mirror, reflecting hill and tree and rock. On the opposite side of the river was unrolled the forest like a brightly colored carpet, for the glory of the Autumn was upon it, and a trail of smoky mist hung on the horizon. An hour might have sped when Hemlock reappeared, with paint washed off and dressed in his usual attire. Across his back was slung his rifle; at his heels was a gaunt ill shagged dog. "Follow", he said, and turning backward a few paces, led to where the bank could be descended without difficulty. At the foot of it lay waiting a canoe, with a boy in the bow. Maggie stepped lightly into the canoe and Hemlock, grasping the paddle, shot the light skiff swiftly across the Ottawa. When the bank was gained he sprang ashore and was followed by Maggie. The boy without a word paddled back to Oka.

The thought could be -- Suppose I were involved in such an accident. You are the father of a family, the sole support of that family -- how would they fare? Perhaps, you are the mother of the family -- how would they fare? It has happened and numerous times. If claims are made, it is quite possible an insurance company pays that claim. In most all the cases of the cars we have seen, claims were made and someone had to pay. A little more imagination is enough to realize the appalling loss and waste of property, lives, time and so forth that these accidents could cause.

If it were possible, a spot should be chosen to place all these cars so that an idea might be gained of how many have been involved in a given period of time, the amount of loss, the number of people involved, the number of injured and how many had lost their lives. Perhaps then a realization of what this all means would be brought home to everyone and thus be a greater incentive toward safer driving practices.

Business Must Have Advertising Momentum

RETAILERS are "whistling in the dark" when they feel their business is so well known it doesn't need advertising. An examination of a telephone directory of 10-20-30 years ago will reveal names of long-forgotten firms their proprietors then felt didn't need advertising.

No community has a static population. Customers die and potential customers are born. People move away and new residents move in who are looking for the merchant who shows he wants their business by his aggressiveness to attract their patronage through advertising.

The average retailer loses 15 per cent of his customers each year and 6 per cent of this 15 per cent stop trading with a firm because of real or fancied belief the store or its owner is indifferent to their patronage. Advertising in print is genuine proof to both the regular and non-regular customer that the merchant cares and is not indifferent. Advertising should pull not jerk.

Consistent advertising does more than promote immediate sales. It builds customer confidence in what is advertised and who advertises it; it keeps reminding even those who aren't ready to buy today that this store has it; it builds desire for the products advertised.

Consistent advertising is like the consistent salesman, it produces results. The National Sales Executive Club says salesman don't begin to get orders until the fifth call on a client. Stores keep opening their doors every day apparently hoping that will be the day someone will buy. The bells of Notre Dame Cathedral ring out several times each day as they have for centuries -- so no one will forget Notre Dame is still there. -- Shawinigan Standard.

The Week At Ottawa

THE WEEK AT OTTAWA
OTTAWA, (CP) -- The 10-day throne speech debate in the Commons ended in unanimous passage of the traditional government motion on the speech.

The motion, carried by a vote of 196 to 0 on May 29, thanked Governor-General Massey for his "gracious" speech from the throne he read at the opening of Parliament.

However, Opposition Leader Pearson contended at length during debate that Liberal support was a formality. It in no way reflected opposition approval of the government legislative program outlined in the speech.

Shortly before the vote on the government motion, the Progressive Conservative majority defeated by supporters as they 'CF' opposition 197 to 37 on a 'CF' motion of non-confidence in the government. The motion, presented by H.W. Herring (CF-Kootenay West), called for federal action to ease the "very heavy financial burden" of municipalities.

The big government majority had previously crushed two other opposition motions during the debate. One was a CCF motion calling for planned economic policies and expanded international trade. The other was a Liberal motion urging expanded trade.

During the debate, Prime Minister Diefenbaker and Mr. Pearson generated some desk-humping by supporters as they exchanged comments on what would be done to help the "municipal ills of Canada's municipalities."

Mr. Pearson brought forward two of his election platform proposals. One was for a federal loan fund to finance major municipal projects at "reasonable" interest rates. The other proposed that the federal share of the cost of municipal slum-clearance works be increased to three-quarters from one-half.

Mr. Diefenbaker, in reply, asked: "Why didn't you do it when you were in power?"

Mr. Pearson suggested his program would have been accomplished by now "if the results of the election had been a little different."

He said the loan fund would enable municipalities to start immediately a multitude of projects, which would be the best way of providing jobs for the unemployed. It would permit a rapid expansion of long-delayed services.

Mr. Diefenbaker said municipalities repeatedly had asked former Liberal governments for aid and had received "a stone-old rebuff".

The last election campaign apparently had turned the hearts of Liberals toward municipal needs. The "cold shades of opposition" had changed Liberal opinions.

Canada has exhibited a progressive desire to ban capital punishment, Harold Winch (CCF -- Vancouver East) told the Commons as he charged it with responsibility for providing leadership to achieve that goal.

Mr. Winch was speaking on his private bill to abolish the death sentence. It was still under discussion when time ran out and it dropped to the bottom of the list of private members' bills. It may be discussed again however later this session.

A nine-man team of engineers has completed the basic design of Canada's first full-scale nuclear power plant.

The design is conventional; no site has been chosen and no money earmarked for the plant. But there is little doubt that Atomic Energy of Canada will proceed with the project within two years.

The plant, according to the design, will cost about $60,000,000 and generate some 200,000 kilowatts of electricity -- equivalent to the output of a large coal-burning electric station.

The project will constitute a major part of Atomic Energy's long-range program to harness the atom for industrial power. The crown company is carrying out its program in co-operation with private industry.

The company, in a report on the basic design study, says the plant could be taken from development stage to final design and construction in an eight-year period.

The design was created by members of the company's nuclear power branch -- made up of engineers from private industry and headed by H.A. Smith, engineering design specialist with Ontario Hydro. Scientists from the crown company worked closely with the team on aspects of the study related to nuclear physics.

The plant is not expected to produce electricity at an economic cost, although technological advances may mean that it will do so.

If it doesn't produce power at the economic cost of five to six mills a kilowatt hour, the next operating liner service.

atomic power plant built in Canada probably will. The objective is to make atomic plants competitive with electric stations which use coal as a fuel.

Anti-Combines. A spokesman for shipyard unions says some Canadian shipping companies with vessels of United Kingdom registry are violating Canada's anti-combine legislation.

J.B. Bell of Halifax, secretary-treasurer of the Maritime Marine Workers' Federation, made the charge as he presented a brief last week to a group of Commons members. The brief called for a federally-subsidized Canadian merchant fleet.

Mr. Bell was referring to owners who several years ago transferred the bulk of Canada's deep-sea fleet to the British flag with the concurrence of the Canadian government.

"We think that companies with ships on United Kingdom registry are breaking the companies act by setting rates in concurrence with shipping companies of other countries," he said.

It is standard practice for ocean cargo rates to be set by agreement among companies operating liner services.

C.V.T.A. TRACK AND FIELD MEET AT HUNTINGDON

 The Chateaugay Valley Teachers' Association sponsored a Track and Field Meet for the schools of Chateaugay Valley, at the Huntingdon Agricultural Society's grounds at Huntingdon, on Saturday, May 31st. The meet got under way in the morning and continued through to late afternoon before all the events were run off. A full account of this appears elsewhere in this issue. The above are photographs of the boys' (top) and the girls' (below) Relay races, as they were run off. It was rather disappointing that more of the general public were not present to witness the various events.

Several Matters For Attention At Town Council Meeting
 Huntingdon Town Council met on Monday evening, at the County Building, with all members present. Following the reading of the minutes and passing the bills, Mr. C. McConville addressed the council on the matter of stagnant water at the rear of his lot. He said he had attempted to deepen a ditch to take the water away to the river, but had been stopped in this by a neighbor. He asked the council if they could do something in the matter as there was considerable odor from the water. Council agreed to see what steps can be taken.
 Mr. Godfroy Leduc came before the council to ask for a permit to build two houses on a recently acquired piece of land formerly owned by Mrs. O. Kelly at the rear of Henderson Street. After some discussion and checking over a plan of the land, council decided that a permit cannot be given until the land has been properly subdivided and a necessary plan drawn up and accepted by the Department at Quebec. Mr. Leduc was advised along these lines.
 Another person came before the council to protest a bill for water and taxes which he said rightly belonged to his mother and not to him. He was told that someone would have to pay it and was advised to thresh the matter out between the parties concerned as quickly as possible.
 The Town Foreman, Mr. Arthur Ricard, requested that his salary be on a fixed basis weekly and a rate for overtime. This was done accordingly to the rates previously paid.
 A resolution was passed to borrow a further amount of $20,000 until current taxes have been collected and to pay the expenses of the Town in the meantime.
 Council decided to support a resolution of the Lachine Council which asked that the Provincial Sales Tax on Alum used for Filter Plants of municipalities be abolished. A resolution was passed to this effect.
 Another letter from the lawyer representing Mr. Poirier in the matter of snow removal was read. It asked that the council pay for the Policy that was taken out and also a further sum in order to recompense Mr. Poirier for any loss he sustained by not using his machine. The matter was tabled.
 It was decided to send a bill to Chateau Dypers for the cleaning out of a sewer at Garden City which was found to be blocked by sticks and wool refuse.
 Mr. Rene Roussele explained at some length about his findings on the water pressure at Garden City and it was decided to refer this to Mr. Lea, the consulting engineer for the Town for his recommendations.
 Mr. Roussele also explained that he thought he should receive more recompense for this extra work which was outside of the agreement he had with the Town. The council suggested that he should arrive at a figure and present this to them when it could be given further consideration.
 The meeting adjourned until June 16th, when the matter of new Town Trucks, a municipal garage and snow removal equipment will be given consideration.

Successful Speirs-Miller Concert At Howick

HOWICK — Presented by the Speirs-Miller dancers and singers, the concert at Howick High School, on Saturday evening, May 31, was a resounding success from everyone's viewpoint. Nearly one hundred people who came from Montreal included some sixty-five young performers. They put on a show which at times was remarkable for its almost professional calibre, and reflected the tremendous amount of time and thought invested. Ranging in age from three and four-year-old "elves" to young adults, many gave particularly admirable first-time public performances.

First half of the show featured most of the younger children in scenes from "Snow White". The background was beautifully decorated with pink branches, gay pink birdcages, and masses of white and mauve, red and yellow tulips and narcissus, donated by Mr. W.F. Welch and Mr. Leslie Orr.

Climax of the show featured Ave Maria and The Lord's Prayer sung by two of the older girls. Setting for this final scene was one of simple dignity, and included both senior and junior dancers in white corps de ballet costume.

Howick United Church Choir was well rewarded for their efforts in sponsoring this event, grossing an estimated $175. A capacity crowd of over 300 necessitated providing additional chairs for those standing after the show started.

CLOTHES DISPLAYED

Clothes — of which female dreams are made — were displayed in a seven-act skit entitled "A Girl Can Dream" by the 1958 Home Economic Class of Howick High School on Thursday evening, May 29. Produced and directed by Mrs. John Leggett, the fashion show was built around a present-day Cinderella theme. Garments made by the girls were modelled by their makers. Commented by Mrs. Alvin Evans, who portrayed a modern fairy godmother, the acts depicted various activities for which the clothes would be suitable. Cottons played a dominant role and many and various were the combinations created by those busy young fingers. Clothes for school, for square dancing, for church and social wear and for kitchen activities all played a colourful part with clever accessories and properties supplied by the students themselves.

A portion of one act took the form of a debate between the models which displayed to excellent advantage the public speaking ability of the participants.

CLOSING PARTY FOR BRIDGE CLUB

On Tuesday, May 27th, the Ladies' Bridge Club of Howick held their closing party at the residence of Mrs. Andrew Tolhurst, who had kindly donated her home for the occasion.

Following a very enjoyable supper, bridge was played by the members and prizes won during the season were awarded. Mrs. Norman Simms, Mrs. Alvin Evans, Mrs. W.G. Brown and Mrs. C. Fletcher were winners of the prizes for the Gross Score, while Mrs. G. Rollin, Mrs. W. Watson, Mrs. J.R. Younie and Mrs. G. Dunn were the winners of the prizes for Net Score.

MAY MEETING W.M.A.

The regular May Meeting of the W.M.A. of the United Church met in the church at the usual hour on Tuesday, May 20.

The roll call was answered with a text containing the words "Seed". The devotionals were in charge of Mrs. Andrew Tolhurst but due to Mrs. Tolhurst's absence, she was read by Mrs. Steeves.

A film on "Japan" was shown by Rev. Mr. Evans showing life in that country touching its schools, its church, its business and agriculture. Mrs. Wallace Rennie of Huntingdon District Vice-Pres. was present and gave a short talk.

At the close of the meeting a re-affiliation service was conducted for the Sikh C.G.I.T. group. Those taking part were the Pres. Mrs. Tolhurst, Mrs. Eric Smith, the C.G.I.T. leader and Mrs. R.B. Ness and Mrs. Clarence Kerr, W.M.A. representatives.

Graduation plans were won by two girls, viz. Beverly Smith and Margaret McKell. World Friendship badges were given to 4 new members. After a short talk by Mrs. Tolhurst, the meeting closed.

Mrs. William Anderson has returned from a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Allan Logan of Brockville.

After Mrs. Manning read the Bible Study the meeting closed and a party with games and refreshments was held.

Friday evening, Mrs. Ian Boyd of Montreal, entertained at a Miscellaneous shower for Miss Carol Woodward, whose marriage takes place in June. From Valleyfield were Mrs. O. Woodward, Mrs. F. Connor and Mrs. Geo. Amos.

Wedding Mainguy-Johnson
 The marriage of Sylvia Arlene daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charters T. Johnson, of Valleyfield, Que., to Mr. William Neville Killbourn Mainguy, son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Mainguy, took place on Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, in St. Matthias Church, Westmount, the Rev. Kenneth B. Keete officiating. Mr. Arnold Bellis played the wedding music and white gladioli and snapdragon arranged with greenery and candles in candelabra were used to decorate.

The bride, who was given away by her father, was in a gown of white tulle, fashioned on princess lines, with a fitted bodice, appliqued with lace, having a scalloped neckline embroidered with seed pearls, and a very full skirt ending in a chapel train. Her veil of tulle illusion was held by a Juliet cap embroidered with seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and bouvardia.

Miss Bonnie Bachelor, as maid of honor, and Miss Joan Mainguy, sister of the bride-groom and Miss Dorothy Johnson, the bride's sister, as bridesmaids, wore bouffant frocks of periwinkle blue silk organza with matching bandeaux and carried cascade bouquets of pink Delight roses.

Little Miss Charlene Johnson, as flower-girl for her sister, wore a frock similar to the other attendants, with a coronet of pink sweetpeas and roses in her hair and carried a basket of the same flowers.

Mr. Donald Murphy acted as best man, and the ushers were Mr. T. K. E. Hicks-Lyne, of Toronto, and Mr. Ross Hamilton.

Mrs. M. Johnson, the bride's mother, wore a gown of champagne silk organza, and a corsage bouquet of yellow roses. Mrs. Mainguy, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of rose silk, with a matching periwinkle hat and a corsage bouquet of orchids. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Mainguy left for Jamaica, B.W.I., the bride travelling in a sheath frock and jacket of turquoise shantung under an off-white wool scalloped, black patent leather accessories and a corsage bouquet of pink roses.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. S. Platt, Miss E. Zebrenski, Miss P. Buist, of California; Mr. and Mrs. J. Course, of Florida; Mr. and Mrs. W. Grenier, of Connecticut; Mrs. D. M. Neeve, Col. and Mrs. R. T. E. Hicks-Lyne, Mr. and Mrs. T. K. E. Hicks-Lyne, Mr. and Mrs. George Bolton, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Buist, of Toronto; and Col. and Mrs. G. M. Carrie, of Ottawa.

the Zion Church W. A. was held last Wednesday at the home of Mrs. R. G. Steven. Mrs. Ella McNicol conducted the devotional portion including the singing of the hymns "I Need Thee Every Hour" and "Jesus Keep Me Near the Cross". She also led in the Scripture reading and prayer. Mrs. Lester Fraser, guest speaker for the afternoon, gave a very interesting talk about hymns of the church and their writers. She began by saying that there were three ways Christians gave praise to God, by words spoken, by the life led and by lifting their voices in song. Since the early days of Christianity there have been spiritual songs in the worship of God. Christ's birth was heralded by song and on numerous other occasions we read in the Bible of people praising the Lord. Some of our best known hymns were once written in Latin or Greek such as "O Come All Ye Faithful".

Martin Luther, in the sixteenth century, wrote and taught great hymns which had languished in church for a thousand years previous to this time. The Calvinists thought that only scriptures should be sung, thus tunes were associated with the psalms. Isaac Watts was a great hymn writer of this period giving "O God our Help in Ages Past" and "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross". In the eighteenth century Chas. Wesley wrote over 6,500 hymns, two of which are "Jesus Lover of My Soul" and "Christ the Lord is Risen Today". He said of congregational singing "beware of singing as if you were half dead or half asleep but lift up your voices with strength." Fanny Crosby, a blind writer gave us "I Am Thine O Lord", Cecilia Clethane "The Ninety and Nine", Charlotte Elliott, an invalid, wrote "Sweet Hour of Prayer" and Miss Sarah Adams "Nearer My God to Thee". A more modern writer was Richard Kipling who wrote "The Recessional" and also "God of Our Fathers Known of Old". For our hymns we are indebted to ancient and modern Roman Catholic and Protestant high and low church. Germany, France, Italy, Greece, England and America. Mrs. Fraser ended her talk by reading a version of the 23rd Psalm as given by an American Indian who wrote "What I tell you is true, I lie not. These roads that are away ahead will stay with me through life and afterwards. I will go to live in the big tepee and sit down with the shepherd chief forever."

During the business portion of the meeting a note of appreciation was read from Mrs. Gresson Leslie, who had been remembered when she was ill. $15. was voted to go to the Sunday School to supplement their funds. Mrs. R. G. Steven served a delicious supper at the close of the meeting.
On Monday morning Mrs. Peter Ferguson suffered a compound fracture of her leg when she tripped and fell on a piece of plank while walking about the garage at the rear of her home in St. Anicet. She was taken to the Barrie Memorial Hospital by her husband and son, Mr. Hugh Ferguson. The fracture was reduced and a cast will be applied as soon as the inflammation has subsided. The Ferguson's other son, Dr. John F. and Mrs. Ferguson of Montreal came up and visited Mrs. Ferguson in the hospital. They remained overnight with Mr. Peter Ferguson and returned to the city Tuesday afternoon. The fact that Mrs. Ferguson's eyesight is not very good was, no doubt, the cause of her sustaining such a bad injury.

Snuff, a form of tobacco which is sniffed up the nose without the preliminary nicety of setting fire to it, is not as popular as it was in the 18th century. In those days, the use of snuff to provoke the pleasurable sensation which comes just before a sneeze was widespread; today it is almost extinct.
Recently, however, three British doctors revived the use of snuff for just the opposite purpose — to head off the sneezes and runny noses of hay fever patients. The modern medicinal snuff contained no tobacco. Instead, it was composed mostly of a milk sugar called lactose, plus a small amount of Sterane, one of the most potent of the new hormones.

The sufferers got two snuffs a day of the new wonder snuff, while a control group of patients got an inert snuff which consisted entirely of lactose. Those given the Sterane snuff reported that it not only benefited their noses, but also relieved the itching and congestion of the eyes which often accompanies hay fever. In contrast, the patients who took unmedicated snuff got no significant relief.
The doctors — all affiliated with King's College Hospital in London — didn't explain why they used snuff instead of nose drops or an aerosol spray. But their experiment, which they urged other doctors to try, may lead the British snufflers to revive a once-traditional piece of pocket furniture: the ornate snuff-box.

Notes From The Police Blotter

Sometime during the period from May 28th to 23rd, thieves broke into the summer house of J. E. Mallette at St. Anicet and stole a television set, a lounge chair and an electric heater, valued at about $300. Det. Wilnot is investigating this theft.

Brothers Guilty of Disturbance
At about 1.30 a.m. on May 24th while a number of people were eating a meal at the Charbonneau Restaurant in Hemmingford, a gang of hoodlums entered and turned the place into chaos. A group of young men from Sherbrooke, came into the restaurant and began bothering the people there and soon the whole assembly was mixed in a battle. Articles were thrown around and a number of people were prevented from leaving when the police were called. Const. Kyle and Det. Wilnot of the Provincial police arrived on the scene and arrested five young men who were the main cause of the trouble. They were taken to Valleyfield and pleaded guilty to the offence and were fined $100 and costs each or 15 days in jail. Some of the men paid the fine and two took the jail sentence. They were: Four brothers, Florant, Vincent, Wilbert, Herman, Boutin and Benoit Palm, all of Sherbrooke.

Take $900 Worth of Groceries Supplies
On the night of May 25th-26th, the store of Leo Monpelli of Howick was broken into and $900 worth of groceries, meats, etc., were stolen. Provincial police are investigating the robbery and so far no arrests have been made.

Accidents in Town of Huntingdon
At 8.20 a.m. on May 26th, at the intersection of Bouchette and King streets a collision occurred between a car driven by Sandy Henderson of St. Agnes de Dundee and a station wagon driven by Henri Gre-groire of Huntingdon. The car was driving on King Street east to west and the station wagon was proceeding north to south on Bouchette Street. Damage to the station wagon was about $380 and to the car about $100.

On May 28th at about 5.45 p.m. an accident occurred on the bridge at Henderson Street. A car driven by Jean-Paul Maurice was stopped at the stop sign on the bridge when it was rammed from behind by a car driven by Albert Hainault of Cazaaville. Damage to the Maurice car amounted to about $150 and to the other car about $75.

On June 1st, at about 11.05 p.m., James C. Small of Cornwall, Ont., was driving on Prince Street from east to west and turning north onto Bouchette Street when he lost control of his car and hit the fence on Dr. P. G. McChammon's property. Damage to the car amounted to about $150 and to the fence about $40.

Take Resuscitator to Accident
Chief I. Henneus, Constable Provost and Mr. Rene Rossell, were called to take the resuscitator to aid the drowning victim at De Wittville on Monday evening. They worked for awhile with this machine but to no avail.

Aubrey-Riverfield
RIVERFIELD — The W.M.B. of Knox Church Auxiliary met at home of Miss Martha Goumroy on Tuesday afternoon, May 27th. The meeting opened by repeating the Lords Prayer in Latin. The Bible Reading by Mrs. Wilson.

The special item, winning Nigeria with the Gospel was read by Mrs. Jas. Carmichael, and Miss Goumroy read the Medical and Evangelistic Report of work in India.

LIGHT UP BUT DO NOT BLIND
Transport and Communications department billboards warn motorists to dim their lights at night when approaching another vehicle. In supporting this advice, the Provincial Highway Safety Committee, (PRUDENTIA), goes even farther and states that it is an act of pure safety and courtesy to dim your lights while following behind another vehicle on the road. This recommendation, if needed, will cut down the reflections to the motorist up ahead which often lead him into an accident.

BANKERS' SERENADE

Hemlock

Hemlock was in no mood for conversation. The exhaustion following upon his night vigil was upon him, and he strode forward through the forest without speaking. Maggie following. Once he halted on seeing his dog creeping forward on scenting game. Picking up a stick, he stepped lightly after it, and when a covey of partridge rose, threw his missile so successfully that two of the birds dropped. Tying them to his belt, he resumed his monotonous trot, and several miles were passed when the sharp yelps of the dog again arrested their steps. The alarm came from a point to their left. Hemlock, unslung his rifle, sped in the direction of the dog, whose baying was now intense and continuous, and Maggie afraid of losing sight of him, hastened after. A short run brought the Indian to the edge of a slough in a thicket in the centre of which his dog was evidently engaged in mortal combat with some wild animal. Without a moment's hesitation, the Indian plunged into the morass, partially dried by the prolonged drought, and had passed the centre, when there was a crashing of branches and a huge bear burst out, followed by the dog, which was limping, from a fractured paw. Before he could turn aside, Hemlock was knocked down by the lumbering brute, which gained the solid ground and was hurrying forward, when, seeing Maggie in front, it sprang for a huge beech tree, with the intent of climbing it. It was not a yard up when the dog overtook it, had fastened its teeth in its hide and pulled it down. The bear, roused to utmost ferocity by being thwarted, caught hold of the disabled dog, held it in its forepaws, and standing on its hind feet, with back resting against the tree, was lunging its victim to death, when Hemlock came up. He had dropped his rifle in the slough, and instead of waiting to pick it up, rushed forward to rescue his dog. With upraised hatchet he approached the bear, and dealt it so terrific a stroke that the light weapon stuck in the skull. With a growl of rage and pain, the bear flung the dog down, and before Hemlock could recover himself after dealing the blow, fell upon him, too stunned and weak, however, to do more than keep him under. On catching her first glimpse of the bear, Maggie's inclination was to flee, but, the next moment, the instinct of self-preservation gave way to a feeling of sympathy for the disabled dog, following by absorbing excitement as the contest went on. When Hemlock fell underneath the brute, she gave a shriek, and rushed to where the rifle lay. Snatching it, she ran to the bear, which lay panting with outstretched tongue and half-closed eyes and dealt him a blow with the butt. With a groan the unwieldy animal rolled over motionless. Hemlock sprang to his feet, and drew his knife. It was unnecessary; the bear was dead. Maggie looked wildly at the Indian, strove to speak, tottered and fell; the reaction from the delirium of excited feeling that had sustained her had set in. Tenderly Hemlock raising her to the edge of the swamp, scooped up sufficient water to bathe her forehead. A few anxious minutes passed, when the pallor began to pass away, and suddenly opening her eyes, Maggie asked, "What of the dog?"

"Never mind Toga; are you hurt?"

"No; are you?"

"I am as well as ever, and had not the bear fallen on me would have spared you what you did."

"That does not matter," said Maggie simply, "it was God that put it into my silly head to get the gun and it was His strength that gave the blow — not mine."

"I care not for your God," answered Hemlock in a hollow voice; "I have known too many who profess to be His followers to believe in Him."

"Oh, do not speak so," pleaded Maggie.

"Yesterday," Hemlock went on, "I met the polled crow that perches in Oka while taking from a squaw her last beaver-skin to say masses for her dead husband, and I cursed him to his teeth as a deceiver, who eats the corn and gives back to his dupes the cob."

Unheeding his words, Maggie rose and went towards the dog, which was still alive, and began to stroke its head. Its eyes, however, sought not her but his master, and when Hemlock put down his hand, the dying animal feebly tried to lick it. At this sign of affection, the eyes of Hemlock moistened, and falling on his knees he alternately patted the dog and shook his unhurt paw. "My Toga, my old friend, my help in many a hunt, my comrade when we were alone for weeks in the wilderness, are you going to leave me? You are dying as the Indian's dog should die, in the fury of the hunt. A claw of the bear I shall wrap in a piece of my wampum belt and put into your mouth, so Dawn of Day may know whose dog you were, and you will serve her and follow her until I join you in the happy hunting-ground — and that will not be long."

As if sensible of what he said the dog whimpered, and with a last effort placed its head in his outstretched hand. Then gave a kick or two, and died.

The Indian rose, and searching out a knoll where spruces grew thickly, kindled a fire. Wrapping the partridges tightly in wet grass and several folds of green birch bark, he waited until there were embers, on which he placed them and heaped fresh fuel. Asking Maggie to keep up the fire, he left and was away quite a while. When he came back he had the bear's pelt and several slices of steak, which he proceeded to broil. On lifting the partridges, their bodies came out clean from their covering of feathers, and on tearing them apart, the entrails, dried and shrivelled, were easily drawn. Maggie had eaten many a partridge, but a sweeter bite than the breast of one so cooked she had not tasted, and with the bread in her pocket, made a refreshing dinner. The bear steak she could not look upon, but like quails did not interfere with Hemlock's appetite, who ate them with greater relish from being part of his late enemy and the slayer of his dog. He had filled his flask with water from a spring, and Maggie remarked, if she "only had a had a tait o' salt, she could not have asked for a better dinner". Trimming and scraping the bear's hide to make it as light as possible, Hemlock folded it into a bundle, and strapped it on his back. Then looking to the priming of his rifle, he told Maggie he was ready.

"But the pair dog; will ye no bury him?"

June Is Dairy Month

OTTAWA. Officials of the National Dairy Council of Canada today reported that one of the most intensive advertising and sales promotion campaigns ever undertaken by dairy processors will get under way in June. The main object of this June Is Dairy Month sales drive is to boost domestic consumption of the dairy foods processed from the more than 17 billion pounds of milk which will be produced this year by Canada's 3,000,000 dairy cows.

Well over $5,000,000.00 a year is now being devoted to advertising by the dairy processing industry. Newspaper advertising represents the largest share of this expenditure, followed by radio and television.

The Town of Huntingdon

Over-all value of the products of the Canadian Dairy Industry reach the staggering total of $1,000,000,000.00 a year.

Canada's dairy farmers and employees of dairy plants receive over 75 per cent of the consumer's dairy food sales dollar. After deducting processing costs and taxes, dairy companies are left with an average net profit of only 2 per cent.

This country ranks sixth among the milk producing countries of the World. World production of milk last year reached 60 billion pounds, about 300 pounds per person. In contrast, Canadian production approximated 1,000 pounds per capita.

Of the total milk produced in this country, butter accounts for 43 per cent, milk and cream takes 31 per cent, concentrated milk and ice cream use 9 per cent and all types of cheese take 7 per cent. The balance is used on farms. The latest official count shows that Canada has 1,963 butter plants, 356 cheese factories, 281 ice cream manufacturers and 989 fluid milk distributors, 35 manufacturers of evaporated milk and 110 plants producing milk powder.

In a recent letter to The National Dairy Council, Miss L. C. Pepper, Head of the Consumer Section, Department of Agriculture, stated: "Strange as it may seem to anyone associated with dairy products we find that public attention has to be drawn continually and forcibly to this group of foods which stands second to none in contributing to good nutrition. In these days when a multiplicity of appealing items, both food and drink are competing for a share of the consumer dollar, the high return dairy products give in health promotion and appetite stimulation must be widely proclaimed."

United States - Canada Should Lead In Orderly Disposal Arrangements

World economic warfare versus international co-operation was discussed at the Fifth North American Regional meeting of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers which concluded at the Chateau Laurier, April 25 and 26.

Concerned with this problem, especially as it affects wheat, the delegates passed the following resolution: "Recognizing that the current surplus position and resulting trading conditions on the world wheat market, particularly sales on concessional terms, are a matter for international consultation, the meeting recommends that United States and Canada should take the lead in promoting such consultations."

"As long as there are national agricultural policies such as price supports, there is need for international agreement and co-operation -- we cannot afford trade war," said Roger Savary, Secretary General of IFAP, a world farm organization representing 25 million farm families.

During the debate which led to the resolution urging U.S.-Canadian leadership in constructive international consultation on wheat, the delegates were told that in 1957-58 for the second consecutive year and for the third time in history world trade in wheat probably would be more than one billion bushels. At the same time, wheat production is going up in both wheat importing and wheat exporting nations. This is expected to leave an excess supply of at least one billion bushels by the end of July, 1958. It also was noted that while wheat trade will be high, the upward trend in wheat production in deficit countries may spell trouble for the maintenance of such high level of international trade in wheat.

Reducing Waste

IT IS JUST as important to reduce waste as it is to increase income. In business, in the home in the public service, economy consists in seeing that we get our money's worth.

The recipe for reducing waste is simple: apply sound common sense supported by knowledge of the situation. We analyse the cause and put remedies to use.

Before doing this, however, we need to become aware that there is a state of affairs that offers opportunity for improvement. People who live near a railroad become accustomed to the sound of trains that they no longer notice it. We live so close to our jobs that we do not see opportunities to make changes that will save money. Let's listen for the trains we never hear.

No workshop, office, store or home is so perfectly managed that there is no leak to stop, no corner to cut, no improvement in operations to make. We Canadians, composing one of the richest nations in the world, are wasting a tragically large proportion of our wealth every day of the year. Our prodigality extends from the massive waste of forest fires to the dribble of waste in our kitchens.

Every manufacturing concern has blue prints designed to facilitate production of goods economically, yet factory waste is tremendous. A committee of the Federated American Engineering Societies made a careful study some years ago of the wastes in six industries. The findings showed the losses to average 49 per cent, distributed as follows: metal trades 29 per cent; boot and shoe manufacturing 41 per cent; textile manufacturing 49 per cent; building 53 per cent; printing 58 per cent; men's clothing 64 per cent.

The tall buildings that punctuate the skylines of our cities have offices that transgress, too. There is over-lapping of effort, useless duplication of reports, needless duplication of value, and waste of supplies from paper clips to electronic machines.

WHO IS RESPONSIBLE? Who is responsible for checking waste? While every worker shares in the duty to work economically, the elimination of waste is a particular duty of the chief executive, department heads, supervisors and foremen. More businesses fail or lose money from managerial oversight or short-comings than from any other single cause.

As an executive function, eliminating waste demands special abilities: awareness that there is a problem; a tendency to do something about it; cultivation of positive thinking; and willingness to try new methods. Nothing is more essential to efficiency quite so much as acceptance of the belief that there is no room for improvement.

The man who is thinking of applying waste reduction in his business will need, first of all, to set his own house in order. No man can reach his greatest possible success who does not eliminate wastes from his personal operations.

The best executive, from workshop foreman or office manager to the president himself, must remain free from tyrannical trifles. He will spend time in perfecting processes of information and communication to the end that he is always in command of essential details, yet freed from its enslavement. He will organize his work, depulsize subordinates and supervise them. He will select capable assistants and delegate to them all the work they can do, while he keeps busy on more vital problems.

What are these more important things? Originating ideas, directing staff and supervising operations so that (1) goods are produced on time; (2) goods conform with quality standards; (3) goods are produced at the least possible cost.

Working against him are tendencies to waste time, to waste material through sub-standard workmanship to waste money in non-profitable activity, the purchase of surplus machinery, and in many other ways.

Basic to the executive's success in eliminating waste is his ability to assess the values of men to do the jobs he requires of them. The shrewdest team work always turns out to be that which allots to each member of the team the special task for which he is best fitted.

If you will look around your own business, office or workshop, you may find certain men and women doing jobs for which they are not qualified or to which they are not adapted. By merely changing two men in their jobs you may fit both of them into places where they can work efficiently and resultfully, effecting better work with less effort.

What about routing of work? Unless work flows smoothly through the plant or office there is bound to be a great deal may result in an inferior product, or it may leave some other job short of material designed for it. The degree of waste is measured by the difference between the utility actually furnished by an economic good and the maximum utility it is capable of furnishing.

Every executive will interest himself in this means-end relationship. Look around your office or workshop to see how much of what is being done is necessary to your purpose, and then ascertain whether it is being done in the best way. How much sheer carelessness is at the bottom of waste by your staff? Carelessness not only in workmanship but carelessness, too, in regard to what is necessary and what is surplus expenditure of money, time, energy, space and material. Are people working in the right direction to achieve your desired ends? Is effort duplicated? Are things being done twice?

Nothing provokes the tidy-minded executive quite so much as the needless use of energy. Sir Isaac Newton set forth some "Rules of Reasoning" in which he said this: "Nature does nothing in vain, and more is in vain when less will serve".

Everything, from paper work to erecting a factory building offers opportunity for expending too much energy, too much time, too much material. One need not choose a strong prop to support a light burden, or build a bridge much wider than the road. There is an economic law of diminishing returns. After a certain point has been reached the application of labour and capital fails to cause a proportionate increase in the value and return.

The foreman or the office manager seeking to reduce waste will ask himself how much of the activity he sees is merely the movement of things from one place to another; how much of the office bustle is only the shuffling of papers. It is what goes out of the door in the way of finished product that counts.

It is waste, said Aesop, when great activity produces small result. You will recall his fable of a mountain, from which were heard to proceed dreadful groans, was said to be in labour and people flocked near to see what would be produced. After waiting till they were quite tired, our crept a mouse.

TIME AND WASTE
In Scrooge's day the office clock was of the grand-father type, ticking the seconds loudly and lazily as if it had time to spare. Today's clocks are electrical, leaping from minute to minute.

We turn the pages of time-tables with worried expressions; we punch time-cards, we run from office to airport; we tear through one job so that we can (Continued on page 10)

DAIRY FARMERS OF CANADA

U.S. Must Heed United Farm Voice Of Other Nations Re Surplus Disposal

If the U.S. wishes to maintain its prestige among its firmest allies, it should pay heed to what the farm organizations of four Commonwealth countries had to say about its program in disposal of surplus agricultural products, states the Toronto Globe-Mail, commenting editorially on a unique four-hour world radio farm broadcast recently staged by the CBC in co-operation with the national farm organizations of Canada, the United Kingdom, Australia and New Zealand. Spokesman for Canada on the broadcast, a simultaneous discussion panel conducted by radio telephone, was Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

"Spokesmen for each land agreed that their problems were essentially the same: high farm costs and falling prices for their products, disturbance of export trade and balance of payments techniques, owing to the U.S. buy-away and barrier plans in wheat, and to the shifting of Commonwealth markets by long-term U.S. sales agreements. They also agreed that subsidies, government-fixed floor prices and similar devices had been adopted as emergency measures in their own areas.

A reasonable proposal "Best of all, however," said the Globe editorial, "was the agreement of all forum members that the dumping back of artificial surplus around the world was an evil for hungry countries. And their reasonable remedy was that the situation could be made a benefit if an international convention on controlled disposal operations could be entered with U.S. co-operation.

"This was a united voice that Washington must heed unless it is resigned to further loss of prestige among her firmest and truest allies."

Planning of that sort will lead to more rational managerial action. It will result in higher production, lower costs, better quality, and elimination of waste. And it is stimulating to all. It gives you a better picture to which routine managers must themselves.

There are several points to be kept in mind when planning to eliminate waste: good housekeeping, flexibility, conservation, thrift and reclamation.

The executive, of course, should insist on having his own work place kept orderly. Disorder and wastefulness are wasteful of energy. To know where things are saves time.

In the general offices and in the workrooms, can waste space be used by planning 2 is stock properly piled so as to be accessible and safe from damage? Do well-enforced rules, some passage-ways clear for traffic?

Every office and department should be so laid out that material flows directly from one operation to another with a minimum of handling. In some factories, handling of material accounts for as much as fifty per cent of the manufacturing cost.

Look for "choke points." Not many executives can go through their establishments observing without detecting places where work piles up. Even if unnecessary handling consists only in lifting material a few inches, such if you cannot devise some method whereby that handling can be eliminated.

If you have trouble in detecting such opportunities for waste elimination (probably because you have been so close to the situation for so long) invite an observant friend or colleague to tour the premises with you.

Keep layout simple. Everyone seeking to increase efficiency will be tempted to over-organize and over-organization leads, as Lord Beaverbrook reminds us, to strangulation. Rigidity of control is necessary to prevent waste, but there should be someone with authority to order who would ordinarily be a wasteful action if the result justifies it. The same act may be wasteful on one occasion or under certain circumstances, but not wasteful on another occasion or under other circumstances.

There can be waste in eliminating waste. Professor Robert P. Crawford tells in The Techniques of Creative Thinking (Hawthorn Books Inc., New York) about a man who thought he had invented a good machine. It would save his company $3,000 a year. That appeared to be a tidy sum. But it would cost $50,000 to install the machine. If the company had had to borrow the sum, interest and depreciation would have amounted each year to more than $3,000.

This leads us to think of thrift. It takes as great ability to spend money well as to make it. Reckless expenditure leads to diminishing utility, like having too many machines for the amount of anticipated work.

When you spend money for unnecessary things, you are wasteful in that you lose the opportunity of putting it out at interest or in investment.

Salvage or reclamation differs from waste elimination. The latter occurs during the process of manufacture and is designed to use primary resources to the best advantage. Salvage uses the reclaimed article after repairing it, or makes it into some other useful article.

Every business manager and every foreman, every department head and every shift boss, has an opportunity to show the quality of his gray matter in avoiding waste. How should he go about it? Here is one way to start: (1) list the completed items or functions flowing from your department; (2) follow them back operation by operation to see of what activity and material they are made up; (3) take each activity separately and determine if there is a more efficient way of doing it (minimum motion, minimum time); (4) consider the material discarded at each step (why was it discarded? could it be saved by more careful work? can it be reused?); (5) always determine causes; don't be content with symptoms only by studying operations in detail with an open, inquiring mind can you arrive at causes.

There is no more interesting and exciting game for the man in charge of a branch or a department to play than to apply his mind to thinking out ways to perform good work in less time.

WHAT IS TO BE DONE? WHY? The first step in any reformation is honest and thorough examination of the conditions to be reformed. In making the survey, ask many "why?" questions about even the most trivial things, questions like:

why do you do it this way instead of some other way? why don't you bring together these two operations at the same desk or bench? why don't you let the man complete the operation instead of passing it along to another?

Reducing Waste

But what are we doing effectively to manage our time to the best purpose?

St. John Lubbock had a saying: "The Use of Life that Enrico Moretti" as said to have once employed Michael Angelo to make a statue out of snow. That was a stupid waste of precious time.

Wasting time and doing trifling things are bad habits that should have been made habits that explain why people do not get more things done and have the feeling of being pushed and pressed.

Productivity affects all but people who are thoroughly well-balanced mentally. It is an enemy to efficiency. It has to be cured by anyone seeking to eliminate waste from his own life and the work of his organization. Set a dead-line. Be punctual. A Swiss who recorded his time meticulously all his life figured that in his eighty years he had wasted more than five years waiting for tardy people.

A simple schedule will help to eliminate these consuming trivialities and to find more time for the things that matter most to you. For the busy executive and for any man who is seeking to find in life all the satisfactions he can get, the best distribution of the day's twenty-four hours is of paramount importance.

The schedule should recognize three things: (a) the things you must do; (b) the things you would like to do, and (c) the things you will do "if time permits."

It is pleasantly surprising to find how much easier the rest of the day becomes when we dispose of the least enjoyable tasks first in the morning. But of course, a schedule must not become a slave-driver. It needs to be elastic enough to accommodate unforeseen events and demands.

Following a time-planned day eliminates the waste of building and haste. It will contribute to a feeling of being on top of the job. It will decrease restlessness, great thief of vitality. Nothing is so amount for the nature of our work is responsible for the frequency and severity of your break-downs. Their cause rather lies in the sensations of hurry and having no time.

AN INTERESTING PROJECT Nothing can undermine efficiency in production more thoroughly than compromise with waste. The overseer who is content in his inefficient use of time, energy and material, even in small quantities, is timid in his duty.

Yet the application of controls is one of the most delicate operations. People do not like the idea of controls, however logical. The question raised by the controller about some accustomed practice: "Is it necessary?" is a red flag provoking indignation.

Nevertheless, avoiding waste can be made one of the most interesting projects in business. Did you ever think of starting an anti-waste drive as an antidote to dullness in your office, workshop or home or on your farm, such a campaign opens up the opportunity to do creative thinking and constructive work.

The man eager to do his job well and economically is not impelled alone by his desire for professional advancement but also by personal pride. There is no glow of satisfaction for the man who throws a spoiled piece of the scrap pile, but the man who reclaims it is adding to his happiness because he is obeying his creative urge.

Every business manager and every foreman, every department head and every shift boss, has an opportunity to show the quality of his gray matter in avoiding waste. How should he go about it? Here is one way to start: (1) list the completed items or functions flowing from your department; (2) follow them back operation by operation to see of what activity and material they are made up; (3) take each activity separately and determine if there is a more efficient way of doing it (minimum motion, minimum time); (4) consider the material discarded at each step (why was it discarded? could it be saved by more careful work? can it be reused?); (5) always determine causes; don't be content with symptoms only by studying operations in detail with an open, inquiring mind can you arrive at causes.

POSTSCRIPT Unfortunately, after the article under the above head about J. E. "Joe" Chandler had been set in type, came the startling news that he had passed away, at Rochester, N.Y. He was to be interred at Hudson, Que., on Friday.

In some plants all material that is discarded is collected by a salvage department that reconditions it for some beneficial purpose.

Throughout our prosperous industrial plants the wastes of yesterday are converted into valuable raw materials of today.

The history of the progressive conversion of wastes into profitable by-products. It is of first-rate importance that the test tube should be applied to the waste heap and the junk pile.

DON'T WAIT FOR BIG SAVINGS It would be a mistake to put off examining your business while awaiting an opportunity to make a big saving. The backbone of a drive to avoid waste is paying attention to the little things.

Let us look at one of these "little" things: scratch paper. A letter from New Zealand asks about the manufacture of the envelopes in which these Monthly Letters are sent out.

The correspondent writes: "I find the re-use value of these envelopes much higher than the other types commonly in use here in New Zealand."

Many thousands of dollars could be saved in offices if envelopes from incoming mail were slit at the sides and used for making calculations, drafting letters, and so forth. New paper will have to be used for inter-office memos, but a hundred opportunities will arise every week to save by making do with what is now cast into the waste paper basket.

Little savings are worth looking for in the office, the home and the factory. There is nothing more meaningful about being a waste-eliminator. In fact, avoiding waste as a way of increasing gain is one of the signs of a good administrator.

Ready money for small business

"You should've seen the one that got away"

A standing joke with fishermen... but not so funny in business when a good plan to improve your business or product wiggles off the line for lack of proper financing.

Many a businessman has learned from experience that the difference between "landing" and "losing" the big one is often the financial counsel and backing he receives from his B of M manager in his day-to-day operations.

That's why it will pay you to discuss your plans with your B of M manager.

You will like his helpful, interested approach to your problems. And you can count on this: when you ask for a loan at the B of M, you do not ask a favour... if your proposition is sound and reasonable, there's money for you at the Bank of Montreal.

— Here Is The New Addition To Franklin Centre Consolidated School —

Here is the new addition to the Franklin Centre Consolidated School, which was officially opened recently with a fitting ceremony. The first photograph shows the outside of the addition which is actually an assembly room and one classroom. It is built of cement block and wood on the outside. The old building is seen to the left. The second photograph takes one on the inside of the Assembly Hall of which only a partial view can be shown. This shows the stage and doors leading to the rooms off the hall. One of these is a spare room, there are two washrooms and a kitchen. At the right can be seen a staircase which leads to the stage and to the new classroom. The stage extends beyond the framework to the left, where there are a number of windows for light. The third photograph shows the new classroom, with Principal Jackson instructing a class. Everything is most modern.

Joint Committee Works On U.S.-Canada Relations

Urgent need for action to stem the growing strain in relations between Canada and the United States, particularly in the matter of trade, led some time ago to the setting up of a Canadian-American joint committee of the National Planning Association of the U.S., an organization which has been in existence since 1934. The joint committee of the two nations was set up last year, with members each from the two countries, representing business, agriculture, labor and the professions. Outstanding citizens of both countries are members of the committee, which has held two meetings.

Objectives of the committee, particularly with respect to the field of trade in agricultural products between the two countries, which has become a particular concern to the committee, were explained in a talk to the North American conference of the International Federation of Agricultural Producers, during its session in Ottawa, April 25 and 26. For this purpose Dr. Arthur Smith, of Montreal, director of research for the joint committee, came to the meeting introduced by Dr. H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, who, along with J. E. Brownlee, president of the United Grain Producers, is a member of the committee, these two being the representatives of organized agriculture.

Dr. Smith spoke particularly of the deterioration in Canada-U.S. relations which had characterized recent months, and spoke of the urgent need for a better public understanding of what was creating the uneasiness and disturbance in these relations, saying that the hope of the joint committee was to make some contribution towards finding some practical solution for the problems existing.

Problems in Agriculture

The committee was particularly concerned with the problems with respect to disposal of agricultural surpluses, and the trans-border flow of energy resources and investment.

Dr. Smith spoke of the dangers of added restrictions in the way of agricultural trade between the two countries, and noted that the word "retaliation" was one which was creeping more and more into discussions of the situation. He asked the IFAP group for advice and suggestions with respect to the work of the joint committee, and asked whether the dangers of restrictive trade were serious

Mass Of Contradiction
By LEWIS MILLIGAN

The deadlock in the negotiations between the Western Nations and Soviet Russia for a summit conference presents a psychological problem of long standing. The old saying, "Scratch the Russian and you will find a Tartar," has been generally accepted. Stalin, in a more recent study of the problem says that if the Russian noble is scratched, there is often revealed "a spirit of evasion, an elusive mass of contradiction".

The Russian nobles have been eliminated, but their communist successors have inherited those characteristics to an even greater degree. The veneer is a little thicker and more attractively grained. The old nobles made no pretence of elevating the proletariat or of revolutionizing the world into a classless Utopia. Peter the Great was the first active reformer; his prevailing ambition was to industrialize the country along the lines of Britain and bring Russia within the orbit of the Western World, which he greatly admired. But beneath it all he was a cruel and crafty despot.

Alexander I carried on the industrialization, but his chief ambition was to extend the territory and power of Russia. He possessed a great admiration for Napoleon, although he at first joined the coalition against him. He signed a treaty which brought Russia into alliance with Napoleon. But his admiration for the French Emperor soon waned and he reversed his attitude toward him. Napoleon bitterly accused Alexander of breaking his promised word.

The two emperors were, of course, imperialistic despots and were each grabbing for territory and power and hoped to divide the spoils of conquest. Similarly in recent history Stalin signed a pact with Hitler, but it was only one of convenience on both sides. Stalin was the craftier of the two dictators. He foresaw the final defeat of Germany and an eventual opportunity to overrun Eastern Europe and annex it to his communist empire, which he did in spite of his repeated promises to withdraw after a peace settlement. But Stalin saw to it that there would be no peace settlement in Europe or elsewhere. He joined the United Nations and vetoed every action that would bind him to its charter.

The fact that the Soviet government still occupies those countries in Eastern Europe and refuses to release them is sufficient reason for the Western Nations to distrust any future promises by the present rulers in the Kremlin. Thomas Hobbes, the British philosopher, contended that no man would make a covenant or contract with another without some guarantee that the other man would keep his part of the bargain. Hobbes was dealing chiefly with the "social contract," but he applied his argument also to nations. He pointed out that nations naturally seek their own preservation but in fear of danger they are distrustful of each other and are driven to seek power and control over others. "All passions," he said, "may be reduced to the desire of power, and a restless desire for power after power leads only to war".

That was written 300 years ago, but the relationships between the nations, so far as securing universal peace is concerned, have changed very little in the meantime. Hobbes' idea of a big Commonwealth to act as an impartial and powerful Third Party to restrain or punish a nation that breaks the covenant of peace has been tried out in the United Nations "Covenants, without the Sword, are but Words, and Words are of no strength to secure a man at all," wrote Hobbes. The Sword has today been supplanted by the Hydrogen Bomb, and the common fear of that all-powerful and impartial weapon should be enough to induce the nations to keep contracts and secure world peace.

Gifted Children Given Own Class of Higher Study

MONTREAL (CP) — For the average student in eighth grade the atomic structure of a sugar molecule may be far beyond understanding, but it's part of the regular curriculum of 32 students at Northmount High School in suburban St. Laurent.

These boys and girls are members of the experimental "gifted children" class featuring advanced courses in academic and practical fields, designed to exploit unusual capabilities.

The class was started last September for students who showed high intelligence in IQ tests, or were recommended by teachers for extraordinary powers of absorption in various fields.

William Leslie, a special instructor, said the class was formed "both for the good of its members and society in general."

A report by a special education committee said the world requires competent leadership and society cannot afford to neglect possibilities that might be developed toward this end.

The committee said the members of gifted children classes should be motivated to understand "their talents are not theirs alone" and to acquire a standard of performance in keeping with the gifts nature has endowed on them.

Similar classes were started several years ago in a few schools under the jurisdiction of the Greater Montreal Protestant School Board.

"But they had to be discontinued because of difficulties in obtaining staff and a general feeling among the members that they were being isolated socially," said Dr. Lorne Hamilton, supervisor of student guidance.

Thomas Summerville, director of education of the board, said the classes are not a new concept, "but the large number of students in our schools have made it impossible for a scale-program."

W.M.S. Meeting

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. was held in the United church hall, on Wednesday afternoon, May 23rd. Owing to the illness of the president, Mrs. H. Warner, the meeting was conducted by Mrs. Joe Paré, vice-president. Devotions were taken by Mrs. K. Murray.

Mrs. P. Peterson reported that 140 lbs. of used clothing were sent to the United church relief depot in Toronto.

Among items of business discussed was a food table for the strawberry social, which is to be held the latter part of June.

Mrs. A. Derreck reported that the group had been asked to donate a layette for W.M.S. work. This will be packed and shipped as soon as possible.

The afternoon was spent quilting while a few chapters of "Cross and Crisis in Japan" by Charles W. Iglerhart, were read.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. A. Derreck and Mrs. F. Greer.

Organizations Stress Wide Variation In Farmer-Consumer Prices

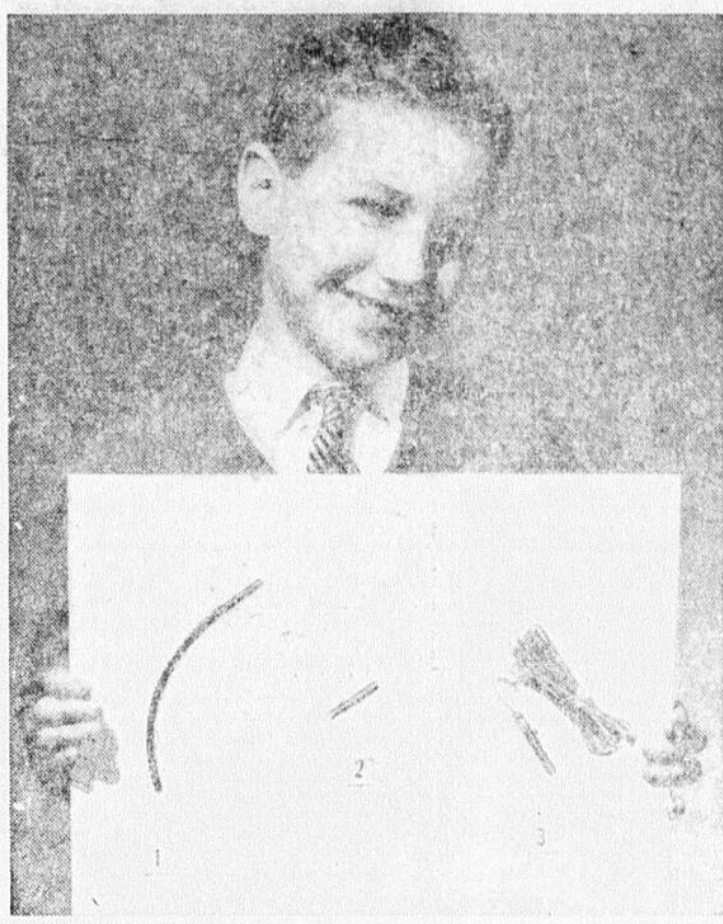

Briefs presented to the royal commission on price spreads by farm organizations in western Canada during the recent sittings of the commission in the west have been concerned mainly with producing evidence to demonstrate the wide gap which exists between the prices which producers of food products have been receiving on their farms and the ultimate price paid by consumers for the processed product at the retail level. These briefs have been well received by the royal commission, which has encouraged those representing farm organizations to provide as much data as possible, and to express their views on the reasons for the wide difference of prices.

Purchasing Power of Wage Earner Greater
A very comprehensive brief was presented by the B.C. Federation, supported by a considerable amount of statistical material. In its opening remarks, the brief said: "It is the fervent hope of the farmers of B.C. that based on your studies the Commission will be able to come forward with specific recommendations as to costly processing, packaging or merchandising services that can be eliminated so as to make possible a return for their produce commensurate with that earned by the other sections of our society, and in keeping with the investment, long hours of work, and gamble with the vagaries of nature with which the farmers have to contend".

The brief quoted federal statistics to show that one hour's earnings of industrial wages in 1956 were able to buy more food than in 1948. It was shown that one hour's wages in industry in 1956 could buy 7.6 loaves of bread, against only 6.8 loaves in 1948; 2.1 lbs. of milk against 5.1 in 1948; 2 lbs. of butter against 1.3 in 1948; 2 lbs. of steak against 1.6 lbs. in 1948; 2.4 dozen eggs against 1.5 dozen in 1948.
For the purpose of comparison of producer prices with consumer prices, the B.C. brief had reference to the prices quoted by one of the large super-market concerns over a period of years, 1948 to 1958 with the following results:
Beef: Producer price, no increase; consumer price, sirloin steak up 67%; ground beef up 22%.
Pork: Producer price down 2%; consumer price up 29%.
Frying chicken and fowl: Producer price down 11%; consumer price up 9%.
Poultry: Producer price down 10%; consumer price up 4%.
Milk: Producer price up 51%; consumer price up 69%; milk driver's basic wage up 117%; dairy workers wages up 93%.

Eggs: Producer price down 7 cents dozen; consumer price down 1c per dozen.
Alberta Federation Brief
The brief presented to the price spreads commission by the Alberta Federation of Agriculture pursued much the same line as that of the B.C. brief, emphasizing at one point, with figures, the increased purchasing power of the industrial worker in recent years, with no corresponding rise in producer prices. The brief made special reference to the place of its co-operative member bodies, which, the Federation said, endeavored to return to the producer as large a share of the consumer dollar as possible. Co-operatives have attempted, and in many instances, have accomplished, reduction of the standard of statutory handling charges for grain, at the same time following the policy of keeping the co-operatives on a competitive basis with other businesses, and returning to producers, in cash and reserves, surplus over and above actual handling costs. In most cases, said the brief, this carried benefit in reduced consumer costs only to participating members, but there had been evidence in some fields that the competition provided by co-operatives had led to improved services and reduced charges among all businesses.
Demonstrating by statistics the increase in purchasing power of wages among consumers over the years, the Alberta brief quoted the report of the late Dr. E. C. Hope, economist of the Canadian Federation, in which he said, among other things: "The tragedy of the present situation in agriculture is that the decline in the farmer's position has been so prolonged (6 years) that urban people are becoming accustomed to cheap food in terms of current wages."
The Alberta brief said that the farmers' share of the food costs was undoubtedly a disturbing fact, one amply established by the decline in the producer's share of the consumer's dollar had declined from 51 percent, in 1949 to 45 percent, in 1956.
"The brief attacked the sales agents of the retail trade, particularly in the field of advertising, much of which it seems was based on come-ons and gimmicks such as toys, novelties, etc. which added to merchandising costs, the most vicious form being the pressure directed at parents through children. Much of the advertising programs, the brief said, seemed to be carried to extremes and must constitute an unwarranted charge against the commodities concerned.
Alberta Wheat Pool Brief
Dealing particularly with consumer bread prices, the Alberta Wheat Pool brief demonstrated that since 1949 the farmer's share of the consumer price of bread had dropped from 23% in 1949 to 14% in 1956, while the marketing margin on bread had gone up from 7.7 cents per lb. to 11.5 cents. Other figures produced showed the relationship between the retail price of bread per loaf in Calgary, with the first price per bushel of wheat to the farmer, the former having sharply advanced, while the latter had fallen back. While the price of bread to the consumer had gone up 7 cents a loaf, the cost of the wheat in the loaf had risen only 1.5 of a cent.
The brief expressed the hope that the commission's investigations would include a close look at the costs making up the difference between the farmer's price for wheat and what consumers must pay for their bread.
Wide Spreads in Manitoba
Further evidence of wide spreads between producer and consumer prices for foods was provided in the brief submitted by the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture, with figures based upon prices in the retail markets of Winnipeg. The brief emphasized that farmers have been forced to accept a lower price for food items they produce but consumers have not reaped the benefit. Consequently, said the brief,

KNOW WHAT THESE ARE?

BLASTING CAPS used to detonate explosives in blasting sewers, roads, dams or for building excavations can seriously injure children who might mistake them for firecrackers or empty rifle cartridges. Here are examples of different types of blasting caps: 1. An aluminum blasting cap with safety fuse attached. 2. An aluminum blasting cap without safety fuse. 3. An electric blasting cap. All are dangerous in the wrong hands and children finding a stray one should notify parents, police or other authority.

Blasting Caps Are Not For Children
A sign reading "Danger - men at work" is a magnet for children looking for excitement, and after the workmen have left, there are fascinating odds and ends of construction materials to be carried home as trophies.
But youngsters could pick up a handful of trouble, especially where such work involves blasting in the construction of sewers, dams or excavations for new buildings. Essential tools in this construction work are blasting caps used to detonate explosives. If mishandled, they can seriously injure children who mistake them for firecrackers or empty rifle cartridges.
"It's all very well to say 'don't touch blasting caps' but what are parents to do if a child comes home with one? The first thing to know is what a blasting cap looks like.
There are two main types: non-electric and electric. Non-electric caps are made of a non-conductive material, usually wood or plastic, and are covered with a layer of plastic insulation. The cap shells are made of either copper or aluminum and may vary from one to five inches in length.
If one of these blasting caps is brought home by a child or if a stray one is found, there is a simple way to handle it until a police officer or other authorities are notified and can safely dispose of it. Simply wet a towel or other soft cloth, wrap the cap in the towel and put it in a safe place away from the reach of children. Open flame, shock, friction, and rough handling or pulling the wires out in the case of an electric blasting cap, can cause detonation, and both farmers and consumers are dissatisfied.

A branch of farming of considerable extent to Manitoba farmers, said the brief, was the egg and poultry industry. Perhaps no feature of this industry, it stated, had caused so much annoyance to farmers as the large differential frequently appearing between the producer price for eggs and the prices paid by consumers. Figures produced in the brief showed that the general differential in eggs was 16 to 18 cents per dozen between producer and consumer and on occasions had been as high as 25 cents. Respecting poultry, and using turkeys as an example, the brief pointed out that the processing of turkeys through to consumer in the ready-to-cook stage, generally resulted in a 35c lb. price to consumers against the 30c lb. received by the producers. The brief also dealt with price spreads in other food products, particularly bread.
The brief pointed out that widespread margins of recent years seemed to result from increases in retail prices at a time when farm prices were declining, a situation which led to much misunderstanding between urban and farm populations, and unjustified conflict. The brief also emphasized the important effect of the operation of co-operatives in contributing to smaller margins by selling at competitive prices and returning to member patrons the excess of margins over costs of operation.
The Manitoba brief suggested to the commission that the federal bureau of statistics could provide a valuable service by preparing and presenting from time to time, statistics of the comparison of prices of specified products through the various stages of processing and distribution, recording the amount by which the price or value is increased at each stage.

Fear Expressed That De Gaulle May Split Western Alliances

Newspapers from London to India express anxiety that Gen. de Gaulle may split the Western alliance.
"Certainly no one could object to Gen. de Gaulle playing an independent role," said the London Evening Standard. "But the fervent hope of the western world must be that he will keep France within the North Atlantic Treaty Organization."
The Frankfurter Allgemeine said: "The French crisis, into which the country has been plunged by officers in Algeria and which will not end with de Gaulle's coming to power, has raised the danger of developing into a chattering of the western alliance."
West Berlin's Der Tag, close to Chancellor Adenauer's Christian Democratic party, says de Gaulle would steer away from NATO and seek to make Europe a third power between the two super states, the United States and the Soviet Union.
Stockholm's labor paper Aftonbladet says: "De Gaulle's regime is a policy of force and behind the general stand military top names, elite forces and Algerian colonists."
The Indian Express, published in Madras and Bombay, said personal dictatorship by de Gaulle would mean "critical days are ahead, not only for France but for Europe and North America."
An Italian foreign ministry spokesman said: "Italy considers with deep respect the sentiment that stir up the noble French people and expresses its most sincere wishes that the problem of this friendly nation may be solved rapidly and in keeping with the interests of France, of Europe and of the free world."
Algeria Jubilant
A crowd assembled at Algier for fresh demonstrations as the whole of the French African territory awaited Gen. de Gaulle's accession to power in France.
Fighting speeches from military and civil leaders greeted a crowd of 100,000 outside government headquarters. Speeches praised the darkness with a brilliant sun and red, white and blue neon lights illuminated the government buildings. Rockets flared from the rooftops in the biggest demonstration since the takeover movement began in Algier on May 13.
The crowd's excitement reached a peak when Jacques Soustelle, former governor-general of Algeria, said: "Is it not true that you are resolved to go on to the end — that you reject any compromise, any abdication?" The crowd roared, "yes!" Army, navy and air force leaders all addressed the jubilant crowds in similar terms.
Gen. Raoul Salan, French military commander, said: "You have gained a great victory. It is now a matter of realizing it."
Admiral Philippe Auboyneau, commander of the western Mediterranean allied navy forces, pledged for the French navy: "All the navy and former navy men are with you."

Tunisian Flare-up
France's simmering dispute with Tunisia flared again. The former French colony called on the United Nations to consider again charges of French aggression following fighting between French and Tunisian forces in southern Tunisia. France countered with a charge to the UN that Tunisia had broken an agreement to allow French forces to remain on Tunisian soil.
Cardinal Dies
Thousands of mourners filed silently past the bier of Samuel Cardinal Stritch at Chicago last weekend. The body of the 70-year-old Roman Catholic Archbishop of Chicago was lying in state in Holy Name Cathedral until the funeral on Tuesday. The cardinal had left Chicago April 15, to take up his new work as a member of the Roman Curia and as pro-protector of the Congregation for the Propagation of the Faith — a major office before given by the church to an American-born prelate.
Before reaching Rome he was stricken with a blood clot which necessitated amputation of his right arm. He seemed to recover but was stricken again and died May 27.
His death reduced the number of living cardinals to 55, leaving 15 vacancies. There was speculation that the Pope soon may call a consistory to name more members to the college of cardinals.
Canadian Killed
Lt.-Col. Georges Flint, 47-year-old native of Chateaufort, Quebec, died between shipping to and from Israel, near Mount Scopus enclave in Jordan, trying to set up a ceasefire. He had been doing the same thing since arriving in a United Nations truce officer in January 1956, and once before was injured in a land mine blast.
A shot rang out and he pitched forward and bled to death while gunfire pinned down companions seeking to rescue him. Israel charged that a Jordanian sniper fired the fatal shot. Jordan said an Israel gunman was responsible.
The Parliament at Ottawa suggested that Col. Flint be awarded the first Canada Medal was made by Harold Winch (COP) Vancouver. Established in 1943, the Canada Medal has never been awarded.

In-A-Hurry Driver Target Of Drive

OTTAWA — The "in-a-hurry" driver will find himself the target of an international campaign to reduce traffic deaths this summer. Beginning June 1, Canada and the United States, with Puerto Rico participating as well, will conduct an intensive "Slow Down and Live" drive. Police, governments, safety organizations, industry and many other groups will co-operate in this campaign against the motorist who attempts to use all the tricks he knows to get farthest fast.

The campaign will aim its guns at the driver who cuts into traffic, fails to stop at intersections, jumps traffic-control signals and generally drives as a menace to other drivers and pedestrians. The heart of the campaign will attempt to make each individual motorist realize that he is the offender, not the other motorist, and the slogan, appearing below a picture of a surprised-looking vehicle operator, will read, "Who? Me?"

This is Canada's second year to participate in the "Slow Down and Live" campaign, sponsored nationally here by the Canadian Highway Safety Conference. As last year, the 1958 effort will run through the summer vacation months of June, July and August and an official Provincial Safety Director will co-ordinate the activities in each province, providing assistance as well to the community safety councils where they exist.

In 1957, the over-all record of highway fatalities in Canada did not decrease as compared to the same 1956 period. However, traffic deaths dropped during the summer in five provinces as well as in 28 states and Puerto Rico.

Said W. Arch. Bryce, general manager of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, national sponsors in Canada of Slow Down and Live, "With the Canadian motoring and walking public becoming more and more aware of the perils of traffic and taking precautions to avoid those perils, we have hope for a definite reduction in highway deaths this summer. However, as our chairman, Hon. Gordon Taylor, has pointed out, the only way this can be done is for the individual driver and pedestrian to do it. He cannot leave it to the other fellow and expect to be safe himself."

King Reid Carnival Opens At Ormstown Exhibition Tonight

Children of all ages, it's Carnival Time at the Ormstown Exhibition.

King Reid, world's greatest showman, will start the Canadian tour of his celebrated International King Reid Carnival when it plays the Ormstown Exhibition Wednesday, June 4th through Saturday, June 7th.

A spangleland of rides and shows will be erected at the Ormstown Fairgrounds beginning Monday, June 2nd, when the King Reid Carnival is scheduled to reach town, traveling in seven vast convoys from Rouses Point, New York, U.S.A.

Now heralded as "The World's Mightiest", King Reid promises that this season's shows and rides will far eclipse his former endeavors. Seventeen major and miniature rides and ten featured attractions have been designed to fit the tastes of the entire family from tykes to tycoons.

Major rides include a Merry-Go-Round, two giant Ferris Wheels, a Tilt-A-Whirl, Chair-O-Plane, Comet, Ride-O, Spin-ar-oo, the latest zaniest ride now being featured at the Ormstown Fair, Fly-O-Blair, an 80-foot thriller, the 50-ton Scooter with sixteen Bumper Cars. The small fry can go by land, sea or air via the Turnpike, a 600-foot Junior Thruway, Wild West Ponies, Ferris Wheels, Planes or Speed Boats.

A highlight on the Midway is America's foremost and largest super circus sideshow — the Gold Medal Circus Sideshow produced by Bill Chalkias. Here the performance is continuous with many different acts which include Jack Connors, the Fat Boy, weighing 714 pounds; Sir Stretcho, the Indian Rubber Man whose skin stretches three feet; the Ossified Man, a mortal slowly turning to stone; a lightning cartoonist, who draws pictures upside down, or any other way; Kelly, the sword swallower who downs neon tubes; the Dog Child with the features of an English Bull Dog; Jack Waldron, the midget Fire Eater; the Oriental Torture Chamber; Voltinga, the Electric Girl with 2,000 volts going through her body; Prof. Lo-Jo-Ko with a dancing and singing Marionette Revue and Felix, the Pueblo Lightning Sculptor.

Another bright spot is the "Club 17" presented by Lawrence Williams, discovered of the Ink Spots. This is a minstrel Rock 'N Roll Revue featuring colored night club performers direct from Los Vegas, New Mexico, U.S.A.

Irene Burton's Wild Animal Menagerie and Exotic Aviary are an exhibit of 72 ferocious beasts from the four corners of the earth. In it are big bats from Carlsbad Caverns, New Mexico, a rare Guinea Baboon imported from the Ganges River in India, a wild Arctic Wolf from the North Pole, a Platinum Fox from Prince Edward Island, a titanic King Vulture from the Andes Mountains in South America, a spotted leopard from Kenya, Africa, Peter, the rosy-pink Pelican from India with an 11-foot wing spread and the largest of its kind in captivity, a South American Kinkajou and many other rare animals and birds. Other features on the Midway are Torchy Lee and Lila, the Monkey Circus, the Fun House, the Snake Show, a reptilian and lizard exhibit; the Bug House, a Mirror Maze, in which a man was lost for three weeks until finally discovered by his Draft Board.

The celebrated international King Reid Shows plays all the outstanding and largest State Fairs in the Northeast and is the midway attraction for the Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts and Pennsylvania State Fairs where it shows simultaneously with such artists as Bob Hope, Pat Boone and Roy Rogers.

It has been featured in Life Magazine and on the carnival cover of the Saturday Evening Post and is the first carnival ever to appear on TV when it was sponsored by the Ford Motor Company.

The Ormstown Exhibition is the first fair date of the mammoth King Reid Carnival and is the beginning of its Canadian tour. From here it will move to Lachute, Quebec where it will play the Argenteuil County Fair at the Fairgrounds from June 12th through June 14th.

For the past few years Maxville Fair has attracted many people from this area and they have come back with glowing reports of this annual event. This year the Board of the Fair has made several improvements about the grounds and in the presentation of the program.

D. M. Gamble, the Secretary-Manager of the Fair says that about four acres of the grounds have been mowed down with a specially purchased mower and this part looked like a large lawn.

Huntingdon Citizens' Band Leads Parade Of Air Force Cadets

Huntingdon Citizens' Band was struck off the strength of the Reserve Army in Valleyfield, two weeks ago and will now be devoting more of its time to local interests.

The first appearance of the Band took place last Thursday evening, when they paraded the Air Force Cadets of St. Joseph's School through the streets of town. At Prince St., they stopped outside Mayor Cappell's residence and gave him a salute. He gave them words of encouragement and best wishes.

On Monday evening, Air Force officials came from St. Johns for the inspection of the cadets and the Band played for the march past when the salute was taken. Concerts in the Park will commence the latter part of this month. The band has an extensive schedule for the summer months and has had an offer to play in Montreal on June 15th. The occasion is the 75th anniversary of the League of the Sacred Heart which takes place at St. Joseph's Shrine, in Montreal. The band will play six concerts in the Park during the summer. The junior band is coming along very well and it is expected that it will be allowed to sit in on some of the above concerts.

Sympathy is extended to Bandsman Keith Howden, whose mother passed away on Sunday afternoon.

Confidence... WHEN YOU BUY on the I.A.C. MERIT PLAN

For more than a quarter of a century the I.A.C. MERIT PLAN has been used by more Canadians who buy cars than any other financing plan or method. More than that, it has been, consistently, the most used plan — used repeatedly by the same families over a whole generation.

Watch your budget when you buy "on time". Avoid "easy terms" and "low down payment" financing — they're more costly in the end. See your MERIT PLAN dealer. He'll recommend the best terms for you.

Powerscourt

POWERSCOURT — A considerable amount of work is being done on the river bed south of the Covered Bridge. The water is being diverted and it is hoped that this will prevent the damage to the buttments which occurs each spring. Bulldozers and steam shovel are certainly cleaning the appearance of the east bank of the river.

Powerscourt pulpit was occupied on Sunday by Mr. Russel Young, who replaced Mr. Van Goudoever. The latter was in Hamilton, Ont., where he was ordained, after his graduation from McGill Theological College last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris Erskine and 3 children were weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Briand at Ste. Martine.

Weekend guests at the Taylor home were Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Scriver and Fred of Hampstead, Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Smallman of Dundee were Sunday guests at the same home.

The Boy Scout Camp is reopened for the summer, and a number of campers were there over the weekend. Weather conditions are not favorable for camping and it is to be hoped that Old Sol will soon shine and warm things up a bit.

Miss Christina Ross of Montreal and little Joan Fraser of Dundee were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ross.

Glenelm

Canadian Hospitals Pioneer Part-Time Mental Treatment

Three Canadian hospitals are pioneering a new kind of part-time mental treatment. In an article, "Part-Time Treatment Brings New Hope to Mental Ill," Albert M. Masel reports that two hospitals in Montreal and one in Burnaby, B.C., near Vancouver — plus a few in Britain and the United States — are having startling success with the program. The kind of treatment are traditional, but its application is unique. Instead of being removed from society, the patients continue their lives much as before, spending either days or nights — depending on the case and the hospital — under treatment. At the Night Centre of Montreal General Hospital, for example, the patients go about their normal work in the daytime, and at dusk check in for treatment, including insulin therapy, intensive psychotherapy sessions and a good night's sleep. When they leave in the morning, bed linens are changed for day Centre patients — housewives and night-shift workers — who report for treatment in the morning. In the afternoon a third shift arrives: out-patients for electroshock treatment. Part-time hospitals obviously do not suit all mental cases; the violent, or those with progressive mental breakdown, need full-time care. But Masel reports they are effective in many more cases than doctors first supposed. Many times, patients were admitted temporarily to Montreal General's Night Centre while waiting for a vacancy at a crowded full-time commitment hospital. When the vacancy became available, the assigned psychiatrist discovered commitment was no longer necessary. Under the part-time system, treatment also can begin sooner. Masel points out, since it is not as drastic a step as commitment, men and women in licensed occupations — like barbers and lawyers — also can benefit from it, since in many communities a record of formal commitment would bar them from further pursuit of their profession. Widespread adoption of the part-time plan could save millions of dollars in hospital costs; but more important, tens of thousands of lives could be saved the blight of commitment.

Open Air Religious Service To Be Held At Covey Hill

An open air service will be held at Dykebar House, the home of Dr. Stanley Brooks and Mr. John Alexander, Frontier Road, Covey Hill, on Sunday, June 29th at 7 p.m. The general public is invited to attend this service and to hear the message that will be given and to enjoy the special musical numbers by the combined three choirs. The service will be conducted by Big Ernest Pich of the Salvation Army, Montreal, assisted by Rev. K. Murray of Hemmingford and Rev. A. D. Evans, of the United Church, Howick. Worshipers of all church denominations are welcome to attend and take part in this service. Many Salvation Army members will also be present to assist in the service. It is hoped that people from the surrounding area will keep this date in mind and find time to attend this service. Further details will be given from time to time in this newspaper.

Record Holstein Sales — National And Rosafe

A total of $75,900.00 was realized for the 54 head of purebred Holsteins sold at the annual National Holstein Sale, held at Oakville, Ont., on May 26. This represented a general average price of $1,405.00, the second highest average in the history of that sale. Milan Italy, a 3-year-old bull, was the top prize, selling for $1,509.00 having been made in 1945, with $15,200.00 as the top price. At this year's sale the top price was $5,500.00. Nitro

NITRO — May 28 was the long awaited Rally date for Guides and Brownies of the South Western Division and they came by special bus and private car to Beautiful Saucy Park, Valleyfield, which they thoroughly explored and enjoyed. The weatherman was rather unkind at first but by the time lunch was over the sun was coming through the clouds and the usual good spirits of Guides and Brownies shone out as well. After a period of enjoying the play ground facilities, climbing, sight-seeing and patronizing the refreshment booth they were ready for their sing song. These songs were very well done in groups and as a single group. After this followed the Brownie prayer and "Taps". The songs and poems from Brownies, members of the Local Association, Valleyfield, and in-stay with their leaders attended. Mrs. W. H. F. Gregory, Health Officer, Commissioner of W. Division was also in attendance, as well as several members of the Local Association. It was a delightful event and everyone went home happy. A surprise party took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Swartz, Laurier St., on Friday when eight girl friends surprised her on her birthday. The girls arrived at supper time and did full justice to the delicious food provided by Mrs. Swartz. They were, Gail Angel, Lois Philpott, Pat Horner, Betty Hall, Margaret Anderson, Connie Egan, Judy Dando and Nancy Phene. They are all in leather's class at school and some of them will be leaving home next fall to attend college. Good wishes go with them all. Mrs. H. Davison, Champlain, spent last week in Montreal visiting her daughter Betty and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Robinson visited their aunt in Toronto, for the weekend. Mr. and Mrs. G. Morin, Champlain, have moved to their new home, just outside of the village of Nitro. Mr. and Mrs. Norman Vallée, 14 Purvis St., have gone to make their home in Ormstown. We wish both these families good fortune and happiness in their new homes. Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Clermont are spending 2 weeks vacation with their parents in Nova Scotia. Mr. and Mrs. B. Lamo's new baby daughter was baptized on Sunday at Jeanne d'Arc church, Nitro. Rev. Father Tessier of

Common Central School At Fort Covington Dedicated

DUNDEE — The new $3,000,000.00 Salmon Central High School at Fort Covington was formally dedicated on Sunday, May 25 at 2 P.M. More than 1200 persons attended the ceremonies and were allowed an opportunity to go on guided tours before the afternoon's dedication program began. Mr. Joseph H. Dingle Pres. of the Board of Education called on the principal speaker, Dr. Arthur W. Schmidt, assistant commissioner for school finance and administrative services. He complimented the members of the School Board of the district for their foresightedness in building such a school to take care of the future educational needs of the various communities. Mr. Ford Berry, District Superintendent of Schools; Harry J. Weir, High School Principal; and Thomas C. Cavanagh, Supervising Principal, also made remarks. The building was presented to Miss Katherine Sullivan, President of the Salmon River Central School Teachers Association by Darrel Rippeau, representing the architectural firm who planned the building. Previously he had accepted the keys from Wayne Boudreau, Superintendent of the General Contracting Firm of A. Frederick and Sons of Rochester and Watertown. The new electronic pipe organ was used for the first time for the mixed school chorus, which rendered selections. The invocation was given by Rev. Morris Dwyer and benediction by Rev. Woodrow White. The Central School district comprises six districts from Westville, ten from Fort Covington, eight from Donkey, and two from Busher. It embraces an area of 230 square miles. The Annual Spring Tea sponsored by the W.A. of Zion United Church, in Dundee, which was held on Friday, May 23, at 2:30 P.M., was a decided success. There were about 75 present including a number from outside points: Fort Covington, Bombay, N.Y., Hoon, The Cove and Kensington. Mrs. R. Beal of Huntington was the guest speaker and her remarks had to do with the Mission work of the Church at home and abroad. Mrs. K. Williams of Kensington rendered a solo entitled "The Song of Peace". She was accompanied on the organ by Mrs.

Donald Fraser. Tea was served in the Church Hall to the guests and a silver offering taken which amounted to $52.00. Mrs. Lester Fraser is in Sherbrooke to visit her mother, who is ill and in Hospital. She expects to remain several days.

Howick

HOWICK W. I. The Howick W.I. met on May 27th in the evening, at the home of Mrs. Bruce Ness. Following the regular opening and the minutes of the previous meeting a motion of thanks to Mr. Geo. McArthur was passed for the use of his sheds for the donation to the Salvation Army and a gift to Mr. Norman Logan for acting as watchman.

The Treasurer reported the sum of $198.35 on hand to date. The sending of handicrafts to Macdonald College was discussed. The conveyer of education read an article entitled "Women and Safe Driving". Mrs. Frank Sutherland reported on prizes for Home Economics to be donated in the Howick High School next Fall and announced the Fashion Show to be held in the school on May 29th. She also gave hints on making meringue and stated that Miss Shirley Brett, radio commentator, is to be married in Vancouver in June.

Mrs. J.D. Lang read the address given by Mrs. Rand, President of the F.W.I.C. Mrs. Lincoln West gave some practical ideas, such as: — ice-cubes to remove gum from fabric, tomato slices to remove ink stains, rice in salt-shaker to prevent dampness, a slice of apple to keep brown sugar soft. Mrs. Arthur Kerr stated that pre-pasted wall-paper is easily applied when wet with a sponge, and that a folded towel may be used under embroidery for ironing. She also showed a book with envelopes for recipe clippings. It was mentioned that the F.W.I.C. received a beaver pelt, treated and inscribed, as a Citizenship award from the government.

The guest speaker, Mr. Roy Cameron, described his three weeks trip to Venezuela with a shipment of cattle. They left Ayrshire by train for St. John, N.B., where the cattle, quiet in a strange place, were lifted into the boat in crates by crane. A stop was made at a port on the south side of the Dominican Republic. Here the crew had shore leaves and saw the tomb of Christopher Columbus and other sights, including the market square, where everything imaginable was sold. Many jeeps were to be seen.

On arrival in Venezuela they were met by armed customs officers on account of the unsettled conditions prevailing. Trucks were waiting for the cattle but it was several hours before they were allowed to be unloaded to travel sixty miles into the mountains. While they were in the port an hour-long riot broke out. To get their suitcases out of customs, stamps had to be bought. Return was made to New York by K.L.M. plane, on which they had their first good meal since leaving their ship. At Idlewild airport they boarded a Canadian plane for Montreal. As it was 90 degrees when they left Venezuela and 10 above in Montreal, they had to keep adding clothes as they travelled.

The Jehovah group served refreshments. The next meeting will be held July 9th at the home of Mrs. Bruce Chisholm.

The Annual Meeting of the Howick Home and School was held Monday evening, May 26th, with 34 members present. The Library committee reported that temporary shelves have been built to hold some of the many books that have been received. Very full reports were given by the delegates to the Home and School Conference held in the new Queen Elizabeth Hotel, these were Mrs. Roy Angell, Mrs. Robert Tolhurst, Sr., Mrs. Robert McFarlane and Mr. Homer Brady. Jehovah's Witnesses Visited By Supervisor

MR. GILBERT BLAIS

On Tuesday night, Huntingdon congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses commenced a week of increased activity.

Duncan Keffer, local presiding minister said, "Our desire is to be ministers who are well qualified to teach. Because of this we are visited semi-annually by our district supervisor, Mr. Gilbert Blais.

Blais announced last night, "There is no time to delay. We in Huntingdon here have the God given responsibility of caring for the persons in this neighborhood and sharing with them the valuable information found in the Bible."

Blais also encouraged all those associated with the Huntingdon congregation to take part in the "Divine Will" International Assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses that will be held in New York City July 27-Aug. 3 as this will probably be the largest Christian assembly ever held.

The weeks' activity will be concluded with a public talk given by Blais entitled, "Meeting the Needs of Life Seekers." This will be held on Sunday, at the home of Clifford Booth. "All are welcome."

It's the lowest priced of all leading cars built in Canada. And that's not all!

- You get the highest trade-in allowance of the year, right now, when you buy a new Plymouth!
- You get your choice of 21 models — all priced lower than comparable models of other leading Canadian cars!
- You get at these low prices a full-sized car with full-sized roomy comfortable interiors — and Plymouth parks easier, drives easier, handles easier than any other car on the road.
- You get the biggest windshield, biggest wipers (and they're electric!) and biggest trunk in the low-price field!
- You get Plymouth's advanced Torsion-AIRE Ride. (It doesn't cost a cent extra, yet independent tests show it's superior to "special" ride systems that add as much as $150 to the cost of other cars.)
